WHEREAS, each Transferor is the record, legal and beneficial owner of the number of ordinary shares (“Shares”) of the Fund set forth opposite such Transferor’s name on Exhibit A hereto (with respect to each Transferor, the “Transferred Shares”).

WHEREAS the Transferee is an affiliate and wholly owned subsidiary of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“HCMLP”) which is one of the initial members of the Fund.

WHEREAS, each Transferor wishes to transfer and assign 100% of its rights, title and interest as a shareholder in the Fund, including the Transferred Shares (the “Interest”) on the terms set forth in this Transfer Agreement.

WHEREAS, subject to and in connection with the approval of that certain Settlement Agreement, dated on or about the date hereof, by and among HCMLP and the Transferors (the “Settlement Agreement”), the Transferee desires that the Interest be transferred to Transferee and that thereafter the Transferee will become a Shareholder and the Transferors will no longer be Shareholders.

WHEREAS, the Portfolio Manager desires to consent to such transfers and to the admission of Transferee as a Shareholder on the terms set forth herein, and the Transferors and Transferee agree to such terms.

WHEREAS, the Fund desires to amend its records to reflect the foregoing transfers.

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties hereto agree as follows:

- b. In connection with the transfer of the Interest as contemplated herein, the Transferee shall be granted the right to appoint a representative to the Fund’s advisory board (the “Advisory Board”) to replace the Transferors’ appointed representative to the Advisory Board.

- c. Transferee hereby assumes all of Transferor's rights and obligations in respect of the Interest effective as of the Effective Date (as defined below) and acknowledge that thereafter Transferee shall be subject to the applicable terms and provisions of the Members' Agreement dated as of November 15, 2017 (the "Members' Agreement"), the Articles of Incorporation adopted November 15, 2017 (the "Articles") and the Subscription and transfer Agreement, dated as of November 15, 2017 among each Transferor, the Fund and the Portfolio Manager (the "Subscription Agreement", and together with the Members' Agreement and the Articles, the "Fund Agreements") with respect to the Interest. Transferee does not assume any liability or responsibility for any obligations or liabilities incurred by any Transferor prior to the Effective Date of the transfer.

  - e. This Transfer Agreement, and the parties' obligations hereunder, are conditioned in all respects on the approval by the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9019 of (i) this Transfer Agreement and (ii) the Settlement Agreement, and each of the parties agree that no further action shall be required from any party for the transfer of the Interest to be effective except as described herein.

AGREED PROTECTIVE ORDER

This Agreed Protective Order (the “Order”) governs any document, information, or other thing that has been or will be produced or received by a Party (as defined below) in the action In re Highland Capital Management, L.P., Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ) (the “Bankruptcy Case”), pending in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the “Court”) (collectively, the “Discovery Materials”). Discovery Materials include, without limitation, testimony adduced at depositions; responses to interrogatories; responses to requests for admission (and documents produced in connection with such responses); and documents and things produced voluntarily or in response to any type of request. “Party” or “Parties” means any person or entity that (1) produces, (2) designates, (3) receives, formally or informally, or (4) reviews any Discovery Materials designated as Confidential or Highly Confidential Information, as defined in this Order.

TERMS OF AGREED ORDER

1. Confidential Information. As used in this Order, “Confidential Information” means all documents, data, reports, interpretations, forecasts, financial and business projections, records, agreements, contracts, business plans, marketing materials and vendor agreements or programs (whether in oral or written form, electronically stored, or otherwise) containing or otherwise reflecting information provided by or on behalf of any Party or any of the Parties’ respective Representatives (as defined below) before, on, or after the date hereof, and all reproductions of such information (whether in written form, electronically stored, or otherwise or substantially derived from the information described above), that the producing Party reasonably believes in good faith is confidential or sensitive proprietary, personal, commercial, financial, or business information or that is otherwise subject to protection under a pre-existing agreement or applicable law or regulation. Accordingly, for example, “Confidential Information” does not include information that (a) is or becomes generally available to the public other than as a result of disclosure by a Party or any of the Parties’ Representatives in breach of this Order; (b) was lawfully within a Party’s possession prior to it being furnished to such Party in the Bankruptcy Case; (c) becomes available to a Party from a source other than the producing Party or any of its Representatives, provided that such source is not, to such receiving Party’s knowledge, bound by a confidentiality agreement with, or other contractual, legal or fiduciary obligation of confidentiality to, the producing Party with respect to such information; or (d) is independently developed by a receiving Party without reference to or reliance upon any information furnished to such receiving Party by or on behalf of the producing Party.

2. Use and Disclosure of Confidential Information. Subject to the terms of this Order, each Party shall (i) keep the Confidential Information confidential in accordance with the terms of this Order; (ii) not disclose any Confidential Information except in accordance with the terms of this Order; (iii) not use any Confidential Information in any way other than in connection with the Bankruptcy Case; and (iv) hold and treat all Confidential Information in confidence and with the same degree of care that such Party exercises with regard to its own Confidential Information; provided, however, that each Party may disclose any Confidential Information (A) to any other Party subject to this Order; (B) counsel and other professionals retained by the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Committee,”); (C) to any Representative of any Party other than the Committee, which is addressed in paragraph 2(iv)(B); (D) to the extent permitted pursuant to paragraph 9 below; (E) to the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas and its personnel; (F) the United States Trustee for the Northern District of Texas (the “U.S. Trustee”); (G) any person who is indicated on the face of a document or its related documents to have been an author, addressee or copy recipient of such document, an actual or intended recipient of such document, or in the case of meeting minutes, an attendee of the meeting; (H) for purposes of witness preparation, any deponent or witness who was noticed for a deposition, or is on a witness list for hearing or trial, in preparation for his or her noticed deposition, hearing, or trial testimony where such material is determined by counsel in good faith to be necessary to the anticipated subject matter of testimony; (I) in the case of a deposition, to any court reporter, stenographer, or videographer in attendance; and (J) in response to a subpoena issued from another court or as otherwise required by law. For purposes of this Order, “Representatives” means a Party’s parent(s), subsidiaries, affiliates, officers, directors, employees, contractors, attorneys (whether in-house or outside counsel), financial advisors and other professionals engaged by the Party, or its agents and representatives.

3. Highly Confidential Information. A producing Party may designate information that it reasonably believes in good faith is so personally, economically, or competitively sensitive that (a) disclosure would materially affect or threaten injury to its personal, commercial, or financial interests, and (b) the protections provided to Confidential Information in this Order are insufficient, as being restricted Highly Confidential Information (the “Highly Confidential Information”).

4. Use and Disclosure of Highly Confidential Information. Discovery Materials designated as “Highly Confidential” may only be viewed by the people and entities identified in paragraphs 2(iv) (B), (D), (E), (F), (G), (H) (I) or (J). Discovery Materials designated as “Highly Confidential” may not otherwise be disclosed without the producing Party’s prior written consent or further order of the Court. Highly Confidential Information may be disclosed to the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas and its personnel as long as the information is filed under seal under the procedures set forth in L.B.R. 9077-1.

5. Designating Confidential and Highly Confidential Information. Where practicable, the producing Party may designate Discovery Materials as Confidential or Highly Confidential by applying the legend “Confidential” or “Highly Confidential” to the Discovery Materials. In the case of data stored in electronic form (“ESI”), the legend shall be printed on the cover or container of the disk, tape or other medium in which the electronic data is produced and/or on the ESI itself. If such measures are not practicable, the producing Party shall designate the Discovery Materials as Confidential or Highly Confidential through other feasible means.

6. Disputes Over Designation of Confidential Information. In the event that any Party objects to any designation of Discovery Materials as Confidential Information (the “Objecting Party”), the Objecting Party shall notify the producing or designating Party in writing, stating the grounds of the objection. The producing or designating Party shall have ten (10) business days following the receipt of an objection from the Objecting Party of any Confidential Information designation to attempt to resolve the objection, at the end of which the Objecting Party may seek a ruling from the Court by written notice and a motion and pursuant to the Court’s individual rules and procedures that such information should not be treated as Confidential Information. For the avoidance of doubt, the burden of establishing the Confidential nature of any Discovery Materials shall be borne by the producing or designating Party.

7. Disputes Over Designation of Highly Confidential Information. In the event that any Party objects to any designation of Discovery Materials as Highly Confidential Information, the Objecting Party shall notify the other producing or designating Party in writing, stating the grounds of the objection. The producing or designating Party shall have five (5) business days following receipt of an objection from the Objecting Party of any Highly Confidential Information designation to attempt to resolve the objection, at the end of which, if the dispute is not resolved, the producing or designating Party must seek a ruling from the Court by written notice and a motion and pursuant to the Court’s individual rules and procedures that such information should be treated as Highly Confidential Information. In the absence of such a filing within five (5) business days from the receipt of the objection, the information will be deemed Confidential Information (and not Highly Confidential Information) under this Order. For the avoidance of doubt, the burden of establishing the Highly Confidential nature of any Discovery Materials shall be borne by the producing or designating Party.

8. Depositions. During any deposition or interview, if counsel for any Party reasonably believes that any answer to a question will result in the disclosure of Confidential Information or Highly Confidential Information, counsel may require that all persons other than those entitled to view the Confidential Information or Highly Confidential Information, as the case may be, leave the room during the relevant portion of the deposition or interview. Any Party shall have the right to designate on the record, or within ten (10) business days following receipt of the final transcript of the deposition, any portion of the deposition transcript as Confidential Information or Highly Confidential Information. Transcripts of testimony or portions thereof so designated during the deposition may, at the option of any Party, be appropriately marked.

9. Legally Required Disclosure. If any Party is requested or required (by oral questions, interrogatories, requests for information or documents in legal proceedings, subpoena, civil investigative demand or other similar process, or by applicable law or the rules or regulations of any regulatory authority having jurisdiction over such Parties) to disclose in connection with a matter that is not the Bankruptcy Case any of the Confidential Information or Highly Confidential Information, such Party shall provide the Party that produced or designated such information with prompt written notice of any such request or requirement so that the producing or designating Party may seek a protective order or other remedy, and/or waive compliance with the provisions of this Order. In the absence of a protective order or other remedy at the time of the deadline for the production of the Confidential Information or Highly Confidential Information (including any extensions of such deadline), the Party may, without liability hereunder, disclose that portion of the Confidential Information or Highly Confidential Information which is legally required to be disclosed.

10. Nothing herein shall prevent the U.S. Trustee from disclosing Discovery Material for civil or criminal law enforcement purposes in compliance with a subpoena or court order, or pursuant to any request under the Freedom of Information Act or other applicable law requiring disclosure, subject to the U.S. Trustee providing prompt notice to the Producing Party as described in Paragraph 9 above.

11. No Waiver. The failure to designate any Discovery Materials as Confidential Information or Highly Confidential Information shall not constitute a waiver of such claim. If at any time any of the Parties believes that certain testimony or some portion of Discovery Materials that was previously produced should have been designated as Confidential Information or Highly Confidential Information, that Party shall promptly notify all of the other Parties who have received such testimony or Discovery Materials in writing, and such designated testimony or portion of Discovery Materials will thereafter be treated as Confidential Information or Highly Confidential Information under the terms of this Order. If such information has been disclosed by a Party between the time of production or receipt of the transcript containing the testimony and the time at which a Party gives notice that the Discovery Materials are to be designated as Confidential Information or Highly Confidential Information, such disclosure shall not constitute a violation of this Order.

12. Claw Back of Inadvertently Produced Protected Materials. If Discovery Materials protected from disclosure under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b)(5) (“Protected Materials”) are inadvertently or mistakenly produced, such production shall in no way prejudice or otherwise constitute a waiver of, or estoppel as to, any claim of privilege or work-product immunity for such information or any other information that may be protected from disclosure by the attorney-client privilege, the work-product immunity, or any other legally cognizable privilege or other protection. If the producing Party inadvertently or mistakenly produces Protected Materials, upon written request by the producing Party after the discovery of such inadvertent or mistaken production, the receiving Party shall use all commercially reasonable efforts to return or destroy the Protected Materials and all copies of it, including any work product containing, identifying, or referencing such information, and the receiving Party shall not use such information for any purpose other than in connection with a motion to compel production of the information. The Parties shall not use any inadvertently produced Protected Materials, or information gleaned exclusively from any inadvertently produced Protected Materials, in connection with the Bankruptcy Case, except to the extent that the inadvertently producing Party withdraws its designation of the relevant material as Protected Materials or that the Court determines that the relevant material was not properly designated as Protected Materials.

13. No Bar Against Seeking Further Protection. Nothing in this Order shall be construed as preventing any Party from seeking further protection for or disclosure of any Discovery Material.

14. No Admission Regarding Admissibility or Relevancy. Nothing in this Order shall be construed to affect in any way the admissibility or relevance of any Discovery Material or other evidence.

15. No Bar to Use of Party's Own Discovery Material. This Order shall have no effect on, and shall not apply to, a producing Party's use or disclosure of its own Discovery Material for any purposes whatsoever.

16. Conclusion of Litigation and Return of Confidential Information. Within sixty (60) calendar days after final judgment in this action, including the exhaustion of all appeals, or within sixty (60) calendar days after dismissal pursuant to a settlement agreement, each Party or other person subject to the terms of this Protective Order is under an obligation to destroy or return to the producing Party all materials and documents containing Confidential Information or Highly Confidential Information, and to certify to the producing Party that this destruction or return has been done. However, outside counsel for any Party is entitled to retain all court papers, trial transcripts, exhibits, and attorney work product provided that any such materials are maintained and protected in accordance with the terms of this Agreed Protective Order.

17. No Third-Party Beneficiaries. No Third-Party Beneficiaries. There are no third-party beneficiaries to this Order. For the avoidance of doubt, this provision precludes non-Debtor affiliates, and their Representatives, including any entity affiliated with, owned by, or controlled in any way, directly or indirectly, by James Dondero and his affiliates (the “Dondero Parties”) from seeking to enforce or rely on this Order in any way, unless any of the Dondero Parties is asked (formally or informally) to produce or receive Discovery Materials thereby becoming a "Party" as defined herein. The Dondero Parties are subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of this Court. Nothing in this order shall be deemed to limit third parties (other than the Dondero Parties) who receive a subpoena issued by the Court from seeking to quash or modify that subpoena in the court for the district where compliance is required pursuant to FRCP 45(d).

18. Exclusive Jurisdiction. This Court retains exclusive jurisdiction for matters arising from or related to this Order, including but not limited to after confirmation of any plan of reorganization or conversion of this Bankruptcy Case. The Court further reserves the right to amend this Order upon a motion of any party in interest after notice and a hearing.

B. Overview of HarbourVest's Claims

10. HarbourVest's claims against the Debtor's estate arise from its $80 million investment in Highland CLO Funding, f/k/a Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. ("HCLOF"), pursuant to which HarbourVest obtained a 49 percent interest in HCLOF (the "Investment").

11. In brief, HarbourVest contends that it was fraudulently induced into entering into the Investment based on the Debtor's misrepresentations and omissions concerning certain material facts, including that the Debtor: (1) failed to disclose that it never intended to pay an arbitration award obtained by a former portfolio manager, (2) failed to disclose that it engaged in a series of fraudulent transfers for the purpose of preventing the former portfolio manager from collecting on his arbitration award and misrepresented the reasons changing the portfolio manager for HCLOF immediately prior to the Investment, (3) indicated that the dispute with the former portfolio manager would not impact investment activities, and (4) expressed confidence in the ability of HCLOF to reset or redeem the collateralized loan obligations ("CLOs") under its control.

12. HarbourVest seeks to rescind its Investment and claims damages in excess of $300 million based on theories of fraud, fraudulent inducement, fraudulent concealment, fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, and breach of fiduciary duty (under Guernsey law), and on alleged violations of state securities laws and the Racketeer Influenced Corrupt Organization Act ("RICO").

13. HarbourVest's allegations are summarized below.<sup>4</sup>

<sup>4</sup> Solely for purposes of this Motion, and not for any other reason, the facts set forth herein are adopted largely from the HarbourVest Response to Debtor's First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims; (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No-Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-Documentation Claims [Docket No. 1057] (the "Response").

C. Summary of HarbourVest’s Factual Allegations

14. At the time HarbourVest made its Investment, the Debtor was embroiled in an arbitration against Joshua Terry (“Mr. Terry”), a former employee of the Debtor and limited partner of Acis Capital Management, L.P. (“Acis LP”). Through Acis LP, Mr. Terry managed Highland’s CLO business, including CLO-related investments held by Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. (“Acis Funding”).

15. The litigation between Mr. Terry and the Debtor began in 2016, after the Debtor terminated Mr. Terry and commenced an action against him in Texas state court. Mr. Terry asserted counterclaims for wrongful termination and for the wrongful taking of his ownership interest in Acis LP and subsequently had certain claims referred to arbitration where he obtained an award of approximately $8 million (the “Arbitration Award”) on October 20, 2017.

16. HarbourVest alleges that the Debtor responded to the Arbitration Award by engaging in a series of fraudulent transfers and corporate restructurings, the true purposes of which were fraudulently concealed from HarbourVest.

17. For example, according to HarbourVest, the Debtor changed the name of the target fund from Acis Funding to “Highland CLO Funding, Ltd.” (“HCLOF”) and “swapped out” Acis LP for Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd. as portfolio manager (the “Structural Changes”). The Debtor allegedly told HarbourVest that it made these changes because of the “reputational harm” to Acis LP resulting from the Arbitration Award. The Debtor further told HarbourVest that in lieu of redemptions, resetting the CLOs was necessary, and that it would be easier to reset them under the “Highland” CLO brand instead of the Acis CLO brand.

18. In addition, HarbourVest also alleges that the Debtor had no intention of allowing Mr. Terry to collect on his Arbitration Award, and orchestrated a scheme to “denude”

Acis of assets by fraudulently transferring virtually all of its assets and attempting to transfer its profitable portfolio management contracts to non-Acis, Debtor-related entities.

19. Unaware of the fraudulent transfers or the true purposes of the Structural Changes, and in reliance on representations made by the Debtor, HarbourVest closed on its Investment in HCLOF on November 15, 2017.

20. After discovering the transfers that occurred between Highland and Acis between October and December 2017 following the Arbitration Award (the “Transfers”), on January 24, 2018, Terry moved for a temporary restraining order (the “TRO”) from the Texas state court on the grounds that the Transfers were pursued for the purpose of rendering Acis LP judgment-proof. The state court granted the TRO, enjoining the Debtor from transferring any CLO management contracts or other assets away from Acis LP.

21. On January 30, 2018, Mr. Terry filed involuntary bankruptcy petitions against Acis LP and its general partner, Acis Capital Management GP, LLC. See In re Acis Capital Management, L.P., Case No. 18-30264-sgj11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018) and In re Acis Capital Management GP, LLC, Case No. 18-30265-sgj11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018) (collectively, the “Acis Bankruptcy Case”). The Bankruptcy Court overruled the Debtor’s objection, granted the involuntary petitions, and appointed a chapter 11 trustee (the “Acis Trustee”). A long sequence of events subsequently transpired, all of which relate to HarbourVest’s claims, including:

- On May 31, 2018, the Court issued a sua sponte TRO preventing any actions in furtherance of the optional redemptions or other liquidation of the Acis CLOs.
- On June 14, 2018, HCLOF withdrew optional redemption notices.
- The TRO expired on June 15, 2018, and HCLOF noticed the Acis Trustee that it was requesting an optional redemption.

- HCLOF's request was withdrawn on July 6, 2018, and on June 21, 2018, the Acis Trustee sought an injunction preventing Highland/HCLOF from seeking further redemptions (the "Preliminary Injunction").
- The Court granted the Preliminary Injunction on July 10, 2018, pending the Acis Trustee's attempts to confirm a plan or resolve the Acis Bankruptcy.
- On August 30, 2018, the Court denied confirmation of the First Amended Joint Plan for Acis, and held that the Preliminary Injunction must stay in place on the ground that the "evidence thus far has been compelling that numerous transfers after the Josh Terry judgment denuded Acis of value."
- After the Debtor made various statements implicating HarbourVest in the Transfers, the Acis Trustee investigated HarbourVest's involvement in such Transfers, including extensive discovery and taking a 30(b)(6) deposition of HarbourVest's managing director, Michael Pugatch, on November 17, 2018.
- On March 20, 2019, HCLOF sent a letter to Acis LP stating that it was not interested in pursuing, or able to pursue, a CLO reset transaction.

D. The Parties' Pleadings and Positions Concerning HarbourVest's Proofs of Claim

22. On April 8, 2020, HarbourVest filed proofs of claim against Highland that were subsequently denoted by the Debtor's claims agents as claim numbers 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, and 154, respectively (collectively, the "Proofs of Claim"). Morris Dec. Exhibits 2-7.

23. The Proofs of Claim assert, among other things, that HarbourVest suffered significant harm due to conduct undertaken by the Debtor and the Debtor's employees, including "financial harm resulting from (i) court orders in the Acis Bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise relegated the activity of HCLOF [i.e., the Preliminary Injunction]; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis Bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF." See, e.g., Morris Dec. Exhibit 2 ¶3.

24. HarbourVest also asserted "any and all of its right to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor in connection with and relating to the forgoing harm, including for any amounts due or owed under the various agreements with the Debtor in connection with relating to” the Operative Documents “and any and all legal and equitable claims or causes of action relating to the forgoing harm.” See, e.g., Morris Dec. Exhibit 2 ¶4.

25. Highland subsequently objected to HarbourVest’s Proofs of Claim on the grounds that they were no-liability claims. [Docket No. 906] (the “Claim Objection”).

26. On September 11, 2020, HarbourVest filed its Response. The Response articulated specified claims under U.S. federal and state and Guernsey law, including claims for fraud, fraudulent concealment, fraudulent inducement, fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation (collectively, the “Fraud Claims”), U.S. State and Federal Securities Law Claims (the “Securities Claims”), violations of the Federal Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (“RICO”), breach of fiduciary duty and misuse of fund assets, and an unfair prejudice claim under Guernsey law (collectively, with the Proofs of Claim, the “HarbourVest Claims”).

27. On October 18, 2020, HarbourVest filed its Motion of HarbourVest Pursuant to Rule 3018 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure for Temporary Allowance of Claims for Purposes of Voting to Accept or Reject the Plan [Docket No. 1207] (the “3018 Motion”). In its 3018 Motion, HarbourVest sought for its Claims to be temporarily allowed for voting purposes in the amount of more than $300 million (based largely on a theory of treble damages).

E. Settlement Discussions

28. In October, the parties discussed the possibility of resolving the Rule 3018 Motion.

29. In November, the parties broadened the discussions in an attempt to reach a global resolution of the HarbourVest Claims. In the pursuit thereof, the parties and their counsel participated in several conference calls where they engaged in a spirited exchange of perspectives concerning the facts and the law.

30. During follow up meetings, the parties' interests became more defined. Specifically, HarbourVest sought to maximize its recovery while fully extracting itself from the Investment, while the Debtor sought to minimize the HarbourVest Claims consistent with its perceptions of the facts and law.

31. After the parties' interests became more defined, the principals engaged in a series of direct, arm's-length, telephonic negotiations that ultimately lead to the settlement, whose terms are summarized below.

F. Summary of Settlement Terms

32. The Settlement Agreement contains the following material terms, among others:

- HarbourVest shall transfer its entire interest in HCLOF to an entity to be designated by the Debtor;<sup>5</sup>
- HarbourVest shall receive an allowed, general unsecured, non-priority claim in the amount of $45 million and shall vote its Class 8 claim in that amount to support the Plan;
- HarbourVest shall receive a subordinated, allowed, general unsecured, non-priority claim in the amount of $35 million and shall vote its Class 9 claim in that amount to support the Plan;
- HarbourVest will support confirmation of the Debtor's Plan, including, but not limited to, voting its claims in support of the Plan;
- The HarbourVest Claims shall be allowed in the aggregate amount of $45 million for voting purposes;
- HarbourVest will support the Debtor's pursuit of its pending Plan of Reorganization; and
- The parties shall exchange mutual releases.

<sup>5</sup> The NAV for HarbourVest's 49.98% interest in HCLOF was estimated to be approximately $22 million as of December 1, 2020.

See generally Morris Dec. Exhibit 1.

BASIS FOR RELIEF REQUESTED

33. Bankruptcy Rule 9019 governs the procedural prerequisites to approval of a settlement, providing that:

On motion by the trustee and after notice and a hearing, the court may approve a compromise or settlement. Notice shall be given to creditors, the United States trustee, the debtor, and indenture trustees as provided in Rule 2002 and to any other entity as the court may direct.

FED. R. BANKR. P. 9019(a).

34. Settlements in bankruptcy are favored as a means of minimizing litigation, expediting the administration of the bankruptcy estate, and providing for the efficient resolution of bankruptcy cases. See Myers v. Martin (In re Martin), 91 F.3d 389, 393 (3d Cir. 1996); Rivercity v. Herpel (In re Jackson Brewing Co.), 624 F.2d 599, 602 (5th Cir. 1980). Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019(a), a bankruptcy court may approve a compromise or settlement as long as the proposed settlement is fair, reasonable, and in the best interest of the estate. See In re Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d 530, 540 (5th Cir. 2015). Ultimately, “approval of a compromise is within the sound discretion of the bankruptcy court.” See United States v. AWECO, Inc. (In re AWECO, Inc.), 725 F.2d 293, 297 (5th Cir. 1984); Jackson Brewing, 624 F.2d at 602–03.

35. In making this determination, the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit applies a three-part test, “with a focus on comparing ‘the terms of the compromise with the rewards of litigation.’” Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors v. Cajun Elec. Power Coop. (In re Cajun Elec. Power Coop.), 119 F.3d 349, 356 (5th Cir. 1997) (citing Jackson Brewing, 624 F.2d at 602). The Fifth Circuit has instructed courts to consider the following factors: “(1) The probability of success in the litigation, with due consideration for the uncertainty of law and fact, (2) The complexity and likely duration of the litigation and any attendant expense, inconvenience and delay, and (3) All other factors bearing on the wisdom of the compromise.” Id. Under the rubric of the third factor referenced above, the Fifth Circuit has specified two additional factors that bear on the decision to approve a proposed settlement. First, the court should consider “the paramount interest of creditors with proper deference to their reasonable views.” Id.; Conn. Gen. Life Ins. Co. v. United Cos. Fin. Corp. (In re Foster Mortgage Corp.), 68 F.3d 914, 917 (5th Cir. 1995). Second, the court should consider the “extent to which the settlement is truly the product of arms-length bargaining, and not of fraud or collusion.” Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d at 540; Foster Mortgage Corp., 68 F.3d at 918 (citations omitted).

36. There is ample basis to approve the proposed Settlement Agreement based on the Rule 9019 factors set forth by the Fifth Circuit.

37. First, although the Debtor believes that it has valid defenses to the HarbourVest Claims, there is no guarantee that the Debtor would succeed in its litigation with HarbourVest. Indeed, to establish its defenses, the Debtor would be required to rely, at least in part, on the credibility of witnesses whose veracity has already been called into question by this Court. Moreover, it will be difficult to dispute that the Transfers precipitated the Acis Bankruptcy, and, ultimately, the imposition of the Bankruptcy Court’s TRO that restricted HCLOF’s ability to reset or redeem the CLOs and that is at the core of the HarbourVest Claims.

38. The second factor—the complexity, duration, and costs of litigation—also weighs heavily in favor of approving the Settlement Agreement. As this Court is aware, the events forming the basis of the HarbourVest Claims—including the Terry Litigation and Acis Bankruptcy—proceeded for years in this Court and in multiple other forums, and has already cost the Debtor’s estate millions of dollars in legal fees. If the Settlement Agreement is not approved, then the parties will expend significant resources litigating a host of fact-intensive issues including, among other things, the substance and materiality of the Debtor's alleged fraudulent statements and omissions and whether HarbourVest reasonably relied on those statements and omissions.

39. Third, approval of the Settlement Agreement is justified by the paramount interest of creditors. Specifically, the settlement will enable the Debtor to: (a) avoid incurring substantial litigation costs; (b) avoid the litigation risk associated with HarbourVest's $300 million claim; and (c) through the plan support provisions, increase the likelihood that the Debtor's pending plan of reorganization will be confirmed.

40. Finally, the Settlement Agreement was unquestionably negotiated at arm's-length. The terms of the settlement are the result of numerous, ongoing discussions and negotiations between the parties and their counsel and represent neither party's "best case scenario." Indeed, the Settlement Agreement should be approved as a rational exercise of the Debtor's business judgment made after due deliberation of the facts and circumstances concerning HarbourVest's Claims.

NO PRIOR REQUEST

41. No previous request for the relief sought herein has been made to this, or any other, Court.

NOTICE

42. Notice of this Motion shall be given to the following parties or, in lieu thereof, to their counsel, if known: (a) counsel for HarbourVest; (b) the Office of the United States Trustee; (c) the Office of the United States Attorney for the Northern District of Texas; (d) the Debtor's principal secured parties; (e) counsel to the Committee; and (f) parties requesting notice pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 2002. The Debtor submits that, in light of the nature of the relief requested, no other or further notice need be given.

WHEREFORE, the Debtor respectfully requests entry of an order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A, (a) granting the relief requested herein, and (b) granting such other relief as is just and proper.

Chapter 11

Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ)

ANNEX TO PROOF OF CLAIM

1. This annex (the “Annex”) is part of and is incorporated by reference into the attached proof of claim (together with the Annex, the “Proof of Claim”) and describes in more detail the claims of HarbourVest 2017 Global Fund L.P. (the “Claimant”) against the debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”).

2. The Claimant is a limited partner in one of the Debtor’s managed vehicles, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (“HCLOF”). Acis Capital Management GP, L.L.C. and Acis Capital Management L.P. (together, “Acis”), the portfolio manager for HCLOF, filed for chapter 11 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the “Court”) on January 30, 2018. The Acis bankruptcy filing resulted from a dispute between Debtor and its former employee, Joshua Terry, who served as portfolio manager for Debtor’s collateral loan obligations funds (“CLO”) business. See, e.g., Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law in Support of Orders for Relief Issued After Trial on Contested Involuntary Bankruptcy Petition (“Involuntary Petition Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No. 118]. As noted in more detail in the Court’s Bench Ruling and Memorandum of Law in Support of: (A) Final Approval of Disclosure Statement; and (B) Confirmation of Chapter 11 Trustee’s Third Amended Joint Plan (“Confirmation Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No 827] and related filings in the Acis bankruptcy cases, there has been extensive litigation regarding alleged improper conduct associated with the management of, and transactions relating to, Acis, including transactions with and related to HCLOF. See, e.g., id.; Second Amended Complaint [Case No. 18-03078(SGJ), Dkt. No. 157].

3. Due to the Acis bankruptcy and certain conduct alleged to have been undertaken by the Debtor (to whom Acis subcontracted its functions) and Debtor's employees (who were officers, employees, and agents of Acis), the Claimant has suffered significant harm. Such harm includes, but is not limited to, financial harm resulting from, among other things (i) court orders in the Acis bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise regulated the activity of HCLOF; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF. See, e.g., Involuntary Petition Ruling ¶ 27; see also Confirmation Ruling.

4. Claimant hereby files this Claim to assert any and all of its rights to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor in connection with and relating to the foregoing harm, including for any amounts due or owed under the various agreements with the Debtor in connection with HCLOF (including, but not limited to, the Subscription and Transfer Agreement for Ordinary Shares Highland CLO Funding, Ltd., dated as of November 15, 2017, the Members Agreement Relating to the Company, dated as of November 15, 2017, the Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. Offering Memorandum dated November 15, 2017), and any and all legal and equitable claims or causes of action relating to the foregoing harm.

5. The Claimant has not attached the documentation supporting this Claim to this Proof of Claim because the documentation is voluminous and the Debtor has copies of such documents. However, any requested relevant documents will be provided to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, the Court, the United States Trustee and the Debtor in the event of a dispute regarding this Proof of Claim and will be made available for review by other parties in interest as appropriate upon reasonable request and after consultation with the Debtor and execution of appropriate confidentiality agreements.

6. This Proof of Claim is filed with a full reservation of rights, including the right to amend, update, modify, supplement or otherwise revise this Proof of Claim in any respect at any time. The filing of this Proof of Claim is not and should not be construed to be: (a) a waiver or release of any of the Claimant's rights against any person, entity or property accruing to it against the Debtor and its estate; (b) a waiver of the Claimant's rights to assert that 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(C) is unconstitutional; (c) a consent or submission by the Claimant, or waiver of the Claimant's rights to object, to the jurisdiction of this Court with respect to the subject matter of any of the claims described herein, or any objection or other proceeding commenced with respect to any of the claims described herein, or any other proceeding commenced in the Debtor's chapter 11 case against or otherwise involving the Claimant; (d) a waiver or release of any right of the Claimant, or consent by the Claimant, to a trial by jury in this or any other court or proceeding; (e) a waiver or release of, or any limitation on, any right of the Claimant to have orders entered only after de novo review by a United States District Judge; (f) an election of remedies; or (g) a waiver of, or any other limitation on, any right of the Claimant to request withdrawal of the reference with respect to any matter, including, without limitation, any matter relating to this Proof of Claim.

7. Claimant's express reservation of all rights and causes of action, includes, without limitation, contingent or unliquidated rights that it or its affiliates may have against the Debtor, as well as defenses, offsets and counterclaims. This description and classification of claims by the Claimant is not a concession or admission as to the correct characterization or treatment of any such claims or a waiver of any rights of the Claimant.

8. Furthermore, the Claimant expressly reserves its rights to (a) file additional proofs of claim for additional claims that may be based on the same or additional documents or facts or other liability or indebtedness of the Debtor to the Claimant under contract or otherwise; (b) assert claims for cure of defaults in any agreement that the Debtor or any trustee appointed in this chapter 11 case may seek to assume; (c) assert any and all other claims, causes of action, defenses, offsets or counterclaims against the Debtor or any other parties; (d) file a request for payment of an administrative expense under 11 U.S.C. §§ 503 and 507 for any or all of the claims or rights of payment described above and any additional amounts; and (e) seek recovery through any relevant third parties, including any of the Debtor's insurance coverage providers.

9. This Proof of Claim does not encompass all claims that the Claimant or its affiliates may have that arise after the Petition Date and are entitled to administrative priority, and the Claimant expressly reserves its right to file such claim or any similar claim at the appropriate time, including any such post-petition claims arising under these service contracts.

10. This Proof of Claim is filed without prejudice to the filing by the Claimant of additional proofs of claim or requests for payment with respect to any other indebtedness, liability or obligation of the Debtor. The Claimant does not, by this Proof of Claim or any amendment or other action, waive any rights with respect to any scheduled claim.

11. The Claimant reserves the right to withdraw, amend, clarify, modify or supplement this Proof of Claim to assert additional claims, causes of action or additional grounds for this Proof of Claim (including adding any additional contracts, agreements, obligations or other relationships between the Claimant and the Debtor), as well as the right to file any separate or additional proofs of claim with respect to the claims set forth herein or otherwise, including for the purpose of fixing and liquidating any contingent or unliquidated claim set forth herein, or to file additional proofs of claim in respect of additional amounts or for any other reason.

12. In executing and filing this Proof of Claim, the Claimant does not submit to the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas for any purpose other than with respect to this Proof of Claim against the Debtor, and does not waive or release any rights or remedies against any other person or entity that may be liable for all or part of this Proof of Claim.

13. The Claimant otherwise reserves its rights, and nothing herein shall prejudice the Claimant's rights, under any order of the Court previously entered in this chapter 11 case.

14. Payments on account of this Proof of Claim should be sent to the Claimant at the address specified for notices to the Claimant in Part 1.3 of the Proof of Claim.

Furthermore, the Claimant expressly reserves its rights to (a) file additional proofs of claim for additional claims that may be based on the same or additional documents or facts or other liability or indebtedness of the Debtor to the Claimant under contract or otherwise; (b) assert claims for cure of defaults in any agreement that the Debtor or any trustee appointed in this chapter 11 case may seek to assume; (c) assert any and all other claims, causes of action, defenses, offsets or counterclaims against the Debtor or any other parties; (d) file a request for payment of an administrative expense under 11 U.S.C. §§ 503 and 507 for any or all of the claims or rights of payment described above and any additional amounts; and (e) seek recovery through any relevant third parties, including any of the Debtor's insurance coverage providers.

9. This Proof of Claim does not encompass all claims that the Claimant or its affiliates may have that arise after the Petition Date and are entitled to administrative priority, and the Claimant expressly reserves its right to file such claim or any similar claim at the appropriate time, including any such post-petition claims arising under these service contracts.

10. This Proof of Claim is filed without prejudice to the filing by the Claimant of additional proofs of claim or requests for payment with respect to any other indebtedness, liability or obligation of the Debtor. The Claimant does not, by this Proof of Claim or any amendment or other action, waive any rights with respect to any scheduled claim.

11. The Claimant reserves the right to withdraw, amend, clarify, modify or supplement this Proof of Claim to assert additional claims, causes of action or additional grounds for this Proof of Claim (including adding any additional contracts, agreements, obligations or other relationships between the Claimant and the Debtor), as well as the right to file any separate or additional proofs of claim with respect to the claims set forth herein or otherwise, including for the purpose of fixing and liquidating any contingent or unliquidated claim set forth herein, or to file additional proofs of claim in respect of additional amounts or for any other reason.

12. In executing and filing this Proof of Claim, the Claimant does not submit to the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas for any purpose other than with respect to this Proof of Claim against the Debtor, and does not waive or release any rights or remedies against any other person or entity that may be liable for all or part of this Proof of Claim.

13. The Claimant otherwise reserves its rights, and nothing herein shall prejudice the Claimant's rights, under any order of the Court previously entered in this chapter 11 case.

14. Payments on account of this Proof of Claim should be sent to the Claimant at the address specified for notices to the Claimant in Part 1.3 of the Proof of Claim.

In re:

Highland Capital Management, L.P.

Debtor.

Chapter 11

Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ)

ANNEX TO PROOF OF CLAIM

1. This annex (the “Annex”) is part of and is incorporated by reference into the attached proof of claim (together with the Annex, the “Proof of Claim”) and describes in more detail the claims of HarbourVest Partners L.P. on behalf of funds and accounts under management (the “Claimant”) against the debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”).

2. The Claimant manages investment funds that are limited partners in one of the Debtor’s managed vehicles, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (“HCLOF”). Acis Capital Management GP, L.L.C. and Acis Capital Management L.P. (together, “Acis”), the portfolio manager for HCLOF, filed for chapter 11 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the “Court”) on January 30, 2018. The Acis bankruptcy filing resulted from a dispute between Debtor and its former employee, Joshua Terry, who served as portfolio manager for Debtor’s collateral loan obligations funds (“CLO”) business. See, e.g., Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law in Support of Orders for Relief Issued After Trial on Contested Involuntary Bankruptcy Petition (“Involuntary Petition Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No. 118]. As noted in more detail in the Court’s Bench Ruling and Memorandum of Law in Support of: (A) Final Approval of Disclosure Statement; and (B) Confirmation of Chapter 11 Trustee’s Third

000411

Amended Joint Plan (“Confirmation Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No 827] and related filings in the Acis bankruptcy cases, there has been extensive litigation regarding alleged improper conduct associated with the management of, and transactions relating to, Acis, including transactions with and related to HCLOF. See, e.g., id.; Second Amended Complaint [Case No. 18-03078(SGJ), Dkt. No. 157].

3. Due to the Acis bankruptcy and certain conduct alleged to have been undertaken by the Debtor (to whom Acis subcontracted its functions) and Debtor’s employees (who were officers, employees, and agents of Acis), the Claimant has suffered significant harm. Such harm includes, but is not limited to, financial harm resulting from, among other things (i) court orders in the Acis bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise regulated the activity of HCLOF; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF. See, e.g., Involuntary Petition Ruling ¶ 27; see also Confirmation Ruling.

4. Claimant hereby files this Claim to assert any and all of its rights to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor in connection with and relating to the foregoing harm, including for any amounts due or owed under the various agreements with the Debtor in connection with HCLOF (including, but not limited to, the Subscription and Transfer Agreement for Ordinary Shares Highland CLO Funding, Ltd., dated as of November 15, 2017, the Members Agreement Relating to the Company, dated as of November 15, 2017, the Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. Offering Memorandum dated November 15, 2017), and any and all legal and equitable claims or causes of action relating to the foregoing harm.

5. The Claimant has not attached the documentation supporting this Claim to this Proof of Claim because the documentation is voluminous and the Debtor has copies of such documents. However, any requested relevant documents will be provided to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, the Court, the United States Trustee and the Debtor in the event of a dispute regarding this Proof of Claim and will be made available for review by other parties in interest as appropriate upon reasonable request and after consultation with the Debtor and execution of appropriate confidentiality agreements.

6. This Proof of Claim is filed with a full reservation of rights, including the right to amend, update, modify, supplement or otherwise revise this Proof of Claim in any respect at any time. The filing of this Proof of Claim is not and should not be construed to be: (a) a waiver or release of any of the Claimant's rights against any person, entity or property accruing to it against the Debtor and its estate; (b) a waiver of the Claimant's rights to assert that 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(C) is unconstitutional; (c) a consent or submission by the Claimant, or waiver of the Claimant's rights to object, to the jurisdiction of this Court with respect to the subject matter of any of the claims described herein, or any objection or other proceeding commenced with respect to any of the claims described herein, or any other proceeding commenced in the Debtor's chapter 11 case against or otherwise involving the Claimant; (d) a waiver or release of any right of the Claimant, or consent by the Claimant, to a trial by jury in this or any other court or proceeding; (e) a waiver or release of, or any limitation on, any right of the Claimant to have orders entered only after de novo review by a United States District Judge; (f) an election of remedies; or (g) a waiver of, or any other limitation on, any right of the Claimant to request withdrawal of the reference with respect to any matter, including, without limitation, any matter relating to this Proof of Claim.

7. Claimant's express reservation of all rights and causes of action, includes, without limitation, contingent or unliquidated rights that it or its affiliates may have against the Debtor, as well as defenses, offsets and counterclaims. This description and classification of claims by the Claimant is not a concession or admission as to the correct characterization or treatment of any such claims or a waiver of any rights of the Claimant.

8. Furthermore, the Claimant expressly reserves its rights to (a) file additional proofs of claim for additional claims that may be based on the same or additional documents or facts or other liability or indebtedness of the Debtor to the Claimant under contract or otherwise; (b) assert claims for cure of defaults in any agreement that the Debtor or any trustee appointed in this chapter 11 case may seek to assume; (c) assert any and all other claims, causes of action, defenses, offsets or counterclaims against the Debtor or any other parties; (d) file a request for payment of an administrative expense under 11 U.S.C. §§ 503 and 507 for any or all of the claims or rights of payment described above and any additional amounts; and (e) seek recovery through any relevant third parties, including any of the Debtor's insurance coverage providers.

9. This Proof of Claim does not encompass all claims that the Claimant or its affiliates may have that arise after the Petition Date and are entitled to administrative priority, and the Claimant expressly reserves its right to file such claim or any similar claim at the appropriate time, including any such post-petition claims arising under these service contracts.

10. This Proof of Claim is filed without prejudice to the filing by the Claimant of additional proofs of claim or requests for payment with respect to any other indebtedness, liability or obligation of the Debtor. The Claimant does not, by this Proof of Claim or any amendment or other action, waive any rights with respect to any scheduled claim.

11. The Claimant reserves the right to withdraw, amend, clarify, modify or supplement this Proof of Claim to assert additional claims, causes of action or additional grounds for this Proof of Claim (including adding any additional contracts, agreements, obligations or other relationships between the Claimant and the Debtor), as well as the right to file any separate or additional proofs of claim with respect to the claims set forth herein or otherwise, including for the purpose of fixing and liquidating any contingent or unliquidated claim set forth herein, or to file additional proofs of claim in respect of additional amounts or for any other reason.

12. In executing and filing this Proof of Claim, the Claimant does not submit to the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas for any purpose other than with respect to this Proof of Claim against the Debtor, and does not waive or release any rights or remedies against any other person or entity that may be liable for all or part of this Proof of Claim.

13. The Claimant otherwise reserves its rights, and nothing herein shall prejudice the Claimant's rights, under any order of the Court previously entered in this chapter 11 case.

14. Payments on account of this Proof of Claim should be sent to the Claimant at the address specified for notices to the Claimant in Part 1.3 of the Proof of Claim.

In re:

Highland Capital Management, L.P.

Debtor.

Chapter 11

Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ)

ANNEX TO PROOF OF CLAIM

1. This annex (the “Annex”) is part of and is incorporated by reference into the attached proof of claim (together with the Annex, the “Proof of Claim”) and describes in more detail the claims of HarbourVest Dover Street IX Investment L.P. (the “Claimant”) against the debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”).

2. The Claimant is a limited partner in one of the Debtor’s managed vehicles, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (“HCLOF”). Acis Capital Management GP, L.L.C. and Acis Capital Management L.P. (together, “Acis”), the portfolio manager for HCLOF, filed for chapter 11 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the “Court”) on January 30, 2018. The Acis bankruptcy filing resulted from a dispute between Debtor and its former employee, Joshua Terry, who served as portfolio manager for Debtor’s collateral loan obligations funds (“CLO”) business. See, e.g., Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law in Support of Orders for Relief Issued After Trial on Contested Involuntary Bankruptcy Petition (“Involuntary Petition Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No. 118]. As noted in more detail in the Court’s Bench Ruling and Memorandum of Law in Support of: (A) Final Approval of Disclosure Statement; and (B) Confirmation of Chapter 11 Trustee’s Third Amended Joint Plan (“Confirmation Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No 827] and related filings in the Acis bankruptcy cases, there has been extensive litigation regarding alleged improper conduct associated with the management of, and transactions relating to, Acis, including transactions with and related to HCLOF. See, e.g., id.; Second Amended Complaint [Case No. 18-03078(SGJ), Dkt. No. 157].

3. Due to the Acis bankruptcy and certain conduct alleged to have been undertaken by the Debtor (to whom Acis subcontracted its functions) and Debtor's employees (who were officers, employees, and agents of Acis), the Claimant has suffered significant harm. Such harm includes, but is not limited to, financial harm resulting from, among other things (i) court orders in the Acis bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise regulated the activity of HCLOF; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF. See, e.g., Involuntary Petition Ruling ¶ 27; see also Confirmation Ruling.

4. Claimant hereby files this Claim to assert any and all of its rights to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor in connection with and relating to the foregoing harm, including for any amounts due or owed under the various agreements with the Debtor in connection with HCLOF (including, but not limited to, the Subscription and Transfer Agreement for Ordinary Shares Highland CLO Funding, Ltd., dated as of November 15, 2017, the Members Agreement Relating to the Company, dated as of November 15, 2017, the Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. Offering Memorandum dated November 15, 2017), and any and all legal and equitable claims or causes of action relating to the foregoing harm.

5. The Claimant has not attached the documentation supporting this Claim to this Proof of Claim because the documentation is voluminous and the Debtor has copies of such documents. However, any requested relevant documents will be provided to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, the Court, the United States Trustee and the Debtor in the event of a dispute regarding this Proof of Claim and will be made available for review by other parties in interest as appropriate upon reasonable request and after consultation with the Debtor and execution of appropriate confidentiality agreements.

6. This Proof of Claim is filed with a full reservation of rights, including the right to amend, update, modify, supplement or otherwise revise this Proof of Claim in any respect at any time. The filing of this Proof of Claim is not and should not be construed to be: (a) a waiver or release of any of the Claimant's rights against any person, entity or property accruing to it against the Debtor and its estate; (b) a waiver of the Claimant's rights to assert that 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(C) is unconstitutional; (c) a consent or submission by the Claimant, or waiver of the Claimant's rights to object, to the jurisdiction of this Court with respect to the subject matter of any of the claims described herein, or any objection or other proceeding commenced with respect to any of the claims described herein, or any other proceeding commenced in the Debtor's chapter 11 case against or otherwise involving the Claimant; (d) a waiver or release of any right of the Claimant, or consent by the Claimant, to a trial by jury in this or any other court or proceeding; (e) a waiver or release of, or any limitation on, any right of the Claimant to have orders entered only after de novo review by a United States District Judge; (f) an election of remedies; or (g) a waiver of, or any other limitation on, any right of the Claimant to request withdrawal of the reference with respect to any matter, including, without limitation, any matter relating to this Proof of Claim.

7. Claimant's express reservation of all rights and causes of action, includes, without limitation, contingent or unliquidated rights that it or its affiliates may have against the Debtor, as well as defenses, offsets and counterclaims. This description and classification of claims by the Claimant is not a concession or admission as to the correct characterization or treatment of any such claims or a waiver of any rights of the Claimant.

8. Furthermore, the Claimant expressly reserves its rights to (a) file additional proofs of claim for additional claims that may be based on the same or additional documents or facts or other liability or indebtedness of the Debtor to the Claimant under contract or otherwise; (b) assert claims for cure of defaults in any agreement that the Debtor or any trustee appointed in this chapter 11 case may seek to assume; (c) assert any and all other claims, causes of action, defenses, offsets or counterclaims against the Debtor or any other parties; (d) file a request for payment of an administrative expense under 11 U.S.C. §§ 503 and 507 for any or all of the claims or rights of payment described above and any additional amounts; and (e) seek recovery through any relevant third parties, including any of the Debtor's insurance coverage providers.

9. This Proof of Claim does not encompass all claims that the Claimant or its affiliates may have that arise after the Petition Date and are entitled to administrative priority, and the Claimant expressly reserves its right to file such claim or any similar claim at the appropriate time, including any such post-petition claims arising under these service contracts.

10. This Proof of Claim is filed without prejudice to the filing by the Claimant of additional proofs of claim or requests for payment with respect to any other indebtedness, liability or obligation of the Debtor. The Claimant does not, by this Proof of Claim or any amendment or other action, waive any rights with respect to any scheduled claim.

11. The Claimant reserves the right to withdraw, amend, clarify, modify or supplement this Proof of Claim to assert additional claims, causes of action or additional grounds for this Proof of Claim (including adding any additional contracts, agreements, obligations or other relationships between the Claimant and the Debtor), as well as the right to file any separate or additional proofs of claim with respect to the claims set forth herein or otherwise, including for the purpose of fixing and liquidating any contingent or unliquidated claim set forth herein, or to file additional proofs of claim in respect of additional amounts or for any other reason.

12. In executing and filing this Proof of Claim, the Claimant does not submit to the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas for any purpose other than with respect to this Proof of Claim against the Debtor, and does not waive or release any rights or remedies against any other person or entity that may be liable for all or part of this Proof of Claim.

13. The Claimant otherwise reserves its rights, and nothing herein shall prejudice the Claimant's rights, under any order of the Court previously entered in this chapter 11 case.

14. Payments on account of this Proof of Claim should be sent to the Claimant at the address specified for notices to the Claimant in Part 1.3 of the Proof of Claim.

Highland Capital Management, L.P.

Chapter 11

Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ)

ANNEX TO PROOF OF CLAIM

1. This annex (the “Annex”) is part of and is incorporated by reference into the attached proof of claim (together with the Annex, the “Proof of Claim”) and describes in more detail the claims of HV International VIII Secondary L.P. (the “Claimant”) against the debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”).

2. The Claimant is a limited partner in one of the Debtor’s managed vehicles, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (“HCLOF”). Acis Capital Management GP, L.L.C. and Acis Capital Management L.P. (together, “Acis”), the portfolio manager for HCLOF, filed for chapter 11 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the “Court”) on January 30, 2018. The Acis bankruptcy filing resulted from a dispute between Debtor and its former employee, Joshua Terry, who served as portfolio manager for Debtor’s collateral loan obligations funds (“CLO”) business. See, e.g., Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law in Support of Orders for Relief Issued After Trial on Contested Involuntary Bankruptcy Petition (“Involuntary Petition Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No. 118]. As noted in more detail in the Court’s Bench Ruling and Memorandum of Law in Support of: (A) Final Approval of Disclosure Statement; and (B) Confirmation of Chapter 11 Trustee’s Third Amended Joint Plan (“Confirmation Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No 827] and related filings in the Acis bankruptcy cases, there has been extensive litigation regarding alleged improper conduct associated with the management of, and transactions relating to, Acis, including transactions with and related to HCLOF. See, e.g., id.; Second Amended Complaint [Case No. 18-03078(SGJ), Dkt. No. 157].

3. Due to the Acis bankruptcy and certain conduct alleged to have been undertaken by the Debtor (to whom Acis subcontracted its functions) and Debtor's employees (who were officers, employees, and agents of Acis), the Claimant has suffered significant harm. Such harm includes, but is not limited to, financial harm resulting from, among other things (i) court orders in the Acis bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise regulated the activity of HCLOF; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF. See, e.g., Involuntary Petition Ruling ¶ 27; see also Confirmation Ruling.

4. Claimant hereby files this Claim to assert any and all of its rights to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor in connection with and relating to the foregoing harm, including for any amounts due or owed under the various agreements with the Debtor in connection with HCLOF (including, but not limited to, the Subscription and Transfer Agreement for Ordinary Shares Highland CLO Funding, Ltd., dated as of November 15, 2017, the Members Agreement Relating to the Company, dated as of November 15, 2017, the Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. Offering Memorandum dated November 15, 2017), and any and all legal and equitable claims or causes of action relating to the foregoing harm.

5. The Claimant has not attached the documentation supporting this Claim to this Proof of Claim because the documentation is voluminous and the Debtor has copies of such documents. However, any requested relevant documents will be provided to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, the Court, the United States Trustee and the Debtor in the event of a dispute regarding this Proof of Claim and will be made available for review by other parties in interest as appropriate upon reasonable request and after consultation with the Debtor and execution of appropriate confidentiality agreements.

6. This Proof of Claim is filed with a full reservation of rights, including the right to amend, update, modify, supplement or otherwise revise this Proof of Claim in any respect at any time. The filing of this Proof of Claim is not and should not be construed to be: (a) a waiver or release of any of the Claimant's rights against any person, entity or property accruing to it against the Debtor and its estate; (b) a waiver of the Claimant's rights to assert that 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(C) is unconstitutional; (c) a consent or submission by the Claimant, or waiver of the Claimant's rights to object, to the jurisdiction of this Court with respect to the subject matter of any of the claims described herein, or any objection or other proceeding commenced with respect to any of the claims described herein, or any other proceeding commenced in the Debtor's chapter 11 case against or otherwise involving the Claimant; (d) a waiver or release of any right of the Claimant, or consent by the Claimant, to a trial by jury in this or any other court or proceeding; (e) a waiver or release of, or any limitation on, any right of the Claimant to have orders entered only after de novo review by a United States District Judge; (f) an election of remedies; or (g) a waiver of, or any other limitation on, any right of the Claimant to request withdrawal of the reference with respect to any matter, including, without limitation, any matter relating to this Proof of Claim.

7. Claimant's express reservation of all rights and causes of action, includes, without limitation, contingent or unliquidated rights that it or its affiliates may have against the Debtor, as well as defenses, offsets and counterclaims. This description and classification of claims by the Claimant is not a concession or admission as to the correct characterization or treatment of any such claims or a waiver of any rights of the Claimant.

8. Furthermore, the Claimant expressly reserves its rights to (a) file additional proofs of claim for additional claims that may be based on the same or additional documents or facts or other liability or indebtedness of the Debtor to the Claimant under contract or otherwise; (b) assert claims for cure of defaults in any agreement that the Debtor or any trustee appointed in this chapter 11 case may seek to assume; (c) assert any and all other claims, causes of action, defenses, offsets or counterclaims against the Debtor or any other parties; (d) file a request for payment of an administrative expense under 11 U.S.C. §§ 503 and 507 for any or all of the claims or rights of payment described above and any additional amounts; and (e) seek recovery through any relevant third parties, including any of the Debtor's insurance coverage providers.

9. This Proof of Claim does not encompass all claims that the Claimant or its affiliates may have that arise after the Petition Date and are entitled to administrative priority, and the Claimant expressly reserves its right to file such claim or any similar claim at the appropriate time, including any such post-petition claims arising under these service contracts.

10. This Proof of Claim is filed without prejudice to the filing by the Claimant of additional proofs of claim or requests for payment with respect to any other indebtedness, liability or obligation of the Debtor. The Claimant does not, by this Proof of Claim or any amendment or other action, waive any rights with respect to any scheduled claim.

11. The Claimant reserves the right to withdraw, amend, clarify, modify or supplement this Proof of Claim to assert additional claims, causes of action or additional grounds for this Proof of Claim (including adding any additional contracts, agreements, obligations or other relationships between the Claimant and the Debtor), as well as the right to file any separate or additional proofs of claim with respect to the claims set forth herein or otherwise, including for the purpose of fixing and liquidating any contingent or unliquidated claim set forth herein, or to file additional proofs of claim in respect of additional amounts or for any other reason.

12. In executing and filing this Proof of Claim, the Claimant does not submit to the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas for any purpose other than with respect to this Proof of Claim against the Debtor, and does not waive or release any rights or remedies against any other person or entity that may be liable for all or part of this Proof of Claim.

13. The Claimant otherwise reserves its rights, and nothing herein shall prejudice the Claimant's rights, under any order of the Court previously entered in this chapter 11 case.

14. Payments on account of this Proof of Claim should be sent to the Claimant at the address specified for notices to the Claimant in Part 1.3 of the Proof of Claim.

Highland Capital Management, L.P.

Debtor.

Chapter 11

Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ)

ANNEX TO PROOF OF CLAIM

1. This annex (the “Annex”) is part of and is incorporated by reference into the attached proof of claim (together with the Annex, the “Proof of Claim”) and describes in more detail the claims of HarbourVest Skew Base AIF L.P. (the “Claimant”) against the debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”).

2. The Claimant is a limited partner in one of the Debtor’s managed vehicles, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (“HCLOF”). Acis Capital Management GP, L.L.C. and Acis Capital Management L.P. (together, “Acis”), the portfolio manager for HCLOF, filed for chapter 11 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the “Court”) on January 30, 2018. The Acis bankruptcy filing resulted from a dispute between Debtor and its former employee, Joshua Terry, who served as portfolio manager for Debtor’s collateral loan obligations funds (“CLO”) business. See, e.g., Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law in Support of Orders for Relief Issued After Trial on Contested Involuntary Bankruptcy Petition (“Involuntary Petition Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No. 118]. As noted in more detail in the Court’s Bench Ruling and Memorandum of Law in Support of: (A) Final Approval of Disclosure Statement; and (B) Confirmation of Chapter 11 Trustee’s Third Amended Joint Plan (“Confirmation Ruling”) [Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ), Dkt. No 827] and related filings in the Acis bankruptcy cases, there has been extensive litigation regarding alleged improper conduct associated with the management of, and transactions relating to, Acis, including transactions with and related to HCLOF. See, e.g., id.; Second Amended Complaint [Case No. 18-03078(SGJ), Dkt. No. 157].

3. Due to the Acis bankruptcy and certain conduct alleged to have been undertaken by the Debtor (to whom Acis subcontracted its functions) and Debtor's employees (who were officers, employees, and agents of Acis), the Claimant has suffered significant harm. Such harm includes, but is not limited to, financial harm resulting from, among other things (i) court orders in the Acis bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise regulated the activity of HCLOF; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF. See, e.g., Involuntary Petition Ruling ¶ 27; see also Confirmation Ruling.

4. Claimant hereby files this Claim to assert any and all of its rights to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor in connection with and relating to the foregoing harm, including for any amounts due or owed under the various agreements with the Debtor in connection with HCLOF (including, but not limited to, the Subscription and Transfer Agreement for Ordinary Shares Highland CLO Funding, Ltd., dated as of November 15, 2017, the Members Agreement Relating to the Company, dated as of November 15, 2017, the Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. Offering Memorandum dated November 15, 2017), and any and all legal and equitable claims or causes of action relating to the foregoing harm.

5. The Claimant has not attached the documentation supporting this Claim to this Proof of Claim because the documentation is voluminous and the Debtor has copies of such documents. However, any requested relevant documents will be provided to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, the Court, the United States Trustee and the Debtor in the event of a dispute regarding this Proof of Claim and will be made available for review by other parties in interest as appropriate upon reasonable request and after consultation with the Debtor and execution of appropriate confidentiality agreements.

6. This Proof of Claim is filed with a full reservation of rights, including the right to amend, update, modify, supplement or otherwise revise this Proof of Claim in any respect at any time. The filing of this Proof of Claim is not and should not be construed to be: (a) a waiver or release of any of the Claimant's rights against any person, entity or property accruing to it against the Debtor and its estate; (b) a waiver of the Claimant's rights to assert that 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(C) is unconstitutional; (c) a consent or submission by the Claimant, or waiver of the Claimant's rights to object, to the jurisdiction of this Court with respect to the subject matter of any of the claims described herein, or any objection or other proceeding commenced with respect to any of the claims described herein, or any other proceeding commenced in the Debtor's chapter 11 case against or otherwise involving the Claimant; (d) a waiver or release of any right of the Claimant, or consent by the Claimant, to a trial by jury in this or any other court or proceeding; (e) a waiver or release of, or any limitation on, any right of the Claimant to have orders entered only after de novo review by a United States District Judge; (f) an election of remedies; or (g) a waiver of, or any other limitation on, any right of the Claimant to request withdrawal of the reference with respect to any matter, including, without limitation, any matter relating to this Proof of Claim.

7. Claimant's express reservation of all rights and causes of action, includes, without limitation, contingent or unliquidated rights that it or its affiliates may have against the Debtor, as well as defenses, offsets and counterclaims. This description and classification of claims by the Claimant is not a concession or admission as to the correct characterization or treatment of any such claims or a waiver of any rights of the Claimant.

8. Furthermore, the Claimant expressly reserves its rights to (a) file additional proofs of claim for additional claims that may be based on the same or additional documents or facts or other liability or indebtedness of the Debtor to the Claimant under contract or otherwise; (b) assert claims for cure of defaults in any agreement that the Debtor or any trustee appointed in this chapter 11 case may seek to assume; (c) assert any and all other claims, causes of action, defenses, offsets or counterclaims against the Debtor or any other parties; (d) file a request for payment of an administrative expense under 11 U.S.C. §§ 503 and 507 for any or all of the claims or rights of payment described above and any additional amounts; and (e) seek recovery through any relevant third parties, including any of the Debtor's insurance coverage providers.

9. This Proof of Claim does not encompass all claims that the Claimant or its affiliates may have that arise after the Petition Date and are entitled to administrative priority, and the Claimant expressly reserves its right to file such claim or any similar claim at the appropriate time, including any such post-petition claims arising under these service contracts.

10. This Proof of Claim is filed without prejudice to the filing by the Claimant of additional proofs of claim or requests for payment with respect to any other indebtedness, liability or obligation of the Debtor. The Claimant does not, by this Proof of Claim or any amendment or other action, waive any rights with respect to any scheduled claim.

11. The Claimant reserves the right to withdraw, amend, clarify, modify or supplement this Proof of Claim to assert additional claims, causes of action or additional grounds for this Proof of Claim (including adding any additional contracts, agreements, obligations or other relationships between the Claimant and the Debtor), as well as the right to file any separate or additional proofs of claim with respect to the claims set forth herein or otherwise, including for the purpose of fixing and liquidating any contingent or unliquidated claim set forth herein, or to file additional proofs of claim in respect of additional amounts or for any other reason.

12. In executing and filing this Proof of Claim, the Claimant does not submit to the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas for any purpose other than with respect to this Proof of Claim against the Debtor, and does not waive or release any rights or remedies against any other person or entity that may be liable for all or part of this Proof of Claim.

13. The Claimant otherwise reserves its rights, and nothing herein shall prejudice the Claimant's rights, under any order of the Court previously entered in this chapter 11 case.

14. Payments on account of this Proof of Claim should be sent to the Claimant at the address specified for notices to the Claimant in Part 1.3 of the Proof of Claim.

JAMES DONDERO’S OBJECTION TO DEBTOR’S MOTION FOR ENTRY OF AN ORDER APPROVING SETTLEMENT WITH HARBOURVEST [Relates to Docket No. 1625]

James Dondero (“Respondent”), a creditor, indirect equity security holder, and party in interest in the above-captioned bankruptcy case, hereby files this Objection to Debtor’s Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with HarbourVest (Claim Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154) [Docket No. 1625] (the “Motion”) filed by Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”). Through the Motion, the Debtor seeks approval of its compromise with HarbourVest 2017 Global Fund L.P., HarbourVest 2017 Global AIF L.P., HarbourVest Dover Street IX Investment L.P., HV International VIII Secondary L.P., HarbourVest Skew Base AIF L.P., and HarbourVest Partners L.P. (collectively, “HarbourVest”) pursuant to Rule 9019 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the “Bankruptcy Rules”). In support of this objection, Respondent respectfully represents as follows:

I. INTRODUCTION

1. Under Bankruptcy Rule 9019, the Bankruptcy Court is tasked with making an independent judgment on the merits of a proposed settlement to ensure that the proposed settlement is “fair, equitable, and in the best interest of the estate.”<sup>1</sup> While Respondent recognizes the Debtor’s efforts in arranging a settlement, there are at least three significant issues with the terms of the settlement that merit denial of the Motion: (i) the proposed settlement is not reasonable or in the best interest of the estate given the weakness of the HarbourVest Claim (as hereinafter defined); (ii) the proposed settlement is a blatant attempt to purchase votes in support of Debtor’s plan by giving HarbourVest a significant claim to which it would not otherwise be entitled; and (iii) the proposed settlement seeks to improperly classify the HarbourVest Claim<sup>2</sup> in two separate classes in order to gerrymander an affirmative vote on its reorganization plan. Moreover, the proposed settlement does not satisfy the factors for approval fixed by case law. On information and belief, Debtor’s CEO/CRO, Mr. Seery, has previously asserted on multiple occasions that the HarbourVest Claim had no value and that the Debtor could resolve such claim for no more than $5 million. While Respondent and Mr. Seery have had a number of disagreements in this case, Respondent agrees with Mr. Seery’s initial conclusion that the HarbourVest Claim is substantially without merit. Respondent understands that any settlement will not necessarily provide the best possible outcome for the Debtor, but in this instance the proposed settlement far exceeds the bounds of reasonableness and, on its face, is an attempt by the Debtor to purchase votes in favor of confirmation of its Plan. Given the Debtor's prior positions as to the merits of HarbourVest Claim it is necessary for the Court to closely scrutinize the settlement to determine why the Debtor now believes granting HarbourVest a net claim of nearly $60 million<sup>3</sup> resulting from HarbourVest's investment in a non-debtor entity (which was and is managed by a non-debtor) to be in the best interest of the estate. Upon close scrutiny, Respondent believes the Court will find that the proposed settlement is not reasonable or in the best interest of the estate and the Motion therefore should be denied.

II. BACKGROUND

2. On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of title 11 of the United States Code (the "Bankruptcy Code") in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the "Delaware Court").

3. On October 29, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the "Committee") was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in Delaware.

4. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the Debtor's Bankruptcy Case to this Court [Docket No. 186].

5. On December 27, 2019, the Debtor filed that certain Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 281] (the "Settlement Motion"). This Court approved the Settlement Motion on January 9, 2020 [Docket No. 339] (the "Settlement Order").

<sup>3</sup> The proposed settlement provides that HarbourVest shall receive an allowed general unsecured (Class 8) claim in the amount of $45 million and an allowed subordinated general unsecured (Class 9) claim in the amount of $35 million. As part of the settlement, HarbourVest will then transfer its entire interest in Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. ("HCLOF") to an entity to be designated by the Debtor. The Debtor states that the value of this interest is approximately $22 million as of December 1, 2020.

6. In connection with the Settlement Order, an independent board of directors was appointed on January 9, 2020, for the Debtor's general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc. (the "Board"). The members of the Board are James P. Seery, Jr., John S. Dubel, and Russell F. Nelms.

7. On July 16, 2020, this Court entered an order authorizing the Debtor to employ James P. Seery, Jr. as Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer of the Debtor. See Docket No. 854.

8. On April 8, 2020, HarbourVest filed Proofs of Claim Numbers 143, 149, 149, 150, 153, and 154 (collectively, the "HarbourVest Claim")<sup>4</sup>.

9. On July 30, 2020, the Debtor filed Debtor's First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims; (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-Documentation Claims [Docket No. 906] (the "Debtor Objection"), which contained an objection to the HarbourVest Claim.

10. On September 11, 2020, HarbourVest filed HarbourVest Response to Debtor's First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims; (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-Documentation Claims [Docket No. 1057] (the "HarbourVest Response").

11. On December 23, 2020, the Debtor filed the Motion seeking approval of a proposed settlement of the HarbourVest Claim under Rule 9019. Docket No. 1625.

III. LEGAL STANDARD

12. The merits of a proposed compromise should be judged under the criteria set forth in Protective Comm. for Indep. Stockholders of TMT Trailer Ferry, Inc. v. Anderson, 390 U.S. 414 (1968). TMT Trailer requires that a compromise must be "fair and equitable." TMT Trailer, 390

<sup>4</sup> While HarbourVest has filed a number of claims, each filed claim is exactly the same except in the name of the claimant. See Claim Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, and 154.

U.S. at 424; In re AWECO, Inc., 725 F.2d 293, 298 (5th Cir. 1984). The terms “fair and equitable,” commonly referred to as the “absolute priority rule,” mean that (i) senior interests are entitled to full priority over junior interests; and (ii) the compromise is reasonable in relation to the likely rewards of litigation. In re Cajun Electric Power Coop., 119 F.3d 349, 355 (5th Cir. 1997); In re Jackson Brewing Co., 624 F.2d 599, 602 (5th Cir. 1980).

13. In determining whether a proposed compromise is fair and equitable, a Court should consider the following factors:

- (i) the probabilities of ultimate success should the claim be litigated;
- (ii) the complexity, expense, and likely duration of litigating the claim;
- (iii) the difficulties of collecting a judgment rendered from such litigation; and,
- (iv) all other factors relevant to a full and fair assessment of the wisdom of the compromise.

TMT Trailer, 390 U.S. at 424.

14. In considering whether to approve a proposed compromise, the bankruptcy judge “may not simply accept the trustee’s word that the settlement is reasonable, nor may he merely ‘rubber stamp’ the trustee’s proposal.” In re Am. Res. Corp., 841 F.2d 159, 162 (7th Cir. 1987). “[T]he bankruptcy judge must apprise himself of all facts necessary to evaluate the settlement and make an informed and independent judgment about the settlement.” See TMT Trailer, 390 U.S. at 424, 434.

15. While the trustee’s business judgment is entitled to a certain deference, “business judgment is not alone determinative of the issue of court approval.” See In re Endoscopy Ctr. of S. Nev., LLC, 451 B.R. 527, 536 (Bankr. D. Nev. 2011). Further, the business judgment rule does not provide a debtor with “unfettered freedom” to do as it wishes. See In re Pilgrim’s Pride Corp., 403 B.R. 413, 426 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009) (“[A]s a fiduciary holding its estate in trust and responsible to the court, a debtor in possession must administer its case and conduct its business in a fashion amenable to the scrutiny to be expected from creditor and court oversight.”). The Court must conduct an “intelligent, objective and educated evaluation”<sup>5</sup> of the proposed settlement “to ensure that the settlement is fair, equitable, and in the best interest of the estate and creditors.” See In re Mirant Corp., 348 B.R. 725, 739 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006) (quoting Conn. Gen. Life Ins. Co. v. Foster Mortgage Corp. (In re Foster Mortgage Corp.), 68 F.3d 914, 917 (5th Cir. 1995)).

IV. ARGUMENT AND AUTHORITIES

16. As discussed in detail below, there are three significant issues with the terms of the settlement that merit denial of the Motion: (i) the proposed settlement is not reasonable or in the best interest of the estate given the weakness of the HarbourVest Claim; (ii) the proposed settlement is a blatant attempt to purchase votes in support of Debtor’s plan by giving HarbourVest a substantial claim to which it is not entitled; and (iii) the proposed settlement seeks to improperly classify HarbourVest’s one claim in two separate classes in order to gerrymander an affirmative vote on its reorganization plan. For these and certain additional reasons as discussed below, the Motion should be denied.

A. Through its Claim, HarbourVest Seeks to Revisit this Court’s Orders in the Acis Case

17. As an initial matter, through its proofs of claim, HarbourVest appears to be second guessing the Court’s judgment in the Chapter 11 case of Acis Capital Management, LP and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC (collectively, “Acis”) and seeking to revisit the Court’s orders entered in that case years ago. HarbourVest appears to be arguing that the TRO and injunction entered in the Acis case that prevented redemptions or resets in the CLOs are now the root cause of the decrease in value of its investment in HCLOF.

<sup>5</sup> In re Jackson Brewing Co., 624 F.2d 599, 602 (5th Cir. 1980) (“To assure a proper compromise the bankruptcy judge, must be apprised of all the necessary facts for an intelligent, objective and educated evaluation. He must compare the terms of the compromise with the likely rewards of litigation.”).

18. Specifically, the claim states that HarbourVest incurred “financial harm resulting from, among other things (i) court orders in the Acis bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise regulated the activity of HCLOF.”<sup>6</sup>

19. Essentially, HarbourVest is saying that the orders entered in the Acis case did not actually protect the investors and their investments, but instead were a triggering cause for the alleged diminution in value of its investment in HCLOF. Nevertheless, even though the value of HCLOF dropped dramatically only after the Effective Date of Acis’s Plan, years later and despite the lack of Debtor involvement in managing HarbourVest’s investment, HarbourVest now seeks to impute liability to the Debtor through a flimsy narrative designed to recoup investment losses unrelated to the Debtor and for which the Debtor owed HarbourVest no duty.

20. That HarbourVest now, years later, seeks to revisit this Court’s Acis orders raises a number of issues, including those as to HarbourVest’s involvement (or lack thereof) in the Acis case, whether the orders, Plan, or Confirmation Order in the Acis case may bar some of the relief requested by HarbourVest here, and questions related to the merits of the HarbourVest Claim and the legal grounds allegedly supporting it.

<sup>6</sup> See Proof of Claim 143, para. 3 (“Due to the Acis bankruptcy and certain conduct alleged to have been undertaken by the Debtor (to whom Acis subcontracted its functions) and Debtor’s employees (who were officers, employees, and agents of Acis), the Claimant has suffered significant harm. Such harm includes, but is not limited to, financial harm resulting from, among other things (i) court orders in the Acis bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise regulated the activity of HCLOF; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF.”).

B. The HarbourVest Claim Lacks Merit and the Proposed Settlement is Not Reasonable

21. Based on the HarbourVest Claim and its filed response to the Debtor's objection, Respondent believes that the HarbourVest claim is meritless and the proposed settlement is not reasonable, fair and equitable, or in the best interest of the estate.

22. First, the proposed settlement is concerning particularly because HarbourVest's bare bones proof of claim contains very little in terms of allegations of specific conduct against the Debtor that would give rise to a $60 million claim against this estate. While HarbourVest's response to the Debtor's claim objection is lengthy, it contains very little in real substance supporting its right to such a claim against the estate. The response also omits a number of key facts that are relevant and potentially fatal to its claim for damages against the Debtor's estate. Among them is the fact that Acis (and thereafter Reorganized Acis), along with Mr. Joshua Terry, managed HarbourVest's investment for years after it was made.<sup>7</sup> Despite this fact, HarbourVest's alleged damages appear to be based largely on the difference between the value of its initial investment at confirmation of Acis's Plan and the current value of the investment—which amount was directly determined by the performance of the CLOs that Acis managed during this time.<sup>8</sup> Neither the claim nor the response directly address the implications of Acis's management of the CLOs during the period following HarbourVest's investment. Nor does HarbourVest address or discuss performance of the CLOs, the market forces that may have caused HarbourVest's investment to lose value, or other factors influencing the current value of its investment. The speculative nature of the damages and the lack of specificity of the HarbourVest Claim and the role of Acis in the loss of value to HarbourVest all call into question the reliability of the allegations and the legal basis for the claim amount awarded in the settlement.

<sup>8</sup> See HarbourVest Response, Docket No. 1057, para. 40 (“HarbourVest has been injured from the Investment: not only has the Investment failed to accrue value, its value plummeted. The Investment’s current value is far less than HarbourVest’s initial contribution.”).

23. Also absent from Harbourvest's papers is any discussion of any contract or agreement between (i) HarbourVest and the Debtor; and (ii) any agreement that was executed in conjunction with HarbourVest's initial investment. While the proof of claim references a number of agreements, there is no explanation in the claim or in HarbourVest's response to the Debtor's claim objection of how these agreements give rise to liability against the Debtor. For example, neither the claim nor the HarbourVest Response (which includes more than 600 pages of attachments) attach any written agreement between HarbourVest and any other party. While HarbourVest has alleged a number of claims sounding in tort, many of those claims cannot exist absent a contract or other express relationship between the parties. Moreover, the terms of the relevant contracts themselves likely contain a number of provisions that may call into question Debtor's liability or would be otherwise relevant to merits of the HarbourVest Claim. For example, HarbourVest in its papers appears to assert or imply that the Debtor made a number of false or fraudulent representations to solicit HarbourVest's investment, but then fails to discuss or even identify the applicable agreements it alleges it was induced into signing in connection with its investment (this despite the substantial value of the investment when the Acis plan was confirmed).

24. Given these issues, among many others, the HarbourVest Claim is unsustainable both from a liability and damages standpoint and there are many very high hurdles HarbourVest would have to clear in seeking to prove liability against the Debtor and in proving its damages. For a long period of time, its investment was managed by Acis and the investment's performance was directly tied to Acis's inadequate performance as portfolio manager. Further, the value of HarbourVest's investment is also directly tied to various market forces that may have impacted its value. The HarbourVest Claim is largely lacking in relevant facts and omits much salient information, such as who it contracted with in connection with its investment, the terms of such agreements, who controlled its investment during the entire period from November 2017 to the present, and the performance of its investment during the last two years. Given these issues, HarbourVest will be unable to demonstrate a causal connection between any conduct of the Debtor and the alleged damages it suffered from a reduction in value of its investment.

25. Because of the speculative nature of the HarbourVest Claim, and the fact that very little pleading or litigation has occurred, the proposed settlement in granting such a large claim is unreasonable, not fair and equitable, and not in the best interest of the estate. The lack of pending litigation, narrowing of threshold questions, and lack of detail in HarbourVest Claim make it impossible to determine whether the huge claim awarded under the proposed settlement is justified under the facts. Accordingly, the Motion should be denied.

C. The Proposed Settlement is an Improper Attempt by the Debtor to Purchase Votes in Support of its Plan and the Separate Classification of the HarbourVest Claim Constitutes Gerrymandering in Violation of 11 U.S.C. § 1122

26. The proposed settlement is a flagrant attempt by the Debtor to purchase votes in support of its Plan by giving HarbourVest a significant claim to which it has not shown itself entitled. Moreover, the separate classification of the HarbourVest Claim into two separate classes constitutes impermissible gerrymandering in violation of section 1122 of the Bankruptcy Code. The proposed settlement essentially gives HarbourVest a claim it is not entitled to in exchange for votes in two separate classes. This is not a proper basis for a settlement and the Court should deny the Motion.

27. Section 1122 of the Bankruptcy Code provides as follows:

(a) Except as provided in subsection (b) of this section, a plan may place a claim or an interest in a particular class only if such claim or interest is substantially similar to the other claims or interests of such class.

(b) A plan may designate a separate class of claims consisting only of every unsecured claim that is less than or reduced to an amount that the court approves as reasonable and necessary for administrative convenience.

11 U.S.C. § 1122.

28. “Chapter 11 requires classification of claims against a debtor for two reasons. Each class of creditors will be treated in the debtor's plan of reorganization based upon the similarity of its members' priority status and other legal rights against the debtor's assets. Proper classification is essential to ensure that creditors with claims of similar priority against the debtor's assets are treated similarly.” In re Greystone III Joint Venture, 995 F.2d 1274, 1277 (5th Cir. 1991).

29. “Section 1122 consequently must contemplate some limits on classification of claims of similar priority. A fair reading of both subsections suggests that ordinarily substantially similar claims, those which share common priority and rights against the debtor’s estate, should be placed in the same class.” Id. at 1278.

30. The Fifth Circuit has stated that there is “one clear rule that emerges from otherwise muddled caselaw on § 1122 claims classification: thou shalt not classify similar claims differently in order to gerrymander an affirmative vote on a reorganization plan.” Id. at 1279. The Court observed:

There must be some limit on a debtor’s power to classify creditors in such a manner. . . . Unless there is some requirement of keeping similar claims together, nothing would stand in the way of a debtor seeking out a few impaired creditors (or even one such creditor) who will vote for the plan and placing them in their own class.

In re Greystone III Joint Venture, 995 F.2d 1274, 1279 (5th Cir. 1991) (quoting In re U.S. Truck Co., 800 F.2d 581, 586 (6th Cir. 1986)).

31. Here, the HarbourVest settlement and the classification of the HarbourVest Claim under the Plan blatantly violate the Fifth Circuit’s “one rule” concerning the classification of claims under section 1122. To the extent that HarbourVest even has a legitimate claim, not only should its claim be classified together with other unsecured creditors, its claim should be classified solely in one class. To allow the Debtor to do otherwise as proposed is improper gerrymandering in order to obtain a consenting class in express violation of section 1122.

D. There Are Other Reasons for the Court to Closely Scrutinize the Proposed Settlement that May Warrant Denial of the Motion

32. There are a number of other reasons for the Court to closely scrutinize the proposed settlement that may warrant denial of the Motion.

33. First, the granting to HarbourVest of a claim in the total amount of $80 million potentially allows HarbourVest to achieve a significant windfall at the expense of other creditors and equity holders. The Debtor has asserted numerous times that the estate is solvent and, for this reason, the purported subordinated claim of $35 million (if allowed and approved) may be worth just as much as its general unsecured claim. This is a huge figure in this case, outshined only by the Redeemer Committee, which has an actual arbitration award obtained after lengthy litigation. By contrast, the HarbourVest Claim contains only a few paragraphs of generalized allegations that essentially argue that the Debtor’s alleged actions related to the Acis bankruptcy, and this Court’s orders in the Acis case, are a “but for” cause of the loss of its investment. While the HarbourVest Response is lengthy, it lacks necessary details for the Court to determine whether HarbourVest may be entitled to the relief requested by the Motion. The other significant creditors in this case—inter alia, Redeemer, UBS and Acis—all had pending claims that were litigated. Nor is HarbourVest a trade creditor, vendor, or other contract counter-party of the Debtor. The HarbourVest Claim is thus uniquely situated in this case and, given the size and the nature of its claims, should invite close scrutiny. Under these facts, the potential allowance of an $80 million claim (less the value of its share in HCLOF, which may suffer by continued management by Acis) against the estate for an investment which was not held or managed by the Debtor would be a huge undue windfall.

34. Second, the Motion states that HarbourVest will vote its proposed allowed Class 8 (proposed at $45 million) and Class 9 (proposed at $35 million) claims in support of confirmation. There are at least two potential issues with this proposal. First, the deadline for parties to submit ballots was January 5, 2021, and as of the close of business on January 5, the HarbourVest Claim has not been allowed for voting purposes.<sup>9</sup> Second, the Motion and proposed settlement agreement state that the HarbourVest Claim will be allowed for voting purposes only as a general unsecured claim in the amount of $45 million. It is unclear how HarbourVest can, or would be authorized to, vote its purported Class 8 and 9 Claims in support of the Plan after the voting deadline and when the settlement provides only for a voting claim in Class 8.

35. Third, while the Motion addresses the factor of probability of success in the litigation, it does not discuss in detail the cost of doing so in relation to the amount to be paid to HarbourVest under the settlement or the likelihood that the Debtor will succeed in the litigation. In addition, unlike the claims filed by Acis and UBS, the HarbourVest Claim does not arise from pending litigation. At this point, relatively little litigation has occurred and the parties have not addressed threshold issues that might dramatically narrow the scope of the HarbourVest Claim. Rule 9019 requires an analysis as to whether the probability of success in litigation is outweighed by the consideration achieved under the settlement. See In re Jackson Brewing Co., 624 F.2d 599, 602 (5th Cir. 1980) (The Court must “compare the terms of the compromise with the likely rewards of litigation.”). Given the excessive amount to be paid under the settlement and the weakness of the HarbourVest Claim, this factor weighs in favor of denial of the Motion.

36. Fourth, it is unclear from the settlement papers whether the transfer by HarbourVest of its interest in HCLOF to the Debtor or an entity the Debtor designates will cause the value of the investment to be received by the Debtor’s estate. Further, the interest of HCLOF being conveyed under the proposed settlement may be subject to the Acis plan injunction, which could potentially prevent the Debtor’s estate from realizing the value of this interest. In the event the Court is inclined to approve the settlement, the order should make clear that the available value of the investment should be realized by the Debtor’s estate.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above, Respondent respectfully requests that the Court enter an order denying the Motion and providing Respondent such other and further relief to which he may be justly entitled.

OBJECTION TO DEBTOR’S MOTION FOR ENTRY OF AN ORDER APPROVING SETTLEMENT WITH HARBOURVEST (CLAIM NOS. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154)
AND AUTHORIZING ACTIONS CONSISTENT THEREWITH

The Dugaboy Investment Trust and Get Good Trust (jointly, “Objectors”), submit this Objection for the purpose of objecting to the Debtor’s Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with HarbourVest (Claim Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154) and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Dkt. #1625] (the “Motion”) filed by Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”). Through the Motion, the Debtor seeks approval of its compromise with HarbourVest 2017 Global Fund L.P., HarbourVest 2017 Global AIF L.P., HarbourVest Dover Street IX Investment L.P., HV International VIII Secondary L.P., HarbourVest Skew Base AIF L.P., and HarbourVest Partners L.P. (collectively, “HarbourVest”) pursuant to Rule 9019 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the “Bankruptcy Rules”). In support of this objection, Objectors respectfully represent as follows:

I. INTRODUCTION

1. Objectors recognize that Courts favorably view settlements and, as a matter of course, generally approve settlements as being in the best interest of the bankruptcy estate. The settlement proposed herein, however, is different than other settlements inasmuch as it represents a 180 degree departure from the Debtor’s own analysis of the Claim of HarbourVest and the fact that the settlement is tied to HarbourVest approving the Debtor’s plan. Little or no information is provided by the Debtor as to why its initial analysis was flawed and what information or legal principal it discovered to change a zero claim into a massive claim that will have a significant impact on the recovery to creditors.

II. BACKGROUND

2. On October 16, 2019 (the “Petition Date”), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of title 11 of the United States Code (the “Bankruptcy Code”) in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the “Delaware Court”).

3. On October 29, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the “Committee”) was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in Delaware.

4. On December 4, 2019, the venue of this case was transferred. [Dkt. #186].

5. On July 16, 2020, this Court entered an order authorizing the Debtor to employ James P. Seery, Jr. as Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer of the Debtor. [See Dkt. #854].

6. On April 8, 2020, HarbourVest filed Proofs of Claim Numbers 143, 149, 149, 150, 153, and 154 (collectively, the “HarbourVest Claim”)<sup>1</sup>.

7. On July 30, 2020, the Debtor filed Debtor’s First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims; (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-Documentation Claims [Dkt. #906] (the “Debtor Objection”), which contained an objection to the HarbourVest Claim.

8. On September 11, 2020, HarbourVest filed HarbourVest Response to Debtor’s First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims; (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-Documentation Claims [Dkt. #1057] (the “HarbourVest Response”).

9. The Debtor, in its Disclosure Statement for the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. [Dkt. #1473 pgs. 40-41], described its position relative to the HarbourVest Claim as follows:

The Debtor intends to vigorously defend the HarbourVest Claims on various grounds ..... The HarbourVest Entities invested approximately $80,000,000.00 in HCLOF but seek an allowed claim in excess of 300 million dollars (after giving effect to treble damages for the alleged RICO violations)

10. On December 23, 2020, the Debtor filed the Motion seeking approval of a proposed settlement of the HarbourVest Claim under Rule 9019. [Dkt. # 1625].

11. The proposed settlement provides HarbourVest with the following:

- a. An allowed, general unsecured claim in the amount of $45,000,000.00 [Dkt. #1625 pg. 9 pp.f]; and

---

- b. A $35,000,000 claim in Class 9 [Dkt. #1625 pg. 9 pp.f].
12. An integral element of the settlement requires that HarbourVest will “support confirmation of the Debtor’s Plan including, but not limited to, voting its claims in support of the Plan.”
13. The settlement also contains a provision that HarbourVest will transfer its entire interest in HCLOF to an entity to be designated by the Debtor. It is unclear whether HarbourVest has a right to transfer the interest and secondly, what the Debtor will do with the interest [Dkt. #1625 pp.f].
14. The sole support for the Motion is the Declaration of John Morris [Dkt. #1631] which fails to account for the enormous change in the Debtor’s position between November 24, 2020 when the Disclosure Statement was approved and December 23, 2020 when the Motion was filed, a period of less than thirty (30) days.
15. The Declaration of John Morris [Dkt. #1631] also contains no information as to the potential cost of the litigation, whether HarbourVest can transfer the interest or reasons, other than conclusory reasons, as to why the settlement is beneficial to the estate. The Debtor makes the assertion that the interest it is acquiring was worth $22,000,000.00 as of December 1, 2020 without advising as to the basis for the valuation. Is it a book value and, if not, what was the methodology employed to arrive at the valuation? The Court has no basis to evaluate the settlement without essential information as to 1) how the asset being acquired is valued; 2) can the Debtor acquire the interest; and 3) how will the Debtor bring value to the estate in connection with the interest inasmuch as the Debtor has discretion as to where to place the asset to be acquired.

A. LEGAL STANDARDS

16. The law relative to approval of motions pursuant to BR 9019 is well settled. The settlement must be fair and equitable. See In re Jackson Brewing Co., 624 F.2d 599, 602 (5th Cir. 1980). The factors the Court should consider are the following:

- (i) the probabilities of ultimate success should the claim be litigated;
- (ii) the complexity, expense, and likely duration of litigating the claim;
- (iii) the difficulties of collecting a judgment rendered from such litigation; and,
- (iv) all other factors relevant to a full and fair assessment of the wisdom of the compromise.

Protective Comm. for Indep. Stockholders of TMT Trailer Ferry, Inc. v. Anderson, 390 U.S. 414 (1968).

17. Although the Debtor's business judgment is entitled to a certain deference, "business judgment" is not alone determinative of the issue of court approval. See In re Endoscopy Ctr. of S. Nev., LLC, 451 B.R. 527, 536 (Bankr. D. Nev. 2011). However, notwithstanding the business judgment rule, a debtor does not have unfettered freedom to do what it wishes. See In re Pilgrim's Pride Corp., 403 B.R. 413, 426 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009) ("[A]s a fiduciary holding its estate in trust and responsible to the court, a debtor in possession must administer its case and conduct its business in a fashion amenable to the scrutiny to be expected from creditor and court oversight.").

B. ISSUES WITH THE SETTLEMENT

18. Objectors believe that the following issues are not explained or addressed in the Motion and, thus, the Motion should be denied:

- a) The settlement represents a radical change in the Debtor's position that was set forth in its Disclosure Statement. While the Debtor asserts that its position is based on its fear of parties' oral testimony, the size of the transactions at issue make the case a document case, as opposed to who said what, when and how. A review of the applicable documents to determine whether they support the Debtor's initial position is warranted, as opposed to stating that the case is based upon the credibility of a witness. This settlement is not the settlement of an automobile accident where the parties are disputing who ran a red light;

- b) The settlement requires HarbourVest to support and vote in favor of the Debtor's Plan. On its face this appears to be vote buying. The settlement should not be conditioned upon HarbourVest's support or non-support of the Plan and its vote in favor or against the Plan; and
- c) No information is provided as to whether the Debtor can acquire the interest in HCLOF, liquidate the interest, who will receive the interest, or how will the estate benefit from the interest to be acquired.

CONCLUSION

The settlement with HarbourVest has too many questions to be approved on the record before this Court and the parties, due to the Notice of the Motion, the holidays and the press of other litigation in this case, do not have the time to adequately investigate the propriety of the settlement.

CLO HOLDCO, LTD.'S OBJECTION TO HARBOURVEST SETTLEMENT

TO THE HONORABLE STACEY G. JERNIGAN, U.S. BANKRUPTCY JUDGE:

CLO Holdco, Ltd. ("CLO Holdco") respectfully files this Objection to Harbourvest Settlement (the "Harbourvest Settlement Objection") which seeks entry of an order from this Court denying the Debtor's Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with Harbourvest (Claims Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154) and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith (the "Harbourvest Settlement Motion") for the reasons stated below. In support of the Harbourvest Settlement Objection, CLO Holdco respectfully states as follows:

I.
BACKGROUND

A. TRANSFERRING SHARES IN HCLOF

1. CLO Holdco owns 75,061,630.55 shares, or about 49.02% of Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. ("HCLOF"). Other shareholders include Harbourvest 2017 Global AIF L.P., Harbourvest Global Fund L.P., Harbourvest Dover Street IX Investment L.P., and Harbourvest Skew Base AIF L.P., and HV International VIII Secondary L.P. (collectively, "Harbourvest"). Harbourvest owns approximately 49.98% of HCLOF. The remaining 1% is owned by the Debtor and a five other investors.

2. HCLOF is governed by a Members Agreement Relating to the Company dated November 15, 2017 by and between each of the members of HCLOF, including Harbourvest, the Debtor, and CLO Holdco (the "Member Agreement"). A copy of that agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

3. Section 6 of the Member Agreement addresses the "Transfer or Disposals of Shares." MEMBER AGREEMENT, § 6. The Member Agreement places strict restrictions on the sale or transfer of shares to entities other than the initial Member's own affiliates. See id. at §§ 6.1, 6.2. Before a Member can transfer its interests to a party other than its own affiliates it must: (i) obtain the prior written consent of the Portfolio Manager; and (ii) "offer to the other Members a right to purchase the Shares, on a pro rata basis with respect to their current Shares, at the same price (which must be cash) as such Shares are proposed to be purchased by the prospective third party purchaser pursuant to an irrevocable offer letter" (the "Right of First Refusal"). Id. As further stated in section 6.2 of the Member Agreement, "The other Members will have 30 days following receipt of the letter to determine whether to purchase their entire pro rata portion of the Shares proposed to be Transferred." Id. at § 6.2.

B. THE HARBOURVEST SETTLEMENT

4. On December 23, 2020, the Debtor filed the Harbourvest Settlement Motion. On the following day, the Debtor filed a copy of the Settlement Agreement referenced in the Harbourvest Settlement Motion (the "Settlement Agreement") [Dkt. No. 3]. In the Settlement Agreement, Harbourvest represents and warrants that it is authorized to transfer its interest in HCLOF to the Transferee, HCMLP Investments, LLC (the "Transferee"). SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT, Ex. A. § 3. Further, the Transferee and Debtor agree to be bound by the terms and conditions of the Member Agreement. Id. at § 1.c.

5. In exchange for conveniently classified allowed claims under the Debtor's Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Plan") [Dkt. No. 1472], Harbourvest agrees to vote in favor of the Plan and to transfer all of its interests in HCLOF to the Transferee. SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT, § 1.

6. As detailed below, CLO Holdco objects to the Harbourvest Settlement Motion because Harbourvest has no authority to transfer its interests in HCLOF without first complying with the Right of First Refusal. The only way to effectuate such a transfer without first providing other members the Right of First Refusal is an intentionally inaccurate interpretation of the Member Agreement's contractual provisions that would render specific passages redundant and meaningless. More simply put, the only way Harbourvest and the Debtor could effectuate the Settlement Agreement is by violating fundamental tenets of contract interpretation.

II. ARGUMENTS AND AUTHORITIES

A. CONTRACT INTERPRETATION – AVOIDING REDUNDANCIES AND SURPLUS LANGUAGE

7. The Fifth Circuit recognizes fundamental tenets of contract interpretation, and notes that "contracts should be read as a whole, viewing particular language in the context in which it appears. Woolley v. Clifford Chance Rogers & Wells, L.L.P., 51 F. App'x 930 (5th Cir. 2002) (citing Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 202 (1981)). The Fifth Circuit has applied substantially the same tenets of contract interpretation across the laws of various jurisdictions, and consistently reasons that "[a]ll parts of the agreement are to be reconciled, if possible, in order to avoid an inconsistency. A specific provision will not be set aside in favor of a catch-all clause." Broad v. Rockwell Int'l Corp., 642 F.2d 929, 947 (5th Cir. 1981) (internal citations omitted); and see Hawthorne Land Co. v. Equilon Pipeline Co., LLC, 309 F.3d 888, 892–93 (5th Cir. 2002); Luv N' Care, Ltd. v. Grupo Rimar, 844 F.3d 442, 447 (5th Cir. 2016); Wooley, 51 F.Appx. at 930.

8. Reconciliation of terms that would otherwise render other parts of a contract redundant is fundamental to proper contract interpretation. Hawthorne Land, 309 F.3d at 892-93. As the Fifth Circuit explained in Hawthorne Land, "each provision of a contract must be read in light of the other provisions so that each is given the meaning suggested by the contract as a whole. A contract should be interpreted so as to avoid neutralizing or ignoring a provision or treating it as surplusage." Id. (internal citations and quotations omitted). In other words, provisions of a contract should be read to create harmony, not internal inconsistencies, redundancies, and unnecessary surplus language. See, e.g., Luv N' Care, 844 F.3d at 447 (overturning district court on appeal by interpreting contract in manner that eliminated perceived redundancy).

B. ANALYZING THE MEMBER AGREEMENT

9. Section 6.1 of the Member Agreement will almost certainly be cited by the Debtor and Harbourvest as authority for their entry into the Settlement Agreement, regardless of whether other Members or the Portfolio Manager consent. It states, in pertinent part, that:

No Member shall sell, pledge, charge, mortgage, assign, assign by way of security, transfer, convey, exchange or otherwise dispose of its Shares or its commitment to settle purchases of Shares under the Subscription and Transfer Agreement (each a "Transfer"), other than to an Affiliate of an initial Member party hereto, without the prior written consent of the Portfolio Manager...

MEMBER AGREEMENT, § 6.1. Harbourvest will likely stress that under the terms of the Member Agreement, it can transfer its interests so long as the transfer is to "an Affiliate of an initial Member." Indeed, the Debtor will no doubt point out to this Court that Harbourvest is conveniently transferring its interests in HCLOF to an Affiliate of the Debtor, and that the Debtor is an initial Member listed in the Member Agreement.

10. Section 6.1, however, must be read in the context of the Member Agreement, and in conjunction with the transfer restrictions found in section 6.2. Read together it is clear that the consent exception allowing a transfer in 6.1 was intended to allow a Member to transfer its shares to its own Affiliate, without required consents and effectuating a Right of First Refusal. Doing so would allow inter-company transfers within a corporate structure without the need for complicated procedures. Applying Fifth Circuit precedent, this interpretation fits squarely within the agreement and gives weight to the terms of section 6.2 of the Member Agreement, as explained below.

(i) Surplusage – Specific Allowance of Transfers by CLO Holdco to Debtor Affiliates

11. Recall that both CLO Holdco and the Debtor are initial Members to the Member Agreement. MEMBER AGREEMENT, p. 3. Section 6.2 of the Member Agreement states, in pertinent part, that "Prior to making any Transfer of Shares (other than Transfers to Affiliates of an initial Member or, in the case of CLO Holdco or a Highland Principal, to Highland, its Affiliates or another Highland Principal) a Member must first..." comply with the Right of First Refusal. Id. at § 6.2 (emphasis added). The italicized language above is important for two reasons: (i) it specifically enumerates that CLO Holdco can transfer its interests to Debtor Affiliates without having to pursue the Right of First Refusal; and (ii) it allows only limited transfers between Members, as opposed to between a Member and an Affiliate of an initial Member.

12. If, as the Debtor and Harbourvest will likely argue, Members are allowed to transfer their interests to any Affiliates of any other initial Members, there is absolutely no need for the Member Agreement to specifically authorize CLO Holdco to transfer its interests to the Debtor's Affiliates. Per Fifth Circuit fundamentals of contract interpretation, that purported redundancy should not be discarded as mere surplusage, and the Member Agreement should be interpreted in a manner that gives weight to that provision. Hawthorne Land, 309 F.3d at 892-93.

13. If the Member Agreement is read to literally allow all "Transfers to Affiliates of an initial Member" there would be no reason to expressly set forth allowed transfers between specific Members and other Member's Affiliates. If the Member Agreement sought to list all allowed transfers between Members and their Affiliates, it should have similarly noted that any Member could transfer its interest to any Harbourvest Member entity, as each Harbourvest Member entity is an Affiliate of the other Harbourvest Member entities. Alternatively, if the specific enumeration of CLO Holdco and the Highland Principals' transfer rights was surplusage, it would presumably have listed other parties' rights, or had inclusive language such as "including but not limited to" or "for example." The Member Agreement lacks such language and, as a result, should be interpreted in a manner that both gives weight to the specific provision while reconciling other provisions of the contract.

(ii) Absurd Results – Disparate Transfer Rights Between Members

14. Note that the Member Agreement does not generally allow a transfer of interests from Member to Member unless specifically enumerated. Section 6.2 specifically allows only CLO Holdco and the Highland Principals to make transfers to other Members, but those other Members include only the Debtor or another Highland Principal. MEMBER AGREEMENT, § 6.2. It does not allow the Debtor to transfer interests to any Member, and does not expressly allow any Member, other than limited transfers by CLO Holdco and the Highland Principals, to transfer interests to any other Member. Id. For instance, if the Debtor wished to transfer its interests to CLO Holdco, it would first have to offer all of the other Members their Right of First Refusal. Id.

15. Similarly, if Harbourvest wished to transfer its interest to CLO Holdco, it could not do so without first providing the Right of First Refusal to all other Members. Id. As noted above, however, allowing a Member to transfer its interest to an Affiliate of any initial Member would allow all of the Members to transfer their interests to any Harbourvest Member entity, as the Harbourvest Members are Affiliates of each other. Given the specific enumeration of CLO Holdco and the Highland Principals' rights to inter-Member transfers, it would be inconsistent to expand that specific provision to allow all transfers by all Members to any Harbourvest entity without first providing a Right of First Refusal.

16. Such a reading would lead to absurd results. It would grant similarly situated Members profoundly disparate rights under the agreement, and could easily lead to manipulation. For instance, because the Harbourvest Members are technically Affiliates of an initial Member (each other), they could obtain control of all of the interests in HCLOF without any Member receiving a Right of First Refusal for any transfer. No other Member could do that. For instance, if CLO Holdco wished to acquire other Members' interests, the transferring member (including Harbourvest) would have to offer a Right of First Refusal in every instance. To resolve that potential disparate treatment—though CLO Holdco and Harbourvest own nearly identical ownership interests in HCLOF—CLO Holdco would have to form an Affiliate and acquire interests through the Affiliate. That simply cannot be the intended result of the Member Agreement.

17. Instead, the Member Agreement must be read to require Harbourvest to provide a Right of First Refusal to the other Members of HCLOF before transferring its interests to either the Debtor or the Transferee.

C. THE RIGHT OF FIRST REFUSAL IN BANKRUPTCY

18. Most cases addressing third party rights of first refusal in bankruptcy involve the assignment of leases and landlords' rights of first refusal. In those cases, courts analyze whether such a provision in the debtor's contract is a defacto restriction on assignment that may be excised from the agreement. This case is very different. Here, it is a creditor that owes a right of first refusal to another non-debtor entity.

19. Even so, at least one court has issued telling commentary on a bankruptcy court's ability to excise provisions of a bargained-for contract, stating "A bankruptcy court's authority to excise a bargained for element of a contract is questionable and modification of a nondebtor contracting party's rights is not to be taken lightly." In re E-Z Serve Convenience Stores, Inc., 289 B.R. 45, 51-52 (Bankr. M.D.N.C. 2003) (citing In re Joshua Slocum Ltd., 922 F.2d 1081, 1091 (3d Cir. 1991)). CLO Holdco was unable to find any case that would allow a bankruptcy court to invalidate or otherwise excise a third party's right of first refusal in what largely amounts to a non-debtor contract.

20. As the Member Agreement requires Harbourvest to provide a Right of First Refusal to the non-Debtor Members under section 6.2 of the Agreement, and such Members have 30 days to review and determine whether to purchase their pro-rata shares offered by Harbourvest, Harbourvest lacks contractual authority to enter into the Settlement Agreement.

D. HARBOURVEST'S LACK OF AUTHORITY PRECLUDES ENFORCEMENT OF SETTLEMENT

21. Harbourvest has not completed its conditions precedent to the transfer of its interest to Transferee under the Member Agreement. As detailed above, and in section 6.2 of the Agreement, Harbourvest must effectuate the Right of First Refusal before it can transfer its interests in HCLOF. MEMBER AGREEMENT, § 6.2. Harbourvest is, in essence, bound by the condition precedent of effectuating the Right of First Refusal before it is authorized under the Member Agreement to enter into the Settlement Agreement.

22. Courts should not enforce a settlement agreement where a party has a condition precedent to entry into the agreement and fails to satisfy that condition. In re De La Fuente, 409 B.R. 842, 846 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2009). As noted in part in De La Fuente, the court would not recognize or enforce a settlement where the parties were subject to conditions precedent before the settlement could be effective, and the conditions precedent were not satisfied. This Court should similarly deny Harbourvest's proposed settlement, as it would deny the Members' Right of First Refusal, which is the benefit of their bargain under the Member Agreement.

III.
PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, CLO Holdco requests that this Court grant the Objection and enter an order denying the Harbourvest Settlement Motion.

DEBTOR’S OMNIBUS REPLY IN SUPPORT OF DEBTOR’S MOTION FOR ENTRY OF AN ORDER APPROVING SETTLEMENT WITH HARBOURVEST (CLAIM NOS. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154), AND AUTHORIZING ACTIONS CONSISTENT THEREWITH

The above-captioned debtor and debtor-in-possession (the “Debtor”) hereby submits this reply (the “Reply”) in support of its Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with HarbourVest (Claim No.143,147, 149, 150, 153, 154), and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No. 1625] (the “Motion”).<sup>2</sup> In further support of the Motion, the Debtor respectfully states as follows:

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. If granted, the Motion will resolve a $300 million general unsecured claim against the Debtor’s estate for less than $16.8 million in actual value.<sup>3</sup> The settlement is another solid achievement for the Debtor and – not surprisingly – is opposed by no one except Mr. Dondero and entities affiliated with him.

2. As discussed in the Motion, in November 2017, HarbourVest invested $80 million in exchange for a 49.98% membership interest in HCLOF – an entity managed by a subsidiary of the Debtor. The balance of HCLOF’s interests are held by CLO Holdco, Ltd. (an entity affiliated with Mr. Dondero), the Debtor, and certain of the Debtor’s employees. Subsequent to its investment in HCLOF, HarbourVest incurred substantial losses on its investment in HCLOF and filed claims against the Debtor’s estate.

3. HarbourVest asserts claims for fraud, fraudulent inducement, fraudulent concealment, fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, breach of fiduciary duty

<sup>2</sup> All capitalized terms used but not defined herein have the meanings given to them in the Motion.

<sup>3</sup> Under the proposed settlement, HarbourVest would receive an allowed, general unsecured claim of $45 million and an allowed, subordinated claim of $35 million. Based on the estimated recovery for general unsecured creditors of 87.44% (which is a recovery based on certain outdated assumptions discussed infra), HarbourVest’s $45 million general unsecured claim is estimated to be worth approximately $39.3 million and the $35 million subordinated claim, which is junior to the general unsecured claim, is currently estimated to have value only if there are litigation recoveries. In addition, HarbourVest is transferring to an affiliate of the Debtor its interest in HCLOF, which is estimated to be worth approximately $22.5 million. Thus, HarbourVest’s estimated recovery on its general unsecured and subordinated claims is estimated at approximately $16.8 million on a net economic basis. This estimate, however, is dated and is based on the claims that were settled as of the filing of the Debtor’s plan in November 2020.

and unfair prejudice (under Guernsey law), violations of state securities laws, and RICO. In furtherance of these claims, HarbourVest alleges it was misled by the Debtor and its employees, including Mr. Scott Ellington (then the Debtor's general counsel), and that subsequent to investing in HCLOF, Mr. Dondero and the Debtor used HCLOF both as a piggybank to fund the litigation against Acis Capital Management, L.P. ("Acis") and as a scapegoat for the Debtor's litigation strategy, in each case to HarbourVest's substantial detriment.

4. Specifically, HarbourVest alleges that:

- the Debtor and its employees, including Mr. Ellington, misled HarbourVest about its intentions with respect to Mr. Terry's arbitration award against Acis and orchestrated a series of fraudulent transfers and corporate restructurings, the true purpose of which was to denude Acis of assets and make it judgment proof;
- the Debtor and its employees, including Mr. Ellington, misled HarbourVest as to the intent and true purpose of these restructurings and led HarbourVest to believe that Mr. Terry's claims against Acis were meritless and a simple employment dispute that would not affect HarbourVest's investment;
- the Debtor, through Mr. Dondero, improperly exercised control over or misled HCLOF's Guernsey-based board of directors to cause HCLOF to engage in unnecessary, unwarranted, and resource-draining litigation against Acis;
- the Debtor improperly caused HCLOF to pay substantial legal fees of various entities in the Acis bankruptcy that were unwarranted, imprudent, and not properly chargeable to HCLOF; and
- the Debtor used HarbourVest as a scapegoat in its litigation against Acis by asserting that the Debtor's improper conduct and scorched-earth litigation strategy was at HarbourVest's request, which was untrue.

5. The Debtor believed, and continues to believe, that it has viable defenses to HarbourVest's claims. Nevertheless, those defenses would be subject to substantial factual disputes and would require expensive and time-consuming litigation that would likely be resolved only after a lengthy trial all while the Debtor (or its successor) assumes the risk that the defenses might fail. The evidence will show that the proposed settlement is the product of substantial, arm's length – and sometimes quite heated – negotiations between and among the principals and their counsel. The evidence will also show that one of HarbourVest's primary concerns in settling its claim was that part of that settlement would include the extrication of HarbourVest from the Highland web of entities and the related litigation. The proposed settlement accomplishes that and does so in compliance with HCLOF's governing agreements.

6. Pursuant to the proposed settlement, (a) HarbourVest will receive (i) an allowed, general unsecured claim in the amount of $45 million, and (ii) an allowed, subordinated claim in the amount of $35 million; (b) HarbourVest will transfer its 49.98% interest in HCLOF (valued at approximately $22.5 million) to a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Debtor; and (c) the parties will exchange mutual and general releases. The Debtor believes that the proposed settlement is reasonable and results from the valid and proper exercise of its business judgment. And the Debtor's creditors apparently agree. None of the major parties-in-interest or creditors in this case has objected to the Motion: not the Committee, the Redeemer Committee, Acis, Patrick Daugherty, or UBS.

7. In distinction, the only objecting parties are Mr. Dondero, his family trusts (the Dugaboy Investment Trust ("Dugaboy") and Get Good Trust ("Get Good," and together with Dugaboy, the "Trusts")), and CLO Holdco (a wholly-owned subsidiary of Mr. Dondero's Charitable Donor Advised Fund, L.P. (the "DAF")) (collectively, the "Objectors"). Each of the Objectors has only the most tenuous economic interest in and connection to the Debtor's settlement with HarbourVest. Each of the Objectors is also controlled directly or indirectly by Mr. Dondero who has coordinated each of the Objectors litigation strategies against the Debtor.<sup>4</sup> Mr. Dondero's efforts to litigate every issue in this case – directly and by proxy – should be rebuffed, and the objections overruled. The following is a brief summary of the objections.

Pleading	Objection/Reservation	Response
Objection of James Dondero [Docket No. 1697] (the “Dondero Objection”)	Because HarbourVest was damaged by the injunction entered in Acis, the settlement seeks to revisit this Court’s rulings in Acis.	Mr. Dondero is misdirecting the Court. HarbourVest’s claim arises from the misrepresentations of Mr. Dondero, Mr. Ellington, and others, not this Court’s rulings in Acis, including the failure to disclose the fraudulent transfer of assets.
	The settlement is not fair and equitable because it does not address (1) Acis’s mismanagement, (2) how the Debtor is liable for HarbourVest’s damages, (3) the success on the merits, (4) the costs of litigation, and (5) the Debtor’s ability to realize the value of the HCLOF interests in light of the Acis injunction.	Mr. Dondero ignores the dangers of the litigation and HarbourVest’s claims against the estate for misrepresentation and overestimates the ability to resolve the litigation. The Debtor has assessed the value of the HCLOF interests in light of all factors, including the Acis injunction.
	The HarbourVest settlement represents a substantial windfall to HarbourVest.	Mr. Dondero ignores the economics of this case, which have value breaking in Class 8 (General Unsecured Claims). The value of the settlement is not $60 million; it is approximately $16.8 million against a claim of $300 million. There is no windfall.
	The HarbourVest settlement is improper gerrymandering because it provides HarbourVest with a general unsecured claim and a subordinated claim in order to secure votes for the plan.	The HarbourVest settlement provides for the resolution of HarbourVest’s claim. It is nonsensical to think that the Debtor would reach a settlement with HarbourVest that would include HarbourVest’s rejection of the Debtor’s plan, and there is nothing wrong with requiring acceptance of a plan as part of a settlement. Further, the Debtor does not need HarbourVest’s Class 9 vote to confirm a plan.
Objection of the Dugaboy Investment Trust and Get Good Trust [Docket No. 1706] (the “Trusts Objection”)	The settlement represents a radical change in the Debtor’s earlier position on the HarbourVest settlement.	Mr. Dondero ignores the dangers of the litigation and HarbourVest’s claims against the estate for misrepresentation and overestimates the ability to resolve the litigation.
	The settlement appears to buy HarbourVest’s vote.	The HarbourVest settlement provides for the resolution of HarbourVest’s claim. It is nonsensical to think that the Debtor would reach a settlement with HarbourVest that would include HarbourVest’s rejection of the Debtor’s plan, and there is nothing wrong with requiring acceptance of a plan as part of a settlement. Further, the Debtor does not need HarbourVest’s Class 9 vote to confirm a plan.
	No information is provided as to whether the Debtor can acquire HarbourVest’s interest in HCLOF or the value of that interest to the estate.	As discussed below, the HCLOF interest will be transferred to a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Debtor. Mr. Seery will testify as to the benefit of the HCLOF interests to the estate.
Objection of CLO Holdco [Docket No. 1707] (“CLOH Objection”)	HarbourVest cannot transfer its interests in HCLOF unless it complies with the right of first refusal.	CLO Holdco misinterprets the operative agreements and tries to create ambiguity where none exists.

8. These objections are just the latest objections filed by Mr. Dondero and his related entities to any attempt by the Debtor to resolve this case,<sup>5</sup> including the Debtor's settlement with Acis [Docket No. 1087] and the seven separate objections filed by Mr. Dondero and his related entities to the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. [Docket No. 1472] (the "Plan").<sup>6</sup> It will not shock this Court to hear that each of the Objectors is also objecting to the Plan. In contradistinction, the Debtor has heard this Court's admonishments about old Highland's culture of litigation as evidenced by this case, Acis's bankruptcy, and beyond. Although the Debtor has vigorously contested claims when appropriate, the Debtor has also sought to settle claims and limit the senseless fighting. The Debtor has successfully resolved the largest claims against the estate, including the claims of the Redeemer Committee, Acis, and, as recently announced to this Court, UBS. The Debtor would ask this Court to see through the pretense of the Dondero-related entities' objections to the HarbourVest settlement and approve it as a valid exercise of the Debtor's business judgment.

<sup>5</sup> As an example of Mr. Dondero's litigiousness, on January 12, 2021, Mr. Dondero filed notice that he will be appealing the preliminary injunction entered against him earlier on January 12, 2021.

REPLY

A. Standing

9. James Dondero. In the Dondero Objection, Mr. Dondero asserts he is a “creditor, indirect equity security holder, and party in interest” in the Debtor’s bankruptcy. While that claim is ostensibly true, it is tenuous at best. On April 8, 2020, Mr. Dondero filed three unliquidated, contingent claims that he promised to update “in the next ninety days.”<sup>7</sup> More than nine months later, Mr. Dondero has yet to “update” those claims to assert an actual claim against the Debtor’s estate.<sup>8</sup>

10. Mr. Dondero’s claim as an “indirect equity security holder” is also a stretch. Mr. Dondero holds no direct equity interest in the Debtor. Mr. Dondero instead owns 100% of Strand Advisors, Inc. (“Strand”), the Debtor’s general partner. Strand, however, holds only 0.25% of the total limited partnership interests in the Debtor through its ownership of Class A limited partnership interests. The Class A limited partnership interests are junior in priority of distribution to the Debtor’s Class B and Class C limited partnership interests. The Class A interests are also junior to all other claims filed against the Debtor. Finally, Mr. Dondero’s recovery on his indirect equity interest is junior to any claims against Strand itself. Consequently, before Mr. Dondero can recover on his “indirect” equity interest, the Debtor’s estate must be solvent, priority distributions to Class B and Class C creditors must be satisfied, and all claims against Strand must be satisfied.

11. Dugaboy and Get Good. Dugaboy and Get Good are sham Dondero “trusts” with only the most attenuated standing. Dugaboy has filed three proofs of claim [Claim Nos. 113; 131; 177]. In two of these claims, Dugaboy argues that (1) the Debtor is liable to Dugaboy for its postpetition mismanagement of the Highland Multi Strategy Credit Fund, L.P., and (2) this Court should pierce the corporate veil and allow Dugaboy to sue the Debtor for a claim it ostensibly has against the Highland Select Equity Master Fund, L.P. – a Debtor-managed investment vehicle. The Debtor believes that each of the foregoing claims is frivolous and has objected to them. [Docket No. 906].

<sup>7</sup> Mr. Dondero filed two other proofs of claim that he has since withdrawn with prejudice. See Docket No. 1460.

<sup>8</sup> Without knowing the nature of the “updates,” the Debtor does not concede that any “updates” would have been procedurally proper and reserves the right to object to any proposed amendment to Mr. Dondero’s claims.

12. In its third claim, Dugaboy asserts a claim against the Debtor arising from its Class A limited partnership interest in the Debtor (which represents just 0.1866% of the total limited partnership interests in the Debtor). Similarly, Get Good filed three proofs of claim [Claim Nos. 120; 128; 129] arising from its prior ownership of limited partnership interests in the Debtor. Because each these claims arises from an equity interest, the Debtor will seek to subordinate them under 11 U.S.C. § 510 at the appropriate time. As set forth above, these interests are out of the money and are not expected to receive any economic recovery.

13. Consequently, Mr. Dondero, Dugaboy, and Get Good’s standing to object to the HarbourVest settlement is attenuated and their chances of recovery in this case are extremely speculative at best. See In re Kutner, 3 B.R. 422, 425 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1980) (finding that a party had standing only when it had a “pecuniary interest . . . directly affected by the bankruptcy proceeding”); see also In re Flintkote Co., 486 B.R. 99, 114-15 (Bankr. D. Del. 2012), aff’d. 526 B.R. 515 (D. Del. 2014) (a claim that is speculative cannot confer party in interest standing). Mr. Dondero, Dugaboy, and Get Good’s minimal interest in the estate should not allow them to overrule the estate’s business judgment or veto settlements with creditors, especially when no actual creditors and constituents have objected. “[A] bankruptcy judge must not blindly follow the hue and cry of the most vocal special interest groups; rather, [the judge] should consider all salient factors . . . and . . . act to further the diverse interests of the debtor, creditors and equity holders, alike.” In re Lionel, 722 F.2d 1063, 1071 (2d Cir. 1983).

B. Mr. Dondero’s Objection and his “Trusts” Objection Are Without Merit

14. As discussed in the Motion, under applicable Fifth Circuit precedent, a bankruptcy court may approve a compromise or settlement as long as the proposed settlement is fair, reasonable, and in the best interest of the estate. See, e.g., In re Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d 530, 540 (5th Cir. 2015). In making this determination, courts look to the following factors:

- probability of success in the litigation, with due consideration for the uncertainty of law and fact;
- complexity and likely duration of the litigation and any attendant expense, inconvenience and delay; and
- all other factors bearing on the wisdom of the compromise, including (i) “the paramount interest of creditors with proper deference to their reasonable views” and (ii) whether the settlement is the product of arm’s length bargaining and not of fraud or collusion.

Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors v. Cajun Elec. Power Coop. (In re Cajun Elec. Power Coop.), 119 F.3d 349, 356 (5th Cir. 1997) (citations omitted). See also Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d at 540; Conn. Gen. Life Ins. Co. v. United Cos. Fin. Corp. (In re Foster Mortgage Corp.), 68 F.3d 914, 918 (5th Cir. 1995).

15. The Settlement Seeks to Revisit the Acis Orders. In the Dondero Objection, Mr. Dondero argues that HarbourVest’s claim is based on the financial harm caused to HarbourVest from Acis’s bankruptcy and the orders entered in the Acis bankruptcy. Mr. Dondero extrapolates from this that HarbourVest is seeking to challenge this Court’s rulings in Acis. (Dondero Obj., ¶¶ 17-20) Mr. Dondero misinterprets HarbourVest’s claims and the dangers such claims pose to the Debtor’s estate.

16. HarbourVest’s claims are for fraud, fraudulent inducement, fraudulent concealment, fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, breach of fiduciary duty and unfair prejudice (under Guernsey law), violations of state securities laws, and RICO. HarbourVest is not arguing that Acis or this Court caused its damages; HarbourVest is arguing that the Debtor – led by Mr. Dondero – (a) misled HarbourVest as to the nature of Mr. Terry’s claims against the Debtor and the litigation with Acis, (b) knowingly and intentionally failed to disclose that the Debtor was engaged in the fraudulent transfer of assets to prevent Mr. Terry from collecting his judgment, and (c) that the Debtor – under the control of Mr. Dondero – improperly engaged in a crusade against Mr. Terry and Acis, which substantially damaged HarbourVest and its investment in HCLOF, in each case in order to induce HarbourVest to invest in HCLOF.

17. Again, HarbourVest does not contend that Acis caused its damages. Rather, HarbourVest contends that the fraudulent transfer of assets as part of the Debtor’s crusade against Mr. Terry and Acis and the false statements and omissions about those matters caused HarbourVest to make an investment it would never have made had Mr. Dondero and the Debtor been honest and transparent. The Acis litigation – in HarbourVest’s estimation – never should have happened. Acis did not cause HarbourVest’s damages. Mr. Dondero’s crusade against Mr. Terry and the Debtor’s allegedly fraudulent statements to HarbourVest about the fraudulent transfers, Mr. Terry and Acis caused HarbourVest’s damages.

18. The HarbourVest Claim Lacks Merit. In their objections, Mr. Dondero and the Trusts argue that the HarbourVest settlement is not fair and equitable and not in the best interests of the estate because (a) it does not address the Debtor’s arguments against the HarbourVest claims and (b) there is a lack of pending litigation seeking to narrow the claims against the estate. These arguments only summarily address the first two factors of Cajun Electric, which deal with success in the litigation, and, in doing so, mischaracterize the dangers to the Debtor’s estate posed by HarbourVest's claims. (Dondero Obj., ¶¶ 21-25; Trusts Obj., ¶ 18(a))

19. Both the Dondero Objection and – to a much lesser extent - the “Trusts” Objection allege that (a) HarbourVest's losses were caused by Acis and its (mis)management of HCLOF's investments (Dondero Obj., ¶¶ 22, 24), (b) there is no contract that supports HarbourVest's claims (Dondero Obj. ¶ 23; Trusts Obj., ¶ 18(a)), (c) there is no causal connection between HarbourVest's losses and the Debtor's conduct (Dondero Obj., ¶ 24), and (d) the Debtor should litigate all or a portion of HarbourVest's claim before settling (Dondero Obj., ¶ 25). Again, though, as set forth above, both Mr. Dondero and the “Trusts” seek to shift the cause of HarbourVest's damages away from the Debtor's misrepresentations and to Mr. Terry's management of HCLOF's investments. This is simple misdirection.

20. HarbourVest's claims are that it invested in HCLOF based on the Debtor's fraudulent misrepresentations. Fraudulent misrepresentation sounds in tort, not contract. See, e.g., Clark v. Constellation Brands, Inc., 348 Fed. Appx. 19, 21 (5th Cir. 2009) (referring to party's claim based on fraudulent misrepresentation as a tort); Eastman Chem. Co. v. Niro, Inc., 80 F. Supp. 2d 712, 717 (S.D. Tex. 2000) (noting that party had common law duty not to commit intentional tort of fraudulent misrepresentation). There is thus no need for HarbourVest to point to a contractual provision to support its claim.<sup>9</sup> Moreover, in order to defend against HarbourVest's claims, the Debtor would need to elicit evidence showing that its employees did not make misrepresentations to HarbourVest. Such a defense would require the Debtor to rely on the veracity of Mr. Ellington's testimony, among others. That is a high hurdle, and no reasonable person would expect the Debtor to stake the resolution of HarbourVest's $300 million claim on the Debtor's ability to convince this Court that Mr. Ellington was telling HarbourVest <sup>9</sup> Subsequent to filing the Motion, the Objectors requested all agreements between HarbourVest, HCLOF, and the Debtor, and such agreements were provided.

the truth. This is especially true in light of the evidence supporting Mr. Ellington's recent termination for cause and the evidence recently provided by HarbourVest supporting its claim for fraudulent misrepresentations.

21. Finally, neither Mr. Dondero nor the "Trusts" even address the third factor analyzed by the Fifth Circuit: all other factors bearing on the wisdom of the compromise, including "the paramount interest of creditors with proper deference to their reasonable views." This is telling because no creditor or party in interest has objected to the settlement. Mr. Dondero and his proxies' preference for constant litigation should not outweigh the preference of the Debtor and its creditors for a reasonable and expeditious settlement of HarbourVest's claims.

22. The HarbourVest Settlement Is a Windfall to HarbourVest. Both the Dondero Objection and the "Trusts" Objection argue that the HarbourVest settlement represents a substantial windfall to HarbourVest. Both Mr. Dondero and the "Trusts" ignore the facts. Specifically, Mr. Dondero argues that HarbourVest is receiving $60 million dollars in actual value for its claims. Mr. Dondero's contention, however, wrongly assumes that both the $45 million general unsecured claim and the $35 million subordinated claim provided to HarbourVest under the settlement will be paid 100% in full and that HarbourVest will receive $80 million in cash. From that $80 million, Mr. Dondero subtracts $20 million, which represents the value Mr. Dondero ascribes to HarbourVest's interests in HCLOF that are being transferred to the Debtor. Mr. Dondero's math ignores the reality of this case.

23. The Debtor very clearly disclosed in the projections filed with the Disclosure Statement for the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P., [Docket No. 1473] (the "Projections") that general unsecured claims would receive an 87.44% recovery only if the claims of UBS, HarbourVest, Integrated Financial Associates, Inc., Mr.

Daugherty, and the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust were zero. Because of the Debtor's success in settling litigation, that assumption is proving to be inaccurate. Regardless, even if general unsecured claims receive a recovery of 87.44%, because the subordinated claims are junior to the general unsecured claims, the subordinated claims' projected recovery is currently zero. As such, assuming the HCLOF's interests are worth $22.5 million,<sup>10</sup> the actual recovery to HarbourVest will be less than $16.8 million. This is not a windfall. HarbourVest's investment in HCLOF was $80 million and its claim against the estate was over $300 million. The settlement represents a substantial discount.

24. Improper Gerrymandering and/or Vote Buying. Each of Mr. Dondero and the Trusts argue in one form or another that the HarbourVest settlement is improper as it provides HarbourVest a windfall on its claims in exchange for HarbourVest voting to approve the Plan. These unsubstantiated allegations of vote buying should be disregarded. As an initial matter, and as set forth above, HarbourVest is not getting a windfall. HarbourVest is accepting a substantial discount in the settlement. HarbourVest's incentive to support the Plan comes from HarbourVest's determination that the Plan is in its best interests. There is also nothing shocking about a settling creditor supporting a plan. Indeed, it would be nonsensical for a creditor to settle its claims and then object to the plan that would pay those claims.

25. More importantly, HarbourVest's votes in Class 9 (Subordinated Claims) are not needed to confirm the Plan. As will be set forth in the voting declaration, Class 2 (Frontier Secured Claim), Class 7 (Convenience Claims), and Class 8 (General Unsecured Claims) have voted in favor of the Plan.<sup>11</sup> In brief, the Plan was approved without HarbourVest's Class 9 vote,

<sup>10</sup> It is currently anticipated that Mr. James P. Seery, Jr., the Debtor's chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer, will testify as to the value of the HCLOF interests to the Debtor's estate.

<sup>11</sup> The Debtor anticipates that Mr. Dondero and his related entities will argue that neither Class 7 nor Class 8 voted to accept the Plan because of the votes cast against the Plan in those Classes by current and former Debtor and the Debtor, therefore, has no need to “buy” HarbourVest’s Class 9 claims. Accordingly, any claims of gerrymandering or vote buying are without merit.

C. CLOH Objection

26. CLO Holdco (and to a much lesser extent, the “Trusts”) object to HarbourVest’s transfer of its interests in HCLOF as part of the settlement. Currently, the settlement contemplates that HarbourVest will transfer 100% of its collective interests in HCLOF to HCMLP Investments, LLC (“HCMLPI”), a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Debtor. As set forth in the Transfer Agreement for Ordinary Shares of Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (which was appended as Exhibit A to the Settlement Agreement) [Docket No. 1631-1], each of the Debtor, HarbourVest, Highland HCF Advisors, Ltd. (HCLOF’s investment manager) (“HHCFA”), and HCLOF agree that HarbourVest is entitled to transfer its interests to HCMLPI pursuant to that certain Members Agreement Relating to the Company, dated November 15, 2017 (the “Members Agreement”),<sup>12</sup> without offering that interest to other investors in HCLOF.

27. The only party to object to the transfer of HarbourVest’s interests in HCLOF to HCMLPI is CLO Holdco. CLO Holdco holds approximately a 49.02% interest in HCLOF and is the wholly-owned subsidiary of the DAF, Mr. Dondero’s donor-advised fund. CLO Holdco argues that the Member Agreement requires HarbourVest to offer its interest first to the other investors in HCLOF before it can transfer its interests to HCMLPI. In so arguing, CLO Holdco attempts to create ambiguity in an unambiguous contract and to use that ambiguity to disrupt the Debtor’s settlement with HarbourVest.

28. As an initial matter, the Debtor and CLO Holdco agree that the transfer of HarbourVest’s interests in HCLOF to HCMLPI is governed by Article 6 (Transfers or Disposals employees, including Mr. Ellington and Mr. Isaac Leventon. The Debtor will demonstrate at confirmation that those objections are without merit and that Class 7 and Class 8 voted to accept the Plan.

of Shares) of the Members Agreement (an agreement governed by Guernsey law). (CLOH Obj., ¶ 3) The parties diverge, however, as to how to interpret Article 6. The Debtor, as set forth below, believes Article 6 is clear in that it allows HarbourVest to transfer its interests in HCLOF to any “Affiliate of an initial Member party” without requiring the right of first refusal in Section 6.2 of the Members Agreement. CLO Holdco’s position appears to be that the Members Agreement, despite its clear language, should be interpreted as limiting transfers to an “initial Member’s own affiliates” and that any other transfer requires the consent of HHCFA and satisfaction of the right of first refusal. (Id. (emphasis added)) CLO Holdco’s reading is contrary to the actual language of the Members Agreement.

29. First, Section 6.1 of the Members Agreement provides, in pertinent part:

[REDACTED]

(Members Agmt, § 6.1 (emphasis added)) Under the Members Agreement, “Affiliate” is defined, in pertinent part, as “[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

(Id., § 1.1) A “Member” in turn is a [REDACTED].” The “initial Member[s]” are the initial Members of HCLOF listed on the first page of the Members Agreement and include the Debtor, HarbourVest, and CLO Holdco.

30. As such, under the plain language of Section 6.1, HarbourVest is entitled – without the consent of any party – to “Transfer” its interests in HCLOF to an “Affiliate” of any of the Debtor, HarbourVest, or CLO Holdco. And that is exactly what is contemplated by the settlement. HarbourVest is transferring its interests to HCMLPI, a wholly owned and controlled subsidiary of the Debtor, and therefore an “Affiliate” of the Debtor. That transfer is indisputably allowed under Section 6.1; it is a transfer to an “Affiliate of an initial Member.” CLO Holdco may, tongue in cheek, call this structure “convenient” but that sarcasm is an attempt to avoid the fact that the Members Agreement clearly allows HarbourVest to transfer its interest to HCMLPI without the consent of any party.<sup>13</sup> The fact that CLO Holdco does not now like the language it previously agreed to when CLO Holdco and the Debtor were both controlled by Mr. Dondero is not a reason to re-write Section 6.1 of the Members Agreement.

31. Second, Section 6.2 of the Members Agreement is also unambiguous and, by its plain language, allows HarbourVest to “Transfer” its interests in HCLOF to “Affiliates of an initial Member” (i.e., HCMLPI) without having to first offer those interests to the other Members (such obligation, the “ROFO”). CLO Holdco attempts to create ambiguity in Section 6.2 by arguing that it must be read in conjunction with Section 6.1 and that interpreting the plain language of Section 6.2 to allow HarbourVest to transfer its interests to HCMLPI without restriction makes certain other language surplus and meaningless. (CLOH Obj., ¶ 11-13) Again, CLO Holdco is attempting to create controversy and ambiguity where none exists.

32. Section 6.2 of the Members Agreement provides, in pertinent part:

██
██

(Members Agmt., § 6.2 (emphasis added)) Like Section 6.1, Section 6.2 is clear on its face. It exempts from the requirement to comply with the ROFO two categories of “Transfers”: (1) Transfers to “affiliates of an initial Member” from Members other than CLO Holdco and the

---

<sup>13</sup> Although HHCFA’s consent is not necessary for HarbourVest to transfer its interests to HCMLPI, HHCFA will consent to the transfer.

“Highland Principals” (i.e., the Debtor and certain of its employees)<sup>14</sup> and (2) Transfers from CLO Holdco or a Highland Principal to the Debtor, the Debtor’s “Affiliates,” or another Highland Principal. The fact that a narrower exemption is provided to CLO Holdco and the Debtor than to HarbourVest (or any other Member) under Section 6.2 is of no moment; the language says what it says and was agreed to by all Members, including CLO Holdco, when they executed the Members Agreement.

33. In addition, and although not relevant, the language of Section 6.2 makes sense in the context of the deal. Although CLO Holdco and the Debtor may have disclaimed an “Affiliate” relationship, they are related through Mr. Dondero and invest side by side with the Debtor in multiple deals.<sup>15</sup> The different standards in Section 6.2 serve to ensure that HarbourVest’s (or any successor to HarbourVest) right to Transfer its shares without satisfying the ROFO is limited to three parties: (i) HarbourVest’s Affiliates, (ii) the Debtor’s Affiliates, and (iii) CLO Holdco’s Affiliates. This restriction keeps the relative voting power of each Member static and ensures that CLO Holdco and the Debtor, together, will always have more than fifty percent of HCLOF’s total interests and that HarbourVest will always have less than fifty percent. This counterintuitively also explains the greater restrictions placed on CLO Holdco and the “Highland Principals.” The Highland Principals include certain Debtor employees. Those employees – as well as CLO Holdco and the Debtor – are prohibited from transferring their HCLOF interests outside of the Dondero family. This restriction makes sense. If, for example, a Debtor employee wanted to transfer its interests to an Affiliate of HarbourVest, HarbourVest could have more than fifty percent of the HCLOF interests because of the thinness of the Dondero-family's majority (approximately 0.2%). At the time the Members Agreement was executed, CLO Holdco and the Debtor were under common control. Section 6.2 preserves those related entities' control over HCLOF by restricting transactions that would transfer that control unless the ROFO is complied with.

34. As such, and notwithstanding CLO Holdco's protestations, Section 6.1 and Section 6.2 are consistent as written and clear on their face. This consistency is further evidenced by HCLOF's Articles of Incorporation<sup>16</sup> and HCLOF's offering memorandum, which each include language identical to Section 6.1 and 6.2 of the Members Agreement.<sup>17</sup> It seems highly unlikely, if not implausible, that sophisticated parties such as CLO Holdco would include the exact same language in six separate places over three documents without a reason for that language and without the intent that such language be interpreted as it is clearly written – not as CLO Holdco now wants it to be interpreted. Accordingly, since HarbourVest is transferring its interests to HCMLPI, an Affiliate of an initial Member, the plain language of Section 6.2

exempts HarbourVest from having to comply with the ROFO.

35. Third, and finally, CLO Holdco makes the nonsensical argument that because Section 6.2 provides different treatment to similarly situated Members that this Court should re-write Section 6.2. (CLOH Obj., ¶¶ 15-17) Contracts provide different treatment to ostensibly similarly situated parties all the time and no one objects that that creates an absurd result. It just means that different parties bargained for and received different rights.

36. CLO Holdco's attempt to justify why this Court should re-write the Members Agreement to correct the "disparate treatment" is also unavailing. As an example of the absurd result caused by the "disparate treatment," CLO Holdco states: "[B]ecause the HarbourVest Members are technically Affiliates of an initial member (each other), they could obtain control of all of the interests in HCLOF without any Member receiving a Right of First Refusal for any transfer." (Id., ¶ 16) The scenario posited by CLO Holdco, however, is exactly the scenario prevented by the clear language of Section 6.2. For HarbourVest to obtain control of HCLOF, it would – as a matter of mathematical necessity – need the interests held by CLO Holdco (49.02%) and/or the Highland Principals (1% in the aggregate). Section 6.2, however, expressly prohibits CLO Holdco and the Highland Principals from transferring their interests to HarbourVest or its Affiliates without satisfying the ROFO. As set forth above, it is Section 6.2 that prevents control from being transferred away from the Dondero family without compliance with the ROFO. In fact, Section 6.2 would only break down if the limiting language in Section 6.2 were read out of it in the manner advocated by CLO Holdco.

37. Ultimately, Article 6 of the Members Agreement is clear as written and expressly allows HarbourVest to transfer its interests to HCMLPI. If CLO Holdco had an objection to the rights provided to HarbourVest under the Members Agreement, CLO Holdco should have raised that objection three and a half years ago before agreeing to the Members Agreement. CLO Holdco should not be allowed to create ambiguity in an unambiguous contract or to re-write that agreement to impose additional restrictions on HarbourVest. See Clardy Mfg. Co. v. Marine Midland Bus. Loans Inc., 88 F.3d 347, 352 (5th Cir. 1996) (enforcing the “unambiguous language in a contract as written,” noting that where a contract is unambiguous, a party may not create ambiguity or “give the contract a meaning different from that which its language imports”) (internal quotations omitted); Texas v. Am. Tobacco Co., 463 F.3d 399, 407 (5th Cir. 2006) (“Courts interpreting unambiguous contracts are confined to the four corners of the document, and cannot look to extrinsic evidence to create an ambiguity.”).

38. It should go without saying, but CLO Holdco (and the other parties to the Members Agreement) should also be required to satisfy their obligations under the Members Agreement and execute the “Adherence Agreement” as required by Section 6.6 of the Members Agreement in connection with the Transfer of HarbourVest’s interests to HCMLPI or any other permitted Transfer.

39. Finally, and notably, although CLO Holdco spends considerable time arguing that HarbourVest should be required to comply with the ROFO, nowhere in the CLOH Objection does CLO Holdco state that it wishes to purchase HarbourVest’s interests in HCLOF. This omission is telling. CLO Holdco and the other Objectors have no interest in actually exercising their alleged right of first refusal contained in the Members Agreement. Rather, their only interest is in causing the Debtor to spend time and money responding to a legion of related (and coordinated) objections.<sup>18</sup>

HarbourVest 2017 Global Fund L.P., HarbourVest 2017 Global AIF L.P., HarbourVest Dover Street IX Investment L.P., HV International VIII Secondary L.P., HarbourVest Skew Base AIF L.P., and HarbourVest Partners L.P., on behalf of funds and accounts under management (collectively, “HarbourVest”) file this Reply (the “Reply”) to (i) the Objection to Debtor’s Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with HarbourVest [Docket No. 1697] (the “Dondero Objection”), filed by James Dondero (“Mr. Dondero”); (ii) Objection to Debtor’s Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with HarbourVest and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No. 1706] (the “Trusts Objection”), filed by Get Good Trust and The Dugaboy Investment Trust (collectively, the “Trusts”); and (iii) CLO Holdco, Ltd.’s Objection to HarbourVest Settlement [Docket No. 1707] (the “CLO Holdco Objection”), filed by CLO Holdco, Ltd. (“CLO Holdco”) (collectively, the “Objections”), and in support of Debtor’s Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with HarbourVest (Claim Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154) and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No. 1625] (the “Settlement Motion”), and respectfully state as follows:

Introduction

1. HarbourVest holds significant, legitimate, and well-documented claims against Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor” or “Highland”), and HarbourVest is fully prepared to pursue those claims on a litigated basis if necessary. That said, after lengthy and sometimes contentious arms-length negotiations, HarbourVest is prepared to settle its claims on the terms proposed in the Settlement Motion. As is the case with most heavily-negotiated settlements, the proposed arrangement (the “Settlement”) constitutes significantly less allowed claim value than would be available if HarbourVest prevails (as it expects to do) in litigation, but HarbourVest is prepared to move forward nevertheless because the settlement removes the distraction, expense and inherent risk of litigation and because a consensual resolution in the context of the Debtor's proposed plan has the benefit of not further dissipating the debtor's assets through significant legal costs, which will improve the percentage recovery on unsecured creditor claims including those of HarbourVest. For these reasons, while it would otherwise vigorously pursue its claims in this court and any other appropriate forum, HarbourVest is prepared to move forward on the agreed terms at this time if this Court approves the settlement.

2. If the Settlement were not approved, HarbourVest's substantial claims would pose a serious threat to the value of the estate. As extensively documented in its proofs of claim and related pleadings, HarbourVest has numerous claims against Highland under Texas, U.S., and Guernsey law, sounding in fraud, mismanagement and misconduct, and breach of fiduciary duty, among other things. If successful, HarbourVest's remedies would include rescission of its investment in a Highland-managed vehicle, lost profits, consequential and out-of-pocket damages, punitive damages, and interest, easily totaling over $100 million, pre-trebling. These claims have been documented in two detailed and unrefuted pleadings filed with this court, as well as in multiple presentations and follow-up negotiations with the Debtor and its counsel.

3. The Objections seek to attack the Settlement by calling into question HarbourVest's underlying claims and contending that additional litigation is needed to test their validity. In the first instance, there is no requirement to litigate HarbourVest's claims on the merits in order to approve a negotiated settlement. To do so would erode the very value that the Settlement seeks to preserve—incurring the expenses, distraction, and value destruction the parties are seeking to avoid through entry into the Settlement. That said, for all the reasons set forth in HarbourVest's prior filings and explained below, HarbourVest would have an excellent chance of success on the merits if it chose to litigate its claims to conclusion, which surely informed the Debtor's business judgement in agreeing to the Settlement. The Objections fail to undermine HarbourVest's well-founded claims, let alone form a basis to question the Debtor's business judgment under Fed. R. Civ. P. 9019. Likewise, the Objections' baseless accusations of "vote buying" and "gerrymandering" have no foundation in fact or law.

4. Separate from the objectors' failed attacks on the substance of the Settlement, CLO Holdco attempts to throw up roadblocks to the negotiated agreement by arguing that one element of the Settlement – the transfer of HarbourVest's interest to the Debtor – is not permitted under the relevant corporate documents. In support of this challenge, CLO Holdco presents a tortured and technical argument relating to the terms of the Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. ("HCLOF") Members Agreement Relating to the Company (the "Members Agreement"). This argument asks the Court to rewrite the plain terms of the Members Agreement and other key deal documents to the detriment of the investors in HCLOF and in contravention of applicable law. As actually written, and consistent with the business deal among the members of HCLOF, the transfer contemplated by the Settlement is clearly and expressly permitted by the Members Agreement's terms.

5. For all these reasons, the Objections should be overruled, and the Settlement should be approved.

Background

Highland's Misrepresentations and Omissions to HarbourVest in 2017

6. HarbourVest's claims against Highland arise from its November 15, 2017 investment in HCLOF, f/k/a Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. ("ALF"), to acquire a 49.98% interest as a passive investor (the "Investment").<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> A more detailed discussion of the factual background and bases for HarbourVest's claims is contained in the HarbourVest Response to Debtor's First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims; (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No-Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-Documentation Claims [Docket No. 1057] (the "HarbourVest Response") and the Motion of HarbourVest

7. The underlying events ultimately giving rise to those claims stem from extensive litigation between Highland and Joshua Terry (“Terry”), relating to Highland’s termination of Mr. Terry from his position as CLO manager for Acis Capital Management L.P. (“Acis LP”) in September 2016.<sup>2</sup>

8. As the initial litigation between Mr. Terry and Highland progressed, HarbourVest and Highland began preliminary discussions regarding the Investment in the second quarter of 2017. Over several months, HarbourVest conducted diligence and negotiated the terms of a potential investment with Highland, which included disclosures about pending litigation relating to the Investment, including the Terry dispute.<sup>3</sup>

9. On October 20, 2017, during the parties’ ongoing negotiations, Mr. Terry won an $8 million arbitration award against Acis (the “Arbitration Award”). 4/13/2018 Involuntary Ruling, at 4. Highland informed HarbourVest about the Arbitration Award, but did not disclose that it had begun orchestrating a series of transfers (the “Transfers”) that would render Acis incapable of paying the Arbitration Award, including:

- On October 24, 2017, ALF acquired ALF shares owned by Acis LP for $991,180.13. Id. at 17–18.
- On October 27, 2017, Acis’s portfolio management rights for ALF were transferred to Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd. and the target fund’s name changed from “Acis Loan Funding, Ltd.” to “Highland CLO Funding” (HCLOF). 4/13/2018 Involuntary Ruling at 19.

Around that time, on October 7, 2016, Acis LP sold Highland a participation interest in its expected future cash flow in CLO Collateral Management Agreements for $666,655 plus a $12,666,446 note payable from Highland to Acis LP (the “Highland Note”). Id. at 17.

- On November 3, 2017, Acis LP transferred its interest in the Highland Note to Highland CLO Management, Ltd. Id. at 19–20. The balance owing on the Note was over $9 million, but Acis received no consideration for the transfer. 1/31/2019 Confirmation Ruling, at 20–21, n.37.

10. On October 26, 2016, around the time that Highland informed HarbourVest about the Arbitration Award, it explained that it would change the portfolio manager for HCLOF from an Acis-branded entity to a Highland-branded entity, and make certain other structural changes, due to “reputational harm” that the Arbitration Award caused to Acis. HarbourVest conducted additional diligence around those changes, and the transaction closing date was delayed.

11. At the time, HarbourVest was not told that these changes were part of Highland’s broader campaign to strip Acis of assets, which was highly relevant information that would be crucial to any investor’s decision. Among other things:

- Highland never informed HarbourVest that Highland had no intention of paying the Arbitration Award and was undertaking steps to ensure that Mr. Terry could not collect on his judgment;
- Highland did not inform HarbourVest that it undertook the Transfers to siphon assets away from Acis LP and that such Transfers would prevent Mr. Terry from collecting on the Arbitration Award;
- Highland represented to HarbourVest that the reason for changing the portfolio manager for HCLOF was because Acis was “toxic” in the industry and reputational issues relating to Acis would harm the HCLOF investment;
- Highland indicated to HarbourVest that the dispute with Mr. Terry was founded on Mr. Terry’s termination for misconduct and numerous allegations he subsequently made when Highland refused to meet his demand for separation compensation to which he was not entitled;
- Highland informed HarbourVest that, in lieu of redemptions, it was necessary to reset the CLOs underlying the HCLOF investment was necessary and it would be easier to reset under the Highland CLO brand than the Acis CLO brand;
- Highland expressed confidence in the ability of HCLOF to reset or redeem the CLOs, not revealing that Highland was using HCLOF as part of its scheme to avoid paying the Arbitration Award (which clearly would have threatened to, and in fact did, complicate the ability to reset or redeem).

12. In reliance on Highland's misrepresentations and omissions, HarbourVest consummated the Investment on November 15, 2017, paying roughly $75 million to acquire its interest in HCLOF and entering into the Members Agreement for HCLOF.<sup>4</sup>

13. Highland's misrepresentations and omissions continued after the initial Investment was made. For example, on November 27, 2017, in an email to HarbourVest attaching a Wall Street Journal article regarding the Terry dispute, Highland again assuaged concerns, asserting that the dispute "has no impact on our investment activities."<sup>5,6</sup>

The Acis Bankruptcy

14. On January 30, 2018, Mr. Terry filed involuntary bankruptcy petitions (together, the "Acis Bankruptcy") against Acis LP and Acis GP, stating that the Transfers were Highland's "orchestrated, sophisticated effort to denude the Alleged Debtors of their assets and value." 4/13/2018 Involuntary Ruling, at 23.

15. During the Acis Bankruptcy, the Transfers and their effect on Acis quickly came to light. Highland's next move in its scheme was to falsely accuse HarbourVest of demanding that Highland remove Acis as portfolio manager for HCLOF. One by one, Highland-affiliated witnesses and filings falsely claimed to this Court that (i) HarbourVest invested in HCLOF only on the condition that Acis would not have anything to do with the CLOs going forward;<sup>7</sup> (ii) that HarbourVest would demand its money back if a reset transaction was done with Acis;<sup>8</sup> (iii) that HarbourVest said, with absolute certainty, that it had no interest in doing business with Acis because the Acis brand was toxic, and demanded that Highland “get rid of Acis”<sup>9</sup>; and (iv) that HarbourVest could “dictate the terms of any reset transactions”<sup>10</sup> involving the HCLOF CLOs.

16. In short order, the Acis Trustee launched an investigation of HarbourVest, seeking extensive document discovery and a deposition from HarbourVest relating to the Investment and these accusations.<sup>11</sup> Seeking to clear its name, HarbourVest cooperated with the investigation, incurring significant legal fees defending itself against the unfounded allegations.

17. The scheme did not end there. Highland next used HCLOF as the financier for its escalating feud with Mr. Terry, in and out of the Acis Bankruptcy. HarbourVest has borne more than $7.5 million to date of fees incurred by numerous parties in the Acis Bankruptcy and related litigation.<sup>12</sup> Highland’s mismanagement of HCLOF goes beyond these fees, as detailed in the HarbourVest Response, and provides further support for HarbourVest’s claims.

Procedural History

Highland Bankruptcy

18. On October 16, 2019, Highland filed for bankruptcy in Delaware, In Re Highland Capital Mgmt, L.P., No. 19-12239-css (Bankr. D. Del.), and on December 4, 2019, on motion of the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, its case was transferred to this Court.<sup>13</sup>

19. Since filing the petition, the Debtor has been operating as a debtor-in-possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code.

HarbourVest's Claims

20. On April 8, 2020, HarbourVest filed its relevant proofs of claim against Highland, claim numbers 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, and 154 (collectively, the “Proofs of Claim”).<sup>14</sup> HarbourVest's Proofs of Claim specifically identified factual bases underlying HarbourVest's claims, including the Terry litigation, the Acis bankruptcy, and Highland's “improper conduct associated with the management of, and transactions relating to, Acis, including transactions with and related to HCLOF.”<sup>15</sup> HarbourVest further alleged its significant financial harm therefrom, including from the diminishing value of its Investment (occasioned by, among other things, the Acis Bankruptcy that naturally resulted from the Transfers) and from fees and expenses wrongfully charged to HCLOF. HarbourVest asserted its rights to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor.<sup>16</sup>

22. On September 11, 2020, HarbourVest filed the HarbourVest Response, fully detailing the nature and extent of HarbourVest’s claims against the Debtor.

23. On October 18, 2020, HarbourVest filed the Rule 3018 Motion seeking the temporary allowance of its claim for voting purposes in the amount of more than $300 million. The Rule 3018 Motion and the accompanying Declaration of Mike Pugatch contained further detailed support for HarbourVest’s claimed damages as a result of Highland’s conduct.

Negotiations and Settlement with Debtor

24. In October 2020, HarbourVest and Highland discussed the possibility of resolving the Rule 3018 Motion. Thereafter, the parties’ discussions expanded to encompass a potential global resolution of HarbourVest’s claims. In pursuit of this goal, the parties and their counsel participated in several spirited discussions of their disparate perspectives concerning the facts and the law. During follow up meetings, the parties’ interests and positions became more defined.

Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure] 9019 do not directly conflict, (ii) the rules do not require the court to hear claim objections before settlement motions, (iii) requiring litigation on the merits would undermine the policy of promoting settlements in bankruptcy, and (iv) the debtor has a fiduciary duty to all creditors to resolve claims in the best interest of the estate).

25. After a series of arm's-length, telephonic negotiations that involved, at various times, both principals and counsel, the parties ultimately reached the Settlement, which resolved the disputes over allowance of HarbourVest's claims both for voting purposes and for plan distribution purposes, upon the following key terms:

- HarbourVest shall transfer its entire 49.98% interest in HCLOF to an entity to be designated by the Debtor;
- HarbourVest shall receive an allowed, general unsecured, non-priority claim in the amount of $45 million and shall vote its Class 8 claim in that amount to support the Plan;
- HarbourVest shall receive a subordinated, allowed, general unsecured, non-priority claim in the amount of $35 million and shall vote its Class 9 claim in that amount to support the Plan.<sup>18</sup>

26. On December 23, 2020 the Debtor filed the Settlement Motion.

Objections to the Settlement

27. Three parties in interest have filed objections to the Settlement:

28. The Dondero Objection contends that the Settlement is unreasonable because, among other things, HarbourVest does not have a valid underlying claim; HarbourVest's alleged damages are based on other causes, such as the impact of "market forces" on the Investment; and the agreements underlying the Investment "likely contain" provisions limiting liability arising from the Investment. Mr. Dondero further asserts that the Settlement was an inappropriate attempt to buy HarbourVest's vote on the Debtor's proposed Plan.

29. The Trusts Objection contends that the Settlement constitutes impermissible vote-buying and fails to explain (i) why the Debtor changed its mind about the strength of HarbourVest's claims; (ii) whether HarbourVest has authority under the governing agreements to sell its interest in HCLOF to an entity controlled by the Debtor; (iii) how the sale of that interest would benefit the estate; and (iv) the basis for the valuation of that interest.<sup>19</sup>

30. The CLO Holdco Objection claims that the Members Agreement does not authorize HarbourVest to transfer its interest in HCLOF to an affiliate of Highland without first providing CLO Holdco a right of first refusal under the Members Agreement.<sup>20</sup>

HarbourVest Has Strong Claims Against Highland

31. The HarbourVest Response and the Rule 3018 Motion describe HarbourVest's claims in significant detail. To avoid duplicative briefing, HarbourVest incorporates those filings in full and focuses here only on the most salient points that rebut the Objections.

HarbourVest Has Claims Directly Against Highland

32. As an initial matter, HarbourVest's claims lie against Highland directly, not only against non-debtor entities, as the Dondero Objection incorrectly contends. Throughout the negotiation, diligence, and closing of the Investment, HarbourVest only communicated with Highland personnel, and Highland personnel made the misrepresentations and omissions that induced HarbourVest to invest in HCLOF. Highland promoted and negotiated the Investment, negotiated the Investment, and managed the Investment once made.<sup>21</sup> In fact, extensive testimony in the Acis Bankruptcy proceedings indicated that the Guernsey-based directors of HCLOF abdicated nearly all responsibility to Highland. See HarbourVest Response ¶¶ 42–45 (establishing Highland was a shadow or de facto director of HCLOF under Guernsey law).<sup>22</sup>

33. The Dondero Objection attempts to point the finger everywhere but at Highland. First, it contends that HarbourVest identified the TRO and injunction entered in the Acis bankruptcy as the “root cause” of the devaluation of its Investment. Dondero Obj. ¶ 17. This is a gross distortion. HarbourVest’s claims stem from the fact that its Investment was predicated on Highland’s misrepresentations and omissions regarding the Transfers. The resulting damages occurred in the context of the Acis Bankruptcy, all of which resulted from Highland’s bad acts and representations.

34. Second, the Dondero Objection claims that HarbourVest’s losses resulted from mismanagement of HCLOF’s CLO investments by Acis and other “market forces.” As explained in detail in the Rule 3018 Motion, HarbourVest’s claims are actually the result of Highland’s actions. Further, the Dondero contentions do not undermine HarbourVest’s entitlement to damages and rescission as a legal matter. A party fraudulently induced is entitled to full rescission of the relevant contracts.<sup>23</sup> Ex post arguments relating to loss causation are no bar to HarbourVest’s claims relating thereto as a matter of law.<sup>24</sup> The Debtor could not ignore that reality in reckoning with its risk of loss and significant damages if HarbourVest’s claims had been tried rather than settled.

Rev. Civ. Stat. Ann. art. 581-33(A)(2) (2017). Loss causation is not an element of such a securities-violation claim. Kubbernus v. Ecal Partners, Ltd., 574 S.W. 3d 444, 485 (Tex. Ct. App. 2017) (“appellees were not required to prove causation as an element of their claims for securities violations under the TSA”) (citing Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. Ann. art. 581-33(A)(2) and collecting cases)).

The Objections Do Not Rebut Key Facts Underlying HarbourVest's Claims or Even Mention HarbourVest's Guernsey Law Claims

35. The Objections attempt to raise a litany of purported defects with HarbourVest's claims, but perhaps are most notable for arguments they do not make.

36. First, HarbourVest has pointed to specific misstatements and omissions by Highland during HarbourVest's diligence and purchase of the HCLOF interest (without even having had the benefit of discovery to explore the full extent of such misrepresentations and omissions).<sup>25</sup> The Objections do not seriously engage with these claims at all.

37. Second, the Objections do not even attempt to dispute the validity and strength of HarbourVest's Guernsey law claims. Nor could they. As HarbourVest's prior filings make clear, HarbourVest has numerous Guernsey law claims against Highland related to the mismanagement of HCLOF, including breach of fiduciary duties, fraud and misrepresentations, misuse of Fund assets, and unfair prejudice.<sup>26</sup> Rather than pay an $8 million judgment to Mr. Terry, Highland chose to embroil itself and its affiliates in years of litigation, wrongfully charging to HCLOF over $15 million in fees related to the Terry dispute, the Acis Bankruptcy, and related litigation.<sup>27</sup> HarbourVest, as a member of HCLOF, has borne roughly half of those fees and has actionable Guernsey law claims against Highland therefor. The Objections cite not a single Guernsey case, statute, rule, or law that call into question these well-founded claims. Such claims alone justify the Settlement's value.

The Underlying Agreements Neither Vitiates Nor Mitigate Highland's Liability

38. The Dondero Objection next argues – apparently on speculation – that “the terms of the relevant contracts themselves likely contain a number of provisions that may call into question Debtor’s liability or would be otherwise relevant to merits of the HarbourVest Claim.” Dondero Obj. ¶ 23 (emphasis added). But contractual limitations of liability or damages do not bar recovery for claims of fraud in the inducement.

39. A party is not bound by a contract procured by fraud – either at common law or under the Texas Securities Act. See, e.g., Formosa Plastics Corp. USA v. Presidio Eng’rs & Contractors, Inc., 960 S.W.2d 41, 46 (Tex. 1998); see also Aegis Ins. Holding Co., L.P. v. Gaiser, 2007 WL 906328, at *15–17 (Tex. App. 2007). The HCLOF Members Agreement recognizes these time-honored principles, explicitly stating that the Agreement’s standard merger provision does not “operate[] to limit or exclude any liability for fraud.” HCLOF Members Agreement § 15.3. This ends the inquiry. The Dondero Objection’s contention that contractual provisions bar HarbourVest’s claims is thus unavailing against HarbourVest’s claims.

HarbourVest’s Claims Entitle It to Significant Damages

40. As explained in detail in the HarbourVest Response and the Rule 3018 Motion, HarbourVest’s claims, including its claims for fraud, fraud in the inducement, and securities fraud, entitle it to damages and remedies that include rescission for the full value of the Investment, plus interest at the Texas statutory rate, as well as lost profits and punitive damages. HarbourVest’s other claims, including its RICO claim, could result in treble damages, significantly increasing Highland’s potential liability if it did not settle HarbourVest’s claims.

41. Specifically, HarbourVest’s damages include:

- Investment-related losses as of August 31, 2020 of more than $100 million, taking into account HarbourVest’s $78,521,429 of contributions to HCLOF plus 5% interest per year and HarbourVest’s anticipated proceeds therefrom;

- HarbourVest’s share of years of staggering fees charged to HCLOF: more than $7.5 million to date;
- Exemplary or punitive damages for Highland’s fraudulent behavior;
- HarbourVest’s own legal fees incurred as a result of the Acis Trustee’s investigation of HarbourVest in the Acis bankruptcy and HarbourVest’s protection of its own rights: more than $1 million to date.<sup>28</sup>

42. This is before potential trebling for HarbourVest’s claims against Highland for RICO violations.<sup>29</sup>

43. The rescission remedy to which HarbourVest is entitled is, in certain ways, reflected in the Settlement. By returning its interest in HCLOF to Highland and receiving a Class 8 claim that accounts for a portion of HarbourVest’s damages and a Class 9 subordinated claim for the approximate balance of HarbourVest’s initial investment, the Settlement effectuates an “unwind” of the Investment that HarbourVest never would have made had it known the truth underlying Highland’s misrepresentations and omissions.

The Transfer Agreement Is Permissible

44. In the CLO Holdco Objection, CLO HoldCo argues that the Transfer by HarbourVest of its shares in HCLOF to HCMLP Investments, LLC (“HCMLPI”), a wholly owned subsidiary of the Debtor, is not permitted under the terms of the Members Agreement. Even a cursory perusal of the Members Agreements reveals that this is flatly incorrect. In fact, CLO Holdco is asking the Court to rewrite the actual terms of the Members Agreement—adding some words and deleting others—to reach a result more to its liking: providing CLO Holdco with the right to be offered HarbourVest’s shares in HCLOF before the Transfer takes place.

45. CLO Holdco has shown no apparent interest in actually purchasing the shares subject to the Transfer. Instead, CLO Holdco is raising a purely technical objection to a deal that its related party, Mr. Dondero, opposes on other grounds. This technical and opportunistic objection fails on its face. The Transfer—a transfer by HarbourVest to an affiliate of an initial member<sup>30</sup> of HCLOF—is expressly permitted by the clear terms of the Members Agreement, without the need for further consents or rights of first refusal of any kind from CLO Holdco. In its arguments to the contrary, CLO Holdco ignores both the written words of the Members’ Agreement and other documents, as well as fundamental rights and protections of the other HCLOF members.

Relevant Contractual Provisions

46. The CLO Holdco Objection does identify the relevant provisions of the Members Agreement: (i) Section 6.1, governing when a transferring member of HCLOF (a “Member”) is required to obtain the consent of the “Portfolio Manager” (Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd.) and (ii) Section 6.2, governing when a transferring Member is required to first make an offer to the other Members to purchase their pro-rata share of the equity being transferred (such an offer, the “ROFO”). Each of these provisions contains an express carveout to any consent or ROFO requirements for transfers to “Affiliate[s] of an initial Member.” This same carveout also appears in several other important (and heavily negotiated) transaction documents, including in Section 18.1 and 18.2 of the HCLOF Articles of Incorporation, adopted November 15, 2017 (the “Articles of Incorporation”) and on pages 88 and 89 of the Offering Memorandum relating to the HCLOF investment, dated November 15, 2017 (the “Offering Memorandum”). The specific phrasing of the carveout was deliberately and repeatedly chosen by the parties to embody their business deal.

47. It is undisputed that HCMLPI is an “Affiliate of an initial Member”—the Debtor. All that is at issue is whether that phrase actually means what it literally says in the context of the Members Agreement, the Offering Memorandum, and the Articles of Incorporation, or whether these straightforward words should instead be given a meaning not found on the page, as advocated by CLO Holdco.

Guernsey Law Contract Interpretation Principles

48. Guernsey Law governs the HCLOF Members Agreement, a fact ignored by all of the objecting parties, including CLO Holdco. Members Agreement § 22. Accordingly, Guernsey law should guide the Court’s interpretation of the contract. In Re Acis Capital Management, L.P., 600 B.R. 541, 551-52 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2019) (applying Texas law because the parties’ choice of law clause was enforceable); In re Perry, 423 B.R. 215, 253 n.25 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2010) (applying Texas law because the Purchase Agreement reflected the parties’ intention to be bound by Texas law and the parties entered into the Agreement in Texas); 3D/Int’l, Inc. v. Romano, 811 Fed. App’x. 244, 248-51 (5th Cir. 2020) (upholding Texas choice-of-law provision because Mexico did not have a materially greater interest in the enforceability of the agreement).

49. Guernsey courts apply an objective, contextual approach to contract interpretation. The court seeks to determine the parties’ intent by reference to what a reasonable person, in possession of all the background knowledge the parties had at the time of contracting, would have understood the contractual language to mean. Arnold v Britton [2015] UKSC 36 [2015] AC 1619 ¶ 15. Words are given their ordinary meaning, in the context of the document as a whole. In the matter of the C Trust [2013] GLR 105 ¶ 21 (citing In the matter of the Internine and the Intertraders Trusts [2005] JLR 236 ¶ 62). Importantly, the words chosen by the parties are of “primary importance” and “one must be astute not to rewrite the contract so as to protect one of the parties from having entered into a bad bargain.” Federal Republic of Nigeria v JP Morgan Chase Bank NA [2019] EWHC 347 ¶ 32 (Comm) (emphasis added).

50. CLO Holdco may not like the bargain it struck, but the terms of the Members Agreement leave no doubt as to what that bargain was. The Members Agreement explicitly allows HarbourVest to transfer its interest in HCLOF to an “Affiliate” of an initial Member without giving CLO HoldCo a right of first refusal, and “no principle of interpretation [] entitles a court to re-write a contractual provision simply because the factor which the parties catered for does not seem to developing in the way in which the parties may well have expected.” Arnold v Britton [2015] UKSC 36 ¶ 41.

CLO Holdco’s Incorrect Interpretation.

51. CLO Holdco’s Objection attempts to rewrite certain provisions of the Members Agreement for its own benefit—changing some words and removing others. It claims that, when Sections 6.1 and 6.2 are read together, “it is clear that the consent exception allowing a transfer in 6.1 was intended to allow a Member to transfer its shares to its own Affiliate, without required consents and effectuating a Right of First Refusal.” CLO Holdco Objection ¶ 10.

52. This assertion effectively argues that the repeated description of “Affiliates of an initial Member” should instead be rewritten as “Affiliates of ~~an~~ such initial Member.” CLO Holdco offers no basis that could justify editing the Member Agreement after the fact. If the signatories to the Member Agreement had intended to adopt CLO Holdco’s meaning, they would have used different language (in the Members Agreement as well as in the Offering Memorandum and the Articles of Incorporation).

53. In fact, reading an extra “such” into the provisions causes them to break down entirely and lose all coherence, so further judicial edits would be required. Sections 6.1 and 6.2 are not just provisions restricting transfers by initial Members. They restrict transfers by all Members. All Members (whether initial Members or subsequent Members) may only transfer their interest in HCLOF to “Affiliates of an initial Member”—not freely to their own affiliates. It makes no sense to speak in terms of a subsequent Member (who is not an initial Member) being able to transfer its interests only to affiliates of such “initial Member”. Accordingly, CLO’s reading requires also deleting the word “initial” from two Sections of three key deal documents.

54. Altogether, according CLO Holdco’s argument, the very simple phrase “Affiliates of an initial Member” must actually be construed to mean “Affiliates of an such ~~initial~~ Member.” Such a rewrite is wholly incompatible with Guernsey law; it would also have a prejudicial and substantive effective on the rights of the Members going forward. As actually drafted, transfers to persons other than initial Member affiliates (and, in the case of CLO Holdco and Highland Principals, an even smaller group) trigger the ROFO, allowing Members to protect themselves against transfers to true third-parties. In contrast, on CLO Holdco’s reading, subsequent Members could freely transfer their interest to their own affiliates without Manager consent and without running the ROFO.

55. Absent such an unjustified rewrite, the plain language of Sections 6.1 and 6.2 operates just as it should. “Affiliates of an initial Member” describes a category of persons to whom any Member (except CLO Holdco or Highland Principals, who are held to a more rigid standard) can transfer its interests without consent and without triggering a ROFO. This interpretation respects the parties' intent to grant initial Members greater privileges than subsequent Members and to guard against transfers to true third-parties.

The Members Agreement Contains No Surplusage

56. CLO Holdco's purported justification for junking the plain terms of the parties' agreement and rewriting the Member's Agreement is that it is necessary to avoid "surplusage." In the first instance, CLO Holdco does not demonstrate that, under Guernsey law, avoiding alleged surplusage is actually an important or significant objective that could justify rewriting the clearly-stated and unambiguous contractual protections of the Members Agreement. CLO Holdco is also just incorrect: no language is rendered surplus under the plain reading of the documents.

57. Specifically, CLO Holdco points to the phrase "or, in the case of CLO Holdco or a Highland Principal, to Highland, its Affiliates or another Highland Principal" in 6.2—the exception to the ROFO for CLO Holdco and Highland Principals—as potential surplus. The CLO Holdco Objection states "[i]f, as the Debtor and Harbourvest will likely argue, Members are allowed to transfer their interests to any Affiliates of any other initial Members, there is absolutely no need for the Member Agreement to specifically authorize CLO Holdco to transfer its interests to the Debtor's Affiliates." CLO Holdco Objection ¶ 12. This is not true. The two phrases do not wholly overlap; instead, they describe two different universes of transferees that do not require a ROFO: one narrower set for CLO Holdco and Highland Principals, and another broader set for all other initial Members.

58. CLO Holdco erroneously refers to this specific, purposeful language as "surplusage." To the contrary, it has a substantive and intentional effect on the scope of permitted transfers for the various parties to the Agreement—one which provides important protection to the members under the Members Agreement, including against transfers by CLO

Holdco of its interests to persons who are not part of the Highland group of affiliated entities. The fact that CLO Holdco now does not like that it is subject to a more restrictive ROFO obligation than HarbourVest is no basis for rewriting the deal that was struck, nor for regarding the result as absurd.

59. In sum, motivated only by its desire to throw roadblocks in the way of the Debtor's resolution of its case, CLO Holdco is asking the court to conduct an after the fact rewrite of the terms of the Members Agreement and to gut key investor protections under the HCLOF deal documents. The Court should reject this request, and enforce the Members Agreement as it is actually written, which reflects the business deal of the parties thereto. The contract, and the deal it represents, definitively permits the Transfer.

The Settlement Meets the Fed. R. Civ. P. 9019 Standard and Passes Muster Under the Code

60. For the reasons explained in the Debtor's Reply to the Objections (which arguments HarbourVest adopts), the Settlement is fair and equitable, and readily satisfies Fed. R. Civ. P. 9019, including the factors typically considered by the Court in such inquiry. In re Moore, 608 F.3d 253, 263 (5th Cir. 2010) (under Rule 9019, a "proposed settlement must be 'fair and equitable' and in the best interests of the estate"); see also In re Cajun Elec. Power Co-op., Inc., 119 F.3d 349, 356 (5th Cir. 1997) (noting that the court's task is to compare "the terms of the compromise with the rewards of litigation").

61. In an effort to streamline briefing, HarbourVest further joins in the Debtor's Response to the Objections regarding the vote-buying and gerrymandering claims made in the Dondero Objection and the Trusts Objection. The Settlement reflects the validity and strength of HarbourVest's claims against the Debtor and is a fair compromise. HarbourVest strongly disputes any suggestion that the Debtor settled with HarbourVest to “purchase votes”—as opposed to because HarbourVest has significant and viable legal claims.

62. The law does not require the Debtor to engage in extensive litigation before settling HarbourVest’s claims. Indeed, continued litigation would waste the assets of the estate.<sup>31</sup> The Debtor recognized this. HarbourVest recognized this. It is time the objecting parties did as well.

<sup>31</sup> See, e.g., In re Heritage Org., 375 B.R. at 285 (“requiring litigation on the merits would undermine the policy of promoting settlements in bankruptcy”).

Prayer for Relief

63. HarbourVest respectfully requests this Court (i) grant the Settlement Motion; (ii) enter an order approving the Settlement; and (iii) grant HarbourVest such other and further relief to which it may be justly entitled, both at law and in equity.

711. The Plaintiffs have further and more detailed arguments with regard to the precise or possible application of the terms of the various exoneration and indemnity clauses, upon their true construction, and they have also raised arguments as to the extent to which Article 174(2) of CCC's Articles might be void for being contrary to public policy. Again, these arguments were not gone into in oral submissions at the trial in the interests of time. If they require consideration, then that will be better and more effectively done in the light of relevant findings of detailed fact, rather than at the level of legal principles. I will again, therefore, revert to these points only if and when necessary, and will invite further argument if I think appropriate.

(iii) Statutory discretion

712. Lastly, for the sake of completeness, I record that the Defendants would, if ultimately necessary, seek to invoke the court's statutory discretion under s 522 of the 2008 Companies Law, to excuse a director from liability on the grounds that he "acted honestly and reasonably and .... ought fairly to be excused". (There appears to have been no equivalent provision in the 1994 Companies Law, but the court's powers here depend on the law in force when it comes to make its decision.) This is again, obviously, a provision which would require to be applied in the context of detailed findings of fact, and I will accordingly defer any consideration of it until it may be appropriate.

(7) The Entity Defendants as Directors

713. The first seven Defendants are individuals who were formally appointed directors of CCC, as its first directors, in accordance with its Articles of Association. The Plaintiffs' claims are made against them as such. The Entity Defendants were not appointed directors of CCC. The Plaintiffs nonetheless claim that, on the facts of this case, they each can and should be held liable as if they had been validly appointed directors of CCC, on the basis that they were, in Guernsey law, either de facto directors of CCC or "shadow" directors of CCC, and that they therefore owed to CCC the same duties as if they had been duly appointed directors. There is little or no Guernsey law on this topic, but there is a large body at least of English law on the requirements for making out either qualification.

(a) De facto* directors

714. The term "de facto director" does not appear in Guernsey company legislation. The material Law in this case is the 1994 Companies Law, as amended in 1996. This was the Law in force at the time of the events complained of; the 2008 Companies Law did not come into effect until 1st July 2008.

Section 117 of the 1994 Companies Law provides that

"In this Law unless the context otherwise requires,

.... 'director' means a person occupying the position of director, by whatever name called".

715. This is slightly different from s.131 of the 2008 Companies Law, and indeed from all the recent English Acts at the time – the Companies Act 1948 s 455(1), Companies Act 1985 s

741(1) and Companies Act 2006, s 250. In all of these the definition is inclusive, rather than exhaustive, as exemplified by s. 131 of the 2008 Companies Law, which reads:

“In this Law “director” includes an alternate director and any person occupying the position of director, by whatever name called.” (emphasis added).

716. On a straightforward reading, s. 117 therefore deals only with nomenclature, making it clear that a company officer is to be treated as a “director” if he functions as such, even if he has a different official title. It does not refer to persons acting with no official position or title at all. However, since the thrust of s. 117 is that liability in the eyes of the law arises from “occupying the position of ‘director’” (ie carrying out the functions of a director) an appropriately purposive construction suggests that the definition covers persons acting as a director but with no title at all, ie no formal appointment to any office. I would so read it, and I therefore conclude that the minor difference in wording between s. 117 of the 1994 Companies Law and s 131 of the 2008 Companies Law is not of significance for this case, and neither, here, is the fact that the 1994 Companies Law, though modelled on the English statute, used this slightly different wording. In particular, I am satisfied that English authority provides useful assistance as to the scope of de facto directorship under the 1994 Companies Law.

717. The concept of a de facto director in English law was first recognised, in the 19th century, in the case of a person who had acted as a company director, but whose appointment was defective. Such a person could not escape responsibility as a director of the company by relying on the invalidity of his appointment. He had acted as a director de facto.

718. The first English case to extend the concept beyond this, to a person who had never even purportedly been appointed as a director of the company, appears to have been Re Lo-Line Electric Motors Ltd [1988] Ch 477. The defendant there had never been formally appointed, but was found to have been held out by the de iure directors of the company as being a director, and he had behaved as such. He was held to be a de facto director. This led Millett J (as he then was) in Re Hydrodan (Corby) Limited [1994] 2 BCLC 180, to explain the concept in the following terms:

“...a de facto director is a person who assumes to act as a director. He is held out as a director by the company, and claims and purports to be a director although never actually or validly appointed as such. To establish that a person was a de facto director of a company it is necessary to plead and prove that he undertook functions in relation to the company which could properly be discharged only by a director. It is not sufficient to show that he was concerned in the management of the company’s affairs or undertook tasks in relation to its business which can properly be performed by a manager below board level.” (emphasis added).

719. The concept was later extended yet again to include persons who were not even held out by the company as directors but who purported to act as directors of the company with no authority at all. It thus extends to those who “interfere” in the company’s affairs.

720. All this shows, though, that the focus is on the defendant’s acts. The reason for imposing liability is that those who in fact act as company directors should be held responsible as such. However, the extension simply to those who meddle brings a need to define and delimit the factual basis which does import liability. Thus, in the passage of Millett J’s judgment cited above, the passage emphasised is of central importance. The principle is that liability as a director is incurred by a defendant for doing acts, in relation to the company, which could be properly done only by a director. It is therefore necessary to decide if that condition is made out by identifying what acts can only be done by a director in the particular company. This requires investigating and identifying the corporate governance structure of the company, so as to see whether the relevant acts of the defendant are “directorial” (as I shall now refer to them) in that context.

721. Jumping slightly ahead, the most recent English case in which the authorities with regard to de facto directorship have been reviewed is Smithton Ltd v Naggar [2014] EWCA Civ 939, relied on by the Plaintiffs. Arden LJ there synthesised the cases, concluding that

“where a person had never been even invalidly appointed a director, it was necessary to examine the governance system of the company in order to assess whether he acted as a director”.

At [35] – [42] she set out a series of practical points material to determining whether a person was a de facto director. I distil those which are material to this case, as follows;

- (i) A party may be a de facto director even if there is no invalid appointment; the question is whether he carried out the function, and thus assumed responsibility to act as, a director;
- (ii) To answer that question, the court may have to determine in what capacity the alleged director was acting;
- (iii) The court will in general also have to determine the corporate governance structure of the company, (which can and will vary from company to company), so as to decide whether, in relation to the company’s business the defendant’s acts were “directorial” in nature; it is important that a first instance judge make findings in this regard;
- (iv) The court is required to look at what the party actually did and not any job title he had;
- (v) The test is objective; neither the party’s intention, nor his belief that he was or was not acting as a director, is of any relevance;
- (vi) The test is fact and circumstance dependent. It may be appropriate to look at the party’s actions “in the round” but equally, in an exceptional case even a single act may be taken to constitute a person a de facto director; and
- (vii) Whether the company held the party out as being a director would be a relevant factor; whether third parties regarded him as being a director may be material evidence.

722. I will adopt and apply these principles. I also add my own comments and emphasis to them, being points which I derive from looking at the authorities generally.

723. First, and as to (iii) above, in Holland v HMRC [2010] UKSC 51, Lord Collins observed at [91] that

“it is just as difficult to define “corporate governance” as it is to identify those activities which are essentially the sole responsibility of a director or board of directors”.

724. It seems to me that these are two ways of stating what is really the same test. Once one finds “directorial” acts, then whether one describes these as rendering the actor part of the corporate governance structure of the company, or whether one simply says that he must be taken to have assumed the functions of a director by so acting, is simply a matter of language.
725. Also as to (iii), the qualification noted by Millett J in Hydrodan remains; the test requires the finding of actual “directorial” acts on the part of the defendant and merely being involved in the management of the company, or exercising a degree of influence over its decision making, is not in itself enough, although in the former case it may become enough if there is no other person involved in the management of the company in practice. That, however, is not this case.
726. Next, because liability as a de facto director is brought upon a defendant as the legal consequence of his own acts and their being found to be “directorial acts”, it is imposed only in respect of such directorial acts; a “de facto director” does not automatically become responsible for the totality of the company’s acts or activities.
727. Identifying what are or are not “directorial” acts in any particular case may not be easy. At the company’s inception, all its powers to act are vested in its directors (by whatever name called) as a result of company legislation and the particular company’s articles of association. Subsequently, such powers can be delegated, to a greater or lesser degree. In the case of a small and simple company, authority to act for the company and deal with its assets may well remain with its directors, both at the high level of strategic decision-making and the low level of everyday decisions and acts of implementation. In the case of companies with large enterprises, employees, advisers and agents will be engaged to carry out the more everyday work, and where the nature of the business is complex or requires expertise, others may be involved in high level decision-making or activities. The structure will vary with the particular needs of the company and the particular skills of the directors. Insofar as the directors delegate active functions, their involvement will then, quite properly, become more supervisory than operational, although a residue of supervisory function will always remain at the core and be non-delegable. Therefore, whilst decisions within the retained area(s) of control remaining with the directors will certainly be “directorial” in nature, how far, within the spectrum of possible structures, actual delegation of power to act may have gone can differ from company to company, and will be fact-specific. Whilst the authorities acknowledge the difficulty of generally identifying what are or are not “directorial” acts in respect of a company, it seems to me that, in practice and like the proverbial elephant, one is likely to be able to recognise such an act in context, even if one cannot easily define it.
728. Thus far, however, the cases have been concerned only with holding a natural person to be a de facto director of a company. What is here alleged is that another corporate entity should be held to have been a de facto director of a company, and this adds yet another dimension to the concept of a de facto director.
729. The important case of Holland v HMRC [2010] UKSC 51 illustrates the analytical issues which have to be grappled with when the factual situation extends to corporate entities. In simple terms, in Holland, the subject company (S) was owned by another company (H) which was in turn owned by Mr Holland with his wife, and Mr Holland was the sole director of company H. The sole director of company S was company H. The issue was whether, through being the sole director of Company H which was the corporate director of Company S, and carrying out acts on behalf of Company S, Mr Holland had been a de facto director of Company S, so as to incur personal liability for an undoubted misapplication of Company S's funds. It was held by the majority of the Supreme Court (led by Lord Collins) that Mr Holland was not a de facto director of Company S, even though every decision of Company S was actually taken by him and implemented by him. This was because he was to be taken to have done those acts as the appropriate organ of, or agent for, Company H, the de iure corporate director. His acts were therefore the acts of Company H.

730. This decision was driven by respect for the distinction between the legal personality of a company and its owners, and a reluctance to pierce the corporate veil, (see [25]), influenced by the fact that company legislation permitted one company to be a director of another company. The dissenting minority, (led by Lord Hope) agreed that merely being a director of a corporate director (H) of a company (S) did not ipso facto render that person a de facto director of company S, and that something “more” (compare Hydrodan (above) at p 184B) was required. However, they considered that the extensive nature of the acts actually performed by Mr Holland in regard to Company S did amount to that something “more”, and they would have found him to be a de facto director.
731. On any basis, though, the entire Supreme Court plainly felt it right to reject, as an acceptable basis for the imposition of liability, an impressionistic “broad brush” argument that Mr Holland was “really” a director of the subject company, in the sense that he was its directing mind in a generalised way. All members tested the position by a principled legal analysis of the corporate structures which had been set up, and the position, authority and pertinent acts of the defendant which were claimed to have made him a de facto director. (It is to be borne in mind that no argument as to Mr Holland's being a shadow director of Company S arose in this case.)
732. I do not overlook that the reasoning in the Holland case may well have been influenced by the particular development of English law as regards the use of corporate directors. English company law had expressly provided that a corporation could be the director of a company in the Companies Act 1985, but it had intervened again in the Companies Act 2006 (s.155(1)) to decree that a company must have at least one natural person as a director. This was to avoid the unacceptable consequence that a company might have no natural person who could be held accountable for misapplication of its assets.
733. No such developments have featured in Guernsey law, at any rate at the time with which I am concerned. Corporate directors were (and still are) permitted, by the combined effects of s 117 of the 1994 Companies Law quoted above and the Interpretation (Guernsey) Law 1948, which enacts that unless the context otherwise requires, a reference in any enactment to a “person” means either a natural or a legal person. It follows that the actual decision in Holland, which would not be binding on this court, might be inappropriate in a Guernsey law context. I can see that it also might be thought that there was some force in the minority approach in that case.
734. However, this is not a point which arises for decision here. The actual decision in Holland is not directly material to this case, because there the claim was to hold an individual liable as a de facto director because of his own personal acts, whereas here the claim is the reverse; it is to hold another company liable as a de facto director because of the acts of individuals associated with that company.

735. What is to be derived from Holland, and other cases such as Kuwait Asia Bank EC v National Mutual Life Nominees Ltd [1991] 1 AC 187 (which decides that a party with the power to appoint a director to a company does not thereby become liable for the acts of such director, whether vicariously as his employer, or at all), is the importance of the capacity in which a natural person is acting, for the purpose of the correct legal analysis of the overall situation.
736. It is material in at least two different ways. The first is the requirement already noted that the relevant act within the subject company must be an act required to be done by someone with the capacity of a director. If the defendant could have carried out the acts in question in some other capacity, either because they were not acts which only a director could carry out (Hydrodan) or because the defendant enjoyed some other capacity in which he could properly do them (Holland), then the defendant is not a de facto director.
737. The second is that, since a corporate entity can only act through a natural person, where it is sought to make a corporate entity liable as a de facto director, one must find not only directorial acts done by the relevant natural person on behalf of the subject company, but also that that natural person was carrying out those acts as agent of the corporate entity sought to be made liable as its de facto director. Not only that, but it seems to me that, analysing the authorities, he must be found to be doing so only in such capacity.
738. It follows, in my judgment, that it will be well-nigh impossible to fix a corporate entity with liability as a de facto director of another company through the acts of any individual who was a de iure director of that other company at the time. That individual will obviously be carrying out “directorial acts” in his capacity as a director of the company, and not as agent for the targeted defendant.

(b) Shadow directors

739. The term “shadow director” is found in the 1994 Companies Law only through having been introduced by amendment in 1996. It was introduced, though, only for the purpose of the new section 67C, which relates to wrongful trading:-

“67C ... (7) In this section “director” includes a shadow director, which means a person in accordance with whose directions or instructions the directors of the company are accustomed to act” (emphasis added).

740. It follows that the Plaintiffs can certainly invoke the doctrine of shadow directorship against the Entity Defendants with regard to their wrongful trading claims. The question whether they can do so with regard to their claims based on the general fiduciary duties or duties of skill and care owed by a director to his company is not so clear.
741. The concept of the “shadow director” was enacted into Guernsey law more broadly in the 2008 Companies Law (see s. 132), but that was, of course, only as from 1st July 2008, and even then the enactment did not extend the term “director” as used in the Companies Law generally to include a “shadow director” as there defined. Rather, it enacted that where the term “shadow director” was itself used in the 2008 Companies Law, this meant a “person in accordance with whose directions or instructions the directors of the company are accustomed to act”, and in s 132(3) it specifically extended the meaning of the word “director” in particular sections of the Law (ss 160 and 162-4, which have no relevance here) to include a “shadow director”, as so defined.

742. Thus, in both the 1994 Law and the 2008 Law, the operation of the defined concept of a “shadow director” is confined to the two situations, first where that term is actually used in the Law itself, and second where it is specifically directed to be treated as if it had been used. These situations do not include the operation of the company director’s fiduciary duties or duties of skill and care, neither of which is actually laid down in the Companies Laws at all. Neither Law enacted that wherever the term “director” was being used or applied in the Law, it included a shadow director.
743. The significance of this is that liability as a de facto director of a company applies because the office of a “director” in company law has been held, by judicial interpretation of that term (in English law but with Guernsey law reasonably following suit), to extend to a person who acts as a director of a company in actual fact, even though not as of right. However, liability as a shadow director is not the result of judicial interpretation, but of legislative enactment. It is therefore confined to the cases stipulated by the enactment.
744. It consequently seems to me, that it is only if the concept of de facto directorship itself could be extended to include the shadow directorship situation that this would enable a finding of liability for breach of fiduciary duty or of duty of skill and care to be made against a shadow director. This would be a perfectly reasonable interpretation. The basis for imposing liability on persons as de facto directors of companies is that of imposing duties and responsibilities to the company on those who are in practice taking the operative decisions on its behalf. This principle can be applied just as readily to the shadow director situation as it does to the conventional de facto director situation.
745. If it were open to me to do so, I would readily construe the Guernsey Companies Laws to the effect that a person could “occupy the position of director” of a company by issuing directions or instructions to its de iure directors which those directors were accustomed to act upon, and thus that person would be a director of the company, in any material respect according to the facts.
746. However, albeit with reluctance and on balance, I do not think that doing so is open to me. It seems to me that the terms of the Companies Laws - and it is even more clear in the 2008 Law - treat the concept of shadow directorship and the situation giving rise to it as being a separate and distinct concept in its own right. The legislature has then prescribed the situations in which the situation of a person falling within that concept is to be taken to impose director’s liabilities or duties, initially on a very limited basis in 1996, and subsequently in a wider range of situations in 2008. That being the case, it seems to me that the legislature has to be taken to have intended those situations to be exhaustive with regard to shadow directorship, and that in enacting those express provisions it was implicitly ruling that the term “director” did not, itself, extend to them. The consequence is that the legislation seems to me to have ruled out any permissible judicial extension of the principles of de facto directorship to include shadow directorship.
747. It would follow that liability as a shadow director in Guernsey law applies only where the applicable Companies Law directly stipulates. I would hold, therefore, that the allegation of shadow directorship against the Entity Defendants is available only in respect of the Plaintiffs' claim for wrongful trading. However, I have to consider the legal principles regarding a shadow director for the purpose of the wrongful trading claim in any event. I therefore do so generally and what I say below are my findings on the scope of the concept of shadow directorship in Guernsey law, whether its application is limited as just discussed or not.

748. First, a minor point of construction. Under the 2008 Companies Law, the definition of a shadow director was extended by adding the further qualification that a person was

“not to be regarded as a shadow director by reason only that the directors act on advice given by him in a professional capacity” (s. 132(2)).

749. I do not think this makes any substantive difference to the meaning of the concept under s 67 of the 1994 Companies Law as amended. In my judgment, this qualification is really implicit in the original wording, not least because “advice” and “directions or instructions” are different things. I accept that “advice” could conceivably be rendered in such a way that it could fairly be characterised as either “directions” or “instructions”. However, that would be a matter of fact to be proved, and does not mean that advice generally is to be taken as falling naturally within such a description.
750. I do not think that I was urged by Advocate Wessels to infer, from the introduction of this qualification on 1st July 2008, that prior to that time a professional adviser in Guernsey on whose advice directors of a company would generally act was to be taken to be a shadow director of the company, but I would in any event decline to do so. To do so would, in my judgment, be attributing far too much inferential weight to amendments to companies legislation which were probably inserted for the avoidance of doubt, and would in fact be contrary to what I have indicated I would regard as the natural meaning of the words in context, according to their obvious policy intention.
751. I approach the matter, therefore, on the basis that the court is looking for “directions” or “instructions”, even though it would not be precluded from finding, on appropriate facts, that communications which were termed “advice” nonetheless fell into those categories in substance.
752. Once again, the English case of Re Hydrodan (Corby) Ltd (above) provides a useful starting point for formulating the appropriate test. Millett J, at p 183 c-e, and having emphasised the contrast with a de facto director, (in that the former openly acts as a director, whereas the latter claims not to be a director at all), determined that the statutory definition required proof of

“(1) who are the directors of the company, whether de facto or de jure; (2), that the defendant directed those directors how to act in relation to the company or that he was one of the persons who did so; (3) that those directors acted in accordance with such directions; and (4) that they were accustomed so to act. What is needed is first, a board of directors claiming and purporting to act as such; and secondly, a pattern of behaviour in which the board did not exercise any discretion or judgment of its own, but acted in accordance with the directions of others.”

753. Later English authority has established that it is not necessary for all the directors to act in accordance with the relevant directions or instructions; a governing majority will suffice: see Ultraframe (UK) Ltd v Fielding [2005] EWHC 1638 at [1272]. It is also not necessary that an alleged shadow director should control all the decisions of the directors, or all the company's field of activities: Secretary of State for Industry v Deverell [2001] Ch 340 per Morritt LJ. There must, though, be actual "acts" by the Board which are being controlled in the manner described, because this is what is stated in the statutory definition. There must also be a pre-existing pattern of such allegedly controlled acting. This is necessary in order to satisfy the requirement of "being accustomed": see Ultraframe (above) at [1277-8].

754. The essence of this concept is that the alleged shadow director is, in reality, the actual director or the "directing mind" of the company in the relevant respects, (ie the offending acts of the de jure – or it could even be: de facto - directors), because those who are actually carrying out the particular offending acts are merely the conduits of his wishes and decisions.
755. Lewison J in Ultraframe expressed some reservations as to the extent of fiduciary duties properly imposed on shadow directors, since they would usually be incurring liability precisely because they would be operating with a conflict of interest as regards another person or entity (at [1290]). I would decline to follow that dictum on any basis, though, for being what I would regard as an unguarded comment, since the whole point of imposing liability for shadow directorship is precisely to hold liable the persons who are in fact directing a company's affairs contrary to what would otherwise be its directors' duties. Fortunately, in Vivendi SA v Richards, [2013] EWHC 3006, Newey J clarified the position sensibly, concluding that shadow directors did owe fiduciary duties to the company, and that "A shadow director can, I think reasonably be expected to act in the company's interests rather than his own separate interests when giving such [sc. such as the directors will be accustomed to act upon] directions and instructions." [143].

756. Once again, though, discussion of this topic shows the need for careful analysis of what is actually going on in substance, especially as regards defendants with a potential conflict of interest. This is highlighted by some of the examples considered in Ultraframe, which discuss (see [1266-9]) the position of funders, lenders, suppliers, etc, who may be able to dictate the actions of the company to its board because of the strength of their commercial negotiating position. Lewison J accepted and endorsed the view that doing so would not make that counterparty a shadow director of the company. He also accepted that a creditor of the company is entitled to protect his own interests as creditor without necessarily becoming a shadow director of the company. This is a realistic approach and, on a more general plane, it underlines that the courts will be careful, in making judgments in the context of commercial matters, to give appropriate recognition to the realities of the business world. Such recognition, together with the exception of trusted professional advisers from liability, emphasises both the focus of the policy that imposes liabilities on shadow directors, and that any finding is dependent on facts.
757. Advocate Wessels took me to Secretary of State for Industry v Deverell (above) as his principal authority and as epitomising the test for shadow directorship. Morritt LJ summarised his conclusions at [35] in five propositions:

"...(1) The definition of a shadow director is to be construed in the normal way.....it should not be strictly construed....."

"(2) The purpose of the legislation is to identify those, other than professional advisers, with real influence in the corporate affairs of the company. But it is not necessary that such influence should be exercised over the whole field of its corporate activities.....

“(3) Whether any particular communication from the alleged shadow director, whether by words or conduct, is to be classified as a direction or instruction must be objectively ascertained by the court in the light of all the evidence. In that connection I do not accept that it is necessary to prove the understanding or expectation of either giver or receiver. In many, if not most, cases it will suffice to prove the communication and its consequence. Evidence of such understanding or expectation may be relevant but it cannot be conclusive. Certainly the label attached by either or both parties then or thereafter cannot be more than a factor in considering whether the communication came within the statutory description of direction or instruction.

“(4) Non-professional advice may come within that statutory description. The proviso excepting advice given in a professional capacity appears to assume that advice generally is or may be included. Moreover the concepts of “direction” and “instruction” do not exclude the concept of “advice” for all three share the common feature of “guidance”.

“(5) It will, no doubt, be sufficient to show that in the face of “directions or instructions” from the alleged shadow director the properly appointed directors or some of them cast themselves in a subservient role or surrendered their respective discretions. But I do not consider that it is necessary to do so in all cases. Such a requirement would be to put a gloss on the statutory requirement that the board are “accustomed to act” “in accordance with” such directions or instructions.....a qualification beyond that justified by the statutory language.”

758. I would broadly accept these propositions but with the following qualification.

759. First, I do not think that Mr Wessels sought to argue that the “real influence” referred to in proposition (2) can be viewed as either an accurate paraphrase for, or an alternative expression of, the qualifying test for being a shadow director contained in the statutory definition itself. i.e. the requirement of there being “directions or instructions.” If he did, so, then I reject that argument. In my judgment, it is not available, certainly not insofar as it is inconsistent with the actual words of the statute. A test of “real influence” is not only not the statutory requirement, but is both so vague as to be unworkable, and departs too far from the essence of the concept, which is that a “shadow” director is a person who is, in reality, running the company in the relevant respect, albeit doing so through the actions of others who compliantly do his will. It may be possible that a person who has serious influence on the affairs of the company because his views or advice are habitually sought and acted on out of deference could fall within the definition of shadow director, but that would depend on whether the circumstances justified the relevant findings of fact as to the communications amounting to “directions or instructions”.

760. Second, I do not understand Morritt LJ to be saying, in proposition (3), that “directions or instructions” can arise without the intention and objective of, at least, the alleged giver of the instructions being that the Board should act in accordance with his expressed wishes. If he is so saying, then I respectfully disagree. There is a difference of quality between advice, even if forcefully expressed, and a direction or instruction, and that difference is that the maker of the communication is doing so with the intention of procuring a result for his own ends. Of course, that state of mind may be capable of being inferred from indirect evidence in the usual way, but it does not seem to me that the statute authorises dispensing with such a finding. The statute requires a finding that the de iure directors were accustomed to act in accordance with the “directions or instructions” of the alleged shadow director and not merely in accordance with his presumed wishes or interests.

761. Third, I note, and Mr Wessels accepted, that the requirement to find “directions or instructions” requires the finding of actual communications, from the alleged shadow director to the Board Members, which constitute “directions or instructions”. This is plain from Morritt LJ’s proposition No (3). Such a finding is, of course, a matter of evidence and subject to the usual processes of pleading and proof. Again, though, it cannot simply be glossed over or assumed as part of some postulated bigger picture. Any inference that there were “directions or instructions” must be made as a finding of actual fact, justified, on balance of probability by evidence.
762. Fourth, it is clear from the cases such as Kuwait Asia Bank, (above) that the element of influence or even control over a company’s affairs which arises from either holding its shares, or having control over the employment position of its directors, is not sufficient on its own to constitute a party – generally there a company, - a shadow director. This underlines, again, the need for proof of the factual situation which constitutes shadow directorship, and that mere allegation of a relationship of influence, or similar, is not enough.
763. Fifth, and at the risk of stating the obvious, if it is sought to make a corporate entity liable as a shadow director, then it is necessary to find directions or instructions in the form of communications issued by that entity. Since a corporate entity can only act by human agency, then even if actual communications by a human being can be pointed to, issues of the capacity in which those communications were made will still need to be examined, to decide whether the communication was actually that of the corporate entity. In other words, any “directions or instructions” will have to be established to be those of the corporate entity, and this also requires affirmative proof on the evidence. This is not surprising, as the actual director of the company will already be liable, and fixing a shadow director with liability is an extension of liabilities arising out of the corporate structure.
764. Finally I make some general observations. There has been dispute in the English cases as to whether the concepts of de facto and shadow directorships are or are not mutually exclusive. In my judgment, and for the reasons given by Millet J in Re Hydrodan (above), logic dictates that they have to be, certainly now that statute has intervened to delimit the concept and application of the liability of shadow directors as discussed at the beginning of this section. In this situation, it may be possible to be a shadow director and a de facto director at the same time, but not in respect of the same acts, because the test for each basis of liability is materially different. A de facto director is fixed with liability because of what he does. A shadow director is fixed with liability because of what he procures. Fortunately this seems more of an academic dispute than one of real consequence. I have indicated above the extent to which I am concerned with it here.
765. Again, and although not bearing directly on the facts of de facto or shadow directorships, it is helpful context, in my judgment, to keep in mind that a party which is entitled to appoint a director to the board of another company does not ipso facto become either a shadow, or a de facto, director of the company. Whether he (or it) does so has to be judged on the basis of the actual facts; for example, he is plainly more likely to do so if he is in fact able to appoint a majority of the Board. However, the position in law is that by appointing another person as a director of a company, the appointor is taken to authorise the appointee to perform conscientiously the duties of such a director, and therefore to exercise his own judgement and to act in what he perceives to be the best interests of the company, rather than those of his appointor. The appointee becomes agent of the company and not of his appointor.

766. As mentioned in relation to de facto directors, if a company which is entitled to appoint a director to the Board of another company appoints one of its own employees, then even though the employee carries out his directorial functions as part of his employment duties, the employer is not vicariously liable ipso facto for the acts of the employee as such director: see. Kuwait Asia Bank EC v National Mutual Life Nominees Ltd [1991] 1 AC 187 (PC) – an instructive and useful case on the position of nominee directors and the proper scope of duties thereby owed. Once again, this principle recognises that the office of director imposes freestanding personal and independent liabilities on the party holding that office, regardless of the origins of his appointment. Of course, if the actual facts demonstrated that the employee director had been following instructions issued to him by his employer, then the situation would be different.
767. Insofar as the foregoing points are not of direct relevance to this case, I find them to provide helpful guidance as to the proper approach to the concept of shadow directorship as it does come to be applied in this case. To distil the essential points for the present case:-
- (i) To fix any of the Entity Defendants with liability as a shadow director of CCC the Plaintiffs need to prove that the actual directors (de iure or possibly de facto if already found) were accustomed to act in accordance with “directions or instructions” given by that corporate entity. This requires proof, on the evidence in the usual way, of actual directions or instructions.
  - (ii) “The directors” would include a relevant voting majority of the board of directors.
  - (iii) It is insufficient to establish one instance only of obedience to such direction or instruction; there has to be a series of such acts so as to prove the requirement of being “accustomed” so to act. However, that does not necessarily have to be on the same subject matter, and in an appropriate case, relatively minimal evidence of previous biddability might well suffice.

6. The issues to be determined

768. Having now determined the law which I will be applying, it is convenient to marshal the issues which, in consequence, arise for determination, before turning to the evidence and the witnesses.
769. Turning to the allegations in the case, the Defendants say that they have identified 187 separate allegations of breach of duty pleaded against them in the Cause, although I confess that I have not counted them. They appear (from the Defendants’ comments on the unagreed “Concise List of Issues” referred to below) to be the total number of sub-paragraph allegations contained in Paragraphs 263C-263H, 308D-308J, 339B-339G, 367D-367I, 369T-369Y, 390B-390G, and finally 417, 418B-E, 418I-418L, 419, 422 and 424B-424E of the Amended Cause.

2508. As already observed there is no claim in wrongful trading with regard to this period. However, in my judgment, CCC never reached a point where it was unable to meet its debts, even as “they fell due”, before the time of the sudden avalanche of margin calls which were prompted by the brewing liquidity crisis of March 2008. Carlyle was not pressing for payment of the loans it had made. CCC always succeeded in obtaining financing as required up to that time and it paid all margin calls up to that date. Also, in my judgment, there was no point prior to the point when they actually did so that the Directors of CCC ought to have concluded that CCC stood no reasonable prospect of continuing to do so and thus avoiding insolvent liquidation. Whilst this may be a very sudden change of fortune, the evidence shows that, in the financial markets, fortunes can indeed change that quickly.

Final Conclusions as regards the individual Defendants and CIM as investment manager

2509. It follows from the above that, in dismissing the Plaintiffs’ claims against the individual Defendants for breaches of duty and in relation to CIM for breach of contract/tort in this period, I have now dismissed all such claims in the action.

15. The Claims: Liability of the Entity Defendants as de facto or shadow directors.

2510. I have so far not considered at all the allegations of liability made against the Eighth to Tenth Defendants other than to dismiss the claims of breach of contract or negligence qua investment manager against CIM, and I now turn to these.

Preliminary – limits of case

2511. Paragraph 80 of the Cause is the foundation paragraph for the Plaintiffs’ claims against the Entity Defendants. Within it, though, the Plaintiffs asserted, not just a claim founded on allegations of de facto and/or shadow directorship, but also (it appeared) an additional basis of claim, namely that the matters complained of amounted to breaches of “other duties” owed to CCC arising out of the nature of the relationship between the Entity Defendants and CCC, as asserted in paragraphs 76 and 77 of the Cause. Those paragraphs contained allegations, first of “pervasive control” of CCC by the Entity Defendants and second of a “relationship of trust and confidence” between CCC and the Entity Defendants. From this, it appeared that the Plaintiffs might be intending to argue some other grounds for imposing liability on one or other of the Entity Defendants outside the two recognised concepts of de facto or shadow directorship; the second phrase, in particular, is usually found in the pleading of a cause of action based on undue influence.

2512. However, in answer to a specific query from the bench as to whether this was so, Advocate Wessels confirmed that it was not. Following their closing submissions, the Plaintiffs expressly confirmed in writing that as against the Entity Defendants, their claims against TCG and Holdings rested entirely on the allegation that those Defendants were either de facto or shadow directors of CCC and thus themselves owed to CCC the various duties of directors. They alleged no other grounds of claim against TCG and Holdings, although as against CIM, they alleged both those bases of claim and also the further or alternative claims of breach of contract and/or non-contractual negligence.

2513. Turning, therefore to the claims based on de facto or shadow directorship, in my judgment these claims fail against each of these Entity Defendants in limine. The factual requirements for such liability are simply not made out on the evidence before me, and are scarcely even pleaded.

The pleaded claims of de facto and shadow directorship

2514. The basic pleading of the Plaintiffs' case appears at Paragraph 80 of the Amended Cause:

“80. Carlyle each controlled the affairs of CCC and performed functions properly discharged by a director of CCC and/or was part of CCC's corporate governing structure, such that each of Carlyle and CIM was a de facto director under Guernsey Law. Further or alternatively, the majority of the directors of CCC took direction from and were accustomed to act in accordance with the directions of Carlyle and CIM such that each of Carlyle and CIM was a shadow director of CCC under Guernsey Law.”

2515. The authorities show that the “and/or” in the first sentence above cannot stand except as “and”. The test for de facto directorship is emphatically what the defendant actually did, and merely “being” part of the corporate governing structure is not enough.

2516. A more technical point is that the term “Carlyle” as used in the Cause is stated to be a “collective” reference to Holdings and TCG. I doubt whether a joint directorship is possible even in theory. In my judgment a cause of action alleging either shadow or de facto directorship has to be made against a single individual. I will, though, benevolently treat the “collective” definition as being disjunctive, and the allegations of de facto or shadow directorship as being made separately against each of TCG and Holdings.

2517. I have already referred to the pattern of the Cause in making the same general allegations against groups of Defendants in respect of the times in point, but in places with further elaborations particularly relevant to that group. In the case of the Entity Defendants (referred to in the Cause as “Carlyle and CIM”) the extra allegation is generally a reference to the claim of the “pervasive control” of CCC exercised by Carlyle and/or CIM. These allegations are ultimately found in Paragraphs 412R to 412ZF of the Amended Cause, where the complaints against CIM, TCG and Holdings are collected under the side heading “Carlyle and CIM's pervasive control of CCC”. Attempting brevity, I summarise these paragraphs here.

2518. The Plaintiffs initially recite the ownership relations between the Founders and the Entity Defendants, and set out the circumstances of the appointment of the various personnel who actually conducted CCC's affairs day to day, in particular Mr Stomber and Messrs Greenwood, Trozzo, Rella and Green. They stress the instrumentality of “the Founders” (in places “on behalf of” Carlyle and/or CIM) in setting up these structures. They also stress the practical power of the Founders over the employment position of each of such senior personnel.

2519. A specific allegation of the shadow directorship of the Entity Defendants is made at Paragraph 412Z, and matters relied on for this then follow. First, at paragraph 412ZA, the Plaintiffs plead 14 individual written statements made by Mr Stomber between November 2006 and 14th March 2008, which they say show that Mr Stomber “at all material times” acted “in accordance with Carlyle's wishes and its interests and ...primarily to protect and advance the interests and reputation of Carlyle”. These might be argued to show a mindset of servility, or even sycophancy, on Mr Stomber's part, but they do not even mention any directions or instructions from an Entity Defendant.

2520. The Plaintiffs next plead the provisions in CCC's Articles of Association which confide special powers of approval to a majority of the Independent Directors as previously noted, and they plead in Paragraph 412ZD that in exercising those powers, rather than exercising their own independent judgement and responsibility the three Independent Directors were instead

"accustomed to act in accordance with the directions and instructions of Carlyle, expressed through communications made by persons acting for and on behalf of, or alternatively in the interests of, Carlyle".

2521. One can just about extract from this an assertion of the giving of instructions or directions (to the Independent Directors, therefore) by a person acting on the authority of TCG or Holdings, but it does not condescend to the necessary identification of the giver of the instructions or the alleged material instructions themselves. This could, though, be remedied by the four matters which are then pleaded as founding this allegation. They are

- i. "as a consistent course of conduct ...acceding unquestioningly to requests" (maker not specified) for approval to reductions/suspensions in CCC's key risk management measures (including the minimum liquidity cushion),
- ii. "acceding unquestioningly" to Mr Conway's alleged "decision" to refrain from selling RMBS,
- iii. "acceding unquestioningly" to Mr Conway's alleged "decision" and/or Mr Stomber's "recommendation" not to seek to raise additional equity capital, and lastly

- iv. refraining from requiring more frequent Board meetings and instead simply "permitting Carlyle and CIM to operate CCC as they saw fit" - particularly as regards continuing to operate without maintaining a minimum liquidity cushion as a known "fundamental" element of CCC's business model.

None of the above however is an allegation of a direction or instruction from TCG or Holdings being followed, whether customarily or otherwise, by Messrs Allardice, Sarles and Loveridge.

2522. The Plaintiffs next plead (Paragraph 412ZE) that "Carlyle and CIM, through the Founders and Senior Carlyle Personnel, controlled and directed the affairs of CCC" in that they

- "1. regularly undertook functions in relation to CCC which could only be properly discharged by a director, and formed part of CCC's corporate governance structure; and/or*
- 2. exercised a degree of control over the business and affairs of CCC that was at least on an equal footing with that exercised by its de jure directors; and/or*
- 3. were held out to, and regarded by, CCC's shareholders and creditors as part of the corporate governance structure of CCC, and responsible for its success; and/or*
- 4. were the substantial or predominant influence in directing the affairs of CCC."*

2523. Although sounding initially like an allegation of shadow directorship, the details only mention aspects of de facto directorship in (1) and (3), but even none of these allegations is specific; they ring more of a submission than statements of fact and are mostly mere assertion. They do not plead specifically any fact capable of bringing home liability to any of the Entity Defendants arising from having acted as either a shadow or de facto director of CCC in any material respect in this action. A finding of de facto directorship has to be founded on proof of the doing of a specific (offending) “directorial act” by the relevant defendant, and a finding of shadow directorship has to be based on proof of actual directions or instructions given by the defendant.

listing 16 individual occasions of such alleged control or direction between the inception and the demise of CCC, in which Messrs Rubenstein, Mayrhof, Buser, Nachtwey, Harris, Ms Cosiol or unspecified senior Carlyle personnel, sometimes in conjunction with Mr Conway, took some step in relation to CCC’s affairs. There is no need to recite all of them, but as a flavour, they include matters as diverse as seeking investment in CCC, forming plans in case its IPO did not proceed, overseeing CCC’s publicity materials, dealing with CCC’s funding counterparties and auditors, and receiving or making reports on CCC’s affairs. However, only one such allegation is in respect of a matter which is alleged to have caused loss to CCC. This is at Paragraph 412ZF.5, which cites the familiar decision not to sell RMBS (etc) in August 2007, and the potential provision of a further loan from Carlyle to CCC in September 2007, but pleads that these were decisions of Mr Conway, acquiesced in by the other de iure directors of CCC. Mr Conway was, of course, a de iure director of CCC. Thus, this allegation neither alleges any “directorial acts” of CCC effected by personnel who were agents of an Entity Defendant, nor the communication of any “direction or instruction” to a de iure director of CCC by an Entity Defendant.

2525. The next material Paragraphs of the Cause are those at 419 – 421, in a section headed “CIM’s wrongful conduct”. There is first pleaded against CIM, 21 matters of conduct each said to be reckless, grossly negligent (or negligent), wilful misconduct, and a breach of the fiduciary “or other” obligations owed by it to CCC, and then, at Paragraph 420, it is pleaded that as its actual directors owed, and that CIM breached these, through the conduct pleaded, not (oddly enough) in para 419, but in Paragraphs 417.4 -417.24 and 418A- 418N - even though these are allegations of misconduct by the individual directors, of whom at least three, the Independent Directors, had nothing to do with CIM. On close and laborious examination, none of these alleged facts is anything which could be argued to have been done by CIM otherwise than as part of its functions as CCC’s investment manager, or amounted to “directions or instructions” to the directors of CCC rather than being professional advice.

2526. In Paragraphs 422 - 424, the Plaintiffs then plead exactly the same matters as those previously pleaded in Paragraphs 419-421 against CIM, but now against “Carlyle”, and the same points arise.

2527. In Paragraphs 424A –G, under the heading “Additional particulars of breach by Carlyle and CIM” the Plaintiffs then repeat a large number of earlier paragraphs of the Cause and allege, at intricate length, that the breaches of various fiduciary duties and duties of skill and care pleaded previously in those paragraphs were also breaches of such duties owed by CIM and “Carlyle”. Again, it does not seem to me that these paragraphs contain allegations of the facts necessary to constitute either de facto or shadow directorship, as recognised in law.

2528. It thus seems to me that the Cause barely pleads a sustainable basis for a claim that the Entity Defendants incurred liability as either de facto or shadow directors of CCC for the breaches of duty alleged to have caused CCC loss. However, as the nature of the claim is reasonably apparent, I go on to consider what are the requirements for any such claim, and whether these can be made out on the evidence in the trial.

De facto* directorship – discussion and conclusion

2529. This is not a case of acting under an invalid appointment: none of the Entity Defendants was purportedly appointed a director of CCC.

2530. Nor is it a case of CCC having held out TCG or Holdings (or CIM) as a director despite the fact that they were not, with TCG or Holdings or CIM having joined in and purported to act as a director. Although such holding out is pleaded in respect of TCG and Holdings, there is no evidence of this even on a general basis, and certainly none in respect of the only material allegations of breach of duty, ie those alleged to give rise to the loss suffered by CCC.

2531. The type of de facto directorship alleged here is the third category of de facto directorship, identified above under Legal Principles, ie that of interference. It requires that the Entity Defendants can be shown to have meddled in the affairs of CCC by themselves carrying out acts which only a director of CCC had power to carry out, and which were culpable on the part of a director of CCC in the ways pleaded. To be a qualifying act, for the purpose of founding proof of de facto directorship in this case, the relevant act must satisfy four criteria. It must be

- (i) an act carried out on behalf of CCC, that only a de iure director of CCC could perform,
- (ii) an act carried out by the relevant entity sought to be fixed with liability (ie by a human actor who is either an empowered officer, or the duly authorised agent, of that entity, and for that purpose),
- (iii) an act which the relevant actor could not be legitimately doing in a capacity other than that of a director of CCC, and, in addition, in order to give rise to liability

- (iv) an act which was in some way causative of the damage to CCC of which complaint is made.

2532. Leaving aside the fourth requirement for the moment, as regards TCG and Holdings, there is no acknowledgment of the first three criteria in the pleading, and there is neither pleading, nor evidence, to show how it is maintained that the only actions which are claimed to have caused actual loss to CCC, namely the decisions not to sell RMBS or seek to raise further equity capital from July 2007 onwards, were carried out by TCG or Holdings, as a matter of fact. Certainly facts demonstrating the necessary authority from TCG or Holdings to the person(s) who actually did any such material acts would have to be pleaded and proved. There is nothing approaching this.
2533. Even overlooking the absence of a properly pleaded case on the pleadings, but applying the correct legal principles to the evidence in this case, I find the allegations of the de facto directorship of CCC, whether by CIM, TCG or Holdings to be unsubstantiated. The allegation is little more than assertion, founded totally on the argument that the relationship of TCG and Holdings (or CIM) to CCC should be characterised as one of “control”, and arguing that “therefore” any material decision or act of CCC or its Board can be regarded as being “really” that of TCG or Holdings (or CIM). That is neither principled, nor is it the law.
2534. The short point is that the only decisions which are alleged to have caused loss to CCC are the decisions made at various points between July 2007 and March 2008 not to sell RMBS (or not to try to raise equity capital) but instead to hold on to those assets and to continue the necessary borrowings to do so, and, on the evidence, those decisions were taken or endorsed, and the implementation of those acts was authorised, by the de iure directors of CCC. Even if the scope of relevant decisions is extended to include such ancillary matters as authorising the suspension of the Investment Guidelines, those decisions were also still taken by the de iure directors of CCC.
2535. There is no evidence of any such decision being taken by anyone in the capacity of agent for TCG or Holdings. Whilst it might be argued that some such decisions were taken or implemented by CIM, such acts were properly done in CIM’s capacity as investment manager for CCC, appointed under the IMA. They are plainly referable to that status; they are not CIM’s officiously assuming the functions of a director of CCC.
2536. Even where distinctions in capacity might begin to become blurred in practice (I note, for example, that Mr Green resigned from CIM, and thus what was effectively his position as CFO of CCC at the end of January 2008 shortly before the end of the material time, and the result was that Mr Buser of TCG rendered more assistance to the operations of CCC in his place), that makes no difference to the fundamental point that to make out de facto director liability it would be necessary to prove that an individual acting on behalf of TCG or Holdings did material acts on behalf of CCC which could only have been done by a director of CCC. I was in fact not even addressed on the basis that there were any such examples in the evidence. The whole pattern of the Plaintiffs’ submissions in this regard was simply reliance and emphasis on the strength of the alleged “pervasiveness” of the Carlyle ethos and influence in the running of CCC’s affairs, and that this somehow made TCG or Holdings tantamount to directors of CCC, such that they could be called de facto directors of CCC. An alternative submission was that as Mr Stomber and Mr Conway, in particular, failed themselves (it is said), to distinguish the capacities in which they might be acting, that opened up the door to treat their acts as being carried out on behalf of TCG, or Holdings (or I think, CIM), simply because they had authority to act on behalf of those entities (Mr Conway) or were effectively employed by those entities

(Mr Stomber, even though that proposition is not really accurate as he was employed by CGEC). In my judgment that simply is not enough.

2537. In their closing submissions, the Plaintiffs argue that “the appropriate inference to be drawn” from the evidence (including, they say, the absence of any evidence given by any other Carlyle/CIM personnel who had involvement in CCC’s affairs beyond those called by the Defendants) is that

“...the Defendants, the Senior Carlyle Personnel and CCC’s authorised Officers were acting concurrently on behalf of Carlyle, CIM and CCC at all relevant times”.

2538. This vague and broad brush approach is neither correct as a matter of legal analysis of the facts, nor is it a permissible basis of liability. I unhesitatingly reject it.

2539. Thus the allegation of de facto directorship of CCC made against the Entity Defendants, in respect of the acts which are material to the alleged causing of damage to CCC therefore fails on this fundamental point of evidence.

Shadow directorship – discussion and conclusions

2540. As regards the allegation that CIM, TCG or Holdings was a shadow director of CCC in respect of any material decision, I find that the Plaintiffs’ case also fails.

2541. The key point here, in my judgment, is that the Plaintiffs must identify some “directions or instructions” emanating from the relevant entity and in accordance with which the actual directors of CCC (or, if applicable, the relevant voting majority of such directors) was “accustomed to act”. As the entities sought to be made liable are corporate entities, CIM, TCG or Holdings, it is therefore their directions or instructions which have to be proved. This requires a finding against either CIM, TCG or Holdings that that entity gave directions or instructions to the directors of CCC, or the relevant majority of them, in respect of any relevant act and such that there is a discernible pattern of those directors “doing as they were told” by CIM, TCG or Holdings rather than exercising their own judgment in respect of the relevant act or aspect of CCC’s business. This in turn means proving the communication of relevant “directions or instructions” by some person who was doing so in the capacity of either the appropriate organ or a duly authorised officer or agent of the entity (CIM, TCG or Holdings) in question.

2542. Again, taking TCG and Holdings first, the Plaintiffs have not, it seems to me, even focused on making out this requirement as a matter of evidence. No evidence has been adduced or elicited, of any material “directions or instructions” being given to the Directors of CCC with regard to any of the decisions or failings complained of by any person, let alone any person shown to be acting in that regard on behalf of and with the authority of TCG or Holdings. Neither is there any evidence of conduct from which it might be properly inferred as a fact that directions or instructions were being given by either TCG or Holdings to CCC’s directors (or to any material group of them such as “Allardice, Sarles and Loveridge”), and in accordance with which they were “accustomed to act”. Indeed, I do not think that it was ever suggested to any of the last three directors that they were acting on directions or instructions at all, as contrasted with it being suggested that they exercised no independent judgement and unquestioningly did what either Mr Stomber or (as the allegation more often is) Mr Conway requested, proposed or recommended. That is not the same thing.

2543. I have already noted when considering legal principles that the authorities show that the mere fact of holding a company's shares, or a majority of them, is insufficient to constitute an entity a shadow director of the relevant company. Thus, even if the voting shares in CCC were to be treated as held by either TCG or Holdings, that would not justify a finding of shadow directorship.
2544. There is, I find, no evidence sufficient to found a conclusion that the de iure Directors of CCC (or a relevant majority of them) were accustomed to act in accordance with instructions or directions given by TCG or Holdings, let alone that they did so act in the respects which are alleged to have caused CCC loss. There is no evidence of actual directions or instructions. Mere influence is insufficient, even if it is considerable, and "control" would likewise only be sufficient if it manifested itself in the form of the necessary pattern of instructions given and customary compliance. None of that is made out here.
2545. Moving to CIM, since CIM was CCC's investment adviser, it is necessary to consider in what capacity any communications to CCC's directors which are established as being from CIM were given and whether they were, in substance, advice being given in a professional capacity or, rather, "directions or instructions" as to how to act. I have no hesitation in finding that any such communications were the former. Even assuming that communications from Mr Stomber to the other directors of CCC were to be treated as coming from CIM, rather than (as I would have thought more reasonable) from CCC's own CEO director, there is, once again, simply no evidence to support the proposition that Mr Stomber was conveying CIM's "directions or instructions" to the directors of CCC, as contrasted with CIM's investment advice.

Final Conclusions as regards the Entity Defendants as directors

2546. For all the above reasons, therefore, the claims against the Entity Defendants based on allegations of their de facto or shadow directorships of CCC fail completely.
2547. As the Plaintiffs' claims against the Entity Defendants have now become defined, my conclusions on this aspect of the claim are sufficient to dispose of all claims which have been maintained against TCG and Holdings. The Plaintiffs' action against those entities will therefore be dismissed. As regards CIM, they dispose of the claims founded on de facto or shadow directorship. The Claims against CIM made on the basis of breach of contract or negligence have been considered above.

16. Causation and Quantum

Preliminary

2548. The arguments in this case have never got as far as any detailed consideration of damages calculations. It has not been worth doing so in advance of findings of fact which would enable a properly focused exercise to take place.
2549. Because I have held that the Defendants committed no breach of duty (and nor, consequently, misfeasance) and were not guilty of wrongful trading, it is strictly unnecessary for me to deal with issues of damage and quantum. The question is therefore whether I should nonetheless consider these points in case this matter goes further (to use the traditional phrase).

[COURT OF APPEAL]

1985 July 1, 2, 3

Oliver and Purchas L.JJ.

Company—Oppression—Conduct of affairs—Quasi-partnership private company—Exclusion of two directors from participation—Order for purchase by majority of minority shares—Price to be determined by court—Whether shares to be valued pro rata or at market value as minority holding—Companies Act 1980 (c. 22), s. 75(1)(3)(4)(d) G

The company was formed in August 1975 in order to combine B.'s expertise in the manufacturing of precision bellows with the general experience of A. and N. in financial, commercial and industrial matters. At the first meeting of directors A. was appointed chairman, N. was appointed financial director and company secretary, neither of them receiving remuneration as directors, and B. was appointed as managing director, with a yearly salary. The company's capital was so arranged that the petitioners, A. and N. and N.'s family, held 26 per cent. of the issued share capital. Restrictions were placed by the articles of H

A association on the transfer of shares. Between 1975 and mid-1980 the company's affairs worked smoothly, and the company began to prosper, but thereafter the relationship of mutual confidence became impaired and in April 1981, at an extraordinary general meeting, A. and N. were removed as directors. The petitioners presented their petition, under section 75 of the Companies Act 1980,<sup>1</sup> for an order that their shares should be purchased by the respondent majority shareholders at their fair value. Vinelott J. ordered, by consent, pursuant to section 75 of the Act that the majority shareholders should purchase the petitioners' shares "at such price as the court shall hereafter determine." The order gave liberty to all parties to apply for, inter alia, "directions as to the payment of the purchase price and interest if appropriate." On the hearing to determine the appropriate purchase price of the shares Nourse J. found that the company constituted a quasi-partnership and that the exclusion of A. and N. from the company had been unjustified and amounted to conduct unfairly prejudicial to the petitioners' interests; and he held that, that being so, the fair basis for valuing the petitioners' shares was to fix the price pro rata according to the value of the shares of the company as a whole without any discount because they represented a minority holding. The judge further held that the petitioners were not entitled to interest on the purchase price for any period before it had been determined.

On appeal by the majority shareholders and cross-appeal by the petitioners on the issue of interest:—

Held, (1) dismissing the appeal, that section 75 of the Companies Act 1980 conferred on the court a wide discretion to do what was fair and equitable in all the circumstances so as to put right the unfair prejudice to a petitioner and cure it for the future; that that discretion extended to the terms of an order for the purchase of a petitioner's shares under section 75(4)(d), so that the proper price for a petitioner's shareholding was the price which the court, pursuant to that discretion, determined to be proper in all the circumstances of the case; that, on its true construction, the consent order entitled the court to exercise in full its discretion under section 75; and that, in so doing, the judge was right in concluding that it was appropriate to treat the company as a quasi-partnership and value its shares as a whole and the petitioners paid the proportionate part of that value which corresponded to their shareholding and not its market value as a minority shareholding (post, pp. 669D–F, G–H, 673H–674B, 677F, 678F–H, 679B–C).

(2) Dismissing the cross-appeal, that the liberty to apply for court had fixed the price should it remain unpaid; and that, accordingly, the judge was right in rejecting the claim for APPEAL from Nourse J.

The respondents, Philip Arthur Bird, Mrs. E. M. Bird, Stanley Rowden and Pipe-Chem Holdings Ltd., to a petition dated 12 October 1981 by Ernest Armstrong Stanley David Nin, his wife Edith Nin and his three children, appealed from the judgment of Nourse J. dated 28 October 1983 whereby the judge determined, pursuant to section 75 of the Companies Act 1980, that the fair price at which the respondents, as majority shareholders ("the majority shareholders"), should buy the petitioners' shares in Bird Precision Bellows Ltd. was £18.25 per share, making a total price of £142,350. The majority shareholders sought an order that a fair price at which they ought to purchase the petitioners' shares should be determined at £10.04 per share, making a total price of £78,312. F

The grounds of appeal were that (1) the judge was wrong in law in disregarding the market price of the shares (which, according to the evidence of both valuers was to be fixed by taking the value of the company as a whole, calculating the pro rata price for the shares in question, and discounting the price by 45 per cent.) by reason of the fact that, as the judge decided, the company was a quasi-partnership; (2) the judge failed to take account of the parties' rights as set out in the articles of association of the company which provided the only, or the only fair, basis for valuing the shares, and which basis would have produced a value of £10.04 per share; (3) the judge made a distinction which was valid neither in law nor in logic between the fair value to be ascribed to the petitioners' shares if they wished to sell their shares voluntarily (when a discount was to be applied) and if they wished to G H

- A sell their shares because they had been unfairly prejudiced by the way in which the company was run (when no discount was to be applied); (4) if that distinction was correct, the judge was wrong in law in applying it to the present case (i) in the light of the compromise of the petition by the parties without any admission of any oppression or unfair prejudice or any ground entitling the petitioners to present a petition, and (ii) in which the company was a respondent; (5) in failing to apply the discount to the price of the shares in accordance with the evidence of both parties' valuers, and in the circumstances of the instant case, the judge was effectively giving damages to the petitioners, notwithstanding that (a) he had no power so to do in the absence of evidence to the effect that the value of the company had been reduced by any acts of the majority shareholders, (b) the petitioners, by their counsel, at the outset of the hearing before the judge, abandoned any claim for damages and (c) the petition had been compromised without any admission of wrongdoing by the majority shareholders or any of them, and the judge's function merely involved determination of a price; (6) the judge failed to determine a fair price for what was effectively a piece of property in the hands of the petitioners, but rather sought to compensate them for some uncertain and unqualified loss; and (7) in the light of the judge's findings as to the petitioners' conduct, alternatively Mr. Nin's conduct, in relation to an agreement as to the sale of Pipe-Chem (Holdings) Ltd.'s shares in the company, the judge was wrong in failing to apply a discount on the basis that the petitioners had constructively offered their shares, or Mr. Nin had constructively offered his shares, for sale or on the basis that by reason of such conduct, it would be unfair not to apply a discount.

By a respondent's notice dated 29 December 1983 the petitioners sought to have the judge's order affirmed on the following additional grounds that (1) on the true construction of the articles of association of the company the value to be attributed to a share of the company was a rateable proportion of the value of the shares of the company as a whole; (2) a valuation of shares pursuant to section 75 of the Act of 1980 should not be less favourable to the petitioners than a valuation pursuant to the articles; (3) the consent order dated 23 November 1981 precluded the majority shareholders from contending that that was not an appropriate case for relief under the section and/or from relying on the petitioners' conduct.

The petitioners further contended, by way of cross-appeal, that in addition to £18.25 per share awarded to them they should be awarded interest, or its equivalent, on the total purchase price of £142,350 at the short term investment rate from time to time from 23 November 1981 until payment (or at such other rate and for such other period as the Court of Appeal should think fit) and that the judge was wrong to refuse to make such an award in his further judgment given on 25 November 1983.

The grounds of the cross-appeal were that (1) the judge failed to exercise his discretion to award interest, or its equivalent; (2) the judge should have held (in so far as he did not) that the court had power to award interest, or its equivalent, under section 75 of the Act of 1980 and should further have held that it was appropriate to award interest, or its equivalent, at the rate and over the period aforesaid; (3) the judge wrongly characterised the petitioners' claim for interest, or its equivalent, as "damages;" (4) the judge wrongly held that the majority shareholders might not have had sufficient opportunity to deal with the claim for interest, or its equivalent, having regard to (a) the liberty to apply reserved to the parties in the order of 23 November 1981, (b) the fact that the hearing as regards interest was adjourned and that the majority shareholders took the opportunity to adduce evidence on that point either during the trial itself or at the adjourned hearing and (as regards the adjourned hearing) did so; (5) the sum awarded to the petitioners, amounting to £142,350, was in excess of any offer the majority shareholders had made and in particular exceeded the sums of (a) £120,000, which the petitioners had been prepared to accept in satisfaction of all or any claims prior even to the commencement of proceedings herein, and (b) £115,000, offered by the majority shareholders in full settlement prior to the hearings.

The facts are stated in the judgment of Oliver L.J.

Charles Sparrow Q.C. and I. E. Jacob for the appellant majority shareholders. There is, here, an agreement between the parties clothed in the consent order: Purcell v. F. C. Trigell Ltd. [1971] 1 Q.B. 358. Since that order the case has depended on the true interpretation of that agreement which provides directly and simply for the purchase of the minority shares by the majority shareholders. "Purchase" is an ordinary word and courts have consistently given to its ordinary meaning which is "purchase for an ordinary and reasonable price." The courts have assessed reasonable price as a fair price and fair valuation: Sudbrook Trading Estate Ltd. v. Eggleton [1983] 1 A.C. 444; In re Westminster Property Group Plc. [1985] 1 W.L.R. 676 and Talbot v. Talbot [1968] Ch. 1.

Nourse J. expressly held [1984] Ch. 419, 426F, that there was no "rule of universal application" that the value of a minority holding had always to be fixed pro rata according to the value of the company's shares as a whole or that the price of a minority holding had always to be discounted. It follows, therefore, that such valuation should be, throughout, an exercise of expert principles that determine value as a fact and the judge was wrong in regarding this issue as "a question of law to be decided by the court:" [1984] Ch. 419, 436A. He was also wrong to regard such valuation as involving a "discounted" price. The valuation for which the majority shareholders contend does not involve "discounting" a price. It is directed to ascertaining a price of the minority shareholding: In re A Company (No. 002567 of 1982) [1983] 1 W.L.R. 927. It is true that the court has power to make an order for compensation. Such an order has to be to compensate for some loss: Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society Ltd. v. Meyer [1959] A.C. 324. The order, here, is not an order of that nature.

As to valuation, the judge found that the petitioners did not deserve their exclusion from the company's management. It does not necessarily

- A follow that the measure of valuation should be valuation of the company's shares as a whole. That approach is inconsistent with ascertaining the actual value of the particular minority. It would amount to an extra element of consideration to the purchase price and is outside the consent order. [Reference was made to In re Jermyn Street Turkish Baths Ltd. [1970] 1 W.L.R. 1194.]
- B William Stubbs Q.C. and Charles Purle for the petitioners. Vinelott J.'s order dated 23 November 1981 gave the court a complete discretion as to the criteria to be adopted for determining the price to be paid for the petitioners' shares. There is no justification for reading any limitation into the order. It was, in fact, a consent order and was expressly stated to be made "pursuant to section 75." In order to have jurisdiction to make any order under the section the court had to be satisfied that the
- C petition is well founded: see section 75(3). Thus, the consent by the majority shareholders to the making of the order necessarily involved the admission by them that the petition was well founded, that is to say, there had been unfair prejudice to the interests of the petitioners. The express reference in the order of Vinelott J. to section 75 also confirms the intention that under section 75(4)(d) in determining the price to be
- D paid for the petitioners' shares, the court was to have an unfettered discretion to impose upon the parties whatever settlement the court considered just and equitable. Accordingly, Nourse J. was to fix what he regarded to be a fair price on the basis of a rateable part of the value of the company's total issued share capital. [Reference was made Ward v. James [1966] 1 Q.B. 273.]
- E An appellate court will only interfere with the exercise of this discretion if it was plainly wrong. That general principle also applies to appeal on the question of valuation. [Reference was made to Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society Ltd. v. Meyer [1959] A.C. 324.] Nourse J. was not wrong. He postulated a general rule that where in the case of a quasi-partnership company, a minority shareholder's interest have been unfairly prejudiced by the manner in which the affairs of the
- F company have been conducted by the majority and an order under section 75(4)(d) for the purchase of the minority shareholder's interests is made then the correct course is to fix the price pro rata according to the value of the shares as a whole and without any discount. In the context of section 75 the expression "just and equitable" is very wide: see Lord Wilberforce in In re Westbourne Galleries Ltd. [1973] A.C. 360, 374-375, 379, about the same words in section 222(f) of the Companies Act 1948. The nature of the just and equitable solution to be
- G imposed under section 75(4)(d) of the Act of 1980 cannot depend merely on objective concepts of value. It is appropriate for the court to take into account the underlying nature of the company, the agreed basis on which it was established by the shareholders, and of the conduct of the parties prior to the presentation of the petition. Only by doing this can the court enable a minority shareholder to obtain a
- H proper price for his shareholding: see Lord Cross of Chelsea in In re Westbourne Galleries Ltd. [1973] A.C. 360, 385. Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society Ltd. v. Meyer [1959] A.C. 324 also supports Nourse J.'s approach.

Nourse J. appears to be of the view [1984] Ch. 419, 431G-H, that, A even outside the context of an order under section 75, the fair price, payable for shares in a quasi-partnership, would normally be a pro rata
 one. That view is correct. The pro rata basis is the normal basis provided for in articles of partnership in respect of a voluntary retirement, and is also the basis often adopted in quasi-partnership companies where, as not infrequently happens, the quasi-partners make express contractual provisions. Such an approach is consistent with that adopted by the House of Lords to quasi-partnerships in In re Westbourne
Galleries Ltd. [1973] A.C. 360. B

If it is accepted that the court has a very wide discretion under section 75(4)(d) of the Act of 1980 it can fix a higher price than that which, under the relevant company's pre-emption articles, a majority would be required to pay on a transfer notice voluntarily given by the minority. As a general rule however it cannot be right for the price so fixed to be lower than the price payable under the articles. On the true construction of the pre-emption provisions of the company's article 21 any valuation by the auditor must be a pro rata valuation: Dean v.
Prince [1954] Ch. 409, 427-428, 430-431. C

On cross-appeal, section 75(3) of the Act of 1980 gives power to the court to grant such relief as it thinks fit. That power is wide enough to cover the award of interest on the purchase price of the shares to the shareholders whose shares are being bought under a court order.
 Nourse J. was wrong not to award such interest. [Reference was made to House Property & Investment Co. Ltd. v. James Walker, Goldsmith and Silversmith Ltd. [1948] 1 K.B. 257.] Furthermore, Vinelott J's order, on its true construction, gives liberty to apply in effect for all the things the petitioners complained of, including the question of damage caused to them. D E

Sparrow Q.C. in reply. Section 75(3) of the Act of 1980 cannot apply unless the court is satisfied that the petition under the section is well founded. The order of 23 November 1981 was a consent order without any admission on the part of the majority shareholders that the petition was well founded. The subsection, thus, cannot be invoked. The petitioners cannot be entitled to interest for a further reason that there was no principal until the price was fixed by the court and, thus, no interest can be charged on it. F

OLIVER L.J. This is an appeal against an order of Nourse J. made on 28 October 1983 determining, pursuant to an order previously made by Vinelott J. on 23 November 1981, that shares in a private company which were to be purchased by the appellants in this appeal, who were the respondents to a petition, at a price of £18.25 each. I read at this stage only the last three lines of the judge's judgment [1984] Ch. 419, 436: G

"I value the shares of the company as a whole at £547,500. I determine the price at which the respondents are jointly and severally to purchase the shares of the petitioners at £18.25 each." H

The way in which this matter came before the court was this. The company was a private company, Bird Precision Bellows Ltd., which

19-34054-sgj11 Doc 1735 Filed 01/13/21 Entered 01/13/21 16:53:00 Page 35

A had been incorporated in 1975. The petitioners, Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Nin, were the holders of some 7,800 shares out of the total issued capital of 30,000 shares. The judge found that the company had been incorporated in the first instance as a sort of quasi-partnership between the petitioners and the respondents who were the majority shareholders, for the exploitation of certain processes with which the principal shareholder, Mr. Bird, was very much concerned and in which he was very expert. The two petitioners were there substantially, I think, in the role of consultants and gave their services to the company in the early stages of its career at very much less than the value which was properly to be attributed to those services.

B It is unnecessary to go in any great depth into the facts. The parties fell out in August 1981. The petitioners were then removed from the board of directors of the company and in October 1981 they presented a petition under section 75 of the Companies Act 1980, in which they claimed that they should be bought out. There was also at that stage, although it was subsequently dropped by amendment, an alternative claim to have the company wound up.

C I think I should read the material parts of section 75, because that section has some bearing on what subsequently occurred:

D “(1) Any member of a company may apply to the court by petition for an order under this section on the ground that the affairs of the company are being or have been conducted in a manner which is unfairly prejudicial to the interests of some part of the members (including at least himself) or that any actual or proposed act or omission of the company (including an act or omission on its behalf) is or would be so prejudicial. . . . (3) If the court is satisfied that a petition under this section is well founded it may make such order as it thinks fit for giving relief in respect of the matters complained of. (4) Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (3) above, an order under this section may”—and then there are various things which can be done, terminating with—“(d) provide for the purchase of the shares of any members of the company by other members or by the company itself and, in the case of a purchase by the company itself, the reduction of the company’s capital accordingly.”

E What happened in this case was that there appears to have been considerable correspondence between the parties with regard to the possibility that the majority shareholders should buy out the petitioners and there was some disagreement as to how the price of a purchase ought to be arrived at. Ultimately, when the matter came before the Companies Court, as it did on 23 November 1981, it was dealt with by agreement and a consent order (although it is not expressed as such) was made by Vinelott J. on that day. The order recites the petition and the evidence which had been filed on it up to that point, and it went on:

F “This court doth order pursuant to section 75 of the Companies Act 1980 that the respondents”—and then it names them—“do jointly and severally purchase the 3,900”—it is common ground that that was a mistake for 7,800—“shares of the company registered in the name of the petitioners”—and then it names the petitioners—“at such price as the court shall hereafter determine provided that such purchases may subject to the approval of this court be effected by means of a reduction of the share capital of the company. And it is ordered that on the question of the appropriate purchase price for the said shares the evidence of the petitioners be filed within 14 days of the date of this order the evidence of the respondents be filed within 21 days thereafter discovery by exchange of lists do take place on or before 11 January 1982 with inspection within 14 days thereafter and exchange of reports by experts within 28 days after inspection.”

There is a paragraph as regards costs, which I need not read, which provides in effect that the respondents, the majority shareholders, should pay the petitioners’ costs of the petition down to and including the foot of the order. Then there is a final paragraph:

C

“Liberty to all parties to apply (1) for further and better particulars of the allegations in the affidavits (2) for directions as to the payment of the purchase price and interest if appropriate and (3) generally.”

D

Following that order there was a substantial amount of evidence filed; experts were engaged and their reports were, as I understand it, duly exchanged and the matter came on for hearing before Nourse J. It appears to have proceeded, up to the date of the hearing before Vinelott J. and at least for a month or so thereafter, with commendable celerity, but thereafter it adopted a somewhat molasses-like speed, and it finally terminated in the matter coming before the court on 25 November 1983. The judge, having considered all the evidence and the reports of the valuers, concluded in the way which I have read [1984] Ch. 419, 436. The basis of the judge’s valuation is to be found in two passages from the judgment, at pp. 429 and 430: and there is a further passage at p. 431. The judge said, at pp. 429–430:

E

“Although both sections 210”—which of course was the predecessor of section 75—“and 75 are silent on the point, it is axiomatic that a price fixed by the court must be fair. While that which is fair may often be generally predicated in regard to matters of common occurrence, it can never be conclusively judged in regard to a particular case until the facts are known. The general observations which I will presently attempt in relation to a valuation of shares by the court under section 75 are therefore subject to that important reservation. Broadly speaking, shares in a small private company are acquired either by allotment on its incorporation or by transfer or devolution at some later date. In the first category it is a matter of common occurrence for a company to be incorporated in order to acquire an existing business or to start a new one, and in either event for it to be a vehicle for the conduct of a business carried on by two or more shareholders which they could, had they wished, have carried on in partnership together. Although it has been pointed out on the high authority to which I will soon refer that the

- Ch. In re Bird Precision Ltd. (C.A.) 667 Oliver L.J.
- A description may be confusing, it is often convenient and it is certainly usual to describe that kind of company as a quasi-partnership. In the second category, irrespective of the nature of the company, it is a matter of common occurrence for a shareholder to acquire shares from another at a price which is discounted because they represent a minority holding. It seems to me that
  - B some general observations can usefully be made in regard to each of these examples.”

Nourse J. then referred to the well known passage from the speech of Lord Wilberforce in In re Westbourne Galleries Ltd. [1973] A.C. 360, 379, and went on:

- C “His Lordship, having observed that it is not enough that the company is a small one, or a private company, identified three typical elements, one, or probably more, of which will characterise the company as a quasi-partnership. They are, first, an association formed or continued on the basis of a personal relationship involving mutual confidence; secondly, an agreement or understanding that all or some of the shareholders shall participate in the conduct of the business; and, thirdly, restrictions on share transfers. No doubt
- D these three elements are the most familiar, and perhaps the most important, but they were not intended to be exhaustive. In my view there may be other typical and important elements, in particular the provision of capital by all or some of the participants.”

Next comes a passage which I think has assumed some importance in the argument, so perhaps it is worth reading:

- E “I would expect that in a majority of cases where purchase orders are made under section 75 in relation to quasi-partnerships the vendor is unwilling in the sense that the sale has been forced upon him. Usually he will be a minority shareholder whose interests have been unfairly prejudiced by the manner in which the affairs of the company have been conducted by the majority. On the assumption
- F that the unfair prejudice has made it no longer tolerable for him to retain his interest in the company, a sale of his shares will invariably be his only practical way out short of a winding up. In that kind of case it seems to me that it would not merely not be fair, but most unfair, that he should be bought out on the fictional basis applicable to a free election to sell his shares in accordance with the company’s articles of association, or indeed on any other basis which involved
- G a discounted price. In my judgment the correct course would be to fix the price pro rata according to the value of the shares as a whole and without any discount, as being the only fair method of compensating an unwilling vendor of the equivalent of a partnership share. Equally, if the order provided, as it did in In re Jermyn Street Turkish Baths Ltd. [1970] 1 W.L.R. 1194, for the purchase of the shares of the delinquent majority, it would not merely not be fair, but most unfair, that they should receive a price which involved an
- H element of premium.”

Then, Nourse J. said, at p. 431:

668
Oliver L.J.

In re Bird Precision Ltd. (C.A.)

[1986]

“Next, I must consider the example from the second category of cases in which, broadly speaking, shares in a small private company are acquired. It is not of direct relevance for present purposes, but I mention it briefly in order finally to refute the suggestion that there is any rule of universal application to questions of this kind. In the case of the shareholder who acquires shares from another at a price which is discounted because they represent a minority it is to my mind self-evident that there cannot be any universal or even a general rule that he should be bought out under section 75 on a more favourable basis, even in a case where his predecessor has been a quasi-partner in a quasi-partnership. He might himself have acquired the shares purely for investment and played no part in the affairs of the company. In that event it might well be fair—I do not know—that he should be bought out on the same basis as he himself had bought, even though his interests had been unfairly prejudiced in the meantime. A fortiori, there could be no universal or even a general rule in a case where the company had never been a quasi-partnership in the first place.”

Nourse J. said, in summary, that there is no general rule and then comes the passage to which particular criticism has been directed:

D

“On the other hand, there is a general rule in a case where the company is at the material time a quasi-partnership and the purchase order is made in respect of the shares of a quasi-partner. Although I have taken the case where there has in fact been unfairly prejudicial conduct on the part of the majority as being the state of affairs most likely to result in a purchase order, I am of the opinion that the same consequences ought usually to follow in a case like the present where there has been an agreement for the price to be determined by the court without any admission as to such conduct. It seems clear to me that, even without such conduct, that is, in general, the fair basis of valuation in a quasi-partnership case, and that it should be applied in this case unless the respondents have established that the petitioners acted in such a way as to deserve their exclusion from the company.”

The judge went on to conclude that the petitioners had not in fact deserved their exclusion on the facts of this case.

I have read those passages because they serve to indicate the approach of the judge to the problem with which he was confronted under the terms of the order. That approach has been criticised by Mr. Sparrow on two grounds: first of all, on the general ground that it was a wrong order in any event, or a wrong approach in any event, under section 75; and, secondly, on the ground that it was a wrong order, or a wrong approach, having regard to the specific terms of the consent order in this case which, as Mr. Sparrow rightly says, has to be looked at as a contract between the parties agreeing to the consent order.

What Mr. Sparrow suggests is this. I take the two points which he makes in inverse order, that is to say, I am taking his second point first. He suggests that an order made under section 75(4) is simply an order for a purchase, without any discretion in the court to give directions

- A which might have the effect of increasing or reducing the value of the shares in the open market, as shares in a private company. If the shares with which the purchase order is concerned are a majority holding, they are to be valued as such; if they are a minority holding they are to be valued as such, and in his submission the court is not entitled to look behind the company and to reflect, in the order for purchase or for sale, the actual relationship between the parties. According to this approach,
- B any agreement which has been made between the parties as to the basis upon which they were to participate in the company's affairs, or as to the way in which the company's affairs were to be conducted, any contribution which the petitioner may have made to the company's success, any absence of any contribution at all by the respondent, apart from the mere fact of his shareholding, is to be ignored. The court, in
- C other words, is to be rigidly restricted, if it is to make an order under section 75(4)(d) at all, to making an order for a purchase at a market price of the holding being purchased, to be arrived at only by the ordinary valuation principles, which will take into account the proportionate size of the holding in relation to the issued capital as a whole and to the control of the company.

- D For my part I find myself quite unable to accept this submission. It seems to me that the whole framework of the section, and of such of the authorities as we have seen, which seem to me to support this, is to confer on the court a very wide discretion to do what is considered fair and equitable in all the circumstances of the case, in order to put right and cure for the future the unfair prejudice which the petitioner has suffered at the hands of the other shareholders of the company; and I
- E find myself quite unable to accept that that discretion in some way stops short when it comes to the terms of the order for purchase in the manner in which the price is to be assessed. It has been pointed out, and I mention it again, that section 75(4) is merely a collection of possible methods of giving effect to section 75(3), and it is expressed to be without prejudice to the generality of subsection (3), which gives the court a very wide discretion as to the granting of relief in general terms
- F in respect of the matters of which complaint has been made.

We have been referred to the speech of Lord Cross of Chelsea in In re Westbourne Galleries Ltd. [1973] A.C. 360, 385, where he said in a very short passage, to which Mr. Stubbs drew attention:

- G "What the minority shareholder in cases of this sort really wants is not to have the company wound up—which may prove an unsatisfactory remedy—but to be paid a proper price for his shareholding."

- H It is on the question of a "proper" price that the parties here divide. So, Mr. Sparrow's second submission, which I have dealt with first, I find myself quite unable to accept. In my judgment, the "proper" price is the price which the court in its discretion determines to be proper having regard to all the circumstances of the case.

I come now to Mr. Sparrow's first submission, namely, that as a matter of interpretation of the order which, as he says and as I mention again, is a consent order, there is to be implied a contractual obligation that the shares should be purchased at the market value as a minority holding. The basis for this submission is that the consequence which I have outlined is one which flowed simply from the use in the order of the word "purchase;" and it is said that "purchase" ordinarily means purchase at market value, and therefore one reads into the order the words "a purchase at market value to be determined by the court." I confess that I am entirely unable to see why that should be. In my judgment, "purchase" ordinarily means no more than purchase for a money consideration; what that consideration is is at large and the order is one which only makes sense, and indeed can only be given any operative life, if the purchase price is fixed in the exercise of the full discretion vested in the court by section 75. The court has no jurisdiction, as it seems to me, to act as a sort of arbitrator between experts, and if Vinelott J. had been told that that was what was intended, and that all that was intended was simply that there should be submitted to the court the decision of the issue of what was the market value of the petitioners' holding, I confess that I doubt very much whether he would have made the order in that form, or indeed would have considered that he had any jurisdiction to do so.

Essentially what is suggested is that in assessing the price Nourse J. was wrong to consider the evidence which had been filed in support of the petition, and indeed subsequently, or to enter into any consideration of the merits of the case, the inception of the relationships between the parties and so on. I would find that a difficult submission to accept in any event, but the submission might have had more force, I think, if, as might at first be supposed from the terms of the order, the court was simply being asked to embark on an inquiry into the value of the shares on the assumption that it had been conceded in some unspecified way that the petitioners had been subjected to unfair prejudice and that it was therefore irrelevant to consider the manner in which they had in fact been unfairly prejudiced.

But it is the majority shareholders' own case, and it was so put to the judge, that no such admission had in fact been made. As I have pointed out, the terms of section 75(3) are perfectly clear. They simply provide that if the court is satisfied that a petition under this section is well founded, it may make such order as it thinks fit for giving relief in respect of the matters complained of. If of course it is not so satisfied, then it has no jurisdiction to give the relief which is referred to in section 75(3) or in section 75(4). As it seems to me, this only has to be read for it to be seen straight away that the court, in making a valuation of the shares, can only do so if it is satisfied that the petition is well founded.

The judge therefore had to go into these questions, because it was expressly said that there was no admission of any unfair prejudice, and so the judge had to go into the question of whether there had been unfair prejudice to the petitioners and how it had taken place, in order to see whether he had any jurisdiction at all to embark on the inquiry which he was invited to undertake. The judge referred to the question of whether he ought to inquire into these matters as follows [1984] Ch. 419, 426:

A “The first question which arose was whether the respondents, by consenting to the order of 23 November 1981 and, I suppose, by agreeing to pay the petitioners’ costs to date, had effectively admitted that they had been conducting the affairs of the company in a manner unfairly prejudicial to the petitioners as members. There was some disagreement between counsel as to what was or was not said on the respondents’ side at the hearing before

B Vinelott J., but on what I saw and heard I was satisfied that there had been no admission to that effect. The respondents had merely agreed to buy out the petitioners at a price to be determined by the court. Assuming that unfair prejudice might sometimes affect the price which ought to be paid for the shares, I was nevertheless unable to see how, in the absence of some explicit statement of the

C respondents’ position, they could be taken to have made any admission as to that matter.”

He went on, at p. 427:

D “It was unfortunate that the hopes and expectations of both sides for a shorter hearing should have been disappointed, but that was made inevitable by my decision on the first of the preliminary points and by the positions which the parties adopted in regard to the second and third. I myself suggested certain ways in which the hearing might be shortened by agreement, but without success. In future, parties who wish to limit the issues or the evidence in a case of this kind would be well advised to go further than a mere agreement that the price of the shares shall be determined by the

Then he said, at p. 434:

F “I have to say that I regard the evidence of both Mr. Bird and Mr. Rowden on the bribery question as having been extremely unsatisfactory. If it had been necessary for me to make any finding on that question, I would have rejected their evidence in its entirety and accepted that of Mr. Nin and Mr. Armstrong. Having said that, I do not think that it is either necessary or desirable that I should go into this or any of the many other matters which were made the subject of allegations and counter allegations between the parties, both at the time and in evidence in this court. Having considered all the material evidence, I am satisfied that the exclusion of Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Nin was wrongful and that in that and certain G other respects into which I need not go, the affairs of the company were conducted in a manner unfairly prejudicial to the interests of them and the other petitioners as members. That finding, although strictly speaking unnecessary on the view which I take of the case, is one which I feel that I ought to make, if only in fairness to Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Nin and after a full and exhaustive investigation of the merits.”

H

If I have any criticism of the judge’s judgment, it is only that he based his inquiry on the supposition that the merits might affect only the question of the basis of the valuation of the shares, as indeed in my judgment they clearly can. But it was, I think, much more fundamental than that. Unless unfair prejudice was proved, the court was simply being asked to undertake a sort of arbitration in vacuo, which it had no jurisdiction to do. It seems to me quite unarguable that the judge, having perforce considered the merits and having heard evidence from the parties, should be expected, or indeed required, by the terms of this order, then to put that entirely out of his mind when it came to the question of the terms of the purchase.

672
 Oliver L.J. In re Bird Precision Ltd. (C.A.) [1980]

We have been referred to a number of authorities, first of all to a decision of Pennycuik J. in In re Jermyn Street Turkish Baths Ltd. [1970] 1 W.L.R. 1194, 1208, and I read an extract from his judgment:

“Section 210 gives the court an unlimited judicial discretion to make such order as it thinks fit with a view to bringing to an end the matters complained of, including an order for buying out one faction by the other. It is not disputed on behalf of the respondents that in prescribing the basis on which the price of such a sale is to be calculated the court can in effect provide compensation for whatever injury has been inflicted by the oppressors.”

C

In Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society Ltd. v. Meyer [1959] A.C. 324, 369, Lord Denning said:

D

“One of the most useful orders mentioned in the section—which will enable the court to do justice to the injured shareholders—is to order the oppressor to buy their shares at a fair price: and a fair price would be, I think, the value which the shares would have had at the date of the petition, if there had been no oppression. Once the oppressor has bought the shares, the company can survive. It can continue to operate. That is a matter for him. It is, no doubt, true that an order of this kind gives to the oppressed shareholders what is in effect money compensation for the injury done to them: but I see no objection to this. The section gives a large discretion to the court and it is well exercised in making an oppressor make compensation to those who have suffered at his hands.”

What I think is being suggested here is that these citations in some way support the arguments of the majority shareholders, because it is said that what in effect the judge was seeking to do was to compensate the oppressed shareholders, and that that was not within the terms of the order. I do not read what the judge did as doing that at all. Speaking for myself, I have been quite unable to see why these two authorities should be supposed to support the arguments which the majority shareholders have advanced. They seem to me to be entirely against them because, as it seems to me, they indicate as clearly as can be the wide discretion which the court has in directing the basis on which shares should be valued for the purpose of a purchase ordered under this section. It may be true that it can be compensatory, but what the court is required to do, in the exercise of its very wide discretion, is that which is just and equitable between the parties.

H

It does not seem to me in any event that the matter ends simply with the mere fact that the order, to be effective as an order under section 75

A necessarily has to invoke the discretionary jurisdiction of the court, because there are in fact, as it seems to me, positive pointers in the order that that is exactly what was intended.

B Going back to the terms of the order, it starts with the words “this court doth order pursuant to section 75 of the Companies Act 1980.” I have already said that I do not for a moment think that the mere use of the word “purchase” which then follows—“that the respondents . . . do jointly and severally purchase”—contains any implication at all that they should purchase necessarily at market value. It seems to me that quite the contrary is imported by the words “pursuant to section 75.” What they are doing is purchasing pursuant to section 75, and it is pursuant to that section that the court is to determine price. That brings in, as it seems to me, by necessary implication the general discretion of the court to do what is fair and equitable.

C Secondly, one wonders, if all that was being asked for was an order for purchase at market price, what the purpose was, as Mr. Stubbs says, of involving the court in the matter at all. A market price could quite easily be determined outside the court by arbitration, or by submitting the matter to two valuers and their umpire. It seems to me to be quite evident from the first paragraph of the order that what was intended was that the matter should be approached in the full sense as an application under section 75 of the Act, and that the court was expected, in arriving at the price to be paid, to take into account all the circumstances of the case.

D That, as it seems to me, is underlined by the next part of the order, where it goes on with the question of the “appropriate” purchase price for the shares, and proceeds with directions as to evidence. The evidence is quite clearly intended to be general evidence with regard to all the circumstances—there are provisions for discovery. So far as the accountancy aspect is concerned, that is dealt with by the last words of this section of the order: “and exchange of reports by experts within 28 days after inspection.” So quite clearly, as it seems to me, the whole concept of the order was that there would be a full investigation into the circumstances, with evidence filed on both sides, and, indeed, that is what took place.

F Finally we come to the liberty to apply:

G “Liberty to all parties to apply (1) for further and better particulars of the allegations in the affidavits (2) for directions as to the payment of the purchase price and interest if appropriate and (3) generally.”

So the parties were to have liberty to apply for further and better particulars, and again it seems to me that that could only be on the footing that the judge was to inquire fully into the circumstances of the case and into the affidavits that were directed to be filed.

H Speaking for myself, I am quite satisfied, as a matter of construction of the terms of the order, that the judge was entitled to exercise in full his discretion under section 75(3) and (4). Those subsections give him a very wide discretion, and I am quite satisfied that no ground has been shown for interference by this court with the actual manner in which the judge in fact exercised the discretion which was vested in him by the section, and by which he concluded that this was a quasi-partnership case, and that being so it would be appropriate that the shares of the company should be valued as a whole and that the petitioners should then simply be paid the proportionate part of that value which was represented by their shareholding, without there being made a discount for the fact that this was a minority shareholding. A

In my judgment, the judge was perfectly entitled to arrive at the conclusion at which he did. I think that I myself, certainly on a reading of the judgment and on such material as we have had, would not have come to any other conclusion, and I am fortified in the view that I have taken by an additional point which Mr. Stubbs takes on the articles of association of the company. This company, as one might expect, had articles of association which contained a pre-emption provision in the ordinary form. It was one which had this perhaps unusual feature, that it had a specific provision relating to the way in which a transfer notice was to be treated. I can read the relevant paragraphs very simply; it is the usual form of article which enables shares to be transferred to other members, or to members of their family, and then provides that apart from that no share shall be transferred until the pre-emption rights have been exhausted. Article 21(c) provides: B C D

“Except where the transfer is made pursuant to subarticle (a) hereof, the person proposing to transfer any share (hereinafter called ‘the proposing transferor’) shall give notice in writing (hereinafter called ‘the transfer notice’) to the company that he desires to transfer the same, and such notice shall specify the sum he fixes as the fair value, and shall constitute the company his agent for the sale of the share to any member of the company (or to any person selected by the directors as one whom it is desirable in the interests of the company to admit to membership) at the price so fixed or, at the option of the purchaser, at the fair value to be fixed by the auditor in accordance with subarticle (e) of this article.” E

Then there is this important sentence: “The transfer notice may include two or more shares, and in such case shall operate as if it were a separate notice in respect of each.” In paragraph (e) we have the valuation: F

“In case any difference arises between the proposing transferor and the purchaser as to the fair value of a share the auditor shall, on the application of either party, certify in writing the sum which in his opinion is the fair value, and such sum shall be deemed to be the fair value, and in so certifying the auditor shall be considered to be acting as an expert and not as an arbitrator; and accordingly the Arbitration Act 1950 shall not apply.” G

Mr. Stubbs has referred us to two passages in Dean v. Prince [1954] Ch. 409. Denning L.J. said, at pp. 427–428: H

“The right to control the company. Harman J. said that the auditor should have taken into account the fact that the 140 shares were a majority holding and would give a purchaser the right to control the

I Ch. In re Bird Precision Ltd. (C.A.) Oliver L.J.

A company. I do not think that the auditor was bound to take that fact into account. Test it this way: Supposing it had been Prince who had died, leaving only 30 shares. Those 30 shares, being a minority holding, would fetch nothing in the open market. But does that mean that the other directors would be entitled to take his shares for nothing? Surely not. No matter which director it was who happened to die, his widow should be entitled to the same price per share, irrespective of whether her husband's holding was large or small. It seems to me that the fair thing to do would be to take the whole 200 shares of the company and see what they were worth, and then pay the widow a sum appropriate to her husband's holding. At any rate if the auditor was of opinion that that was a fair method, no one can say that he was wrong. The right way to see what the whole 200 shares were worth, would be to see what the business itself was worth: and that is what the auditor proceeded to do."

Wynn-Parry J. refers to a particular article in the company's articles in these terms, at pp. 430-431:

D "the fair value shall be the auditor's valuation of the current worth of the company's shares.' That language appears to me to preclude the auditor from placing any extra value on a block of shares because it constitutes, or will in the hands of the particular transferee constitute, a controlling interest."

E It is of course true that in the instant case the articles did not contain that rather important provision; but they did have this extraordinary provision for each share to be treated separately, as if it had been comprised in a separate transfer notice. As I have said, one does not have an express provision to value the company's shares as a whole, but one has an express provision that, if a transfer notice is given in respect of more than one share, it is to be treated as a separate notice in respect of each. So the valuer has, theoretically, to go through the process of ascertaining the value separately in relation to each share concerned, and I am bound to say that it is difficult to see then how there could be any room for any account to be taken of whether the shares comprised in a transfer notice as a whole formed a minority or a majority holding. Without expressing any concluded view on the matter, I am very much inclined to the view that the valuation of a share under the pre-emption articles in this case ought to be on the same basis as that held by this court to be appropriate in Dean v. Prince [1954] Ch. 409, and that if the valuer was unwise enough to give his reasons for valuation, and to indicate that in those reasons he had taken into account the fact that all the shares which were being offered by all the deemed separate transfer notices together constituted a majority or minority holding, I think his valuation could be upset.

H But, as I say, it is unnecessary to express any concluded view on the matter, because in a sense this is a makeweight submission. If it is right it would, to say the least, have a very odd result if the effect of an order designed to enable the court to do what is just and equitable between the parties under section 75 should result in a minority holding being bought out at a price which is less than that which it would be expected to achieve on a sale under the articles of association. A

Oliver L.J.

[1986]

For all the reasons I have given, therefore, I have no hesitation in dismissing the appeal.

I turn now to the petitioners' cross-appeal, which arises in this way. Under the last paragraph of the order there was liberty to apply in relation to interest and, the judge having determined the price at which the shares were to be bought out, application was then made for an award of interest on the amount of the purchase price when ascertained, as from a date which I think was not actually specified at that time, because argument then proceeded as to whether in principle interest could or could not be awarded. That argument was adjourned and it came before the judge again on 25 November 1983, when he determined that there could be no award of interest on the purchase money. B C

The petitioners challenge that, and they seek an order that interest should be paid up to 9 December 1983. There was, as the result of a hearing before the judge, an agreed order as to the way in which, subject to this appeal, the purchase was to be carried into effect, and that provided for interest; no question of interest arises after 9 December 1983. But by their notice of cross-appeal the petitioners asked for interest, either from 31 August 1980 or, if that is rejected, from the date of the presentation of the petition, which was 12 October 1981; or, if that is rejected, from the date of the judge's order; or again, if that be wrong, from Vinelott J.'s order, and if that be wrong, from 7 August 1981, when the petitioners were removed from the board. D

The judge rejected the claim on two grounds. First of all it was argued that, although it was conceded, I think, that there was no orthodox ground for payment of interest, nevertheless interest could be paid under the general discretion which is contained in section 75(3), in effect as a means of awarding damages in respect of matters which had occurred in the course of the carrying on of the company's business constituting the unfair prejudice. The judge rejected that, saying [1984] Ch. 419, 437: E F

"I have never heard of interest being payable before there is an obligation to pay principal. On analysis, it appears that what Mr. Purle is really saying is that the court has power under section 75(3) to award something equivalent to interest. That must, I think, be damages for loss of the use of the purchase moneys during a period when they ought to have been in hand. As will appear, the view which I take of this case makes it unnecessary for me to express a view on that point and I do not do so." G

He then went on to what was the real ground of his decision:

"In the present case there was an agreement that the respondents should buy out the petitioners on a certain basis, i.e., at such price as the court should determine. That price was held to be a sum equivalent to the fair value of the shares. There was no agreement that the price should bear interest from some date prior to its determination or, indeed, from any date. An agreed H

Purchas L.J. In re Bird Precision Ltd. (C.A.) Oliver L.J.

A liberty to apply for directions as to the payment of interest, if appropriate, is not an agreement that the price should bear interest. There was no agreement that the petitioners should receive damages for loss of the use of the purchase moneys. Moreover, even if, which I emphatically refute, such an agreement could be implied, it is far too late to make that claim. A claim for

B damages, even of that limited character, would have entitled the respondents to adduce evidence and make submissions to the effect that the petitioners' loss was by no means what it might have seemed. Mr. Purle says that the order has not yet been drawn up. That may be so, but it is no reason for allowing the petitioners to re-open the trial under the guise of a claim for

C interest, or so-called interest, before judgment in the present case, and I therefore do not propose to enter into any questions of date or rate."

D Mr. Stubbs, on behalf of the petitioners, has submitted that the true construction of the order, in giving liberty to apply for interest, is giving liberty to apply on the hearing before the judge, in effect for damages for all the things of which the petitioners complain and that therefore the judge was wrong in refusing to entertain, as he did, the claim as being in effect a sort of disguised claim for damages.

E I find myself quite unable to accept that submission. It seems to me as plain as can be that the liberty to apply for directions as to payment of interest on the purchase price was simply inserted for the purpose of enabling the court, when it fixed the terms of the purchase, to provide, if the purchase price was not paid, for interest to be paid on it as from a certain date. It seems to me that the judge was perfectly right in refusing to allow any question to be ventilated as to the payment of interest, as it were, in lieu of damages. I would therefore dismiss the cross-appeal.

F So in my judgment the appeal fails, and so does the cross-appeal.

PURCHAS L.J. I agree that this appeal should be dismissed. Out of respect to the able argument of Mr. Sparrow, I propose to add a few words of my own.

G The short issue raised is whether, in valuing the shares that were to be transferred, the valuer should apply a discount in recognition of the fact that the holdings being transferred were minority holdings in the company. The starting point is an order made by Vinelott J. on 23 November 1981. The material parts of that order have already been cited by Oliver L.J., but I propose for the sake of convenience to repeat the critical words only:

H "This court doth order pursuant to section 75 of the Companies Act 1980 that the respondents"—who are there named—"do jointly and severally purchase the [7,800 shares] of the company registered in the name of the petitioners . . . at such price as the court shall hereafter determine . . ."

Purchas O.J. In re Bird Precision Ltd. (C.A.) [1986]
Mr. Sparrow submits that the phrase “at such price as the court shall hereafter determine” can only mean the price, being the fair market price, which would have been agreed between a willing buyer and a willing seller in the open market, including the discount which stems from the very nature of the holding being sold. It must ignore the concept of the authority to which Oliver L.J. has already referred in Dean v. Prince [1954] Ch. 409. A

It would also exclude the basis upon which the powers under section 75 of the Act of 1980 arise as defined in subsection (1), and further would exclude the whole basis upon which the parties came together in the commercial enterprise and upon which the petitioners accepted their respective minority shareholdings. The judge found that the basis of this was fairly described as a “quasi-partnership” as considered in the leading case, In re Westbourne Galleries Ltd. [1973] A.C. 360 and in particular in the part of the speech of Lord Wilberforce, at p. 379. B C

Mr. Sparrow submits that to do otherwise would in effect be to award compensation either in respect of the prejudicial conduct which was the basis, albeit not admitted by the majority shareholders, of the jurisdiction under section 75, and/or the determination of the quasi-partnership; that is, the loss of the continuing rights, if they were of any value, attributable to the minority shareholders for the loss of their future participation. D

Mr. Sparrow submitted that to grant such an extra element of consideration to the purchase price would therefore be outside the terms of the consent order itself. Put another way, his submission was that under the terms of that consent order the function of the judge, or the court, envisaged in the future by that order, would be merely one of an arbitrator, namely, to determine the quantum of the price regardless of the other aspects which would be considered by the court were it acting in the ordinary way under the provisions of section 75 of the Act. E

I think Mr. Sparrow conceded that had this petition been fought through, rather than concluded, partly at least, by consent under the provisions of section 75, and particularly subsection (3), the relief ordered by the court in its discretion could have been such as to effect the transfer of shares as a consideration valued on a pro rata distribution of the whole value of the company. But whether he made that concession or not, I am for my part quite unable to make the distinction which Mr. Sparrow attempted to import into the existence of the consent order in the terms restricting the power of the court to section 75(4) as Mr. Sparrow would interpret that section; that is, the purchase of the shares at a market value. F G

I agree with all that has been said by Oliver L.J., that the effect of section 75(4) is merely to expand the wide powers granted under section 75(3), and not in any way to restrict them. Moreover, the use of the expression in the consent order “the purchase of the shares” is not, in my judgment, intended in any way to restrict the powers otherwise enjoyed by the court. If it were, as Mr. Stubbs has submitted and as Oliver L.J. has already commented, the purpose of the order and the purpose of the future involvement of the court would be negated. H

I Ch. In re Bird Precision Ltd. (C.A.) Purchas L.J.

A In my judgment, the proper interpretation of this order importing, as it does, the consent between the parties was to leave in the discretion of the court the full jurisdiction which it would have enjoyed had the matter been fought, and the effect of the consent order was merely to exclude the earlier part of the process under section 75 and to select the means by which the court, being certainly hypothetically satisfied of the sound basis of the petition for this purpose—and of course, that is the only basis upon which the court could act—that it would chose the particular course provided by section 75(4)(d) to give relief in the terms of section 75(3) in respect of the matters complained of in the petition.

B For those reasons, in my judgment, the judge was right to accept the submission that the powers were unfettered and that, therefore, taking into account the quasi-partnership nature of the interests held by the petitioners in this particular instance, the method of valuation should be on a pro rata basis.

C For these reasons and those already given by Oliver L.J., I agree that this appeal should be dismissed.

D I also agree that, so far as the cross-appeal is concerned, that also should be dismissed. I echo only the words of the judge [1984] Ch. 419, 437:

“The first point to be made is that in a normal section 75 case, where there has been no agreement of any kind, I cannot see how there can be any question of interest being payable before a purchase order is made.”

and the order is not complete in this case until the judgment of the court, which is the judgment at present under appeal.

E The reliance placed by Mr. Stubbs on the final paragraph of the order made by Vinelott J., in my judgment, takes his submission no further. The liberty to apply which was given to all parties was clearly for the further carrying out of the order, and certainly could not form the basis of a jurisdiction, or a consent, on the part of the parties that the court should proceed to calculate an award of interest as a matter of general jurisdiction.

F For those reasons I also agree that the cross-appeal should be dismissed.

28 MARCH, 20, 21 APRIL, 5 MAY 1994

Minority oppression – Appropriate parties to the petition – Jurisdiction of the court to make an order against a non-member – Companies Act 1985, ss 459, 461.

The petitioner was a preference shareholder in the respondent company. The petitioner alleged that the affairs of the company had been conducted in a manner which was unfairly prejudicial to its interest as a member. Broadly it claimed that the company's business had been transferred to Newco at a gross undervalue. Initially there were six respondents to the petition. As a result of discovery, it was shown that the business of Newco had been transferred to Star Vacations Ltd (Star) which in turn had transferred it to Owners Abroad Group plc (OAG). In the present proceedings leave was sought to add OAG as respondents to the petition. The relief sought was inter alia that OAG should with the other respondents purchase the shares of the petitioner. The question before the court was twofold: (a) whether the court had jurisdiction to join OAG in that OAG was not a member of the company and was not alleged to be a wrongdoer (the jurisdiction point), and (b) if the court did have such jurisdiction, whether this was an appropriate case in which it should exercise it to join Newco (the discretion point).

Held – As regards the jurisdiction point, the court had jurisdiction and as regards the discretion point, this was not an appropriate case in which the jurisdiction should be exercised.

(1) The language of ss 459 and 461 conferred the widest jurisdiction on the court as regards parties against whom relief could be sought. In an appropriate case, relief can be sought against a non-member, or against a person not involved in the conduct complained of (at least if that person could be affected by the relief sought), and in appropriate cases a person could be made a respondent even though no relief was sought against that person. However, the court could strike out a petition, even against a person who had been involved in the allegedly unfairly prejudicial conduct, if no remedy was sought against that person. There may be circumstances where the prospects of an order being made were perfectly hopeless and hence where it would be an abusive use of the process to require the respondent to remain as such or to be added as such.

(2) On the facts, no court would make the buy-out order sought against OAG and accordingly the court would not exercise its discretion to join OAG as a respondent.

Application

- b The petitioner, Supreme Travel Ltd, who had, on 30 August 1991, presented a petition under s 459 of the Companies Act 1985 in the matter of Little Olympian Each-Ways Ltd (the company) against various respondents, applied to the court to amend its petition to add, as eighth respondent, Owners Abroad Group plc (OAG), the amended petition claiming, inter alia, by way of relief, an order that the respondents, including OAG, should buy the petitioners' preference shares in the company on described bases. OAG had never been a shareholder in, or a director, nor manager or person responsible for the conduct of the company whose affairs were said to have been conducted in a manner unfairly prejudicial to the interests of the petitioner, nor was it alleged to be a wrongdoer. The facts are set out in the judgment.

5 May 1994. The following judgment was delivered.

- LINDSAY J. I have before me an application which, amongst other issues, raises questions as to the boundaries of ss 459 and 461 of the Companies Act 1985. A petitioner under a s 459 petition seeks here to amend its petition to add a respondent and to include amongst the relief sought an order against that new respondent, Owners Abroad Group Plc (OAG). OAG has never been a shareholder in, nor a director or manager or person responsible for the conduct of, the company whose affairs are said to have been conducted in a manner unfairly prejudicial to the interest of the petitioner. Nor is OAG alleged to be a wrongdoer. None the less, if the relief claimed were to be granted, OAG would become obliged, with others, to buy from the petitioner the petitioner's shares in that company. Does s 459 confer a jurisdiction so broad that such an order could be made against such a respondent? Even if it does, should leave for such joinder and amendment here be granted?
- f
- g
- h I shall first outline the position as it is before the amendment which is sought. On 30 August 1991, Supreme Travel Ltd, a company incorporated in Jersey (the petitioner) presented a petition to the Companies Court under s 459 of the Companies Act 1985 in the matter of Little Olympian Each-Ways Ltd (the company). The company was incorporated under the Companies Act 1948 and its registered office is in London. The petitioner describes itself
- i in the petition as holding 1,017,472 preference shares in the capital of the company and as having held the same for more than the necessary six months.

[1994] 2 BCLC 420

000614 49/350

The original petition was relatively short – some nine pages. It described the only shareholders of ordinary shares in the company as being Olympic Vacations Ltd (OVL) (51%) and a Mr George Michalias (49%) and said that the company and OVL were members of a group of companies known as the Olympic Holidays Group, of which the ultimate holding company was said to be Star Vacation Ltd (Star), a company incorporated in Cyprus. The directors of the company were described as being Mr Pyliotis, Mr Michalias and Mr Christoforou, each of whom was a director of OVL. It is not necessary for me to set out, even in summary, all the matters complained of in the original petition but, in outline, one material complaint ran as follows:

(1) on 24 November 1990 2,448,000 preference shares in the company were transferred to a company referred to as Newco, which was owned by Star and Mr Christoforou;

(2) on 21 March 1991 at an extraordinary general meeting of the company it was purportedly approved that the business and goodwill of the company should be transferred to Newco in return for which Newco would take over the company's liabilities and would be obliged to pay the company £1;

(3) that resolution was implemented on 30 April 1991;

(4) the company was thereafter left as a shell. It ceased to trade;

(5) the consideration given by Newco was grossly inadequate;

(6) there were breaches of pre-emption provisions which should have operated in the petitioner's favour as a holder of existing preference shares and breaches, too, of provisions requiring notice to have been given to the petitioner of the extraordinary general meeting;

(7) those and other matters led to an allegation that the affairs of the company had been conducted in a manner unfairly prejudicial to the interests of the petitioner.

The petition was intended to be served on the company itself, on OVL, on the three individuals I have mentioned – Mr Michalias, Mr Pyliotis and Mr Christoforou (referred to as the trio) and also on Olympic Holdings Ltd, the name assumed by Newco, but which I shall continue to call Newco.

In due course affidavits were sworn in support of and in opposition to the petition and there was a very substantial discovery. The story emerging from this mass of paper was, the petitioner began to see, a story going well beyond the bare bones of the original petition. For various reasons, counsel originally instructed by the petitioner could not continue with their case and a new team, Mr Potts QC and Mr Mabb were instructed in their place to consider the mass of new information.

In the result, on 1 March 1994 a summons was issued by the petitioner addressed to the six persons on whom the original petition had been served (whom I shall call together the original respondents), who appear before me by Mr Snowden. The summons asks, inter alia, that the petitioner should have leave to amend the petition by adding Star as a seventh respondent and OAG as eighth respondent. Leave is sought for a comprehensive amendment to the petition. The proposed amended petition is now a creature of some 94 pages in length. Again, I do not need to summarise all of it but the story now alleged (so far as material for immediate purposes) alleges far more complicated wrongdoings than the relatively simple sale of the company's assets to Newco for what was said to be the grossly inadequate consideration of £1 plus assumption by Newco of the company's liability as alleged in the original a petition. In broadest outline the most material allegations in the amended petition (as I shall call it for convenience, although leave to amend is not yet given and is resisted) are as follows:

(i) the company of whom the trio were directors sold the business and goodwill of the company for a grossly inadequate consideration to Newco, a company of which the trio were directors, and the capital of which was owned by Star, a company in which the trio were shareholders;

b (ii) the company was thus reduced to a shell and the shares in it not held by the petitioner were next sold for £1 to Star;

(iii) Star then sold the shares in Newco (which by then represented the value of the erstwhile business and goodwill of the company and, says the petitioner, nothing else) to OAG for a variable price likely to reach £10m.

c The basic complaints in the original petition remain. The petitioner is left with a holding in a shell company whilst the trio and some others have shared a substantial jackpot no part of which has come to the petitioner. Leaving aside how far various heads of relief asked for need to be alternative to one another, the amended petition claims by way of relief, inter alia, that the respondents (that is to say including OAG) should buy the petitioner's preference shares in the company on described bases which I apprehend are intended to reflect the true value of the shares had there been no wrongdoing; that Newco, now a subsidiary of OAG, should account for certain benefits to the company as constructive trustee; that Newco should make certain payments to the company and that the transfer of assets from the company to Newco should be declared voidable.

e The first question I have to decide is whether, as Mr Potts and Mr Mabb argue for the petitioner, the court has jurisdiction to add OAG as the eighth respondent. It is common ground OAG is not a member of the company but it is, urges Mr Potts, a person against whom relief is properly sought in the amended petition. It is, he says, also a person involved in the misdeeds alleged in the amended petition and a person affected by the relief claimed against others in the amended petition in that the position of its wholly-owned subsidiary Newco would be radically affected were the relief there claimed against Newco, or even some of it, to be granted. If I have the jurisdiction to add OAG, then the question becomes whether I should, in the exercise of the discretion conferred on me by the rules as to amendment and as to the joinder of parties, exercise it to join OAG and to allow the amendment against OAG. Mr Aldous QC and Mr Walton for OAG argue that the court does not have the necessary jurisdiction and further, even if it had, that in point of discretion the joinder and amendment so far as concerns OAG should be refused.

h I shall first look at the question as to jurisdiction and, initially, shall do so without reference to the authorities that have been cited to me. The relevant sections are ss 459 and 461 of the 1985 Act. I shall not set out either in full. I go first to s 461 which begins by conferring on the court by sub-s (1) a power to give relief in very wide terms. If the court is satisfied that the petition under s 459 is well founded, then 'it may make such order as it thinks fit for giving relief in respect of the matters complained of.'

i The relief does not, for example, necessarily have to compensate for or prohibit the recurrence of the matters complained of. The only nexus required between relief and complaint is that the former has to be 'in respect of' the latter.

Then s 461(2) opens with the words 'Without prejudice to the generality of sub-s (1) the court's order may' and it goes on in paras (a) to (d) to give examples of relief within the wider generality which is not to be prejudiced. Mr Potts argues that the two sections, ss 459 and 461, read together are an example of a practice exemplified by the provisions considered in the well known case of Aiden Shipping Co Ltd v Interbulk Ltd, The Vimeira [1986] 2 All ER 409, [1986] 1 AC 965 whereby Parliament confers an exceptionally wide jurisdiction and leaves it to the courts or to a rule-making body or to both to find for themselves boundaries, not to the jurisdiction proper, but, by way of the exercise of the discretion in individual cases, to the areas in which and the manner in which, in practice, the jurisdiction would be likely, save in exceptional circumstances, to lead to relief.

I do not think it profitable to determine how far Aiden Shipping Co Ltd v Interbulk Ltd is or is not a wholly acceptable analogy but I do see force in Mr Potts' submission which, in my view, is supported also by the legislative history of s 459 and its predecessors. As to that history, a precursor of s 459, s 210 of the Companies Act 1948, was reported on in 1960 by the Jenkins Committee as appearing not to have produced the results expected of it, and it was given in evidence to that committee that the section needed amendment if effective protection was to be given to minorities in the circumstances in which it had been intended that it should be (see the Jenkins Report 1960, para 200).

Section 210 was then superseded by s 75 of the Companies Act 1980, but s 75, which required that the prejudice should be suffered by 'some part of the members', inevitably led to doubts and discussion as to whether the section afforded relief in cases where the prejudice was suffered by the whole membership. There was thus, once again, the need to widen the statutory provision. Although the width of the jurisdiction conferred by ss 459 and 461 is, of course, a matter of the construction of the language Parliament has used, the earlier sequences of statutory provision, construction by the court, a dawning recognition of shortcomings later followed by a statutory extension is at least consistent with there having been engendered in the legislature by 1985 a sense that the thing to do was to give a very wide jurisdiction and to let the courts get on with it.

The broad provisions of the Companies (Unfair Prejudice Applications) Proceedings Rules 1986, SI 1986/2000 are examples of the same view. In relation to who is to be respondent, those rules provide that on the return date 'the court shall give such directions as it thinks appropriate with respect to . . . (a) service of the petition on any person' (see r 5) and for a day upon which 'unless the court otherwise directs, the petitioner and any respondent . . . shall attend before the registrar . . . for directions to be given in relation to the procedure on the petition.' (see r 3(3)).

The impression given both in the sections and in the rules is that the greatest possible flexibility was intended by the legislature to be given to the courts. Thus s 459 does not, for example, require that it is by a respondent or by the respondents to the petition that the company's affairs are being or have been conducted in the manner complained of. It does not require that the respondents to the petition should be limited to members of the company or to its directors or to those conducting its affairs and, of course, it is a familiar practice that the company itself should be a respondent (see r 4(1)).

I am unable to find in s 459 itself any language which points to who may be, who has to be or who cannot be respondents to a petition under its terms.

a Those are subjects which it does not attempt to address.

Mr Aldous and Mr Snowden argue that some restrictions in the jurisdiction have to be read in. For example, they say that there is no jurisdiction to require a person to be a respondent where no relief is claimed against him and where he is not affected by any relief which is sought. A distinction needs to be drawn, says Mr Aldous, between the conduct and position of those who are in control of the company or who are members, on the one hand, and, on the other, the position and conduct of third parties, 'outsiders', as he calls them, in respect of whom the company has no cause of action and whose involvement may be no more than that, innocent of any intent to prejudice anyone and innocent also of any foresight that anyone might be prejudiced, they are, as third parties, concerned in the activity complained of as being prejudicial. That some distinctions will in some cases need to be drawn is, I accept, likely enough, but I cannot find any warrant in the language of ss 459 and 461 for introducing them as matters of jurisdiction.

Leaving aside what the authorities I next turn to require of me, I do not feel able to decline the joinder of OAG and to refuse the proposed amendment of the petition against OAG on the ground that the petition, if so amended, would be trespassing outside the statutory jurisdiction. It may be material to add that a decision to exclude as a matter of jurisdiction would have the result not only of excluding respondents, such as OAG, who wish not to be joined, but also of excluding those who, in a corresponding position, would wish to be joined as, or to continue as, respondents.

I now turn to the authorities cited to find out what guidance I am given. First in time of the cases cited to me was Re RA Noble & Sons (Clothing) Ltd [1983] BCLC 273 per Nourse J. It was cited by Mr Aldous only so as to lead to the citation in it (at 290) from Re Bovey Hotel Ventures Ltd (31 July 1981, unreported) of a passage in which Slade J held, in relation to s 75 of the 1980 Act, that the test of unfairness was an objective one; it was not necessary for the petitioner to show that those who had de facto control of the company acted in the conscious knowledge that what they were doing or omitting to do was unfair to the petitioner. Mr Aldous argues that it would be remarkable if a person, a stranger to the company, could properly find himself a respondent to a s 459 petition without, as Re Bovey Hotel Ventures Ltd indicates, the least conscious knowledge that he was being, or was likely to be, unfair to anyone, but simply because he was involved in some transaction which was unfairly prejudicial to the petitioner. I see the force of that but, as I have said, I cannot find any words, either in or necessarily to be implied into ss 459 and 461, which would aid in excluding a respondent as a matter of jurisdiction in such a case. Whilst I would not quarrel with a line of Re Bovey Hotel Ventures Ltd, I do not see it as restrictive of the jurisdiction conferred by s 459.

The next authority was Re a company (No 005287 of 1985) [1986] BCLC 68, a decision of Hoffmann J in a case where the erstwhile controlling shareholder of the company, H, sought to strike out a petition which was under s 459 and, alternatively, for the winding up of the company. H had, it was alleged, conducted the company in breach of his fiduciary duties and in a manner unfairly prejudicial to the petitioners. Negotiations began before a petition was presented but, when it was found that H had transferred his shares to an offshore company, the petitioners then issued their petition under s 459 requiring H to account for payments of company money made without authority. The petitioners found a little later that H had left this jurisdiction and had sold the company's assets for cash. The petitioners then sought to make amendments to the petition and to include a request for an order that H and the offshore company should jointly and severally buy the petitioners' shares. Unabashed, H argued that in respect of the original relief it was only the offshore company that should have been respondent (see at 70). There was no justification, he argued, for extending relief to relief against persons, the company itself apart, who had ceased to be members (see at 71), but the petitioner could, it was argued, proceed against H by derivative shareholders' action. Hoffmann J thought that would be inconvenient, and he went on to say (at 71):
