Appendix Exhibit 1

Movant's Requested Relief Would Create An Unworkable Mechanism With Potentially Inconsistent Results

What must the Dondero Entities do in order to file a lawsuit if the Movant's request is granted?

- Obtain permission from Judge Jernigan in Bankruptcy Court to satisfy the Gatekeeper Motion and determine whether there is a colorable claim.
- Judge Jernigan's decision will be appealed by either side to the District Court, where it could be heard by any District Court Judge.
- Obtain permission from Judge Starr in District Court to satisfy a potential vexatious litigant order and determine whether the claim has merit.
- Judge Starr's decision will be appealed by either side to the Fifth Circuit.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL TO THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

COMES NOW the Defendants, Linda S. Restrepo and Carlos E. Restrepo, and in direct support of their Notice to this Court and all parties, hereby alleges, states, and provides the following:

Notice of Removal to the United States District Court

1. By the filing of this Notice with the Clerk of this state Court, together with the attached and corresponding petition for removal that was filed in the United States District Court prior, these state proceedings are now REMOVED, by automatic operation of federal law, and these Defendants now formally notify the Court and all parties of that same fact.

2. Pursuant to the express and specific language of 28 U.S.C. 1441, et seq., immediately upon the filing of this Notice, with the Clerk of this Court, this case has been already removed. The removal of jurisdiction from this Court is automatic by operation of federal law, and does not require any additional written order from the District Judge to cause this removal to become "effective" – the removal is an automatic judicial event, and immediate by operation of law.

3. Put another way, the United States Supreme Court clarified and established, clear back in 1966: "The petition is now filed in the first instance in the federal court. After notice is given to all adverse parties and a copy of the petition is filed with the state court, removal is effected and state court proceedings cease unless the case is remanded. 28 U. S. C. § 1446 (1964 ed.). See generally, American Law Institute, Study of the Division of Jurisdiction Between State and Federal Courts, Tentative Draft No. 4, p. 153 et seq. (April 25, 1966)." Georgia v. Rachel, 384 U.S. 780, 809 n27, 86 S. Ct. 1783, 16 L. Ed. 2d 925 (1966). (emphasis added).

4. Because this cause is now removed, the instant Court is without jurisdiction to effect any judgment in these proceedings (28 U.S.C. § 1446(c)(3)).

5. The Petition for Removal to the United States District Court is attached hereto as required by the express language of federal law, as Exhibit # 1.

WHEREFORE, the undersigned Defendants, Linda S. Restrepo and Carlos E. Restrepo, notify the Court and all other parties that this cause is now removed, that this court now has absolutely no jurisdiction for any judgment in this cause, bar none, unless and until the United States District Court may or may not remand, and further moves for all other relief that is just and proper in the premises.

STATEMENT AS TO IDENTITY OF THE PARTIES

For clarity of Interpretation, Linda S. Restrepo and Carlos E. Restrepo wrongly brought into the frivolous case as Defendants in the County Court at Law Number Five Cause No. 2012-DCV-04523 will be referred to as "Restrepo's". Plaintiff Alliance Riggers & Constructors, Ltd. will be referred to as "Alliance". Third Party Defendant GoDaddy Arizona corporation intentionally left out of the Plaintiff Alliance original and first amended petitions will be referred to as: "GoDaddy".

NOTICE OF APPEAL

The Restrepo's object to any expedited summarily remand of this case back to County Court at Law Number Five and give Notice of Appeal to any expedited remand. Restrepo's invoke their right to appeal any expedited remand, to the opportunity accorded by federal law to contest any expedited remand of this case, and to a Stay of any expedited remand in order to file a proper appeal in accordance with Federal Appellate Procedures to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals before this case is remanded.

This Notice of Removal and Memorandum in Support is filed in accordance with the instructions of the United States District Court for the Western District of Texas El Paso Division, the Honorable Judge Kathleen Cardone Order dated October 29, 2014 which states in relevant part that: "..If Plaintiffs wish to remove a state court proceeding, they must file a Notice of Removal....".

PREAMBLE
RESTREPOS CLAIM
FOURTEENTH AMENDMENT PROTECTIONS

Restrepos plead protection under the U.S. Constitution Fourteenth Amendment, which requires in relevant part that a state is forbidden to enter judgment attempting to bind person over whom it has no jurisdiction, and it has even less right to enter judgment purporting to extinguish interest of such person in property over which court has no jurisdiction; and any state court judgment purporting to bind person "or Defendant" over whom court has not acquired 'in personam' jurisdiction or purporting to exercise jurisdiction over property outside state is void both within and without state. U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 14.

Restrepos bring a claim against Judge Carlos Villa, presiding Judge of County Court at Law Number Five, El Paso County, Texas in his individual capacity, pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 alleging that Judge Villa failure to abide by Federal Copyright Act of 1976 28 U.S.C., deprived Restrepos of their Rights To Due Process under the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

A constitutional court cannot acquire jurisdiction by agreement or stipulation. Either it has or has no jurisdiction. If it does not have jurisdiction, any judgment entered is void ab initio and has no legal effect. Jurisdiction should not be sustained upon the doctrine of estoppel, especially where personal liberties are involved. In Re Wesley v. Schneckloth, 346 P. 2d 658 - Wash: Supreme Court 1959. Thus, because the Honorable Judge Carlos Villa lacks jurisdiction to hear a cause, "any judgment entered is void ab initio and is, in legal effect, no judgment at all." Id. It. The exercise of such abuse of power by Judge Carlos Villa has resulted in injury to the Restrepos for which there is no adequate remedy.

Alliance threw the Court a "red herring" frivolously and fraudulently[1] claiming that:

> "Defendants have, without permission or authority from Plaintiff, registered the domain name "www.allianceregersandconstructors.com", and in fact, launched a web page at such address in which they make multiple use of Plaintiff's trademark".

The fact is and the Restrepos ask this Court to take Judicial Notice of Appx. Exh. 5, which documents that the domain name "www.allianceregersandconstructors.com subject of Alliance Petition is for sale and was never purchased, was never utilized or was never claimed by the Restrepos. The owner of the domain name GoDaddy, a foreign Arizona corporation was purposely not brought into the suit by Alliance to avoid federal jurisdiction. The Restrepos are the wrong Defendants in this case because they have never had or claimed ownership of the domain name "alliancereggersandconstructors.com". Without GoDaddy the true owners of the domain name Judge Villa has never obtained subject matter jurisdiction.

[1] The Plaintiff's allegation represents a false and perjured statement knowingly, wantonly made to the Court with malice. Defendants NEVER registered the cited purported domain name, Defendants have NEVER purchased the cited purported domain name, Defendants have NEVER used the cited purported domain name. The Petition is premised on a blatant lie and a malicious, groundless, bad faith and harassment lawsuit by the Plaintiffs and their attorney of record Wayne R. Pritchard.

As a matter of law deprivation of a Federal Right is a violation of a Constitutional Right which arise under the Laws of the United States. Article III, Section 2, of the Constitution extends the judicial power of the federal government to all cases "arising under ... the Laws of the United States." Such cases are commonly referred to as "federal question" cases. In the instant case deprivation of the Restrepos Federal Copyrights by the state County Court is a violation of their Constitutional Rights.

County Court at Law Number Five never had jurisdiction over alliancereggersandconstructors.com. There is complete diversity in that alliancereggersandconstructors.com is owned by an Arizona corporation that is not a party to this litigation. The County Court has no authority or rule on any issue concerning the domain name

Federal courts' actual subject-matter jurisdiction derives from Congressional enabling statutes, such as 28 U.S.C. §§ 1330–1369 and 28 U.S.C. §§ 1441–1452. The United States Congress has not extended federal courts' subject-matter jurisdiction to its constitutional limits. The enabling statute for federal question jurisdiction, 28 U.S.C. § 1331, provides that the district courts have original jurisdiction in all civil actions arising under the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States.

FEDERAL COURT REMOVAL JURISDICTION

In the United States, removal jurisdiction refers to the right of a defendant to move a lawsuit filed in state court to the federal district court for the federal judicial district in which the state court sits. This is a general exception to the usual American rule giving the plaintiff the right to make the decision on the proper forum. Restrepos file a "notice of removal" in the state court where the lawsuit is presently filed to the Western District of Texas El Paso Division federal court.

Restrepo's removal is governed by statute, 28 U.S.C. § 1441 et seq. At the time of the initial filing, this case should have been filed in federal court. The removal of this case is based on an independent ground for subject-matter jurisdiction and federal question jurisdiction. A case must be removed to the federal district court that encompasses the state court where the action was initiated. Once removed, the case can be transferred to, or consolidated in, another federal court, despite the plaintiff's original intended venue. Alliance original complaint was an attempt in bad faith to evade federal jurisdiction by knowingly, wantonly and with m,alice deleting GoDady an Arizona corporation as a defendant by which Go Daddy is the only owner of the domain name "allianceregersandconstructors" stated in the original complaint.

Restrepos invoke removal of the state law claim base on complete federal jurisdiction and supplemental jurisdiction in that they share a common nucleus of operative fact with claims based on federal Copyright Law.

Supplemental jurisdiction is the authority of United States federal courts to hear additional claims substantially related to the original claim even though the court would lack the subject-matter jurisdiction to hear the additional claims independently. 28 U.S.C. § 1367 is a codification of the Supreme Court's rulings on ancillary jurisdiction (Owen Equipment & Erection Co. v. Kroger, 437 U.S. 365 (1978)) and pendent jurisdiction (United Mine Workers of America v. Gibbs, 383 U.S. 715 (1966)) and a superseding of the Court's treatment of pendent party jurisdiction (Finley v. United States, 490 U.S. 545 (1989)).

The Western District of Texas, El Paso Division federal court has supplemental jurisdiction over "all other claims that are so related . . . that they form part of the same case or controversy" (§ 1367(a)). The true test being that the new claim "arises from the same set of operative facts." This means a federal court hearing a federal claim can also hear substantially related state law claims, thereby encouraging efficiency by only having one trial at the federal level rather than one trial in federal court and another in state court.

Restrepos claim Pendent jurisdiction which is the authority of a United States federal court to hear a closely related state law claim against Alliance already facing a federal claim for violation of Restrepo copyright, described by the Supreme Court as "jurisdiction over nonfederal claims between parties litigating other matters properly before the court." Restrepos plead federal jurisdiction to encourage both "economy in litigation", and fairness by eliminating the need for a separate federal and state trial hearing essentially the same facts yet potentially reaching opposite conclusions.

Pendent jurisdiction refers to the court's authority to adjudicate claims it could not otherwise hear. The related concept of pendent party jurisdiction by contrast is the court's authority to adjudicate claims against a party not otherwise under the court's jurisdiction because the claim arises from the same nucleus of facts as Restrepos federal copyright claim properly before the federal court.

The leading case on pendent jurisdiction is United Mine Workers of America v. Gibbs, 383 U.S. 715 (1966). Gibbs has been read to require that (1) there must be a federal claim (whether from the Constitution, federal statute, or treaty) and (2) the non-federal claim arises "from a common nucleus of operative fact" such that a plaintiff "would ordinarily be expected to try them in one judicial proceeding."

Restrepo's claim Ancillary jurisdiction which allows this Federal Court to hear non-federal claims sufficiently logically dependent on Restrepo's federal copyright "anchor claim" (i.e., a federal claim serving as the basis for supplemental jurisdiction), despite that such courts would otherwise lack jurisdiction over such claims. Like pendent jurisdiction, a federal court can exercise ancillary jurisdiction if the anchor claim has original federal jurisdiction either through federal-question jurisdiction or diversity jurisdiction.

Areas where ancillary jurisdiction can be asserted include counterclaims (Fed. R. Civ. P. 13), cross-claims (Fed. R. Civ. P. 13), impleader (Fed. R. Civ. P. 14), interpleader (Fed. R. Civ. P. 22) and interventions (Fed. R. Civ. P. 24). Moore v. New York Cotton Exchange and Owen Equipment & Erection Co. v. Kroger are seminal cases relating to ancillary jurisdiction.

Ancillary jurisdiction has been replaced entirely by supplemental jurisdiction, per 28 U.S.C. § 1367(b), part of the U.S. supplemental jurisdiction statute:

28 U.S. Code § 1367 - Supplemental jurisdiction
(a) Except as provided in subsections (b) and (c) or as expressly provided otherwise by Federal statute, in any civil action of which the district courts have original jurisdiction, the district courts shall have supplemental jurisdiction over all other claims that are so related to claims in the action within such original jurisdiction that they form part of the same case or controversy under Article III of the United States Constitution. Such supplemental jurisdiction shall include claims that involve the joinder or intervention of additional parties.

Without removal of this case to federal court the federal courts will be jurisdictionally stripped of their complete federal right to exercise jurisdiction over federal copyright cases such as the instant case.

The federal court for the Western District of Texas, El Paso Division has complete jurisdiction over the instant copyright law case both jurisdiction over the parties or things (personal jurisdiction) and jurisdiction over the subject matter. This rule applies to every cause of action and every party in a case.

The County Court at Law Number Five lack of subject matter jurisdiction was never waivable; the county court never had it, and cannot assert it. Furthermore, Restrepo's can raise lack of subject matter jurisdiction at any time; there are no time restraints on when such an objection can be raised thus removal of this case to federal court is proper and timely. FRCP 12(h)(3).

Federal district courts have jurisdiction over this case where a federal question has been raised. 28 U.S.C. § 1331 provides: "The district courts shall have original jurisdiction of all civil actions arising under the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States." Jurisdiction under § 1331 is sometimes referred to as "federal question jurisdiction."

Congress has extended the federal trial courts' jurisdiction to other matters, including cases involving: federal patents, copyrights and trademarks, 28 U.S.C. § 1338.

Alliance claimed Federal Jurisdiction by making a claim for a domain name which is a Federal Question based on Restrepo's Copyrights to the domain name subject of the litigation.

It is important to note that federal subject matter jurisdiction was achieved based on the allegations contained Alliance complaint.

It is also important to note that even if Alliance attempts to avoid federal jurisdiction by failing to allege a question of federal law in the complaint and only pleading state law in a claim filed in state court, where the claim under state law is completely trumped by federal law, the federal courts will retain subject matter jurisdiction over the case. See Avco Corp. v. Aero Lodge No. 735, 390 U.S. 557, 88 S.Ct. 1235, 20 L.Ed.2d 126 (1968). In such a situation, the case can be removed to federal court by the Restrepos.

Unlike diversity of citizenship jurisdiction, for federal question jurisdiction, there is no minimum for the amount in controversy, nor must the parties be citizens of different states.

The Federal court for the Western District of Texas El Paso Division has exclusive jurisdiction over the Copyright law case of the Restrepos surreptitiously filed by Alliance in the County Court at Law Number Five to avoid federal jurisdiction.

PROSE DEFENDANTS INVOKE THEIR FIRST AMENDMENT RIGHTS IN FILING THIS NOTICE OF REMOVAL

ProSe Defendants invoke the First Amendment Right to the United States Constitution which affords access to the courts, including the right to petition the government for redress of grievances. App. C, U.S. Const. Amend I; see also Texas Const., Art. 1 § 27. The right to petition the government is "among the most precious of the liberties safeguarded by the Bill of Rights." United Mine Workers of America, Dist. 12 v. Illinois State Bar Ass'n, 389 U.S. 217, 222 (1967). Tex. Const. art. I, § 13 ("All courts shall be open, and every person for an injury done him, in his lands, goods, person or reputation, shall have remedy by due course of law")

PROSE DEFENDANTS INVOKE THE FEDERAL COURT'S PROTECTION

Defendants, Linda S. Restrepo and Carlos E. Restrepo, Pro Se, bring this action on the behalf of themselves. They respectfully come before this Honorable Court in the instant cause as Pro Se litigants. Defendants relied on Hall v. Bellmon, 935 F.2d 1106, 1110 (10th Cir. 1991), where the Court stated that; "A Pro Se litigant's pleading are to be construed liberally and to a less stringent standard than formal pleadings drafted by lawyers...If a Court can reasonably read the pleadings to state a valid claim on which Plaintiff could prevail, it should do so despite the Plaintiff's failure to site proper legal authority, his confusion of various legal theories, his poor syntax and sentence construction or his unfamiliarity with pleading requirements" (Citation Omitted)." NOTICE OF REMOVAL AND MOTION TO TRANSFER VENUE

Pursuant to the removal statutes 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331, 1332, 1338, 1404(a), 1441(a), 1441(b) and 1446(b) and under the provisions of the Copyright Act of 1976 and other applicable federal law, ProSe Defendants Linda S. Restrepo and Carlos E. Restrepo D/B/A/ Collectively as RDI GLOBAL SERVICES and R&D INTERNATIONAL, hereby file their Motion to Remove this case Number 2012-DCV-04523 based solely on Alliance June 20, 2012 original petition and Alliance first amended petition filed June 20, 2014, from the County Court at Law Number Five, El Paso County, Texas, the Honorable Carlos Villa presiding, to the United States District Court, Western District of Texas, El Paso Division for acquired exclusive federal copyright jurisdiction, subject matter jurisdiction, amount in controversy and serves the interest of justice.

Because Restrepo's case involves important Federal legal issues of substantial public importance to safeguard the integrity of Copyright laws, the authority of Federal Agencies and Acts of Congress, presenting issues of first impression pertaining to interpretation of Federal Copyright laws, Federal Preemption, Exclusive Jurisdiction of Federal Courts, Authority of Federal Agencies, and mandates of the U.S. Congress, this matter should be removed to Federal Court.

No actions or pleadings by Restrepo's constitute an acquiescence or waiver of procedural or other defects in the Notice of Removal. This Motion is supported by the Memorandum of Points and Authorities below.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES.

I. FACTUAL BACKGROUND. (SEE INFOGRAPHIC I)

1. This case arises out of a domain name dispute between the Restrepo's and Alliance where the Restrepo's authorized by Alliance designed an original artistic webpage which Restrepo's Copyrighted, and upload it to the Internet utilizing GoDaddy and Arizona corporation domain names and hosting services. There were other Defendants Copyrighted artistic compositions, corporate videos, articles and ancillary services produced as original works by the Restrepo's under the contract that Alliance received and has benefited from but has refused to pay the Restrepo's for.

2. Defendants acquired Copyright under the provisions of the Federal Copyright Act of 1976 and claim removal jurisdiction based on Federal question jurisdiction due to the fact that copyright claims are being brought under the Federal Copyright statute for all their original artistic and technical productions i.e., original photographs, original video footage, original narrative compilations, original graphic designs, music composition in the videos, original voice narrations, creation of the html computer code utilized to upload the webpage to the Internet, the web page and its contents, the corporate videos and their content, and to the domain name "alliancериggersdandconstructors.com" by Restrepo's purchase of the domain from GoDaddy an Arizona corporation as sole and only principal property owners and forever grandfather owners of such domain name.

3. Restrepo's claimed, asserted, utilized, made visible and known to all their Copyright ownership by labeling and dating all the pages in the webpage with the "Copyright" symbol which Alliance acquiesced and approved by signing their initials in the webpage (Exhibit 1). Restrepo's also inserted a comprehensive Notice of Copyright at the end of all videos produced, the article written by Restrepo's and published in the SEAA Connector Magazine 2012 Edition. Alliance never made any claims to the contrary and surrendered by operation of law any claims it might have had to the domain name "allianceriggersandconstructors.com", the words thereof, the webpage and its artistic compositions, the videos, articles, photographs et al produced as original artistic work product by the Restrepo's.

4. This case involves an exclusive federal question of Restrepo's Copyright ownership to the entire original webpage, html codes, video productions, names, the copyrighted Internet domain name "allianceriggersandconstructors.com" pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1338(a).

5. Alliance non-suited their original petition on June 20, 2014 and thus their amended petition filed on the same date is barred by res judicata. Alliance a vexatious litigant and serial filer of Breach of Contract lawsuits in El Paso, Texas courts, filed a First Amended Petition (Exhibit 2) in Texas state County Court at Law Number 5 against Restrepo's alleging trademark infringement by the utilization by Restrepos of a domain name "allianceriggersandconstructors.com", breach of contract among other ancillary superficial and substantively lacking pleadings.

6. Alliance concurred with the Restrepo's copyrighted original creative work product as attested by the Judicial Admissions (Exhibit 3) filed by Alliance General Manager Phillip H. Cordova and Operations Manager Terry Stevens.

7. On June 20, 2012 Alliance filed a vexatious frivolous original Petition (Exhibit 4) predicated on fraud against Restrepo's alleging trademark infringement by the utilization by Restrepo's of a domain name "allianceregersandconsdtructors.com", breach of contract among other ancillary superficial and substantively lacking pleadings. Alliance fraudulently, knowingly, maliciously and wantonly filed false and perjured statements to the court knowing that Restrepo's were never Defendants in this cause.

8. Restrepo's never purchased, utilized, owned, or uploaded a webpage to the Internet utilizing the alleged name "allianceregers&constructors.com" as fraudulently alleged by Alliance in the original petition and maintained by Alliance for 27 months of litigation. Factually the domain name "allianceregers&constructors.com" is and has been available for purchase from GoDaddy for $12.99 and a Google search of the Internet disclosed that there is no webpage uploaded to the Internet via GoDaddy hosting services by the Restrepo's.

9. On April,18, 2014, Alliance invoked for the second time the exclusive jurisdiction of a Federal agency by filing a second application for trademark to the name "alliance riggers & constructors" before the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) (Exhibit 5).

10. Previously on May 22, 2012 Alliance invoked Federal Jurisdiction by filing a first application for a trademark to the name "alliance riggers & constructors" to the USPTO.

11. On September 14, 2012 the USPTO: (1) denied Alliance's Trademark application, (2) informed Alliance and attorney Pritchard that the name Alliance was the sole legal trademark previously owned by Alliance Steel, Inc. an Oklahoma corporation domiciled at 3333 South Council Road, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma under Trademark registration No. 3604909, (3) ordered Alliance to disclaim the use of the words "riggers & constructors", (4) ordered Alliance to make an "Entity Clarification" in that Alliance "has not indicated the names and citizenship of the partners", (5) informed Alliance that the words "riggers & constructors" were common English language words not subject to trademark registration which Alliance failed to comply with. (Exhibit 6).

12. Alliance never appealed the negative ruling of the USPTO and the Federal Agency ruled on April 15, 2013 that Alliance trademark application had been abandoned. (Exhibit 7).

On April 21, 2014, Alliance for the second time in sworn federal documents under penalty of perjury officially disclaimed any rights to the common English words "riggers and constructors" as documented by the official USPTO document attached herein as Exhibit 9 and incorporated herein by reference as if set forth in its entirety.

Alliance cannot claim any trademark rights to the name "Alliance" because it is the legally owned trademark of Alliance Steel corporation domiciled at 3333 South Council Road, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, 73179 under trademark registration number 3604909 showing in Exhibit 6 incorporated herein by reference as if set forth in its entirety.

Alliance disclaimer to the words "riggers and constructors" and their inability to claim any trademark rights to the word "Alliance" completely and entirely voids the lawsuit filed against Restrepo's for lack of standing on the part of Alliance.

Therefore, as a matter of law County Court at Law Number Five never acquired jurisdiction and has no subject matter jurisdiction because Alliance has no standing before the court, or any rights to the name "Alliance" or the word "riggers and constructors". No cause of actions, no lawsuit, no standing, no basis in fact or in law exists for Alliance vexatious frivolous lawsuit to proceed in the courts.

Alliance consented by signing a written contract to: (1) a venue and forum selection in federal district court, (2) To GoDaddy Universal Terms of Service requiring venue in Arizona federal district court and (3) To the Department of Commerce ICANN (Internet Corporation of Assigned Names and Numbers) headquartered in California to resolve any tort claims and/or domain names disputes.

Alliance non-suit and amended petition were fraudulent lawsuits in which the Texas County Court at Law Number 5 lacked and never acquired personal jurisdiction due to improper service of Linda S. Restrepo and neither subject matter jurisdiction. By non-suit of the original petition and refilling with the state County Court substantiates Restrepo's position that the prior petition, that was filed, was fraudulent, as supported by the modified petition which removed the language in the original pleadings.

14. Alliance aided by attorney R. Wayne Pritchard and aided and abetted by others known and unknown to the Restrepo's, and aiding and abetting others known and unknown to the Restrepo's, devised and intended to devise a scheme and artifice predicated on the conscious doing of wrong for dishonesty and malicious purposes to defraud the Restrepo's and five other national and international corporations through extortion, bribery and the concealment of material information.

15. Pritchard and Alliance with the intent to defraud, devised a scheme and artifice to defraud and obtain money and personal property by materially false and fraudulent pretenses, representations, that is they conspired among themselves and devised a scheme to defraud Restrepo's and five other National and International corporations of their computer html codes, personal property, intellectual property, trade secrets, copyrighted and trademark property and payment due Restrepo's by filing a frivolous lawsuit in County Court at Law Number 5, El Paso County, Texas.

16. The unlawful intent of Attorney Pritchard and Alliance in filing the suit against Restrepo's was to disguise a Federal Copyright question under a frivolous bogus "breach of contract" claim to cajole a Texas County Court at Law judge to grant Alliance rights to a federal trademark name legally owned by Alliance Steel an Oklahoma corporation (See Exhibit 6 USPTO Determination). Through this unlawful scheme attorney Pritchard and Alliance sought to abrogate established federal laws and dilute the congressionally mandated authority of federal agencies to wit: the USPTO, and the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers ICANN a federal agency which has the exclusive jurisdiction over domain name disputes. (Exhibit 8 Go Daddy Legal Agreement Section 23 Governing Law).

II. THE REMOVAL IS TIMELY

This Notice of Removal is a timely filed Constitutional claim within the time frame of the federal court acceptance of Restrepo's federal copyright lawsuit filed on October 16, 2014 and within one year of Alliance June 20, 2014 amended petition.

III. LEGAL STANDARD

A. 28 U.S.C. § 1331. FEDERAL QUESTION:

Section 1331 establishes that district courts shall have original jurisdiction when Motions to Transfer venue under 28 USC §1441(a) and 28 USC § 1331 require that: "The district courts shall have original jurisdiction of all civil actions arising under the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States." Federal question jurisdiction exists when a claim arises pursuant to federal law.

Further, 28 U.S.C. §1446 allows transfer of this cause for original Federal Court jurisdiction. See e.g. Hayes v. Livermore, 279 F2d 818 (D.C. Cir. 1960; Amerio Contact Plate Freezers, Inc. v. Knowles, 274 F2d 755 (D.C. Cir. 1960)

Alliance sought and is currently under the exclusive jurisdiction of a federal agency the USPTO when they applied for a trademark for the second time on April 18, 2014 thus invoking the exclusive application of federal law involving a federal question. Given this fact along with the Restrepo's Copyright and the fact that the Restrepo's have a current and pending appeal of Alliance trademark application Number 76/716209, the removal of this case to the Federal District Court for the Western District of Texas, El Paso Division is warranted. The facts in this case easily satisfy the criteria of exclusive federal law, federal jurisdiction, and venue are proper and the case should be transferred to the Western District of Texas, El Paso Division.

IV. ARGUMENT

A. This Matter Should Be Removed to the United States District Court, Western District of Texas, El Paso Division for the Complaint Alleges Claims Which Create Complete Federal Question Jurisdiction.

"Chasing the Rabbit Down the Hole"

Alliance non-suited and first Amended Petition artfully and maliciously attempts to disguise a federal Copyright matter by claiming trademark infringement by Restrepo's for allegedly using the common English words "alliance riggers and constructors".

Alliance by their own statements under oath to the County Court at Law Number Five have documented that this is a federal case involving federal questions of a domain name ownership of Restrepo's Copyrighted "allianceriggersandconstructors.com" domain name as attested by the court transcript excerpt presented below, Exhibit 10. Court Transcript Reporter's Record May 3, 2013.

"MR. PRITCHARD: yeah, your Honor, this is a real simple case. i mean, and not to belabor any of the legal issues we've already talked about,, but the simplicity of the case is this: is that they have a domain name that is—-
MR. PRITCHARD: —- is similar to our trademark. All we want them to do is transfer the domain name to us. That's what we want. We don't want them having another —- and the law is that you can't have domain name that is confusingly similar to a trademark. That's what this case is about."

However, we must look deeper into the real motivation of Alliance which is to deceitfully gain all the original Copyrighted domain name and product originally created by Defendants contained in the webpage, the html code, the videos, the published articles, the music score, the MP3's (original narrations), slide shows, original footage movies, et. al which are and have been used as Copyrighted original creative work product by Restrepo's thus covered by and subject to determination by Federal District Court under 28 U.S.C. § 1338.

We must also look into the factual dishonest intent of Alliance meritless allegations that his "alliance riggers & constructors" words domain name belongs exclusively to Alliance in light of the fact that there are currently FOUR GoDaddy available for purchase domain names all containing the words "alliance riggers and constructors" to wit: (1) allianceriggersandconstructors.org sells for $12.99; (2) allianceriggersandconstructors.co sells for $6.99; (3) allianceriggersandconstructors.info sells for $2.99; and (4) allianceriggersandconstructors.us sells for $4.99.

The question is then: (1) Why Alliance has not sued GoDaddy the legal owner of the aforementioned domain names all containing the allegedly trademark name "alliance riggers & constructors"? (2) Why Alliance does not purchase anyone of the four domain names, or better yet, all four of the domain names containing the words "alliance riggers and constructors" which can either or all be used as equal identifiers of the webpage?.

Alliance's disclaimer to the words "riggers and constructors" and their inability to claim any trademark rights to the word "Alliance" completely and entirely voids the lawsuit filed against Restrepo's for lack of standing on the part of Alliance.

Therefore, as a matter of law County Court at Law Number Five never acquired jurisdiction and has no subject matter jurisdiction because Alliance has no standing before the court, or any rights to the name "Alliance" or the generic words "riggers and constructors".

Further, by Alliance's own court recorded admissions this is a federal question domain name ownership copyright case that belongs in the Western District of Texas El Paso Division federal court.

Factually the Federal USPTO has already ruled that Alliance cannot claim title to the word "Alliance" because it is a legal registered trademark of Alliance Steel an Oklahoma corporation. Further, the Federal USPTO has also informed Plaintiff that it cannot register and claim title to the words "riggers" and "constructors" which have been determined to be common usage words contained in the English Dictionary and thus NOT subject to trademark registration.

To the extent that Alliance claims alleged rights to the federal copyrighted domain name "alliance riggers & constructors" those rights are weak, narrow, and exist in a crowded field of merely competing descriptive names, uses and ordinary plain English words as evidenced by the Federal USPTO ruling against Plaintiffs application dated September 14, 2012.

Alliance contractually agreed and consented to jurisdiction and forum selection in Federal district court for resolution of any domain names disputes by signing the contract and accepting GoDaddy's Universal Terms of Service for GoDaddy software and services as follows: "For the adjudication of disputes concerning the use of any domain name registered with GoDaddy, You agree to submit to jurisdiction and venue in the U.S. District Court for the district of Arizona located in Phoenix, Arizona."

It is then obvious to the casual observer as well as to the Federal Court that Alliance, with no investigation, or exercise of prudent due diligence, and in contradiction to his sworn testimony and judicial admissions asserts a variety of scurrilous, sensational and unfounded accusations against the Restrepo's. Alliance original and non-suited Petition and subsequent Amended Petition have no standing, no basis in fact or in law, defies common sense, and therefore County Court at Law Number Five never obtained, and cannot exercise any jurisdiction over a federal Copyrighted domain name.

Alliance filed his first Amended Petition without any substantive change from his first Petition and with the knowledge that it was and would be groundless. Thus, his pleading has been, by definition, made in bad faith and for the purpose of harassment. Therefore, Alliance is subject to sanctions. See Tanner, 856 S.W.2d at 730.

Alliance Amended Petition fails to comply with new Supreme Court rules by refusing to classify the damages sought into categories but instead proceed to make his own nebulous category. Plaintiff has made a claim for damages which are within and in excess of the minimum jurisdictional limits of the Court at the same time.

Restrepo's request that the Alliance Amended Petition be stricken because it is substantially insufficient in law and in fact, or that the action should be dismissed with prejudice.

B. This Matter Should Be Removed To The United States District Court, Western District Of Texas, El Paso Division

Transfer to Federal District Court is mandatory because a Federal Question Jurisdiction exists by virtue of the Copyright Act of 1976 and 28 U.S.C § 1338. Federal question jurisdiction exists where the complaint "establishes either that [1] federal law creates the cause of action or [2] that the plaintiff's right to relief necessarily depends on resolution of a substantial question of federal law, in that 'federal law is a necessary element of one of the well-pleaded ... claims'." Christianson v. Colt Indus. Operating Corp., 486 U.S. 800, 808-09 (1988) (quoting Franchise Tax Bd., 463 U.S. at 27-28); 28 U.S.C. § 1331. "[I]n order for a complaint to state a claim 'arising under' federal law, it must be clear from the face of the plaintiff's well-pleaded complaint that there is a federal question." Duncan v. Stuetzle, 76 F.3d 1480, 1485 (9th Cir. 1996). Restrepo's have copyrighted the domain name "allianceriggersandconstructors.com" and all original work relating to their original creative video and Internet web page product.

A claim to determine copyright ownership is a federal court claim when interpretation of a copyright statute controls as in this case.

Suits whose purpose is to decide these federal copyright matters are exclusive federal court suits.

Restrepos contend that Alliance other claims of breach of contract, declaratory judgment and violation of the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act invoke federal question jurisdiction because all claims are based on and are covered under the umbrella of the protections afforded by the Federal Copyright Act and 28 U.S.C. § 1338.

The U.S. District Court, Western District of Texas, El Paso Division has exclusive subject matter jurisdiction over this case under 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201 and 2202, 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331 and 1338, and 15 U.S.C. § 1121. The federal district court shall have original jurisdiction of any civil action asserting a claim of unfair competition when joined with a substantial and related claim under the copyright protection afforded by the Copyright Act of 1976 and 28 U.S.C. §1338 as in this case.

Alliance filing in state County Court however ambiguous and purposely concealed by the ancillary claims of Unfair Competition and Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act is an attempt to evade the operation of mandatory provisions of Federal statutes and law.

There is not a scintilla of fact or evidence offered by Alliance that the Restrepo's line of business which consists of strategic marketing research and video productions, web page creations, and public relations services are in any way directly or indirectly, or that Restrepo's have the technical, equipment and financial capacity to engage in a competing offering of crane and rigging and steel erection services. Alliance claims otherwise are ludicrous and fail to meet the test of veracity and common sense.

Neither is any factual evidence offered by Plaintiff that Restrepos have engaged in Breach of Contract for all services rendered to Alliance by the Restrepo's were under a contract signed by Alliance for the intended purpose, approved verbally and in writing by Alliance. The Court record reflects that Alliance wrote complimentary E-mails to Defendants for their outstanding work. Further, Alliance has made filed judicial admissions through General Manager Phillip Cordova and Operations Manager Terry Stevens that that they gave permission to the Restrepos to utilize its alleged name in the web page, videos, and all other productions.

A judicial admission once made still is a judicial admission that completely obliterates Alliance claims of any "unauthorized use" of "alliance riggers & constructors" name. Alliance by their own judicial admissions in fact totally defeat any claims against Restrepo's and reflects Alliance lawsuit for what it really is: a vexatious frivolous lawsuit without any basis in fact or in law that defies all common sense and made only for the purpose of harassment of a disabled U.S. Army Veteran senior citizen and his wife.

Alliance claims under Common Law are unsubstantiated as well. Alliance is and has engaged in Interstate commerce outside of El Paso County, across interstate boundaries by having registered to offer its services in the State of New Mexico and other U.S. locations and operated across international borders in Mexico.

The copyrighted domain name "allianceriggersandconstructors.com" subject of Alliance's First Amended Petition is the Restrepo's legally owned and claimed Copyright protected under Federal statutes. Every original creative work product, every document, contains the Restrepo's Copyright symbol and Notice of Copyright thus endowing the jurisdiction of and power of federal courts by statutes and Constitutional protection to adjudicate claims. See Stockman v. Fed. Election Comm'n, 138 F. 3rd 144, 151 (5th Cir. 1998) (citing Veldhoen v. United States Coast Guard, 35 F. 3d 222, 225 (5th Cir. 1994).

C. Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction of State County Court

The Restrepos rely on the following established case precedent: (1) "Once jurisdiction is challenged, the court cannot proceed when it clearly appears that the court lacks jurisdiction, the court has no authority to reach merits, but, rather, should dismiss the action." Melo v. US. 505 F2d 1026. (2) "The law provides that once State Jurisdiction has been challenged, it must be proven." Main v; Thiboutot. 100 S. Ct. 2502 (1980). (3) "Jurisdiction can be challenged at any time." and"Jurisdiction, once challenged, cannot be assumed and must be decided." Basso v; Utah Power & Light Co.. 495 F 2d 906, 910. (4) "Defense of lack of jurisdiction over the subject matter may be raised at any time, even on appeal." HUI Top Developers v; Holiday Pines Service Corp.. 478 So. 2d. 368 (Fla 2nd DCA 1985). (5) "Once challenged, jurisdiction cannot be assumed, it must be proved to exist." Stuclc v. Metiical Examiners. 94 Ca 2d 751. 211 P2d 389. (6) "There is no discretion to ignore that lack of jurisdiction." Jovce v: US. 474 F2d 215. (7) "The burden shifts to the court to prove jurisdiction." Rosemond v: Lambert. 469 F2d 416. (8) "A universal principle as old as the law is that a proceedings of a court without jurisdiction are a nullity and its judgment therein without effect either on person or property." Norwood v: Benfield. 34 C 329; Ex. parte Giambonini, 49 P. 732. (9) "Jurisdiction is fundamental and a judgment rendered by a court that does not have jurisdiction to hear is void ab initio." In Re AQ.Qlication of Wyatt. 300 P. 132; Re Qmd11. 118 P2d 846. (10) "Thus, where a judicial tribunal has no jurisdiction of the subject matter on which it assumes to act, its proceedings are absolutely void in the fullest sense of the term." DU/on v: DU/on. 187 P 27. (11) "A court has no jurisdiction to determine its own jurisdiction, for a basic issue in any case before a tribunal is its power to act, and a court must have the authority to decide that question in the first instance." Rescue Army v. Municipal Court of Los Angeles. 171 P2d 8; 331 US 549, 91 L. ed. 1666, 67 S.Ct. 1409. (12) "A departure by a court from those recognized and established requirements of law, however close apparent adherence to mere form in method of procedure, which has the effect of depriving one of a constitutional right, is an excess of jurisdiction." Wuest v: Wuest. 127 P2d 934, 937. (13) "Where a court failed to observe safeguards, it amounts to denial of due process of law, court is deprived of juris." Merritt v: Hunter. C.A. Kansas 170 F2d 739.

D. Defective Service

The Record reflect that Restrepos have vigorously contested the lack of personal jurisdiction of County Court at Law Number Five because of insufficient process and insufficient service upon Linda S. Restrepo who never personally received and signed the citation of service. The Record before this Honorable Court document that Linda

S. Restrepo has made a standing and running objection to defective/ insufficient service and the fact that she has not been properly served.

The Court Record documents that service upon Linda Restrepo was defective in that the "certified mail", "restricted delivery" return receipt does not contain the addressee's signature (CR. Return Service). "A return of citation served by registered or certified mail must contain the return receipt, and the latter must contain the addressee's signature". Tex.R. Civ. P. 107; See Keeton v. Carrasco, 53 S.W.3d 13, 19 (Tex.App.-San Antonio 2001, pet. denied). If the return receipt is signed by someone else, then service of process is defective; See All Comm. Floors, Inc. v. Barton & Rasor, 97 S.W.3d 723, 726-27 (Tex. App.- Fort Worth 2003, no pet.) (holding that service was defective because the return receipt was signed by neither the addressee or registered agent for the entity). Because the service is defective, the attempted service is invalid and of no effect. Wilson v. Dunn, 800 S.W.2d 833, 836 (Tex.1990). The County Court has proceeded in this case without personal jurisdiction and contrary to Tex. R. Civl P. Rule 124, No Judgment Without Service.

Alliance alleged claims of ownership of a domain name, Breach of Contract, Unfair Competition, violations of the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act necessitate the resolution of a substantial question of federal law because all claims fall within the source of Restrepos copyrightable subject matter, are based on and hinge on the resolution of the disputed domain name Copyrights of Restrepos versus the alleged ownership rights claimed by Alliance.

This matter should be removed to the U.S. District Court, Western District of Texas, El Paso Division since there are complete and exclusive federal questions before the Court.

E. Transferring the Case to the Western District of Texas, El Paso Division Would Serve the Interests of Justice.

The traditional factor - the interest of justice - also supports a transfer to the Western District of Texas. Alliance would not be disadvantaged by a transfer of this case to the Western District of Texas. Because their fraudulent trademark claims and trademark infringement of the registered name "Alliance" and its disclaimer to the words "riggers and constructors" all raise issues of federal law, no one state district court is presumed to be any more or less familiar with the legal standards applicable to those claims. Moreover, the fraudulent Alliance breach of contract claims are based on a "surreptitious phantom trademark" claim that require that any domain name dispute arising under federal law shall be resolved in accordance with the federal jurisdiction of the federal District courts." The transferee District court, sitting in El Paso, Texas, may be presumed to have greater familiarity with the federal copyright, patent and trademark laws underlying these claims.55 I.£11JI Vistaprint. Ltd., 628 F.3d 1342, 1346-47 & n.3 (Fed. Cir. 2010).

F. Defendants Request Equal Protection under the Law

Restrepo's request transfer to the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Texas, El Paso Division based on their claim to Equal Protection under the law. The County Court at Law Number 5 has treated Restrepo's as one class of people differently than another class of people. County Court at Law Number Five has singled out Restrepo's abuse of process and malicious persecution, differential treatment based on their claims of fraud against Alliance in the on-going El Paso County public corruption case. Restrepo's further state that they have been stripped in County Court at Law Number Five of their 1st Amendment Rights and their Rights to Due Process. The presiding Judge Carlos Villa is a state actor acting under the Color of Law under section 1983, who due to his bias against the Restrepo's for the fact that his nephew was part of the public corruption case which the Restrepo's have sought claims against Alliance, has decided to allow the Alliance to operate without complying with discovery, requests for production, disclosure, without stating a cause of action and without standing all in violation of the Restrepo's Constitutional and Due Process Rights which makes this a federal case.

V. CONCLUSION

This case is based on complete Federal Issues and complete Federal Copyright Law and does not belong in the County Court at Law Number Five of El Paso, Texas. It belongs in the Western District of Texas, El Paso Division - the exclusive Federal Forum originally acquired and required by the Federal Copyright Laws. Alliance alleged claims require an interpretation of federal copyright law in a federal court. A transfer to the Western District of Texas, El Paso Division would square with both common sense and fundamental fairness, particularly when the key witnesses in this case, and all of Alliance's owners, officers, currently employees identified to date that could provide critical testimony work and reside in the Western District of Texas.

By this Notice of Removal and Motion to Transfer Venue, the Restrepo's do not waive any objections they may have as to appeal remand of the case to state court, service,, jurisdiction or venue, or any other defenses and objections it may have to any expedited rulings in this action. Restrepo's intend no admissions of fact, law, or liability by this Notice and Motion, and expressly reserve all appeals, defenses, motions and/or pleas. Restrepo's reserve the right to amend and/or supplement this Notice of Removal and Motion. This Notice of Removal is not brought for the purpose of delay but so that justice may be served.

GO DADDY
UNIFORM DOMAIN NAME DISPUTE RESOLUTION POLICY

(As Approved by ICANN on October 24, 1999)

1. PURPOSE

This Uniform Domain Name Dispute Resolution Policy (the "Policy") has been adopted by the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers ("ICANN"), is incorporated by reference into your Registration Agreement, and sets forth the terms and conditions in connection with a dispute between you and any party other than us (the registrar) over the registration and use of an Internet domain name registered by you. Proceedings under Paragraph 4 of this Policy will be conducted according to the Rules for Uniform Domain Name Dispute Resolution Policy (the "Rules of Procedure"), which are available at dispute policy, and the selected administrative-dispute-resolution service provider's supplemental rules.

2. YOUR REPRESENTATIONS

By applying to register a domain name, or by asking us to maintain or renew a domain name registration, you hereby represent and warrant to us that (a) the statements that you made in your Registration Agreement are complete and accurate; (b) to your knowledge, the registration of the domain name will not infringe upon or otherwise violate the rights of any third party; (c) you are not registering the domain name for an unlawful purpose; and (d) you will not knowingly use the domain name in violation of any applicable laws or regulations. It is your responsibility to determine whether your domain name registration infringes or violates someone else's rights.

3. CANCELLATIONS, TRANSFERS, AND CHANGES

We will cancel, transfer or otherwise make changes to domain name registrations under the following circumstances:

i. subject to the provisions of Paragraph 8, our receipt of written or appropriate electronic instructions from you or your authorized agent to take such action;

ii. our receipt of an order from a court or arbitral tribunal, in each case of competent jurisdiction, requiring such action; and/or

iii. our receipt of a decision of an Administrative Panel requiring such action in any administrative proceeding to which you were a party and which was conducted under this Policy or a later version of this Policy adopted by ICANN. (See Paragraph 4(i) and (k) below.)

We may also cancel, transfer or otherwise make changes to a domain name registration in accordance with the terms of your Registration Agreement or other legal requirements.

4. MANDATORY ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEEDING

This Paragraph sets forth the type of disputes for which you are required to submit to a mandatory administrative proceeding. These proceedings will be conducted before one of the administrative-dispute-resolution service providers listed here (each, a "Provider").

A. Applicable Disputes. You are required to submit to a mandatory administrative proceeding in the event that a third party (a "complainant") asserts to the applicable Provider, in compliance with the Rules of Procedure, that

- your domain name is identical or confusingly similar to a trademark or service mark in which the complainant has rights; and
- you have no rights or legitimate interests in respect of the domain name; and
- your domain name has been registered and is being used in bad faith.

In the administrative proceeding, the complainant must prove that each of these three elements are present.

B. Evidence of Registration and Use in Bad Faith. For the purposes of Paragraph 4(a)(iii), the following circumstances, in particular but without limitation, if found by the Panel to be present, shall be evidence of the registration and use of a domain name in bad faith:

- circumstances indicating that you have registered or you have acquired the domain name primarily for the purpose of selling, renting, or otherwise transferring the domain name registration to the complainant who is the owner of the trademark or service mark or to a competitor of that complainant, for valuable consideration in excess of your documented out-of-pocket costs directly related to the domain name; or
- you have registered the domain name in order to prevent the owner of the trademark or service mark from reflecting the mark in a corresponding domain name, provided that you have engaged in a pattern of such conduct; or
- you have registered the domain name primarily for the purpose of disrupting the business of a competitor; or
- by using the domain name, you have intentionally attempted to attract, for commercial gain, Internet users to your web site or other on-line location, by creating a likelihood of confusion with the complainant's mark as to the source, sponsorship, affiliation, or endorsement of your web site or location or of a product or service on your web site or location.

C. How to Demonstrate Your Rights to and Legitimate Interests in the Domain Name in Responding to a Complaint. When you receive a complaint, you should refer to Paragraph 5 of the Rules of Procedure in determining how your response should be prepared. Any of the following circumstances, in particular but without limitation, if found by the Panel to be proved based on its evaluation of all evidence presented, shall demonstrate your rights or legitimate interests to the domain name for purposes of Paragraph 4(a)(ii):

- before any notice to you of the dispute, your use of, or demonstrable preparations to use, the domain name or a name corresponding to the domain name in connection with a bona fide offering of goods or services; or
- you (as an individual, business, or other organization) have been commonly known by the domain name, even if you have acquired no trademark or service mark rights; or

- you are making a legitimate noncommercial or fair use of the domain name, without intent for commercial gain to misleadingly divert consumers or to tarnish the trademark or service mark at issue.

D. Selection of Provider. The complainant shall select the Provider from among those approved by ICANN by submitting the complaint to that Provider. The selected Provider will administer the proceeding, except in cases of consolidation as described in Paragraph 4(f).

E. Initiation of Proceeding and Process and Appointment of Administrative Panel. The Rules of Procedure state the process for initiating and conducting a proceeding and for appointing the panel that will decide the dispute (the "Administrative Panel").

F. Consolidation. In the event of multiple disputes between you and a complainant, either you or the complainant may petition to consolidate the disputes before a single Administrative Panel. This petition shall be made to the first Administrative Panel appointed to hear a pending dispute between the parties. This Administrative Panel may consolidate before it any or all such disputes in its sole discretion, provided that the disputes being consolidated are governed by this Policy or a later version of this Policy adopted by ICANN.

G. Fees. All fees charged by a Provider in connection with any dispute before an Administrative Panel pursuant to this Policy shall be paid by the complainant, except in cases where you elect to expand the Administrative Panel from one to three panelists as provided in Paragraph 5(b)(iv) of the Rules of Procedure, in which case all fees will be split evenly by you and the complainant.

H. Our Involvement in Administrative Proceedings. We do not, and will not, participate in the administration or conduct of any proceeding before an Administrative Panel. In addition, we will not be liable as a result of any decisions rendered by the Administrative Panel.

I. Remedies. The remedies available to a complainant pursuant to any proceeding before an Administrative Panel shall be limited to requiring the cancellation of your domain name or the transfer of your domain name registration to the complainant.

J. Notification and Publication. The Provider shall notify us of any decision made by an Administrative Panel with respect to a domain name you have registered with us. All decisions under this Policy will be published in full over the Internet, except when an Administrative Panel determines in an exceptional case to redact portions of its decision.

K. Availability of Court Proceedings. The mandatory administrative proceeding requirements set forth in Paragraph 4 shall not prevent either you or the complainant from submitting the dispute to a court of competent jurisdiction for independent resolution before such mandatory administrative proceeding is commenced or after such proceeding is concluded. If an Administrative Panel decides that your domain name registration should be canceled or transferred, we will wait ten (10) business days (as observed in the location of our principal office) after we are informed by the applicable Provider of the Administrative Panel's decision before implementing that decision. We will then implement the decision unless we have received from you during that ten (10) business day period official documentation (such as a copy of a complaint, file-stamped by the clerk of the court) that you have commenced a lawsuit against the complainant in a jurisdiction to which the complainant has submitted under Paragraph 3(b)(xiii) of the Rules of Procedure. (In general, that jurisdiction is either the location of our principal office or of your address as shown in our Whois database. See Paragraphs 1 and 3(b)(xiii) of the Rules of Procedure for details.) If we receive such documentation within the ten (10) business day period, we will not implement the Administrative Panel's decision, and we will take no further action, until we receive (i) evidence satisfactory to us of a resolution between the parties; (ii) evidence satisfactory to us that your lawsuit has been dismissed or withdrawn; or (iii) a copy of an order from such court dismissing your lawsuit or ordering that you do not have the right to continue to use your domain name.

5. ALL OTHER DISPUTES AND LITIGATION

appealable either. But if they want to try it, fine. You certainly --

MR. RESTREPO: May I approach the Court, Your Honor?

MR. PRITCHARD: Oh, before we go, Your Honor, I have the responses to those other motions that weren't taken up today -- the first ones that were -- I just want to give it to them.

THE COURT: I know there is some trademark infringement here. Would going to mediation help anything?

MR. PRITCHARD: Yeah, Your Honor, this is a real simple case. I mean, and not to belabor any of the legal issues we've already talked about, but the simplicity of the case is this: Is that they have a domain name that is --

MS. RESTREPO: Your Honor --

MR. PRITCHARD: -- is similar to our trademark. All we want them to do is transfer the domain name to us. That's what we want. We don't want them having another -- and the law is that you can't have a domain name that is confusingly similar to a trademark. That's what the case is about.

MS. RESTREPO: Your Honor, objection to him arguing the case before the Court before it's called on

CAUSE NO. 13-07858

CLAYMORE HOLDINGS, LLC, Plaintiff, v. CREDIT SUISSE AG, CAYMAN ISLANDS BRANCH and CREDIT SUISSE SECURITIES (USA) LLC, Defendants.	§ § § § § § § § § § §	IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF DALLAS COUNTY, TEXAS 134TH JUDICIAL DISTRICT

FINAL JUDGMENT

On November 25, 2014, on a motion by Defendants Credit Suisse AG, Cayman Islands Branch ("Credit Suisse AG") and Credit Suisse Securities (USA) LLC (collectively, "Defendants") to enforce a jury waiver clause against Plaintiff Claymore Holdings, LLC ("Plaintiff"), the Court bifurcated this case into two trials: (1) a jury trial on Plaintiff's fraudulent inducement claim against Defendants; and (2) a bench trial on Plaintiff's claim for breach of contract against Credit Suisse AG, and Plaintiff's claims for breach of the implied duty of good faith and fair dealing, aiding and abetting fraud, civil conspiracy, and unjust enrichment against both Defendants, as well as Plaintiff's request for rescissory damages arising from its fraudulent inducement claim against both Defendants.

On December 1, 2014, this case was called for the jury trial. Plaintiff appeared through counsel and announced ready for trial. Defendants appeared through counsel and announced ready for trial. After a jury was impaneled and sworn, it heard the evidence and arguments of counsel on Plaintiff's claim for fraudulent inducement. In response to the jury charge, the jury made findings that the Court received, filed, and entered of record. The jury found Defendants liable for fraudulently inducing Plaintiff by affirmative misrepresentation, and awarded damages of $40,000,000.

On May 27, 2015, this case was called for the bench trial. Plaintiff appeared through counsel and announced ready for trial. Defendants appeared through counsel and announced ready for trial. All matters in controversy, legal and factual, were submitted to the Court for its determination of Plaintiff's claims for breach of contract, breach of the implied duty of good faith and fair dealing, aiding and abetting fraud, civil conspiracy, and unjust enrichment, as well as Plaintiff's request for rescissory damages arising from its fraudulent inducement claim.

The Court hereby RENDERS judgment for Plaintiff. Accordingly, the Court hereby ORDERS:

1. On Plaintiff's claim for breach of contract against Credit Suisse AG and Plaintiff's claims for breach of the implied duty of good faith and fair dealing, aiding and abetting fraud, civil conspiracy, and fraudulent inducement against both Defendants—each of which caused the same amount of damages, thus obviating the need for an election of remedies with respect to these claims—the Court orders that Plaintiff recover the following from Defendants, jointly and severally except as to breach of contract (for which Defendant Credit Suisse AG is solely liable):

a. Damages, whether calculated as expectation damages, rescissory damages, or restitution, in the amount of $211,863,998.56, after deducting the allocable portions of the CBRE settlement and Cushman & Wakefield settlement;

b. Plus pre-judgment interest on the damages awarded at the rate of nine percent from September 16, 2011, until the date of this judgment on September 4, 2015, in the amount of $75,644,154.22;

c. Plus court costs;

d. Plus post-judgment interest on all of the above at the rate of nine percent from the date this judgment is entered until all amounts are paid in full.

2. In addition, the Court orders that, at such time that Defendants pay this judgment: (a) Plaintiff shall transfer to an entity designated by Defendants any interests held by the assignor funds in the reorganized debtor LLV Holdco, LLC that they received in accordance with section II.C.1 of the confirmed Third Amended Chapter 11 Plan of Reorganization Proposed by Lake at Las Vegas Joint Venture, LLC and Its Jointly-Administered Chapter 11 Affiliates and the Official Committee of Creditors Holding Unsecured Claims, dated June 21, 2010 (the "LLV Bankruptcy Plan"); and (b) Plaintiff shall instruct the trustee of the LLV Creditor Trust to transfer to an entity designated by Defendants any beneficial interests in the trust units held by the assignor funds that they received in accordance with section II.C.1 of the LLV Bankruptcy Plan.

3. This judgment finally disposes of all claims and all parties, and is appealable.

4. The Court orders execution to issue for this judgment.

SIGNED on this 4th day of September, 2015.

The Honorable Dale B. Tillery
Judge, 134th Judicial District Court

MOTION OF THE OFFICIAL COMMITTEE OF UNSECURED CREDITORS FOR AN ORDER TRANSFERRING VENUE OF THIS CASE TO THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS

The official committee of unsecured creditors (the "Committee") of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor"), hereby submits this motion (this "Motion") for entry of an order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A (the "Proposed Order"), pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1412 and Rule 1014 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure ("Bankruptcy Rules"), transferring the venue of the above-captioned chapter 11 case to the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. Although a debtor's choice of venue generally warrants deference, this case presents unique facts that make a change in venue appropriate. The Debtor has only one location in the United States—its Dallas, Texas headquarters, which houses the Debtor's management and key personnel. In fact, the Debtor's headquarters sit less than two miles from the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the "Dallas Bankruptcy Court"), making the venue clearly more convenient for the Debtor and its management than Delaware. Additionally, although the Debtor's creditors span the nation, a substantial number of the Debtor's creditors (including several of the top twenty unsecured creditors and Committee members) are concentrated in Texas, or the Midwest more broadly. Likewise, nearly all of the professionals active in this case are concentrated in Texas, Chicago, or Los Angeles. The Dallas Bankruptcy Court is more centrally located and easily accessible to the key parties in this case, along with their advisors. Transferring venue from Wilmington, Delaware to Dallas, Texas would result in greater efficiencies and significant cost savings for the Debtor's estate.

2. Moreover, the Dallas Bankruptcy Court is already intimately familiar with the Debtor's principals and complex organizational structure—the involuntary chapter 11 cases of the Debtor's former affiliates and current Committee members, Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, L.P. (collectively, "Acis") are pending in the Dallas Bankruptcy Court. Specifically, the Dallas Bankruptcy Court has (a) heard multiple days' worth of material testimony from the Debtor's principal owner (James Dondero), the Debtor's minority owner (Mark Okada), the Debtor's general counsel, at least two assistant general counsels, and numerous other employees of the Debtor and other witnesses; and (b) issued at least six published opinions to date, many of which have been affirmed on appeal to the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas (the "Dallas District Court") in subsequent published opinions. The Dallas Bankruptcy Court is still presiding over an adversary proceeding commenced by the Debtor and its affiliates, and the Debtor's appeal of Acis's confirmed chapter 11 plan is still pending before the Fifth Circuit. As evidenced by the published opinions, the Dallas Bankruptcy Court and the Dallas District Court are intimately familiar with the Debtor's business, principal owner, and key executives. For these reasons, the Dallas Bankruptcy Court is uniquely positioned to oversee this chapter 11 case.

3. The Committee respectfully submits that, for the reasons set forth above and discussed more fully below, based on the unique facts of this case, both the interests of justice and convenience of the parties justify an exception to the general deference granted to a debtor's choice of venue and warrant the transfer of venue to the Dallas Bankruptcy Court.

JURISDICTION

4. The Court has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1334 and the Amended Standing Order of Reference from the United States District Court for the District of Delaware, dated February 29, 2012. This matter is a core proceeding within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2), and the Committee confirms its consent, pursuant to rule 9013-1(f) of the Local Rules of Bankruptcy Practice and Procedure of the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware (the "Local Rules"), to the entry of a final order or judgment by the Court in connection with this Motion if it is determined that the Court, absent consent of the parties, cannot enter final orders or judgments in connection herewith consistent with Article III of the United States Constitution.

5. The statutory and other bases for the relief requested herein are 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1412, Bankruptcy Rule 1014, and Local Rule 1014-1.

BACKGROUND

6. On October 16, 2019, the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware (the "Court"). The Committee was appointed by the United States Trustee on October 29, 2019 [Docket No. 65].

I. The Debtor's Connections to Dallas.

7. As noted in the Voluntary Petition [Docket No. 1], the Debtor's principal place of business is 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, Texas 75201, which also serves as the Debtor's international headquarters, and, in fact, its only office in the United States. See Declaration of Frank Waterhouse in Support of First Day Motions [Docket No. 9] (the "First Day Declaration"), ¶ 7. Although it is unclear how many of the Debtor's 76 employees are based in the Debtor's international offices, presumably those employees based in the U.S. live in or around the Debtor's headquarters in Dallas, Texas. Furthermore, all but one of the Debtor's equity holders are also located in Dallas, Texas. See Voluntary Petition [Docket No. 1], at pg. 14. In sum, Dallas, Texas is the epicenter of the Debtor's operations.

II. The Dallas Bankruptcy Court's Familiarity with the Debtor.

8. Prior to the commencement of this chapter 11 case, the Debtor was (and currently remains) actively involved in the involuntary chapter 11 case of Acis, its then-affiliate and current Committee member, captioned In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., Case No. 18-30264 (SGJ) (the "Acis Bankruptcy"). Until 2019, Acis was the "structured credit arm of Highland." In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., Nos. 18-30264 (SGJ), 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 292, at *17 n. 21 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 31, 2019) (the "Acis Confirmation Opinion"), aff'd, 604 B.R. 484 (N.D. Tex. 2019).[2] Acis did not have any of its own employees and, instead, contracted with the Debtor to perform all day-to-day functions, meaning that all Acis corporate representatives and witnesses in the Acis Bankruptcy were employees of the Debtor. Id. at *9. Moreover, there was complete overlap between Acis and the Debtor at the executive level, with the Debtor's CEO James Dondero serving as President of Acis and the Debtor's CFO, and first day declarant, Frank Waterhouse serving as Treasurer.

9. The Acis Bankruptcy commenced on January 30, 2018, when Joshua N. Terry filed involuntary petitions against Acis to commence chapter 7 cases in the Dallas Bankruptcy Court.

[2] The Acis Confirmation Opinion is attached hereto as Exhibit B.

In connection with a hotly-contested trial on the involuntary petitions, the Dallas Bankruptcy Court heard seven days of testimony and argument, entered orders for relief and issued a written opinion, which is attached hereto as Exhibit C (the "Acis Involuntary Opinion"). Testimony included that of the Debtor's co-founder and CEO, James Dondero, the Debtor's co-founder and then-Chief Investment Officer, Mark Okada, the Debtor's General Counsel, Scott Ellington, the Debtor's Controller, David Klos, and the Debtor's Assistant General Counsel, Isaac Leventon.

10. In May 2018, the Acis bankruptcy cases were converted from Chapter 7 to Chapter 11, and a Chapter 11 Trustee was appointed "due to what the bankruptcy court perceived to be massive conflicts of interest with regard to the Debtors' management." See Acis Confirmation Op. at *15.

11. The Debtor and its affiliates were, and remain, exceptionally active throughout the Acis Bankruptcy, objecting to virtually every action proposed by the Chapter 11 Trustee throughout the case. See In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., 603 B.R. 300, 302 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2019). As a result, the Dallas Bankruptcy Court was forced to conduct many evidentiary hearings, during which the Debtor's executives and employees were often called to testify. Overall, between the Acis Bankruptcy and related adversary proceedings, the Dallas Bankruptcy Court has to date reviewed approximately 700 exhibits, heard more than thirty days of testimony and oral argument, and issued six opinions. The Dallas District Court has also ruled on three appeals related to the Acis Bankruptcy, all of which were filed by the Debtor and/or its affiliates. The Debtor's appeal of the Acis confirmation order is now pending before the Fifth Circuit.[3]

12. The Dallas Bankruptcy Court is also currently adjudicating a number of fraudulent transfer causes of action that Acis has brought against the Debtor and certain of its non-debtor

[3] See generally Debtor's Application for an Order Authorizing the Retention and Employment of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP as Special Texas Counsel Nunc Pro Tunc to the Petition Date [Docket No. 69] and affiliates in a consolidated adversary case (the "Acis Adversary Proceeding"). Distilled to its essence, the Acis Adversary Proceeding concerns actions taken by the Debtor and its affiliates to denude the Acis debtors' estates of their value and frustrate an imminent, substantial judgment against Acis. See Acis Capital Mgmt., GP, LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P. (In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P.), 600 B.R. 541, 549 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2019) (the "Acis Arbitration Opinion").[4]

13. In sum, the Dallas Bankruptcy Court and the Dallas District Court are already intimately familiar with the Debtor's complex structure, its management, and key personnel, and are well-versed in the contentious relationship between the Debtor and several of its largest creditors, including members of the Committee. Accordingly, the Dallas Bankruptcy Court is uniquely situated to oversee this chapter 11 case.

RELIEF REQUESTED

14. By this Motion, the Committee requests entry of the Proposed Order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A, transferring the venue of this chapter 11 case to the Dallas Bankruptcy Court.

BASIS FOR RELIEF

III. The Dallas Bankruptcy Court is an Appropriate Venue Under 28 U.S.C. § 1408.

15. Section 1408 of title 28 of the United States Code provides that bankruptcy cases may be commenced in the district court for the district "in which the domicile, residence, principal place of business in the United States, or principal assets in the United States" of the debtor is located or the district "in which there is a pending case under title 11 concerning such person's affiliate."

Debtor's Application for an Order Authorizing the Retention and Employment of Lynn Pinker Cox & Hurst LLP as Special Texas Litigation Counsel Nunc Pro Tunc to the Petition Date [Docket No. 70] (describing the Debtor's ongoing litigation and involvement with the Acis Bankruptcy).

16. The Debtor's headquarters, and indeed its only office in the United States, is located in Dallas, Texas. Moreover, had this chapter 11 case commenced mere months ago, the Acis Bankruptcy would be a "pending case under title 11 concerning" the Debtor's affiliate.[5] The Dallas Bankruptcy Court easily satisfies the statutory venue requirements under 28 U.S.C. § 1408.

IV. The Court Should Exercise its Discretion to Transfer Venue to the Dallas Bankruptcy Court.

17. It is within a court's discretion to transfer a case to another venue if it is "in the interest of justice or for the convenience of the parties." 28 U.S.C. § 1412. Courts have interpreted this statutory provision to create two distinct bases upon which transfer of venue may be granted: interest of justice or convenience of the parties. See In re Qualtec Inc., No. 11-12572 (KJC), 2012 WL 527669, at *6 (Bankr. D. Del. Feb. 16, 2012). Movants for transfer of venue have the burden of showing that a transfer is warranted based on the preponderance of the evidence.[6] Id. at *5.

A. Transferring Venue to the Dallas Bankruptcy Court Would Serve the Convenience of the Parties.

18. In determining whether a venue transfer would serve the convenience of the parties, courts generally examine the following six factors: "(a) proximity of the creditors of every kind to the court; (b) proximity of the debtor; (c) proximity of the witnesses who are necessary to the administration of the estate; (d) the location of the debtor's assets; (e) the economic administration of the estate; and (f) the necessity for ancillary administration in the event of liquidation." In re

[5] The Debtor ceased to be an affiliate of Acis following confirmation of the Acis plan of reorganization in January 2019, when equity in reorganized Acis was distributed to Mr. Terry in exchange for a reduction of his allowed claim.

[6] To meet its burden herein, the Committee is relying on the record of this case, including the First Day Declaration, and the established record of the Acis Bankruptcy. The Committee therefore does not anticipate there being any need to hold an evidentiary hearing on this Motion.

Rests. Acquisition I, LLC, No. 15-12406 (KG), 2016 WL 855089, at *2 (Bankr. D. Del. Mar. 4, 2016) (quoting Commonwealth of Puerto Rico v. Commonwealth Oil Refining Co. (In re Commonwealth Oil Refining Co.), 596 F.2d 1239, 1247 (5th Cir. 1979)). Under this analysis, the factor given the most weight is the economic and efficient administration of the estate. Id.

1. Proximity of Creditors of Every Kind to the Court.

19. Of the Debtor's twenty largest unsecured creditors, at least seven[7] are listed as having Texas addresses: Acis, Joshua and Jennifer Terry, McKool Smith, P.C., Foley Gardere, DLA Piper LLP (US), Lackey Hershman LLP, and Andrews Kurth LLP. See Voluntary Petition [Docket No. 1]. Additionally, of the total known claims at this juncture, it appears that a significant number of the Debtor's creditors are located in Texas, and the rest of the creditors appear to be scattered across the United States. No known creditors appear to be based in Delaware. See id.

20. Courts may also focus on the location of the debtor's and creditors' professionals in deciding whether to transfer venue. See In re Caesars Entm't Operating Co., Inc., No. 15-10047 (KG), 2015 WL 492529, at *6 (Bankr. D. Del. Feb. 2, 2015). The Committee's proposed counsel is primarily located in Chicago, Illinois, but also maintains an office in Dallas, Texas (where its litigation team for this case is based). If this case were to proceed before this Court, the Committee would have to retain Delaware co-counsel.[8] Additionally, several of the Debtor's largest creditors are separately represented by counsel based in the Midwest: the Acis is represented by the Rogge Dunne Group and Winstead PC in Dallas [Docket No. 81], the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund is represented by Jenner & Block LLP primarily out of its Chicago office

[7] Additionally, although listed with a North Carolina address, CLO Holdco, Ltd. is an affiliate of and controlled by the Debtor, whose principal place of business is in the Northern District of Texas. The Debtor also lists Reid Collins & Tsai's New York office, despite the fact that the firm is a Texas limited liability partnership based in Texas.

[8] Under Local Rule 9010-1(d), the Committee has until November 27, 2019, to obtain Delaware co-counsel, if necessary.

[Docket Nos. 1, 36], and USB Securities LLC and UBS AG London Branch is represented by Latham & Watkins LLP, which has an office in Houston [Docket No. 85].

21. Considering the proximity of both the Debtor's creditors and their professionals to the Dallas Bankruptcy Court, this factor should weigh in favor of transfer. See In re Rehoboth Hosp., LP, No. 11-12798 (KG), 2011 WL 5024267, at *3 (Bankr. D. Del. Oct. 19, 2011) (concluding that, on balance, this factor favored transfer to Texas when the overwhelming majority of creditors were located in Texas).

2. Proximity of the Debtor to the Court.

22. Courts have noted that this inquiry should focus primarily on the parties that must appear in court. See Caesars Entm't Operating Co., Inc., 2015 WL 495259, at *6. The Debtor's headquarters, and only office located in the United States, is in Dallas, Texas. See First Day Decl., at ¶ 7. As a result, it is likely that any of the Debtor's personnel who would have to appear in court are located in Dallas, Texas. The Debtor has no connection to Delaware other than the fact that it was formed there.

23. The Committee concedes that Debtor's counsel maintains an office in Delaware but does not have an office in Dallas. That said, Debtor's counsel represents itself as having a "national presence," including in the Fifth Circuit,[9] and its lead lawyers on this matter are based in Los Angeles. The Debtor's proposed financial advisor team is also predominantly based in Los Angeles with several members located in Chicago. No proposed advisor from Development Specialists, Inc. is located on the East Coast, let alone in Delaware. See Motion of the Debtor Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a) and 363(b) to Employ and Retain Development Specialists, Inc. to Provide a Chief Restructuring Officer, Additional Personnel, and Financial Advisory and Restructuring-Related Services, Nunc Pro Tunc as of the Petition Date [Docket No. 75], Ex. A. Accordingly, the Committee respectfully submits that this factor weighs in favor of transferring venue to the Dallas Bankruptcy Court.

3. Proximity of the Witnesses Necessary to the Administration of the Estate.

24. The Committee anticipates that the witnesses likely to be necessary in this chapter 11 case are the Debtor's management, who are all located in Dallas, Texas, or the Debtor's financial advisors, who are all located in either Chicago, Illinois, or Los Angeles, California. Dallas, Texas, is significantly closer to any potential witness than Wilmington, Delaware. Thus, the Committee respectfully submits that this factor also weighs in favor of transferring venue to the Dallas Bankruptcy Court.

4. Location of the Assets.

25. The location of the Debtor's assets is not as important as other factors where "the ultimate goal is rehabilitation rather than liquidation." See In re Caesars Entm't Operating Co., Inc., 2015 WL 495259, at *6 (quoting In re Enron Corp., 274 B.R. 327, 347 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2002)). Although the Committee believes that the Debtor's U.S. assets would be located at the Debtor's headquarters in Dallas, Texas, the Committee does not believe this factor important to the Court's decision.

5. Economic Administration of the Estate.

26. As noted above, the most important factor is the economic and efficient administration of the Debtor's estate. Id. The Committee does not dispute the ability of this Court to administer this chapter 11 case in a just and efficient manner. That said, there are many factors that make the Dallas Bankruptcy Court the more economical venue. As discussed in more detail below as part of the "interests of justice" analysis: (1) there is a higher concentration of creditors and creditors' counsel in Texas and the Midwest than elsewhere in the country; (2) the Debtor and all of its U.S. personnel are in Dallas, Texas; (3) Dallas, Texas is more centrally located in the United States than Wilmington, Delaware and arguably easier and cheaper for parties to travel to; (4) most creditors would need to obtain Delaware co-counsel if venue remains before this Court; and (5) the Dallas Bankruptcy Court and the Dallas District Court has already expended great time and effort familiarizing itself with the Debtor, the Debtor's operations, and the disputes between the Debtor and some of its largest creditors. For these reasons and the reasons set forth below in Section II.B, this factor weighs heavily in favor of transferring venue to the Dallas Bankruptcy Court. See In re Qualteq, Inc. 2012 WL 527669, at *6 (noting that same considerations for this factor arise in applying the "interest of justice" prong).

6. Necessity for Ancillary Administration if Liquidation Should Result.

27. "Most cases do not consider liquidation because it is illogical to focus on liquidation contingencies when the goal of the bankruptcy is reorganization." In re Dunmore Homes, Inc., 380 B.R. 663, 672 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2008). However, should this case be converted to a liquidation, the Debtor's personal property would be predominantly located in Dallas, Texas. As a result, this factor also weighs in favor of transfer.

B. Interests of Justice.

28. When determining whether a transfer would serve the interests of justice, courts consider whether such transfer "would promote the efficient administration of the estate, judicial economy, timeliness, and fairness." Caesars Entm't Operating Co., Inc., 2015 WL 495259, at *7 (quotations omitted). The interests of justice standard is a "broad and flexible standard which must be applied on a case-by-case basis." In re Safety-Kleen Corp., Adv. Proc. No. 00-1984, 2001 Bankr. LEXIS 1296, at *6 (Bankr. D. Del. Aug. 27, 2001) (citing Gulf States Expl. Co. v. Manville Forest Prods. Corp. (In re Manville Forest Prods. Corp.), 896 F.2d 1384, 1391 (2d Cir. 1990)).

1. Judicial Economy.

29. Judicial economy would be served by transferring this case to the Dallas Bankruptcy Court. At the time of this filing, this Court has only held one hearing, granting interim relief for a handful of routine "first day" motions. In contrast, the Dallas Bankruptcy Court has heard at least 30 days of testimony, including that of the Debtor's executives, and conducted countless hearings in the Acis Bankruptcy. With the exception of the Debtor's proposed chief restructuring officer and Mr. Waterhouse, the Dallas Bankruptcy Court is familiar with nearly all of the Debtor's senior management. As summarized above, the Dallas Bankruptcy Court and Dallas District Court have already devoted multiple days of court time to the Debtor.

30. Additionally, Acis's claim against the Debtor (which is listed on the list of twenty largest unsecured creditors) and the Debtor's proof of claim and administrative claim against Acis (which is technically an asset of the Debtor's estate) are currently pending in the Dallas Bankruptcy Court. Judicial economy would best be served by utilizing the time and resources already extended by the Dallas Bankruptcy Court in connection with these claims. This factor weighs overwhelmingly in favor of transfer. Indeed, it is hard to imagine a case where judicial economy would be better served by a transfer of venue under 28 U.S.C. § 1412.

31. Courts in this district have historically placed a particular emphasis "on the "learning curve" that typically militates against a transfer. See In re Rests. Acquisition I, LLC, No. 15-12406 (KG), 2016 WL 855089, at *5 (Bankr. D. Del. Mar. 4, 2016). This case is unique in that the "learning curve" that typically militates against a transfer in the interests-of-justice basis is actually inverted. That is, it is not the proposed transferee court that will have a "learning curve," but rather it is this Court that would. Given that this Court has only considered first day relief, and on an interim basis, while the Dallas Bankruptcy Court and Dallas District Court both have intimate familiarity with the parties and their businesses, transferring the venue would be in furtherance of judicial economy.

2. Economic and Efficient Administration of the Bankruptcy Estate.

32. As previously noted, there are economic efficiencies available in Dallas, Texas that are not available in Wilmington, Delaware. Venue in Dallas would allow the Debtor's employees to easily attend hearings in this case and thus eliminate the need for air travel for most witnesses. The Debtor's headquarters are located in The Crescent in Dallas, Texas, approximately 1.2 miles from the Dallas Bankruptcy Court. By contrast, this Court is located approximately 1,437 miles from the Debtor's headquarters. Travel to this Court from the Debtor's headquarters requires, at a minimum, a 30-minute car ride to Dallas/Fort Worth International Airport, approximately three hours flying time to Philadelphia International Airport, and then a 30-minute car ride to Wilmington, Delaware. The foregoing does not take into account recommended early arrival times at airports for check-in, flight delays, traffic, or the need for overnight stays in Wilmington. If this case remains in Delaware, critical management personnel will be required to spend extended periods away from their offices when they should be focused on maximizing value for all creditors.

33. Additionally, as the Debtor's professionals and proposed CRO are primarily located in Los Angeles, venue in Dallas would eliminate hours of travel time and the administrative expense associated with the same. Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, consistently the third-busiest airport in the country (behind Chicago O'Hare and Atlanta Hartsfield-Jackson), offers nearly 1,800 flights per day. American Airlines alone offers approximately 14 non-stop flights per day from LAX to DFW. According to FlightSphere.com, there are approximately 20 total flights per day from LAX to DFW and 7 flights per day from DAL to LAX. By contrast, according to FlightSphere.com, there are approximately 10 flights per day from DFW to Philadelphia and approximately 8 flights per day from DAL to Philadelphia. The flight from LAX to DFW is approximately 3 hours, whereas the flight from LAX to Philadelphia is approximately 6 hours. See In re Rehoboth Hosp., LP, No. 11-1279 (KG), 2011 Bankr. LEXIS 3992, at *15 (Bankr. D. Del. October 19, 2011) (transferring venue of a single asset real estate case from Delaware to Texas because "the estate may incur significant travel costs to obtain the testimony of witnesses that are located in Texas").

34. Additionally, Rule 45 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, incorporated by Bankruptcy Rule 9016, mandates that contested non-party discovery disputes (potentially like those related to the Debtor's approximately 2,000 non-debtor affiliates) be heard in the place of compliance, which would most likely be in the Northern District of Texas. The Committee is already aware of the Debtor's history of contesting discovery. See, e.g., Hamilton Partners, L.P. v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., CV 6547-VCN, 2016 WL 61223, at *1 (Del. Ch. Feb. 2, 2016). It is therefore likely that the Dallas District Court and Dallas Bankruptcy Court will need to hear and resolve multiple discovery disputes. In light of that inevitability, it would be sensible to transfer this case so that related disputes aren't being heard in multiple venues.

35. There is no doubt that transferring venue to Dallas would promote the economic and efficient administration of this chapter 11 case. This factor weighs in favor of transfer.

3. Timeliness.

36. As of the date of this Motion, this case has only been pending for 16 days. The Committee is also seeking to have this Motion heard on an expedited basis, as set forth in the motion to shorten notice filed concurrently herewith. Cf. In re Jones, 39 B.R. 1019, 1020 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1984) ("[t]he debtor's motion to change venue is untimely given the fact that this case was commenced over one and one-half years ago"). The Court has only considered the Debtor's request for first day relief on an interim basis. The next hearing is not scheduled until November 19, 2019. The Motion is timely and this factor weighs in favor of transfer.

4. Fairness.

37. Transferring this chapter 11 case to a venue where employees, creditors, and numerous other parties-in-interest may more easily participate in the restructuring process would be manifestly fair. To the extent the Debtor chose this forum in order to distance itself from largely unfavorable findings, fairness dictates that this case should be transferred.

* * * * *

38. For the foregoing reasons, it is both in the interest of justice and for the convenience of the parties that this chapter 11 case be transferred to the Dallas Bankruptcy Court. The majority of the parties and professionals involved in this chapter 11 cases are more centrally located to Dallas, Texas than Wilmington, Delaware, which would create significant costs savings to the Debtor's estate compared to keeping the case in Delaware. Moreover, the Dallas Bankruptcy Court and Dallas District Court are both well-versed in the facts and issues that will undoubtedly need to be addressed in this chapter 11 case. As such, the Committee respectfully requests that this Court transfer venue of this case to the Dallas Bankruptcy Court.

NOTICE

39. Notice of this Motion will be provided to (i) the Debtor, (ii) the Office of the United States Trustee for the District of Delaware, and (iii) any party that has requested notice pursuant to Local Rule 2002-1 as of the date of this Motion. In light of the nature of the relief requested herein, the Committee submits that no other or further notice is necessary.

WHEREFORE, the Committee respectfully requests that the Court enter the Proposed Order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A, granting the relief requested herein and such other and any further relief as the Court may deem just and proper.

Objection Deadline: November 12, 2019 at 4:00 p.m. (Eastern time)
Hearing Date: November 19, 2019 at 12:00 p.m. (Eastern time)

LIMITED OBJECTION TO THE DEBTOR'S: (I) APPLICATION FOR AN ORDER AUTHORIZING THE RETENTION AND EMPLOYMENT OF FOLEY GARDERE, FOLEY & LARDNER LLP AS SPECIAL TEXAS COUNSEL, NUNC PRO TUNC TO THE PETITION DATE; AND (II) APPLICATION FOR AN ORDER AUTHORIZING THE RETENTION AND EMPLOYMENT OF LYNN PINKER COX & HURST LLP AS SPECIAL TEXAS LITIGATION COUNSEL, NUNC PRO TUNC TO THE PETITION DATE

Acis Capital Management, L.P. ("Acis LP") and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC (collectively "Acis"), creditors and parties-in-interest, object on a limited basis to the Debtor's: (i) Application for an Order Authorizing the Retention and Employment of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP as Special Texas Counsel, Nunc Pro Tunc to the Petition Date [Docket No. 69] (the "Foley Application"); and (ii) Application for an Order Authorizing the Retention and Employment of Lynn Pinker Cox & Hurst LLP as Special Texas Litigation Counsel, Nunc Pro Tunc to the Petition Date [Docket No. 70] (the "Lynn Pinker Application" and together with the Foley Application, the "Applications").

Statement of Facts

1. On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code.

[1] The Debtor's last four digits of its taxpayer identification number are (6725). The headquarters and service address for the above-captioned Debtor is 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, TX 75201.

2. On October 29, 2019, the Debtor filed the Foley Application, seeking to employ the law firm of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP ("Foley") as special Texas litigation counsel pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §327(e).

3. Also on October 29, 2019, the Debtor filed the Lynn Pinker Application, seeking to employ the law firm of Lynn Pinker Cox & Hurst LLP ("Lynn Pinker") as special Texas litigation counsel pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 327(e).

4. Foley and Lynn Pinker are both being hired to represent the Debtor in connection with Acis' post-confirmation bankruptcy case (the "Acis Bankruptcy Case"),[2] two appeals from the Acis Bankruptcy Case (both initiated by the Debtor as an appellant)[3] and an adversary proceeding pending in the Acis Bankruptcy Case.[4]

Objection

A. The Applications Lack Important Disclosures.

5. The Applications disclose that Foley and Lynn Pinker represent and have performed work in the Acis Bankruptcy Case for clients related to the Debtor – clients they identify as Neutra and the Cayman Defendants. The Foley Application also admits that, before the Petition Date, Foley billed the Debtor for work performed for Neutra and the Cayman Defendants.[5] There is no disclosure from Lynn Pinker on this point, but presumably its payment arrangements were similar because Lynn Pinker represents many, if not all, of the same clients as

[4] Adversary No. 18-03078 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas.

[5] See ¶ 3 of Declaration of Holland O'Neil attached as Exhibit A to the Foley Application [Docket No. 69-2] ("The Firm billed Highland for all services as to the related other parties since there was significant overlap among legal issues for Highland, Neutra and the Cayman Defendants.").

Foley in the Acis Bankruptcy Case. While the Applications disclose the amounts paid by the Debtor to each of Foley and Lynn Pinker during the year prior to the Petition Date, the Applications do not disclose the proportionate amounts billed to and paid by the Debtor for work performed for Neutra and the Cayman Defendants. Acis reserves its rights to compel disclosure of this information including under Fed. R. Bankr. P. 2017(a).[6]

6. This structure creates significant fraudulent transfer concerns and highlights the multifarious nature of the Debtor's operations including its pervasive use of offshore shadow companies controlled by James Dondero. As both District Judge Sidney Fitzwater and Bankruptcy Judge Stacey Jernigan found in published opinions arising from the Acis Bankruptcy Case, Neutra and the Cayman Defendants are actually offshore companies that were created around the time Joshua Terry obtained a judgment against Acis in order receive transfers of Acis' assets and Acis' equity. Neutra, Ltd. v. Terry (In re Acis Cap. Mgmt. L.P.), 604 B.R. 484, 501-02 (N.D. Tex. 2019); In re Acis Cap. Mgmt. L.P., 584 B.R. 115, 127-31 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018). Even more, the business justification proffered by the Debtor for these transfers from Acis was found to be "a seemingly manufactured narrative to justify prior actions" and that "the evidence established overwhelmingly that there is a substantial likelihood that the transfers were part of an intentional scheme to keep assets away from [Terry]." Neutra, 604 B.R. at 502 *(*citing In re Acis Cap. Mgmt. L.P., 2019 Bankr. Lexis 292 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. January 31, 2019)). It was clear to everyone in the Acis Bankruptcy Case that Neutra and the Cayman Defendants were simply fronts for Dondero's machinations.

[6] Fed. R. Bankr. P. 2017(a) provides: "Payment or Transfer to Attorney Before Order for Relief. On motion by any party in interest or on the court's own initiative, the court after notice and a hearing may determine whether any payment of money or any transfer of property by the debtor, made directly or indirectly and in contemplation of the filing of a petition under the Code by or against the debtor or before entry of the order for relief in an involuntary case, to an attorney for services rendered or to be rendered is excessive."

7. The Debtor's Schedules and Statement of Financial Affairs will not be filed by the time parties must object to the Foley Application and Lynn Pinker Application, or by the time the Court will hold a hearing on the Applications.[7] Thus, the scope of these payments and liabilities (or other connections) will not be disclosed until well after the engagement of Foley and Lynn Pinker.

8. The Applications also do not disclose whether the Debtor intends to continue to be billed and pay Foley and Lynn Pinker for work performed for Neutra and the Cayman Defendants once Foley and Lynn Pinker are engaged by the Debtor pursuant to the Applications. If this is the Debtor's intent, it should be specifically disclosed and approval of such employment should be requested in accordance with the Bankruptcy Code and the applicable rules. For example, Bankruptcy Rule 2017(b) specifically requires disclosure of payments made by a debtor to any attorney for services in any way related to the case. Fed. R. Bankr. P. 2017(b).[8] In any event, if the Debtor does intend to pay Neutra and the Cayman Defendants' legal expenses, Acis would oppose this relief. The fact that Neutra and the Cayman Defendants are sham entities created only to receive fraudulent transfers and, thus, have no substance does not change, and in fact compels, this result.[9]

[7] The Debtor has requested an additional 30-day extension of time to file its Schedules and Statement of Financial Affairs [Docket No. 4]. If granted, this would make such disclosures due December 13, 2019.

[8] For example, Fed R. Bankr. P. 2017(b) provides: "Payment or Transfer to Attorney After Order for Relief. On motion by the debtor, the United States trustee, or on the court's own initiative, the court after notice and a hearing may determine whether any payment of money or any transfer of property, or any agreement therefor, by the debtor to an attorney after entry of an order for relief in a case under the Code is excessive, whether the payment or transfer is made or is to be made directly or indirectly, if the payment, transfer, or agreement therefor is for services in any way related to the case."

[9] To be clear, Neutra and the Cayman Defendants' are entitled to hire counsel to represent them and Dondero or some other non-debtor entity that he controls are certainly welcome to pay the litigation costs. But this is not a cost the Debtor should bear.

9. Further, the Foley engagement letter[10] discloses a conflict with Foley's representation of HRA Holdings, LLC that required the consent of the parties in order for Foley to proceed with its initial representation of the Debtor. This conflict, or potential conflict, is not disclosed or discussed anywhere in the Foley Application or the various disclosure affidavits that accompany it. Thus, the nature of the conflict is unclear, and it is unknown how it might limit Foley's representation of the Debtor.

10. The Debtor did not attach Lynn Pinker's engagement letter to the Lynn Pinker Application, so this Court and the creditors in this case do not know the full terms of the Lynn Pinker engagement. However, Acis is aware of various connections between Lynn Pinker and the Debtor and its related parties that are not disclosed or are only partially disclosed in the Lynn Pinker Application. For example, Lynn Pinker hired the Debtor's General Counsel, Scott Ellington, as an expert witness in a case tried in Dallas just last year.[11] It is unclear if this is a regular occurrence or what compensation Mr. Ellington receives for providing these services to Lynn Pinker and its clients.

11. Further, in a footnote the Lynn Pinker Application discloses that it represents the Charitable Donor Advised Fund, L.P. (the "DAF") in "unrelated" litigation. However, this is only the tip of the iceberg in describing this allegedly "unrelated" litigation.

12. On August 6, 2019, Lynn Pinker, at that time representing NexPoint Strategic Opportunities Fund, Highland Global Allocation Fund and Highland Income Fund (collectively, the "Highland Retail Funds"),[12] sent nearly identical letters to Moody's Investor Services and [10] Attached as Exhibit B to the Foley Application [Docket No. 69-3].

[11] See attached Exhibit A found at https://www.pettitfirm.com/legacytexas. Highlighting has been added to some exhibits.

[12] The Highland Retail Funds are affiliates of, or are managed by affiliates of, the Debtor and Dondero. See attached Exhibits B, C and D found at https://www.highlandcapital.com/nexpoint-strategic-opportunities-fund-announces-the-regular-monthly-dividend-2/ (NexPoint Strategic Opportunities Fund); https://www.highlandfunds.com/global-

S&P Global.[13] In essence, these letters request a ratings downgrade or withdrawal on certain Acis CLO securities which the Highland Retail Funds purport to own. Obviously, it is highly unusual for an investor to request a ratings downgrade for its own investment. Curiously, when Lynn Pinker filed the litigation it threatened in these letters, Lynn Pinker no longer represented the Highland Retail Funds, but now represented the DAF.[14]

13. In its current form, the DAF litigation seeks: (i) damages from US Bank, as indenture trustee for various Acis CLOs, for failing to take what the DAF believes was appropriate action in the Acis Bankruptcy Case and otherwise failing to perform its obligations as indenture trustee; and (ii) damages from Moody's for refusing to downgrade the Acis CLO securities or withdraw the ratings altogether as demanded in Lynn Pinker's letters.[15] A downgrade or ratings withdrawal in the Acis CLO securities or the resignation of US Bank as indenture trustee may precipitate liquidation of the Acis CLOs, which would violate the plan injunction entered as part of Acis's bankruptcy plan since it was clearly procured by the Debtor and its affiliates (and their proposed counsel).[16] None of this tangled web is disclosed in the Lynn Pinker Application, rather it is simply written off in a footnote as "unrelated."

allocation-fund/ (Highland Global Allocation Fund); https://www.highlandfunds.com/income-fund/ (Highland Income Fund).

[13] Copies of these letters are attached hereto as Exhibits E and F. Other letters were later sent to Moody's and S&P, but Acis does not have copies of these later letters.

[14] The Highland Retail Funds are publicly traded closed end funds. Further, one of the Highland Retail Funds, Highland Global Allocation Fund, and its advisors are already being sued by an investor for self-dealing and conflicts of interest with other funds affiliated with the Debtor. See Lanotte v. Highland Capital Mgt. Fund Adv., L.P., et al., Case No. 18-cv-02360, in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas. Thus, the Highland Retail Funds may have realized that publicly acknowledging that they inexplicably requested a ratings downgrade or withdrawal for their own investment is not a helpful fact in this or future litigation, and Dondero and Lynn Pinker then simply donned another hat to file the lawsuit.

[16] In re Acis Cap. Mgmt., L.P., 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 292 * 30-32 (Bankr. N.D. Tex., Jan. 31, 2019) (confirmation opinion from Acis Bankruptcy Case); In re Acis Cap. Mgmt., L.P., 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 294 * 59-62 (Bankr. N.D. Tex., Jan. 31, 2019) (confirmation order and confirmed plan from Acis Bankruptcy Case). Acis reserves all rights in this regard and obviously has been monitoring the situation.

B. Acis Reserves the Right to Seek Disqualification and Disgorgement of Foley and Lynn Pinker Based on Conflict Of Interest Allegations the Debtor Made and is Appealing in the Acis Bankruptcy Case.

14. In the Acis Bankruptcy Case, the Debtor has alleged an actual conflict of interest prohibiting employment of special counsel for Acis' Chapter 11 trustee (Winstead) and requiring disgorgement of all fees paid to counsel. The Debtor's objection to counsel's employment and payment has been rejected and overruled multiple times. The issue is currently being appealed in the Northern District of Texas, and this is one of the matters for which Foley and Lynn Pinker are to be engaged.

15. The alleged conflict is based on Winstead's engagement as special counsel by the Chapter 11 trustee for Acis (then a debtor in the Acis Bankruptcy Case) when Winstead represented a creditor of Acis (Josh Terry) and Winstead was retained to be adverse to another creditor of Acis (the Debtor).[17] Per the Debtor's argument, engagement as counsel to be adverse to a creditor while concurrently representing a different creditor creates a per se actual conflict of interest under 11 U.S.C. § 327(c).[18] Indisputably, Foley represents CLO Holdco, Ltd., which is one of the Debtor's largest creditors.[19] And in fact, Foley is itself one of the Debtor's ten largest creditors, and Lynn Pinker is likewise a significant creditor of the Debtor.[20] Foley and Lynn Pinker will also be engaged as special counsel to litigate with (and be adverse to) Acis and Mr.

[17] See ¶ 24 and 25 of Objection of Highland Capital Management, L.P. to Supplemental Application Regarding the Scope of Winstead PC's Retention as Special Counsel to the Chapter 11 Trustee filed in the Acis Bankruptcy Case and attached hereto as Exhibit H.

[18] Although neither the Foley Application nor the Lynn Pinker Application reference § 327(c), that section is clearly applicable to their retention. As outlined below, the Foley and Lynn Pinker attorneys that will be engaged by the Debtor are employed by creditors of the Debtor and represent at least one known creditor of the Debtor.

[19] See Notice of Appearance filed by Foley in the Acis Bankruptcy Case and attached hereto as Exhibit I; see also Foley engagement letter attached as Exhibit B to the Foley Application [Docket No. 69-3].

[20] See Docket No. 1 disclosing that Foley is owed $1,398,432.44 by the Debtor. Although it is not listed on the top 20 creditor list, according to its Rule 2016 statement Lynn Pinker is owed $319,419.58 by the Debtor. See Docket No. 70-4.

Terry, also creditors of the Debtor. Thus, Foley and Lynn Pinker now have the exact "conflict" that they alleged disqualified Winstead and required disgorgement from Winstead in the Acis Bankruptcy Case.

16. All rights are reserved to raise this as an issue for disqualification and disgorgement of fees by Foley and Lynn Pinker if the Debtor prevails on its argument on appeal.[21]

[21] To be clear, Acis believes this argument and related appeal are frivolous, and all rights are reserved to seek sanctions against the Debtor, Foley and Lynn Pinker in the appropriate forum.

WHEREFORE, Acis respectfully (i) requests Foley and Lynn Pinker provide full and complete disclosure of all connections with the Debtor as required under the Bankruptcy Code, Bankruptcy Rules and Local Rules in order to assess their employment Applications; (ii) objects to the employment of Foley and Lynn Pinker to the extent that the Debtor intends to be responsible for fees and expenses incurred by other Foley and Lynn Pinker clients, including the Cayman Defendants and Neutra; (iii) reserves all rights to seek disqualification and disgorgement of fees from Foley and Lynn Pinker based on conflicts of interest that may become apparent as this case moves forward; and (iv) requests such other further relief as is just and proper.

Appendix Exhibit 8

IN THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT

FOR THE DISTRICT OF DELAWARE

In re:	)	Chapter 11
HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P.,[1]	)	Case No. 19-12239 (CSS)
Debtor.	)	Related to Docket No. 86

OBJECTION OF THE DEBTOR TO MOTION OF OFFICIAL COMMITTEE OF UNSECURED CREDITORS TO TRANSFER VENUE OF THIS CASE TO THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS

The above-captioned debtor and debtor in possession (the "Debtor") hereby objects to the motion to transfer venue of this case [Docket No. 86] (the "Motion to Transfer") to the Northern District of Texas (the "Texas Bankruptcy Court"), filed by the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the "Committee").

In support of this objection, the Debtor respectfully states as follows:

Preliminary Statement

1. The Debtor owns and manages a sophisticated financial services and money management business that has assets and interests all over the world. The amounts at stake in this case involve hundreds of millions of dollars in terms of asset values and asserted liabilities. The Debtor's creditors are sophisticated parties who are either represented by highly qualified counsel or are attorneys themselves. The top 20 unsecured creditors in this case consist almost entirely of litigation claimants and law firms. There are no "mom and pop" creditors who would be prejudiced if they were not provided with ready access to a local bankruptcy court.

2. Further, the Texas Bankruptcy Court has no special familiarity with the Debtor or its current management. The Debtor's restructuring efforts are now led by Bradley Sharp as Chief Restructuring Officer (the "CRO") who has had no prior involvement with either Acis (as defined below) or the Texas Bankruptcy Court with respect to this matter. The Texas Bankruptcy Court also knows little about the Debtor's business or financial affairs, aside from its prior relationship with Acis. The Debtor is no longer affiliated with Acis and, in fact, is directly adverse to Acis, which now asserts various contested litigation claims against the Debtor. Hence, the Committee's opening position that this case should be transferred to the Texas Bankruptcy Court is little more than a litigation ploy. The Committee has decided, based on prior rulings of the Texas Bankruptcy Court in the Acis cases, that such forum would be more advantageous from a litigation perspective vis-à-vis the Debtor. That is not an appropriate basis to transfer venue.

3. The fact that the Debtor is headquartered in Dallas, Texas also does not mean that this case should be transferred there. The Debtor's assets, interests, and contractual entanglements are dispersed throughout this country and the world. As an example, the Debtor has assets under management, including its own proprietary assets and those of its clients, through various related parties in Asia, South America, and Europe. The Debtor has already brought a motion in this case to appoint a foreign representative in order to manage its various foreign interests [Docket No. 68], including those in pending proceedings in Bermuda and the Cayman Islands. The Debtor's principal assets in the United States consist of custodial and non-custodial interests in investments located all over the country. The Debtor's primary brokerage accounts that hold the bulk of the Debtor's liquid and illiquid securities are located in New York City with Jefferies, LLC ("Jefferies"). The Debtor is also the subject of two pending lawsuits in the Delaware Chancery Court, one of which involves claims brought by the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund (the "Redeemer Committee"), a member of the Committee. Another member of the Committee, UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG London Branch ("UBS"), has longstanding litigation pending against the Debtor in New York state court (not Texas). Predictably, the Debtor's professionals and those of its creditors are located around the country. Given the amounts at stake in this case and the complexity of the Debtor's assets and liabilities, venue should not be determined by how many miles the Debtor's employees or professionals or those of its creditors are located from the courthouse. All parties reside at various commercial centers around this country and can easily travel wherever necessary in order to handle the important matters in this case.

4. Further, the pendency of the involuntary bankruptcy cases of Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLP (together, "Acis") in Dallas, Texas does not make the Texas Bankruptcy Court a preferable forum for this case. Acis's involuntary cases were commenced by Joshua Terry ("Terry"), who now owns and manages Acis and represents that entity on the Committee. Terry assumed ownership of Acis by virtue of a contested plan of reorganization that was confirmed by the Texas Bankruptcy Court and which is now the subject of a pending appeal.[2] The interests of Acis are directly adverse to those of this estate.[3] The Debtor and Acis have been, and continue to be, involved in highly contentious litigation, including matters that are the subject of multiple appeals from decisions of the Texas Bankruptcy Court and pending fraudulent transfer claims brought by Acis against the Debtor in the Texas Bankruptcy Court. The Debtor and Acis assert various substantial disputed and unliquidated claims against each other. Further, the Debtor's current business is unrelated to Acis, which is focused on managing certain collateralized loan obligations (or CLOs) in which the Debtor no longer has any direct interest. The Committee also does not establish how the prior testimony of the Debtor's representatives in the Acis bankruptcy is relevant to the instant chapter 11 case.[4] Aside from the Debtor's prior relationship with Acis, the Texas Bankruptcy Court is not familiar with the Debtor's business and assets or the Debtor's liabilities that need to be restructured in this case. The Debtor's restructuring efforts are now managed by an independent and highly qualified CRO who has had no prior involvement with Acis or its bankruptcy proceedings. Hence, while it may be in the interests of the Acis estate for this matter to be transferred to the Texas Bankruptcy Court, it is certainly not in the best interests of the Debtor's estate or the parties to these proceedings, which is the only thing that matters.

5. As the Committee admits, the Debtor is entitled to substantial deference with respect to its choice of forum for its bankruptcy case. This Court is indisputably a legally proper forum given that the Debtor is a Delaware limited partnership. This Court also presents a convenient forum given that the Debtor's assets are so widely dispersed and there has been [3] Terry, in his personal capacity and on behalf of his spouse, also purports to hold an unsecured claim against the Debtor's estate in the amount of $425,000, which the Debtor has designated as contingent, unliquidated, and disputed.

[4] Presumably, senior management personnel of the Debtor have provided all manner of testimony in the various pending litigation matters around the country involving or otherwise implicating the Debtor.

extensive ongoing litigation against the Debtor in the Delaware Chancery Court, including litigation commenced by the Redeemer Committee, a member of the Committee. In sum, aside from the Committee's perceived litigation advantage before the Texas Bankruptcy Court, there is no credible, let alone valid, basis for this case to be transferred to the Texas Bankruptcy Court where an adverse proceeding is pending when this Court presents a perfectly appropriate forum for effectuating a successful reorganization of the Debtor's affairs. The Debtor therefore urges this Court to deny the Motion to Transfer filed by the Committee.

Background

A. The Debtor's Bankruptcy Filing

6. On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor commenced this case by filing a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code. The factual background regarding the Debtor, including its current and historical business operations and the events precipitating the chapter 11 filing, is set forth in detail in the Declaration of Frank Waterhouse in Support of First Day Motions, which is incorporated herein by reference.

7. The Debtor continues in the possession of its property and continues to operate and manage its business as a debtor in possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code.

8. No trustee or examiner has been appointed in the Debtor's chapter 11 case.

9. On October 29, 2019, the United States Trustee appointed the Committee, which consists of four members: (1) the Redeemer Committee; (2) UBS; (3) Acis; and (4) Meta-e Discovery. The Committee is represented by Sidley & Austin, with one of its lead attorneys based in New York City. Since retaining counsel, the Committee's first order of business was to file the Motion to Transfer.

B. The Debtor's Organizational Structure and Governance

10. The Debtor is a Delaware limited partnership. Its limited partnership interests are owned as follows: (a) 99.5% by Hunter Mountain Trust, a Delaware statutory trust based in New York, (b) 0.1866% by Dugaboy Investment Trust, a Delaware trust, (c) 0.0627% by Mark Okada, personally and through family trusts, and (d) 0.25% by Strand Advisors, Inc., a Delaware corporation. In sum, 99.94% of the Debtor's partnership interests are held through Delaware entities. Strand Advisors, Inc. also owns 100% of Debtor's general partnership interest. This Delaware entity, through its principal James Dondero, ultimately controlled the Debtor as of the Petition Date.

11. There is now new governance in place. On October 29, 2019, the Debtor filed its motion to retain Bradley Sharp as the CRO [Docket No. 75] (the "CRO Motion"). Pursuant to the CRO Motion, the Debtor seeks to retain the CRO with certain independent and exclusive powers and significant restrictions on termination. Specifically, the CRO will have sole authority over claims and transactions involving insiders. The CRO was previously appointed chief restructuring officer in Delaware cases such as Variant Holding Company LLC before Judge Brendan Shannon and Woodbridge Group of Companies LLC before Judge Kevin Carey (retired). The CRO Motion is set for hearing on November 19, 2019, the same date as the Motion to Transfer.[5]

[5] In an apparent effort to prevent this Court from considering the CRO Motion, the Committee sought to have the Motion to Transfer set for hearing on shortened notice for November 7, but this Court denied that request before the Debtor filed its response.

12. Also on October 29, 2019, the Debtor filed its motion for approval of certain protocols with respect to ordinary course transactions [Docket No. 77] (the "Protocols Motion"). Pursuant to the Protocols Motion, the Debtor seeks approval of certain protocols to allow the Debtor to conduct ordinary course business in an uninterrupted and transparent manner, both for the benefit of the Debtor's estate and its creditors and for the investors to whom the Debtor provides services. The Protocols Motion also is set for hearing on November 19.

13. The CRO Motion and the Protocols Motion are intended to bring independence and clarity to the Debtor's governance structure. Based on these motions, there should be no doubt that qualified, independent management is in place with the Debtor and will be operating under a specified set of protocols and procedures to ensure that estate assets are properly preserved.

C. The Debtor's Business, Assets, and Creditor Relationships are Complex and International in Scope

14. The Debtor is a multibillion-dollar global alternative investment manager. The Debtor operates a diverse investment platform, serving both institutional and retail investors worldwide. In addition to high-yield credit, the Debtor's investment capabilities include public equities, real estate, private equity and special situations, structured credit, and sector- and region-specific verticals built around specialized teams. The Debtor also provides shared services to its affiliated registered investment advisors.

15. Pursuant to various contractual arrangements, the Debtor provides money management and advisory services for approximately $2.5 billion of assets under management. Separately, the Debtor provides shared services for approximately $7.5 billion of assets managed by a variety of affiliated and unaffiliated entities, including other affiliated registered investment advisors.

16. Although the Debtor is headquartered in Dallas, Texas, and most of its employees are based there, the Debtor's affiliates and related entities maintain offices in many international locales, including in Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro, Singapore, and Seoul. The Debtor primarily generates revenue from fees collected for the management and advisory services provided to funds that it manages, plus fees generated for services provided to its affiliates. These funds have investments all over the world. Specifically, the Debtor has its own proprietary investment assets and those of its clients held through various affiliates in Asia, South America, and Europe.

17. On October 29, 2019, the Debtor filed a motion to appoint a foreign representative in order to manage its various foreign interests [Docket No. 68] (the "Foreign Representative Motion"), including those in pending proceedings filed by the Redeemer Committee in Bermuda and the Cayman Islands.

18. The Debtor's principal assets in the United States consist of custodial and non-custodial interests in investments located all over the country. The Debtor has brokerage accounts at Jefferies in New York City that hold the bulk of the Debtor's liquid and illiquid securities. As of the Petition Date, the Debtor owed Jefferies approximately $30 million on account of margin borrowings. The Debtor's other principal secured creditor, Frontier State Bank, is based in Oklahoma City and is owed approximately $5.2 million as of the Petition Date.

D. The Debtor Has Litigation Pending in Delaware Chancery Court and New York

19. Aside from Acis, no Committee members are based in Dallas and two of them have litigation pending against the Debtor outside of Texas. As discussed further below, the Redeemer Committee commenced litigation against the Debtor in the Delaware Chancery Court and UBS commenced litigation against the Debtor in New York state court. The chairman and the majority of the members of the Redeemer Committee are located in Chicago. UBS's business representatives are based in or around New York City. The only trade vendor on the Committee, Meta-e Discovery, is based in Connecticut. Yet another allegedly substantial creditor of the Debtor, Patrick Daugherty ("Daugherty"), also has litigation pending against the Debtor in Delaware Chancery Court, including a matter that went to trial on October 14, 2019, just prior to the Petition Date, before it was stayed.

20. Redeemer Committee Litigation: Delaware Chancery Court and New York Arbitration. The Debtor's bankruptcy filing was precipitated by an arbitration award in favor of the Redeemer Committee (the "Award") initially issued against the Debtor in March 2019 by a panel of the American Arbitration Association based in New York City. The Debtor was formerly the investment manager for the Highland Crusader Fund (the "Crusader Fund"), which was based in Bermuda and the subject of insolvency proceedings there. On July 5, 2016, the Redeemer Committee (a) terminated and replaced the Debtor as investment manager of the Crusader Fund, (b) commenced an arbitration against the Debtor in New York City, and (c) commenced litigation against the Debtor in Delaware Chancery Court. In September 2018, the Debtor and the Redeemer Committee participated in a multi-day evidentiary hearing in New York City. In March 2019, following post-trial briefing, the arbitration panel issued its Award finding in favor of the Redeemer Committee on a variety of claims and requiring the Debtor to pay a gross amount of $189 million, subject to certain offsets and deductions. The Redeemer Committee set a hearing in the Delaware Chancery Court for October 8, 2019, in order to seek entry of a judgment with respect to the Award. The hearing was subsequently continued to October 16, 2019. The Debtor filed this case just prior to that hearing. The Redeemer Committee is represented by Jenner & Block attorneys based in Chicago, Illinois.

21. UBS Litigation: New York State Court. The Debtor and UBS are parties to a long-running litigation originally filed by UBS in February 2009 in the New York Supreme Court, County of New York. At bottom, UBS alleges that the Debtor and certain funds fraudulently induced UBS to restructure a transaction at the expense of UBS and then these parties and other entities fraudulently diverted certain assets to prevent UBS from obtaining a recovery on its claims. There have been numerous prejudgment motions and appeals in this case. The claims that remain consist primarily of breach of contract, fraudulent inducement and alter ego claims against certain defendants, a breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing claim against the Debtor, and fraudulent conveyance claims against all defendants. UBS has asserted damages in excess of $686 million in the litigation, which the Debtor and the other defendants continue to vigorously dispute. The case was bifurcated, and the contract claims against certain fund defendants as well as the Debtor's counterclaim were addressed at a bench trial in July 2018. The court has not yet ruled on phase one of the trial. If the court finds a breach of contract occurred and awards damages against the fund defendants, then the remaining claims will be tried in a second phase of the trial. While awaiting a decision on phase one, the defendants filed a motion for judgment before trial with respect to the fraudulent transfer claims based on the fact that UBS is not a creditor of the parties who made the alleged fraudulent transfers. The motion was withdrawn due to its timing without prejudice to defendants' right to refile the motion after a decision has been made on phase one of the trial. UBS is represented by Latham & Watkins attorneys based in Washington, DC.

22. Daugherty Litigation: Delaware Chancery Court. Another allegedly substantial creditor of the Debtor who is not on the Committee, Daugherty, also commenced litigation against the Debtor in Delaware Chancery Court. Daugherty appears on the top 20 list in this case in the amount of $11.7 million, scheduled as contingent, unliquidated, and disputed. Daugherty is a former senior management employee of the Debtor. Among other matters, Daugherty sued the Debtor and certain of its affiliates in Delaware Chancery Court in July 2017 arising from his separation from the Debtor. In June 2018, the Delaware Chancery Court dismissed many of the claims asserted by Daugherty in the litigation. The remaining counts went to trial just prior to the Petition Date and have since been stayed by virtue of the Debtor's bankruptcy filing. Daugherty is represented by Delaware counsel.

E. The Debtor's Relationship with Acis and Ongoing Adverse Claims and Litigation

23. The Debtor previously provided sub-manager and sub-advisory services to Acis pursuant to certain contractual agreements that were terminated during the course of the Acis bankruptcy in or around August 2018. Since that time, the Debtor has not had, and does not currently have, any direct business dealings with respect to Acis or the CLO assets for which Acis serves as the CLO portfolio manager.[6]

[6] The Debtor, through an affiliate, manages a client account that owns a notional value of approximately $150 million in securities issued by Acis CLOs. All of the Debtor's affiliated CLOs are currently in wind-down, meaning that they are not making any new investments.

24. Prior to his termination in June 2016, Terry was one of the Debtor's senior management employees who handled Acis and also had a partnership interest in Acis. After Terry was discovered surreptitiously tape recording internal meetings and conversations with numerous Highland personnel, he was terminated by the Debtor and subsequently asserted claims against Acis that went to arbitration. Terry ultimately obtained an arbitration award against Acis is the approximate amount of $8 million. Notably, although Terry asserted claims against the Debtor and other persons at Highland, the arbitration panel did not find liability against any party besides Acis.

25. Terry commenced involuntary chapter 7 bankruptcy cases against Acis in the Texas Bankruptcy Court in January 2018 on his own behalf. No other creditors joined in the petitions, which Terry asserted was appropriate on the basis that Acis had fewer than 12 creditors. The Debtor is a major prepetition creditor of Acis, owed in excess of $8 million for various contractual services provided to Acis before and after the Acis bankruptcy filings. Acis, the alleged debtor in those matters, objected to the involuntary bankruptcy filings and presented evidence from certain of the Debtor's employees relating to whether the technical requirements for involuntary bankruptcy filings were met. These objections were ultimately overruled by the Texas Bankruptcy Court, which decision remains on appeal. Acis's bankruptcy cases were later converted to chapter 11 and a chapter 11 trustee (Robin Phelan) (the "Acis Trustee") was appointed in May 2018. No Chief Restructuring Officer was ever appointed in the Acis cases, much less a CRO with expanded powers.

26. Subsequently, the Debtor and two of its related, affected parties in interest objected to the confirmation of a chapter 11 plan proposed by the Acis Trustee (and supported by Terry) for a multitude of reasons, including that certain injunctive provisions were inappropriately targeted at the Debtor and related parties. The Texas Bankruptcy Court ultimately overruled all objections and confirmed the plan in January 2019, which decision remains on appeal. During the course of the Acis bankruptcy cases, the Texas Bankruptcy Court heard no material evidence from the Debtor's employees about the details of its business, assets, or liabilities, aside from its prior involvement with Acis. The Committee does not establish how the prior testimony of the Debtor's representatives in the Acis bankruptcy is relevant to the instant chapter 11 case. Hence, the Texas Bankruptcy Court has no specialized knowledge with respect to the Debtor generally or the issues that will be relevant in this chapter 11 case.

27. Pursuant to the Acis Trustee's confirmed chapter 11 plan, Terry is Acis's sole equity holder and controls and manages that entity. The Acis Trustee had previously commenced litigation in the Texas Bankruptcy Court against the Debtor and other parties for breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duties, fraudulent transfers, and conspiracy, and has sought to offset and/or subordinate the Debtor's claims against Acis. In a nutshell, the causes of action in that lawsuit revolve around the hotly contested allegations that the Debtor conspired to strip Acis of its assets at Terry's expense. Through his ownership and control of Acis pursuant to the Acis Trustee's confirmed plan, Terry now controls these claims against the Debtor, which remain at an early stage in the Texas Bankruptcy Court and have been stayed as to the Debtor.[7]

[7] The defendants have filed motions to withdraw the reference as well as motions to dismiss. The Texas Bankruptcy Court held a status conference on the motions to withdraw the reference on September 4, 2019 and was required to submit a "Report and Recommendation" to the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas. As of the Petition Date, the Texas Bankruptcy Court had not issued its Report and Recommendation. This adversary proceeding is now subject to the automatic stay of 11 U.S.C. §362(a). This proceeding has yet to reach the procedural stage where any of the defendants have had to file their answers.

28. The respective bankruptcy estates of Acis and the Debtor are adverse to each other. Acis has claims and pending litigation against the Debtor and the Debtor has outstanding claims against Acis that total no less than $8 million for services rendered. The various litigation claims of Acis against the Debtor are prepetition claims that have been stayed.

29. The Committee now seeks to move the Debtor's bankruptcy case to the Texas Bankruptcy Court -- Acis's "home court" -- in order to obtain some perceived litigation advantage. The Debtor objects to the Motion to Transfer as completely contrary to the interests of this estate.

Legal Basis for Objection to Motion to Transfer

A. The Debtor's Case is Properly Venued in This District Because the Debtor is Organized in the State of Delaware

30. The Debtor is a limited partnership formed under the laws of Delaware. Consequently, venue of this case is proper in Delaware as a matter of law under 28 U.S.C. § 1408. See, e.g., In re Restaurants Acquisition I, LLC, 2016 Bankr. LEXIS 684, at *6 (Bankr. D. Del. Mar. 4, 2016) ("Because the Debtor is organized under the laws of Delaware, this forum is proper under the statute."); In re Innovative Communication Co., LLC, 358 B.R. 120, 125 (Bankr. D. Del. 2006) ("Venue is appropriate in the state of incorporation, 28 U.S.C. § 1408(1), so venue is proper in Delaware with respect to the corporate Debtors."). The Committee does not (and cannot) challenge this point.

B. The Debtor's Choice of Forum in Delaware is Entitled to Substantial Weight and Should Not Be Disturbed

31. Given that venue in this District is legally proper, the Debtor's choice of this forum is entitled to great weight. See, e.g., Restaurants Acquisition, 2016 Bankr. LEXIS at *7 ("movant bears the burden of demonstrating that the factors strongly weigh in favor of a transfer as courts will generally grant substantial deference to a debtor's choice of forum"); In re Ocean Properties of Delaware, Inc., 95 B.R. 304, 305 (Bankr. D. Del. 1988) (same). Therefore, a court considering a venue transfer motion "should exercise its power to transfer cautiously, and the party moving for the transfer must show by a preponderance of the evidence that the case should be transferred." In re Commonwealth Oil Refining Co., Inc. (Commonwealth of Puerto Rico v. Commonwealth Oil Refining Co., Inc.), 596 F.2d 1239, 1241 (5th Cir. 1979), cert. denied, 444 U.S. 1045 (1980) ("CORCO") (internal citations omitted); accord In re Fairfield Puerto Rico, Inc., 333 F. Supp. 1187, 1989 (D. Del. 1971) ("This Court should not freely abandon to any other district its duty to determine a matter clearly within its jurisdiction."); In re Rehoboth Hospitality, LP, 2011 WL 5024267, at *3 (Bankr. D. Del. 2011) ("The burden of proof is on the moving party requesting transfer.").

32. These principles apply with even greater force in a case such as this where a Delaware-organized partnership seeks the protection of Delaware courts. As noted above, over 99% of the Debtor's limited interests and 100% of its general partnership interests are held by Delaware entities. There is a "fundamental legal tenet that every citizen of a state is entitled to take advantage of the state and federal judicial process available in that state." In re PWS Holdings, 1998 Bankr. LEXIS 549, at *14 (Bankr. D. Del. Apr. 28, 1998). Further, "Delaware has an interest in protecting the rights of its citizens," and correspondingly, change of venue can only be granted upon a strong showing of equities favoring the transfer. Intel Corp. v. Broadcom Corp., 167 F. Supp. 2d 692, 706 (D. Del. 2001).

33. Given the strong presumption that a debtor's choice of forum should not be disturbed, courts rarely grant such relief. In those few cases where venue has been transferred, there was generally some unique compelling factor that justified transfer, such as the debtor's consent, the matter was a single asset real estate case, or there was non-stayed litigation that warranted consolidation of cases before a single court or judge. None of these factors are present here.

34. In fact, the various adversary claims pending against the Debtor that currently linger in the Texas Bankruptcy Court weigh strongly against a transfer of venue there. The claims asserted by Acis against the Debtor are prepetition claims that are stayed. Whether those claims are ever unstayed, they are clearly adverse to the interests of the Debtor's estate, particularly where Acis is asserting such claims as a basis to offset and/or subordinate the large claims that the Debtor holds against Acis. Notably, Acis is no longer affiliated with the Debtor. It is merely a litigation claimant. Yet, the Committee chose to file the Motion to Transfer to the Texas Bankruptcy Court in order to achieve a litigation advantage at the expense of this estate. The Debtor urges the Court to see through this blatant litigation tactic which fails to come close to overcoming the strong presumption in favor of the Debtor's proper choice of venue in Delaware.

C. The Convenience of the Parties Weighs in Favor of Retaining Venue in Delaware

35. When a bankruptcy court is asked to transfer an entire bankruptcy case to another bankruptcy court, it must examine whether the transfer would be (a) in the interest of justice, or (b) the convenience of the parties. 28 U.S.C. § 1412. In considering the "convenience of the parties," courts have identified six factors, among others, to help guide their discretion. These six factors are:

i. the economic administration of the estate;

ii. the location of the assets;

iii. the proximity of creditors of every kind to the court;

iv. the proximity of the debtor to the court;

v. the proximity of the witnesses necessary to the administration of the estate; and

vi. the necessity for ancillary administration if liquidation should result.

See, e.g., CORCO, 596 F.2d at 1247; Restaurants Acquisition, 2016 Bankr. LEXIS at *7 (applying CORCO factors); Innovative, 358 B.R. at 125 (citing CORCO factors and other private and public interests that may be relevant). As discussed herein, the Committee has failed to meet its "heavy burden of proof . . . to demonstrate that the balance of convenience weighs in [its] favor." Lionel Leisure, Inc. v. Trans Cleveland Warehouses, Inc. (In re Lionel Corp.), 24 B.R. 141, 142 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1982). Consequently, the Motion to Transfer must be denied.

i. The Economic Administration of the Estate

36. The economic and efficient administration of the estate is the most important factor when considering a motion to transfer venue. CORCO, 596 F.2d at 1247; In re Caesars Entertainment Operating Co., 2015 Bankr. LEXIS 314, at *22 (Bankr. D. Del. Feb. 2, 2015); In re Industrial Pollution Control, Inc., 137 B.R. 176, 182 (Bankr. W.D. Pa. 1992). Despite the importance of this factor, however, the Committee makes little effort to explain why the economic administration of the estate would be improved if this case was transferred, other than to argue that the Texas Bankruptcy Court heard days of evidence in an unrelated matter of questionable relevance to the chapter 11 proceedings at hand. See Motion to Transfer at ¶¶11 – 13, 29 – 31. The pendency of the Acis bankruptcy in the Texas Bankruptcy Court should not form a basis for transferring venue for the following six (6) reasons.

37. First, the Debtor is now managed by the CRO, who is charged with administering the restructuring efforts of the Debtors in this case and has independent authority as to insider claims and insider transactions. Whatever may have been said by the Debtor's management in the context of the Acis bankruptcy is irrelevant to the tasks at hand in this case that will be carried out by the CRO, an independent and highly qualified professional who has had no involvement in the Acis cases.

38. Second, the evidence presented by the Debtor's employees in the Acis bankruptcy cases is irrelevant to the case at hand. Their testimony generally focused on (a) whether Terry satisfied the legal requirements to file involuntary cases against Acis and (b) the structure of actively managed CLOs. None of this testimony by the Debtor's employees is relevant to the Debtor's present chapter 11 case. Acis was the sole branch of the Debtor's affiliated structure that managed active CLOs. As a result of the confirmed chapter 11 plan in the Acis cases, Acis is no longer part of the Debtor's organizational structure. The Debtor owns no equity in Acis. The Debtor no longer advises or sub-advises any active CLOs. The Debtor only has CLOs that are in liquidation -- monetizing their underlying assets and paying off their remaining investors. While the Texas Bankruptcy Court learned much about the complexities of managing active CLOs, that information is irrelevant to this Debtor.

39. Third, the core issue in the reorganization of Acis was maintaining the cash flows from Acis's managed CLOs. However, the CLOs currently managed by the Debtor provide just 10% of the Debtor's revenue, and that number will shrink over time as the CLOs liquidate. The Debtor derives the other 90% of its revenue from managing asset classes that were never implicated in the Acis proceeding, including private equity, mutual funds, open-ended retail funds, hedge funds, and real estate funds.

40. Fourth, the Committee neither attaches evidence demonstrating what relevant facts the Texas Bankruptcy Court learned about the Debtor, nor explains how any such evidence could possibly implicate an insurmountable "learning curve" for this Court. See Motion to Transfer at ¶31. The Committee does not attach any of the 700 allegedly relevant exhibits or any of the testimony from the Acis proceeding. The Committee references three published opinions of the Texas Bankruptcy Court from the Acis proceeding, but provides no reasoning or even citations demonstrating how these opinions evidence the Texas Bankruptcy Court's purportedly extensive knowledge of the Debtor's current structure and management.

41. Fifth, even assuming it learned anything relevant about the Debtor's corporate structure, the Texas Bankruptcy Court knows little about the details of the Debtor's business, assets, or liabilities, or its restructuring efforts. To the extent it addressed the Debtor's business, the evidence in the Acis proceeding focused on a CLO business that the Debtor no longer operates nor manages in any way. The evidence in the Acis proceeding never focused on the Debtor's assets and liabilities. Even at this early stage of the Debtor's chapter 11 case, this Court is already more familiar with the Debtor than the Texas Bankruptcy Court, which is appropriately charged with overseeing the Acis proceeding and not this one.

42. Sixth, the level of conflicts between the Debtor and Acis make the economic and fair administration of this case in the Texas Bankruptcy Court highly problematic. There is a pending adversary proceeding by Acis against the Debtor, which proceeding has been stayed. The Committee does not explain how the Texas Bankruptcy Court is supposed to preside over the Debtor's estate and the pending adversary proceeding in the Acis case concurrently.[8] Indeed, the only reason for the Committee to seek a transfer of venue to the Texas Bankruptcy Court in the first place is to obtain some perceived litigation advantage vis-à-vis the Debtor's estate, which is not a proper basis to transfer venue.[9] Given the substantial adverse interests that exist between the Debtor and Acis, the Debtor submits that this chapter 11 case can be much more effectively administered by this Court.

ii. The Location of the Assets

43. Although the Debtor's headquarters is located in Dallas, Texas and most of its employees are based there, the Debtor's assets are widely dispersed all over the world. The Debtor has over $2.5 billion of assets under management and receives management and advisory fees from a multitude of sources around the world. The Debtor also provides shared services for approximately $7.5 billion of assets managed by a variety of affiliated and unaffiliated entities, including other affiliated registered investment advisors. The Debtor's affiliates and related parties maintain offices in many international locales, including Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro,

[8] See supra n. 8.

[9] As part of this ongoing litigation strategy, Acis has objected to the Debtor retaining Foley & Lardner LLP ("Foley") and Lynn, Pinker, Cox, & Hurst LLP ("Lynn Pinker") as counsel to pursue the Debtor's claims against Acis and to defend the Debtor and certain of its wholly owned subsidiaries against Acis's claims. See Dkt. 116. Acis's objection to Foley and Lynn Pinker's retention does not even attempt to explain the benefit to the Debtor's estate of stripping the Debtor of its counsel litigating both affirmative and defensive claims against Acis. This highlights the conflict that the Texas Bankruptcy Court would face in handling both the Acis and Highland matters.

Singapore, and Seoul. And the Debtor has its own proprietary investment assets and those of its clients held through various affiliates in Asia, South America, and Europe. The Debtor has already filed the Foreign Representative Motion in order to assist the Debtor in managing its various foreign interests.

44. Similarly, the Debtor's principal assets in the United States consist of custodial and non-custodial interests in investments located across the country. The Debtor has brokerage accounts at Jefferies in New York City that hold the bulk of the Debtor's liquid and illiquid securities. As of the Petition Date, the Debtor owed Jefferies approximately $30 million on account of margin borrowings. The Debtor's other principal secured creditor, Frontier State Bank, is based in Oklahoma City and is owed approximately $5.2 million as of the Petition Date. Relatively speaking, the Debtor has minimal assets in Texas.

45. Nonetheless, even if most of the Debtor's assets were construed to be located in Texas (which they are not), numerous courts have found that the location of assets is not a significant factor in deciding whether venue should be transferred unless the case involves liquidation as opposed to rehabilitation or is a single asset real estate case. See Restaurants Acquisition, 2016 Bankr. LEXIS at *12 ("the location of a company's assets is not as crucial to the analysis where the ultimate goal is rehabilitation rather than liquidation"); In re Safety-Kleen Corp., 2001 Bankr. LEXIS 1296, at *10 (Bankr. D. Del. Aug. 27, 2001) ("location of assets is generally only significant in a single asset real estate case or liquidation"); see also In re Enron Corp., 274 B.R. 327, 348 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2002) ("[W]hile a debtor's location and the location of its assets are often important considerations in single asset real estate cases, these factors take on less importance in a case where a debtor has assets in various locations.").

46. The outcome of this case will not turn on the day-to-day management of the Debtor's assets, but instead will be driven by the Debtor's ability to restructure its balance sheet and maximize the value of its assets, many of which are illiquid. This Court will be focused on matters such as plan confirmation and governance, which the Debtor proposes to place into the capable hands of the CRO pursuant to the terms of the pending CRO Motion and subject to the guidelines set forth in the Protocols Motion. Most of the objections to the key issues that will arise in this case will be grounded in the Bankruptcy Code and not based on any particular facts or circumstances unique to the Debtor's assets wherever located. However, to the extent this Court gives weight to the location of the Debtor's assets, this factor weighs in favor of denying the Motion to Transfer because the Debtor's interests and assets are widely dispersed throughout the country and the world.

iii. The Proximity of Creditors of Every Kind

47. The Committee spends a substantial portion of the Motion to Transfer evaluating the location of the Debtor's creditors and their professionals, and the relative amount of time that it takes to travel to this Court as compared to the Texas Bankruptcy Court. This analysis is misguided and irrelevant under the circumstances of this case. The Debtor does not have thousands of small or unsophisticated creditors who cannot navigate their way to Delaware. The creditors here are generally litigants or attorneys. They are located in commercial centers all over the country. The amounts at stake total hundreds of millions of dollars. It is of no consequence whether a creditor or an attorney is based in Chicago, New York, or Los Angeles. The creditors and professionals involved in this case will travel wherever necessary in order to advocate their respective positions, and Delaware is certainly just as convenient as Dallas.

Caesars, 2015 Bankr. LEXIS 314, at *23 ("in this day of law firms with multiple offices across the nation, convenient and accessible airports, electronic access to information and court dockets at every lawyer's fingertips, it is fair to say that both this [Delaware Bankruptcy] Court and the Illinois Court are convenient forums for purposes of the CORCO analysis.").

48. Further, one of the Committee members and the Debtor's largest creditor, the Redeemer Committee, has commenced litigation that is pending in the Delaware Chancery Court. In fact, the main trigger for the Debtor's bankruptcy filing was a hearing set by the Redeemer Committee in the Delaware Chancery Court to obtain a judgment on a $189 million Award. If Delaware is convenient enough for the Redeemer Committee, it is certainly an appropriate forum for this case. Daugherty is another allegedly significant creditor of the Debtor who chose to commence litigation in Delaware Chancery Court, which matter commenced trial just prior to the Petition Date. UBS, another member of the Committee, has litigation pending against the Debtor in New York.

49. The bottom line is that in a case of the size and complexity of this one, involving highly sophisticated and well-represented creditors, there is absolutely no reason to transfer venue on the basis of the proximity of creditors to the Texas Bankruptcy Court.

iv. The Proximity of the Debtor and Witnesses Necessary to the Administration of the Estate

50. As discussed in CORCO, the Court's consideration of the location of the Debtor should focus on the proximity to the Court of the Debtor's employees and representatives who must appear in court, not with the employees who conduct the day-to-day business activities of the Debtor. CORCO, 596 F.2d at 1248; see also Restaurants Acquisition, 2016 Bankr. LEXIS at *11 ("Courts have noted the inquiry should focus primarily on the location of parties that must appear in court.").

51. In this case, the CRO is expected to take the lead in managing the Debtor's restructuring efforts and testifying on behalf of the Debtor. The CRO is a highly accomplished and independent professional based in Los Angeles who regularly appears in this Court and was previously chief restructuring officer in Delaware cases such as Variant Holding Company LLC before Judge Brendan Shannon and Woodbridge Group of Companies LLC before Judge Kevin Carey (retired). Few Debtor employees should be required to testify in this case on a going forward basis and, even if they were, travel to this Court is easily accomplished and consistent with the many prior trips required of such employees by the Redeemer Committee and Daugherty in choosing to commence litigation in Delaware Chancery Court. The Debtor's bankruptcy counsel also has an office in Delaware and has no need to hire local counsel here, whereas in Dallas, local counsel would need to be retained.

52. Given what is at stake, the Debtor and its employees, including the CRO, are conveniently located within sufficient proximity of this Court such that this factor does not weigh in favor of a venue transfer to the Texas Bankruptcy Court.

v. The Necessity for Ancillary Administration if Liquidation Should Result

53. The final factor relates to the necessity for ancillary administration if liquidation should result. As the courts in CORCO, Enron and Fairfield Puerto Rico recognized, "anticipation of the failure of the [Chapter 11] proceeding is an illogical basis upon which to predicate a transfer." CORCO, 596 F.2d at 1248; see also Enron, 274 B.R. at 349; In re Fairfield Puerto Rico, Inc., 333 F. Supp. at 1191. Indeed, "[t]his factor is often discounted by courts." Enron, 274 B.R. at 343, n. 11. The Debtor's focus in this case is to propose a chapter 11 plan that will maximize value for all constituents, and the Committee offers no factual basis for this Court to contemplate the failure of the Debtor's chapter 11 case. See In re Fairfield Puerto Rico, Inc., 333 F. Supp. at 1191. Accordingly, this factor does not favor transfer of venue.

D. The Interest of Justice is Not Served By Transferring Venue

54. In determining whether a transfer would be "in the interest of justice," the court should consider "whether transfer of venue will promote the efficient administration of the estate, judicial economy, timeliness, and fairness." Enron, 274 B.R. at 387. These factors have generally been discussed above and support keeping this case in Delaware. Additional concerns that would speak to the "interest of justice" include facts such as the importance of a debtor to the welfare and economic stability of a jurisdiction, and are not present in this case. See CORCO, 596 F.2d at 1248 (even though the importance of the debtor, a major supplier of petroleum to Puerto Rico, to the welfare and economic stability of Puerto Rico implicated "interest of justice" considerations, the court determined not to transfer venue to Puerto Rico).

55. As noted above, venue is legally proper in this Court and the Debtor is entitled to substantial deference as to its choice of forum. But even if the Court considered the interests of justice and the convenience of the parties, there is no legitimate basis to transfer this case to the Texas Bankruptcy Court given the sophistication, complexity, and scope of the Debtors' business, domestic and foreign assets, and creditor constituents, and pendency of creditor actions in the Delaware Chancery Court and New York.

56. The Texas Bankruptcy Court is also the venue where the unaffiliated and adverse bankruptcy case of Acis has been pending. Acis has asserted fraudulent transfer and other disputed claims against the Debtor, which claims are all prepetition in nature. The Debtor, in turn, has contract claims against Acis totaling in excess of $8 million. The efficient administration of this estate, judicial economy, timeliness, and fairness would not be served by having the Texas Bankruptcy Court adjudicate these countervailing claims and interests. The interests of justice also would not be served by transferring venue in order for the Committee to realize a tactical litigation advantage before the Texas Bankruptcy Court.

57. For all these reasons, the Debtor urges this Court to maintain venue of this case in Delaware.

WHEREFORE, the Debtor respectfully requests that this Court enter an order denying the Motion to Transfer and granting such other and further relief as this Court deems appropriate.

LIMITED OBJECTION OF THE OFFICIAL COMMITTEE OF UNSECURED CREDITORS TO THE MOTION OF THE DEBTOR FOR AN ORDER AUTHORIZING THE DEBTOR TO RETAIN, EMPLOYEE, AND COMPENSATE CERTAIN PROFESSIONALS UTILIZED BY THE DEBTORS IN THE ORDINARY COURSE OF BUSINESS

The official committee of unsecured creditors (the "Committee") of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor" or "Highland"), hereby submits this limited objection (this "Limited Objection") to the Motion of the Debtor for an Order Authorizing the Debtor to Retain, Employ, and Compensate Certain Professionals Utilized by the Debtors in the Ordinary Course of Business (the "Motion") [Docket No. 76].[2] In support of this Objection, the Committee respectfully states as follows:

INTRODUCTION

1. The Committee was formed two weeks ago, on October 29, 2019,[3] and is in the process of gathering information and familiarizing itself with the Debtor's opaque and complex

[1] The Debtor's last four digits of its taxpayer identification number are (6725). The headquarters and service address for the above-captioned Debtor is 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, TX 75201.

[2] All capitalized terms used but not otherwise defined herein shall have the meanings ascribed to them in the Motion.

[3] On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief commencing this chapter 11 case, and the United States Trustee appointed the Committee nearly two weeks later on October 29, 2019 [Docket No. 65]. The Committee moved quickly following its appointment to bring in Sidley Austin LLP ("Sidley") as its proposed counsel on October 30, 2019 and FTI Consulting Inc. ("FTI") as its proposed organizational structure, business operations, and assets under management. Importantly, the Committee has requested relevant information, but, as of yet has not been able to fully familiarize itself with the Debtor's business operations and web of contractual relationships. Without the benefit of an understanding of the Debtor's normal course of business, the Committee feels compelled to object to the Motion. The Committee's chief concern is the use of the Debtor's assets to benefit non-debtor entities without an expected corresponding reimbursement from the non-debtor entity.

2. The Committee is fully aware that, in normal course, the Debtor routinely pays the fees of Ordinary Course Professionals that provide services directly to Related Entities and the Debtor is ultimately reimbursed. The Committee also fully understands that the services provided to Related Entities by the Ordinary Course Professionals may be crucial for those entities, and may very well ultimately benefit the Debtor and the Debtor's estate. For these reasons, the Committee does not object to the retention of Ordinary Course Professionals per se. However, as detailed more fully in the Committees' Omnibus Objection filed contemporaneously herewith,[4] the Committee has serious concerns about the potential for value to be siphoned away from the Debtor, and believes that rigorous oversight of the Debtor's assets and operations and, in particular, its transactions with other entities that may be controlled by Mr. James Dondero, or individuals who may be acting in concert with him, is needed to ensure financial advisor on November 6, 2019. Sidley and FTI quickly engaged the Debtor's advisors to get up to speed on this chapter 11 case, but there has not yet been sufficient time for the Committee to even familiarize itself with the Debtor's prepetition transactions.

[4] Contemporaneously with the filing of this Objection, the Committee filed the Omnibus Objection of the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors to the Debtor's (I) Motion for Final Order Authorizing Continuance of the Existing Cash management System, (II) Motion to Employ and Retain Development Specialists, Inc. to Provide a Chief Restructuring Officer, and (III) Precautionary Motion for Approval of Protocols for "Ordinary Course" Transactions.

that the rights of the Debtor's creditors are protected and the value of the Debtor's assets is maximized.

OBJECTION

3. The Committee is concerned with the lack of proposed disclosures regarding the services to be performed by Ordinary Course Professionals. Specifically, the Committee notes that the Declaration required by Ordinary Course Professionals attached as Exhibit C to the Motion does not explicitly require the Ordinary Course Professional to list the full names of each legal entity it is proposed to provide services to. The Committee requests that such requirement be added to the Declaration. The Committee also requests that the Declaration include a requirement that the Ordinary Course Professional state that it is not directly or indirectly owned or controlled by the Debtor, its principals, or any affiliate thereof.

4. The Committee is concerned with the ability of Related Entities to reimburse the Debtor. The Committee requests that Related Entities be required to deposit funds with the Debtor equivalent to the highest amount of costs incurred by such Related Entity within a single month in the prior year with respect to the Ordinary Course Professionals. The Committee also requests that the total annual fees paid to Ordinary Course Professionals not exceed $3,500,000 in the aggregate. The Committee also requests that the Debtor confirm that no amounts will be paid to an Ordinary Course Professional on account of any prepetition services provided, unless pursuant to another order of the Court.

5. Lastly, the Committee is concerned with the timely availability of information related to services provided by Ordinary Course Professionals. Specifically, the Committee notes that the proposed order approving the Motion requires the Debtors to file and serve a summary, quarterly, that describes, among other things, the total amounts paid to each Ordinary Course Professional, such amounts allocable to Related Entities, and any amounts reimbursed by Related Entities. The Committee requests that these summaries be filed monthly, list the full names of each entity that the Ordinary Course Professional provided services to, and include projected total fees and expenses to be incurred by the Ordinary Course Professional and amounts budgeted to be reimbursed by Related Entities within the following month.

WHEREFORE, the Committee respectfully requests that the Court sustain this Limited Objection, require the proposed language be included in any order confirming the Motion, and provide such other and any further relief as the Court may deem just and proper.

LIMITED OBJECTION OF THE OFFICIAL COMMITTEE OF UNSECURED CREDITORS TO THE DEBTOR'S APPLICATION FOR AN ORDER AUTHORIZING THE RETENTION AND EMPLOYMENT OF FOLEY GARDERE, FOLEY & LARDNER LLP AND LYNN PINKER COX & HURST AS SPECIAL TEXAS COUNSEL AND SPECIAL TEXAS LITIGATION COUNSEL, NUNC PRO TUNC TO THE PETITION DATE

The official committee of unsecured creditors (the "Committee") of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor" or "Highland"), hereby submits this limited objection (this "Limited Objection") to the Debtors' applications, pursuant to Sections 327(e), 328(a), and 330 of the Bankruptcy Code, for entry of orders authorizing the retention and employment of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP ("Foley") and Lynn Pinker Cox & Hurst LLP ("Lynn Pinker," and together with Foley, the "Proposed Special Counsel") as Special Texas Litigation Counsel and Special Texas Litigation Counsel, respectively, nunc pro tunc to the Petition Date (collectively, the "Applications") [Docket Nos. 69 & 70].[2] In support of this Objection, the Committee respectfully states as follows:

[1] The Debtor's last four digits of its taxpayer identification number are (6725). The headquarters and service address for the above-captioned Debtor is 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, TX 75201.

INTRODUCTION

1. Proposed Special Counsel have represented the both the Debtor and non-debtor defendants – including Mr. James Dondero, the founder of the Debtor – in various matters since 2016.[3] The Committee was formed two weeks ago, on October 29, 2019,[4] and is in the process of gathering information and familiarizing itself with the Debtor's opaque and complex organizational structure, business operations, and assets under management. Importantly, the Committee has requested relevant information, but as of yet has not been able to fully familiarize itself with the Debtor's web of contractual relationships and transaction histories with its many non-debtor affiliates.[5] Without the benefit of a full understanding of the Debtor's relationships and prepetition transactions with its affiliates, the Committee is unable to determine the appropriateness of Proposed Special Counsel representing both the Debtor and non-debtors in matters going forward, and whether it is appropriate for the costs of such non-debtor representation, especially in matters wholly unrelated to the Debtor, to be borne by the Debtor.[6]

2. The Committee recognizes that Proposed Special Counsel have developed knowledge and expertise from their pre-petition representation of the Debtor. The Committee

[3] See Lynn Pinker Application Ex. A ¶ 3.

[4] On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief commencing this chapter 11 case, and the United States Trustee appointed the Committee nearly two weeks later on October 29, 2019 [Docket No. 65]. The Committee moved quickly following its appointment to bring in Sidley Austin LLP ("Sidley") as its proposed counsel on October 30, 2019 and FTI Consulting Inc. ("FTI") as its proposed financial advisor on November 6, 2019. Sidley and FTI quickly engaged the Debtor's advisors to get up to speed on this chapter 11 case, but there has not yet been sufficient time for the Committee to even familiarize itself with the Debtor's prepetition transactions.

[5] The Committee and its advisors intend to closely scrutinize all prepetition transactions involving the Debtor to determine whether any are avoidable and/or give rise to claims against affiliated entities.

[6] Relatedly, both the Foley Application and the Lynn Pinker Applications disclose large sums of unpaid fees and expenses that have been billed to the Debtor but remain unpaid as of the Petition Date. See Foley Application ¶ 16; Lynn Pinker Application ¶ 19. The Committee is uncertain whether such amounts should be borne by the Debtor and reserves the right to challenge such unsecured claims at the appropriate time.

therefore has no objection to the Proposed Special Counsel continuing to represent the Debtor in matters which provide a benefit to the Debtor's estate. The Committee does object, however, to any continuation of Proposed Special Counsels' joint representation of Debtor and non-debtor defendants without certainty of reimbursement for such fees and costs and with no justifying benefit to the Debtor's estate.

OBJECTION

3. The principal concern the Committee has with respect to the Applications is the lack of clear delineation of the Proposed Special Counsel's proposed engagements and representation, and the Debtor's obligation to pay for the same. For example, the Hurst Declaration discloses Lynn Pinker's representation of Mr. Dondero in the Texas Lawsuit,[7] and within the application itself describes the services to be provided by Lynn Pinker as "Subject to approval by the Bankruptcy Court, the services that the Debtor proposes that the Firm render, and the Firm has agreed to provide, include advising the Debtor in connection with all aspects of the Pending Acis Proceedings and the Texas Lawsuit, and performing the range of services normally associated with matters such as this as the Debtor's Special Texas Litigation Counsel, which the Firm is in a position to provide in connection with the matter referred to above."[8] It is unclear whether Lynn Pinker's proposed retention is limited to representing the Debtor, or includes representation of non-debtors, including Mr. Dondero. It is also unclear if Lynn Pinker will be limited to representing the Debtor (and others) in connection with the Acis Proceedings and the Texas Lawsuit, or if these are just two matters which have been mentioned in the Lynn

[8] See Lynn Pinker Application ¶ 17

Pinker Application.[9] As the proposed order approving the Lynn Pinker Application merely approves the retention of Lynn Parker as Special Texas Litigation Counsel "pursuant to the terms set forth in the Application,"[10] the Committee is unsure which parties Lynn Pinker proposes to represent, and in what matters, and whether the Debtor has agreed to pay for such representations.

4. The Committee also notes that the Applications do not provide for an allocation of attorneys' fees and expenses among the Debtor and non-debtor defendants.[11] The Committee is concerned that the Debtor may be bearing the cost for representations of non-debtors without any justifiable benefit to the Debtor's estate, and without any regard for whether such representations may cause a conflict of interest. Courts have found that such arrangements where the Debtor pays all fees of non-debtor defendants without explicitly justifying such arrangement in the application are improper under Section 327(e). See In re Perez, 389 B.R. 180, 184 (Bankr. D. Colo. 2008) (denying application pursuant to Section 327(e) where bankruptcy estate alone was to pay attorneys' fees of special counsel representing debtor and non-debtor co-defendants in appeal of a state court judgment; that "arrangement may have been benign enough and 'all in the family' before the Debtor's bankruptcy was filed, but once the bankruptcy case was filed, things changed" and "Debtor became a fiduciary and others had a stake") (emphasis in original).

[9] The Lynn Pinker Application also mentions representation of non-debtor related entity Charitable Donor Advised Fund, L.P. in an unrelated matter.

[10] See Lynn Pinker Application Ex. B ¶ 8.

[11] The absence of such an allocation is alone grounds to deny any fee request submitted by Proposed Special Counsel. See In re B.E.S. Concrete Prods., Inc., 93 B.R. 228, 234 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 1988) (finding proposed special counsel under Section 327(e) retained to represent debtors and non-debtors in lawsuit not entitled to recovery of fees because "[t]here [was] no allocation of the bill among the various clients" and "[s]ome services were rendered for the ultimate benefit of persons other than the debtor"). In the event this Court authorizes the retention of Proposed Special Counsel to represent Debtor and non-debtor defendants, the Committee reserves its right to contest fee applications for failure to properly allocate fees and expenses among clients.

5. Without greater clarity into the proposed representations included in the Applications, the Committee must request that the Court reject the Applications to the extent that they seek authorization for the Proposed Special Counsel to represent both the Debtor and non-debtor parties and, to the extent the Court is otherwise inclined to approve the Applications, the Court should require the non-debtor entities to deposit on a monthly basis the highest amount incurred in a single month in the prior 12 months to ensure the Debtor's estate will be reimbursed for the fees and costs incurred in connection with the representation of the non-debtor entities.

WHEREFORE, the Committee respectfully requests that the Court deny the relief requested in the Applications to the extent they seek authorization for the Proposed Special Counsel to represent both the Debtor and non-debtor parties and provide such other and any further relief as the Court may deem just and proper.

CHIEF U.S. BANKRUPTCY JUDGE

transactions and is in charge of the debtor's restructuring efforts, and that he has no prior relationship with either Acis or the Texas bankruptcy court with respect to this matter. He would testify that his goal in this case is to maximize the value of the debtor's estate for the benefit of all constituents, and he intends to evaluate all available strategic options for accomplishing the goal, and hopes to work constructively with the committee in that regard.

He believes that the outcome of this case will not turn on the day-to-day management of the debtor's assets but instead will be driven by the debtor's ability to restructure its balance sheet and maximize the value of its assets, many of which are liquid. He would testify that either he or Fred Caruso would provide substantially all the testimony that would be provided for the debtor in this case.

Lastly, he would testify that he's been on the job for over a month-and-a-half, that the debtor has been following the protocols set out in the motion for which approval is being sought today. He would testify the debtor's being transparent with the creditors' committee, has met with and communicated with FTI on many occasions, and shared a lot of information. And he would testify that there have been no allegations made by the committee or any other party, regarding any post-petition impropriety by the debtor.

That concludes my proffer of Mr. Sharp's testimony.

necessary in order for this -- if it's going to be a successful restructure, they're the ones that are necessary to make it a successful restructure. Thank you.

THE COURT: You're welcome.

All right, let's break for lunch until 1:45. And when I come back at 1:45 -- when we come back at 1:45, I am going to issue an oral decision on this motion. All right.

(Recess at 12:39 p.m. until 1:47 p.m.)

THE CLERK: All rise.

THE COURT: Please be seated.

Okay, good afternoon. Thank you for coming back. I'm now prepared to rule on the motion to transfer venue, which I'm going to grant.

So I think, as I hinted at during argument, that the case law that we're kind of clinging to on motions to transfer venue, really do not reflect the modern reality of Chapter 11 practice in the U.S. and internationally. And I think a lot of the parts of the test really don't reflect what's going on generally in Chapter 11 cases.

The thing I take greatest umbrage -- no, "umbrage" isn't the right word -- but disagree with the most is the idea that there's somehow a strong presumption of the debtor's choice of forum.

Look, every debtor that files bankruptcy -- certainly every sophisticated Chapter 11 debtor that files bankruptcy -- is engaged in forum-shopping. There is an element to that. Where you file will depend on a lot of things that are unique to the forum.

I don't think you need to be ashamed of that. I don't think that's bad. As long as the venue you're choosing is appropriate under the law, certainly you're going to make decisions based on what the law is in that particular district, perhaps even a preference to individual judges or judge in that district.

To compound that with a strong presumption in favor of the debtor is to really give a boost to the debtor's choice of forum, which is made -- included in the decision-making process is an element of forum-shopping, to a level that makes it very difficult to overcome that presumption.

Of course, the creditors that file a motion to transfer venue are engaged in forum-shopping themselves. Otherwise, why would they be switching forums and going for a different location. Again, I don't think that the word "forum-shopping" should have the negative connotation that it has come to have in the law. It is the reality of bankruptcy practice.

Now, if that's involved -- if that goes a step further and somehow involves chicanery or something inappropriate just from an ethical standpoint, of course that's problematic. But there's absolutely no indication here whatsoever that anyone, on behalf of the debtor or the creditors or the Dallas court or the Delaware court, is doing anything other than acting appropriately.

The question about a motion to transfer venue is whether the motion should be granted by a preponderance of the evidence. If you add a strong presumption, you're turning it into a harder motion to be granted; and I don't think that's appropriate.

However, I find the laundry list of factors that are generally discussed to be irrelevant or almost irrelevant to the actual issues that are going on, particularly in a case like this. And I'll get to that in a second.

So six of the debtors are located in Texas; UBS is located in New York. UBS is located everywhere. Wells Fargo is located everywhere. Certainly companies have executive suites. But whether or not that should be the decision about where a case should file, to me, isn't particularly clear. It depends on the facts of the case.

I think a more general approach that would involve looking at the facts and circumstances of a case and seeing whether it points to a specific jurisdiction might be a more helpful way of proceeding. And that's what this case is really about.

This is a unique case, I think. It is a different case than those that we usually run into. And although maybe not completely different from every case, but in any event, this case is very focused on responding to existing litigation. And that existing litigation of a former affiliate, as of a few months ago, and a pending appeal that could make it a current affiliate, is located in the Northern District of Texas.

The judge in the Northern District of Texas has done a tremendous amount of work and has done -- issued a number of opinions, had a number of trials. That work creates a familiarity with the facts, issues, and players in a case which, while it may not affect the actual decision based on evidence on a motion-by-motion basis, certainly could color a judge's approach to a case.

Judges are human. Judges make judgments over time as to the parties, as to the lawyers. That's not inappropriate, as long as you stick by the rules of evidence. But it certainly can color what credibility you might give to a witness or to counsel.

I think here we have a situation where the real gravitas of this case is in Dallas. The two facts that really come out to me are, in this case, the fact that the executive suite is very focused and very Dallas-oriented. It's a global empire, but it's clearly focused in Dallas. And the existing litigation in the Acis bankruptcy that's been going on for some time; those are the two predominant factors.

Everything else kind of falls away. The creditors are scattered. The assets are scattered. The economic administration isn't being affected one way or the other. I mean, people can get on planes and you can go to Philly or you can go to Dallas. Either way, you're stuck on American Airlines. But so be it.

It can be done. And as a result, I think that the best solution here, to give the debtors a fair shot at reorganization, but to balance the creditors' rights and the creditors' desires, is to move the case to Texas.

And on that latter point, just to finish up. As I said with my previous decision in EFH, it was striking in that case that only one creditor moved to transfer venue and that none of the other creditors either actively opposed or simply stayed silent with regard to that motion, including significant creditors, like the official committee.

In this case, we have the opposite. We have the debtor defending its venue choice, of course. But there's a lot of silence, because there's no one else on that side. I thought it highly significant that Jefferies and -- is it Fortress?

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: Frontier.

THE COURT: Frontier, thank you. That Jefferies and Frontier did not take a position. And no other creditors opposed the committee's motion. And the committee consists of a series of very large creditors.

So I think that given these facts and circumstances, particularly the unique nature of the ongoing litigation and the existing tie to Dallas, the executive suite and management, principal place of business, if you will, being focused in Dallas, and creditors -- as Counsel said -- voting with their feet to move the case to Dallas, and applying just a good old fashioned preponderance of the evidence standard, that the Court should grant the motion, which I will do.

Now, I need an order. And we will get the machinery in place, as soon as I get the order signed, to transfer the file as quickly as possible.

I did call Judge Jernigan prior -- right before I came out -- well, right before I went and got lunch and then came out -- to inform her what I was going to do, so the Dallas court is aware that this is -- that this is an issue that's coming their way.

Is there anything -- I'm not going to create a lot of law of the case for Judge Jernigan on matters that don't need to be decided today. Is there anything the parties actually agree on that needs to go forward today or can go forward today? If not, I'd rather just save everything for Judge Jernigan to have a fresh look at. I know that she did mention that she has availability on her calendar over the next several weeks. So you should be able to get on it rather quickly, once the case gets transferred.

We used to send big boxes in the mail to do this, but

UNITED STATES TRUSTEE'S MOTION FOR AN ORDER DIRECTING THE APPOINTMENT OF A CHAPTER 11 TRUSTEE

A hearing will be held on January 21, 2020. The objection and response deadlines will be governed by the Scheduling Order, ECF No. 269. The Court orally denied the U.S. Trustee's request to have this motion considered in connection with any Governance Motion. See Scheduling Order, ECF. No. 269 and transcript.

TO THE HONORABLE STACEY G.C. JERNIGAN,
UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY JUDGE:

The United States Trustee for Region 6 moves for an order directing the appointment of a Chapter 11 Trustee based on cause and the best interests of the creditors. 11 U.S.C. § 1104(a).

The United States Trustee would show:

Overview

Documented management concerns mandate a trustee in this case. This Court has recognized that Highland's management concerns involve a culture that surpasses the officers and board. Steps such as replacing the board or having a chief restructuring officer who reports to the Court rather do not fix Highland's problems.

Prior efforts to use external oversight to curtail Highland management's self-dealing have failed. As the Acis case demonstrated, the Highland Capital cases have many inter-connected relationships. A trustee can nimbly evaluate whether the inter-company transactions are in the best interests of the estate and creditors. In the Acis case, the trustee concluded other options were either superior, cheaper, or less-conflicted. A board is farther from the impact of the related-entity transactions and the culture of the debtor. It meets periodically. Here, the inter-connected relationships include the Debtor's bank as well as other legal entities.

The remedy Congress defined for these facts is a trustee. The Court should direct the appointment of a trustee.

Jurisdiction, Power, and Standing

1. The Court has subject matter jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1334, 28 U.S.C. § 157(a)(1), and the standing order of reference. Appointing a trustee or examiner impacts the case administration and therefore is a core matter that the Court has the power to resolve. 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(A).

2. The United States Trustee has standing to seek appointment of a trustee or examiner. 11 U.S.C. §§ 307, 1104.

Facts

The Acis case involved findings of fraud, self-dealing, and mismanagement by this debtor:

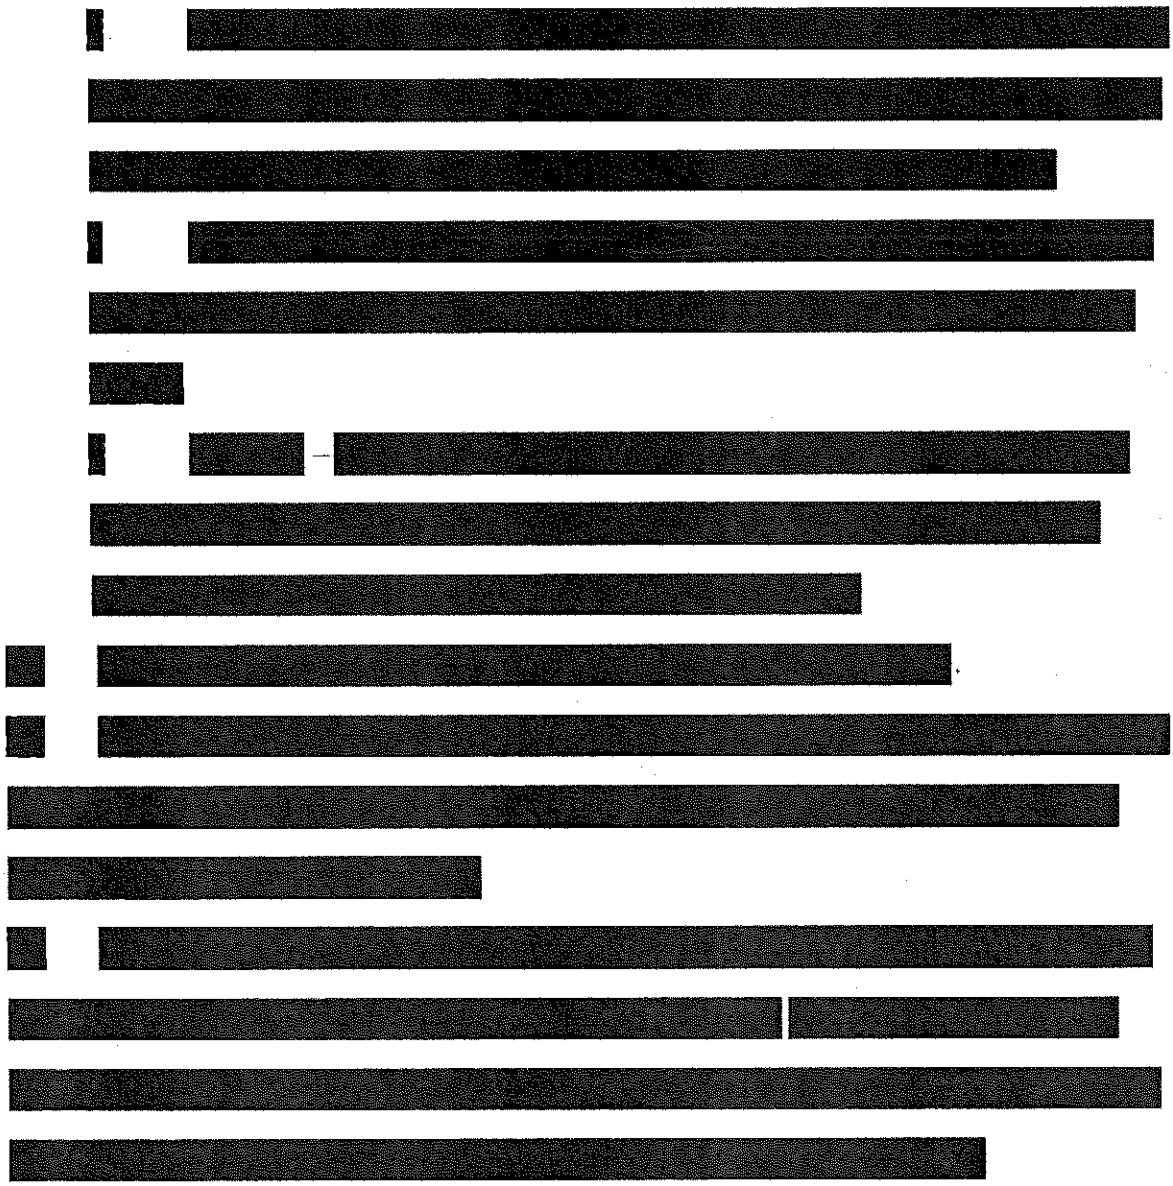
3. This Court presided over the Acis bankruptcy case, case number 18-30264. In Acis, the Court catalogued the decision-making authority as belonging to James Dondero, as president; Mark K. Akada, chief investment officer with a decreasing role; Frank Waterhouse, as treasurer; and –by delegation of authority – Highland in-house counsel Scott Levington and Isaac Leventon. With the exception of Mark K. Akada, the same individuals have decision-making authority for the debtor-in-possession. In re Acis Capital Mgmt., Inc., 584 B.R. 115, 119, 131. The Court found the Acis witnesses' testimony "of questionable reliability and, oftentimes, there seemed to be an effort to convey plausible deniability." Acis, 584 B.R. at 131.

4. "[S]ince the arbitration award [in favor of Terry, the petitioning creditor], there has been a calculated effort (largely by Highland) to effectively liquidate the Alleged [Acis] Debtors." Acis, 584 B.R. at 148. The Court found the Alleged Debtors were "really out to protect –Highland and Highland-affiliates" in contravention of their fiduciary duties of loyalty. Acis, 584 B.R. at 149.

5. In addition to finding breaches of fiduciary duty when Highland promoted its self-interests over those of Acis creditors, the Court found "evidence of both intentional and constructive fraudulent transfers." In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., 2019 WL 417149, at *11 (confirmation opinion also referencing "actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud").

6. After the Court directed the appointment of the Acis chapter 11 trustee, the chapter 11 trustee found service providers unrelated to Highland entities. These providers were cheaper and decreased conflicts.

The following section is redacted to honor the interim sealing order. The United States Trustee has simultaneously filed an objection to the motion to seal.



Prior Efforts to Cabin Highland Capital Management's Self-Dealing and Other Willful and Intentional Acts Have Failed.

14. Highland has been found to engage in self-dealing and other misconduct for years. The prior efforts to remediate and change the culture have failed.

15. In 2014, the SEC determined that Highland had historically engaged in multiple transactions in its client advisory accounts without disclosing that Highland was acting as principal or obtaining client consent before the trades were completed. The SEC required

Highland to retain an outside compliance consultant and to implement that consultant's recommendations.

16. [redacted]

17. Cumulatively, the findings of this Court and other tribunals establish that the problems exist in the management culture at Highland. These problems go beyond the officers and directors.

18. The general partner of Highland is controlled by Dondero.

19. Moreover, the integrated nature of the board for Highland-related entities allows for the possibility that individuals removed from the board and from management may still monitor the financial transactions and use their relationships with the Highland's employees to direct outcomes. For example, Highland proposes to bank, in part, with NexBank. The NexBank website reflects that Dondero chairs the board and Okada is a director. Similarly, Highland Management, the debtor, has intercompany transactions with Highland Capital Management Korea Limited, Highland Capital Management Latin America, L.P., and Highland Capital Management (Singapore) Pte Ltd.

Legal Analysis and Argument

20. The United States Trustee is charged with monitoring the federal bankruptcy system. See 28 U.S.C. § 586(a)(3); see also United States Trustee v. Columbia Gas Sys., Inc. (In re Columbia Gas Sys., Inc.) 33 F.3d 294, 295-96 (3d Cir. 1994).

21. Before confirmation, the Court "shall order the appointment of a trustee . . . for cause, including fraud, dishonesty, incompetence, or gross mismanagement of the affairs of the debtor by current management, either before or after the commencement of the case, or similar cause." 11 U.S.C. §1104(a)(1) (emphasis added). In addition, by adding appointment of a trustee as a remedy in section 1112, "cause" also may be factors traditionally resulting in dismissal or conversion. 11 U.S.C. §1112(b)(1). Here, an additional factor is "bad faith." Alternatively, the Court must appoint a trustee "if such appointment is in the interest of the creditors, any equity security holders, and other interests of the estate." 11 U.S.C. § 1104(a)(2).

22. The Fifth Circuit has indicated that the burden of proof for the appointment of a trustee is "clear and convincing" evidence, but the Court later adopted the dissent's opinion. Cajun Elec. Co. v. Louisiana Elec. Co. (In re Cajun Electric Power Co-Op, Inc.), 69 F.3d 746, on reh'g, 74 F.3d 599 (5th Cir. 1996) (adopting dissent).[1]

23. The duties of a trustee are defined in section 1106, and the Court has the ability to tailor some of them. 11 U.S.C. § 1106(a).

24. The "cause" to appoint an examiner or a trustee may be a reason other than the enumerated factors. Oklahoma Ref. Co. v. Blaik (In re Oklahoma Ref. Co.), 838 F.2d 1133, 1136 (10th Cir. 1988); cf. Little Creek Dev. Corp. v. Commonwealth Mortg. Corp. (In re Little Creek Dev. Corp.), 779 F.2d 1068, 1072 (5th Cir. 1986) (defining "cause" in context of dismissal statute).

25. For example, courts have appointed trustees or examiners when the debtor's insiders have conflicts of interest arising from the sale of the Debtor's assets. In Cajun Electric, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the appointment of a trustee, in part, because the co-operative members were interested in purchasing part or all of Cajun Electric's assets. Cajun Elec. Power Cooperative, Inc. v. Central Louisiana Elec. Co., Inc. (In re Cajun Elec. Power Cooperative, Inc.), 69 F.3d 746, 751 (5th Cir. 1995) (Garza, J., dissenting), adopted as majority opinion on reh'g, 74 F.3d 599 (5th Cir. 1996). The Fifth Circuit held that "a trustee may be the only effective way to pursue reorganization" when the management has cross-purposes. Cajun Elec., 69 F.2d at 751.

Cause exists to appoint a chapter 11 trustee:

26. Here, both express statutory standards and the common law case standards for "cause" exist. Specifically, "fraud, dishonesty, incompetence, or gross mismanagement of the affairs of the debtor" and bad faith exist under the facts of this case.[2]

27. The record regarding a series of self-dealing categories reflects both incompetence and gross mismanagement. SEC Judgment, pp. 5-7.

28. Other "cause" exists to appoint a trustee because tribunals have historically found the management's testimony unreliable and the Debtor's actions as reflecting willfulness and intent. This Court has found that the Debtor's management had fraudulent intent when it removed assets from Acis.

It is in the best interests of creditors to appoint a chapter 11 trustee.

29. Appointment of chapter 11 trustee is also in the interests of creditors, equity security holders, and other interests of the estate. The Court should direct the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee to serve the "interests of creditors, any equity security holders, and other interests of the estate." 11 U.S.C. §1104(a)(2).

[2] "The United States trustee shall move for the appointment of a trustee under subsection (a) if there are reasonable grounds to suspect that current members of the governing body of the debtor, the debtor's chief executive officer . . . participated in actual fraud, dishonesty, or criminal conduct in the management of the debtor or the debtor's public financial reporting." 11 U.S.C. §1104(e).

30. First, it is in the best interest of the creditors to have an independent trustee to assume control over the estate in order to evaluate any alter ego claims, avoidance actions, and other tort claims.

31. Second, it is in the best interest of the creditors and other parties-in-interest to have accurate financial information. Accurate financial information ensures parties understand the facts of the case and avoids post-petition liabilities for violations. Like the information provided to investors in securities filings, the information provided in a bankruptcy case depends on affirmative disclosure.

32. Other efforts to check or monitor the Debtor's management have failed. The Acis trustee's actions reflect a need to be able to bid competing services and replace related-entities when conflicts of interest or cost concerns arise.

33. Congress has defined the remedy for the facts of this case. "The court shall order the appointment of a trustee." 11 U.S.C. § 1104(a).

Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, the United States Trustee requests the Court to a order the United States Trustee to appoint a Chapter 11 Trustee; or b grant to the United States Trustee such other and further relief as is just and proper.

Counsel and Proposed Counsel for the Debtor and Debtor in Possession

IN THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
DALLAS DIVISION

In re:	§	Chapter 11
HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P.,[1]	§	Case No. 19-34054-sgj11
Debtor.	§

MOTION OF THE DEBTOR FOR APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENT WITH THE OFFICIAL COMMITTEE OF UNSECURED CREDITORS REGARDING GOVERNANCE OF THE DEBTOR AND PROCEDURES FOR OPERATIONS IN THE ORDINARY COURSE

The above-captioned debtor and debtor in possession (the "Debtor") files this motion (the "Motion") for the entry of an order (the "Order") approving the terms of a settlement between the Debtor and the Committee (as defined below) regarding governance of the Debtor and procedures for operations in the ordinary course of business, as embodied in the term sheet attached hereto as Exhibit A (the "Term Sheet"). In support of this Motion, the Debtor respectfully represents as follows:

Preliminary Statement

1. Following weeks of negotiations, the Debtor and the Committee have reached a proposed settlement, which contemplates the creation of a new independent board of directors (the "Independent Directors") at Strand Advisors, Inc. ("Strand"), the Debtor's general partner and ultimate party in control, and the implementation of certain protocols governing the operation of the Debtor's business in the ordinary course. The Independent Directors will consist of the following three highly qualified and independent individuals: James Seery, John Dubel, and a third director to be selected by or otherwise acceptable to the Committee.[2] Two of the Independent Directors were chosen by the Committee and the third Independent Director will be selected by or otherwise acceptable to the Committee. Background information for each of the Independent Directors is attached hereto as Exhibit B.

2. Pursuant to the Term Sheet, and effective upon entry of the Order, James Dondero will no longer be a director, officer, managing member, or employee of the Debtor or Strand and will have no authority, directly or indirectly, to act on the Debtor's behalf. Going forward, the Independent Directors, through Strand, will have sole and exclusive management and control of the Debtor. The Independent Directors will have the discretion to appoint an interim

[2] The Committee's agreement to the Term Sheet in its entirety is contingent upon the selection of a third Independent Director acceptable to the Committee. In the event the Committee and the Debtor cannot reach an agreement on an acceptable Independent Director to fill the third seat of the Board of Directors, the Term Sheet shall be null and void.

Chief Executive Officer (the "CEO") who will manage the Debtor's day-to-day business operations. Subject to Court approval, the Debtor still intends to retain Development Specialists, Inc. ("DSI") to provide a Chief Restructuring Officer (the "CRO") that will serve at the direction of the Independent Directors (or CEO, if appointed).

3. It bears emphasis that the Independent Directors will not be mere figureheads. The Debtor and the Committee envision that the Independent Directors will be actively involved and intimately familiar with all material aspects of the Debtor's business and restructuring efforts. Moreover, with guidance of the CRO and CEO (if appointed), the Independent Directors will endeavor to prevent any negative influence Mr. Dondero or any of his affiliates or agents may have on the Debtor and its employees. Further, as part of the Term Sheet, the Committee will be granted standing to pursue estate claims against Mr. Dondero and other former insiders of the Debtor who were not employed by the Debtor as of the execution of the Term Sheet. The Committee will also retain the right to move for a chapter 11 trustee.

4. In sum, the Term Sheet resolves months of litigation between the Debtor and the Committee over the Debtor's governance structure and operating protocols, allowing all parties to refocus on a path forward for this chapter 11 case. With the Independent Directors in place, the Debtor can move forward expeditiously, efficiently, and effectively with the substantive aspects of this case and consider any available restructuring options that will maximize value for all constituents. The Debtor therefore urges the Court to approve the Term Sheet and allow the key economic interest holders to proceed with a productive restructuring effort.

Jurisdiction and Venue

5. The United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division (the "Court") has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. This matter is a core proceeding within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2).

6. Venue is proper pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409.

7. The statutory bases for the relief requested herein are sections 105(a) and 363 of the Bankruptcy Code and Rule 9019 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the "Bankruptcy Rules").

Background

8. On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the "Delaware Court").

9. To assist and coordinate the restructuring process, the Debtor retained DSI and Bradley D. Sharp to serve as the CRO on October 7, 2019. On October 29, 2019, the Debtor filed the Motion of the Debtor Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a) and 363(b) to Employ and Retain Development Specialists, Inc. to Provide a Chief Restructuring Officer, Additional Personnel, and Financial Advisory and Restructuring Related Services, Nunc Pro Tunc as of the Petition Date [Docket No. 74] (the "CRO Motion") seeking to formally retain the CRO. The CRO Motion remains pending, and the Debtor is filing a supplement to the CRO Motion concurrently herewith.

10. On October 29, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the "Committee") was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in the Delaware Court. On November 12, 2019, the Committee filed an omnibus objection to the CRO Motion, cash management motion, and motion for approval of ordinary course protocols [Docket No. 130] (the "Committee Objection"), raising various concerns regarding the Debtor's governance and business practices.

11. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the Debtor's bankruptcy case to this Court [Docket No. 186].[3] The Debtor has continued in the possession of its property and has continued to operate and manage its business as a debtor in possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. No trustee or examiner has been appointed in this chapter 11 case.

12. On December 23, 2019, the U.S. Trustee filed a motion in this Court to appoint a chapter 11 trustee for the Debtor [Docket No. 271] (the "Trustee Motion"). Although the Debtor will be filing a separate response to the Trustee Motion, it suffices to say that the Trustee Motion (filed without even considering the proposed Term Sheet) completely lacks merit given the governance changes and other resolutions encompassed in the Term Sheet agreed to by the Committee, as the representative of the primary economic stakeholders here.

Terms of the Proposed Settlement

13. Pursuant to the Term Sheet, the Debtor and the Committee have agreed to: (a) implement certain changes to the Debtor's governance, including the appointment of the Independent Directors; (b) provide the Committee with additional transparency into the operation of the Debtor's business; (c) retain the CRO on updated terms; and (d) implement certain protocols governing the ordinary course business operations of the Debtor. The terms of this agreement are contained in the Term Sheet.[4] A summary of the Term Sheet is as follows:

[3] All docket numbers refer to the docket maintained by this Court.

[4] In the event of any inconsistency between the summary of the Term Sheet contained herein and the Term Sheet, the Term Sheet will govern.

Independent Directors

The Debtor's general partner, Strand will appoint the following three (3) Independent Directors: James Seery, John Dubel, and a third director to be selected by or otherwise acceptable to the Committee. The Independent Directors will be granted exclusive control over the Debtor and its operations. Among other things, the Independent Directors shall conduct a review of all current employees as soon as practicable following the Independent Directors' appointment, determine whether and which employees should be subject to a key employee retention plan and/or key employee incentive plan and, if applicable, propose plan(s) covering such employees. The appointment and powers of the Independent Directors and the corporate governance structure shall be pursuant to the documents attached to the Term Sheet (the "Governing Documents"), which documents shall be satisfactory to the Committee. Once appointed, the Independent Directors (i) cannot be removed without the Committee's written consent or Order of the Court, and (ii) may be removed and replaced at the Committee's direction upon approval of the Court (subject in all respects to the right of any party in interest, including the Debtor and the Independent Directors, to object to such removal and replacement).

The Independent Directors shall be compensated in a manner to be determined, with an understanding that the source of funding, whether directly or via reimbursement, will be the Debtor.

As soon as practicable after their appointments, the Independent Directors shall, in consultation with the Committee, determine whether a CEO should be appointed for the Debtor. If the Independent Directors determine that appointment of a CEO is appropriate, the Independent Directors shall appoint a CEO acceptable to the Committee as soon as practicable, which may be one of the Independent Directors. Once appointed, the CEO cannot be removed without the Committee's written consent or Order of the Court.

The Committee shall have regular, direct access to the Independent Directors, provided, however that (1) if the communications include FTI Consulting Inc. ("FTI"), Development Specialists Inc. ("DSI") shall also participate in such communications; and (2) if the communications include counsel, then either Debtor's counsel or, if retained, counsel to the Independent Directors shall also participate in such communications.

Role of Mr. James Dondero	Upon approval of the Term Sheet by the Bankruptcy Court, Mr. Dondero will (1) resign from his position as a Board of Director of Strand Advisors, Inc., (2) resign as an officer of Strand Advisors, Inc., and (3) resign as an employee of the Debtor.
CRO	Bradley Sharp and DSI shall, subject to approval of the Court, be retained as the CRO to the Debtor and report to and be directed by the Independent Directors and, if and once appointed, the CEO. Mr. Sharp's and DSI's retention is subject to this Court's approval. The Debtor has filed the CRO Motion, as supplemented as of the date hereof, which requests authority to retain Mr. Sharp and DSI.[5] DSI and all other Debtor professionals shall serve at the direction of the CEO, if any, and the Independent Directors.
Estate Claims	The Committee is granted standing to pursue any and all estate claims and causes of action against Mr. Dondero, Mr. Mark Okada, other insiders of the Debtor, and each of the Related Entities, including any promissory notes held by any of the foregoing (collectively, the "Estate Claims"); provided, however, that the term Estate Claims will not include any estate claim or cause of action against any then-current employee of the Debtor.
Document Management, Preservation, and Production	The Debtor shall be subject to and comply with the document management, preservation, and production requirements attached to the Term Sheet, which requirements cannot be modified without the consent of the Committee or Court order (the "Document Production Protocol"). Solely with respect to the investigation and pursuit of Estate Claims, the document production protocol will acknowledge that the Committee will have access to the privileged documents and communications that are within the Debtor's possession, custody, or control ("Shared Privilege"). With respect to determining if any particular document is subject to the Shared Privilege, the following process shall be followed: (i) the Committee will request documents from the Debtor, (ii) the Debtor shall log all documents requested but withheld on the basis of privilege, (iii) the Debtor shall not withhold documents it understands to be subject to the Shared Privilege; (iv) the Committee will identify each additional document on the log that the Committee believes is subject to the Shared Privilege, and (v) a special master or other third party neutral agreed to by the Committee and the Debtor shall make a determination if such documents are subject to the Shared Privilege. The Committee further agrees that the production of any particular document by the Debtor under this process will not be used as a basis for a claim of subject matter waiver.

Reporting Requirements	The Debtor shall be subject to and comply with the reporting requirements attached to the Term Sheet, which reporting requirements cannot be modified without the consent of the Committee or Court order (the "Reporting Requirements").
Plan Exclusivity	The Independent Directors may elect to waive the Debtor's exclusive right to file a plan under section 1121 of the Bankruptcy Code.
Operating Protocols	The Debtor shall comply with the operating protocols attached to the Term Sheet, regarding the Debtor's operation in the ordinary course of business, which protocols cannot be modified without the consent of the Committee or Court order (the "Operating Protocols" and, together with the Reporting Requirements, the "Protocols").

14. By this Motion, the Debtor is seeking the Court's approval of the Term Sheet, the terms contained therein, and the exhibits attached thereto. For the avoidance of doubt, approval of the Term Sheet includes the approval of the following:

- Independent Directors: The appointment of James Seery, John Dubel, and a third director to be selected by or otherwise acceptable to the Committee as the Independent Directors of Strand, the Debtor's general partner, with power to oversee the operations of the Debtor as set forth in the Term Sheet. Mr. Seery and Mr. Dubel were selected by the Committee, and the Debtor agreed to their appointment as Independent Directors. The Debtor is also seeking approval of the Governing Documents appointing the Independent Directors, to the extent required, and the authority to compensate the Independent Directors either directly from the assets of the Debtor or via the reimbursement of Strand of any compensation paid to the Independent Directors.

- Document Management and Preservation: The implementation of the Document Production Protocol, which will govern how the Debtor retains and produces documents and information to the Committee during the pendency of its bankruptcy case. The Debtor is also agreeing to the allow the Committee to access certain documents that are otherwise subject to the Shared Privilege to assist the Debtor in investigating the Estate Claims.

- Estate Claims. The Debtor has agreed to grant the Committee standing to pursue any Estate Claims. Estate Claims do not include claims or causes of action against any current employees of the Debtor; however, if any employee ceases to be employed by the Debtor, the Committee will have standing to pursue claims against such former employee.

- Reporting Requirements and Operating Protocols: The Debtor has agreed to provide certain reporting to the Committee and to operate under certain protocols, which set forth the parameters of how the Debtor can conduct its business without the requirement of Court approval. The Protocols provide, in certain circumstances, how the CRO and the Independent Directors will oversee the Debtor's operations. The purpose of the Protocols is to allow the Debtor to function in the ordinary course of its business while providing transparency to the Committee.

15. The Debtor believes that appointing the Independent Directors and otherwise effectuating the terms of the Term Sheet is in the best interests of the Debtor, its estate, and its creditors. The Term Sheet will allow the Debtor to proceed with a productive reorganization effort that will maximize value for all constituents. Accordingly, the Debtor seeks approval of the Term Sheet.

Relief Requested

16. By this Motion, the Debtor seeks entry of an order pursuant to sections 105(a), 363(b)(1), and 363(c)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code and Bankruptcy Rule 9019: (a) approving the Debtor's settlement with the Committee as set forth in the Term Sheet and outlined herein; (b) authorizing the Debtor to take any action as may be reasonably required to effectuate the terms of the Term Sheet, including entering into the Governing Documents and compensating – either directly or through reimbursement – the Independent Directors; (c) granting the Committee standing to pursue the Estate Claims; and (d) granting related relief.

Authority for the Relief Requested

A. Section 363(c)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code Authorizes the Debtor to Enter Into Certain Aspects of the Term Sheet in the Ordinary Course

17. Because the Debtor is not settling any claims or causes of action through the Term Sheet or otherwise expending estate resources, the Debtor believes that it has the authority to effectuate the majority of the transactions and compromises set forth in the Term Sheet without Court approval under section 363(c)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code. Specifically, section 363(c)(1) provides:

> [i]f the business of the debtor is authorized to be operated under section. . . 1108. . . of this title. . . the trustee may enter into transactions, including the sale or lease of property of the estate, in the ordinary course of business, without notice or a hearing, and may use property of the estate in the ordinary course of business without notice or a hearing.

11 U.S.C. § 363(c)(1). As such, a debtor may engage in postpetition actions if the debtor is authorized to operate its business under section 1108 and such transactions are "in the ordinary course of business."

18. An activity is "ordinary course" if it satisfies both the "horizontal test" and the "vertical test." See, e.g., Denton Cty. Elec. Coop. v. Eldorado Ranch, Ltd. (In re Denton Cty. Elec. Coop.), 281 B.R. 876, 882 n.12 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2002); see also In re Roth American, Inc., 975 F.2d 949, 952 (3d Cir. 1992). The vertical test looks to "whether the transaction subjects a hypothetical creditor to a different economic risk than existed when the creditor originally extended credit." In re Patriot Place, Ltd., 486 B.R. 773, 793 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 2013). The horizontal test considers "whether the transaction was of the sort commonly undertaken by companies in the industry." Id. Here, both the vertical test and horizontal test are satisfied.

19. Under the Term Sheet, the Debtor is seeking authority to (a) appoint the Independent Directors at Strand (a non-debtor entity), (b) have Mr. Dondero removed from his role at the Debtor and Strand; (c) agree to seek the retention of the CRO under a revised engagement letter that provides that the CRO will report to the Independent Directors; (d) grant the Committee standing to pursue the Estate Claims; (e) enter into and implement the Document Production Protocols; (f) grant the Independent Directors the exclusive right to determine whether to waive exclusivity; and (g) enter into and implement the Protocols. Only the compensation of the Independent Directors, the entrance into the Protocols (which provide the Committee with certain right to object to the Debtor engaging in a "Transaction" (as defined in the Protocols) and allow the Debtor to seek a hearing before this Court on an expedited basis), and the grant of standing to the Committee to pursue Estate Claims could be construed as outside of the ordinary course of business. The balance of the terms of the Term Sheet either involve non-debtors[6] or will be the subject of separate motions seeking Court approval at the appropriate time.

B. The Court Should Approve the Term Sheet Under Rule 9019 of the Bankruptcy Code

20. Although the Debtor believes that it has authority to implement the majority of the Term Sheet in the ordinary course of its business under section 363(c), the Debtor is seeking this Court's approval of the Term Sheet under section 105 of the Bankruptcy Code and Rule 9019 of the Bankruptcy Rules out of an abundance of caution. Section 105(a) of the Bankruptcy Code provides in relevant part that "[t]he court may issue any order, process, or judgment that is necessary or appropriate to carry out the provisions of this title." 11 U.S.C. § 105(a). Section 105(a) has been interpreted to expressly empower bankruptcy courts with broad equitable powers to "craft flexible remedies that, while not expressly authorized by the Code, effect the result the Code was designed to obtain." Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors of Cybergenics Corp. ex rel. Cybergenics Corp. v. Chinery, 330 F.3d 548, 568 (3d Cir. 2003) (en banc); see also Southmark Corp. v. Grosz (In re Southmark Corp.), 49 F.3d 1111, 1116 (5th Cir. 1995) (stating that section 105(a) of the Bankruptcy Code "authorizes bankruptcy courts to fashion such orders as are necessary to further the substantive provisions of the Code").

21. Bankruptcy Rule 9019 governs the procedural prerequisites to approval of a settlement, providing that:

> On motion by the trustee and after notice and a hearing, the court may approve a compromise or settlement. Notice shall be given to creditors, the United States trustee, the debtor, and indenture trustees as provided in Rule 2002 and to any other entity as the court may direct.

Fed. R. Bankr. P. 9019(a).

22. Settlements in bankruptcy are favored as a means of minimizing litigation, expediting the administration of the bankruptcy estate, and providing for the efficient resolution of bankruptcy cases. Myers v. Martin (In re Martin), 91 F.3d 389, 393 (3d Cir. 1996); see also Rivercity v. Herpel (In re Jackson Brewing Co.), 624 F.2d 599, 602 (5th Cir. 1980). Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019(a), a bankruptcy court may, after appropriate notice and a hearing, approve a compromise or settlement so long as the proposed settlement is fair, reasonable, and in the best interest of the estate. See In re Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d 530, 540 (5th Cir. 2015). Ultimately, "approval of a compromise is within the sound discretion of the bankruptcy court." See United States v. AWECO, Inc. (In re AWECO, Inc.), 725 F.2d 293, 297 (5th Cir. 1984); Jackson Brewing, 624 F.2d at 602–03.

23. In making this determination, the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit applies a three-party test, "with a focus on comparing 'the terms of the compromise with the rewards of litigation.'" Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors v. Cajun Elec. Power Coop. by & through Mabey (In re Cajun Elec. Power Coop.), 119 F. 3d 349, 356 (5th Cir. 1997) (citing Jackson Brewing, 624 F.2d at 602). The Fifth Circuit has instructed courts to consider the following factors: "(1) The probability of success in the litigation, with due consideration for the uncertainty of law and fact, (2) The complexity and likely duration of the litigation and any attendant expense, inconvenience and delay, and (3) All other factors bearing on the wisdom of the compromise." Id.

24. Under the rubric of the third factor referenced above, the Fifth Circuit has specified two additional factors that bear on the decision to approve a proposed settlement. First, the court should consider "the paramount interest of creditors with proper deference to their reasonable views." Id.; Conn. Gen. Life Ins. Co. v. United Cos. Fin. Corp. (In re Foster Mortg. Corp.), 68 F.3d 914, 917 (5th Cir. 1995). Second, the court should consider the "extent to which the settlement is truly the product of arms-length bargaining, and not of fraud or collusion." Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d at 540; Foster Mortg. Corp., 68 F.3d at 918 (citations omitted).

25. Here, the Debtor submits that effectuating the transactions set forth in the Term Sheet satisfies the Fifth Circuit's three-part test. The settlement embodied in the Term Sheet was driven in large part by the Debtor's creditors and has the support of the Committee, which consists of the Debtor's principal creditors. The Term Sheet was negotiated at arm's length, and there was no fraud or collusion in its negotiation. The settlement is also fair and reasonable and in the best interests of the Debtor's estate and also resolves the open disputes regarding the CRO Motion, the Motion of Debtor for Interim and Final Orders Authorizing (A) Continuance of Existing Cash Management System, (B) Continued Use of the Prime Account, (C) Limited Waiver, as supplemented [Docket Nos. 51 & 259], and Precautionary Motion of the Debtor for Order Approving Protocols for the Debtor to Implement Certain Transactions in the Ordinary Course of Business [Docket No. 76].

26. The Debtor and members of the Committee have been entangled in highly contentious litigation that has spanned many years and multiple venues. As evidenced by the brief history of the Debtor's bankruptcy case,[7] that contention and mistrust has carried over into this proceeding and could derail any chance that the Debtor has to successfully reorganize and structure a plan to pay its creditors. The governance and operational changes set forth in the Term Sheet, will provide greater transparency to the Committee and start the process of rebuilding the trust necessary to negotiate a successful resolution of this case. Without the Term Sheet, the Debtor anticipates that the Committee would move to appoint a chapter 11 trustee and the U.S. Trustee has already done so (without even seeing the Term Sheet). The Debtor will contest such motions because the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee could gravely harm the Debtor's business. The implementation of the Term Sheet will head off any potential issues that could arise, eliminate costly, time consuming and uncertain litigation, and give the Debtor sufficient breathing room to work towards rebuilding trust with its creditor body and allow the Debtor to exit bankruptcy and preserve the value of its business. The Debtor's bankruptcy case has been pending for over two and a half months, and it is time for the parties to put the acrimony that marked the initial stages of this case behind them and to move forward in a productive manner – precisely what the Term Sheet seeks to accomplish.

[7] See, e.g., Declaration of Frank Waterhouse in Support of First Day Motions [Docket No. 11], Motion of the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors for an Order Transferring Venue of this Case to the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas [Docket No. 85], Omnibus Objection of the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors to the Debtor's (I) Motion for Final Order Authorizing Continuance of the Existing Cash Management System, (II) Motion to Employ and Retain Development Specialists, Inc. to Provide a Chief Restructuring Officers, and (III) Precautionary Motion for Approval of Protocol for "Ordinary Course" Transactions [Docket No. 130], and United States Trustee's Motion for an Order Directing the Appointment of a Chapter 11 Trustee [Docket No. 271].

C. Consummating the Settlement Agreement is a Sound Exercise of the Debtors' Business Judgment.

27. Section 363(b)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code authorizes a debtor in possession to "use, sell, or lease, other than in the ordinary course of business, property of the estate," after notice and a hearing. It is well established in this jurisdiction that a debtor may use property of the estate outside the ordinary course of business under this provision if there is a good business reason for doing so. See, e.g., ASARCO, Inc. v. Elliott Mgmt. (In re ASARCO, L.L.C.), 650 F.3d 593, 601 (5th Cir. 2011) ("[F]or the debtor-in-possession or trustee to satisfy its fiduciary duty to the debtor, creditors, and equity holders, there must be some articulated business justification for using, selling, or leasing the property outside the ordinary course of business.") (quoting In re Cont'l Air Lines, Inc., 780 F.3d 1223, 1226 (5th Cir. 1986)); 441 B.R. 813, 830 (Bankr. S.D. Tex.

2010); GBL Holding Co., Inc. v. Blackburn/Travis/Cole, Ltd. (In re State Park Bldg. Grp., Ltd.), 331 B.R. 251, 254 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2005).

28. The transactions contemplated by the Term Sheet are within the sound business judgment of the Debtor. The Term Sheet resolves potentially costly and protracted litigation with the Committee over the Debtor's corporate governance and will give the Debtor the breathing room necessary to negotiate and effectuate the terms of a plan acceptable to the Debtor's creditors. Further, providing standing to the Committee to investigate Estate Claims and the payment of the Independent Directors from the assets of the estate are each necessary components of the Term Sheet. The Committee would not have agreed to the Term Sheet without the grant of standing to investigate Estate Claims. Moreover, Strand, a non-debtor, is unable to cover the costs of the Independent Directors. As such, there is a good business reason for the Debtor's payment of the Independent Directors' compensation: the Term Sheet and the appointment of the Independent Directors would not have been agreed to or possible without that condition.[8] The foregoing is sufficient grounds to approve the Term Sheet and authorize the Debtor to effectuate the terms of the Term Sheet under Section 363(b)(1).

No Prior Request

29. No previous request for the relief sought herein has been made to this, or any other, Court.

[8] Further, although the Debtor seeks to reimburse Strand for the cost of the Independent Directors, the Debtor is otherwise obligated to reimburse Strand for any costs or expenses incurred by Strand in its management of the Debtor. See Fourth Amended and Restated Agreement of Limited Partnership of Highland Capital Management, L.P., § 3.10(b).

Notice

30. Notice of this Motion shall be given to the following parties or, in lieu thereof, to their counsel, if known: (a) the Office of the United States Trustee; (b) the Office of the United States Attorney for the Northern District of Texas; (c) the Debtor's principal secured parties; (d) counsel to the Committee; and (e) parties requesting notice pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 2002. The Debtor submits that, in light of the nature of the relief requested, no other or further notice need be given.

WHEREFORE, for the reasons set forth herein, the Debtor respectfully requests that the Court enter an Order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit C, (a) approving the Debtor's settlement with the Committee as set forth in the Term Sheet and outlined herein; (b) authorizing the Debtor to take any action as may be reasonably required to effectuate the terms of the Term Sheet, including entering into the Governing Documents and compensating – either directly or through reimbursement – the Independent Directors; and (c) granting related relief.

Counsel and Proposed Counsel for the Debtor and Debtor in Possession

Highland Capital Management, L.P.

Preliminary Term Sheet

This term sheet ("Term Sheet") outlines the principal terms of a proposed settlement between Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor") and the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the "Committee") in the chapter 11 case captioned In re Highland Capital Mgm't, L.P, Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ) (the "Chapter 11 Case"), pending in the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the "Bankruptcy Court"), to resolve a good faith dispute between the parties related to the Debtor's corporate governance, and specifically, the Committee's various objections to certain relief being sought by the Debtors in the Chapter 11 Case [Del. Docket No. 125]. This Term Sheet shall be subject to approval by the Bankruptcy Court.

Topic	Proposed Terms
Parties	Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor"). The Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Committee").
Independent Directors	The Debtor's general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc., will appoint the following three (3) independent directors (the "Independent Directors"): James Seery, John Dubel, and a third director to be selected by or otherwise acceptable to the Committee. The Independent Directors will be granted exclusive control over the Debtor and its operations. Among other things, the Independent Directors shall conduct a review of all current employees as soon as practicable following the Independent Directors' appointment, determine whether and which employees should be subject to a key employee retention plan and/or key employee incentive plan and, if applicable, propose plan(s) covering such employees. The appointment and powers of the Independent Directors and the corporate governance structure shall be pursuant to the documents attached hereto as Exhibit A, which documents shall be satisfactory to the Committee. Once appointed, the Independent Directors (i) cannot be removed without the Committee's written consent or Order of the Court, and (ii) may be removed and replaced at the Committee's direction upon approval of the Court (subject in all respects to the right of any party in interest, including the Debtor and the Independent Directors, to object to such removal and replacement). The Independent Directors shall be compensated in a manner to be determined with an understanding that the source of funding, whether directly or via reimbursement, will be the Debtor. As soon as practicable after their appointments, the Independent Directors shall, in consultation with the Committee, determine whether an interim Chief Executive Officer (the "CEO") should be appointed for the Debtor. If the Independent Directors determine that appointment of a CEO is appropriate, the Independent Directors shall appoint a CEO acceptable to the Committee as soon as practicable, which may be one of the Independent Directors. Once appointed, the CEO cannot be removed without the Committee's written consent or Order of the Court. The Committee shall have regular, direct access to the Independent Directors, provided, however that (1) if the communications include FTI Consulting Inc. ("FTI"), Development Specialists Inc. ("DSI") shall also participate in such communications; and (2) if the communications include counsel, then either Debtor's counsel or, if retained, counsel to the Independent Directors shall also participate in such communications.

Role of Mr. James Dondero	Upon approval of this Term Sheet by the Bankruptcy Court, Mr. Dondero will (1) resign from his position as a Board of Director of Strand Advisors, Inc., (2) resign as an officer of Strand Advisors, Inc., and (3) resign as an employee of the Debtor.
CRO	DSI shall, subject to approval of the Bankruptcy Court, be retained as chief restructuring officer ("CRO") to the Debtor and report to and be directed by the Independent Directors and, if and once appointed, the CEO. The retention and scope of duties of DSI shall be pursuant to the Further Amended Retention Agreement, attached hereto as Exhibit B. DSI and all other Debtor professionals shall serve at the direction of the CEO, if any, and the Independent Directors.
Estate Claims	The Committee is granted standing to pursue any and all estate claims and causes of action against Mr. Dondero, Mr. Okada, other insiders of the Debtor, and each of the Related Entities, including any promissory notes held by any of the foregoing (collectively, the "Estate Claims"); provided, however, that the term Estate Claims will not include any estate claim or cause of action against any then-current employee of the Debtor.

Document Management, Preservation, and Production	The Debtor shall be subject to and comply with the document management, preservation, and production requirements attached hereto as Exhibit C, which requirements cannot be modified without the consent of the Committee or Court order (the "Document Production Protocol"). Solely with respect to the investigation and pursuit of Estate Claims, the document production protocol will acknowledge that the Committee will have access to the privileged documents and communications that are within the Debtor's possession, custody, or control ("Shared Privilege"). With respect to determining if any particular document is subject to the Shared Privilege, the following process shall be followed: (i) the Committee will request documents from the Debtor, (ii) the Debtor shall log all documents requested but withheld on the basis of privilege, (iii) the Debtor shall not withhold documents it understands to be subject to the Shared Privilege; (iv) the Committee will identify each additional document on the log that the Committee believes is subject to the Shared Privilege, and (v) a special master or other third party neutral agreed to by the Committee and the Debtor shall make a determination if such documents are subject to the Shared Privilege. The Committee further agrees that the production of any particular document by the Debtor under this process will not be used as a basis for a claim of subject matter waiver.
Reporting Requirements	The Debtor shall be subject to and comply with the reporting requirements attached hereto as Exhibit D, which reporting requirements cannot be modified without the consent of the Committee or Court order (the "Reporting Requirements").
Plan Exclusivity	The Independent Directors may elect to waive the Debtor's exclusive right to file a plan under section 1121 of the Bankruptcy Code.
Operating Protocols	The Debtor shall comply with the operating protocols set forth in Exhibit D hereto, regarding the Debtor's operation in the ordinary course of business, which protocols cannot be modified without the consent of the Committee or Court order.

Reservation of Rights	This agreement is without prejudice to the Committee's rights to, among other things, seek the appointment of a trustee or examiner at a later date. Nothing herein shall constitute or be construed as a waiver of any right of the Debtor or any other party in interest to contest the appointment of a trustee or examiner, and all such rights are expressly reserved.

Re: Strand Advisors, Inc. – Director Agreement

Dear [_____]:

On behalf of Strand Advisors, Inc. (the "Company"), I am pleased to have you join the Company's Board of Directors. This letter sets forth the terms of the Director Agreement (the "Agreement") that the Company is offering to you.

1. APPOINTMENT TO THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

a. Title, Term and Responsibilities.

i. Subject to terms set forth herein, the Company agrees to appoint you to serve as a Director on the Company's Board of Directors (the "Board"), and you hereby accept such appointment the date you sign this Agreement (the "Effective Date"). You will serve as a Director of the Board from the Effective Date until you voluntarily resign, are removed from the Board, or are not re-elected (the "Term"). Your rights, duties and obligations as a Director shall be governed by the Certificate of Incorporation and Bylaws of the Company, each as amended from time to time (collectively, the "Governing Documents"), except that where the Governing Documents conflict with this Agreement, this Agreement shall control.

ii. You acknowledge and understand that the Company is the general partner of Highland Capital Management, L.P. ("HCMLP") and that HCMLP is currently the debtor in possession in a chapter 11 bankruptcy proceeding pending in the Northern District of Texas (the "Bankruptcy"). Your rights, duties, and obligations may in certain instances require your involvement, either directly or indirectly, in the Bankruptcy and such rights, duties, and obligations may be impacted in whole or in part by the Bankruptcy.

b. Mandatory Board Meeting Attendance. As a Director, you agree to apply all reasonable efforts to attend each regular meeting of the Board and no fewer than fifty percent (50%) of these meetings of the Board in person, and no more than fifty percent (50%) of such meetings by telephone or teleconference. You also agree to devote sufficient time to matters that may arise at the Company from time to time that require your attention as a Director.

c. Independent Contractor. Under this Agreement, your relationship with the Company will be that of an independent contractor as you will not be an employee of the Company nor eligible to participate in regular employee benefit and compensation plans of the Company.

d. Information Provided by the Companies. The Company shall: (i) provide you with reasonable access to management and other representatives of the Company, except to the extent that any such access may impair any attorney client privilege to which the Company may be entitled; and (ii) furnish all data, material, and other information concerning the business, assets, liabilities, operations, cash flows, properties, financial condition and prospects of the Company that you reasonably request in connection with the services to be provided to the Company. You will rely, without further independent verification, on the accuracy and completeness of all publicly available information and information that is furnished by or on behalf of the Company and otherwise reviewed by you in connection with the services performed for the Company. The Company acknowledges and agrees that you are not responsible for the accuracy or completeness of such information and shall not be responsible for any inaccuracies or omissions therein, provided that if you become aware of material inaccuracies or errors in any such information you shall promptly notify the Board of such errors, inaccuracies or concerns. You are under no obligation to update data submitted to you or to review any other information unless specifically requested by the Board to do so.

2. COMPENSATION AND BENEFITS.

a. Retainer. The Company will pay you a retainer for each month you serve on the Board (the "Retainer") to be paid in monthly installments of $[TBD]. The Company's obligation to pay the Retainer will cease upon the termination of the Term.

b. Expense Reimbursement. The Company will reimburse you for all reasonable travel or other expenses, including expenses of counsel, incurred by you in connection with your services hereunder, in accordance with the Company's expense reimbursement policy as in effect from time to time.

c. Invoices; Payment.

i. In order to receive the compensation and reimbursement set forth in this Section 2, you are required to send to the Company regular monthly invoices indicating your fees, costs, and expenses incurred. Payment will be due to you within 10 business days after receipt of each such invoice, subject to the Company's receipt of appropriate documentation required by the Company's expenses reimbursement policy.

ii. You further agree that the Company's obligation to pay the compensation and reimbursement set forth in this Section 2 is conditioned in all respects on the entry of a final order in the court overseeing the Bankruptcy that authorizes and requires HCMLP to reimburse the Company for all such payments to you.

d. Indemnification; D&O Insurance. You will receive indemnification as a Director of the Company on the terms set forth in that certain Indemnification Agreement, dated December 5, 2019, a copy of which is attached hereto as Appendix A (the "Indemnification Agreement"). You will also be provided coverage under the Company's directors' and officers' insurance policy as set forth in the Indemnification Agreement.

e. Tax Indemnification. You acknowledge that the Company will not be responsible for the payment of any federal or state taxes that might be assessed with respect to the Retainer and you agree to be responsible for all such taxes.

3. PROPRIETARY INFORMATION OBLIGATIONS.

a. Proprietary Information. You agree that during the Term and thereafter that you will take all steps reasonably necessary to hold all information of the Company, its affiliates, and related entities, which a reasonable person would believe to be confidential or proprietary information, in trust and confidence, and not disclose any such confidential or proprietary information to any third party without first obtaining the Company's express written consent on a case-by-case basis.

b. Third Party Information. The Company has received and will in the future receive from third parties confidential or proprietary information ("Third Party Information") subject to a duty on the Company's part to maintain the confidentiality of such information and to use it only for certain limited purposes. You agree to hold such Third Party Information in confidence and not to disclose itto anyone (other than Company personnel who need to know such information in connection with their work for Company) or to use, except in connection with your services for Company under this Agreement, Third Party Information unless expressly authorized in writing by the Company.

c. Return of Company Property. Upon the end of the Term or upon the Company's earlier request, you agree to deliver to the Company any and all notes, materials and documents, together with any copies thereof, which contain or disclose any confidential or proprietary information or Third Party Information.

4. OUTSIDE ACTIVITIES.

a. Investments and Interests. Except as permitted by Section 4(b), you agree not to participate in, directly or indirectly, any position or investment known by you to be materially adverse to the Company or any of its affiliates or related entities.

b. Activities. Except with the prior written consent of the Board, you will not during your tenure as a member of the Company's Board undertake or engage in any other directorship, employment or business enterprise in direct competition with the Company or any of its affiliates or related entities, other than ones in which you are a passive investor or other activities in which you were a participant prior to your appointment to the Board as disclosed to the Company.

c. Other Agreements. You agree that you will not disclose to the Company or use on behalf of the Company any confidential information governed by any agreement between you and any third party except in accordance with such agreement.

5. TERMINATION OF DIRECTORSHIP.

a. Voluntary Resignation, Removal Pursuant to Bylaws and Stockholder Action. You may resign from the Board at any time with or without advance notice, with or without reason. Subject to any orders or agreements entered into in connection with the Bankruptcy, you may be removed from the Board at any time, for any reason, in any manner provided by the Governing Documents and applicable law or by an affirmative vote of a majority of the stockholders of the Company.

INDEMNIFICATION AGREEMENT

This Indemnification Agreement ("Agreement"), dated as of [_____], is by and between STRAND ADVISORS, INC., a Delaware corporation (the "Company"), and [_____] (the "Indemnitee").

WHEREAS, Indemnitee has agreed to serve as a member of the Company's board of directors (the "Board") effective as of the date hereof;

WHEREAS, the Board has determined that enhancing the ability of the Company to retain and attract as directors the most capable Persons is in the best interests of the Company and that the Company therefore should seek to assure such Persons that indemnification and insurance coverage is available; and

WHEREAS, in recognition of the need to provide Indemnitee with protection against personal liability, in order to procure Indemnitee's service as a director of the Company, in order to enhance Indemnitee's ability to serve the Company in an effective manner and in order to provide such protection pursuant to express contract rights (intended to be enforceable irrespective of, among other things, any amendment to the Company's Bylaws (as may be amended further from time to time, the "Bylaws"), any change in the composition of the Board or any change in control, business combination or similar transaction relating to the Company), the Company wishes to provide in this Agreement for the indemnification of, and the advancement of Expenses (as defined in Section 1(g) below) to, Indemnitee as set forth in this Agreement and for the coverage of Indemnitee under the Company's directors' and officers' liability or similar insurance policies ("D&O Insurance").

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the foregoing and the Indemnitee's agreement to provide services to the Company, the parties agree as follows:

1. Definitions. For purposes of this Agreement, the following terms shall have the following meanings:

(a) "Change in Control" means the occurrence of any of the following: (i) the direct or indirect sale, lease, transfer, conveyance or other disposition, in one or a series of related transactions (including any merger or consolidation or whether by operation of law or otherwise), of all or substantially all of the properties or assets of the Company and its subsidiaries, to a third party purchaser (or group of affiliated third party purchasers) or (ii) the consummation of any transaction (including any merger or consolidation or whether by operation of law or otherwise), the result of which is that a third party purchaser (or group of affiliated third party purchasers) becomes the beneficial owner, directly or indirectly, of more than fifty percent (50%) of the then outstanding Shares or of the surviving entity of any such merger or consolidation.

(b) "Claim" means:

(i) any threatened, pending or completed action, suit, claim, demand, arbitration, inquiry, hearing, proceeding or alternative dispute resolution mechanism, or any actual, threatened or completed proceeding, including any and all appeals, in each case, whether brought by or in the right of the Company or otherwise, whether civil, criminal, administrative, arbitrative, investigative or other, whether formal or informal, and whether made pursuant to federal, state, local, foreign or other law, and whether or not commenced prior to the date of this Agreement, in which Indemnitee was, is or will be involved as a party or otherwise, by reason of or relating to either (a) any action or alleged action taken by Indemnitee (or failure or alleged failure to act) or of any action or alleged action (or failure or alleged failure to act) on Indemnitee's part, while acting in his or her Corporate Status or (b) the fact that Indemnitee is or was serving at the request of the Company or any subsidiary of the Company as director, officer, employee, partner, member, manager, trustee, fiduciary or agent of another Enterprise, in each case, whether or not serving in such capacity at the time any Loss or Expense is paid or incurred for which indemnification or advancement of Expenses can be provided under this Agreement, except one initiated by Indemnitee to enforce his or her rights under this Agreement; or

(ii) any inquiry, hearing or investigation that the Indemnitee determines might lead to the institution of any such action, suit, proceeding or alternative dispute resolution mechanism.

(c) "Controlled Entity" means any corporation, limited liability company, partnership, joint venture, trust or other Enterprise, whether or not for profit, that is, directly or indirectly, controlled by the Company. For purposes of this definition, the term "control" means the possession, directly or indirectly, of the power to direct, or cause the direction of, the management or policies of an Enterprise, whether through the ownership of voting securities, through other voting rights, by contract or otherwise.

(d) "Corporate Status" means the status of a Person who is or was a director, officer, employee, partner, member, manager, trustee, fiduciary or agent of the Company or of any other Enterprise which such Person is or was serving at the request of the Company or any subsidiary of the Company. In addition to any service at the actual request of the Company, Indemnitee will be deemed, for purposes of this Agreement, to be serving or to have served at the request of the Company or any subsidiary of the Company as a director, officer, employee, partner, member, manager, trustee, fiduciary or agent of another Enterprise if Indemnitee is or was serving as a director, officer, employee, partner, member, manager, fiduciary, trustee or agent of such Enterprise and (i) such Enterprise is or at the time of such service was a Controlled Entity, (ii) such Enterprise is or at the time of such service was an employee benefit plan (or related trust) sponsored or maintained by the Company or a Controlled Entity or (iii) the Company or a Controlled Entity, directly or indirectly, caused Indemnitee to be nominated, elected, appointed, designated, employed, engaged or selected to serve in such capacity.

(e) "Disinterested Director" means a director of the Company who is not and was not a party to the Claim in respect of which indemnification is sought by Indemnitee. Under no circumstances will James Dondero be considered a Disinterested Director.

(f) "Enterprise" means the Company or any subsidiary of the Company or any other corporation, partnership, limited liability company, joint venture, employee benefit plan, trust or other entity or other enterprise of which Indemnitee is or was serving at the request of the Company or any subsidiary of the Company in a Corporate Status.

(g) "Expenses" means any and all expenses, fees, including attorneys', witnesses' and experts' fees, disbursements and retainers, court costs, transcript costs, travel expenses, duplicating, printing and binding costs, telephone charges, postage, fax transmission charges, secretarial services, delivery services fees, and all other fees, costs, disbursements and expenses paid or incurred in connection with investigating, defending, prosecuting, being a witness in or participating in (including on appeal), or preparing to defend, prosecute, be a witness or participate in, any Claim. Expenses also shall include (i) Expenses paid or incurred in connection with any appeal resulting from any Claim, including, without limitation, the premium, security for, and other costs relating to any cost bond, supersedeas bond, or other appeal bond or its equivalent, and (ii) for purposes of Section 4 only, Expenses incurred by Indemnitee in connection with the interpretation, enforcement or defense of Indemnitee's rights under this Agreement, by litigation or otherwise. Expenses, however, shall not include amounts paid in settlement by Indemnitee or the amount of judgments or fines against Indemnitee.

(h) "Exchange Act" means the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, or any successor statute thereto, and the rules and regulations of the United States Securities and Exchange Commission promulgated thereunder.

(i) "Expense Advance" means any payment of Expenses advanced to Indemnitee by the Company pursuant to Section 4 or Section 5 hereof.

(j) "Indemnifiable Event" means any event or occurrence, whether occurring before, on or after the date of this Agreement, related to the fact that Indemnitee is or was a manager, director, officer, employee or agent of the Company or any subsidiary of the Company, or is or was serving at the request of the Company or any subsidiary of the Company as a manager, director, officer, employee, member, manager, trustee or agent of any other Enterprise or by reason of an action or inaction by Indemnitee in any such capacity (whether or not serving in such capacity at the time any Loss is incurred for which indemnification can be provided under this Agreement).

(k) "Independent Counsel" means a law firm, or a member of a law firm, that is experienced in matters of corporation law and neither presently performs, nor in the past three (3) years has performed, services for any of: (i) James Dondero, (ii) the Company or Indemnitee (other than in connection with matters concerning Indemnitee under this Agreement or of other indemnitees under similar agreements), or (iii) any other party to the Claim giving rise to a claim for indemnification hereunder. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the term "Independent Counsel" shall not include any Person who, under the applicable standards of professional conduct then prevailing, would have a conflict of interest in representing either the Company or Indemnitee in an action to determine Indemnitee's rights under this Agreement.

(l) "Losses" means any and all Expenses, damages, losses, liabilities, judgments, fines (including excise taxes and penalties assessed with respect to employee benefit plans and ERISA excise taxes), penalties (whether civil, criminal or other), amounts paid or payable in settlement, including any interest, assessments, any federal, state, local or foreign taxes imposed as a result of the actual or deemed receipt of any payments under this Agreement and all other charges paid or payable in connection with investigating, defending, being a witness in or participating in (including on appeal), or preparing to defend, be a witness or participate in, any Claim.

(m) "Person" means any individual, corporation, firm, partnership, joint venture, limited liability company, estate, trust, business association, organization, governmental entity or other entity and includes the meaning set forth in Sections 13(d) and 14(d) of the Exchange Act.

(n) "Shares" means an ownership interest of a member in the Company, including each of the common shares of the Company or any other class or series of Shares designated by the Board.

(o) References to "serving at the request of the Company" include any service as a director, manager, officer, employee, representative or agent of the Company which imposes duties on, or involves services by, such director, manager, officer, employee or agent, including but not limited to any employee benefit plan, its participants or beneficiaries; and a Person who acted in good faith and in a manner he or she reasonably believed to be in and not opposed to the best interests of the Company in Indemnitee's capacity as a director, manager, officer, employee, representative or agent of the Company, including but not limited to acting in the best interest of participants and beneficiaries of an employee benefit plan will be deemed to have acted in a manner "not opposed to the best interests of the Company" as referred to under applicable law or in this Agreement.

2. Indemnification.

(a) Subject to Section 9 and Section 10 of this Agreement, the Company shall indemnify and hold Indemnitee harmless, to the fullest extent permitted by the laws of the State of Delaware in effect on the date hereof, or as such laws may from time to time hereafter be amended to increase the scope of such permitted indemnification, against any and all Losses and Expenses if Indemnitee was or is or becomes a party to or participant in, or is threatened to be made a party to or participant in, any Claim by reason of or arising in part out of an Indemnifiable Event, including, without limitation, Claims brought by or in the right of the Company, Claims brought by third parties, and Claims in which the Indemnitee is solely a witness.

(b) For the avoidance of doubt, the indemnification rights and obligations contained herein shall also extend to any Claim in which the Indemnitee was or is a party to, was or is threatened to be made a party to or was or is otherwise involved in any capacity in by reason of Indemnitee's Corporate Status as a fiduciary capacity with respect to an employee benefit plan. In connection therewith, if the Indemnitee has acted in good faith and in a manner which appeared to be consistent with the best interests of the participants and beneficiaries of an employee benefit plan and not opposed thereto, the Indemnitee shall be deemed to have acted in a manner not opposed to the best interests of the Company.

3. Contribution.

(a) Whether or not the indemnification provided in Section 2 is available, if, for any reason, Indemnitee shall elect or be required to pay all or any portion of any judgment or settlement in any Claim in which the Company is jointly liable with Indemnitee (or would be if joined in such Claim), the Company shall contribute to the amount of Losses paid or payable by Indemnitee in proportion to the relative benefits received by the Company and all officers, directors, managers or employees of the Company, other than Indemnitee, who are jointly liable with Indemnitee (or would be if joined in such Claim), on the one hand, and Indemnitee, on the other hand, from the transaction or events from which such Claim arose; provided, however, that the proportion determined on the basis of relative benefit may, to the extent necessary to conform to law, be further adjusted by reference to the relative fault of the Company and all officers, directors, managers or employees of the Company other than Indemnitee who are jointly liable with Indemnitee (or would be if joined in such Claim), on the one hand, and Indemnitee, on the other hand, in connection with the transaction or events that resulted in such Losses, as well as any other equitable considerations which applicable law may require to be considered. The relative fault of the Company and all officers, directors, managers or employees of the Company, other than Indemnitee, who are jointly liable with Indemnitee (or would be if joined in such Claim), on the one hand, and Indemnitee, on the other hand, shall be determined by reference to, among other things, the degree to which their actions were motivated by intent to gain personal profit or advantage, the degree to which their liability is primary or secondary and the degree to which their conduct is active or passive.

(b) The Company hereby agrees to fully indemnify and hold Indemnitee harmless from any claims of contribution which may be brought by officers, directors, managers or employees of the Company, other than Indemnitee, who may be jointly liable with Indemnitee.

(c) To the fullest extent permissible under applicable law, if the indemnification provided for in this Agreement is unavailable to Indemnitee for any reason whatsoever, the Company, in lieu of indemnifying Indemnitee, shall contribute to the amount incurred by Indemnitee, whether for judgments, fines, penalties, excise taxes, amounts paid or to be paid in settlement and/or for Expenses, in connection with any Claim relating to an Indemnifiable Event under this Agreement, in such proportion as is deemed fair and reasonable in light of all of the circumstances of such Claim in order to reflect (i) the relative benefits received by the Company and Indemnitee as a result of the event(s) and/or transaction(s) giving cause to such Claim; and/or (ii) the relative fault of the Company (and its directors, managers, officers, employees and agents) and Indemnitee in connection with such event(s) and/or transaction(s).

4. Advancement of Expenses. The Company shall, if requested by Indemnitee, advance, to the fullest extent permitted by law, to Indemnitee (an "Expense Advance") any and all Expenses actually and reasonably paid or incurred (even if unpaid) by Indemnitee in connection with any Claim arising out of an Indemnifiable Event (whether prior to or after its final disposition). Indemnitee's right to such advancement is not subject to the satisfaction of any standard of conduct. Without limiting the generality or effect of the foregoing, within thirty (30) business days after any request by Indemnitee, the Company shall, in accordance with such request, (a) pay such Expenses on behalf of Indemnitee, (b) advance to Indemnitee funds in an amount sufficient to pay such Expenses, or (c) reimburse Indemnitee for such Expenses. In connection with any request for Expense Advances, Indemnitee shall not be required to provide any documentation or information to the extent that the provision thereof would undermine or otherwise jeopardize attorney-client privilege. Execution and delivery to the Company of this Agreement by Indemnitee constitutes an undertaking by the Indemnitee to repay any amounts paid, advanced or reimbursed by the Company pursuant to this Section 4, the final sentence of Section 9(b), or Section 11(b) in respect of Expenses relating to, arising out of or resulting from any Claim in respect of which it shall be determined, pursuant to Section 9, following the final disposition of such Claim, that Indemnitee is not entitled to indemnification hereunder. No other form of undertaking shall be required other than the execution of this Agreement. Each Expense Advance will be unsecured and interest free and will be made by the Company without regard to Indemnitee's ability to repay the Expense Advance.

5. Indemnification for Expenses in Enforcing Rights. To the fullest extent allowable under applicable law, the Company shall also indemnify against, and, if requested by Indemnitee, shall advance to Indemnitee subject to and in accordance with Section 4, any Expenses actually and reasonably paid or incurred (even if unpaid) by Indemnitee in connection with any action or proceeding by Indemnitee for (a) indemnification or reimbursement or advance payment of Expenses by the Company under any provision of this Agreement, or under any other agreement or provision of the Bylaws now or hereafter in effect relating to Claims relating to Indemnifiable Events, and/or (b) recovery under any D&O Insurance maintained by the Company, regardless of whether Indemnitee ultimately is determined to be entitled to such indemnification or insurance recovery, as the case may be. Indemnitee shall be required to reimburse the Company in the event that a final judicial determination is made that such action brought by Indemnitee was frivolous or not made in good faith.

6. Partial Indemnity. If Indemnitee is entitled under any provision of this Agreement to indemnification by the Company for a portion of any Losses in respect of a Claim related to an Indemnifiable Event but not for the total amount thereof, the Company shall nevertheless indemnify Indemnitee for the portion thereof to which Indemnitee is entitled.

7. Notification and Defense of Claims.

(a) Notification of Claims. Indemnitee shall notify the Company in writing as soon as reasonably practicable of any Claim which could relate to an Indemnifiable Event or for which Indemnitee could seek Expense Advances, including a brief description (based upon information then available to Indemnitee) of the nature of, and the facts underlying, such Claim, to the extent then known. The failure by Indemnitee to timely notify the Company hereunder shall not relieve the Company from any liability hereunder except to the extent the Company's ability to participate in the defense of such claim was materially and adversely affected by such failure. If at the time of the receipt of such notice, the Company has D&O Insurance or any other insurance in effect under which coverage for Claims related to Indemnifiable Events is potentially available, the Company shall give prompt written notice to the applicable insurers in accordance with the procedures, provisions, and terms set forth in the applicable policies. The Company shall provide to Indemnitee a copy of such notice delivered to the applicable insurers, and copies of all subsequent correspondence between the Company and such insurers regarding the Claim, in each case substantially concurrently with the delivery or receipt thereof by the Company.

(b) Defense of Claims. The Company shall be entitled to participate in the defense of any Claim relating to an Indemnifiable Event at its own expense and, except as otherwise provided below, to the extent the Company so wishes, it may assume the defense thereof with counsel reasonably satisfactory to Indemnitee. After notice from the Company to Indemnitee of its election to assume the defense of any such Claim, the Company shall not be liable to Indemnitee under this Agreement or otherwise for any Expenses subsequently directly incurred by Indemnitee in connection with Indemnitee's defense of such Claim other than reasonable costs of investigation or as otherwise provided below. Indemnitee shall have the right to employ its own legal counsel in such Claim, but all Expenses related to such counsel incurred after notice from the Company of its assumption of the defense shall be at Indemnitee's own expense; provided, however, that if (i) Indemnitee's employment of its own legal counsel has been authorized by the Company, (ii) Indemnitee has reasonably determined that there may be a conflict of interest between Indemnitee and the Company in the defense of such Claim, (iii) after a Change in Control, Indemnitee's employment of its own counsel has been approved by the Independent Counsel or (iv) the Company shall not in fact have employed counsel to assume the defense of such Claim, then Indemnitee shall be entitled to retain its own separate counsel (but not more than one law firm plus, if applicable, local counsel in respect of any such Claim) and all Expenses related to such separate counsel shall be borne by the Company.

8. Procedure upon Application for Indemnification. In order to obtain indemnification pursuant to this Agreement, Indemnitee shall submit to the Company a written request therefor, including in such request such documentation and information as is reasonably available to Indemnitee and is reasonably necessary to determine whether and to what extent Indemnitee is entitled to indemnification following the final disposition of the Claim, provided that documentation and information need not be so provided to the extent that the provision thereof would undermine or otherwise jeopardize attorney-client privilege. Indemnification shall be made insofar as the Company determines Indemnitee is entitled to indemnification in accordance with Section 9 below.

9. Determination of Right to Indemnification.

(a) Mandatory Indemnification; Indemnification as a Witness.

(i) To the extent that Indemnitee shall have been successful on the merits or otherwise in defense of any Claim relating to an Indemnifiable Event or any portion thereof or in defense of any issue or matter therein, including without limitation dismissal without prejudice, Indemnitee shall be indemnified against all Losses relating to such Claim in accordance with Section 2, and no Standard of Conduct Determination (as defined in Section 9(b)) shall be required.

(ii) To the extent that Indemnitee's involvement in a Claim relating to an Indemnifiable Event is to prepare to serve and serve as a witness, and not as a party, the Indemnitee shall be indemnified against all Losses incurred in connection therewith to the fullest extent allowable by law and no Standard of Conduct Determination (as defined in Section 9(b)) shall be required.

(b) Standard of Conduct. To the extent that the provisions of Section 9(a) are inapplicable to a Claim related to an Indemnifiable Event that shall have been finally disposed of, any determination of whether Indemnitee has satisfied any applicable standard of conduct under Delaware law that is a legally required condition to indemnification of Indemnitee hereunder against Losses relating to such Claim and any determination that Expense Advances must be repaid to the Company (a "Standard of Conduct Determination") shall be made as follows:

(i) if no Change in Control has occurred, (A) by a majority vote of the Disinterested Directors, even if less than a quorum of the Board, (B) by a committee of Disinterested Directors designated by a majority vote of the Disinterested Directors, even though less than a quorum or (C) if there are no such Disinterested Directors, by Independent Counsel in a written opinion addressed to the Board, a copy of which shall be delivered to Indemnitee; and

(ii) if a Change in Control shall have occurred, (A) if the Indemnitee so requests in writing, by a majority vote of the Disinterested Directors, even if less than a quorum of the Board or (B) otherwise, by Independent Counsel in a written opinion addressed to the Board, a copy of which shall be delivered to Indemnitee.

Subject to Section 4, the Company shall indemnify and hold Indemnitee harmless against and, if requested by Indemnitee, shall reimburse Indemnitee for, or advance to Indemnitee, within thirty (30) business days of such request, any and all Expenses incurred by Indemnitee in cooperating with the Person or Persons making such Standard of Conduct Determination.

(c) Making the Standard of Conduct Determination. The Company shall use its reasonable best efforts to cause any Standard of Conduct Determination required under Section 9(b) to be made as promptly as practicable. If the Person or Persons designated to make the Standard of Conduct Determination under Section 9(b) shall not have made a determination within ninety (90) days after the later of (A) receipt by the Company of a written request from Indemnitee for indemnification pursuant to Section 8 (the date of such receipt being the "Notification Date") and (B) the selection of an Independent Counsel, if such determination is to be made by Independent Counsel, then Indemnitee shall be deemed to have satisfied the applicable standard of conduct; provided that such 90-day period may be extended for a reasonable time, not to exceed an additional thirty (30) days, if the Person or Persons making such determination in good faith requires such additional time to obtain or evaluate information relating thereto. Notwithstanding anything in this Agreement to the contrary, no determination as to entitlement of Indemnitee to indemnification under this Agreement shall be required to be made prior to the final disposition of any Claim.

(d) Payment of Indemnification. If, in regard to any Losses:

(i) Indemnitee shall be entitled to indemnification pursuant to Section 9(a);

(ii) no Standard of Conduct Determination is legally required as a condition to indemnification of Indemnitee hereunder; or

(iii) Indemnitee has been determined or deemed pursuant to Section 9(b) or Section 9(c) to have satisfied the Standard of Conduct Determination, then the Company shall pay to Indemnitee, within thirty (30) business days after the later of (A) the Notification Date or (B) the earliest date on which the applicable criterion specified in clause (i), (ii) or (iii) is satisfied, an amount equal to such Losses.

(e) Selection of Independent Counsel for Standard of Conduct Determination. If a Standard of Conduct Determination is to be made by Independent Counsel pursuant to Section 9(b)(i), the Independent Counsel shall be selected by the Board and the Company shall give written notice to Indemnitee advising him of the identity of the Independent Counsel so selected. If a Standard of Conduct Determination is to be made by Independent Counsel pursuant to Section 9(b)(ii), the Independent Counsel shall be selected by Indemnitee, and Indemnitee shall give written notice to the Company advising it of the identity of the Independent Counsel so selected. In either case, Indemnitee or the Company, as applicable, may, within thirty (3) business days after receiving written notice of selection from the other, deliver to the other a written objection to such selection; provided, however, that such objection may be asserted only on the ground that the Independent Counsel so selected does not satisfy the criteria set forth in the definition of "Independent Counsel" in Section 1(k), and the objection shall set forth with particularity the factual basis of such assertion. Absent a proper and timely objection, the Person or firm so selected shall act as Independent Counsel. If such written objection is properly and timely made and substantiated, (i) the Independent Counsel so selected may not serve as Independent Counsel unless and until such objection is withdrawn or a court has determined that such objection is without merit; and (ii) the non-objecting party may, at its option, select an alternative Independent Counsel and give written notice to the other party advising such other party of the identity of the alternative Independent Counsel so selected, in which case the provisions of the two immediately preceding sentences, the introductory clause of this sentence and numbered clause (i) of this sentence shall apply to such subsequent selection and notice. If applicable, the provisions of clause (ii) of the immediately preceding sentence shall apply to successive alternative selections. If no Independent Counsel that is permitted under the foregoing provisions of this Section 9(e) to make the Standard of Conduct Determination shall have been selected within twenty (20) days after the Company gives its initial notice pursuant to the first sentence of this Section 9(e) or Indemnitee gives its initial notice pursuant to the second sentence of this Section 9(e), as the case may be, either the Company or Indemnitee may petition the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware ("Delaware Court") to resolve any objection which shall have been made by the Company or Indemnitee to the other's selection of Independent Counsel and/or to appoint as Independent Counsel a Person to be selected by the Court or such other Person as the Court shall designate, and the Person or firm with respect to whom all objections are so resolved or the Person or firm so appointed will act as Independent Counsel. In all events, the Company shall pay all of the reasonable fees and expenses of the Independent Counsel incurred in connection with the Independent Counsel's determination pursuant to Section 9(b).

(f) Presumptions and Defenses.

(i) Indemnitee's Entitlement to Indemnification. In making any Standard of Conduct Determination, the Person or Persons making such determination shall presume that Indemnitee has satisfied the applicable standard of conduct and is entitled to indemnification, and the Company shall have the burden of proof to overcome that presumption and establish that Indemnitee is not so entitled. Any Standard of Conduct Determination that is adverse to Indemnitee may be challenged by the Indemnitee in the Delaware Court. No determination by the Company (including by its Board or any Independent Counsel) that Indemnitee has not satisfied any applicable standard of conduct may be used as a defense to enforcement by Indemnitee of Indemnitee's rights of indemnification or reimbursement or advance of payment of Expenses by the Company hereunder or create a presumption that Indemnitee has not met any applicable standard of conduct.

(ii) Reliance as a Safe Harbor. For purposes of this Agreement, and without creating any presumption as to a lack of good faith if the following circumstances do not exist, Indemnitee shall be deemed to have acted in good faith and in a manner he or she reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the Company if Indemnitee's actions or omissions to act are taken in good faith reliance upon the records of the Company, including its financial statements, or upon information, opinions, reports or statements furnished to Indemnitee by the officers or employees of the Company or any of its subsidiaries in the course of their duties, or by committees of the Board or by any other Person (including legal counsel, accountants and financial advisors) as to matters Indemnitee reasonably believes are within such other Person's professional or expert competence and who has been selected with reasonable care by or on behalf of the Company. In addition, the knowledge and/or actions, or failures to act, of any director, manager, officer, agent or employee of the Company (other than Indemnitee) shall not be imputed to Indemnitee for purposes of determining the right to indemnity hereunder.

(iii) Defense to Indemnification and Burden of Proof. It shall be a defense to any action brought by Indemnitee against the Company to enforce this Agreement (other than an action brought to enforce a claim for Losses incurred in defending against a Claim related to an Indemnifiable Event in advance of its final disposition) that it is not permissible under applicable law for the Company to indemnify Indemnitee for the amount claimed. In connection with any such action or any related Standard of Conduct Determination, the burden of proving such a defense or that the Indemnitee did not satisfy the applicable standard of conduct shall be on the Company.

10. Exclusions from Indemnification. Notwithstanding anything in this Agreement to the contrary, the Company shall not be obligated to:

(a) indemnify or advance funds to Indemnitee for Losses with respect to proceedings initiated by Indemnitee, including any proceedings against the Company or its managers, officers, employees or other indemnitees and not by way of defense, except:

(i) proceedings referenced in Section 4 above (unless a court of competent jurisdiction determines that each of the material assertions made by Indemnitee in such proceeding was not made in good faith or was frivolous); or

(ii) where the Company has joined in or the Board has consented to the initiation of such proceedings.

(b) indemnify Indemnitee if a final decision by a court of competent jurisdiction determines that such indemnification is prohibited by applicable law.

(c) indemnify Indemnitee for the disgorgement of profits arising from the purchase or sale by Indemnitee of securities of the Company in violation of Section 16(b) of the Exchange Act, or any similar successor statute.

11. Remedies of Indemnitee.

(a) In the event that (i) a determination is made pursuant to Section 9 that Indemnitee is not entitled to indemnification under this Agreement, (ii) an Expense Advance is not timely made pursuant to Section 4, (iii) no determination of entitlement to indemnification is made pursuant to Section 9 within 90 days after receipt by the Company of the request for indemnification, or (iv) payment of indemnification is not made pursuant Section 9(d), Indemnitee shall be entitled to an adjudication in a Delaware Court, or in any other court of competent jurisdiction, of Indemnitee's entitlement to such indemnification. Indemnitee shall commence such proceeding seeking an adjudication within 180 days following the date on which Indemnitee first has the right to commence such proceeding pursuant to this Section 11(a). The Company shall not oppose Indemnitee's right to seek any such adjudication.

(b) In the event that Indemnitee, pursuant to this Section 11, seeks a judicial adjudication or arbitration of his or her rights under, or to recover damages for breach of, this Agreement, any other agreement for indemnification, payment of Expenses in advance or contribution hereunder or to recover under any director, manager, and officer liability insurance policies or any other insurance policies maintained by the Company, the Company will, to the fullest extent permitted by law and subject to Section 4, indemnify and hold harmless Indemnitee against any and all Expenses which are paid or incurred by Indemnitee in connection with such judicial adjudication or arbitration, regardless of whether Indemnitee ultimately is determined to be entitled to such indemnification, payment of Expenses in advance or contribution or insurance recovery. In addition, if requested by Indemnitee, subject to Section 4 the Company will (within thirty (30) days after receipt by the Company of the written request therefor), pay as an Expense Advance such Expenses, to the fullest extent permitted by law.

(c) In the event that a determination shall have been made pursuant to Section 9 that Indemnitee is not entitled to indemnification, any judicial proceeding commenced pursuant to this Section 11 shall be conducted in all respects as a de novo trial on the merits, and Indemnitee shall not be prejudiced by reason of the adverse determination under Section 9.

(d) If a determination shall have been made pursuant to Section 9 that Indemnitee is entitled to indemnification, the Company shall be bound by such determination in any judicial proceeding commenced pursuant to this Section 11, absent (i) a misstatement by Indemnitee of a material fact, or an omission of a material fact necessary to make Indemnitee's misstatement not materially misleading in connection with the application for indemnification, or (ii) a prohibition of such indemnification under applicable law.

12. Settlement of Claims. The Company shall not be liable to Indemnitee under this Agreement for any amounts paid in settlement of any threatened or pending Claim related to an Indemnifiable Event effected without the Company's prior written consent, which shall not be unreasonably withheld; provided, however, that if a Change in Control has occurred, the Company shall be liable for indemnification of the Indemnitee for amounts paid in settlement if an Independent Counsel (which, for purposes of this Section 12, shall be selected by the Company with the prior consent of the Indemnitee, such consent not to be unreasonably withheld or delayed) has approved the settlement. The Company shall not settle any Claim related to an Indemnifiable Event in any manner that would impose any Losses on the Indemnitee without the Indemnitee's prior written consent.

13. Duration. All agreements and obligations of the Company contained herein shall continue during the period that Indemnitee is a manager of the Company (or is serving at the request of the Company as a director, manager, officer, employee, member, trustee or agent of another Enterprise) and shall continue thereafter (i) so long as Indemnitee may be subject to any possible Claim relating to an Indemnifiable Event (including any rights of appeal thereto) and (ii) throughout the pendency of any proceeding (including any rights of appeal thereto) commenced by Indemnitee to enforce or interpret his or her rights under this Agreement, even if, in either case, he or she may have ceased to serve in such capacity at the time of any such Claim or proceeding.

14. Other Indemnitors. The Company hereby acknowledges that Indemnitee may have certain rights to indemnification, advancement of Expenses and/or insurance provided by certain private equity funds, hedge funds or other investment vehicles or management companies and/or certain of their affiliates and by personal policies (collectively, the "Other Indemnitors"). The Company hereby agrees (i) that it is the indemnitor of first resort (i.e., its obligations to Indemnitee are primary and any obligation of the Other Indemnitors to advance Expenses or to provide indemnification for the same Expenses or liabilities incurred by Indemnitee are secondary), (ii) that it shall be required to advance the full amount of Expenses incurred by Indemnitee and shall be liable for the full amount of all Expenses, judgments, penalties, fines and amounts paid in settlement to the extent legally permitted and as required by the terms of this Agreement and the Bylaws (or any other agreement between the Company and Indemnitee), without regard to any rights Indemnitee may have against the Other Indemnitors, and, (iii) that it irrevocably waives, relinquishes and releases the Other Indemnitors from any and all claims against the Other Indemnitors for contribution, subrogation or any other recovery of any kind in respect thereof. The Company further agrees that no advancement or payment by the Other Indemnitors on behalf of Indemnitee with respect to any claim for which Indemnitee has sought indemnification from the Company shall affect the foregoing and the Other Indemnitors shall have a right of contribution and/or be subrogated to the extent of such advancement or payment to all of the rights of recovery of Indemnitee against the Company. The Company and Indemnitee agree that the Other Indemnitors are express third party beneficiaries of the terms of this Section 14.

15. Non-Exclusivity. The rights of Indemnitee hereunder will be in addition to any other rights Indemnitee may have under the Bylaws, the General Corporation Law of the State of Delaware (as may be amended from time to time, the "DGCL"), any other contract, in law or in equity, and under the laws of any state, territory, or jurisdiction, or otherwise (collectively, "Other Indemnity Provisions"). The Company will not adopt any amendment to its Bylaws the effect of which would be to deny, diminish, encumber or limit Indemnitee's right to indemnification under this Agreement or any Other Indemnity Provision.

16. Liability Insurance. For the duration of Indemnitee's service as a director of the Company, and thereafter for so long as Indemnitee shall be subject to any pending Claim relating to an Indemnifiable Event, the Company shall use best efforts to continue to maintain in effect policies of D&O Insurance providing coverage that is at least substantially comparable in scope and amount to that provided by similarly situated companies. In all policies of D&O Insurance maintained by the Company, Indemnitee shall be named as an insured in such a manner as to provide Indemnitee the same rights and benefits as are provided to the most favorably insured of the Company's directors. Upon request, the Company will provide to Indemnitee copies of all D&O Insurance applications, binders, policies, declarations, endorsements and other related materials.

17. No Duplication of Payments. The Company shall not be liable under this Agreement to make any payment to Indemnitee in respect of any Losses to the extent Indemnitee has otherwise received payment under any insurance policy, any Other Indemnity Provisions or otherwise of the amounts otherwise indemnifiable by the Company hereunder.

18. Subrogation. In the event of payment to Indemnitee under this Agreement, the Company shall be subrogated to the extent of such payment to all of the rights of recovery of Indemnitee. Indemnitee shall execute all papers required and shall do everything that may be necessary to secure such rights, including the execution of such documents necessary to enable the Company effectively to bring suit to enforce such rights.

19. Indemnitee Consent. The Company will not, without the prior written consent of Indemnitee, consent to the entry of any judgment against Indemnitee or enter into any settlement or compromise which (a) includes an admission of fault of Indemnitee, any non-monetary remedy imposed on Indemnitee or a Loss for which Indemnitee is not wholly indemnified hereunder or (b) with respect to any Claim with respect to which Indemnitee may be or is made a party or a participant or may be or is otherwise entitled to seek indemnification hereunder, does not include, as an unconditional term thereof, the full release of Indemnitee from all liability in respect of such Claim, which release will be in form and substance reasonably satisfactory to Indemnitee. Neither the Company nor Indemnitee will unreasonably withhold its consent to any proposed settlement; provided, however, Indemnitee may withhold consent to any settlement that does not provide a full and unconditional release of Indemnitee from all liability in respect of such Claim.

20. Amendments. No supplement, modification or amendment of this Agreement shall be binding unless executed in writing by both of the parties hereto. No waiver of any of the provisions of this Agreement shall be binding unless in the form of a writing signed by the party against whom enforcement of the waiver is sought, and no such waiver shall operate as a waiver of any other provisions hereof (whether or not similar), nor shall such waiver constitute a continuing waiver. Except as specifically provided herein, no failure to exercise or any delay in exercising any right or remedy hereunder shall constitute a waiver thereof.

21. Binding Effect. This Agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of and be enforceable by the parties hereto and their respective successors (including any direct or indirect successor by purchase, merger, consolidation or otherwise to all or substantially all of the business and/or assets of the Company), assigns, spouses, heirs and personal and legal representatives. The Company shall require and cause any successor (whether direct or indirect by purchase, merger, consolidation or otherwise) to all, substantially all or a substantial part of the business and/or assets of the Company, by written agreement in form and substance satisfactory to Indemnitee, expressly to assume and agree to perform this Agreement in the same manner and to the same extent that the Company would be required to perform if no such succession had taken place.

22. Severability. Each provision of this Agreement shall be considered severable and if for any reason any provision which is not essential to the effectuation of the basic purposes of this Agreement is determined by a court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, unenforceable or contrary to the DGCL or existing or future applicable law, such invalidity, unenforceability or illegality shall not impair the operation of or affect those provisions of this Agreement which are valid, enforceable and legal. In that case, this Agreement shall be construed so as to limit any term or provision so as to make it valid, enforceable and legal within the requirements of any applicable law, and in the event such term or provision cannot be so limited, this Agreement shall be construed to omit such invalid, unenforceable or illegal provisions.

23. Notices. All notices, requests, demands and other communications hereunder shall be in writing and shall be deemed to have been duly given if delivered by hand, against receipt, or mailed, by postage prepaid, certified or registered mail:

(a) if to Indemnitee, to the address set forth on the signature page hereto.

(b) if to the Company, to:

Notice of change of address shall be effective only when given in accordance with this Section 23. All notices complying with this Section 23 shall be deemed to have been received on the date of hand delivery or on the third business day after mailing.

24. Governing Law. THIS AGREEMENT SHALL BE GOVERNED BY THE LAWS OF THE STATE OF DELAWARE (OTHER THAN ITS RULES OF CONFLICTS OF LAW TO THE EXTENT THAT THE APPLICATION OF THE LAWS OF ANOTHER JURISDICTION WOULD BE REQUIRED THEREBY).

25. Jurisdiction. The parties hereby agree that any suit, action or proceeding seeking to enforce any provision of, or based on any matter arising out of or in connection with, this Agreement or the transactions contemplated hereby, whether in contract, tort or otherwise, shall be brought in the United States District Court for the District of Delaware or in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware (or, if such court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, in the Superior Court of the State of Delaware), so long as one of such courts shall have subject-matter jurisdiction over such suit, action or proceeding, and that any case of action arising out of this Agreement shall be deemed to have arisen from a transaction of business in the State of Delaware. Each of the parties hereby irrevocably consents to the jurisdiction of such courts (and of the appropriate appellate courts therefrom) in any such suit, action or proceeding and irrevocably waives, to the fullest extent permitted by law, any objection that it may now or hereafter have to the laying of the venue of any such suit, action or proceeding in any such court or that any such suit, action or proceeding which is brought in any such court has been brought in an inconvenient forum.

26. Enforcement.

(a) Without limiting Section 15, this Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties hereto with respect to the subject matter hereof and supersedes all prior agreements and understandings, oral, written and implied, between the parties hereto with respect to the subject matter hereof.

(b) The Company shall not seek from a court, or agree to, a "bar order" which would have the effect of prohibiting or limiting the Indemnitee's rights to receive advancement of Expenses under this Agreement other than in accordance with this Agreement.

27. Headings and Captions. All headings and captions contained in this Agreement and the table of contents hereto are inserted for convenience only and shall not be deemed a part of this Agreement.

28. Counterparts. This Agreement may be executed in counterparts, each of which shall constitute an original and all of which, when taken together, shall constitute one and the same agreement. Facsimile counterpart signatures to this Agreement shall be binding and enforceable.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have executed this Agreement as of the date first above written.

Re: Development Specialists, Inc. ("DSI")
Retention and Letter of Engagement

Dear Members of the Board:

Please accept this letter as our firm's formal written agreement (the "Agreement") to provide restructuring support services to Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Company"). This Agreement replaces and supersedes in all respects the letter agreement between DSI and the Company, dated October 7, 2019, as amended and revised by the letter agreement dated October 29, 2019. However, all fees and expenses incurred by DSI prior to the date hereof in accordance with such prior letter agreements will be paid by the Company, subject to allowance of such fees and expenses by the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the "Bankruptcy Court"). The Agreement will become effective upon execution by duly authorized representatives of the respective parties and approval of the Bankruptcy Court.

Section 1 – Scope of Work

DSI will provide the following services (the "Services") to the Company:

1. Bradley D. Sharp will act as the Company's Chief Restructuring Officer ("CRO") with other DSI personnel to assist Mr. Sharp in carrying out those duties and responsibilities.
2. Subject to the terms of this Agreement, as CRO, Mr. Sharp will assume control of the Company's restructuring and direct the Company with respect to its bankruptcy filed on October 16, 2019 (the "Chapter 11 Case"), which Chapter 11 Case has now been transferred to the Bankruptcy Court.
3. Subject to the terms of this Agreement, Mr. Sharp will report to the Independent Directors and, if appointed, the Chief Executive Officer of the Company ("CEO") and will comply with the Company's corporate governance requirements.
4. As directed by the Independent Directors and/or CEO, the CRO will be responsible for the implementation and prosecution of the Chapter 11 Case, including negotiations with creditors, reconciliation of claims, and confirmation of a plan or plans of reorganization.
5. Provide other personnel of DSI ("Additional Personnel") to provide restructuring support services as requested or required to the Company, which may include but are not limited to:

a. assisting the Company in the preparation of financial disclosures required by the Bankruptcy Code, including the Schedules of Assets and Liabilities, the Statements of Financial Affairs and Monthly Operating Reports;
b. advising and assisting the Company, the Company's legal counsel, and other professionals in responding to third party requests;
c. attending meetings and assisting in communications with parties in interest and their professionals, including the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors appointed in the Chapter 11 Case;
d. providing litigation advisory services with respect to accounting matters, along with expert witness testimony on case related issues; and
e. rendering such other general business consulting services or other assistance as the Company may deem necessary and which are consistent with the role of a financial advisor and not duplicative of services provided by other professionals in this case.

DSI's ability to adequately perform the Services is dependent upon the Company timely providing reliable, accurate, and complete necessary information. The Company agrees that CRO will have (i) access to and the ability to communicate with any employee of the Company or any affiliate of the Company and (ii) access to any information, including documents, relating to the Company or any Company affiliate, including, but not limited to, information concerning collections and disbursements. The Company acknowledges that DSI or CRO are not responsible for independently verifying the veracity, completeness, or accuracy of any information supplied to us by or on behalf of the Company.

DSI will submit its evaluations and analyses pursuant to this Agreement in periodic oral and written reports. Such reports are intended to and shall constitute privileged and confidential information, and shall constitute the Company's property.

Although we do not predict or warrant the outcome of any particular matter or issue, and our fees are not dependent upon such outcomes, we will perform the Services with reasonable care and in a diligent and competent manner.

Section 2 – Rates, Invoicing and Retainer

DSI will be compensated at a rate of $100,000 per month, plus expenses (capped at $10,000 per month), for the services of Bradley D. Sharp as CRO and such DSI personnel (including Fred Caruso) as are required to fulfill Mr. Sharp's responsibilities as CRO; provided that if any single expense exceeds $1,000, DSI will provide reasonable documentation and will obtain the Company's prior written approval.

A number of DSI's personnel have experience in providing restructuring support services and may be utilized as Additional Personnel in this representation. Although others of our staff may also be involved, we have listed below certain of the DSI personnel (along with their corresponding billing rates) who would likely constitute the Additional Personnel. The individuals are:

R. Brian Calvert	$640.00/hr.
Thomas P. Jeremiassen	$575.00/hr.
Eric J. Held	$495.00/hr.
Nicholas R. Troszak	$485.00/hr.
Spencer G. Ferrero	$350.00/hr.
Tom Frey	$325.00/hr.

The above rates are adjusted as of January 1 of each year to reflect advancing experience, capabilities, and seniority of our professionals as well as general economic factors.

We acknowledge receipt of a retainer of $250,000 from the Company. The purpose of the retainer is to secure a portion of our fees and expenses and to retain our status as a non-creditor should such be required for DSI to continue to provide the Services. As such, should a need arise to increase this retainer due to the level of Services DSI is providing or projected to provide, we will send the Company a supplement to this Agreement requesting the necessary increases and discuss with the Company the amount and timing of providing such increase to the retainer.

This retainer will be applied to our final invoice. If the retainer exceeds the amount of our final invoice, we will refund the difference to the Company at that time. In the event that periodic invoices are not paid timely, we will apply the retainer to the amounts owing on such invoices and, if applicable, any related late charges, and we will stop work until the retainer is replenished to the full amount required. If the retainer is not replenished within ten (10) days after the application of the retainer to unpaid balances, we reserve the right to terminate this Agreement in accordance with the provisions of Section 3 of this Agreement.

DSI also will be entitled to reimbursement for its reasonable costs and expenses. Such costs and expenses may include, among others, charges for messenger services, photocopying, travel expenses, long distance telephone charges, postage and other charges customarily invoiced by consulting firms. Airfare for international flights will be charged at the business class fare; provided that if any single expense exceeds $1,000, DSI will provide reasonable documentation and will obtain the Company's prior written approval.

This Agreement shall be presented to the Bankruptcy Court for approval and continuation, pursuant to Bankruptcy Code Section 363 and DSI's then-prospective obligations shall be contingent upon such approval.

Section 3 – Termination

Either the Company or DSI may terminate this Agreement for any reason with ten (10) business days' written notice. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained herein, the Company shall be obligated, in accordance with any orders of or procedures established by the Court, to pay and/or reimburse DSI all fees and expenses accrued under this Agreement as of the effective date of the termination.

Section 4 – Relationship of the Parties, Confidentiality

DSI will provide the Services to and for the Company, with select members of DSI assigned to specific roles for the benefit of the Company. These members will remain as DSI employees during the pendency of this case. Specifically, the parties intend that an independent contractor relationship will be created by this Agreement. Employees of DSI are not to be considered employees of the Company and are not entitled to any of the benefits that the Company provides for the Company's employees.

The Company acknowledges that all advice (written or oral) given by DSI to the Company in connection with DSI's engagement is intended solely for the benefit and use of the Company in considering the transaction to which it relates, and that no third party is entitled to rely on any such advice or communication. DSI will in no way be deemed to be providing services for any person not a party to this Agreement.

DSI agrees that all information not publicly available that is received by DSI from the Company in connection with this Agreement or that is developed pursuant to this Agreement, will be treated as confidential and will not be disclosed by DSI, except as required by Court order, or other legal process, or as may be authorized by the Company. DSI shall not be required to defend any action to obtain an order requiring disclosure of such information, but shall instead give prompt notice of any such action to the Company so that it may seek appropriate remedies, including a protective order. The Company shall reimburse DSI for all costs and fees (including reasonable attorney's fees) incurred by DSI relating to responding to (whether by objecting to or complying with) any subpoenas or requests for production of information or documents.

Section 5 – Indemnity

The Company shall name Bradley D. Sharp as its Chief Restructuring Officer and shall indemnify him on the same terms as provided to the Company's other officers and directors under the Company partnership agreement or other governing document and applicable state law. Mr. Sharp shall be included as an insured under any insurance policies or coverage available to officers and directors of the Company.

The Company shall additionally indemnify those persons, and only those persons, serving as executive officers on the same terms as provided to the Company's other officers and directors under the Company's partnership agreement or other governing document and applicable state law, along with insurance coverage under the Company's D&O policies. Any such indemnity shall survive the expiration or termination by either party of this Agreement. Except as provided in this Section and in Section 4, there shall be no indemnification of DSI, its affiliates or the Additional Personnel.

Each and every one of the personnel employed by DSI who works on this particular project, as well as DSI officers, directors, employees and agents (the "DSI Parties") shall not be liable to the Company, or any party asserting claims on behalf of the Company, except for direct damages found in a final determination (not subject to further appeal) by a court of competent jurisdiction to be the direct result of the bad faith, self-dealing or intentional misconduct or gross negligence of DSI.

Section 6 – Conflicts

DSI has made diligent inquiries to determine whether it or any of its professionals have any connections with the Company, its creditors, or other parties in interest in the Chapter 11 Case. Based on that review, the review of DSI's conflict files and responses to inquiries from DSI's professional staff, neither DSI nor its professionals have any known conflicts with the parties in this case. DSI will separately provide its connections to parties in this case and/or their professionals.

Section 7 – No Audit

The Company acknowledges that it is hiring DSI to assist and advise the Company in business planning and operations. DSI's engagement shall not constitute an audit, review or compilation, or any other type of financial statement reporting engagement that is subject to the rules of AICPA or other such state and national professional bodies.

Section 8 – Non-Solicitation

The Company agrees not to solicit, recruit or hire any employees or agents of DSI for a period of one year subsequent to the completion and/or termination of this Agreement; provided that the Company shall not be prohibited from (x) making general advertisements for employment not specifically directed at employees of DSI or (y) employees of DSI responding to unsolicited requests for employment.

Section 9 – Survival

The provisions of this Agreement relating to indemnification, the non-solicitation or hiring of DSI employees, and all other provisions necessary to the enforcement of the intent of this Agreement will survive the termination or expiration of this Agreement.

Section 10 – Governing Law

This Agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of Delaware without regard to conflicts of law principles.

Section 11 – Entire Agreement, Amendment

This Agreement contains the entire understanding of the parties relating to the subject matter of this Agreement and supersedes and is intended to nullify any other agreements, understandings or representations relating to the subject of this Agreement. This Agreement may not be amended or modified except in a writing signed by the parties.

If you are in agreement with the foregoing terms and conditions please indicate your acceptance by signing an original copy of this Agreement on the signature lines below, then returning one fully-executed Agreement to DSI's office. The Agreement will become effective upon execution by duly authorized representatives of the respective parties.

Very truly yours,

Bradley Sharp

A. Definitions

a. Electronically stored information" or "ESI" shall include all electronic files, documents, data, and information covered under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

B. Preservation of ESI - Generally

a. Debtor acknowledges that they should take reasonable and proportional steps to preserve discoverable information in the party's possession, custody or control. This includes notifying employees possessing relevant information of their obligation to preserve such data.

C. Preservation of ESI – Specific Forms

a. For email, Debtor uses Outlook Email on an Exchange server. Veritas Enterprise Vault is used to archive emails. Journaling is and has been in active use since 2007, and all inbound, outbound, and in-system email .communications have been preserved and are not at risk of deletion due to normal document retention practices. Out of an abundance of caution, a copy of the latest email back-up, which was performed two months ago, shall be copied and stored at a secured location.
b. The file server used by Debtor was backed up approximately one week ago. A copy of this backup shall be created and stored on a portable hard drive at a secured location.
c. The Sharepoint server used by Debtor was backed up approximately one week ago. A copy of this backup shall be created in a format that maintains all potentially relevant information and stored at a secured location.
d. The Oracle E-Business Suite (EBS) server used by Debtor was backed up one week ago. A copy of this backup shall be created in a format and stored at a secured location.
e. The Advent Geneva accounting system used by Debtor was backed up approximately one week ago. Upon reasonable notice, the Committee may submit search criteria to Debtor to run searches in Advent Geneva. Subject to Debtor's rights to assert objections as provided by Part G herein, Debtor will provide the data resulting from such agreed searches pursuant to Part F herein..
f. The Siepe Database (data warehouse) used by Debtor was backed up approximately one week ago. A copy of this backup shall be created in a format and stored at a secured location.
g. For the Box account used by Debtor, to the extent routine data retention practices may result in file deletion, they shall be suspended pending further discussion with the Committee concerning the relevance of such data. Users of the Box account who have the ability to delete files shall be notified of the obligation to suspend deletion of any data stored in Box.
h. Bloomberg data is archived for five years. Debtor shall work with Bloomberg client services to preserve a copy of all such archived material, which shall be stored at a secured location, or otherwise extend the backup window in which Bloomberg preserves the data by reasonable time to be agreed by the parties.

i. Files may be saved locally on laptops/work computers used by employees of Debtor. This practice is discouraged, but may result in the creation of relevant ESI on local systems in a manner that will not be replicated elsewhere. Debtor shall therefore cease the deletion of data (i.e., wiping) of any employee-assigned computer hard drives, such as for departing employees. Debtor shall furthermore instruct current employees not to delete files stored locally on their assigned computers.

D. Not Reasonably Accessible Documents

a. Absent an order from the Court upon a showing of good cause, a Party from whom ESI has been requested shall not be required to search for responsive ESI from sources that are not reasonably accessible without undue burden or cost. The following types of data stores are presumed to be inaccessible and are not subject to discovery, and need not be collected or preserved, absent a particularized need for the data as established by the facts and legal issues of the case:
   i. Deleted, slack, fragmented, or other data only accessible by forensics;
   ii. Random access memory (RAM), temporary files, or other ephemeral data that are difficult to preserve without disabling the operating system; and
   iii. On-line access data such as temporary internet files, history, cache, cookies, and the like.

b. To conduct collections in a focused and efficient manner, the Parties also agree to exclude the following file types from collection: Standard system file extensions including, but not limited to, BIN, CAB, CHK, CLASS, COD, COM, DLL DRV, EXE, INF, INI, JAVA, LIB, LOG, SYS and TMP and other file extensions and directories that likely do not contain user generated content such as files identified by hash value when compared to the National Software Reference Library reference data set (RDS Hash), a sub-project of the National Institute of Standards and Technology ("NIST"), of known traceable system and application files. This process is commonly referred to as "De-NISTing."

E. Collection and Search Methodology

a. Searches for emails in Debtor's custody shall be conducted by DSI on Debtor's Veritas Enterprise Vault storage using an unrestricted account at the earliest opportunity, but in no event later than [date]. DSI shall use an add-on component called Discovery Assistant, which enables searches based on email properties, such as senders, recipients, and dates. Discovery Assistant also permits text searching of email contents and the contents of electronic file attachments, although not pictures of text (e.g., scanned PDFs). Debtor did not employ employee message or file encryption that would prevent reasonable operation of the Discovery Assistant search capabilities.

b. The results of email searches shall be produced to the Committee pursuant to Part F below, subject to completion of any review for privilege or other purposes contemplated by this Agreement.

c. A snapshot copy of Debtor databases (Oracle, Siepe) shall be created in a format to be specified later by agreement with the Committee per Part (C)(d), (f), above.

Prior to any production of responsive data from such a structured database Debtor will first identify the database type and version number, provide the vendor-originated database dictionary, if any, (identifying all tables in the database, their fields, the meaning of those fields, and any interrelation among fields) and any user manuals, or any other documentation describing the structure and/or content of the database, and a list of all reports that can be generated from the database. The list of reports shall be provided in native Excel (.xis or .xlsx) format.

d. The Geneva system is highly proprietary and shall not be collected, but the Committee will be given reasonable access to that system per Part C(e), above.
e. Debtor and Committee will meet and confer to discuss the scope of any necessary searches on the Box account.
f. Debtor file server contents, where requested by the Committee, shall be produced pursuant to Part F below.
g. Debtor shall propose a format for producing Sharepoint data. The Committee agrees that it is not necessary to reproduce the interface used by Debtor in the ordinary course of business for Sharepoint.

F. Format of Documents Produced

a. Non-database ESI shall be produced as black and white Group 4 TIFF files, with a resolution of 300 DPI. Page size shall be 8.5 x 11 inches unless, in the reasonable judgment of the Producing Party, a particular item requires a different page size, and original document orientation shall be maintained (i.e., portrait to portrait and landscape to landscape). A Requesting Party may, in good faith and reasonable judgment, request a color copy of a production document if it is necessary to convey the relevant and responsive information. Such color copies may be produced as single page JPG (JPEG) image files. The Requesting Party will bear the costs for color images.
b. The files shall be accompanied by a metadata load file, in a single standard format to be requested by the Receiving Party prior to any production (e.g., Opticon, Summation DII, or the like) showing the Bates number of each page, the appropriate unitization of the documents, and the entire family range. The Parties agree to meet and confer regarding the requested standard format prior to production.
c. The files shall be accompanied by a .DAT text file including the delimited fields identified in the Metadata List (below). No Party will have any obligation to manually generate information to provide the fields identified in the Metadata List.
d. The Producing Party reserves the right to make hard copy documents available for inspection and copying pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 34.
e. In the event that a Party identifies hard copy documents for production, hard copy paper documents shall be scanned and will include, to the extent feasible, the following fields in the .DAT text file: PRODBEG, PRODEND, PAGECOUNT, FULLTEXT, and CUSTODIAN. The Parties agree to share equally in the cost of scanning hard copy documents.
f. For any documents that were scanned from hard copy paper documents, the Parties will produce images of hard copy documents unitized to the extent the original documents appeared to be units in physical form, with attachments following parents, and with information that identifies the holder (or container) structure, to the extent such structure exists and it is reasonable to do so. The Producing Party is not required to OCR (Optical Character Recognition) hard copy documents. If the Receiving Party requests that hard copy documents be OCR'ed, the Receiving Party shall bear the cost of such request, unless the Parties agree to split the cost so that each has an OCR'ed copy of the documents.

g. For ESI that the Producing Party produces in TIFF or JPEG format, the Producing Party shall electronically "burn" a legible, unique Bates number onto each page. The Bates number shall, to the extent reasonably possible: (1) identify the Producing Party; (2) maintain a constant length of nine numeric digits (including 0-padding) across the entire production; (3) contain only alphanumeric characters, no special characters or embedded spaces; and (4) be sequential within a given document. If the Bates number conceals, interferes with, or otherwise obscures any information from the source document, the Producing Party, at the request of the Receiving Party, shall produce a copy that is not obscured.

h. For ESI that the Producing Party produces in TIFF format, if the Producing Party is producing the ESI subject to a claim that it is protected from disclosure under any confidentiality order entered in this matter, the Producing Party shall electronically "burn" the appropriate confidentiality designation onto each page of the document. If the designation conceals, interferes with, or otherwise obscures any information from the source document, the Producing Party, at the request of the Receiving Party, shall produce a copy that is not obscured.

i. The Parties agree to produce e-mail families intact absent a privilege or work product claim, so long as each document contains responsive information; for all documents that contain a responsive, non-privileged attachment, the following fields will be produced (if available) as part of the metadata load file to indicate the parent child or parent/sibling relationship:

    i. Production Bates begin
    ii. Production Bates end
    iii. Production Bates begin attachment
    iv. Production Bates end attachment

    Notwithstanding the aforementioned, all parties acknowledge that Debtor's. Veritas Enterprise Vault system does not have the ability to search for the family members of responsive documents, and that Debtor does not have an obligation to manually search for non-responsive family members of otherwise responsive documents.

j. Unless otherwise agreed, all dynamic date and time fields, where such fields are processed to contain a value, and all metadata pertaining to dates and times, will be standardized to Universal Coordinated Time (UTC) or Universal Coordinated Time + 1 (UTC+1) [TBD]. The Parties understand and acknowledge that such standardization affects only dynamic fields and metadata values and does not affect, among other things, dates and times that are hard-coded text within a file. Dates and times that are hard-coded text within a file (for example, in an email thread, dates and times of earlier messages that were converted to body text when subsequently replied to or forwarded; and in any file type, dates and times that are typed as such by users) will be produced as part of the document text in accordance with the provisions herein.

k. Exceptions to the Production Format

l. Excel spreadsheets shall be produced in native application format, unless redactions are required. The Producing Party will make reasonable efforts to provide a TIFF image of a slip sheet with the Bates number of documents produced natively in its production. The corresponding native file shall be named by using the same Bates number identified on the placeholder TIFF image. Any Excel spreadsheet that requires redaction will be produced in TIFF format only. Certain types of databases are dynamic in nature and may contain information that is irrelevant. These files are sometimes large and would, if rendered to TIFF images completely, produce thousands of pages that would have little utility to a reviewer without the associated database.

m. To the extent information from a structured data repository, such as a database, is requested, responsive information will be produced via a report or export of such data to an appropriate program that is agreeable to the requesting Party. The Parties agree to meet and confer before such data is exported.

G. Production Format Shall Not Alter Authenticity, Admissibility, or Privilege Status

a. No Party shall object that ESI produced pursuant to this Protocol is not authentic by virtue of the ESI having been converted to TIFF. The Parties otherwise reserve all rights regarding their ability to object to the authenticity of documents.

b. Nothing in this Protocol shall be construed to affect in any way the rights of any Party to make any objection as to the production, discoverability, admissibility, or confidentiality of documents and ESI.

c. Nothing in this Protocol shall constitute a waiver by any Party of any claim or privilege or other protection from discovery.

d. Nothing in this Protocol shall be interpreted to in any way limit a Producing Parties right and ability to review documents for responsiveness prior to production.

e. Nothing in the Protocol shall require disclosure of irrelevant information or relevant information protected by the attorney-client privilege, work-product doctrine, or any other applicable privilege or immunity.

Board of Directors Experience

- Purdue Pharma Inc. – July 2019 to Present - Independent Board Member and Chair of the Special Committee of Directors

  In addition to being a member of the Board of Directors of Purdue Pharma Inc., I am the Chair of the Special Committee of Independent Directors charged with overseeing the investigation of relationships between Purdue and Purdue owners, the Sackler family.

- WMC Mortgage, LLC – Indirect Subsidiary GE – July 2018 to December 2019 - Independent Board Member and Chair of the Special Independent Committee of Directors

  WMC's chapter 11 plan was recently confirmed and WMC will emerge from Chapter 11 in early December 2019. I am the Chair of the Special Independent Committee of Independent Directors for this indirect subsidiary of GE. The Special Committee was tasked with reviewing the relationship between the insolvent WMC and GE and resolving its insolvency issues through a court supervised chapter 11 proceeding. I was the lead person responsible for negotiations with the parent concerning the level of support that the parent was required to provide and worked with our creditors to negotiate a resolution amongst all parties.

- Werner Co. – January 2013 to Present – Sole Independent Director

  Werner is a global leader in access equipment, secure storage, light duty construction and fall protection products with operations across all geographies. A consortium of private equity investors bought the assets out of a bankruptcy proceeding in 2007. I was asked to serve on the Board as the sole Independent Director by the largest shareholder. Werner more than doubled the size of its business, diversified its product offering and substantially improved its EBITDA prior to its sale in July 2017. As an independent director, working with one other director, we lead the effort in the sale process that achieved an additional $180 million increase in the sale price of the company for its distressed investors. I am currently the lead director responsible for the resolution of post-sale purchase price adjustments.

- Old PSG f/k/a Performance Sports Group – August 2017 to December 2017

  Asked to serve on the Board, by the Official Equity Committee, after the sale of Performance Sports Group's assets. My role was to oversee the plan of reorganization process to drive to a smooth confirmation.

- FXI Holdings – September 2010 to October 2017 – Independent Director

  FXI is a leading producer of engineered polyurethane foam solutions serving the largest customers in the largest markets. It has the broadest customer and consumer reach of any North American foam producer. FXI's assets where purchased during a bankruptcy proceeding in 2009. I was asked to serve on the board of directors by one of the two private equity firms that owned FXI. Shortly after joining the Board, I was asked to Chair a Special Committee of the Board to manage certain litigation and government investigations related to alleged anti-trust infractions. FXI was the subject of over 50 different class action and individual litigations alleging damages in excess of $3 billion. Over a period of several years, FXI was able to settle all of its litigation for a minor fraction of the alleged damages and all investigations by the government were dropped. During this time, the company's performance improved in a consistent manner with EBITDA more than doubling. Once these litigations were settled, the company was marketed and ultimately sold in October 2017.

- ResCap Liquidating Trust – December 2013 to March 2017 – Chairman of the Board - December 2013 to late 2015

  After the ResCap chapter 11 plan was confirmed, I served on the Board of the ResCap Liquidating Trust, as FGIC's representative, to guide the wind down of the remaining assets and prosecute claims in excess of $4 billion against institutions that caused harm to ResCap. During this time, I also served as Liquidating Trustee while we brought on board a new in-house lawyer to prosecute these claims and transitioned this individual into the permanent Liquidating Trustee role.

- FGIC Corporation and FGIC - December 2008 to April 2014 – Chairman of the Board during various parts of that time frame – while serving as CEO

  After Barneys' 2007 sale to Istithmar World, the Government of Dubai's private investment fund, Barneys was impacted by the recession in the late 2000's. I was brought in to serve as the sole independent director during the out of court restructuring process which resulted in a consensual change of control for Barneys to its distressed investor creditors.

Key Management Experience

- Noble Environmental Power – Restructuring Advisor to the Company - 2018

  Noble was the owner of two utility scale wind power plants in upstate New York which were in default on their debt instruments. Working closely with Noble's investment bankers we were able to complete a sale of these plants while keeping the companies out of chapter 11 and returning net sale proceeds to its shareholders.

- SunEdison, Inc. – Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer – 2016-2017

  SunEdison was the largest global renewable energy development company prior to its filing for chapter 11 in April 2016. SunEdison had over $10 billion of liabilities and 4,500 employees spread across operations in over 50 countries on 6 continents. A decline in energy prices along with loss of faith in management by investors and numerous litigations filed against the company caused the closing of the capital markets for SunEdison which led to its filing for chapter 11. I was brought in as a requirement of the DIP agreement. SunEdison's assets were sold in a manner to preserve the greatest value for its creditors. I am currently assisting the wind down SunEdison entity as requested.

- Financial Guaranty Insurance Company – Chairman and Chief Executive Officer – 2008-2014

  FGIC was the third largest monoline bond insurer, insuring in excess of $300 billion of public finance instruments, RMBS securitizations and CDS contracts with over $4 billion of capital. After the collapse of the residential mortgage market in the 2007/08 timeframe, FGIC lost its AAA ratings and experienced tremendous losses on its insurance contracts. This led to an insolvency proceeding under NY State insurance law with an innovative resolution through a pre-arranged rehabilitation plan. This enabled it to continue to pay its policy holders in a timely manner.

- Residential Capital – Co-Chairman of the Official Creditors Committee – 2012-2013

  ResCap, a wholly owned subsidiary of Ally Financial, was one of the largest mortgage originators in the US. FGIC was its 2nd largest creditor and after its chapter 11 filing in May of 2012, I was appointed as the Co-Chair of ResCap's Official Unsecured Creditors Committee. As the lead negotiator for the UCC, the UCC was able to negotiate an increase in the contribution to the plan of reorganization by the parent, Ally, from approximately $650 million to $2.1 billion. This contribution settled all of the litigation between Ally and Rescap and enabled ResCap to emerge from chapter 11.

- Anchor Glass Container Corporation – Chief Restructuring Officer – 2005-2006

  Anchor Glass was the 3rd largest manufacturer of glass containers in the US, with Anheuser Busch and Snapple as its largest customers, where it provided "just in time" deliveries to enable its customers plants to operate 24/7. Its third trip through chapter 11 resulted from poor contract pricing and high legacy costs. I worked closely with the CEO to renegotiate these contracts and reduce the cost structure which enabled it to emerge from chapter 11 as a viable business which continues to operate today.

- RCN Corporation – President and Chief Operating Officer - 2004

  RCN was a Bundled 3-product cable provider offering integrated voice, video and data products in the US Northeast, Midwest and West Coast markets with over $1.7 billion of debt incurred during its build out period. Working with the Lead Director, a pre-arranged chapter 11 plan was negotiated with all of its creditor constituencies to enable it to emerge as a profitable business in its markets where it continues to operate today.

- Cable & Wireless America – Chief Executive Officer – 2003-2004

  C&W America was a premier hosting business with 14% share of the US market and world class a Tier 1 IP Network. When its British parent company experienced financial difficulties, they attempted to abandon C&W America which caused stress for its major customers, including Yahoo, Google and others. A plan was put in place, though a chapter 11 process, to dramatically reduce its daily cash burn and sell the entity while maintaining its customer base.

- Acterna Corporation – Chief Restructuring Officer - 2003

  Acterna was a multi-national manufacturer of telecommunications and cable equipment with revenues of approximately $1.7 billion and debt of $1 billion prior to the industry down turn. I worked closely with the CEO to stabilize the operations and avoid a fire sale of the business. A quick turn through chapter 11 enabled it to emerge as a viable business, where upon the CEO was able to regrow the business and position it for a successful sale to an industry player 18 months later.

- WorldCom, Inc. – Chief Financial Officer – 2002, Advisor – 2003

  WorldCom was one of the largest telecommunication companies with assets of over $107 billion and operations across the globe. It filed for chapter 11 during 2002 due to a massive fraud which covered up the significant operational deficiencies and losses it was experiencing. I was brought in as a condition of the DIP agreement and worked closely with the CEO and other members of the senior management to stabilize the company, restructure the operations to reduce opex, provide stability to the international operations and assist with the plan of reorganization negotiations and confirmation.

- CellNet Data Systems, Inc. – Chief Restructuring Officer – 1999-2001

  CellNet was a startup technology company that provided smart grid and smart metering and billing solutions for the utility industry. After burning through in excess of $600 million of initial funding it was not able to access the capital markets to continue to build out its platform and realize the cost synergies across contracts that would make it profitable. Working closely with the new CEO, we reduced the cost structure and sold the company to one of its meter suppliers enabling it to continue to operate in a successful manner.

- Barneys New York – Chief Financial Officer – 1996-1999

  Barneys was, at this time, a family owned high end retail store chain operating with over 30 stores and international affiliations in Asia. After an uncontrolled growth plan and management that did not understand its cost structure, it filed for chapter 11. I was brought in a the request of the DIP lender to oversee the family's management, to control its costs, close unprofitable locations, renegotiate store leases and work out a consensual chapter 11 plan that included its largest creditors providing financing through a rights offering to enable Barneys to successfully emerge from chapter 11 as a profitable retailer.

- The Leslie Fay Companies – EVP Restructuring and Chief Financial Officer – 1993-1995

  Leslie Fay was one of the larger designer and manufacturer of ladies dresses, sportwear and suits in the US. A public company, it was the victim of fraud by its financial management team to hide the true cost of operations and manufacturing of its products. This led to a chapter 11 filing. I worked closely with the CEO and President to stabilize its financial management team, reduce costs and position it for an emergence from chapter 11.

- Robert Maxwell Group – Head of US Private Companies – 1991-1993

  Robert Maxwell was a British entrepreneur who invested heavily in the publishing space. After financial improprieties were uncovered and his subsequent suicide, I was appointed by the UK Administrators to run all of his US operations, which included over 40 private companies. I worked closely with the UK administers to realize value through sales of these US operations and turn those proceeds over to the UK Administrators.

Selected Case Studies

SunEdison, Inc.

John Dubel – Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer

Situation

- SunEdison (SUNE) was the largest global renewable energy development company prior to its filing for chapter 11 in April 2016. SUNE had over $10 billion of liabilities and 4,500 employees spread across operations in over 50 countries on 6 continents
- Continued downward pressure on energy prices caused renewable energy projects to experience stress. Lack of proper integration of acquisitions and overpayment on other acquisitions caused a liquidity crisis. Public spin-offs of profitable yieldco assets cut off cash flow that was needed to run the operations.
- Senior management control of the Yieldcos enabled borrowings from the Yieldcos which could not be repaid

Actions Taken

- Hired initially as CRO with a clear mandate to take on CEO responsibilities
- An immediate assessment of the opportunity to maintain a going concern was initiated.
- Programs were put in place to plug the employee exodus that SUNE was experiencing
- In consultation with our lenders made the determination that an orderly sale of assets was the best path to optimum value realization
- Maintained an open line of communication with the DIP, 1L and 2 L lenders to build back trust in the company
- Engaged with the Board of the Yieldcos, TERP and GLBL, to work towards a resolution of the disputes between the Yieldcos and SUNE

Results

- Took on CEO role after a short transition with the former CEO
- Reorganization of key personnel functions including the hiring of a new CFO and Controller provided stability in the Finance functions for the company to operate within the limits of the DIP agreement.
- Executed a global marketing process which resulted in over 60 asset sales with approximately $1.5 billion of gross proceeds
- Executed a plan which resulted in the transition of administrative and operational functions from SUNE to the Yieldcos which helped stabilize the value of our ownership stake in these entities

John Dubel – Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer

Situation

- Class and individual litigation against SUNE and the Yieldcos related to these control issues ensued.
- Shortly after a Feb 2016 2L financing the company has exhausted those funds and was out of available funds to operate the business.
- Additional litigation commenced related to cancelled acquisitions.
- During this timeframe, the creditors lost faith in the CEO and CFO.
- SUNE filed for chapter 11 in late April 2016 funded by a DIP provided by the 1L and 2L creditors.

Actions Taken

- Engaged with the Board and management of the Yieldcos, TERP and GLBL, to start to work towards a resolution of the disputes between the Yieldcos and SUNE
- Put in place a path to seek resolution of all of the Class Action and individual shareholder litigations by seeking a mediation in the District Court and Bankruptcy Court litigation related to both SUNE and the Yieldcos
- Commenced negotiations to settle the various litigations amongst SUNE's creditor groups and between SUNE and its Yieldcos
- Worked closely with Chief Judge Morris, the mediator appointed in the case, to craft a resolution to all intercreditor disputes

Results

- Drove a plan, through a directed litigation strategy, to force a resolution of the over $3 billion of claims brought against SUNE by the Yieldcos which resulted in a cooperative sale of the Yieldcos netting SUNE approximately $825 million
- A replacement DIP agreement was put in place to eliminate certain concerned creditors and align the interests of the DIP lenders and the prepetition secured creditors.
- Settlements of the vast majority of class and individual shareholders were negotiated
- A mediated resolution amongst SUNE's creditor resulted in a successful chapter plan of reorg funded by a rights offering led by SUNE's 2L creditors

11. Nothing in the Protocols, the Term Sheet or this Order shall affect or impair Jefferies LLC's rights under its Prime Brokerage Customer Agreements with the Debtor and non-debtor Highland Select Equity Master Fund, L.P., or any of their affiliates, including, but not limited to, Jefferies LLC's rights of termination, liquidation and netting in accordance with the terms of the Prime Brokerage Customer Agreements or, to the extent applicable, under the Bankruptcy Code's "safe harbor" protections, including under sections 555 and 561 of the Bankruptcy Code. The Debtor shall not conduct any transactions or cause any transactions to be conducted in or relating to the Jefferies LLC accounts without the express consent and cooperation of Jefferies LLC or, in the event that Jefferies withholds consent, as otherwise ordered by the Court. For the avoidance of doubt, Jefferies LLC shall not be deemed to have waived any rights under the Prime Brokerage Customer Agreements or, to the extent applicable, the Bankruptcy Code's "safe harbor" protections, including under sections 555 and 561 of the Bankruptcy Code, and shall be entitled to take all actions authorized therein without further order of the Court

12. Notwithstanding any stay under applicable Bankruptcy Rules, this Order shall be effective immediately upon entry.

13. The Court shall retain jurisdiction over all matters arising from or related to the interpretation and implementation of this Order, including matters related to the Committee's approval rights over the appointment and removal of the Independent Directors.

COUNSEL FOR ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP, LLC

IN THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
DALLAS DIVISION

IN RE:	§
	§	CASE NO. 19-34054
	§

ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMNT, L.P. AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP, LLC'S OBJECTION TO THE FIRST MONTHLY APPLICATION FOR COMPENSATION AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES OF FOLEY GARDERE, FOLEY & LARDNER LLP AS SPECIAL TEXAS COUNSEL FOR THE PERIOD FROM OCTOBER 16, 2019 THROUGH NOVEMBER 30, 2019

Acis Capital Management, L.P. ("Acis LP") and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC ("Acis GP," together with Acis LP, "Acis") file this Objection (the "Objection") to the First Monthly Application for Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP As Special Texas Counsel for the Period from October 16, 2019 through November 30, 2019 [Docket No. 270] (the "Fee Application ").

I. OBJECTION

1. Acis filed a Limited Objection to the Debtor's: (I) Application for An Order Authorizing the Retention and Employment of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP as Special Texas Counsel, Nunc Pro Tunc to the Petition Date; and (II) Application for An Order Authorizing The Retention of Lynn Pinker Cox, & Hurst LLP as Special Texas Counsel, Nunc Pro Tunc to the Petition Date [Docket No. 120] (the "Acis Foley Employment Objection") to the Debtor's Application for An Order Authorizing the Retention and Employment of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP as Special Texas Counsel, Nunc Pro Tunc to the Petition Date [Docket No. 68] (the "Foley Employment Application") filed by Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor"). The Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors of the Debtor (the "UCC") also filed a Limited Objection to the Debtor's Application for An Order Authorizing the Retention and Employment of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP as Special Texas Counsel and Lynn Pinker Cox, & Hurst LLP as Special Texas Counsel, Nunc Pro Tunc to the Petition Date [Docket No. 124] (the "UCC Foley Employment Objection"). Acis expressly incorporates the arguments and authorities set forth in the Acis Foley Employment Objection and the UCC Foley Employment Objection into this Objection.

2. This Court should deny the Fee Application of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP ("Foley"), as this Court has not authorized the Debtor to employ Foley. The Foley Employment Application, the Acis Foley Employment Objection, and the UCC Foley Employment Objection are set for hearing on January 21, 2020. As acknowledged by footnote two of the Fee Application, this Court has not authorized the Debtor to employ Foley. It is axiomatic that Sections 327, 330, and 331 of the Bankruptcy Code require a professional to be employed pursuant to the applicable statutory section before compensation may be awarded. See Lamie v. United States Tr., 540 U.S. 526, 538 (2004) ("330(a)(1) does not authorize compensation awards to debtors' attorneys from estate funds, unless they are employed as authorized by § 327"); see also In re Aladdin Petroleum Co., 85 B.R. 738, 740 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 1988) (this Court concludes that [the Professional's] services were those of a professional person, that Court permission was therefore a prerequisite to his retention, and thus without such permission, he is not entitled to compensation"); In re Palacios, No. 14-70076, 2016 Bankr. LEXIS 249, at *42 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Jan. 27, 2016) ("the Code clearly sets an order of employment as a prerequisite for compensation to be awarded").

3. Court authorized employment is a prerequisite to compensation even on an interim basis. The plain language of Section 331 states "…any professional person employed under section 327 or 1103 of this title may apply to the court…for such compensation for services rendered…as is provided under section 330 of this title. After notice and a hearing, the court may allow and disburse to such applicant such compensation or reimbursement." 11 U.S.C. § 331. Section 331 of the Bankruptcy Code clearly states that employment under Sections 327 or 1103 is a prerequisite for interim compensation. Section 330 requires the same. See 11 U.S.C. § 330(a).

4. This Court has not authorized the Debtor to employ Foley. Therefore, Acis objects to the interim allowance and payment of Foley's fees and expenses, as requested by the Fee Application.

5. Additionally, as set forth in the Acis Foley Employment Objection and the UCC Foley Employment Objection, Acis objects to the extent the Fee Application requests the allowance and payment of fees and expenses for work performed by Foley on behalf of non-debtor entities. As more fully set forth in the Acis Foley Employment Objection, Acis continues to be concerned about fees and expenses incurred by Neutra, Ltd. ("Neutra"), a non-debtor and an affiliate of James Dondero. A significant portion of the fees and expenses included on the Fee Application appear to relate to Neutra's appeal of Acis's involuntary orders for relief, which is currently pending in the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit under Case Number 19-10846 (the "Neutra Appeal"). The Debtor is not party to the Neutra Appeal. Given that this work was performed for a non-debtor and not likely to benefit the estate, even if Foley is permitted to be retained by the Debtor, the fees and expenses related to the Neutra Appeal should not be awarded, even on an interim basis.

II. PRAYER

Acis respectfully requests that this Court deny the Fee Application. Acis also requests such other and further relief to which it may show itself to be justly entitled.

DATED: January 13, 2020.

Respectfully submitted,

MOTION FOR RELIEF FROM THE AUTOMATIC STAY TO ALLOW PURSUIT OF STATE COURT ACTION AGAINST NON-DEBTORS

PURSUANT TO LOCAL BANKRUPTCY RULE 4001-l(b), A RESPONSE IS REQUIRED TO THIS MOTION, OR THE ALLEGATIONS IN THE MOTION MAY BE DEEMED ADMITTED, AND AN ORDER GRANTING THE RELIEF SOUGHT MAY BE ENTERED BY DEFAULT.

ANY RESPONSE SHALL BE IN WRITING AND FILED WITH THE CLERK OF THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT AT EARLE CABEL FEDERAL BUILDING, 1100 COMMERCE ST., RM. 1254, DALLAS, TX 75242 BEFORE CLOSE OF BUSINESS ON MARCH 2, 2020, WHICH IS AT LEAST 14 DAYS FROM THE DATE OF SERVICE HEREOF. A COPY SHALL BE SERVED UPON COUNSEL FOR THE MOVING PARTY AND ANY TRUSTEE OR EXAMINER APPOINTED IN THE CASE. ANY RESPONSE SHALL INCLUDE A DETAILED AND COMPREHENSIVE STATEMENT AS TO HOW THE MOVANT CAN BE "ADEQUATELY PROTECTED" IF THE STAY IS TO BE CONTINUED.

Creditors Joshua N. Terry and Jennifer G. Terry (the "Terrys") file this Motion for Relief from the Automatic Stay to Allow Pursuit of State Court Action Against Non-Debtors (the "Motion") pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d), and show the Court as follows:

SUMMARY OF MOTION

1. Out of an abundance of caution, the Terrys request stay relief to pursue their state court claims against non-debtors James Dondero ("Dondero") and Thomas Surgent ("Surgent"). In state court litigation, Surgent and Dondero, along with the Debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor"), agreed to pay the Terrys $425,000.00 to resolve claims associated with the theft of monies from the Terrys' retirement accounts. Surgent and Dondero are jointly and severally liable with the Debtor for that amount. In state court, the Terrys wish to sever their claims from those against the Debtor and recoup their retirement savings from Surgent and Dondero. The Terrys have been deprived of their stolen retirement savings for more than three years, and it is about time they get back what was stolen from them in 2016.

JURISDICTION

2. This Court has jurisdiction over the Motion by virtue of 11 U.S.C. §§103, 361, 362, 363 and 28 U.S.C. §§1334(b), 157(b).

RELEVANT FACTS

3. As this Court knows, an arbitration panel of three well-respected former state court jurists issued a scathing arbitration award involving actions of the Debtor's former affiliates and present employees, including Dondero and Surgent. A true and correct copy of the arbitration award is attached hereto as Exhibit 1. The arbitration panel found that approximately $350,000.00 in the Terrys' retirement accounts were converted and that their claims for conversion and damages "should be stated against those parties or others, elsewhere." Ex. 1 at p. 16.

4. The Terrys did as the arbitration panel advised and brought those claims in state court for the conversion of their retirement accounts against the orchestrators of the scheme:

Highland, Dondero and Surgent. The state court suit is in the 162nd District Court of Dallas County, Texas, Case No. DC-16-11396 (the "State Court Litigation").

5. On October 2, 2019, the parties to the State Court Litigation settled, as reflected in the agreement attached hereto as Exhibit 2, which is a legally-enforceable agreement pursuant to Texas Rule of Civil Procedure 11 (the "Rule 11"). The Rule 11 provides, among other things, that "Defendants shall pay Plaintiffs $425,000" and "[t]he parties will mutually, fully, and comprehensively release each other with usual and customary releases (we do not intend to settle this matter if it is Defendants' intent to use one of their thousands of entities, funds, or affiliates to sue, directly or indirectly, Mr. or Mrs. Terry); however, the releases shall not release Highland CLO Funding Ltd.'s claims in Guernsey nor any claims of Acis Capital Management, LP or Acis Capital Management GP, LLC." Ex. 2 (emphasis added).

6. On October 16, 2019, Debtor filed this bankruptcy case.

7. On October 21, 2019, Debtor filed a Suggestion of Bankruptcy in the State Court Litigation.

8. Attached hereto as Exhibit 3 is a declaration of Joshua N. Terry setting out the aforementioned facts.

ARGUMENT & AUTHORITY

9. "Cause" exists for relief from the automatic stay permitting the Terrys to:

(a) File and pursue to order a motion to sever claims against Dondero and Surgent from those against Debtor, such that the State Court Litigation will have two separate causes with separate defendants, one with the Debtor and one with Dondero and Surgent;

(b) Pursue their claims against Surgent and Dondero in the severed action.

10. Other than severing the claims against Dondero and Surgent from those against the Debtor, the latter of which will remain stayed by the automatic stay, the requested relief will not affect the Debtor.

11. "[W]hile the stay protects the debtor who has filed a bankruptcy petition, litigation can proceed against other co-defendants." GATX Aircraft Corp. v. M/V Courtney Leigh, 768 F.2d 711, 716 (5th Cir. 1985). The Terrys request the Court grant them stay relief to sever and pursue their state law claims against the Debtor's co-defendants, Dondero and Surgent.

WHEREFORE, PREMISES CONSIDERED, the Terrys respectfully request that upon hearing of the Motion, the Court grants the Terrys the following stay relief to:

(a) File and pursue to order a motion to sever claims against Dondero and Surgent from those as against Debtor, such that the State Court Litigation will have two separate causes with separate defendants, one with the Debtor and one with Dondero and Surgent;

(b) Pursue their claims against Surgent and Dondero in the severed action.

The Terrys also request the Court grant such other and further relief to which they are entitled.

COUNSEL FOR ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP, LLC

IN THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
DALLAS DIVISION

IN RE:	§
	§	CASE NO. 19-34054
	§

ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P. AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP, LLC'S OBJECTION TO THE SECOND MONTHLY APPLICATION FOR COMPENSATION AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES OF FOLEY GARDERE, FOLEY & LARDNER LLP AS SPECIAL TEXAS COUNSEL FOR THE PERIOD FROM DECEMBER 1, 2019 THROUGH DECEMBER 31, 2019

Acis Capital Management, L.P. ("Acis LP") and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC ("Acis GP," together with Acis LP, "Acis") file this Objection (the "Second Objection") to the Second Monthly Application for Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP As Special Texas Counsel for the Period from December 1, 2019 through December 31, 2019 [Docket No. 394] (the "Second Fee Application ").

I. OBJECTION

1. Acis filed a Limited Objection to the Debtor's: (I) Application for An Order Authorizing the Retention and Employment of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP as Special Texas Counsel, Nunc Pro Tunc to the Petition Date; and (II) Application for An Order Authorizing The Retention of Lynn Pinker Cox, & Hurst LLP as Special Texas Counsel, Nunc Pro Tunc to the Petition Date [Docket No. 120] (the "Acis Foley Employment Objection") to the Debtor's Application for An Order Authorizing the Retention and Employment of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP as Special Texas Counsel, Nunc Pro Tunc to the Petition Date [Docket No. 68] (the "Foley Employment Application") filed by Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor"). The Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors of the Debtor (the "UCC") also filed a Limited Objection to the Debtor's Application for An Order Authorizing the Retention and Employment of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP as Special Texas Counsel and Lynn Pinker Cox, & Hurst LLP as Special Texas Counsel, Nunc Pro Tunc to the Petition Date [Docket No. 124] (the "UCC Foley Employment Objection"). Acis expressly incorporates the arguments and authorities set forth in the Acis Foley Employment Objection and the UCC Foley Employment Objection into this Second Objection.

2. Acis filed its Objection to the First Monthly Application for Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP As Special Texas Counsel for the Period from October 16, 2019 through November 30, 2019 [Docket No. 353] (the "First Objection"), objecting to the First Monthly Application for Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP As Special Texas Counsel for the Period from October 16, 2019 through November 30, 2019 [Docket No. 270] (the "First Fee Application"). Acis expressly incorporates the arguments and authorities set forth in the First Objection.

3. This Court should deny the Second Fee Application of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP ("Foley"), as this Court has not authorized the Debtor to employ Foley. The Foley Employment Application, the Acis Foley Employment Objection, and the UCC Foley Employment Objection are set for hearing on February 19, 2020. As acknowledged by footnote two of the Second Fee Application, this Court has not authorized the Debtor to employ Foley. It is axiomatic that Sections 327, 330, and 331 of the Bankruptcy Code require a professional to be employed pursuant to the applicable statutory section before compensation may be awarded. See Lamie v. United States Tr., 540 U.S. 526, 538 (2004) ("330(a)(1) does not authorize compensation awards to debtors' attorneys from estate funds, unless they are employed as authorized by § 327"); see also In re Aladdin Petroleum Co., 85 B.R. 738, 740 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 1988) (this Court concludes that [the Professional's] services were those of a professional person, that Court permission was therefore a prerequisite to his retention, and thus without such permission, he is not entitled to compensation"); In re Palacios, No. 14-70076, 2016 Bankr. LEXIS 249, at *42 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Jan. 27, 2016) ("the Code clearly sets an order of employment as a prerequisite for compensation to be awarded").

4. Court-authorized employment is a prerequisite to compensation even on an interim basis. The plain language of Section 331 states "…any professional person employed under section 327 or 1103 of this title may apply to the court…for such compensation for services rendered…as is provided under section 330 of this title. After notice and a hearing, the court may allow and disburse to such applicant such compensation or reimbursement."

11 U.S.C. § 331. Section 331 of the Bankruptcy Code clearly states that employment under Sections 327 or 1103 is a prerequisite for interim compensation. Section 330 requires the same. See 11 U.S.C. § 330(a).

5. This Court has not authorized the Debtor to employ Foley. Therefore, Acis objects to the interim allowance and payment of Foley's fees and expenses, as requested by the Second Fee Application.

6. Additionally, as set forth in the Acis Foley Employment Objection and the UCC Foley Employment Objection, Acis objects to the extent the Second Fee Application requests the allowance and payment of fees and expenses for work performed by Foley on behalf of non-debtor entities. As more fully set forth in the Acis Foley Employment Objection, Acis continues to be concerned about fees and expenses incurred by Neutra, Ltd. ("Neutra"), a non-debtor and an affiliate of James Dondero. A significant portion of the fees and expenses included on the Fee Application appear to relate to the Debtor's and Neutra's appeal of Acis's plan of reorganization, which is currently pending in the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit under Case Number 19-10847 (the "Confirmation Appeal"). Foley represents both Neutra and the Debtor in the Confirmation Appeal. It appears that the Debtor has been billed 100-percent of the legal fees related to the Confirmation Appeal. Given that this work was performed, in part, for a non-debtor and not likely to benefit the estate, even if Foley is permitted to be retained by the Debtor, the fees and expenses related to the Confirmation Appeal should not be awarded.

7. The Foley Employment Application seeks to be employed as special counsel under Section 327(e). The Foley Employment Application does not seek to employ Foley as general bankruptcy counsel. The Second Fee Application, although heavily redacted, appears to demonstrate that Foley is acting, in part, as general bankruptcy counsel. For example, on December 4, 2019, Holly O'Neil "provide information to Highland to assist with Schedules and SOFAs (.3)." See Second Fee Application p. 19. Additionally, the Second Fee Application states it "Foley addressed issues and multiple objections to the Foley and Lynn Pinker retention applications and assisted with responses to the objections." See Second Fee Application p. 10. Given that Foley has not sought to be employed as general bankruptcy counsel, it is not clear how under the proposed Foley Employment Application, Foley will be entitled to bill the estate for work related to a different law firm's employment matters.

II. PRAYER

Acis respectfully requests that this Court deny the Second Fee Application. Acis also requests such other and further relief to which it may show itself to be justly entitled.

DATED: February 14, 2020.

IN THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
DALLAS DIVISION

In re:	Chapter 11
Debtor.	Docket Ref. No. 474

OBJECTION OF THE OFFICIAL COMMITTEE OF UNSECURED CREDITORS TO THE MOTION OF THE DEBTOR FOR ENTRY OF AN ORDER AUTHORIZING, BUT NOT DIRECTING, THE DEBTOR TO CAUSE DISTRIBUTIONS TO CERTAIN "RELATED ENTITIES"

The official committee of unsecured creditors (the "Committee") of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor"), hereby submits this objection (this "Objection") to the Motion of the Debtor for Entry of an Order Authorizing, But Not Directing, the Debtor to Cause Distributions to Certain "Related Entities" [Docket No.474] (the "Distribution Motion").[2] In support of this Objection, the Committee respectfully states as follows:

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. The Committee's objection focuses on a very limited portion of the transaction currently proposed by the Debtor – namely, proposed distributions of approximately $8.6 million (the "Proposed Insider Distributions") to several insiders who not only owe money to the Debtor but also may be the target of avoidance and other litigation brought by the Committee on behalf of the Debtor's estate - Mark Okada and two entities owned and/or controlled by James Dondero and/or Mark Okada (such entities, together with Messrs. Dondero and Okada, the "Insider Parties"). As this Court is aware, Messrs. Dondero and Okada owned and controlled the Debtor for most of the past 30 years. During that time, the Debtor repeatedly breached fiduciary duties and contractual obligations, leading to hundreds of millions of dollars in judgments against the Debtor and certain affiliates. The Committee is currently investigating a variety of significant potential estate claims against the Insider Parties. For example, certain of the interests held by the Insider Parties, which form the basis for a portion of the Proposed Insider Distributions, were once owned by the Debtor – the Committee is investigating, among other things, the propriety of the transfers of these interests from the Debtor to the Insider Parties. In addition, Messrs. Dondero and Okada currently owe the Debtor over $10.6 million in demand notes and another Insider Party owes the Debtor nearly $7.5 million in notes receivable, some of which also are demand notes. In light of these and other potential claims, which are only now the subject of review by a party other than the Debtor, the Committee believes the Proposed Insider Distributions to the Insider Parties should be reserved in segregated accounts pending resolution of the issues under investigation by the Committee and repayment of all amounts owed to the Debtor by the Insider Parties.

[1] The Debtor's last four digits of its taxpayer identification number are (6725). The headquarters and service address for the above-captioned Debtor is 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, TX 75201.

[2] All capitalized terms used but not otherwise defined herein shall have the meanings ascribed to them in the Distribution Motion.

2. This Court's order granting the relief requested by the Committee would shield the Debtor from any purported legal risks associated with withholding the Proposed Insider Distributions. Similarly, the Debtor and Independent Board would not breach their fiduciary duties by complying with this Court's order to withhold the Proposed Insider Distributions.[3]

[3] Even absent court order, the Committee is highly skeptical of the legal merit of any such legal claims by Messrs. Dondero and Okada and related damages for any alleged breach of contract and/or fiduciary duty by the Debtor.

3. Temporarily withholding and segregating the proposed distributions would greatly facilitate the Debtor's interests while causing little harm to the Insider Parties. It would facilitate repayment of over $18 million in notes payable to the Debtor by the Insider Parties. Moreover, delay in the distribution will allow the Committee an adequate opportunity to investigate potential estate claims against the Insider Parties, including claims arising from the very transactions pursuant to which the Debtor transferred certain of the interests at issue to such parties.

4. While the Debtor and Independent Board have taken the position that they cannot affirmatively seek this relief, clearly both should be supportive of this outcome which preserves claims of the Debtor's estate and a ready source of recovery for the outstanding demand notes. Moreover, the Proposed Insider Distributions will be temporarily placed in segregated, interest bearing accounts, compensating the Insider Parties for any material injury from the mere passage of time. To the extent Messrs. Dondero and Okada believe they would incur additional harm of which the Committee is not aware, they – not the Debtor – should bring those concerns directly to this Court.

OBJECTION

5. Through the Distribution Motion, the Debtor seeks authority to make redemption payments and other distributions to investors in certain funds managed by the Debtor. Specifically, as part of the Debtor's plan to distribute (i) approximately $123.25 million to investors of RCP, (ii) $21.8 million to investors of AROF in connection with the wind up of such fund, and (iii) $34.8 million to investors in Dynamic in connection with the wind up of such fund – the Debtor seeks authority for some of the foregoing distributions to be made to the Insider Parties. Of the almost $180 million in distributions, the Committee only objects to the distribution of a total of $8.6 million to be distributed to three Insider Parties. Specifically, the Committee objects to the request to make distributions to Mark Okada, Highland Capital Management Services, Inc. ("HCM Services," owned by James Dondero, and Mark Okada), and CLO Holdco Ltd. ("CLOH").[4] To be clear, the Committee does not object to the Debtor's orderly liquidation of Dynamic or AROF, or to the distributions from AROF, Dynamic, and RCP to any third-party, non-affiliated investors. However, in light of the significant amounts of money owed to the Debtor by Mr. Okada, Mr. Dondero and HCM Services, the Committee's ongoing investigation of the Debtor's insiders and related entities (including with respect to the propriety of how the Insider Parties obtained the interests which form the basis of the Proposed Insider Distributions (such interests, the "Insider Interests")), and the well-documented fraudulent and improper activities engaged in by the Debtor's insiders, the Committee requests that the Court order the Debtor to hold the Proposed Insider Distributions in a reserve for a limited period of time.

I. The Proposed Insider Distributions Should Be Reserved Pending the Repayment of Insiders Parties' Obligations Owed to the Debtor and the Committee Investigation

6. Through the Distribution Motion, the Debtor seeks to make the following Proposed Insider Distributions:

Investor	Distribution Amount	Fund
CLO HoldCo, Ltd.	$872,000	AROF
CLO HoldCo, Ltd.	$1,521,000	Dynamic
Mark Okada	$4,185,000	Dynamic
Highland Capital Management Services, Inc.	$2,085,000	RCP
Total	$8,663,000

These Proposed Insider Distributions are a small portion of the $180 million to be distributed from Dynamic, AROF and RCP.

[4] The Distribution Motion also seeks authority to make distributions to Highland Dynamic Income Fund GP, LLC. The Committee does not object to such distribution.

The Insider Parties Owe the Debtor Money

7. It is undisputed that James Dondero, Mark Okada, and HCM Services owe the Debtor significant amounts of money. The Debtor's schedule of assets and liabilities [Docket No. 247] discloses that, as of the Petition Date, the Debtor holds notes receivable from (i) James Dondero, in the principle amount of $9,334,012 (the "Dondero Note")[5]; (ii) HCM Services in the aggregate principle amount of $7,482,480.88 (the "HCM Services Notes"), and (iii) Mark Okada, in the principle amount of $1,336,287.84 (the "Okada Note", and with the Dondero Note and the HCM Services Notes, the "Notes"). The Dondero Note, the Okada Note, and four of the five HCM Services Notes are demand notes, payable upon the request of the Debtor. These Notes should be repaid before the Debtor makes any distributions to these insiders.

The Insider Parties Have Engaged in a Pattern of Fraudulent Activities to the Detriment of Creditors

8. Further, as this Court is well-aware, the Debtor has a documented history of engaging in misconduct, breaches of fiduciary duty and fraudulent transactions in multiple settings, which ultimately led to the commencement of this bankruptcy case. At all relevant times, Mr. Dondero and Mr. Okada, as co-founders and executive officers, managed and controlled the Debtor and were ultimately responsible for the Debtor's pattern of misconduct, breaches of fiduciary duty and fraudulent activities.

9. As examples of the extensive misconduct, in 2014, the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") determined (i) that the Debtor knowingly engaged in multiple transactions with its client advisory accounts without disclosing that the Debtor was acting as principal, or obtaining client consent, before the trades were completed, and (ii) that the debtor failed to maintain sufficient documentation with respect to certain transactions. See SEC Order ¶¶ 6-7, In the Matter of Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., File No. 3-16169 [Docket No. 130. Ex. A]. As established in the Redeemer Committee litigation, the Debtor, under the control of Mr. Dondero and Mr. Okada, was found to have covertly and improperly taken $32.3 million in cash out of the a fund for which the Debtor acted as investment manager (the "Crusader Fund"), and was found to have made decisions with the "willful intent" to benefit itself and not the parties to whom the Debtor owed fiduciary duties. An arbitration panel unanimously found that the Debtor, Mr. Dondero, and Highland's in-house lawyers violated their fiduciary duties to the Crusader Fund, engaged in willful misconduct, self-dealing, and secrecy, and made multiple misrepresentations to the Crusader Fund's investors as well as the Debtor's auditors.

10. In the Acis Capital Management bankruptcy case, this Court found that there was a "legitimate prospect" that the Debtor "would continue dismantling [Acis], to the detriment of [Acis] creditors." In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., 584 B.R. 115, 147, 149 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018). Following an arbitration award against Acis, Mr. Dondero and other members of the Debtor's management transferred tens of millions of dollars in assets out of Acis into newly-formed Cayman Islands-based Highland affiliates. Id. at 127-130. This Court ultimately concluded that the "record contain[ed] substantial evidence of both intentional and constructive fraudulent transfers," and "[t]he numerous prepetition transfers that occurred around the time of and after the Terry Arbitration Award appear[ed] more likely than not to have been made to deprive the Debtor-Acis of value and with the actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud the Debtors' creditors." See In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., No. 18-30264, 2019 WL 417149, at *11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 31, 2019), aff'd 604 B.R. 484 (N.D. Tex. 2019). In both the Acis bankruptcy case and the Crusader Fund arbitration, the Debtor's management were found to have manufactured dishonest and illegitimate defenses and provided unreliable and incredible testimony regarding the Debtor's actions.

11. Each of the Insider Parties are closely affiliated with Mr. Dondero and/or the fraudulent actions that led the Debtor to bankruptcy:

- Mark Okada: Mr. Okada is the co-founder of the Debtor, and was the Chief Investment Officer until shortly before the commencement of this chapter 11 case. As Chief Investment Officer, Mr. Okada was responsible for overseeing the Debtor's investment activities across all investment platforms. Mr. Okada was an executive officer of the Debtor (i) when the Debtor was found by the SEC to have engaged in wrongful transactions without disclosing important information to clients, (ii) when the Debtor stripped Acis of its assets – CLO portfolio management contracts – and transferred to them a newly formed Cayman entity, and (iii) when the Debtor engaged in misconduct and breached fiduciary duties with respect to the Crusader Fund. Mr. Okada was the beneficial owner of 25% of Acis Capital Management, L.P. when Mr. Dondero and the Debtor transferred assets away from Acis, and this Court found that Mr. Dondero and Mr. Okada were the individuals making decisions for Highland CLO Funding Ltd. ("HCLOF Guernsey") in connection with the events leading to the Acis bankruptcy litigation.[6]

- HCM Services – As the Debtor disclosed, HCM Services is owned 75% by Mr. Dondero and 25% by Mr. Okada. HCM Services appears to have received its interests in RCP from the Debtor, but the circumstances of such transaction have yet to be fully investigated by the Committee. HCM Services owes the Debtor $7,482,481, of which $900,000 is payable on demand. The Committee understands that Mr. Dondero remains in complete control of HCM Services.

- CLOH – CLOH is an entity owned by Charitable DAF Fund, LP (the "DAF"), which was seeded with contributions from the Debtor; the consideration for such contributions has yet to be fully investigated by the Committee. The DAF is managed and advised by the Debtor, and its trustee is a long-time friend of Mr. Dondero.[7] The trustee for the DAF has also served as trustee for The Get Good Trust, The Dugaboy Investment Trust, and the SLHC Trust, of which Mr. Dondero > is a beneficiary. The Distribution Motion discloses that the interests in Dynamic currently held by CLOH were originally held by the Debtor, and were transferred to The Get Good Nonexempt Trust, in exchange for Get Good's interest in a promissory note made by The Dugaboy Investment Trust, and then from Get Good to Mr. Dondero's Highland Dallas Foundation, Inc. and then to CLOH. The Distribution Motion does not disclose how or when CLOH obtained its interests in AROF. The Committee is investigating CLOH's relationship to and transactions with Mr. Dondero and other entities controlled by or otherwise benefitting Mr. Dondero.

[6] In re Acis Capital Management, L.P., 2019 WL 417149, at *7, *9 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. January 31, 2019) (observing (i) that Mr. Okada owed 25% of Acis until the day after Mr. Terry obtained his arbitration judgement against Acis, at which point Mr. Okada conveyed his interests in Acis to Neutra, Ltd. for no consideration, and that (ii) Mr. Dondero, Mr. Okada, and another Highland employee made decisions for HCLOF Guernsey regarding the optional redemptions of the Acis CLOs).

[7] See In re Acis Capital Management, L.P., 2019 WL 417149, at *6 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. January 31, 2019) (noting that one of the three equity owners of HCLOF Guernsey was the DAF, which was "seeded with contributions from Highland, is managed/advised by Highland, and whose independent trustee is a long-time friend of Highland's chief executive officer, Mr. Dondero" (emphasis in original)).

The Committee is Investigating Claims Against the Insider Parties, Including Transfers the Transfers of the Insider Interest

12. Pursuant to the Term Sheet outlining the agreement between the Debtor and the Committee, the Committee has standing to pursue any and all estate claims and causes of action against Mr. Dondero, Mr. Okada, other insiders of the Debtor and the Debtor's related entities (which include the DAF and CLOH), "including any promissory notes held by any of the foregoing." [Docket No. 354] This part of the settlement with the Debtor was a critical component of the Committee's agreement to the governance structure in lieu of seeking appointment of a chapter 11 trustee. The Committee has begun its investigation and served document production requests to the Debtor. Among other claims and causes of action, the Committee is investigating potential preferential transfers, fraudulent transfers, breaches of fiduciary duties, usurpation of corporate opportunities, misappropriation of assets, and abuses of the corporate form. The Committee's investigation includes fully exploring the circumstances and transactions through which HCM Services, CLOH and Mr. Okada obtained the Insider Interests.

13. The Debtor's history of self-dealing and improper or fraudulent activities suggests that the Committee's investigation is likely to uncover similar inappropriate activities with respect to the Debtor's assets, including the Insider Interests. The Debtor's statements of financial affairs [Docket No. 248] disclosed that the Debtor made significant payments to affiliates through purported intercompany funding and affiliate loans in the 90 days prior to the filing date, along with significant other insider transfers in the one year before the filing date (including very large expense reimbursement payments to Mr. Dondero). The Committee must have the opportunity to fully investigate the insider and affiliate transactions, including those that gave rise to the Insider Interests, that may be the subject of valuable estate causes of action before transactions distributing funds to those same insiders and affiliates can be consummated.

14. This is all the more true because the evidence is that, even during this bankruptcy case, Mr. Dondero continues to engage in secretive and potentially improper transactions. The Distribution Motion fails to highlight that the MGM Sale was negotiated by Mr. Dondero without the knowledge or approval of Debtor's counsel or the Debtor's financial advisors. Specifically, at the very same time that the Debtor's counsel and financial advisors were attempting to persuade the Committee to approve certain transactions with respect to RCP, Mr. Dondero, unbeknownst to any Debtor professional, committed the Debtor to executing the MGM Sale. The Independent Directors, the Debtor's counsel and the Debtor's CRO and financial advisors were not made aware of the MGM Sale until two months after Mr. Dondero allegedly committed to the transaction on behalf of the Debtor. While the Committee has decided not to object to the MGM Sale itself (based, in significant part, on feedback from the Independent Board regarding its concern about the alleged binding nature of Mr. Dondero's secretive agreement with MGM), the circumstances surrounding Mr. Dondero's negotiation of and entry into the transaction are alarming at best, and the Committee has not waived any rights to fully investigate that transaction and any related potential causes of action against Mr. Dondero or others.

15. In addition to its concern that some or all of the Proposed Insider Distributions may be on account of otherwise avoidable transactions, based upon the Interested Parties' long history of transferring assets and taking other actions to hinder, delay, and defraud creditors, the Committee is also seriously concerned that the Insider Parties will swiftly place these distributions out of reach of the Debtor's estate while refusing to satisfy their obligations to the Debtor. Such actions would jeopardize the estate's ability to recover amounts owed to it and any future judgments against the Insider Parties, and would waste estate resources by forcing the Debtor to incur additional litigation costs to recover such debts and judgments.

II. The Court Has Authority to Direct the Debtor to Withhold the Proposed Insider Distributions

16. The Court "may issue any order, process, or judgment that is necessary or appropriate to carry out the provisions of [the Bankruptcy Code]." 11 U.S.C. § 105(a). "Courts interpret Section 105 liberally." King Louie Mining, LLC v. Comu (In re Comu), Nos. 09-38820-SGJ-7, 10-03269-SGJ, 2014 Bankr. LEXIS 2969, at *264 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. July 8, 2014) (citing Momentum Mfg. Corp. v. Employee Creditors Committee (In re Momentum Mfg. Corp.), 25 F.3d 1132, 1136 (2d Cir. 1994)). While the Supreme Court has found that section 105(a) does not give the bankruptcy court the ability to take any actions explicitly prohibited by another provision of the Bankruptcy Code, it does grant "extensive equitable powers that bankruptcy courts need in order to be able to perform their statutory duties." Caesars Entm't Operating Co. v. BOKF, N.A. (In re Caesars Entm't Operating Co.), 808 F.3d 1186, 1188 (7th Cir. 2015) (citing Law v. Siegel, 571 U.S. 415, 420 (2014). Section 105 has been the source of authority for courts to, among other things, enjoin third parties, substantively consolidate non-debtors, and extend the automatic stay. See e.g., Celotex Corp. v. Edwards, 514 U.S. 300, 303 (1995) (holding that an injunction issued under § 105 was an appropriate use of the court's powers); Alexander v. Compton (In re Bonham), 229 F.3d 750, 769 (9th Cir. 2000) (holding that the court's power to substantively consolidate non-debtors was found in § 105); In re DeLorean Motor Co., 755 F.2d 1223, 1230

17. Temporarily withholding the Proposed Insider Distributions and placing the corresponding funds in segregated accounts is well within the authority of this Court under section 105 of the Bankruptcy Code. The Insider Parties are current and former affiliates and/or insiders of the Debtor and creditors of the Debtor. The order requested by the Committee will allow full investigation of the claims and causes of action against the Insider Parties that was integral to the settlement approved by this Court in connection with approval of the Term Sheet. Furthermore, the Committee submits (and the Debtor has not asserted otherwise) that the relief sought by the Committee would not violate any explicit or implicit requirements of the Bankruptcy Code. Therefore, the Court need only consider the equitable nature of the relief that the Committee seeks, and its appropriateness in the context of furthering the goals of this bankruptcy. See In re Caesars Entm't Operating Co., 808 F.3d at 1188.

18. The equitable argument for temporarily withholding the Proposed Insider Distributions and segregating such funds is straightforward. These actions merely maintain the status quo. The Committee is not requesting that the Debtor effectuate a set-off or take possession of the Proposed Insider Distribution. No party has asserted that any economic harm (much less any significant harm) will be done to the Insider Parties by holding the Proposed Insider Distributions in segregated interest bearing accounts pending further order of this Court. On the other hand, the withholding of the Proposed Insider Distributions (and the resulting leverage that creates against the Insider Parties) may be the only chance for the Debtor to receive any value for the amounts it is owed (or potentially owed) by the Insider Parties or obtaining redress for fraudulent or improper transactions involving those parties, including with respect to the Insider Interest. As set forth above, the Insider Parties and the persons controlling them have repeatedly engaged in schemes and other behavior designed to evade creditors. It should not surprise this Court to learn that, after making demand for payment on the demand note from Mr. Okada as of February 13th at the urging of the Committee, the Debtor still has yet to receive any payment from Mr. Okada. Absent approval of the Committee's request, the Debtor's efforts to collect from the Insider Parties may be extremely cost intensive and time-consuming. It is fair and equitable for this Court to temporarily prevent money from flowing to the Insider Parties in order to facilitate the Debtor's efforts to recover amounts owed to it. Furthermore, the Committee should be given the opportunity to investigate the propriety of the Debtor's transfers of its interests in the underlying funds to the Insider Parties, including the Insider Interests. Maintaining the status quo until the Committee has investigated those transfers is fair and equitable and falls well within this Court's authority under section 105.

19. Moreover, the relief sought by the Committee would further the goals of this bankruptcy case and would allow the Debtor to fulfill its duties to creditors by maximizing the value of the estate. The Debtor contends, and the Committee does not disagree, that the Debtor has certain contractual and fiduciary duties to the investors in the funds that it manages. The Debtor asserts that those duties compelled the Debtor to file the Distribution Motion. Distribution Motion ¶ 7. The Debtor also has duties to its creditors, however, and the Committee, for the reasons set forth above, asserts that such duties require the Debtor to avoid making the Proposed Insider Distributions at this time. Filing the Distribution Motion should fulfill any duties the Debtor may have to the Insider Parties in respect of the Proposed Insider Distributions. An order from this Court providing that the Proposed Insider Distributions should be temporarily withheld and segregated fully addresses any conflict of duties the Debtor otherwise may have, and would allow the Debtor to more effectively carry out its duty to maximize the value of the estate.

20. Accordingly, the Committee believes that the Court should order the Debtor to withhold and segregate the Proposed Insider Distributions until (i) the Insider Parties repay the Notes that are currently due and payable and (ii) the Committee has an opportunity to fully investigate estate causes of action against such Insider Parties. The Committee does not propose that the Debtor effectuate a setoff or take possession of the Proposed Insider Distributions; rather the Committee requests that the Court order the Debtor to segregate and hold the Proposed Insider Distributions in reserve for a limited period of time in order to avoid the significant prejudice to the estate in allowing cash distributions to be paid to Insider Parties and beneficiaries that owe the Debtor money, and then forcing the estate to spend resources recovering assets from these parties.

WHEREFORE, the Committee respectfully requests that the Court deny the Distribution Motion and direct the Debtor to hold the Proposed Insider Distributions in segregated interest bearing accounts pending further order of the Court.

COUNSEL FOR ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP, LLC

IN THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
DALLAS DIVISION

IN RE:	§
	§	CASE NO. 19-34054
	§

ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P. AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP, LLC'S OMNIBUS LIMITED OBJECTION TO APPLICATIONS FOR COMPENSATION AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSE OF FOLEY GARDERE, FOLEY & LARDNER LLP AS SPECIAL TEXAS COUNSEL FOR THE PERIOD FROM OCTOBER 16, 2019 THROUGH FEBRUARY 29, 2020

Acis Capital Management, L.P. ("Acis LP") and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC ("Acis GP," together with Acis LP, "Acis") file this Omnibus Limited Objection (the "Objection") to the (i) Amended First Monthly Application for Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP As Special Texas Counsel for the Period from October 16, 2019 through November 30, 2019 [Docket No. 538] (the "October/November Application"); (ii) Amended Second Monthly Application for Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP As Special Texas

Counsel for the Period from December 1, 2019 through December 31, 2019 [Docket No. 539] (the "December Application"); (iii) Third Monthly Application for Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP As Special Texas Counsel for the Period from January 1, 2020 through January 30, 2020 [Docket No. 540] (the "January Application"); and (iv) Fourth Monthly Application for Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP As Special Texas Counsel for the Period from February 1, 2020 through February 29, 2020 [Docket No. 541] (the "February Application," with the October/November Application, the December Application, and the January Application, the "Fee Applications") filed by Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP ("Foley").

I. SUMMARY OF OBJECTION[1]

1. Acis objects to Foley's Fee Applications to the extent that Foley fails to allocate Foley's fees between Neutra and the Debtor related to the Debtor Appeal, as required by this Court and the Employment Order. Acis further objects to Foley's Fee Applications to the extent that they seek compensation outside the scope of Foley's employment.

II. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

2. On March 11, 2020, this Court entered the Order Authorizing the Retention and Employment of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLPO as Special Texas Counsel, Nunc Pro Tunc, to the Petition Date [Docket No. 513] (the "Employment Order").

3. The Employment Order authorizes Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor") to employ Foley "on only the following matter, unless otherwise ordered by the Court the Acis Bankruptcy and the Debtor Appeal. The Debtor shall neither directly nor indirectly pay fees or expenses related to Foley's representation of Neutra in either the Acis Bankruptcy or the

[1] Capitalized terms not defined herein have the meanings ascribed to such term later in the Objection.

Debtor Appeal. For the avoidance of doubt, Foley is only representing the Debtor and Neutra in the Acis Bankruptcy and the Debtor Appeal." Employment Order ¶ 2.

4. In the Employment Order, the Acis Bankruptcy is defined as "In re Acis Capital Management, L.P., Case No. 18-30264-SGJ-11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018) & In re Acis Capital Management GP, L.L.C.), Case No. 18-30265-SGJ-11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018)."

5. In the Employment Order, the Debtor Appeal is defined as "In re Matter of Acis Management GP, LLC and Acis Capital Management, L.P. v. Highland Capital Management, L.P., et al, v. Robin Phelan, Chapter 11 Trustee, Case No. 19-10847 (5th Cir. 2019)."

6. The Employment Order further provides that "Foley shall include in any application for compensation an allocation of its fees and expenses between the Debtor, Neutra, and any other represented party as appropriate." Employment Order ¶ 3.

III. APPLICABLE LAW

7. Foley is employed pursuant to Section 327(a) of the Bankruptcy Code.[2] As such, Foley's compensation is subject to Section 330(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, as made applicable to this interim applicable by Section 331 of the Bankruptcy Code.[3] Section 330(a) of the Bankruptcy Code provides:

> (1) After notice to the parties in interest and the United States Trustee and a hearing, and subject to sections 326, 328, and 329, the court may award to a trustee, a consumer privacy ombudsman appointed under section 332 an examiner, an ombudsman appointed under section 333, or a professional person employed under section 327 or 1103 —

[2] 11 U.S.C. §§ et seq. (the "Bankruptcy Code").

[3] Section 331 of the Bankruptcy Code states as follows: "a trustee, an examiner, a debtor's attorney, or any professional person employed under section 327 or 1103 of this title may apply to the court not more than once every 120 days after an order for relief in a case under this title, or more often if the court permits, for such compensation for services rendered before the date of such an application or reimbursement for expenses incurred before such date as is provided under section 330 of this title. After notice and a hearing, the court may allow and disburse to such applicant such compensation or reimbursement" (emphasis added").

> (A) reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services rendered by the trustee, examiner, ombudsman, professional person, or attorney and by any paraprofessional person employed by any such person; and
> (B) reimbursement for actual, necessary expenses.
>
> (2) The court may, on its own motion or on the motion of the United States Trustee, the United States Trustee for the District or Region, the trustee for the estate, or any other party in interest, award compensation that is less than the amount of compensation that is requested.
>
> (3) In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to an examiner, trustee under chapter 11, or professional person, the court shall consider the nature, the extent, and the value of such services, taking into account all relevant factors, including—
>
> (A) the time spent on such services;
>
> (B) the rates charged for such services;
>
> (C) whether the services were necessary to the administration of, or beneficial at the time at which the service was rendered toward the completion of, a case under this title;
>
> (D) whether the services were performed within a reasonable amount of time commensurate with the complexity, importance, and nature of the problem, issue, or task addressed;
>
> (E) with respect to a professional person, whether the person is board certified or otherwise has demonstrated skill and experience in the bankruptcy field; and
>
> (F) whether the compensation is reasonable based on the customary compensation charged by comparably skilled practitioners in cases other than cases under this title.
>
> (4) (A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the court shall not allow compensation for—
>
> (ii) services that were not—
>
> (I) reasonably likely to benefit the debtor's estate; or
>
> (II) necessary to the administration of the case.

11 U.S.C. § 330(a) (emphasis added).

8. The Fifth Circuit and the United States Supreme Court state that bankruptcy courts are to apply the plain language of Section 330. See Lamie v. United States Tr., 540 U.S. 526, 542 (2004) (interpreting the plain meaning of Section 330); see also CRG Partners, LLC v.

Neary (In re Pilgrim's Pride Corp.), 690 F.3d 650, 665 (5th Cir. 2012) ("bankruptcy courts are expected to consider under § 330(a)'s plain language"). The plain language of Section 330(a) permits this Court to award only reasonable compensation, at the discretion of this Court, after analyzing "all relevant factors."

9. In Barron & Newburger, P.C. v. Tex. Skyline, Ltd. (In re Woerner), 783 F.3d 266 (5th Cir. 2015), the Fifth Circuit "overturn[ed] Pro-Snax's attorney's-fee rule and adopted the prospective, 'reasonably likely to benefit the estate' standard endorsed by [the Fifth Circuit's] sister circuits." Woerner, 783 F.3d at 268. Prior to Woerner, Pro-Snax allowed compensation only if the "services resulted in an identifiable, tangible, and material benefit to the bankruptcy estate." See Andrews & Kurth, LLP v. Family Snacks (In re Pro-Snax Distributors), 157 F.3d 414, 426 (5th Cir. 1998). The Pro-Snax standard required a retrospective analysis, while the Woerner standard requires a prospective analysis. See Woerner, 783 F.3d at 273 ("a court may compensate an attorney for services that are 'reasonably likely to benefit' the estate and adjudge that reasonableness 'at the time at which the service was rendered'").

10. Under Section 330 of the Bankruptcy Code, as made applicable here by Section 331 of the Bankruptcy Code, not only must the overall amount of fees be reasonable, the allocation of such fees among clients must also be reasonable. See In re Energy Future Holdings Corp., 593 B.R. 217, 259 (Bankr. D. Del. 2018) ("[t]he fee and expense approval process must be done on a debtor-by-debtor basis, and professional fees and expenses that are not incurred for the benefit of a particular debtor should not be paid out of the estate of such debtor"); see also In re Eagle Creek Subdivision, LLC, No. 08-04292-8-JRL, 2009 Bankr. LEXIS 5779, *6 (Bankr. E.D.N.C. Feb. 5, 2009); In re Tropicana Entm't, No. 08-105856(KJC), 2014 Bankr. LEXIS 5198, *14 (Bankr. Del. Dec. 30, 2014).

11. Professionals employed under Section 327 of the Bankruptcy Code may only seek compensation pursuant to Section 330 of the Bankruptcy Code for work performed under their authorized scope of employment. See PricewaterhouseCoopers, LLP v. Litzler (In re Harbor Fin. Grp., Inc.), Civil Action No. 3:00-CV-1283-X, 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14412, *14-*17 (N.D. Tex. Sept. 6, 2001) (affirming the bankruptcy court's disallowance of fees related to work performed outside the scope of a professional's employment); see also John F. Ames & Co. v. Marshall (In re G.G. Moss Co.), No. 94-2587, 1995 U.S. App. LEXIS 14699, *6 (4th Cir. June 15, 1995).

IV. LIMITED OBJECTION

A. Foley Has Not Properly Allocated Fees

12. Foley has not allocated its fees between Neutra Ltd. ("Neutra") and the Debtor with respect to the Debtor Appeal. Both Neutra and the Debtor are appellants in the Debtor appeal and Neutra and the Debtor filed joint pleadings in such appeal. While the Debtor and Neutra filed joint briefing in the Debtor appeal, Neutra is not a similarly situated creditor[4] that is simply "riding the coattails" of the Debtor. In fact, Neutra, the former equity holder of Acis, has its own issues related to the Debtor Appeal. Despite this, Neutra was not allocated any fees for Foley's work performed for it.[5] In fact, the December Fee Application states: "The amounts requested do not differ but this Amended Fee Application includes an additional breakout of time related to the Confirmation Order Appeal (defined herein) and reassignment of certain fees to the appropriate project categories." December Fee Application n. 2. Neither the January Application

[4] The Debtor is a disputed creditor in the Acis bankruptcy case and the Debtor Appeal.

[5] In the October and November Application, Foley did allocate $96,312.44 in fees to Neutra. Presumably, this was for work performed exclusively for Neutra in Neutra, Ltd. v. Joshua N. Terry, Case No. 19-10846, regarding the Acis involuntary orders for relief (the "Neutra Appeal"). Highland is not party to the Neutra Appeal.

nor the February Application attempt to allocate any fees to Neutra despite the fact that work was performed related to the Debtor Appeal. Therefore, Foley has failed to comply with this Court's directive "to include in any application for compensation an allocation of its fees and expenses between the Debtor, Neutra, and any other represented party as appropriate." Employment Order ¶ 3.

B. Foley Performed Work Outside The Scope Of Its Employment.

13. Although Foley was retained on "only the following matter, unless otherwise ordered by the Court the Acis Bankruptcy and the Debtor Appeal," it appears that Foley performed work outside the scope of its employment. The following time entries demonstrate[6] fees incurred by Foley for work that is not related to the Acis Bankruptcy or the Debtor Appeal:

Fee Application	Date	Time Keeper	Time Entry	Time
October/November	10/17/19	HNO	Listen to first-day hearing in Highland Capital bankruptcy case and emails with Debtor's counsel following same.	2.0
October/November	11/04/19	HNO	Brief review of Order denying expedited hearing on the Venue Transfer motion and emails regarding same (.2)	.20
December	12/6/19	HNO	Preparation for and to court for hearing on Scheduling Conference and followup regarding same (3.1).	3.1

[6] The following are serve only as demonstrative time entries and are not intended to encompass all time entries that are outside the scope of Foley's employment. In fact, the redactions in the Fee Applications make it nearly impossible to adequately assess the work performed by Foley.

December	12/30/19	HNO	Review of myriad of incoming pleadings, including compromise motion related to agreement on governance between Debtor and UCC and emails regarding same.	1.10
December	12/20/19	JCH	Download numerous pleadings filed and circulate same (1.5); calendar upcoming hearing dates and relevant objection deadlines (.8).	2.30
December	12/31/19	HNO	Review of incoming pleadings including MOR, Notice of Hearing on the settlement with the UCC and CNOs as to UCC professionals, expedited hearing order, etc. and emails regarding same.	1.00
December	12/27/19	HNO	Review of M/Appoint Trustee filed by the UST and [REDACTED] (1.7); brief review of M/Protective Order (.3).	2.00
January	1/2/20	HNO	Review of incoming pleadings.	.40
January	1/3/20	HNO	Emails to Debtor's counsel regarding status of resolution of corporate governance issues and hearings on 1/9/2020 and emails regarding same (.6).	.60
January	1/6/20	HNOI	Brief review of incoming pleadings, primarily related to Objections to the compromise on governance, and follow up regarding [REDACTED]	.90

14. Work performed outside the scope of the Employment Order is not compensable. See PricewaterhouseCoopers, LLP v. Litzler (In re Harbor Fin. Grp., Inc.), Civil Action No. 3:00-CV-1283-X, 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14412, *14-*17 (N.D. Tex. Sept. 6, 2001).

C. Winstead Appeal

15. While the Employment Order states that "Although the Debtor has determined not to proceed with the Winstead Matter, Foley may seek approval of its fees and expenses incurred related thereto in subsequent fee applications" this Court has not determined that fees and expenses related to the Winstead Matter (as defined by the Employment Order) meet the Woerner "reasonably likely to benefit" standard. The Fee Applications contained more than de minimus time related to the Winstead Matter (as defined by the Employment Order). It is not clear that the fees and expenses related to the Winstead Matter (as defined by the Employment Order) provided any benefit to the estate.

V. PRAYER

Acis respectfully requests that this Court only allow Foley fees and expenses to the extent such fees actually benefited the Debtor, comply with the Employment Order, and are within the scope of employment authorized by the Employment Order. Acis also requests such other and further relief to which it may show itself to be justly entitled.

PURSUANT TO LOCAL BANKRUPTCY RULE 4001-1(B), A RESPONSE IS REQUIRED TO THIS MOTION OR THE ALLEGATIONS IN THE MOTION MAY BE DEEMED ADMITTED AND AN ORDER GRANTING THE RELIEF SOUGHT MAY BE ENTERED BY DEFAULT.

ANY RESPONSE SHALL BE IN WRITING AND FILED WITH THE CLERK OF THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT AT EARLE CABELL FEDERAL BUILDING, 1100 COMMERCE STREET ROOM 1254, DALLAS, TEXAS 75242 BEFORE CLOSE OF BUSINESS ON MAY 1, 2020, WHICH IS AT LEAST FOURTEEN (14) DAYS FROM THE DATE OF SERVICE HEREOF. A COPY SHALL BE SERVED UPON COUNSEL FOR THE MOVING PARTY AND ANY TRUSTEE OR EXAMINER APPOINTED IN THE CASE. ANY RESPONSE SHALL INCLUDE A DETAILED AND COMPREHENSIVE STATEMENT AS TO HOW THE MOVANT CAN BE "ADEQUATELY PROTECTED" IF THE STAY IS TO BE CONTINUED.

Creditors and parties-in-interest in the above-caption bankruptcy case, Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC (collectively "Acis"), file this Motion for Relief from the Automatic Stay to Allow Pursuit of Motion for Order to Show Cause For Violations of the Acis Plan Injunction (the "Motion") pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d) regarding Highland Capital Management, L.P. ("Highland" or the "Debtor") and parties acting in concert with the Debtor, including, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. ("Highland Funding" and Highland are sometimes collectively referred to as the "Highlands"), William Scott ("Scott"), Heather Bestwick ("Bestwick"), J.P. Sevilla ("Sevilla"), Scott Ellington ("Ellington"), James Dondero ("Dondero," and together with the Highlands, Scott, Bestwick, Sevilla and Ellington, the "Violators"),[1] and any other agents of Highland Funding and Highland that participated in the plan injunction violations, and show as follows:

SUMMARY OF MOTION

1. After Highland filed for bankruptcy, Acis was hopeful it was a new day at Highland. Acis hoped that Highland would see that the continuation of its failed litigation strategy was not only futile, but also self-destructive, and that the Debtor would turn over a new leaf. Thus, in an attempt to foster potential reconciliation and to provide Debtor's newly-appointed independent board with room to maneuver, Acis deferred pursuing the many wrongs which were needlessly inflicted on it and its principal, from a frivolous lawsuit in Guernsey meant to undermine this Court, to litigation against non-debtor individuals for, among other things, breaches of fiduciary duties owed to Acis.

[1] Highland Funding, Scott, Bestwick, Sevilla, Ellington, and Dondero, again, as non-debtors are not protected by the automatic stay, as further described below. To the extent their individual actions on behalf of Highland are protected by the automatic stay, Acis requests relief from the automatic stay, as further described below.

2. Acis can no longer sit back.[2] The time has come for Highland and the individuals who have engaged in wrongdoing (some of whom continue as highly-compensated employees at the Debtor) to face individual consequences for their actions. The legal process is not a game, and the Violators will only understand that when they are subjected to personal accountability for their actions. Good cause exists to lift the automatic stay and permit Acis to pursue the matters set forth in the draft Motion for Order to Show Cause for Plan Injunction Violations attached hereto as Exhibit 1 (the "Show Cause Motion").[3] The Court should grant the Motion – it is well-founded.

STATUTORY BASIS AND JURISDICTION

3. The basis for this Motion is 11 U.S.C. §§ 105 and 362, Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 4001, and Rule 4001-1 of the Local Rules for the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the "Local Rules").[4] This Court has jurisdiction over this Motion pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b). This matter is a core proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157, and venue is proper in this district pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409.

[2] Acis has engaged in a good-faith effort to work with the Board (as hereinafter defined) and attempt to resolve its Highland-related issues without litigation. During those efforts, Acis was sued in New York federal district court (the "DAF Lawsuit"), many claims of which arose from Acis's bankruptcy in this Court. The DAF Lawsuit harmed Acis's reputation and clouds its attempts at a successful reorganization pursuant to this Court's confirmed plan. While the DAF Lawsuit was eventually voluntarily dismissed, without prejudice, that happened only at the urging of the Board. The filing of the DAF Lawsuit demonstrates that the same group of individuals that led the Debtor through a failed litigation strategy, and ultimately bankruptcy, still have significant sway at the Debtor and its affiliates. Nevertheless, Acis appreciates the Board's role and the dismissal of the DAF Lawsuit.

[3] As indicated, the Show Cause Motion is merely a draft and Acis reserves the right to amend or revise it prior to filing, including the ability to make material modifications to the Show Cause Motion. Regardless, the Show Cause Motion provides the parties and the Court with ample notice of the basis for Acis's request for stay relief. Any terms not defined herein have the meanings ascribed to such terms by the Show Cause Motion.

[4] Pursuant to Local Rule 4001-1(e) Acis intends to serve its evidentiary affidavit in advance of any hearing on this Motion, in compliance with the Local Rules.

RELEVANT FACTS

4. In addition to the matters specifically set forth below, Acis relies on and incorporates herein the fact section of the Show Cause Motion outlining the Guernsey Action and related matters in the Acis bankruptcy.

5. On October 16, 2019, Debtor filed this bankruptcy case.

6. On January 9, 2020, the Court entered an order approving a settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, which, in turn, approved the installation of a new, independent board of directors (the "Board") for the Debtor. Dkt. No. 339 in Case No. 19-34054.

7. On January 31, 2020, after the installation of the Board, Michael Hurst, this time on behalf of the Charitable Donor Advised Fund, L.P. (the "DAF"), filed a Second Amended Complaint in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York against U.S. Bank National Association, Moody's Investors Services, Inc., Acis Capital Management, L.P., Brigade Capital Management, LP, and Joshua N. Terry. A true and correct copy of the amended complaint is attached hereto as Exhibit 2 (the "Amended Complaint"). This Court might recognize some or all of the parties in the Amended Complaint—as well as Mr. Hurst, who has regularly represented Highland before this Court and others—from the Acis Bankruptcy. The DAF is nominally controlled by Mr. Dondero's college roommate, Grant Scott.

8. On February 5, 2020, at the DAF's request, Judge Buchwald of the Southern District of New York dismissed the Amended Complaint. A true and correct copy of Judge Buchwald's order (a notation on Mr. Hurst's letter) is attached as Exhibit 3.

9. On February 6, 2020—the next day—the DAF and CLO Holdco, Ltd., a subsidiary of the DAF and also controlled by Mr. Dondero's college roommate (and, upon information and belief, Mr. Dondero), filed suit in the United States District Court of the Southern District of New York, again naming the same Acis-Bankruptcy-related parties, U.S. Bank National Association, Moody's Investors Services, Inc., Acis Capital Management, L.P., Brigade Capital Management, LP, and Joshua N. Terry (the "Complaint"). A true and correct copy of the Complaint is attached as Exhibit 4.

10. On February 25, 2020, at the Board's urging, the DAF and CLO Holdco, Ltd. filed a Notice of Voluntary Dismissal Without Prejudice, a true and correct copy of which is attached as Exhibit 5.

11. On the other hand, the Guernsey Lawsuit (further described by the Show Cause Motion), initiated at the direction and behest of Highland as a naked collateral attack on this Court, remains pending across the Atlantic.

ARGUMENT & AUTHORITY

12. Acis does not believe that the automatic stay protects the non-Highland, non-Debtor Violators. See In re Arrow Huss, Inc., 51 B.R. 853, 856 (Bankr. D. Utah 1985) (collecting cases). ("it is well settled that Section 362 of the Bankruptcy Code, which stays actions against the debtor and against property of the estate, does not forbid actions against its nondebtor principals, partners, officers, employees, co-obligors, guarantors, or sureties."); see also Wedgeworth v. Fibreboard Corp., 706 F.2d 541, 544 (5th Cir. 1983); Mar. Elec. Co. v. United Jersey Bank, 959 F.2d 1194, 1205 (3d Cir. 1991) ("the automatic stay is not available to non-bankrupt co-defendants of a debtor even if they are in a similar legal or factual nexus with the debtor."). However, Acis files this Motion, with respect to the non-Highland Violators, out of an abundance of caution. See Brown v. Chesnut (In re Chesnut), 422 F.3d. 298, 304 (5th Cir. 2005) (providing that creditors should seek order of the court before foreclosing or seizing arguable property of the estate). To the extent this Court finds it necessary to determine if causes exists to lift the automatic stay as to non-Highland, non-Debtor Violators, cause exists for the reasons set forth below.

13. This Court has broad discretion to alter or modify the automatic stay under Section 362 of the Bankruptcy Code. The statutory predicate for granting relief from the automatic stay is Section 362(d) of the Bankruptcy Code. That section provides:

> On request of a party in interest and after notice and a hearing, the court shall grant relief from the stay provided under subsection (a) of this section, such as by terminating, annulling, modifying, or conditioning such stay —
> (1) for cause, including the lack of adequate protection of an interest in property of such party in interest;

14. Because neither the Bankruptcy Code nor the legislative history provides a specific definition of what constitutes "cause" under Section 362(d)(1), courts must determine whether relief is appropriate on a case-by-case basis. Reitnauer v. Tex. Exotic Feline Found., Inc. (In re Reitnauer), 152 F.3d 341, 343 n.4 (5th Cir. 1998). "Cause is an intentionally broad and flexible concept, made so in order to permit the courts to respond in equity to inherently fact-sensitive situations." Mooney v. Gill, 310 B.R. 543, 546-547 (N.D. Tex. 2002) (quoting In re Sentry Park, Ltd., 87 B.R. 427, 430 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 1988)). Acis is entitled to stay relief under Section 362(d)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code to permit Acis to file and pursue to order, before this Court or any other court, the Show Cause Motion because the Violators have repeatedly violated this Court's orders and have effectively prevented Acis from reorganizing.

15. "The purposes of the bankruptcy stay under 11 U.S.C. § 362 are to protect the debtor's assets, provide temporary relief from creditors, and further equity of distribution among the creditors by forestalling a race to the courthouse." Reliant Energy Servs. v. Enron Can. Corp., 349 F.3d 816, 825 (5th Cir. 2003). By the Show Cause Motion, Acis is not attempting to gain preferential treatment among Highland's creditors, but rather hold the Violators responsible for their post-confirmation actions against Acis.

16. The Show Cause Motion requests this Court hold the Violators responsible for their post-confirmation actions against Acis, actions that violate this Court's confirmation order. The Court should exercise its broad discretion to lift the automatic stay to allow Acis to proceed on the Show Cause Motion before this Court, the very Court where Debtor's Chapter 11 bankruptcy is pending. Ultimately, this Court will grant any relief granted pursuant to the Show Cause Motion. This Court can ensure that all of the various stakeholders' interests are protected vis-à-vis the Show Cause Motion.

17. The automatic stay does not permanently protect Highland from answering for its violations of this Court's orders.[5] None of the policy goals of the automatic stay are furthered by preventing the enforcement of this Court's own orders against debtors in bankruptcy like Highland. Further, allowing Highland's bankruptcy proceeding to shield the Violators from accountability for their actions in another pending bankruptcy case only emboldens and benefits the wrongdoers. If this Court does not enforce its own orders, who will? If individuals and entities believe they can flout this Court's orders with impunity, the Court's authority is, at a minimum, severely undermined and, at worst, wholly eviscerated.

18. Contempt powers are necessary to ensure that "courts [are not] impotent." Gompers v. Buck's Stove & Range Co., 221 U.S. 418, 450 (1911). The Court has cause to lift the automatic stay to demonstrate exactly that.

19. There is good cause in this case for the Court to grant Acis relief from the automatic stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1).

[5] Highland is responsible for all of the actions of Highland, its agents, and its affiliates, including Highland Funding. In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., 18-30264-SGJ-11, 2019 WL 417149, at *7 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 31, 2019), aff'd, 604 B.R. 484 (N.D. Tex. 2019).

20. Acis does not believe that the automatic stay protects the non-Highland, non-Debtor Violators. See In re Arrow Huss, Inc., 51 B.R. 853, 856 (Bankr. D. Utah 1985) (collecting cases). ("it is well settled that Section 362 of the Bankruptcy Code, which stays actions against the debtor and against property of the estate, does not forbid actions against its nondebtor principals, partners, officers, employees, co-obligors, guarantors, or sureties."); see also Wedgeworth v. Fibreboard Corp., 706 F.2d 541, 544 (5th Cir. 1983); Mar. Elec. Co. v. United Jersey Bank, 959 F.2d 1194, 1205 (3d Cir. 1991) ("the automatic stay is not available to non-bankrupt co-defendants of a debtor even if they are in a similar legal or factual nexus with the debtor."). However, Acis files this motion, with respect to the non-Highland Violators, out of an abundance of caution. See Brown v. Chesnut (In re Chesnut), 422 F.3d. 298, 304 (5th Cir. 2005) (providing that creditors should seek order of the court before foreclosing or seizing arguable property of the estate). To the extent this Court finds it necessary to determine if causes exists to lift the automatic stay as to non-Highland, non-Debtor Violators, cause exists for the reasons set forth above.

WAIVER OF BANKRUPTCY RULE 4001(a)(3) STAY

21. To the extent applicable, cause exists to lift the 14-day stay of Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 4001(a)(3). Removing the 14-day stay is an appropriate remedy to immediately permit Acis to file and prosecute the Show Cause Motion.

WHEREFORE, PREMISES CONSIDERED, Acis respectfully requests that upon hearing of the Motion, the Court grant Acis stay relief permitting Acis to file and pursue to order, before this Court or any other court, the Show Cause Motion, and any other relief to which Acis is entitled.

ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P. AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP, LLC'S OMNIBUS LIMITED OBJECTION TO THE APPLICATION FOR COMPENSATION AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSE OF FOLEY & LARDNER LLP AS SPECIAL TEXAS COUNSEL FOR THE PERIOD FROM OCTOBER 16, 2019 THROUGH MARCH 31, 2020

Acis Capital Management, L.P. ("Acis LP") and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC ("Acis GP," together with Acis LP, "Acis") file this Omnibus Limited Objection (the "Objection") to the (i) Fifth Monthly Application for Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses of Foley & Lardner LLP As Special Texas Counsel for the Period from March 1, 2020 through March 31, 2020 [Docket No. 601] (the "March Application"); and (ii) First Interim Application for Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses of Foley & Lardner LLP As Special Texas Counsel for the Period from October 16, 2019 through March 31, 2020 [Docket

No. 602] (the "Interim Application," the "Fee Applications") filed by Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP ("Foley").

I. SUMMARY OF OBJECTION[1]

1. Although this Court directed Foley to allocate its fees between Neutra and the Debtor, Foley has not properly allocated its fees between Neutra and the Debtor with respect to the Debtor Appeal. Based on the time entries in the Fee Application, it is impossible to ascertain what would be a ratable allocation of fees between the Debtor and Neutra, as many of the time entries contain non-specific distributions of task such as "work on reply brief"[2] or "oral argument preparation."[3] Acis also objects to Foley's Fee Applications to the extent that Foley seeks compensation outside the scope of Foley's employment.

II. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

2. On March 11, 2020, this Court entered the Order Authorizing the Retention and Employment of Foley Gardere, Foley & Lardner LLP as Special Texas Counsel, Nunc Pro Tunc, to the Petition Date [Docket No. 513] (the "Employment Order").

3. The Employment Order authorizes Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor") to employ Foley "on only the following matter, unless otherwise ordered by the Court the Acis Bankruptcy and the Debtor Appeal. The Debtor shall neither directly nor indirectly pay fees or expenses related to Foley's representation of Neutra in either the Acis Bankruptcy or the Debtor Appeal. For the avoidance of doubt, Foley is only representing the Debtor and Neutra in the Acis Bankruptcy and the Debtor Appeal." Employment Order ¶ 2.

[1] Capitalized terms not defined herein have the meanings ascribed to such term later in the Objection.

[2] This generic description was used approximately twelve (12) times in the Fee Application.

[3] This generic description was used approximately five (5) times in the Fee Application.

4. In the Employment Order and as used herein, the Acis Bankruptcy is defined as "In re Acis Capital Management, L.P., Case No. 18-30264-SGJ-11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018) & In re Acis Capital Management GP, L.L.C.), Case No. 18-30265-SGJ-11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018)."

5. In the Employment Order and as used herein, the Debtor Appeal is defined as "In re Matter of Acis Management GP, LLC and Acis Capital Management, L.P. v. Highland Capital Management, L.P., et al. v. Robin Phelan, Chapter 11 Trustee, Case No. 19-10847 (5th Cir. 2019)." The Debtor Appeal relates to the Debtor's, Neutra Ltd.'s ("Neutra"), and Highland CLO Funding, Ltd.'s ("Highland Funding") appeal of Acis's confirmation order. See Highland Capital Management, L.P., et al. v. Robin Phelan, Chapter 11 Trustee, Case No. 19-10847.

6. The Employment Order further provides that "Foley shall include in any application for compensation an allocation of its fees and expenses between the Debtor, Neutra, and any other represented party as appropriate." Employment Order ¶ 3.

7. Although Foley's applications requested that Foley be retained by the Debtor on a larger scope, such relief was denied. Employment Order ¶ 1.

8. Foley also represents Neutra, the only appellant, in Neutra's appeal of Acis's orders for relief, currently pending before the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals and styled Neutra, Ltd. v. Joshua N. Terry, Case No. 19-10846 (the "Involuntary Appeal"). See Neutra, Ltd. v. Joshua N. Terry, Case No. 19-10846 (5th Cir. Oct. 30, 2019).

A. Appellate Timeline.

IV. LIMITED OBJECTION

A. Foley Has Not Properly Allocated Fees, As Directed By This Court.

30. At the hearing on Foley's employment application, the Court stated the following with respect to the Debtor's employment of Foley in the Debtor Appeal:

> I will say yes to that, but they need to be prepared to have their fees split. I'm not saying 50/50, I don't know what the percentage is, but they are going to be allocated between Neutra and Highland, and they should not expect to get a hundred percent of those covered by Highland at the end of the day. Okay? There's going to be a deep dive into looking at how that allocation, should work, okay?

Tr. 180:19-181:1 (Feb. 19, 2020).

31. Foley has not properly allocated its fees between Neutra and the Debtor with respect to the Debtor Appeal. During the period covered by the Fee Applications, Foley filed one reply brief on behalf of Neutra only in the Involuntary Appeal, and one reply brief on behalf of both the Debtor and Neutra in the Debtor Appeal. See Interim Fee Application Docket No. 602-2. It is not clear from the Fee Applications if Foley prepared for oral argument on behalf of Neutra in only the Debtor Appeal, or both the Involuntary Appeal and the Debtor Appeal. See Interim Fee Application Docket No. 602-2. Foley also prepared for oral argument on behalf of the Debtor in the Debtor Appeal. See Interim Fee Application Docket No. 602-2.

32. During the period covered by the Fee Applications, Foley states the following amounts were billed to Neutra and the Debtor, respectively:

Time Period	Relevant Action By Appellants	Relevant Action By Appellee	Amount Billed to Neutra for Involuntary Appeal	Amount Billed to Neutra for Debtor Appeal	Amount Billed to Debtor for Debtor Appeal
Oct. 16, 2019 -Nov. 30, 2019	Reply brief filed by Neutra in Involuntary Appeal	Appellee Brief filed in Involuntary Appeal and Appellee Brief filed in Debtor Appeal	$96,312.44 (unclear because Foley did not delineate between Involuntary Appeal and Debtor Appeal)		$18,424.00
December 2019	Joint reply brief filed by both Neutra and Debtor in Debtor Appeal		$0	$0	$87,369.10

January 2020			$0	$0	$4,054.50
February 2020	Oral argument calendared in both appeals		$10,356.50 (unclear because Foley did not delineate between Involuntary Appeal and Debtor Appeal)		$31,560.00
March 2020	Oral argument in both appeals scheduled		$12,617.00 (unclear because Foley did not delineate between Involuntary Appeal and Debtor Appeal)		$60,707.50
Total			$119,285.94 (unclear because Foley did not delineate between Involuntary Appeal and Debtor Appeal)		$202,115.10

33. Foley's calculation shows that Neutra is being billed approximately half the amount that the Debtor is being billed, even though Foley represents Neutra in two appeals, including one joint appeal with the Debtor, whereas it represents the Debtor in only one appeal, a joint appeal with Neutra. According to the Application, the Debtor is responsible for 63% of the total fees incurred for both appeals despite the fact that the Debtor is only party to the Debtor appeal, while Neutra is responsible for 37% of fees despite the fact that it is party to both appeals. Foley's allocation of 63% of the total fees to the Debtor for both appeals appears to be unreasonable and disproportionate to the work performed.[6]

[6] Foley has stated that $321,401.04 in fees are attributable to both the Involuntary Appeal and the Debtor Appeal. Assuming, half of those fees relate to the Involuntary Appeal, Neutra should be responsible for approximately $160,700.52, related to solely the Involuntary Appeal. If the remaining fees, related to the Debtor appeal, are split equally between the Debtor and Neutra, the Debtor would be responsible for $80,350.26 (rather than the current $202,115.10) and Neutra would be responsible for the same amount of fees, related to the Debtor Appeal. Note, this is based on mere assumptions as Foley has not provided time entries that attribute time/fees to specific entity.

This Objection relates to approximately 25-percent of the total fees at issue. Further, Foley requests 100-percent of its fees and 100-percent of its expenses on an interim basis. This Court's Guidelines of Compensation and Expense

34. Foley's time entries do not support the allocation described above because many of the time entries are generic. It is not clear from the entries why the Debtor, rather than Neutra, is tasked with compensating Foley. Certain of Foley's time entries related to the Debtor appeal do not clearly relate to the Debtor, rather than Neutra, so one cannot decipher if Foley complied with the Court's directive to allocate fees between Neutra and the Debtor. For example:[7]\

Fee Application	Date	Time Keeper	Time Entry	Time
October/November	11/7/2020	HNO	Preparation for and conference call with HCLOF counsel to discuss the 5th Cir. appellate brief and follow up regarding same	.80
October/November	11/14/19	HNO	Commence review of Brief of Appellee (Trustee) in the Confirmation Order Appeal.	1.1
October/November	11/18/19	SRO	Draft motion to extend reply brief deadline in HCM appeal in Fifth Circuit.	.80

Reimbursement of Professionals provide for professionals to be paid up to 80-percent of their compensation for services rendered on an interim basis. See Guidelines of Compensation and Expense Reimbursement of Professionals § I.H. However, the Order Establishing Procedures for Interim Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses of Professionals [Docket No. 141] entered by the Delaware Bankruptcy Court contains no such requirement.

[7] These time entries are intended to be examples. In fact, most of the time entries related to the Debtor Appeal do not specifically relate to the Debtor or Neutra.

October/November	11/22/19	HNO	Review of Appellee's Brief on the Acis Confirmation Order appeal and work on issues as to Appellant's Reply Brief.	8.40
December	12/02/2019	DEG	Work on reply brief.	3.50

March	3/14/2020	HNO	Review of Record on appeal and overlay with argument in the brief.	3.50

35. The narrative explanation provided by Foley, related to how time was divided between Neutra and the Debtor, does not tie back to specific time entries. See Interim Fee Application Docket No. 602-2. Further, Foley states "[t]hese fees related to preparation for oral argument and were divided up accordingly." See Interim Fee Application Docket No. 602-2. However, it is not clear how "accordingly" was determined and by whom.

36. Additionally, certain time entries are not clearly attributable to the Debtor Appeal (in which Foley is retained to represent the Debtor) rather than the Involuntary Appeal (which Foley is not retained to represent the Debtor). For example:

Fee Application	Date	Time Keeper	Time Entry	Time
October/November	11/01/19	NJOV	Analyze brief to pull case cites and prepare a notebook at the request of D. Green; coordinate with Special Delivery to hand deliver the notebook.[8]	.80
October/November	11/11/19	HNO	Address litigation and appellate matters.	1.5
October/November	11/19/19	JBB	Review Fifth Circuit reply brief and exchange e-mails discussing same.	1.1

[8] Given the date of this time entry (the day after the Appellee's brief was filed in the Involuntary Appeal and before the Appellee's brief was filed in the Debtor Appeal), this time may be attributable to Neutra, and therefore, the Debtor should not be responsible for the fees and expenses related to the same.

37. Additionally, the time related to oral argument preparations in February and March is not clearly attributable to the Debtor Appeal, rather the Involuntary Appeal, as both were set to take place on the same day.

38. Foley has "allocated" a majority of the fees incurred by both Neutra and the Debtor to the Debtor. Foley's time entries do not elucidate on what particular work was being performed and for whom. This Court stated there was going to be a "deep dive" into the allocation of fees between Neutra and the Debtor. The current explanation provided by Foley is shallow. Foley bears the burden with respect to its Fee Application and it has failed to meet this burden. Therefore, the "Court should not venture guesses nor undertake extensive investigation to justify a fee for an attorney or trustee who has not done so himself." Continental Illinois Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. of Chicago v. Charles N. Wooten, Ltd. (In re Evangeline Refining Co.), 890 F.2d 1312, 1326 (5th Cir. 1989).

B. Foley May Have Performed Work Outside The Scope Of Its Employment.

39. Foley was retained on "only the following matter, unless otherwise ordered by the Court the Acis Bankruptcy and the Debtor Appeal." Employment Order ¶ 2. Foley has billed over $110,000.00 (approximately 22% of the total fees billed) to the "case administration" category (presumably for work unrelated to the Acis Bankruptcy or the Debtor appeal, which are largely included in the Adverse Proceeds/Appeal or Confirmation Order Appeal categories). Many of the time entries related to the "case administration" category and elsewhere are heavily redacted. These redactions in the Fee Applications make it nearly impossible to adequately assess the work performed by Foley. At a minimum, the unredacted invoices should be submitted for in camera review. Acis objects to the Fee Applications to the extent Foley seeks to be compensated for work performed outside the scope of its employment.

V. CONCLUSION

40. Acis recognizes that it is atypical to file a lengthy and substantive objection to an interim fee application. While Foley seeks payment on an interim basis, it is important to note that Foley seeks payment of 100-percent of its fees and expenses, rather than the customary 80-percent of fees and 100-percent of expenses.[9] Additionally, the allocation issues appear to relate to a significant portion of the total fees requested by the Fee Applications. Finally, as Foley was retained by the Debtor on two discrete topics: (i) the Acis Bankruptcy (which had little activity since the Petition Date, as the adversary involving the Debtor is stayed) and (ii) the Debtor Appeal (which now has briefing completed), the vast majority of work to be performed by Foley, pursuant to the Employment Order, has already occurred. Therefore, Acis requests this Court only award Foley fees and expenses to the extent that such fees actually benefited the Debtor and comply with the Employment Order. As this Court has already determined, Neutra must pay its own way.

VI. PRAYER

Acis respectfully requests that this Court only allow Foley fees and expenses to the extent such fees actually benefited the Debtor and comply with the Employment Order. Acis also requests such other and further relief to which it may show itself to be justly entitled.

DATED: May 19, 2020.

[9] This is permitted by the Order Establishing Procedures for Interim Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses of Professionals [Docket No. 141].

UBS'S MOTION FOR RELIEF FROM THE AUTOMATIC STAY TO PROCEED WITH STATE COURT ACTION

[1] The Debtor's last four digits of its taxpayer identification number are 6725. The headquarters and service address for the Debtor is 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, TX 75201

PURSUANT TO LOCAL BANKRUPTCY RULE 4001-1(b), A RESPONSE IS REQUIRED TO THIS MOTION, OR THE ALLEGATIONS IN THE MOTION MAY BE DEEMED ADMITTED, AND AN ORDER GRANTING THE RELIEF SOUGHT MAY BE ENTERED BY DEFAULT.

ANY RESPONSE SHALL BE IN WRITING AND FILED WITH THE CLERK OF THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT AT EARLE CABELL FEDERAL BUILDING, 1100 COMMERCE STREET #1254, DALLAS, TEXAS 75242 BEFORE CLOSE OF BUSINESS ON JUNE 3, 2020, WHICH IS AT LEAST 14 DAYS FROM THE DATE OF SERVICE HEREOF. A COPY SHALL BE SERVED UPON COUNSEL FOR THE MOVING PARTY AND ANY TRUSTEE OR EXAMINER APPOINTED IN THE CASE. ANY RESPONSE SHALL INCLUDE A DETAILED AND COMPREHENSIVE STATEMENT AS TO HOW THE MOVANT CAN BE ADEQUATELY PROTECTED IF THE STAY IS TO BE CONTINUED.

UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch (together, "UBS"), by and through their undersigned counsel, hereby submit this motion (the "Motion") for entry of an order, in substantially the form attached hereto as Exhibit A, granting relief from the automatic stay provided by Section 362 of Title 11 of the United States Code, 11 U.S.C. §§ 101-1532 (the "Bankruptcy Code"), to allow UBS to continue a trial in a long pending state court action (the "State Court Action") against Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor"), amongst other parties. Additionally, this Motion seeks to preserve UBS's right to try the State Court Action before a jury—a right that UBS risks waiving by filing a proof of claim in this case.

As a threshold matter, this Court should lift the automatic stay for the simple reason that the Debtor previously agreed that the proper forum for resolution of the State Court Action is the Supreme Court of the State of New York (the "State Court"), where the State Court Action has been pending since February 2009. The Debtor agreed, in writing, to stipulate to lifting the automatic stay and to the continuation of the pending trial in the State Court. In reliance on that representation, UBS agreed to jointly request that the State Court keep the judgment that UBS obtained in "Phase I" of the bifurcated trial in the State Court Action under seal for a limited time, while the parties pursued settlement discussions regarding UBS's remaining claims in the State Court Action (i.e., the claims to be adjudicated by a jury in "Phase II"). In further reliance on this agreement, UBS supported the governance structure initially put forward by the Debtor and has pursued a path towards reconciliation throughout this chapter 11 proceeding. To date, the parties have been unable to reach a resolution on their own. Now, however, having already received the benefit of its bargain (a delayed release of the Phase I judgment, among other things), the Debtor—inexplicably—refuses to honor its agreement to stipulate to lifting the stay so that Phase II can proceed in State Court, as planned. UBS respectfully submits that this Court should hold the Debtor to its end of the bargain.

Furthermore, cause exists to lift the automatic stay for numerous reasons independent of the Debtor's agreement, and the Debtor cannot meet its burden to show otherwise.

First, UBS will be prejudiced absent the requested relief. If the stay is not lifted, UBS potentially would be required to litigate Phase II against the Debtor in this Court, a forum that does not have the benefit of the State Court's experience with the complex facts and lengthy procedural history of the State Court Action. On the other hand, the Debtor would not be prejudiced in any way if the stay is lifted. The Debtor represented to the State Court (in December 2019) that it could be ready and able to litigate the remainder of the State Court Action in six months' time. And in fact, litigating the State Court Action now would benefit the Debtor's estate, by eliminating the uncertainty over the amount of UBS's claim (the largest claim that has been asserted against the Debtor here) and thus expediting chapter 11 plan negotiations.

Second, questions of judicial economy favor lifting the automatic stay. The Debtor is not the only Defendant in the State Court Action. Other remaining defendants include: Highland CDO Opportunity Master Fund, L.P. ("CDO Fund") and Highland Special Opportunities Holding Company ("SOHC") (SOHC and CDO Fund together, the "Fund Counterparties," and the Fund Counterparties and the Debtor, collectively, "Highland"), as well as Highland Financial Partners, L.P., Highland Credit Opportunities CDO, L.P. (now Highland Multi Strategy Credit Fund, L.P.), and Strand Advisors, Inc. The parties are in the middle of a trial. Because Phase II of the State Court Action still needs to be litigated against all remaining defendants, judicial economy is served by lifting the stay and resolving all of UBS's pending claims in one forum, at one time. This approach would benefit all parties: UBS would not need to try its case twice, the Debtor and remaining Highland entities could share the costs of one action, and the parties' witnesses would not need to travel to multiple forums to testify about the same events. To take any other approach, on the other hand, would waste judicial resources and potentially result in inconsistent rulings.

Third, cause exists to lift the stay because should the Debtor attempt to remove the State Court Action to this Court, the doctrine of either mandatory or permissive abstention should prevent this Court from hearing those claims, as set forth below. The only appropriate forum to resolve the State Court Action is the State Court. The stay should be lifted now to resolve those claims, which are crucial to the resolution of this chapter 11 case, as expeditiously as possible.

In support of the Motion, UBS respectfully represents as follows:

JURISDICTION

1. This Court has jurisdiction over the Motion under 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. The Motion is a core matter within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2).

2. Venue of the Motion in this Court is proper pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1409.

3. The statutory basis for the relief requested herein is Section 362 of the Bankruptcy Code.

BACKGROUND

A. The Knox Transaction

4. The State Court Action arises out of a failed transaction that began thirteen years ago. In early 2007, UBS and Highland agreed to pursue a complex form of securitization transaction known as a "CLO Squared" (the "Knox Transaction").[2]

5. The purpose of the Knox Transaction was to acquire and securitize a series of collateralized loan obligation ("CLO") securities and credit default swap ("CDS") assets (the "Knox Assets"). To that end, the Debtor agreed to be the "Servicer" of the Knox Transaction, and as such was responsible for identifying the specific CLO and CDS assets to be securitized. UBS agreed to finance the acquisition of the CLO and CDS assets identified by Highland. UBS would then hold, or "warehouse," the assets until the securitization was completed (the "Knox Warehouse"). Under this arrangement, UBS financed the acquisition of $818 million in CLO and CDS Knox Assets.

6. The parties' first attempt at the Knox Transaction was not completed successfully and the relevant agreements expired in August 2007 without the contemplated securitization having occurred. Rather than end their relationship, Highland and UBS agreed in 2008 to restructure the agreement and once more attempt the securitization. Following negotiations, the parties executed three new written agreements: an Engagement Letter, a Cash Warehouse Agreement, and a Synthetic Warehouse Agreement (collectively, the "Warehouse Agreements," attached as Exhibits C, D, and E, respectively). The Engagement Letter was executed by UBS and the Debtor; the Fund Counterparties were not parties to the Engagement Letter. The Cash Warehouse and Synthetic Warehouse Agreements were executed by UBS and the Debtor, along with the Fund Counterparties.

[2] Justice Friedman's November 14, 2019 Decision and Order after the Phase I trial in the State Court Action (attached hereto as Exhibit B) includes a summary of the Knox Transaction and provides additional support for the Background Section of this Motion. See infra para. 17; Ex. B, Decision and Order at 2-5. A minimal number of exhibits are attached to this Motion for brevity, but additional documentary evidence underlying the Phase I Decision and Order is available at the request of this Court. UBS reserves the right to file additional supporting declarations or to otherwise present evidence in support of the Motion at or in advance of the hearing.

7. As described above, UBS agreed to finance the acquisition of the CLO and CDS assets that the parties planned to securitize. In so doing, the key risk UBS faced was the possibility that the Knox Assets would lose value while the securitization was pending. To address this risk, UBS and the Debtor agreed in the Engagement Letter that the Fund Counterparties would bear this risk. See Ex. B, Engagement Letter § 3(c). Notably, at the time, the Debtor was the Investment Manager to the Fund Counterparties under agreements that gave the Debtor total control over those entities.

8. The Warehouse Agreements reiterated that the Fund Counterparties (as controlled by the Debtor) would bear the risk, specifying that if the Knox Assets lost value while the securitization was pending, the Fund Counterparties "will in aggregate bear 100% of the risk" for the Knox Assets—with CDO Fund bearing 51% of any losses and SOHC bearing the remaining 49%. Ex. C, Engagement Letter § 3(c); Ex. D, Cash Warehouse Agreement § 5(A) & Exhibit A thereto (defining "Allocation Percentage[s]"); Ex. E., Synthetic Warehouse Agreement § 6(C) & Exhibit A thereto (defining "Allocation Percentage[s]").

9. To further protect UBS in the event that the Knox Assets lost value, the Warehouse Agreements provided for recurring measurements of mark-to-market losses on all assets in the Knox Warehouse and required the Fund Counterparties to post collateral in the event the Knox Assets lost a set amount of value. Specifically, the parties agreed that the Fund Counterparties would post an additional $10 million in collateral for each $100 million in losses to the overall value of the Knox Assets.

10. In September and October 2008, amid the global economic recession, the value of the Knox Assets dropped by $100 million, twice. Thus, UBS twice exercised its contractual right to demand additional collateral. And twice Highland posted the required collateral. On or about November 7, 2008, UBS issued a third margin call, because the value of the Knox Assets suffered additional losses of $200 million (bringing the aggregate losses to over $400 million). This time, Highland refused to provide the additional collateral required under the Warehouse Agreements.[3]

11. Highland's default on UBS's third margin call triggered a termination event under the Warehouse Agreements. On December 5, 2008, UBS gave Highland formal notice of default and demanded the Fund Counterparties pay UBS for 100% of the losses incurred on the Knox Assets—which had, by then, grown to over $520 million. At the direction of the Debtor, however, the Fund Counterparties refused to provide such payment.

12. Indeed, the Debtor undertook a series of actions to not only prevent the Fund Counterparties from paying what was owed to UBS, but to ensure that UBS would not be able to collect any judgment arising out of this liability. Such actions include, but are not limited to, a series of fraudulent transfers of funds out of, and away from, an alter ego of SOHC, Highland Financial Partners, L.P. These internal transfers of funds and other actions—all overseen by James Dondero, the Debtor's founder and president—were designed to prevent UBS from ever collecting the millions of dollars it was owed under the Warehouse Agreements. As one internal Highland

[3] See Ex. B, Decision and Order at 4 ("It is undisputed that the Fund Counterparties did not meet this [third] collateral call."). Although the Warehouse Agreements specified that it was the Fund Counterparties who would post collateral, the Debtor moved assets around from other entities it controlled to make the first two collateral calls (without disclosing this practice to UBS). For the third collateral call, Highland specifically told UBS on November 11, 2008, that it could choose assets to satisfy the third collateral call from a variety of Highland-controlled entities, including from the Debtor itself, and invited UBS representatives to Dallas to diligence available assets on November 14, 2008. When UBS determined that the assets offered were insufficient and instead sought cash, Highland chose to default rather than causing the Fund Counterparties to satisfy their obligations. See id.

document (attached hereto as Exhibit F) put it, "[UBS] can see us in court for their additional collateral."

B. The State Court Action

13. On February 24, 2009, UBS filed a complaint in the State Court against the Debtor and the Fund Counterparties. As UBS learned more about Highland's conduct through discovery, UBS amended its complaint to assert additional claims and name additional Highland entities, including Highland Financial Partners, L.P., Highland Credit Strategies Master Fund, L.P., Highland Crusader Offshore Partners, L.P., Highland Credit Opportunities CDO, L.P. (now Highland Multi Strategy Credit Fund, L.P.), and Strand Advisors, Inc. As amended and stated in its Second Amended Complaint (attached hereto as Exhibit G) in the State Court Action, filed on May 11, 2011, UBS's claims include breach of contract claims directly against the Fund Counterparties, as well as claims for fraudulent inducement, breach of the duty of good faith and fair dealing, fraudulent conveyance, tortious interference, and declaratory judgment against the Debtor and its affiliates. The Debtor subsequently brought counterclaims against UBS for breach of contract and unjust enrichment.

14. The procedural history of the State Court Action—which now spans more than 11 years—is exceedingly complex. The suit was assigned to the Commercial Division, a division of the State Court that hears only complicated commercial claims meeting specified jurisdictional requirements. The Debtor and its affiliates and UBS filed, and the State Court ruled on, four sets of motions to dismiss—briefing for which lasted from May 2009 through August 2012. The Debtor and its affiliates then filed two sets of summary judgment motions, which led to a series of complex rulings by the State Court in 2017. The parties filed various interlocutory appeals of the State Court's rulings on the motions to dismiss and for summary judgment. Those appeals were heard by the Appellate Division for the First Judicial Department in the County of New York, with the Appellate Division issuing five separate decisions over this suit's protracted history. Over the course of the State Court Action, two different judges have presided over the claims at the trial court level—Justice Bernard Fried and, later, Justice Marcy Friedman, who continues to preside over the action.

15. Also included in the Appellate Division's decisions was an order arising from an appeal of the State Court's ruling on UBS's motion to restrain Defendants Highland Credit Strategies Master Fund, L.P. and Highland Crusader Partners, L.P. from disposing of property received through the fraudulent transfers orchestrated by the Debtor. After UBS showed it had a likelihood of success on the merits of its fraudulent transfer claims, would suffer irreparable harm absent relief, and the balance of equities favored granting the injunctions, the Appellate Division enjoined both Highland entities from disposing of their assets. Ultimately, these injunctions resulted in partial settlements between UBS and Highland Credit Strategies Master Fund, L.P. and Highland Crusader Partners, L.P.[4]

16. By early 2018, more than nine years after UBS first filed suit, the parties were finally ready to proceed to trial. Due to a jury waiver clause in the Warehouse Agreements, however, Justice Friedman bifurcated UBS's claims into two distinct phases for trial: Phase I, consisting of a bench trial on UBS's claims against the Fund Counterparties for breach of the Cash Warehouse and Synthetic Warehouse Agreements, as well as the Debtor's counterclaims; and Phase II, consisting of a jury trial on UBS's remaining claims against all remaining Highland entities, including the Debtor. Although bifurcated into two phases, the trial in the State Court

[4] The settlement agreements are confidential. However, the Debtor discussed these agreements on the record during Phase I of the trial and thus, Justice Friedman addressed the settlement agreements in her Phase I Decision and Order. See infra ¶ 17; Ex. B, Decision and Order. The preliminary injunction motions (and decisions) also involved a third Defendant, Highland Crusader Holding Corporation. UBS filed a separate 2011 complaint against this entity arising from the same fraudulent conveyances orchestrated by the Debtor. Although the cases were not formally consolidated, the preliminary injunction motions were consolidated for disposition.

Action was always intended to be conducted as efficiently as possible. Phase II of the trial was intended to build upon the factual record and evidentiary rulings in Phase I, with both phases presided over by Justice Friedman as part of the same lawsuit.

17. Justice Friedman presided over a thirteen-day bench trial for Phase I from July 9 through July 27, 2018. During Phase I, the court heard from eight in-person witnesses, whose testimony spanned nearly 2,000 pages of trial transcripts, as well as fourteen additional witnesses through deposition designations. On November 14, 2019, Justice Friedman entered a Decision and Order on Phase I (attached hereto as Exhibit B), ruling in favor of UBS on almost every issue presented in Phase I. In particular, the court found the Fund Counterparties liable to UBS for breach of the Cash Warehouse and Synthetic Warehouse Agreements, found no liability on the part of UBS for either of the Debtor's counterclaims, and rejected almost every one of the Debtor's offset arguments with the only remaining issue (affecting approximately $70,500,000) to be determined after Phase II. An Entry of Judgment on Phase I was entered on February 10, 2020. Under that Phase I final judgment, UBS is entitled to $1,039,957,799.44, consisting of $519,374,149.00 in damages and $520,583,650.44 in pre-judgment interest as of January 22, 2020, with additional interest of $128,065 having accrued daily until the Entry of Judgment.

18. The next step in the State Court Action is Phase II of the trial, which involves a jury trial of all UBS's remaining claims against not only the Debtor, but also against other Highland affiliates. The claims to be tried in Phase II include claims for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, fraudulent conveyances, and alter-ego liability. If found liable, the Debtor will be responsible for the judgment awarded to UBS in Phase I (in addition to any other amounts awarded to UBS in Phase II). In addition, UBS will seek punitive damages against the

Debtor for its role in orchestrating the extended efforts to prevent UBS from collecting the amounts owed under the Warehouse Agreements.[5]

19. The evidence to be presented in Phase II includes testimony from many of the same witnesses who appeared in the State Court for Phase I of the trial. Additional documentary evidence will be presented and will build on the exhibits already entered and evidentiary rulings already made in Phase I of the State Court Action. Although Phase II will be tried in front of a new audience (the jury), Justice Friedman's extensive knowledge of previous rulings and evidence will help her decide issues of law and evidence arising in Phase II in a timely and efficient manner.

20. Currently, Phase II of the State Court Action is stayed against the Debtor by the automatic stay imposed pursuant to Section 362 of the Bankruptcy Code when the Debtor commenced this chapter 11 case. The State Court is aware that the parties are attempting to settle UBS's remaining claims in the State Court Action. If the parties are unable to resolve those claims on their own, after the Court lifts the restrictions in place due to the COVID-19 pandemic, UBS intends to request that the State Court schedule the Phase II jury trial at the Court's earliest convenience.

C. The Debtor's Agreement to Stipulate to Relief From the Automatic Stay.

21. When the State Court issued its judgment in Phase I of the State Court Action, the Debtor and UBS were engaged in settlement discussions to potentially stipulate to UBS's remaining claims in the State Court Action (i.e., the claims to be adjudicated in Phase II) and facilitate a consensual restructuring of the Debtor in this chapter 11 case. In order to facilitate these discussions and in recognition of the Debtor's concern about the effect the Phase I judgment would have on its ongoing business relationships, the Debtor and UBS agreed to request that the State Court keep the Phase I judgment under seal for a limited time. As part of this agreement, the Debtor also agreed to stipulate to relief from the automatic stay in this chapter 11 case, if the parties were unable to come to a mutually agreeable settlement of the State Court Action. Both parties clearly and repeatedly agreed that Phase II would proceed as planned—as a jury trial in the State Court—if the parties were unable to resolve the remaining claims on their own. Emails between the Debtor, through its general counsel, Scott Ellington, and litigation counsel, Angela Somers and Jeff Gross of Reid Collins & Tsai LLP, and UBS, through its counsel, evidence this agreement (attached hereto as Exhibit H). Through email, the parties drafted and reached an agreed upon stipulation to relief from the automatic stay in this chapter 11 case (attached hereto as Exhibit I), should they need to file it. If no settlement agreement could be reached, the parties agreed they could be ready to try Phase II before the State Court in "about 6 months." See Ex. H, Debtor-UBS Communications. The Debtor and UBS both orally represented the terms of their agreement, including the agreement to lift the automatic stay, to the State Court on multiple occasions in December 2019 and January 2020. See, e.g., Nov. 22, 2019 Letter from UBS Counsel to Justice Friedman (attached hereto as Exhibit J) (requesting a telephone conference to discuss, among other matters, the parties' "agreement regarding the jury trial phase of the action"). The parties' agreement formed part of the basis for the State Court's sealing of the Phase I judgment until late January 2020. See Ex. H, Debtor-UBS Communications ("We already had a call with the Court and they understand these to be the terms.").

[5] See Ex. B, Decision and Order at 39 ("UBS persuasively argues, in opposition, that the fraudulent conveyance causes of action seek relief in addition to compensatory damages, including imposition of a constructive trust and punitive damages.").

22. In further reliance on the Debtor's agreement to litigate the State Court Action in State Court if no agreement could be reached, and out of a desire to bring this chapter 11 case to a consensual and value-maximizing resolution, UBS supported the governance structure (i.e., independent directors) put forward by the Debtor and agreed to by the official committee of unsecured creditors, rather than pursuing the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee. Since then, UBS has continued to encourage the Debtor to settle the State Court Action in lieu of more litigious paths forward toward the Debtor's restructuring.

23. Settlement discussions between the Debtor and UBS, while ongoing, have not progressed over the last few months and UBS requested that the Debtor proceed with Phase II of the State Court Action in the State Court by filing the previously agreed-to joint stipulation to relief with this Court. Now, however, having already received the benefit of its bargain (i.e., a delayed release of the Phase I judgment and its preferred governance structure), the Debtor refuses to honor its agreement to stipulate to lifting the stay, despite knowing the State Court Action will still need to proceed as to the remaining Highland entity defendants.

D. The Bar Date Order.

24. On March 2, 2020, this Court entered the Order (I) Establishing Bar Dates for Filing Claims and (II) Approving the Form and Manner of Notice Thereof [Docket No. 488] (the "Bar Date Order"), setting the deadline for parties in interest to file proofs of claim for April 8, 2020 (the "Bar Date"). The Bar Date Order further provided that parties whose claims are listed as disputed, contingent, or unliquidated on the Debtor's schedules of assets and liabilities, filed December 13, 2019 [Docket No. 247], must file proofs of claim by the Bar Date in order to preserve their claims against the Debtor's estate.

25. UBS's claims are listed as disputed, contingent, or unliquidated on the Debtor's schedules of assets and liabilities. Accordingly, under the Bar Date Order, UBS had to file a proof of claim in this chapter 11 case in advance of the Bar Date, in order to preserve its claims against the Debtor's estate. However, by filing a proof of claim, UBS risks waiving its right to try Phase II of the State Court Action before a jury. See Langenkamp v. Culp, 498 U.S. 42 (1990) (finding that a creditor who submits a proof of claim against the bankruptcy estate has no right to a jury trial on the issues raised in defense of such claim); Grafinanciera S.A. v. Nordberg, 492 U.S. 33 (1989) (same); U.S. Bank Nat. Ass'n v. Verizon Commc'ns, Inc., 761 F.3d 409 (5th Cir. 2014) (same). Indeed, it is unclear whether a reservation of rights in the proof of claim itself (which would not be binding on the Court) would be sufficient to protect UBS's fundamental right to a jury trial. See In re Legendary Field Exhibitions, LLC, 2020 Bankr. LEXIS 91, at *12 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. Jan. 10, 2020) ("Even if a creditor attempts to couch its claim in protective language reserving the right to a jury trial, such protective language is not binding on the Court."); Travellers Int'l AG v. Robinson, 982 F.2d 96 (3d Cir. 1992) (filing of a proof of claim waived a creditor's right to a jury trial, notwithstanding that the proof of claim itself purported to reserve that right).

26. In an attempt to avoid the expense and inconvenience associated with motions and a hearing to lift the automatic stay while their settlement discussions progressed, the Debtor and UBS agreed to a Joint Stipulation and Order Extending Bar Date, filed with this Court on March 22, 2020 [Docket No. 543], which this Court entered an order approving on March 25, 2020 [Docket No. 547] (the "Bar Date Stipulation"). The Bar Date Stipulation extended the Bar Date with respect to UBS's proof of claim until the later of (i) June 22, 2020 at 5:00 p.m. Central Time or (ii) five business days after the Court enters an order on UBS's motion to lift the automatic stay, provided that UBS files such motion on or before May 20, 2020 at 5:00 p.m. Central Time.

27. Since the entry of the Bar Date Stipulation, the Debtor and UBS have had several discussions regarding UBS's State Court claims and unfortunately have not yet fully resolved the issues underlying the State Court Action. In accordance with the Bar Date Stipulation and in order to safeguard its right to a jury trial, UBS now files this Motion seeking relief from the automatic stay.

RELIEF REQUESTED

28. UBS respectfully requests that the Court grant UBS relief from the automatic stay pursuant to Section 362(d)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code to continue the State Court Action in the State Court before a jury in order to liquidate its claims against the Debtor. UBS further requests that the Court enter an Order that UBS's right to a jury trial shall not be deemed waived by UBS's filing of a proof of claim in this chapter 11 case. Alternatively, even if the Court decides that lifting the stay is not appropriate at this time, UBS respectfully requests that the Court enter the Order that UBS's right to a jury trial shall not be deemed waived by UBS's filing of a proof of claim in this chapter 11 case, or extend the Bar Date further, to preserve UBS's right to try its case before a jury at a later date.

BASIS FOR RELIEF REQUESTED

A. The Debtor Has Already Agreed to Lift the Automatic Stay.

29. It is well established that a debtor in chapter 11 and a creditor may agree to lift the automatic stay in order to allow prepetition litigation to proceed so that claims against the debtor may be liquidated efficiently. See e.g. In re GenOn Energy, Inc., Case No. 17-33695 (DRJ) [Docket No. 449] (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Aug. 2, 2017) (entering agreed order between debtors and plaintiffs allowing litigation to proceed in a non-bankruptcy venue). Here, the Debtor and UBS did just that. As the evidence demonstrates, when the State Court reached its opinion after the bench trial in Phase I, UBS agreed to keep the judgment under seal and not seek immediate litigation of Phase II while engaging in settlement discussions. In return for UBS's agreement to keep the Phase I judgment under seal, among other things, the Debtor's general counsel, Scott Ellington, agreed in writing that the Debtor would agree to lift the automatic stay to allow Phase II to proceed in State Court if settlement negotiations were unsuccessful. The Debtor and UBS went so far as to agree to the form of stipulation that would be used, at the appropriate time if settlement discussions proved unfruitful, to lift the automatic stay. See Ex. H, Debtor-UBS Communications; Ex. I, Agreed Upon Stipulation. And, counsel to UBS, as well as the Debtor's counsel in the State Court Action, each represented to the State Court that they had agreed to lift the automatic stay in the event a settlement could not be reached. See Ex. H, Debtor-UBS Communications; see also Ex. J, Letter to Justice Friedman; supra para. 21. Now, counsel to the Debtor has informed UBS that the Debtor will not, inexplicably, honor its agreement and does not intend to stipulate to the agreed-upon relief.

30. On the basis of the agreement between the Debtor and UBS, the State Court kept the Phase I judgment sealed until January 23, 2020, more than two months after the State Court reached its decision. And UBS, to its detriment, refrained from seeking immediate relief from the automatic stay in this chapter 11 case or pursuing the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee. In the time since the Phase I judgment was entered, the Debtor's assets have significantly declined in value, and the Debtor has been forced to liquidate several positions in equity securities (the value of which may have already rebounded) to meet margin calls.

31. The Debtor received the benefit of its bargain with UBS through the delayed release of the Phase I judgement and UBS's agreement to not immediately pursue litigating Phase II, and is now refusing to uphold its end of the bargain. UBS respectfully requests that this Court hold the Debtor to the deal it made and lift the automatic stay to permit the State Court Action to proceed so that UBS's claim may be liquidated.

B. Cause Exists to Lift the Automatic Stay.

32. This Court has broad discretion to grant relief from the automatic stay under Section 362 of the Bankruptcy Code. Section 362(d)(1) provides as follows:

> (d) On request of a party in interest and after notice and a hearing, the court shall grant relief from the stay provided under subsection (a) of this section, such as by terminating, annulling, modifying, or conditioning such stay-

(1) for cause, including the lack of adequate protection of an interest in property of such party in interest;

33. Pursuant to Section 362(g)(2), the Debtor bears the burden of proving the absence of cause for relief under Section 362(d)(1). See 11 U.S.C. § 362(g)(2). UBS respectfully submits that under any standard this Court applies, cause exists to lift the automatic stay, and the Debtor cannot bear its burden of showing otherwise. Although "cause" is not defined in the Bankruptcy Code, courts have interpreted the concept broadly in order to respond equitably to the specific facts of a case. See, e.g., Mooney v. Gill, 310 B.R. 543, 546-47 (N.D. Tex. 2002) (observing that "[c]ause is an intentionally broad and flexible concept").

34. Bankruptcy courts in the Fifth Circuit have not settled on a single test for what constitutes "cause" and have applied various tests from other jurisdictions at various points in time. See In re Choice ATM Enterprises, Inc., 2015 WL 1014617, at *4 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Mar. 4, 2015) ("Even among bankruptcy courts in this circuit, no single approach prevails."). However, the common features of all of these tests are: (1) a focus on prejudice to the parties; and (2) questions of judicial economy. See, e.g., In re Xenon Anesthesia of Texas, PLLC, 510 B.R. 106, 112 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2014) (finding that judicial economy alone can provide grounds to lift the automatic stay). Both the substantial prejudice to UBS that will result if the stay is not lifted and questions of judicial economy weigh heavily in favor of lifting the stay. And, additional cause exists to grant relief from the stay because the State Court is the only appropriate forum for the State Court Action.

i. UBS is the Only Party That Will Be Prejudiced if the Stay Is Not Lifted.

35. UBS has already suffered prejudice due to its reliance on the Debtor's previous agreement to lift the automatic stay and the consequent delay in litigating Phase II in State Court. This weighs in favor of lifting the stay. See In re Oluyemisi Omokafe Okedokun, 593 B.R. 469, 554 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2018) ("Any detrimental reliance suffered by the defendant may be considered in weighing the equities"); In re Thrash, 433 B.R. 585, 602 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2010) ("Reliance is established by showing that the defendant's actions and representations induced the plaintiff 'to act or to refrain from action.'") (quoting Matis v. Golden, 228 S.W.3d 301, 311 (Tex. App.-Waco 2007, no pet.)).

36. Moreover, if the stay is not lifted, UBS will continue to suffer material harm. UBS potentially would be required to litigate Phase II against the Debtor in this Court, a forum that does not have the benefit of the State Court's lengthy experience with the State Court Action and the underlying facts and procedural history.

37. On the other hand, the Debtor cannot show that it would be prejudiced in any way by the lifting of the stay. Indeed, the Debtor previously agreed to stipulate to lift the stay and proceed in State Court, absent a settlement. The Debtor has already spent a decade fighting the State Court Action there. To argue now that litigating further in the State Court would be prejudicial strains credulity. The Debtor has counsel in the State Court Action and both the Debtor and UBS have remained in regular communication with the State Court while Phase II has been stayed. The parties should be ready and able to litigate the remainder of the State Court Action in relatively short order. Indeed, as recently as December 2019, the Debtor represented that it could be ready to litigate the State Court Action "in six months." Ex. H, Debtor-UBS Communications.

38. In fact, litigating the State Court Action now would provide an actual benefit to the Debtor's estate. As of the filing of this Motion, this chapter 11 case has been pending for nearly seven months with no appreciable progress towards a resolution. UBS's claim against the Debtor is the largest claim that has been asserted against the Debtor in this case by over $800 million. If the Debtor is ultimately found liable in the State Court Action, UBS's claim will be significantly larger than the claims of any of the other creditors in this case. Right now, however, the uncertainty over the amount of UBS's claim has made it difficult to estimate how much other creditors may hope to receive pursuant to a chapter 11 plan and, accordingly, has complicated plan negotiations. Reducing UBS's claim to a judgment in Phase II will provide much needed certainty and expedite the process of bringing this chapter 11 case to a close. The Debtor has not proposed any plan or serious settlement offer to resolve creditors' claims. And, the longer this chapter 11 case continues and administrative costs continue to mount without UBS being able to liquidate its claim, the more the value of the Debtor's assets available for distribution to UBS, and all creditors, declines.

39. Accordingly, UBS respectfully submits that the Debtor cannot meet its burden of showing that cause does not exist to lift the stay, because the only party prejudiced by the stay remaining in place is UBS.

ii. Judicial Economy Favors Lifting the Automatic Stay.

40. Questions of judicial economy also clearly favor the State Court as the appropriate forum for litigating Phase II, and accordingly, favor lifting the stay so the State Court Action can proceed there. Phase II involves solely New York state law causes of action, all of which relate significantly to the issues previously litigated before the State Court in Phase I. Further, the State Court Action has been pending for over a decade. During that time, as detailed above, a very complex procedural history has developed, including multiple evidentiary rulings, summary judgment rulings, and interlocutory appeals. UBS respectfully submits that the State Court's familiarity with that substantial evidentiary and procedural record is critical to a fair, expeditious trial of Phase II.

41. Phase II also involves a number of non-Debtor defendants over whom this Court's jurisdiction is uncertain. Accordingly, if the stay is not lifted, UBS may be forced to litigate its claim against the Debtor in this Court and also litigate its claims against the other defendants in the State Court, i.e., try the case twice, to the inconvenience of all parties. This necessarily would lead to a waste of judicial resources and potentially inconsistent rulings. Litigating the same claims in two courts, in two different states, would also unnecessarily raise costs for the Debtor. Lifting the stay would allow the Debtor and other Highland entities to share the costs of one trial rather than each paying for separate trials. Additionally, without relief, witnesses from both sides will be inconvenienced, by being asked to travel to both Texas and New York to say the same thing.

42. Accordingly, UBS respectfully submits that the Debtor cannot meet its burden of showing that cause does not exist to lift the stay, because considerations of judicial economy weigh in favor of litigating Phase II in the State Court.

iii. Additional Cause Exists to Lift the Automatic Stay Because the State Court is the Only Forum Where the State Court Action Can and Should be Litigated.

43. Additional cause exists to lift the automatic stay pursuant to the doctrines of permissive and mandatory abstention codified in 28 U.S.C. §§ 1334(c)(1) and (2), respectively. Abstention generally arises in the context of a debtor's removal of a litigation to the bankruptcy court, which has not yet occurred here. UBS respectfully submits that this Court should not wait for the Debtor to attempt to remove UBS's claim to federal court. Rather, UBS submits that it is appropriate for this Court to find that there is cause to lift the stay because this Court would be required to (or may determine it should) abstain from hearing the State Court Action. See In re Congoleum, Case No. 03-51524 (Bankr. D.N.J. Mar. 22, 2004), Hr'g Tr. Feb. 2, 2004 (attached hereto as Exhibit K) at 38:12-18 ("Here the moving parties allege cause [to lift the automatic stay] in the form of what they see as inevitable mandatory abstention. While it is true that Debtor has not acted to remove the state court proceedings to this court or even to the District Court, that does not mean that this court should not look at the underlying issues to determine whether they must be decided in order to advance the bankruptcy, and if so where they are best decided.").

44. As an initial matter, the doctrine of mandatory abstention under 28 U.S.C. § 1334(c)(2) would require that this Court abstain from hearing the State Court Action.

45. 28 U.S.C. § 1334(c)(2) provides:

> Upon timely motion of a party in a proceeding based upon a State law claim or State law cause of action, related to a case under title 11, but not arising under title 11 or arising in a case under title 11, with respect to which an action could not have been commenced in a court of the United States absent jurisdiction under this section, the district court shall abstain from hearing such proceeding if an action is commenced, and can be timely adjudicated, in a State forum of appropriate jurisdiction.

46. Under the doctrine of mandatory abstention created by this statute, a district court must abstain from hearing state law claims if all of the following requirements are met: "(1) the claims have no independent basis for federal jurisdiction other than section 1334(b) [of the judicial code]; (2) the claim is a non-core proceeding, i.e. it is related to a case under title 11 but does not arise under or in a case under title 11; (3) an action has been commenced in state court; and (4) the action could be adjudicated timely in state court." In re Rupp & Bowman Co., 109 F.3d 237, 239 (5th Cir. 1997). Taking each of the factors in turn, it is clear that if the Debtor were to attempt to remove the State Court Action to this Court, this Court would be required to abstain.

47. First, this Court would have no independent basis for subject matter jurisdiction over the State Court Action other than "related-to" jurisdiction under Section 1334(b) of the Bankruptcy Code. Federal courts have limited jurisdiction and may only hear cases where either: (a) the civil action presents a federal question or (b) the amount in controversy exceeds $75,000 exclusive of interest and costs and the parties are citizens of different states. See 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331-1332. Here, the State Court Action involves only questions of New York state law. Accordingly, there is no federal question jurisdiction. And, both plaintiff UBS Securities LLC and the defendant Debtor were formed under the laws of the state of Delaware, so diversity jurisdiction is inapplicable. Accordingly, the first element of the test for mandatory abstention is satisfied.

48. Second, the State Court Action is only "related-to" the Debtor's chapter 11 case, i.e., it is a non-core proceeding. Bankruptcy courts have jurisdiction over: (a) cases under title 11; (b) proceedings arising in a case under title 11; and (c) proceedings related to a case under title 11. See 28 U.S.C. § 157. A case "under" title 11 refers only to the actual filing of the bankruptcy petition. See e.g., In re Canion, 196 F.3d 579, 584 (5th Cir. 1999). Proceedings arising under title 11 or arising in a case under title 11 are those that involve rights created by federal bankruptcy law, or those that would arise only in a bankruptcy or would have no existence outside of bankruptcy. See In re Wood, 825 F.2d 90, 97 (5th Cir. 1987). Finally, courts define "core proceedings" as those that either invoke a substantive right provided by title 11 or that by their nature can only arise in the context of a bankruptcy case. See id. The State Court Action is a non-core proceeding that could only be brought before this Court under "related-to" jurisdiction. It does not invoke any substantive bankruptcy rights; it involves only matters of state law. The State Court Action was pending in the State Court for more than a decade before the commencement of this chapter 11 case, so it can clearly exist outside of bankruptcy. The State Court Action's only relation to the estate is that it potentially affects the pool of claims against the estate. This is a classic formulation of "related-to" jurisdiction, but not "arising in" or "arising under" jurisdiction. See id. at 93 (quoting Pacor v. Higgins, 743 F.2d 984, 994 (3d Cir. 1984), and holding that "related-to" jurisdiction depends on "whether the outcome of that proceeding could conceivably have any effect on the estate being administered in bankruptcy"); see also In re Am. Capital Equip., Inc., 405 B.R. 415, 425 (Bankr. W.D. Pa. 2009) (holding that liquidation of personal injury tort claims was a non-core proceeding); In re Trans World Airlines, 278 B.R. 42, 49 (Bankr. D. Del. 2002) (holding that an adversary proceeding and related state court action based on state law claims related to debtor's prepetition conduct were non-core proceedings). Accordingly, the second element of the test for mandatory abstention is satisfied.

49. Third, the State Court Action has been pending in the State Court for many years, and, accordingly, the third element of the test for mandatory abstention is satisfied.

50. Fourth, and finally, the State Court Action can be timely adjudicated in the State Court. UBS and the Debtor have engaged in regular communications with the State Court since the commencement of this chapter 11 case. A trial date can be set quickly in the State Court. See In re Legal Xtranet, Inc. 453 B.R. 699, 714-15 (W.D. Tex. 2011) (holding that the party moving for abstention need only show that the matter could be timely adjudicated in the state court). Additionally, bankruptcy courts give great weight to a state court's experience with the claims and the case in deciding whether the timely adjudication element of the test for mandatory abstention is met. See e.g., In re Trans World Airlines, Inc., 278 B.R. 42, 51 (Bankr. D. Del. 2002) (finding that, where an action was dependent solely on a determination of state law and did not implicate the provisions or procedures of the Bankruptcy Code, the action was likely to be litigated more quickly in state court). Here, as described above, the State Court Action, which involves only New York state law claims, has been pending for over a decade. The State Court Action has a very complicated procedural history, and Phase II of the trial was always intended to build upon Phase I. For these reasons, the State Court is the best forum in which to timely adjudicate the State Court Action (even when taking into account any temporary delays relating to the COVID-19 pandemic). Accordingly, the fourth and final element of the test for mandatory abstention is satisfied.

51. Alternatively, if the Debtor was to remove the State Court Action and this Court found that mandatory abstention was not required, permissive abstention under 28 U.S.C. § 1334(c)(1) would be appropriate. That statutory provision provides:

> "[n]othing in this section prevents a district court in the interest of justice, or in the interest of comity with State courts or respect for State law, from abstaining from hearing a particular proceeding arising under title 11 or arising in or related to a case under title 11"

28 U.S.C. § 1334(c)(1).

52. Courts have broad discretion to abstain from hearing state law claims on any equitable ground under the doctrine of permissive abstention. See In re Gober, 100 F.3d 1195, 1206 (5th Cir. 1996); see also In re Houston Reg'l Sports Network, L.P., 514 B.R. 211, 215 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2014) (listing fourteen non-exclusive factors that courts consider in deciding whether to permissively abstain).

53. For all of the reasons set forth in this Motion, were the State Court Action to be removed to this Court, permissive abstention would be appropriate here. The State Court Action involves only issues of New York state law, has been pending for many years, and has a unique and complicated procedural history that the State Court is well familiar with. Further, the only jurisdictional basis for hearing the State Court Action in this Court is "related to" jurisdiction, the State Court Action involves multiple non-Debtor parties over whom this Court's jurisdiction is arguable, and, as set forth above, UBS is entitled to a jury trial in Phase II of the State Court Action.

54. Should the Debtor attempt to remove the State Court Action, either mandatory or permissive abstention would prevent this Court from hearing those claims. Accordingly, the Debtor cannot meet its burden of showing that cause does not exist to lift the automatic stay.

55. As set forth above, the resolution of UBS's remaining claims against the Debtor is vital to the outcome of this chapter 11 case, and the only appropriate forum for resolving those claims is the State Court. UBS requests that the Court lift the automatic stay so that Phase II of the State Court Action can be litigated expeditiously, preserving UBS's right to a jury trial, and providing the certainty necessary for the Debtor to bring this chapter 11 case to a resolution.

C. In Any Event, An Order From This Court Is Necessary To Preserve UBS's Right to A Jury Trial.

56. UBS further requests that the Court enter an Order that UBS's right to a jury trial shall not be deemed waived by UBS's filing of a proof of claim in this chapter 11 case. UBS submits that this relief is warranted now, in light of the Bar Date, regardless of whether the Court decides to lift the stay at this time.

57. Section 105(a) of the Bankruptcy Code authorizes the Court "to issue any order . . . necessary or appropriate to carry out the provisions" of the Bankruptcy Code. 11 U.S.C. § 105. For the reasons set forth herein and in light of the critical need for UBS to preserve its right to a jury trial on Phase II of the State Court Action, UBS submits that the Court should enter an Order that the filing of a proof of claim will not waive UBS's right to a jury trial.

58. Alternatively, UBS respectfully requests that the Court further extend the Bar Date with respect to UBS's claims, to allow the parties additional time to settle UBS's claims and preserve UBS's right to a jury trial. This Court has the authority to extend the Bar Date pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 3003(c)(3), which provides that the Court shall "fix and for cause shown may extend the time within proofs of claim may be filed." Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3003(c). Additionally, Bankruptcy Rule 9006(b) provides that the Court may extend the Bar Date for cause shown if the request is made before the expiration of the period originally prescribed by the Court, or extended by previous order of the Court. See Fed. R. Bankr. P. 9006(b)(1). Accordingly, UBS respectfully submits that if the Court deems it inappropriate to lift the stay at this time or enter an Order that UBS's filing of a proof of claim does not waive its right to a jury trial, the Court should extend the Bar Date with respect to UBS's claims.

59. Any order approving this Motion should be immediately effective and not stayed pursuant to Rule 4001(a)(3) of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure because, absent immediate entry of such order, UBS will be required to file a proof of claim in this chapter 11 proceeding which may lead to UBS being deemed to have waived its right to a jury trial in Phase II of the State Court Action. Therefore, UBS requests that the Proposed Order be entered and made immediately effective, and that the stay of Rule 4001(a)(3) be waived.

NOTICE

60. Notice of this Motion shall be provided to (a) the Debtor; (b) counsel for the Debtor; (c) counsel to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors; (d) the United States Trustee; (e) those parties requesting notice pursuant to Local Bankruptcy Rule 2002-1(j); and (f) all other parties registered to receive ECF notifications in this case. UBS respectfully submits that such notice is sufficient and that no further notice of this Motion is required.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, UBS respectfully requests entry of an order granting UBS immediate relief from the automatic stay and such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

DATED this 20th day of May, 2020.

ORDER

Before the Court is Defendants' Motion to Dismiss Plaintiff's Verified Amended Shareholder Derivative and Class Action Complaint. [ECF No. 43]. Plaintiff brings a derivative claim for breach of fiduciary duty and breach of contract and a direct class action claim for breach of fiduciary duty. For the following reasons, the Motion to Dismiss is GRANTED.

I. Factual Background

Plaintiff Susan Lanotte alleges that she has been a shareholder of Nominal Defendant Highland Global Allocation Fund (the "GAF Fund") since March 9, 2015. She asserts that the GAF Fund is a mutual fund managed by Defendant Highland Capital Management Fund Advisors, L.P. (the "Investment Advisor"). The Amended Complaint alleges that the GAF Fund and multiple other funds (the "Trust complex") are series, or separate entities with their own portfolios, of a larger Massachusetts business trust (the "Trust").[1] Plaintiff further claims that the Investment Advisor manages the GAF Fund and six other funds in the Trust complex, including Highland Energy MLP Fund (the "MLP Fund"), under an investment advisory agreement entered into with each fund.

The Investment Advisor is allegedly owned by Highland Capital Management Services, Inc. and Strand Advisors XVI, Inc. Plaintiff asserts that Strand Advisors, XVI, Inc. is the general partner, that it is wholly owned by James Dondero, and that Highland Capital Management Services, Inc. is owned by Dondero and his business partner, Mark Okada. Dondero serves as the Investment Advisor's senior portfolio manager, for both the GAF Fund and the MLP Fund.

The Amended Complaint alleges that Trustee Defendants Timothy Hui, Bryan Ward, Bob Froehlich, John Honis, and Ethan Powell are trustees of the GAF Fund, the MLP Fund, the Trust, multiple other funds in the Trust complex, and a similar set of funds held in a second trust complex, and that they have business and personal connections with the Investment Advisor, the Trust, and the Trust complex, as explained below. The Trustee Defendants, along with Dustin Norris, comprise the board of trustees of the GAF Fund (the "Board").

Trustee Defendant Hui has been a trustee of funds affiliated with the Investment Advisor since 2000. He and his wife are personal friends of Mark Okada and his wife. Hui is also Dean and Special Assistant to the President at Cairn University, where Mrs. Okada serves as a trustee.

[1] "Besides being considered a discrete economic unit, each series often is treated as a separate investment company for various purposes under the ICA, even though it may not have separate legal form and may be covered under the umbrella of a single trust entity." Hartsel v. Vanguard Grp., Inc., No. CIV.A. 5394-VCP, 2011 WL 2421003, at *18 (Del. Ch. June 15, 2011), aff'd, 38 A.3d 1254 (Del. 2012).

Plaintiff alleges that his role at Cairn University provides Hui only a minimal salary and that the $150,000 he receives annually in trustee fees forms a significant part of his overall income.

Trustee Defendant Ward has been a trustee of funds affiliated with the Investment Advisor since 2001.

Trustee Defendant Froehlich has been a trustee of funds affiliated with the Investment Advisor since 2013. He was formerly on the boards of two funds managed by American Realty Capital Partners, which Plaintiff alleges committed a large-scale accounting fraud unrelated to this case.

Trustee Defendant Honis has been a trustee of funds affiliated with the Investment Advisor since 2013. He was formerly a partner of Highland Capital Management, L.P. and is owed $880,000 from affiliates of the Investment Advisor under a severance and deferred compensation agreement to which the Investment Advisor is a party. He is also the sole proprietor of Rand Advisors, LLC, a trustee of a trust that owns substantially all of an affiliate of the Investment Advisor, and for which role Rand Advisors, LLC pays Honis $300,000–$350,000 annually. Honis is also alleged to be a close personal friend of Dondero, and the successor trustee of Dondero's personal family trust, and Honis' son has worked as a paid intern at the Investment Advisor.

Trustee Defendant Powell has been a trustee of funds affiliated with the Investment Advisor since 2013. Until 2015, he was Executive Vice President and Principal Executive Officer of the Trust, the Chief Product Strategist of the Investment Advisor, and a Senior Retail Fund Analyst of Highland Capital Management, L.P.

Plaintiff alleges that on January 7, 2015 and thereafter, the Investment Advisor, through Dondero, bought shares of the MLP Fund for the GAF Fund.[2] The Investment Advisor continued to automatically reinvest any dividends from those shares into the MLP Fund. As a result, the GAF Fund owned approximately 63% of the MLP Fund midway through the GAF Fund's 2018 fiscal year. During this time, the MLP Fund was allegedly suffering significant losses due to its role in the oil market. Plaintiff alleges that the Investment Advisor was using the much larger GAF Fund to "prop up" the value of the "failing MLP Fund." [Amended Complaint, ECF No. 37, ¶¶ 4, 62]. This allegedly allowed the MLP Fund to retain investors, stay in operation, avoid liquidation, and pay large fees to and reimburse the costs of the Investment Advisor.

Plaintiff sent a demand letter to the Board, requesting that the GAF Fund take legal action against the Investment Advisor and the Trustee Defendants over the MLP Fund investments. [Id. ¶ 82]. In the demand letter [Response Appx., ECF No. 51-2 at 10], Plaintiff argues that the Investment Advisor violated its contractual obligations to the GAF Fund and that the Trustee Defendants violated their fiduciary duties by allowing the investments.

The Board formed a Demand Review Committee (the "Committee") that hired outside counsel, conducted an investigation, and issued the Demand Review Committee Report (the "Report") [ECF No. 44-1, Ex. A] that recommended rejecting Plaintiff's demand. The five Trustee Defendants voted unanimously to adopt the Report's recommendation and reject Plaintiff's demand. Dustin Norris did not participate in the vote.

[2] Defendants also identify one earlier purchase in June 3, 2014. [Motion Appx., ECF No. 44-1 at Appx53].

Plaintiff then brought a purported derivative claim for breach of contract against the Investment Advisor, and a derivative and direct claim against the Trustee Defendants for breaching their fiduciary duties.

II. Applicable Law

The parties do not dispute that Massachusetts law governs the board demand requirements, because the GAF Fund is part of a Massachusetts business trust. Under Massachusetts law, a shareholder cannot commence a derivative action on behalf of a fund unless she first makes a written demand that the fund address her allegations. Mass. Gen. Laws Ann. ch. 156D, § 7.42. A derivative action must be dismissed if it was commenced after "a majority vote of independent directors present at a meeting of the board of directors if the independent directors constitute[d] a quorum" determined that the requested action was "not in the best interests" of the fund and those directors[3] made that decision in "good faith after conducting a reasonable inquiry." Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 156D, § 7.44(a)–(b).[4] Essentially, it is the business judgment rule that governs a decision by an independent board. Operative Plasterers' & Cement Masons' Local Union Officers' & Employees' Pension Fund v. Hooley, No. CIV.A. 12-10767-GAO, 2013 WL 5442366, at *6 (D. Mass. Sept. 30, 2013).

A defendant moving to dismiss a derivative action must "make a written filing with the court setting forth facts to show (1) whether a majority of the board of directors was independent

[3] While the statute specifically refers to "directors," the parties do not contest the applicability of § 7.44 to the GAF Fund's board of trustees, and other courts have similarly applied it to trusts. Halebian v. Berv, 869 F. Supp. 2d 420, 445 (S.D.N.Y. 2012), aff'd, 548 F. App'x 641 (2d Cir. 2013); Averbuch v. Arch, No. SUCV201102502, 2013 WL 5531396, at *4 (Mass. Super. Aug. 27, 2013).

[4] Section 7.44 was enacted in 2004, displacing Massachusetts' prior requirements for derivative actions. The majority of cases prior to the enactment of § 7.44 were demand futility actions, in which the plaintiff claimed that a demand on the board was unnecessary because it would have been futile. These actions were eliminated in 2004 by the universal demand requirement in § 7.42. Nevertheless, demand futility actions remain instructive.

at the time of the determination by the independent directors and (2) that the independent directors made the determination in good faith after conducting a reasonable inquiry upon which their conclusions are based." § 7.44(d). Notably, § 7.44(d) requires pleading that a majority of the board was independent, but it is different from the requirement in § 7.44(b)(2) that there was a quorum of independent directors and a majority of independent directors voted to dismiss. Accordingly, while a defendant needs to plead in a motion to dismiss that a majority of the board is independent, it only needs to establish that there was a quorum of independent directors, the majority of whom voted to dismiss the action.

If a defendant sufficiently pleads the requirements of § 7.44(d), the plaintiff must respond with allegations of particularized facts rebutting the motion's allegations. § 7.44(d). A court then assesses the evidence as to the independence of the board and the good faith and reasonableness of its determination. Blake v. Friendly Ice Cream Corp., No. 030003, 2006 WL 1579596, at *11 (Mass. Super. May 24, 2006). If a court finds that the majority of the board is not independent, the defendant bears the burden of proving that dismissal is otherwise warranted under § 7.44(a). Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 156D, § 7.44(e).[5] If a majority of the board is independent, the plaintiff bears the burden to prove that dismissal is not warranted under § 7.44(a). Id. While the statute focuses on the use of pleadings and allegations of particularized facts, the Court must ultimately make factual findings as to the independence of the Board and [5] The Court notes that the commentary to § 7.44 appears to imply that the independence requirement under § 7.44(e) is meant to correspond with the independence requirement of § 7.44(b). § 7.44 cmt. 2. The commentary states that if there is independence under § 7.44(e), then the plaintiff must establish that the board did not conduct a reasonable investigation in good faith. If independence is not established, then the corporation may still obtain dismissal if it proves that the investigation was nevertheless reasonable and done in good faith. Id.; see also Halebian v. Berv, 644 F.3d 122, 128 (2d Cir. 2011) (describing the burden shifting similarly). While such an approach is consistent with the general application of the business judgment rule, which § 7.44 was intended to embody, it is not supported by the plain language of the statute, which includes different requirements of independence under § 7.44(b) and § 7.44(e), and does not allow a corporation to obtain dismissal by proving the board's investigation was reasonable and done in good faith if the board was not independent.

its good faith and reasonableness in investigating Plaintiff's demand.[6] Halebian, 644 F.3d at 128.

III. Independence of the Trustee Defendants

While independence is not defined under § 7.44, it is understood to require trustees to be "disinterested." § 7.44 cmt. 1. It "more broadly encompasses both 'disinterest' which is a lack of a personal interest in the challenged transaction . . . and 'independent' which is freedom from influence in favor of the defendants due to personal or other relationships." Blake, 2006 WL 1579596, at *12. The parties agree that Dustin Norris was not independent and properly recused himself from voting on Plaintiff's demand. [Ward Decl., ECF No. 44-1, Ex. 1 ¶ 17]. Instead, they only dispute the independence of the five Trustee Defendants, who all voted to reject Plaintiff's demand. [Motion Appx. at Appx114].

A. Statutory Independence Under the Investment Company Act of 1940

The GAF Fund is distinct from a typical mutual fund, because it has a board of trustees, rather than a board of directors. Under Massachusetts law, a trustee who is not an interested person with respect to the trust, as defined in the Investment Company Act of 1940 ("ICA"), "shall be deemed to be independent and disinterested when making any determination or taking any action as a trustee." Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 182, § 2B. Plaintiff argues, however, that the ICA does not govern the independence of trustees in derivative actions. [Response, ECF No. 52 at [6] Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23.1, under which Defendants seek to dismiss Plaintiff's derivative claims, requires a Plaintiff to "state with particularity . . . any effort by the plaintiff to obtain the desired action from the directors or comparable authority." "Because Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23.1 does not identify applicable substantive standards, the particularity of a plaintiff's pleadings is governed by the standards of the state of incorporation." Freuler v. Parker, 803 F. Supp. 2d 630, 636 (S.D. Tex. 2011), aff'd, 517 F. App'x 227 (5th Cir. 2013). Section 7.44 not only imposes pleading requirements but also requirements of proof and burden shifting, which the Court will apply as substantive Massachusetts law. See Rotz v. Van Kampen Asset Mgmt., 5 N.Y.S.3d 330 at *4–6 (N.Y. Sup. 2014) (applying the proof and burden shifting requirements of § 7.44 as substantive Massachusetts law).

21]. Instead, Plaintiff reasons that if trustees are treated as directors under § 7.44, then their independence should also be governed only by those provisions of Massachusetts law relating to director independence, including the definitions of independence in § 7.44, and conflicts of interest in Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 156D, § 8.31.

To the extent that there is any conflict between the principles governing directors under § 7.44 and § 8.31 and those related to trustees under § 2B, the latter would govern as it is the more specific statute applicable to trustees. See Bos. Hous. Auth. v. Labor Relations Comm'n, 398 Mass. 715, 718 (Mass. 1986) ("[I]n the case of conflicting statutes, normally the more specific statute will prevail over the more general statute."); N. Shore Vocational Reg'l Sch. Dist. v. City of Salem, 393 Mass. 354, 359 (Mass. 1984) ("In the absence of irreconcilable conflict between an earlier special statute and a later general one the earlier statute will be construed as remaining in effect as an exception to the general statute.").

Regardless, the requirements of § 7.44, § 8.31, and § 2B do not necessarily conflict. Section 8.31 defines independence only with respect to voiding transactions approved by interested directors. It does not address the independence of directors assessing a shareholder demand, which is governed by the independence requirements in § 7.44. While § 7.44 does not expressly define independence, its commentary references the definition of disinterested in Harhen v. Brown, 431 Mass. 838 (Mass. 2000). § 7.44 cmt. 1. There, the Massachusetts Supreme Court defined an interested director as one who "has a business, financial, or familial relationship with a party to the transaction or conduct, and that relationship would reasonably be expected to affect the director's . . . judgment with respect to the transaction or conduct in a manner adverse to the corporation." Id. at 844 n. 5 (citing the ALI Principles of Corporate Governance). It does not provide that a director is per se interested if he or she has any relationship with a party to the transaction. Instead, the relationship must rise to a level that would reasonably affect the director's judgment. Nothing prohibits a court from analyzing the likely impact of that relationship on a trustee's judgment under § 7.44, by then looking at the specific principles of Massachusetts law governing the actions of trustees under § 2B, and thereby harmonize the requirements of both provisions. See generally Ryan v. Mary Ann Morse Healthcare Corp., 135 N.E.3d 711, 719 (Mass. 2019) ("[W]henever possible, 'a statute is to be interpreted in harmony with prior enactments to give rise to a consistent body of law.'"); Cty. Comm'rs of Middlesex Cty. v. Superior Court, 371 Mass. 456, 460 (Mass. 1976) ("Statutes which do not necessarily conflict should be construed to have consistent directives so that both may be given effect."). Accordingly, it is appropriate to use § 2B, and its incorporation of the interested trustee standard from the ICA, in assessing the independence of the Trustee Defendants. See Halebian, 869 F. Supp. 2d at 447 (applying § 2B to assess the independence of trustee board members under § 7.44); In re Eaton Vance Mut. Funds Fee Litig., 380 F. Supp. 2d 222, 239 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) (similarly applying § 2B in a demand futility action under Massachusetts law).

B. Interested Persons and Control Under the ICA

In relevant part, a trustee is interested with respect to a trust under the ICA if he or she is an "affiliated person" of the trust or the trust's investment advisor. 15 U.S.C. § 80a-2(a)(19). A trustee is an "affiliated person" if he or she is directly or indirectly controlled by the person or entity with which the trustee is affiliated. Id. § 80a-2(a)(3). "A natural person shall be presumed not to be a controlled person," but the presumption may be rebutted by evidence. Id. § 80a-2(a)(9). Overcoming this presumption is not to "be lightly assumed or easily carried to success." Krantz v. Prudential Investments Fund Mgmt. LLC, 77 F. Supp. 2d 559, 563 (D.N.J. 1999), aff'd, 305 F.3d 140 (3d Cir. 2002). Accordingly, here the burden is on Plaintiff to rebut the presumption that the Trustee Defendants, as natural persons, are not under the control of the GAF Fund, the Trust, or the Investment Advisor.

Control requires "actual domination" or "the latent power to exercise a controlling influence." Strougo v. BEA Assocs., 188 F. Supp. 2d 373, 381–82 (S.D.N.Y. 2002). It can "assume many different forms, and often can be proven only by circumstantial evidence." Id. at 381. A plaintiff "should specify the extent of personal benefit or gain which resulted" from the trustee's relationship with the trust or the investment advisor. Acampora v. Birkland, 220 F. Supp. 527, 543 (D. Colo. 1963); see also In re Blackrock Mut. Funds Fee Litig., No. 04 CIV 164 TFM, 2006 WL 4683167, at *12 (W.D. Pa. Mar. 29, 2006) (requiring that a plaintiff identify what benefits trustees received, with particularized factual allegations). However, the existence "of a relationship resulting in an economic benefit or interest" or a "[m]ere influence would fall short" of establishing control. Olesh v. Dreyfus Corp., No. CV-94-1664 (CPS), 1995 WL 500491, at *16 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 8, 1995). Instead, there must be a "causative" relationship, and a plaintiff cannot merely allege the receipt of benefits and "argue that this of itself proves control and affiliation." Acampora, 220 F. Supp. at 543.[7]

The Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") has identified several factors to consider in assessing control under the ICA:

> (1) selection or nomination of the director by the controlling party; (2) existence of family ties; (3) social relations; (4) former business associations between the director and the controlling person; (5) the amount of time spent by directors at meetings; (6) respective ages; (7) participation in recommending, evaluating, and terminating policies; (8) independent knowledge of corporate affairs; (9) interlocking directors and officers, together with share ownership; and (10) actual domination and operation.

[7] This ICA standard requires more evidence than that needed to rebut independence under Massachusetts law, which requires only a reasonable doubt as to the independence of the directors. Blake, 2006 WL 2714976, at *3.

Verkouteren v. Blackrock Fin. Mgmt., Inc., 37 F. Supp. 2d 256, 261 (S.D.N.Y. 1999). Notably, Plaintiff has not addressed the existence of actual domination and control, which is "the single most important factor" because it "speaks directly to the language of the ICA." Id.

The parties' dispute over the independence of the Trustee Defendants relates to the following issues: the risk that the Trustee Defendants would be authorizing suit against themselves; appointment of the Trustee Defendants by other Trustee Defendants; the Trustee Defendants' participation on the boards of multiple funds in the Trust complex; the Trustee Defendants' compensation; and the personal and business relationships among the Trustee Defendants, the Investment Advisor, the GAF Fund, and the Trust. Of these allegations, the potential that the Trustee Defendants would be authorizing suit against themselves and the fact that they were appointed to the Board by other Trustee Defendants do not implicate issues of control, as they do not relate to the influence of the GAF Fund, the Trust, or the Investment Advisor over the Trustee Defendants. Plaintiff's remaining allegations—the participation on multiple related boards; compensation; and the Trustee Defendants' personal and business relationships—implicate # 3 (social relationships), # 4 (former business relationships), and # 9 (interlocking directors and officers) of the factors claimed by the SEC.

i. Social Relationships

Plaintiff alleges that the social relationships between the Trustee Defendants and the Investment Advisor compromised their independence when they evaluated Plaintiff's demand. The Amended Complaint highlights that Trustee Defendant Hui and his wife are personal friends with Dondero's business partner, Mark Okada, and his wife, and that Mrs. Okada is also a trustee of Cairn University, where Hui is employed, although the parties dispute to what extent Mrs. Okada has supervisory authority over Hui. [Amended Complaint ¶ 22; Reply, ECF No. 56 at 6].

Similarly, Plaintiff alleges that Trustee Defendant Honis is close personal friends with Dondero, and is the successor trustee of Dondero's personal family trust. [Amended Complaint ¶ 25].

The existence of these social connections does not place Hui or Honis under the Investment Advisor's control. See Verkouteren, 37 F. Supp. 2d at 260–61 (finding that directors were not controlled under the ICA by officers of an investment advisor despite the "ample opportunities" to develop personal and business relationships by serving on boards together); Boylan v. Bos. Sand & Gravel Co., No. CIV.A. 02-2296BLS2, 2007 WL 836753, at *10 (Mass. Super. Mar. 16, 2007) (stating that under Massachusetts law a director is not "subject to a controlling influence, and therefore interested, solely because of a long-time friendship or other social relationship"). Instead, the relationship must be such that a director "would be more willing to risk his or her reputation than risk the relationship." Beam ex rel. Martha Stewart Living Omnimedia, Inc. v. Stewart, 845 A.2d 1040, 1052 (Del. 2004).[8]

Neither Mark nor Pamela Okada is directly affiliated with the GAF Fund, the Trust, or the Investment Advisor. Instead, Mark Okada and Dondero are the owners of Highland Capital Management Services, Inc., which is a limited partner in the Investment Advisor. [Amended Complaint ¶ 20]. This creates a tenuous connection between Hui and the Investment Advisor. Furthermore, Plaintiff does not allege significant benefits that Hui or Honis received from their social relationships nor how those benefits created a measure of influence and control by others over them. See Blake, 2006 WL 1579596, at *14 (finding that a director's lack of personal benefit from his business relationship with defendants supported his independence under § 7.44).

[8] "Massachusetts courts have looked to the decisions of courts in other states (frequently Delaware since many corporations are chartered there) that address similar issues . . . The decisions of the various jurisdictions are generally in harmony." Operative Plasterers', 2013 WL 5442366, at *4.

Plaintiff does claim that Hui received his trusteeship through his relationship with Mr. Okada [Amended Complaint ¶ 22], which also implicates factor 1—selection to a board by the controlling party. Even if true, being recruited for a board by an investment advisor does not, by itself, establish control. See Alexander v. Allianz Dresdner Asset Mgmt. of Amer. Holding, Inc., 509 F. Supp. 2d 190, 197 (D. Conn. 2007) ("The fact that a defendant appointed a board member is insufficient to establish that the board member is interested [under Massachusetts law], even if the position provides the board member with compensation."); see also § 7.44(c)(1) ("[N]omination or election of the director by . . . a defendant in the derivative proceeding or against whom action is demanded" is insufficient by itself to make the director not independent.).

Plaintiff also alleges that Honis' son worked as a paid intern at the Investment Advisor. [Amended Complaint ¶ 25]. That relationship is not significant enough to assume, without more, that Honis would risk his professional reputation for that minimal benefit. Accordingly, Plaintiff has not alleged sufficient social connections between the Investment Advisor and Trustee Defendants Hui or Honis to establish control of them.

ii. Business Relationships

Plaintiff alleges that Trustee Defendants Honis and Powell are also controlled through their business connections with the GAF Fund, the Trust, and the Investment Advisor. Powell was an officer of the Trust, the Investment Advisor, and Highland Capital Management, L.P. [Id. ¶ 26]. Honis was also a partner at Highland Capital Management, L.P. and is owed $880,000 in severance and deferred compensation from an affiliate of the Investment Advisor. [Id. ¶ 25]. While Honis was never employed by the Investment Advisor, Plaintiff alleges that the Investment Advisor is a party to Honis' severance agreement, although she does not identify the Investment Advisor's role in that agreement. [Id.]. He is also the sole proprietor of Rand Advisors, LLC, which is a trustee of a trust that owns substantially all of an affiliate of the Investment Advisor. Id. Through Rand Advisors, LLC, Honis is paid approximately $300,000 to $350,000 annually. Id.

The mere existence of business relationships is insufficient to establish control under the ICA. See Strougo, 188 F. Supp. 2d at 381–82 (finding no control despite a "number [of] former business relationships among the leaders of [the investment advisor] and the Fund"); Olesh, 1995 WL 500491, at *11, 16 (finding that directors' "ample opportunity to develop personal business relationships" with officers of the investment advisor did not establish control over those directors). While Plaintiff highlights that the Committee admitted that both Honis and Powell were previously interested persons, based on their prior associations with the Trust and the Investment Advisor [Amended Complaint ¶ 94], this is not dispositive because the assessment of independence is to be made as of the date of the decision on Plaintiff's demand. See § 7.44(d) (requiring independence "at the time of the determination by the independent directors") (emphasis added).

Under common law, "a long-time business-association" involving "direct pecuniary dealing" may create a reasonable doubt about independence. Boylan, 2007 WL 836753, at *10. However, relationships that have been held to create such doubt often "border on or even exceed familial loyalty and closeness." Beam, 845 A.2d at 1050; see also Sandys v. Pincus, 152 A.3d 124, 130 (Del. 2016) (holding that a director's joint ownership of a private airplane with a defendant created reasonable doubt about the director's independence because it required a level of cooperation that was suggestive of a close personal friendship like that of familial ties). They must also be of a "bias-producing nature." Brining v. Donavan, No. CV 16-3422-BLS1, 2017 WL 4542947, at *5 (Mass. Super. Sept. 14, 2017). Thus, "allegations that board members moved in the same social circles, attended the same weddings, developed business relationships before joining the board, and described each other as friends are insufficient" if they do not point to an actual bias affecting the board members' decision making. In re ZAGG Inc. S'holder Derivative Action, 826 F.3d 1222, 1237 (10th Cir. 2016) (internal quotations omitted) (analyzing Delaware law); see also Crescent/Mach I Partners, L.P. v. Turner, 846 A.2d 963, 980–81 (Del. Ch. 2000) (finding that a "long-standing 15-year professional and personal relationship" between a director and the defendant did not create a reasonable doubt that the director could exercise independent business judgment).

Plaintiff does not specify how the Trustee Defendants' relationships resulted in a degree of control or influence over them. While Powell was formerly an officer of the Trust and the Investment Advisor, including during the period in which the GAF Fund made the investments at issue, "allegations that the directors themselves participated in the wrongdoing" do not overcome the presumption under the ICA against a finding of control. Boyce v. AIM Mgmt. Grp., Inc., No. CIV.A. H-04-2587, 2006 WL 4671324, at *5 (S.D. Tex. Sept. 29, 2006). Plaintiff does not allege any current relationship beyond Powell's service on multiple boards in the Trust complex, which, as explained below, is insufficient to establish control.

Plaintiff alleges that Honis currently receives significant fees and income from affiliates of the Investment Advisor. However, these payments are not directly from the Investment Advisor and, thus, do not translate into a relationship of control by the Investment Advisor. See Kaplan v. Wyatt, 499 A.2d 1184, 1189 (Del. 1985) (concluding that a director's association with a business that had dealings with a defendant did not demonstrate a lack of independence under Delaware law when there were no direct dealings with the defendant and no indication that the association influenced the director's behavior).

The closest connection between Honis and the Investment Advisor is the $880,000 in severance and deferred compensation owed to him, which Plaintiff argued during oral argument functioned like a loan. [Motion Hearing Transcript, ECF No. 62 at 51:22–52:09]. A trustee who has loaned money to the trust is per se interested under the ICA. 15 U.S.C. § 80a-2(19)(A). However, the money owed to Honis is due from affiliates of the Investment Advisor, and not the Investment Advisor itself or the Trust. This transaction is not properly characterized as a loan to the Investment Advisor or the Trust for which Honis is being repaid.

As the court found in Acampora, in this case, "[i]t does not appear that any [Trustee Defendant] made any decision or any course of decisions because of the business relationship." Acampora, 220 F. Supp. at 543. Plaintiff has not alleged sufficient business connections between Honis or Powell and the GAF Fund, the Trust, or the Investment Advisor that exceed the norms of general business dealings and has not identified with particularity how any outside business relationships may have influenced the Trustee Defendants' behavior. See Pinchuck v. State St. Corp., No. 09-2930BLS2, 2011 WL 477315, at *13 (Mass. Super. Jan. 19, 2011) (rejecting the plaintiff's claim of nonindependence under Massachusetts law resulting from a director's "close relationship" with the defendant when there were no particularized facts demonstrating how the directors were influenced by that relationship).

iii. Interconnected Boards and Officers

Clearly, serving on a board of trustees does not make a trustee interested. 15 U.S.C. § 80a-2(a)(19)(A). However, Plaintiff argues that because all the Trustee Defendants served on numerous boards within the Trust complex, their loyalty was to the Investment Advisor and the Trust. [Amended Complaint ¶ 95]. The Court concludes that serving on multiple boards does not make trustees "per se interested persons under the ICA, even though pursuing one fund's interests within the complex might adversely affect the complex's other funds." Hartsel v.

Vanguard Grp., Inc., No. CIV.A. 5394-VCP, 2011 WL 2421003, at *22 (Del. Ch. June 15, 2011), aff'd, 38 A.3d 1254 (Del. 2012); see also Migdal v. Rowe Price-Fleming Int'l, Inc., 248 F.3d 321, 330 (4th Cir. 2001) ("Several courts have likewise held that the fact that a director serves on multiple boards within a fund complex is insufficient to demonstrate control [under the ICA]."). While the Trustee Defendants owed fiduciary duties to other funds in the Trust complex, including the MLP Fund, Plaintiff does not allege how pursuing claims on behalf of the GAF Fund against the Investment Advisor and the Trustee Defendants would harm the MLP Fund or any other funds from whom no recovery was sought. See Seidl v. Am. Century Companies, Inc., 713 F. Supp. 2d 249, 261 (S.D.N.Y. 2010), aff'd, 427 F. App'x 35 (2d Cir. 2011) (finding directors who served on the boards of multiple funds were not conflicted under Maryland Law because the plaintiff did not plead why the recovery sought on behalf of the nominal defendant would harm the other funds).

Plaintiff further argues that Trustee Defendant Hui is not independent because the fees he received for acting as a trustee on those multiple boards form "a substantial portion of his overall income." [Amended Complaint ¶ 22]. However, receiving significant fees does not make a trustee interested under the ICA. See Forsythe v. Sun Life Fin., Inc., 417 F. Supp. 2d 100, 111 (D. Mass. 2006) ("In addition, board membership by itself does not warrant a conclusion that the trustee is 'interested,' [under the ICA] even though the trustee is well compensated."); Migdal, 2000 WL 350400, at *3 (stating that the "number of interlocking boards on which she or he serves within a family of funds" does not make a director interested under the ICA "notwithstanding the amount or . . . the 'materiality' of the aggregate income such a director receives for such service, at least so long as the aggregate payment is not so large as to shock the conscience of a reasonable person"). The fees involved here do not shock the conscience.

iv. Conclusion

Plaintiff's allegations against the Trustee Defendants are collectively insufficient to rebut the presumption that they, as natural persons, were not controlled under the ICA when they voted to reject Plaintiff's demand. See Blake, 2006 WL 1579596, at *13 (considering independence under the "totality of the circumstances"). Plaintiff's only relevant allegation against Ward and Froehlich are that they served on multiple boards in the Trust complex, but that alone is insufficient to establish control.

In addition to Hui's service on multiple boards, Plaintiff's claims of an indirect affiliation with the Investment Advisor, through Hui's social relationship with Okada and his wife, and the receipt of normal compensation for Hui's board services, are not probative of the issue of control. This does not create a bias-producing relationship that would make Hui more willing to risk his reputation as a trustee rather than his relationship with the GAF Fund or the Investment Advisor.

Powell has a similarly attenuated relationship with the GAF Fund and the Investment Advisor, which is based only on his past employment with the Trust, Investment Advisor, and Highland Capital Management, L.P., and his current service on multiple boards in the Trust complex. While long-running, this normal business relationship is not exceptional; it does not rival the essentially familial relationships that courts require to find that a trustee was interested. See, e.g., Beam, 845 A.2d at 1050.

Finally, Plaintiff alleges several interactions between Honis and both the GAF Fund and the Investment Advisor, including his social relationship with Dondero, Honis' son's internship with the Investment Advisor, Honis' former employment with affiliates of the Investment Advisor, Honis' current business with affiliates of the Investment Advisor, and his service on multiple boards within the Trust complex. However, these interactions are not especially unique, such that they establish a relationship between Honis and the Investment Advisor or the GAF Fund that involves the effectively familial level of loyalty necessary for a trustee to be interested. Furthermore, Honis has no direct pecuniary dealings with either the GAF Fund or the Investment Advisor, except his current board memberships. Although Plaintiff alleges an overarching relationship, it is not inherently of a bias-producing nature that would support finding that Honis is under the control of the GAF Fund or the Investment Advisor.

Accordingly, the Court concludes that the Trustee Defendants were all disinterested under the ICA, and in turn independent and disinterested under Massachusetts law when they rejected Plaintiff's demand.[9] As a result, the Court need not address whether the Trustee Defendants would also be independent under the general principles of independence under Massachusetts law.

IV. Majority of Independent Trustees Constituting a Quorum

Given that there were five independent trustees on the six-member Board who voted to reject Plaintiff's demand, Plaintiff bears the burden of establishing that the requirements of § 7.44(b)(1) have not been met. § 7.44(e). To be effective, § 7.44(b)(1) requires that a board decided to reject the demand with "a majority vote of independent directors present at a meeting of the board of directors if the independent directors constitute[d] a quorum." A quorum for the GAF Fund is two trustees, and if two trustees who voted in favor of rejecting the demand were independent, there would be a majority of independent trustees constituting a quorum.[10]

[9] Even if Defendant Honis, who has the most collective connections with the GAF Fund, the Trust, the Trust complex, and the Investment Advisor, was found to be not independent at that time, it would not affect the resolution of Defendants' Motion, because the vote of four independent trustees is sufficient to satisfy the voting requirements detailed below. While Plaintiff urged that even one non-independent director would taint the entire voting process, as explained below, such a position, without further proof of inappropriate influence, would be inconsistent with the text and purpose of § 7.44.

[10] Plaintiff also argues that the Committee was improperly constituted under § 7.44(b)(2). However, that provision governs a committee formed to vote on the demand. § 7.44(b)(2). Here, the Committee merely investigated the Plaintiff argued at oral argument that the Court would also need to find that no non-independent trustees participated in the decision to reject the demand. [Motion Hearing Transcript at 48:13–48:19]. However, "[t]he fact that one [trustee] is interested . . . does not taint the entire board." Canal Capital Corp. By Klein v. French, No. CIV. A. 11,764, 1992 WL 159008, at *5 (Del. Ch. July 2, 1992). Nothing in § 7.44(b)(1) states that the majority vote of independent directors must be held to the exclusion of any non-independent directors, and Plaintiff has not identified how the participation of any allegedly non-independent Trustee Defendants adversely affected the vote of the independent Trustee Defendants. Furthermore, requiring a court to void any vote by directors if it later finds that one director who participated was not independent would be contrary to the goal of Massachusetts' demand requirement, which is to allow "corporations to assume control over shareholder derivative suits [because c]orporate management may be in a better position to pursue alternative remedies, resolving grievances without burdensome and expensive litigation." § 7.42 cmt. 4. The Court has determined that all five of the trustees that voted in favor of rejecting the demand were independent, satisfying the independence requirement of § 7.44(b)(1). However, clearly a quorum of independent trustees voted to reject the demand, because only two of the five who voted are even alleged to be non-independent in any way beyond their participation on multiple boards.

V. Good Faith and Reasonable Investigation

Given that a majority of the Board or, alternatively, of a quorum of the Board, consisted of trustees who were independent when they voted to reject Plaintiff's demand, Plaintiff bears demand and then presented its findings to the Board, which then voted on the demand. Accordingly, § 7.44(b)(2) is inapplicable.

the burden of establishing that that decision was not made in good faith after a reasonable inquiry. § 7.44(e). When made by a properly independent board, "Massachusetts presumes that a decision to reject a shareholder demand was the exercise of valid business judgment, 'absent a showing of bad faith or lack of investigation into the demand.'" Halebian, 548 F. App'x at 646. Under the business judgment rule, decisions of a board are presumed to be valid and cannot be second guessed by a court merely because the court believes that the board was mistaken or made an error in judgment. Evangelist v. Fid. Mgmt. & Research Co., 554 F. Supp. 87, 91 (D. Mass. 1982). Instead, a plaintiff must demonstrate a flaw in the process by which the board made its decision that means its decision was not made in good faith or after a reasonable inquiry. Pinchuck, 2011 WL 477315, at *15. Massachusetts law "does not prescribe the scope or form of the inquiry that must be taken." Rotz, 5 N.Y.S.3d at *9.

Defendants highlight the multiple steps the Board took to investigate the demand. It formed the Committee, which held sixteen meetings, hired independent counsel, who billed for one thousand hours of attorney time, reviewed thousands of pages documents, and interviewed ten witnesses. [Motion Appx. at Appx32–34]. The Committee asked Plaintiff for any relevant documents she had and met with her about whether there were additional issues or facts she wished to raise. [Id. at Appx35, 37]. The resulting Report provided an assessment of Plaintiff's demand and explained why it would not be in the GAF Fund's best interests to pursue Plaintiff's requested action. [Id. at Appx92–93]. Courts have found that similar efforts adequately demonstrate a reasonable and good faith investigation. See Operative Plasterers', 2013 WL 5442366, at *6 (approving a board's investigation when it created an investigation committee that met twenty-two times, hired independent counsel that billed one thousand hours to the investigation, conducted interviews, reviewed thousands of pages of documents, analyzed the investment portfolio and public disclosures, and considered legal theories that could be pursued, as well as the chances of recovery on them); Averbuch, 2013 WL 5531396, at *4 (finding an investigation committee that "interviewed numerous witnesses, reviewed thousands of pages of documents, obtained expert reports, and met several times to discuss its investigation and findings" was "fairly comprehensive"); Rotz, 5 N.Y.S.3d 330 at *11–12 (holding that a review committee that used independent counsel to spend thousands of hours interviewing witnesses and reviewing documents and worked with experts to create an extensive report demonstrated a good faith, reasonable inquiry under Massachusetts law that was not rebutted by the plaintiff).

It is true that an investigation report in response to a demand can be "so lacking in substance, scope and support" that it raises "serious questions about the good faith and reasonableness" of the investigation. Blake, 2006 WL 1579596, at *22. Plaintiff claims that four deficiencies in the Report undermine the good faith and reasonableness of the Board's and Committee's actions: 1) the improper assessment of the Trustee Defendants' independence; 2) the inadequate scope of the evidence considered by the investigation; 3) the failure to assess multiple potential factual and legal theories and arguments; and 4) the limited factual support cited by the Report.

A. Independence of the Committee and the Board

Plaintiff argues that the Report does not adequately assess the independence of the Trustee Defendants and instead merely relies on their independence questionnaires, public documents, and interviews. [Amended Complaint ¶¶ 106–07]. In particular, Plaintiff highlights that the Committee did not consider issues of the trustees' compensation and the impact it might have on their independence. [Id. ¶ 92]. In fact, the Report contains numerous pages explaining potential conflicts created by the Trustee Defendants' various relationships with the GAF Fund, the Trust, and the Investment Advisor, including items which Plaintiff alleges were not included in the Trustee Defendants' independence questionnaires. [Motion Appx. at Appx43–50]. Independence questionnaires can be valuable in assessing independence, although that clearly is not the stopping point if other legitimate issues going to independence are raised. See Halebian, 548 F. App'x at 647. While Plaintiff is correct that the Report does not specifically address the Trustee Defendants' compensation, it was disclosed in public filings attached to the Report [Highland Energy MLP Fund 2016 Annual Report, ECF No. 61-70 at 23], and the Report cannot be reasonably faulted for not explicitly addressing an issue with which the Trustee Defendants are intimately familiar.

In light of these efforts and the presumption against control to which the Trustee Defendants are entitled under the ICA, the Report's investigation and analysis of independence were not inadequate. While Plaintiff disagrees with the Report's, and the Court's, findings of independence, any alleged biases of the Trustee Defendants did not create "a superficial investigation designed to exonerate the Investment Advisor and [the Trustee Defendants]" [Response at 20], because, as discussed below, the specific deficiencies identified by Plaintiff are insufficient to carry her burden of establishing the lack of a good faith and reasonable investigation.

B. Failure to Address Potential Factual and Legal Arguments

Plaintiff also claims that there were a number of substantive inadequacies in the Report that warrant a finding that the investigation was not reasonable or done in good faith. A board should discuss "on what factors it relied and why those factors support its decision." Houle v. Low, 407 Mass. 810, 825 (Mass. 1990). A report may be inadequate if it does not "meaningfully address[]" a plaintiff's claims or is "devoid of analysis" on certain issues. Blake, 2006 WL 1579596, at *23–24. A "selective investigation" may raise questions as to the reasonableness of an investigation and whether it was conducted in good faith. Sutherland v. Sutherland, 958 A.2d 235, 244 (Del. Ch. 2008).

Plaintiff alleges that the Committee did not address several factual and legal arguments. Plaintiff first claims that the Report does not address conflicts created by the Investment Advisor's decision to invest in the MLP Fund. [Amended Complaint ¶¶ 110–11]. She alleges that the Report discusses only a half-page memorandum dated in January 2015, which apparently satisfied the Committee that conflicts were addressed by the Investment Advisor and the Board at the time of the investment. In fact, the Report analyzes the propriety of the investments based not only on the January 2015 memorandum but also based on witness interviews and the investigation into the MLP Fund. [Motion Appx. at Appx64–68, 74–82].

Plaintiff also alleges that the Report does not adequately address whether the Trustee Defendants satisfied their duty to monitor the GAF Fund's investments and the activities of the Investment Advisor, including as to the automatic reinvestments of dividends, and to consider the potential termination of the Investment Advisor. [Amended Complaint ¶¶ 97, 112]. In fact, the Report contains several pages analyzing the monitoring of the MLP investments, their performance, and the role of the Investment Advisor. [Motion Appx. at Appx82–86, 88]. It concludes from this analysis that the Trustee Defendants' oversight was "robust." [Id. at Appx83]. While it does not specifically discuss the possibility of terminating the Investment Advisor, the Report's conclusion as to the adequacy of the Board's oversight can be reasonably interpreted to include review of the Investment Advisor's role and effectiveness.

Plaintiff also faults the Report for its premature determination that certain claims may be barred by the statute of limitations, because it does not consider possible tolling of the limitations periods. [Amended Complaint ¶ 114]. The Report does not address potential tolling, and instead, concludes that claims based on transactions that occurred more than three years before the date of the demand are "likely" barred. [Motion Appx. at Appx87]. While Plaintiff may disagree with the Committee's conclusions, the Board is entitled to rely on factors such as the applicable statute of limitations when assessing what is in the best interests of the GAF Fund. See Demoulas v. Demoulas Super Markets, Inc., 424 Mass. 501, 534 (Mass. 1997) ("[T]he existence of a legal or other impediment is a matter for a corporation's board to consider when deciding whether to accept or decline an opportunity that has been disclosed to it.").

Furthermore, the Report spends several pages detailing the earlier transactions that fell outside of the three-year statute of limitations period [Motion Appx. at Appx29–30, 62–68], and Plaintiff admits that. [Amended Complaint ¶ 114]. The Report's analysis rarely emphasizes any single transaction, and instead, considers Defendants' larger course of conduct, including instances falling outside of the limitations period. [Motion Appx. at Appx90]. To the extent that the Report does not explicitly address earlier transactions falling outside of the claimed limitations period, it did not unduly compromise the good faith and reasonableness of the investigation into her demand.

C. Scope of the Evidence Considered

Plaintiff argues that the limited scope of the evidence the Committee considered reflects a lack of good faith and reasonableness. She urges that the Report does not reveal that emails, electronically stored information, or internal documents other than the January 2015 memorandum and documents provided by Plaintiff were reviewed as part of the investigation. [Amended Complaint ¶¶ 98–101]. She also questions the Committee's choice of witnesses, given that Dondero was the only member of the GAF Fund's management that was interviewed. [Id. ¶ 105].

However, "the types of documents reviewed or the persons interviewed in connection with an investigation" are choices "on which reasonable minds may differ." Belendiuk v. Carrion, No. CV 9026-ML, 2014 WL 3589500, at *6 (Del. Ch. July 22, 2014). The "failure to interview certain individuals or review [certain] documents" does not negate the reasonableness or good faith of an investigation if "the pressures and motivations that this evidence was meant to highlight" were nevertheless considered. Averbuch, 2013 WL 5531396, at *5.

The Committee concluded that the documents it obtained "best documented the Adviser's investment thesis for MLP Fund and why the Adviser was confident in the MLP sector generally and MLP Fund specifically." [Motion Appx. at Appx65]. Plaintiff does not allege with particularity what impact the Committee's choice to exclude certain documents or witnesses had on the investigation nor does she further identify what issues the Committee did not consider as a result.

D. Lack of Supporting Evidence

Plaintiff argues that the Report's lack of citation to supporting evidence further indicates an improper investigation. Although ten interviews are listed in the Report, the Report does not reveal detailed information about the nature of these interviews. [Amended Complaint ¶ 104]. The Report does not set out the questions asked, who conducted the interviews, what documents, if any, were shown to the witnesses, the length of the interviews, or any other substantive information. Instead, Plaintiff alleges that "the Committee consciously determined that its members would not . . . take notes of the interviews or otherwise create a factual record of unsworn, untranscribed interviews." [Id.] Defendant mentions that summaries of these interviews exist, but that they could not be provided to Plaintiff because they are privileged. [Motion Brief, ECF No. 44 at 24]. Without supporting documentation indicating how extensively the witnesses were questioned, Plaintiff claims the Court cannot "ascertain the reasonableness of" an investigation, and that such a deficient record "do[es] not assure the court of the good faith or integrity" of the process. Sutherland, 958 A.2d at 243.

Plaintiff also criticizes the lack of clarity as to the documents on which the Committee relied. While the Report extensively explains the facts that the Committee came to learn and understand, there is limited documentation cited for these facts. [E.g. Motion Appx. at Appx62–64, 66–67, 74–75, 83–84]. Although the Report cites multiple public documents and indicates that the Committee "reviewed numerous important documents that [it] requested or that counsel identified," [Id. at Appx32, 57], it does not explain what those other documents were, the steps the Committee took to obtain them, or the identification of who provided them. The only document request specifically mentioned in the Report—for those supporting the Investment Advisor's 2014 decision to invest in the MLP Fund—did not cause any documents to be produced. [Id. at Appx65]. Furthermore, the Report is not attested to and some significant parts lack citation.

Defendants maintain that the contents of documents and what was learned from them were thoroughly discussed in the Report. However in Blake, the Massachusetts Superior Court found that a report that "contain[ed] numerous conclusory assertions . . . yet often fail[ed] to cite to any specific source for verification of its conclusions" and did not include "an attestation to the accuracy of [its] contents" created serious questions about the good faith and reasonableness of the inquiry. 2006 WL 1579596, at *22.

In this Court's view, the lack of evidentiary support identified by Plaintiff is insufficient to carry Plaintiff's burden of establishing "serious questions" about the good faith and reasonableness of the Board's investigation. While the Report does not include an attestation as to its accuracy, it is attached to the Ward Declaration, which declares the accuracy of the Report under penalty of perjury. [Ward Decl. ¶ 19]. Notwithstanding the flaws identified by Plaintiff, her ultimate complaint is that "the recommendation not to move forward with the prosecution is not supported by the facts disclosed in the Report itself." [Amended Complaint ¶ 88]. However, the correctness of the Report's analysis and whether the conclusions are justified are squarely protected by the Committee's and the Board's right to rely on the business judgment rule.

E. Conclusion

As analyzed above, the Report demonstrates that several of Plaintiff's claimed deficiencies regarding the Committee's investigation are without merit. The Report establishes that, contrary to Plaintiff's allegations, the Committee's deliberations considered the independence of the Trustee Defendants, potential conflicts created by the GAF Fund's investments into the MLP Fund, potential termination of the Investment Advisor, and claims that may be time-barred. Plaintiff's remaining concerns as to the evidence and witnesses that the Committee reviewed and cited in the Report reflect choices upon which reasonable minds may disagree. While Plaintiff may not agree with the specific evidence and witnesses the Committee chose to interview and review, and with the Committee's failure to include citations in several portions of the Report, these choices, as a whole, do not demonstrate a serious or fundamental flaw that causes the Court to doubt the good faith and reasonableness of the Committee's and Board's investigation.

The Court concludes that Defendants have established that the independent Trustee Defendants voted to reject Plaintiff's demand after a reasonable and good faith investigation, and Defendants' Motion to Dismiss Plaintiff's derivative claims is therefore GRANTED.

VI. Plaintiff's Direct Class Action Claim

Plaintiff also brings a direct class action claim against the Trustee Defendants for breach of fiduciary duties. [Amended Complaint ¶¶ 141–47]. Defendants argue that these claims must be dismissed because a breach of fiduciary duty claim can only be brought derivatively. [Motion Brief at 30]. The "crux of the inquiry" of whether an action is direct or derivative under Massachusetts law is whether the harm that shareholders complain of "resulted from a breach of duty owed directly to them, or whether the harm claimed was derivative of a breach of duty owed to the corporation." In re PHC, Inc. S'holder Litig., 894 F.3d 419, 427–28 (1st Cir.) (citing Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers Local No. 129 Benefit Fund v. Tucci, 476 Mass. 553, 558 (Mass. 2017)). Furthermore, a direct claim requires an injury that "is distinct from the injury suffered generally by the shareholders as owners of corporate stock." Tucci, 476 Mass. at 558.

Under Massachusetts law, a "director's fiduciary duties are generally owed only to the corporation" and "any suit to enforce those duties ordinarily must be brought as a derivative action." In re PHC, Inc. S'holder Litig., 894 F.3d at 428. As Plaintiff argues, however, trustees owe fiduciary duties to both the trust and its beneficiaries, including its shareholders. Fogelin v. Nordblom, 402 Mass. 218, 222 (Mass. 1988). Nevertheless, even when a director or trustee owes a fiduciary duty to both an organization and its shareholders, "plainly not all fiduciary duty claims are individual claims." Citigroup Inc. v. AHW Inv. P'ship, 140 A.3d 1125, 1138 n. 66 (Del. 2016) (analyzing Delaware law). Instead, "the focus should be on the nature of the injury," so as to distinguish between breaches of fiduciary duty to the shareholders, which are to be brought individually, and those owed to the corporation, which are to be brought derivatively. Id.

Here, Plaintiff's claimed harm is a decrease in the value of the GAF Fund, which is felt by all shareholders equally, based on their status as shareholders. Plaintiff argues that the distinction between direct and indirect injuries is less meaningful in the context of mutual funds like the GAF Fund. [Response at 31]. In a typical corporation, a harm to the corporation's assets or operations affects its overall value, which then indirectly harms all shareholders by decreasing the value of their individual shares. In contrast here, however, Plaintiff argues that mutual funds are unique, because a mutual fund's operations are to make other investments, in which shareholders are entitled to a pro rata share. Plaintiff reasons that owning a share of a mutual fund, which makes other underlying investments, functionally equates to the shareholder directly owning a pro rata share of the mutual fund's underlying investments, so that harms to those underlying investments should be held to flow directly to the investors.

Courts that have addressed this issue are divided. Compare Northstar Fin. Advisors Inc. v. Schwab Investments, 779 F.3d 1036, 1058 (9th Cir. 2015), as amended on denial of reh'g and reh'g en banc (Apr. 28, 2015) (finding that under Massachusetts law "the distinction between direct and derivative actions has little meaning in the context of mutual funds") with Stegall v. Ladner, 394 F. Supp. 2d 358, 366 (D. Mass. 2005) (rejecting the argument that mutual funds were unique under Massachusetts law because there was nothing "materially different" in how harms to a corporation and harms to a mutual fund flow to investors); Forsythe, 417 F. Supp. 2d at 112 (holding similarly); Hogan v. Baker, No. CIV.A. 305CV0073P, 2005 WL 1949476, at *4 (N.D. Tex. Aug. 12, 2005) (holding similarly to Forsythe under Delaware law). The Court agrees with those courts characterizing the decrease in value of a mutual fund as a derivative injury. Ownership of a share of a mutual fund does not make the shareholder the owner of any of the mutual fund's underlying investments. While any diminution in value of those underlying investments is closely tied to the value in the shareholder's shares of the mutual fund, that harm follows a decrease in the value of the mutual fund, making the shareholder's injury derivative of that decrease in value.

Plaintiff further argues that even if her claim is properly characterized as derivative, a derivative recovery would not properly remedy the harm at issue. [Response at 32]. Under Massachusetts law, a derivative action must seek a "recovery [that] provides a just measure of relief to the complaining stockholder." Crowley v. Commc'ns For Hosps., Inc., 30 Mass. App. Ct. 751, 765 (Mass. App. Ct. 1991). Application of this exception requires unique circumstances, such as when a minority shareholder seeks recovery from a majority shareholder on behalf of the corporation, which would merely result in the majority shareholder regaining control of the recovered corporate funds. Orsi v. Sunshine Art Studios, Inc., 874 F. Supp. 471, 475 (D. Mass. 1995); see also Serrano v. Serrano, No. CIV.A. 2011-1948, 2011 WL 3930207, at *1 (Mass. Super. June 24, 2011) ("The facts of this case suggest that any recovery the plaintiff may receive in a derivative action would not provide an effective remedy since the only other shareholder in the corporation is one of the defendants.").

Plaintiff does not demonstrate a similarly compelling situation that requires her to proceed directly to adequately compensate complaining shareholders. Plaintiff's only claim that a derivative recovery would not be just is that former shareholders will not benefit from a corporate recovery. However, this is always true in a derivative action. Forsythe, 417 F. Supp. 2d at 112 n. 15. To the extent that former shareholders believed that the GAF Fund's investments were unlawful, they could have held their shares and sought to bring a derivative action. Instead, they sold their shares and gave up that right. Their situation is not so unique as to conclude that a derivative action is unjust. Accordingly, Plaintiff's claims for breach of fiduciary duties against the Trustee Defendants can only be brought derivatively and Defendants' Motion to Dismiss Plaintiff's direct fiduciary duty class action claims is GRANTED.

VII. Conclusion

Defendant has established that a majority vote of the independent trustees constituting a quorum voted to reject Plaintiff's demand that the Board pursue legal action against the Investment Advisor and the Trustee Defendants with respect to the GAF Fund's investments in the MLP Fund. That vote occurred after a reasonable and good faith investigation by the Committee appointed by the Board and after the Board's consideration of that investigation. As a result, Plaintiff's derivative claims against the Investment Advisor and the Trustee Defendants must be dismissed. Furthermore, the fiduciary duty claims against the Trustee Defendants must be brought derivatively, and Plaintiff's direct class action alleging those same claims must also be dismissed. Accordingly, Plaintiff's Motion to Dismiss is GRANTED. Given that the contract and fiduciary duty claims are barred by the Board's independent and good-faith investigation of those claims, it is ORDERED that this action is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

SO ORDERED.

Highland Capital Management, L.P., the debtor and debtor-in-possession ("Debtor") in the above-captioned chapter 11 case ("Bankruptcy Case"), submits this objection to the Motion for Relief from the Automatic Stay to Proceed with State Court Action [D.I. 644] ("Motion") filed by UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch (collectively "UBS").[2]

Preliminary Statement

1. After eleven years of litigation, UBS holds an uncollectible $1 billion breach of contract judgment against two insolvent offshore funds (the "Funds"), and is still searching for a way to pin that liability on the Debtor. UBS has used the purported amount of its claim to gridlock the entire Bankruptcy Case, with the uncertainty as to the amount of UBS's claim interfering with negotiations among the Debtor and its other creditors, and stalling any meaningful progress towards a successful chapter 11 exit. While the Debtor has attempted to negotiate in good faith with all of its creditors, there is a billion dollar "elephant in the room" that UBS is pretending not to see: UBS's supposed $1 billion claim against the Debtor has no basis in reality.

2. In the Motion, UBS tries to convince the Court that its claim is just too complex for this Court to handle, spending pages of its Motion and roughly 200 pages of exhibits on contract issues that have nothing to do with what this Court would need to decide if it denies the Motion. If, like all other creditors, UBS is required to assert its claim against the Debtor in the Bankruptcy Case, there are two threshold issues that can be fairly and efficiently resolved in this Court, using the streamlined claim objection and/or estimation procedures designed by the Bankruptcy Code. Both issues are straightforward and can be determined well in advance of any adjudication of the merits of UBS's claim or the Debtor's defenses: the first issue involves the application of prior rulings by the Appellate Division in the state court litigation, which preclude

[2] Exhibits 1-12 to this objection are attached to Appendix A of Exhibits in Support of Debtor's Objection to UBS's Motion for Relief from the Automatic Stay, filed concurrently herewith, and all citations herein to "A__" refer to Appendix A. Exhibits 13-17 to this objection are attached to Appendix B of Exhibits in Support of Debtor's Objection to UBS's Motion for Relief from the Automatic Stay. Concurrently herewith, the Debtor is requesting the Court's permission to file Appendix B under seal. All citations herein to "B__" refer to Appendix B.

UBS from enforcing its breach of contract judgment against the Debtor; and the second issue involves the enforcement of settlement agreements by which UBS released the vast majority of its claim against the Debtor, leaving UBS with a maximum potential principal recovery against the Debtor of less than $50 million. Summary proceedings in this Court to determine these threshold issues, implementing the "speedy, efficient and economical method for the determination and allowance of claims" contemplated by the Bankruptcy Code, In re Curtis, 40 B.R. 795, 801 (Bankr. D. Utah 1984), will fairly and promptly eliminate uncertainty as to the amount of UBS's claim and encourage negotiations towards a possible resolution with UBS, and thereby pave the way for a successful resolution of the Bankruptcy Case.

3. As to the first threshold issue, UBS's assertion that it can hold the Debtor "responsible for the [breach of contract] judgment awarded to UBS in Phase I" of the state court litigation (Motion at ¶¶ 17-18) can easily be laid to rest by applying three decisions issued by the Appellate Division in this case. The first of those decisions resulted in the dismissal of UBS's original complaint against the Debtor (filed on February 24, 2009) and a judgment on the merits in favor of the Debtor on UBS's breach of contract claim. The Appellate Division based its determination on the fact that the Debtor did not promise to undertake liability as to UBS's losses, or to ensure the Funds' performance under their contracts with UBS. See UBS v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 2010 NY Slip Op 1436, ¶ 1 (N.Y. App. Div.) [Exhibit 1 at A002].

4. The second decision, issued after UBS tried to re-assert the same claim against the Debtor by labeling it as different legal theories (much like UBS is now doing in the Bankruptcy Case), held that UBS is barred, under the doctrine of res judicata, from asserting claims against the Debtor that "implicate events alleged to have taken place before the filing of the original complaint" on February 24, 2009. See UBS v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 86 A.D.3d 469, 474 (N.Y. App. Div. 2011) [Exhibit 2 at A010].

5. In its third decision, the Appellate Division extended its res judicata ruling to the Debtor's co-defendants in the state court litigation, holding that UBS's claims against other defendants – including a claim that Highland Financial Partners, L.P. ("HFP") is the alter ego of one of the Funds – are likewise limited to conduct that occurred after February 24, 2009. See UBS v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 93 A.D.3d 489, 490 (N.Y. App. Div. 2012) [Exhibit 3 at A014]. Because UBS terminated the agreements underlying its breach of contract claim on December 3, 2008, and the New York trial court ("State Court") identified December 5, 2008 as the date on which the foreign Funds breached the agreements, the Appellate Division's decisions preclude UBS from attempting to hold the Debtor liable for UBS's breach of contract judgment against the Funds, either directly or under some type of alter ego theory.

6. By limiting UBS's claims to post-February 24, 2009 conduct, the Appellate Division's decisions also transformed what UBS tries to portray as an exceedingly complex case into what is really a run-of-the-mill fraudulent transfer case – a meat-and-potatoes issue for this Court. The only post-February 24, 2009 conduct at issue is a March 2009 transaction that, even at the highest amount originally alleged by UBS, involved less than $240 million of transfers allegedly made by HFP.[3] UBS asserts that the March 2009 transaction was a fraudulent conveyance, and has conceded that its only other claim against the Debtor – an implied covenant claim – is nothing more than a restatement of its fraudulent transfer claim. See, e.g., 05/01/18 State Court Hrg. Tr. at 10:13-16 [Exhibit 5 at A063] (in discussing whether the implied covenant claim is based solely on the March 2009 transaction, UBS's counsel stated "basically, you know, the implied covenant of good-faith and fair-dealing claim that we now have is that they shouldn't have committed fraudulent conveyances …"). In other words, with no ability to establish a billion dollar breach of contract claim against the Debtor (because it cannot base its claim on conduct that occurred prior to February 24, 2009), UBS has admitted that all that is left of its claim is a potential fraudulent transfer recovery of less than $240 million.

7. The second threshold issue that can readily be resolved in this Court involves the enforcement of releases granted to the Debtor pursuant to settlement agreements UBS entered into in 2015 with two of the Debtor's co-defendants, who allegedly received the majority of the transfers made during the March 2009 transaction. As set forth above, even at the highest amount alleged by UBS, UBS's fraudulent transfer claim based on the March 2009 transaction involved less than $240 million of transfers. However, the actual maximum principal amount UBS could ever recover from the Debtor on that claim is substantially less because (among other reasons) UBS released the Debtor from any claims "for losses or other relief specifically arising from" the allegedly fraudulent transfers made in March 2009 to the settling defendants. See Exhibit 13 at Section 5.3, pg. 6 [B007]; Exhibit 14 at Section 5.3, pg. 5 [B037]. Significantly, the allegedly fraudulent transfers to the settling defendants totaled more than 80% of the amount transferred in March 2009 and ultimately challenged by UBS.[4] In other words, UBS voluntarily reduced any potential recovery against the Debtor to less than 20% of the amount transferred in March 2009 – meaning a potential principal recovery of less than $50 million on UBS's best day, without even taking into account whether UBS can establish its claim, or the Debtor's numerous defenses.

8. As outlined above, a straightforward application of the doctrine of res judicata and the plain language of the prior settlement agreements demonstrates the fallacy of the $1 billion position UBS has taken in its Motion and in negotiations in the Bankruptcy Case. This Court, via a dispositive motion in a claim objection proceeding and/or the claims estimation process, can (and should) quickly and efficiently decide the question of whether UBS has a $1 billion claim or a less than $50 million claim against the Debtor based on the straightforward defenses outlined above. While acknowledging that the "uncertainty over the amount" of its claim must be resolved in order for the Bankruptcy Case to proceed to an orderly and efficient conclusion, UBS argues nonetheless that stay relief is appropriate because (according to UBS) its claim against the Debtor will be resolved in "relatively short order" in State Court. Motion at ¶ 37. Nothing could be further from the truth.

[4] In its motion for injunctive relief against the settling defendants, UBS (i) reduced the total amount it claimed was transferred in the March 2009 transaction, and (ii) identified the transfers to the settling defendants as totaling more than 80% of the total amount of the March 2009 transaction. See NY D.I. 315 at pg. 6 [Exhibit 15 at B061].

9. New York courts are notoriously overburdened and backlogged, and this case was no exception. As just a few examples, it took 4½ years to resolve the motions and appeals directed to UBS's pleadings, UBS filed its note of issue indicating that the case was trial-ready in September 2013 but Phase I of the trial did not commence until July 2018, and the Phase I decision was issued almost 16 months after the bench trial concluded.

10. The situation has not improved since the State Court issued its Phase I trial decision against the offshore Funds in late 2019. The COVID-19 outbreak hit New York City particularly hard, and the City essentially remains closed for business. Jury trials were halted in mid-March 2020 and there is no set date for the resumption of anything resembling business as usual in the New York County courthouse where UBS's case against the Debtor is pending. It is an understatement to say that the pandemic has placed enormous strain on New York's state court system, and New York City's in particular, and will continue to do so even after New York courts return to normal operations, whenever that may be. While there is no planned date for reopening, one commentator, a retired Federal District Judge, predicted that in all likelihood, civil trials will not proceed in New York until the end of 2020 or early 2021. See Shira A. Scheindlin, U.S.D.J. (Ret.), Why Not Arbitrate? Breaking the Backlog in State and Federal Courts, 263 N.Y. L.J. 94, May 15, 2020 at pg. 6, col. 4. [Exhibit 7 at A124] ("When the courts reopen, there will be a large backlog of civil matters. With the best of intentions, it is apparent that civil trials will not go forward for many months, particularly if there has been a jury demand. Some have predicted that there will be no civil juries in New York until 2021."). Moreover, when civil trials finally do go forward in New York, there is no reason to believe that the trial in this case would be at or even anywhere near the top of the State Court's trial queue. In short, given the size of UBS's asserted claim and the need to resolve it to conclude the Bankruptcy Case, lifting the stay to allow UBS's lawsuit to proceed in state court would subject this case to lengthy and indeed indefinite delay.

11. UBS's remaining arguments regarding "cause" to lift the automatic stay – that requiring UBS to file a proof of claim in the Bankruptcy Case will (according to UBS) prejudice UBS but not harm the Debtor or its constituencies, and that lifting the stay supposedly will promote judicial economy – likewise lack merit. With respect to the purported "prejudice" to UBS, UBS asserts that the adjudication of its fraudulent transfer-related claims "was intended to build upon" the Phase I trial on UBS's breach of contract claim against the Funds, and that UBS will be prejudiced if the fraudulent transfer-related claims are now adjudicated in this Court instead of the State Court. Motion at ¶¶ 16, 36. UBS provides no support for that position and indeed its current position is completely at odds with arguments it made to the State Court in 2018, which convinced the State Court to bifurcate the breach of contract claim from all other remaining claims. As just a few examples, and in UBS's own words:

- The "facts relevant" to Phase I of the trial vs. all of UBS's remaining claims "are distinct" [Exhibit 6 at A113];
- The "issues and evidence" in Phase I and Phase II "are largely separate and certainly will not be inextricably interwoven and intertwined" [Id. at A114];
- UBS's remaining claims "relate to new parties and different claims, [and] will involve new factual issues" not addressed "at all" in Phase I [Id. at A118]; and
- The "parties, witnesses, and issues" in the trial of UBS's remaining claims will be "significantly different" from those in Phase I of the trial [Id. at A121].

Given how UBS itself has characterized its claims, the arguments that it will be more efficient for the State Court to adjudicate Phase II issues (someday) and that UBS will be prejudiced if its remaining claims are decided by this Court hold no water.

12. The Debtor and its constituencies, on the other hand, will be severely prejudiced if UBS is granted stay relief. As discussed above, the untenable position UBS has taken in the Bankruptcy Case – that it somehow has a $1 billion claim to hold the Debtor "responsible" for the breach of contract judgment – has effectively stalled negotiations between the Debtor and its creditors, and stymied all progress towards resolution of the Debtor's chapter 11 case. Not surprisingly, other creditors are generally unwilling to engage without an understanding of the extent to which UBS's asserted claim might dilute their recoveries. If UBS is granted stay relief, the "billion dollar question" will not be answered for years in State Court. In all likelihood, that type of delay – given that UBS's claim, as articulated in the Motion, is supposedly the largest claim asserted against the Debtor – would eliminate the possibility of a successful reorganization. This Court, however, can answer the "billion dollar question" promptly and efficiently, to the benefit of all interested parties (including UBS). Thus, UBS has failed to establish that the "balancing of the harms" weighs in favor of stay relief.

13. With respect to judicial economy, UBS relies in large part on its remaining claims against the Debtor's co-defendants, arguing that filing a proof of claim in this Court will require UBS to litigate its claims twice, in two different courts. Motion at ¶ 41. This is, by and large, a makeweight argument. UBS has identified the following remaining claims in the State Court litigation: (i) the fraudulent transfer and related implied covenant claim against the Debtor; (ii) a general partner liability claim against Strand Advisors, Inc. ("Strand"), the general partner of the Debtor; (iii) a fraudulent transfer claim against Highland Credit Opportunities CDO, L.P. k/n/a Highland Multi Strategy Credit Fund, L.P. ("Multi Strat"); (iv) a fraudulent transfer claim against HFP, and a related alter ego claim against HFP seeking a determination that HFP was the alter ego of one of the Funds; and (v) fraudulent transfer and fraudulent inducement claims against the foreign Funds. Exhibit 6, A105-A106. UBS already holds an uncollectible $1 billion judgment against the Funds, and would stand to gain nothing by litigating its remaining claims against the Funds in any court. Similarly, it is the Debtor's understanding that HFP no longer has any meaningful assets, and thus it is highly unlikely that UBS would continue to litigate in State Court to seek any type of money judgment against HFP.

14. The remainder of UBS's claims are derivative of its claim against the Debtor (e.g., the general partner claim), will necessarily be determined in the course of adjudicating UBS's claim against the Debtor (e.g., the claim that HFP was the alter ego of one of the Funds, which UBS must prove in order to obtain "creditor standing" to assert its fraudulent transfer claim against the Debtor), and are closely related to the Bankruptcy Case (e.g., the claim against Multi Strat, which is a key asset in the Bankruptcy Case that is approximately 59% owned, directly and indirectly, by the Debtor). As such, in the event that UBS intends to continue to litigate its remaining claims, and the Debtor seeks to remove and transfer venue of those claims to this Court, neither mandatory nor permissive abstention would be appropriate.

15. While abstention is not presently before the Court, it bears noting that:

- Mandatory abstention would not apply to UBS's claim against the Debtor or any subsequent objection/estimation proceedings, which (if the Motion is denied) will be a quintessentially "core" proceedings, and would not apply to any of UBS's other remaining claims because, as outlined above, nothing is going to be timely adjudicated in New York's state court system in the near future;
- While UBS's claims are New York state law claims, the claims present no difficult or unsettled state law issues, and are unrelated to the discrete breach of contract claim previously decided by the State Court; and
- UBS filed its note of issue in the State Court requesting that all of its contract and tort claims be adjudicated in a bench trial, not a jury trial. In any event, as discussed in this Court's decision in In re Brook Mays Music Co., 363 B.R. 801, 818 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2007), any right to a jury trial that UBS might have on its claims against the non-Debtor defendants does not warrant abstention where, as here, there are pre-trial matters that can be promptly addressed by this Court to meaningfully advance the chapter 11 case.

16. Thus, none of the arguments advanced by UBS establish cause to lift the automatic stay. To the contrary, maintaining the automatic stay, and requiring UBS to assert its claim against the Debtor in the Bankruptcy Case, is the only means by which UBS's claim can be promptly adjudicated without sacrificing the Debtor's chances of a successful reorganization or prejudicing all of the parties.

17. Perhaps in recognition of its inability to establish cause to lift the stay, UBS also asserts that the Debtor waived the automatic stay in or around December 2019, based on a series of emails exchanged between UBS, pre-petition counsel for the defendants in the State Court litigation (who has not been retained in the Bankruptcy Case), and the Debtor's in-house counsel. The Debtor's lead bankruptcy counsel – Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones LLP ("PSZJ") – was not a party to any of those discussions. As one of the Debtor's largest creditors, a member of the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors ("OCUC"), and an active participant in the Bankruptcy Case, UBS cannot credibly claim that it was unaware of PSZJ's representation of the Debtor in the Bankruptcy Case. Nonetheless, UBS chose to exclude PSZJ from its discussions with pre-petition state court counsel and in-house counsel regarding the automatic stay, a bankruptcy-specific issue that impacts the Debtor and all of its bankruptcy constituencies. In other words, while UBS attempts to manufacture some type of "quid pro quo" arrangement tying its discussions regarding the automatic stay to the OCUC's position regarding the Debtor's governance structure, UBS in fact was participating in negotiations with PSZJ in the Bankruptcy Case while at the same time surreptitiously trying to obtain an agreement as to stay relief from the Debtor's non-bankruptcy counsel and in-house counsel without PSZJ's knowledge or involvement.

18. Tellingly, when pre-petition counsel reminded UBS on December 2, 2019 that the Debtor's bankruptcy counsel needed to sign off on any agreement regarding relief from the automatic stay, UBS waited three months before first raising the issue with PSZJ in or around early March 2020. See Exhibit 8 [A127] (December 2, 2019 email to counsel for UBS); Exhibit 9 [A130-A134] (March 6, 2020 email chain between PSZJ and UBS's counsel). In the interim, the Debtor and OCUC reached agreement as to the Debtor's governance structure, and sought the Court's approval of that agreement. If there really was some type of "quid pro quo" arrangement in place with UBS, surely UBS would have reached out to the Debtor's bankruptcy counsel to finalize its proposed stipulation regarding the automatic stay before "supporting" the agreement between the Debtor and OCUC, which was still being negotiated well into late December 2019 and was not finalized until January 2020.

19. In any event, when UBS finally provided PSZJ with a draft of its stipulation for stay relief in March 2020, PSZJ promptly notified UBS that the Debtor would not stipulate to lift the stay. Furthermore, even if the Debtor had signed UBS's draft stipulation regarding stay relief, that would not have effectuated a waiver of the automatic stay. Any relief from the automatic stay, even if the debtor consents to such relief, can only be obtained with the bankruptcy court's approval, after sufficient notice and opportunity to object has been afforded to creditors and other interested parties. See, e.g., Commerzanstalt v. Telewide Sys., 790 F.2d 206, 207 (2d Cir. 1986) ("Since the purpose of the stay is to protect creditors as well as the debtor, the debtor may not waive the automatic stay."); Fed. R. Bankr. P. 4001(d) (requiring that any motion for approval of an agreement modifying the automatic stay must be served on the committee of unsecured creditors, and other entities as directed by the bankruptcy court, with a 14-day opportunity to object). Obviously, at no time did the Debtor move for approval of any waiver of the automatic stay on notice to parties in interest, and indeed that was deliberate as the putative "agreement" UBS relies upon was inappropriate and unenforceable.

20. Finally, in the Motion, UBS also requests (i) an order providing that its filing of a proof of claim will not waive its right to a jury trial, and/or (ii) a further extension of the bar date. Both requests should be denied. By filing a proof of claim, UBS will invoke the Court's equitable jurisdiction, including its power to allow or disallow claims, which is "to be exercised in summary proceedings and not by the slower and more expensive processes of a plenary suit." Katchen v. Landy, 382 U.S. 323, 329 (1966). Allowing a creditor who has filed a proof of claim to then rely on 11 U.S.C. § 105 to create a jury trial right where one no longer exists would "interfere with the equity jurisdiction of the bankruptcy courts" and "be antithetical to the policies underpinning" the Bankruptcy Code. In re Endeavour Highrise L.P., 425 B.R. 402, 417 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. March 12, 2010). With respect to UBS's request for a further extension of the bar date, UBS asserts that, if the Court denies the Motion and declines to lift the stay, it also should further extend the bar date so that UBS does not need to file its claim in the Bankruptcy Case. That will accomplish nothing except further delay in the Bankruptcy Case. As UBS itself has acknowledged, the elimination of "uncertainty" as to UBS's claim will encourage plan negotiations and expedite the resolution of the Bankruptcy Case. Requiring UBS to file its proof of claim is a necessary first step in that process, and therefore UBS's request for a further extension of the bar date also should be denied.

21. In sum, UBS has failed to establish that cause exists to lift the automatic stay, has failed to establish that the Debtor waived the automatic stay, has failed to establish that an order modifying the equitable jurisdiction of this Court would be permissible or appropriate, and has failed to establish that any further extension of the bar date for UBS's claim is warranted. Therefore, the Debtor respectfully requests that the Court deny the Motion in its entirety.

Statement of Facts

I. Relevant Procedural History of the State Court Litigation

22. UBS filed its first complaint against the Debtor and the Funds on February 24, 2009, in UBS v. Highland Capital Management, L.P., et al., Index No. 650097/2009 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.) (the "2009 Action"). In that complaint, UBS asserted a breach of contract claim against the Debtor based on warehouse agreements which provided that the Funds (not the Debtor) would bear the risk of investment losses. The Debtor moved to dismiss UBS's complaint on May 1, 2009. From the filing of that motion on May 1, 2009 to the State Court's entry of its decision on the last motion to dismiss (filed by other defendants) on November 25, 2013 [NY D.I. 351], it took more than 4½ years to "finalize" the pleadings in the State Court litigation.

23. The May 1, 2009 motion to dismiss resulted in the entry of final judgment in favor of the Debtor, dismissing UBS's complaint against the Debtor. NY D.I. 84. Judgment was entered based on the Appellate Division's decision that the warehouse agreements contained no promise by the Debtor "to undertake liability" with respect to UBS's losses or "to ensure or guarantee" the Funds' performance. Exhibit 1 at A002.

24. After the Debtor was dismissed from the 2009 Action, UBS twice amended its complaint in the 2009 Action to add five new defendants, and filed a new action against the Debtor on June 28, 2010, captioned as UBS v. Highland Capital Management, L.P., Index No. 650752/2010 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.) (the "2010 Action").[5] The majority of UBS's new claims challenged certain transfers made in 2008 and March 2009 by HFP, an entity that was not a party to the warehouse agreements or any other transaction with UBS, and was not named as a defendant in the February 24, 2009 complaint. In recognition of the fact that UBS was not a creditor of HFP (and thus lacked standing to challenge the transfers), UBS's amended complaint in the 2009 Action included a claim for declaratory relief against HFP seeking a determination that HFP was the alter ego of one of the Funds. The alter ego claim against HFP is the only alter ego cause of action that UBS asserted in the State Court litigation.

25. In 2011 and 2012, the Appellate Division eliminated, or otherwise significantly limited, UBS's claims against the Debtor and new defendants. Both decisions applied res judicata to restrict UBS from seeking recovery for any conduct that occurred prior to the date on which UBS filed its original complaint in the 2009 Action (i.e., February 24, 2009), which resulted in the final judgment on the merits in favor of the Debtor. See Exhibit 2 at A010; Exhibit 3 at A014.

[5] The operative complaint against the Debtor, filed in the 2010 Action, is attached as Exhibit 16 to Appendix B [B064-B121], and the operative complaint against the remaining defendants, filed in the 2009 Action, is attached as Exhibit 17 to Appendix B [B123-B180].

26. In light of the Appellate Division's decisions, the only claims remaining in the State Court litigation are claims that arise out of the allegedly fraudulent transfers in March 2009. As described by UBS in its pre-trial brief seeking bifurcation of its breach of contract claim, on the one hand, and its implied covenant and fraudulent transfer claims, on the other hand, UBS's implied covenant claim "involves [the Debtor's] role in the March 2009 fraudulent conveyances [and] overlaps factually with the ... fraudulent conveyance claims." Exhibit 6 at A106. UBS further elaborated on its position regarding the close nexus between its fraudulent transfer claim and its implied covenant claim during the related telephonic hearing with the State Court, conceding that its implied covenant claim is basically the same as its fraudulent transfer claim:

> THE COURT: And is it also the plaintiffs' position that the implied covenant claim relates to the fraudulent conveyance claim and not to the fraudulent inducement?
> MR. CLUBOK: Absolutely, yes.
>
> ...
>
> THE COURT: Ms. Klein, isn't the implied covenant claim as pleaded based solely on post entry into transaction alleged wrongful or fraudulent conveyances?
>
> ... [response by defendants' counsel] ...
>
> THE COURT: Mr. Clubok, will you respond.
>
> MR. CLUBOK: ... basically, you know, the implied covenant of good-faith and fair-dealing claim that we now have is that they shouldn't have committed fraudulent conveyances to make it certain that these two parties couldn't have paid.

05/01/18 State Court Hrg. Tr. at 5:14-18 and 7:16-10:16 [Exhibit 5 at A058, A060-A063].

27. UBS's claims arising out of the March 2009 transaction challenge transfers made in March 2009 that, even at the highest amount originally pleaded by UBS, totaled less than $240 million – a far cry from the $1 billion claim UBS now says it holds against the Debtor. Exhibit 4 at A038. UBS subsequently reduced the amount it alleged was transferred in March 2009 [Exhibit 15 at B061] and then, in June 2015, UBS released its claims to the majority of the challenged amount, via its settlement agreements with Highland Crusader Offshore Partners,

L.P. ("Crusader Fund") and Highland Credit Strategies Master Fund, L.P. ("Credit Strategies"). Both settlement agreements provided that UBS released the Debtor and its affiliates from, among other things, "losses or other relief specifically arising from" the allegedly fraudulent transfers made to Crusader Fund and Credit Strategies. Exhibit 13 at Section 5.3, pg. 6 [B007]; Exhibit 14 at Section 5.3, pg. 5 [B037]. As asserted by UBS, the settling defendants received more than 80% of the amount transferred in the March 2009 transaction. Exhibit 15 at pg. 6 [B061].

II. Relevant Facts Regarding the Phase I Trial on UBS's Discrete Contract Claim

28. UBS filed its note of issue in the State Court litigation, indicating that its case was ready for trial and should be placed on the trial queue, on September 3, 2013, almost five years before Phase I of the trial commenced on July 9, 2018. NY D.I. 320 [Exhibit 10 at A137]. During that five year period, various motions were filed by the parties, including a motion for summary judgment filed by the Debtor in October 2013 and decided by the State Court approximately 3½ years later, in March 2017. See Exhibit 6 at pg. 8 [A111].

29. In its note of issue, UBS did not demand a jury trial on its contract claims or its tort claims against the Debtor or any of the other defendants. A136. UBS subsequently confirmed that its implied covenant claim against the Debtor is an equitable claim that should be tried to the court, not a jury. 05/01/18 State Court Hrg. Tr. at 5:9-13 [Exhibit 5 at A058] (UBS's counsel responding in the affirmative to the question of whether "it is the plaintiffs' position that the implied covenant claim will be for the Court").

30. The Phase I trial was limited to UBS's breach of contract claim against the Funds. As described by UBS, the breach of contract claim was separate and distinct from all of UBS's remaining claims – the remaining claims "have little to do" with the breach of contract claim, and involve new parties and "new factual issues" not addressed "at all" in Phase I, as well as different witnesses and evidence. A106, A114, A118, A121.

31. Phase I of the trial began on July 9, 2018 and concluded on July 27, 2018. The State Court issued its decision on the Phase I issues almost 16 months later, on November 14, 2019. By its terms, the Phase I decision was sealed for ten business days – until December 2, 2019 – to allow the parties an opportunity to request redaction of any confidential information. Motion at Ex. B, pg. 40. The decision was unsealed on January 23, 2020, but the Phase I judgment was not entered until almost three weeks later, on February 10, 2020. The Phase II trial has not been scheduled in light of the stay, and even if there were no stay, given the pandemic, it is unlikely the Phase II trial could be conducted in State Court before 2021.

Argument

I. UBS Has Failed to Establish Cause to Lift the Automatic Stay

32. The automatic stay is "one of the fundamental debtor protections provided by the bankruptcy laws." Midlantic Nat'l Bank v. N.J. Dep't of Envtl. Prot., 474 U.S. 494, 503 (1986) (citations omitted). As the party seeking relief from the automatic stay, UBS bears the burden of establishing that "cause" (i.e., a legally sufficient basis) exists to lift or modify the stay. See 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1) (providing that a court may grant relief from the automatic stay "for cause"); Mooney v. Gill, 310 B.R. 543, 547 (N.D. Tex. 2002) (party seeking stay relief bears the initial burden of establishing a legally sufficient basis for such relief). Here, UBS has not established, and cannot establish, that cause exists to lift the automatic stay.

33. A "decision to lift the automatic stay is an exercise of discretion." Mooney, 310 B.R. at 547; see also In re Choice ATM Enters., 2015 Bankr. LEXIS 689, *12 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Mar. 4, 2015) (stay relief is determined on a case-by-case basis). To guide the exercise of that discretion, courts have identified numerous factors that, depending on the circumstances of each case, may be relevant to a creditor's request for stay relief. See, e.g., In re Choice ATM Enters., 2015 Bankr. LEXIS 689 at *12-13 (denying stay relief after considering whether claim was critical to success or failure of reorganization, avoidance of unnecessary expense and delay, judicial economy, and whether claim required "expertise beyond the abilities of the bankruptcy court"); Mooney, 310 B.R. at 546 (bankruptcy court "must balance the hardships of the parties" and base its decision "on the degree of hardship involved and the goals of the Bankruptcy Code"); In re U.S. Brass Corp., 173 B.R. 1000, 1006 (Bankr. E.D. Tex. 1994) (stay relief "will be granted to an unsecured creditor ... only when the 'balance of hardships' tips in the creditor's favor" and, when balancing the hardships, the "most important factor is the effect of such litigation on the administration of the estate; even slight interference ... may be enough to preclude relief"). As discussed herein, UBS's request for relief from the automatic stay should be denied for three critical reasons: (i) granting stay relief will interfere with the Bankruptcy Case, unnecessarily delay the adjudication of key issues related to UBS's claim, and potentially jeopardize the Debtor's chances of achieving a successful chapter 11 exit; (ii) the hardship and prejudice to the Debtor and its constituencies if the stay is lifted far surpasses any inconvenience to UBS; and (iii) granting stay relief will not promote judicial economy.

A. Granting Stay Relief Will Interfere With and Delay the Bankruptcy Case, and Potentially Jeopardize the Debtor's Reorganization Efforts

34. The "most important factor in determining whether to grant relief from the automatic stay to permit litigation against the debtor in another forum is the effect of such litigation on the administration of the estate." In re Curtis, 40 B.R. at 806. Therefore, in considering whether to lift the automatic stay, "it must be borne in mind that the process of determining the allowance of claims is of basic importance to the administration of a bankruptcy estate." Id. at 800-01 (denying stay relief because, among other reasons, allowance of claims against the estate is a "fundamental" bankruptcy issue). See also In re Crespin, 581 B.R. 904, 909 (Bankr. D.N.M. 2018) ("Given the centrality of the claims allowance process to the bankruptcy system, the Court's inclination in these matters is to keep the stay in place and liquidate the claim.").

35. Relief from the automatic stay is particularly inappropriate where, as here, the resolution of a creditor's large but disputed claim is critical to the success or failure of the reorganization, and key issues regarding the creditor's claim can be expeditiously resolved in the bankruptcy court. See In re Choice ATM Enters., 2015 Bankr. LEXIS 689 at *15-16 (denying stay relief because creditor's counterclaim, if allowed, would be the largest claim against the debtor; by retaining the counterclaim, the bankruptcy court could "rapidly proceed through the claims estimation process" and avoid unnecessary delay and expense, while permitting the counterclaim to go forward in a different forum would "go against Congress's design in the [Bankruptcy] Code"); In re Crespin, 581 B.R. at 910 (denying stay relief where the timing of plan confirmation would be "heavily affected by the outcome of [the] litigation" and the "quickest way to liquidate the [creditors'] claim is in bankruptcy court").

36. Here, UBS concedes that prompt resolution of its claim is critical to the success of the Debtor's reorganization efforts. Motion at ¶ 38. In the Motion and in negotiations in the Bankruptcy Case, UBS has described its claim as a more than $1 billion claim to hold the Debtor "responsible for the [breach of contract] judgment awarded to UBS in Phase I" of the State Court litigation. Motion at ¶ 18. At present, there is an insurmountable chasm between UBS and the Debtor with respect to the amount of UBS's claim, based primarily on two key issues that can be quickly and efficiently determined in this Court.

37. First, the Debtor can readily establish that UBS is barred, under the doctrine of res judicata, from seeking to hold the Debtor responsible, either directly or under an alter ego theory, for the judgment against the Funds for the December 5, 2008 breach of contract. The Appellate Division already has determined that UBS cannot assert, in the State Court litigation, any claim against the Debtor based on conduct that occurred prior to February 24, 2009. UBS, 86 A.D.3d at 474 [Exhibit 2 at A010]. The Appellate Division has applied that same restriction to UBS's claims against other defendants in the State Court litigation, including UBS's claim that HFP was the alter ego of one of the Funds. UBS, 93 A.D.3d at 490 [Exhibit 3 at A014]. While UBS may attempt to argue that the Appellate Division's decisions would not apply if it pursues its claim against the Debtor under an alter ego theory, because alter ego is a "remedy" and not a claim, that position is inconsistent with and refuted by the Appellate Division's decision regarding UBS's alter ego allegations against HFP, and other established case law.[6] See, e.g., Bd. of Managers v. Jeffrey M. Brown Assocs., 652 F. Supp. 2d 463, 478-82 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (holding that where, as here, a judgment on the merits has been entered in favor of one defendant, a plaintiff cannot later seek to hold that defendant liable under an alter ego theory for a judgment entered against a different defendant, where the facts giving rise to potential alter ego liability existed at the time of the first action and arose out of the same transaction). Because the doctrine of res judicata bars UBS from asserting any claim that arose prior to February 24, 2009, and the State Court determined that the breach of the warehouse agreements occurred in December 2008, UBS's claim against the Debtor is limited to the March 2009 transaction. As that transaction involved transfers totaling much less than $240 million – not $1 billion – the determination of the res judicata issue will meaningfully impact the parties' negotiations regarding UBS's claim.

38. Second, with respect to the March 2009 transaction, UBS has already released the Debtor from "losses or other relief specifically arising from" more than 80% of the total amount transferred in March 2009. While UBS likely will argue that its implied covenant claim against the Debtor does not "specifically arise" from the transfers made in March 2009, that position is belied by UBS's own descriptions of its implied covenant claim. See, e.g., 05/01/18 State Court Hrg. Tr. at 10:13-16 [Exhibit 5 at A063] (in response to the question of whether the implied covenant claim is based solely on the allegedly fraudulent March 2009 transaction, UBS's counsel stated "basically, you know, the implied covenant of good-faith and fair-dealing claim that we now have is that they shouldn't have committed fraudulent conveyances …"); NY D.I.

[6] The res judicata effect of the State Court's prior judgment in favor of the Debtor is governed by New York law. See, e.g., Richardson v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 839 F.3d 442, 449 (5th Cir. 2016). New York and federal doctrines of res judicata are "virtually identical." Kamdem-Ouaffo v. PepsiCo, Inc., 160 F. Supp. 3d 553, 562 n.10 (S.D.N.Y. 2016) (citations omitted).

472 at pg. 3 [Exhibit 6 at A106] (in seeking bifurcation of its breach of contract claim, UBS argued that its implied covenant claim "involves [the Debtor's] role in the March 2009 fraudulent conveyances [and] overlaps factually with the ... fraudulent conveyance claims").

39. The adjudication of these two key issues will meaningfully impact the negotiations between UBS and the Debtor, and thus the progress of the chapter 11 case. Furthermore, both issues can be decided promptly and efficiently in this Court long before these or any other issues could be adjudicated in State Court. All new civil jury trials in New York were suspended as of March 16, 2020, and all filings in non-essential matters were banned as of March 22, 2020. See, e.g., Exhibit 11 at A139 (March 22, 2020 order of the Chief Administrative Judge of the Courts of New York); Exhibit 12 at A146 (excerpts from a May 26, 2020 Law360 article describing New York's court closures). The ban on filings in New York County, where the State Court litigation is pending, was only recently lifted on May 25, 2020. A146. No date has been set for the commencement or continuation of civil trials in New York County, and there is no way to determine when a trial in this case would be scheduled – given the amount of time it took for this case to proceed through Phase I of the trial, it is highly likely that a trial in the State Court on the remaining issues and the resolution of any related appeals would not be completed until sometime in 2021 or possibly even 2022.

B. The Harm the Debtor and Its Constituencies Will Suffer if Stay Relief Is Granted Far Outweighs Any Purported Harm to UBS

40. The effect that litigation in a non-bankruptcy forum will have on the administration of the estate is the most critical factor to consider on a motion for stay relief. In re Curtis, 40 B.R. at 806. "Even slight interference with the administration may be enough to preclude relief in the absence of a commensurate benefit." Id. at 806-07 (denying stay relief because it was "not possible to determine that the hardship to movants would outweigh the hardship to the debtors.").

41. Here, UBS has failed to establish that the "balance of harms" weighs in favor of granting stay relief. UBS argues that it will suffer prejudice if this Court decides the remaining claims in the State Court litigation because, according to the position UBS now takes in its Motion, the remaining claims are related to or will "build upon" the breach of contract issues adjudicated by the State Court in the Phase I trial. UBS took the exact opposite position in persuading the State Court to bifurcate UBS's breach of contract claim against the Funds from all other remaining claims, arguing that the two categories of claims were completely separate, and involved different factual issues, parties, witnesses and evidence. In light of UBS's own characterizations of its claims, UBS's arguments regarding the purported prejudice it will suffer are untenable.

42. In contrast to the lack of any prejudice to UBS, the Debtor and its bankruptcy constituencies will be extremely prejudiced if the Motion is granted. Through proceedings on an objection to UBS's claim and/or the claims estimation process, this Court can efficiently answer the "billion dollar question" in this case, i.e., whether UBS has a $1 billion claim against the Debtor, or a claim in a principal amount of less than (at best) $50 million. If stay relief is granted, on the other hand, the Debtor and its bankruptcy constituencies will have to wait years before UBS's claim is resolved in State Court. The potential impact that type of delay would have on the Debtor's prospects of a successful reorganization precludes the relief requested in the Motion.

C. Granting Stay Relief Will Not Promote Judicial Economy

43. UBS's main argument regarding judicial economy is that, if the Motion is denied, it will need to litigate its claims twice, once in this Court against the Debtor and again in State Court against the remaining defendants. Even setting aside the question of whether it would be economically rational for UBS to separately pursue its claims against the other defendants (several of whom are, as discussed above, judgment-proof), UBS would not need to litigate its claims in two different courts because, to the extent UBS seeks to continue the State Court litigation, the action could be removed to federal court, with a motion to transfer venue to this Court, and neither mandatory nor permissive abstention would be applicable.

44. Mandatory abstention does not apply to claims "arising in a case under title 11," and does not apply to claims that cannot be timely adjudicated in state court. 28 U.S.C. § 1334(c)(2). Here, if the Motion is denied, UBS's proof of claim, and any objection/estimation proceedings related to that claim, would be core proceedings within this Court's "arising in" jurisdiction. In re Wood, 825 F.2d 90, 97 (5th Cir. 1987). As to the claims against other defendants, mandatory abstention would not apply because there is no chance that those claims could be timely adjudicated in State Court.

45. Based on the factors identified in In re Brook Mays Music Co., 363 B.R. at 817-18, permissive abstention likewise would not be appropriate for at least the following reasons:

- This Court would be able to adjudicate UBS's claims, particularly as to the two key issues discussed above – res judicata and the enforcement of UBS's settlement releases – much more quickly than the State Court.
- UBS's claims do not involve any novel state law issues. UBS's claims are, essentially, fraudulent transfer claims that are well within this Court's bailiwick.
- UBS's claim against the Debtor (if the Motion is denied) will be a core proceeding that, given the amount asserted by UBS, will be central to the Bankruptcy Case. UBS's claims against the other defendants are closely related to the claim against the Debtor and/or the Bankruptcy Case: the general partner claim against Strand is derivative of the claim against the Debtor; Multi Strat is a key asset in the Bankruptcy Case, and the fraudulent transfer claim against it is identical to the claim against the Debtor (except as to amount); and the alter ego claim against HFP must be decided in connection with the fraudulent transfer claim against the Debtor.
- Upon the filing of its proof of claim, UBS will have no right to a jury trial on its claim against the Debtor. As to UBS's claims against the remaining defendants, (i) UBS itself filed its note of issue indicating that all of its claims should be tried to the court, and (ii) if UBS intends to proceed with a jury trial against the remaining defendants, the reference can be withdrawn at the appropriate time.

46. Accordingly, UBS has failed to establish that either mandatory or permissive abstention would apply to any of its claims, or that the interests of judicial economy otherwise weigh in favor of granting relief from the automatic stay.

II. UBS's Discussions With Pre-Petition State Court Counsel and In-House Counsel Do Not Relieve UBS of Its Burden to Establish Cause to Lift the Automatic Stay

47. UBS has not established that the Debtor agreed to waive the automatic stay, or that any agreement between UBS and the Debtor could have relieved UBS of its burden to establish that cause exists to lift the automatic stay. As an initial matter, the Debtor's pre-petition state court counsel advised UBS on December 2, 2019 that the Debtor's bankruptcy counsel needed to sign off on the proposed agreement regarding stay relief. Exhibit 8 at A127. Nonetheless, UBS waited three months before contacting the Debtor's bankruptcy counsel [Exhibit 9 at A130-A134], at which time PSZJ promptly informed UBS that the Debtor did not consent to any modification of the stay.

48. Furthermore, even if the Debtor had signed UBS's draft stipulation, that agreement would not have effectuated an automatic waiver of 11 U.S.C. § 362 as to the Debtor or its constituencies. "Since the purpose of the stay is to protect creditors as well as the debtor, the debtor may not waive the automatic stay." Commerzanstalt, 790 F.2d at 207 (rejecting agreement by debtors that appeals could continue despite the automatic stay, and holding that parties would need to seek stay relief in the bankruptcy court); see also Ass'n of St. Croix Condo. Owners v. St. Croix Hotel Corp., 682 F.2d 446, 448 (3d Cir. 1982) (staying appeals filed by both debtor and creditor, noting that "[u]nder the old Bankruptcy Act, a debtor apparently could waive a stay" but "[u]nder the new Code, relief from a stay must be authorized by the Bankruptcy Court ..."); United States v. Moore, 1990 U.S. App. LEXIS 13768, *2-3 (5th Cir. July 24, 1990) (citing Commerzanstalt with approval and holding that appeal was stayed, notwithstanding that debtor was the appellant, because "[r]elief from the effect of the stay provisions must be sought in the bankruptcy court" pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)).

49. In other words, any relief from the automatic stay, whether a debtor consents to such relief or opposes it, can only be obtained with the bankruptcy court's approval, after sufficient notice and opportunity to object has been afforded to creditors and other interested parties. The requirements of notice, an opportunity to object, and bankruptcy court approval of any agreement to modify the automatic stay are expressly set forth in Fed. R. Bankr. P. 4001(d). See Fed. R. Bankr. P. 4001(d) (requiring that any motion for approval of an agreement modifying the automatic stay must be served on the committee of unsecured creditors, and other entities as directed by the bankruptcy court, with a 14-day opportunity to object).[7]

50. Finally, UBS has not shown that it "detrimentally relied" on its discussions with pre-petition counsel and in-house counsel, or suffered any prejudice. UBS asserts that it suffered prejudice because (i) both the Debtor and UBS requested that the Phase I decision issued on November 14, 2019 remain under seal for a short period of time while the parties engaged in settlement discussions, (ii) it "supported" the changes to the Debtor's governance structure, which resulted in the appointment of independent directors and an independent CRO with authority over all restructuring issues, and (iii) it refrained from immediately seeking stay relief. Motion at ¶¶ 22, 30. All of these contentions strain credulity.

51. First, the State Court issued its Phase I decision almost 16 months after the Phase I trial concluded. By its terms, the decision was to remain sealed until December 2, 2019 to allow the parties time to confer and advise the State Court as to whether the decision contained any confidential information. Even when the decision eventually was unsealed in late January 2020, the Phase I judgment was not entered for another almost three weeks, not on request of the parties, but instead likely due to the endemic delays in New York's overburdened state court system. UBS has not identified any prejudice it suffered by agreeing that the decision remain under seal for a brief period of time.

52. Second, UBS cannot articulate how it was prejudiced by the appointment of independent directors and an independent CRO. In any event, as discussed above, pre-petition state court counsel reminded UBS in early December 2019 that the Debtor's bankruptcy counsel needed to sign off on any agreement regarding the automatic stay – a reminder that, given UBS's role in the Bankruptcy Case, should not have been necessary. UBS chose not to contact the Debtor's bankruptcy counsel about the automatic stay for almost three months, long after the Debtor and OCUC agreed to the Court-approved changes in the Debtor's governance structure.

53. Third, and finally, UBS cannot establish that it suffered any prejudice as to the timing of its Motion. In light of the pandemic, and the particularly severe impact the outbreak has had in New York, there is absolutely no likelihood that the current procedural status of the State Court litigation would be any different if UBS had filed its Motion months ago. Furthermore, when UBS finally did choose to contact PSZJ in March 2020 regarding the stay, the stipulation the parties agreed upon provided that UBS could file its Motion any time up to 5:00 p.m. on May 20, 2020. Nothing prevented UBS from filing its Motion well in advance of that deadline, yet UBS waited until just 20 minutes shy of its deadline to file the Motion.

54. Thus, UBS has not established that the Debtor waived the protections of the automatic stay, or that UBS suffered prejudice as a result of any "misunderstanding" between the parties – a "misunderstanding" that easily could have been avoided had UBS not excluded the Debtor's bankruptcy counsel from the discussions regarding the very bankruptcy-specific issue of relief from the automatic stay.

III. UBS Is Not Entitled to an Order Granting UBS a Right to a Jury Trial on Its Proof of Claim, and No Further Extension of the Bar Date Is Warranted

55. The filing of a proof of claim gives rise to "a matter that is equitable in nature (i.e., a matter involving claim allowance/disallowance) so that the jury trial right is lost." In re

Brook Mays Music Co., 363 B.R. at 811 (citing Granfinanciera S.A. v. Nordberg, 492 U.S. 33, 109 S. Ct. 2782 (1989)). By filing a proof of claim, UBS will invoke the Court's equitable jurisdiction, including its power to allow or disallow claims, which is "to be exercised in summary proceedings and not by the slower and more expensive processes of a plenary suit." Katchen, 382 U.S. at 329. UBS's request for an order granting it a right to a jury trial on its proof of claim (and related proceedings) must be denied because such an order – which could be requested by every creditor with pre-petition jury trial rights, in every bankruptcy case – would "interfere with the equity jurisdiction of the bankruptcy courts" and "be antithetical to the policies underpinning" the Bankruptcy Code. In re Endeavour Highrise L.P., 425 B.R. at 417.

56. UBS's final request, seeking a further extension of the bar date to file its claim against the Debtor in the event that the stay is not lifted, likewise should be denied. UBS's request, if granted, would essentially leave the parties in limbo. Given that all parties agree that a prompt resolution of UBS's claim is in the best interests of the Debtor and all of its constituencies (including UBS), UBS's suggestion – doing nothing for some unspecified amount of time – will not benefit any of the parties or foster the resolution of the chapter 11 case.

Conclusion

WHEREFORE, the Debtor respectfully requests that the Court deny the Motion in its entirety, and grant the Debtor such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

The Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Funds (the "Redeemer Committee")[2] objects to UBS's motion [Doc. No. 644] (the "Motion")[3] to lift the automatic stay to divest this Court of the ability to determine the validity and, if applicable, the amount of the largest disputed and unliquidated claim asserted in this chapter 11 case.

I. INTRODUCTION

Allowing UBS to litigate its claim in the New York state court would fundamentally prejudice all of the Debtor's other unsecured creditors and contravene the fundamental principle that creditors and parties in interest may be heard with respect to matters that are central to the chapter 11 process. Granting the Motion would elevate UBS to an almost unassailable negotiating position in connection with the formulation of a plan. Moreover, contrary to UBS's arguments, its claim is by no means "trial ready" in New York. Resolution of UBS's claim in New York likely will delay recovery to all creditors for years, while this Court is well-suited to resolve the claim expediently.

UBS is asserting a disputed $1 billion claim that is more than five times the size of the largest liquidated claim: the Redeemer Committee's $190.8 million claim. If UBS's contested $1 billion claim is not subject to this Court's claims resolution process, it will not be feasible to conduct negotiations regarding a plan to allocate the value of the Debtor's estate equitably. Granting UBS the right to litigate in New York—where no other creditor may appear as a matter of right—would give UBS tremendous leverage simply because of the time it will take the New York court to resolve that claim. Creditors should not be compelled to negotiate a plan where one creditor holds outsized leverage not due to the underlying merits of its claim, but due to permission to litigate outside of the Bankruptcy Court.

[2] The Redeemer Committee is a committee of investors, elected pursuant to the Scheme and Plan of Liquidation of the Highland Crusader Funds (the "Crusader Fund") approved by the Bermuda Court, to oversee Highland's management of the Crusader Fund through what was intended to be the complete liquidation of the fund.
[3] All capitalized terms that are not defined in this Objection have the meanings given to such terms in the Motion.

Moreover, UBS's claim is by no means ready to be tried in New York in the next six months, as UBS asserts. UBS conveniently fails to mention that the principal claim that it now asserts against the Debtor, Highland Capital Management, L.P. ("Highland" or the "Debtor")—that Highland is the alter ego of certain of its affiliates and therefore should be held responsible for a $1 billion judgment entered against those affiliates—is a new claim which UBS has not yet pleaded in the New York court. Given the threshold pre-trial legal issues that a court will need to decide, and given that New York civil procedure freely permits interlocutory appeals, no one can predict when the New York court would issue a final, non-appealable judgment. The inevitable delay caused by those proceedings would essentially ensure that no meaningful distributions could be made to creditors until those proceedings conclude. And, as demonstrated below, UBS's claim against the Debtor is not so uniquely complicated that it must be heard by the New York court. This Court is well-suited to determine the validity and amount of UBS's claim.

Nor should the Court give any effect to UBS's assertion that the Debtor entered into an agreement with UBS in December 2019 to lift the automatic stay. It is well-settled that an agreement by a debtor-in-possession to lift the automatic stay is only enforceable upon Bankruptcy Court approval, which in turn requires that creditors receive notice of such request and have an opportunity to be heard.

At bottom, it is transparent that UBS—a member of the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors—is attempting to obtain the benefits of this chapter 11 proceeding without subjecting its claim to the jurisdiction of this Court, to the material prejudice of all other creditors. UBS seeks to avoid application of Supreme Court precedent establishing that a creditor that files a proof of claim submits itself to the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court. Granting UBS's Motion would turn the principles animating the Bankruptcy Code on their head. This Court, not the New York court, should resolve UBS's claim.

II. BACKGROUND

The claim that UBS asserts now against the Debtor essentially relates to two sets of events. First, UBS seeks to hold the Debtor responsible for the failure by some of the Debtor's affiliates to honor certain contractual margin calls in the fall of 2008. UBS's claims against those affiliates resulted in the $1 billion judgment entered late last year; its claim to hold the Debtor responsible for that judgment is new. Second, UBS seeks to hold the Debtor responsible for certain alleged fraudulent transfers involving other affiliates of the Debtor that took place in early 2009. Those claims have not yet been tried.

While the procedural history of UBS's litigation against the Debtor and several of its affiliates is admittedly somewhat dense, including multiple interlocutory appeals, one advantage of considering the dispute at this point is that the threshold legal issues that will need to be decided are well-defined. As discussed below, two legal questions will be critical: (i) the extent to which, as a result of prior rulings in the New York litigation, res judicata bars UBS from asserting a claim against the Debtor to recover for conduct prior to February 24, 2009; and (ii) the extent to which UBS has already released the Debtor from claims arising from the post-February 2009 allegedly fraudulent transfers, as part of settlements that UBS reached with the Crusader Fund and the Highland Credit Strategies Fund (the "Credit Strategies Fund"). Neither issue has been decided, and the Court's ruling on those issues will have a material impact on the size of any allowable claim by UBS.

A. Highland's Affiliates Fail to Meet Margin Calls.

In April 2007, UBS entered into agreements (collectively, the "CLO Warehouse Agreements") with Highland and two affiliates—Highland Special Opportunities Holding Co. ("SOHC") and Highland CDO Opportunity Master Fund, L.P. ("CDO Fund," and together with SOHC, the "Fund Counterparties")—to establish a warehouse facility to finance the acquisition of syndicated leveraged loans and credit default swaps. (Ex. A, 4/12/07 Original Synthetic Warehouse Agreement; Ex. B, 4/20/07 Original Engagement Ltr.; Ex. C, 5/22/07 Original Cash Warehouse Agreement.) Those assets, in turn, were to serve as the basis for a securitization pursuant to which notes would be sold to investors. Due to market conditions, the securitized offering did not occur by the contractual deadline, and the CLO Warehouse Agreements terminated. In March 2008, UBS, the Debtor, and the Fund Counterparties entered into restructured warehouse agreements (collectively, the "Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements"). (Motion at ¶6, Exs. C, D, E.) The Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements gave UBS the right to make margin calls on the Fund Counterparties in the event of a decline in the market value of the loans and swaps. Furthermore, those agreements explicitly placed the risk of loss on the Fund Counterparties, and not Highland, as the New York court has found. UBS Securities LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 893 N.Y.S.2d 869 (N.Y. App. Div. 2010) ("the agreements between the parties contain no promise on the part of Highland to undertake liability with respect to the investment losses suffered by plaintiffs, or to ensure or guarantee the performance of [Fund Counterparties]' obligations to bear the risk of investment losses.").

As the market deteriorated in the fall of 2008, UBS made three margin calls on the Fund Counterparties. SOHC satisfied the first two margin calls in September and October 2008, using funds provided by SOHC's parent corporation, Highland Financial Partners, L.P. ("HFP"). UBS

Securities LLC, et al v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, No. 650097-2009, at 4 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Nov. 19, 2019). The Fund Counterparties failed to satisfy a third margin call in November 2008, and UBS issued a notice of termination of the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements in December. Id.[4]

Meanwhile, during the fall of 2008, certain funds then managed by the Debtor—including Highland Crusader Offshore Partners, L.P.[5]—transferred certain assets to HFP in exchange for HFP 10% promissory notes (the "HFP Notes Transactions"). (See Ex. D, Expert Report of Louis G. Dudney, Mar. 8, 2013, at 21-24.) HFP was not a party to either the CLO Warehouse Agreements or the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements.

On February 24, 2009, UBS commenced a lawsuit against Highland and the Fund Counterparties in New York state court, alleging breach of the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements by the Fund Counterparties and seeking indemnification from Highland for certain losses. (Ex. F, Compl., UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., No. 650097/09 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Feb. 24, 2009).) In the course of that litigation, the indemnification claim—the only cause of action that UBS asserted against Highland in its initial complaint—was dismissed by the New York appellate court. UBS Securities LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 893 N.Y.S.2d 869 (N.Y. App. Div. 2010) ("the agreements between the parties contain no promise on the part of Highland to undertake liability with respect to the investment losses suffered by plaintiffs, or to ensure or guarantee the performance of [Fund Counterparties]' obligations to bear the risk of investment losses."). That court also barred UBS from asserting any claims against Highland for conduct occurring before UBS filed its initial complaint (i.e., before February 24, 2009) because UBS failed to plead such claims in its initial complaint. UBS Securities LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 927 N.Y.S.2d 59 (N.Y. App. Div., Jul. 21, 2011) (holding that "res judicata applied to bar claims in second action to the extent that they implicated events alleged to have occurred before filing of original complaint.").

[4] UBS's Motion employs sleight of hand by defining the term "Highland" to include the Fund Counterparties. Motion at 3. Accordingly, while the Motion states that "Highland posted the required collateral" and refers to "Highland's default on UBS's third margin call," it was the Fund Counterparties that posted collateral and failed to meet the final margin call. See Motion at 7.

[5] The other transferees were Highland CDO Opportunities Master Fund, Ltd., Highland Credit Strategies Master Fund, L.P., Highland Credit Opportunities CDO, Ltd., Highland Crusader Holding Co., and Highland Capital Management L.P. (Ex. D, Expert Report of Louis G. Dudney, Mar. 8, 2013, at 21-24; see Ex. E, 3/20/2009 Termination, Settlement, and Release Agreement at 2.)

As discussed below, one of the key threshold issues which a court will need to decide—and which the New York court has not yet considered—is the extent to which res judicata bars UBS from any recovery from the Debtor's estate that is based on conduct occurring before February 24, 2009. If res judicata bars such claims, UBS cannot now hold the Debtor responsible for the $1 billion judgment that UBS obtained against the Fund Counterparties.

B. The HFP Notes Transactions are Unwound

The parties to the HFP Notes Transactions unwound those transactions on or about March 20, 2009. (Ex. E, 3/20/2009 Termination, Settlement, and Release Agreement.) As a result, the notes were cancelled and HFP returned the assets to the applicable transferors, including the Crusader Fund and the Credit Strategies Fund. (See Ex. D, Expert Report of Louis G. Dudney, Mar. 8, 2013, at 32.) On February 16, 2010, UBS sought to file an amended complaint that included claims against Highland asserting that the unwinding of the HFP Notes Transactions was a fraudulent conveyance that benefitted Highland, and that by causing the unwinding Highland breached the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. (Ex. G, 2/16/10 UBS Ltr. to Court, UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., No. 650097/09 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.). The court did not allow all of UBS's amendments, so UBS commenced another action against Highland and other entities, including the Highland Crusader Fund, and the lawsuits filed in 2009 and 2010 were later consolidated into one action. See Compl., UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., No. 650752/10 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.) (ECF Nos. 2, 22).

C. UBS Releases Claims Against Highland.

Extensive pre-trial litigation ensued. In 2015, two of the defendants to the fraudulent transfer claims relating to the unwinding of the HFP Notes Transactions—the Crusader Fund and the Credit Strategies Fund—entered into settlements with UBS. Highland was a party to each settlement agreement.[6] Those agreements settled all of UBS's claims in the New York Action against those two funds. In addition, the settlement agreements explicitly provided that UBS released Highland from all claims arising from the allegedly fraudulent transfers to the Crusader Fund or the Credit Strategies Fund, respectively, in connection with the unwinding of the HFP Notes Transactions. Highland is one of the "Covered Persons" in the following operative release provision:

> UBS Releasing Parties do hereby release, and covenant not to sue, the Covered Persons[7] with respect to such Claims to the limited extent the Claims are for losses or other relief specifically arising from the fraudulent transfers to Crusader alleged in the UBS Litigation.

(Ex. H, 6/17/15 UBS and Crusader Fund Settlement Agreement, at 5.3; see Ex. I, 6/11/15 UBS and Credit Strategies Fund Settlement Agreement, at 5.3.)

According to UBS's expert in the New York action, the assets that were the subject of the alleged fraudulent transfers to the two settling defendants represented 83.35% of the value of all

[6] The Crusader Fund's settlement was reached through the efforts of the Redeemer Committee.
[7] A "Covered Person," under the agreement is: "[Highland Capital Management, L.P.] and its past, present, or future parents, subsidiaries (other than the Crusader Released Parties), affiliates (other than the Crusader Released Parties), administrators, predecessor entities, officers, directors, partners, members, managers, successors and assigns, transferees, attorneys, insurers, sureties, feeder funds and employees." (Ex. H, 6/17/15 UBS and Crusader Fund Settlement Agreement, at 5.3; see Ex. I, 6/11/15 UBS and Credit Strategies Fund Settlement Agreement, at 5.3.)

of the assets that are the subject of the fraudulent transfer claims. (Ex. D, Expert Report of Louis G. Dudney, Mar. 8, 2013, at 77.) No court has yet decided the extent to which the releases in those settlement agreements bar portions of UBS's claim against the Debtor. That issue should materially limit the amount of UBS's claim.

D. UBS Requests Bifurcated Trials

In 2018, UBS moved the New York court to bifurcate the proceedings against Highland, the Fund Counterparties and the other remaining defendants into: (i) a trial on the claims against the Fund Counterparties relating to the breach of the Restructured Warehouse Agreements, and (ii) a trial on the claims against Highland and the remaining Highland affiliate defendants with respect to the unwinding of the HFP Notes Transactions and related matters that took place after February 24, 2009. (Ex. J, Pl's Mot. to Bifurcate, UBS Securities LLC, et al v. Highland Capital Mgmt. L.P., et al, No. 650097-2009 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Apr. 18, 2018) ("UBS Bifurcat. Mot.").) Significantly, UBS argued that "the facts relevant to the claims in the two trials are distinct," and that the trials would "have minimal overlap in evidence and issues." (UBS Bifurcat. Mot., at 10.) Further, UBS argued that "the second trial, which will relate to new parties and different claims, will involve new factual issues that will not be addressed at all in the first trial," and that "the issues and evidence are largely separate and certainly will not be inextricably interwoven and intertwined." (Id. at 11, 15.) The New York court ruled in favor of UBS, and bifurcated the proceedings. (Ex. K, 5/1/2018 Hearing Tr., UBS Securities LLC, et al v. Highland Capital Mgmt. L.P., et al, No. 650097-2009 at 35:15-22 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. May 1, 2018).)

The New York court held a bench trial in July 2018 on the breach of contract claims against the Fund Counterparties under the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements. The trial court issued its decision in November 2019, finding the Fund Counterparties liable for breaching the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements and awarded damages in the amount of $519,374,149, plus prejudgment interest, for a total judgment of approximately $1.05 billion. UBS Securities LLC, et al v. Highland Capital Mgmt. L.P., et al, No. 650097-2009 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Nov. 19, 2019) [Doc. No. 641]. However, the New York court made no findings with respect to Highland or the remaining defendants.[8] Those claims were scheduled to be heard during a second trial.

III. ARGUMENT

This Court should not exercise its discretion to lift the automatic stay to permit UBS to litigate its claim in the New York court. As discussed below, each element of UBS's position either is lacking in merit or is outweighed by the prejudice that the Debtor's unsecured creditors would experience if UBS were permitted to litigate in the New York court.

A. There is No Basis to Lift the Stay Because of a Purported Agreement with the Debtor

It is well settled that a debtor-in-possession's agreement to lift the automatic stay is not enforceable absent Bankruptcy Court approval. "As a rule, a debtor may not unilaterally waive the automatic stay. The stay protects both debtors and creditors, and 11 U.S.C. § 362 grants the bankruptcy court the exclusive authority to grant relief from the stay." In re Delta Investments & Dev., LLC, 2019 WL 137578, at *13 (Bankr. S.D. Miss. Jan. 8, 2019) (internal citation omitted); see Hill v. Wilson, 2009 WL 10689099, at *1 (N.D. Ala. Mar. 17, 2009) ("Likewise, Trucking cannot waive the automatic stay, because any relief from a stay must be authorized by the bankruptcy court."); In re Enron Corp., 300 B.R. 201, 213 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2003) ("It is well settled that, since the purpose of the automatic stay is to protect creditors as well as the debtor, the debtor may not waive the stay."). The automatic stay is not an asset of the debtor that may be bargained away in a private negotiation, and then presented to this Court after the fact for formulaic approval. Instead, an "agreement to modify or terminate the automatic stay requires court approval after notice and an opportunity to object is provided to all parties in interest." Matter of Pease, 195 B.R. 431, 433 (Bankr. D. Neb. 1996).

[8] In UBS's motion to bifurcate, UBS identified the remaining defendants and the respective claims against them as: (1) Highland CDO Master Fund, L.P., fraudulent inducement and fraudulent conveyance; (2) Highland Special Opportunities Holding Company, fraudulent inducement and fraudulent conveyance; (3) Highland Financial Partners, L.P., alter ego and fraudulent conveyance; (4) Strand Advisors, Inc., general partner liability; and (5) Highland Credit Opportunities CDO, L.P., fraudulent conveyance. See UBS Mot. to Bifurcate at 2-3. UBS did not include any alter ego claim against Highland.

UBS cannot persuasively assert that it has been prejudiced by entering into a supposed agreement with Highland to lift the stay when any such agreement is not enforceable absent Bankruptcy Court approval. However, the Debtor's other unsecured creditors would be greatly prejudiced if this Court were to enforce such an agreement. That would effectively call a halt to these bankruptcy proceedings for the benefit of a single creditor who asserts an oversized claim.

B. There Is No Cause to Lift the Automatic Stay

"The automatic stay is intended to 'allow the bankruptcy court to centralize all disputes concerning property of the debtor's estate so that reorganization can proceed efficiently, unimpeded by uncoordinated proceedings in other arenas.'" In re Residential Capital, LLC, 2012 WL 3555584, at *4 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. Aug. 16, 2012) (citing SEC v. Brennan, 230 F.3d 65, 71 (2d Cir. 2000)). Under § 362(d)(1), a bankruptcy court may lift the automatic stay for "cause." "There is no mandatory standard for finding 'cause' in the Fifth Circuit." In re Choice ATM Enterprises, Inc., 2015 WL 1014617, at *5 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Mar. 4, 2015). "Ultimately, the granting of relief from the automatic stay is left to the discretion of the Bankruptcy Court and decided on a case by case basis." Id. citing In re Fowler, 259 B.R. 856, 858 (Bankr. E.D. Tex. 2001).

Courts consider any number of factors when determining whether to lift the automatic stay. In re Choice ATM Enterprises, Inc., 2015 WL 1014617, at *5 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Mar. 4, 2015)

(discussing various factors applied by different courts). In order to streamline the analysis, this Objection addresses the two factors that UBS highlights: (i) the prejudice to the parties, and (ii) judicial economy. UBS fails to carry its burden as to each of these factors.

i. Lifting the Stay Will Substantially Prejudice Other Creditors

When considering whether to lift the automatic stay to permit a creditor to continue litigation in another forum, courts consider the centrality of the claim to the overall estate. See, e.g., In re Choice ATM Enterprises, Inc., 2015 WL 1014617, at *6 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Mar. 4, 2015) In Choice ATM Enterprises, the court denied a motion to lift the automatic stay because the moving creditor's claim "would be the largest claim against the estate" and thus "critical to the reorganization." Id. Because of the importance of the claim, the court reasoned that "by retaining [the claims], this court can rapidly proceed through the claims estimate process and impose a lesser burden on [the debtor] and avoid the aforementioned unnecessary delay and expense." Id.

It cannot be disputed that the validity and amount of UBS's claim is of central importance to the Debtor's estate and the creditors' ultimate recoveries. UBS asserts the largest disputed claim in this case by a significant margin—more than five times greater than the largest liquidated claim. If the stay is lifted, creditors will have no right to participate in the New York action, and will be relegated to sitting on the sidelines with respect to the determination of what could well be the most important dispute in this chapter 11 case. If history is any guide, the adjudication of that claim by the New York court will take several years. As a result, UBS would be able essentially to dictate the terms of any plan simply as a consequence of its ability to litigate before the New York court. Moreover, given the overhang of a $1 billion disputed claim that would not be subject to this Court's claims reconciliation process, it is difficult to envision how creditors could receive any meaningful recoveries until the New York court enters a final, non-appealable order. This Court should "preserv[e] a level playing field for negotiation of a consensual reorganization plan" and promote prompt and equitable distributions to all creditors by denying UBS's motion. In re Conejo Enterprises, Inc., 96 F.3d 346, 352 (9th Cir. 1996) ("[T]he bankruptcy court's efforts to preserve a level playing field for all parties to negotiate a plan was a rational basis for denying relief from the automatic stay.") (internal citations and quotations omitted).

Not surprisingly, UBS fails to cite a single case where a bankruptcy court has lifted the stay, or otherwise abstained, to permit a state court to adjudicate a claim that would largely determine the outcome of a chapter 11 case and control when creditors receive distributions. Requiring Highland to litigate "damages claims in another forum would upend the strong bankruptcy code policy that favors centralized and efficient administration of all claims in the bankruptcy court. It would be unfair to other creditors who must bring their claims in this Court." In re Residential Capital, LLC, 2012 WL 3555584, at *4 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. Aug. 16, 2012) (internal citation and quotation omitted).

ii. Judicial Economy is Best Served by this Court Resolving UBS's claim Against Highland.

UBS contends that judicial economy is best served by having the New York court adjudicate its claim against the Debtor. That argument relies upon obfuscations of the scope of the issues the New York court addressed in the bench trial involving the Fund Counterparties and the claims that UBS has litigated against the Debtor to date in New York. Contrary to UBS's argument: (a) the claims against Highland in what would be "trial number two" in New York are distinctly different from the case that was tried there in 2018, as UBS itself persuasively argued to get the claims bifurcated for trial; (b) the most significant remedy that UBS now seeks to assert against the Debtor—namely, that the Debtor is the alter ego of the Fund Counterparties—has not been pleaded, much less litigated, in New York; and (c) there are at least two threshold legal issues—res judicata and release—which are likely to impact materially the size of any allowable claim against the Debtor. Particularly given that New York civil procedure freely allows interlocutory appeals, and that the New York court has been closed for several months in response to the pandemic (and that it is uncertain when it will resume holding jury trials),[9] it will certainly be several years before the New York court can enter a final, non-appealable order. It will be much more efficient for this Court to determine the validity and, if applicable, amount of UBS's claim against the Debtor.

When it sought bifurcation in New York, UBS accurately described the relationship between the first trial against the Fund Counterparties based on breach of the Restructured CLO Warehousing Agreements and the trial against Highland and other defendants involving post-February 2009 transactions. UBS represented that "the facts relevant to the claims in the two trials are distinct," and that the trials would "have minimal overlap in evidence and issues." (UBS Bifurcat. Mot., at 10.) UBS stressed that "the second trial, which will relate to new parties and different claims, will involve new factual issues that will not be addressed at all in the first trial," and that "the issues and evidence are largely separate and certainly will not be inextricably interwoven and intertwined." (Id. at 11, 15.)

Even if the underlying facts and legal theories with respect to each trial were not as distinct as UBS previously admitted, UBS's claim against the Debtor requires resolution of two threshold issues that the New York court has not considered. The first threshold issue is whether the doctrine of res judicata precludes any part of the claim that UBS is now asserting against the Debtor. As noted above, the New York Appellate Division held that res judicata bars UBS from asserting any claim against Highland based on conduct occurring before February 24, 2009. UBS Sec. LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 86 A.D.3d 469, 927 N.Y.S.2d 59 (2011). That court ruled, "Here, to the extent the claims against Highland in the new complaint implicate events alleged to have taken place before the filing of the original complaint, res judicata applies. That is because UBS's claims against Highland in the original action and in this action all arise out of the restructured warehousing transaction." Id. at *474.[10] The application of res judicata is critical given that UBS now apparently seeks to hold the Debtor liable as the alter ego of the Fund Counterparties in connection with the Fund Counterparties' pre-February 24, 2009 breach of the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements.

[9] Due to the Covid-19 epidemic, New York courts initially did not accept papers on any non-essential matters during the period beginning March 22, 2020 and ending May 25, 2020, and, beginning on March 16, has not been holding civil jury trials. (Ex. L, NYS Court Admin. Order A0-78-20 (Mar. 22, 2020); Ex. M, NYS Court Admin. Order AO-68-20 (Mar. 16, 2020)). As of May 25, 2020, the New York court may accept papers, but only in electronic format. (Ex. N, NYS Court Admin. Order AO/115/20, at ¶3, Ex. B (May 28, 2020).

The second threshold legal issue is the extent to which the releases UBS gave to Highland in the Crusader Fund and Credit Strategies Fund settlements in 2015 apply to foreclose or limit any recovery against the Debtor arising from the post-February 24, 2009 fraudulent transfer claims and the related claim asserting breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. In those settlements, UBS released claims applying to 83.35% of the challenged asset transfers. (See Ex. D, Expert Report of Louis G. Dudney, Mar. 8, 2013, at 77.)

This Court is well positioned to address these legal questions, which do not involve novel or uncertain issues of New York state law, and to do so expeditiously. Colvin v. Amegy Mortg. Co., 507 B.R. 915, 921 (W.D. Tex. 2014) (citing Matter of Wood, 825 F.2d 90, 96 (5th Cir. 1987)

[10] In addition, as previously discussed, the New York Appellate Division dismissed UBS's claim for indemnification that was based on conduct prior to February 24, 2009. UBS Securities LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 893 N.Y.S.2d 869 (N.Y. App. Div. 2010) ("the agreements between the parties contain no promise on the part of Highland to undertake liability with respect to the investment losses suffered by plaintiffs, or to ensure or guarantee the performance of [Fund Counterparties]' obligations to bear the risk of investment losses.").

("the bankruptcy judge is constantly enmeshed in state-law issues."); In re Breitburn Energy Partners LP, 571 B.R. 59, 68 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2017) ("Further, in contrast to the property issues discussed earlier, the Tort Counts do not present difficult issues of Texas law.") One court noted that "the mere presence of state law issues does not mean that jurisdiction over bankruptcy issues should be left to the state courts" and that their presence is not "enough for permissive abstention." In re Kewanee Boiler Corp., 270 B.R. 912, 923 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2002). The court reasoned that, "[o]therwise, the central goal of bankruptcy which is the centralized administration of a debtor's estate would usually be impossible to achieve since most bankruptcy cases involve some issues of state law." Id. Moreover, UBS does not argue that its claims for fraudulent transfer or breach of good faith and fair dealing involve unsettled questions of state law. See In re Chateaugay Corp., 1990 WL 692236, at *2 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. Jul. 11, 1990) ("The issues presented in this Adversary Proceeding are not redolent with unsettled questions of state law. The state law issues involved require only the application of settled principles of contract law.").

Judicial efficiency will be served by having this Court timely adjudicate the dispute given the more streamlined claims reconciliation process available under the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure. This is particularly true because New York civil procedure freely permits interlocutory appeals. See N.Y. C.P.L.R. 5701 (McKinney). "On the spectrum of what is appealable, New York is the most generous." HANNAH M. SMITH, Using the Scientific Method in the Law: Examining State Interlocutory Appeals Procedures That Would Improve Uniformity, Efficiency, and Fairness in the Federal Appellate System, 61 CLEV. ST. L. REV. 259, 272 (2013). Even the most cursory review of the ten years of litigation that UBS has already engaged in with Highland and its affiliates reveals that repeated appeals of the trial court's decisions resulted in substantial delays.

That New York practice allows interlocutory appeals is particularly important because UBS—notwithstanding the decade of litigation—is only now attempting to recover against the Debtor as the alter ego of the Fund Counterparties. While the Motion does not disclose how UBS would attempt to accomplish this in the New York court, it is fair to conclude that UBS's pursuit of this new remedy would involve litigation that would permit the losing party to appeal each of the trial court's decisions along the way. Conversely, UBS can assert such a claim in its proof of claim filed with this Court, and the dispute can be decided efficiently without pauses to learn the outcomes of numerous interlocutory appeals. See, e.g., In re Dorris Mktg. Grp., Inc., 2005 WL 6267050, at *2 (Bankr. E.D. Va. Jan. 27, 2005) ("[I]t is nevertheless the exceptional case in which the stay will be modified to permit litigation" in part because maintaining the stay prevents the "efficient administration of bankruptcy cases from being held hostage to the crowded condition of another court's docket.").

For all of these reasons, this Court should not exercise its discretion to lift the automatic stay.

C. There is No Basis for a Further Extension of the Bar Date

In a final plea to be treated uniquely from other creditors, UBS asks the Court, in the alternative, to extend the bar date as to UBS so that UBS does not have to submit itself to the jurisdiction of this Court and waive any right to a jury trial. UBS does not cite any precedent in support of its request that this Court employ its authority under section 105(a) of the Bankruptcy Court to further extend the bar date. That is because section 105(a)—which authorizes the Bankruptcy Court to "issue any order . . . necessary or appropriate to carry out the provisions" of the Bankruptcy Code—cannot be used to perform an end-run around well settled authority or contravene an order of this Court. UBS acknowledges that the Supreme Court has consistently ruled that a creditor who submits a proof of claim has no right to a jury trial. Motion at 13, 14. UBS's proposed solution is that this "Court should enter an Order that the filing of a proof of claim will not waive UBS's right to a jury trial." Motion at 25. Section 105(a) does not grant a Bankruptcy Court the authority to effectively override two Supreme Court cases. In re Legendary Field Exhibitions, LLC, 2020 WL 211409, at *4 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. Jan. 13, 2020) ("Because Granfinanciera held that the right to a jury trial only extends to matters that are legal in nature and involve private rights, a creditor that files a claim loses its Seventh Amendment right to a jury trial. . . . Even if a creditor attempts to couch its claim in protective language reserving the right to a jury trial, such protective language is not binding on the Court; rather, the Court is bound by Langenkamp and Granfinanciera, which found that filing a proof of claim results in waiver of the right to jury trial."); Granfinanciera, S.A. v. Nordberg, 492 U.S. 33 (1981); Langenkamp v. Culp, 498 U.S. 42, 45, (1990).

UBS's alternative solution is even bolder, and represents perhaps the purest expression of its litigation strategy. UBS asks this Court to extend the bar date as to UBS's claim for an indeterminate period. Motion at 25. In addition to this proposal being impractical—and demonstrating that UBS's underlying intention is simply to gain negotiating leverage through delay—UBS's proposal directly conflicts with an agreement that UBS entered into with the Debtor which, unlike the alleged agreement to lift the automatic stay, was approved by this Court. The Joint Stipulation and Order Extending Bar Date, entered by this Court on March 22, 2020, expressly provides, in relevant part, that the bar date for UBS to file its claim is extended to the date that is five business days after this Court enters an order on the Motion. [Docket No. 543 at 2.] UBS fails to set forth any basis why it should not be held to the terms of its agreement, approved by this Court and memorialized in a final order. See Fed. R. Bankr. P. 9024 (providing that Fed.

R. Civ. P. 60 applies in bankruptcy cases) & Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b) (setting forth the basis upon which a court may relieve a party from a final order).

For all these reasons, this Court should decline to extend the bar date for UBS any further.

ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P. AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP, LLC'S JOINDER TO THE REDEEMER COMMITTEE'S OBJECTION TO UBS'S MOTION FOR RELIEF FROM THE AUTOMATIC STAY TO PROCEED WITH STATE COURT ACTION

Acis Capital Management, L.P. ("Acis LP") and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC ("Acis GP," together with Acis LP, "Acis") file this Joinder (the "Joinder") to the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Funds' Objection [Docket No. 692](the "Redeemer Objection") to the Motion for Relief from the Automatic Stay to Proceed with State Court Action [Docket No. 644] (the "UBS Motion") filed by UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch (together "UBS").[1]

[1] Unless otherwise defined herein, Acis incorporates by reference all defined terms in the Redeemer Objection.

I. JOINDER

1. On June 3, 2020, the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund (the "Redeemer Committee") filed the Redeemer Objection, objecting to the UBS Motion.

2. Acis hereby joins the Redeemer Objection, objects to the UBS Motion, and adopts the Redeemer Committee's legal argument and authority.

3. In addition to the points made by the Redeemer Committee, Acis notes something about UBS's claim that is not apparent from the UBS Motion. As outlined in the New York Court's decision, from the time UBS seized the assets from the Fund Counterparties until UBS sold them, the assets appreciated significantly in value. Docket No. 644-2 at 28-36. The New York Court ruled that the Fund Counterparties were not entitled to an offset from the enormous post-breach gains UBS made when it ultimately sold the assets it seized, instead finding damages based on the depressed value of the assets on the date of breach. Id. But Acis believes offset will factor prominently in any assessment of whether the Debtor is the alter ego of the Fund Counterparties such that "the corporate form [should] be disregarded to achieve an equitable result." Clark Rigging & Rental Corp. v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 179 A.D.3d 1510, 1511 (N.Y. App. Div. 2020) (emphasis added). In light of UBS's enormous post-breach gains, whether UBS needs or is entitled to equity is an issue that the New York Court has not yet addressed, and which this Court of equity is uniquely situated to promptly adjudicate after hearing from all parties in interest. Debtor's creditors, minus UBS, will have no such voice in the New York Court.

II. PRAYER

Acis respectfully requests that this Court deny the UBS Motion. Acis also requests such other and further relief to which it may show itself to be justly entitled.

DATED: June 3, 2020.

Respectfully submitted,

By: /s/ Brian P. Shaw

OBJECTION TO PROOF OF CLAIM OF ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT L.P. AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP, LLC

Pursuant to sections 502(b)-(d) and 558 of Title 11 of the United States Code (the "Bankruptcy Code") and Rule 3007 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the

[1] The Debtor's last four digits of its taxpayer identification number are (6725). The headquarters and service address for the above-captioned Debtor is 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, TX 75201.

"Bankruptcy Rules"), debtor and debtor in possession Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor") hereby objects to Proof of Claim No. 3 (the "Acis Claim") filed by claimants Acis Capital Management L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC (together, "Acis").

The Debtor respectfully submits that there are numerous bases for the summary disposition of all claims for relief asserted in the Acis Claim, and represents as follows:

Preliminary Statement

1. The Acis Claim incorporates the complaint from litigation commenced by the trustee of the former estate in the Acis bankruptcy case (the "Acis Case") at a time when Acis had unpaid creditors (the "Acis Complaint").[2] The trustee sought to avoid and recover certain transfers by Acis that were allegedly intended to prevent its largest creditor, Josh Terry, from collecting his $8.168 million arbitration award (the "Arbitration Award"). The transfers, allegedly orchestrated by James Dondero using his common control and ownership interests in Acis, the Debtor and the other Highland entities, were purportedly intended to "denude" Acis by transferring certain of its management contracts and interests in the managed assets to its affiliates, including the Debtor. Finding a likelihood of success that certain transfers were avoidable, the Court issued a preliminary injunction, which was carried over into a "Temporary Plan Injunction" that allowed Acis to manage those assets to pay creditors. Consistent with that substantive basis, the injunction expires once those creditors are paid in full. That is the operating principle of the Acis Plan: creditors are paid using assets temporarily diverted from the putative transferees that are named as defendants in the Acis Complaint.

[2] Specifically, the Acis Claim incorporates the Second Amended Complaint (Including Claim Objections and Objections to Administrative Expense Claims) filed in Adversary No. 18-03078 in the Acis Case.

2. The Acis Plan has worked as intended. The income diverted by the temporary injunction will soon have paid Mr. Terry and Acis's other creditors 102% of their claims, plus all of the administrative expenses incurred to achieve that result. There will no longer be an estate or estate claims to administer. Having served its purpose, the injunction dissolves and the creditor remedies asserted in the Acis Complaint become moot. But Acis is doing the opposite. It filed the Acis Claim in the amount of "at least $75 million" and has initiated new lawsuits in federal and state court against employees, advisors and professionals for allegedly breaching duties owed not to creditors but purportedly owed to Acis. The sole beneficiary of these far-flung litigations would be Mr. Terry, whose claim is paid in full under the Acis Plan, except for $1 million with which he chose to purchase Acis's equity.[3] Now Mr. Terry seeks a $75 million windfall, which would come not at Dondero's expense but from the pockets of the Debtor's innocent creditors (including unsecured trade creditors, the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund ("Redeemer"), with an arbitration award of $190,824,557, and UBS Securities LLC ("UBS").

3. Attempted windfalls usually have a fallacious premise, and this one is a $75 million whopper. The fallacy is that Reorganized Acis has greater rights than "old Acis," which at the time of the transfers was a member of the Highland related entities that Acis itself alleges were controlled and primarily owned by Dondero. Acis alleges that each was an alter ego of the others, which means that Acis is just as culpable, and just as much an alter ego, as any of the others. Coupled with the fact that Acis's creditors are being paid in full, several things follow that are instantly fatal to the Acis Claim. None are subject to any factual dispute.

a. First, it is undisputed that at the time of the transfers, James Dondero and Mark Okada were Acis's sole owners, and it is hornbook law that sole owners do not owe fiduciary duties to their company. Subject of course to the rights of creditors to claw back transfers that leave a company unable to pay its debts, Dondero and Okada as Acis's sole owners were free to transfer its assets to other entities, and third parties had no duty or right to stop them. "Delaware law is clear that a company's sole owner cannot breach fiduciary duties 'owed to the companies he wholly owned.' … [Plaintiff] has not cited legal support for the proposition that a nonowner can be liable for conspiring with the sole owner of a partnership for breaching duties that the owner owes himself." Tow v. Amegy Bank N.A., 976 F. Supp. 2d 889, 906-07 (S.D. Tex. 2013) (internal citation omitted). Whatever their motive, if Acis's owners wanted to shut it down, they were free to do so, subject to the rights of creditors, who are being paid in full without any further recovery.[4] Nor can Acis base its claims on the rights of Acis's former creditors. For one thing, they've been paid, and for another, Delaware law does not permit creditors of a limited partnership to sue third parties for breach of fiduciary duty, nor does it permit a trustee to sue on their behalf.[5] These claims are not and cannot as a matter of law be brought for the benefit of Acis's former creditors.

[4] Acis relies heavily on the Arbitration Award, but the panel found no violation of any duty to the partnership. The only duty that the panel found was breached was between partners: it was the duty of the majority partners not to exceed the ratio of expenses to revenue while Terry was a 25% limited partner. Even that duty expired with Terry's partnership interest when his employment was terminated. About that there is no dispute: the cash-out of his partnership interest was the primary component of the Arbitration Award. The panel found that Terry was not wrongfully terminated because his employment was "at-will," but that he was entitled to payment for his partnership interest because the termination was not for cause. Most of the rest of his award was his pro rata partnership share of the alleged Overpayments (which he now seeks to recover twice by claiming them through Acis).

b. Second, even if fiduciary duties had been owed, Acis's duty-based claims against the Debtor and other third parties are barred by the in pari delicto defense. It is a paradigmatic application of the doctrine: Acis cannot sue others for participating in a scheme in which it, as one of the entities it alleges was commonly owned and controlled, was equally culpable. This fundamental defect is obscured by the subsequent appointment of a trustee and change of ownership. But while the Fifth Circuit has not decided the issue, it has affirmed that Bankruptcy Code § 541 subjects trustees and successors to whatever defenses existed against the debtor, and most courts of appeal hold that, as a result, the appointment of a trustee does not "cleanse" the in pari delicto defense (much less, as here, where the claims purportedly revested in the reorganized debtor). Even if the equities are applied, as this Court once held they may, there is no equity in permitting a new owner to sue persons for conspiring with the old owner, in order to parlay a $1 million investment into $75 million, at the expense of this Debtor's creditors. These facts are not in dispute, and the issue can and should be decided on the record before the Court.

c. Third, the fraudulent transfer claims fail, and may be summarily resolved, because the Debtor did not receive the benefit of the alleged fraudulent transfers since (with one exception) it was not the transferee of the transferred rights. Bankruptcy Code §

[5] Beskrone v. OpenGate Capital Grp. (In re Pennysaver USA Publ'g, LLC), 587 B.R. 445, 467 (Bankr. D. Del. 2018); Gavin/Solmonese LLC v. Citadel Energy Partners, LLC (In re Citadel Watford City Disposal Partners, L.P.), 603 B.R. 897, 905 (Bankr. D. Del. 2019).

550(a) is not satisfied as to those transfers for which the Debtor was not the initial transferee: it is insufficient as a matter of law simply to allege an amorphous benefit from being part of the same corporate group. This is all that the Acis Claim alleges – the Debtor benefited solely because it was a Highland related entity. Furthermore, if the Debtor did not receive the benefit from a transfer, there are no damages in the first place. That is shown conclusively by the fact that the earnings derived by Acis from the enjoined transfer of the ALF PMA have already paid Acis's creditors and administrative expenses. That is presumably why the Acis Claim lacks any damage allegations – there are none.

d. Fourth, the fraudulent transfer claims also fail, along with preference claims as well, for another reason that may also be summarily resolved: a debtor cannot recover avoidance claims for its own benefit under section 550(a) of the Bankruptcy Code. There must be a benefit to the debtor's estate. Here, there is nothing left of the former Acis estate: creditors were paid, old equity was canceled, and the new equity is held by a purchaser who paid $1 million, no different than if he had done so in an auction. There is no estate to benefit. Authority before and after Mirant holds that avoidance recoveries should be limited based on equitable considerations, which in this case are conclusively in favor of limiting any recovery to the amount required to satisfy creditors' claims. Unlike Mirant and this Court's Texas Rangers decision, this is not a case in which a recovery will enable a debtor to satisfy outstanding plan obligations, or one in which creditors were forced to take equity instead of cash and are depending on its value for a recovery on their claims.[6] There is no estate and no equities to support Mr. Terry's windfall.

e. Fifth, Acis may not assert for its own benefit any claims against prior equity holders or third parties that were not pending when Mr. Terry purchased the company. The Bangor Punta doctrine holds that a purchaser of controlling equity in a company may not then use the control over the corporate machinery to turn around and assert claims against the prior owners if the claims arose prior to the date when the purchaser took control.[7] The reasons are self-evident and squarely applicable here: the purchaser paid what it considered fair value and has suffered no damage, and to permit such claims would promote the kind of litigation free-for-all in which Mr. Terry is presently engaged. This bars standing as to all claims except those the trustee had already asserted prior to Mr. Terry's purchase (relating to the ALF share transfer, ALF PMA transfer and the note transfer described herein), all of which claims fail for multiple other independent reasons.

f. Sixth, Acis's four claims seeking $7 million in so-called "Overpayments" have no legal basis and should be summarily disallowed. These are payments for services that exceeded, in gross, the expense ratio that was permitted under Acis's limited partnership agreement (the "Acis LPA") without partner consent. The only alleged substantive basis for recovery is the claim that the Overpayments were ultra vires acts, which would be flatly wrong even if it applied in concept (which it does not): (i) Acis was indisputably authorized to pay for services, which is all that matters legally; any excess was not ultra vires but an inter-partner issue already addressed by the Arbitration Award (through which Mr. Terry already recovered his share); (ii) turnover under Bankruptcy Code § 542(a) does not apply to disputed debts as a matter of law; and (iii) and the "money had and received" and conversion claims are equally inapplicable as a matter of law. In any event, most of the time period during which the alleged Overpayments were made is beyond the two year statute of limitations under Texas law.

[6] Significantly, any recovery on preference or constructive fraudulent transfer claims would be offset by the Debtor's resulting claims under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h), which would be entitled to full payment under the Acis Plan.

g. Seventh, Acis's civil conspiracy claim also fails as a matter of law because the claim is not recognized: section 550 provides the statutory remedies for any fraudulent transfer liabilities, and it may not be circumvented by a conspiracy claim.

h. Eighth, Acis's tortious interference claim fails as a matter of law because it does not apply to at-will contracts, and the Debtor had the right to compete for the business.

i. Ninth, Acis's breach of contract claim, like its claim for breach of fiduciary duty, rests on the fallacy that Acis had legal interests that were distinct from those of its sole owners, duties that parties contracting with Acis had a duty to identify and protect even though Acis's sole owners instructed otherwise. That is not the law.

j. Tenth, alter ego liability is inadequately pled; it is a remedy and not a claim and, moreover, is unavailable on the alleged grounds. What Acis alleges is "single enterprise" liability based on common control by Mr. Dondero, a theory never adopted under Delaware law (which controls) and also rejected by the Texas Supreme Court.

k. Numerous other of the Debtor's defenses are meritorious but cannot be decided summarily, including defenses such as solvency (Acis was manifestly solvent without recovering all of the alleged fraudulent or preferential transfers), preference defenses and punitive damages (to the extent any tort claim is not dismissed; notably, such damages would be subordinated at best).

4. The rights of creditors to be paid were the legal basis of the Acis Plan injunction, which is why the injunction terminates once those creditors are paid in full. Mr. Terry elected to acquire new equity for $1 million; he is not entitled to receive another $75 million by claiming that Acis was damaged by those transfers, much less from the pockets of the Debtor's unpaid creditors. To impose on the former partners and third parties such as the Debtor a duty to "restore" $75 million to the former business, not to pay its creditors but for the sole benefit of a successor owner who bought the diminished entity for $1 million, would be a legally groundbreaking windfall, to say the least. The Acis Claim can and should summarily be disallowed in its entirety on the record before the Court.

Jurisdiction

5. The Court has jurisdiction over this matter under the Bankruptcy Code and pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. This matter is a core proceeding within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. §§ 157(b)(2)(A), (B) and (L). Venue is proper in this District under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409.

6. The statutory predicates for the relief requested herein are 11 U.S.C. § 502(b)-(d), 11 U.S.C. § 558 and Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3007.

Factual Background

7. On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the "Delaware Court").

8. On October 29, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the "Committee") was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in the Delaware Court.

9. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the Debtor's Bankruptcy Case to this Court [Docket No. 186].[8]

10. On December 27, 2019, the Debtor filed that certain Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 281] (the "Settlement Motion"). This Court approved the Settlement Motion on January 9, 2020 [Docket No. 339] (the "Settlement Order").

11. The Settlement Order approved, among other things, certain operating and reporting protocols [Docket Nos. 354, 466].

12. In connection with the Settlement Order, an independent board of directors was appointed on January 9, 2020, at the Debtor's general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc. (the "Independent Board")

13. The Debtor has continued in the possession of its property and has continued to operate and manage its business as a debtor-in-possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. No trustee or examiner has been appointed in this chapter 11 case.

Objection

A. Legal Standard

14. The Bankruptcy Code establishes a burden-shifting framework for proving the amount and validity of a claim. "A claim . . . , proof of which is filed under section 501 [of the Bankruptcy Code], is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest . . . objects." 11 U.S.C. § 502(a). "A proof of claim executed and filed in accordance with the [Bankruptcy Rules] shall constitute prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim." Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(f); see also In re Armstrong, 347 B.R. 581, 583 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006). However, the ultimate burden of proof for a claim always lies with the claimant. Armstrong, 347 B.R. at 583 (citing Raleigh v. Ill. Dep't of Rev., 530 U.S. 15 (2000)).

15. The Acis Claim incorporates and is expressly based upon the claims and causes of action asserted in the Acis Complaint filed in the Acis Case. It purports to assert thirty-four claims for relief, which are described and addressed seriatim below.

B. Claims 1-4 to Recover the Alleged Overpayments Must be Disallowed

16. The first four claims are based on service and expense payments by Acis to the Debtor that allegedly exceeded 20% of revenues, without Mr. Terry's consent, in violation of section 3.10(a) of the Acis LPA, which provides that "the aggregate annual expenses of the Partnership … may not exceed 20% of Revenues without the consent of all of the members of the Founding Partner Group." The arbitration panel found that Mr. Terry (still a partner at that time) had not consented to these so-called "Overpayments," which totaled $7,021,924.

17. Acis asserts four claims: (1) the alleged Overpayments were void or voidable ultra vires acts because all of the partners had not consented; (2) the Overpayments are Acis's estate property subject to turnover under Bankruptcy Code § 542(a); (3) the Debtor is liable to return the Overpayments as "money had and received"; and (4) the Debtor is liable for conversion of the alleged Overpayments.[9]

18. Each of the four claims is frivolous, and all should be summarily disallowed: (1) the Alleged Overpayments were not ultra vires; (2) the turnover statute does not apply when the right to the property is disputed; (3) "money had and received" does not apply as a matter of law; and (4) neither does conversion. (As discussed below, even if these claims were not frivolous, because they are brought for the benefit of Acis's equity acquirer and not for the benefit of creditors, they are also barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine.)

1. The Alleged Overpayments Were Not Void or Voidable as Ultra Vires

19. Acis obviously had the power to make payments for services. That is all that would matter even if Delaware had not essentially abolished the ultra vires doctrine.[10] If Acis paid more for services than the Acis LPA permitted without the partners' consent, that is a matter between partners, not an ultra vires act. That is how the arbitration panel treated it for purposes of valuing Mr. Terry's partnership interest: it calculated how much Mr. Terry would have received as a 25% partner had expenses not exceeded the limit, and included it in the Arbitration Award. By necessary extension, the rest of any recovered money should be distributed to the other partners; instead, Mr. Terry seeks to recover it a second time.

[9] Acis appears to base its claims solely on allegations that the alleged Overpayment are void, not on the alleged excessive contract rates. As set forth herein, the Debtor believes all four claims may be summarily disallowed as a matter of law on undisputed facts. Nonetheless, the Debtor reserves the right to bring defenses with respect to whether the rates were reasonable or any other applicable defenses.

[10] See discussion infra; Carsanaro v. Bloodhound Techs., Inc., 65 A.3d 618, 648 (Del. Ch. 2013) (ultra vires applied under former law when "the corporation acted outside the scope of . . . its authorized powers.").

20. Regardless, ultra vires is inapplicable. It formerly applied under Delaware law only when "the corporation acted outside the scope of … its authorized powers" (which was not the case here) but the superseding statute essentially eliminated any utility the ultra vires doctrine had. See Delaware General Corporation Law, § 124 ("No act of a corporation and no conveyance of real or personal property to or by a corporation shall be invalid by reason of the fact that the corporation was without capacity or power to do such act or to make or receive such conveyance or transfer. . . "); see also Carsanaro v. Bloodhound Techs., Inc., 65 A.3d 618, 648 (Del. Ch. 2013).

21. Furthermore, contrary to Acis's suggestion, even if Delaware had not statutorily eliminated ultra vires as a valid concept in corporate law, the concept of ultra vires acts never applied to partnerships. The Acis Claim blatantly misstates the law and the cited decision in stating that corporate law on ultra vires applies by analogy. In re Mesa Ltd. P'ship Preferred Unitholders Litig., Civil Action No. 12,243, 1991 Del. Ch. LEXIS 214, at *20 (Dec. 10, 1991) did not apply ultra vires to a partnership, by analogy or otherwise. In fact, it had nothing whatsoever to do with ultra vires. It was an unpublished decision involving a ratification issue in a breach of fiduciary duty case. Ultra vires was mentioned as one of several things that can be cured by ratification, after which the court began the next paragraph with: "Case rulings construing statutory corporation law are not necessarily binding precedents as to issues arising under contractual partnership agreements but they may often be helpful by analogy." The Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeal has suggested that ultra vires does not apply to partnerships even in concept.[11]

22. Acis does not claim that the alleged Overpayments are void or voidable on any substantive basis other than ultra vires, and thus has no colorable claim under state law to recover its own payments. Accordingly, claims 1-4 must be disallowed under Bankruptcy Code § 502(b)(1). A claimant may not simply venture forth recovering payments a debtor has made without some substantive basis; whether Mr. Terry was deemed to consent to them under the Acis LPA is completely irrelevant.

2. Turnover Under Bankruptcy Code § 542(a) is Inapplicable

23. It is axiomatic that turnover under Bankruptcy Code § 542(a) applies only to obtain possession of property that is indisputably property of the estate. See, e.g., United States v. Inslaw, Inc., 932 F.2d 1467, 1472 (D.C. Cir. 1991) ("It is settled law that the debtor cannot use the turnover provisions to liquidate contract disputes or otherwise demand assets whose title is in dispute."); In re Amcast Indus. Corp., 365 B.R. 91, 122 (Bankr. S.D. Ohio 2007) ("Recovery under 11 U.S.C. § 542 is limited to assets that are undisputedly property of the estate.") (citation omitted). Here, Acis's purported right to the property at issue is clearly in dispute, and section 542(a) is therefore inapplicable.

3. "Money Had and Received" is Also Inapplicable

24. "The quasi-contractual action for money had and received is a cause of action for a debt not evidenced by a written contract between the parties" (MGA Ins. Co. v. Chesnutt, 358 S.W.3d 808, 815 (Tex. App. 2012)). Here, the alleged Overpayments were made pursuant to valid contracts. Once again, therefore, Acis's theory of relief is conceptually inapplicable.

25. Even if there were a claim for "money had and received," a substantial portion of such a claim would be time-barred. The Arbitration Award found that the alleged Overpayments were made from 2014 to May 2016. Texas applies a two-year statute of limitations to claims for money had and received. Merry Homes. Inc. v. Luc Dao, 359 S.W.3d 881, 884 (Tex. App. 2012) (citing "clear precedent"). Accordingly, Acis cannot recover any alleged Overpayments that were made prior to January 31, 2016 (two years prior to the Acis petition date).

4. Conversion is Also Inapplicable

26. Conversion is another inapplicable claim. The Debtor has no identifiable, segregated money subject to recovery through a conversion cause of action, and Acis has not even attempted to identify any such money or property. See, e.g., Lawyers Title Co. v. J.G.

Cooper Dev., Inc., 424 S.W.3d 713, 718 (Tex. App. 2014) ("an action for conversion of money arises only where the money can be identified as a specific chattel, meaning it is (1) defined for safe keeping; (2) intended to be kept segregated; (3) substantially in the form in which it is received or an intact fund; and (4) not the subject of a title claim by the keeper"). As noted above, conversion and similar claims are subject to a two-year statute of limitations (Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code 16.003(a)). Acis cannot meet its burden of proving these requirements.

C. Claims 5-25: All Avoidance Claims Should be Disallowed Because They Seek Recovery Under Section 550(a) of Amounts in Excess of Acis's Plan Obligations

27. Reorganized Acis will no doubt contend that it may prosecute avoidance claims and recover damages without regard to whether creditors are paid in full, because the company itself was damaged by the transfers. The argument is invalid and is based on a gross oversimplification of the law. Reorganized Acis stands in the shoes of old Acis, and debtors cannot recover transfers for their own benefit, except to the extent the recovery is effectively in payment of a claim. Acis has paid its creditors; in fact, it did so with money effectively recovered from the Debtor on one of the very claims it asserts here, by virtue of the Temporary Plan Injunction! Bankruptcy Code § 550 does not permit a debtor or anyone standing in the shoes of the debtor to recover another $75 million for the benefit of the debtor. This is a summary basis for disallowance of all avoidance claims alleged in Claims 5-25.

28. "Courts have consistently held that an avoidance action can only be pursued if there is some benefit to creditors and may not be pursued if it would only benefit the debtor." Balaber-Strauss v. Harrison (In re Murphy), 331 B.R. 107, 122 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y.

2005) (citing Wellman v. Wellman, 933 F.2d 215, 218 (4th Cir. 1991) (denying recovery "when the result is to benefit only the debtor rather than the estate")). Consistent with that principle, the Acis Plan provides that "the Reorganized Debtor shall have exclusive standing . . . to prosecute . . . Estate Claims for the benefit of the Estate . . . ." Acis Plan, § 7.03 (emphasis added). But a recovery of "at least $75 million" in damages demanded by Reorganized Acis will benefit only one person or entity, namely Mr. Terry, who bought the equity interests in the new Acis. Acis's creditors will have been paid in full; none are depending for their recovery on anything more than has already been recovered by means of the Temporary Plan Injunction. Mr. Terry is among those Acis creditors who will have been paid in full. He may claim that he acquired his equity interest in the new Acis in a debt for equity exchange, i.e., by shaving $1 million off his $8.168 million claim, but that is not a recovery on behalf of his claim, but on behalf of the new equity that he bought. There is no substantive difference between discounting a hundred cent claim and a cash purchase. Even if there was, it would not justify such a windfall, much less at the expense of the Debtor's creditors. These include unsecured trade creditors, Redeemer, which has filed a proof of claim in respect of its arbitration award of $190,824,557 in damages as of the petition date, and UBS.

29. Restoring the pre-transfer equity value of the old Acis, after its creditors have been paid in full, and the equity to be "restored" is newly issued and purchased equity, is not the kind of "benefit to the estate" contemplated by MC Asset Recovery LLC v. Commerzbank A.G. (In re Mirant Corp.), 675 F.3d 530, 534 (5th Cir. 2012), as discussed below. There is no post-confirmation "estate" to benefit within the meaning of section 550(a). Unlike any decision in which a recovery was found to at least indirectly benefit an estate, where, e.g., plan obligations were unfulfilled, or even simply to boost equity value where creditors had received new equity interests on account of their claims (as opposed to purchasing the new equity, as Mr. Terry effectively did), there is no benefit to the estate here. Creditors were paid and Acis's equityholders' interests were canceled under the Acis Plan, and with it their partnership, a relationship that dissolved by operation of law upon the bankruptcy of their general partner, Acis LLC.[12] There is only a new owner, Mr. Terry, who purchased the new equity under the Acis Plan exactly as if it were sold at auction. There is no legal basis for Mr. Terry's attempt to stand in the shoes of the preconfirmation partnership in order to recover more assets than necessary to satisfy its liabilities.

30. In fact, there is a triple irony to Reorganized Acis's demand: (i) first, Mr. Terry is already the only person who was paid for his former equity interest in Acis (the value of which was the main component of the Arbitration Award, for which he has been paid in full in cash); (ii) second, the petition-date Acis equity holders (the persons who might have benefited from Acis recovering its prepetition transfers if their interests had not been canceled) will not only see none of any recovery, they or their affiliates are actually the ones being asked to pay it; and (iii) third, the only recipient of the $75 million would be Mr. Terry himself! Presumably, Mr. Terry purchased Reorganized Acis in anticipation of earning money managing assets while it paid Acis creditors; if he anticipated a $75 million return on his $1 million investment at the expense of the Debtor's creditors, it was a gross miscalculation, inconsistent with the law.

[12] As a Delaware entity, Acis LP was governed by the Delaware Revised Uniform Limited Partnership Act ("DRULPA"). DRULPA specifies six different events that trigger the dissolution of a Delaware limited partnership. Pertinent here, these include a withdrawal of the general partner "upon the happening of events specified in a partnership agreement…." Article 5 of the Acis LP Agreement,, captioned "Dissolution and Winding Up," provides that Acis LP "shall be dissolved" upon any of four events, which include the bankruptcy of the general partner (Sec. 5.01(a)). Here, the general partner was co-debtor Acis LLC. State law dissolution may be prevented by an election by the partners to continue the partnership, made within 90 days of the general partner's bankruptcy filing, but that did not occur. "Because these dissolution provisions have been adopted into the partnership law of almost every state, federal bankruptcy courts have generally enforced the UPA and RULPA dissolution provisions as incorporated in state law, and have held partnerships to be dissolved upon the filing of a bankruptcy petition by a general partner." Lawrence J. La Sala, Partner Bankruptcy and Partnership Dissolution: Protecting the Terms of the Contract and Ensuring Predictability, 59 Fordham L. Rev. 619, 621(1991) (citing cases) (available at: https://ir.lawnet.fordham.edu/flr/vol59/iss4/5).

31. Mirant is entirely consistent with the Debtor's position, and is not in derogation of the substantial body of authority holding that section 550 is subject to equitable limitations. In Mirant, the debtor had sued its lenders to avoid a guaranty and recover payments thereunder. Its plan of reorganization provided for the creation of a special litigation entity ("MCAR"). Unsecured creditors received Reorganized Mirant stock and an interest in MCAR's recoveries. The lender moved for summary judgment in part on the basis that creditors would be paid in full and so MCAR lacked standing. The district court found that MCAR had standing (while granting summary judgment on other grounds), ruling in part:

> Finally, and most importantly, the fact that the creditors were paid in New Mirant stock confers standing on MCAR to pursue the avoidance action based on the indirect benefit to the creditors from a more financially sound estate…. [S]ee also Acequia, 34 F.3d at 811-12 (discussing broad interpretations of 'benefit the estate' in context of avoidance actions and fact that equity stake to creditors results in benefit to estate)… In the instant case, the creditors were paid in stock; thus, the prospect of a more financially sound estate would provide MCAR with standing.

Mirant, 441 B.R. 791, 803 (N.D. Tex. 2010) (emphases added).

32. The Fifth Circuit agreed with the district court's ruling on standing (while vacating on other grounds):

> A bankruptcy trustee may still have standing to avoid a fraudulent transfer after the unsecured creditors are satisfied in full. The fraudulent transfer injured the estate and § 550 ensures that the injury is redressed because a trustee may only avoid a transfer to the extent it benefits the estate. Therefore, to the extent that MCAR's successful avoidance of fraudulent transfers will benefit the bankruptcy estate, MCAR has Article III standing to avoid transfers that injured the estate.

Mirant, 675 F.3d at 534 (emphasis added).

33. This Court followed Mirant in the Texas Rangers case. The former debtor, Texas Rangers Baseball Partners ("TRBP") had sued its former ultimate parent, HSG Sports Group ("HSG"), to avoid obligations under an aircraft sharing contract signed on the eve of bankruptcy. TRBP had paid its creditors in full under a confirmed plan. HSG argued that TRBP therefore lacked standing as there would be no benefit to the estate from avoiding the contract. This Court observed Mirant's broad interpretation of "benefit to the estate," while noting two facts critical here: (1) the case at hand was for avoidance only, and not for recovery under section 550(a), and (2) TRBP still had obligations to lenders that had not been paid their entire prepetition indebtedness under the plan. On these facts, the Court found that TRBP had Constitutional standing to assert the fraudulent transfer claim because it would produce a plausible "benefit to the estate."

> Mirant makes clear that "benefit to the estate" does not hinge on whether a Chapter 5 action will result in a pool of assets being garnered for the benefit of unsecured creditors. Here, it is a matter of public record that the equity holders of TRBP have obligations to certain lenders that TRBP was also liable to. . . .
> Thus, to the extent the equities matter here, it would seem that such equities weigh in favor of finding there to be a plausible "benefit to > the estate" argument articulated by TRBP. Accordingly, the court finds that here, TRBP does have Constitutional standing to assert a fraudulent transfer claim under section 548(a)(1)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code, even though unsecured creditors were paid in full under the Plan, and that the Avoidance Complaint should not be dismissed.

Paradigm Air Carriers, Inc. v. Tex. Rangers Baseball Partners (In re Tex. Rangers Baseball Partners), 498 B.R. 679, 709 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2013).

34. The great weight of authority, both pre- and post-Mirant, holds that recovery under section 550(a) is subject to a case-by-case analysis of the facts of the case and the equities. Section 550(a) provides that "the trustee may recover, for the benefit of the estate, the property transferred, or, if the court so orders, the value of such property[.]" 11 U.S.C. § 550(a) (emphasis added).

> Under §550, courts have limited the recovery of pre-petition transfers on equitable principles in a manner consistent with the purposes of the Bankruptcy Code and §550, in particular. See, e.g., In re Sawran, 359 B.R. 348, 353 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 2007) (citing cases). For a concise discussion of the rationales for limiting recovery under 11 U.S.C. §550 based on equitable principles, see Robert B. Bruner and Gerard G. Pecht, The Unexplored Limits of Moore v. Bay: Statutory and Equitable Basis for Limiting Money Damage Awards on Fraudulent Transfer Claims, 26 J. Bankr. L. & Prac. NL Art. 2 (June 2017).

Holber v. Nikparvar (In re Incare, LLC), Nos. 13-14926 ELF, 14-0248, 2018 Bankr. LEXIS 1339, at *35-36 (Bankr. E.D. Pa. May 7, 2018) (citing, among others, Crescent Res. Litig. Tr. ex rel. Bensimon v. Duke Energy Corp., 500 B.R. 464, 481-82 (W.D. Tex. 2013)).

35. Duke Energy is an instructive, post-Mirant decision from the district court in the Western District of Texas, noting that the power to avoid a transfer is not the same as the power to recover under section 550(a) and holding that while the full amount of the fraudulent transfer was legally avoidable, as per Mirant, the court could nonetheless consider "the equitable impact of the Trust's potential recovery" and limit the recovery under section 550. Id. at 481-83.

36. In Duke Energy, the Crescent Resources post-confirmation Trust sued to avoid a 2006 spinoff transaction that allegedly rendered Crescent Resources insolvent while Duke received $1.6 billion. The plan gave the original lenders all of the equity and allowed unsecured claims for the $961 million difference between those claims and the value of their new equity interests. The Plan also formed the Trust and authorized it to pursue claims against third parties. The Trust had two classes of beneficiaries: Class A comprised creditors with $279 million in unrelated claims and Class B included the lenders with their $961 million in allowed claims.

37. Duke Energy defended in part on the basis that the original lenders entered into the 2006 transaction knowing how the loan proceeds would be distributed, and should not benefit from its avoidance. Id. at 478. The district court agreed, referring to Mirant and offering the following section 550(a) analysis:

> There is precious little guidance from the Fifth Circuit on the scope of Section 550(a)'s "for the benefit of the estate" language. Other courts generally interpret the language broadly. See In re Acequia, Inc., 34 F.3d 800, 811 (9th Cir. 1994); In re Tronox Inc., 464 B.R. 606, 617 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2012) (citing Acequia, 34 F.3d at 811). Still, there are numerous examples of cases where courts have denied or limited recovery based on the equitable principles underlying the Bankruptcy Code and Section 550(a) in particular. See, e.g., Wellman v. Wellman, 933 F.2d 215, 218 (4th Cir. 1991) (affirming district court's order holding debtor's avoidance action was not "for the benefit of" the estate); In re Yellowstone Mountain Club, LLC, 436 B.R. 598, 678 (Bankr. D. Mont. 2010) (refusing to > award any recovery to the original lender who was complicit in the fraudulent transfer, as well as syndicate lenders "who have speculated on a monumental award against" the plaintiff); In re Jackson, 318 B.R. 5, 27-28 (Bankr. D.N.H. 2004), aff'd, 459 F.3d 117 (1st Cir. 2006) (because "equity guards against windfalls in general," amount of recovery through Section 550(a) on a Section 544(b) claim may be equitably adjusted); but see Tronox, 464 B.R. at 614 (collecting cases interpreting Section 550(a) as setting "a minimum floor for recovery in an avoidance action," but not "any ceiling on the maximum benefits that can be obtained once that floor has been met").

> The one consistent vein traveling through all of these cases is the fact-specific nature of the inquiry. See, e.g., Wellman, 933 F.2d at 218 ("benefit of the estate" question requires "a case-by-case, fact-specific analysis"); In re Murphy, 331 B.R. 107, 121 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2005) (limiting recovery under Section 550 based on the "extremely unusual" facts of the case). It is therefore instructive to consider the factual circumstances of this case, and the equitable impact of the Trust's potential recovery.

> If the Trust is allowed to recover the $961 million of the term loan proceed transfer destined for the Class B creditors—a group of creditors who all derive their interest in the estate from the original lenders—the banks' high risk investment will pay off in the form of a massive windfall.

Duke Energy, 500 B.R. at 481-82. The district court concluded that there was "no equitable basis" for allowing a recovery to Class B creditors, and granted summary judgment in favor of Duke Energy.

38. Where this Court found the facts and equities in Texas Rangers to favor finding a "benefit to the estate," the facts and equities here point decisively to the opposite conclusion. By comparison, here: (1) Reorganized Acis is seeking not just to avoid obligations but to recover $75 million under section 550(a), (2) Acis's creditors will already have been paid in full at 102% (once Mr. Terry actually elects to pay creditors with the cash at Acis), (3) there are no creditors relying on Reorganized Acis's equity or financial condition to recover on their claims, (4) any recovery would come at the expense of the Debtor's unsecured creditors, and (5) the person to receive the asserted $75 million windfall (i.e., Mr. Terry) paid only $1 million to purchase Acis's interests to take a flyer on this and related litigation. As the court stated in Blixseth v. Kirschner (In re Yellowstone Mt. Club, LLC), supra, 436 B.R. at 678 "the Court will not at this time enter an order that would in any way benefit Credit Suisse, the Prepetition Lenders or other parties who have speculated on a monumental award against Blixseth." See also Wellman, supra, 933 F.2d at 219 (Fourth Circuit denied recovery where the plaintiff/debtor "executed the non-recourse promissory notes to the creditors in an attempt to create a claim in the estate so that he could obtain a "massive surplus recovery" for himself in addition to the surplus distributed to him.").

39. The facts here are firmly aligned with cases dealing with recoveries under section 550(a) such as Adelphia Recovery Trust v. Bank of America, N.A., 390 B.R. 80, 97 (S.D.N.Y. 2008), where the court found no benefit to the estate where all creditors were "paid in full with interest under the Plans and no creditors have been issued shares" in the Adelphia Recovery Trust. As noted, Mr. Terry did not receive the ownership interests in Acis in payment of his claim against the Acis estate (for which claim he received or will receive 102% of his claim amount); he purchased the debtor – Acis – for $1 million, and it is only Mr. Terry who would benefit, not Acis's creditors, employees (there are none) or prior equity holders. "Courts have consistently held that an avoidance action can only be pursued if there is some benefit to creditors and may not be pursued if it would only benefit the debtor." Balaber-Strauss v.

Harrison (In re Murphy), 331 B.R. at 122 (citing Wellman, supra, 933 F.2d at 218 (no recovery "when the result is to benefit only the debtor rather than the estate")).

40. Thus, under sections 548 and 550, "only net amounts diverted from, that is damages consequently suffered by the creditor body of, a debtor may be recovered via a fraudulent conveyance action." In re Foxmeyer Corp., 296 B.R. 327, 342 (Bankr. D. Del. 2003). To do otherwise is solely to benefit the debtor (or, as here, the debtor's purchaser). That is inappropriate under either federal or state fraudulent transfer laws, as discussed at length in Murphy, 331 B.R. at 124-25. As a Minnesota bankruptcy court explained:

> Whether there is a benefit to the estate depends on a case-by-case, fact-specific analysis. [ ] This is not the usual case in which an increase in dollars to the estate results in a patent benefit to the estate. In this case, the increase in dollars to the estate which would result from the requested relief would not provide a benefit to the estate. In this case, the trustee has advised that the amount on hand for distribution from the estate already exceeds the total amount of estimated administrative expenses and all claims. Thus, in this case, the only party to benefit from avoiding and recovering the Transfer would be the debtor.
> Such a benefit to the debtor would be inappropriate. The provisions of MUFTA "protect creditors rather than transferors of debt." See Bartholomew v. Avalon Capital Group, Inc., 828 F.Supp.2d 1019, 1025 (D. Minn. 2009). "Only creditors are entitled to remedies under the UFTA." Id., citing Minn. Stat. §§ 513.47, 513.48(b).

Running v. Dolan (In re Goodspeed), 535 B.R. 302, 315-16 (Bankr. D. Minn. 2015). Noting that trustees are the exception since they sue on behalf of creditors, the court observed that nonetheless there must be a benefit to creditors, citing and extensively quoting Murphy and Wellman, supra.

41. To permit any recovery under section 550(a) beyond the amount needed to pay creditors would create a new duty under state law. Acis's former equity holders, as its sole owners, had no duty under applicable state law to Acis, or anyone else other than creditors, to refrain from making the transfers at issue, nor did the Debtor or any of the other related entities or professionals who are now litigation targets have any right or obligation to stop them. Thus in a trustee's lawsuit against former partners of a debtor partnership, in which the trustee alleged in part that the partners had conspired to "set into motion a series of transactions that crippled [the debtor partnership]," the district court for the Southern District of Texas explained and held in part:

> Delaware law is clear that a company's sole owner cannot breach fiduciary duties "owed to the companies he wholly owned." See Midland Food Services, LLC v. Castle Hill Holdings V, LLC, 792 A.2d 920, n. 14 (Del. Ch. 1999) (citing Goodman v. Futrovsky, 42 Del. Ch. 468, 213 A.2d 899, 902 (1965) (the defendants could not defraud company since they "were the sole owners . . . and could do with it as they wished"), cert denied, 383 U.S. 946, 86 S. Ct. 1197, 16 L. Ed. 2d 209 (1966). Tow has not cited legal support for the proposition that a nonowner can be liable for conspiring with the sole owner of a partnership for breaching duties that the owner owes himself.

Tow v. Amegy Bank N.A., 976 F. Supp. 2d 889, 906-07 (S.D. Tex. 2013) (emphasis added). See also Newman v. Toy, 926 S.W.2d 629, 631 (Tex. App.-Austin 1996, writ denied) ("A sole shareholder or all shareholders acting in agreement, being all the beneficial owners of corporate property, may themselves deal with such property so long as the rights of creditors are not prejudiced ...").

42. Accordingly, any recoveries of the transfers sought to be avoided in the Acis Claim should be limited to any amount needed to satisfy obligations under the Acis Plan, that is to say, to pay creditors and administrative claimants in full. No creditors have a stake in restoring Acis to the financial condition it occupied prior to any of the transfers that are the subject matter of the Acis Claim, at least not on account of any unpaid claims. Upon payment of creditors in full under the Acis Plan, therefore, all avoidance claims should be dismissed as moot, and the only thing stopping the avoidance claims from actually being moot is Mr. Terry's unwillingness to pay Acis's creditors with the cash at Acis.

D. Acis is Barred Under the Bangor Punta Doctrine From Asserting For Its Own Benefit All Claims Not Asserted Pre-Acquisition – Claims 1-8 and 21-34 – Excepting Only Claims Related to the ALF PMA Transfer (Claims 9-12), the ALF Share Transfer (Claims 13-16), and the Note Transfer (Claims 17-20)

43. In Bangor Punta Operations, Inc. v. Bangor & A. R. Co., 417 U.S. 703, 94 S. Ct. 2578, 2584-85 (1974); the Supreme Court held that a stockholder who has purchased all or substantially all of the shares of a corporation from a vendor at a fair price may not seek to have the acquired corporation recover against the vendor for prior corporate mismanagement and waste of corporate assets that may have occurred during the prior vendor's ownership. Bangor Punta, 417 U.S. at 710. "What the Bangor Punta Doctrine does prohibit is purchasers . . . from accepting their end of the bargain - - ownership and control of the corporation - - and attempting to sweeten their end of the deal by suing the seller to recover damages to the corporation allegedly caused by the seller before the sale. The Bangor Punta Doctrine properly prohibits as inequitable such attempts at re-trading commercial transactions through litigation. Midland Food Servs., LLC v. Castle Hill Holdings V, L.L.C., 792 A.2d 920, 933-34 (Del. Ch. 1999). The nature of the claim does not matter. Id. at 930.

44. The doctrine does not apply to claims brought for the benefit of creditors. Bangor Punta, 417 U.S. at 715 (rejecting argument that plaintiff-corporation should be entitled to recovery since any recovery would benefit the public where the plaintiff-corporation "would be entitled to distribute the recovery in any lawful manner it may choose"); Wieboldt Stores, Inc. v. Schottenstein, 94 B.R. 488, 508 (N.D. Ill. 1988) (permitting debtor in possession to assert breach of fiduciary claim but only to extent of creditor injury – "The creditors cannot receive a "windfall" recovery, but may recover only to the extent of their claims."). Cf. Meyers v. Moody, 693 F.2d 1196, 1207 (5th Cir. 1982) (Bangor Punta doctrine inapplicable to suit brought by receiver for benefit of creditors); Think3 Litig. Tr. v. Zuccarello (In re Think3, Inc.), 529 B.R. 147, 185 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 2015) (doctrine inapplicable where "Plaintiff Trust was created by a confirmed plan of reorganization in the Think3 bankruptcy case for the purpose of bringing suits for the benefit of creditors of insolvent Think3.").

45. The doctrine also does not apply to claims that were pending when the acquisition occurred. Meyers v. Moody, 693 F.2d at 1208 ("Moody is thus urging us to extinguish a cause of action that both existed and was pursued long before the transfer of Empire's assets took place. Neither law nor equity permits us to do so."); TNS Media Research, LLC v. TiVo Research & Analytics, Inc., 193 F. Supp. 3d 307, 312 (S.D.N.Y. 2016) ("Once brought, a claim is not released merely and necessarily based on a change in corporate ownership.").

46. Mr. Terry agreed to purchase Acis's equity on July 5, 2018 and the Acis Plan was confirmed on January 1, 2019. The only claims pending at either time were those asserted by the Acis trustee in his counterclaim filed on July 2, 2018 (Acis Adversary No. 18-03078, at Docket No. 23). That counterclaim asserted only fraudulent transfer claims for (1) the ALF Share Transfer, (2) the ALF PMA Transfer, and (3) the Note Transfer (all as described below). Acis's amended complaint, asserting for the first time all other claims asserted in the Acis Claim, all of which relate to other transactions, was filed on June 20, 2019. The Bangor Punta doctrine, therefore, bars all claims other than Claims 9-20.

E. Claims 5-8: Fraudulent Transfer Claims - Sub-Advisory Agreement Modifications

47. Claims 5 through 8 are claims to avoid as fraudulent transfers and recover unspecified damages based on modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement by and between Acis LP and the Debtor dated January 1, 2011. The modifications were made on July 29, 2016, and raised the Debtor's rates from 5 to 20 basis points. Those claims are: (5) for actual fraudulent transfer under section 548; (6) for actual fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law; (7) for constructive fraudulent transfer under section 548; and (8) for constructive fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law.

48. There are numerous bases on which Claims 5-8 can and should be disallowed entirely, some on a summary basis and others for which further factual development would be required, as follows:

a. As set forth above, Acis is not entitled to any recovery beyond that required to satisfy obligations under the Acis Plan. The Debtor believes this issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

b. The claims are barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, which can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

c. In addition, the Debtor objects to these claims on the following grounds, which are not subject to summary adjudication at this time:

(1) Acis cannot meet its burden of proving insolvency at the time of the modifications. In fact, Acis clearly was solvent at that time. Expert testimony will be required on this issue.

(2) Acis received reasonably equivalent value for the modifications, in that the rates had been maintained at artificially low levels during Mr. Terry's tenure, and as modified represented reasonably equivalent value for the services rendered thereunder. In fact, the revised rates are similar to what Brigade is currently charging Acis.

(3) The modifications, which were made prior to the commencement of litigation and which had a legitimate purpose and justification, were not undertaken to hinder or defraud creditors.

(4) Acis has not alleged damages. The modifications gave rise to, at most, an avoidable obligation, not a transfer, and the obligation potentially subject to avoidance was rejected by the Acis trustee and approved by an order of the Court. To the extent that Acis alleges that payments made at the modified rates were fraudulent transfers, the Debtor maintains, as alleged above, that the rates as modified constituted reasonably equivalent value for the services rendered.

(5) The Debtor will have a claim in the Acis Case under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h) with respect to any property recovered on account of this claim.

F. Claims 9-24: Acis Has Not Alleged Facts Sufficient to Show That the Debtor is the Entity for Whose Benefit the Transfers Were Made

49. Acis claims that with respect to each alleged avoidable transfer, the Debtor was either the initial transferee or the entity for whose benefit it was made, from which the property transferred or its value may be recovered under federal or state law.[13]

50. Acis concedes, as it must, that the Debtor was not the initial transferee of the transfers alleged in Claims 9 through 24. As to those claims, Acis has failed to allege facts sufficient to establish, if proven, that the Debtor was "the entity for whose benefit such transfer was made." This defense can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

[13] Section 550(a) provides that with respect to a transfer that is avoided under sections 544, 545, 547, 548, 549, 553(b), or 724(a), "the trustee may recover, for the benefit of the estate, the property transferred, or, if the court so orders, the value of such property, from—(1) the initial transferee of such transfer or the entity for whose benefit such transfer was made[.]" 11 U.S.C. § 550(a)(1). Texas law is similar. See Citizens Nat'l Bank of Tex. v. NXS Constr., Inc., 387 S.W.2d 74, 79-80 (Tex. App. 2012) ("the creditor may obtain a monetary judgment against the transferee of the asset, the person for whose benefit the transfer was made, or subsequent transferees." (citing Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 24.009(b)). Other than with respect to the sub-advisory agreement modifications, the Debtor is not alleged to have been either an immediate or subsequent transferee of any of the allegedly improper transfers, for purposes of Bankruptcy Code § 550(a) and Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 24.009(b) (referencing the "first transferee" and "any subsequent transferee").

51. Specifically, Acis has not identified any specific, direct benefit to the Debtor from the fraudulent transfers alleged in Claims 9-24. It only alleges an indirect benefit to the Debtor from being part of the Highland corporate group. But any transaction by a corporate group member commonly has indirect benefits for other group members, which is why as a matter of law it is insufficient simply to allege an amorphous benefit for the Debtor to be deemed a beneficiary of the putative fraudulent transfers under § 550. See, e.g., Faulkner v. Kornman (In re Heritage Org., LLC), 413 B.R. 438, 495-96 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009) (Judge Houser) ("an unquantifiable advantage" is not a "benefit" for purposes of § 550(a); liability will not be imposed upon a party that allegedly benefitted from the fraudulent transfer just because defendant had controlled debtor-transferor and directed the transfer; "There is simply no showing that Kornman [who allegedly benefitted] received any benefit at all from the initial transfers."); Peterson v. Hofmann (In re Delta Phones, Inc.), 2005 Bankr. LEXIS 2550, *16-*17 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. Dec. 23, 2005) ("That a shareholder holds some ownership interest in a corporation does not somehow mean that all transfers made to the corporation or by it are automatically made for the 'benefit' of the shareholder under § 550(a)(1). The 'entity' under § 550(a)(1) must benefit from the transfer 'directly,' not indirectly…. Taken to its logical conclusion, Peterson's position would put average investors on the hook for all kinds of corporate transactions any time a public company sought bankruptcy protection."); see also In re Peregrine Fin. Group, Inc., 589 B.R. 360 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2018) ("the [defendant] cannot be the transfer beneficiary if it will get the benefit of the funds sometime later"; "[T]he [defendant] received no direct benefit at the time the transfer was made. It had only the right to benefit from the funds in the future after [certain fees were deducted, other requirements were met, and funds were still available].").

52. Accordingly, Reorganized Acis has not alleged facts sufficient to establish, even if proven, that the Debtor was "the entity for whose benefit such transfer was made" with respect to the transfers alleged in Claims 9-24.

G. Claims 9-12: Fraudulent Transfer Claims - ALF PMA Transfer

53. Acis alleges that its rights to direct and effectuate an optional redemption and otherwise control the assets of Acis Loan Funding Ltd. ("ALF"), pursuant to a Portfolio Services Agreement dated August 10, 2015, and a Portfolio Management Agreement dated December 22, 2016, by and between Acis and ALF (together, the "ALF PMA"), had value and were transferred for no value to Highland HCF Advisor in October 2017. The corresponding claims for relief are: (9) actual fraudulent transfer under section 548; (10) actual fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law; (11) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 548; and (12) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law. Acis seeks to avoid the transfer and recover unspecified damages.

54. Acis fails to address the fact that it has been exercising the rights that it alleges were transferred and has been deriving earnings under the ALF PMA since the preliminary and plan injunctions were issued in the Acis Case, in an amount sufficient to satisfy all claims against it. That is, the alleged transfers had no economic effect as Acis retained all rights under the contracts. Accordingly, the Debtor objects on the following bases to Claims 9-12:

a. As set forth above, Acis is not entitled to any recovery beyond that required to satisfy obligations under the Acis Plan. The Debtor believes this issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

b. As set forth above, the Debtor was not the transferee of the ALF PMA Transfer and an insufficient factual basis is alleged to conclude that it was the entity for whose benefit the transfer was made. The Debtor believes this issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

c. In addition, the Debtor objects to these claims on the following grounds, which are not subject to summary adjudication at this time:

(1) Acis cannot meet its burden of proving insolvency at the time of the transfer. Expert testimony will be required on this issue.

(2) Acis received reasonably equivalent value for the transfer.

(3) The transfer had a legitimate purpose and justification, and was not undertaken to hinder or defraud creditors.

(4) Acis has not alleged damages. In fact, Acis has continued to exercise rights and derive earnings under the ALF PMA pursuant to injunctive relief granted in the Acis Case.

(5) The Debtor will have a claim in the Acis Case under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h) with respect to any property recovered on account of this claim.

H. Claims 13-16: Fraudulent Transfer Claims - ALF Share Transfer

55. Acis alleges that on October 24, 2017, Acis and CLO Holdco Ltd. entered into a resolution whereby Acis sold its equity interest in ALF (the "ALF Share Transfer") to Highland Funding for $991,000. The 13th through 16th claims for relief are: (13) actual fraudulent transfer under section 548; (14) actual fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law; (15) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 548; and (16) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law. Acis seeks to avoid the ALF Share Transfer and recover unspecified damages.

56. The Debtor submits that there are numerous bases for disallowance of Claims 13-16 in the entirety:

a. As set forth above, Acis is not entitled to any recovery beyond that required to satisfy obligations under the Acis Plan. The Debtor believes this issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

b. As set forth above, the Debtor was not the transferee and an insufficient factual basis is alleged to conclude that it was the entity for whose benefit the transfer was made. The Debtor believes this issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

c. In addition, the Debtor objects to these claims on the following grounds, which are not subject to summary adjudication at this time:

(1) Acis cannot meet its burden of proving insolvency at the time of the transfer. Expert testimony will be required on this issue.

(2) Acis received reasonably equivalent value for the transfer, as the repurchase price was at their net asset value.

(3) The transfer had a legitimate purpose and justification, and was not undertaken to hinder or defraud creditors.

(4) Acis has not alleged damages. In fact, Acis has continued to control and derive earnings from these assets by means of the ALF PMA pursuant to injunctive relief granted in the Acis Case.

(5) The Debtor will have a claim in the Acis Case under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h) with respect to any property recovered on account of this claim.

I. Claims 17-20: Fraudulent Transfer Claims – Note Transfer

57. Acis alleges that on November 3, 2017, Acis LP, the Debtor, and Highland Management (a Debtor affiliate) entered into an Agreement for Assignment and Transfer of Promissory Note (the "Note Transfer Agreement"), by which Acis transferred a $9.5 million promissory note owed by the Debtor to Acis (the "Note") to Highland CLO Management for no material value. Based thereon it pleads the 17th through 20th claims for relief: (17) actual fraudulent transfer under section 548; (18) actual fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law; (19) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 548; and (20) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law. Acis seeks to avoid the transfer and recover unspecified damages.

58. Not only did the Debtor not receive the Note, it remains liable! For this and other reasons, the Debtor objects to Claims 17-20 on the following bases:

a. Since the Debtor did not receive the Note, and indeed remains liable on the Note, it is certainly not the entity for whose benefit it was made. This issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

b. As set forth above, Acis is not entitled to any recovery beyond that required to satisfy obligations under the Acis Plan. This issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

c. In addition, the Debtor objects to these claims on the following grounds, which are not subject to summary adjudication at this time:

(1) Acis cannot meet its burden of proving insolvency at the time of the transfer. Expert testimony will be required on this issue.

(2) Acis received reasonably equivalent value for the transfer.

(3) The transfer had a legitimate purpose and justification, and was not undertaken to hinder or defraud creditors.

(4) Acis has not alleged damages.

(5) The Debtor will have a claim in the Acis Case under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h) with respect to any property recovered on account of this claim.

J. Claims 21-24: Fraudulent Transfer Claims – Acis CLO 2017-7 Agreement

59. Acis alleges that on December 19, 2017, it entered into an Agreement for Assignment and Transfer (the "CLO 2017-7 Agreement") by which it transferred its interests in sub-advisory and services agreements relating to Acis CLO 2017-7, by which it derived fees, to Highland CLO Holdings (a Debtor affiliate) for no consideration, and also its indirect equity interests in the underlying CLO (the "2017-7 Equity") in exchange for the forgiveness of $2.8 million payable owed by Acis to the Debtor. Based thereon Acis pleads the 21st through 24th claims for relief: (21) actual fraudulent transfer under section 548; (22) actual fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law; (23) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 548; and (24) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law. Acis seeks to avoid the transfer and recover unspecified damages.

60. The Debtor submits that Claims 21-24 can and should be disallowed on the following bases:

a. As set forth above, Acis is not entitled to any recovery beyond that required to satisfy obligations under the Acis Plan. This issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

b. As set forth above, the Debtor was not the transferee and an insufficient factual basis is alleged for a conclusion that it was the entity for whose benefit the transfer was made. This issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

c. The claims are barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, which can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

d. In addition, the Debtor objects to these claims on the following grounds, which are not subject to summary adjudication at this time:

(1) Acis cannot meet its burden of proving insolvency at the time of the transfer. Expert testimony will be required on this issue.

(2) The Debtor did not receive any benefit from the transfer and so is not the entity for whose benefit the transfer was made.

(3) Acis received reasonably equivalent value for the transfer.

(4) The transfer had a legitimate purpose and justification, and was not undertaken to hinder or defraud creditors.

(5) Acis has not alleged damages.

(6) The Debtor will have a claim in the Acis Case under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h) with respect to any property recovered on account of this claim.

K. Claim 25: Preferences

61. Acis alleges that within one year of the Petition Date, the Debtor received payments of totaling $16,113,790.14 from Acis on account of purported debt claims owed by Acis, comprised of approximately $7.3 million pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement and Sub-Advisory Agreement (the "Service Payments"), over $5 million pursuant to an October 2016 Participation Purchase Agreement (the "Participation Payments"), approximately $3.3 million in promissory note repayments (the "Note Payments"), and approximately $118,000 for miscellaneous expense reimbursements ("Expenses").

62. Acis's 25th claim for relief alleges that if such transfers are not otherwise recoverable, they may be avoided and recovered as preferences under Bankruptcy Code § 547 and Texas Business and Commerce Code §§ 24.006(b) and recovered under Bankruptcy Code § 550. Acis also alleges that the 2017-7 Equity Transfer and the Note Transfer, to the extent they satisfied legitimate obligations, are avoidable as preferences.

63. Setting aside the many statutory defenses to these claims set forth below, the fact that Acis creditors are being paid in full is fatal to the preference claim. Acis tries to sidestep one consequence by asserting that whether a creditor would receive more in liquidation is measured as of the petition date. But there are at least two other consequences. One, as discussed, is that Acis cannot recover damages for its own benefit, once creditors are paid. The other is that the Debtor would receive on account of any preference recovery a general unsecured claim under the Acis Plan under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h), which would offset any liability in full. The Debtor objects to Claim 25 on those bases and others, as follows:

a. As set forth above, Acis is not entitled to any recovery under section 550(a) on the alleged preferences beyond that required to satisfy obligations under the Acis Plan. This issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

b. The claims are barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, which can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

c. Acis has not alleged a factual basis for its allegation that it was insolvent at the time of the transfers. This is a pleading requirement.

d. Acis has not alleged the existence of antecedent debts, also a pleading requirement.

e. In addition, the Debtor objects to this claim on the following grounds, which are not subject to summary adjudication at this time:

(1) Acis cannot meet its burden of proving insolvency at the time of the transfers. Expert testimony will be required on this issue.

(2) Acis cannot meet its burden of proving that each transfer enabled the Debtor to receive more than it would have received in a hypothetical chapter 7 liquidation.

(3) The Debtor will have a claim in the Acis Case under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h) with respect to any property recovered on account of this claim.

(4) Within the meaning of section 547(c)(1), each alleged transfer was intended by the debtor and the creditor to or for whose benefit such transfer was made to be a contemporaneous exchange for new value given to the debtor; and was in fact a substantially contemporaneous exchange, including without limitation all Service Payments and Expenses.

(5) Within the meaning of section 547(c)(2), each alleged transfer was made in the ordinary course of business or financial affairs of the debtor and the transferee; or made according to ordinary business terms, including without limitation all Service Payments, all payments under Participation Payments, all Note Payments, and all Expenses.

(6) Within the meaning of section 547(c)(4), each alleged transfer was made to or for the benefit of a creditor, to the extent that, after each such transfer, such creditor gave new value to or for the benefit of the debtor—(A) not secured by an otherwise unavoidable security interest; and (B) on account of which new value the debtor did not make an otherwise unavoidable transfer to or for the benefit of such creditor, including without limitation all Service Payments, Participation Payments, and Expenses.

(7) Participation Payments were received as a mere conduit.

(8) Any recovery on account of the alleged preferences would be offset by a corresponding general unsecured claim under the Acis Plan under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h).

L. Claim 26: Liability Under Section 550(a)

64. Acis alleges that the Debtor is the initial transferee within the meaning of Bankruptcy Code § 550(a) of all transfers sought to be avoided in Counts 5 – 8 and 25, and that it is the entity for whose benefit the transfers were made with respect to the transfers sought to be avoided in Counts 9-24.

a. Claim 26 can and should be disallowed in its entirety, on a summary basis. First, by operation of the statute, there is no liability under section 550 if no transfers are avoided. Second, as discussed in Section E above, Acis concedes the Debtor was not the initial transferee of the transfers alleged in Claims 9 through 24, and it has not alleged facts sufficient to establish, if proven, that the Debtor was "the entity for whose benefit such transfer was made." Specifically, it has not identified any specific, direct benefit to the Debtor from the fraudulent transfers alleged in Claims 9-24. It only posits an indirect benefit from being part of the Highland corporate group, which is inadequate to establish that an entity is the entity for whose benefit a transfer was made. Finally, all claims other than Claims 9-20 are barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine.

M. Claim 27: Civil Conspiracy to Commit Fraud, Including Fraudulent Transfers

65. Acis alleges that the Debtor, Highland Advisor, Highland Management, and Highland Holdings formed a conspiracy to "engage in a series of fraudulent transfers and other fraudulent schemes, including the ALF PMA Transfer, the ALF Share Transfer, the Note Transfer, the 2017-7 Equity transfer, the 2017-7 Agreements transfer and the thwarted Universal/BVK Agreement transfer in order to denude Acis's assets and take over Acis LP's valuable business." Acis Claim, ¶ 246.

66. This claim fails as a matter of law, and can be adjudicated at this time. It is an impermissible end-around section 550's remedial provisions, and the inconvenient fact that the Debtor did not receive a cognizable benefit thereunder with respect to most of the fraudulent transfer claims. Section 550 provides the exclusive remedy for fraudulent transfers. Partly for that reason, there is simply no substantive legal basis for the sinister allegations of "unlawful, overt acts" to "take over Acis LP's valuable business" upon which the "conspiracy" is predicated. As discussed above, the law is crystal clear that Acis's equity holders had no duty to Acis not to 'take over its valuable business' and nobody had a duty to stop them from doing so, as the Southern District of Texas court discussed thoroughly in Tow v. Amegy Bank N.A., supra, 976 F. Supp. 2d at 906-07. They owned all of it! The only thing they could not do is transfer assets without adequate consideration if Acis were insolvent. For that, there are statutory remedies prescribed by sections 548 and 550.

67. That is why no claim for conspiracy to commit an actual or constructive fraudulent transfer (or for "aiding and abetting") exists under Texas or federal law. Tow v. Bulmahn, No. 15-3141, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 57396, at *91 (E.D. La. Apr. 29, 2016). See Mack v. Newton, 737 F.2d 1343, 1357 (5th Cir. 1984) ("[T]he general rule under the Bankruptcy Act is that one who did not actually receive any of the property fraudulently transferred (or any part of a 'preference') will not be liable for its value, even though he may have participated or conspired in the making of the fraudulent transfer (or preference)."); Schlossberg v. Abell (In re Abell), 549 B.R. 631, 667 (Bankr. D. Md. 2016). A party may not be liable for more than it actually received. D.A.N. Joint Venture III, L.P. v. Touris, No. 18-cv-349, 2020 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 51407, at *25-26 (N.D. Ill. Mar. 25, 2020) ("Numerous courts have held that the bankruptcy court cannot invoke state law remedies to circumvent or undermine the remedy legislated by Congress for the avoidance of a fraudulent transfer . . . . [T]he trustee's remedy for an avoided transfer [is] provided for in § 550, and that provision only allows a trustee to recover up to the amount of the transfer.") (citations omitted). Allowing a trustee to recover more than the amount of the transfer would "lead to a result that expands the remedies [for a fraudulent transfer] beyond §550." Sherman v. FSC Realty LLC (In re Brentwood-Lexford Partners, LLC), 292 B.R. 255, 275 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2003).

68. This Court recognized but distinguished Mack in Milbank v. Holmes (In re TOCFHBI, Inc.), 413 B.R. 523, 535 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009):

> [W]hile it is perfectly true that "the general rule under [the Bankruptcy Code or the old Act] is that one who did not actually receive any of the property fraudulently transferred (or any part of a 'preference') will not be liable for its value, even though he may have participated or conspired in the making of the fraudulent transfer (or preference)," (Mack v. Newton, 737 F.2d at 1357), the Chapter 7 Trustee, in this case, is not moving under the fraudulent transfer statute and arguing something amazingly similar such as "conversion" and "conspiracy" regarding the same acts--and, in the process, joining Defendants who would not normally have liability under the relevant fraudulent transfer statutes.

Id. at 535-36. "). The Court recognized that "liability [under most states' uniform fraudulent transfer acts] cannot be imposed on non-transferees under aiding and abetting or conspiracy theories[.]" Id. (citation omitted). Accordingly, the claim should be disallowed.

69. Further, this claim is barred by the in pari delicto defense, as discussed below in the discussion of the Thirtieth Claim for Breach of Fiduciary Duty. Acis was by its own allegations an instrumentality of Dondero, who allegedly used it to perpetrate the "scheme" characterized in the Acis Complaint. The trustee was, and Reorganized Acis is, subject to all defenses that existed against Acis. Any claim by Acis against its alleged co-conspirators would be barred by in pari delicto, as Acis was at least equally culpable in all of the conduct it alleges.

70. Finally, the claim is barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry, the acts occurred prior to Mr. Terry's acquisition of the company, and this claim was not asserted in the Acis trustee's counterclaim that was pending when Mr. Terry acquired the company.

N. Claim 28: Tortious Interference with the Universal/BVK Agreement

71. Acis alleges that the Debtor tortiously interfered with its rights by seeking to replace it as manager under the Agreement for the Outsourcing of Asset Management between Acis LP and Universal-Investment-Luxembourg S.A. by which Acis provided sub-advisory services for a German fund (the "Universal/BVK agreement"), before and after the Debtor's sub-advisory services were terminated on August 1, 2018.

72. Claim 28 can and should be summarily disallowed, as there is no factual dispute on several critical issues: (1) this was an at-will contract; (2) the Debtor had no duty not to compete; and (3) no damages were sustained, as the contract was not terminated and all attorneys' fees have been paid, in fact, with money diverted from the Debtor.

73. Under Texas law, a claim for tortious interference with contract has four elements: (1) a contract subject to the alleged interference exists; (2) the alleged act of interference was willful and intentional; (3) the willful and intentional act proximately caused damage; and (4) actual damage or loss occurred. Victoria Bank & Trust Co. v. Brady, 811 S.W.2d 931, 939 (Tex.1991). Those requirements are not met on the undisputed facts.

74. The Universal/BVK agreement was an at-will contract. "Ordinarily, merely inducing a contract obligor to do what it has a right to do is not actionable interference." ACS Investors, Inc. v. McLaughlin, 943 S.W.2d 426, 430 (Tex. 1997). A defendant cannot tortiously interfere with a contract that permits the non-plaintiff contracting party to terminate the agreement, where the defendant's actions constitute justifiable competition. See, e.g., C.E. Servs. Inc. v. Control Data Corp., 759 F.2d 1241, 1248 (5th Cir. 1985); West Tex. Gas v. 297 Gas Co., 864 S.W.2d 681, 686 (Tex. App. 1993) (competitor had legal right to persuade company to exercise its right to terminate at-will natural gas sale/purchase agreement with plaintiff). "[A] legal justification or excuse, which is treated as a type of privilege, is an affirmative defense to a claim of tortious interference…. Interference with a contractual relationship is privileged where it results from the bona fide exercise of a party's own rights."; "North Texas had the legal right to persuade or attempt to persuade 297 to exercise its right to terminate the 1988 agreement and to contract with it." Id.

75. Once again, until displaced, Acis's owners had every right to do as they wished with the Universal/BVK Agreement, subject to creditor rights but not subject to any duty to Acis to refrain from doing so, and the Debtor had no duty to say otherwise. After the Debtor was terminated, it had a right as a competitor to attempt to win back its business. The contention that it should have stopped after the Acis bankruptcy petition is the subject of a different claim. Further, "[t]he alleged interference generally must have induced a breach of the contract to be actionable." Official Brands, Inc. v. Roc Nation Sports, LLC, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 167320, at *7 (N.D. Tex. Dec. 15, 2015). Here, that is not even alleged to have occurred.

76. Further, no damages were sustained. The contract was not terminated, and to the extent the alleged damages are administrative expenses incurred in the Acis case, not only have they been paid, they have been paid by the Debtor by virtue of the earnings derived from the enjoined putative transfer of the ALF PMA.

77. Finally, the claim is barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry and all acts occurred prior to Mr. Terry's acquisition of the company.

78. Accordingly, no claim for tortious interference has been stated, and the claim is barred in any event, and so it should be disallowed.

O. Claim 29: Breach of the Sub-Advisory Agreement and Shared Services Agreement

79. Acis claims that the Debtor breached these agreements by failing to purchase and attempting only to sell loans for the CLOs, in order to liquidate Acis for the benefit of the Debtor and the detriment of Acis. This claim should be dismissed.

80. The Debtor met its standard of care but, moreover, there is a more fundamental fallacy that is instantly fatal to this claim. As discussed, here and throughout the Acis Claim, Acis sets up a fictional jurisprudential world in which it, by virtue of its existence as a legal entity, had interests that contracting parties or managers or professionals were required to identify and protect, rather than acting as instructed by Acis's owners. It did not and they did not. The Debtor was entitled to take directions from Acis's owners. Put differently, there is no allegation whatsoever that Acis did not want the Debtor to do exactly what it did. Ipso facto, the Debtor did not breach the contract. The claim must be dismissed.

81. Finally, the claim is barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry and all acts occurred prior to Mr. Terry's acquisition of the company.

P. Claim 30: Breach of Fiduciary Duty

82. Acis claims that the Debtor owed it a fiduciary duty pursuant to the Sub-Advisory Agreement as its investment adviser, and that it breached that fiduciary duty by acting in a manner detrimental to Acis by increasing its fees under the Sub-Advisory Agreement, charging over-market rates in excess of the compensation limits of the Acis LPA, and being the "ringleader" and ultimate beneficiary of schemes to render Acis judgment-proof by transferring the ALF PMA, the ALF Shares, the Note, the 2017-7 Equity and the 2017-7 Agreements. Acis makes no damage allegations but seeks punitive damages.

83. This claim can and should be summarily disallowed. First, the duty to Acis was contractual, not fiduciary. The Debtor as portfolio manager had fiduciary duties to investors in the CLOs, but its duties to Acis were governed by the Shared Services Agreement which, construed with the Sub-Advisory Agreement, provides that the Debtor was an independent contractor with only a contractual obligation to act with reasonable care and no other obligations or duties.

84. Second, regardless, even if the Debtor had a fiduciary duty to Acis, it could not and did not violate that fiduciary duty by following directions from Acis's sole owners. As discussed in the authorities and analysis above, such a claim is a legal impossibility. At all relevant times, Acis was by its allegations controlled and principally owned by Dondero and Okada, along with all of the other Highland related entities. It is hornbook law that sole owners do not have a fiduciary duty to their company; they could transfer away its assets without violating any duty to their company. How, then, would advisors and employees and professionals go about protecting the interests of an entity such as Acis against the "ravages" of an owner such as Dondero, who had no such duty? The owners had a right, subject to fraudulent transfer laws, to direct Acis and transfer assets as desired. Acis did not, simply by virtue of its existence alone, have interests distinct from its owners' interests that its fiduciaries were obligated to somehow identify and protect against the designs of its sole owners. No duty to Acis could be or was breached by following its owners' directions.

85. Third, any fiduciary duty claim is barred by the in pari delicto defense:

> The equitable defense of in pari delicto, which means 'in equal fault,' is based on the common law notion that a plaintiff's recovery may be barred by his own wrongful conduct." Howard v. Fidelity and Deposit Co. of Maryland, (In re Royale Airlines, Inc.), 98 F.3d 852, 855 (5th Cir. 1996). "Two fundamental premises underlie this defense: (1) that courts should not lend their good offices to mediating disputes among wrongdoers; and (2) that denying judicial relief to an admitted wrongdoer is an effective means of deterring illegality." Murray v. Royal Alliance Assocs., 375 B.R. 208, 213 (M.D. La. 2007).

Milbank v. Holmes (In re TOCFHBI, Inc.), 413 B.R. 523, 536-37 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009). While this Court denied summary judgment on the defense in Milbank (id. at 537), the defense can be applied on the face of the pleadings when it is apparent that it applies. Brickley v. ScanTech Identification Beams Sys., LLC, 566 B.R. 815, 842-43 (W.D. Tex. 2017) ("In sum, because applicability of the in pari delicto defense to parts of the trustee's breach of fiduciary duty claim is apparent on the face of the Complaint, the Court will dismiss … the claims that the Stolzar defendants breached their fiduciary duties by assisting Barra and Vitale in their efforts to fraudulently obtain shareholder capital and debt financing, by counseling and providing legal services assisting Barra, Vitale, and Shaw in the usurpation of corporate assets and corporate opportunities, and by aiding in the execution of the fraudulent loan agreement.").

86. Here, it is apparent from the face of the Acis Claim that to the extent that the "scheme" of which Acis complains was orchestrated by Dondero in violation of fiduciary duties, Acis had every bit as much culpability as the Debtor or any of the other commonly controlled entities; after all, according to Acis, the same person was making the decisions for all of them. Acis is simply assuming the Court will not hold the delicto of "old Acis" against Reorganized Acis.

87. While the assertion of in pari delicto against a trustee or reorganized debtor is not a settled issue in the Fifth Circuit, it is in most others. In Milbank, in 2009, this Court stated: "Some courts have found that the defense may be asserted against a bankruptcy trustee, as he stands in the shoes of a debtor who may have, through its officers and directors, perpetrated bad acts. The Fifth Circuit has not addressed this issue." The Court determined that it should "consider how the facts and equities of the individual case interact with the policy in pari delicto was designed to serve," which it found presented factual issues that could not be resolved on summary judgment. Milbank, 413 B.R. at 537 (internal citations omitted).

88. Subsequently, however, in 2012, in refusing to apply in pari delicto to a receiver, the Fifth Circuit specified that cases under the Bankruptcy Code were distinguishable because of federal law (Bankruptcy Code § 541) subjecting a trustee to whatever defenses existed against the debtor as of the petition date.

> These cases, however, are plainly distinguishable because they rely upon Section 541(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, which limits the debtor estate to interests of the debtor "as of the commencement of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 541(a)(1); see, e.g., Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors of PSA, Inc. v. Edwards, 437 F.3d 1145, 1150 (11th Cir. 2006) ("If a claim of [debtor] would have been subject to the defense of in pari delicto at the commencement of the bankruptcy, then the same claim, when asserted by the trustee, is subject to the same affirmative defense.") (internal quotation marks and citations omitted); Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors of R.F. Lafferty & Co., v. R.F. Lafferty & Co., Inc., 267 F.3d 340, 356 (3d Cir. 2001) ("[T]he application of the in pari delicto doctrine is affected by the rules governing bankruptcies. . . . [T]he explicit language of section 541 directs courts to evaluate defenses as they existed at the commencement of the bankruptcy."); Matter of Pernie Bailey Drilling Co., Inc., 993 F.2d 67, 70 (5th Cir. 1993) (noting that bankruptcy trustee stood in pari delicto); see also In re Hedged-Invs. Assocs., Inc., 84 F.3d 1281, 1285 (10th Cir. 1996) ("Though the Seventh Circuit's reasoning in Scholes enjoys a certain appeal, both from doctrinal and public policy perspectives, we cannot adopt it in this case. Put most simply, Mr. Sender is a bankruptcy trustee acting under 11 U.S.C. § 541, and bankruptcy law, apparently unlike the law of receivership, expressly prohibits [application of Scholes]."). We therefore are not persuaded by Wells Fargo's analogy to bankruptcy trustees.

Jones v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 666 F.3d 955, 967-68 (5th Cir. 2012).

89. So although the Fifth Circuit has not addressed the issue directly, courts have predicted it will follow the majority rule, and ruled accordingly, as in this 2019 Western District of Texas decision:

> It is an open question in the Fifth Circuit whether in pari delicto can be asserted as a defense to claims made by a trustee in a bankruptcy case. In re Today's Destiny, Inc., 888 B.R. 737, 747 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2008). The majority of sister Circuits do apply the in pari delicto defense to claims made by trustees, however, and this Court has no reason to believe that the Fifth Circuit would depart from that majority. See, e.g., Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors of PSA, Inc. v. Edwards, 437 F.3d 1145, 1151 (11th Cir. 2006) ("If a claim . . . would have been subject to the defense of in pari delicto at the commencement of the bankruptcy, then the same > claim, when asserted by the trustee, is subject to the same affirmative defense.") (citing Grassmueck v. Am. Shorthorn Ass'n., 402 F.3d 833, 837 (8th Cir. 2005); Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors v. R.F. Lafferty & Co., 267 F.3d 340, 356-57 (3rd Cir. 2001); Terlecky v. Hurd (In re Dublin Sec. Inc.), 133 F.3d 377, 381 (6th Cir. 1997); *Sender v. Buchanan (In re Hedged— [17] Inv. Assocs.), 84 F.3d 1281, 1285 (10th Cir. 1996); Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors of Color Tile v. Coopers & Lybrand, LLP, 322 F.3d 147, 158-66 (2nd Cir. 2003)). Accordingly, the Court will consider the in pari delicto defense raised by Broadway.

90. Even if, as in Milbank, the Court were to consider the particular facts and equities of this case, as in Milbank, supra, there should be only one possible conclusion on the facts of this case, and there are no additional facts that could change it: the equities favor the Debtor's creditors over a windfall to Mr. Terry, who paid $1 million presumably on the basis of expected earnings and not tens of millions of dollars of litigation recoveries (or even if the latter, Acis (Mr. Terry) is still not entitled to a speculator's ransom at the expense of innocent creditors). No amount of factual development can or will change that conclusion.

91. Finally, no duty can be bootstrapped from the rights of Acis's (former) creditors, who will not only be paid in full but who had no such right: under Delaware law, creditors of a limited partnership cannot sue third parties for breach of fiduciary duty, even derivatively, nor can a trustee sue for them. "The claim for breach of fiduciary duties owed to the creditors fails because the Trustee does not allege that the creditors are assignees or members of the Debtors' LLCs. The creditors of the Debtors' LLC thus lack standing to sue the LLC or its members and directors for breaches of fiduciary duties. The Trustee does not have standing to sue on behalf of the creditors who themselves have no standing." Beskrone v. OpenGate Capital Grp. (In re Pennysaver USA Publ'g, LLC), 587 B.R. 445, 467 (Bankr. D. Del. 2018) (emphasis added). The analysis and result is the same for limited partnerships. Gavin/Solmonese LLC v. Citadel Energy Partners, LLC (In re Citadel Watford City Disposal Partners, L.P.), 603 B.R. 897, 905 (Bankr. D. Del. 2019) ("Given the similarity of the relevant statutory language of the Delaware Limited Liability Company Act to that of the Delaware LP Act, the result here should be no different for limited partnerships.").

92. Finally, the claim is barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry and all acts occurred prior to Mr. Terry's acquisition of the company.

Q. Claim 31: Punitive Damages

93. Acis seeks punitive damages to the extent permitted by law. But, to start, there is no right to recover punitive damages under either federal or state fraudulent transfer laws:

> Section 550 does not provide for the recovery of exemplary damages. The trustee has recovered under Texas fraudulent conveyance laws. Under Texas law, exemplary damages are available if the plaintiff has in fact sustained actual loss or injury. Mack v. Newton, 737 F.2d 1343, 1367 (5th Cir. 1984). However, as concluded above, the court cannot invoke state law remedies to circumvent or undermine the specific remedy legislated by Congress for the avoidance of a fraudulent transfer.

Sherman v. FSC Realty LLC (In re Brentwood-Lexford Partners, LLC), 292 B.R. 255, 275 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2003). See also Schlossberg v. Abell (In re Abell), 549 B.R. 631, 667 (Bankr.

D. Md. 2016); Hyundai Translead, Inc. v. Jackson Truck & Trailer Repair Inc., 419 B.R. 749, 760 (M.D. Tenn. 2009); In re Lexington Oil and Gas Ltd., Co., 423 B.R. 353, 376 (Bankr. E.D. Okla. 2010); Tronox Inc. v. Anadarko Petroleum Corp. (In re Tronox Inc.), 429 B.R. 73, 111 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2010) ("Persuasive authority holds that § 550 bars punitive damages notwithstanding their possible availability under state law.").

94. As set forth herein, Acis's state law claims can and should be summarily disallowed, which ends any issue concerning punitive damages.

95. Texas law permits punitive damages only if the plaintiff has in fact sustained actual loss on its substantive counts. See, e.g., Sherman, 292 B.R. at 255 (plaintiff could not recover exemplary damages since he did not recover any judgment for breach of fiduciary duty or other applicable cause of action).[14] The claimant must prove by clear and convincing evidence that the harm with respect to which the claimant seeks recovery of exemplary damages results from: (1) fraud[15]; (2) malice[16]; or (3) gross negligence.[17] Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(a). Acis cannot sustain this burden, nor would such an award be supported under the relevant factors.[18]

[14] Texas law caps punitive damages at the greater of (1) two times economic damages plus an amount equal to noncompensatory damages found by a jury not in excess of $750,000, or (2) $200,000. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(b).
[15] Constructive fraud does not count. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.001(6).
[16] "Malice" means "a specific intent by the defendant to cause substantial injury or harm to the claimant." Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.001(7).
[17] "Gross negligence" means "an act or omission: (A) which when viewed objectively from the standpoint of the actor at the time of its occurrence involves an extreme degree of risk, considering the probability and magnitude of the potential harm to others; and (B) of which the actor has actual, subjective awareness of the risk involved, but nevertheless proceeds with conscious indifference to the rights, safety, or welfare of others." Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.001(11).
[18] "The Court weighs the following six factors in determining the reasonableness of an award: (1) the nature of the wrong; (2) the character of the conduct involved; (3) the degree of culpability of the wrongdoer; (4) the situation and sensibilities of the parties concerned; (5) the extent to which such conduct offends a public sense of justice and propriety; and (6) the net worth of the defendant." In re Galaz, 2015 Bankr. LEXIS 229, at *30 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. Jan. 23, 2015) (citing Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.011(a)).

96. Finally, any claim for punitive damages is barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry and was not asserted prior to Mr. Terry's acquisition of the company.

R. Claim 32: Alter Ego Liability

97. Acis does not adequately allege a claim for alter ego, even if it was a "claim," which it is not; it is only a means of imposing liability for an underlying cause of action. NMRO Holdings, LLC v. Williams, 2017 Tex. App. LEXIS 9939, *6 (Tex. App. Oct. 24, 2017). Its allegations of common control by Mr. Dondero are insufficient as a matter of pleading and substantively.

98. Acis alleges that the Debtor, Highland Funding, Highland Adviser, Highland Management, and Highland Holdings (the "Alter Egos") are all controlled by Mr. Dondero, and "[e]ach of the Alter Egos should be held liable for any damages awarded under any Count in this Second Amended Complaint, as each is the alter ego of the others." It also requests that the ALF PMA Transfer, the ALF Share Transfer, the Note Transfer, and the transfer of the 2017-7 Equity and the 2017-7 Agreements be "collapsed" and treated as a scheme by which the Debtor would take over Acis's business. Although it is unclear, Acis appears to also assert under this rubric a claim for unjust enrichment, and requests that "[e]ach of the Highlands, and in particular Highland Capital and Highland Funding, benefitted from the ALF PMA Transfer, the ALF Share Transfer, the Note Transfer, and the transfer of the 2017-7 Equity and the 2017-7 Agreements even if they were not the direct transferee. Each of the Highlands should be held liable for benefits unjustly received and make restitution to the Debtors and their estates for those benefits." Acis Claim ¶ 280.

99. Texas law applies the alter ego rules of the state of incorporation or formation. See, e.g., In re The Heritage Org., LLC, 413 B.R. 438, 510 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009); The Richards Group, Inc. v. Brock, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 55139 (N.D. Tex. July 18, 2008). The analyses are often similar. See, e.g., Sell v. Universal Surveillance Sys., LLC, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 219898, at *5 (W.D. Tex. July 6, 2017) (observing that the analyses undertaken by Texas courts, federal courts, and Delaware courts are similar and focus on whether the defendant abused the corporate form).

100. What Acis is essentially alleging is "single enterprise" liability based on common control by Mr. Dondero. Delaware has never recognized the "single business enterprise" theory of alter ego liability, and it was rejected under Texas law by the Texas Supreme Court in SSP Partners v. Gladstone Invs. Corp., 275 S.W.3d 444, 452-54 (Tex. 2008).

101. SSP Partners is instructive in rejecting allegations of common control as sufficient to support alter ego liability without the use or abuse of the corporate form to perpetrate a wrong.

> We disregard the corporate fiction, even though corporate formalities have been observed and corporate and individual property have been kept separately, when the corporate form has been used as part of a basically unfair device to achieve an inequitable result. Specifically, we disregard the corporate fiction:
> > (1) when the fiction is used as a means of perpetrating fraud;

> (2) where a corporation is organized and operated as a mere tool or business conduit of another corporation;
> (3) where the corporate fiction is resorted to as a means of evading an existing legal obligation;
>
> (4) where the corporate fiction is employed to achieve or perpetrate monopoly;
>
> (5) where the corporate fiction is used to circumvent a statute; and
>
> (6) where the corporate fiction is relied upon as a protection of crime or to justify wrong.
>
> Each example involved an element of abuse of the corporate structure. . .
> Creation of affiliated corporations to limit liability while pursuing common goals lies firmly within the law and is commonplace. We have never held corporations liable for each other's obligations merely because of centralized control, mutual purposes, and shared finances. There must also be evidence of abuse.

Id. That is not what Acis does or can allege, i.e., even if, arguendo, it could establish that assets were wrongfully transferred, the "wrong" did not involve any abuse of the form of the entities involved. They are simply a family of commonly controlled entities. As the Fifth Circuit explained in Pan Eastern Exploration Co. v. Hufo Oils, 855 F.2d 1106 (5th Cir. 1988):

> "The focus of alter ego proper is on the legal adequacy of the corporation's existence, and the relationship between the corporation and its controlling corporation or individual. Many wholly-owned subsidiary and closely-held corporations are not factually distinct from their owners; many are in fact controlled and operated in close concert with the interests of the owners, and do not have a distinct factual existence-- separate employees, separate offices, separate properties, etc. That is perfectly natural and proper. See, e.g., Edwards Co. v. Monogram Industries, 730 F.2d 977 (5th Cir. 1984) (en banc) ('shell' subsidiary was formally distinct and creditor was not misled; corporate disregard under Texas law was therefore improper). The problem arises when such > a corporation is not treated as legally distinct, when, in other words, the owners neglect to maintain the formal existence of the corporation as required by law."

Id. at 1131.

102. Indeed, the absence of a wrong by this Debtor involving the corporate form led the Southern District of New York district court to reject alter ego liability in Highland CDO Opportunity Master Fund, L.P. v. Citibank, N.A., 270 F. Supp. 3d 716 (S.D.N.Y. 2017). Citibank had identified three acts that it asserted constituted fraudulent or wrongful conduct, for which it contended the Debtor had alter ego liability: (i) the Debtor stripped cash and assets from Highland CDO Opportunity Master Fund, L.P. ("CDO Fund") that would have otherwise been available to satisfy the obligations to Citibank; (ii) the Debtor diverted cash distributions on certain notes (the "HFP Notes") that would otherwise have been available to CDO Fund to meet its obligations to Citibank; and (iii) the Debtor fraudulently misrepresented the value of the HFP Notes that CDO Fund pledged to Citibank as collateral. Id. at 729-33. The district court held that the first prong of New York's alter ego test – the Debtor's control and domination of its affiliates – was satisfied, but that Citibank failed to demonstrate the second prong – a "wrong or fraud" for veil piercing purposes – and so dismissed the alter ego claims seeking to hold the Debtor liable for CDO Fund's obligations. Id. at 729-33.

103. Here, the allegations are insufficient even as a matter of pleading. See Capmark Fin. Grp. Inc. v. Goldman Sachs Credit L.P., 491 B.R. 335, 349 (S.D.N.Y. 2013). The pleading here is particularly inadequate because, absent "single enterprise" liability (which is unavailable), Acis would actually need to pierce the veil of each entity between the Debtor and any entity found to bear liability. Id. ("[Plaintiff] fails to present facts to adequately allege the "double-pierce" required to lump together two "sister" subsidiaries, the Goldman Lenders and the PIA Funds, even under the liberal notice pleading standard."). See Outokumpu Eng'g Enters., Inc v. Kvaerner Enviropower, Inc., 685 A.2d 724, 729 (Del. Super. 1996) (stating that in order to disregard corporate formalities separating "sister" subsidiaries, a plaintiff must first pierce the veil separating one subsidiary from its corporate parent, and then surmount "another barrier" by piercing the veil separating the corporate parent from the second subsidiary).

104. Any claim for punitive damages is also barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry and was not asserted prior to Mr. Terry's acquisition of the company.

105. Finally, to the extent that Acis is alleging in this action that Dondero is liable as an alter ego for any liability of the Debtor herein (as it does explicitly in its other newly commenced lawsuits), Acis is violating the automatic stay in this case, as any such rights is property of the bankruptcy estate.

S. Claim 33: Willful Violation of the Automatic Stay

106. Acis alleges that the Debtor and Highland Funding violated the Acis automatic stay by sending the Acis trustee Optional Redemption Notices requesting that the trustee effectuate optional redemptions, and by "demanding" that the trustee take actions to effectuate the optional redemption by the next day. Acis seeks damages, attorneys' fees and costs, and punitive damages.

107. The claim should be disallowed. The Acis trustee declined to effectuate the redemptions. HCLOF, the equity holder of the CLO entities, took the position that the automatic stay was inapplicable, and the Debtor did not believe that it applied. In addition, the claim is untimely and/or has been waived.

108. The claim is also barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry and the acts occurred prior to Mr. Terry's acquisition of the company.

T. Claim 34: Payment of Attorneys' Fees and Costs, Including all Allowed Professionals' Fees and Expenses in the Bankruptcy Cases

109. Acis requests that the Court award attorneys' fees in the adversary proceeding under Texas Business and Commerce Code § 24.013, Civil Practice and Remedies Code § 38.001, TUFTA, and all fees in the entire Acis Case from the Debtor based on the Debtor's alleged breach of fiduciary duty. There is no basis in fact or law for such an award, and the Debtor reserves all defenses thereto.

110. Furthermore, the Debtor and/or affiliates already bore the fees of which "reimbursement" is sought: as they were paid by income derived from transferred assets that as a result of the injunction were utilized for the benefit of Acis rather than by the transferees.

111. Finally, the claim is also barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry and the acts occurred prior to Mr. Terry's acquisition of the company.

U. Reservation of Rights

112. The Debtor reserves its right to supplement or modify this Objection and to assert such further objections, defenses or arguments as may later become available or apparent.

WHEREFORE, the Debtor respectfully requests that the Acis Claim be disallowed in its entirety, and such other and further relief as this Court may deem just and proper.

DEBTOR'S MOTION UNDER BANKRUPTCY CODE SECTIONS 105(a) AND 363(b) FOR AUTHORIZATION TO RETAIN JAMES P. SEERY, JR., AS CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER, CHIEF RESTRUCTURING OFFICER AND FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVE NUNC PRO TUNC TO MARCH 15, 2020

The above-captioned debtor and debtor in possession (the "Debtor") hereby moves (the "Motion") pursuant to sections 105(a) and 363(b) of title 11 of the United States Code, 11 U.S.C. §§ 101–1532 (the "Bankruptcy Code") for the entry of an order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A (the "Proposed Order"), authorizing the Debtor (a) (i) to retain James P. Seery, Jr. as the chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer of the Debtor, pursuant to the terms of the letter attached as Exhibit 1 to the Proposed Order (the "Agreement") nunc pro tunc to March 15, 2020, and (ii) for Mr. Seery to replace the Debtor's current chief restructuring officer as the Debtor's foreign representative pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1505, and (b) granting related relief. In support of the Motion, the Debtor respectfully represents as follows:

Jurisdiction

1. The United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the "Court") has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. This matter is a core proceeding within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2).

2. The bases for the relief requested herein are sections 105 and 363 of the Bankruptcy Code.

Background

3. On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the "Delaware Bankruptcy Court").

4. On October 29, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the "Committee") was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in the Delaware Court. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Bankruptcy Court entered an order transferring venue of the Debtor's chapter 11 case to this Court [Docket No. 186].[1]

5. The Debtor has continued in the possession of its property and has continued to operate and manage its business as a debtor-in-possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. No trustee or examiner has been appointed in this chapter 11 case.

6. On December 4, 2019, the Debtor filed in the Delaware Bankruptcy Court its Motion of the Debtor Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a) and 363(b) To Retain Development Specialists, Inc. to Provide a Chief Restructuring Officer, Additional Personnel, and Financial Advisory and Restructuring-Related Services, Nunc Pro Tunc, as of the Petition Date [Docket No. 74] (the "CRO Motion"). The CRO Motion sought, among other things, to appoint Bradley Sharp as the Debtor's chief restructuring officer and for DSI to provide financial advisory services to the Debtor in support of Mr. Sharp.

7. On December 27, 2019, the Debtor filed the Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 281] (the "Settlement Motion"). The Settlement Motion sought approval of the settlement between the Debtor and the Committee and provided for, among other things, the creation of a new independent board of directors of Strand Advisors, Inc.[2] (the "New Board") consisting of

[1] All docket numbers refer to the docket maintained by this Court.

[2] Strand Advisors, Inc. ("Strand") is the general partner of the Debtor.

James P. Seery, Jr., John S. Dubel, and Russell Nelms (collectively, the "Independent Directors").

8. The order granting the Settlement Motion authorized the Debtor to guarantee Strand's obligations to indemnify each Independent Director pursuant to the terms of any indemnification agreements entered into by Strand with each of the Independent Directors (the "Indemnification Agreements").

9. The Court entered orders approving the Settlement Motion on January 9, 2020[3] and the DSI Approval Order on January 10, 2020.

10. The Settlement Order approved, among other things, a term sheet setting forth the agreement between the Debtor and the Committee. The final term sheet was attached to the Notice of Final Term Sheet filed in the Court on January 14, 2020 [Docket No. 354] (the "Final Term Sheet"). The Settlement Order also provided that no entity could commence or pursue a claim or cause of action against any Independent Director and/or his respective advisors and agents relating in any way to his role as an independent director of Strand unless authorized by this Court pursuant to the criteria set forth in the Settlement Order.[4]

11. The Settlement Motion and Final Term each provided that "[a]s soon as practicable after their appointments, the Independent Directors shall, in consultation with the [3] See Order Approving Settlement with Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and the Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 339] (the "Settlement Order").

[4] Specifically, paragraph 10 of the Settlement Order provides:

> No entity may commence or pursue a claim or cause of action of any kind against any Independent Director, any Independent Director's agents, or any Independent Director's advisors relating in any way to the Independent Director's role as an independent director of Strand without the Court (i) first determining after notice that such claim or cause of action represents a colorable claim of willful misconduct or gross negligence against Independent Director, any Independent Director's agents, or any Independent Director's advisors and (ii) specifically authorizing such entity to bring such claim. The Court will have sole jurisdiction to adjudicate any such claim for which approval of the Court to commence or pursue has been granted.

Committee, determine whether a CEO should be appointed for the Debtor. If the Independent Directors determine that appointment of a CEO is appropriate, the Independent Directors shall appoint a CEO acceptable to the Committee as soon as possible, which may be one of the Independent Directors." Final Term Sheet, page 3; Settlement Motion, ¶ 13.

12. On February 18, 2020, the Court entered its Order (I) Authorizing Bradley D. Sharp to Act as Foreign Representative Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1505 and (II) Granting Related Relief [Docket No. 461] (the "Foreign Representative Order"). The Foreign Representative Order authorized Mr. Sharp, as chief restructuring officer, to act as the Debtor's foreign representative pursuant to section 1515 of the Bankruptcy Code (the "Foreign Representative"). The Foreign Representative specifically appointed Mr. Sharp to act as the Debtor's foreign insolvency officeholder to seek appropriate relief in Bermuda pursuant to Bermudian common law (the "Bermuda Foreign Representative") and the Cayman Islands pursuant to Section 241(1) of the Companies Law (2019 Revision) with respect to that British overseas territory (the "Cayman Foreign Representative").

13. Since the appointment of the Independent Directors, it was apparent that it would be more efficient to have a traditional corporate management structure oversee the Debtor – i.e., a fully engaged chief executive officer supervised by the New Board – as contemplated by the Final Term Sheet. This need was driven by the complexity of the Debtor's organization and business operations and the need for daily management and oversight of the Debtor's personnel. The search for a chief executive officer, however, was delayed while the Independent Directors made initial efforts to learn the Debtor's business and its day-to-day operations. It was further delayed with the onset of the COVID-19 global pandemic, which both had a serious impact on the Debtor's operations and assets and limited the Independent Directors' ability to search for an appropriate chief executive officer.

14. During this time, however, Mr. Seery integrated himself into the daily operations of the Debtor and became essential in stabilizing the Debtor's assets and trading accounts during the economic distress caused by COVID-19. While Mr. Dubel and Mr. Nelms were each spending on average approximately 140 hours a month addressing the operational issues facing the Debtor and certain of its fund entities, Mr. Seery's workload was at least 180 hours a month.

15. As such, it was readily apparent to the Independent Directors who would be the best fit for the role: Mr. Seery. Mr. Seery had the appropriate skill set, extensive relevant background, and was already carrying the responsibility of the role. Mr. Seery had been functionally operating as the Debtor's de facto chief executive officer since at least early March and was already overseeing the Debtor's ordinary course operations, including managing the Debtor's personnel and the daily interactions with the Debtor's bankruptcy professionals

16. The Independent Directors subsequently appointed a compensation committee consisting of Messrs. Dubel and Nelms (the "Compensation Committee") to negotiate the terms and conditions of the Agreement on behalf of the Debtor. And, on June 23, 2020, the Compensation Committee approved the appointment of Mr. Seery to serve as both the Debtor's chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer concurrently with his role as one of the Independent Directors pursuant to the terms of the Agreement. Because Mr. Seery has been fulfilling the role since March 2020, the Compensation Committee determined that it was appropriate to make Mr. Seery's appointment as the Debtor's chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer effective as of March 15, 2020.[5] The Independent Directors also authorized the Debtor to file this Motion.

A. The Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer Positions

17. Mr. Seery has agreed to, among other things, provide daily leadership and direction to the Debtor's employees on business and restructuring matters relating to the Debtor's chapter 11 case. In that capacity, he will direct the Debtor's day-to-day ordinary course operations, oversee the Debtor's personnel, make management decisions with respect to the Debtor's trading operations, direct the Debtor's reorganization efforts, monetize the Debtor's assets, oversee the claims objection and resolution process, and lead the process toward the hopeful consensual confirmation of a plan in this chapter 11 case in the capacities as chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer positions. Mr. Seery would report directly to the New Board and would continue to serve as an Independent Director, as provided under the Settlement Order.

18. Mr. Seery has extensive management and restructuring experience. Mr. Seery recently served as a Senior Managing Director at Guggenheim Securities, LLC, where he was responsible for helping direct the development of a credit business. Prior to joining Guggenheim, Mr. Seery was the President and a senior investing partner of River Birch Capital, LLC, where he was responsible for originating, executing, and managing stressed and distressed credit investments. Mr. Seery is also a long-time attorney licensed to practice in New York who has run corporate reorganization groups and numerous restructuring matters. He also served as a Commissioner of the American Bankruptcy Institute's Commission to Study the Reform of Chapter 11. Mr. Seery was also a Managing Director and the Global Head of Lehman Brothers' Fixed Income Loan business where he was responsible for managing the firm's investment grade and high yield loans business, including underwriting commitments, distribution, hedging, trading and sales (including CLO manager relationships), portfolio management and restructuring. From 2000 to 2004, Mr. Seery ran Lehman Brothers' restructuring and workout businesses with responsibility for the management of distressed corporate debt investments and was a key member of the small team that successfully sold Lehman Brothers to Barclays in 2008.

[5] The Committee has also agreed to Mr. Seery's appointment as chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer and to the amount of Mr. Seery's Base Compensation (as defined below). The Committee has not agreed, however, as to the amount and timing of the payment of the Restructuring Fee (defined below) and are continuing to discuss payment of the Restructuring Fee with the Compensation Committee.

The Agreement

19. The Compensation Committee negotiated the Agreement with Mr. Seery at arm's length. The additional material economic terms of the Agreement are as follows:[6]

> (a) Term: Commencing retroactively to March 15, 2020.
> (b) Roles: Mr. Seery shall serve as the chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer of the Debtor and shall be responsible for the overall management of the business of the Debtor during its chapter 11 case, including: directing the Debtor's day-to-day ordinary course operations, overseeing the Debtor's personnel, making management decisions with respect to the Debtor's trading operations, directing the reorganization and restructuring of the Debtor, the monetization of the Debtor's assets, resolution of claims, the development and negotiation of a plan of reorganization or liquidation, and the implementation of such plan. Mr. Seery shall remain a full member of the New Board and shall be entitled to vote on matters other than on those in which he is conflicted. Mr. Seery shall devote as much time to the engagement as he determines is required to execute his responsibilities as chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer. Mr. Seery will have no specific on-site requirements in Dallas, Texas, but shall be on site as much as he determines is necessary to execute his responsibilities as chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer, consistent with applicable COVID-19 orders, protocols and advice.

[6] What follows is by way of summary only and is qualified in its entirety by reference to the Agreement, which controls. Capitalized terms not otherwise defined herein have the meanings ascribed to them in the Agreement.

(c) Compensation for Services: Mr. Seery's compensation under the Agreement shall consist of the following:

(1) Base Compensation: $150,000 per month, which shall be due and payable at the start of each calendar month; plus

(2) Bonus Compensation; Restructuring Fee:

Subject to separate Bankruptcy Court approval, the Compensation Committee and Mr. Seery have reached agreement on the payment of a restructuring fee upon confirmation of either a Case Resolution Plan or a Monetization Vehicle Plan in each case as defined below (the "Restructuring Fee").[7] The Committee has not yet agreed to the amount, composition, and timing of the Restructuring Fee. The Compensation Committee and Mr. Seery have agreed to defer Court consideration of the Restructuring Fee until further development in the Case. The Restructuring Fee agreed to by Mr. Seery and the Compensation Committee is as follows:

Case Resolution Restructuring Plan

On confirmation of any plan or reorganization or liquidation based on resolution of a material amount of the outstanding claims and their respective treatment, even if such plan includes (x) a debtor/creditor trust or similar monetization and claims resolution vehicle, (y) post-confirmation litigation of certain of the claims, and (z) post-confirmation monetization of debtor assets (a "Case Resolution Plan"):

$1,000,000 on confirmation of the Case Resolution Plan;

$500,000 on the effective date of the Case Resolution Plan; and [7] Although the Compensation Committee and Mr. Seery have agreed on the amount and timing of the Restructuring Fee, both the Compensation Committee and Mr. Seery understand that the Restructuring Fee is payable only upon order of this Court. The Compensation Committee is reserving the right to seek approval of the Restructuring Fee from this Court in connection with the confirmation hearing on a plan or as otherwise appropriate.

> $750,000 on completion of cash or property distributions to creditors as contemplated by the Case Resolution Plan.

Debtor/Creditor Monetization Vehicle Restructuring Fee:

On confirmation of any plan or reorganization or liquidation based on a debtor/creditor trust or similar asset monetization and claims resolution vehicle that does not include agreement among the debtor and creditors on a material amount of the outstanding claims and their respective treatment at confirmation (a "Monetization Vehicle Plan"):

> $500,000 on confirmation of the Monetization Vehicle Plan;
> $250,000 on the effective date of the Monetization Vehicle Plan; and
> A contingent restructuring fee to be determined by the board or oversight committee installed to oversee the implementation of any Monetization Vehicle Plan based on the CEO/CRO (or acting as trustee) based upon performance under the plan after all material distributions under the Monetization Vehicle Plan are made.

(e) Participation in Employee Benefit Plans: Mr. Seery shall act as an independent professional contractor and shall not be an employee of the Debtor. Mr. Seery will pay for his own benefits and will not participate under the Debtor's existing employee benefit plans.

(f) Expenses: Reimbursement of actual and reasonable out-of-pocket expenses in connection with the services provided under the Agreement. Expenses will be generally consistent with expenses incurred to date as a member of the New Board.

(g) Conflicts and Other Engagements. Mr. Seery is not aware of any potential conflicts of interest based on his understanding of the various parties involved in the Debtor's chapter 11 case to date. Mr. Seery shall not be precluded from representing or working with or for any other person or entity in matters not directly related to the services being provided to the Debtor under the Agreement. Mr. Seery shall not undertake any engagements directly adverse to the Debtor during the term of his engagement.

(h) Termination. The Agreement may be terminated at any time by either the Debtor or by Mr. Seery upon two weeks advance written notice given to the other party. The termination of the Agreement shall not affect Mr. Seery's right to receive, and the Debtor's obligation to pay, any and all Base Compensation and Expenses incurred (even if not billed) prior to the giving of any termination notice; provided however, that (1) if the Agreement is terminated by Mr. Seery, the amount of Base Compensation owed shall be calculated based on the actual number of days worked during the applicable month and Mr. Seery will return any Base Compensation received in excess of such amount, and (2) if the Agreement is terminated by the Debtor, Base Compensation shall be deemed fully earned as of the first day of any month. Bonus Compensation shall be earned by Mr. Seery immediately upon his termination by the Debtor; provided however, Mr. Seery shall not be entitled to Bonus Compensation if: (A) the Debtor's chapter 11 case is converted to chapter 7 or dismissed; (B) a chapter 11 trustee is appointed in the Debtor's chapter 11 case; (C) Mr. Seery is terminated by the Debtor for Cause;[8] or (D) Mr. Seery resigns prior to confirmation of a plan or court approval of a sale as described in the Fees and Expense/Compensation for Services section of the Agreement.

(j) Conditional Requirement to Seek Further Court Approval of Agreement. The Committee may, upon two weeks advance written notice to the Debtor, require the Debtor to file a motion with the Bankruptcy Court on normal notice seeking a continuation of the Agreement and if such motion is not filed, the Agreement will terminate at the expiration of such two week period. If the Debtor files such motion, Mr. Seery will be entitled to the Base Compensation through and including the date on which a final order is entered on such motion by this Court. Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary, the Committee may not deliver such notice to the Debtor until a date which is more than ninety days following the date this Court enters an order approving the Agreement.

(j) Indemnification. the Debtor agrees (i) to indemnify and hold harmless Mr. Seery and any of his affiliates (the "Indemnified Party"), to the fullest extent lawful, from and against any and all losses, claims, costs, damages or liabilities (or actions in respect thereof), joint or several, arising out of or related to the Agreement, Mr. Seery's engagement under the Agreement, or any actions taken or omitted to be taken by Mr. Seery or the Debtor in connection with the Agreement and (ii) to reimburse the Indemnified Party for all expenses (including, without limitation, the reasonable fees and expenses of counsel) as they are incurred in connection with investigating, preparing, pursuing, defending, settling or compromising any action, suit, dispute, inquiry, investigation or proceeding, pending or threatened, brought by or against any person (including, without limitation, any shareholder or derivative action, or any fee dispute), arising out of or relating to the Agreement, or such engagement, or actions. However, the Debtor shall not be liable under the foregoing indemnity and reimbursement agreement for any loss, claim, damage or liability which is finally judicially determined by a court of competent jurisdiction to have resulted primarily from the willful misconduct or gross negligence of the Indemnified Party.

[8] For purposes of the Agreement, "Cause" means any of the following grounds for termination of Mr. Seery's engagement, in each case as reasonably determined by the New Board within 60 days of the New Board becoming aware of the existence of the event or circumstance: (A) fraud, embezzlement, or any act of moral turpitude or willful misconduct on the part of Mr. Seery; (B) conviction of or the entry of a plea of nolo contendere by Mr. Seery for any felony; (C) the willful breach by Mr. Seery of any material term of the Agreement; or (D) the willful failure or refusal by Mr. Seery to perform his duties to the Debtor, which, if capable of being cured, is not cured on or before fifteen (15) days after Mr. Seery's receipt of written notice from the Debtor.

The Debtor has agreed to extend the indemnification and insurance currently covering Mr. Seery's role as a director to fully cover Mr. Seery in his roles as chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer. The Debtor is currently working to extend such coverage.

Mr. Seery is also entitled to any indemnification or other similar provisions under the Debtor's existing or future insurance policies, including any policy tails obtained (or which may be obtained in the future), by the Debtor.

Relief Requested

20. By this Motion, the Debtor seeks the entry of the Proposed Order authorizing the Debtor to retain Mr. Seery pursuant to the terms of the Agreement, nunc pro tunc to March 15, 2020. The Motion also seeks to amend the Foreign Representative Order to appoint Mr. Seery as the Debtor's Foreign Representative, Bermuda Foreign Representative and Cayman Foreign Representative in the stead of Mr. Sharp.

21. The Debtor believes that the Debtor's retention of a chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer constitutes an act in the ordinary course of business, and consequently, is permissible under Bankruptcy Code section 363(c) without Court approval. However, out of an abundance of caution, the Debtor seeks this Court's approval of the Agreement under Bankruptcy Code section 363(b).

Basis For Relief

B. The Debtor's Entry Into the Agreement is a Valid Exercise of the Debtor's Business Judgment and the Proposed Compensation is Appropriate Under the Circumstances and Within the Range of Similar Market Transactions

22. The Compensation Committee's decision for the Debtor to retain Mr. Seery pursuant to the terms of the Agreement should be approved pursuant to sections 363(b) and 105(a) of the Bankruptcy Code. Section 363(b)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code provides, in relevant part: "[t]he trustee, after notice and a hearing, may use, sell, or lease, other than in the ordinary course of business, property of the estate." 11 U.S.C. § 363(b)(1). In addition, section 105(a) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that the Court "may issue any order, process, or judgment that is necessary or appropriate to carry out the provisions of [the Bankruptcy Code]." 11 U.S.C. § 105(a).

23. The proposed use, sale, or lease of property of the estate may be approved under Bankruptcy Code section 363(b) if it is supported by sound business justification. See In re Montgomery Ward, 242 B.R. 147, 153 (D. Del. 1999) ("In determining whether to authorize the use, sale or lease of property of the estate under this section, courts require the debtor to show that a sound business purpose justifies such actions"). Although established in the context of a proposed sale, the "business judgment" standard has been applied in non-sale situations. See, e.g., Inst. Creditors of Cont'l Air Lines v. Cont'l Air Lines (In re Cont'l Air Lines), 780 F.2d 1223, 1226 (5th Cir. 1986) (applying the "business judgment" standard in context of proposed "use" of estate property). Moreover, pursuant to section 105, this Court has expansive equitable powers to fashion any order or decree which is in the interest of preserving or protecting the value of a debtor's assets. 11 U.S.C. § 105(a).

24. It is well established that courts are unwilling to interfere with corporate decisions absent a showing of bad faith, self-interest, or gross negligence, and will uphold a board's decisions as long as they are attributable to "any rational business purpose." Unocal Corp. v. Mesa Petroleum Co., 493 A.2d 946, 954 (Del. 1985) (citing Sinclair Oil Corp. v. Levien, 280 A.2d 717, 720 (Del. 1971)). Whether or not there are sufficient business reasons to justify the use of assets of the estate depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case. See Comm. of Equity Sec. Holders v. Lionel Corp. (In re Lionel Corp.), 722 F.2d 1063, 1071 (2d Cir. 1983). In this case, the Debtor has ample justification to retain Mr. Seery as the Debtor's chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer pursuant to the Agreement. The Final Term Sheet expressly contemplated that the New Board could appoint a chief executive officer and that the chief executive officer could also be one of the Independent Directors. Because Mr. Seery will also be serving as chief restructuring officer, it is not necessary to have two separate ranking chief restructuring officers, especially considering that Mr. Sharp (the current chief restructuring officer) and his firm has agreed to continue to provide financial advisory services on behalf of the Debtor.[9] Mr. Seery is well- qualified to serve as the Debtor's chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer.

[9] See Amended Motion of the Debtor Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a) and 363(b) to Employ and Retain Development Specialists, Inc. to Provide Financial Advisory and Restructuring-Related Services, Nunc Pro Tunc, to March 15, 2020 filed concurrently herewith

25. The Compensation Committee negotiated the Agreement in good faith and at arm's length. The Compensation Committee also worked with the Debtor's compensation consultant, Mercer (US) Inc., to determine the appropriate compensation for Mr. Seery as chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer. The Compensation Committee, therefore, believes that the terms of the Agreement are reasonable, are consistent with the market within the Debtor's industry, and are entirely appropriate given the scope of Mr. Seery's duties. Accordingly, entry into the Agreement is a sound exercise of the Debtor's business judgment.

26. Finally, the Debtor requests that the Court apply the same criteria by which parties in interest must first petition the Court prior to asserting claims against the Independent Director approved in the Settlement Order be extended to Mr. Seery in his capacity as chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer contemplated by this Motion. See Settlement Order, ¶ 10. The rationale for the Court to first determine whether or not a colorable claim or cause of action can be maintained against the Mr. Seery, as one of the Independent Directors, is equally applicable to Mr. Seery in his capacity as chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer, will further aid in the implementation of the Settlement Order, and discourage frivolous litigation. As was true in the Settlement Order with respect to the Independent Directors, no parties will be prejudiced by having to first apply to this Court to determine the propriety of any hypothetical claim that may be asserted against Mr. Seery in his officer capacities of the Debtor.

C. The Debtor Has Satisfied Bankruptcy Code Section 503(c)(3)

27. Bankruptcy Code section 503(c)(3) provides that "transfers or obligations that are outside the ordinary course of business . . . including transfers made to . . . consultants hired after the date of the filing of the petition" are not allowed if they are "not justified by the facts and circumstances of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 503(c)(3). Courts generally use a form of the "business judgment" and the "facts and circumstances" standard. See In re Pilgrim's Pride Corp., 401 B.R. 229, 236-37 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009) (citing In re Dura Auto Sys., Inc., Case No. 06-11202 (Bankr. D. Del. June 29, 2007) and In re Supplements LT, Inc., Case No. 08-10446 (KJC) (Bankr. D. Del. Apr. 14, 2008)). Specifically, the court examines first, whether the transaction meets the Debtor's business judgment standard, and second, whether the facts and circumstances justify the transaction. See In re Pilgrim's Pride Corp., 401 B.R. at 237 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009).

28. The Debtor submits that the proposed transaction is within the ordinary course of its business and thus that Bankruptcy Code section 503(c)(3) does not apply to the Agreement. Nevertheless, for the reasons stated above — the benefits from Mr. Seery's leadership skills and industry experience — even if this were outside the ordinary course of business, entry into the Agreement is well within the Debtor's business judgment as applied to the facts and circumstances of the Debtor. Further, the facts and circumstances of this case support entry into the relationship under the Agreement where the Debtor will benefit from the ability to retain Mr. Seery at a critical juncture to ongoing restructuring efforts.

29. For the reasons set forth above, the Debtor submits that the relief requested herein is in the best interest of the Debtor, its estate, creditors, stakeholders, and other parties in interest, and therefore, should be granted.

D. The Proposed Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer Should Also Serve as the Debtor's Foreign Representative

30. Bankruptcy Code section 1505 provides that:

> A trustee or another entity (including an examiner) may be authorized by the court to act in a foreign country on behalf of an estate created under section 541. An entity authorized to act under this section may act in any way permitted by the applicable foreign law.

11 U.S.C. § 1505.

31. The Debtor respectfully submits that Mr. Seery is qualified and capable of representing the Debtor's estate as the Foreign Representative. The Debtor believes it is appropriate for Mr. Seery, as an officer of the Debtor, to replace Mr. Sharp as Foreign Representative inasmuch as Mr. Sharp will no longer be an officer of the Debtor if the Motion is granted. In order to avoid any possible confusion or doubt regarding this authority and to comply with the requirements of Part XVII of the Cayman Law, the Debtor seeks entry of an order, pursuant to section 1505 of the Bankruptcy Code, explicitly substituting Mr. Seery in the place of Mr. Sharp as the Debtor's Foreign Representative, including specifically to serve as the Bermuda Foreign Representative and Cayman Foreign Representative.

32. For the reasons set forth in the Foreign Representative Motion, authorizing Mr. Seery to act as the Foreign Representative on behalf of the Debtor's estate in Bermuda, the Cayman Islands or any other foreign proceeding will allow coordination of this chapter 11 case and each of the foreign proceedings and provide an effective mechanism to protect and maximize the value of the Debtor's assets and estate. Courts have routinely granted relief similar to that requested herein in other large chapter 11 cases where a debtor has foreign assets or operations requiring a recognition proceeding. See, e.g., In re CJ Holding Co., No. 16-33590 (Bankr. S.D.

Tex. July 21, 2016); ECF No. 59*; In re CHC Group Ltd.,* No. 16-31854 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Sept. 20, 2016), ECF No. 884; In re Ultra Petroleum Corp., No. 16-32202 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. May 3, 2016); In re Digital Domain Media Grp., Inc., No. 12-12568 (BLS) (Bankr. D. Del. Sept. 12, 2012); ECF No. 82*; In re Probe Resources US Ltd., No*. 10-40395 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Mar. 21, 2011); ECF N. 320*; In re Bigler LP,* No. 09-38188 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Jan. 12, 2010), ECF No. 159; In re Horsehead Holdings Corp., No. 16-10287 (CSS) (Bankr. D. Del. Feb. 4, 2016); In re Colt Holding Co. LLC, No. 15-11296 (LSS) (Bankr. D. Del. June 16, 2015). The Debtor believes it is appropriate for one of its officers to serve as the Foreign Representative. In several jurisdictions, an officer or someone acting in a similar capacity is a prerequisite to serve as a Foreign Representative.[10] As more fully explained in the Foreign Representative Motion, the Debtor has assets in jurisdictions other than the United States, including in Bermuda and the Cayman Islands. To the extent any disputes with respect to such assets arise, it is critical that the Foreign Representative be permitted to appear on behalf of the Debtor and it estate in any court in which a foreign proceeding may be pending.

Notice

33. Notice of this Motion shall be given to the following parties or, in lieu thereof, to their counsel, if known: (a)the Office of the United States Trustee; (b)the Office of the United States Attorney for the Northern District of Texas; (c)the Debtor's principal secured parties; (d)counsel to the Committee; and (e)parties requesting notice pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 2002. The Debtor submits that, in light of the nature of the relief requested, no other or further notice need be given.

[10] See e.g. Part XVII, Section 240o f the Companies Law (2018 Revision) of the Cayman Islands requiring that the foreign representative be "a trustee, liquidator or other official in respect of a debtor for the purposes of a foreign bankruptcy proceeding." In addition, and as more fully explained in the Foreign Representative Motion, Bermuda common law and conflict of laws principles will recognize the authority of a foreign insolvency officeholder appointed in proceedings in the jurisdiction of incorporation of a company (or, in the instant case, the jurisdiction of the establishment of a limited partnership) to act on behalf of and in the name of the company (or partnership) in Bermuda.

Conclusion

WHEREFORE, the Debtor respectfully requests that the Court enter an order, substantially in the form annexed hereto as Exhibit A, granting the relief requested in the Motion and such other and further relief as may be just and proper.

CONFIDENTIAL

The Board of Directors of Strand Advisors, Inc.
c/o Highland Capital Management, L.P.
300 Crescent Court, Suite 700
Dallas, Texas 75201

Re: Highland Capital Management L.P. (the "Company")

Dear Fellow Board Members:

This letter agreement ("Agreement") sets forth the terms and conditions of the engagement of the undersigned James P. Seery, Jr. ("I", "me" or "my"), as Chief Executive Officer ("CEO") and Chief Restructuring Officer ("CRO"), effective as of March 15, 2020 (the "Commencement Date"), by the Company and its affiliates to perform financial advisory services as detailed below.

I appreciate the trust you have placed in me by asking me to assume these roles and thank you for the opportunity to continue to work with you to restructure the Company.

Roles:

I will serve as the CEO and CRO of the Company during its Chapter 11 bankruptcy case (the "Bankruptcy Case") currently pending in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the "Bankruptcy Court").

In those roles, I will be responsible for overall management of the business of the Company in Chapter 11 including, directing the reorganization and restructuring of the Company, monetization of assets, resolution of claims, development and negotiation of a plan of reorganization or liquidation, and implementation of such a plan.

My direct reports will include the individuals at the Company that currently report to the Board of Directors of Strand Advisors, Inc. (the "Board") or such other individuals employed by the Company as I determine should report to directly to me. In the event that the Board determines to restructure the reporting lines or functions of the Company, my direct reports will be amended in accordance with the Board approved restructuring.

At all times, I will remain a full member of the Board entitled to vote on all matters other than those on which I am conflicted.

I will devote as much time to this engagement as I determine is required to execute my responsibilities as CEO and CRO. I will have no specific on-site requirements in Dallas, but will be on site as much as I determine is necessary to execute my responsibilities as CEO and CRO, consistent with Covid-19 orders applicable to Dallas and New York City.

Limitations on Services

My services under this engagement are limited to those specifically noted in this Agreement and do not include legal, accounting, or tax-related assistance or advisory services. For the avoidance of doubt, I am not providing any legal services in connection with this engagement and will have not any duties as a lawyer to the Company, the Board, or any of the Company's employees. The accuracy and completeness of all information submitted to me by the Company are the sole responsibility of the Company, and I will be entitled to rely on such information without independent investigation or verification.

In my role as CEO and CRO, I will act as an independent professional contractor to the Company and will not be an employee of the Company. I will provide and pay for my own benefits, including medical benefits, by J.P Seery & Co. LLC or otherwise.

Fees and Expenses:

In consideration of my acceptance of this engagement and performance of the services pursuant to this Agreement, the Company shall pay the following:

1. Compensation for Services:
    a. Base Compensation: As compensation for my services as CEO and CRO of the Company, the Company shall pay me $150,000.00 per calendar month ("Base Compensation"). Base Compensation shall be due and payable at the start of each calendar month. Consistent with current Board compensation practice, invoices rendered by me to the Company are due and payable by the Company on receipt. Payment of the Base Compensation will be retroactive to March 15, 2020.
    b. Bonus Compensation/Restructuring Fee:
        i. The Company has agreed to pay me a restructuring fee upon confirmation of either a Case Resolution Plan or a Monetization Vehicle Plan in each case as defined below (the "Restructuring Fee").
        ii. Case Resolution Restructuring Plan
            1. On confirmation of any plan or reorganization or liquidation based on resolution of a material amount of the outstanding claims and their respective treatment, even if such plan includes (x) a debtor/creditor trust or similar monetization and claims resolution vehicle, (y) post-confirmation litigation of certain of the claims, and (z) post-confirmation monetization of debtor assets (a "Case Resolution Plan"):
                a. $1,000,000 on confirmation of the Case Resolution Plan;
                b. $500,000 on the effective date of the Case Resolution Plan; and
                c. $750,000 on completion of cash or property distributions to creditors as contemplated by the Case Resolution Plan.

iii. Debtor/Creditor Monetization Vehicle Restructuring Fee:

1. On confirmation of any plan or reorganization or liquidation based on a debtor/creditor trust or similar asset monetization and claims resolution vehicle that does not include agreement among the debtor and creditors on a material amount of the outstanding claims and their respective treatment at confirmation (a "Monetization Vehicle Plan"):
    a. $500,000 on confirmation of the Monetization Vehicle Plan;
    b. $250,000 on the effective date of the Monetization Vehicle Plan; and
    c. A contingent restructuring fee to be determined by the board or oversight committee installed to oversee the implementation of any Monetization Vehicle Plan based on the CEO/CRO (or acting as trustee) based upon performance under the plan after all material distributions under the Monetization Vehicle Plan are made.

2. Out-of-Pocket Expenses: In addition to the Base and Bonus Compensation, I shall be entitled to reimbursement for actual and reasonable out-of-pocket expenses ("Expenses") incurred in connection with the provision of services hereunder. Expenses will be billed along with Base Compensation and shall be paid by the Company at the same time. Expenses will be generally consistent with expenses incurred to date as a member of the Board.

Bankruptcy Court Approval

Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary, I understand that this Agreement is contingent, in all respects, on the approval of the Bankruptcy Court. I also understand that the Company will seek approval of this Agreement in stages and that the Company will first seek approval of my retention as CEO and CRO and the payment of the Base Compensation and will defer seeking Bankruptcy Court approval of the Restructuring Fee until there have been further developments in the Bankruptcy Case.

Conflicts and Other Engagements

I am not aware of any potential conflicts of interest based on my understanding of the various parties involved in this matter to date.

The Company is aware that this engagement is not an exclusive engagement of my time, and that I have and will continue to have other business engagements and investments unrelated to the Company. Nothing in this Agreement or otherwise precludes me from representing or working with or for any other person or entity in matters not directly related to the services being provided to the Company under this Agreement. However, I will not take on any engagements directly adverse to the Company during the term of this engagement.

Privilege

I understand that in the course of this engagement, I may become party to or my services may become part of work product of legal counsel to the Company (the Company's in-house and outside counsel are collectively referred to as "Counsel"), and all communications between Counsel and me relating to this engagement shall be protected from disclosure to third parties under the attorney work product doctrine and/or the attorney-client privilege, and, therefore, shall be treated by me as privileged and confidential. I further understand that the Company has the exclusive right to waive the attorney-client privilege, and Counsel has the exclusive right to waive the protections afforded under the attorney work-product doctrine.

Termination of Engagement

This Agreement may be terminated at any time by either the Company or by me upon two weeks advance written notice given to the other party. The termination of this Agreement shall not affect my right to receive, and the Company's obligation to pay, any and all Base Compensation and Expenses incurred (even if not billed) prior to the giving of the termination notice; provided, however, that (i) if this Agreement is terminated by me, the amount of Base Compensation owed shall be calculated based on the actual number of days worked during the applicable month and I will return any Base Compensation received in excess of such amount and (ii) if this Agreement is terminated by the Company, Base Compensation shall be deemed fully earned as of the first day of any month. Bonus Compensation shall be earned by me immediately upon termination of me by the Company; provided, however, I shall not be entitled to Bonus Compensation if (a) the Bankruptcy Case is converted to chapter 7 or dismissed; (b) a chapter 11 trustee is appointed in the Bankruptcy Case; (c) I am terminated by the Company for Cause; or (d) I resign prior to confirmation of a plan or court approval of a sale as described in the Fees and Expense/Compensation for Services section hereof. For purposes of this Agreement, "Cause" means any of the following grounds for termination of my engagement, in each case as reasonably determined by the Board within 60 days of the Board becoming aware of the existence of the event or circumstance: (A) fraud, embezzlement, or any act of moral turpitude or willful misconduct on my part; (B) conviction of or the entry of a plea of nolo contendere by me for any felony; (C) the willful breach by me of any material term of this Agreement; or (D) the willful failure or refusal by me to perform my duties to the Company, which, if capable of being cured, is not cured on or before fifteen (15) days after my receipt of written notice from the Company.

Conditional Requirement to Seek Further Bankruptcy Court Approval of Agreement

The official committee of unsecured creditors in the Bankruptcy Case (the "Committee") may, upon two weeks advance written notice to the Company, require the Company to file a motion with the Bankruptcy Court on normal notice seeking a continuation of this Agreement and if such motion is not filed, this Agreement will terminate at the expiration of such two week period. If the Company files such motion, I will be entitled to my Base Compensation through and including the date on which a final order is entered on such motion by the Bankruptcy Court. Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary, the Committee may not deliver such notice to the Company until a date which is more than ninety days following the date the Bankruptcy Court enters an order approving this Agreement.

Indemnification

As a material part of the consideration to me under this Agreement, the Company agrees (i) to indemnify and hold harmless me and any of my affiliates (the "Indemnified Party"), to the fullest extent lawful, from and against any and all losses, claims, costs, damages or liabilities (or actions in respect thereof), joint or several, arising out of or related to this Agreement, my engagement under this Agreement, or any actions taken or omitted to be taken by me or the Company in connection with this Agreement and (ii) to reimburse the Indemnified Party for all expenses (including, without limitation, the reasonable fees and expenses of counsel) as they are incurred in connection with investigating, preparing, pursuing, defending, settling or compromising any action, suit, dispute, inquiry, investigation or proceeding, pending or threatened, brought by or against any person (including, without limitation, any shareholder or derivative action, or any fee dispute), arising out of or relating to this Agreement, or such engagement, or actions. However, the Company shall not be liable under the foregoing indemnity and reimbursement agreement for any loss, claim, damage or liability which is finally judicially determined by a court of competent jurisdiction to have resulted primarily from the willful misconduct or gross negligence of the Indemnified Party.

The indemnification and insurance currently covering my role as a director shall be extended to me and fully cover me as provided therein in my roles as CEO and CRO.

Miscellaneous

This Agreement (a) constitutes the entire agreement of the parties with respect to the subject matter hereof and supersedes any other communications, understandings or agreements among the parties with respect to the subject matter hereof, and (b) may be modified, amended or supplemented only by written agreement among all the parties hereto.

This Agreement is subject to approval by the Bankruptcy Court. As part of such approval the Company shall request that any such order approving this Agreement contain a provision extending the protections afforded to me as a Board Member pursuant to Paragraph 10 of the Order Approving Settlement with Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course entered by the Bankruptcy Court on January 9, 2020 [Docket No. 339] to my role as CEO and CRO, which Order prohibits the commencement of any action against me without first obtaining Bankruptcy Court approval to initiate such action.

This Agreement and all controversies arising from or related to performance hereunder shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New York. The parties hereby submit to the jurisdiction of and venue in the federal and state courts located in New York City and waive any right to trial by jury in connection with any dispute related to this Agreement.

This Agreement shall be binding upon the parties and their respective successors and assigns, and no other person shall acquire or have any right under or by virtue of this Agreement.

Failure of any party at any time to require performance of any provision of this Agreement shall not affect the right to require full performance thereof at any time thereafter, and the waiver by any party of a breach of such provisions shall not be taken as or held to be a waiver of any subsequent breach or as nullifying the effectiveness of such provision.

Notices provided for in this Agreement shall be in writing and shall be deemed to have been duly given when delivered by hand or overnight courier or three days after it has been mailed by United States registered mail, return receipt requested, postage prepaid, addressed to the respective address set forth above in this Agreement, or to such other address as either party may have furnished to the other in writing in accordance herewith.

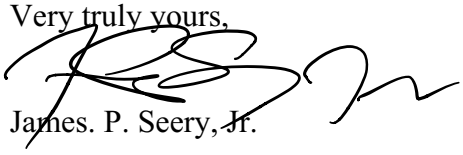
This Agreement and my rights and duties hereunder shall not be assignable or delegable by me.

The Company may withhold from any amounts payable under this Agreement such Federal, state and local taxes as may be required to be withheld pursuant to any applicable law or regulation.

This Agreement may be executed (including by electronic execution) in any number of counterparts, each of which when so executed shall be deemed an original, but all such counterparts shall constitute one and the same instrument. Delivery of an executed counterpart of this Agreement by electronic mail shall have the same force and effect as the delivery of an original executed counterpart of this Agreement.

Please confirm the foregoing is in accordance with your understanding by signing and returning a copy of this Agreement, whereupon it shall become binding and enforceable in accordance with its terms.

Very truly yours,



James. P. Seery, Jr.

Counsel for the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors

IN THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
DALLAS DIVISION

In re:	)	Chapter 11
HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P., [1]	)	Case No. 19-34054-sgj11
Debtor.	)

OFFICIAL COMMITTEE OF UNSECURED CREDITORS'
EMERGENCY MOTION TO COMPEL PRODUCTION BY THE DEBTOR

[1] The Debtor's last four digits of its taxpayer identification number are (6725). The headquarters and service address for the above-captioned Debtor is 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, TX 75201.

1. Pursuant to Rule 37 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, made applicable by Rules 7037 and 9014 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, and 11 U.S.C. § 105(a), the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the "Committee") in the above-captioned bankruptcy case moves to compel production of certain electronic information by Highland Capital Management, L.P., the debtor and debtor-in-possession (the "Debtor").

2. Pursuant to the Final Term Sheet,[2] attached as Exhibit A to the Notice of Final Term Sheet [Dkt. No. 354-1], outlining the principal terms of a proposed settlement between the Debtor and the Committee, the Committee has sought discovery related to defined Estate Claims and other potential claims against third parties for the benefit of the Debtor's estate. For approximately eight months, the Committee has attempted to work cooperatively with Debtor to obtain documents and communications needed to investigate those claims, with the understanding that a turbulent market and pandemic have presented unique challenges. Despite the Committee's efforts, the Debtor has not yet provided the Committee with the electronically stored information ("ESI") it has requested.

3. Debtor's failure to produce email communications or other ESI has significantly hindered the Committee's ability properly to investigate the Estate Claims that it has explicit standing to investigate and pursue on behalf of the Debtor. In consideration of repeated failed negotiations, time constraints,[3] and a depletion of the Debtor's estate resources that is bound to continue without court intervention, the Committee moves to compel production of the Debtor's

[2] Capitalized terms not defined herein shall have the meanings ascribed to such terms in the Final Term Sheet.

[3] On June 30, 2020, this Court held a hearing related to CLO Holdco Ltd.'s ("CLO Holdco") motion to release certain funds held in the court registry. The Court held that the Committee must submit any complaint against CLO Holdco within 90 days of that ruling. Without access to the Debtor's documents, the Committee cannot properly investigate and bring any claims against CLO Holdco.

documents and communications of nine custodians pursuant to the protocol proposed by the Committee to the Debtor on June 25, 2020 (the "Proposed Protocol").[4]

ADDITIONAL BACKGROUND

4. On January 14, 2020, the Debtor and the Committee entered into the Final Term Sheet, which explicitly granted the Committee standing to pursue the Estate Claims, defined as "any and all estate claims and causes of actions against Mr. Dondero, Mr. Okada, other insiders of the Debtor, and each of the Related Entities,[5] including promissory notes held by any of the foregoing." (Dkt. 354-1, at 4.) The parties also agreed that the Committee would receive any privileged documents or communications that relate to the Estate Claims so that the Committee could bring those claims. In short, the Committee stands in Debtors' shoes with respect to the Estate Claims.

5. The Final Term Sheet deferred any disputes relating to documents' relevance or with regard to any attorney–client protection unrelated to the Estate Claims. (See Dkt. 354-1, at 48 ("Nothing in the Protocol shall require disclosure of irrelevant information or relevant information protected by the attorney-client privilege, work-product doctrine, or any other applicable privilege or immunity.").)

[4] The Proposed Protocol is fully defined infra, at Paragraph 10.

[5] The Final Term Sheet defines "Related Entities," as, collectively, "(i) any non-publicly traded third party in which Mr. Dondero, Mr. Okada, or Mr. Grant Scott, or Mr. John Honis . . . has any direct or indirect economic or ownership interest, including as a beneficiary of a trust; (ii) any entity controlled directly or indirectly by Mr. Dondero, Mr. Okada, Mr. Grant Scott, or Mr. John Honis . . . ; (iii) MGM Holdings, Inc.; (iv) any publicly traded company with respect to which the Debtor or any Related Entity has filed a Form 13D or Form 13G; (v) any relative . . . of Mr. Dondero or Mr. Okada each solely to the extent reasonably knowable by the Debtor; (vi) the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust and Dugaboy Investment Trust; (vii) any entity or person that is an insider of the Debtor under Section 101(31) the Bankruptcy Code, . . .; and (viii) to the extent not included in [the above], any entity included in the listing of related entities in Schedule B hereto (the "Related Entities Listing")." (Dkt. 354-1, at 52.) The Related Entities Listing lists thousands of entities related to the Debtor. CLO Holdco in a shareholder and limited partner of various entities on the Related Entities Listing.

6. Shortly after the Final Term Sheet was completed and entered by the Court, the Committee began requesting documents and communications from the Debtor necessary to investigate the Estate Claims.[6] In particular, the Committee has spent a considerable amount of time attempting to obtain any production of emails, chats, texts, or other ESI or communications from the Debtor. In November 2019, the Committee further provided the Debtor with search terms to run across various platforms, and provided an updated search term list on February 3, 2020, in an attempt to jump-start at least some production (the "Search Term Requests"). To date, the Committee has not received any documents responsive to the Search Term Requests.

7. Since November 2019, the Committee has attempted to work cooperatively with the Debtor to obtain communications that are necessary to investigate the Estate Claims. Indeed, on November 10, 2019, February 3, 2020, and February 24, 2020, the Committee served the Debtor with Requests for Production of Documents, including categories of documents related to certain Estate Claims. Unfortunately, despite the considerable time that has gone by and the number of communications the parties have had on the topic, no actual production of emails, chats, or other ESI has occurred. After months of discussion and negotiation, on June 2, 2020, the Debtor provided the Committee with a proposed review protocol for the Search Term Requests contemplating unduly stringent relevance and privilege reviews.

[6] On February 3, 2020, the Committee served the Debtor with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors' Second Request for Production of Documents, requesting documents related to various promissory notes held by and among the Debtor and Related Entities. On February 24, 2020, the Committee served the Debtor with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors' Third Request for Production of Documents, requesting certain ESI production related to the Estate Claims. The Committee has only received partial responses to the February 3 request and has not received any responses to the February 24 request, despite representations from the Debtor's counsel that production related to the February 24 requests would begin the week of April 6, 2020.

8. Under the Debtor's protocol, the Debtor would use continuous machine learning only on documents responsive to a list of specified search terms,[7] and then have contract attorneys, previously unfamiliar with the Debtor, this bankruptcy case, or the thousands of Related Entities, review those documents for "relevance." Then, if a document were determined to be relevant, it would be subject to a privilege review.

9. The Committee strongly believes that this type of relevance and privilege review significantly increases the likelihood that documents related to the Estate Claims will not be produced because relevance is not readily apparent from the face of the document, especially in light of the Debtor's deliberately convoluted affiliate structure and the complexity of its transactions. Moreover, it adds unnecessary time and expense to the review process by doubling the review of "relevant documents"—once by the Debtor and then by the Committee—and requires iterative discovery requests as the nature and focuses of the investigation shift with time.

10. Given its concerns about the risks of stonewalling and increased expense, on June 25, 2020, the Committee spoke with Debtor's counsel and also sent the Debtor the following Proposed Protocol to facilitate the Committee's investigation of the Estate Claims and preserve estate resources:

a. all custodial data for nine identified custodians[8] would be provided to the e-discovery vendor for inclusion in its repository workspace;

b. a set of mutually agreeable privilege terms (those likely to identify attorney-client privileged communications or attorney work product) would be run across that workspace, with any [7] Ordinarily, continuous machine learning is applied to all custodial files such that anything the program determines is relevant for review would be queued for review even if it did not include a search term.

[8] These nine custodians are Patrick Boyce, Jim Dondero, Scott Ellington, David Klos, Isaac Leventon, Mark Okada, Trey Parker, Tom Surgent, and Frank Waterhouse. For avoidance of doubt, the Committee is requesting all ESI for the nine custodians, including without limitation, email, chat, text, Bloomberg messaging, or any other ESI attributable to the custodians.

disagreements regarding those terms to be determined by a special master or other third-party neutral;[9]

c. any document not including one of the agreed privilege terms would be produced to the Committee for review, subject to the Agreed Protective Order's provisions on "No Waiver" and "Claw Back of Inadvertently Produced Protected Materials" (Dkt. 382), thus protecting the Debtor from any inadvertent production or subject-matter waiver; and

d. all documents including any such privilege term would then be isolated for review by Debtor's contract attorneys.

(i) Non-privileged documents and privileged documents related to the Estate Claims would be produced to the Committee on a rolling basis.

(ii) Documents that are privileged and unrelated to the Estate Claims would be listed on a privilege log so that the Committee can probe those claims of privilege as needed.[10]

11. The Debtor did not respond to the Committee's proposal. On July 1, 2020, the Committee again requested a response, informing the Debtor it would file this motion to compel to seek the Court's assistance if the parties could not agree on review protocols in a timely fashion. On July 2, 2020, the Debtor informed the Committee that it would respond shortly and requested that the Committee not file a motion to compel until the parties could confer. On July 3, 2020, the Debtor responded with a proposal that would still limit any production of documents to those containing search terms. After discussion that day, the Debtor notified the Committee that it would consider production of all ESI for the agreed custodians and let the Committee know of its decision. On July 7, 2020, having heard nothing with regard to the open issues, the Committee once again let the Debtor know that time was of the essence and that it had no choice but to seek relief from the Court. Late on July 7, 2020, after repeated requests and indications that the [9] This provision is consistent with the Final Term Sheet. (Dkt. 354-1, at 4).

[10] Pursuant to the Final Term Sheet, any disputes regarding withheld documents will be determined by a special master or other third-party neutral agreed to by the parties. (Dkt. 354-1, at 4).

Committee would seek relief from the Court, Debtor circulated a draft motion purporting to address amicably the issues raised in this Motion. Instead, that draft motion merely retained the so-called "relevance" review that the Committee believes will unnecessarily tax the remaining assets of the estate.

12. Time is running out. The Committee cannot keep waiting for the Debtor to provide it with the data that is required for the Committee to do its work. As a result, the Committee has brought this issue to the Court for resolution. The Committee strongly believes the Proposed Protocol is the most fair, efficient, and cost effective proposal, and allows the Committee the ability properly to investigate and pursue Estate Claims. Accordingly, the Committee respectfully requests that this Court compel the Debtor to produce documents pursuant to the Committee's Proposed Protocol.

ARGUMENT AND AUTHORITIES

13. The Committee respectfully submits that sufficient cause exists for the Court to compel the Debtor to produce documents pursuant to the Proposed Protocol so that the Committee can properly investigate potential Estate Claims. The Debtor previously agreed that the Estate Claims will be prosecuted by the Committee and that the Committee is entitled even to privileged documents related to those Estate Claims. The range of the Committee's investigation is necessarily broad in light of Debtor's structure and operations, as is the scope of potential Estate Claims that may be brought on Debtor's behalf. The Debtor's continued arguments regarding "relevance" are a red herring—the Committee stands in the Debtor's shoes with regard to the Estate Claims and is best able to determine whether a document is relevant to its investigation given that it has no incentive to obfuscate or hide evidence of possible wrongdoing by current or former employees of the Debtor.[11]

I. The Court Should Compel Discovery Because the Documents Are Relevant to the Estate Claims Investigation.

14. Rule 37, made applicable by Bankruptcy Rule 7037, allows "[a] party seeking discovery [to] move for an order compelling . . . production. . . . [if] a party fails to produce documents . . . as requested under Rule 34." Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(a)(3)(B). "A party resisting discovery is swimming against a strong upstream policy current. The policy underlying the discovery rules encourages more rather than less discovery, and discourages obstructionist tactics." In re Tex. Bumper Exch., Inc., 333 B.R. 135, 139–40 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 2005) (emphasis in original). Rule 7037 ensures that this policy is enforced. Id. at 140.

15. Courts have "broad discretion in discovery matters." Hamilton v. First Am. Title Ins. Co., No. 3:07-CV-1442-G, 2010 WL 791421, at *4 (N.D. Tex. Mar. 8, 2010) (quoting Winfun v. Daimler Chrysler Corp., 255 F. App'x 772, 773 (5th Cir. 2007) (per curiam). Rule 26 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, applicable through Bankruptcy Rule 7026, facilitates broad-ranging discovery, allowing discovery of any "nonprivileged matter that is relevant to any party's claim or defense and proportional to the needs of the" investigation. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1). Relevance "is broadly construed, especially in the context of discovery requests, which should be considered relevant if there is any possibility that the information sought may be relevant to the claim or defense." In re Adkins Supply, Inc., 555 B.R. 579, 589 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2016) (emphasis in original). "Information sought only fails the relevance test if it is clear that it could have no possible bearing on the claim." Id. Indeed, "[i]nformation within this scope of discovery need not be admissible in evidence to be discoverable," and the party resisting discovery bears the burden of showing that the discovery sought is irrelevant or non-proportional. See Orchestrate HR, Inc. v. Trombetta, 178 F. Supp. 3d 476, 504–06 (N.D. Tex. 2016).

16. The documents sought from the nine custodians proposed under the Proposed Protocol are relevant to the Committee's investigation and potential Estate Claims. This investigation encompasses, among other claims and causes of action, potential fraudulent transfers, preferential transfers, breaches of fiduciary duties, usurpation of corporate opportunities, misappropriation of assets, and abuses of the corporate form by and among insiders—which include certain of the proposed custodians—and Related Entities. Their documents are therefore relevant to the subject matter of the Estate Claims. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1).

17. Moreover, the Committee is not seeking privileged documents to which it is not already entitled under the Final Term Sheet. The Final Term Sheet explicitly grants the Committee access to privileged documents and communications in the Debtor's possession, custody, or control specifically related to the investigation and pursuit of the Estate Claims. (Dkt. 354-1, at 4.) The Committee's Proposed Protocol allows the Debtor to withhold documents responsive to agreed-upon privilege terms and review those presumptively privileged documents before turning them over to the Committee. The Proposed Protocol requires the Debtor produce only those documents that are non-privileged, or privileged and related to the Estate Claims, and provides that a third-party neutral will resolve any privilege disputes as originally agreed upon under the Final Term Sheet. There is therefore no issue regarding privilege waiver.[12]

[12] The Proposed Protocol also recognizes the Agreed Protective Order's "No Waiver" and "Claw Back of Inadvertently Produced Protected Materials" (Dkt. 382) provisions, which provide additional privilege protections to the Debtor.

II. The Proposed Protocol is Necessary to the Committee's Investigation of the Estate Claims.

18. Further, section 105(a) of the Bankruptcy Code empowers this Court to "issue an order . . . that is necessary or appropriate to carry out the provisions of this title." 11 U.S.C. § 105(a).

19. Implementation of the Proposed Protocol is necessary for the Committee to fulfil its statutory mandates under section 1103(c) of the Bankruptcy Code. As fiduciary for all unsecured creditors, the Committee is granted broad statutory powers to, among other things, "investigate the acts, conduct, assets, and liabilities and financial condition of the debtor, . . . and any other matters relevant to the case or to the formulation of a plan." Id. at § 1103(c)(2); see also Dkt. 354-1, at 4 (granting the Committee standing to investigate and pursue Estate Claims on behalf of the Debtor). Ordering the Debtor to turn over all documents of the nine custodians, subject to a limited privilege review, is necessary for the Committee properly to carry out this mandate.

20. To date, the Debtor has not produced any documents or communications in response to the February 24 requests or the Search Term Requests, despite extended negotiations to facilitate such productions. This has impeded the Committee's ability to exercise its duty to investigate the acts and conduct of the Debtor. An order compelling production is therefore necessary for the Committee sufficiently to carry out its Estate Claim investigation.

21. The Proposed Protocol is the most cost effective and efficient way to obtain documents relevant to the Estate Claims, avoiding the cost, delay, and risk of false negatives associated with contract attorneys' relevance review. Rather than use estate resources to conduct a double relevance review proposed by the Debtor—reviewed once by the Debtor and again by the Committee—the Committee's Proposed Protocol calls for only one round of privilege review and the targeted searches for relevant documents that the Committee will conduct as it carries out its investigation. The Proposed Protocol also obviates the need for additional document requests and repeated negotiations with the Debtor about additional collection and review for the specified custodians. The Committee's investigation will necessarily evolve, and the Proposed Protocol would allow the Committee to run search terms on data already collected and contained within the e-discovery vendor's repository with minimal additional cost. It further ensures that all documents will be preserved in the interim.

22. An order by this Court implementing the Proposed Protocol is necessary to "preserve a right elsewhere provided in the [Bankruptcy] Code." See In re Royce Homes, LP, No. 09-32467-H4-7, 2009 WL 3052439, at *4–5 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Sept. 22, 2009) (compelling a debtor's production under 11 U.S.C. § 105(a) to allow the trustee to perform its duties under the Bankruptcy Code). The Proposed Protocol will allow the Committee access to documents and communications relevant to the Estate Claims without fear that the Debtor will withhold relevant documents pursuant to an unduly broad relevance review. Considering the circumstances of this case and the history of the Debtor, the Proposed Protocol is necessary for the Committee to fulfill its duty to investigate the Estate Claims.

CONCLUSION

23. For the reasons set forth above, the Committee respectfully requests that the Court enter an order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A, (a) compelling the Debtor to produce documents under the Proposed Protocol, and (b) granting such other and further relief as the Court may deem just and proper.

7. The Acis Claim incorporates the complaint from litigation commenced by the trustee of the former estate in the Acis bankruptcy case (the "Acis Case") at a time when Acis had unpaid creditors (the "Acis Complaint")[2].

8. On June 23, 2020, the Debtor filed its Objection to Proof of Claim of Acis Capital Management L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC [Docket No. 771] (the "Highland Objection"). The Highland Objection raises many issues that will potentially be litigated in connection with the Acis Complaint. The Highland Objection is set for hearing on August 6, 2020 at 9:30 a.m.

II. RELIEF REQUESTED

9. For the reasons set forth in the Highland Objection, Dondero believes that the Acis Claim should be disallowed in its entirety and therefore files this objection to the Acis Claim and joinder in support of the Highland Objection.

10. Terry, whose claim has been, or soon will be, satisfied in full under Acis's plan, should not be granted a $75 million (or more) windfall at the expense of this Debtor's creditors and its estate. As detailed at length in the Highland Objection, the Acis Claim attempts to circumvent established legal principles to obtain a recovery—exponentially larger than Acis's debt—not for the Acis estate (it no longer exists), not for Acis's creditors (they have all been paid or will be soon satisfied), but for Terry himself. Each of Acis's causes of action fails for a variety of independent reasons, many of which stem from the fact that Terry is ultimately seeking a personal recovery. The Court should see the Acis Claim for what it is—a vexatious attempt to obtain an undue personal windfall at the expense of the Debtor, its estate, and its creditors and equity owners. The Court should disallow the Acis Claim in full.

[2] Specifically, the Acis Claim incorporates the Second Amended Complaint (Including Claim Objections and Objections to Administrative Expense Claims) filed in Adversary No. 18-03078 in the Acis Case.

III. STANDING

11. Dondero, as a creditor, indirect equity security holder, and party in interest, has standing to file this claim objection and joinder pursuant to sections 502(a)-(b) and 1109(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and Rule 3007 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the "Bankruptcy Rules").

12. Section 502(a) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that "[a] claim or interest, proof of which is filed under section 501 of this title, is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest, including a creditor of a general partner in a partnership that is a debtor in a case under chapter 7 of this title, objects." 11 U.S.C. § 502(a).

13. In the event an objection is filed by a party in interest, section 502(b) provides that the court, after notice and hearing, shall determine the allowance of such claim. 11 U.S.C. § 502(b).

14. While neither sections 101, 502, 1109 nor any other section in the Bankruptcy Code specifically define the term "party in interest," section 1109(b) provides a non-exclusive list of constituents that fall within the meaning of "party in interest" for the purposes of a chapter 11 proceeding. See Kipp Flores Architects, L.L.C. v. Mid-Continent Cas. Co., 852 F.3d 405, 413 (5th Cir. 2017) ("The Bankruptcy Code does not provide an exclusive definition of a party in interest, but the Code broadly includes debtors, creditors, trustees, indenture trustees, and equity security holders among the parties entitled, e.g., to notice of proceedings in the case.").

15. Specifically, section 1109(b) provides that "[a] party in interest, including the debtor, the trustee, a creditors' committee, an equity security holders' committee, a creditor, an equity security holder, or any indenture trustee may raise and may appear and be heard on any issue in a case under [Chapter 11]." 11 U.S.C. § 1109(b). This section "has been construed to create a broad right of participation in Chapter 11 cases." In re Global Industrial Technologies,

Inc., 645 F.3d 201, 210 (3d Cir. 2011) (quoting In re Combustion Engineering, Inc., 391 F.3d 190, 214 n.21 (3d Cir. 2004)).

16. Parties in interest for the purpose of claims objections "include not only the debtor, but anyone who has a legally protected interest that could be affected by a bankruptcy proceeding." Adair v. Sherman, 230 F.3d 890, 894 n. 3 (7th Cir. 2000). "Any 'party in interest' may object to a proof of claim and request the court to determine its correct amount." Kipp Flores Architects, L.L.C. v. Mid-Continent Cas. Co., 852 F.3d 405, 413 (5th Cir. 2017). See also 4 COLLIER ON BANKRUPTCY P 502.02 (16th ed. 2020) ("In the context of a chapter 11 case in particular, the term 'party in interest' expressly includes the debtor, the trustee, a creditors' committee, an equity security holders' committee, a creditor, an equity security holder, or any indenture trustee.").

17. Here, Dondero has standing to be heard on any issue in this Chapter 11 case, including this claim objection proceeding, because he is (i) a creditor; (ii) an equity security holder; and (iii) a party in interest as those terms are interpreted under the Bankruptcy Code.

18. Dondero is a creditor of the Debtor because he has prepetition claims against the Debtor and its estate, including, without limitation, those asserted through proofs of claim numbers 141, 142, and 145 filed by Dondero on April 8, 2020.

19. Dondero is also an equity security holder through his role as the President and sole shareholder of Debtor's General Partner, Strand Advisors, Inc. ("Strand"). As the Debtor's General Partner, Strand maintains a 0.2508% partnership interest in the Debtor.

20. Accordingly, as both a creditor and equity security holder, Dondero qualifies as a "party in interest" under the Bankruptcy Code and has the right to file this claim objection and be heard on any other issue in this Chapter 11 case.

IV. LEGAL STANDARD

21. Section 502 of the Bankruptcy Code provides, in pertinent part, as follows: "[a] claim or interest, proof of which is filed under section 501 of [the Bankruptcy Code], is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest . . . objects." 11 U.S.C. § 502.

22. The Bankruptcy Code establishes a burden-shifting framework for proving the validity and amount of a claim. "A proof of claim executed and filed in accordance with the [Bankruptcy Rules] shall constitute prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim." Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(f); see also In re Armstrong, 347 B.R. 581, 583 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006). A proof of claim loses the presumption of prima facie validity under Bankruptcy Rule 3001(f) if an objecting party produces evidence sufficient to rebut at least one of the allegations that is essential to the claim's legal sufficiency. See In re Fidelity Holding Co., Ltd., 837 F.2d 696, 698 (5th Cir. 1988); McGee v. O'Connor (In re O'Connor), 153 F.3d 258, 260 (5th Cir. 1998). Once such allegations are rebutted, the burden shifts back to the claimant to prove its claim by a preponderance of the evidence. In re Armstrong, 347 B.R. 581, 583 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006). Despite this shifting burden, "the ultimate burden of proof always lies with the claimant." Id. (citing Raleigh v. Ill. Dep't of Rev., 530 U.S. 15 (2000)).

V. OBJECTION AND JOINDER

23. For the reasons set forth in the Highland Objection, Dondero hereby objects to the Acis Claim and asserts it should be disallowed as articulated in the Highland Objection.

24. Dondero hereby joins in and adopts in full, and hereby incorporates by reference, the Highland Objection and the objections and supporting legal arguments asserted therein. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, Dondero specifically objects to the Acis Claim on the following grounds:

a. The Acis Claim for breach of fiduciary duty should be disallowed because sole owners do not owe fiduciary duties to their company.

b. Even if fiduciary duties had been owed, this part of the Acis Claim should be disallowed because Acis cannot sue others for participating in a scheme in which it, as one of the entities it alleges was commonly owned and controlled, was equally culpable.

c. The fraudulent transfer claims should be disallowed because a debtor cannot recover avoidance claims for its own benefit under section 550(a) of the Bankruptcy Code.

d. All claims asserted by Acis on its own behalf against prior equity holders or third parties that were not pending when Mr. Terry purchased the company should be disallowed under the Bangor Punta doctrine.

VI. RESERVATION OF RIGHTS

25. Dondero reserves the right to amend and/or supplement this objection and joinder, including to assert additional claim objections and legal arguments. Dondero further reserves the right to participate in discovery respecting and the hearing on the Highland Objection, including to make argument, present evidence, and examine witnesses.

CONCLUSION

Dondero respectfully requests that the Court enter an order disallowing the Acis Claim and granting him and the Debtor such other and further relief to which they may be justly entitled.

RESPONSE OF JAMES DONDERO TO THE OFFICIAL COMMITTEE OF UNSECURED CREDITORS' EMERGENCY MOTION TO COMPEL PRODUCTION BY THE DEBTOR
[Relates to Docket No. 808]

James Dondero ("Dondero"), a party in interest, hereby files this Response to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors' Emergency Motion to Compel Production by the Debtor [Docket No. 808] (the "Motion"). In support thereof, Dondero respectfully represents as follows:

BACKGROUND

1. Through the Motion, the Committee seeks the production by the Debtor of a wide variety of documents, including emails, to aid in its investigation of potential Estate Claims[1] and other potential causes of action against third parties, which includes "any and all estate claims and causes of action against Dondero, [Mark] Okada, other insiders of the Debtor, and each of the [1] Capitalized terms not otherwise defined herein shall have the meaning ascribed to them in the Motion.

Related Entities,[2] including promissory notes held by any of the foregoing." In accordance with the Final Term Sheet, the Committee also seeks "any privileged documents or communications that related to the Estate Claims."

2. The Final Term Sheet grants the Committee access to privileged documents and communications in the Debtor's possession, custody, or control specifically related to the investigation and pursuit of the Estate Claims. The term sheet provides that "solely with respect to the investigation and pursuit of Estate Claims, the document production protocol will acknowledge that the Committee will have access to the privileged documents and communications that are within the Debtor's possession, custody, or control ("Shared Privilege")."

3. Accordingly, the Proposed Protocol of the Committee seeks, among other things, documents, emails, and other electronically stored information (ESI) exchanged from or between nine different custodians, who include Dondero.[3] The Committee has requested all ESI for the nine custodians, including without limitation, email, chat, text, Bloomberg messaging, or any other ESI attributable to the custodians.

4. The Debtor's document production to the Committee in this case is subject to the terms and conditions of the Agreed Protective Order [Docket No. 382] entered into between the Committee and the Debtor on January 21, 2020. Under this protective order and the Committee's

[2] As described in the Motion, "[t]he Final Term Sheet defines "Related Entities," as, collectively, "(i) any non-publicly traded third party in which Mr. Dondero, Mr. Okada, or Mr. Grant Scott, or Mr. John Honis . . . has any direct or indirect economic or ownership interest, including as a beneficiary of a trust; (ii) any entity controlled directly or indirectly by Mr. Dondero, Mr. Okada, Mr. Grant Scott, or Mr. John Honis . . . ; (iii) MGM Holdings, Inc.; (iv) any publicly traded company with respect to which the Debtor or any Related Entity has filed a Form 13D or Form 13G; (v) any relative . . . of Mr. Dondero or Mr. Okada each solely to the extent reasonably knowable by the Debtor; (vi) the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust and Dugaboy Investment Trust; (vii) any entity or person that is an insider of the Debtor under Section 101(31) the Bankruptcy Code, . . .; and (viii) to the extent not included in [the above], any entity included in the listing of related entities in Schedule B hereto (the "Related Entities Listing")." (Dkt. 354-1, at 52.) The Related Entities Listing lists thousands of entities related to the Debtor. CLO Holdco i[s] a shareholder and limited partner of various entities on the Related Entities Listing."

[3] These nine custodians are Patrick Boyce, Jim Dondero, Scott Ellington, David Klos, Isaac Leventon, Mark Okada, Trey Parker, Tom Surgent ("Surgent"), and Frank Waterhouse.

Proposed Protocol, any document not including one of the agreed-upon set of privilege terms (that is, those likely to identify attorney-client privileged communications or attorney work product, but not those related to the Estate Claims) would be produced to the Committee for review, subject to the Agreed Protective Order's provisions on "No Waiver" and "Claw Back of Inadvertently Produced Protected Materials." Thereafter, after review by Debtor's contract attorneys, the Committee's Proposed Protocol suggests that non-privileged documents and "privileged documents related to the Estate Claims would be produced to the Committee on a rolling basis."

5. While the Agreed Protective Order provides these and other protections to the Debtor related to the production of documents and information in this proceeding, the order provides that it does not apply to any third-party beneficiaries. Specifically, the order states that it "precludes non-Debtor affiliates, and their Representatives, including any entity affiliated with, owned by, or controlled in any way, directly or indirectly, by James Dondero and his affiliates (the "Dondero Parties") from seeking to enforce or rely on this Order in any way, unless any of the Dondero Parties is asked (formally or informally) to produce or receive Discovery Materials thereby becoming a "Party" as defined herein."[4]

6. On July 9, 2020, Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor" or "Highland") filed Debtor's Motion for Entry of (I) A Protective Order, or, in the Alternative, (II) an Order Directing the Debtor to Comply with Certain Discovery Demands Tendered by the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, Pursuant to Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure 7026 and 7034 [Docket No. 810].

7. Because the production of certain privileged information is implicated by the Committee's Motion, including as it relates to Dondero, both individually and in connection with his affiliated entities, Dondero is a Party that may seek relief with this Court in connection with the Agreed Protective Order.

RESPONSE

8. While Dondero takes no position as to the relief requested by the Committee in the Motion, he files this Response to ensure his rights are protected in connection with the production of any confidential or privileged documents and other information sought by the Committee.

9. Under the Final Term Sheet, the Committee is entitled to "privileged documents and communications that are within the Debtor's possession, custody, or control" with respect to its investigation and pursuit of Estate Claims. In turn, members of the Committee will be entitled to access and review such information. Because of the broad scope of access granted to the Committee through the Final Term Sheet and the Shared Privilege, each of the committee members will have access to much more material than in the typical case.

10. One such member, Joshua Terry ("Terry"), along with his wholly-owned or controlled entities, Acis Capital Management GP, LLC, and Acis Capital Management, L.P. (collectively, "Acis"), would enjoy access to this privileged and confidential information. As the Court is aware, Terry and Acis have commenced a number of proceedings against Dondero, Highland, and various related parties, which are not intended to benefit Highland's creditors generally, but are meant to benefit primarily Terry himself. Because of these pending actions, if the Court grants the Motion, the Court should restrict Terry and Acis's access to the information sought by the Committee, especially that which is privileged or confidential.

11. While Dondero has found no case law directly on point, there is an analogous situation. Under Rule 2004 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the "Bankruptcy Rules"), the Court may order the examination of any entity. Fed. R. Bankr. P. 2004. Rule 2004 further provides that the Court may order the examination and the production of documentary evidence concerning any matter that relates "to the acts, conduct, or property or to the liabilities and financial condition of the debtor, or to any matter which may affect the administration of the debtor's estate, or . . . any matter relevant to the case or the formulation of a plan." Fed. R. Bankr. P. 2004(b).

12. The scope of discovery under Rule 2004 is very broad. Courts have likened the examination to be in the nature of a "fishing expedition." In re Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., 384 B.R. 373, 400 (Bankr. W.D. Pa. 2008).

13. Although discovery under Rule 2004 is extremely broad, "once an adversary proceeding or contested matter is commenced, discovery should be pursued under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and not by Rule 2004." In re SunEdison, Inc., 572 B.R. 482, 490 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2017); In re Enron Corp., 281 B.R. 836, 840 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2002) (citing Snyder v. Soc'y Bank, 181 B.R. 40, 42 (S.D. Tex. 1994), aff'd sub nom. In re Snyder, 52 F.3d 1067 (5th Cir. 1995)); In re Bennett Funding Group, Inc., 203 B.R. 24, 28 (Bankr. N.D.N.Y. 1996) ("The well recognized rule is that once an adversary proceeding or contested matter has been commenced, discovery is made pursuant to the Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7026 et seq., rather than by a [Rule] 2004 examination."). Because Rule 2004 is designed to provide the examining party with "broad power to investigate the estate, it does not provide the procedural safeguards offered by Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7026." In re Bennett Funding Grp., Inc., 203 B.R. 24, 28 (Bankr. N.D.N.Y. 1996).

14. In this case, the Committee and the Debtor have, through the Final Term Sheet, agreed to allow the Committee to conduct broad discovery concerning the Debtor's assets and financial affairs (akin to a 2004 examination) to aid in the Committee's investigation and pursuit of potential Estate Claims and other causes of action. Thus, to the extent there are pending proceedings to which the Committee or any of its members is a party, they may be affected by this discovery.

15. While the Committee itself has not commenced an adversary proceeding or contested matter against the Debtor, Dondero, or any related entities, Terry has done so. Terry, either on behalf of himself or his wholly-owned and controlled entity, Acis, has commenced a number of adversary proceedings and state court lawsuits against the Debtor, Dondero, a number of Debtor's employees, and certain related entities. These proceedings remain pending and discovery may (for the most part) be taken by the parties.

16. Specifically, the pending proceedings commenced by Terry are (i) by Terry, related to his 401(k), in state court against Dondero and Surgent; (ii) by Acis in state court against former Highland attorneys including in-house counsel; (iii) by Acis in this Court against Highland and its related parties (stayed by Highland's chapter 11 filing); (iv) by Acis against Dondero and certain Highland employees, recently commenced in this Court; and (v) the frivolous motion for contempt by Acis against Dondero, Highland, and certain Highland employees and others, if Acis ever gets around to actually filing it (it has been before the Court as an exhibit to the motion for relief from stay filed in connection with it).

17. If the Committee and each of its members is given access to the confidential and privileged information of Dondero and his affiliates related to the Estate Claims, Terry and by extension his wholly owned and controlled entity, Acis, Highland's competitor and litigation adversary, stand to gain an unfair advantage by accessing proprietary, confidential, or privileged information of Dondero and related parties for the purposes of pending litigation. Allowing Terry to participate in such discovery in Highland's bankruptcy case would circumvent the procedural protections provided by Bankruptcy Rule 7026 and give Terry unprecedented access to sensitive information he may use to gain undue leverage in these various actions.

18. Moreover, with the existence of the multitude of the pending actions commenced by Terry and Acis against Dondero and Highland's employees, there is another significant problem posed by Terry's service on the Committee: now that Terry has sued (sometimes in a different case) not only Dondero but numerous other Highland employees, Terry's access to the Committee's privileged information in the Highland case may create significant problems for Dondero and Highland's employees in fulfilling their duties to Highland.

19. The successful operations of Highland, especially during this critical time, require the close attention and candid disclosures of its employees, including in-house counsel, to the Independent Board and the Committee. Dondero, for example, often exchanges views with the Independent Directors. In doing so he must be cognizant of the possibility that his words may prejudice him in pending litigation.

20. The foregoing concerns were first brought to the Court's attention by Dondero in his filed Comment[5] to the Motion for Leave to File Redacted Quarterly Operating Reports [Acis Docket No. 1161] (the "QOR Motion") filed by Acis in the Acis case, pursuant to which Acis seeks to conceal critical portions of its quarterly operating report from all creditors and interested parties in the Acis case while at the same time utilizing this Court's time and resources to pursue litigation against Dondero, Highland, its employees, and certain related parties. The QOR Motion remains pending. As discussed in the Comment to the QOR Motion, the advantages to Terry resulting from the Shared Privilege and access to information provided to the Committee are significant.

[5] See Docket No. 1168 filed in the Acis case.

21. The observations and concerns raised by Dondero in that Comment are even more striking and relevant in this contested matter. If Terry and Acis are allowed access to the privileged and confidential information being sought by the Committee, such information will undoubtedly be utilized by Terry and Acis in their pursuit of Dondero and Highland. Terry, either on behalf of himself or Acis, has litigation pending against (i) Highland; (ii) Highland's founder, Mr. Dondero; (iii) various Highland related entities; (iv) Highland's former attorneys; and (v) Highland's own employees. Given the extraordinary breadth of these actions, there is an existential threat of abuse by Terry of his access to the information available to the Committee, including through the Shared Privilege, to the detriment of Dondero, the Debtor-related parties, Debtor's employees, and the Debtor's estate.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above, in the event the Court grants the Motion, Dondero respectfully requests that the Court bar Terry's access to the information sought by the Committee in the Motion. The information sought may be used by Terry and Acis to circumvent the discovery protections under Bankruptcy Rule 7026 to gain an unfair advantage in the litigation Terry has commenced against Dondero, Highland, Highland's employees, and various related parties.

In support of this Limited Objection, the Funds and Advisors state as follows:

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. The Funds and Advisors submit this limited objection to protect the attorney-client privilege and their confidential commercial information. The Committee's Motion and the Debtor's Motion concern a discovery dispute between the Debtor and the Committee upon which the Fund and Advisors take no position. However, the Committee is seeking in discovery the production of documents by certain individuals who serve in roles, including fiduciary roles, at certain of the Funds and Advisors.

2. Those individuals, serving in roles for the Funds and Advisors, are parties to communications with counsel to the Funds and Advisors that are protected by the attorney-client privilege, a privilege held by the Funds and Advisors, as well as communications that contain or include protected attorney work product generated by counsel for the Funds and Advisors. Those individuals, also in their capacities for the Funds and Advisors, have highly-sensitive confidential commercial information about the Funds and Advisors, particularly concerning the Funds' investment holdings and strategies as well as legal and compliance matters related thereto.

3. Counsel for the Funds and Advisors have discussed these issues with counsel to the Committee and the Debtor. While we expect the parties may be able to reach a consensual resolution prior to a hearing on these matters, the Funds and Advisors have filed this Limited Objection due to the pending objection deadline.

BACKGROUND

4. Each Advisor is registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") as an investment advisor under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (as amended). Each Fund is a registered investment company or business development company under the Investment Company Act of 1940 (as amended, the "1940 Act") and is advised by one of the Advisors.

5. As an investment company or business development company, each Fund is managed by an independent board of trustees subject to 1940 Act requirements. That board determines and contracts with the Advisor for the Fund. None of the Funds have employees.

Instead, they rely on the Advisors, acting pursuant to advisory agreements, to provide the services necessary to their operations.

6. The Funds are each managed by one of the two Advisors. Each Advisor has entered into a shared services agreement with the Debtor, Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor" or "HCMLP"). Under the shares services agreements, HCMLP provides a variety of services, including operational, financial, human resources, information technology, tax, and compliance services to the Advisors.

7. Certain individuals employed or affiliated with the Debtor hold roles for the Advisors and/or Funds, including fiduciary roles. Some of these individuals are the same individuals for which the Committee is seeking the production of "all custodial data" in discovery. See Committee's Motion, ¶10. For example, Frank Waterhouse serves as the Treasurer of Highland Capital Management Fund Advisors, L.P. and as principal financial officer of each of the Funds, and David Klos serves as Assistant Treasurer of the Funds.

8. Counsel for the Funds and Advisors corresponds with and provides legal advice to these persons relative to their distinct roles on behalf of the Funds and Advisors. These persons are also, due to their capacities with the Funds and Advisors, privy to confidential commercial information about the Funds and Advisors, including data regarding the Funds' investment holdings and investment strategies.

LIMITED OBJECTION

9. The Funds and Advisors object to the production of communications or other documents by the Debtor or the nine custodians identified in the Committee's Motion[1] to the extent such communications or documents are protected by the attorney-client privilege, the work product doctrine, or any similar doctrine or privilege, as held by the Funds or the Advisors. See, e.g., Udoewa v. Plus4 Credit Union, 457 Fed. Appx. 391, 392-393 (5th Cir. 2012) (holding that the work product privilege, which applies to documents prepared in anticipation of litigation, protected investigatory reports and minutes from board of directors' meetings); In re E.E.O.C., 207 Fed. Appx. 426, 431-432 (5th Cir. 2006) (holding that the attorney client communications privilege and the work product doctrine protected general counsel reports and discussions regarding merits of the matter).

10. The Funds and Advisors employ different outside counsel firms than the Debtor. The Funds and Advisors accordingly anticipate it will be relatively easy to search for, identify, and segregate for privilege review documents involving these outside counsel firms. The Funds and Advisors also anticipate that the subject documents are a relatively small subset of the documents sought by the Creditors' Committee.

11. The Funds and Advisors also seek a protective order for their confidential commercial information. See 11 U.S.C. § 107(b)(1) ("On request of a party in interest, the bankruptcy court shall . . . protect an entity with respect to a trade secret or confidential research, development, or commercial information . . . ."). See also Fed. R. Bankr. P. 9018.

12. The Funds and Advisors have reviewed the Agreed Protective Order (Docket

[1] The nine custodians identified by the Creditors' Committee are "Patrick Boyce, Jim Dondero, Scott Ellington, David Klos, Isaac Leventon, Mark Okada, Trey Parker, Tom Surgent, and Frank Waterhouse." See Committee's Motion, fn. 8.

No. 382) between the Debtor and the Creditors' Committee. The Funds and Advisors propose that they be designated a "Party" under the Agreed Protective Order such that information of the Funds and Advisors is protected as "Confidential Information" as defined therein.

CONCLUSION

13. For the reasons set forth above, the Funds and Advisors respectfully request that the Court (1) require an appropriate review process for documents protected by the attorney-client privilege, work product doctrine, or other similar privilege or doctrine held by the Funds or the Advisors and (2) extend by Court order the protections of the Protective Order to the Funds and Advisors as proposed herein. The Funds and Advisors reserve their right to be heard on all issues set forth herein.

DEBTOR'S OBJECTION TO OFFICIAL COMMITTEE OF UNSECURED CREDITORS' EMERGENCY MOTION TO COMPEL PRODUCTION BY THE DEBTOR

Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor"), the debtor and debtor-in-possession in the above-captioned chapter 11 bankruptcy case (the "Case"), files this Objection (the "Objection") to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors' Emergency Motion to Compel Production by the Debtor [Docket No. 808] (the "Motion") filed on July 8, 2020. In support of the Objection, the Debtor respectfully represents as follows:

I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. By its Motion, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the "Committee") seeks to compel the Debtor to comply with some of the most sweeping discovery requests possible—made for the first time about two weeks before the Motion was filed.

2. Specifically, on June 25, 2020, the Committee demanded all "electronically stored information" ("ESI") from nine (9) custodians—three of whom are lawyers—going back five years prior to the commencement of this Case (the "Demands"). The Demands are not limited to Estate Claims; are not focused on any particular transaction; and, at first glance, appear to yield almost 8,000,000 e-mails and attachments alone.

3. Perhaps more troublesome than the breadth and scope of the Demands, the Committee also insists that the Debtor ignore its confidentiality obligations to shared service partners and other interested parties and proposes a "privilege review" that is designed to quickly get the Committee its massive dump of information at the expense of the Debtor's and third parties' rights to protect privileged and confidential information.

4. This was all unnecessary. The Debtor has worked diligently and in good faith to respond to all of the Committee's discovery requests – which is why this is the very first discovery motion in this Case. Indeed, the Debtor completed the production of all non-ESI documents in April, a production totaling more than [20,000] pages of information.

5. Admittedly, production of ESI has been more difficult but that was not for lack of trying. The Committee's initial ESI requests made in February were only slightly less broad that its current Demands. It took time to run, and re-run, and re-run the Committee's search terms until the number of "hits" was reduced from over 2,000,000 to approximately 800,000 (the "Original E-Mails"). By mid-May, the Debtor delivered all of the Original E-Mails to Meta-E, a data service provider and a Committee member. In the first half of June, the Debtor provided the Committee with a Document Review Memorandum to govern the review of the Original E-Mails and retained a vendor to provide contract attorneys to undertake the review. On June 16, the Debtor provided the Committee with a plain vanilla stipulation that would enable the Debtor to retain the vendor – the last step before the review and production of the Original E-Mails could begin. Had the Committee agreed to the stipulation, the Debtor would be weeks into the review and production of the Original E-mails as of now.

6. Instead, the Committee abruptly shifted gears, made the Demands on June 26, and filed the Motion on the heels of a Court-imposed deadline to bring certain claims.

7. The Debtor is extremely concerned that compliance with the Demands will necessarily (a) cause privileged and personal information to be disclosed, (b) arguably cause the Debtor to violate confidentiality obligations, and (c) create unmanageable costs as the Committee sifts through millions and millions of e-mails and other communications.

8. Nevertheless, the Debtor is not intransigent. As previously conveyed to the Committee, the Debtor is prepared to go down the Committee's chosen path provided that (a) the Court rules on the Debtor's discovery motion[2], (b) appropriate safeguards are put in place to protect privileged information, (c) adversaries are not provided with "free discovery" just because they are a committee member, and (d) the rights of third parties are respected.

[2] See Debtor's Motion for the Entry of (I) a Protective Order, or, in the Alternative (II) an Order Directing the Debtor to Comply with Certain of the Discovery Demands Tendered by the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, Pursuant to Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure 7026 and 7034, dated July 9, 2020, and filed at Docket No. 810 (the "Debtor's Motion").

II. BACKGROUND

A. The Debtor and the Committee Agree on a Document Production Protocol

9. In January, as part of the parties' corporate governance agreement, the Debtor and the Committee agreed, among other things, that the Committee would have standing and other rights relating to "Estate Claims," and that the production of documents and ESI would be made pursuant to specified guidelines. These agreements were embodied in a term sheet, the final version of which was filed with the Court on January 14, 2020, at Docket No. 354-1 (the "Term Sheet").

10. As pertinent here, the Term Sheet provided that (a) the Committee was granted standing to pursue Estate Claims; (b) the Committee would be entitled to privileged communications concerning Estate Claims; and (c) that the Debtor's document management, preservation, and production would be governed by an agreed-upon set of "Document Production Protocols" (the "Protocols").

11. The Protocols provide, among other things, that (a) the Debtor's production of ESI is "subject to completion of any review for privilege or other purposes contemplated by this Agreement," and (b) that nothing in the Protocols impacts the Debtor's right to, among other things, (i) object to the production, discoverability, and confidentiality of documents and ESI, (ii) assert any privilege or other protection from discovery, or (iii) "limit a Producing Parties [sic] right and ability to review documents for responsiveness" prior to production. See Docket No. 354-1, Protocols ¶¶ E.b, G.b-d.

12. In short, the Debtor and the Committee agreed that the Committee would have broad discovery rights with respect to Estate Claims, including the right to obtain privileged communications related to Estate Claims, but that the Debtor otherwise reserved its rights with respect to discovery unrelated to Estate Claims. That dichotomy made sense since the Committee was only granted standing to pursue "Estate Claims" on behalf of the Debtor, as that term was specifically defined in the Term Sheet.

B. The Committee Seeks Broad Discovery of E-mails

13. In early February, the Committee served The Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors' Second Requests for Production of Documents to Highland (the "Requests"). The Committee's requests included nineteen separate requests for documents and information that covered Estate Claims and non-estate claims.

14. Request No. 19 sought "[a]ny and all Documents, including emails, contain[ing]" approximately 23 separate search terms (the "E-mail Requests"). The search terms for the E-mail Requests included broad terms such as "Beacon Mountain, "Crown," "HCMFA," "Hunter Mountain," "NexPoint," "Promissory w/5 Note" and "Trussway."

15. On or around March 5, 2020, the Debtor timely served its written responses and objections to the Committee's Requests. Morris Ex. A. [3] With respect to the E-mail Requests, the Debtor proffered the following response and objection:

> The Debtor objects to each Request to the extent it calls for the production of "[a]ny and all . . . Communications" on the grounds that such Requests are overly broad, unduly burdensome, and fail to comply with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b). At the Committee's specific requests, the Debtor has conducted multiple searches for e-mails responsive to Request No. 19. Each search has yielded over 1,200,000 unique e-mail "hits" (a number that potentially could double if attachments were included in the searches) and the parties continue to confer on ways to limit the e-mails searches in a manner that will be efficient and not wasteful of estate resources. The Debtor has also offered to begin searching for e-mails related to transactions already known to the Committee, such as the so-called insider loans, that constitute Estate Claims (as that term is defined in the Term sheet). The Committee has thus far declined the Debtor's offer, choosing instead to focus on the broadest searches contained in the Requests (i.e., Request

[3] The Debtor incorporates by reference the Declaration of John A. Morris in Support of Debtor's Motion for the Entry of (I) a Protective Order, or, in the Alternative (II) an Order Directing the Debtor to Comply with Certain of the Discovery Demands Tendered by the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, Pursuant to Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure 7026 and 7034, dated July 9, 2020, and filed at Docket No. 811 ("Morris Dec."), and the exhibits annexed thereto.

> No. 19), even though Request No. 19 does not appear to be related to any Estate Claim for which the Committee has standing to pursue. Nevertheless, the Debtor has informed the Committee that it will (a) create searches for transactions identified as potential Estate Claims, and (b) use historic data to identify asset transfers to or from the Debtor to or from James Dondero, Mark Okada or any Related Entity during the last five years as potential Estate Claims

Morris Ex. A, General Objection No. 5.

16. The Committee has never taken issue with this objection or asked for the targeted e-mails searches related to Estate Claims that the Debtor offered to provide. In addition, the Committee never proposed any targeted searches limited to Estate Claims despite the Debtor's requests. Instead, over time, the parties worked together on various versions of the search terms and time periods until the number of "hits" approached approximately 800,000 in early May, thus yielding the Original E-Mails.

17. Notably, for the first time on July 8, the Committee identified specific transactions, the CLO Holdco transaction and the Hunter Mountain transaction, as the subject of discovery. The Debtor will be able to rapidly develop email searches and produce documents related to these specifically identified transactions. The Debtor believes the Committee should be able to identify other specific transactions which may constitute Estate Claims given that the Committee has for months had the Debtor's general ledger, non-email transactional documents, and audited financials with specific footnotes regarding material, related party transactions.

18. To be clear, while the Debtor believes that targeted searches focused on known transactions constituting Estate Claims would have been more efficient, the Debtor acknowledges the Committee's right to proceed in any manner it sees fit and has never objected to the production of documents or e-mails on the ground that the Requests went beyond Estate Claims.

C. The Debtor's Confidentiality Obligations

19. As set forth in the Debtor's Motion, the Debtor is a service provider and in that capacity has entered into various agreements that, among other things, obligate it to maintain certain information in confidence or otherwise concern the ownership of documents and information (collectively, the "Shared Services Agreements"). Certain of the Shared Services Agreements were identified and described in the Debtor's Motion, but others exist. Debtor's Motion ¶ 21. Based on communications received to date, numerous third parties have expressed an interest in these matters beyond those identified in the Debtor's Motion, irrespective of whether they are party to a Shared Services Agreement.

20. As previously explained to the Committee, the Debtor complied with its Confidentiality Obligations with respect to the production of non-e-mail discovery utilizing the following process (the "Compliance Process"): if the Debtor identified a responsive, non-privileged document that was subject to a Confidentiality Obligation, it gave written notice to the counter-party of the Debtor's intention to produce the document absent the counter-party's objection.

21. The Debtor utilized the Compliance Process on a handful of occasions but, as previously explained to the Committee, never withheld any non-e-mail document subject to the Confidentiality Obligations because no counter-party ever objected.

D. The Debtor Confers with the Committee on Its Document Review Guidelines and Prepares to Seek Court-Approval to Retain a Third-Party Vendor to Review Documents and Begin Production

22. The Debtor has been cooperative and has put extensive effort towards negotiating an agreed email search and production protocol with the Committee.[4] The proposals

[4] While the Committee suggests that they have waited months to receive the requested documents, the facts are different and include the following (a) the Committee often took weeks, and in one case an entire month, to respond exchanged from February through June 25 were premised on the ideas that the Debtor (a) would gather emails from its server based on key word searches provided by the Committee, (b) review the resulting email "hits" for relevance and privilege, and (c) then produce the responsive, non-privileged emails. The Committee's June 25 proposal was the first time that Committee sought blanket access, subject only to privilege review, for the nine custodian's entire email files. Just as the Committee and the Debtor were on the precipice of finalizing a deal on email discovery, the Committee completely changed the proposed terms.

23. The Committee's Requests served on February 3 proposed that the Debtor search key custodian's emails for specific search terms. After the Debtor expressed concern about the breadth of the search terms, the Committee sent narrowed proposed terms to the Debtor on February 26. Debtor reran all of its searches using these revised terms, and informed the Committee on March 3 that the terms still returned over 1.5 million emails. On March 5, the Committee responded that the Debtor should consider sending the 1.5 million emails to a third-party vendor to apply further limits to the number of documents to be reviewed. The next day, March 6, the Debtor responded that the Committee's additional search terms would expand the review set beyond the initial 1.5 million emails and also asked the Committee to confirm that the outside vendor would be used "to greatly reduce the number of emails that will actually have to be reviewed and ultimately produced."

24. As of mid-March, the momentum on discovery negotiations slowed. On March 17, the Committee responded to the Debtor's March 5 communication. Notably, this included the Committee stating that it understood the Debtor would produce documents "found to the Debtor's proposed email production logistics; (b) without the ESI logistical concerns, the Debtor quickly and without complaint produced all non-email documents by April; (c) the Committee unilaterally walked away from all that had been accomplished and, on June 25, proposed entirely new and sweeping demands; and (d) but-for the Committee's newly proposed process, the email review and production would be well underway by now.

to be responsive." Again, the Debtor had to rerun all of its searches based on new search parameters from the Committee, which was completed by March 30. The Debtor followed up with additional information regarding the search results on April 3 and the parties had a meet-and-confer call on April 10. With the final search parameters still undefined, the Committee went silent until mid-May.

25. In mid-May, the parties agreed to final search parameters. After culling the e-mails using the Committee's final search parameters, and with the Committee's knowledge and approval, the Debtor retained Meta-E to serve as the host for the production of the Original E-Mails. Shortly thereafter, the Debtor delivered copies of all of the Original E-Mails to Meta-E.

26. As discussed with the Committee, the Debtor intended to hire a third-party vendor who would provide contract attorneys to undertake a "first line" review of the e-mails. The Committee was supportive of this concept. Thereafter, the Debtor solicited bids from three third-party vendors.

27. While soliciting the vendors, and again with the Committee's knowledge and understanding, the Debtor was also working on a memorandum (the "Document Review Memorandum") that would be used by the contract attorneys to identify the relevant players (including the "Related Parties" who would be subject to "Estate Claims," as those terms are defined in the Protocols) and issues concerning confidentiality and privilege. The Document Review Memorandum was intended to (a) assist the contract attorneys in their review of documents, (b) provide a mechanism for the Debtor to comply with its confidentiality obligations under the Shared Services Agreements (the confidentiality review), and (c) to complete the review and production of the e-mails, whether or not they concerned "Estate Claims," as quickly and efficiently as possible.

28. To be transparent, on June 2, 2020, the Debtor shared an initial draft of the Document Review Memorandum together with a comprehensive list of attorneys and law firms that would have to be checked for privilege purposes.[5] The Document Review Memorandum included, among other things, mechanisms for performing a review designed to enable the Debtor to comply with the confidentiality obligations under the Shared Services Agreements; once e-mails subject to the Confidentiality Obligations were identified, the Debtor expected to use the same Compliance Process that it had effectively used with respect to non-e-mail document production.

29. The Committee provided certain comments to the Debtor via e-mail and in the form of a mark-up of the draft Document Review Memorandum while reserving its right to object to the Debtor's method of reviewing the e-mails. The Debtor incorporated nearly all of the Committee's specific changes that it requested with respect to the Document Review Memorandum, and provided a detailed explanation for the one change it did not accept. Morris Ex. F.

30. At around the same time, the Independent Directors considered the bids for the provision of contract attorneys and exercised their business judgment to retain Robert Half Legal, a business division of Robert Half International Inc. ("RHL"), to conduct the initial review of documents.

31. On June 19, the Debtor informed the Committee of this decision and presented a form of notice pursuant to which the Debtor intended to seek court approval to retain RHL as an ordinary course professional (the "OCP Notice").

[5] The Committee has not objected to, or otherwise provided any comments with respect to, the list of lawyers and law firms created for this purpose.

32. Thus, as of June 19, 2020, the Debtor believed that its receipt of the Committee's comments the OCP Notice, if any, was the last step before commencing the review and production of e-mails.

E. The Committee Asks the Debtor to Dispense with a Confidentiality Review, Thereby Putting the Debtor in an Untenable Position

33. However, on June 25, the Committee informed the Debtor that it wanted to take a different approach to the review and production of e-mails. Morris Ex. G. The most problematic demand was that the Debtor forego the confidentiality review described in the Document Review Memorandum. On July 3, 2020, the Debtor explained to the Committee why it could not comply with this demand. The Committee declined to address the Debtor's concerns thereby necessitating the filing of the Debtor's Motion.

III. OBJECTION

34. The following is a review of the Committee's Demands, and the Debtor's response to each.

A. Demand No. 1

35. The Demand. The Committee seeks to have "all custodial data for nine identified custodians" placed in a "repository workspace." Motion ¶ 10(a).

36. The Debtor's response. Giving the Committee unfettered access (subject only to a privilege review, discussed below) to the ESI of nine individuals covering a five-year period violates Rule 26 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, ignores the provisions of the Protocols, and is simply unfair to the individuals.

37. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26 expressly limits discovery to non-privileged matters that are "relevant to any party's claim or defense and proportional to the needs of the case." FED. R. CIV. P. 26(b)(1). The initial Demand is not even a "fishing expedition" in the context of discovery under Bankruptcy Rule 2004; instead, it is a demand for the entire ocean. The Committee's initial demand is unprecedented and cannot be reconciled with the boundaries established under Rule 26.

38. Moreover, the initial Demand also ignores the parties' agreement as embodied in the Term Sheet and Protocols. While the Committee has standing to bring Estate Claims, those claims have boundaries which will clearly be breached by the Demands. Further, the Demands trample on the Debtor's specifically-reserved rights to review the ESI for confidentiality and responsiveness. See supra ¶ 11.

39. The Debtor has proposed a reasonable alternative to the Committee's efforts to review almost 8 million documents. As noted above, over a month ago, the Debtor provided the proposed review memorandum to the Committee. See Morris 7/15 Dec. Ex. A (Document Review Memorandum).[6] The Memorandum was to serve as Debtor's document review instructions to RHL review attorneys. Memorandum §V lays out a proposed scope of relevance. The Debtor urges the Court to adopt the Memorandum's proposed email review process instead of the unwieldy alternative process proposed by the Committee, and to allow the Debtor to begin the review of the Original E-Mails.

40. The Debtor believes the Motion should be denied on these bases alone. However, if the Court entertains the initial Demand at all, the Debtor respectfully requests the following process be followed: (a) the ESI shall be securely delivered to Meta-E and held in custody and in strict confidence; (b) if the Committee wants to search the ESI, it shall simultaneously provide search terms to Meta-E and the Debtor; (c) the Debtor shall have three business days to assert an objection; (d) if the Debtor does not timely object, then the results of the search shall be culled for a privilege review; (e) if the Debtor timely objects, the parties shall confer and if they cannot resolve their differences, then the issue(s) will be presented to the Special Master.

B. Demand No. 2

41. The Demand. The Committee proposes that the parties work on "a set of mutually agreeable search terms (those likely to identify attorney-client privileged communications or attorney work product)" and then run those terms over the entirety of the ESI, with any disagreements over the search terms submitted to a Special Master. Motion ¶ 10(b).

42. The Debtor's Response. This step is required only because the Committee has chosen to seek broad discovery rather than focusing on Estate Claims (where they share the privilege). But the Debtor has two concerns regarding the proposal.

43. First, three of the nine custodians are lawyers. Given the high likelihood that many of their communications are privileged, no search terms can adequately protect the privilege and their ESI should be reviewed by the Debtor in the first instance.[7]

44. Second, while the Debtor understands that (under the Demands) disputes over the privilege search terms will be resolved by the Special Master, the Debtor is compelled to point out that (a) there are third parties who likely hold the privilege in certain circumstances, and (b) the initial search terms proposed by the Committee are woefully inadequate.

45. Thus, with respect to Demand No. 2, the Debtor believes that the three lawyers' ESI should be subject to a whole-scale review, and the search terms to be employed

[7] Even under the Debtor's Demands, the time and expense of creating a privilege log covering five years' worth of e-mails sent to or from three different lawyers is going to be astronomical. These three attorneys alone have approximately 1.7 million documents that would need to be manually reviewed.

must be crafted to actually protect the privilege and not pay lip-service to it on the theory that the "claw back" provisions of the Protective Order are an adequate substitute.

C. Demand No. 3

46. The Demand. The Committee proposes that any document not captured by the privilege review be produced to the Committee, subject only to the "claw back" provisions of the Protective Order. Motion ¶ 10(c).

47. The Debtor's Response. This Demand is flawed for the same reasons as Demand No. 1. First, on its face, it violates Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26, ignores the provisions of the Protocols and is simply unfair to the individuals. Second, unless the Committee affirmatively identifies the inadvertently produced privileged document, the Debtor will never even know that it was produced. This means that the Committee already would have reviewed the privileged contents of the document, and then should be obligated to scrub from their own minds the privileged content. That is clearly impossible. See Arconic, Inc. v. Novelis, Inc., CA No. 17-14344, 2019 WL 911417, at *3 (W.D. Pa. February 26, 2019) (with respect to a clawed-back document, "once it is produced, the opposing party knows its contents. That information cannot be unlearned.") Third, if the Committee reviews a document that questionably could be privileged, but the Committee does not identify the document to the Debtor, then Debtor will never have an opportunity to contest if it is privileged or not.

48. The Committee would place discretion on determining Debtor's privilege, and the privilege of non-Debtor affiliated parties, solely in the hands of the Committee. That is clearly not right and the Committee's reliance on the "claw back" provision is misplaced. A claw-back provision is used to resolve a producing party's inadvertently produced privileged materials; it is not a tool to give the requesting party sole discretion in deciding what documents fall with scope of the producing party's privilege.

49. The Sedona Conference, the leading legal conference on the production of ESI which has been widely cited by federal courts across the country,[8] has expressly rejected the approach advocated by the Committee. Commenting on Fed. R. Evid. 502(d), the rule governing claw-back agreements, the Sedona Conference stated:

> Rule 502 contains no provision that grants the court the authority to compel a "quick peek" production or other disclosure of privileged information absent a finding of waiver. Indeed, Rule 502 was designed to protect producing parties, not to be used as a weapon impeding a producing parties' right to protect privileged material. Compelled disclosure of privileged information, even with a right to later clawback the information, forces a producing party to ring a bell that cannot be un-rung. As one court recognized, "regardless of how painstaking the precautions, there is no order . . . which erases from defendant's counsel's knowledge what has been disclosed. There is no remedy which can remedy what has occurred, regardless of whether or not the precautions were sufficient."
> The court's analysis is directly on point here. There are many ways in which a producing party may be prejudiced by compelled disclosure of privileged information. For instance, after viewing privileged material, a party may submit a request for admission to elicit the material or tailor a deposition question to do the same. Or a party may adjust its settlement position in light of its review of the privileged information. These concerns would inevitably erode the goal of the attorney-client privilege, which is "to encourage full and frank communication between attorneys and their clients and thereby promote broader public interests in the observance of law and administration of justice."
> Courts also should not employ Rule 502(d) indirectly to compel a result that is not permitted directly under the rule. For example, some courts have separately entered 502(d) orders protecting parties from claims of waiver by the production of privileged documents as well as Rule 16(b) scheduling orders with aggressive document production deadlines that do not provide the parties with a reasonable period of time to review the documents for privilege. In these instances, the courts caution the parties that there will be dire consequences for missing the deadline and they, therefore, should consider all means available to achieve a timely document production, including the use of a "quick peek" or "make available" production. In essence, the courts are attempting to indirectly compel a result that it is not directly permitted under Rule 502(d)—a result that was never intended by

50. There is no law or rule that enables the Committee to have unfettered access to the ESI. ESI should only be produced if, among other things, it is identified through search terms crafted in good faith to obtain information "relevant to any party's claim or defense."

51. Moreover, any search must be subject to the Court's determination of the Debtor's Motion.

52. Finally, as a reasonable additional layer of protection under the circumstances, any documents produced must be designated as "Highly Confidential" on the Court-ordered Protective Order.

IV. PRAYER

WHEREFORE, the Debtor respectfully requests that the Motion be (a) denied, and that the parties be directed to proceed with the review and production of the Original E-Mails, subject only to the resolution of the Debtor's Motion or, in the alternative, (b) granted, subject to the specific responses set forth herein.

ATTORNEYS FOR CLO HOLDCO, LTD.

IN THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
DALLAS DIVISION

In re:	§
	§
Debtor.	§	Chapter 11

CLO HOLDCO, LTD.'S LIMITED OBJECTION TO OFFICIAL COMMITTEE OF UNSECURED CREDITORS' EMERGENCY MOTION TO COMPEL PRODUCTION BY THE DEBTOR

[Relates to Docket No. 808]

TO THE HONORABLE STACEY G. JERNIGAN, U.S. BANKRUPTCY JUDGE:

CLO Holdco, Ltd. ("CLO") files this Limited Objection (the "Limited Objection") to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors' (the "Committee") Motion to Compel Production by the Debtor [Dkt. #808] (the "Motion"),[1] which seeks production of certain information, documents, and/or communications (collectively, "ESI") from Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor") pursuant to the Final Term Sheet and the Committee's Proposed Protocol dated June 25, 2020. This Limited Objection seeks only to ensure the protection of CLO's attorney-client and work product privileges. In support of this Limited Objection, CLO states as follows:

[1] Capitalized terms not otherwise defined herein shall have the meanings ascribed to them in the Motion or the "Final Term Sheet" [Dkt. #354-1] referenced therein, as applicable.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. The Committee served CLO with its First Request for Production of Documents on July 13, 2020. CLO intends to cooperate with the Committee's discovery efforts in all respects and has already engaged in correspondence with Committee's counsel in an effort to address this Limited Objection and to streamline the discovery process. While CLO is fully committed to working with the Committee, CLO is not agreeing to waive privileges or to produce privileged documents or ESI at this time. The purpose of this Limited Objection is solely to preserve CLO's rights pursuant to the attorney-client privilege and work product doctrine (hereinafter collectively referred to as "Privilege(s)").

2. The Debtor possesses ESI that is subject only to CLO's Privilege, which may not be waived by the Debtor. The Debtor's in-house attorneys provide routine legal services to CLO pursuant to that certain Second Amended and Restated Service Agreement dated January 1, 2017 (the "Shared Services Agreement" or "Agreement").[2] CLO pays the Debtor annually for these legal services, in addition to financial, accounting, tax, and trading services. In exchange for payment, the Debtor provides legal services to CLO independently of the legal services performed on the Debtor's own behalf.

3. Importantly, the Shared Services Agreement exclusively governs CLO's relationship to the Debtor. Pursuant to that Agreement, all books and records, including ESI, kept and maintained by the Debtor on behalf of CLO constitute CLO's sole property, which the Debtor maintains for the benefit of CLO. See Shared Services Agreement, § 4.02. Accordingly, the Debtor's production of all ESI would necessarily involve the Debtor's production of CLO's sole property, including privileged ESI.

[2] A true and correct copy of the Shared Services Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A and incorporated herein by reference.

4. The Committee correctly points out that it stands in the Debtor's shoes for purposes of prosecuting the Estate Claims—but it does not stand in CLO's shoes. The Committee's access to ESI, as well as the Debtor's production of the same, is in all respects subject to CLO's Privilege and should be subject to CLO's prior consent considering that the Debtor is, in pertinent part, simply a custodian of CLO's property.

RELIEF REQUESTED

5. CLO requests the opportunity to obtain from the Debtor, review, and assert privileges to all ESI concerning CLO-related legal services provided by the Debtor before the ESI is produced to the Committee. That will allow CLO to conduct analyses for Privileges and confidentiality in accordance with the Agreed Protective Order [Dkt. #382] before CLO's records—held in the possession of the Debtor—are produced to the Committee.

ARGUMENTS & AUTHORITIES

6. The Final Term Sheet provides the Committee with standing to pursue the Estate Claims. In that regard, the Final Term Sheet purports to allow the Committee access to "privileged documents and communications that are within the Debtor's possession, custody, or control." However, CLO is not a party to the Final Term Sheet, nor is CLO an "affiliate" of the Debtor within the meaning of Bankruptcy Code § 101(2). The Debtor has no authority to grant any party access to CLO's privileged or confidential information. The Final Term Sheet cannot form the basis for the Committee's access to, or the Debtor's production of, any such information.

7. The fact that the Debtor provided legal services for itself as well as other parties does nothing to diminish the Privilege of any party. The attorney-client privilege applies the same in joint-client representations as it does in a single-client representation:

> When co-clients and their common attorneys communicate with one another, those communications are "in confidence" for privilege purposes. Hence the privilege protects those communications from compelled disclosure to persons outside the joint representation.

In re Teleglobe Communications Corp., 493 F.3d 345, 363 (3d Cir. 2007), as amended (Oct. 12, 2007). The privilege among co-clients likewise applies when the attorneys are in-house counsel. Id., at 369 ("While there is much debate over how corporate counsel should go about promoting compliance with law …, both sides of the debate seem to see in-house counsel as the 'front lines' of the battle to ensure that compliance while preserving confidential communications.").

8. The exception to the rule of co-client privilege arises when the co-clients later become adverse to one another in litigation arising from the common interest representation. In re Mirant Corp., 326 B.R. 646, 649 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2005); Teleglobe, 493 F.3d at 366-68. This Privilege exception—often called the "co-client exception"—forms the only conceivable basis for the Committee's access to ESI concerning CLO.

9. The co-client exception to privilege provides that where two parties share the same legal counsel, one party may not invoke privilege against the other in litigation between them arising from the matter in which they were jointly represented. Mirant, 326 B.R. at 649. Two key elements must therefore be present in order for this exception to apply: (i) the co-clients must become adverse in subsequent litigation; and (ii) the subsequent litigation must stem from the same matter on which they shared counsel. Id. The cases of Mirant and Teleglobe illustrate CLO's Privileges in this case.[3]

A. In re Mirant Corp.

10. In Mirant, the debtors were part of the "TSC" corporate family. Mirant was the parent of other affiliated debtors. TSC planned to divest itself of Mirant via public offering of 20% of Mirant's stock, and hired a third party outside law firm (Troutman) to represent both TSC and Mirant in the divestiture. Thereafter, having encountered financial troubles, Mirant and its subsidiaries filed for Chapter 11 relief. Mirant sought production from Troutman related to the [3] These cases are somewhat distinguishable in that both involved parents and subsidiaries (affiliates), whereas CLO is not an affiliate of the Debtor. Therefore, the analysis of privilege in the context of duties between a parent and subsidiary are not relevant to CLO and the Debtor.

TSC-Mirant transactions prior to and during the divestiture, which Troutman and TSC opposed based on TSC's attorney-client privilege with Troutman.

11. Troutman and TSC advanced multiple separate arguments in defense of TSC's privilege, with those asserted by TSC being most relevant to the instant case.[4] The first of TSC's arguments was that Troutman's representation of TSC and Mirant in the divestiture did not constitute a joint representation. Mirant, 326 B.R. at 653. The Court made specific findings contrary to this assertion, specifically that the memorandum of TSC's general counsel directed that Troutman would "provide objective legal advice" for both parties and "document agreements reached between executives." Id. CLO asserts that any application of the co-client exception to its Privileges in this case must likewise be predicated on a finding that the Debtor and CLO were jointly represented in specific matters that gave rise to the responsive ESI.

12. Additionally, Mirant asserted that no attorney client privilege existed because TSC and Mirant had certain common directors, thus meaning that knowledge gained by those TSC directors through dealings with Troutman was imparted to Mirant. Mirant, 326 B.R. at 653. TSC refuted this argument with numerous cases holding that directors sitting on the boards of both a parent and subsidiary represent the entities separately. Although the Court found those cases distinguishable, the argument has at least some merit evidenced by the fact that the Court appeared

[4] Troutman argued that because a subsidiary (Mirant) must act for the benefit of its parent (TSC), there could be no lawful or permissible adverse interest between Mirant and TSC. Mirant, 326 B.R. at 650-51. This argument is irrelevant in the case at bar because, as previously noted, there is no affiliate or parent-subsidiary relationship between CLO and the Debtor.

Troutman further argued that the "Protocol" between TSC and Mirant limited each party's access to confidential information of the other. Mirant, 326 B.R. at 652. The Shared Services Agreement between CLO and the Debtor does not include such confidentiality provisions. That fact is irrelevant, however, as the Court nonetheless held that the Protocol "[did] not provide Mirant or TSC with any privilege beyond that which exists in an ordinary joint representation." Id.

to deny TSC's position based largely on public policy.[5] Id. at 654. In ruling for Mirant on this issue, the Court reiterated certain policy considerations worthy of note:

> It is black-letter law that the attorney-client privilege is meant to foster open communications between attorney and client. … Neither Troutman nor TSC can show any reasonable basis for supposing enforcement of TSC's privilege in the case at bar would advance that goal. In a bankruptcy case, the need for investigation is far more acute than is any concern for attorney-client communications.

Mirant, 326 B.R. at 654 (internal citations omitted).

13. In bringing this Limited Objection, CLO fully acknowledges that thorough investigations are vital to the bankruptcy process and the interest of creditors. CLO does not assert that creditors in this case are entitled to anything less than a thorough investigation of the Estate Claims. CLO reiterates that it intends to fully cooperate in discovery, but wishes to preserve all applicable privileges.

14. Mirant does not stand for the proposition that privilege is disposed of altogether once bankruptcy comes into play. Rather, Mirant upholds the well-established rule that the co-client exception to privilege applies only to litigation arising from a specific matter on which the parties were jointly represented.[6] The Court progressed to discussions of policy only to rebut TSC's argument that directors may "wear two hats" without waiving privilege in joint-client situations.

15. CLO asserts that it is nonetheless entitled to the traditional protections afforded under the law regarding Privileges. Mirant supports CLO's Privileges as to all ESI concerning matters in which the Debtor's in-house counsel represented CLO independently of the Debtor.

B. In re Teleglobe Communications Corp.

[5] As discussed below, the Third Circuit in Teleglobe disagreed with the Mirant court on this issue.

[6] Mirant, 326 B.R. at 649 ("It is well established that, in a case of a joint representation of two clients by an attorney, one client may not invoke the privilege against the other client in litigation between them arising from the matter in which they were jointly represented.").

16. Like Mirant, the case of Teleglobe involved a privilege dispute among parent and subsidiary corporations. The debtors were subsidiaries of Teleglobe, which was a wholly-owned subsidiary of BCE. The debtors brought an adversary proceeding against BCE for its decision to withdraw funding from Teleglobe, effectively causing the debtors' bankruptcy. The disputes at issue related to matters for which BCE's in-house counsel and/or outside counsel jointly represented the debtors, Teleglobe, and BCE. The appeal to the Third Circuit raised "core questions about the proper operation of a corporate family's centralized in-house legal department." Teleglobe, 493 F.3d at 359. In a lengthy opinion, the Third Circuit analyzed, inter alia, the co-client privilege and the "adverse litigation" exception.[7]

17. Teleglobe elaborates on the co-client exception principles espoused in Mirant. Among other things, the Third Circuit notes that a finding of joint representation requires that both parties intended to be jointly represented. Teleglobe, 493 F.3d at 362.

> What the Court takes exception to is [the plaintiff's] effort to ... argue, in effect, that a joint representation of Party A and Party B may somehow arise through the expectations of Party B alone, despite Party A's views to the contrary. This position is untenable, because it would ... allow the mistaken (albeit reasonable) belief by one party that it was represented by an attorney ... to serve to infiltrate the protections and privileges afforded to another client.

Id. (quoting Neighborhood Dev. Collaborative v. Murphy, 233 F.R.D. 436, 441-42 (D.Md.2005)). The court went on to note that:

> [C]lients of the same lawyer who share a common interest are not necessarily co-clients. Whether individuals have jointly consulted a lawyer or have merely entered concurrent but separate representations is determined by the understanding of the parties and the lawyer in light of the circumstances.

Id. (quoting Restatement (Third) of the Law Governing Lawyers § 75 cmt. c). Accordingly, application of the co-client exception to CLO's Privileges requires a finding that CLO and the [7] The "adverse litigation" exception discussed by the Third Circuit is referred to herein as the co-client exception to privilege.

Debtor intended to be jointly represented on the underlying matter. "The keys to deciding the scope of a joint representation are the parties' intent and expectations, and so a district court should consider carefully … any testimony from the parties and their attorneys on those areas." Id. at 363.

18. It is also worth noting that the Debtor cannot unilaterally waive CLO's Privileges, as a waiver of the co-client privilege requires the consent of all parties:

> [W]aiving the joint-client privilege requires the consent of all joint clients. … [A] client may unilaterally waive the privilege as to its own communications with a joint attorney, so long as those communications concern only the waiving client; it may not, however, unilaterally waive the privilege as to any of the other joint clients' communications or as to any of its communications that relate to other joint clients.

Teleglobe, 493 F.3d at 363 (citations omitted).

19. The Third Circuit ultimately remanded the case for a determination of whether BCE and the debtors were jointly represented on a matter of common interest—if so, documents within the scope of that joint representation would have been discoverable. Id. at 383. The ultimate holding in Teleglobe aligns with the co-client exception rule espoused in Mirant:

> We hold that the District Court may only compel BCE to produce disputed documents because of the adverse-litigation exception to the co-client privilege if it finds that BCE and the Debtors were jointly represented by the same attorneys on a matter of common interest that is the subject-matter of those documents. Finding that BCE and Teleglobe were jointly represented is not enough, as Teleglobe cannot unilaterally waive the co-client privilege that attaches to documents that involve BCE and were created in the course of the joint representation.

Teleglobe, 493 F.3d at 386–87. Accordingly, the Debtor cannot waive CLO's privileges and produce all ESI in its possession—including ESI held as a custodian on CLO's behalf—because CLO has not waived any privileges or consented to production.

CONCLUSION

20. For the reasons set forth herein, the Debtor cannot be compelled to produce any ESI related to CLO matters in which the Debtor was not a jointly represented party. Absent joint representation with an interest common to both CLO and the Debtor, all CLO-related ESI is subject to CLO's Privilege, even while in the Debtor's hands. CLO's Privilege applies unequivocally to all ESI in the absence of specific findings that:

(1) the ESI is specifically related to the Estate Claims (the subsequent adverse litigation in this case);

(2) the ESI is related to matters on which CLO and the Debtor were jointly represented in furtherance of a common interest held by both parties; and

(3) both parties intended to be jointly represented on the matter at issue.

The fact that the ESI is in the Debtor's possession is irrelevant, as the custodian(s) possess such information and records solely in their capacity as a custodian for the benefit of CLO (i.e., while wearing their "CLO hat").

WHEREFORE, CLO respectfully requests that this Limited Objection be sustained and that the Court enter an order (a) requiring that CLO be afforded the opportunity to review all ESI concerning CLO-related legal services before any such ESI is produced to the Committee, and (b) granting CLO such other and further relief to which it may be justly entitled.

ARTICLE II SERVICES

Section 2.01 Services. During the Term, Service Provider will provide Recipient with Services, each as requested by Recipient and as described more fully on Annex A attached hereto (the "Services").

Section 2.02 Changes to the Services.

(a) During the Term, the Parties may agree to modify the terms and conditions of a Service Provider's performance of any Service in order to reflect new procedures, processes or other methods of providing such Service, including modifying the applicable fees for such Service to reflect the then current fair market value of such service (a "Change"). The Parties will negotiate in good faith the terms upon which a Service Provider would be willing to provide such New Service to Recipient.

(b) The Party requesting a Change will deliver a description of the Change requested (a "Change Request").

(c) Notwithstanding any provision of this Agreement to the contrary, a Service Provider may make: (i) Changes to the process of performing a particular Service that do not adversely affect the benefits to Recipient of Service Provider's provision or quality of such Service in any material respect or increase Recipient's cost for such Service; (ii) emergency Changes on a temporary and short-term basis; and/or (iii) Changes to a particular Service in order to comply with applicable law or regulatory requirements, in each case without obtaining the prior consent of Recipient. A Service Provider will notify Recipient in writing of any such Change as follows: in the case of clauses (i) and (iii) above, prior to the implementation of such Change, and, in the case of clause (ii) above, as soon as reasonably practicable thereafter.

Section 2.03 New Services. The Parties may, from time to time during the Term of this Agreement, negotiate in good faith for Services not otherwise specifically listed in Section 2.01 (a "New Service"). Any agreement between the Parties on the terms for a New Service must be in accordance with the provisions of Article III and Article IV hereof, will be deemed to be an amendment to this Agreement and such New Service will then be a "Service" for all purposes of this Agreement.

Section 2.04 Subcontractors. Nothing in this Agreement will prevent Service Provider from, with the consent of Recipient, using subcontractors, hired with due care, to perform all or any part of a Service hereunder. A Service Provider will remain fully responsible for the performance of its obligations under this Agreement in accordance with its terms, including any obligations it performs through subcontractors, and a Service Provider will be solely responsible for payments due to its subcontractors.

ARTICLE III
PAYMENT OF FEES; TAXES

Section 3.01 Management Fee. The Fund shall pay the Service Provider the Management Fee in accordance with the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Advisory Agreement.

Section 3.02 Taxes.

(a) Recipient is responsible for and will pay all Taxes applicable to the Services provided to Recipient, provided, that such payments by Recipient to Service Provider will be made in the most tax-efficient manner and provided further, that Service Provider will not be subject to any liability for Taxes applicable to the Services as a result of such payment by Recipient. Service Provider will collect such Tax from Recipient in the same manner it collects such Taxes from other customers in the ordinary course of Service Provider's business, but in no event prior to the time it invoices Recipient for the Services, costs for which such Taxes are levied. Recipient may provide Service Provider with a certificate evidencing its exemption from payment of or liability for such Taxes.

(b) Service Provider will reimburse Recipient for any Taxes collected from Recipient and refunded to Service Provider. In the event a Tax is assessed against Service Provider that is solely the responsibility of Recipient and Recipient desires to protest such assessment, Recipient will submit to Service Provider a statement of the issues and arguments requesting that Service Provider grant Recipient the authority to prosecute the protest in Service Provider's name. Service Provider's authorization will not be unreasonably withheld. Recipient will finance, manage, control and determine the strategy for such protest while keeping Service Provider reasonably informed of the proceedings. However, the authorization will be periodically reviewed by Service Provider to determine any adverse impact on Service Provider, and Service Provider will have the right to reasonably withdraw such authority at any time. Upon notice by Service Provider that it is so withdrawing such authority, Recipient will expeditiously terminate all proceedings. Any contest for Taxes brought by Recipient may not result in any lien attaching to any property or rights of Service Provider or otherwise jeopardize Service Provider's interests or rights in any of its property. Recipient agrees to indemnify Service Provider for all Losses that Service Provider incurs as a result of any such contest by Recipient.

(c) The provisions of this Section 3.02 will govern the treatment of all Taxes arising as a result of or in connection with this Agreement notwithstanding any other Article of this Agreement to the contrary.

ARTICLE IV
SERVICE PROVIDER RESPONSIBILITIES

Section 4.01 Service Provider General Obligations. Service Provider will provide the Services to Recipient, subject to the requirements under Sections 3.01 and 3.02 herein and subject to reimbursement of permitted expenses in accordance with the Investment Advisory Agreement entered into concurrently herewith, on a non-discriminatory basis and will provide the Services in the same manner as if it were providing such services on its own account (the "Service Standards"). Service Provider will conduct its duties hereunder in a lawful manner in compliance with applicable laws, statutes, rules and regulations and in accordance with the Service Standards, including, for avoidance of doubt, laws and regulations relating to privacy of customer information.

Section 4.02 Books and Records; Access to Information. Service Provider will keep and maintain books and records with respect to the Services in accordance with past practices and internal control procedures. Recipient will have the right, at any time and from time to time upon reasonable prior notice to Service Provider, to inspect and copy (at its expense) during normal business hours at the offices of Service Provider the books and records relating to the Services, with respect to Service Provider's performance of its obligations hereunder. This inspection right will include the ability of Recipient's financial auditors to review such books and records in the ordinary course of performing standard financial auditing services for Recipient (but subject to Service Provider imposing reasonable access restrictions to Service Provider's and its Affiliates' proprietary information and such financial auditors executing appropriate confidentiality agreements reasonably acceptable to Service Provider). Service Provider will promptly respond to any reasonable requests for information or access. For the avoidance of doubt, all books and records kept and maintained by Service Provider on behalf of Recipient shall be the property of Recipient, and Service Provider will surrender promptly to Recipient any of such books or records upon Recipient's request (provided that Service Provider may retain a copy of such books or records) and shall make all such books and records available for inspection and use by the Securities and Exchange Commission or any person retained by Recipient at all reasonable times. Such records shall be maintained by Service Provider for the periods and in the places required by laws and regulations applicable to Recipient.

Section 4.03 Return of Property and Equipment. Upon expiration or termination of this Agreement, Service Provider will be obligated to return to Recipient, as soon as is reasonably practicable, any equipment or other property or materials of Recipient that is in Service Provider's control or possession.

ARTICLE V
TERM AND TERMINATION

Section 5.01 Term. The term of this Agreement will commence as of the Effective Date and will continue in full force and effect until the first anniversary of the Effective Date (the "Term"), unless terminated earlier in accordance with Section 7.02. The Term shall automatically renew for successive one year periods unless sooner terminated under Section 5.02.

Section 5.02 Termination. Either Party may terminate this Agreement, with or without cause, upon at least 60 days advance written notice at any time prior to the expiration of the Term.

ARTICLE VI
LIMITED WARRANTY

Section 6.01 Limited Warranty. Service Provider will perform the Services hereunder in accordance with the Service Standards. Except as specifically provided in this Agreement, Service Provider makes no express or implied representations, warranties or guarantees relating to its performance of the Services under this Agreement, including any warranty of merchantability, fitness, quality, non-infringement of third party rights, suitability or adequacy of the Services for any purpose or use or purpose. Service Provider will (to the extent possible and subject to Service Provider's contractual obligations) pass through the benefits of any express warranties received from third parties relating to any Service, and will (at Recipient's expense) assist Recipient with any warranty claims related thereto.

The Parties hereby agree that any action, claim, litigation, or proceeding of any kind whatsoever against any other Party in any way arising from or relating to this Agreement and all contemplated transactions, including claims sounding in contract, equity, tort, fraud and statute ("Dispute") shall be submitted exclusively to the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas or, if such court does not have subject matter jurisdiction, the courts of the State of Texas sitting in Dallas County, and any appellate court thereof ("Enforcement Court"). Each Party irrevocably and unconditionally submits to the exclusive personal and subject matter jurisdiction of the Enforcement Court for any Dispute and agrees to bring any Dispute only in the Enforcement Court. Each Party further agrees it shall not commence any Dispute in any forum, including administrative, arbitration, or litigation, other than the Enforcement Court. Each Party agrees that a final judgment in any such action, litigation, or proceeding is conclusive and may be enforced in other jurisdictions by suit on the judgment or in any other manner provided by law.

EACH PARTY IRREVOCABLY AND UNCONDITIONALLY WAIVES, TO THE FULLEST EXTENT PERMITTED BY APPLICABLE LAW, ANY RIGHT IT MAY HAVE TO A TRIAL BY JURY IN ANY LEGAL ACTION, PROCEEDING, CAUSE OF ACTION OR COUNTERCLAIM ARISING OUT OF OR RELATING TO THIS AGREEMENT, INCLUDING ANY EXHIBITS, SCHEDULES, AND APPENDICES ATTACHED TO THIS AGREEMENT, OR THE TRANSACTIONS CONTEMPLATED HEREBY. NEXPOINT'S OBJECTION TO OFFICIAL COMMITTEE OF UNSECURED CREDITORS' EMERGENCY MOTION TO COMPEL PRODUCTION BY THE DEBTOR AND REQUEST FOR PROTECTIVE ORDER to Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors' Emergency Motion to Compel Production by the Debtor and Request for Protective Order ("Objection and Request for Protective Order") and, in support thereof, respectfully state as follows:

NexPoint Real Estate Finance Inc., NexPoint Real Estate Capital, LLC, NexPoint Residential Trust, Inc., NexPoint Hospitality Trust, NexPoint Real Estate Partners, LLC, NexPoint Multifamily Capital Trust, Inc., VineBrook Homes, Trust, Inc., NexPoint Real Estate Advisors, L.P., NexPoint Real Estate Advisors II, L.P., NexPoint Real Estate Advisors III, L.P., NexPoint Real Estate Advisors IV, L.P., NexPoint Real Estate Advisors V, L.P., NexPoint Real Estate Advisors VI, L.P., NexPoint Real Estate Advisors VII, L.P., NexPoint Real Estate Advisors VIII, L.P., and any funds advised by any of the foregoing[1] (collectively "NexPoint") file this Objection

[1] This Objection and Request for Protective Order is being filed on behalf of these entities and their subsidiaries.

I. INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY

1. NexPoint is an alternative investment platform comprised of a group of investment advisors and sponsors, a broker-dealer, and a suite of related investment vehicles. NexPoint is not a debtor in the above-referenced bankruptcy case (the "Bankruptcy Case"). However, NexPoint is party to a Shared Services Agreement with Highland Capital Management, L.P ("Highland") dated effective as of January 1, 2013 and Amended and Restated dated effective as of January 1, 2018 (as modified, amended, and restated from time to time, the "Shared Services Agreement"). Under the Shared Services Agreement, NexPoint retained Highland to provide certain back- and middle-office support and administrative, infrastructure and other services. As a result, NexPoint utilized Highland's server and infrastructure for its emails and other business information. In addition, under the Shared Services Agreement, Highland provides NexPoint utilization of certain individuals employed by Highland to perform various portfolio selection and asset management functions for NexPoint.

2. Despite sharing certain services, NexPoint is a separate entity, with separate and independent operations, and separate ownership from Highland. Thus, when NexPoint utilizes the Highland server to send emails and documents, those communications and business information are specific to NexPoint – independent of Highland and its operations. Similarly, when NexPoint utilizes certain individuals employed by Highland, those services are performed solely on behalf of NexPoint and the issues solely related to NexPoint. Only in limited instances do NexPoint and Highland communications and business issues overlap. The vast majority of NexPoint communications and business information is unrelated to Highland's business operations and, but for owning the server and infrastructure, Highland would not have access to such information.

3. On July 8, 2020, the Committee filed their Emergency Motion to Compel Production by the Debtor, specifically seeking all custodial data for nine identified custodians, including without limitation, email, chat, text, Bloomberg messaging, or other ESI attributable to the custodians (the "Requested Information"). [ECF No. 808]. Upon information and believe, such custodial data exceeds eight million emails (8,000,000) and attachments. The Committee does not propose any means or terms to narrow, limit, or otherwise restrict the Requested Information. The Committee makes no effort to focus the requests on information relevant to the Estate Claims. The Committee fails to propose any means to limit the request to produce a reasonable volume of responsive information to facilitate an organized review process. Finally, the Requested Information is not even restricted to Highland documents (as opposed to non-debtor information), or otherwise proportional to the needs of the case.

4. In response, the Debtor filed its Motion for Entry of (i) Protective Order or, in the Alternative, (ii) an Order Directing the Debtor to Comply with Certain Discovery Demands Tendered by the Committee ("Motion for Protective Order"). [ECF No. 810]. The Motion for Protective Order requests the entry of a protective order authorizing the Debtor to (a) engage in a confidentiality review, as set forth in its Document Review Memorandum, and (b) effectuate a Compliance Process, whereby if the Debtor identified a responsive, non-privileged document that was subject to a Confidentiality Obligation under a Shared Service Agreement, it would give written notice to the counter-party of the Debtor's intent to produce the document absent the counter-party's objection (the "Debtor Proposed Protective Order"). [ECF No. 810, ¶ 39].

5. On July 13, 2020, the Debtor and Committee entered a Stipulation whereby they agreed any objections to the Motion to Compel or Motion for Protective Order shall be filed by July 15, 2020 at 5:00 p.m., any reply in support of the Motion to Compel or Motion for Protective Order shall be filed by July 17, 2020 at 5:00 p.m., and requesting the Court set a hearing on the discovery motions after July 17, 2020. [ECF No. 826].

6. As a counter-party to a Shared Services Agreement with Highland, the Committee's broad request for all custodial data, necessarily includes NexPoint's communications, documents, and information – information that is not relevant to the Estate Claims and that contains NexPoint's proprietary and confidential information. Many, if not all, of the nine custodians provided support to NexPoint and, thus, may have NexPoint's confidential and proprietary business information. Further, three of the nine custodians are attorneys and, at some point, may have provided legal services to NexPoint – which information would be protected by NexPoint's attorney-client privilege. Accordingly, NexPoint files this Objection to the Committee's Motion to Compel and requests the Court enter a protective order, protecting NexPoint from the Committee's overly broad, unduly burdensome, and non-relevant discovery requests.

II. ARGUMENT AND AUTHORITIES

A. The discovery sought is unduly burdensome and not proportional to the needs of the case because it requires disclosure of non-relevant, privileged, and other protected matters from nonparties.

7. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26, made applicable to this Bankruptcy Proceeding by Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7026, allows parties to obtain discovery "regarding any nonprivileged matter that is relevant to any party's claim or defense and proportional to the needs of the case." FED. R. CIV. P. 26(b)(1), FED. R. BANKR. P. 7026. The Court determines whether requested discovery is proportional to the needs of the case by considering "the importance of the issues at stake in the action, the amount in controversy, the parties' relative access to relevant information, the parties' resources, the importance of discovery in resolving the issues, and whether the burden or expenses of the proposed discovery outweighs its likely benefits." FED. R. CIV. P. 26(b)(1), FED. R. BANKR. P. 7026. The Court must limit discovery if the requested information is outside the scope permitted by Rule 26(b)(1). FED. R. CIV. P. 26(b)(3)(iii); FED. R. BANKR. P. 7026.

8. In addition, a party or attorney seeking discovery must certify that each discovery request is "not interposed for any improper purpose, such as to harass, cause unnecessary delay, or needlessly increase the cost of litigation" and is "neither unreasonable nor unduly burdensome or expensive, considering the needs of the case, prior discovery in the case, the amount in controversy, and the importance of the issues at stake in the action." FED. R. CIV. P. 26(g)(1)(B)(ii), (iii). The party and/or attorney seeking discovery may be subject to sanctions, including reasonable expenses and attorney's fees, if the certification of a discovery requests violates this rule. FED. R. CIV. P. 26(g)(3); FED. R. BANKR. P. 7026. Here, the Committee does not provide any search terms or other means by which to restrict or limit the Requested Information to information relevant to the Estate Claims. Instead the Motion to Compel proposes discovery that will harass non-debtors, such as NexPoint, needlessly increase the cost of litigation, is not reasonable, and is unduly burdensome and expensive – as clearly indicated by the sheer volume of documents responsive to such a broad request (over eight million). The Requested Information is outside the scope of discovery and does not comply with the requirements and certifications under Rule 26.

9. As a result of the Committee's overly broad and unfocused request, the Requested Information necessarily contains non-debtor information, including NexPoint's confidential and proprietary business information as well as information protected by the attorney-client privilege. However, the Shared Services Agreement does not give Highland unfettered access to NexPoint's confidential and proprietary business information and the mere fact that NexPoint utilizes Highland's servers and back- and middle office services and infrastructure does not change the character of such information. Again, but for the Shared Services Agreement, Highland would not have access to NexPoint's communications and information, except in limited situations. If a party served document requests on a third-party service provider, the party would not be entitled to all custodial data held by that third-party service provider. Instead, the request must be narrowly tailored, relevant to the claims and defenses at issue, and proportional to the needs of the case. The Committee should be held to the same reasonable standard.

10. The Committee neither tailored the Requested Information to discover information relevant to the Estate Claims nor to be proportional to the needs of the case and, as such, is outside the scope of discovery under Rule 26(b)(1). To allow the Committee such broad, unrestricted, and unlimited, access to the Requested Information – with no search terms or other means of narrowing the request – is contrary to both the scope of discovery and certifications required under Rule 26. Accordingly, the Court should deny the Motion to Compel and require that the Committee submit proposed search terms or other means to tailor the Requested Information to the specific Estate Claims at issue.

B. If the Court allows the requested discovery, a protective order is required to protect NexPoint from undue burden and expense.

11. If the Court requires Highland produce the Requested Information (in its entirety or properly narrowed under Rule 26), the Court should enter a protective order in connection with such production. A court may, for good cause, protect a person or party from annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden or expense. FED. R. CIV. P. 26(c)(1); FED. R. BANKR. P. 7026. A party seeking a protective order must show good cause and a specific need for protection. Samsung Elecs. Amer. Inc. v. Yang Kun "Michael" Chung, 325 F.R.D. 578, 592 (N.D.

Tex. 2017). "Good cause" exists when justice requires the protection of "a party or person from any annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden or expense." FED. R. CIV. P. 26(c); Skyport Global Comms., Inc. v. Intelsat Corp. (In re Skyport Global Comms., Inc.), 408 B.R. 687, 691 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2009). The purpose of a protective order is to "carefully balance the competing interests existing between…need to discover 'relevant and necessary' information against the…need to protect the proprietary information upon which [a party's] business relies." Packet Intelligence LLC v. Ericsson Inc., Civ. Action No. 2:18-CV-00381-JRG, 2019 WL 8137142, *2 (E.D. Tex. Jan. 10, 2019); Williams ex rel. Williams v. Greenlee, 210 F.R.D. 577, 579 (N.D. Tex. 2002) ("The court must balance the competing interests of allowing discovery and protecting the parties and deponents from undue burdens.").

12. As discussed above, the Requested Information necessarily includes NexPoint's confidential and proprietary business information as well as privileged legal communications. In addition, certain of NexPoint's subsidiaries and affiliates are publicly traded companies – and the disclosure of their confidential and proprietary business information is not only unduly burdensome to NexPoint but also potentially subject to regulatory constraints. NexPoint, Highland, and the Court must prevent any disclosure of non-public information regarding NexPoint's publicly traded funds and related investments.

13. The undue burden and expense NexPoint will incur if its confidential and proprietary business information is disclosed to the public, including the Committee and Highland's creditors, is substantial. On the other hand, as discussed above, NexPoint's business information is unrelated to and separate from Highland's business operations and is neither relevant to the Estate Claims nor proportional to the needs of the case.

14. In sum, good cause exists to protect NexPoint and significantly restrict and limit the disclosure of NexPoint's information. Accordingly, NexPoint requests that the Court enter a protective order ("NexPoint Proposed Protective Order") requiring (a) a relevance and confidentiality review, as set forth in a Document Review Memorandum, with NexPoint's input as to NexPoint information; (b) provide any NexPoint documents to NexPoint before production; (c) allow NexPoint a reasonable amount of time to review and confirm such document is (i) responsive, (ii) relevant; (iii) non-privileged, and (iv) correctly designated as Confidential or Highly Confidential under the Agreed Protective Order [ECF No. 382] in this Bankruptcy Case ("NexPoint Review Process"); and (d) make NexPoint a party to the Agreed Protective Order [ECF No. 382].

C. The Requested Information requires the Debtor to directly violate the confidentiality provisions of the Shared Services Agreement.

15. As noted in Highland's Motion for Protective Order, the Shared Services Agreement contains confidentiality provisions requiring Highland keep any NexPoint information obtained in connection with the Shared Services Agreement confidential. The Court should uphold such provisions by entering a protective order in connection with the Requested Information. NexPoint does not oppose the Debtor Proposed Protective Order, provided that the protective order authorizes NexPoint to participate in the Document Review Memorandum (as it relates to NexPoint information) and have final review of NexPoint information before production.

III. CONCLUSION

Accordingly, NexPoint respectfully requests that the Court (i) enter an order requiring the Committee submit proposed search terms to tailor the Requested Information to the specific Estate Claims at issue; (ii) enter the NexPoint Proposed Protective Order or, in the alternative, enter the Debtor Proposed Protective Order modified to allow NexPoint to participate in the Document

Review Memorandum and final review of NexPoint Information; and (iii) grant NexPoint such other relief to which it may be entitled at law or in equity.

Respectfully submitted,

Engagement Agreement

J.P. SEERY & CO. LLC

June 23, 2020

CONFIDENTIAL

The Board of Directors of Strand Advisors, Inc.
c/o Highland Capital Management, L.P.
300 Crescent Court, Suite 700
Dallas, Texas 75201

Re: Highland Capital Management L.P. (the "Company")

Dear Fellow Board Members:

This letter agreement ("Agreement") sets forth the terms and conditions of the engagement of the undersigned James P. Seery, Jr. ("I", "me" or "my"), as Chief Executive Officer ("CEO") and Chief Restructuring Officer ("CRO"), effective as of March 15, 2020 (the "Commencement Date"), by the Company and its affiliates to perform financial advisory services as detailed below.

I appreciate the trust you have placed in me by asking me to assume these roles and thank you for the opportunity to continue to work with you to restructure the Company.

Roles:

I will serve as the CEO and CRO of the Company during its Chapter 11 bankruptcy case (the "Bankruptcy Case") currently pending in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the "Bankruptcy Court").

In those roles, I will be responsible for overall management of the business of the Company in Chapter 11 including, directing the reorganization and restructuring of the Company, monetization of assets, resolution of claims, development and negotiation of a plan of reorganization or liquidation, and implementation of such a plan.

My direct reports will include the individuals at the Company that currently report to the Board of Directors of Strand Advisors, Inc. (the "Board") or such other individuals employed by the Company as I determine should report to directly to me. In the event that the Board determines to restructure the reporting lines or functions of the Company, my direct reports will be amended in accordance with the Board approved restructuring.

At all times, I will remain a full member of the Board entitled to vote on all matters other than those on which I am conflicted.

I will devote as much time to this engagement as I determine is required to execute my responsibilities as CEO and CRO. I will have no specific on-site requirements in Dallas, but will be on site as much as I determine is necessary to execute my responsibilities as CEO and CRO, consistent with Covid-19 orders applicable to Dallas and New York City.

Limitations on Services

My services under this engagement are limited to those specifically noted in this Agreement and do not include legal, accounting, or tax-related assistance or advisory services. For the avoidance of doubt, I am not providing any legal services in connection with this engagement and will have not any duties as a lawyer to the Company, the Board, or any of the Company's employees. The accuracy and completeness of all information submitted to me by the Company are the sole responsibility of the Company, and I will be entitled to rely on such information without independent investigation or verification.

In my role as CEO and CRO, I will act as an independent professional contractor to the Company and will not be an employee of the Company. I will provide and pay for my own benefits, including medical benefits, by J.P Seery & Co. LLC or otherwise.

Fees and Expenses:

In consideration of my acceptance of this engagement and performance of the services pursuant to this Agreement, the Company shall pay the following:

1. Compensation for Services:
    a. Base Compensation: As compensation for my services as CEO and CRO of the Company, the Company shall pay me $150,000.00 per calendar month ("Base Compensation"). Base Compensation shall be due and payable at the start of each calendar month. Consistent with current Board compensation practice, invoices rendered by me to the Company are due and payable by the Company on receipt. Payment of the Base Compensation will be retroactive to March 15, 2020.
    b. Bonus Compensation/Restructuring Fee:
        i. The Company has agreed to pay me a restructuring fee upon confirmation of either a Case Resolution Plan or a Monetization Vehicle Plan in each case as defined below (the "Restructuring Fee").
        ii. Case Resolution Restructuring Plan
            1. On confirmation of any plan or reorganization or liquidation based on resolution of a material amount of the outstanding claims and their respective treatment, even if such plan includes (x) a debtor/creditor trust or similar monetization and claims resolution vehicle, (y) post-confirmation litigation of certain of the claims, and (z) post-confirmation monetization of debtor assets (a "Case Resolution Plan"):
                a. $1,000,000 on confirmation of the Case Resolution Plan;
                b. $500,000 on the effective date of the Case Resolution Plan; and
                c. $750,000 on completion of cash or property distributions to creditors as contemplated by the Case Resolution Plan.

iii. Debtor/Creditor Monetization Vehicle Restructuring Fee:

1. On confirmation of any plan or reorganization or liquidation based on a debtor/creditor trust or similar asset monetization and claims resolution vehicle that does not include agreement among the debtor and creditors on a material amount of the outstanding claims and their respective treatment at confirmation (a "Monetization Vehicle Plan"):
    a. $500,000 on confirmation of the Monetization Vehicle Plan;
    b. $250,000 on the effective date of the Monetization Vehicle Plan; and
    c. A contingent restructuring fee to be determined by the board or oversight committee installed to oversee the implementation of any Monetization Vehicle Plan based on the CEO/CRO (or acting as trustee) based upon performance under the plan after all material distributions under the Monetization Vehicle Plan are made.

2. Out-of-Pocket Expenses: In addition to the Base and Bonus Compensation, I shall be entitled to reimbursement for actual and reasonable out-of-pocket expenses ("Expenses") incurred in connection with the provision of services hereunder. Expenses will be billed along with Base Compensation and shall be paid by the Company at the same time. Expenses will be generally consistent with expenses incurred to date as a member of the Board.

Bankruptcy Court Approval

Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary, I understand that this Agreement is contingent, in all respects, on the approval of the Bankruptcy Court. I also understand that the Company will seek approval of this Agreement in stages and that the Company will first seek approval of my retention as CEO and CRO and the payment of the Base Compensation and will defer seeking Bankruptcy Court approval of the Restructuring Fee until there have been further developments in the Bankruptcy Case.

Conflicts and Other Engagements

I am not aware of any potential conflicts of interest based on my understanding of the various parties involved in this matter to date.

The Company is aware that this engagement is not an exclusive engagement of my time, and that I have and will continue to have other business engagements and investments unrelated to the Company. Nothing in this Agreement or otherwise precludes me from representing or working with or for any other person or entity in matters not directly related to the services being provided to the Company under this Agreement. However, I will not take on any engagements directly adverse to the Company during the term of this engagement.

Privilege

I understand that in the course of this engagement, I may become party to or my services may become part of work product of legal counsel to the Company (the Company's in-house and outside counsel are collectively referred to as "Counsel"), and all communications between Counsel and me relating to this engagement shall be protected from disclosure to third parties under the attorney work product doctrine and/or the attorney-client privilege, and, therefore, shall be treated by me as privileged and confidential. I further understand that the Company has the exclusive right to waive the attorney-client privilege, and Counsel has the exclusive right to waive the protections afforded under the attorney work-product doctrine.

Termination of Engagement

This Agreement may be terminated at any time by either the Company or by me upon two weeks advance written notice given to the other party. The termination of this Agreement shall not affect my right to receive, and the Company's obligation to pay, any and all Base Compensation and Expenses incurred (even if not billed) prior to the giving of the termination notice; provided, however, that (i) if this Agreement is terminated by me, the amount of Base Compensation owed shall be calculated based on the actual number of days worked during the applicable month and I will return any Base Compensation received in excess of such amount and (ii) if this Agreement is terminated by the Company, Base Compensation shall be deemed fully earned as of the first day of any month. Bonus Compensation shall be earned by me immediately upon termination of me by the Company; provided, however, I shall not be entitled to Bonus Compensation if (a) the Bankruptcy Case is converted to chapter 7 or dismissed; (b) a chapter 11 trustee is appointed in the Bankruptcy Case; (c) I am terminated by the Company for Cause; or (d) I resign prior to confirmation of a plan or court approval of a sale as described in the Fees and Expense/Compensation for Services section hereof. For purposes of this Agreement, "Cause" means any of the following grounds for termination of my engagement, in each case as reasonably determined by the Board within 60 days of the Board becoming aware of the existence of the event or circumstance: (A) fraud, embezzlement, or any act of moral turpitude or willful misconduct on my part; (B) conviction of or the entry of a plea of nolo contendere by me for any felony; (C) the willful breach by me of any material term of this Agreement; or (D) the willful failure or refusal by me to perform my duties to the Company, which, if capable of being cured, is not cured on or before fifteen (15) days after my receipt of written notice from the Company.

Conditional Requirement to Seek Further Bankruptcy Court Approval of Agreement

The official committee of unsecured creditors in the Bankruptcy Case (the "Committee") may, upon two weeks advance written notice to the Company, require the Company to file a motion with the Bankruptcy Court on normal notice seeking a continuation of this Agreement and if such motion is not filed, this Agreement will terminate at the expiration of such two week period. If the Company files such motion, I will be entitled to my Base Compensation through and including the date on which a final order is entered on such motion by the Bankruptcy Court. Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary, the Committee may not deliver such notice to the Company until a date which is more than ninety days following the date the Bankruptcy Court enters an order approving this Agreement.

Indemnification

As a material part of the consideration to me under this Agreement, the Company agrees (i) to indemnify and hold harmless me and any of my affiliates (the "Indemnified Party"), to the fullest extent lawful, from and against any and all losses, claims, costs, damages or liabilities (or actions in respect thereof), joint or several, arising out of or related to this Agreement, my engagement under this Agreement, or any actions taken or omitted to be taken by me or the Company in connection with this Agreement and (ii) to reimburse the Indemnified Party for all expenses (including, without limitation, the reasonable fees and expenses of counsel) as they are incurred in connection with investigating, preparing, pursuing, defending, settling or compromising any action, suit, dispute, inquiry, investigation or proceeding, pending or threatened, brought by or against any person (including, without limitation, any shareholder or derivative action, or any fee dispute), arising out of or relating to this Agreement, or such engagement, or actions. However, the Company shall not be liable under the foregoing indemnity and reimbursement agreement for any loss, claim, damage or liability which is finally judicially determined by a court of competent jurisdiction to have resulted primarily from the willful misconduct or gross negligence of the Indemnified Party.

The indemnification and insurance currently covering my role as a director shall be extended to me and fully cover me as provided therein in my roles as CEO and CRO.

Miscellaneous

This Agreement (a) constitutes the entire agreement of the parties with respect to the subject matter hereof and supersedes any other communications, understandings or agreements among the parties with respect to the subject matter hereof, and (b) may be modified, amended or supplemented only by written agreement among all the parties hereto.

This Agreement is subject to approval by the Bankruptcy Court. As part of such approval the Company shall request that any such order approving this Agreement contain a provision extending the protections afforded to me as a Board Member pursuant to Paragraph 10 of the Order Approving Settlement with Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course entered by the Bankruptcy Court on January 9, 2020 [Docket No. 339] to my role as CEO and CRO, which Order prohibits the commencement of any action against me without first obtaining Bankruptcy Court approval to initiate such action.

This Agreement and all controversies arising from or related to performance hereunder shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New York. The parties hereby submit to the jurisdiction of and venue in the federal and state courts located in New York City and waive any right to trial by jury in connection with any dispute related to this Agreement.

This Agreement shall be binding upon the parties and their respective successors and assigns, and no other person shall acquire or have any right under or by virtue of this Agreement.

Failure of any party at any time to require performance of any provision of this Agreement shall not affect the right to require full performance thereof at any time thereafter, and the waiver by any party of a breach of such provisions shall not be taken as or held to be a waiver of any subsequent breach or as nullifying the effectiveness of such provision.

This Agreement and my rights and duties hereunder shall not be assignable or delegable by me.

The Company may withhold from any amounts payable under this Agreement such Federal, state and local taxes as may be required to be withheld pursuant to any applicable law or regulation.

This Agreement may be executed (including by electronic execution) in any number of counterparts, each of which when so executed shall be deemed an original, but all such counterparts shall constitute one and the same instrument. Overstated Claims, the Late-Filed Claims, the Satisfied Claims, and the No-Liability Claims, the "Disputed Claims"). In support of this Objection, the Debtor respectfully represents as follows:

I. JURISDICTION

1. The Court has jurisdiction to consider and determine this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. This is a core proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157(b)(1) and (b)(2)(A), (B) and (O). Venue is proper before this Court pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409.

2. The statutory bases for the relief requested herein are sections 105(a) and 502(b) of title 11 of the United States Code (the "Bankruptcy Code"), Rules 3007 and 9014 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the "Bankruptcy Rules"), and Rules 3007-1 and 3007-2 of the Local Bankruptcy Rules of the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the "Local Rules").

II. BACKGROUND

3. On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the "Delaware Court").

4. On October 29, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the "Committee") was appointed by the United States Trustee in the Delaware Court.

5. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the Debtor's bankruptcy case to this Court [Docket No. 186].[2]

[2] All docket numbers refer to the docket maintained by this Court.

6. The Debtor has continued in the possession of its property and has continued to operate and manage its business as a debtor-in-possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. No trustee or examiner has been appointed in this chapter 11 case.

7. On March 2, 2020, the Court entered its Order (I) Establishing Bar Dates for Filing Claims and (II) Approving the Form and Manner of Notice Thereof [Docket No. 488] (the "Bar Date Order"). The Bar Date Order fixed April 8, 2020 at 5:00 p.m. (prevailing Central Time) as the deadline for any person or entity, other than Governmental Units (as such term is defined in section 101(27) of the Bankruptcy Code), to file proofs of claim against the Debtor (the "General Bar Date"). For Governmental Units, the Bar Date Order fixed the deadline to file proofs of claim as April 13, 2020 at 5:00 p.m. (prevailing Central Time). The Bar Date Order also set April 23, 2020 as the deadline to file claims for investors in funds managed by the Debtor (the "Fund Investor Bar Date"). The Debtor also sought and obtained the extended employee bar date of May 26, 2020 per the Order Granting Debtor's Emergency Motion and Extending Bar Date Deadline for Employees to File Claims [Docket No. 560].

8. On March 3, 2020, the Debtor filed the Notice of Bar Dates for Filing Claims [Docket No. 498] (the "Bar Date Notice"). The Bar Date Notice was mailed to all known creditors and equity holders on March 5, 2020. See Certificate of Service [Docket No. 530].

9. The Debtor caused the Bar Date Notice to be published on two occasions each in The New York Times and The Dallas Morning News—once on March 12, 2020, and once on March 13, 2020. See Debtor's Notice of Affidavit of Publication of the Notice of Bar Dates for Filing Claims in The New York Times [Docket No. 533] and Debtor's Notice of Affidavit of Publication of the Notice of Bar Dates for Filing Claims in The Dallas Morning News [Docket No. 534].

The Claims Resolution Process

10. In the ordinary course of business, the Debtor maintains books and records (the "Books and Records") that reflect, inter alia, the Debtor's liabilities and the amounts owed to its creditors.

11. The Debtor's register of claims (the "Claims Register"), prepared and maintained by Kurtzman Carson Consultants LLC ("KCC")—the court-appointed notice and claims agent in this case—reflects that, as of the date of this Objection, 194 proofs of claim have been filed in the Debtor's chapter 11 case.

12. The Debtor and its professionals have been reviewing and analyzing claims. This process includes identifying categories of claims that may be targeted for disallowance and expungement, reduction, and/or reclassification.

III. RELIEF REQUESTED

13. The Debtor seeks entry of an order, pursuant to section 502 of the Bankruptcy Code and Bankruptcy Rule 3007, (i) disallowing the Duplicate Claims listed on Schedule 1 to the Order, (ii) reducing and allowing the Overstated Claims listed on Schedule 2 to the Order in amounts which comport with the Books and Records; (iii) disallowing the Late-Filed Claims listed on Schedule 3 to the Order, (iv) disallowing the Satisfied Claims listed on Schedule 4 to the Order, (v) disallowing the No-Liability Claims listed on Schedules 5 and 6 to the Order, and (vi) disallowing the Insufficient-Documentation Claims listed on Schedule 7 to the Order.

claim that is improper. 11 U.S.C. §§ 704(a)(5), 1106(a)(1), 1107(a); see also Int'l Yacht & Tennis, Inc. v. Wasserman Tennis, Inc. (In re Int'l Yacht & Tennis, Inc.), 922 F.2d 659, 661-62 (11th Cir. 1991).

15. As set forth in Bankruptcy Rule 3001(f), a properly executed and filed proof of claim constitutes prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim under section 502(a) of the Bankruptcy Code. See In re O'Connor, 153 F.3d 258, 260 (5th Cir. 1998); In re Texas Rangers Baseball Partners, 10-43400 (DML), 2012 WL 4464550, at *2 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Sept. 25, 2012). To receive the benefit of *prima fac*ie validity, however, "[i]t is elemental that a proof of claim must assert facts or allegations . . . which would entitle the claimant to a recovery." In re Heritage Org., L.L.C., 04-35574 (BJH), 2006 WL 6508477, at *8 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 27, 2006), aff'd sub nom., Wilferth v. Faulkner, 3:06 CV 510 K, 2006 WL 2913456 (N.D. Tex. Oct 11, 2006). Additionally, a claimant's proof of claim is entitled to the presumption of prima facie validity under Bankruptcy Rule 3001(f) only until an objecting party refutes "at least one of the allegations that is essential to the claim's legal sufficiency." In re Am. Reit, Inc., 07-40308, 2008 WL 1771914, at *3 (Bankr. E.D. Tex. Apr. 15, 2008); In re Starnes, 231 B.R. 903, 912 (N.D. Tex. May 14, 2008). "The ultimate burden of proof always lies with the claimant." In re Armstrong, 347 B.R. 581, 583 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006).

16. Section 502(b)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code requires disallowance of a claim if "such claim is unenforceable against the debtor and property of the debtor, under any agreement or applicable law . . . ." 11 U.S.C. § 502(b)(1).

The Disputed Claims Should Be Disallowed and Expunged or Reduced

17. For the reasons set forth below, the Disputed Claims are not enforceable and should be disallowed, expunged, or reduced as set forth herein.

A. Duplicate Claims

18. The Debtor has identified 3 proofs of claim—listed on Schedule 1 to the Order—where each claimant filed multiple proofs of claim representing a single obligation of the Debtor. The Debtor is requesting that the listed Duplicate Claims be disallowed such that only the surviving claims listed on Schedule 1 remain, subject to any other objection the Debtor may bring in the future. Disallowing and expunging these claims will prevent the claimants from receiving multiple recoveries for a single claim.

B. Claims to be Reduced and Allowed

19. The Debtor has examined the 4 proofs of claim listed on Schedule 2 to the Order and has determined that the amounts listed on the claims exceed the liability listed for each claimant on the Debtor's Books and Records. The Debtor is requesting that the amount of each claim be reduced so that it correctly reflects the amount of the Debtor's books and records.

C. Late-Filed Claims

20. The Debtor has identified 1 proof of claim listed on Schedule 3 to the Order that was filed after the passage of the applicable Bar Date.

D. Satisfied Claims

21. The Debtor has identified 11 proofs of claim listed on Schedule 4 to the Order that, according to the Debtor's books and records, were fully satisfied in the ordinary course of business. Disallowing and expunging such claims, therefore, will prevent the claimants from obtaining double-recovery on account of their claims.

E. No-Liability Claims

22. The Debtor has identified 63 proofs of claim listed on Schedules 5 and 6 to the Order that can be characterized as "No-Liability Claims"—i.e., claims that erroneously assert a liability that is not reflected in the Debtor's books and records. Certain claims listed on Schedule 5 to the Order appear to be protective claims for claimants asserting claims related to agreements with the Debtor. No amount is asserted on these claims and, although the claimants have indicated they would supplement the claims within ninety (90) days, that time has passed and no amendment or supplement has been filed and no additional documentation has been provided to support the claims. Each claim listed on Schedule 6 to the Order erroneously asserts a claim against the Debtor which has no basis in the Books and Records and is not an obligation of the Debtor. The Debtor has reviewed each No-Liability Claim listed on Schedules 5 and 6 to the Order and all supporting information and documentation provided therewith, made reasonable efforts to research each No-Liability Claim, and determined that the Debtor is not liable for such No-Liability Claims. Accordingly, the Debtor requests that each No-Liability Claim be disallowed and expunged.

F. Insufficient-Documentation Claims

23. The Debtor was not able to determine the validity of the 10 claims listed on Schedule 7 to the Order because such claims were not filed with sufficient accompanying documentation and provided no explanation for the bases of the claims. Additionally, no liability for these claims appears on the Debtor's books and records. Accordingly, the Debtor requests that the Insufficient-Documentation Claims be disallowed and expunged because the claimants have failed to carry their burden to support their claims.

V. RESPONSES TO OBJECTIONS

24. To contest an objection, a claimant must file and serve a written response to this Objection (each, a "Response") so that it is received no later than September 1, 2020 at 5:00 p.m. (Central Time) (the "Response Deadline"). Every Response must be filed with the Office of the Clerk of the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (Dallas Division), Earle Cabell Federal Building, 1100 Commerce Street, Room 1254, Dallas, TX 75242-1496 and served upon the following entities, so that the Response is received no later than the Response Deadline, at the following addresses:

25. Every Response to this Objection must contain, at a minimum, the following information:

i. a caption setting forth the name of the Court, the name of the Debtor, the case number, and the title of the objection to which the Response is directed;

ii. the name of the claimant, his/her/its claim number, and a description of the basis for the amount of the claim;

iii. the specific factual basis and supporting legal argument upon which the party will rely in opposing this Objection;

iv. any supporting documentation (to the extent it was not included with the proof of claim previously filed with the clerk of the Court or KCC) upon which the party will rely to support the basis for and amounts asserted in the proof of claim; and

v. the name, address, telephone number, email address, and fax number of the person(s) (which may be the claimant or the claimant's legal representative) with whom counsel for the Debtor should communicate with respect to the claim or the Objection and who possesses authority to reconcile, settle, or otherwise resolve the objection to the disputed claim on behalf of the claimant.

26. If a claimant fails to file and serve a timely Response by the Response Deadline, the Debtor will present to the Court an appropriate order disallowing such claimant's claim, as set forth in Exhibit A, without further notice to the claimant.

VI. REPLIES TO RESPONSES

27. Consistent with Local Rules, the Debtor may, at its option, file and serve a reply to a Response by no later than 5:00 p.m. (prevailing Central Time) three (3) days prior to the hearing to consider the Objection.

VII. SEPARATE CONTESTED MATTERS

28. To the extent that a Response is filed regarding any claim listed in this Objection and the Debtor is unable to resolve the Response, the objection by the Debtor to each such claim asserted herein shall constitute a separate contested matter as contemplated by Bankruptcy Rule 9014. Any order entered by the Court regarding an objection asserted in the Objection shall be deemed a separate order with respect to each claim.

VIII. RESERVATION OF RIGHTS

29. The Debtor hereby reserves the right to object in the future to any of the claims that are the subject of this Objection on any ground, including, but not limited to, 11 U.S.C. § 502(d), and to amend, modify, and/or supplement this Objection, including, without limitation, to object to amended or newly filed claims.

30. Notwithstanding anything contained in this Objection or the attached exhibits, nothing herein shall be construed as a waiver of any rights that the Debtor may have to exercise rights of setoff against the holders of such claims.

IX. NOTICE

31. Notice of this Objection shall be provided to (i) the Office of the United States Trustee for the Northern District of Texas; (ii) each of the claimants whose claim is subject to this Objection; and (iii) all entities requesting notice pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 2002. In light of the nature of the relief requested, the Debtor submits that no further notice is required.

X. COMPLIANCE WITH LOCAL RULES

32. This Objection includes citations to the applicable rules and statutory authorities upon which the relief requested herein is predicated and a discussion of their application to this Objection. The Debtor objects to no more than 100 proofs of claim herein. The Debtor has served notice of this Objection on those persons whose names appear in the signature blocks on the proofs of claim and in accordance with Bankruptcy Rule 7004. Moreover, the Debtor has notified claimants that a copy of their claim may be obtained from the Debtor upon request. Accordingly, the Debtor submits that this Objection satisfies Local Rule 3007-2.

WHEREFORE, the Debtor respectfully requests the entry of the proposed Order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A, granting the relief requested and granting such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

Additionally, should one or more of the grounds of objection stated in the Objection be overruled, the Debtor's rights to object on other stated grounds or any other grounds that the Debtor may discover are further preserved.

Highland Capital Management, L.P., the debtor and debtor-in-possession ("Debtor") in the above-captioned chapter 11 case ("Bankruptcy Case"), hereby submits this objection to Proof of Claim No. 190 and Proof of Claim No. 191 (substantively identical claims that are referenced collectively as the "UBS Claim") filed by UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch (collectively "UBS") on June 26, 2020, and in support thereof, respectfully states as follows:[2]

INTRODUCTION

1. When global financial markets collapsed in late 2008, UBS and other participants in the securities trading industry suffered enormous losses. Among the losers were offshore funds related to the Debtor that were counterparties to warehousing agreements with UBS (the "Fund Counterparties"), which were unable to honor contractual margin calls. After eleven years of litigation in the New York state courts, UBS has obtained a determination that this was a breach of contract by the Fund Counterparties. UBS now holds a judgment against the Exhibits 13-17 to this objection are attached to Appendix B of Exhibits in Support of Debtor's Objection to Proofs of Claim of UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch. Concurrently herewith, the Debtor is requesting the Court's permission to file Appendix B under seal. Fund Counterparties that, with the accrual of interest at 9% over a decade, exceeds $1 billion (the "Phase I Judgment").

2. UBS's problem, of course, is that the Fund Counterparties do not have sufficient assets to satisfy UBS's judgment. In the Debtor's Objection UBS's Motion for Relief from the Automatic Stay to Proceed with State Court Action [Docket No. 687], the Debtor said that the Fund Counterparties were insolvent. However, the Fund Counterparties are insolvent only because of UBS's judgment, and the Debtor believes each Fund Counterparty has assets. The Debtor is continuing to assess those assets and their value.

3. However, in addition to the lack of assets at the Fund Counterparties, and potentially more important, the operative agreements expressly exclude the Debtor from any liability for losses related to the transaction. The governing agreements contain no agreement by the Debtor to pay, guarantee or otherwise backstop the Fund Counterparties' obligations. That was a conscious decision by UBS: when the warehousing agreements were restructured earlier in 2008, UBS did not bargain for any assurance of performance by the Debtor, and thus the agreements do not obligate the Debtor to do so. UBS, one of the largest and most sophisticated banks in the world at the time, bet that between the Fund Counterparties and the warehouse collateral there would be enough cushion to absorb any risk. UBS knowingly took the risk that if the Fund Counterparties defaulted, it would have no recourse against the Debtor. Instead of accepting the consequences of its bad business deal, UBS has used the litigation process to recut the deal to place liability on the Debtor. The New York State Appellate Division, First Department so held in the prepetition state court litigation in 2010, dismissing UBS's claim in its February 24, 2009 complaint for contractual indemnification against the Debtor. That New York State appellate court ruled that the Debtor had undertaken no obligation to ensure that the Fund Counterparties would be able to perform, and that contractual limitation was always clear to UBS.

4. That decision has not stopped UBS from attempting to pin liability on the Debtor for the past decade. After the dismissal of its claim against the Debtor for breach of contract, UBS commenced a second action in New York state court, asserting a claim that the Debtor had breached an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing by not ensuring that the Fund Counterparties could perform. UBS also added fraudulent transfer claims against the Debtor and others arising from an alleged $233 million in transfers made by a parent of one of the Fund Counterparties, Highland Financial Partners, L.P. ("HFP"), and its subsidiaries HFP Asset II and HFP Asset III (together, "HFP Asset II/III") in March 2009 (the "March 2009 Transaction"). UBS was not a creditor of HFP, so, in order to manufacture standing to challenge the transfers, UBS alleged HFP was an alter ego of a Fund Counterparty. UBS did not, and still has not, pled an alter ego claim against the Debtor, nor has it prevailed on its claim that HFP is the alter ego of one of the Fund Counterparties.

5. Three decisions by the Appellate Division bar any claim to hold the Debtor responsible for any portion of the Phase I Judgment:

- The first of these decisions, as noted, was the dismissal of UBS's original complaint against the Debtor (filed on February 24, 2009) and a judgment on the merits in favor of the Debtor on UBS' breach of contract claim. The Appellate Division based its determination on the fact that the Debtor did not promise to undertake liability as to UBS's losses, or to ensure the Funds' performance under their contracts with UBS. See UBS v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 2010 NY Slip Op 1436, ¶ 1 (N.Y. App. Div.) [Exhibit 1 at A002].

- The second decision, issued after UBS tried to re-assert the same claim against the Debtor by labeling it as different legal theories (as UBS is now doing), held that UBS is barred by res judicata from asserting claims against the Debtor that "implicate events alleged to have taken place before the filing of the original complaint" on February 24, 2009. See UBS v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 86 A.D.3d 469, 474 (N.Y. App. Div. 2011) [Exhibit 2 at A010].

- In its third decision, the Appellate Division extended its res judicata ruling to the Debtor's co-defendants in the state court litigation, holding that UBS's claims against other defendants – including the claim that HFP is the alter ego of one of the > Fund Counterparties – are likewise limited to conduct that occurred after February 24, 2009. See UBS v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 93 A.D.3d 489, 490 (N.Y. App. Div. 2012) [Exhibit 3 at A014].

6. The only post-February 24, 2009 conduct at issue in the UBS Claim and attachments is the March 2009 Transaction, which entailed transfers by HFP and HFP Asset II/III of assets valued at $239 million (later reduced to $233 million).[3] The breach of contract on which the Phase I Judgment is based occurred earlier: the warehousing agreements were terminated on December 3, 2008 and were found to have been breached on December 5, 2008. Accordingly, the Appellate Division's two res judicata decisions preclude UBS from attempting to hold the Debtor liable for UBS's breach of contract judgment against the Fund Counterparties, which is based solely on pre-February 24, 2009 conduct, directly or indirectly.

7. The UBS Claim incorporates its operative state court complaint. The claims for relief against the Debtor are the breach of implied covenant claim and the fraudulent transfer claim. UBS describes the UBS Claim as follows:

> Claimant hereby asserts a claim, pending litigation of Phase II, for damages arising from the Debtor's breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, its specific role in directing the fraudulent transfers of assets involving HFP, additional interest, further damages (including punitive damages), and attorneys' fees that may be awarded by any court at the conclusion of Phase II.

UBS Claim, ¶ 26. UBS has also suggested, though it is not pled in the state court complaint or in the UBS Claim, that it is at this late date expanding its assertion of alter ego liability beyond HFP and the Fund Counterparties to also subsume the Debtor, in what would apparently be yet another attempt to render the Debtor liable for the entire Phase I Judgment notwithstanding the Appellate Division rulings. See Demonstrative at Slide 2 (showing currently pending claims).[4]

[3] See NY D.I. 411 at pg. 22 of 36 [Exhibit 4 at A038] (State Court decision reciting that, in UBS's complaint, UBS alleged that $239 million of assets were transferred in the March 2009 transaction).

[4] The Debtor believes its Demonstrative sets forth only undisputed facts. The Demonstrative is attached hereto as Exhibit 18.

8. The Debtor has numerous meritorious defenses to UBS's fraudulent transfer claims in connection with the March 2009 Transaction. Several raise factual issues, but two do not. First, UBS has unequivocally released the Debtor with respect to all claims arising from $172 million of the alleged $233 million in fraudulent transfers (the "UBS Release").

9. The UBS Release was granted to the Debtor pursuant to settlement agreements UBS entered into in 2015 with co-defendants that received more than 80% of the allegedly fraudulent transfers made in the March 2009 Transaction. UBS expressly released the Debtor from any claims "for losses or other relief specifically arising from" the approximately $172 million in transfers.[5]

10. Second, UBS lacks standing as a non-creditor to challenge transfers made by HFP Asset II/III, entities against which UBS has asserted no claim. As UBS has long known, HFP Asset II/III were the transferors of approximately $187.5 million of the assets transferred in March 2009. Most of the transfers by those entities ($152.3 million) are covered by the UBS Release, leaving $35.2 million of transfers that, based on UBS's lack of standing, it cannot assert. This brings the total of fraudulent transfer claims that cannot be brought against the Debtor to $207.2 million out of $233 million.

11. UBS appears to concede that the Appellate Division rulings limit its claim for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing to the March 2009 Transaction. Thus, the implied covenant claim amounts to no more than a restatement of the fraudulent transfer claim, i.e., the Debtor breached the implied covenant by engaging in fraudulent transfers.[6] To the extent there is no liability for the transfers, the implied covenant claim

[5] See Exhibit 13 at Section 5.3, pg. 6 [B007]; Exhibit 14 at Section 5.3, pg. 5 [B037]. In its motion for injunctive relief against the settling defendants, UBS (i) reduced the total amount it claimed was transferred in the March 2009 transaction, and (ii) identified the transfers to the settling defendants as totaling more than 80% of the total amount of the March 2009 transaction. See NY D.I. 315 at pg. 6 [Exhibit 15 at B061].

[6] See, e.g., 05/01/18 State Court Hrg. Tr. at 10:13-16 [Exhibit 5 at A063] (in discussing whether the implied covenant claim is based solely on the March 2009 transaction, UBS's counsel stated "basically, obviously fails as well. Regardless, on the merits, no promise can be implied into the warehousing agreements that the Debtor would ensure that the Fund Counterparties would have the ability to pay UBS, when those contracts were restructured to eliminate any direct claim against the Debtor.

12. Even if there was liability (which there is none), UBS cannot use the implied covenant claim to render the Debtor liable for the alleged fraudulent transfers for which it released the Debtor from liability. The settlement agreements clearly preclude circumvention by relabeling claims.

13. Finally, UBS cannot use the doctrine of alter ego liability to render the Debtor liable for the Phase I Judgment. Res judicata bars any alter ego claims against the Debtor based on conduct predating February 24, 2009. Thus any claims UBS tries to create based upon the conduct occurring prior to the filing of its complaint (i.e., the period of the parties' dealings) are barred.

14. UBS likely hopes to escape this clear claims barrier by casting alter ego liability as a post-judgment remedy under New York procedure rather than as a claim, but that maneuver fails. New York law applies res judicata to bar the assertion of alter ego liability against a person that was a party to terminated litigation, and the Appellate Division applied it in this case to limit UBS's claims against HFP, including an alter ego claim, on the basis that HFP was in privity with the Debtor. Accordingly, any assertion of alter ego liability is limited to the March 2009 Transaction, as to which UBS has not pled an alter ego claim against the Debtor.

15. UBS's factual allegations do not in any event support any determination of alter ego liability. A federal district court judge rejected similar arguments in nearly identical circumstances as a basis for alter ego liability in an action against the Debtor commenced by Citibank in the Southern District of New York. Highland CDO Opportunity Master Fund, L.P. v.

you know, the implied covenant of good-faith and fair-dealing claim that we now have is that they shouldn't have committed fraudulent conveyances …").

Citibank, N.A., 270 F. Supp. 3d 716 (S.D.N.Y. 2017) ("Citibank"). The Debtor believes the Court will find the district judge's reasoning persuasive and the facts analogous, namely, that under New York law, Citibank's allegations of asset-stripping and diversion of assets that made it impossible to fulfill a margin call were not the kind of "wrong" that supports alter ego liability.

16. This Objection identifies those defenses to the UBS Claim as to which the Debtor contends there is no relevant factual dispute. The Debtor submits the Court can and should decide those defenses at this time without discovery or further proceedings. The Debtor requests that the Court establish a schedule for discovery and further proceedings on defenses identified or determined to be based upon disputed facts. The Debtor reserves all rights to supplement or amend this Objection, as appropriate.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

A. The CLO Warehouse Agreements

17. In April 2007, UBS entered into agreements (collectively, the "CLO Warehouse Agreements") with the Debtor and the two Fund Counterparties -- Highland Special Opportunities Holding Co. ("SOHC") and Highland CDO Opportunity Master Fund, L.P. ("CDO Fund") -- to establish a warehouse facility to finance the acquisition of syndicated leveraged loan vehicle liabilities and credit default swaps. (Ex. A, 4/12/07 Original Synthetic Warehouse Agreement; Ex. B, 4/20/07 Original Engagement Ltr.; Ex. C, 5/22/07 Original Cash Warehouse Agreement.) Those assets, in turn, were to serve as the basis for a securitization pursuant to which notes would be sold to investors. Due to market conditions, the securitized offering did not occur by the contractual deadline, and the CLO Warehouse Agreements terminated in August 2007. See generally UBS Claim, ¶¶2-3.[7]

18. In March 2008, UBS, the Debtor, as servicer and the Fund Counterparties entered into restructured warehouse agreements (collectively, the "Restructured CLO Warehouse

[7] Paragraph references are to the Addendum to Proof of Claim attached to each UBS proof of claim.

Agreements"). (Motion at ¶6, Exs. C, D, E.) In addition to the collateral posted by the Fund Counterparties as initial margin, the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements gave UBS the right to make margin calls for additional collateral on the Fund Counterparties in the event of a decline in the market value of the loans and swaps. UBS Claim, ¶¶4-5. If the margin calls were not met, the agreements permitted UBS to protect its exposure by swiftly foreclosing on the assets. Neither the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements nor any other agreements allowed UBS to obtain margin or any similar recovery from the Debtor. To the contrary, the agreements made clear that the Fund Counterparties bore all risk on the facilities. Among other things, the engagement letter between UBS and the Debtor provided that the Fund Counterparties would "in aggregate bear 100% of the risk of the Warehouse Facility" in accordance with the Fund Counterparties' respective allocation percentages. (Ex. 19, § 3(c); see also Demonstrative Slide 3.)

19. The UBS Claim is laced with extraneous and untrue allegations of supposed misrepresentations made by the Debtor to induce UBS to enter the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements, e.g., that it "assured Claimant that the Fund Counterparties had sufficient assets to cover any losses," or that it misrepresented the amount of cash held by the Fund Counterparties, or failed to disclose encumbrances on collateral. Id., ¶¶4-7. The Court should recognize these as futile efforts to "poison the well." Based on the margin structure of the facilities and the parties' sophistication, UBS could never "establish justifiable reliance to support its claims that defendants committed fraud by misrepresenting their creditworthiness or the assets they owned prior to entering the transaction." UBS Sec. LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 159 A.D.3d 512, 514 (N.Y. App. Div. 2018) (affirming trial court's finding of a question of fact on the issue). UBS also cannot square this allegation with its own contemporaneous internal documents. See Ex. 20 (two days before the 2008 Restructured Transaction: "CRC [credit risk committee] view as to the Highland Hedge Funds ability to pay if they were to default today to close to zero."); Ex. 21 (seven days before the transaction: "The counterparties have illiquid assets, little cash, and no ability to raise cash on their assets in the current market. Thus we assign a very low probability to the two counterparties ability to meet our claim of $166 mil."); and Ex. 96. ("At Feb 29th CRC advised they were ascribing zero value to the potential claim on the two hedge funds offered as obligors to cover this exposure.").[8]

20. As noted above, the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements explicitly placed the risk of loss on the Fund Counterparties, and not the Debtor, as the New York court has determined. UBS Securities LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 893 N.Y.S.2d 869 (N.Y. App. Div. 2010) ("the agreements between the parties contain no promise on the part of Highland to undertake liability with respect to the investment losses suffered by plaintiffs, or to ensure or guarantee the performance of [Fund Counterparties]' obligations to bear the risk of investment losses.").

21. As the market deteriorated in the fall of 2008, UBS made three margin calls on the Fund Counterparties. SOHC managed to satisfy the first two margin calls in September and October 2008, using funds provided by SOHC's parent corporation, HFP. UBS Claim, ¶11; UBS Securities LLC, et al v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, No. 650097-2009, at 4 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Nov. 19, 2019).

22. Ironically, in view of UBS's mantra that the Debtor schemed "to intentionally frustrate and prevent Claimant from recovering any of the amounts" owed to UBS (UBS Claim, ¶13), UBS concedes that "the Debtor moved assets around for other entities it controlled to make the first two collateral calls[.]" Id., ¶11. The Debtor moved assets into UBS's counterparties and paid those assets to UBS. And the Debtor did so even after the start of the global financial crisis.

[8] Ultimately UBS's dealmakers overcame the objections of their internal risk team, asserting they had done business with Highland for years and were "pretty sure that we could get Highland to buy back their counterparty exposure… for more than zero." See Ex. 23.

23. The Fund Counterparties were unable, however, to satisfy a third margin call in November 2008, and UBS issued a notice of termination of the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements in December. Id. UBS alleges that, as of December 5, 2008, its losses were over $520 million. Id., ¶12.

B. The HFP Notes and the March 2009 Transaction

24. The other subject matter of the UBS Claim is transfers made in connection with the March 2009 Transaction that it alleges were fraudulent transfers. It is undisputed that the transfers were made by HFP (or its non-defendant subsidiaries), which was not a party to either the CLO Warehouse Agreements or the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements, and so owed no debt or duty to UBS. Nonetheless, UBS claims standing to challenge the transfers because it may in the future be owed money by HFP, provided it prevails on its claim that HFP is an alter ego of the Fund Counterparties. Id., ¶16. UBS alleges in the State Court complaint that on March 17, 2009, the Debtor caused HFP to transfer all of its assets to the Debtor and affiliated co-defendants in the New York action (the "Affiliated Transferee defendants"), in what UBS alleged were fraudulent conveyances of $239 million in assets.

25. The March 2009 Transaction was the settlement of certain notes issued by HFP in the fall of 2008. In September 2008, HFP, through two newly-created, wholly-owned subsidiaries, acquired $321 million in CLO assets and life settlement insurance contracts from the Affiliated Transferee defendants in exchange for senior secured notes in a principal amount of $316 million with a maturity date of 2018. See Demonstrative Slide 4 The notes required HFP to make amortizing quarterly payments of $15 million to the Affiliated Transferee defendants, starting in February 2009. HFP was required to transfer a security interest to the Affiliated Transferee defendants in the shares of two wholly owned subsidiaries into which HFP transferred the newly acquired assets.

26. In October 2008, HFP issued an additional $55,488,000 of secured notes, also due in 2018, to Highland Crusader Offshore Partners, L.P. ("Crusader Fund"). The September and October notes (the "HFP Notes") brought HFP's debt obligation to the Affiliated Transferee defendants to approximately $371 million. Toward the end of 2008, the assets that secured the HFP Notes were subject to significant credit downgrades, decreasing cash flows available to HFP as dividends. The decreased cash flows made it unlikely that HFP would be able to meet its debt service obligations under the HFP Notes, or its obligation to pay premiums on the life settlement contracts it had acquired, jeopardizing the underlying collateral.

27. Based on these concerns, HFP's Board therefore approved a settlement with respect to the HFP Notes to relieve it of these obligations, which satisfied the notes and transferred the collateral back to Highland Credit Strategies Master Fund, L.P. ("Credit Strategies"), Highland Credit Opportunities CDO, L.P. and Crusader Fund, and to other noteholders/obligees (including Citibank and the Debtor). The March 2009 Transaction eliminated approximately $370 million of debt and protected HFP from further exposure as the value of the collateral securing the HFP Notes continued to deteriorate. See Demonstrative Slides 5 and 6. The satisfaction of the HFP Notes and the return of the collateral was effectuated pursuant to a "Termination, Settlement and Release Agreement" dated March 20, 2009, between HFP, HFP Asset Funding II, Ltd., and HFP Asset Funding III, Ltd., as Issuers, and the noteholders/obligees.

28. The March 2009 Transaction was unrelated to debts owed by SOHC to UBS (and so, as discussed below, was patently not an "actual intent" fraudulent conveyance). The transferor was an entity, HFP (or its unrelated subsidiaries), which did not and still does not owe anything to UBS. Further, the challenged transfers satisfied secured debt to non-insiders (which, as discussed below, constitutes "fair consideration" under section 273 of the New York Debtor and Creditor Law ("NYDCL") meaning they could not be constructively fraudulent either).

C. Procedural History

29. On February 24, 2009, UBS commenced a lawsuit against the Debtor and the Fund Counterparties in New York state court, alleging breach of the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements by the Fund Counterparties and seeking indemnification from the Debtor for certain losses (the "2009 Action") (Ex. F, Compl., UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., No. 650097/09 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Feb. 24, 2009).) The indemnification claim—the only cause of action that UBS asserted against the Debtor—was dismissed by the New York Appellate Division. "Dismissal of plaintiffs' indemnification claim against Highland is warranted, since the agreements between the parties contain no promise on the part of Highland to undertake liability with respect to the investment losses suffered by plaintiffs, or to ensure or guarantee the performance of defendant off-shore funds' obligations to bear the risk of investment losses." UBS Securities LLC v. Highland Capital Management, L.P., 70 A.D.3d 526, 893 N.Y.S.2d 869 (2010) (emphasis added).

30. After the Debtor was dismissed from the 2009 Action, UBS twice amended its complaint in the 2009 Action to add five new defendants (including HFP, Credit Strategies, and Crusader Fund) and filed a new action against the Debtor on June 28, 2010, captioned as UBS v. Highland Capital Management, L.P., Index No. 65072/2010 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.) (the "2010 Action").[9] The 2009 Action and the 2010 Action were later consolidated. As its claims against the Debtor, UBS asserted that the March 2009 Transaction was a fraudulent conveyance that benefitted the Debtor, and that the Debtor breached the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing by causing it. Recognizing it was not a creditor of HFP (and thus lacked standing to challenge the transfers), UBS needed a bootstrap to assert the fraudulent transfer claims against HFP and other defendants, UBS's amended complaint in the 2009 Action included a claim for declaratory relief against HFP seeking a determination that HFP was the alter ego of one of the Funds. The alter ego claim against HFP is the only alter ego cause of action that UBS has asserted in the New York state court litigation; in over a decade of litigation, UBS has never asserted that the Debtor is the alter ego of the Funds or any other entity.

31. In 2011 and 2012, the Appellate Division issued two more decisions that eliminated, or otherwise significantly limited, UBS's claims against the Debtor and new defendants. Both decisions applied res judicata to restrict UBS from seeking recovery for any conduct that occurred prior to February 24, 2009, the date on which UBS filed its original complaint in the 2009 Action, in which a final judgment was rendered on the merits in favor of the Debtor. See Exhibit 2 at A010; Exhibit 3 at A014.

32. In the 2011 decision, after UBS tried to re-assert the same claim against the Debtor under different legal theories (much like UBS is now doing), the Appellate Division held:

UBS v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 86 A.D.3d 469, 474 (N.Y. App. Div. 2011) (emphasis added) [Exhibit 2 at A010].

33. In the 2012 decision, the Appellate Division extended its res judicata ruling to the Debtor's co-defendants in the state court litigation, holding that UBS's claims against other defendants (which included a claim that HFP is the alter ego of one of the Fund Counterparties) are likewise limited to conduct that occurred after February 24, 2009. UBS v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 93 A.D.3d 489, 490 (N.Y. App. Div. 2012) [Exhibit 3 at A014]. "This Court's reversal of an order denying dismissal of the complaint in a related action (UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgt., L.P., 86 AD3d 469 [2011]), warrants dismissal of a portion of plaintiff's claims in this action due to res judicata since defendants are in privity with the defendant in the other action." Id. (citation omitted).

34. In light of the Appellate Division's decisions, UBS's remaining claims against the Debtor are limited to those that arise out of the allegedly fraudulent transfers in the March 2009 Transaction. This includes its claim for breach of the implied covenant, which UBS acknowledged to the state court "involves [the Debtor's] role in the March 2009 fraudulent conveyances [and] overlaps factually with the ... fraudulent conveyance claims"[10] and more succinctly: "the implied covenant of good-faith and fair-dealing claim that we now have is that they shouldn't have committed fraudulent conveyances to make it certain that these two parties couldn't have paid."[11]

D. The UBS Settlement and Release

35. In June 2015, in exchange for payments totaling $70.5 million, UBS released its claims against the Debtor (and other parties) pursuant to settlement agreements it entered into with three affiliates of the Debtor – Crusader Fund, Highland Crusader Holding Corporation and Credit Strategies. The UBS Release covers transfers to these affiliates representing approximately $172 million of the $233 million of challenged transfers. Section 5.3 of the settlement agreements provides, in relevant part:

> [T]he UBS Releasing Parties do hereby release, and covenant not to sue, [the Debtor] with respect to such Claims to the limited extent the Claims are for losses or other relief specifically arising from the fraudulent > transfers to [the settling defendants] alleged in the UBS Litigation. For the avoidance of doubt, the Claims released do not include (a) any Claims for losses or other relief arising from the alleged fraudulent transfers to any defendant in the UBS Litigation other than [the settling defendants] or (b) any other Claims for losses or other relief arising from the [warehouse agreement], except to the limited extent the Claims are for losses or other relief that specifically arise from the alleged fraudulent transfers to [the settling defendants] …

E. The Phase I Trial

36. The New York state court conducted a bench trial in July 2018 on the breach of contract claims against the Fund Counterparties under the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements. It issued its decision in November 2019, finding the Fund Counterparties liable for breaching the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements and awarding damages in the amount of $519,374,149, plus prejudgment interest, for a total judgment of approximately $1.05 billion. UBS Securities LLC, et al v. Highland Capital Mgmt. L.P., et al, No. 650097-2009 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Nov. 19, 2019) [Doc. No. 641]. The State Court made no findings with respect to the Debtor or the remaining defendants. Those claims were scheduled to be heard during a second trial.

F. Summary of the UBS Claim

37. The UBS Claim alleges anew the fraudulent transfer claims that UBS released in the UBS Release: "the Debtor and HFP caused asset transfers of millions of dollars of assets to the Debtor, [Credit Strategies], [Crusader Fund], and Highland Credit Opportunities CDO, L.P…, among others, thereby further reducing Highland's abilities to meet their obligations to Claimant." UBS Claim, ¶18. The premise appears to be that although UBS has already recovered the value of $172 million of the alleged fraudulent transfers by way of its settlement with the Debtor and others, it can recover the very same amounts from the Debtor a second time as damages for causing the transfers to be made. UBS attempts this magic trick by re-casting the same claims as a breach of an implied duty "to act in good faith to cause HFP to satisfy the debts, as much as possible, then owed to Claimant." Id. And although it never got a guaranty or a keep-well promise of any type, UBS further alleges that the Debtor "deliberately kept the Fund Counterparties undercapitalized, and allowed all assets of any value to be drained from the Fund Counterparties" and so precluded UBS from recovering anything. Id., ¶¶16, 18.

38. Further confusing matters, although the filing of the UBS Claim post-dates this Court's denial of relief from stay, UBS postulates that its claim against the Debtor will be tried before a jury in the State Court:

> The next step in the State Court Action is Phase II of the trial, where Claimant's remaining claims against not only the Debtor, but also against other Highland affiliates are to be tried to a jury, with the court deciding liability as to the breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing claim and the jury deciding all remaining claims. (Id. at 2 n.1, 38.) The claims to be tried in Phase II include claims for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, fraudulent conveyances, and alter-ego liability. The specific amounts the two non- Debtor affiliates owe to Claimant for their breach of the Warehouse Agreements are now set forth and embodied in the final $1 billion judgment from Phase I. And Claimant has stated claims against the Debtor—which was also a party to the same contract and exercised complete control over the two liable affiliates—under which Claimant is entitled to damages that are at least as much as the Phase I judgment amount. Claimant will seek damages for the Debtor's various breaches of the implied covenant as well as its specific role in the fraudulent transfer scheme, and pre-judgment interest and attorneys' fees where available. In addition, Claimant will seek punitive damages against the Debtor for its role in orchestrating the extended efforts to prevent Claimant from collecting the amounts owed under the Warehouse Agreements.

Id., ¶ 24.

39. UBS then summarizes its claim as follows:

> Claimant hereby asserts a claim, pending litigation of Phase II, for damages arising from the Debtor's breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, its specific role in directing the fraudulent transfers of assets involving HFP, additional interest, further damages (including punitive damages), and attorneys' fees that may be awarded by any court at the conclusion of Phase II.

Id., ¶ 26.

OBJECTION TO CLAIM

A. Legal Standard

40. The Bankruptcy Code establishes a burden-shifting framework for proving the amount and validity of a claim. "A claim . . . , proof of which is filed under section 501 [of the Bankruptcy Code], is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest . . . objects." 11 U.S.C. § 502(a). "A proof of claim executed and filed in accordance with the [Bankruptcy Rules] shall constitute prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim." Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(f); see also In re Armstrong, 347 B.R. 581, 583 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006). However, the ultimate burden of proof for a claim always lies with the claimant. Armstrong, 347 B.R. at 583 (citing Raleigh v. Ill. Dep't of Rev., 530 U.S. 15 (2000)).

B. The Fraudulent Transfer Claim Should be Disallowed

41. UBS's fraudulent transfer claim against the Debtor is limited to conduct that occurred after February 24, 2009, and is therefore limited to the March 2009 Transaction extinguishing the HFP Notes, which UBS contends was both a constructively fraudulent conveyance and an actual fraudulent conveyance under New York law.[12]

42. A conveyance is constructively fraudulent under New York law if it is made while the transferor is insolvent or satisfies other similar financial criteria, and if the transferor does not receive "fair consideration" in exchange for the transfer. Englander Capital Corp. v. Zises, 79 N.Y.S.3d 502, 506 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2018); NYDCL §§ 273, 274, 275. A transfer is an actual fraudulent conveyance under New York law if it is made with actual intent to hinder, delay or defraud the transferor's creditors. Id. at 507; NYDCL § 276.

43. UBS contends the March 2009 Transaction was a fraudulent conveyance because (i) UBS was a creditor of SOHC under the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements, [12] The recent amendments to New York's fraudulent conveyance laws took effect on April 4, 2020 and are not retroactive. Therefore, UBS's fraudulent conveyance claims are governed by New York Debtor and Creditor law as it existed prior to the recent amendments.

(ii) SOHC was the alter ego of HFP, (iii) as part of the settlement of the HFP Notes, HFP transferred assets to the Debtor, its affiliates and Citibank, (iv) HFP did not receive "fair consideration" for the transfers (even though the HFP Notes were cancelled), (v) HFP and SOHC were insolvent at the time, and (vi) the settlement of the HFP Notes was made with the actual intent to hinder, delay or defraud UBS, as a creditor of SOHC.

44. The fraudulent conveyance claim should be disallowed for the following reasons:

- UBS has released the Debtor with respect to the transfers covered by the UBS Release, which total approximately $172 million of the total $233 million transfer. The Debtor submit this defense may be decided on the existing record, without further proceedings.

- UBS lacks standing to challenge transfers that were made not by HFP but by two of its subsidiaries, HFP Asset II/III, which are not defendants in the UBS litigation and as to which UBS is not a creditor or even a purported creditor. The Debtor submits this defense may be decided on the existing record, without further proceedings.

- UBS cannot establish that the Debtor was the beneficiary of any transfers other than the $17.8 million that it received directly. Further proceedings will be required on this issue.

- UBS cannot establish that the transfers were not supported by "fair consideration" because the asset transfers were return of collateral to extinguish secured debt. Further proceedings will be required on this issue.

- UBS cannot establish that the March 2009 Transaction was entered into in bad faith or with the intent to hinder, delay or defraud UBS or any other creditors. Further proceedings will be required on this issue.

- UBS cannot establish that HFP was insolvent at the time of the transfers. Further proceedings will be required on this issue.

i) UBS Released All Claims Against the Debtor Arising From Transfers to Credit Strategies, Crusader Fund and Highland Crusader Holding Corporation

45. As noted, in June 2015, in exchange for payments totaling $70.5 million, UBS released its claims against the Debtor (and other parties) arising from transfers to Credit Strategies, Crusader Fund and Highland Crusader Holding Corporation, which represent $172 million of the alleged fraudulent transfers. The UBS Release is at Section 5.3 of the settlement agreements, which provides:

> [T]he UBS Releasing Parties do hereby release, and covenant not to sue, [the Debtor et al.] with respect to such Claims to the limited extent the Claims are for losses or other relief specifically arising from the fraudulent transfers to [the settling defendants] alleged in the UBS Litigation. For the avoidance of doubt, the Claims released do not include (a) any Claims for losses or other relief arising from the alleged fraudulent transfers to any defendant in the UBS Litigation other than [the settling defendants] or (b) any other Claims for losses or other relief arising from the [warehouse agreement], except to the limited extent the Claims are for losses or other relief that specifically arise from the alleged fraudulent transfers to [the settling defendants] …

46. On its face, the UBS Release explicitly applies to the fraudulent transfer claims against the Debtor asserted in the UBS Claim. It is indisputable that those claims are, in the express words of the UBS Release, "Claims [ ] for losses or other relief specifically arising from the fraudulent transfers to [the settling defendants] in the UBS Litigation." Just as clearly, neither exclusion in the UBS Release applies, namely: (a) these are not transfers "to any defendant in the UBS Litigation other than [the settling defendants]"; and (b) nor are they "any other Claims for losses or other relief arising from the [warehouse agreement]…."

47. The Debtor submits that the Court can decide this issue without further proceedings.

ii) UBS Lacks Standing to Challenge Transfers Made by HFP Asset II/III

48. Conveyances can only be challenged as fraudulent by a creditor of the initial transferor. See e.g., Avilon Auto. Grp. v. Leontiev, 2020 NY Slip Op 30837(U), ¶ 41 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.) (plaintiff's status as a creditor is a requirement to have standing under New York's fraudulent conveyance laws). The creditor can seek relief against the transferors, the transferees, and any non-transferee beneficiaries of the fraudulent conveyance. Fed. Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Porco, 75 N.Y.2d 840, 842 (N.Y. 1990).

49. HFP Asset II/III were the transferors of approximately $187.5 million of the assets transferred in the March 2009 Transaction. UBS is not a creditor of HFP Asset II/III and has not named those entities as defendants in the UBS Litigation. Of that amount, $152.3 million were transfers covered by the UBS Release. Of the remaining $35.2 million: (a) approximately $11.7 million was transfers to Citibank, and (b) approximately $23.5 million was transfers to Highland Credit Opportunities Holding Corporation and Multi-Strat.

50. None of the transfers were to the Debtor, but to the extent UBS might otherwise succeed in imposing liability upon the Debtor for transfers to other transferees, UBS has no standing to challenge those transfers made by HFP Asset II/III.

51. The Debtor submits that the Court can decide this issue without further proceedings.

iii) The Debtor is Not the Beneficiary of the Transfers

52. The Debtor received only $17.8 million of the transfers in the March 2009 Transaction, as a subsequent transferee from HFP. UBS will be unable to meet its burden of demonstrating that Debtor benefited sufficiently from other transfers to impose liability, such as the $17.4 million in aggregate transfers to Citibank. The Court should establish a schedule for further proceedings on this issue.

iv) HFP Received "Fair Consideration" for the Transfers

53. UBS cannot meet its burden of showing that any transfers were not made for "fair consideration." "Fair consideration" is provided when property is given "in good faith" to satisfy a preexisting debt "as a fair equivalent therefor." NY Dr & Cr § 272. While a transfer to an insider to satisfy an antecedent debt is "presumed to lack good faith," Englander Capital Corp., 79 N.Y.S.3d at 506, that presumption does not apply when the transfer is to an insider who is legitimately a secured creditor. Id.

54. The March 2009 Transaction satisfied HFP's obligations on the HFP Notes. The HFP Notes were secured at their inception, well before UBS filed its complaint on February 24, 2009. They were secured by, among other things, HFP's interests in HFP Asset

II/III. While UBS contests whether the HFP Notes actually were secured, the Southern District of New York district court in Citibank held that they were. Citibank, 270 F. Supp. 3d at 733 ("HFP's financial condition is irrelevant to the value of the HFP Notes because the notes were secured by independently valued collateral"). The State Court declined to decide the issue on summary judgment.

55. The fact that the security interests were not perfected is irrelevant, so long as they were effective between the parties. NY UCC § 9-201(a) ("a security agreement is effective according to its terms between the parties, against purchasers of the collateral, and against creditors"); Ultimore, Inc. v. Bucala, 464 B.R. 626, 632 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2012) (NY UCC § 9-201(a) gives an unperfected secured creditor rights superior to those of unsecured creditors).

56. A security interest attaches to collateral and becomes enforceable if three requirements are met: (i) value has been given; (ii) the debtor had rights in the collateral or the power to transfer rights in the collateral to the secured party; and (iii) the debtor has authenticated (i.e., signed) a security agreement that describes the collateral. NY UCC § 9-203(b). These requirements were met. The noteholders gave value in exchange for the security interests by transferring assets to HFP's subsidiaries. HFP had rights in the collateral or the power to transfer rights in the collateral.

57. With respect to the final requirement, "[a]ny document showing the required intent to grant an interest in the collateral will serve as a security agreement.... For there to be a valid and enforceable security agreement, a formal and separately signed document labeled 'security agreement' is not necessary." Ultimore, Inc., 464 B.R. at 631 (citations omitted). "Almost any combination of documents can be used to prove the existence of a security agreement so long as the documents embody the intention of the parties to create a security interest." Id. Here, the HFP Notes and other related documents state that the HFP Notes were secured, and evince an intent to create a security interest. As to HFP's interests in HFP Asset II/III, the parties also executed a charge over shares agreement that describes the collateral and repeatedly refers to the security interest granted in HFP's shares of HFP Asset II/III. The remaining collateral is described in detail in the underlying note purchase agreement. (Ex. 24.)

58. Undeterred by the secured nature of the HFP Notes, UBS asserts that the HFP Notes are not really secured debt because they should be recharacterized as equity interests. The Fifth Circuit permits debt to be recharacterized as equity only if that remedy is allowed under applicable state law. Grossman v. Lothian Oil Inc. (In re Lothian Oil Inc.), 650 F.3d 539 (5th Cir. 2011) (rejecting use of section 105(a) as basis for recharacterization). There are no New York state court decisions allowing recharacterization, and UBS cannot rely on bankruptcy court decisions on recharacterization to argue a state law claim. See Alliance Shippers, Inc. v. Garcia, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 51316, at *3-4 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 17, 2015) ("Defendants next argue that both 'recharacterization' and 'equitable subordination' are claims under the bankruptcy law and not properly before this Court. They are correct. . . They do not constitute valid causes of action outside of the bankruptcy context.").

59. Because UBS cannot establish that the HFP Notes were not secured, its constructive fraudulent transfer claims must fail.

v) UBS Cannot Demonstrate Fraudulent Intent or Lack of Good Faith

60. For all the reasons described above, among others, both the issuance of the HFP Notes and their extinguishment in the March 2009 Transaction had a legitimate, good faith basis, and had nothing to do with attempting to divert assets from UBS, which was not a creditor of HFP (or its non-defendant subsidiaries) either when the notes were issued or even at the time of the March 2009 Transaction (and will never become a creditor of HFP unless it prevails on its alter ego claim). UBS cannot meet its burden of proof of establishing lack of good faith or intent to hinder or defraud creditors.

C. UBS's Claim for Breach of the Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing Should be Disallowed

61. The Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements are governed by New York law. As a result, the implied covenant claim, which is based on the restructured agreements, also is governed by New York law. Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors of Lois/USA, Inc. v. Conseco Fin. Servicing Corp., 264 B.R. 69, 97-98 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2001). Under New York law, a covenant of good faith and fair dealing is "[i]mplicit in all contracts." 19 Recordings Ltd. v. Sony Music Entm't, 165 F. Supp. 3d 156, 161 (S.D.N.Y. 2016) (citations omitted). The implied covenant is "a promise that neither party shall do anything which will have the effect of destroying or injuring the right of the other party to receive the fruits of the contract." Id. (internal quotation marks and citations omitted). A plaintiff must (i) identify the implied duties allegedly arising out of the parties' contract, (ii) establish that the defendant breached those implied duties and, in doing so, acted malevolently or in bad faith, and (iii) establish that the defendant's conduct caused the plaintiff's alleged damages.

i) A Duty on the Debtor's Part to Ensure That UBS Would be Paid Cannot Be Implied When UBS Knowingly Did Not Contract For It

62. It is axiomatic that the implied covenant also cannot be used to create new rights or impose new obligations that are inconsistent with the express terms of the parties' contract. Id. at 165. A party asserting "the existence of an implied-in-fact covenant bears a heavy burden, for it is not the function of the courts to remake the contract agreed to by the parties, but rather to enforce it as it exists." Rowe v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 46 N.Y.2d 62, 69 (N.Y. 1978). Therefore, a party asserting an implied covenant claim "must prove not merely that it would have been better or more sensible to include such a covenant, but rather that the particular unexpressed promise sought to be enforced is in fact implicit in the agreement viewed as a whole." Id.

63. UBS wishes the Court to imply a duty by the Debtor to ensure that the Fund Counterparties' are able to pay UBS. Such a flies directly in the face of the contracts and the Appellate Division's very first decision in the UBS litigation dismissing the contractual indemnity claim against the Debtor. Because of the res judicata decisions, UBS is, at most, left with a repackaged fraudulent transfer claim: an implied duty by the Debtor to not permit the March 2009 alleged fraudulent transfers.

64. The Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements do not impose any direct liability on the Debtor to ensure or guarantee performance by the Fund Counterparties. Such a basic obligation cannot be implied, which is precisely why the Appellate Division already held that the indemnification provisions did not impose on the Debtor an obligation "to ensure or guarantee the performance" of the Funds' obligations to UBS. These are highly complex contracts negotiated by highly sophisticated parties. There are numerous "protective" provisions in the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements, presumably heavily negotiated, relating to the posting of collateral and collateral calls, and there are numerous other protections for which UBS could have negotiated, but did not.

65. The Appellate Division ruling is dispositive. UBS had alleged that the Debtor had breached an indemnification obligation that was implied, not express. So is the covenant that UBS now seeks to imply into the same contracts. There is no material difference in the context that would support any decision other than that which the Appellate Division already reached. Both implied provisions amount to an imagined guaranty by the Debtor of performance of the Fund Counterparties, something that simply cannot be implied into a contract, and certainly not one between sophisticated parties such as these.

66. In Citibank, the district court rejected Citibank's similar attempt to imply a promise by the Debtor to ensure that cash would be available for distribution on the HFP Notes. CDO Fund (a Fund Counterparty) had pledged its HFP Notes to Citibank as collateral for its obligations under a separate financing arrangement with Citibank. As part of the pledge agreement, the Debtor agreed "that as long as Citi held any of the HFP Notes under a pledge from CDO Fund, if HFP has cash available on a Quarterly Payment Date in an amount equal or greater to the Quarterly Payment Amount, [the Debtor] will recommend to the board of directors and management of HFP, to the extent consistent with [the Debtor's] fiduciary duties, that HFP not exercise the [payment-in-kind] Option on the Notes for such Quarterly Payment Date." Citibank, 270 F. Supp. 3d at 731. Citibank argued, in seeking to impose alter ego liability on the Debtor, that the Debtor had an implied obligation under the pledge agreement to ensure that cash was available for distribution on the HFP Notes. The court granted summary judgment in favor of the Debtor. It was "unpersuaded that HCM even owed Citi a good faith obligation to ensure that cash was available for distribution on the HFP Notes." Id. at 732. "[I]t makes little sense to read into the [pledge agreement] an implied promise that [the Debtor] would ensure that cash was available for distribution on the HFP Notes. To the contrary, such an implied promise would impose a duty on [the Debtor] beyond that which Citi bargained for." Id.

67. Similarly, in Metro. Life Ins. Co. v. RJR Nabisco, Inc., 716 F. Supp. 1504, 1508 (S.D.N.Y. 1989), the court granted summary judgment against bondholders who contended their indentures carried an implied covenant not to incur LBO debt. The court refused to use the implied covenant to "create an indenture term that, while bargained for in other contexts, was not bargained for here and was not even within the mutual contemplation of the parties." Id. In particular, the court held:

> … [T]he "fruits" of these indentures do not include an implied restrictive covenant that would prevent the incurrence of new debt to facilitate the recent LBO. To hold otherwise would permit these plaintiffs to straightjacket the company in order to guarantee their investment. These plaintiffs do not invoke an implied covenant of good faith to protect a legitimate, mutually contemplated benefit of the indentures; rather, they seek to have this Court create an additional benefit for which they did not bargain.

Id. at 1519 (emphasis added).

68. Here, as in Metro Life Ins. Co., UBS is attempting to create an obligation that could have been bargained for and made part of the restructured agreements – but was not. Imposing an obligation on the Debtor to ensure that UBS would be paid is in effect to create a guaranty where none was purchased. In these circumstances, it would create an obligation to prefer UBS over other creditors. That is not a reasonable extension of the parties' express agreement.

ii) Since Any Breach of the Implied Covenant Can Only be Based on the Alleged Fraudulent Conveyances, the UBS Release Applies

69. As a result of the two res judicata decisions, UBS can only base its implied covenant claim on the alleged fraudulent conveyances made in the March 2009 Transaction. But it has released the Debtor from liability with respect to $172 million of the $233 million in transfers. The UBS Release applies without ambiguity.

70. Once again, Section 5.3 of the settlement agreements provides:

> [T]he UBS Releasing Parties do hereby release, and covenant not to sue, [the Debtor et al.] with respect to such Claims to the limited extent the Claims are for losses or other relief specifically arising from the fraudulent transfers to [the settling defendants] alleged in the UBS Litigation. For the avoidance of doubt, the Claims released do not include (a) any Claims for losses or other relief arising from the alleged fraudulent transfers to any defendant in the UBS Litigation other than [the settling defendants] or (b) any other Claims for losses or other relief arising from the [warehouse agreement], except to the limited extent the Claims are for losses or other relief that specifically arise from the alleged fraudulent transfers to [the settling defendants] …

71. A claim that the Debtor breached an implied obligation not to let a fraudulent transfer occur is unambiguously a claim "for losses or other relief specifically arising from the fraudulent transfers…." Again, the exclusions do not apply. First, the Debtor is not attempting to apply the UBS Release to transfers to other parties. Second, the subject of the implied covenant claim is the fraudulent transfers, and so even if the implied covenant claim is technically an "other Claim[] for losses or other relief arising from the [warehouse agreement]," it is nonetheless a claim that quite literally comes within the exception "for losses or other relief that specifically arise from the alleged fraudulent transfers…." There is no room for interpretation. The settlement cannot be dispensed with by relabeling the claim.

iii) UBS Cannot Prove that Any Duty to Ensure That UBS Would be Paid was Breached in Bad Faith or With Malevolence Targeting the Plaintiff

72. If a duty could be implied, UBS would have the burden of proving that the Debtor breached it in bad faith or with malevolence targeting UBS specifically. Wilder v. World of Boxing LLC, 310 F. Supp. 3d 426, 451 (S.D.N.Y. 2018) (to establish a lack of good faith, the plaintiff must show that the defendant exercised a right malevolently, for its own gain as part of a purposeful scheme designed to deprive the plaintiff of the benefits under the contract).

73. There is no duty to ensure the Fund Counterparties could pay UBS, but even if there were, and even assuming that implied duty was breached by entering into the March 2009 Transaction, UBS cannot meet its burden of proving that it was done in bad faith or malevolently targeting UBS, The March 2009 Transaction was a good faith, commercially reasonable transaction that was not designed to "shield assets" from UBS, but instead was designed to try to protect the financial viability of HFP and its subsidiaries. It was approved by HFP's board based on legitimate concerns regarding HFP's ability to service the debt or maintain the collateral, in particular, its ability to make the premium payments due on the life settlement contracts. It eliminated approximately $370 million of debt, and protected HFP from further exposure as the value of the collateral securing the HFP Notes continued to deteriorate.

74. Not only was the March 2009 Transaction a legitimate, commercially reasonable decision, it cannot be shown to have targeted UBS. HFP has no business relationship with UBS. HFP was not even a defendant in the complaint filed by UBS on February 24, 2009. That complaint was solely against the Fund Counterparties and the Debtor and was only for breach of contract. Only after losing its contract claim against the Debtor in the February 2010 appellate decision did UBS cast a wider net, for the first time adding HFP as a defendant and alleging alter ego in June 2010.

75. UBS will not be able to establish at trial that the Debtor breached any implied duty to UBS, let alone that the March 2009 Transaction was anything other than a "good faith" transaction.

iv) Causation and Damages

76. Causation is an "essential element" of damages for an implied covenant claim, meaning that the plaintiff must establish that the defendant's breach "directly and proximately" caused the plaintiff's damages. St. Christopher's, Inc. v. Forgione, 2019 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 115476, *28 (S.D.N.Y. July 11, 2019) (citations omitted); see also Wilder, 310 F. Supp. 3d at 448 (plaintiff must establish that defendant's breach of implied covenant proximately caused plaintiff's damages).

77. As a result of the res judicata decisions, UBS can only base its implied covenant claim on the March 2009 Transaction. That being the case, the maximum amount of damages that could be shown to be proximately caused by such a breach, assuming arguendo that there was a breach, would be any amount of transfers made in the March 2009 Transaction found to be fraudulent. The March 2009 Transaction involved transfers of at most approximately $233 million of assets (roughly half of the principal amount of UBS's breach of contract damages) and UBS has already released the Debtor from liability with respect to $172 million of those transfers. Furthermore, the transfers to Citibank of $17.4 million cannot constitute damages to UBS.

78. In the event this Court finds that the UBS Release does not limit damages on the implied duty claim related to the alleged fraudulent transfers, the Debtor would nonetheless be entitled to an offset against damages for the $70.5 million of settlement payments that UBS received from the settling defendants. New York General Obligations Law ("GOL") §

15-103 provides for the offset of settlement amounts received from a "co-obligor" to the extent of "the amount received on the obligations of all co-obligors." GOL § 15-103. See J.P. Endeavors v. Dushaj, 8 A.D.3d 440, 442 (N.Y. App. Div. 2004) (under GOL § 15-103, where multiple defendants were sued for liability on a brokerage contract, plaintiff's settlement with one defendant reduced the amount on which the remaining defendants could be held liable); D.H. Blair & Co., Inc. v. Gottdiener, 2010 WL 4258967, *10 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 27, 2010) (defendant was "entitled to a credit of the amount of the settlement" between other parties).

79. In addition, GOL § 15-108(a) provides that a settlement payment by a joint tortfeasor may offset or reduce the plaintiff's claims against other joint tortfeasors, and some New York courts have held that GOL § 15-108 is not limited to tort. See e.g., Koch v. Greenberg, 14 F. Supp. 3d 247, 270 (S.D.N.Y. 2014), aff'd 626 Appx. 335 (2d Cir. 2015) (reducing award and concluding that GOL § 15-108 is potentially applicable to other types of claims, notwithstanding its references to "tort" and "tortfeasor"); Carter v. State, 139 Misc. 2d 423, 427 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988), aff'd 154 A.D.2d 642 (N.Y. App. Div. 1989) (New York courts have applied the statute "equally to claims and actions grounded on theories of liability other than tort"); Cty. of Westchester v. Welton Becket Assocs., 102 A.D.2d 34, 45-46 (N.Y. App. Div. 1984), aff'd 66 N.Y.2d 642 (N.Y. 1985) (applying GOL § 15-108 even though claims were "essentially contractual in nature").

80. Offset of the $70.5 million settlement against any breach of implied covenant damages is also proper under New York common law. Specifically, under established New York law, parties cannot recover twice for the same injury or on the same alleged debt. Morris v. Zimmer, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 39608, *18 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 11, 2014) ("It is well settled that Plaintiffs are not entitled to double recovery for the same debt."); Zarcone v. Perry, 78 A.D.2d 70, 79 (N.Y. App. Div. 1980), aff'd 55 N.Y.2d 782 (N.Y. 1981) ("[J]udicial policy forestalls a double recovery for an injury"). The alleged damage to UBS is the amount of the fraudulent transfer; to the extent UBS has already recovered by settlement on account of a fraudulent transfer, a recovery from the Debtor for damages arising from the same transfer would be a double recovery.

81. The offset would apply before the calculation of prejudgment interest. Lizden Indus., Inc. v. Franco Belli Plumbing & Heating & Sons, Inc., 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4247, *22 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Aug. 24, 2011) (denying request to calculate pre-judgment interest before offset of co-defendant's settlement payment), aff'd 95 A.D.3d 738 (N.Y. App. Div. 2012) (trial court "properly awarded prejudgment interest on the verdict after it was reduced by the amount of Belli's settlement, pursuant to General Obligations Law § 15-108").

D. Any Claim for Alter Ego Liability Should be Disallowed

82. UBS has not pled a claim against the Debtor for alter ego liability throughout the eleven year duration of the UBS litigation. The UBS Claim appears to assert for the first time that such liability exists and that it would subject the Debtor to the entire Phase I judgment against the Fund Counterparties. But any such claim is barred by res judicata, as the Phase I judgment only relates to conduct predating February 24, 2009. Like the rest of UBS's claims, therefore, any alter ego liability is limited to the March 2009 Transaction. Regardless, as the Citibank decision establishes, UBS's factual allegations do not entail the kind of "wrongs" that support alter ego liability.

i) Any Alter Ego Liability is Limited by Res Judicata to Conduct After February 24, 2009

83. The Appellate Division has already ruled that UBS is barred by res judicata from asserting claims against the Debtor that "implicate events alleged to have taken place before the filing of the original complaint" on February 24, 2009. UBS v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 86 A.D.3d at 474 [Exhibit 2 at A010]. This would include any new claim against the Debtor for alter ego. See UBS v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 93 A.D.3d at 490 [Exhibit 3 at A014] (limiting the alter ego claim against HFP to post-February 2009).

84. UBS will contend that the Debtor's alter ego liability is not an independent "claim" but only a post-judgment remedy under New York Civil Practice Law and Rules ("CPLR") 5225(b) and therefore not subject to res judicata. Morris v. State Dep't of Taxation & Fin., 82 N.Y.2d 135 (N.Y. 1993). Of course, courts regularly consider alter ego relief in connection with pending litigation – notably in the present action, in which UBS seeks a declaratory judgment that HFP is the alter ego of SOHC, and in the Citibank litigation. See also Mirage Entm't, Inc. v. FEG Entretenimientos S.A., 326 F. Supp. 3d 26, 33-35 (S.D.N.Y. 2018) (plaintiff may pierce corporate veil and sue non-signatory for breach of contract when non-party is an alter ego of one or more signatories).

85. While a proceeding to impose alter ego liability may be initiated as post-judgment supplementary proceedings in New York under the CPLR, that is not the case when the party against whom alter ego liability is asserted was a party to the underlying action. Where, as the newly alleged claim against the Debtor, the defendant on the newly-asserted alter ego claim was a party to the terminated action, res judicata applies to the assertion of alter ego liability. In Bd. of Managers of the 195 Hudson St. Condo v. Jeffrey M. Brown Assocs., 652 F. Supp. 2d 463, 478-82 (S.D.N.Y. 2009), the Board filed suit (the "Conversion Litigation") seeking damages for construction defects against, among others, K&J and JMB. The Board did not, however, assert a claim of alter ego liability against JMB in the Conversion Litigation itself. The Conversion Litigation against JMB was dismissed on the merits, with the court finding, among other things, that JMB was not a party to the underlying agreements. A breach of contract judgment was thereafter entered against K&J, and the Board initiated another separate action seeking to hold JMB liable, on alter ego grounds, for the breach of contract judgment against K&J. The court rejected the Board's attempt, holding that res judicata barred the assertion of the alter ego claims against JMB in the subsequent proceeding because "the facts necessary to sustain both causes of action arise from the same transactions or factual grouping, form a convenient trial unit, and the facts essential to the instant claim were already present in the Conversion Litigation."

86. The same is true in this case, in which the Appellate Division observed one of UBS's complaints was "thoroughly suffused with allegations that [the Debtor] was essentially the alter ego of the parties it induced to breach the agreements." 86 A.D.3d at 477. In fact, one of the UBS claims against HFP that was limited on the basis of res judicata based on HFP's privity with the Debtor was an alter ego claim against HFP. For its own reasons, however, UBS has litigated for over a decade without expressly asserting alter ego liability against the Debtor, even though it asserted a claim for declaratory relief against HFP for a determination of alter ego liability.

87. Accordingly, any assertion of alter ego liability would be limited to post-February 24, 2009 conduct. Like the other claims against the Debtor, it would be subject to the UBS Release. Furthermore, no such claim has been pled and res judicata would bar its assertion.

ii) UBS's Allegations are an Insufficient Basis for Finding Alter Ego Liability

88. New York law disfavors disregard of the corporate form and only allows the drastic remedy of veil piercing under extraordinary circumstances. Cobalt Partners, L.P. v. GSC Capital Corp., 97 A.D.3d 35, 40 (N.Y. App. Div. 2012). To pierce the corporate veil under New York law, a plaintiff bears a heavy burden to establish both (i) that the owner exercised complete domination over the corporation with respect to the transaction at issue and (ii) that such domination was used to commit a fraud or wrong that injured the party seeking to pierce the veil. Citibank, 270 F. Supp. 3d at 726. To avoid dismissal, a complaint must plead particular facts to demonstrate that the domination of the corporation caused the plaintiff's injury. See e.g., CSX Tramp., Inc. v. Filco Carting Corp., 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 74625, *10 (E.D.N.Y. July 7, 2011). Here, even if UBS could satisfy the first prong, domination, it cannot satisfy the second, because the "wrongs" it alleges do not support alter ego liability.

First Alter Ego Prong – Domination

89. The Second Circuit has identified ten factors to consider in determining whether an entity exercises complete domination over another entity for purposes of alter ego liability.[13] The Debtor denies that UBS can establish its "complete domination," while acknowledging that the district court in Citibank found that the Debtor "exercised complete control over CDO Fund." Citibank, 270 F. Supp. 3d at 726-28.

Second Alter Ego Prong – Wrong or Fraud

90. On the basis of allegations that included virtually the same as those made by UBS, the district court in Citibank held that Citibank failed to demonstrate the second prong – a "wrong or fraud" for veil piercing purposes – and granted summary judgment against Citibank's alter ego claims seeking to hold the Debtor liable for CDO Fund's obligations. Citibank, 270 F. Supp. 3d at 729-33. Citibank had identified three acts that it asserted constituted fraudulent or wrongful conduct: (i) the Debtor stripped cash and assets from CDO Fund prior to a margin call; (ii) the Debtor diverted cash distributions on the HFP Notes that would otherwise have been available to CDO Fund to satisfy the margin call; and (iii) the Debtor fraudulently misrepresented the value of the HFP Notes that CDO Fund pledged to Citibank as collateral. Id. at 729.

91. As to the "asset stripping" allegations, the district court found that the payments to the Debtor and its affiliates represented the repayment of preexisting obligations and that, even if the transfers were constructively fraudulent conveyances to insiders of CDO Fund, such transfers did not constitute a wrong for veil piercing purposes. Id. at 730-31. With respect to Citibank's similar argument that the Debtor diverted cash distributions on the HFP Notes to itself or related parties, the court found that there was no implied promise that would impose a duty on the Debtor to ensure that cash was available for distribution on the HFP Notes. The court determined that, "[t]o the contrary, such an implied promise would impose a duty on HCMLP beyond that which Citi bargained for," and noted that there was no authority for finding that a breach of an implied covenant of good faith would constitute a wrong for purposes of veil piercing. Id. at 732. In doing so, the court reiterated the well-established rule that an ordinary "breach of contract, without evidence of fraud or corporate misconduct, is not sufficient to pierce the corporate veil." Id. Based on its findings, the court held that "[b]ecause none of the acts identified by Citi constitutes a wrong or fraud for veil piercing purposes, [the Debtor] is not liable for CDO Fund's obligations under a traditional veil piercing theory." Id. at 733.

92. Courts applying New York law also have rejected alter ego claims where a sophisticated party knowingly contracts with its counterparty and then seeks to impose liability on a third party for breach of that contract – especially where the party could have negotiated for direct rights against the third party. See TNS Holdings, Inc. v. MKI Sec. Corp., 92 N.Y. 2d 335, 339-40 (N.Y. 1998); Skanska USA Bldg. Inc. v. Atl. Yards B2 Owner, LLC, 146 A.D.3d 1, 12-13 (N.Y. App. Div. 2016). Here, UBS was well aware of the risks of the transaction and with the ownership and managerial structure of the Highland-related entities, yet it knowingly entered into the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements in which only the Fund Counterparties, and not the Debtor, were responsible for performance. There is no basis for piercing the corporate veil on such facts.

CONCLUSION

The UBS Claim is subject to disallowance or material limitation on a summary basis. Even without consideration of the Debtor's other defenses to UBS's asserted or threatened claims, the Court may rule that nearly all of the fraudulent conveyance claims have been released, that the undisputed facts preclude the implication of a guarantee of performance into the Restructured CLO Agreements, and that there is no legally sufficient basis for imposing alter ego liability. The few remaining claims are subject to numerous meritorious defenses, as described herein.

WHEREFORE, the Debtor respectfully requests that the UBS Claim be disallowed in its entirety, and grant the Debtor such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

I. INTRODUCTION

UBS asserts that the Debtor is liable for breaches of contract by certain of its indirect subsidiaries, and for alleged fraudulent transfers involving other subsidiaries and funds that the Debtor currently or previously managed. UBS, the Debtor, and several of the Debtor's affiliates have been engaged in litigation that, prior to the commencement of the Debtor's chapter 11 case, had been ongoing since 2009 in the New York State courts (collectively, the "New York Courts"). The Redeemer Committee and the Crusader Funds have a unique perspective on the merits of the UBS Claim because two of the Crusader Fund entities were defendants in that action. The Redeemer Committee is a committee of investors, elected pursuant to the Scheme and Plan of Liquidation of the Crusader Funds approved by the Bermuda Court, to oversee Highland's management of the Crusader Funds through what was intended to be the complete liquidation of the fund. The Redeemer Committee played a central role in the negotiation of the settlement of UBS' claims against the Crusader Funds, pursuant to which UBS released the Debtor from much of the relief that UBS now seeks in its claim.

[3] See Debtor's Obj. to Proofs of Claim 190 and 191 of UBS Sec. LLC And UBS AG, London Branch, In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 19-34054-sgj11 (N.D. Tex. Aug. 7, 2020) (Doc. No. 928).

UBS asserts that the UBS Claim arises from three principal events: (1) in the fall of 2008, certain Highland affiliates failed to honor certain contractual margin calls in connection with a proposed securitization financing; (2) in the fall of 2008, certain Highland affiliates engaged in a series of asset transfers with Highland-managed funds; and (3) on March 20, 2009, Highland affiliates unwound those transactions with the Highland-managed funds. UBS claims the Debtor owes UBS at least $1,039,957,799—the amount of a judgment that UBS obtained in February 2020 arising from the non-Debtor affiliates' breaches of contract by failing to honor the margin calls in 2008.

The majority of the UBS Claim is barred by res judicata. The New York Courts have held that res judicata bars UBS from asserting claims against Highland that are based on conduct that occurred before February 24, 2009, the date on which UBS filed its initial complaint in New York. As discussed below, that ruling was the result of UBS filing a complaint that only asserted a claim against Highland for indemnification, a claim that was later dismissed. Notwithstanding this absolute bar, UBS asserts that the Debtor should be held liable for pre-February 24, 2009 conduct, including that of certain of its affiliates, which ultimately resulted in the New York trial court entering a $1,039,957,799 judgment against those entities. It is telling that UBS recently acknowledged that it has never even alleged in the New York action that Highland was the alter ego of the judgment debtors. See UBS Reply ISO its Mot. to Lift Automatic Stay at 6, In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 19-34054-sgj11 (N.D. Tex. Jun. 11, 2020) (Doc. No. 733B); Hr'g Trans. at 30-31, In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 19-34054-sgj11 (N.D. Tex. Jun. 15, 2020)

(Doc. No. 746A). Any such alter ego claim would be a new path to establish liability that is barred by res judicata. To the extent that the UBS Claim is based on the Debtor's pre-February 24, 2009 conduct, res judicata requires disallowance of that claim.

After giving effect to res judicata, the surviving part of the UBS Claim is based on certain asset transfers made by an affiliate of the Debtor, Highland Financial Partners LP ("HFP"), in March 2009. UBS asserts that those transfers were fraudulent conveyances, and that Highland breached the implied duty of good faith and fair dealing by participating in those transfers. UBS named several Highland-managed funds that received assets in March 2009 as defendants in the New York action, including two Crusader Fund entities—Highland Crusader Offshore Partners, L.P. ("Crusader Offshore Fund") and Highland Crusader Holding Corporation ("Crusader Holding")—as well as Highland Credit Strategies Master Fund, L.P. (the "Credit Strategies Fund"). These funds later entered into settlement agreements with UBS, and Highland was a signatory to each agreement. The settlement agreements provide, in relevant part, that UBS released Highland from any [redacted] each fund as alleged by UBS. The UBS releases of Highland foreclosed the possibility that Highland could later be found liable to UBS in connection with the transfers to those funds. This protection was of central importance to the funds [redacted]

The chapter 11 process does not provide an alleged creditor the opportunity to relitigate matters that are the subject of final, non-appealable decisions of a state court, or prevent enforcement of valid and binding settlement agreements. As demonstrated below, UBS ignores or misconstrues the New York Courts' decisions and the settlement agreements to attempt to avoid the necessary conclusion that the UBS Claim must be disallowed as a matter of law other than to the extent it seeks damages arising from the March 2009 transfer of assets to entities other than Crusader and Credit Strategies. Based on UBS's expert valuations, in no instance would UBS's claim against the Debtor exceed [redacted] before prejudgment interest.

II. JURISDICTION

The Court has jurisdiction over this matter under the Bankruptcy Code and pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. This matter is a core proceeding within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. §§ 157(b)(2)(A), (B) and (L). Venue is proper in this District under 28 U.S.C. §§1408 and 1409. The statutory predicates for the relief requested herein are 11 U.S.C. § 502(b)-(d) and Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3007.

III. BACKGROUND

A. Fund Counterparties Fail to Meet Margin Calls in 2008.

In April 2007, UBS entered into agreements (collectively, the "CLO Warehouse Agreements") with Highland and two affiliates of Highland—Highland CDO Opportunity Master Fund, L.P. ("CDO") and Highland Special Opportunities Holding Company ("SOHC") (together, the "Fund Counterparties")—to establish a warehouse facility to finance the acquisition of syndicated leveraged loans and credit default swaps. (Ex. 1, 4/12/07 Original Synthetic Warehouse Agreement; Ex. 2, 4/20/07 Original Engagement Ltr.; Ex. 3, 5/22/07 Original Cash Warehouse Agreement.) Those assets, in turn, were to serve as the basis for a securitization pursuant to which notes would be sold to investors.

Due to market conditions, the securitized offering did not occur by the contractual deadline, and the CLO Warehouse Agreements terminated. In March 2008, UBS, Highland, and the Fund Counterparties entered into restructured warehouse agreements (collectively, the "Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements"). (See Ex. 4, UBS Securities LLC Proof of Claim ¶7, In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 19-34054-sgj11 (N.D. Tex. Jun. 26, 2020) (Claim No. 190).) The Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements gave UBS the right to make margin calls on the Fund Counterparties in the event of a decline in the market value of the loans and swaps.[4]

As the market deteriorated in the fall of 2008, UBS made three margin calls on the Fund Counterparties. The Fund Counterparties satisfied the first two margin calls in September and October 2008, using funds provided by SOHC's parent corporation, HFP. (Ex. 5, Decision and Order at 4, UBS Sec. LLC, et al v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, No. 650097-2009 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2019). The Fund Counterparties failed to satisfy a third margin call in November 2008, and UBS issued a notice of termination of the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements in December. Id.[5]

B. Highland Affiliates Engage in Fall 2008 Transfers

Meanwhile, during the fall of 2008, certain funds then managed by Highland—including the Crusader Offshore Fund—transferred certain assets to HFP in [redacted] (the "Fall 2008 Transfers"). [redacted] HFP was not a party to the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements.

C. The Fall 2008 Transfers are Unwound on March 20, 2009.

The parties to the Fall 2008 Transfers unwound those transactions on March 20, 2009 ("March 2009 Transfers"). [redacted]

[4] Furthermore, those agreements explicitly placed the risk of loss on the Fund Counterparties, and not Highland, as the New York Appellate Division held. UBS Sec. LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al., 893 N.Y.S.2d 869 (N.Y. App. Div. 2010) ("the agreements between the parties contain no promise on the part of Highland to undertake liability with respect to the investment losses suffered by plaintiffs, or to ensure or guarantee the performance of [Fund Counterparties]' obligations to bear the risk of investment losses.").

[5] UBS's Proof of Claim employs sleight of hand by defining the term "Highland" to include the Fund Counterparties. (See Ex. 4, UBS Securities LLC Proof of Claim ¶¶2, 11, In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 19-34054-sgj11 (N.D. Tex. Jun. 26, 2020) (Claim No. 190).) Accordingly, while the UBS Claim states that "Highland posted the required collateral" and refers to "Highland's default on UBS's third margin call," it was the Fund Counterparties that posted collateral and failed to meet the final margin call. See id. at ¶¶11-12.

As a result, [redacted] HFP returned the assets to the transferors, including the Crusader Fund and the Credit Strategies Fund. [redacted] According to UBS's expert in the New York action, HFP transferred assets with a market value of [redacted]

D. UBS Sues Over the Restructured Warehouse Transaction and Its Claim Against Highland Is Dismissed.

UBS filed its first complaint on February 24, 2009, against the Fund Counterparties and Highland. (Ex. 10, Compl., UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, No. 650097/09 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Feb. 24, 2009).) UBS's original complaint contained only one claim against Highland—a contractual claim for indemnification. Id. ¶¶50-56. Highland moved to dismiss that claim, arguing that the indemnification provision did not apply to the particular losses claimed by UBS. UBS Sec. LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, 893 N.Y.S.2d 869 (N.Y. App. Div. 2010). The indemnification claim was dismissed by the New York appellate court. UBS Sec. LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, 893 N.Y.S.2d 869 (N.Y. App. Div. 2010) ("the agreements between the parties contain no promise on the part of Highland to undertake liability with respect to the investment losses suffered by plaintiffs, or to ensure or guarantee the performance of [Fund Counterparties]' obligations to bear the risk of investment losses.").

E. New York Appellate Division Dismisses Claims Against Highland as Barred by Res Judicata.

On February 16, 2010, UBS sought amend its original complaint to assert new claims against Highland and others[7] for claims arising from the Restructured Warehouse transaction, the Fall 2008 Transfers and the March 2009 Transfers, alleging that the March 2009 Transfers were fraudulent conveyances that benefitted Highland, and that, by causing the unwinding, Highland breached the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing in the Restructured Warehouse Agreement. (Ex. 12, 2/16/10 UBS Ltr. to Court, UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., No. 650097/2009 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.).) The New York Supreme Court denied the portion of UBS's motion that sought leave to add new claims against Highland, agreeing with Highland's position that a party cannot amend a pleading that has already been dismissed. (Ex. 11, Ruling at 5, UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., No. 650097/2009 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Jun. 17, 2010).)

Thereafter, UBS commenced a new action against Highland, in which it asserted the causes of action it had unsuccessfully sought to add to the original complaint. (Ex. 13, Compl., UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., No. 650752/2010 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Jun. 28, 2010).).[8]

Highland moved to dismiss the new action, and the trial court granted the motion in part and denied it in part. UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgmt. L.P., et al, No. 650097/09, 2010 WL 6268233 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Aug. 05, 2010). The parties appealed. UBS Sec. LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, 86 A.D.3d 469 (N.Y. App. Div. 2011). The appellate court dismissed the fraudulent inducement claim against Highland, and held that to the extent UBS's new claims for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing and fraudulent conveyance arise from conduct alleged to have occurred before the commencement of the original action, i.e., February 24, 2009, the claims must be dismissed. Id. The appellate court reasoned:

> Here, to the extent the claims against Highland in the new complaint implicate events alleged to have taken place before the filing of the original complaint, res judicata applies. That is because UBS's claims against Highland in the original action and in this action all arise out of the restructured warehousing transaction.

Id. Because this ruling precluded UBS from pursuing claims against Highland arising from conduct occurring before February 24, 2009, the appellate court barred UBS from asserting any claims based on (1) the Fund Counterparties' failure to meet the margin calls in late 2008—the claim on which the trial court ultimately found the Fund Counterparties liable in the amount of $1,039,957,799, and (2) the Fall 2008 Transfers. As a result of this ruling, the only surviving claims against the Debtor arise from the March 2009 Transfers.

F. In 2013, Highland Moves for Summary Judgment

In October 2013, Highland, HFP, and other defendants moved for summary judgment on UBS's remaining claims. The trial court recognized that "the Appellate Division decisions preclude any fraudulent conveyance claims arising before February 24, 2009. They therefore preclude UBS from recovering for any alleged fraudulent transfers made before that date." (Ex. 15, Ruling at 25, UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, No. 650097/2009 (N.Y.

Sup. Ct. Mar. 24, 2017).) The court stated that UBS could still introduce evidence of pre-February 24, 2009 conduct to support claims that only arose after February 24, 2009:

> However, proof of pre-February 24, 2009 transfer, and of other conduct involving the operation of the Highland entities, is not prohibited to the extent necessary to prove UBS's claims for post-February 24, 2009 fraudulent conveyances, which are maintainable under the Appellate Division decisions under an alter ego theory.[9]

Id. The court also dismissed UBS's claim against Highland for breach of good faith and fair dealing because the contract at issue, the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreement, was terminated before February 24, 2009. Id. at 34-35.

The parties appealed. Initially, the Appellate Division reinstated the claim for breach of good faith and fair dealing and dismissed the entirety of the fraudulent conveyance claim against Highland, including for the March 2009 Transfers, but the court later vacated that opinion. (Ex. 17, Order at 3-4, UBS Sec. LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, No. 650097/2009 (N.Y. App. Div. 2017)); UBS Sec. LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, 159 A.D.3d 512, 514 (N.Y. App. Div. 2018). In its subsequent decision, the Appellate Division held that the fraudulent conveyance and breach of good faith and fair dealing claims could survive, but only to the extent they arose from conduct occurring after February 24, 2009:

> There is no dispute that plaintiffs are precluded from pursuing fraudulent conveyance and breach of implied covenant claims that arose prior to February 24, 2009. However, neither our prior decisions nor the doctrine of res judicata bars plaintiffs from introducing evidence of pre-February 24, 2009 conduct to the extent necessary to prove, with respect to post-February 24, 2009 conduct, their alter ego, fraudulent conveyance and breach of implied covenant claims. The court correctly rejected defendants' arguments in support of dismissal of the remaining claims at issue.

UBS Sec. LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, 159 A.D.3d 512, 514 (N.Y. App. Div. 2018).

G. The New York Court Holds the Phase I Trial, and Finds the Fund Counterparties Liable.

Although the New York courts barred UBS from pursuing claims against Highland arising before February 24, 2009, UBS's originally-pleaded breach of contract claims against the Fund Counterparties for failing to meet the margin calls in the fall of 2008 survived. (Ex. 10, Compl. ¶¶38-49, UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, No. 650097/2009 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Feb. 24, 2009).) The court bifurcated the case for trial, ruling that Phase I of the trial would be a bench trial on the breach of contract claims against the Fund Counterparties, and the remaining claims, including all of the claims involving post-February 24, 2009 conduct, would be tried in Phase II. (Ex. 18, 5/1/2018 Hearing Tr. at 35:15-22, UBS Securities LLC, et al v. Highland Capital Mgmt. L.P., et al, No. 650097-2009 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. May 1, 2018).)

The New York Court held the Phase I bench trial in July 2018, and on November 14, 2019 the court issued a decision finding the Fund Counterparties liable for breaching the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements and awarding damages of $519,374,149, which ultimately resulted in entry of a judgment for $1,039,957,799, with prejudgment interest. (Ex. 5, Decision and Order at 39 UBS Sec. LLC, et al v. Highland Capital Mgmt. L.P., et al, No. 650097/2009 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Nov. 14, 2019.); Ex. 19, Judgment at 2, UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, No. 650097/2010 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Feb. 10, 2020).) The court made no findings with respect to Highland or the remaining defendants,[10] and those claims were scheduled to be heard during Phase II of the proceedings. On October 16, 2019, the Debtor filed for chapter 11 protection, staying the proceedings against it.

Only two counts remain against the Debtor: (1) fraudulent conveyance, actual and constructive, premised on the March 2009 Transfers, in which HFP transferred assets to Highland and to the Highland-managed fund co-defendants; and (2) breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing attendant to the contracts underlying the Restructured CLO Warehouse Agreements, based on the March 2009 Transfers.

H. In 2015, UBS Released Claims Against Highland Arising From the March 2009 Transfers to the Credit Strategies Fund and the Crusader Fund.

In 2015, Highland Crusader Offshore Partners, L.P., Highland Crusader Holding Corporation, and Highland Credit Strategies Master Fund, L.P. entered into settlements with UBS. Highland was a signatory to both the Crusader and Credit Strategies settlement agreements. Each agreement settled all of UBS's claims against the applicable fund. The settlement agreements also released Highland from claims by UBS arising from the March 2009 Transfers to the Crusader and Credit Strategies funds. Highland is one of the [redacted]

IV. ARGUMENT

In order to establish its claim for over $1 billion against the Debtor, UBS must ignore the decisions issued by the New York Courts and the settlement agreements pursuant to which it released the Debtor from liability arising from most of the March 2009 Transfers. The chapter 11 process, however, does not grant a creditor a "do over" so that it can relitigate claims that are the subject of final, non-appealable decisions issued by state courts, or valid and binding settlement agreements. For the reasons discussed below, the UBS Claim should be disallowed as a matter of law except to the extent UBS is seeking damages with respect to the remaining assets that it alleges were the subject of fraudulent transfers to entities other than Crusader or Credit Strategies in March 2009, which according to its expert were valued at [redacted]

A. Standard

The Bankruptcy Code establishes a burden-shifting framework for proving the amount and validity of a claim. "A claim . . . , proof of which is filed under section 501 [of the Bankruptcy Code], is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest . . . objects." 11 U.S.C. §502(a). "A proof of claim executed and filed in accordance with the [Bankruptcy Rules] shall constitute prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim." Fed. R. Bankr. P.3001(f); see also In re Armstrong, 347 B.R. 581, 583 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006). However, the ultimate burden of proof for a claim always lies with the claimant. Armstrong, 347 B.R. at 583 (citing Raleigh v. Ill. Dep't of Rev., 530 U.S. 15 (2000)).

B. Several New York Court Rulings Bar UBS from Seeking Damages From the Debtor Arising From Conduct Occurring Before February 24, 2009.

This Court should disallow the UBS Claim to the extent it seeks to hold the Debtor liable for any conduct predating February 24, 2009 because the New York Courts have repeatedly held that res judicata bars any such claims. UBS Sec. LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, 86 A.D.3d 469, 474 (N.Y. App. Div. 2011); UBS v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, 93 A.D.3d 489, 490 (N.Y. App. Div. 2012); UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, No. 650097/09 at 34 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Mar., 24 2017); UBS Sec. LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, 159 A.D.3d 512, 514 (N.Y. App. Div. 2018). In its proof of claim, UBS seeks $1,039,957,799—the exact amount of the judgment against the Fund Counterparties for their failure to honor the margin calls in the fall of 2008—a claim entirely precluded by res judicata. (Ex. 4, UBS Securities LLC Proof of Claim ¶24, In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 19-34054-sgj11 (N.D. Tex. Jun. 26, 2020) (Claim No. 190); Ex. 19, Judgment at 2, UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, No. 650752/10 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Feb. 10, 2020).). UBS claims that it is entitled to recover the judgment against the Fund Counterparties from the Debtor because Highland was "party to the same contract and exercised complete control over the two liable affiliates—under which Claimant is entitled to damages that are at least as much as the Phase I judgment amount." (Ex. 4, UBS Securities LLC Proof of Claim ¶24, In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 19-34054-sgj11 (N.D. Tex. Jun. 26, 2020) (Claim No. 190).) This argument flies in the face of the multiple rulings of the New York Courts to the contrary.

Those final, non-appealable New York Court rulings are binding here. See Matter of Brady, Texas, Mun. Gas Corp., 936 F.2d 212, 218 (5th Cir. 1991) ("unless the Code provides otherwise, state courts have concurrent jurisdiction, and bankruptcy courts are prohibited from relitigating these matters if the state courts have already resolved them."); In re Ocasio, 10 F. App'x 531, 531-32 (9th Cir.2001); In re Bellucci, 119 B.R. 763, 769 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 1990).

The Debtor and the Redeemer Committee each pointed out in their objections to UBS's motion to lift the automatic stay that res judicata bars UBS from pursuing these claims. See Debtor's Obj. to UBS's Mot. to Lift Automatic Stay ¶25-26, In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 19-34054-sgj11 (N.D. Tex. Jun. 3, 2020) (Doc. No. 687); Redeemer Comm. Obj. to UBS's Mot. to Lift Automatic Stay at 13-14, In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 19-34054-sgj11 (N.D. Tex. Jun. 8, 2020) (Doc. No. 714).) In its reply, UBS claimed that the New York courts had, in fact, held the opposite—that UBS was expressly permitted to assert claims arising from pre-February 24, 2009 conduct. (UBS Reply ISO its Mot. to Lift Automatic Stay ¶6, In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 19-34054-sgj11 (N.D. Tex. Jun. 11, 2020) (Doc. No. 733B) ("This is virtually identical to the [res judicata] "defense" at hand, and both the State Court and the Appellate Division rejected the Debtor's ultimate conclusion—that UBS's ability to prove its claims against the Debtor are, in fact, "limited" to reliance on post-February 2009 conduct only.") UBS quotes selective portions of those decisions to support its conclusion:

> The State Court rejected this point when it ruled on the Debtor's motion. See Docket No. 688-4 at 25 (Mar. 13, 2017 State Court Summ. J. Op.) ("This court previously rejected the contention, advanced by moving defendants here, that UBS cannot rely on events or conduct occurring before February 2009 to support its alter ego and fraudulent conveyance claims."). And the Appellate Division squarely rejected it once more on appeal. Ex. 2 at 46 (Mar. 15, 2018 Order) ("The court correctly rejected defendants' arguments" because "neither our prior decisions nor the doctrine of res judicata bars plaintiffs from introducing evidence of pre-February 24, 2009 conduct to the extent necessary to prove, with respect to post-February 24, 2009 conduct, their alter ego, fraudulent conveyance and breach of implied covenant claims.").

Id.

UBS's citations are misleading, at best. The full text of the lower court's ruling makes clear that UBS is barred from pursuing claims against the Debtor arising before February 24, 2009:

> This court previously rejected the contention, advanced by moving defendants here, that UBS cannot rely on events or conduct occurring before February 2009 to support its alter ego and fraudulent conveyance claims. As held in the prior decision, the Appellate Division decisions preclude any fraudulent conveyance claims arising before February 24, 2009. They therefore preclude UBS from recovering for any alleged fraudulent conveyances made before that date. However, proof of pre-February 24, 2009 transfers, and of other conduct involving the operations of the Highland entities, is not prohibited to the extent necessary to prove UBS's claims for post-February 24, 2009 fraudulent conveyances, which are maintainable under the Appellate Division decisions on an alter ego theory.

(Ex. 15, Ruling at 25, UBS Sec. LLC v Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, No. 650097/2009 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Mar. 24, 2017) (emphasis added).) Similarly, UBS again selectively omits the portion of the appellate ruling that precludes UBS from pursuing damages arising before February 24, 2009:

> There is no dispute that plaintiffs are precluded from pursuing fraudulent conveyance and breach of implied covenant claims that arose prior to February 24, 2009. However, neither our prior decisions nor the doctrine of res judicata bars plaintiffs from introducing evidence of pre-February 24, 2009 conduct to the extent necessary to prove, with respect to post-February 24, 2009 conduct, their alter ego, fraudulent conveyance and breach of implied covenant claims. The court correctly rejected defendants' arguments in support of dismissal of the remaining claims at issue.

UBS Sec. LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, 86 A.D.3d 469, 474 (N.Y. App. Div. 2011) (emphasis added).

The New York Courts ruled that UBS may not pursue claims against Highland arising from conduct occurring before February 24, 2009. The language that UBS cites states only that, in pursuit of its post-February 24, 2009 claims regarding the March 2009 Transfers, UBS may introduce evidence of conduct predating its original complaint.

The "Phase I" judgment that UBS seeks to recover from Highland was, unequivocally, based entirely on conduct predating February 24, 2009. (Ex. 5, Decision and Order at 4-5, UBS Sec. LLC, et al v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., et al, No. 650097-2009 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2019).) UBS concedes that it seeks to hold Highland liable based on that 2008 conduct, because it was "party to the same contract and exercised complete control over the two liable affiliates" in 2008. (See Ex. 4, UBS Securities LLC Proof of Claim at ¶24, In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 19-34054-sgj11 (N.D. Tex. Jun. 26, 2020) (Claim No. 190).) This Court should disallow UBS's claim to the extent it seeks to impose any liability on the Debtor arising from pre-February 24, 2009 conduct, including liability for the Phase I judgment.

The only remaining claims UBS has against the Debtor are for fraudulent conveyance and the breach of good faith and fair dealing with respect to the March 2009 Transfers. However, as demonstrated below, UBS entered into two settlement agreements in the New York action that substantially reduce UBS's claim to damages [redacted] before any prejudgment interest.

C. The Settlement Agreements Between UBS and the Crusader and Credit Strategies Funds Released UBS's Claims for Most of the Damages from the March 2009 Transfers.

This Court should disallow UBS's claim to the extent it seeks damages arising from the March 2009 Transfers to the Crusader Fund and the Credit Strategies Fund, because UBS released those claims in 2015 settlement agreements. Bankruptcy courts have the authority to enforce settlement agreements in the claims adjudication process. In re City Equities Anaheim, Ltd., 22 F.3d 954, 958 (9th Cir. 1994) ("A bankruptcy court, as a court of equity, likewise possesses the power to summarily enforce settlements."); In re Mortg. Analysis Portfolio Strategies, Inc., 221 B.R. 386, 388 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 1998) (holding that "this Court has the inherent power to enforce settlement agreements between parties."); In re De La Fuente, 409 B.R. 842, 845 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2009).

As described above, on March 20, 2009, HFP transferred assets [redacted] according to UBS's expert in the New York action:

On June 11, 2015, UBS agreed to release Highland from [redacted] That provision released all claims UBS had against Highland, whether in the form of a fraudulent conveyance claim or a breach of good faith and fair dealing claim, with respect to the March 2009 Transfers to the Credit Strategies Fund.

A few days later, on June 17, 2015, UBS agreed to release Highland from [redacted] These provisions release all claims UBS had against Highland—regardless whether the claim was for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing or for fraudulent conveyance—with respect to the March 20, 2009 Transfers to those entities.

As a result, UBS retained only claims against Highland for losses or other relief arising [redacted] Credit Opportunities Fund, Credit Opportunities Holding Corporation and Highland itself:

[redacted]

Based on the values provided by UBS's expert, UBS released Highland from claims arising from the transfer of assets valued at approximately [redacted] of the value of the entire transaction. [redacted] In exchange for releasing its claims for relief against Crusader, Credit Strategies and Highland arising from those transfers, UBS received [redacted] and avoided (to date) five more years of litigation against those funds. [redacted]

The Crusader Fund paid for and deserves to receive the full benefit of its bargain for its settlement agreement with UBS. [redacted] Crusader did. And the Redeemer Committee insisted that UBS release Highland because without that release, [redacted]

In its reply in support of its motion to lift the automatic stay, [redacted] UBS Reply ISO its Mot. to Lift Automatic Stay at 9, In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 19-34054-sgj11 (N.D. Tex. Jun. 11, 2020) (Doc. No. 733B) (emphasis in original).) This is, again, selective quotation. The full provision reads:

[redacted] UBS further claims that [redacted] UBS Reply ISO its Mot. to Lift Automatic Stay at 9, In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 19-34054-sgj11 (N.D. Tex. Jun. 11, 2020) (Doc. No. 733B).

But the settlement releases are not ambiguous, and their clear language controls—UBS released Highland for [redacted] Shriners Hosp. for Children v. McCarthy Bros. Co., 80 F. Supp. 2d 707, 710 (S.D. Tex. 2000) ("Because the settlement provision at issue in this case contains no ambiguity, it therefore must be construed in accordance with its plain meaning.") [redacted] are both broad terms. "'[L]osses' is legally synonymous with 'damages,'" and in its good faith and fair dealing claim, UBS is seeking damages arising from the transfers to the Crusader Fund. Nogueiro v. Kaiser Found. Hosps., 250 Cal. Rptr. 478, 481 (Ct. App. 1988); see DAMAGES, Black's Law Dictionary (11th ed. 2019) ("Money claimed by, or ordered to be paid to, a person as compensation for loss or injury.") Further, even if UBS's claim for damages arising from the March 2009 Transfers was somehow not [redacted] UBS's Claim for damages is a request for [redacted] Confederated Tribe of Colville Reservation v. White, 1996 WL 33407856, at *3 (E.D. Wash. Nov. 7, 1996) ("filing a proof of claim is an affirmative act seeking relief via a court's adjudication of a dispute."); In re Barrett Ref. Corp., 221 B.R. 795, 811 (Bankr. W.D. Okla. 1998) ("The filing of a proof of claim is not merely a defense, but is an affirmative claim for relief."); Mertens v. Hewitt Assocs., 508 U.S. 248, 269 (1993).

UBS released all claims for any type of relief against Highland arising from the March 2009 Transfers to the two funds, including UBS's claim for breach of good faith and fair dealing arising from that transfer. The Redeemer Committee and the Crusader Fund should be given the full benefit of their bargain from the settlement agreement, and UBS should not be permitted to recover relief from the Debtor that UBS already released. The Crusader Fund and the Redeemer Committee respectfully request that this Court disallow UBS's claim to the extent it seeks to hold the Debtor liable under any legal theory for damages arising from the March 20, 2009 Transfers to the Crusader Fund or Credit Strategies Fund, including UBS's claims for fraudulent conveyance and breach of good faith and fair dealing.

CONCLUSION

For all these reasons, this Court should disallow UBS's claim against the Debtor to the extent that it (1) seeks to hold the Debtor liable for claims arising from conduct occurring before February 24, 2009; and (2) seeks to hold the Debtor liable for claims arising from the March 2009 Transfers with respect to the asset transfers to the Credit Strategies Fund and Crusader Fund.

ARTICLE II.
ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES AND PRIORITY TAX CLAIMS

A. Administrative Expense Claims

On the later of the Effective Date or the date on which an Administrative Expense Claim becomes an Allowed Administrative Expense Claim, or, in each such case, as soon as practicable thereafter, each Holder of an Allowed Administrative Expense Claim (other than Professional Fee Claims) will receive, in full satisfaction, settlement, discharge and release of, and in exchange for, such Allowed Administrative Expense Claim either (i) payment in full in Available Cash for the unpaid portion of such Allowed Administrative Expense Claim; or (ii) such other less favorable treatment as agreed to in writing by the Debtor or the Reorganized Debtor, as applicable, and such Holder; provided, however, that Administrative Expense Claims incurred by the Debtor in the ordinary course of business may be paid in the ordinary course of business in the discretion of the Debtor in accordance with such applicable terms and conditions relating thereto without further notice to or order of the Bankruptcy Court. All statutory fees payable under 28 U.S.C. § 1930(a) shall be paid as such fees become due.

If an Administrative Expense Claim (other than a Professional Fee Claim) is not paid by the Debtor in the ordinary course, the Holder of such Administrative Expense Claim must File, on or before the applicable Administrative Expense Claims Bar Date, and serve on the Debtor or Reorganized Debtor, as applicable, and such other Entities who are designated by the Bankruptcy Rules, the Confirmation Order or other order of the Bankruptcy Court, an application for allowance and payment of such Administrative Expense Claim.

Objections to any Administrative Expense Claim (other than a Professional Fee Claim) must be Filed and served on the Debtor or the Reorganized Debtor, as applicable, and the party

Payment of statutory fees due pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1930(a)(6) will be made at all appropriate times until the entry of a final decree; provided, however, that the Debtor may prepay any or all such Claims at any time, without premium or penalty.

ARTICLE III.
CLASSIFICATION AND TREATMENT OF CLASSIFIED CLAIMS AND EQUITY INTERESTS

A. Summary

All Claims and Equity Interests, except Administrative Expense Claims and Priority Tax Claims, are classified in the Classes set forth below. In accordance with section 1123(a)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code, Administrative Expense Claims, and Priority Tax Claims have not been classified.

The categories of Claims and Equity Interests listed below classify Claims and Equity Interests for all purposes including, without limitation, confirmation and distribution pursuant to the Plan and pursuant to sections 1122 and 1123(a)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code. The Plan deems a Claim or Equity Interest to be classified in a particular Class only to the extent that the Claim or Equity Interest qualifies within the description of that Class and will be deemed classified in a different Class to the extent that any remainder of such Claim or Equity Interest qualifies within the description of such different Class. A Claim or Equity Interest is in a particular Class only to the extent that any such Claim or Equity Interest is Allowed in that Class and has not been paid, released or otherwise settled (in each case, by the Debtor or any other Entity) prior to the Effective Date.

C. Elimination of Vacant Classes

Any Class that, as of the commencement of the Confirmation Hearing, does not have at least one Holder of a Claim or Equity Interest that is Allowed in an amount greater than zero for voting purposes shall be considered vacant, deemed eliminated from the Plan for purposes of voting to accept or reject the Plan, and disregarded for purposes of determining whether the Plan satisfies section 1129(a)(8) of the Bankruptcy Code with respect to such Class.

D. Impaired/Voting Classes

Claims and Equity Interests in [redacted] are Impaired by the Plan, and only the Holders of Claims or Equity Interests in those Classes are entitled to vote to accept or reject the Plan.

E. Unimpaired/Non-Voting Classes

Claims in [redacted] are Unimpaired by the Plan, and such Holders are deemed to have accepted the Plan and are therefore not entitled to vote on the Plan.

F. Impaired/Non-Voting Classes

G. Cramdown

If any Class of Claims or Equity Interests is deemed to reject this Plan or does not vote to accept this Plan, the Debtor may (i) seek confirmation of this Plan under section 1129(b) of the Bankruptcy Code or (ii) amend or modify this Plan in accordance with the terms hereof and the Bankruptcy Code. If a controversy arises as to whether any Claims or Equity Interests, or any class of Claims or Equity Interests, are Impaired, the Bankruptcy Court shall, after notice and a hearing, determine such controversy on or before the Confirmation Date.

MEANS FOR IMPLEMENTATION OF THIS PLAN

A. Summary

[redacted]

ARTICLE V.
TREATMENT OF EXECUTORY CONTRACTS AND UNEXPIRED LEASES

A. Assumption, Assignment, or Rejection of Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases

Unless an Executory Contract or Unexpired Lease: (i) was previously assumed or rejected by the Debtor pursuant to a Final Order of the Bankruptcy Court entered prior to the Effective Date; (ii) previously expired or terminated pursuant to its own terms or by agreement of the parties thereto; (iii) is the subject of a motion to assume filed by the Debtor on or before the Confirmation Date; (iv) contains a change of control or similar provision that would be triggered by the Chapter 11 Case (unless such provision has been irrevocably waived); or (v) is specifically designated as a contract or lease to be assumed in the Plan Supplement, on the Effective Date, each Executory Contract and Unexpired Lease shall be deemed rejected pursuant to section 365 of the Bankruptcy Code, without the need for any further notice to or action, order, or approval of the Bankruptcy Court, unless such Executory Contract or Unexpired Lease is listed in the Plan Supplement.

At any time on or prior to the Effective Date, the Debtor or the Reorganized Debtor, as applicable, may assign (subject to applicable law) any Executory Contract or Unexpired Lease, as determined by the Debtor in consultation with the Committee, or the Reorganized Debtor, as applicable.

The Confirmation Order will constitute an order of the Bankruptcy Court approving the above-described assumptions, rejections, and assumptions and assignments. Except as otherwise provided herein or agreed to by the Debtor and the applicable counterparty, each assumed Executory Contract or Unexpired Lease shall include all modifications, amendments, supplements, restatements, or other agreements related thereto, and all rights related thereto. Modifications, amendments, supplements, and restatements to prepetition Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases that have been executed by the Debtor during the Chapter 11 Case shall not be deemed to alter the prepetition nature of the Executory Contract or Unexpired Lease or the validity, priority, or amount of any Claims that may arise in connection therewith. To the extent applicable, no change of control (or similar provision) will be deemed to occur under any such Executory Contract or Unexpired Lease.

If certain, but not all, of a contract counterparty's Executory Contracts and/or Unexpired Leases are rejected pursuant to the Plan, the Confirmation Order shall be a determination that such counterparty's Executory Contracts and/or Unexpired Leases that are being assumed pursuant to the Plan are severable agreements that are not integrated with those Executory Contracts and/or Unexpired Leases that are being rejected pursuant to the Plan. Parties seeking to contest this finding with respect to their Executory Contracts and/or Unexpired Leases must file a timely objection to the Plan on the grounds that their agreements are integrated and not severable, and any such dispute shall be resolved by the Bankruptcy Court at the Confirmation Hearing (to the extent not resolved by the parties prior to the Confirmation Hearing).

B. Claims Based on Rejection of Executory Contracts or Unexpired Leases

[redacted]

Rejection Claims shall be classified as Convenience Claims or General Unsecured Claims, as applicable, and shall be treated in accordance with ARTICLE III of this Plan.

C. Cure of Defaults for Assumed or Assigned Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases

Any monetary amounts by which any Executory Contract or Unexpired Lease to be assumed or assigned hereunder is in default shall be satisfied, under section 365(b)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code, by the Debtor upon assumption or assignment thereof, by payment of the default amount in Cash as and when due in the ordinary course or on such other terms as the parties to such Executory Contracts may otherwise agree. The Debtor may serve a notice on the Committee and parties to Executory Contracts or Unexpired Leases to be assumed or assigned reflecting the Debtor's or Reorganized Debtor's intention to assume or assign the Executory Contract or Unexpired Lease in connection with this Plan and setting forth the proposed cure amount (if any).

If a dispute regarding (1) the amount of any payments to cure a default, (2) the ability of the Debtor, the Reorganized Debtor, or any assignee to provide "adequate assurance of future performance" (within the meaning of section 365 of the Bankruptcy Code) under the Executory Contract or Unexpired Lease to be assumed or assigned or (3) any other matter pertaining to assumption or assignment, the cure payments required by section 365(b)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code will be made following the entry of a Final Order or orders resolving the dispute and approving the assumption or assignment.

Assumption or assignment of any Executory Contract or Unexpired Lease pursuant to the Plan or otherwise and full payment of any applicable cure amounts pursuant to this ARTICLE V.C shall result in the full release and satisfaction of any cure amounts, Claims, or defaults, whether monetary or nonmonetary, including defaults of provisions restricting the change in control or ownership interest composition or other bankruptcy-related defaults, arising under any assumed or assigned Executory Contract or Unexpired Lease at any time prior to the effective date of assumption or assignment. Any and all Proofs of Claim based upon Executory Contracts or Unexpired Leases that have been assumed or assigned in the Chapter 11 Case, including pursuant to the Confirmation Order, and for which any cure amounts have been fully paid pursuant to this ARTICLE V.C, shall be deemed disallowed and expunged as of the Effective Date without the need for any objection thereto or any further notice to or action, order, or approval of the Bankruptcy Court.

D. Assumption of Insurance Policies

Upon the Effective Date, the Reorganized Debtor will assume all of the Insurance Policies pursuant to section 365(a) of the Bankruptcy Code and all such Insurance Policies shall vest in the Reorganized Debtor. Unless previously effectuated by separate order entered by the Bankruptcy Court, entry of the Confirmation Order will constitute the Bankruptcy Court's approval of the Debtor's foregoing assumption of each of the Insurance Policies and all such Insurance Policies shall continue in full force and effect thereafter in accordance with their respective terms. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in this Plan, confirmation of this Plan will not impair or otherwise modify any rights of the Debtor or the Reorganized Debtor under the Insurance Policies. To the extent that any Insurance Policy is not assumable, it will be Reinstated.

ARTICLE VI.
PROVISIONS GOVERNING DISTRIBUTIONS

A. Dates of Distributions

Except as otherwise provided in this Plan, on the Effective Date or as soon as reasonably practicable thereafter (or if a Claim is not an Allowed Claim or Equity Interest on the Effective Date, on the date that such Claim or Equity Interest becomes an Allowed Claim or Equity Interest, or as soon as reasonably practicable thereafter), each Holder of an Allowed Claim or Equity Interest against the Debtor shall receive the full amount of the distributions that this Plan provides for Allowed Claims or Allowed Equity Interests in the applicable Class and in the manner provided herein. If any payment or act under this Plan is required to be made or performed on a date that is not on a Business Day, then the making of such payment or the performance of such act may be completed on the next succeeding Business Day, but shall be deemed to have been completed as of the required date. If and to the extent there are Disputed Claims or Equity Interests, distributions on account of any such Disputed Claims or Equity Interests shall be made pursuant to the provisions provided in this Plan. Except as otherwise provided in this Plan, Holders of Claims and Equity Interests shall not be entitled to interest, dividends or accruals on the distributions provided for therein, regardless of whether distributions are delivered on or at any time after the Effective Date.

[redacted]

[redacted]

B. Distribution Agent

[redacted]

The Distribution Agent shall be empowered to (a) effect all actions and execute all agreements, instruments, and other documents necessary to perform its duties under this Plan; (b) make all distributions contemplated hereby; (c) employ professionals to represent it with respect to its responsibilities; and (d) exercise such other powers as may be vested in the Distribution Agent by order of the Bankruptcy Court, pursuant to this Plan, or as deemed by the Distribution Agent to be necessary and proper to implement the provisions hereof.

The Distribution Agent shall not have any obligation to make a particular distribution to a specific Holder of an Allowed Claim if such Holder is also the Holder of a Disputed Claim.

C. Cash Distributions

Distributions of Cash may be made by wire transfer from a domestic bank, except that Cash payments made to foreign creditors may be made in such funds and by such means as the Distribution Agent determines are necessary or customary in a particular foreign jurisdiction.

D. Disputed Claims Reserve

E. Rounding of Payments

Whenever this Plan would otherwise call for, with respect to a particular Person, payment of a fraction of a dollar, the actual payment or distribution shall reflect a rounding of such fraction to the nearest whole dollar (up or down), with half dollars being rounded down. To the extent that Cash to be distributed under this Plan remains undistributed as a result of the aforementioned rounding, such Cash or stock shall be treated as "Unclaimed Property" under this Plan.

F. De Minimis Distribution

Except as to any Allowed Claim that is Unimpaired under this Plan, none of the Debtor, the Reorganized Debtor, or the Distribution Agent shall have any obligation to make any Plan Distributions with a value of less than $100, unless a written request therefor is received by the Distribution Agent from the relevant recipient at the addresses set forth in ARTICLE VI.I hereof within 120 days after the later of the (i) Effective Date and (ii) the date such Claim becomes an Allowed Claim. [redacted]

G. Distributions on Account of Allowed Claims

Except as otherwise agreed by the Holder of a particular Claim or as provided in this Plan, all distributions shall be made pursuant to the terms of this Plan and the Confirmation Order. Except as otherwise provided in this Plan, distributions to any Holder of an Allowed Claim shall, to the extent applicable, be allocated first to the principal amount of any such Allowed Claim, as determined for U.S. federal income tax purposes and then, to the extent the consideration exceeds such amount, to the remainder of such Claim comprising accrued but unpaid interest, if any (but solely to the extent that interest is an allowable portion of such Allowed Claim).

H. General Distribution Procedures

I. Address for Delivery of Distributions

Distributions to Holders of Allowed Claims, to the extent provided for under this Plan, shall be made (1) at the addresses set forth in any written notices of address change delivered to the Debtor and the Distribution Agent; (2) at the address set forth on any Proofs of Claim Filed by such Holders (to the extent such Proofs of Claim are Filed in the Chapter 11 Case), (2), or (3) at the addresses in the Debtor's books and records.

If there is any conflict or discrepancy between the addresses set forth in (1) through (3) in the foregoing sentence, then (i) the address in Section (2) shall control; (ii) if (2) does not apply, the address in (1) shall control, and (iii) if (1) does not apply, the address in (3) shall control.

J. Undeliverable Distributions and Unclaimed Property

[redacted]

K. Withholding Taxes

In connection with this Plan, to the extent applicable, the Distribution Agent shall comply with all tax withholding and reporting requirements imposed on them by any Governmental Unit, and all distributions made pursuant to this Plan shall be subject to such withholding and reporting requirements. The Distribution Agent shall be entitled to deduct any U.S. federal, state or local withholding taxes from any Cash payments made with respect to Allowed Claims, as appropriate. As a condition to receiving any distribution under this Plan, the Distribution Agent may require that the Holder of an Allowed Claim entitled to receive a distribution pursuant to this Plan provide such Holder's taxpayer identification number and such other information and certification as may be deemed necessary for the Distribution Agent to comply with applicable tax reporting and withholding laws. If a Holder fails to comply with such a request within one year, such distribution shall be deemed an unclaimed distribution. Any amounts withheld pursuant hereto shall be deemed to have been distributed to and received by the applicable recipient for all purposes of this Plan.

L. Setoffs

M. Surrender of Cancelled Instruments or Securities

As a condition precedent to receiving any distribution pursuant to this Plan on account of an Allowed Claim evidenced by negotiable instruments, securities, or notes canceled pursuant to ARTICLE IV of this Plan, the Holder of such Claim will tender the applicable negotiable instruments, securities, or notes evidencing such Claim (or a sworn affidavit identifying the negotiable instruments, securities, or notes formerly held by such Holder and certifying that they have been lost), to the Distribution Agent unless waived in writing by the Distribution Agent.

N. Lost, Stolen, Mutilated or Destroyed Securities

In addition to any requirements under any applicable agreement and applicable law, any Holder of a Claim or Equity Interest evidenced by a security or note that has been lost, stolen, mutilated, or destroyed will, in lieu of surrendering such security or note to the extent required by this Plan, deliver to the Distribution Agent: (i) evidence reasonably satisfactory to the Distribution Agent of such loss, theft, mutilation, or destruction; and (ii) such security or indemnity as may be required by the Distribution Agent to hold such party harmless from any damages, liabilities, or costs incurred in treating such individual as a Holder of an Allowed Claim or Equity Interest. Upon compliance with ARTICLE VI.N of this Plan as determined by the Distribution Agent, by a Holder of a Claim evidenced by a security or note, such Holder will, for all purposes under this Plan, be deemed to have surrendered such security or note to the Distribution Agent.

ARTICLE VII.
PROCEDURES FOR RESOLVING CONTINGENT, UNLIQUIDATED AND DISPUTED CLAIMS

A. Filing of Proofs of Claim

Unless such Claim appeared in the Schedules and is not listed as disputed, contingent, or unliquidated, or such Claim has otherwise been Allowed or paid, each Holder of a Claim was required to file a Proof of Claim on or prior to the Bar Date.

B. Disputed Claims

C. Procedures Regarding Disputed Claims or Disputed Equity Interests

No payment or other distribution or treatment shall be made on account of a Disputed Claim or Disputed Equity Interest, even if a portion of the Claim is not disputed, unless and until such Disputed Claim or Disputed Equity Interest becomes an Allowed Claim and the amount of such Allowed Claim is determined by order of the Bankruptcy Court or by stipulation between

[redacted]

D. Allowance of Claims and Equity Interests

Following the date on which a Disputed Claim or Disputed Equity Interest becomes an Allowed Claim or Equity Interest after the Distribution Date, the Distribution Agent shall make a distribution to the Holder of such Allowed Claim or Equity Interest in accordance with the Plan.

[redacted]

3. Disallowance of Claims

DEBTOR'S (I) OBJECTION TO CLAIM NO. 152 OF HUNTER MOUNTAIN INVESTMENT TRUST AND (II) COMPLAINT TO SUBORDINATE CLAIM OF HUNTER MOUNTAIN INVESTMENT TRUST AND FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF

Plaintiff, Highland Capital Management, L.P., the above-captioned debtor and debtor-in-possession (the "Debtor" or the "Partnership"), as and for its objection to claim (the "Objection") and complaint (the "Complaint") against defendant Hunter Mountain Investment Trust ('HMT" or the "Defendant"), alleges upon knowledge of its own actions and upon information and belief as to other matters as follows:

Nature of the Action

1. HMT is the Debtor's parent, having acquired 99.5% of the Debtor's partnership interests in December 2015. Pursuant to a Contribution Agreement with the Debtor, dated as of December 21, 2015, HMT agreed to contribute capital of $70,000,000 in exchange for 55% of those partnership interests. Of that amount, $63,000,000 was represented by a promissory note in favor of the Debtor (the "Contribution Note"), guaranteed by HMT's indirect parent, Rand PE Fund I, LP, Series 1, a Delaware series limited partnership ("Rand"). Approximately $60,000,000 remains due on the Contribution Note. On April 8, 2020, HMT filed a proof of claim [Claim No. 152] (the "HMT Claim") in which it asserts that because it is not receiving "Priority Distributions" under the Partnership Agreement, it has a $60,298,739 indemnification claim against the Debtor under the Contribution Agreement, which it may set off against its obligation on the Contribution Note. In other words, the Debtor must indemnify HMT for not distributing enough to HMT to cover its obligation to the Debtor.

2. The HMT Claim is specious. HMT is the Debtor's owner, not a creditor, and the indemnity clause is inapplicable on its face. Under the Contribution Agreement, the Debtor indemnifies HMT against "Losses" arising from "any breach or non-fulfillment of any covenant, agreement or obligation to be performed by the Partnership" under the Contribution Agreement or any related agreement to which the Debtor is a party. It does not apply to any failure to make distributions under the Partnership Agreement for one simple dispositive reason, among others: The Partnership Agreement contains no obligation to make Priority Distributions if there are no funds to distribute. The Partnership Agreement is an agreement between the partners governing their relationship and, unsurprisingly, HMT's general partner did not commit to making distributions for which there are no funds. The Partnership Agreement specifies HMT's remedy: Raise more funds by having the Partnership sell certain assets. Furthermore, there are no "Losses" within the meaning of the indemnity clause, and there is a strict limitation on damages that HMT simply ignores.

3. Finally, if despite these insurmountable hurdles HMT actually had an indemnity claim under the Contribution Agreement, that claim would be subordinated under section 510(b) of title 11 of the United States Code (the "Bankruptcy Code") to be on par with equity interests, and thus cannot be used to set off limited partners' contribution obligations under Bankruptcy Code § 553.[2] In summary, the HMT Claim misconstrues the Contribution Agreement, the Partnership Agreement, and basic principles of partnership and bankruptcy law in a futile and frivolous attempt to obtain rights for the Debtor's owners that are superior to the rights of its creditors.

4. Accordingly, this adversary proceeding is brought pursuant to Rules 7001(1), (8) and (9) of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the "Bankruptcy Rules") and sections 502, 510(b) 541 and 553 of the Bankruptcy Code to (i) disallow the HMT Claim under section 502(a) as unenforceable under applicable law, (ii) subordinate any HMT Claim under section

510(b), and (iii) for declaratory relief that any HMT Claim may not be used for purposes of setoff.

Jurisdiction and Venue

5. This adversary proceeding arises in and relates to the Debtor's case pending before the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division (the "Court") under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code.

6. The Court has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334.

7. This matter is a core proceeding within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 157(b), and, pursuant to Rule 7008 of the Bankruptcy Rules, the Debtor consents to the entry of a final order by the Court in the event that it is later determined that the Court, absent consent of the parties, cannot enter final orders or judgments consistent with Article III of the United States Constitution.

8. Venue is proper in this district pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409.

The Parties

9. The Debtor is a limited partnership formed under the laws of Delaware with a business address at 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, Texas 75201.

10. Defendant Hunter Mountain Investment Trust is a statutory trust organized under the laws of Delaware, with a business address in Saratoga Springs, New York.

Case Background

11. On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware (the "Delaware Court"), Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the "Bankruptcy Case").

12. On October 29, 2019, the U.S. Trustee in the Delaware Court appointed an Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the "Committee") with the following members: (a) Redeemer Committee of Highland Crusader Fund, (b) Meta-e Discovery, (c) UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG London Branch, and (d) Acis Capital Management, L.P., and Acis Capital Management, GP, LLP.

13. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the Bankruptcy Case to this Court [Docket No. 186].[3]

14. On January 9, 2020, this Court entered an Order [Docket No. 339] on the Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 281], pursuant to which an independent board of directors was appointed at the Debtor's general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc. ("Strand").

15. The Debtor has continued in the possession of its property and has continued to operate and manage its business as a debtor-in-possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. No trustee or examiner has been appointed in this chapter 11 case.

Factual Allegations

16. The operative limited partnership agreement between HMT and its partners is the Fourth Amended and Restated Agreement of Limited Partnership of Highland Capital Management, L.P., dated December 24, 2015 (the "Partnership Agreement"). HMT owns 99.5% of the limited partnership interests in the Debtor—55% of which are designated as Class B nonvoting partnership interests, and 44.5% of which are designated as Class C nonvoting partnership interests. The remaining 0.50% of the limited partnership interests in the Debtor are the Class A voting partnership interests. Strand, the general partner, holds approximately half of the Class A voting partnership interests, which represent approximately 0.25% of the total limited partnership interests. The remaining Class A limited partnership interests are held by The Dugaboy Investment Trust (0.1866%),[4] Mark Okada (0.0487%), Mark and Pamela Okada Family Trust – Exempt Trust #1 (0.0098%), and Mark and Pamela Okada Family Trust – Exempt Trust #2 (0.0042%).

17. HMT acquired 55% of the partnership interests, designated as Class B nonvoting partnership interests, pursuant to the Contribution Agreement with the Debtor dated December 21, 2015. The Contribution Agreement recites that HMT was "to contribute capital to the Partnership in exchange for a 55% limited partnership interest in the Partnership." The "Contribution Amount," as defined therein, was $70,000,000, comprised of $7,000,000 cash and the Contribution Note in the principal amount of $63,000,000. The Contribution Note bears interest at 2.61%. Annual payments commence on December 21, 2019 and terminate on December 21, 2030. As of July 31, 2020, $58,887,399.63 was owed on the Contribution Note.[5]

18. Pursuant to the Partnership Interest Purchase Agreement dated as of December 24, 2015, HMT acquired 44.5% of the partnership interests, designated as Class C nonvoting partnership interests, for purchase consideration aggregating $93,000,000.

19. The Partnership Agreement was amended and adopted twice in connection with HMT's acquisition of the Debtor's partnership interests—first with the closing of the Partnership Interest Purchase Agreement on December 21, 2015, and again with the closing of the Contribution Agreement on December 24, 2015.

20. Section 3.9 of the Partnership Agreement governs distributions. It provides, in part:

[4] The Dugaboy Investment Trust is the family trust for James Dondero.

[5] Prior to December 31, 2019, HMT made a series of prepayments on the Contribution Note which decreased the principal balance of the Contribution Note.

(a) General. The General Partner may make such pro rata or non-pro rata distributions as it may determine in its sole and unfettered discretion, without being limited to current or accumulated income or gains, but no such distribution shall be made out of funds required to make current payments on Partnership indebtedness. . . . The Partnership has entered into one or more credit facilities with financial institutions that may limit the amount and timing of distributions to the Partners. Thus, the Partners acknowledge that distributions from the Partnership may be limited. . . .

(b) Priority Distributions. Prior to the distribution of any amounts to Partners pursuant to Section 3.9(a), and notwithstanding any other provision in this Agreement to the contrary, the Partnership shall make the following distributions ("Priority Distributions") pro-rata among the Class B Partners in accordance with their relative Percentage Interests:

(i) No later than March 31st of each calendar year, commencing March 31, 2017, an amount equal to $1,600,000.00;

(ii) No later than March 31st of each year, commencing March 31, 2017, an amount equal to three percent (3%) of the Partnership's investment gain for the prior year, as reflected in the Partnership's books and records within ledger account number 90100 plus three percent (3%) of the gross realized investment gains for the prior year of Highland Select Equity Fund, as reflected in its books and records; and

(iii) No later than March 31st of each year, commencing March 31, 2017, an amount equal to ten percent (10%) of the Partnership's Operating Cash Flow for the prior year.

(iv) No later than December 24th of each year, commencing December 24, 2016, an amount equal to the aggregate annual principal and interest payments on the Purchase Notes for the then current year.

21. If the Priority Distributions are not made, section 4.2(e) of the Partnership Agreement specifies the remedy:

(e) Default on Priority Distributions. If the Partnership fails to timely pay Priority Distributions pursuant to Section 3.9(b), and the Partnership does not subsequently make such Priority Distribution within ninety days of its due date, the Class B Limited Partner may require the Partnership to liquidate publicly traded securities held by the Partnership or Highland Select Equity Master Fund, L.P., a Delaware limited partnership controlled by the Partnership; provided, however, that the General Partner may in its sole discretion elect instead to liquidate other non-publicly traded securities owned by the Partnership in order to satisfy the Partnership's obligations under Section 3.9(b) and this Section 4.2(e).

> In either case, Affiliates of the General Partner shall have the right of first offer to purchase any securities liquidated under this Section 4.2(e).

22. While the Partnership Agreement provides that Priority Distributions must be made ahead of certain other distributions, it has no requirement that HMT must receive distributions when there are insufficient funds to do so and no remedy supporting the assertion of a claim for distributions against the Debtor, Strand (as the general partner), or anybody else.

23. Instead, HMT points to a different agreement, citing the indemnification provision in the Contribution Agreement as follows:

> Section 6.02 Indemnification By the Partnership. Subject to the other terms and conditions of this Article VI, the Partnership shall indemnify and defend Contributor and its trustees, sponsors, administrators, grantors, officers, directors, managers, Affiliates, beneficiaries, shareholders, members, partners, successors and assigns (collectively, the "Contributor Indemnified Parties") against, and shall hold the Contributor Indemnified Parties harmless from and against, any and all Losses incurred or sustained by, or imposed upon, any Contributor Indemnified Parties based upon, arising out of, with respect to or by reason of:
>
> > (a) any inaccuracy in or breach of any of the representations or warranties of the Partnership contained in this Agreement or any of the other agreements contemplated hereby to which the Partnership is a party;
> >
> > (b) any breach or non-fulfillment of any covenant, agreement or obligation to be performed by the Partnership pursuant to this Agreement or any of the other agreements contemplated hereby to which the Partnership is a party; and
> >
> > (c) any and all actions, suits, proceedings, claims, demands and Losses incident to any of the foregoing or incurred in attempting to oppose the imposition thereof, or in enforcing this indemnity.

(Emphasis added).

24. Section 6.05 of the Contribution Agreement sets forth certain limitations on indemnification. Two are relevant here:

> (b) The aggregate amount of all Losses for which the Partnership shall be liable shall not exceed ten percent (10%) of the Contribution Amount; provided, however, that for purposes of this Section 6.05(b) only, the term "Contribution Amount" shall be limited to the sum of (i) cash contributed by the Class B

> Member and (ii) the amount of principal actually paid by the Class B Member on the Note at the time of a claim for indemnity. . . .
> (e) Subject to the limitations in this Section 6.05, any indemnification obligation of the Partnership under Section 6.02 shall not be payable to the Indemnified Party in cash, but shall instead be satisfied by a reduction in the principal balance of the Contribution Note for the amount of such indemnification obligation.

(Emphasis added).

25. Although the HMT Claim asserts that only section 6.05(e) is relevant and that its remedy is a dollar-for-dollar reduction in the principal amount of the Contribution Note, subsection (e) is expressly subject to other limitations in section 6.05. Pursuant to subsection (b), the maximum aggregate of Losses for which the Partnership could be liable, therefore, would be 10% of the sum of (x) the $7 million cash component of the Contribution Amount plus (y) the amount of principal actually paid by the Class B Member on the Contribution Note at the time of a claim for indemnity—or $9,260,999.44. Consequently, HMT's indemnification claim, if allowed, is limited to $1,626,099.94 (i.e., $16,260,999.44 ($7,000,000 plus $9,260,999.44) times 10%).

OBJECTION TO CLAIM

A. Legal Standard

26. The Bankruptcy Code establishes a burden-shifting framework for proving the amount and validity of a claim. "A claim . . . , proof of which is filed under section 501 [of the Bankruptcy Code], is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest . . . objects." 11 U.S.C. § 502(a). "A proof of claim executed and filed in accordance with the [Bankruptcy Rules] shall constitute prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim." FED. R. BANKR. P. 3001(f); see also In re Armstrong, 347 B.R. 581, 583 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006). However, the ultimate burden of proof for a claim always lies with the claimant. Armstrong, 347 B.R. at 583 (citing Raleigh v. Ill. Dep't of Rev., 530 U.S. 15 (2000)).

27. The HMT Claim asserts that the Debtor is liable under section 6.02(b) of the Contribution Agreement, under which the Debtor must indemnify HMT for:

> Losses … arising out of … any breach or non-fulfillment of any covenant, agreement or obligation to be performed by the Partnership pursuant to this Agreement or any of the other agreements contemplated hereby to which the Partnership is a party.

28. HMT claims this provision is triggered by the Debtor's failure to make Priority Distributions as it is purportedly obligated to do under the Partnership Agreement:

> With regard to missed Priority Distributions and Priority Distributions that likely will not occur hereinafter, HMT claims the maximum benefit available to it on account of the Indemnity referenced in Section 6.02 of the Contribution Agreement, with regard to the Debtor's obligation to fund Priority Distributions per the Fourth Amended and Restated Agreement of Limited Partnership, an "agreement or obligation to be performed by the Partnership pursuant to this Agreement or any of the other agreements contemplated hereby to which the Partnership is a party.

HMT Claim, Ex. A at 2-3 (emphasis added).

29. By treating a partnership distribution as a contract right rather than a distribution of profits, and by using the claim as a setoff, HMT not only makes itself into a creditor rather than an equity holder, it actually elevates its rights to a position superior to that of general unsecured creditors! The HMT Claim fails for all of the following reasons.

B. The Indemnification Clause Is Inapplicable Because There Is No Agreement, Covenant or Obligation in the Partnership Agreement to Make Priority Distributions When the Partnership Has Insufficient Funds

30. The fundamental and dispositive flaw in the HMT Claim is that there is no "agreement, covenant or obligation" in the Partnership Agreement to make Priority Distributions if the partnership does not have the funds to do so. HMT's general partner agreed to distribute partnership funds in a certain order of priority, but it did not commit to distributing funds that the Partnership does not have. The parties expressly acknowledged, in fact, that distributions may be limited by Partnership debts: "[T]he Partnership has entered into one or more credit facilities with financial institutions that may limit the amount and timing of distributions to the Partners. Thus, the Partners acknowledge that distributions from the Partnership may be limited." Sec. 3.9(a).

31. What is mandatory is that, as the name suggests, Priority Distributions must be made "[p]rior to the distribution of any amounts to Partners pursuant to Section 3.9(a)" and shall be made pro-rata among the Class B and Class C limited partnership interests. Sec. 3.9(b). Nowhere does the Partnership Agreement (i) provide that a failure to make distributions (as opposed to making them in the wrong order of priority) is a breach of the Partnership Agreement, or (ii) confer a right of action to require distributions. Rather than require a distribution of funds that do not exist, the Partnership Agreement has a remedy specific to the failure to make Priority Distributions: Section 4.2(e) permits HMT to require the Debtor to sell certain securities in order to raise cash so that the Debtor is able to make such distributions.

32. HMT is the Debtor's owner, not its creditor. It does not have a contractual right to make a profit. To permit partners to draft partnership agreements to put themselves in a better position than creditors if things do not work out would turn partnership law on its head. The terms of the Partnership Agreement and Contribution Agreement do not reflect any such intention.

C. There Are No "Losses" Within the Meaning of the Indemnification Clause

33. The indemnity clause also does not apply because HMT has not incurred "Losses" within the meaning of the Contribution Agreement.

34. Under the Contribution Agreement, "'Losses' means all losses, damages, liabilities, claims, judgments, fines, penalties, costs or expenses, including reasonable attorneys', accountants', investigators' and experts' fees and expenses in investigating or defending any of the foregoing or in the enforcement of this Agreement."

35. HMT does not allege what Losses were caused by the non-receipt of Priority Distributions but appears simply to assume that its Losses are the distributions HMT believes it had a right to receive. But, first, the non-distribution is the alleged breach, not Losses caused by the breach. To hold that the breach itself is the covered Loss is to directly rewrite the remedial provisions of the Partnership Agreement.

36. Second, the non-receipt of money is not covered by the definition of "Losses." HMT is left with less income, but the non-receipt does not itself cause damages, liabilities, claims, or judgments. HMT can (and will) pay with other funds. Are all HMT's unpaid bills "Losses" that the Debtor must indemnify?

D. Any Right to Indemnification Would Be Limited by Section 6.05(b) to $1,626,099.94

37. Section 6.05(b) of the Contribution Agreement limits indemnification as follows:

> (b) The aggregate amount of all Losses for which the Partnership shall be liable shall not exceed ten percent (10%) of the Contribution Amount; provided, however, that for purposes of this Section 6.05(b) only, the term "Contribution Amount" shall be limited to the sum of (i) cash contributed by the Class B Member and (ii) the amount of principal actually paid by the Class B Member on the Note at the time of a claim for indemnity. . . .

HMT elects the setoff remedy in section 6.05(e) and contends that subsection (b) is irrelevant, but it is unclear why since Section 6.05(e) is expressly subject to Section 6.05 in its entirety, including Section 6.05(b):

> (e) Subject to the limitations in this Section 6.05, any indemnification obligation of the Partnership under Section 6.02 shall not be payable to the Indemnified Party in cash, but shall instead be satisfied by a reduction in the principal balance of the Contribution Note for the amount of such indemnification obligation.

(Emphasis added).

38. Pursuant to subsection (b), the maximum aggregate of Losses for which the partnership can be liable would be $1,626,099.94, which is 10% of the sum of (x) the $7 million cash component of the Contribution Amount plus (y) the amount of principal actually paid by the Class B Member on the Contribution Note at the time of a claim for indemnity—or $9,260,999.44. As such, although HMT asserts a claim for $60,298,739.00, even if it prevailed on all of its arguments, its maximum setoff would only be $1,626,099.94.

FIRST CLAIM FOR RELIEF

(Subordination under Bankruptcy Code § 510(b))

39. The Debtor repeats and re-alleges as if set forth herein all of the foregoing factual allegations.

40. If HMT had a claim under the Contribution Agreement, it would be subordinated under Bankruptcy Code § 510(b), which provides:

> (b) For the purpose of distribution under this title, a claim arising from rescission of a purchase or sale of a security of the debtor or of an affiliate of the debtor, for damages arising from the purchase or sale of such a security, or for reimbursement or contribution allowed under section 502 on account of such a claim, shall be subordinated to all claims or interests that are senior to or equal the claim or interest represented by such security, except that if such security is common stock, such claim has the same priority as common stock.

41. Section 510(b) applies to the ownership interests in a limited partnership. See In re SeaQuest Diving, LP, 579 F.3d 411 (5th Cir. 2009); Templeton v. O'Cheskey (In re Am. Hous. Found.), 785 F.3d 143, 154 (5th Cir. (2015); In re Garrison Mun. Partners, LP, 2017 Bankr. LEXIS 3765, *8 (Bankr. S.D. Tex., Oct. 31, 2017). Accordingly, judgment should issue declaring that the HMT Claim is subordinated pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 510(b) and shall, subject to such other defenses or objections as may exist with respect to the HMT Claim, have the same rank and priority as all partnership interests.

SECOND CLAIM FOR RELIEF

(Declaratory Relief Regarding Setoff Rights)

42. The Debtor repeats and re-alleges as if set forth herein all of the foregoing factual allegations.

43. If the HMT Claim is allowed in any amount, setoff against amounts owed under the Contribution Note should not be permitted on two bases. First, claims that are subordinated to the level of equity, such as under section 510(b), may not be used to set off against claims of a debtor. Second, whether or not any HMT Claim is subordinated, setoff under section 553 is subject to equitable limitations, and the Court has ample cause to limit setoff so that creditors are not prejudiced by the assertion by a partner of its rights under an agreement for the purchase of limited partnership interests.

44. Although there is authority that claims that are subordinated under section 510(a) or (c) or other subordination provisions of the Bankruptcy Code may nonetheless be used defensively for setoff purposes,[6] the same rationale does not apply to "claims" that are subordinated to the level of equity under section 510(b) and which therefore are not really "claims" at all.. The only authority identified that discusses the issue holds that such "claims" may not be used for setoff. Dayton Sec. Assocs., 74 F.3d at 1114.

45. In Dayton Securities Associates, limited partners who were being sued to collect their capital contributions brought RICO counterclaims which they hoped to set off against capital contribution obligations. The bankruptcy court held that they "were not entitled to set off their purported damages against their liability to the creditors of the Limited Partnerships." Id. The Eleventh Circuit affirmed on the following basis:

> The appellants concede that the right to a set off under § 553 is merely permissive and subject to the discretion of the bankruptcy court. In re Diplomat Electric, Inc., 499 F.2d 342, 346 (5th Cir.1974) (holding that the right to a set off in bankruptcy is discretionary and reviewing the denial of a set off for "clear abuse"). In this case, had the bankruptcy court allowed the appellants' set off claims, the assets available to satisfy the Limited Partnerships' creditors would have been reduced dollar for dollar by the amount of the damages set off. In light of this situation, the bankruptcy court determined that the equities favored the Limited Partnerships' creditors, who relied on the limited partners' public promise to contribute additional capital. Under all the circumstances, including the strong policy underlying the partnership law of New York to protect creditors as compared to the capital contribution of partners, we cannot say that the bankruptcy court abused its discretion in denying the appellants' set off claims.

Id.

46. The Eleventh Circuit's holding and rationale applies squarely here. Even if mandatory subordination under section 510(b) did not automatically render such "claims" ineligible for setoff, setoff under section 553 is discretionary (as confirmed by the cited Fifth Circuit authority), and the equities in such a scenario are conclusively in favor of not permitting creditors to be leapfrogged and deprived of a recovery by an equity holder posing as a creditor that has its putative claim reduced to equity status.

47. The Debtor is entitled to an order and judgment under 28 U.S.C. § 2201 declaring that the HMT Claim, if any, may not be setoff under 11 U.S.C. § 553 against the Debtor's claim to collect on the Contribution Note.

Reservation of Rights

48. The Debtor reserves its right to supplement or modify this Objection and Complaint to assert such further objections, claims, or arguments as may later become available or apparent.

Prayer

WHEREFORE, the Debtor prays for judgment as follows:

1. For disallowance of the HMT Claim in its entirety;

2. For subordination of any HMT Claim pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 510(b);

3. For a declaration that HMT is not entitled to use any HMT Claim for purposes of setoff under 11 U.S.C. § 553;

4. For costs of suit incurred herein; and

5. For such other and further relief as this Court deems just and proper.

INSTRUCTIONS

The filing of a bankruptcy case creates an "estate" under the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court which consists of all of the property of the debtor, wherever that property is located. Because the bankruptcy estate is so extensive and the jurisdiction of the court so broad, there may be lawsuits over the property or property rights of the estate. There also may be lawsuits concerning the debtor's discharge. If such a lawsuit is filed in a bankruptcy court, it is called an adversary proceeding.

A party filing an adversary proceeding must also must complete and file Form 1040, the Adversary Proceeding Cover Sheet, unless the party files the adversary proceeding electronically through the court's Case Management/Electronic Case Filing system (CM/ECF). (CM/ECF captures the information on Form 1040 as part of the filing process.) When completed, the cover sheet summarizes basic information on the adversary proceeding. The clerk of court needs the information to process the adversary proceeding and prepare required statistical reports on court activity.

The cover sheet and the information contained on it do not replace or supplement the filing and service of pleadings or other papers as required by law, the Bankruptcy Rules, or the local rules of court. The cover sheet, which is largely self-explanatory, must be completed by the plaintiff's attorney (or by the plaintiff if the plaintiff is not represented by an attorney). A separate cover sheet must be submitted to the clerk for each complaint filed.

Demand. Enter the dollar amount being demanded in the complaint.

Signature. This cover sheet must be signed by the attorney of record in the box on the second page of the form. If the plaintiff is represented by a law firm, a member of the firm must sign. If the plaintiff is pro se, that is, not represented by an attorney, the plaintiff must sign.

UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch (together, "UBS"), by and through their undersigned counsel, hereby submit this objection (the "Objection") to Proof of Claim No. 72 (the "Proof of Claim" or "Redeemer Claim"), filed by Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund ("Redeemer"). In support of this Objection, UBS respectfully states as follows:

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

The Redeemer Claim arises from an Arbitration Award issued by an American Arbitration Association ("AAA") panel against the Debtor. As set forth herein, however, there are fundamental flaws with several key aspects of both the Arbitration Award and the Redeemer Claim generally. For one thing, the Arbitration Award that underlies the Proof of Claim is actually two competing "final" arbitration awards—both issued by the same arbitral panel in the same proceeding, but neither of which has been confirmed, or otherwise entered as a final judgment, by any court of competent jurisdiction.

In rendering these awards, the arbitral panel impermissibly substantively (and unilaterally) modified several aspects of its first "final" arbitral award after that award had already been issued. This was improper as a matter of law. Under the long-standing common law doctrine of functus officio—not to mention the binding AAA Commercial Arbitration Rules that governed the arbitration proceedings in question—"anything an arbitrator does to modify a final award after it has been issued is without effect because at that point the arbitrator lacks any power to reexamine that decision." See Hill v. Wackenhut Servs. Int'l, 971 F. Supp. 2d 5, 12 (D.D.C. 2013); AAA R-50 ("The arbitrator is not empowered to redetermine the merits of any claim already decided."). This fact alone renders at least $36.5 million of the amounts Redeemer is claiming through its Proof of Claim unrecoverable and subject to vacatur.

Beyond that, roughly $115 million of the remaining $154 million in claims that Redeemer asserts are functionally worthless. Such amounts relate to what Redeemer refers to as its claims for "Deferred Fees" and the "Cornerstone Award." But under the express terms of the Arbitration Award and the Crusader Fund[1] governing documents by and between Redeemer and the Debtor, Redeemer cannot recover either the "Deferred Fees" or "Cornerstone Award" amounts from the Debtor without triggering an obligation to turn over assets of great value to the Debtor. The amounts that Redeemer must turn over to the Debtor to collect on the "Deferred Fees" and "Cornerstone Award" will, in all likelihood, eclipse any actual recovery Redeemer might receive from the Debtor's estate on such claims as part of this bankruptcy. What that means is that Redeemer has grossly overstated its claim, and the true value of Redeemer's legitimate and allowable claims is unlikely to exceed $40 million, at the most.

JURISDICTION

1. This Court has jurisdiction to consider the Objection under 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. This matter is a core proceeding within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2). Venue is proper in this Court pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1409.

2. The statutory predicates for the requested relief are section 502 of title 11 of the United States Code (the "Bankruptcy Code"), Rule 3007 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the "Bankruptcy Rules"), and Rule 3007-1 of the Local Rules of the United States Bankruptcy Court of the Northern District of Texas (the "Local Rules").

BACKGROUND

A. The Debtor's Chapter 11 Bankruptcy Petition

[1] "Crusader Fund" is defined to include Highland Crusader Offshore Partners, L.P., Highland Crusader Fund, L.P., Highland Crusader Fund, Ltd., and Highland Crusader Fund II, Ltd.

3. The Debtor, Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor" or "HCM"), is an investment management firm that manages a variety of hedge funds, structured investment vehicles, and mutual funds.

4. On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for chapter 11 relief in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware. Pursuant to an order dated December 4, 2019, the Debtor's bankruptcy proceedings were transferred to this Court under the above-captioned case number.

5. On March 2, 2020, this Court entered a general Order (I) Establishing Bar Dates for Filing Claims and (ii) Approving the Form and Manner of Notice Thereof. (Dkt. No. 488.) Pursuant to that order, the general bar date for proofs of claim was set for April 8, 2020.

B. Redeemer's Proof of Claim

6. On April 3, 2020, Redeemer filed Proof of Claim No. 72 against the Debtor. (Ex. A, Proof of Claim ("POC") No. 72 at 1.) The Redeemer Claim is predicated upon what it refers to as the "Arbitration Award," which is actually two separate "final" arbitration awards issued in an arbitration proceeding that Redeemer filed against the Debtor in or around 2016. (Ex. B, Partial Final Award (defined below) (the "PFA") at 4.) Though its claims are principally based on the awards from this prepetition arbitration proceeding against HCM (which concerned only the Debtor's alleged prepetition conduct), the Redeemer Claim takes the position that any claims it might have are not, in fact, "prepetition claims." (Ex. A, POC Rider at 1.) Instead, Redeemer states that the Arbitration Award is actually "an executory contract under section 365 of the Bankruptcy Code" that the Debtor has not yet "moved to assume or reject." (Id.) Redeemer, thus, purports to be filing the Proof of Claim only "out of an abundance of caution." (Id.)

7. In its Proof of Claim, Redeemer asserts that it has a "Damage Claim" against the Debtor for "at least $190,824,557 plus interest that is accruing beginning as of October 16, 2019, the date that HCM filed its bankruptcy case." (Id.) Redeemer then lists the "separate components of the Damage Claim," which it notes are "set forth in the Final Award." (Id.) The components of Redeemer's Damage Claim that are directly relevant to UBS's Objection are the so-called (1) "Deferred Fee Claim" (for which Redeemer claims $43,105,395); (2) "Distribution Fee Claim" ($22,922,608); (3) "Barclays Claim" ($30,811,366); (4) "Cornerstone Award" ($71,894,891); (5) "Legal Fees, Costs, and Expenses" ($11,351,850); and (6) 224 days of prejudgment interest calculated within the (a) "Taking of Plan Claims" ($171,576 of the $3,277,991 Redeemer claims); (b) "CLO Trades Claim" ($24,820 of $685,195); (c) "Credit Suisse Claim" ($151,085 of $3,660,130); and (d) "UBS Claim" ($112,776 of $2,600,968). (Id. at 1-2.)

8. In addition to the liquidated Damage Claim itself, Redeemer also asserts "an unliquidated claim for post-petition interest, attorneys' fees, costs and other expenses that continue to accrue in connection with the Damage Claim" (the "Post-Petition Claim"). (Id. at 2.) Redeemer cites no authority in support of this Post-Petition Claim. (See generally id.)

9. Lastly, Redeemer also asserts a claim for the transfer of certain interests or, in the alternative, "an unliquidated amount" for what it refers to as the "Cancellation of Limited Partnership Interests" in the Crusader Fund held by (i) HCM and Charitable DAF Fund, L.P. and (ii) Eames, Ltd. ("Eames"). (Id. at 2.) The claim for interests held by Eames appears to be based on certain relief set forth in the Final Award (and only the Final Award), which Redeemer claims provides for "HCM to transfer, or take all necessary steps to cause the transfer of, such interests to the Redeemer Committee for the benefit of the Crusader Fund." (Id.) Similarly, Redeemer claims to reserve its right to seek the distribution of funds held in the "Deferred Fee Account," or to claim an unliquidated amount if such distributions are not made. (Id.)

C. Background on Redeemer's Damage Claim and the Arbitration Award

10. The events giving rise to Redeemer's purported Damage Claim against HCM appear to be a series of disputes between Redeemer and HCM that arose out of their efforts to wind down the Crusader Fund—a lengthy process that began in or around 2008. (Ex. B, PFA at 2-3.) Specifically, Redeemer's Damage Claim appears to relate to a contractual "Plan and Scheme" by and between Redeemer and HCM that was meant to "enable the orderly management, sale, and distribution of the assets" of the Crusader Fund as part of their wind-down. (Id. at 2.)

11. In or around July 2016, Redeemer initiated an arbitration before the AAA—which the parties agreed would be subject to the AAA Commercial Arbitration Rules—and asserted, among other things, breach of contract and fiduciary duty claims against HCM. (Id. at 3-4.) Final hearings in the arbitration were held in September 2018. (Id. at 7.) Following such hearings, closing arguments, and post-hearing briefing, "the record was declared closed" on December 12, 2018. (Id. at 7.)

12. In early 2019, the panel of arbitrators (the "Panel") presiding over Redeemer's arbitration against HCM rendered two separate "final" arbitral awards: an initial Partial Final Award dated March 6, 2019 (the "Partial Final Award") and a subsequent Final Award dated April 29, 2019 (the "Final Award"). (See id.; Ex. C, Final Award (the "FA").) The first of these awards, the Partial Final Award, was a 56-page single-spaced reasoned decision unanimously signed by all three members of the Panel, which addressed the substantive claims and counterclaims that Redeemer and HCM had raised in the arbitration. (See generally Ex. B, PFA.) There are two aspects of the Partial Final Award that are relevant to this Objection:

- Barclays LP Interests. As part of the March 6, 2019 Partial Final Award, the Panel analyzed, discussed, and ruled on one of Redeemer's core allegations—namely, that HCM improperly transferred certain limited partner interests in the Crusader Fund that belonged to Barclays (the "Barclays LP Interests") from Barclays to an HCM affiliate, Eames. (See, e.g., Ex. B, PFA at 8, 15, 20-22, 54.) The Panel not only analyzed HCM's transfers of these Barclays LP Interests, it specifically determined in the Partial Final Award that such transfers were a "breach" of the parties' agreement and, thus, "improper." (Id. at 21-22, 54.) But—critically—the Panel did not treat HCM's transfers of the Barclays LP Interests to Eames as an independent wrongdoing. Instead, the Partial Final Award only ever discussed the transfer of the Barclays LP Interests in the context of one of Redeemer's broader sets of claims, known as its "Distribution Fee Claim." (See id. at 15; id. at 20 (analyzing "Payments to Barclays and Eames as Distributions").) After determining that HCM's transfers of the Barclays LP Interests were "improper," (id. at 20-22, 54), the Panel went on to award Redeemer damages arising from such conduct as part of the Partial Final Award. In particular, the Partial Final Award provided Redeemer with a "total" of $14,452,275 in aggregate damages (plus prejudgment interest) to cover all of the "improper" conduct relating to its Distribution Fee Claim—a list that specifically included HCM's transfers of the Barclays LP Interests.[2]

- Prejudgment Interest. In addition to finding HCM liable for, and awarding damages arising out of, HCM's transfer of the Barclays LP Interests, the Panel also awarded Redeemer a limited amount of prejudgment interest for certain types of compensatory damages as part of the Partial Final Award. (See e.g., id. at 48, 54-55.) In so doing, the Panel set an outside date by which the prejudgment interest would no longer run—March 6, 2019, the date of the Partial Final Award itself. (See, e.g., id. at 54 (awarding "statutory interest of 9%, calculated on a simple basis, from the dates of taking in January and April 2016 through the date of this Partial Final Award").)

13. On March 7, 2019—the day after the Panel issued the Partial Final Award—Redeemer sent an email to the Panel, requesting that the Panel modify the Partial Final Award. (Ex. B, FA at 1.) On March 14, 2019, before HCM even had a chance to respond, the Panel unilaterally issued a "Disposition of Application for Modification of Award" (the "Modification of Award"). (Id.) This modification added a completely new category of damages as a result of HCM's "improper" transfer of the Barclays LP Interests—damages above and beyond the $14.5 million already ordered for such conduct in the Partial Final Award. (Id. at 1, 11.)

[2] (Id. at 22 (concluding that "it was improper for Highland to include in the calculation of the amounts distributed to the Redeemers . . . [t]he Distribution Fee attributable to the value of the LP interests and amounts transferred to Eames"); id. at 54 ("[W]e find that the Respondent is liable for damages . . ." for "[t]he Distribution Fee attributable to the value of the LP interests and amounts transferred to Eames").)

14. The Panel styled this addition as a formal modification under Rule 50 of the AAA Rules to "correct any clerical, typographical, or computational errors in the award." (Id. at 1 n.1.) Under that Rule, however, the Debtor should have had "10 calendar days to respond to [Redeemer's] request" in writing. See AAA R-50. The Debtor never got that chance. HCM opposed the Modification of Award on March 17, 2019, noting that "the Panel is not empowered to take any further action beyond the issuance of its Partial [Final] Award," and requesting the Panel withdraw its Modification of Award and refrain from any further modification of the Partial Final Award. (Ex. C, FA at 2.)

15. Still, Redeemer requested—and the Panel granted—further modifications not once, but three times. (Id.) On April 5, 2019 (ten days after Rule 50's allotted period had closed), Redeemer submitted another formal written request to the Panel in which it asked the Panel to "award further damages in connection with the Barclays claim," as well as to "award prejudgment interest through" an extended date. (Id. at 2.) The Debtor again opposed Redeemer's request for such "further damages" on the basis that such post-award modifications are improper under the AAA Rules and governing law. (Id. at 2-3.)

16. On April 29, 2019, the Panel entered a new "Final Award" that agreed to "re-adopt all prior findings and conclusions" yet superseded and "specifically modified" portions of its prior Partial Final Award. (Id. at 1.) Such modifications included the correction of four non-controversial "clerical, typographical, or computational errors." (Id. at 11-12, 16.) But the Final Award also included a number of substantive changes to the Partial Final Award. For instance, through the Final Award, the Panel (1) awarded Redeemer an additional $21,768,743 in damages due to the transfers of the Barclays LP Interests (as well as prejudgment interest on these new damages); (2) granted injunctive relief requiring HCM to "take all necessary steps to cause the improperly taken [] LP interests currently owned and controlled by Respondent through Eames, Ltd to be returned to Claimant"; and (3) completely reconsidered the prior time limitation on prejudgment interest that it had imposed under the Partial Final Award. (Id. at 15, 18.) Instead of limiting the amounts of prejudgment interest to only those amounts that ran through March 6, 2019, the Panel now held that all prejudgment interest would run indefinitely until "the earlier of the date paid or the entry of a final judgment." (Id. at 2, 14-15.)

17. Neither the Partial Final Award nor the Final Award (or any parts of them) has been confirmed or otherwise entered as a final judgment by any court of competent jurisdiction.

D. Redeemer and the Debtor Reach Agreement as to the Debtor's Preferred Resolution of the Redeemer Claim

18. In recent weeks, the Court, the Debtor, and parties in interest have decided to proceed towards mediation as a way to resolve certain creditor claims and negotiate a confirmable plan of reorganization or liquidation. (See Dkt. Nos. 817, 864, and 897 (July 8, July 14, and July 21, 2020 Hr'g Tr.).)

19. On July 8, 2020, the Debtor informed this Court that it and Redeemer had reached a settlement in principle as to Redeemer's claim amount and would file their agreement when certain language was finalized. (Dkt. 817, July 8, 2020 Hr'g Tr.) The Debtor acknowledged the settlement value of the Redeemer Claim is not as simple or straightforward as with a typical arbitration award and, instead, required negotiation on various points. (Id.) The Debtor has not filed a settlement agreement, and little has been shared with UBS about the settlement. UBS files this Objection to preserve its ability to object to the resolution of the Redeemer Claim and reserves its rights to make additional objections once the settlement agreement is filed. In this case, any resolution of the Redeemer Claim is of particular interest to the Debtor's other creditors, including UBS, because of a reciprocal obligation that was included in the Partial Final Award requiring Redeemer to contribute certain shares of significant value to the Debtor's estate—value that other creditors would have a pro rata interest in.

20. UBS hereby objects to the Proof of Claim, including its characterization of the Arbitration Award as an "executory contract" and the allowance of those portions (including any Post-Petition Claim portions[3]) of the Redeemer Claim arising from the "new" relief in the Final Award. UBS further objects to any resolution of the Redeemer Claim that diminishes the value Redeemer will owe to the Debtor's estate upon payment of its claim.

ARGUMENT

I. THE ARBITRATION AWARD ON WHICH REDEEMER'S ENTIRE DAMAGE CLAIM IS BASED IS NOT AN "EXECUTORY CONTRACT."

21. Redeemer's Damage Claim against the Debtor's estate is based entirely on the "Arbitration Award." In its Proof of Claim, however, Redeemer takes the perplexing position that the Award—which arose from a prepetition arbitration proceeding concerning claims that related exclusively to prepetition conduct of the Debtor—does not actually reflect any general "prepetition claims" against the Debtor's estate. (Ex. A, POC Rider at 1.) Redeemer insists, instead, that the Award is actually "an executory contract under section 365 of the Bankruptcy Code." (Id.) Because "HCM has not yet moved to assume or reject" the Award, Redeemer takes the position that its deadline to file a Proof of Claim "remains undetermined" and it is only filing the instant Proof of Claim "out of an abundance of caution." (See id. ("By filing the Proof of Claim, [Redeemer] does not concede that the amounts awarded under the Arbitration Award are prepetition claims or that it is required to file a proof of claim to be entitled to the amounts described herein.").) This appears to be little more than an attempt by Redeemer to transform its contingent, disputed, and unsecured prepetition litigation Damage Claim against the Debtor into something it is not—a bona fide executory contract between Redeemer and the Debtor.

[3] To the extent the settlement agreement proposed by the Debtor and Redeemer includes amounts for Redeemer's Post-Petition Claim, UBS objects. However, should the Court agree to allow that Post-Petition Claim and grant Redeemer post-petition interest or further relief, UBS reserves all rights to assert and seek post-petition interest or further relief in its own claim.

22. It is axiomatic, however, that "an executory contract must be a 'contract' and not some other legal instrument." See In re Denman, 513 B.R. 720, 723 (Bankr. W.D. Tenn. 2014); see also In re e2 Commc'ns, Inc., 354 B.R. 368, 402 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006) ("An executory contract is a contract where performance remains due to some extent on both sides."). That is the end of Redeemer's argument that the Arbitration Award is an "executory contract" here. The Arbitration Award simply is not a contract, much less an "executory contract" under 11 U.S.C. § 365. The mere fact that the Arbitration Award imposes certain obligations on Redeemer or the parties that are to "be performed in the future and are, thereby, executory in nature" is not dispositive:

> [T]he 'executory' nature of an obligation does not, ipso facto, imply an 'executory contract.' . . . Contract rights arise upon an offer, acceptance, and transfer of adequate consideration between at least two assenting parties. If these elements do not exist, a contract right does not exist and, thereby, an executory contract cannot exist.

See In re Denman, 513 B.R. at 723. Redeemer has not identified any legal authority suggesting an arbitration award can, should be, or ever has been interpreted to be an "executory contract" under 11 U.S.C. § 365. There is no such authority. Nor is there any indication the Debtor believes the Arbitration Award is an executory contract. Indeed, the comprehensive Schedule G of all "Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases" filed by the Debtor many months ago makes no reference to either Redeemer or the Arbitration Award. (See Dkt. No. 247.) That being the case, Redeemer's attempt to recharacterize the Arbitration Award—and its related general, unsecured, contingent, and disputed Damage Claim—as an "executory contract" fails as a matter of law.

II. NEW RELIEF GRANTED BY THE FINAL AWARD IS SUBJECT TO VACATUR AND CANNOT BE THE BASIS OF ANY CLAIM AGAINST THE DEBTOR.

23. In issuing the Final Award, the Panel overstepped its fundamental authority as arbitrators. An "arbitrator derives his or her powers from the parties' agreement to forgo the legal process and submit their disputes to private dispute resolution." Stolt-Nielsen S.A. v. AnimalFeeds Int'l Corp., 559 U.S. 662, 682 (2009). This leads to a simple maxim: where an arbitrator has "exceeded the authority granted by the parties' agreement to arbitrate" in rendering an award, such an award should be vacated. See Smith v. Transp. Workers Union of Am., 374 F.3d 372, 375 (5th Cir. 2004) ("If an arbitral panel exceeds its authority, it provides grounds for a court to vacate that aspect of its decision."); Townes Telecomms., Inc. v. Travis, Wolff & Co., 291 S.W.3d 490, 493-94 (Tex. App. 2009) (vacating portion of award rendered "in direct contravention of the [parties'] agreement and which exceeded the powers granted to [the panel] by the parties").

24. One way in which arbitrators exceed their authority is by modifying a substantive aspect of a final award after such award has already been rendered. In fact, courts across the country have long recognized, and applied, the following "general rule" to prohibit such modifications: "[O]nce an arbitration panel renders a decision regarding the issues submitted, it becomes functus officio and lacks any power to reexamine that decision." See Colonial Penn Ins. Co. v. Omaha Indem. Co., 943 F.2d 327, 331 (3d Cir. 1991); Hill v. Wackenhut Servs. Int'l, 971 F. Supp. 2d 5, 12 (D.D.C. 2013) ("This means that anything an arbitrator does to modify a final award after it has been issued is without effect because at that point the arbitrator lacks any power to reexamine that decision."). Indeed, the Northern District of Texas, the Fifth Circuit, and Texas state courts have specifically endorsed, and applied, this doctrine. See Weinberg v. Silber, 140 F. Supp. 2d 712, 724 (N.D. Tex. 2001) ("[T]he arbitrator shall not revisit his decision on the merits, as his authority to do so has expired."), aff'd, 57 F. App'x 211 (5th Cir. 2003); Smith, 374 F.3d at 375 ("By modifying the original award, the arbitration panel in this case exceeded the authority granted by the parties' agreement to arbitrate."); Barsness v. Scott, 126 S.W.3d 232, 241 (Tex. App. 2003) ("When the panel subsequently modified its original award, . . . the panel exceeded its authority.").

25. This doctrine is so pervasive that it is codified directly into the AAA's Commercial Arbitration Rules. In particular, Rule 50 of the AAA Rules—entitled "Modification of Award"—states that "within 20 calendar days after the transmittal of an award," the parties "may request the arbitrator" to "correct any clerical, typographical, or computational errors in the award," but "[t]he arbitrator is not empowered to redetermine the merits of any claim already decided." See AAA R-50.

26. Here, the Panel did precisely what it was not permitted to do: It rendered a comprehensive initial Partial Final Award, but then—at Redeemer's urging—issued a series of subsequent decisions to modify that Partial Final Award, in which the Panel redetermined the merits of claims previously decided. This culminated in a new "Final Award" that materially modified, and is at direct odds with, key aspects of the Panel's own prior Partial Final Award. This new Final Award improperly modified the Partial Final Award in two distinct ways.

27. First, the Final Award dramatically expanded HCM's purported liability for Redeemer's claim that HCM had improperly transferred the Barclays LP Interests to Eames. Whereas the Partial Final Award had awarded Redeemer total damages in the amount of $14,452,275 (and prejudgment interest through March 6, 2019) for the Distribution Fee Claim, including for HCM's "improper" transfer of Barclays LP Interests, the Panel elected in the Final Award to grant Redeemer an additional $21,768,743 in damages arising out of HCM's "improper" transfer of the Barclays LP Interests. (Ex. C, FA at 18.) That is not all. The Final Award also awarded Redeemer prejudgment interest on these new compensatory damages—a sum that, on its own, adds yet another $9,042,623 to the mix. (Id.) All told, the Panel's modification of these aspects of the Partial Final Award resulted in a combined total of $30,811,366 in new damages for HCM's transfers of the Barclays LP Interests—an amount Redeemer itself now refers to as the "Barclays Claim." (Ex. A, POC Rider at 2.) On top of these additional liquidated damages, the Panel ordered HCM to "take all necessary steps to cause the improperly taken [] LP interests currently owned and controlled by Respondent through Eames, Ltd to be transferred to Claimant . . . within sixty (60) days from the date of transmittal of this Final Award"—mandatory injunctive relief that is also not mentioned anywhere in the Partial Final Award. (Ex. C, FA at 18.)

28. Second, in the Final Award, the Panel reconsidered its prior ruling on prejudgment interest from the Partial Final Award. The Panel had previously ordered that HCM pay Redeemer a finite amount of prejudgment interest (9% per simple interest annum) "through the date of this Partial Final Award" (March 6, 2019), (Ex. B, PFA at 14), yet the Panel threw that limitation out entirely in the Final Award. After openly acknowledging its prior ruling, (see Ex. C, FA at 14 ("In the March 6 Partial Final Award, we awarded damages and interest through the date of that award . . . ")), the Panel announced in the Final Award that it was doing away with that March 6, 2019 end date and, instead, all such interest would run through "the earlier of the date paid or the entry of a final judgment," (id. at 2, 14). In addition to the $30.8 million in additional damages for the Barclays LP Interests, the additional interest contemplated by the Final Award accounted for at least another $5,698,571 through the Petition Date.[4]

[4] Redeemer's Proof of Claim makes clear that it is also asserting claims for interest accrued post-petition. (Ex. A, POC Rider at 2.) Assuming Redeemer is entitled to any additional interest post-petition (see supra note 4), this $5.7 million figure does not fully capture the impact that the Panel's decision in the Final Award to remove the March 6, 2019 limitation on prejudgment interest will have had on the Redeemer Claim.

29. Under Rule 50 of the AAA Rules, the only way these post-award modifications might have been allowed is if they were legitimate attempts to correct "clerical, typographical, or computational errors" in the Partial Final Award. See AAA R-50. They are not. For starters, the Final Award very clearly contains modifications to address four simple "clerical errors" (all four of which were self-evident typos). (Ex. C, FA at 11-12.) Any suggestion that the two major modifications discussed above were also "clerical" in nature is belied by their sweeping impact. Prior to the Final Award, the aggregate amount of compensatory damages expressly awarded to Redeemer under the original Partial Final Award would have been roughly $142 million (excluding fees and costs and assuming prejudgment interest through March 6, 2019). The two modifications that the Panel made described above, standing alone, immediately add no less than $36.5 million to that compensatory damages sum—more than a 25% increase. In addition to these additional monetary damages, the modifications also impose mandatory injunctive relief purporting to require HCM to take the Barclays LP Interests from Eames and transfer them to Redeemer.[5] (Ex. C, FA at 18.) Redeemer cannot seriously expect any court to view such changes that fundamentally alter—and, in this instance, significantly increase and enhance—the relief granted as a mere correction of a "clerical error."

30. The only explanation the Panel itself has for these major modifications removes all doubt that they were not "clerical" in nature. In the Final Award, the Panel tries to excuse the new damages it awarded relating to the Barclays LP Interests by claiming there was "a paragraph missing from the damages portion" that it had left out of the Partial Final Award inadvertently. (Id. at 9.) But courts have considered, and rejected, this exact "explanation" before. See Wein v.

[5] This aspect of the Panel's ruling—which purports to require HCM to dispose of the assets currently being held by a non-party to the arbitration, Eames Ltd.—is independently subject to vacatur. See Rapid Settlements, Ltd. v. Green, 294 S.W.3d 701, 707 (1st Cir. 2009) (upholding the trial court's decision to vacate an arbitration award "because the arbitrator exceeded his powers in issuing an award against a party not subject to arbitration").

Morris, 909 A.2d 1186, 1198 (N.J. Super. Ct. App. Div. 2006) (deciding that AAA Rule 46, the predecessor to Rule 50, does not allow modifications to address "inadvertent omissions" and "neither expressly states nor suggests that claims denied through inadvertence could also be revisited").

31. In reality, both of the modifications here are simply attempts by the Panel to "redetermine the merits of [a] claim already decided." See AAA R-50. Indeed, both modifications related to issues that had already been directly addressed by the Partial Final Award. Not only had they been addressed, the Panel explicitly found in the Partial Final Award that HCM was liable for both transferring the Barclays LP Interests and for prejudgment interest. (Ex. B, PFA at 53-54.) In the Final Award, however, the Panel—at Redeemer's urging—revisited these same issues and simply arrived at new, different substantive conclusions. The Panel concedes as much. With regard to prejudgment interest, the Panel freely admitted that "the March Partial Final Award contained specific language awarding interest 'through the date of this Partial Final Award,'" but decided to reach a different conclusion in the Final Award because, in its own view, the prior ruling in the Partial Final Award was "not determinative of this issue." (Ex. C, FA at 15.) That, however, is exactly what the Panel cannot do. Where, as here, the panel issued a partial final award as to a particular issue or issues, any partial final award on such issues is rendered, by definition, determinative of the issue. See Fluor Daniel Intercontinental, Inc. v. GE, 2007 WL 766290, at *2-3 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 13, 2007); see also Trade & Transp., Inc. v. Nat. Petroleum Charterers Inc., 931 F.2d 191, 195 (2d Cir. 1991). Since the Partial Final Award here specifically addressed both HCM's liability for transferring the Barclays LP Interests and the amount of prejudgment interest to which Redeemer would be entitled, "the arbitrators ha[d] no further authority, absent agreement by the parties, to redetermine [such] issue[s]" after rendering the Partial Final Award as a matter of law. Trade & Transp., Inc., 931 F.2d at 195.

32. For the above reasons, the portions of the Final Award reflecting these improper, material modifications are examples of the Panel exceeding its authority and are subject to vacatur. Smith, 374 F.3d at 375 ("If an arbitral panel exceeds its authority, it provides grounds for a court to vacate that aspect of its decision."). Accordingly, UBS objects to any and all portions of Redeemer's Proof of Claim that rely on, or relate to, these modifications to the Partial Final Award.

III. ANY VALUATION OF REDEEMER'S CLAIMS MUST TAKE INTO ACCOUNT RECIPROCAL OBLIGATIONS REDEEMER OWES TO THE DEBTOR.

33. In addition to the vacatur issues described above, two of the largest components of its overall Damage Claim against the Debtor's estate—namely, its claims relating to the "Cornerstone Award" and the "Deferred Fee Claim"—are amounts on which Redeemer has no legitimate hope of any real recovery. This is due entirely to reciprocal rights relating to the "Cornerstone Award" and "Deferred Fee Claim" that Redeemer owes to the Debtor itself under the terms of the Arbitration Award, as well as the binding "Plan and Scheme" that governs the conduct of the Crusader Fund dissolution.

34. First, Redeemer's Proof of Claim attributes $71,894,891 of its overall claims to what it refers to as the "Cornerstone Award." (Ex. A, POC Rider at 2.) This is a reference to the order in the Final Award that HCM pay $48,070,407 to purchase the Cornerstone shares from Redeemer at a fair market valuation of $3,241.43 per share (plus an additional $23,824,484 in prejudgment interest). (Ex. C, FA at 17; see also Ex. B, PFA at 48, 55.) Under the terms of the Final Award, however, the obligations with regard to the "Cornerstone Award" run both ways. In fact, the Final Award is clear that "[w]hen the amount awarded for the Cornerstone claim is paid by" the Debtor—including, for instance, pursuant to any confirmed plan of reorganization or liquidation in these proceedings—Redeemer immediately "shall cause the Crusader Fund to tender its Cornerstone shares to [the Debtor]." (Ex. C, FA at 17; see also Ex. B, 55.)

35. In other words, upon receipt of payment by HCM of the "Cornerstone Award" portion of its claim, Redeemer must immediately cause the specific Cornerstone shares in question (which are currently in Redeemer's control) to be turned over to HCM. This remains true even if Redeemer only recovers pennies on the dollar for its overall prepetition claim under any ultimate plan of reorganization or liquidation. What that means is that the true "value" of Redeemer's "Cornerstone Award" claim must take into account the need to immediately give up the value of the Cornerstone shares themselves. Based on recent valuations of the Cornerstone shares in question, the "value" of such claim against the Debtor's estate is far less than $71.9 million. By UBS's estimate, the shares are worth approximately $40 million—potentially more. In all likelihood, Redeemer will tender more in value to HCM when it is forced to turn over the Cornerstone shares than it could ever recover on this portion of its prepetition claims.

36. Second, $43,105,395 of the Redeemer Claim is based on its so-called "Deferred Fee Claim." (Ex. A, POC Rider at 1.) This appears to represent the $32,313,000 HCM was ordered to pay in the Final Award as a result of Redeemer's "Deferred Fee Claim" and $10,792,395 in prejudgment interest. But under the Crusader Fund's Plan and Scheme—contracts to which both Redeemer and the Debtor are parties—Redeemer has no right to retain the full $32,313,000 of such "Deferred Fees." Instead, upon a final and full liquidation of all remaining Crusader Fund interests, such fees will take a "round trip" and the contractual Deferred Fees must be paid back by Redeemer to HCM. (Ex. B, PFA at 9 ("Deferred Fees were annual performance fees payable to Highland but deferred until, as, and when there would be a 'complete liquidation' of the Crusader Funds' assets.").) As with the obligation to turn over the Cornerstone shares, this obligation to pay back the Deferred Fees will likely trigger upon any payment of the allowed prepetition claim amount as a result of HCM's bankruptcy. Moreover, as with its claim relating to the Cornerstone shares, Redeemer will almost certainly end up giving more to the Debtor through this pay-back obligation than it would receive on its "Deferred Fee Claim" under any plan of restructuring or liquidation.

37. In light of these reciprocal obligations owed by Redeemer to the Debtor, the $115 million in claim value that Redeemer's Proof of Claim attributes to the Cornerstone Award and Deferred Fee components is vastly overstated, to say the least. In reality, Redeemer will likely be forced to turn over assets to the Debtor that are worth markedly more than the amounts it might ultimately recover on these components of its overall Damage Claim.

CONCLUSION

38. For the foregoing reasons, UBS respectfully submits that Redeemer's Proof of Claim is improper and overstated and, thus, requests that it be appropriately reduced and disallowed.

DEBTOR'S (I) OBJECTION TO CLAIM NO. 77 OF PATRICK HAGAMAN DAUGHERTY AND (II) COMPLAINT TO SUBORDINATE CLAIM OF PATRICK HAGAMAN DAUGHERTY

COMES NOW Highland Capital Management, L.P., the debtor and debtor-in-possession ("Debtor" or "Plaintiff") in the above-captioned chapter 11 case ("Bankruptcy Case"), filing the Debtor's (i) Objection to Claim No. 77 of Patrick Hagaman Daugherty and (ii) Complaint to Subordinate Claim of Patrick Hagaman Daugherty (the "Complaint") objecting to Proof of Claim No. 77 (amending and superseding an earlier-filed Proof of Claim No. 67) (the "Daugherty Claim") filed by Patrick Hagaman Daugherty ("Daugherty" or "Defendant") on April 6, 2020, and seeking subordination of the Daugherty Claim. In support of the Complaint, the Debtor alleges as follows:

I. NATURE OF THE ACTION

1. Daugherty is a former limited partner of the Debtor and a former officer of the Debtor's general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc. ("Strand"). On May 28, 2009, his employment by Strand was terminated for cause. Slightly over two years later, on September 28, 2011, he resigned from the Debtor. Litigation ensued in Texas state court (the "Texas Action"). The Debtor prevailed on claims for breach of contract and breach of fiduciary duty against Daugherty for non-monetary damages and obtained an award of $2.8 million in attorneys' fees. Each of Daugherty's claims against the Debtor was unsuccessful. He did, however, prevail on a third-party claim against Highland Employee Retention Assets LLC ("HERA"), an employee deferred compensation vehicle. He was awarded the value of his ownership interests—$2.6 million—on a claim against HERA for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing in connection with actions that allegedly deprived him of the value of those interests (the "HERA Judgment"). Daugherty was unable to collect on the HERA Judgment against HERA. Not wishing to return to Texas state court, he sued the Debtor, HERA, and others in the Delaware

Chancery Court (the "Delaware Action"), alleging in part that HERA assets had been fraudulently transferred to the Debtor.

2. The Daugherty Claim attaches and incorporates his operative complaint in the Delaware Action, which was in trial on the Petition Date (as defined below), to which he adds two new claims to reach an asserted total of "at least $37,483,876.62." The Daugherty Claim has the following components:

(i) In the Delaware Action, he sought: (a) to collect the HERA Judgment of $2.6 million plus interest of $1.13 million; (b) a distribution of HERA assets, which he values at $26 million, on account of what he contends is his still-existing interest in HERA, notwithstanding that he was already awarded the value of that interest in the Texas Action; and (c) indemnification for his attorneys' fees incurred in the Texas Action and the Delaware Action under the Debtor's partnership agreement.

(ii) Defamation in a November 30, 2017, press release.

(iii) Indemnification as a former partner of the Debtor for any personal tax liability arising from a pending 2008/09 IRS audit of the Debtor that may result in additional pass-through income to the Debtor's partners. He values this claim at $6,751,902.41, plus interest of $992,790.40.

3. As addressed herein: (i) the Debtor will not object to allowance of Daugherty's claim for the value of his HERA Judgment plus interest to the Petition Date—totaling $3,722,019; (ii) the Debtor objects to Daugherty's $26 million claim for a distribution of his asserted interest in HERA's assets on the basis that it would constitute a double recovery on his HERA Judgment, and in any event could be no more than $4,967,828; (iii) the Debtor objects to indemnification of Daugherty's attorneys' fees in his personal litigation with the Debtor; (iv) the Debtor objects to Daugherty's defamation claim as time-barred under the "single publication rule"; and (v) the Debtor objects to Daugherty's claim that the Debtor is required to pay his personal taxes; furthermore, any such claim approximates $740,000 and not $6.7 million, and any such claim is subordinated under Bankruptcy Code § 510(b).

4. Accordingly, this adversary proceeding is brought pursuant to Rules 7001(1), (8) and (9) of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the "Bankruptcy Rules") and sections 502, 510(b), and 541 of title 11 of the United States Code (the "Bankruptcy Code") to (i) disallow the Daugherty Claim under section 502(a) as unenforceable under applicable law and (ii) subordinate the Daugherty Claim under section 510(b).

II. JURISDICTION AND VENUE

5. This adversary proceeding arises in and relates to the Debtor's case pending before the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division (the "Court") under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code.

6. The Court has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334.

7. This matter is a core proceeding within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 157(b), and, pursuant to Rule 7008 of the Bankruptcy Rules, the Debtor consents to the entry of a final order by the Court in the event that it is later determined that the Court, absent consent of the parties, cannot enter final orders or judgments consistent with Article III of the United States Constitution.

8. Venue is proper in this District pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409.

III. THE PARTIES

9. The Debtor is a limited partnership formed under the laws of Delaware with a business address at 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, Texas 75201.

10. Defendant Patrick Hagaman Daugherty is an individual with an address at 3621 Cornell Avenue, Suite 830, Dallas, Texas 75205.

IV. CASE BACKGROUND

11. On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware (the "Delaware Court"), Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the "Bankruptcy Case").

12. On October 29, 2019, the United States Trustee in the Delaware Court appointed an Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors.

13. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the Bankruptcy Case to this Court [Docket No. 186].[2]

14. On January 9, 2020, this Court entered an Order [Docket No. 339] on the Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 281] pursuant to which an independent board of directors (the "Independent Board") was appointed at the Debtor's general partner, Strand.

15. The Debtor has continued in the possession of its property and has continued to operate and manage its business as a debtor-in-possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. No trustee or examiner has been appointed in this chapter 11 case.

V. OBJECTION TO CLAIM

A. Legal Standard

16. The Bankruptcy Code establishes a burden-shifting framework for proving the amount and validity of a claim. "A claim . . . , proof of which is filed under section 501 [of the Bankruptcy Code], is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest . . . objects." 11 U.S.C. § 502(a). "A proof of claim executed and filed in accordance with the [Bankruptcy Rules] shall constitute prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim." FED. R. BANKR. P. 3001(f); see also In re Armstrong, 347 B.R. 581, 583 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006). However, the ultimate burden of proof for a claim always lies with the claimant. Armstrong, 347 B.R. at 583 (citing Raleigh v. Ill. Dep't of Rev., 530 U.S. 15 (2000)).

[2] All docket numbers refer to the main docket for the Bankruptcy Case maintained by this Court.

B. The Claim for Defamation Is Time-Barred

17. Daugherty asserts a claim against the Debtor for allegedly "defaming him on its website pursuant to its November 30, 2017 press release titled Matt Wirz, Wall Street Journal Fake News, Sloppy and Malicious Reporting."[3] As of the Petition Date, Daugherty had not filed a lawsuit against the Debtor or any other party on the basis of defamation.

18. Defamation carries a one-year statute of limitations. TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 16.002(a) ("A person must bring a suit for malicious prosecution, libel, slander, or breach of promise of marriage not later than one year after the day the cause of action accrues.") The statute runs from the date of first publication of the allegedly defamatory statement on the defendant's website. Glassdoor, Inc v. Andra Group, LP, 575 S.W.3d 523, 528–29 (Tex. 2019); Mayfield v. Fullhart, 444 S.W.3d 222, 230 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2014, no pet.). The "single publication rule" serves to "avoid[ ] the potential for endless retriggering of the statute of limitations, multiplicity of suits, and harassment of defendants, along with the corresponding chilling effect on internet communications." Glassdoor, 575 S.W.3d at 528–529 (internal citations omitted). Accordingly, Daugherty was time-barred from asserting a defamation claim on December 1, 2018.

19. The Debtor believes this issue is dispositive but reserves the right to object on any other basis if necessary.

[3] The press release has been removed from the Debtor's website.

C. The Claim for Tax Indemnification or a Tax Distribution Lacks Merit, Is Overstated, and Must Be Subordinated if Allowed

(i) Daugherty Has No Right to Tax Indemnification

20. The Daugherty Claim has a damages breakdown that contains what is referred to as an indemnification claim of $992,790.40, including interest and penalties, on account of a pending IRS audit of the Debtor. Daugherty states:

> Daugherty is a former senior partner of Highland Capital Management, LP and this claim arises out of a 2008/2009 pending undecided audit/dispute (06252018 0028) between the Debtor and the Internal Revenue Service that remains unresolved.

21. The IRS audit of the Debtor's return for 2007-08 (not 2008-09 as erroneously stated in the Daugherty Claim) resulted in a determination that additional pass-through distributions were required to be made to the Debtor's partners. The audit determination is subject to appeal. Daugherty's 4% share of the additional distributions comes to $1,475,860. Assuming a 35% marginal rate ($440,227), and adding penalties ($88,045) and interest ($212,035), his total exposure approximates $740,307 at this time—not $992,790.

22. Regardless of amount, Daugherty has no right to mandatory indemnification of his personal tax liability as a former partner of the Debtor. Section 4.1(h) of the Partnership Agreement provides for indemnification of limited partners in the "sole and unfettered discretion" of the general partner. It does provide for mandatory indemnification of the general partner, Strand, of which Daugherty was an officer, but that provision is inapplicable to his personal tax liabilities. In relevant part, Section 4.1(h) reads as follows:

> Indemnification. The Partnership shall indemnify and hold harmless the General Partner and any director, officer, employee, agent, or representative of the General Partner (collectively, the "GP Party"), against all liabilities, losses, and damages incurred by any of them by reason of any act performed or omitted to be performed in the name of or on behalf of the Partnership, or in connection with the Partnership's business, including, without limitation, attorneys' fees and any amounts expended in the settlement of any claims or liabilities, losses, or damages, to the fullest extent permitted by the Delaware Act; provided, however, > the Partnership shall have no obligation to indemnify and hold harmless a GP Party for any action or inaction that constitutes gross negligence or willful or wanton misconduct.

23. Daugherty's personal income taxes on distributions received in his capacity as a limited partner of the Debtor do not fall within the Debtor's indemnification of its general partner for "liabilities, losses, and damages incurred . . . by reason of any act performed or omitted to be performed in the name of or on behalf of the Partnership, or in connection with the Partnership's business . . . ." Daugherty incurred personal taxes on his income. The closest nexus to the Debtor would be that an indeterminate portion of that income came from the Debtor. He did not incur any loss or liability in his asserted capacity as a "GP Party," i.e., an officer of Strand, the indemnified general partner. Therefore the indemnity clause does not apply as a matter of common sense and by its express terms.

24. Nor does Daugherty have a claim for a tax distribution from the Debtor. The last Partnership Agreement to which Daugherty was a signatory was the Second Amended and Restated Agreement of Limited Partnership. Distributions are addressed in section 3.9, which provides in part:

> (a) General. The General Partner shall review the Partnership's accounts at the end of each calendar quarter to determine whether distributions are appropriate. The General Partner may make such pro rata or non-pro rata distributions as it may determine in its sole and unfettered discretion, without being limited to current or accumulated income or gains, but no such distribution shall be made out of funds required to make current payments on Partnership indebtedness. The Partnership has entered into one or more credit facilities with financial institutions that may limit the amount and timing of distributions to the Partners. Thus, the Partners acknowledge that distributions from the Partnership may be limited. . . .
> (b) Tax Distributions. The General Partner shall promptly declare and make cash distributions pursuant hereto to the Partners to allow the federal and state income tax attributable to the Partnership's taxable income that is passed through the Partnership to the Partners to be paid by such Partners (a "Tax Distribution"). To satisfy this requirement, the Partnership shall pay to each Partner on or before April 14 of each Fiscal Year….

25. Partners do not have a right to distributions as if they were creditors. That is why section 3.9(a) clearly states that distributions will be limited if funds are insufficient to pay current debt. A partnership agreement is simply an agreement between partners as to when and how distributions may be made if the partnership has the funds to do so. Even if there were such an obligation, the Debtor had not made any distributions that would be subject to tax, and so would have had no obligation at that time to make tax distributions. And even if the Partnership Agreement were interpreted to call for a tax distribution to be made on account of income that is imputed to its partners ten years later as a result of the IRS audit (which is still contingent), the Debtor does not have funds in excess of current debt. Thus Daugherty has no claim for tax indemnification or a tax distribution.

(ii) A Partner's Claim for Tax Indemnification or Distributions under the Partnership Agreement Must Be Subordinated under Bankruptcy Code § 510(b)

26. Even if Daugherty had a claim under the Partnership Agreement, it would be subordinated under Bankruptcy Code § 510(b), which provides:

> (b) For the purpose of distribution under this title, a claim arising from rescission of a purchase or sale of a security of the debtor or of an affiliate of the debtor, for damages arising from the purchase or sale of such a security, or for reimbursement or contribution allowed under section 502 on account of such a claim, shall be subordinated to all claims or interests that are senior to or equal the claim or interest represented by such security, except that if such security is common stock, such claim has the same priority as common stock.

27. Section 510(b) applies to the ownership interests in a limited partnership. See In re SeaQuest Diving, LP, 579 F.3d 411 (5th Cir. 2009); Templeton v. O'Cheskey (In re Am. Hous. Found.), 785 F.3d 143, 154 (5th Cir. (2015); In re Garrison Mun. Partners, LP, 2017 Bankr. LEXIS 3765, *8 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Oct. 31, 2017).

28. Thus, there are three distinct categories of claims subject to mandatory subordination under section 510(b): (1) a claim arising from rescission of a purchase or sale of a security of the debtor (the rescission category); (2) a claim for damages arising from the purchase or sale of a security of the debtor (the damages category); and (3) a claim for reimbursement or contribution allowed under 11 U.S.C. § 502 on account of either (1) or (2). SeaQuest, 579 F.3d at 418.

29. Even if Daugherty had a claim under the Partnership Agreement to cover his taxes, such a claim would be a claim for damages "arising from" the purchase of a security (category 2). The category covers claims arising from not just the purchase itself but all claims arising thereafter as incidents of ownership, except where the claim is genuinely a "debt"—e.g., where it arises from a documented loan or other distinct transaction between the partner and the partnership.

> For purposes of the damages category, the circuit courts agree that a claim arising from the purchase or sale of a security can include a claim predicated on post-issuance conduct, such as breach of contract. They also agree that the term "arising from" is ambiguous, so resort to the legislative history is necessary. For a claim to "arise from" the purchase or sale of a security, there must be some nexus or causal relationship between the claim and the sale. Further, the fact that the claims in the case seek to recover a portion of claimants' equity investment is the most important policy rationale.

SeaQuest, 579 F.3d at 421 (internal citations omitted). In SeaQuest, the Fifth Circuit ruled that a settlement that essentially effected a rescission and, when breached, resulted in a judgment, was nonetheless subordinated under section 510(b). Id. at 423-26 ("For purposes of § 510(b), we may look behind the state court judgment to determine whether the . . . claim 'arises from' the rescission of a purchase or sale of a security of the debtor.")

30. In Garrison Municipal Partners, a redemption claim arising from withdrawal from the partnership was subordinated under section 510(b). The situations identified by the court in which section 510(b) would not apply illustrate why it would likely apply here:

> Debtor's failure to pay the Greens' claim upon withdrawal is a claim for breach of contract arising from the withdrawal. The Greens are seeking to recover their > equity investment. Thus, under Section 510(b), their claim is subordinated and has the same priority as the other prepetition investors.

> The Greens' argument that their notice of withdrawal is a redemption claim similar to those in In re Montgomery Ward Holding Co. 272 B.R. 836 (Bankr. D. Del. 2001), abrogated on other grounds by In re Telegroup, Inc., 281 F.3d 133 (3d Cir. 2002) lacks merit. A redemption claim requires a separate note, see SeaQuest, 579 F.3d, at 423, and must be independent of the partnership agreement. See In re American Housing Foundation, 785 F.3d 143 (5th Cir. 2015). In this case, the notice of withdrawal was not self-executing so as to give the Greens an interest in the assets of the partnership. The partnership agreement required action on the part of the general partner to repay the Greens equity interests.

Garrison Mun. Partners, 2017 Bankr. LEXIS 3765 at *9; see also Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors v. FLI Deep Marine LLC (In re Deep Marine Holdings, Inc.), 2011 Bankr. LEXIS 579 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Jan. 19, 2011) (claims for right of appraisal, fraud, and accounting were causally linked to status as shareholders and so were subordinated); Queen v. Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors (In re Response U.S.A., Inc.), 288 B.R. 88 (D.N.J. 2003) (shareholder cannot avoid subordination under 11 USC § 510(b) by placing risk-limiting provision in stock purchase agreement in order to claim creditor status in bankruptcy proceedings).

31. By comparison, Stucki v. Orwig, No. 3:12-CV-1064-L, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 53139, at *15-19 (N.D. Tex. Apr. 12, 2013) found section 510(b) inapplicable where the claim arose from breach of a settlement agreement by which the shareholders withdrew a lawsuit seeking to compel a shareholders' meeting and election of directors. Id. at *17. The court reasoned as follows: "[I]n both In re SeaQuest and In re Deep Marine Holdings, the claims essentially sought to recover the claimants' equity interests in the debtor. There is no suggestion in the record that the shareholders sought to do the same here. The court therefore concludes that the connection or causal relationship between the Breach Claim and the actual or virtual purchase or sale of any security interests in FirstPlus is too attenuated to bring it within § 510(b)'s reach." Id. at *19. That decision seems debatable, but in any event, it is a far cry from this case, where what Daugherty is effectively demanding is a distribution on account of his partnership interest. Such a claim should fall squarely under section 510(b).

32. Daugherty is asserting a right under the Partnership Agreement to cover the taxes on his distributions from the partnership. To the extent he has such a right, it is an incident of ownership arising from the Partnership Agreement and not from any ancillary transaction such as a loan. It is in the nature of a "partner claim," not a creditor claim, and must be subordinated.

D. The Debtor Does Not Object to Allowance of a Claim for the Amount of the HERA Judgment, but Daugherty Is Not Entitled to a Double Recovery

33. Daugherty was an officer of Strand and a limited partner of the Debtor. On May 28, 2009, his employment by Strand was terminated for cause. On September 28, 2011, he resigned from the Debtor. At the time he resigned, Daugherty owned units of HERA, which was a deferred compensation plan that held interests in certain Highland-related entities. Daugherty owned (and in his view still owns) 19.1% of the HERA units. The other 80.91% is owned by the Debtor.

34. On February 16, 2012, HERA enacted a Second Amended and Restated LLC Agreement (the "HERA Agreement"). Section 12.1 provided that legal fees incurred in a lawsuit relating to the HERA Agreement may be offset against the capital balance of the LLC member bringing the lawsuit.

35. After Daugherty filed claims against HERA and the Debtor in the Texas Action, the Debtor bought out all other members of HERA and, based on Section 12.1, issued a capital balance statement of "zero" to Daugherty for his HERA membership units. On April 30, 2013, HERA assigned to the Debtor all of HERA's remaining assets, consisting of (i) $9,527,375 in limited partnership interests in Highland Restoration Capital Partners, L.P. ("RCP"); (ii) 5,424 shares in stock in NexPoint Credit Strategies Fund ("NHF"); and (iii) $6,338,702 in cash[4] (the "Distribution Assets").

36. In December 2013, the Debtor placed in escrow Daugherty's alleged ratable 19.1% share of the Distribution Assets, namely (i) $1,820,050 in RCP units, (ii) the cash equivalent of 1,088 shares of NHF, and (iii) $1,201,502 in cash (the "Escrow Assets"). The escrow agreement stated that if Daugherty prevailed against HERA, the Debtor would return the Escrow Assets to HERA.

37. Daugherty prevailed against HERA in the Texas Action. The jury found that HERA used Section 12.1 to deny Daugherty the value of his HERA units, that this breached HERA's duty of good faith and fair dealing, and that the market value of the HERA units was $2.6 million. On July 14, 2014, the Texas court rendered the HERA Judgment, comprising a judgment against HERA of $2.6 million, plus prejudgment and post-judgment interest at 5%.

38. Daugherty was unable to collect the HERA Judgment from HERA. On December 1, 2016, the escrow agent resigned and returned the Escrow Assets to the Debtor rather than HERA, leaving HERA without assets. In the Delaware Action, Daugherty asserts, inter alia, claims against the Debtor, HERA, and Highland ERA Management, LLC for fraudulent transfer, promissory estoppel, and unjust enrichment. Daugherty alleges the Escrow Assets were pledged as security against his claims and should have been transferred to HERA and then to him after confirmation of the HERA Judgment on appeal.

39. The Debtor has defenses to the constructive fraudulent transfer claims. It contends there was no transfer from HERA to the Debtor, because it was the Debtor that placed the Escrow Assets in escrow, not HERA. Second, the Debtor claims it could retain the Escrow

[4] No actual cash moved from HERA to the Debtor on April 30, 2013. Instead, this cash number represents the (i) the cash distributions from HERA to the Debtor in 2013, (ii) HERA's repayment of expenses to the Debtor in 2013, and (iii) the cash distributions from the monetization of RCP assets from April 2013 to December 2013.

Assets because it paid HERA's legal fees after April 30, 2013 in an amount ($9 million) exceeding the amount of the Escrow Assets and, therefore, (i) had a right as a creditor of HERA to recoup those fees and/or (ii) gave reasonably equivalent value. The Debtor contends promissory estoppel and unjust enrichment should not apply because a written contract governed the disposition of the Escrow Assets.[5]

40. Nonetheless, after review of these defenses by the Independent Board and based on rulings in the Delaware Action supportive of Daugherty's actual fraudulent transfer claim, the Debtor has determined not to object to allowance of the Daugherty Claim in the amount of the HERA Judgment ($2.6 million), plus prejudgment interest ($279,500) and post-judgment interest to the Petition Date ($842,519), totaling $3,722,019.

41. However, the Daugherty Claim also asserts that Daugherty is entitled to the value of the Distribution Assets, which Daugherty alleges is $26,009,573. This would constitute a double recovery on the HERA Judgment to which the Debtor objects. In addition, the amount is grossly overstated. Under no theory would Daugherty ever be entitled to more than his 19.1% share of the Distribution Assets. Consistent with the opinion of Daugherty's own expert in the Delaware Action, Paul Wazzan, he would be entitled to 19.1% of the claimed value of $26,009,573, or $4,967,828.

42. Moreover, any such recovery should be disallowed as a double recovery, because the HERA Judgment was based on Daugherty having been deprived of the value of his interest in HERA. Logically, therefore, that interest had no further value.

[5] SIGA Techs., Inc. v. Pharmathene, Inc., 67 A.3d 330, 348 (Del. Super. 2013) ("Promissory estoppel does not apply… where a fully integrated, enforceable contract governs the promise at issue"); In re HH Liquidation, LLC, 590 B.R. 211, 285-87 (Bankr. D. Del. 2018) ("[A] written contract defeats a claim for unjust enrichment even if the defendant is not a signatory to the contract.")

43. Daugherty contends that he retained his former 19.1% interest in HERA notwithstanding the award, because the court struck-through language in the judgment that would have made express that Daugherty had no further interest in HERA:

> Furthermore, the Court, after considering the jury's findings regarding HERA's breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, finds and concludes that Daugherty is entitled to relief hereinafter given.
>
> It is therefore further ORDERED that Daugherty have and recover $2,600,000 from HERA, ~~representing the full value of Daugherty's interest in HERA as determined by the jury.~~
>
> It is further ORDERED that Daugherty shall no longer have any ownership or other interest in HERA or any proceeds or accounts arising from Daugherty's prior interest in HERA that were not distributed to Daugherty prior to the entry of this judgment, Daugherty having been awarded the full value of that interest in HERA as determined by the jury.
>
> It is further ORDERED that total amount of the actual damages rendered against HERA herein will bear prejudgment interest at the rate of 5% simple interest from May 22, 2012, until the day before this judgment is signed.
> It is further ORDERED that the total amount of the judgment here rendered against HERA will bear interest at the rate of 5% per annum, compounded annually, from the date this judgment is signed until paid.

44. Although Daugherty divines that the Texas court intended to confirm that he still owns 19.1% of HERA, it is far more likely that the court struck the language because it was outside the scope of the jury's findings, concerning instead the prospective effect of the judgment, which was not before the court. The very nature of Daugherty's claim was that the actions that the jury found had breached the implied covenant and fair dealing had deprived him of the value of his membership units in HERA. Even if those membership units were not extinguished, Daugherty's capital account would have been reduced to zero by the award, entitling him to no further distributions. It would be a double recovery to Daugherty if he also retained that ownership interest and recovered the value of the Distribution Assets again. Such an outcome would be fundamentally inequitable to the interests of other creditors in this case and should not be allowed.

E. Daugherty Is Not Entitled to Indemnification of Fees in His Personal Litigation with the Debtor

45. Finally, Daugherty also asserts two indemnification claims against the Debtor for fees incurred defending claims against him by the Debtor in the Texas Action based on his employment performance, which he states were nonsuited, and for "fees on fees" for prosecuting his asserted right to indemnification in the Delaware Action. It appears from the proof of claim that these claims are represented by two line items of $3,139,452 and $3,479,318. These portions of the Daugherty Claim should be disallowed.

46. The claims in the Texas Action for which Daugherty allegedly is entitled to indemnification, as reflected on the jury verdict (referenced as Exhibit O to the Daugherty Claim), are as follows:

Claim	Description of Claim	Outcome
Highland 1	Declaratory judgment that Highland did not owe Daugherty any compensation or payments under Highland's long-term incentive plan ("LTIP") because his conduct forfeited his rights. Ex. O at 8.	Voluntarily dismissed pre-trial
Highland 2	Breach of employment agreement and a buy-sell agreement relating to purported complaints from other Highland employees about Daugherty and purported disclosures of confidential information that "violated his common law duties to Highland, as well as several agreements between him and Highland." Ex. O at 9.	Jury found Daugherty liable.

Highland 3	Breach of fiduciary duty and a claim of entitlement to "all compensation paid to Daugherty during the time he was breaching his duties, as well as to an award of exemplary and punitive damages." Ex. O at 9.	Jury found Daugherty liable.
Highland 4	A claim for violation of the Texas Theft Liability Act related to purported theft of Highland's trade secrets.	Voluntarily dismissed pre-trial
Highland 5	Tortious interference with Highland's business relations seeking exemplary and punitive damages	Jury found Daugherty not liable.
Highland 6	Defamation related to Daugherty's purported statements about Highland to potential investors	Jury found Daugherty not liable.
Highland 7	Misappropriation of trade secrets and other confidential information, including on behalf of Cornerstone	Voluntarily dismissed pre-trial
Highland 8	Conversion related to purported conversion of confidential information, including on behalf of Cornerstone	Voluntarily dismissed pre-trial
Highland 9	Business disparagement, including on behalf of Cornerstone. Id. at 13-15	Voluntarily dismissed pre-trial

47. The Debtor prevailed on claims for breach of the Employment Agreement and for breach of fiduciary duty, which Daugherty minimizes as "only" having to do with confidential information with no compensatory damages, but on which the Debtor was awarded $2.8 million in attorneys' fees. The Debtor was found to have complied with the Employment Agreement and honored all obligations concerning the LTIP Plan, the HERA Agreement, and severance pay.

48. As discussed above in connection with Daugherty's attempt to be indemnified for his personal tax liability, indemnification of limited partners is discretionary under the Debtor's Partnership Agreement; hence, Daugherty relies upon its mandatory indemnification of the general partner, Strand, under Section 4.1(h). He claims to be a "GP Party," which is "any director, officer, employee, agent, or representative of the General Partner." GP Parties are indemnified for:

> all liabilities, losses, and damages incurred … [including attorneys' fees] by reason of any act performed or omitted to be performed in the name of or on behalf of [the Debtor] or in connection with the Partnership's business … to the fullest extent permitted by the Delaware Act … [except] for any action or inaction that constitutes gross negligence or willful or wanton misconduct.

49. Daugherty claims he is entitled to indemnification as a GP Party because all of his litigation expense was purportedly "in connection with [the Debtor's] business." He contends there is no limitation to defensive litigation expenses, nor any even any requirement that he be successful.

50. Daugherty was a GP Party as an officer of Strand only until May 29, 2009, and he resigned from the Debtor on September 28, 2011. Other than the first non-suited claim, which relates to his personal compensation, all of the claims for which he was not found liable involve actions taken well after he left Strand and even after he left the Debtor, as to which he was not a GP Party. None of the Debtor's claims against Daugherty related to his time as an officer of Strand, when he was a GP Party.

51. Second, Daugherty was not an "agent" for any relevant purpose that would make him an indemnified GP Party for these purposes. None of the actions for which the Debtor sued him were taken at the instruction or on behalf of the General Partner as its "agent or representative." See Fasciana v. Elec. Data Sys. Corp., 829 A.2d 160, 163 (Del. Ch. 2003) (in reference to 8 Del. C. §145, governing indemnification of corporate officers, "I read §145 as embracing the more restrictive common law definition of agent, which generally applies only when a person (the agent) acts on behalf of another (the principal) in relations with third parties."). Furthermore, Delaware "[c]ourt[s] limit[] agency in the indemnification context to only those situations when an outside contractor can be said to be acting as an arm of the corporation vis-à-vis the outside world." Pasternack v. N.E. Aviation Corp., No. 12082-VCMR, 2018 WL 5895827, at *8 (Del. Ch. Nov. 9, 2018).

52. Third, even if Daugherty were to prove he was a GP Party at a relevant time, and even if he were to prove that he was acting in the capacity of an agent—i.e., interacting on behalf of Strand with third parties—decisions under the Delaware General Corporation Law ("DGCL") hold that a director is not entitled to indemnification in respect of employment litigation between the director and the corporation. See Shearin v. E.F. Hutton Group, Inc., 652 A.2d 578, 594 (Del. Ch. 1994) (holding that former officer was not entitled to indemnification for claims relating to breach of her employment contract because those claims did not involve the officer's duties to the corporation and its shareholders); Stifel Fin. Corp. v. Cochran, 809 A.2d 555, 562 (Del. 2002) ("Although Cochran's termination is the event that triggered the relevant provisions of the employment contract, Cochran's decision to breach the contract was entirely a personal one, pursued for his sole benefit.")

> When a corporate officer signs an employment contract committing to fill an office, he is acting in a personal capacity in an adversarial, arms-length transaction. To the extent that he binds himself to certain obligations under that contract, he owes a personal obligation to the corporation. When the corporation brings a claim and proves its entitlement to relief because the officer has breached his individual obligations, it is problematic to conclude that the suit has been rendered an "official capacity" suit subject to indemnification under § 145 and implementing bylaws.

Paolino v. Mace Sec. Int'l, Inc., 985 A.2d 392, 404 (Del. Ch. 2009) (citing the Cochran Chancery Court decision, 2000 Del. Ch. LEXIS 179, 2000 WL 1847676, at *6 (reversed in part on other grounds).

53. The Daugherty Claim anticipates the defense under Cochran that the subject claims were "personal employment-related" claims, and attempts to distinguish it on the basis that the Delaware Revised Uniform Limited Partnership Act ("DRULPA") is more permissive than the DGCL and does not preclude indemnification even when the indemnitee has been adjudged liable to the partnership (if a court deems it fair in view of all the circumstances). If it provides for coverage to the full extent permitted under the law, then it is to be provided unless the partnership agreement or law provide otherwise.

54. Citing Paolino, supra, Daugherty specifically argues that Cochran is inapplicable because his employment conduct was not "personal" in distinction from the compensation issues in Cochran. Regardless, he did not incur losses "by reason of any act performed or omitted to be performed . . . in connection with the Partnership's business" under section 4.1 of the Partnership Agreement. The "by reason of the fact" standard is not met where the claims at issue do not involve the exercise of judgment, discretion, or decision-making authority on behalf of the corporation. Batty v. UCAR Int'l Inc., No. 2018-0376-KSJM, 2019 Del. Ch. LEXIS 114, at *19 (Del. Ch. Apr. 3, 2019) (quoting Paolino). Here, the Debtor's Claims 4-9 related solely to conduct after Daugherty left the Debtor's employ. Daugherty was found liable on Claims 2 and 3, and the Partnership Agreement provides that "the Partnership shall have no obligation to indemnity and hold harmless a GP Party for any action or inaction that constitutes gross negligence or willful or wonton misconduct.")

55. Even if Daugherty were to surmount all other hurdles, even under his construction, any rights to fees would be discretionary. The Debtor respectfully submits that the facts do not support penalizing other creditors by awarding Daugherty fees in his personal litigation with the Debtor on account of his status as an officer of Strand, relating to conduct that had nothing to do with actions taken or not taken in his capacity as an officer of Strand, and largely post-dating that tenure.

56. Finally, Daugherty should have to segregate his attorneys' fees between those incurred on any indemnifiable claims and other claims, in particular those on his counter- and third-party claims. Indemnification under Partnership Agreement §4.1(h) relates to acts performed or not performed by Daugherty (as an agent of Strand) in connection with the Debtor's business. Daugherty's counter- and third-party claims in the Texas Action related to (i) his departure from the Debtor (defamation and breach of employment agreement by the Debtor relating to severance, all of which Daugherty lost), (ii) a separate incentive vehicle called Sierra Verde which was wound down separate from Daugherty's resignation, (iii) claims related to Daugherty's value in HERA, and (iv) claims in relation to his LTIP.[6] Of these, categories (ii) and (iii) related to third-party claims against compensation vehicles, and Daugherty lost claims in categories (i) and (iv). In fact, Daugherty succeeded on only one of his twenty total affirmative claims.

VI. FIRST CLAIM FOR RELIEF

(Subordination under Bankruptcy Code § 510(b))

57. The Debtor repeats and re-alleges as if set forth herein all of the foregoing factual allegations.

58. Even if Daugherty had a claim under the Partnership Agreement, it would be subordinated under Bankruptcy Code § 510(b), which provides:

> (b) For the purpose of distribution under this title, a claim arising from rescission of a purchase or sale of a security of the debtor or of an affiliate of the debtor, for damages arising from the purchase or sale of such a security, or for reimbursement or contribution allowed under section 502 on account of such a claim, shall be subordinated to all claims or interests that are senior to or equal the claim or interest represented by such security, except that if such security is common stock, such claim has the same priority as common stock.

59. Section 510(b) applies to the ownership interests in a limited partnership. See SeaQuest, 579 F.3d 411; Templeton, 785 F.3d at 154; Garrison Mun. Partners, 2017 Bankr. LEXIS 3765 at *8. Accordingly, judgment should issue declaring that the Daugherty Claim is subordinated pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 510(b) and shall, subject to such other defenses or objections as may exist with respect to the Daugherty Claim, have the same rank and priority as all partnership interests.

VII. RESERVATION OF RIGHTS

60. The Debtor reserves its right to supplement or modify this Complaint to assert such further objections, claims, or arguments as may later become available or apparent.

VIII. PRAYER

WHEREFORE, the Debtor prays for judgment as follows:

(i) For the allowance of the Daugherty Claim in the amount of $3,722,019 (the HERA Judgment and interest to the Petition Date);

(ii) For the disallowance of the remainder of the Daugherty Claim in its entirety;

(iii) For subordination of the Daugherty Claim pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 510(b);

(iv) For costs of suit incurred herein; and

(v) For such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

INSTRUCTIONS

The filing of a bankruptcy case creates an "estate" under the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court which consists of all of the property of the debtor, wherever that property is located. Because the bankruptcy estate is so extensive and the jurisdiction of the court so broad, there may be lawsuits over the property or property rights of the estate. There also may be lawsuits concerning the debtor's discharge. If such a lawsuit is filed in a bankruptcy court, it is called an adversary proceeding.

A party filing an adversary proceeding must also must complete and file Form 1040, the Adversary Proceeding Cover Sheet, unless the party files the adversary proceeding electronically through the court's Case Management/Electronic Case Filing system (CM/ECF). (CM/ECF captures the information on Form 1040 as part of the filing process.) When completed, the cover sheet summarizes basic information on the adversary proceeding. The clerk of court needs the information to process the adversary proceeding and prepare required statistical reports on court activity.

The cover sheet and the information contained on it do not replace or supplement the filing and service of pleadings or other papers as required by law, the Bankruptcy Rules, or the local rules of court. The cover sheet, which is largely self-explanatory, must be completed by the plaintiff's attorney (or by the plaintiff if the plaintiff is not represented by an attorney). A separate cover sheet must be submitted to the clerk for each complaint filed.

Attorneys. Give the names and addresses of the attorneys, if known.

Demand. Enter the dollar amount being demanded in the complaint.

Signature. This cover sheet must be signed by the attorney of record in the box on the second page of the form. If the plaintiff is represented by a law firm, a member of the firm must sign. If the plaintiff is pro se, that is, not represented by an attorney, the plaintiff must sign.

ANY RESPONSE SHALL BE IN WRITING AND FILED WITH THE CLERK OF THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT AT 1100 COMMERCE STREET, RM. 1254, DALLAS, TEXAS 75242-1496 BEFORE CLOSE OF BUSINESS ON OCTOBER 8, 2020, WHICH IS AT LEAST 14 DAYS FROM THE DATE OF SERVICE HEREOF. A COPY SHALL BE SERVED UPON COUNSEL FOR THE MOVING PARTY AND ANY TRUSTEE OR EXAMINER APPOINTED IN THE CASE. ANY RESPONSE SHALL INCLUDE A DETAILED AND COMPREHENSIVE STATEMENT AS TO HOW THE MOVANT CAN BE "ADEQUATELY PROTECTED" IF THE STAY IS TO BE CONTINUED.

TO THE HONORABLE STACEY G. C. JERNIGAN,

UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY JUDGE:

Patrick Daugherty ("Daugherty"), a creditor and party in interest in the above-referenced bankruptcy case, hereby files this Motion to Confirm Status of Automatic Stay, or Alternatively to Modify Automatic Stay (the "Motion") pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(d) and would respectfully show the Court as follows:

INTRODUCTION

1. Prior to Highland Capital Management, L.P.'s ("Highland" or "Debtor") bankruptcy filing, Daugherty sued the Debtor, Highland Employee Retention Assets LLC, Highland ERA Management LLC, and James Dondero ("Dondero"), in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware (the "Delaware Court"). On the third day of trial, the Debtor filed the instant bankruptcy case. In addition to the case involving the Debtor, Daugherty also sued Dondero, Highland ERA Management LLC, Highland Employee Retention Assets LLC, Hunton Andrews Kurth LLP, Marc Katz, Michael Hurst, Scott Ellington, Thomas Surgent, and Isaac Leventon in a separate case pending in the Delaware Court. Recently, the Debtor sued Daugherty and objected to his claim in the adversary proceeding styled: Highland Capital Management, L.P. v. Patrick Hagaman Daugherty, Adv. No. 20-03017-sgj (the "Daugherty Adversary Proceeding"). Daugherty seeks to sever the Debtor from the pending litigation in Delaware, consolidate the two cases pending in Delaware, and proceed with his claims against the non-debtors. Although case law holds that severance of a debtor post-petition does not violate the automatic stay, Daugherty seeks confirmation from this Court in the form of an order confirming the status of the stay that his acts in Delaware to sever out the Debtor from the Highland Delaware Case (defined below) will not violate the automatic stay. Alternatively, in the event that the Court believes that the stay needs to be modified to allow for the severance, cause exists to modify the stay to allow Daugherty to proceed in the Delaware Court.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

2. The Court has jurisdiction over this Motion pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b).

3. Venue is proper in this district pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1408 and 1409.

4. The statutory basis for relief is 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1).

I. BACKGROUND

A. The Delaware Cases.

5. Prior to the Petition Date, Daugherty sued the Debtor, Highland Employee Retention Assets LLC, Highland ERA Management LLC, and Dondero in the Delaware Court in a case styled: Daugherty v. Highland Capital Management, L.P., C.A. No. 2017-0488-MTZ (the "Highland Delaware Case").[1] In Daugherty's Second Amended Complaint filed in the Highland Delaware Case, Daugherty explains a scheme contrived by the Debtor, Highland Employee Retention Assets LLC, Highland ERA Management LLC, and Dondero to rob and divert assets that were escrowed for Daugherty.

6. During trial of the Highland Delaware Case (and after the Delaware court found that the crime-fraud exception to attorney-client privilege applied to communications with the Debtor's internal and external attorneys), Dondero and his accomplices' scheme became more clear. As a result, Daugherty filed a separate lawsuit against Dondero, Highland ERA Management LLC, Highland Employee Retention Assets LLC, Hunton Andrews Kurth LLP, Marc Katz, Michael Hurst, Scott Ellington, Thomas Surgent, and Isaac Leventon[2] in the Delaware Court in a case styled: Daugherty v. Dondero et al., C.A. No. 2019-0956-MTZ (the "HERA Delaware Case") alleging fraudulent transfer and conspiracy.[3]

[2] Daugherty notes that certain of these attorney defendants are still advising the Debtor, and in the case of Leventon has specifically consulted and advised the Debtor and its counsel on Daugherty's claim.

7. In response to Daugherty's amended complaint in the HERA Delaware Case, the defendants filed motions to dismiss.[4] Daugherty recently filed his Omnibus Brief in Opposition to Defendants' Motion to Dismiss.

8. Daugherty now seeks to sever the Debtor from the Highland Delaware Case and consolidate the Highland Delaware Case and HERA Delaware Case into one case against the non-Debtors.

B. The Bankruptcy Case and Adversary Proceeding.

9. Three days into the trial in the Highland Delaware Case, on October 16, 2019, the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware (the "Delaware Bankruptcy Court").

10. On October 29, 2019, the United States Trustee appointed an Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors.

11. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Bankruptcy Court entered an order transferring this case to this Court.

12. After the Petition Date, Daugherty filed his proof of claim in an amount not less than $37,483,876.62.

13. On August 31, 2020, the Debtor sued Daugherty in this case, initiating the Daugherty Adversary Proceeding, in which the Debtor objects to Daugherty's claim and seeks subordination of part of the claim.

[4] See Daugherty Declaration at ¶ 5.

RELIEF REQUESTED

14. By this Motion, Daugherty seeks an order from the Court that his request to sever the Debtor from the Highland Delaware Case does not violate the automatic stay. Alternatively, in the event that the Court believes that modification of the stay is required in order to sever the Debtor from the Highland Delaware Case, Daugherty seeks a modification of the stay to allow him to sever the Debtor from the Highland Delaware Case so that he may consolidate the two cases in Delaware and pursue his claims against the non-debtor defendants.

BASIS FOR RELIEF REQUESTED

A. The Automatic Stay Does Not Protect Co-Defendants and Does Not Prohibit Severance

15. The Fifth Circuit has consistently held that the automatic stay does not apply to co-defendants and does not preclude severance of a debtor in bankruptcy from prepetition litigation. See Wedgeworth v. Fibreboard Corp., 706 F.2d 541, 544 (5th Cir. 1983)("the protections of § 362 neither apply to co-defendants nor preclude severance."); GATX Aircraft Corp. v. M/V Courtney Leigh, 768 F.2d 711, 716 (5th Cir. 1985); Matter of S.I. Acquisition, Inc., 817 F.2d 1142, 1144 (5th Cir. 1987). In Wedgeworth, the Fifth Circuit examined (as other circuits have addressed the issue) the plain language of section 362 and emphasized that the language "clearly focusses on the insolvent party." See Wedgeworth, 706 F.2d at 544. The Fifth Circuit continued that its literal interpretation is bolstered by other portions of section 362(a), comparisons to other parts of the bankruptcy code, the statutory text, and similar interpretations by other circuit courts who had analyzed the issue. See id. Because the automatic stay does not protect or apply to non-debtors, and Fifth Circuit law expressly authorizes severance of non-debtor and debtors when a debtor files for bankruptcy, Daugherty respectfully requests entry of an order confirming that his actions in the Highland Delaware Case and HERA Delaware Case to sever the Debtor and proceed against the non-debtors does not violate the automatic stay.

B. In the Alternative, Cause Exists to Modify the Stay.

16. In the alternative, if the Court believes that the automatic stay needs to be modified to in order to sever the Debtor, cause exists to modify the stay. Section 362 of the Bankruptcy Code provides that the court shall grant relief from the automatic stay, for cause, including lack of adequate protection. See 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)(1). In determining whether "cause" exists to lift the stay, courts should consider "the interests of judicial economy, expeditious and economic resolution of the litigation, comity, jurisdiction, and the balancing of the harms between the parties." See In re S.H. Leggitt Co., 2011 WL 1376772, at *4 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 2011). Cause exists to lift the stay to allow Daugherty to sever the non-Debtor defendants and continue pursuing his claims against those parties in the Delaware Court because the automatic stay does not apply to those parties and the other factors commonly considered apply. More specifically, the Highland Delaware Case had already completed two days of trial when the Debtor filed the instant bankruptcy case. Thus, judicial resources, the ability to expeditiously resolve the disputes against the non-Debtor defendants, comity and the harms all weigh heavily in favor of modifying the stay to allow Daugherty to sever the non-Debtor defendants and continue his trial against those defendants in the Delaware Court. Furthermore, the consolidation of the two cases in Delaware will also preserve judicial resources and allow for a more efficient trial of the issues that exists in both cases.

WAIVER OF STAY

17. To the extent the stay needs to be modified, Daugherty respectfully requests that the 14-day stay in Rule 4001(a)(c) be waived. Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 4001(a)(3) provides that "[a]n order granting a motion for relief from an automatic stay made in accordance with Rule 4001(a)(1) is stayed until the expiration of 14 days after the entry of the order, unless the court orders otherwise." See Fed. Bankr. P. 4001(a)(3)(emphasis added). As outlined above, severance of the Debtor does not violate the statute. Further, the Debtor will not be harmed by a severance, as the action severed against the Debtor will remain stayed by the automatic stay. Accordingly, there is no reason why the 14-day stay should not be waived.

WHEREFORE PREMISES CONSIDERED, Daugherty respectfully requests that this Court enter an order granting the relief requested herein and granting such further relief, whether in law or equity, for which Daugherty may show himself justly entitled.

IN THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT

JAMES DONDERO'S RESPONSE TO DEBTOR'S MOTION FOR ENTRY OF AN ORDER APPROVING SETTLEMENT WITH (A) ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P. AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP LLC (CLAIM NO. 23), (B) JOSHUA N. TERRY AND JENNIFER G. TERRY (CLAIM NO. 156), AND (C) ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P. (CLAIM NO. 159), AND AUTHORIZING ACTIONS CONSISTENT THEREWITH
[Relates to Docket No. 1087]

James Dondero ("Respondent"), a creditor, indirect equity security holder, and party in interest in the above-captioned bankruptcy case, hereby files this Response to Debtor's Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with (A) Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP LLC (Claim No. 23), (B) Joshua N. Terry and Jennifer G. Terry (Claim No. 156), and (C) Acis Capital Management, L.P. (Claim No. 159), and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No. 1087] (the "Motion") filed by Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor"). Through the Motion, the Debtor seeks approval of its compromise with Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP LLC (collectively, "Acis") pursuant to Rule 9019 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the "Bankruptcy Rules"). In support of this response, Respondent respectfully represents as follows:

I. INTRODUCTION

1. Under Bankruptcy Rule 9019, the Bankruptcy Court is tasked with making an independent judgment on the merits of a proposed settlement to ensure that the proposed settlement is "fair, equitable, and in the best interest of the estate."[1] While Respondent appreciates the apparent lengths the Debtor went through in coming to terms of a settlement with Acis, Respondent believes it is critical that the Court be as fully informed as possible concerning why and how the settlement was arrived at. Given that just three months ago the Debtor asserted that Acis's claim "should summarily be disallowed in its entirety"[2] as a "$75 million windfall,"[3] it is appropriate for the Court to independently assess the merits of the settlement to understand why the Debtor now believes paying Acis millions of dollars "from the pockets of the Debtor's innocent creditors"[4] to be in the best interest of the estate.

II. BACKGROUND

2. On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of title 11 of the United States Code (the "Bankruptcy Code") in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the "Delaware Court").

3. On October 29, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the "Committee") was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in Delaware.

[2] See Debtor Objection, p. 9.
[3] Id. p. 3, para. 2.
[4] Id.

4. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the Debtor's Bankruptcy Case to this Court [Docket No. 186].

5. On December 27, 2019, the Debtor filed that certain Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 281] (the "Settlement Motion"). This Court approved the Settlement Motion on January 9, 2020 [Docket No. 339] (the "Settlement Order").

6. In connection with the Settlement Order, an independent board of directors was appointed on January 9, 2020, for the Debtor's general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc. (the "Independent Board"). The members of the Independent Board are James P. Seery, Jr., John S. Dubel, and Russell F. Nelms.

7. On July 16, 2020, this Court entered an order authorizing the Debtor to employ James P. Seery, Jr. as Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer of the Debtor. See Docket No. 854.

8. On December 31, 2019, Acis filed its Proof of Claim Number 23 with the Bankruptcy Court (the "Acis Claim").

9. The Acis Claim incorporates the complaint from litigation commenced by the trustee of the former estate in the Acis bankruptcy case (the "Acis Case").

10. In response, on June 23, 2020, the Debtor filed its Objection to Proof of Claim of Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC [Docket No. 771] (the "Debtor Objection").

11. On July 13, 2020, Respondent filed James Dondero's (i) Objection to Proof of Claim of Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC; and (ii) Joinder in Support of Highland Capital Management, L.P.'s Objection to Proof of Claim of Acis Capital Management, L.P., and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC [Docket No. 827].

12. On July 23, 2020, UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch filed UBS (i) Objection to Proof of Claim of Acis Capital Management L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC and (ii) Joinder in the Debtor's Objection [Docket No. 891].

13. On July 31, 2020, Acis responded to each objection in its Omnibus Response to Objection to Proof of Claim of Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC [Docket No. 908].

14. On September 23, 2020, the Debtor filed the Motion seeking approval of a proposed settlement of the Acis Claim under Rule 9019.

III. STANDING

15. Respondent, as a creditor, indirect equity security holder, and party in interest, has standing to file this response and be heard on the Motion pursuant to section 1109(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and Rule 9019 of the Bankruptcy Rules.

16. While neither section 1109 nor any other section in the Bankruptcy Code specifically defines the term "party in interest," section 1109(b) provides a non-exclusive list of entities that fall within the meaning of "party in interest" for the purposes of a chapter 11 proceeding. See Kipp Flores Architects, L.L.C. v. Mid-Continent Cas. Co., 852 F.3d 405, 413 (5th Cir. 2017) ("The Bankruptcy Code does not provide an exclusive definition of a party in interest, but the Code broadly includes debtors, creditors, trustees, indenture trustees, and equity security holders among the parties entitled, e.g., to notice of proceedings in the case.").

17. Specifically, section 1109(b) provides that "[a] party in interest, including the debtor, the trustee, a creditors' committee, an equity security holders' committee, a creditor, an equity security holder, or any indenture trustee may raise and may appear and be heard on any issue in a case under [Chapter 11]." 11 U.S.C. § 1109(b). This section "has been construed to create a broad right of participation in Chapter 11 cases." In re Global Industrial Technologies, Inc., 645 F.3d 201, 210 (3d Cir. 2011) (quoting In re Combustion Engineering, Inc., 391 F.3d 190, 214 n.21 (3d Cir. 2004)). Parties in interest "include not only the debtor, but anyone who has a legally protected interest that could be affected by a bankruptcy proceeding." Adair v. Sherman, 230 F.3d 890, 894 n. 3 (7th Cir. 2000). See also 4 COLLIER ON BANKRUPTCY P 502.02 (16th ed. 2020) ("In the context of a chapter 11 case in particular, the term 'party in interest' expressly includes the debtor, the trustee, a creditors' committee, an equity security holders' committee, a creditor, an equity security holder, or any indenture trustee.").

18. Further, in the context of a court's evaluation of a proposed settlement under Rule 9019, the input and interests of creditors are of particular importance. See In re Foster Mortgage Corp., 68 F.3d 914, 917 (5th Cir. 1996).

19. Here, Respondent has standing to be heard on any issue in this Chapter 11 case, including related to the Motion, because he is (i) a creditor; (ii) an indirect equity security holder; and (iii) a party in interest as those terms are interpreted under the Bankruptcy Code.

20. Respondent is a creditor of the Debtor because he has prepetition claims against the Debtor and its estate, including those asserted through proof of claim number 138 filed by Respondent on April 8, 2020. None of those claims has been objected to as of this writing.

21. Respondent is also an indirect equity security holder through his role as the sole shareholder of Debtor's General Partner, Strand Advisors, Inc. ("Strand"). As the Debtor's General Partner, Strand maintains a 0.2508% partnership interest in the Debtor.

22. Accordingly, as both a creditor and equity security holder, Respondent qualifies as a "party in interest" under the Bankruptcy Code and has the right to file this response and be heard on Debtor's Motion.

IV. LEGAL STANDARD

23. The merits of a proposed compromise should be judged under the criteria set forth in Protective Comm. for Indep. Stockholders of TMT Trailer Ferry, Inc. v. Anderson, 390 U.S. 414 (1968). TMT Trailer requires that a compromise must be "fair and equitable." TMT Trailer, 390 U.S. at 424; In re AWECO, Inc., 725 F.2d 293, 298 (5th Cir. 1984). The terms "fair and equitable," commonly referred to as the "absolute priority rule," mean that (i) senior interests are entitled to full priority over junior interests; and (ii) the compromise is reasonable in relation to the likely rewards of litigation. In re Cajun Electric Power Coop., 119 F.3d 349, 355 (5th Cir. 1997); In re Jackson Brewing Co., 624 F.2d 599, 602 (5th Cir. 1980).

24. In determining whether a proposed compromise is fair and equitable, a Court should consider the following factors:

(i) the probabilities of ultimate success should the claim be litigated;

(ii) the complexity, expense, and likely duration of litigating the claim;

(iii) the difficulties of collecting a judgment rendered from such litigation; and,

(iv) all other factors relevant to a full and fair assessment of the wisdom of the compromise.

TMT Trailer, 390 U.S. at 424.

25. In considering whether to approve a proposed compromise, the bankruptcy judge "may not simply accept the trustee's word that the settlement is reasonable, nor may he [or she] merely 'rubber stamp' the trustee's proposal." In re Am. Res. Corp., 841 F.2d 159, 162 (7th Cir. 1987). "[T]he bankruptcy judge must apprise himself of all facts necessary to evaluate the settlement and make an informed and independent judgment about the settlement." See TMT Trailer, 390 U.S. at 424, 434.

26. While the trustee's business judgment is entitled to a certain deference, "business judgment is not alone determinative of the issue of court approval." See In re Endoscopy Ctr. of S. Nev., LLC, 451 B.R. 527, 536 (Bankr. D. Nev. 2011). Further, the business judgment rule does not provide a debtor with "unfettered freedom" to do as it wishes. See In re Pilgrim's Pride Corp., 403 B.R. 413, 426 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009) ("[A]s a fiduciary holding its estate in trust and responsible to the court, a debtor in possession must administer its case and conduct its business in a fashion amenable to the scrutiny to be expected from creditor and court oversight."). The Court must conduct an "intelligent, objective and educated evaluation"[5] of the proposed settlement "to ensure that the settlement is fair, equitable, and in the best interest of the estate and creditors." See In re Mirant Corp., 348 B.R. 725, 739 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006) (quoting Conn. Gen. Life Ins. Co. v. Foster Mortgage Corp. (In re Foster Mortgage Corp.), 68 F.3d 914, 917 (5th Cir. 1995)).

V. ANALYSIS OF PROPOSED COMPROMISE

27. It is Respondent's belief that, in order for the Court to be fully informed regarding the settlement proposed by the Motion, it is critical that the facts be explored through the adversarial process. To that end, Respondent intends to assist the Court by presenting evidence that addresses the advisability of granting or denying the Motion and that, in turn, addresses the merits of the Acis Claim and the merits of the objections to it.

28. First, the Motion appears to rely heavily on the fact that the settlement will resolve complex litigation that has been pending for years. While all parties can appreciate a settlement that resolves a number of long-running disputes, Rule 9019 requires an analysis as to whether the probability of success in litigation is outweighed by the consideration achieved under the settlement. See In re Jackson Brewing Co., 624 F.2d 599, 602 (5th Cir. 1980) (The Court must "compare the terms of the compromise with the likely rewards of litigation."). Here, the Debtor's Motion does not appear to address this factor in any detail. If the Acis Claim is indeed based upon a "fallacious premise"[6] as the Debtor and others have asserted in their objections, then there may be a strong chance that the Debtor ultimately succeeds on the merits of the litigation.

[5] In re Jackson Brewing Co., 624 F.2d 599, 602 (5th Cir. 1980) ("To assure a proper compromise the bankruptcy judge, must be apprised of all the necessary facts for an intelligent, objective and educated evaluation. He must compare the terms of the compromise with the likely rewards of litigation.").

29. Further, while the expeditious administration of a claim is a laudable goal, that, standing alone, may not justify a proposed settlement. See In re Alfonso, No. 16-51448-RBK, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 2816, at *11 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. Sep. 6, 2019) ("to the extent that this settlement does facilitate expeditious administration of the remaining claim, such benefits are outweighed by the large discrepancy between the potential significant recovery if the case were to proceed and the $105,000 Proposed Settlement amount").

30. To be sure, as noted by the Debtor in the Motion, the litigation between Acis and the Debtor is complex. But the Motion does not appear to address the fact that many of the claims may be subject to summary adjudication. The Debtor Objection, for example, asserts that many of the causes of action underlying the Acis Claim (at least twenty-five separate counts) are subject to summary adjudication based on the current record before the Court. If that is true, a resolution of at least some of these issues could reduce the Acis Claim substantially. In fact, the parties themselves apparently contemplated that not only would a number of issues be promptly brought before the Court for summary adjudication,[7] but that there would be an "expeditious trial setting" where the remaining issues would be determined by the Court.[8] In late July, the Debtor anticipated that such trial setting could even happen before Plan confirmation.[9] And this Court previously entered a scheduling order directing the parties to file motions for summary judgment by September 17, 2020.

[6] See Debtor Objection, p. 3, para. 3 ("Attempted windfalls usually have a fallacious premise, and this one is a $75 million whopper.").
[7] See HCMLP Hearing Transcript, July 21, 2020, p. 111, lines 6-8, 10-14.

31. Even if not all claims are subject to summary disposition, because of this Court's familiarity with the litigation, an adjudication of the Acis Claim may not be needlessly lengthy. There is no question that this Court already has a unique understanding of the claims and facts underlying the litigation. For example, prior to the Debtor's bankruptcy filing, the Court prepared a lengthy report and recommendations to the District Court as to the pending motions to withdraw the reference.[10] While the Debtor Objection raises new legal theories and defenses to the Acis Claim, the Court should be able to analyze those relatively promptly due to its familiarity with the parties, facts, and causes of action involved.

32. Another factor not directly addressed by the Debtor in the Motion is the expense of litigating the claim. The amount to be paid on account of the Acis Claim—as much as approximately $27 million—is likely exponentially higher than the cost to litigate the claim. If indeed many of the claims can be adjudicated through the summary judgment process, the initial cost to trim down the basis of the Acis Claim should not be substantial relative to the potential benefit.

33. Based on the foregoing issues, Respondent believes it is appropriate for the Court to independently address the merits of the proposed settlement.

[8] See HCMLP Hearing Transcript, July 21, 2020, p. 113, lines 19-20.
[9] Id. at lines 22-24.
[10] See HCMLP Hearing Transcript, July 21, 2020, p. 117, lines 21-24.

CONCLUSION

Respondent respectfully requests that the Court independently assess the merits of the proposed settlement and provide him such other and further relief to which he may be justly entitled.

Counsel for the Debtor and Debtor-in-Possession

IN THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
DALLAS DIVISION

In re:	§	Chapter 11
HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P.,[1]	§	Case No. 19-34054-sgj11
Debtor.	§	Related to Docket No. 1099

DEBTOR'S (I) OBJECTION TO PATRICK DAUGHERTY'S MOTION TO CONFIRM STATUS OF AUTOMATIC STAY, OR ALTERNATIVELY TO MODIFY AUTOMATIC STAY AND (II) CROSS-MOTION TO EXTEND THE AUTOMATIC STAY TO, OR OTHERWISE ENJOIN, THE DELAWARE CASES

Highland Capital Management, L.P., the debtor and debtor-in-possession ("Debtor" or "HCMLP") in the above-captioned chapter 11 case ("Bankruptcy Case"), submits this objection to the Motion to Confirm Status of Automatic Stay, or Alternatively, to Modify Automatic Stay [Docket No. 1099] ("Motion") filed by Patrick Daugherty ("Daugherty"), and, to the extent necessary, cross-moves to extend the automatic stay to, or otherwise enjoin, the Delaware Cases (the "Objection"). In support of the Objection, the Debtor states as follows:

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. Almost a year after the Debtor filed for bankruptcy protection, and less than two months before the Debtor seeks to confirm its plan of reorganization, Daugherty asks this Court for permission to pursue claims against certain non-debtor affiliates and individuals arising from the same set of facts and causes of action that form the basis of Daugherty's $37 million disputed claim against the Debtor.[2]

2. Specifically, Daugherty seeks to (a) sever the Debtor from the Highland Delaware Case, (b) consolidate the Highland Delaware Case with the HERA Delaware Case, (c) proceed with the claims against the non-debtors in Delaware, while (d) simultaneously prosecuting virtually identical claims against the Debtor in this Court.[3] For the reasons set forth below, the Motion should be denied and the automatic stay should be extended to the Delaware Cases (as defined below), or they should otherwise be enjoined from proceeding.

3. First, as described in detail below, there can be no credible dispute that the allegations in the Delaware Cases are inextricably interwoven with Daugherty's Claim. Indeed, according to Daugherty, his Second Amended Complaint filed in the Highland Delaware Case "explains a scheme contrived by the Debtor, Highland Employee Retention Assets LLC, Highland ERA Management LLC, and Dondero to rob and divert assets that were escrowed for

[2] The Debtor does not dispute the entirety of Daugherty's Claim (defined below). See Debtor's (I) Objection to Claim No. 77 of Patrick Hagaman Daugherty and (II) Complaint to Subordinate Claim of Patrick Hagaman Daugherty (the "Claim Objection"), filed on August 31, 2020. Specifically, the Debtor has stated that it "will not object to allowance of Daugherty's claim for the value of his HERA Judgment (as defined in the Claim Objection) plus interest to the Petition Date–totaling $3,722,019." Claim Objection ¶ 3.

[3] Capitalized terms not defined herein shall have the meanings ascribed to them in the Motion.

Daugherty." Motion ¶ 5 (emphasis added). While the Debtor is not a named defendant in the HERA Delaware Case (as Daugherty admits, solely because it was filed post-petition), the Debtor is prominently featured in the factual recitation that supports the fraudulent transfer and conspiracy claims, which are themselves derived from the same facts and claims asserted in the Highland Delaware Case. Completing the circle, Daugherty's Claim is expressly based on the Highland Delaware Case. Thus, there can be no credible dispute that the allegations in the Delaware Cases are inextricably interwoven with Daugherty's Claim.

4. Second, based on Daugherty's allegations, there is an identity of interests between the Debtor and the non-debtor defendants with respect to the Delaware Cases, because Daugherty alleges in myriad ways that Highland actively participated in the conspiracy with the non-debtor defendants to fraudulently transfer asserts and aided and abetted the other Defendants in harming Daugherty. Moreover, as alleged by Daugherty, all of the corporate defendants were "controlled" by Dondero.

5. Third, if the Motion is granted, the Debtor will inevitably face substantial discovery burdens in the to-be-consolidated action in Delaware. The Debtor is alleged to have been the recipient of the fraudulent transfers; its employees and in-house and outside counsel are alleged to have structured the alleged fraud; and the Debtor was allegedly the vehicle through which Dondero seized control of HERA. Having allegedly played these roles, it is inconceivable that Daugherty will not seek substantial documentary and testimonial discovery from the Debtor even if the Debtor is severed from the Highland Delaware Case.

6. Finally, Daugherty's pursuit of the Delaware Cases is likely to have a preclusive effect on the Debtor as witnesses testify, facts are adduced, and rulings are rendered by the Delaware Court. If these matters are permitted to proceed without the Debtor, the estate will be at risk of inconsistent rulings and that adverse factual findings are determined. This is exactly the type of prejudice that the stay is designed to prevent.

7. For these reasons, and those set forth below, the Motion should be denied in its entirety and Daugherty should be prevented from prosecuting the Delaware Cases until the Daugherty Claim is finally adjudicated in this Court.

STATEMENT OF FACTS[4]

I. Daugherty was employed by HCMLP, became a Member of HERA in 2009, and resigned from HCMLP in September 2011

8. Daugherty was a partner and senior executive of HCMLP from 1998 until 2011. Daugherty Dec. Exhibit A ¶ 10.[5]

9. Following the financial crisis in 2008, HCMLP created HERA as a compensation vehicle to retain, reward, and incentivize HCMLP's employees. Id. ¶¶ 14-15.

10. Daugherty became a member of HERA in October 2009, subject to a vesting schedule requiring Daugherty to remain an employee of HCMLP until May 2011; Daugherty later became a director of HERA. Id. ¶¶ 18, 21.

11. Under his award agreement, Daugherty received certain "units" in HERA and was HERA's largest interest holder. Id. ¶ 19.

12. Daugherty resigned from HCMLP on September 28, 2011. Id. ¶ 21.

II. Dondero sues Daugherty, takes control of HERA, and transfers HERA's assets to HCMLP

13. In 2012, Highland commenced an action against Daugherty in the District Court of Dallas County, Texas, 68th Judicial District (Dallas), captioned Highland Capital Management L.P. v. Daugherty, 12-04005 (the "Texas Action"). Id. ¶¶ 1, 25.

14. Daugherty interposed certain counterclaims. Id. ¶ 26.

15. While the Texas Action was pending, Dondero caused Highland to purchase the units held by all of the members of HERA except Daugherty. After obtaining control of HERA,

[4] The Debtor accepts the allegations set forth in Daugherty's Motion and supporting documentation as true solely for purposes of the Objection and reserves its right to contest any such allegations in any other procedural context.

[5] "Daugherty Dec." refers to the Declaration of Patrick Daugherty to Confirm Status of Automatic Stay, or Alternatively to Modify Automatic Stay [Docket No. 1099-1], executed on September 24, 2020.

Dondero then orchestrated changes in HERA's governing documents to Daugherty's detriment. Id. ¶¶ 29-33, 37.

16. As a further exercise of control, Dondero then caused HERA to transfer all of its assets to HCMLP. Id. ¶¶ 38-39.

III. Daugherty obtained a judgment against HERA in the Texas Action but could not collect because HERA's assets, and the Escrow assets, were transferred to HCMLP

17. One month prior to trial, HCMLP placed cash equal to the value of Daugherty's interest in HERA—$3.1 million—in escrow. Dondero and others testified that the escrowed assets would be available to satisfy any judgment that Daugherty might obtain on his counterclaims in the Texas Action. Id. ¶¶ 41-44.

18. After a three-week trial, Daugherty obtained a judgment against HCMLP for $2.6 million, plus interest. Id. ¶ 45.[6]

19. The Texas Action was the subject of a lengthy appeal. On December 1, 2016, the appellate court affirmed the judgments of the trial court. Id. ¶ 49.

20. In the ensuing days, Dondero and others working at his direction caused the Escrow Agent to resign and to have the assets held in Escrow transferred to HCMLP in order to deprive Daugherty of the ability to collect on his judgment. Id. ¶¶ 51-52.

21. In February 2017, Daugherty learned that the assets held in Escrow were transferred to HCMLP and that HERA was insolvent. Id. ¶¶ 60-61.

IV. Daugherty commences the Highland Delaware Case but HCMLP files for bankruptcy

22. Later in 2017, Daugherty commenced the Highland Delaware Case against the Debtor, HERA, HERAM, and Dondero in order to "undo the transfer of assets in the Escrow and any other fraudulent transfers from" HERA. Id. ¶ 63.

[6] HCMLP also obtained a judgment against Daugherty in the Texas Action, but HCMLP's judgment is not relevant to the Motion or the Objection. See Daugherty Dec. Ex. A ¶ 46.

23. In support of the Highland Delaware Case, Daugherty alleged, among other things, that (a) Dondero, HERAM, and HCMLP caused HERA "to fraudulently or otherwise transfer its assets to" HCMLP, leaving HERA insolvent (Id. ¶ 5); (b) HCMLP was the beneficiary of the alleged self-dealing transactions (Id. ¶ 8); (c) HCMLP was the vehicle that Dondero used to wrest control of HERA, a critical step in the execution of the alleged scheme (Id. ¶¶ 31-32, 37); and (d) all of HERA's assets were transferred to HCMLP (Id. ¶¶ 38-39).

24. In reliance on the allegations set forth above (and others at set forth in his Second Amended Complaint), Daugherty sued all of the defendants in the Highland Delaware Case for the fraudulent transfer of assets (Id. ¶¶ 73-80), and he sued HCMLP for aiding and abetting HERAM and Dondero in the breach of their fiduciary duties (Id. ¶¶ 100-107); indemnification (Id. ¶¶ 114-117); "fees on fees" (Id. ¶¶ 118-119); unjust enrichment (Id. ¶¶ 120-125); and promissory estoppel (Id. ¶¶ 126-138).

25. Three days into the trial in the Highland Delaware Case, on October 19, 2019, the Debtor filed for bankruptcy in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware; the Debtor's bankruptcy case was subsequently transferred to this Court. Motion ¶¶ 9-10.

V. Daugherty commences the HERA Delaware Case

26. According to Daugherty, "[d]uring [the] trial of the Highland Delaware Case . . . Dondero and his accomplices' scheme became more clear. As a result, Daugherty filed a separate lawsuit against Dondero, [HERA, HERAM], Hunton Andrews Kurth LLP, Marc Katz, Michael Hurst, Scott Ellington, Thomas Surgent, and Isaac Leventon in the Delaware [Chancery] Court in a case styled: Daugherty v. Dondero, et al., C.A. No. 2019-0956-MTZ (the "HERA Delaware Case" [and together with the Highland Delaware Case, the "Delaware Cases"]) alleging fraudulent transfer and conspiracy." Id. ¶ 6.

27. Daugherty's claims in the HERA Delaware Case are based on the same facts as the claims asserted in the Highland Delaware Case. Indeed, in his Introduction to the Verified

Amended Complaint, Daugherty alleges that the Defendants "engaged in fraud, a conspiracy to defraud Daugherty, and civil conspiracy with the goal of defrauding Daugherty and never paying him the compensation he had earned." Daugherty Exhibit B ¶ 3.

28. According to Daugherty, the specific goal of the fraud and conspiracy was to transfer HERA's assets, and the assets in the Escrow, to HCMLP, and that goal was accomplished by the "Defendants and Highland." Id. ¶¶ 4-6 (emphasis added).

29. Highland is implicated by other specific allegations that echo those made in the Highland Delaware Case, including, by way of example only, that (a) the Defendants and HCMLP caused HERA to fraudulently or otherwise transfer its assets to HCMLP, leaving HERA insolvent (Id. ¶ 6); (b) HCMLP was the beneficiary of the alleged self-dealing transactions (Id. ¶ 8); (c) HCMLP was the vehicle that Dondero used to wrest control of HERA, a critical step in the execution of the alleged scheme (Id. ¶¶ 31-32, 34); (d) all of HERA's assets were transferred to HCMLP (Id. ¶¶ 38); and (e) HCMLP participated in the scheme to create the Escrow, and later to transfer the assets in Escrow to HCMLP (Id. ¶¶ 51, 74-79).[7]

30. Indeed, Daugherty summarized the scheme as follows: "Through a series of transactions in early 2013, HERA Management (controlled by Dondero) emptied HERA (controlled by Dondero) of all its underlying assets and transferred those assets to Highland (controlled by Dondero)" for the purpose of defrauding Daugherty. Id. ¶ 38.

31. The factual allegations in the HERA Delaware Case echo those alleged in the Highland Delaware Case, and the same is true with respect to the causes of action asserted. Thus, for example, Daugherty asserts fraudulent-transfer claims in both cases, and each such claim seeks to recover the assets allegedly transferred to HCMLP. The fraud and conspiracy claims also relate to the transfer of assets to HCMLP; as stated by Daugherty in the HERA

[7] In a curious but apparent effort to prove he was defrauded, Daugherty also cites to, and relies upon, unrelated fraud claims asserted against the Debtor by third parties. Id. ¶¶ 99-102.

Delaware Case, the "Defendants aided and abetted the unjust enrichment of [HCMLP] . . . [and] were part of the conspiracy to unjustly enrich [HCMLP] at the expense of Daugherty." Id. ¶ 123.

32. Clearly, the HERA Delaware Case mimics the Highland Delaware Case in most material respects and was brought in an attempt to evade the automatic stay. Daugherty all but admitted as much: As a result of the Debtor's bankruptcy filing, the Highland Delaware Case "is currently stayed and Daugherty is currently not able to bring the causes of action set forth in this complaint against [HCMLP] outside the bankruptcy proceedings." Id. at 4, n.1.

VI. Daugherty's Proof of Claim is based largely on the Highland Delaware Case

33. On April 1, 2020, Daugherty filed a general unsecured, non-priority proof of claim in the amount of "at least" $37,483,876.59, and the Debtor's claim agent denoted it as claim number 67 ("Daugherty's Claim"). Morris Dec. Exhibit 1.[8] There are three parts to Daugherty's Claim.

34. In reverse order, the last part of Daugherty's Claim relates to an unliquidated defamation claim. Id. (Addendum ¶ 3(iii)). That claim is unrelated to the Delaware Cases and the Debtor asserts that it is time-barred. Claim Objection ¶¶ 17-19.

35. The second part of Daugherty's Claim concerns a dispute over an IRS audit; Daugherty appears to claim damages of $992,790.40. Morris Dec. Exhibit 1 (Addendum ¶ 3(ii)). The Debtor contests the amount and validity of Daugherty's Claim or, alternatively, contends that it is subject to subordination under Bankruptcy Code section 510(b). See Claim Objection ¶¶ 20-32.

36. The lion's share of Daugherty's Claim (i.e., all but about $1 million of the $37 million claim) is expressly based on the Highland Delaware Case. Morris Dec. Exhibit 1

[8] "Morris Dec." refers to the Declaration of John A. Morris in Support of Debtor's (I) Objection to Patrick Daugherty's Motion to Confirm Status of Automatic Stay, or Alternatively to Modify Automatic Stay and (II) Cross-Motion to Extend the Automatic Stay in Connection with the Delaware Cases, executed on October 8, 2020, and filed contemporaneously with the Objection.

(Addendum ¶ 3(i)) ("The Claim arises pursuant to . . . [t]he causes of action asserted in the Second Amended Verified Complaint filed by Daugherty in The Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware C.A. No. 2017-0488-MTZ including all attachments referenced therein.")

ARGUMENT

37. Daugherty argues that the automatic stay does not protect co-defendants and does not prohibit severance. Although the stay under Bankruptcy Code section 362 ("Section 362") generally does not apply to non-debtors, the circumstances here warrant an extension of the stay to the non-debtor defendants in the Delaware Cases. In the alternative, the Court should enjoin the prosecution of the Delaware Cases pending resolution of the Daugherty Claim in this Court.[9]

I. The Court should deny the Motion and exercise its discretion to extend the automatic stay to the non-Debtor defendants in the Delaware Cases

38. Section 362 provides for an automatic stay of any judicial "proceeding against the debtor." 11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(1). The purpose of the stay is to protect creditors from unequal treatment and provide debtors with a "breathing spell." See In re Pointer, 952 F.2d 82, 86 (5th Cir. 1992) ("One of the principal purposes behind the automatic stay is to protect creditors from unequal treatment"); In re Cajun Elec. Power Coop., Inc., 185 F.3d 446, 459 (5th Cir. 1999) (citing In re Commonwealth Oil Ref. Co., 805 F.2d 1175, 1182 (5th Cir. 1986) (recognizing that the automatic stay is designed to give debtors a breathing spell from collectors)).

39. Courts have the discretion to extend the stay to non-debtors as well. See Nat'l Oilwell Varco, L.P. v. Mud King Prods., Inc., 2013 WL 1948766, No. 12-3120, at *3 (S.D. Tex. May 9, 2013) ("[C]ourts may also exercise their discretion to stay a proceeding against non-bankrupt co-defendants 'in the interests of justice and in control of their dockets'") (quoting

[9] If the Court declines to extend the automatic stay to the non-debtor defendants in the Delaware Cases pursuant to Bankruptcy Code section 362, the Debtor will rely on its complaint against Daugherty for injunctive relief that it is filing contemporaneously herewith.

Wedgeworth v. Fibreboard Corp., 706 F.2d 451, 545 (5th Cir. 1983)); Mooney v. Gill, 310 B.R. 543, 547 (N.D. Tex. 2002).

40. Courts have found that the stay under Section 362 should be extended to non-debtor defendants if it would "further[] the purposes behind the stay." In re Jefferson County, Ala., 491 B.R. 277, 285 (Bankr. N.D. Ala. 2013). Such circumstances are found where, for instance: (1) there is an identity of interests between the non-debtors and debtor, (2) the proceeding imposes a substantial burden of discovery on the debtor, or (3) the proceeding would have a potential preclusive effect that forces the debtor to participate in the proceeding as if the debtor were a party. See id. at 285.

41. Specifically, "a bankruptcy court may invoke § 362 to stay proceedings against non-bankrupt codefendants where there is 'such an identity between the debtor and the third-party defendant that the debtor may be said to be the real party defendant and that a judgment against the third-party defendant will in effect be a judgment or finding against the debtor.'" Nat'l Oilwell Varco, L.P., 2013 WL 1948766, at *2 (quoting Reliant Energy Servs., Inc. v. Enron Can. Corp., 349 F.3d 816, 825 (5th Cir. 2003)) (internal quotations omitted). Thus, an extension of the stay to non-debtors is applicable where there is "an actual relationship with the debtor such that any judgment would actually apply to the bankrupt party." Blundell v. Home Quality Care Home Health Care, Inc., No. 3:17-cv-19900-L-BN, 2017 WL 5889715, at *2 (N.D. Tex. Nov. 29, 2017) (internal quotations omitted); see also Reliant Energy Servs., Inc., 349 F.3d at 825 (same).

42. A stay of proceedings as to non-debtor co-defendants is also warranted where, for instance, the allegations raised against co-defendants are "inextricably interwoven" with claims against the debtor. Fed. Life Ins. Co. (Mut.) v. First Fin. Group of Tex., Inc., 3 B.R. 375, 376 (S.D. Tex. 1980) (emphasis added). In other words, the automatic stay applies to both the debtor and its codefendants where "the allegations against them arise from the same factual and legal basis." Id. Thus, in such situations, severance is not appropriate. See Abrams v. Integrated Pro Servs., LLC, CV 07-8426, 2015 WL 7458604, at *4 (E.D. La. Nov. 24, 2015) ("Severance or separate trials are not suitable options here due to the fact that the claims by and against [debtor] are inextricably interwoven with the claims by and against his non-debtor co-defendants. Consequently, an extension of the automatic stay to all co-defendants is the most sensible option in this case.")

43. Moreover, severance of claims against the debtor and non-debtor co-defendants is not warranted where, as here, such claims are so inextricably linked such that proceeding separately against the non-debtors would "unduly hinder the efforts of the Bankruptcy Court." Fed. Life Ins. Co., 3 B.R. at 376. As such, any "resulting delay or prejudice" to the plaintiff arising from extension of the stay to co-defendants is "outweighed" by the prejudice that would result to a debtor defendant resulting from severance. Id.

44. Based on the facts and the foregoing case law, the Court should deny the Motion and grant the Debtor's cross-motion by exercising its discretion under Section 362 to extend the stay to the non-debtor defendants in the Delaware Cases.

45. First, as described in detail above, there can be no credible dispute that the allegations in the Delaware Cases are inextricably interwoven with Daugherty's Claim. A plain reading of the relevant documents show that all three disputes are generally based on Daugherty's allegations that the Debtor and the non-debtor defendants conspired to transfer HERA's assets to HCMLP and to otherwise prevent Daugherty from realizing the value of his interest in HERA.

46. Second, Daugherty alleges there is an identity of interests between the Debtor and the non-debtor defendants with respect to the Delaware Cases, because Daugherty alleges in myriad ways that Highland actively participated in the conspiracy with the non-debtor defendants to fraudulently transfer asserts and aided and abetted the other Defendants in harming

Daugherty. Daugherty also alleges that all of the corporate defendants were "controlled" by Dondero. See Daugherty Exhibit B ¶ 38. Finally, if Daugherty obtains a judgment against the non-debtor defendants, one or more is likely to assert that the Debtor has an obligation to indemnify because their actions were undertaken within the scope of their employment and duties and that the Debtor's governing document provides such indemnification.[10]

47. Third, if the Motion is granted, the Debtor will inevitably face substantial discovery burdens in the to-be-consolidated action in Delaware and will therefore be forced to simultaneously participate in two separate proceedings concerning the same facts and claims.

48. Fourth, Daugherty's pursuit of the Delaware Cases is likely to have a preclusive effect on the Debtor as witnesses testify, facts are adduced, and rulings are rendered by the Delaware Court. If these matters are permitted to proceed without the Debtor, the estate will be at risk of inconsistent rulings and that adverse factual findings are determined. This is exactly the type of prejudice that the stay under Section 362 is designed to prevent.

49. For the foregoing reasons, the Court should deny the Motion and grant the Debtor's cross-motion by extending the stay under Section 362 to prevent Daugherty from prosecuting the Delaware Cases until the Daugherty Claim is finally adjudicated in this Court.

II. Alternatively, the Court should exercise its discretion under Section 105 to enjoin Daugherty from prosecuting the Delaware Cases

50. In addition to their power to extend the stay under Section 362, bankruptcy courts also have broad powers to protect the bankruptcy process and, where appropriate, to enjoin actions against non-debtors under section 105(a) of the Bankruptcy Code ("Section 105"), which provides that a court "may issue any order, process, or judgment that is necessary or appropriate to carry out the provisions of this title . . . ." 11 U.S.C. § 105(a).

[10] The Debtor reserves the right to contest any such indemnification claim, but the Court should expect such claims to arise if the Motion is granted and Daugherty obtains a judgment against the non-debtor defendants.

51. Section 105 empowers bankruptcy courts "to enjoin suits that might impede the reorganization process." MacArthur Co. v. Johns-Manville Corp. (In re Johns-Manville Corp.), 837 F.2d 89, 93 (2d Cir. 1988) (citations omitted). Courts in the Fifth Circuit have held that Section 105 is to be "interpret[ed] liberally," so long as any action taken pursuant to Section 105 is "consistent with the rest of the Bankruptcy Code." Feld v. Zale Corp (In re Zale Corp.), 62 F.3d 746, 760 (5th Cir. 1995); see also In re Choice ATM Enters., No. 14-44982-DML, 2015 Bankr. LEXIS 689, at *18 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Mar. 4, 2015) (denying relief from stay and enjoining prosecution of lawsuit collateral to a claim proceeding); Nev. Power Co. v. Calpine Corp. (In re Calpine Corp.), 365 B.R. 401, 409 n.20 (S.D.N.Y. 2007) ("Courts consistently have found that section 105 may be used to stay actions against non-debtors even where section 362 otherwise would not provide such relief . . . .")

52. Courts in the Fifth Circuit apply the following traditional four factors to determine whether a preliminary injunction should issue under Section 105: (a) a likelihood of success on the merits, (b) irreparable injury, (c) a balancing of the equities, and (d) the public interest. See FiberTower Network Servs. Corp. v. FCC (In re FiberTower Network Servs. Corp.), 482 B.R. 169, 182 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2012). These factors weigh in favor of issuing injunctive relief.

53. First, in the bankruptcy context, the "likelihood of success" factor has been understood to require consideration of "the debtor's ability to successfully reorganize." Lane v. Phila. Newspapers, LLC, 423 B.R. 98, 106 (E.D. Pa. 2010); see also W.R. Grace I, 386 B.R. at 33; Lyondell Chem. Co. v. CenterPoint Energy Gas Servs., Inc. (In re Lyondell Chem. Co.), 402 B.R. 571, 589 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y 2009). The Debtor easily meets that prong here as it has a plan and disclosure statement on file with dates for the disclosure statement and confirmation hearings secure.

54. Nor can there be a serious dispute that the Debtor faces irreparable injury if the Delaware Cases are permitted to proceed without it. As set forth above, the Daugherty Claim is asserted for over $37 million, nearly all of which is derivative of the Highland Delaware Case. If the Debtor is severed from that case and it is consolidated with the HERA Delaware Case, the Debtor will be irreparably harmed. Specifically, because the underlying factual allegations against the Debtor and non-debtors are so intertwined, testimony and facts will be adduced that inevitably implicate the Debtor. There is also a significant risk that the court's rulings will have a preclusive effect on the Debtor. An injunction is, therefore, warranted to prevent the risk of an adverse record or collateral estoppel issues against the Debtor. See In re W.R. Grace & Co., 386 B.R. at 35 (taking into account "the risks of collateral estoppel and record taint" in issuing injunction to stay claims against third parties); Union Tr. Phila., LLC v. Singer Equip. Co. (In re Union Tr. Phila., LLC), 460 B.R. 644, 657 (E.D. Pa. 2011) (in subsequent suits, debtor could be bound by "critical factual and legal issues" determined in the proceedings against non-debtor).

55. The Debtor would also suffer irreparable harm in the form of burdensome litigation. For instance, the Debtor's directors, officers, and employees (particularly those who are defendants) will be forced to devote significant time to the Delaware Cases rather than the Debtor's reorganization, and the Debtor's resources will be diverted to that endeavor as well as it will likely be the subject of burdensome discovery requests. Courts routinely enjoin such actions against third-party non-debtor co-defendants in such circumstances. See In re Calpine, 365 B.R. at 412 (enjoining actions against a non-debtor where in the absence of a stay, the debtor "would suffer irreparable harm if [a key employee] were distracted from his responsibilities in [debtor's] day-to-day operations as well as its restructuring effort"); Haw. Structural Ironworkers Pension Tr. Fund v. Calpine Corp., No. 06-CV-5358, 2006 WL 3755175, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 20, 2006) (affirming the injunction of actions against a non-debtor where "the logistical stress on [the debtor] from attempting to simultaneously undertake a massive reorganization while monitoring and producing documents in the [s]tate [c]ourt [a]ction threatened to irreparably impair the company's reorganization process"); see also A.H. Robins Co., Inc. v. Piccinin, 788 F.2d 994, 998 (4th Cir. 1986) (among other things, the purpose of the stay is "to provide the debtor and its executives with a reasonable respite from protracted litigation, during which they may have an opportunity to formulate a plan of reorganization").

56. For these same reasons, the balance of the equities also weighs decidedly in favor of the Debtor. Allowing the Delaware Cases to proceed will risk potentially adverse and conflicting findings against the Debtor and divert the Debtor's attention from its Chapter 11 proceedings and instead to forced involvement in this litigation, all to the detriment of the Debtor's estate. By contrast, Daugherty will not be materially prejudiced as a result of a stay of the Delaware Cases.

57. Finally, granting injunctive relief here is in the public interest because enjoining litigation in the Delaware Cases promotes judicial economy and prevents a substantial risk of inconsistent findings and results. Severance of virtually identically claims against the Debtor and its co-defendants could result in the same witnesses testifying multiple times in two separate courts with respect to the same issues. See Saxby's Coffee Worldwide, LLC v. Larson (In re Saxby's Coffee Worldwide, LLC), 440 B.R. 369, 383 (Bankr. E.D. Pa. 2009) (public interest served where injunction protects claims resolution process by preventing entry of judgment in other cases that would "effectively determine Debtor's rights and obligations" and where issuance of injunction "may lead to the concentration of litigation in the bankruptcy court . . . .") Any hardship that may be caused to Daugherty by enjoining him from litigating the Delaware Cases is, therefore, outweighed by public interest and fairness of judicial economy.

58. For the foregoing reasons, the Court should exercise its discretion to enjoin the prosecution of the Delaware Cases until (i) a plan is confirmed in the Highland Bankruptcy Case or (ii) pursuant to further order of this Court.

CONCLUSION

WHEREFORE, the Debtor respectfully requests that the Court deny the Motion in its entirety, grant the Debtor's cross-motion, and grant such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

COMPLAINT TO EXTEND THE AUTOMATIC STAY OR, IN THE ALTERNATIVE, FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

Plaintiff, Highland Capital Management, L.P., the above-captioned debtor and debtor-in-possession (the "Plaintiff" or the "Debtor"), by its undersigned counsel, as and for its complaint (the "Complaint") against defendant Patrick Hagaman Daugherty (the "Defendant" or "Daugherty"), alleges upon knowledge of its own actions and upon information and belief as to other matters as follows:

NATURE OF THE ACTION AND THE NEED FOR RELIEF

1. This is an adversary proceeding brought pursuant to Rules 7001(7) and 7065 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the "Bankruptcy Rules"), and sections 105 and 362 of title 11 of the United States Code (the "Bankruptcy Code"), to enjoin the Defendant from prosecuting the Delaware Cases brought against the Non-Debtor Defendants (as that term is defined below). Daugherty's Claim against the Debtor is based on the same facts, circumstances and claims asserted in the Delaware Cases.[2]

2. As set forth in detail in the Objection, the Highland Delaware Case, the HERA Delaware Case, and Daugherty's Claim are all based on the same central allegations and claims that James Dondero used Plaintiff to take control of HERA and transfer its assets (including the assets in Escrow that were allegedly earmarked for Daugherty if he prevailed in the Texas Action) to the Debtor so as to deprive Daugherty of what was rightfully his. Daugherty alleges in all three matters that the Debtor was a participant in the conspiracy, a vehicle that was used to execute the conspiratorial plan, and the beneficiary of the conspiracy.

[2] Capitalized terms not defined herein shall have the meanings ascribed to them in the Debtor's (I) Objection to Patrick Daugherty's Motion To Confirm Status of Automatic Stay, or Alternatively, to Modify Automatic Stay, and (II) Cross-Motion to Extend the Automatic Stay to, or Otherwise Enjoin, the Delaware Cases being filed simultaneously herewith (the "Objection").

3. Despite the central role Daugherty alleges that the Debtor played, he wants to pursue claims against others arising from the exact same set of facts that form the basis for his claim against the Debtor that must be resolved in this Court. Such a scatter-shot litigation approach will disrupt the Debtor's (and its employee's) ability to focus on its restructuring; risks binding the Debtor to adverse factual finding and rulings; creates the possibility of inconsistent results; is a waste of the Debtor's resources; and undermines judicial economy—all to the detriment of the Debtor and its stakeholders.

4. Because the litigation of the Delaware Cases is likely to materially affect the Debtor (and may do so adversely) and its efforts to restructure, and because many of the issues they raise have been presented to this Court by Daugherty's filing of his proof of claim and will have to be addressed here, extending the automatic stay under Bankruptcy Code section 362(a) or, in the alternative, enjoining these actions pursuant to section 105(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, is plainly warranted.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

5. This adversary proceeding arises in and relates to the Debtor's case pending before the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division (the "Court") under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code.

6. The Court has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334.

7. This matter is a core proceeding within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 157(b), and, pursuant to Rule 7008 of the Bankruptcy Rules, the Debtor consents to the entry of a final order by the Court in the event that it is later determined that the Court, absent consent of the parties, cannot enter final orders or judgments consistent with Article III of the United States Constitution.

8. Venue is proper in this District pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409.

THE PARTIES

9. Plaintiff is a limited liability partnership formed under the laws of Delaware with a business address at 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, Texas 75201.

10. Upon information and belief, Defendant Patrick Daugherty is an individual residing in Dallas, Texas. Daugherty was a partner and senior executive at the Debtor until his resignation in September 2011.

CASE BACKGROUND

11. On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware (the "Delaware Court"), Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the "Highland Bankruptcy Case").

12. On October 29, 2019, the U.S. Trustee in the Delaware Court appointed an Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the "Committee") with the following members: (a) Redeemer Committee of Highland Crusader Fund, (b) Meta-e Discovery, (c) UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG London Branch (collectively, "UBS"), and (d) Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP LLC (collectively, "Acis").

13. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the Highland Bankruptcy Case to this Court [Docket No. 186].[3]

14. On January 9, 2020, this Court entered an Order [Docket No. 339] (the "Settlement Order") which resolved that certain Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 281]. Pursuant to the Settlement Order, an independent board of directors (the "Independent Board") was appointed at the Debtor's general partner, Strand Advisors, Ltd.

15. The Debtor has continued in the possession of its property and has continued to operate and manage its business as a debtor-in-possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. No trustee or examiner has been appointed in this chapter 11 case.

STATEMENT OF FACTS[4]

A. Daugherty was employed by HCMLP, became a Member of HERA in 2009, and resigned from HCMLP in September 2011

16. Daugherty was a partner and senior executive of HCMLP from 1998 until 2011. Daugherty Dec. Exhibit A ¶ 10.[5]

17. Following the financial crisis in 2008, HCMLP created HERA as a compensation vehicle to retain, reward, and incentivize HCMLP's employees. Id. ¶¶ 14-15.

18. Daugherty became a member of HERA in October 2009, subject to a vesting schedule requiring Daugherty to remain an employee of HCMLP until May 2011; Daugherty later became a director of HERA. Id. ¶¶ 18, 21.

19. Under his award agreement, Daugherty received certain "units" in HERA and was HERA's largest interest holder. Id. ¶ 19.

20. Daugherty resigned from HCMLP on September 28, 2011. Id. ¶ 21.

[4] The Debtor accepts the allegations set forth in Daugherty's Motion and supporting documentation as true solely for purposes of the Objection and reserves its right to contest any such allegations in any other procedural context.

[5] "Daugherty Dec." refers to the Declaration of Patrick Daugherty to Confirm Status of Automatic Stay, or Alternatively to Modify Automatic Stay [Docket No. 1099-1], executed on September 24, 2020.

B. Dondero sues Daugherty, takes control of HERA, and transfers HERA's assets to HCMLP

21. In 2012, Highland commenced an action against Daugherty in the District Court of Dallas County, Texas, 68th Judicial District (Dallas), captioned Highland Capital Management L.P. v. Daugherty, 12-04005 (the "Texas Action"). Id. ¶¶ 1, 25.

22. Daugherty interposed certain counterclaims. Id. ¶ 26.

23. While the Texas Action was pending, Dondero caused Highland to purchase the units held by all of the members of HERA except Daugherty. After obtaining control of HERA, Dondero then orchestrated changes in HERA's governing documents to Daugherty's detriment. Id. ¶¶ 29-33, 37.

24. As a further exercise of control, Dondero then caused HERA to transfer all of its assets to HCMLP. Id. ¶¶ 38-39.

C. Daugherty obtained a judgment against HERA in the Texas Action but could not collect because HERA's assets, and the Escrow assets, were transferred to HCMLP

25. One month prior to trial, HCMLP placed cash equal to the value of Daugherty's interest in HERA—$3.1 million—in escrow. Dondero and others testified that the escrowed assets would be available to satisfy any judgment that Daugherty might obtain on his counterclaims in the Texas Action. Id. ¶¶ 41-44.

26. After a three-week trial, Daugherty obtained a judgment against HCMLP for $2.6 million, plus interest. Id. ¶ 45.[6]

27. The Texas Action was the subject of a lengthy appeal. On December 1, 2016, the appellate court affirmed the judgments of the trial court. Id. ¶ 49.

[6] HCMLP also obtained a judgment against Daugherty in the Texas Action, but HCMLP's judgment is not relevant to the Motion or the Objection. See Daugherty Dec. Ex. A ¶ 46.

28. In the ensuing days, Dondero and others working at his direction caused the Escrow Agent to resign and to have the assets held in Escrow transferred to HCMLP in order to deprive Daugherty of the ability to collect on his judgment. Id. ¶¶ 51-52.

29. In February 2017, Daugherty learned that the assets held in Escrow were transferred to HCMLP and that HERA was insolvent. Id. ¶¶ 60-61.

D. Daugherty commences the Highland Delaware Case but HCMLP files for bankruptcy

30. Later in 2017, Daugherty commenced the Highland Delaware Case against the Debtor, HERA, HERAM, and Dondero in order to "undo the transfer of assets in the Escrow and any other fraudulent transfers from" HERA. Id. ¶ 63.

31. In support of the Highland Delaware Case, Daugherty alleged, among other things, that (a) Dondero, HERAM, and HCMLP caused HERA "to fraudulently or otherwise transfer its assets to" HCMLP, leaving HERA insolvent (Id. ¶ 5); (b) HCMLP was the beneficiary of the alleged self-dealing transactions (Id. ¶ 8); (c) HCMLP was the vehicle that Dondero used to wrest control of HERA, a critical step in the execution of the alleged scheme (Id. ¶¶ 31-32, 37); and (d) all of HERA's assets were transferred to HCMLP (Id. ¶¶ 38-39).

32. In reliance on the allegations set forth above (and others at set forth in his Second Amended Complaint), Daugherty sued all of the defendants in the Highland Delaware Case for the fraudulent transfer of assets (Id. ¶¶ 73-80), and he sued HCMLP for aiding and abetting HERAM and Dondero in the breach of their fiduciary duties (Id. ¶¶ 100-107); indemnification (Id. ¶¶ 114-117); "fees on fees" (Id. ¶¶ 118-119); unjust enrichment (Id. ¶¶ 120-125); and promissory estoppel (Id. ¶¶ 126-138).

33. Three days into the trial in the Highland Delaware Case, on October 19, 2019, the Debtor filed for bankruptcy in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware; the Debtor's bankruptcy case was subsequently transferred to this Court. Motion ¶¶ 9-10.

E. Daugherty commences the HERA Delaware Case

34. According to Daugherty, "[d]uring [the] trial of the Highland Delaware Case . . . Dondero and his accomplices' scheme became more clear. As a result, Daugherty filed a separate lawsuit against Dondero, [HERA, HERAM], Hunton Andrews Kurth LLP, Marc Katz, Michael Hurst, Scott Ellington, Thomas Surgent, and Isaac Leventon in the Delaware [Chancery] Court in a case styled: Daugherty v. Dondero, et al., C.A. No. 2019-0956-MTZ (the "HERA Delaware Case" [and together with the Highland Delaware Case, the "Delaware Cases"]) alleging fraudulent transfer and conspiracy." Id. ¶ 6.

35. Daugherty's claims in the HERA Delaware Case are based on the same facts as the claims asserted in the Highland Delaware Case. Indeed, in his Introduction to the Verified Amended Complaint, Daugherty alleges that the Defendants "engaged in fraud, a conspiracy to defraud Daugherty, and civil conspiracy with the goal of defrauding Daugherty and never paying him the compensation he had earned." Daugherty Exhibit B ¶ 3.

36. According to Daugherty, the specific goal of the fraud and conspiracy was to transfer HERA's assets, and the assets in the Escrow, to HCMLP, and that goal was accomplished by the "Defendants and Highland." Id. ¶¶ 4-6 (emphasis added).

37. Highland is implicated by other specific allegations that echo those made in the Highland Delaware Case, including, by way of example only, that (a) the Defendants and HCMLP caused HERA to fraudulently or otherwise transfer its assets to HCMLP, leaving HERA insolvent (Id. ¶ 6); (b) HCMLP was the beneficiary of the alleged self-dealing transactions (Id. ¶ 8); (c) HCMLP was the vehicle that Dondero used to wrest control of HERA, a critical step in the execution of the alleged scheme (Id. ¶¶ 31-32, 34); (d) all of HERA's assets were transferred to HCMLP (Id. ¶¶ 38); and (e) HCMLP participated in the scheme to create the Escrow, and later to transfer the assets in Escrow to HCMLP (Id. ¶¶ 51, 74-79).[7]

38. Indeed, Daugherty summarized the scheme as follows: "Through a series of transactions in early 2013, HERA Management (controlled by Dondero) emptied HERA (controlled by Dondero) of all its underlying assets and transferred those assets to Highland (controlled by Dondero)" for the purpose of defrauding Daugherty. Id. ¶ 38.

39. The factual allegations in the HERA Delaware Case echo those alleged in the Highland Delaware Case, and the same is true with respect to the causes of action asserted. Thus, for example, Daugherty asserts fraudulent-transfer claims in both cases, and each such claim seeks to recover the assets allegedly transferred to HCMLP. The fraud and conspiracy claims also relate to the transfer of assets to HCMLP; as stated by Daugherty in the HERA Delaware Case, the "Defendants aided and abetted the unjust enrichment of [HCMLP] . . . [and] were part of the conspiracy to unjustly enrich [HCMLP] at the expense of Daugherty." Id. ¶ 123.

40. Clearly, the HERA Delaware Case mimics the Highland Delaware Case in most material respects and was brought in an attempt to evade the automatic stay. Daugherty all but admitted as much: As a result of the Debtor's bankruptcy filing, the Highland Delaware Case "is currently stayed and Daugherty is currently not able to bring the causes of action set forth in this complaint against [HCMLP] outside the bankruptcy proceedings." Id. at 4, n.1.

[7] In a curious but apparent effort to prove he was defrauded, Daugherty also cites to, and relies upon, unrelated fraud claims asserted against the Debtor by third parties. Id. ¶¶ 99-102.

F. Daugherty's Proof of Claim is based largely on the Highland Delaware Case

41. On April 1, 2020, Daugherty filed a general unsecured, non-priority proof of claim in the amount of "at least" $37,483,876.59, and the Debtor's claim agent denoted it as claim number 67 ("Daugherty's Claim"). Morris Dec. Exhibit 1.[8] There are three parts to Daugherty's Claim.

42. In reverse order, the last part of Daugherty's Claim relates to an unliquidated defamation claim. Id. (Addendum ¶ 3(iii)). That claim is unrelated to the Delaware Cases and the Debtor asserts that it is time-barred. Claim Objection ¶¶ 17-19.

43. The second part of Daugherty's Claim concerns a dispute over an IRS audit; Daugherty appears to claim damages of $992,790.40. Morris Dec. Exhibit 1 (Addendum ¶ 3(ii)). The Debtor contests the amount and validity of Daugherty's Claim or, alternatively, contends that it is subject to subordination under Bankruptcy Code section 510(b). See Claim Objection ¶¶ 20-32.

44. The lion's share of Daugherty's Claim (i.e., all but about $1 million of the $37 million claim) is expressly based on the Highland Delaware Case. Morris Dec. Exhibit 1 (Addendum ¶ 3(i)) ("The Claim arises pursuant to . . . [t]he causes of action asserted in the Second Amended Verified Complaint filed by Daugherty in The Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware C.A. No. 2017-0488-MTZ including all attachments referenced therein.")

[8] "Morris Dec." refers to the Declaration of John A. Morris in Support of Debtor's (I) Objection to Patrick Daugherty's Motion to Confirm Status of Automatic Stay, or Alternatively to Modify Automatic Stay and (II) Cross-Motion to Extend the Automatic Stay in Connection with the Delaware Cases, executed on October 8, 2020, and filed contemporaneously with the Objection.

FIRST CLAIM FOR RELIEF
(For Injunctive Relief)

45. The Plaintiff repeats and realleges the allegations in each of the foregoing paragraphs as though fully set forth herein.

46. Plaintiff seeks to extend the automatic stay to enjoin the continued prosecution of the Delaware Cases pursuant to Bankruptcy Code section 362, or in the alternative, pursuant to Bankruptcy Code section 105(a) and Bankruptcy Rule 7065.

47. Bankruptcy Code section 362 automatically stays, among other things, (1) "the commencement or continuation . . . of a judicial, administrative, or other action or proceeding against the debtor that was or could have been commenced before the commencement of the case under this title, or to recover a claim against the debtor that arose before the commencement of the case under this title," 11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(1); and (2) "any act to obtain possession of property of the estate or of property from the estate or to exercise control over property of the estate," 11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(3).

48. Bankruptcy Code section 105(a) authorizes the Court to issue "any order, process or judgment that is necessary or appropriate to carry out the provisions of this title." 11 U.S.C. §105(a).

49. As set forth above, this Court has the jurisdiction and authority to enjoin the Delaware Cases because prosecution of those actions will have a direct and substantial impact on the Debtor's estate.

50. The Debtor is developing a path towards restructuring, and a stay of the Delaware Cases will increase the chances that the Debtor will successfully restructure.

51. If the prosecution of the Delaware Cases is not stayed, the Debtor and its creditors will likely suffer irreparable harm, including the following:

a. Because the Delaware Cases and the Daugherty Claim depend on the same set of operative facts, there is a material risk that (i) there could be adverse findings of law or fact in the Delaware Cases, (ii) Daugherty may argue that the Debtor is bound by any such adverse findings in connection with the adjudication of the Daugherty Claim and/or the Claim Objection, and (iii) the Debtor's right to fully adjudicate the Claim Objection before this Court might otherwise be prejudiced or compromised;

b. Some or all of the Debtor's employees who are non-debtor Defendants are likely to claim that the Debtor has indemnification obligations, and any such claim could adversely affect the Debtor and its estate; and

c. The diversion of the Debtor's directors, offices, and employees who are necessary to the Debtor's efforts to restructure, if such individuals are required to participate in pre-trial and trial proceedings in connection with the Delaware Cases.

52. The harm to the Debtor clearly outweighs any alleged harm to Daugherty from waiting to prosecute the Delaware Cases. Ironically, staying these actions would preserve both Daugherty's and the estate's assets because by adjudicating the Daugherty Claim, certain facts will be resolved.

53. Granting the requested relief would be in the public interest because it would (a) further the Debtor's chapter 11 case by minimizing distractions, (b) vindicate the goals of chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code by providing a stay of pending litigation, (c) preserve the Debtor's assets for the benefit of all creditors, (d) eliminate the possibility of different courts rendering inconsistent findings, orders, and decisions, and (e) promote judicial economy.

54. An injunction staying the Delaware Cases until the Daugherty Claim is finally determined is therefore appropriate.

PRAYER

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays for judgment as follows:

(a) For a determination and judgment that the Debtor is entitled to an extension of the automatic stay pursuant to Bankruptcy Code section 362 and/or an injunction pursuant to Bankruptcy Code section 105(a) and Bankruptcy Rule 7065 enjoining and staying the Delaware Cases until the Claim Objection is adjudicated or pursuant to further order of this Court;

(b) For costs of suit incurred herein; and

(c) For such other and further relief as this Court deems just and proper.

INSTRUCTIONS

The filing of a bankruptcy case creates an "estate" under the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court which consists of all of the property of the debtor, wherever that property is located. Because the bankruptcy estate is so extensive and the jurisdiction of the court so broad, there may be lawsuits over the property or property rights of the estate. There also may be lawsuits concerning the debtor's discharge. If such a lawsuit is filed in a bankruptcy court, it is called an adversary proceeding.

A party filing an adversary proceeding must also must complete and file Form 1040, the Adversary Proceeding Cover Sheet, unless the party files the adversary proceeding electronically through the court's Case Management/Electronic Case Filing system (CM/ECF). (CM/ECF captures the information on Form 1040 as part of the filing process.) When completed, the cover sheet summarizes basic information on the adversary proceeding. The clerk of court needs the information to process the adversary proceeding and prepare required statistical reports on court activity.

The cover sheet and the information contained on it do not replace or supplement the filing and service of pleadings or other papers as required by law, the Bankruptcy Rules, or the local rules of court. The cover sheet, which is largely self-explanatory, must be completed by the plaintiff's attorney (or by the plaintiff if the plaintiff is not represented by an attorney). A separate cover sheet must be submitted to the clerk for each complaint filed.

Plaintiffs and Defendants. Give the names of the plaintiffs and defendants exactly as they appear on the complaint.

Attorneys. Give the names and addresses of the attorneys, if known.

Party. Check the most appropriate box in the first column for the plaintiffs and the second column for the defendants.

Demand. Enter the dollar amount being demanded in the complaint.

Signature. This cover sheet must be signed by the attorney of record in the box on the second page of the form. If the plaintiff is represented by a law firm, a member of the firm must sign. If the plaintiff is pro se, that is, not represented by an attorney, the plaintiff must sign.

ATTORNEYS FOR THE DUGABOY INVESTMENT TRUST

IN THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT

RESPONSE OF THE DUGABOY INVESTMENT TRUST TO THE DEBTOR'S FIRST OMNIBUS OBJECTION TO CERTAIN PROOFS OF CLAIM
[Relates to Claim Nos. 131 and 177 and Docket No. 906]

The Dugaboy Investment Trust ("Dugaboy"), a creditor, equity security holder, and party in interest in the above-captioned bankruptcy case, hereby files this Response to Debtor's First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No-Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-Documentation Claims [Docket No. 906] (the "Omnibus Claim Objection") filed by Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor"). In support thereof, Dugaboy respectfully represents as follows:

I. BACKGROUND

1. On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of title 11 of the United States Code (the "Bankruptcy Code") in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the "Delaware Court").

2. On October 29, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the "Committee") was appointed by the U.S. Trustee.

3. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the Debtor's Bankruptcy Case to this Court [Docket No. 186].

4. On March 2, 2020, the Court issued a bar date order which set the general proof of claim bar date as April 8, 2020. The order also established April 23, 2020 as the bar date for fund investors to file proofs of claim against the Debtor. See Docket No. 488.

5. On April 8, 2020, Dugaboy timely filed its Proof of Claim 131, asserting a claim against the Debtor related to a loan made by Dugaboy to Highland Select Equity Master Fund, LP. As set forth in greater detail below, Dugaboy believes that the Debtor is obligated to repay the loans made by Dugaboy to Highland Select Equity Master Fund, L.P.

6. On April 23, 2020, Dugaboy timely filed its Proof of Claim 177, asserting a claim against the Debtor related to Dugaboy's investments in certain funds managed by the Debtor and the Debtor's actions or inactions in managing these funds.

7. On July 30, 2020, the Debtor filed the Omnibus Claim Objection. Through the objection, the Debtor asserts that a large number of claims identified on Schedules 5 and 6 attached to the Omnibus Claim Objection, including the claims of Dugaboy, should be disallowed in their entirety as purported "no liability" claims. The Debtor asserts that the claims should be disallowed solely on the basis that the Debtor does not show the liabilities in its books and records.

8. The deadline for parties to respond to the Omnibus Claim Objection was initially set for September 1, 2020. Dugaboy and the Debtor thereafter agreed that Dugaboy's response to the Omnibus Claim Objection would not be due until October 8, 2020.

II. SUMMARY OF PROOFS OF CLAIM

A. Dugaboy Proof of Claim Number 131

9. Dugaboy's Proof of Claim Number 131 arises out of a lending transaction that Dugaboy entered into with an entity controlled and substantially owned by the Debtor, Highland Select Equity Master Fund, L.P. ("Select").

10. Specifically, on October 2014, Dugaboy and Select entered into that certain Master Securities Loan Agreement, dated as of October 14, 2014 (the "2014 MSLA"). A true and correct copy of the 2014 MSLA is attached hereto as "Exhibit A."

11. In March 2015, Dugaboy and Select entered into that certain Master Securities Loan Agreement, dated as of March 10, 2015 (the "2015 MSLA", and collectively with the 2014 MSLA, the "Loan Agreements").

12. Pursuant to the Loan Agreements, commencing in October 2014 and continuing until termination of the Loan Agreements in July 2019, Dugaboy made various loans to Select in shares of NexPoint Credit Strategies Fund. The total shares loaned by Dugaboy to Select under the Loan Agreements have a current market value of approximately $29,461,089.

13. From 2015 to the termination of the Loan Agreements in 2019, Select and/or the Debtor partially repaid Dugaboy in shares that have a total market value of approximately $17,419,651. Thus, the total market value of the shares now owed to Dugaboy is approximately $12,041,438.

14. On or about July 23, 2019, Dugaboy and Select executed the Termination of Loan, effective as of July 23, 2019. Pursuant to the Termination of Loan, Select and Dugaboy agreed to terminate the Loan Agreements and commemorate that a large number of shares remained due and owing to Dugaboy under the Loan Agreements.

15. As of the Petition Date, Dugaboy has not been repaid the outstanding shares and remains owed approximately $12,041,438 as of approximately October 1, 2020. A summary of the loan account is attached hereto as "Exhibit B."

16. The Debtor effectively utilizes Select as a brokerage account. In essence, the funds and other assets held by Select are, and have been, utilized by the Debtor in the ordinary course of its business. Accordingly, loans that were made by Dugaboy to or for the benefit of Select have also been made to or for the benefit of the Debtor. Dugaboy believes that the loans made by it under the Loan Agreements were utilized by the Debtor and the Debtor is obligated to repay them as a result.

B. Dugaboy Proof of Claim Number 177

17. Dugaboy's claim number 177 was filed to preserve prepetition damages resulting from post-petition treatment of the contracts and the Debtor's post-petition actions or inactions in managing certain funds in which Dugaboy is invested. Depending on how the contracts are dealt with in the bankruptcy the prepetition and post-petition claim amounts will vary. It is estimated that Dugaboy's damages are not less than $700,000. These damages relate directly to Dugaboy's role as an investor in certain funds managed by the Debtor, including, without limitation, Highland Multi-Strategy Credit Fund, L.P. and Highland Multi-Strategy Credit Fund, Ltd.

18. The filed proof of claim makes clear that Dugaboy's potential claim relates primarily to the "post-petition actions or inactions of the fund investment manager" in managing the funds to which Dugaboy is invested, including the Multi-Strat funds. Specifically, Dugaboy may have claims against the Debtor relating to the Debtor's sale of certain assets, namely life settlement policies and Omnimax, held by Highland Multi-Strategy Credit Fund, L.P. and Highland Multi-Strategy Credit Fund, Ltd. Dugaboy believes that the sale of these assets was improper, did not maximize value, was detrimental to the investors in these funds, and not in the best interest of the Debtor or its estate. As a result of these actions by the Debtor, Dugaboy and the other fund investors have been significantly damaged. Dugaboy's damages as a result of this transaction are not less than $700,000.

19. The filing of this proof of claim was necessary to preserve any prepetition damages that may result from post-petition activity, including the Multi-Strat transaction. In addition, Dugaboy filed this claim to protect its claims and ensure the Debtor is on notice of its potential claims, to ensure satisfaction of the "fund investor" bar date, and to preserve all of its rights, remedies, and potential claims as a fund investor in the Debtor, including as those rights relate to the prepetition Fourth Amended and Restated Limited Partnership Agreement and that certain Third Amended Restated Investment Management Agreement by and between Highland Multi-Strategy Credit Fund, L.P., Highland Multi-Strategy Credit Fund, Ltd., and the Debtor.

20. Dugaboy continues to research and analyze these claims to determine whether asserting an adversary proceeding against the Debtor is proper. Because the potential claims have accrued post-petition, Dugaboy may be authorized to pursue these claims through the filing of an adversary proceeding which, when filed, may ultimately render the filed proof of claim redundant. Notwithstanding, the proof of claim was filed to preserve Dugaboy's rights regarding these and other, similar claims that are accruing against the Debtor related to its actions or inactions as fund investment manager.

III. LEGAL STANDARD

21. Section 502 of the Bankruptcy Code provides, in pertinent part, as follows: "[a] claim or interest, proof of which is filed under section 501 of [the Bankruptcy Code], is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest . . . objects." 11 U.S.C. § 502.

22. The Bankruptcy Code establishes a burden-shifting framework for proving the validity and amount of a claim. "A proof of claim executed and filed in accordance with the [Bankruptcy Rules] shall constitute prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim." Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(f); see also In re Armstrong, 347 B.R. 581, 583 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006). A proof of claim loses the presumption of prima facie validity under Rule 3001(f) of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the "Bankruptcy Rules") if an objecting party produces evidence sufficient to rebut at least one of the allegations that is essential to the claim's legal sufficiency. See In re Fidelity Holding Co., Ltd., 837 F.2d 696, 698 (5th Cir. 1988); McGee v. O'Connor (In re O'Connor), 153 F.3d 258, 260 (5th Cir. 1998). Once such allegations are rebutted, the burden shifts back to the claimant to prove its claim by a preponderance of the evidence. In re Armstrong, 347 B.R. 581, 583 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006).

IV. RESPONSE TO OMNIBUS CLAIM OBJECTION

A. The Omnibus Claim Objection Should be Overruled Because it is Procedurally Improper and Unauthorized Under the Bankruptcy Code

23. First, the Omnibus Claim Objection should be overruled in full because it is procedurally improper and not authorized under the Bankruptcy Code. While styled as an "omnibus" objection pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 3007(d), the basis for Debtor's "no liability" objection is not found in the rule.

24. Rule 3007(d) specifies a limited number of grounds for which the omnibus claim objection procedure can be utilized. Those grounds are limited to the following:

(1) they duplicate other claims;

(2) they have been filed in the wrong case;

(3) they have been amended by subsequently filed proofs of claim;

(4) they were not timely filed;

(5) they have been satisfied or released during the case in accordance with the Code, applicable rules, or a court order;

(6) they were presented in a form that does not comply with applicable rules, and the objection states that the objector is unable to determine the validity of the claim because of the noncompliance;

(7) they are interests, rather than claims; or

(8) they assert priority in an amount that exceeds the maximum amount under §507 of the Code.

Fed R. Bankr. P. 3007(d).[1]

25. As is evident, so-called "no liability" claims are not included in Rule 3007(d) as a basis for which the omnibus claim objection process can be utilized.

26. Here, without authority or justification, the Debtor is attempting to utilize the omnibus claim objection procedure to potentially rid itself of a number of claims without following proper procedures or allowing for due process for the individual claimants.

27. Allowing a debtor to bypass the procedural safeguards of the Bankruptcy Rules to obtain the disallowance of a proof of claim based solely on an unsupported conclusory statement violates due process and conflicts with the burden-shifting framework provided by the Bankruptcy Code and Rules. If the Debtor desires to dispute the validity of a proof of claim, it should be required to file individual substantive objections as required by the Bankruptcy Code and Bankruptcy Rules.

[1] The applicable local rule, L.B.R. 3007-2, outlines additional procedures for the making of omnibus objections to claims but does not include any additional grounds on which omnibus claim objections can be brought.

28. Because the Omnibus Claim Objection is procedurally improper and not authorized under the Bankruptcy Code, it should be overruled in its entirety.

B. The Debtor has Failed to Rebut the Prima Facie Validity of Dugaboy's Claims, and Evidence in Support of the Claims has been Provided

29. Even if the Omnibus Claim Objection can be maintained as currently put forth, the Debtor has failed to meet its initial burden to rebut the prima facie validity of Dugaboy's Claims. Accordingly, the Omnibus Claim Objection should be overruled.

30. Debtor's Omnibus Claim Objection fails to put forward any evidence regarding Dugaboy's Claims. Instead, the Omnibus Claim Objection contains a conclusory denial of the validity of the Dugaboy's Claims. It fails to refute or address the legal sufficiency of Dugaboy's claims. It is improper for the Debtor to attempt to avoid legitimate claims with a one-sentence, unsupported denial that does not respond to the merits of the claims. The Omnibus Claim Objection should be overruled as to Dugaboy's Proofs of Claim as failing to satisfy the minimum legal requirements to object to a claim.

31. Even if the Debtor has rebutted the prima facie validity of Dugaboy's claims, Dugaboy's claims, as described in detail above, are valid and Dugaboy can prove its claims by a preponderance of the evidence.

32. First, as to Claim Number 131, Dugaboy has provided evidence of the lending transaction with Select and of the amounts owed Dugaboy under the loan. Further, because of the Debtor's ownership and control of Select, and of Debtor's utilization of Select and Select's funds and other assets, including the shares and/or funds loaned by Dugaboy, the Debtor is liable to repay the loans made by Dugaboy. The current market value of the shares owed to Dugaboy is $12,041,438.

33. Second, as to Claim Number 177, Dugaboy has explained that this claim primarily relates to the post-petition actions or inactions of the Debtor in managing certain funds in which Dugaboy is invested, including Highland Multi-Strategy Credit Fund, L.P. and Highland Multi-Strategy Credit Fund, Ltd.

34. Specifically, Dugaboy may have claims against the Debtor relating to the Debtor's sale of certain assets, namely life settlement policies and Omnimax, held by Highland Multi-Strategy Credit Fund, L.P. and Highland Multi-Strategy Credit Fund, Ltd. Dugaboy believes that the sale of these assets was improper, did not maximize value, was detrimental to the investors in these funds, and not in the best interest of the Debtor or its estate. As a result of these actions by the Debtor, Dugaboy and the other fund investors have been significantly damaged. Dugaboy's damages are not less than $700,000.

35. Dugaboy filed Claim 177 to protect these claims and ensure the Debtor is on notice of its potential claims, to ensure satisfaction of the "fund investor" bar date, and to preserve all of its rights, remedies, and potential claims as a fund investor in the Debtor, including as those rights relate to the prepetition Fourth Amended and Restated Limited Partnership Agreement and that certain Third Amended Restated Investment Management Agreement by and between Highland Multi-Strategy Credit Fund, L.P., Highland Multi-Strategy Credit Fund, Ltd., and the Debtor.

36. As stated above, Dugaboy continues to research and analyze these claims to determine whether the filing of an adversary proceeding against the Debtor for these post-petition actions is proper.

37. Because both of Dugaboy's claims are prima facie valid and sufficient evidence has been advanced in support of these claims, the Omnibus Claim Objection should be overruled.

C. In the Alternative, the Court Should Grant Dugaboy Leave to Amend the Proofs of Claim and to Conduct Discovery

38. In the alternative, Dugaboy requests that the Court (i) provide Dugaboy with leave to amend its proofs of claim; and (ii) grant Dugaboy the opportunity to conduct discovery, as necessary, concerning its claims. Alongside the filing of this response, Dugaboy will be filing a Motion for Leave to Amend its Proofs of Claim. It is hoped that by amending its claims to include greater particularity that the Debtor and Dugaboy can ultimately reach a consensual resolution of the claims.

39. "Amendments to timely creditor proofs of claim have been liberally permitted to cure a defect in the claim as originally filed, to describe the claim with greater particularity or to plead a new theory of recovery on the facts set forth in the original claim." United States (IRS) v. Kolstad (In re Kolstad), 928 F.2d 171, 175 (5th Cir. 1991) (internal quotations omitted).

40. In this case, while Dugaboy believes its claims are prima facie valid as filed, and that Dugaboy can prove its claims by a preponderance of the evidence at any claim objection hearing, Dugaboy seeks leave of Court to amend its proofs of claim to describe the claims with greater particularity and cure any ministerial defects in the claims. Dugaboy believes that amending the claims may provide greater clarity and ultimately assist the parties in narrowing down the disputed issues and resolving the claim objections.

41. To the extent that the claim objection process goes forward, Dugaboy further requests that the Court allow ample time for Dugaboy to conduct discovery concerning its claims. Given the potential legal and factual issues involved, it is likely that significant discovery will be required by both parties.

CONCLUSION AND PRAYER

Dugaboy respectfully requests that the Court enter an order (i) overruling the Omnibus Claim Objection; and/or (ii) providing Dugaboy with leave to amend its claims and to take discovery concerning its claims; and (iii) providing Dugaboy with such further relief to which it may be justly entitled.

EXHIBIT A

Master Securities Loan Agreement

2000 Version

Dated as of: October 14, 2014

Between: The Dugaboy Investment Trust and Highland Select Equity Master Fund, L.P.

1. Applicability.

From time to time the parties hereto may enter into transactions in which one party ("Lender") will lend to the other party ("Borrower") certain Securities (as defined herein) against a transfer of Collateral (as defined herein). Each such transaction shall be referred to herein as a "Loan" and, unless otherwise agreed in writing, shall be governed by this Agreement, including any supplemental terms or conditions contained in an Annex or Schedule hereto and in any other annexes identified herein or therein as applicable hereunder. Capitalized terms not otherwise defined herein shall have the meanings provided in Section 25.

2. Loans of Securities.

2.1 Subject to the terms and conditions of this Agreement, Borrower or Lender may, from time to time, seek to initiate a transaction in which Lender will lend Securities to Borrower. Borrower and Lender shall agree on the terms of each Loan (which terms may be amended during the Loan), including the issuer of the Securities, the amount of Securities to be lent, the basis of compensation, the amount of Collateral to be transferred by Borrower, and any additional terms. Such agreement shall be confirmed (a) by a schedule and receipt listing the Loaned Securities provided by Borrower to Lender in accordance with Section 3.2, (b) through any system that compares Loans and in which Borrower and Lender are participants, or (c) in such other manner as may be agreed by Borrower and Lender in writing. Such confirmation (the "Confirmation"), together with the Agreement, shall constitute conclusive evidence of the terms agreed between Borrower and Lender with respect to the Loan to which the Confirmation relates, unless with respect to the Confirmation specific objection is made promptly after receipt thereof. In the event of any inconsistency between the terms of such Confirmation and this Agreement, this Agreement shall prevail unless each party has executed such Confirmation.

2.2 Notwithstanding any other provision in this Agreement regarding when a Loan commences, unless otherwise agreed, a Loan hereunder shall not occur until the Loaned Securities and the Collateral therefor have been transferred in accordance with Section 15.

3. Transfer of Loaned Securities.

3.1 Unless otherwise agreed, Lender shall transfer Loaned Securities to Borrower hereunder on or before the Cutoff Time on the date agreed to by Borrower and Lender for the commencement of the Loan.

3.2 Unless otherwise agreed, Borrower shall provide Lender, for each Loan in which Lender is a Customer, with a schedule and receipt listing the Loaned Securities. Such schedule and receipt may consist of (a) a schedule provided to Borrower by Lender and executed and returned by Borrower when the Loaned Securities are received, (b) in the case of Securities transferred through a Clearing Organization which provides transferors with a notice evidencing such transfer, such notice, or (c) a confirmation or other document provided to Lender by Borrower.

3.3 Notwithstanding any other provision in this Agreement, the parties hereto agree that they intend the Loans hereunder to be loans of Securities. If, however, any Loan is deemed to be a loan of money by Borrower to Lender, then Borrower shall have, and Lender shall be deemed to have granted, a security interest in the Loaned Securities and the proceeds thereof.

4. Collateral.

4.1 Unless otherwise agreed, Borrower shall, prior to or concurrently with the transfer of the Loaned Securities to Borrower, but in no case later than the Close of Business on the day of such transfer, transfer to Lender Collateral with a Market Value at least equal to the Margin Percentage of the Market Value of the Loaned Securities.

4.2 The Collateral transferred by Borrower to Lender, as adjusted pursuant to Section 9, shall be security for Borrower's obligations in respect of such Loan and for any other obligations of Borrower to Lender hereunder. Borrower hereby pledges with, assigns to, and grants Lender a continuing first priority security interest in, and a lien upon, the Collateral, which shall attach upon the transfer of the Loaned Securities by Lender to Borrower and which shall cease upon the transfer of the Loaned Securities by Borrower to Lender. In addition to the rights and remedies given to Lender hereunder, Lender shall have all the rights and remedies of a secured party under the UCC. It is understood that Lender may use or invest the Collateral, if such consists of cash, at its own risk, but that (unless Lender is a Broker-Dealer) Lender shall, during the term of any Loan hereunder, segregate Collateral from all securities or other assets in its possession. Lender may Retransfer Collateral only (a) if Lender is a Broker-Dealer or (b) in the event of a Default by Borrower. Segregation of Collateral may be accomplished by appropriate identification on the books and records of Lender if it is a "securities intermediary" within the meaning of the UCC.

4.3 Except as otherwise provided herein, upon transfer to Lender of the Loaned Securities on the day a Loan is terminated pursuant to Section 6, Lender shall be obligated to transfer the Collateral (as adjusted pursuant to Section 9) to Borrower no later than the Cutoff Time on such day or, if such day is not a day on which a transfer of such Collateral may be effected under Section 15, the next day on which such a transfer may be effected.

4.4 If Borrower transfers Collateral to Lender, as provided in Section 4.1, and Lender does not transfer the Loaned Securities to Borrower, Borrower shall have the absolute right to the return of the Collateral; and if Lender transfers Loaned Securities to Borrower and Borrower does not transfer Collateral to Lender as provided in Section 4.1, Lender shall have the absolute right to the return of the Loaned Securities.

4.5 Borrower may, upon reasonable notice to Lender (taking into account all relevant factors, including industry practice, the type of Collateral to be substituted, and the applicable method of transfer), substitute Collateral for Collateral securing any Loan or Loans; provided, however, that such substituted Collateral shall (a) consist only of cash, securities or other property that Borrower and Lender agreed would be acceptable Collateral prior to the Loan or Loans and (b) have a Market Value such that the aggregate Market Value of such substituted Collateral, together with all other Collateral for Loans in which the party substituting such Collateral is acting as Borrower, shall equal or exceed the agreed upon Margin Percentage of the Market Value of the Loaned Securities.

4.6 Prior to the expiration of any letter of credit supporting Borrower's obligations hereunder, Borrower shall, no later than the Extension Deadline, (a) obtain an extension of the expiration of such letter of credit, (b) replace such letter of credit by providing Lender with a substitute letter of credit in an amount at least equal to the amount of the letter of credit for which it is substituted, or (c) transfer such other Collateral to Lender as may be acceptable to Lender.

5. Fees for Loan.

5.1 Unless otherwise agreed, (a) Borrower agrees to pay Lender a loan fee (a "Loan Fee"), computed daily on each Loan to the extent such Loan is secured by Collateral other than cash, based on the aggregate Market Value of the Loaned Securities on the day for which such Loan Fee is being computed, and (b) Lender agrees to pay Borrower a fee or rebate (a "Cash Collateral Fee") on Collateral consisting of cash, computed daily based on the amount of cash held by Lender as Collateral, in the case of each of the Loan Fee and the Cash Collateral Fee at such rates as Borrower and Lender may agree. Except as Borrower and Lender may otherwise agree (in the event that cash Collateral is transferred by clearing house funds or otherwise), Loan Fees shall accrue from and including the date on which the Loaned Securities are transferred to Borrower to, but excluding, the date on which such Loaned Securities are returned to Lender, and Cash Collateral Fees shall accrue from and including the date on which the cash Collateral is transferred to Lender to, but excluding, the date on which such cash Collateral is returned to Borrower.

5.2 Unless otherwise agreed, any Loan Fee or Cash Collateral Fee payable hereunder shall be payable:

(a) in the case of any Loan of Securities other than Government Securities, upon the earlier of (i) the fifteenth day of the month following the calendar month in which such fee was incurred and (ii) the termination of all Loans hereunder (or, if a transfer of cash in accordance with Section 15 may not be effected on such fifteenth day or the day of such termination, as the case may be, the next day on which such a transfer may be effected); and

(b) in the case of any Loan of Government Securities, upon the termination of such Loan and at such other times, if any, as may be customary in accordance with market practice.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, all Loan Fees shall be payable by Borrower immediately in the event of a Default hereunder by Borrower and all Cash Collateral Fees shall be payable immediately by Lender in the event of a Default by Lender.

6. Termination of the Loan.

6.1 (a) Unless otherwise agreed, either party may terminate a Loan on a termination date established by notice given to the other party prior to the Close of Business on a Business Day. The termination date established by a termination notice shall be a date no earlier than the standard settlement date that would apply to a purchase or sale of the Loaned Securities (in the case of a notice given by Lender) or the non-cash Collateral securing the Loan (in the case of a notice given by Borrower) entered into at the time of such notice, which date shall, unless Borrower and Lender agree to the contrary, be (i) in the case of Government Securities, the next Business Day following such notice and (ii) in the case of all other Securities, the third Business Day following such notice.

(b) Notwithstanding paragraph (a) and unless otherwise agreed, Borrower may terminate a Loan on any Business Day by giving notice to Lender and transferring the Loaned Securities to Lender before the Cutoff Time on such Business Day if (i) the Collateral for such Loan consists of cash or Government Securities or (ii) Lender is not permitted, pursuant to Section 4.2, to Retransfer Collateral.

6.2 Unless otherwise agreed, Borrower shall, on or before the Cutoff Time on the termination date of a Loan, transfer the Loaned Securities to Lender; provided, however, that upon such transfer by Borrower, Lender shall transfer the Collateral (as adjusted pursuant to Section 9) to Borrower in accordance with Section 4.3.

7. Rights in Respect of Loaned Securities and Collateral.

7.1 Except as set forth in Sections 8.1 and 8.2 and as otherwise agreed by Borrower and Lender, until Loaned Securities are required to be redelivered to Lender upon termination of a Loan hereunder, Borrower shall have all of the incidents of ownership of the Loaned Securities, including the right to transfer the Loaned Securities to others. Lender hereby waives the right to vote, or to provide any consent or to take any similar action with respect to, the Loaned Securities in the event that the record date or deadline for such vote, consent or other action falls during the term of the Loan.

7.2 Except as set forth in Sections 8.3 and 8.4 and as otherwise agreed by Borrower and Lender, if Lender may, pursuant to Section 4.2, Retransfer Collateral, Borrower hereby waives the right to vote, or to provide any consent or take any similar action with respect to, any such Collateral in the event that the record date or deadline for such vote, consent or other action falls during the term of a Loan and such Collateral is not required to be returned to Borrower pursuant to Section 4.5 or Section 9.

8. Distributions.

8.1 Lender shall be entitled to receive all Distributions made on or in respect of the Loaned Securities which are not otherwise received by Lender, to the full extent it would be so entitled if the Loaned Securities had not been lent to Borrower.

8.2 Any cash Distributions made on or in respect of the Loaned Securities, which Lender is entitled to receive pursuant to Section 8.1, shall be paid by the transfer of cash to Lender by Borrower, on the date any such Distribution is paid, in an amount equal to such cash Distribution, so long as Lender is not in Default at the time of such payment. Non-cash Distributions that Lender is entitled to receive pursuant to Section 8.1 shall be added to the Loaned Securities on the date of distribution and shall be considered such for all purposes, except that if the Loan has terminated, Borrower shall forthwith transfer the same to Lender.

8.3 Borrower shall be entitled to receive all Distributions made on or in respect of non-cash Collateral which are not otherwise received by Borrower, to the full extent it would be so entitled if the Collateral had not been transferred to Lender.

8.4 Any cash Distributions made on or in respect of such Collateral, which Borrower is entitled to receive pursuant to Section 8.3, shall be paid by the transfer of cash to Borrower by Lender, on the date any such Distribution is paid, in an amount equal to such cash Distribution, so long as Borrower is not in Default at the time of such payment. Non-cash Distributions that Borrower is entitled to receive pursuant to Section 8.3 shall be added to the Collateral on the date of distribution and shall be considered such for all purposes, except that if each Loan secured by such Collateral has terminated, Lender shall forthwith transfer the same to Borrower.

8.5 Unless otherwise agreed by the parties:

(a) If (i) Borrower is required to make a payment (a "Borrower Payment") with respect to cash Distributions on Loaned Securities under Sections 8.1 and 8.2 ("Securities Distributions"), or (ii) Lender is required to make a payment (a "Lender Payment") with respect to cash Distributions on Collateral under Sections 8.3 and 8.4 ("Collateral Distributions"), and (iii) Borrower or Lender, as the case may be ("Payor"), shall be required by law to collect any withholding or other tax, duty, fee, levy or charge required to be deducted or withheld from such Borrower Payment or Lender Payment ("Tax"), then Payor shall (subject to subsections (b) and (c) below), pay such additional amounts as may be necessary in order that the net amount of the Borrower Payment or Lender Payment received by the Lender or Borrower, as the case may be ("Payee"), after payment of such Tax equals the net amount of the Securities Distribution or Collateral Distribution that would have been received if such Securities Distribution or Collateral Distribution had been paid directly to the Payee.

(b) No additional amounts shall be payable to a Payee under subsection (a) above to the extent that Tax would have been imposed on a Securities Distribution or Collateral Distribution paid directly to the Payee.

(c) No additional amounts shall be payable to a Payee under subsection (a) above to the extent that such Payee is entitled to an exemption from, or reduction in the rate of, Tax on a Borrower Payment or Lender Payment subject to the provision of a certificate or other documentation, but has failed timely to provide such certificate or other documentation.

(d) Each party hereto shall be deemed to represent that, as of the commencement of any Loan hereunder, no Tax would be imposed on any cash Distribution paid to it with respect to (i) Loaned Securities subject to a Loan in which it is acting as Lender or (ii) Collateral for any Loan in which it is acting as Borrower, unless such party has given notice to the contrary to the other party hereto (which notice shall specify the rate at which such Tax would be imposed). Each party agrees to notify the other of any change that occurs during the term of a Loan in the rate of any Tax that would be imposed on any such cash Distributions payable to it.

8.6 To the extent that, under the provisions of Sections 8.1 through 8.5, (a) a transfer of cash or other property by Borrower would give rise to a Margin Excess or (b) a transfer of cash or other property by Lender would give rise to a Margin Deficit, Borrower or Lender (as the case may be) shall not be obligated to make such transfer of cash or other property in accordance with such Sections, but shall in lieu of such transfer immediately credit the amounts that would have been transferable under such Sections to the account of Lender or Borrower (as the case may be).

9. Mark to Market.

9.1 If Lender is a Customer, Borrower shall daily mark to market any Loan hereunder and in the event that at the Close of Trading on any Business Day the Market Value of the Collateral for any Loan to Borrower shall be less than 100% of the Market Value of all the outstanding Loaned Securities subject to such Loan, Borrower shall transfer additional Collateral no later than the Close of Business on the next Business Day so that the Market Value of such additional Collateral, when added to the Market Value of the other Collateral for such Loan, shall equal 100% of the Market Value of the Loaned Securities.

9.2 In addition to any rights of Lender under Section 9.1, if at any time the aggregate Market Value of all Collateral for Loans by Lender shall be less than the Margin Percentage of the Market Value of all the outstanding Loaned Securities subject to such Loans (a "Margin Deficit"), Lender may, by notice to Borrower, demand that Borrower transfer to Lender additional Collateral so that the Market Value of such additional Collateral, when added to the Market Value of all other Collateral for such Loans, shall equal or exceed the Margin Percentage of the Market Value of the Loaned Securities.

9.3 Subject to Borrower's obligations under Section 9.1, if at any time the Market Value of all Collateral for Loans to Borrower shall be greater than the Margin Percentage of the Market Value of all the outstanding Loaned Securities subject to such Loans (a "Margin Excess"), Borrower may, by notice to Lender, demand that Lender transfer to Borrower such amount of the Collateral selected by Borrower so that the Market Value of the Collateral for such Loans, after deduction of such amounts, shall thereupon not exceed the Margin Percentage of the Market Value of the Loaned Securities.

9.4 Borrower and Lender may agree, with respect to one or more Loans hereunder, to mark the values to market pursuant to Sections 9.2 and 9.3 by separately valuing the Loaned Securities lent and the Collateral given in respect thereof on a Loan-by-Loan basis.

9.5 Borrower and Lender may agree, with respect to any or all Loans hereunder, that the respective rights of Lender and Borrower under Sections 9.2 and 9.3 may be exercised only where a Margin Excess or Margin Deficit exceeds a specified dollar amount or a specified percentage of the Market Value of the Loaned Securities under such Loans (which amount or percentage shall be agreed to by Borrower and Lender prior to entering into any such Loans).

9.6 If any notice is given by Borrower or Lender under Sections 9.2 or 9.3 at or before the Margin Notice Deadline on any day on which a transfer of Collateral may be effected in accordance with Section 15, the party receiving such notice shall transfer Collateral as provided in such Section no later than the Close of Business on such day. If any such notice is given after the Margin Notice Deadline, the party receiving such notice shall transfer such Collateral no later than the Close of Business on the next Business Day following the day of such notice.

10. Representations.

The parties to this Agreement hereby make the following representations and warranties, which shall continue during the term of any Loan hereunder:

10.1 Each party hereto represents and warrants that (a) it has the power to execute and deliver this Agreement, to enter into the Loans contemplated hereby and to perform its obligations hereunder, (b) it has taken all necessary action to authorize such execution, delivery and performance, and (c) this Agreement constitutes a legal, valid and binding obligation enforceable against it in accordance with its terms.

10.2 Each party hereto represents and warrants that it has not relied on the other for any tax or accounting advice concerning this Agreement and that it has made its own determination as to the tax and accounting treatment of any Loan and any dividends, remuneration or other funds received hereunder.

10.3 Each party hereto represents and warrants that it is acting for its own account unless it expressly specifies otherwise in writing and complies with Section 11.1(b).

10.4 Borrower represents and warrants that it has, or will have at the time of transfer of any Collateral, the right to grant a first priority security interest therein subject to the terms and conditions hereof.

10.5 (a) Borrower represents and warrants that it (or the person to whom it relends the Loaned Securities) is borrowing or will borrow Loaned Securities that are Equity Securities for the purpose of making delivery of such Loaned Securities in the case of short sales, failure to receive securities required to be delivered, or as otherwise permitted pursuant to Regulation T as in effect from time to time.

(b) Borrower and Lender may agree, as provided in Section 24.2, that Borrower shall not be deemed to have made the representation or warranty in subsection (a) with respect to any Loan. By entering into any such agreement, Lender shall be deemed to have represented and warranted to Borrower (which representation and warranty shall be deemed to be repeated on each day during the term of the Loan) that Lender is either (i) an "exempted borrower" within the meaning of Regulation T or (ii) a member of a national securities exchange or a broker or dealer registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission that is entering into such Loan to finance its activities as a market maker or an underwriter.

10.6 Lender represents and warrants that it has, or will have at the time of transfer of any Loaned Securities, the right to transfer the Loaned Securities subject to the terms and conditions hereof.

11. Covenants.

11.1 Each party agrees either (a) to be liable as principal with respect to its obligations hereunder or (b) to execute and comply fully with the provisions of Annex I (the terms and conditions of which Annex are incorporated herein and made a part hereof).

11.2 Promptly upon (and in any event within seven (7) Business Days after) demand by Lender, Borrower shall furnish Lender with Borrower's most recent publicly-available financial statements and any other financial statements mutually agreed upon by Borrower and Lender. Unless otherwise agreed, if Borrower is subject to the requirements of Rule 17a-5(c) under the Exchange Act, it may satisfy the requirements of this Section by furnishing Lender with its most recent statement required to be furnished to customers pursuant to such Rule.

12. Events of Default.

All Loans hereunder may, at the option of the non-defaulting party (which option shall be deemed to have been exercised immediately upon the occurrence of an Act of Insolvency), be terminated immediately upon the occurrence of any one or more of the following events (individually, a "Default"):

12.1 if any Loaned Securities shall not be transferred to Lender upon termination of the Loan as required by Section 6;

12.2 if any Collateral shall not be transferred to Borrower upon termination of the Loan as required by Sections 4.3 and 6;

12.3 if either party shall fail to transfer Collateral as required by Section 9;

12.4 if either party (a) shall fail to transfer to the other party amounts in respect of Distributions required to be transferred by Section 8, (b) shall have been notified of such failure by the other party prior to the Close of Business on any day, and (c) shall not have cured such failure by the Cutoff Time on the next day after such Close of Business on which a transfer of cash may be effected in accordance with Section 15;

12.5 if an Act of Insolvency occurs with respect to either party;

12.6 if any representation made by either party in respect of this Agreement or any Loan or Loans hereunder shall be incorrect or untrue in any material respect during the term of any Loan hereunder;

12.7 if either party notifies the other of its inability to or its intention not to perform its obligations hereunder or otherwise disaffirms, rejects or repudiates any of its obligations hereunder; or 12.8 if either party (a) shall fail to perform any material obligation under this Agreement not specifically set forth in clauses 12.1 through 12.7, above, including but not limited to the payment of fees as required by Section 5, and the payment of transfer taxes as required by Section 14, (b) shall have been notified of such failure by the other party prior to the Close of Business on any day, and (c) shall not have cured such failure by the Cutoff Time on the next day after such Close of Business on which a transfer of cash may be effected in accordance with Section 15.

The non-defaulting party shall (except upon the occurrence of an Act of Insolvency) give notice as promptly as practicable to the defaulting party of the exercise of its option to terminate all Loans hereunder pursuant to this Section 12.

13. Remedies.

13.1 Upon the occurrence of a Default under Section 12 entitling Lender to terminate all Loans hereunder, Lender shall have the right, in addition to any other remedies provided herein, (a) to purchase a like amount of Loaned Securities ("Replacement Securities") in the principal market for such Loaned Securities in a commercially reasonable manner, (b) to sell any Collateral in the principal market for such Collateral in a commercially reasonable manner and (c) to apply and set off the Collateral and any proceeds thereof (including any amounts drawn under a letter of credit supporting any Loan) against the payment of the purchase price for such Replacement Securities and any amounts due to Lender under Sections 5, 8, 14 and 16. In the event that Lender shall exercise such rights, Borrower's obligation to return a like amount of the Loaned Securities shall terminate. Lender may similarly apply the Collateral and any proceeds thereof to any other obligation of Borrower under this Agreement, including Borrower's obligations with respect to Distributions paid to Borrower (and not forwarded to Lender) in respect of Loaned Securities. In the event that (i) the purchase price of Replacement Securities (plus all other amounts, if any, due to Lender hereunder) exceeds (ii) the amount of the Collateral, Borrower shall be liable to Lender for the amount of such excess together with interest thereon at a rate equal to (A) in the case of purchases of Foreign Securities, LIBOR, (B) in the case of purchases of any other Securities (or other amounts, if any, due to Lender hereunder), the Federal Funds Rate or (C) such other rate as may be specified in Schedule B, in each case as such rate fluctuates from day to day, from the date of such purchase until the date of payment of such excess. As security for Borrower's obligation to pay such excess, Lender shall have, and Borrower hereby grants, a security interest in any property of Borrower then held by or for Lender and a right of setoff with respect to such property and any other amount payable by Lender to Borrower. The purchase price of Replacement Securities purchased under this Section 13.1 shall include, and the proceeds of any sale of Collateral shall be determined after deduction of, broker's fees and commissions and all other reasonable costs, fees and expenses related to such purchase or sale (as the case may be). In the event Lender exercises its rights under this Section 13.1, Lender may elect in its sole discretion, in lieu of purchasing all or a portion of the Replacement Securities or selling all or a portion of the Collateral, to be deemed to have made, respectively, such purchase of Replacement Securities or sale of Collateral for an amount equal to the price therefor on the date of such exercise obtained from a generally recognized source or the last bid quotation from such a source at the most recent Close of Trading. Subject to Section 18, upon the satisfaction of all obligations hereunder, any remaining Collateral shall be returned to Borrower.

13.2 Upon the occurrence of a Default under Section 12 entitling Borrower to terminate all Loans hereunder, Borrower shall have the right, in addition to any other remedies provided herein, (a) to purchase a like amount of Collateral ("Replacement Collateral") in the principal market for such Collateral in a commercially reasonable manner, (b) to sell a like amount of the Loaned Securities in the principal market for such Loaned Securities in a commercially reasonable manner and (c) to apply and set off the Loaned Securities and any proceeds thereof against (i) the payment of the purchase price for such Replacement Collateral, (ii) Lender's obligation to return any cash or other Collateral, and (iii) any amounts due to Borrower under Sections 5, 8 and 16. In such event, Borrower may treat the Loaned Securities as its own and Lender's obligation to return a like amount of the Collateral shall terminate; provided, however, that Lender shall immediately return any letters of credit supporting any Loan upon the exercise or deemed exercise by Borrower of its termination rights under Section 12. Borrower may similarly apply the Loaned Securities and any proceeds thereof to any other obligation of Lender under this Agreement, including Lender's obligations with respect to Distributions paid to Lender (and not forwarded to Borrower) in respect of Collateral. In the event that (i) the sales price received from such Loaned Securities is less than (ii) the purchase price of Replacement Collateral (plus the amount of any cash or other Collateral not replaced by Borrower and all other amounts, if any, due to Borrower hereunder), Lender shall be liable to Borrower for the amount of any such deficiency, together with interest on such amounts at a rate equal to (A) in the case of Collateral consisting of Foreign Securities, LIBOR, (B) in the case of Collateral consisting of any other Securities (or other amounts due, if any, to Borrower hereunder), the Federal Funds Rate or (C) such other rate as may be specified in Schedule B, in each case as such rate fluctuates from day to day, from the date of such sale until the date of payment of such deficiency. As security for Lender's obligation to pay such deficiency, Borrower shall have, and Lender hereby grants, a security interest in any property of Lender then held by or for Borrower and a right of setoff with respect to such property and any other amount payable by Borrower to Lender. The purchase price of any Replacement Collateral purchased under this Section 13.2 shall include, and the proceeds of any sale of Loaned Securities shall be determined after deduction of, broker's fees and commissions and all other reasonable costs, fees and expenses related to such purchase or sale (as the case may be). In the event Borrower exercises its rights under this Section 13.2, Borrower may elect in its sole discretion, in lieu of purchasing all or a portion of the Replacement Collateral or selling all or a portion of the Loaned Securities, to be deemed to have made, respectively, such purchase of Replacement Collateral or sale of Loaned Securities for an amount equal to the price therefor on the date of such exercise obtained from a generally recognized source or the last bid quotation from such a source at the most recent Close of Trading. Subject to Section 18, upon the satisfaction of all Lender's obligations hereunder, any remaining Loaned Securities (or remaining cash proceeds thereof) shall be returned to Lender.

13.3 Unless otherwise agreed, the parties acknowledge and agree that (a) the Loaned Securities and any Collateral consisting of Securities are of a type traded in a recognized market, (b) in the absence of a generally recognized source for prices or bid or offer quotations for any security, the non-defaulting party may establish the source therefor in its sole discretion, and (c) all prices and bid and offer quotations shall be increased to include accrued interest to the extent not already included therein (except to the extent contrary to market practice with respect to the relevant Securities).

13.4 In addition to its rights hereunder, the non-defaulting party shall have any rights otherwise available to it under any other agreement or applicable law.

14. Transfer Taxes.

All transfer taxes with respect to the transfer of the Loaned Securities by Lender to Borrower and by Borrower to Lender upon termination of the Loan and with respect to the transfer of Collateral by Borrower to Lender and by Lender to Borrower upon termination of the Loan or pursuant to Section 4.5 or Section 9 shall be paid by Borrower.

15. Transfers.

15.1 All transfers by either Borrower or Lender of Loaned Securities or Collateral consisting of "financial assets" (within the meaning of the UCC) hereunder shall be by (a) in the case of certificated securities, physical delivery of certificates representing such securities together with duly executed stock and bond transfer powers, as the case may be, with signatures guaranteed by a bank or a member firm of the New York Stock Exchange, Inc., (b) registration of an uncertificated security in the transferee's name by the issuer of such uncertificated security, (c) the crediting by a Clearing Organization of such financial assets to the transferee's "securities account" (within the meaning of the UCC) maintained with such Clearing Organization, or (d) such other means as Borrower and Lender may agree.

15.2 All transfers of cash hereunder shall be by (a) wire transfer in immediately available, freely transferable funds or (b) such other means as Borrower and Lender may agree.

15.3 All transfers of letters of credit from Borrower to Lender shall be made by physical delivery to Lender of an irrevocable letter of credit issued by a "bank" as defined in Section 3(a)(6)(A)-(C) of the Exchange Act. Transfers of letters of credit from Lender to Borrower shall be made by causing such letters of credit to be returned or by causing the amount of such letters of credit to be reduced to the amount required after such transfer.

15.4 A transfer of Securities, cash or letters of credit may be effected under this Section 15 on any day except (a) a day on which the transferee is closed for business at its address set forth in Schedule A hereto or (b) a day on which a Clearing Organization or wire transfer system is closed, if the facilities of such Clearing Organization or wire transfer system are required to effect such transfer.

15.5 For the avoidance of doubt, the parties agree and acknowledge that the term "securities," as used herein (except in this Section 15), shall include any "security entitlements" with respect to such securities (within the meaning of the UCC). In every transfer of "financial assets" (within the meaning of the UCC) hereunder, the transferor shall take all steps necessary (a) to effect a delivery to the transferee under Section 8-301 of the UCC, or to cause the creation of a security entitlement in favor of the transferee under Section 8-501 of the UCC, (b) to enable the transferee to obtain "control" (within the meaning of Section 8-106 of the UCC), and (c) to provide the transferee with comparable rights under any applicable foreign law or regulation.

16. Contractual Currency.

16.1 Borrower and Lender agree that (a) any payment in respect of a Distribution under Section 8 shall be made in the currency in which the underlying Distribution of cash was made, (b) any return of cash shall be made in the currency in which the underlying transfer of cash was made, and (c) any other payment of cash in connection with a Loan under this Agreement shall be in the currency agreed upon by Borrower and Lender in connection with such Loan (the currency established under clause (a), (b) or (c) hereinafter referred to as the "Contractual Currency"). Notwithstanding the foregoing, the payee of any such payment may, at its option, accept tender thereof in any other currency; provided, however, that, to the extent permitted by applicable law, the obligation of the payor to make such payment will be discharged only to the extent of the amount of Contractual Currency that such payee may, consistent with normal banking procedures, purchase with such other currency (after deduction of any premium and costs of exchange) on the banking day next succeeding its receipt of such currency.

16.2 If for any reason the amount in the Contractual Currency received under Section 16.1, including amounts received after conversion of any recovery under any judgment or order expressed in a currency other than the Contractual Currency, falls short of the amount in the Contractual Currency due in respect of this Agreement, the party required to make the payment will (unless a Default has occurred and such party is the non-defaulting party) as a separate and independent obligation and to the extent permitted by applicable law, immediately pay such additional amount in the Contractual Currency as may be necessary to compensate for the shortfall.

16.3 If for any reason the amount in the Contractual Currency received under Section 16.1 exceeds the amount in the Contractual Currency due in respect of this Agreement, then the party receiving the payment will (unless a Default has occurred and such party is the non-defaulting party) refund promptly the amount of such excess.

17. ERISA.

Lender shall, if any of the Securities transferred to the Borrower hereunder for any Loan have been or shall be obtained, directly or indirectly, from or using the assets of any Plan, so notify Borrower in writing upon the execution of this Agreement or upon initiation of such Loan under Section 2.1. If Lender so notifies Borrower, then Borrower and Lender shall conduct the Loan in accordance with the terms and conditions of Department of Labor Prohibited Transaction Exemption 81-6 (46 Fed. Reg. 7527, Jan. 23, 1981; as amended, 52 Fed. Reg. 18754, May 19, 1987), or any successor thereto (unless Borrower and Lender have agreed prior to entering into a Loan that such Loan will be conducted in reliance on another exemption, or without relying on any exemption, from the prohibited transaction provisions of Section 406 of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended, and Section 4975 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended). Without limiting the foregoing and notwithstanding any other provision of this Agreement, if the Loan will be conducted in accordance with Prohibited Transaction Exemption 81-6, then:

17.1 Borrower represents and warrants to Lender that it is either (a) a bank subject to federal or state supervision, (b) a broker-dealer registered under the Exchange Act or (c) exempt from registration under Section 15(a)(1) of the Exchange Act as a dealer in Government Securities.

17.2 Borrower represents and warrants that, during the term of any Loan hereunder, neither Borrower nor any affiliate of Borrower has any discretionary authority or control with respect to the investment of the assets of the Plan involved in the Loan or renders investment advice (within the meaning of 29 C.F.R. Section 2510.3-21(c)) with respect to the assets of the Plan involved in the Loan. Lender agrees that, prior to or at the commencement of any Loan hereunder, it will communicate to Borrower information regarding the Plan sufficient to identify to Borrower any person or persons that have discretionary authority or control with respect to the investment of the assets of the Plan involved in the Loan or that render investment advice (as defined in the preceding sentence) with respect to the assets of the Plan involved in the Loan. In the event Lender fails to communicate and keep current during the term of any Loan such information, Lender rather than Borrower shall be deemed to have made the representation and warranty in the first sentence of this Section 17.2.

17.3 Borrower shall mark to market daily each Loan hereunder pursuant to Section 9.1 as is required if Lender is a Customer.

17.4 Borrower and Lender agree that:

(a) the term "Collateral" shall mean cash, securities issued or guaranteed by the United States government or its agencies or instrumentalities, or irrevocable bank letters of credit issued by a person other than Borrower or an affiliate thereof;

(b) prior to the making of any Loans hereunder, Borrower shall provide Lender with (i) the most recent available audited statement of Borrower's financial condition and (ii) the most recent available unaudited statement of Borrower's financial condition (if more recent than the most recent audited statement), and each Loan made hereunder shall be deemed a representation by Borrower that there has been no material adverse change in Borrower's financial condition subsequent to the date of the latest financial statements or information furnished in accordance herewith;

(c) the Loan may be terminated by Lender at any time, whereupon Borrower shall deliver the Loaned Securities to Lender within the lesser of (i) the customary delivery period for such Loaned Securities, (ii) five Business Days, and (iii) the time negotiated for such delivery between Borrower and Lender; provided, however, that Borrower and Lender may agree to a longer period only if permitted by Prohibited Transaction Exemption 81-6; and

(d) the Collateral transferred shall be security only for obligations of Borrower to the Plan with respect to Loans, and shall not be security for any obligation of Borrower to any agent or affiliate of the Plan.

18. Single Agreement.

Borrower and Lender acknowledge that, and have entered into this Agreement in reliance on the fact that, all Loans hereunder constitute a single business and contractual relationship and have been entered into in consideration of each other. Accordingly, Borrower and Lender hereby agree that payments, deliveries and other transfers made by either of them in respect of any Loan shall be deemed to have been made in consideration of payments, deliveries and other transfers in respect of any other Loan hereunder, and the obligations to make any such payments, deliveries and other transfers may be applied against each other and netted. In addition, Borrower and Lender acknowledge that, and have entered into this Agreement in reliance on the fact that, all Loans hereunder have been entered into in consideration of each other. Accordingly, Borrower and Lender hereby agree that (a) each shall perform all of its obligations in respect of each Loan hereunder, and that a default in the performance of any such obligation by Borrower or by Lender (the "Defaulting Party") in any Loan hereunder shall constitute a default by the Defaulting Party under all such Loans hereunder, and (b) the non-defaulting party shall be entitled to set off claims and apply property held by it in respect of any Loan hereunder against obligations owing to it in respect of any other Loan with the Defaulting Party.

19. APPLICABLE LAW.

THIS AGREEMENT SHALL BE GOVERNED AND CONSTRUED IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE LAWS OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK WITHOUT GIVING EFFECT TO THE CONFLICT OF LAW PRINCIPLES THEREOF.

20. Waiver.

The failure of a party to this Agreement to insist upon strict adherence to any term of this Agreement on any occasion shall not be considered a waiver or deprive that party of the right thereafter to insist upon strict adherence to that term or any other term of this Agreement. All waivers in respect of a Default must be in writing.

21. Survival of Remedies.

All remedies hereunder and all obligations with respect to any Loan shall survive the termination of the relevant Loan, return of Loaned Securities or Collateral and termination of this Agreement.

22. Notices and Other Communications.

Any and all notices, statements, demands or other communications hereunder may be given by a party to the other by telephone, mail, facsimile, e-mail, electronic message, telegraph, messenger or otherwise to the individuals and at the facsimile numbers and addresses specified with respect to it in Schedule A hereto, or sent to such party at any other place specified in a notice of change of number or address hereafter received by the other party. Any notice, statement, demand or other communication hereunder will be deemed effective on the day and at the time on which it is received or, if not received, on the day and at the time on which its delivery was in good faith attempted; provided, however, that any notice by a party to the other party by telephone shall be deemed effective only if (a) such notice is followed by written confirmation thereof and (b) at least one of the other means of providing notice that are specifically listed above has previously been attempted in good faith by the notifying party.

23. SUBMISSION TO JURISDICTION; WAIVER OF JURY TRIAL.

23.1 EACH PARTY HERETO IRREVOCABLY AND UNCONDITIONALLY (A) SUBMITS TO THE NON-EXCLUSIVE JURISDICTION OF ANY UNITED STATES FEDERAL OR NEW YORK STATE COURT SITTING IN NEW YORK CITY, AND ANY APPELLATE COURT FROM ANY SUCH COURT, SOLELY FOR THE PURPOSE OF ANY SUIT, ACTION OR PROCEEDING BROUGHT TO ENFORCE ITS OBLIGATIONS HEREUNDER OR RELATING IN ANY WAY TO THIS AGREEMENT OR ANY LOAN HEREUNDER AND (B) WAIVES, TO THE FULLEST EXTENT IT MAY EFFECTIVELY DO SO, ANY DEFENSE OF AN INCONVENIENT FORUM TO THE MAINTENANCE OF SUCH ACTION OR PROCEEDING IN ANY SUCH COURT AND ANY RIGHT OF JURISDICTION ON ACCOUNT OF ITS PLACE OF RESIDENCE OR DOMICILE.

23.2 EACH PARTY HERETO HEREBY IRREVOCABLY WAIVES ANY RIGHT THAT IT MAY HAVE TO TRIAL BY JURY IN ANY ACTION, PROCEEDING OR COUNTERCLAIM ARISING OUT OF OR RELATING TO THIS AGREEMENT OR THE TRANSACTIONS CONTEMPLATED HEREBY.

24. Miscellaneous.

24.1 Except as otherwise agreed by the parties, this Agreement supersedes any other agreement between the parties hereto concerning loans of Securities between Borrower and Lender. This Agreement shall not be assigned by either party without the prior written consent of the other party and any attempted assignment without such consent shall be null and void. Subject to the foregoing, this Agreement shall be binding upon and shall inure to the benefit of Borrower and Lender and their respective heirs, representatives, successors and assigns. This Agreement may be terminated by either party upon notice to the other, subject only to fulfillment of any obligations then outstanding. This Agreement shall not be modified, except by an instrument in writing signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought. The parties hereto acknowledge and agree that, in connection with this Agreement and each Loan hereunder, time is of the essence. Each provision and agreement herein shall be treated as separate and independent from any other provision herein and shall be enforceable notwithstanding the unenforceability of any such other provision or agreement.

24.2 Any agreement between Borrower and Lender pursuant to Section 10.5(b) or Section 25.37 shall be made (a) in writing, (b) orally, if confirmed promptly in writing or through any system that compares Loans and in which Borrower and Lender are participants, or (c) in such other manner as may be agreed by Borrower and Lender in writing.

In the event that the holder of a Security is entitled to elect the type of distribution to be received from two or more alternatives, such election shall be made by Lender, in the case of a Distribution in respect of the Loaned Securities, and by Borrower, in the case of a Distribution in respect of Collateral.

25.37 "Margin Percentage" shall mean, with respect to any Loan as of any date, a percentage agreed by Borrower and Lender, which shall be not less than 100%, unless (a) Borrower and Lender agree otherwise, as provided in Section 24.2, and (b) Lender is not a Customer. Notwithstanding the previous sentence, in the event that the writing or other confirmation evidencing the agreement described in clause (a) does not set out such percentage with respect to any such Loan, the Margin Percentage shall not be a percentage less than the percentage obtained by dividing (i) the Market Value of the Collateral required to be transferred by Borrower to Lender with respect to such Loan at the commencement of the Loan by (ii) the Market Value of the Loaned Securities required to be transferred by Lender to Borrower at the commencement of the Loan.

25.38 "Market Value" shall have the meaning set forth in Annex II or otherwise agreed to by Borrower and Lender in writing. Notwithstanding the previous sentence, in the event that the meaning of Market Value has not been set forth in Annex II or in any other writing, as described in the previous sentence, Market Value shall be determined in accordance with market practice for the Securities, based on the price for such Securities as of the most recent Close of Trading obtained from a generally recognized source agreed to by the parties or the closing bid quotation at the most recent Close of Trading obtained from such source, plus accrued interest to the extent not included therein (other than any interest credited or transferred to, or applied to the obligations of, the other party pursuant to Section 8, unless market practice with respect to the valuation of such Securities in connection with securities loans is to the contrary). If the relevant quotation did not exist at such Close of Trading, then the Market Value shall be the relevant quotation on the next preceding Close of Trading at which there was such a quotation. The determinations of Market Value provided for in Annex II or in any other writing described in the first sentences of this Section 25.38 or, if applicable, in the preceding sentence shall apply for all purposes under this Agreement, except for purposes of Section 13.

25.39 "Payee" shall have the meaning assigned in Section 8.5(a).

25.40 "Payor" shall have the meaning assigned in Section 8.5(a).

26. Intent.

26.1 The parties recognize that each Loan hereunder is a "securities contract," as such term is defined in Section 741 of Title 11 of the United States Code (the "Bankruptcy Code"), as amended (except insofar as the type of assets subject to the Loan would render such definition inapplicable).

26.2 It is understood that each and every transfer of funds, securities and other property under this Agreement and each Loan hereunder is a "settlement payment" or a "margin payment," as such terms are used in Sections 362(b)(6) and 546(e) of the Bankruptcy Code.

26.3 It is understood that the rights given to Borrower and Lender hereunder upon a Default by the other constitute the right to cause the liquidation of a securities contract and the right to set off mutual debts and claims in connection with a securities contract, as such terms are used in Sections 555 and 362(b)(6) of the Bankruptcy Code.

26.4 The parties agree and acknowledge that if a party hereto is an "insured depository institution," as such term is defined in the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, as amended ("FDIA"), then each Loan hereunder is a "securities contract" and "qualified financial contract," as such terms are defined in the FDIA and any rules, orders or policy statements thereunder (except insofar as the type of assets subject to the Loan would render such definitions inapplicable).

26.5 It is understood that this Agreement constitutes a "netting contract" as defined in and subject to Title IV of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991 ("FDICIA") and each payment obligation under any Loan hereunder shall constitute a "covered contractual payment entitlement" or "covered contractual payment obligation," respectively, as defined in and subject to FDICIA (except insofar as one or both of the parties is not a "financial institution" as that term is defined in FDICIA).

26.6 Except to the extent required by applicable law or regulation or as otherwise agreed, Borrower and Lender agree that Loans hereunder shall in no event be "exchange contracts" for purposes of the rules of any securities exchange and that Loans hereunder shall not be governed by the buy-in or similar rules of any such exchange, registered national securities association or other self-regulatory organization.

27. DISCLOSURE RELATING TO CERTAIN FEDERAL PROTECTIONS.

27.1 WITHOUT WAIVING ANY RIGHTS GIVEN TO LENDER HEREUNDER, IT IS UNDERSTOOD AND AGREED THAT THE PROVISIONS OF THE SECURITIES INVESTOR PROTECTION ACT OF 1970 MAY NOT PROTECT LENDER WITH RESPECT TO LOANED SECURITIES HEREUNDER AND THAT, THEREFORE, THE COLLATERAL DELIVERED TO LENDER MAY CONSTITUTE THE ONLY SOURCE OF SATISFACTION OF BORROWER'S OBLIGATIONS IN THE EVENT BORROWER FAILS TO RETURN THE LOANED SECURITIES.

27.2 LENDER ACKNOWLEDGES THAT, IN CONNECTION WITH LOANS OF GOVERNMENT SECURITIES AND AS OTHERWISE PERMITTED BY APPLICABLE LAW, SOME SECURITIES PROVIDED BY BORROWER AS COLLATERAL UNDER THIS AGREEMENT MAY NOT BE GUARANTEED BY THE UNITED STATES.

Annex I

Party Acting as Agent

This Annex sets forth the terms and conditions governing all transactions in which a party lending or borrowing Securities, as the case may be ("Agent"), in a Loan is acting as agent for one or more third parties (each, a "Principal"). Unless otherwise defined, capitalized terms used but not defined in this Annex shall have the meanings assigned in the Securities Loan Agreement of which it forms a part (such agreement, together with this Annex and any other annexes, schedules or exhibits, referred to as the "Agreement") and, unless otherwise specified, all section references herein are intended to refer to sections of such Securities Loan Agreement.

1. Additional Representations and Warranties. In addition to the representations and warranties set forth in the Agreement, Agent hereby makes the following representations and warranties, which shall continue during the term of any Loan: Principal has duly authorized Agent to execute and deliver the Agreement on its behalf, has the power to so authorize Agent and to enter into the Loans contemplated by the Agreement and to perform the obligations of Lender or Borrower, as the case may be, under such Loans, and has taken all necessary action to authorize such execution and delivery by Agent and such performance by it.

2. Identification of Principals. Agent agrees (a) to provide the other party, prior to any Loan under the Agreement, with a written list of Principals for which it intends to act as Agent (which list may be amended in writing from time to time with the consent of the other party), and (b) to provide the other party, before the Close of Business on the next Business Day after agreeing to enter into a Loan, with notice of the specific Principal or Principals for whom it is acting in connection with such Loan. If (i) Agent fails to identify such Principal or Principals prior to the Close of Business on such next Business Day or (ii) the other party shall determine in its sole discretion that any Principal or Principals identified by Agent are not acceptable to it, the other party may reject and rescind any Loan with such Principal or Principals, return to Agent any Collateral or Loaned Securities, as the case may be, previously transferred to the other party and refuse any further performance under such Loan, and Agent shall immediately return to the other party any portion of the Loaned Securities or Collateral, as the case may be, previously transferred to Agent in connection with such Loan; provided, however, that (A) the other party shall promptly (and in any event within one Business Day of notice of the specific Principal or Principals) notify Agent of its determination to reject and rescind such Loan and (B) to the extent that any performance was rendered by any party under any Loan rejected by the other party, such party shall remain entitled to any fees or other amounts that would have been payable to it with respect to such performance if such Loan had not been rejected. The other party acknowledges that Agent shall not have any obligation to provide it with confidential information regarding the financial status of its Principals; Agent agrees, however, that it will assist the other party in obtaining from Agent's Principals such information regarding the financial status of such Principals as the other party may reasonably request.

3. Limitation of Agent's Liability. The parties expressly acknowledge that if the representations and warranties of Agent under the Agreement, including this Annex, are true and correct in all material respects during the term of any Loan and Agent otherwise complies with the provisions of this Annex, then (a) Agent's obligations under the Agreement shall not include a guarantee of performance by its Principal or Principals and (b) the other party's remedies shall not include a right of setoff against obligations, if any, of Agent arising in other transactions in which Agent is acting as principal.

4. Multiple Principals.

(a) In the event that Agent proposes to act for more than one Principal hereunder, Agent and the other party shall elect whether (i) to treat Loans under the Agreement as transactions entered into on behalf of separate Principals or (ii) to aggregate such Loans as if they were transactions by a single Principal. Failure to make such an election in writing shall be deemed an election to treat Loans under the Agreement as transactions on behalf of separate Principals.

(b) In the event that Agent and the other party elect (or are deemed to elect) to treat Loans under the Agreement as transactions on behalf of separate Principals, the parties agree that (i) Agent will provide the other party, together with the notice described in Section 2(b) of this Annex, notice specifying the portion of each Loan allocable to the account of each of the Principals for which it is acting (to the extent that any such Loan is allocable to the account of more than one Principal), (ii) the portion of any individual Loan allocable to each Principal shall be deemed a separate Loan under the Agreement, (iii) the mark to market obligations of Borrower and Lender under the Agreement shall be determined on a Loan-by-Loan basis (unless the parties agree to determine such obligations on a Principal-by-Principal basis), and (iv) Borrower's and Lender's remedies under the Agreement upon the occurrence of a Default shall be determined as if Agent had entered into a separate Agreement with the other party on behalf of each of its Principals.

(c) In the event that Agent and the other party elect to treat Loans under the Agreement as if they were transactions by a single Principal, the parties agree that (i) Agent's notice under Section 2(b) of this Annex need only identify the names of its Principals but not the portion of each Loan allocable to each Principal's account, (ii) the mark to market obligations of Borrower and Lender under the Agreement shall, subject to any greater requirement imposed by applicable law, be determined on an aggregate basis for all Loans entered into by Agent on behalf of any Principal, and (iii) Borrower's and Lender's remedies upon the occurrence of a Default shall be determined as if all Principals were a single Lender or Borrower, as the case may be.

(d) Notwithstanding any other provision of the Agreement (including, without limitation, this Annex), the parties agree that any transactions by Agent on behalf of a Plan shall be treated as transactions on behalf of separate Principals in accordance with Section 4(b) of this Annex (and all mark to market obligations of the parties shall be determined on a Loan-by-Loan basis).

5. Interpretation of Terms. All references to "Lender" or "Borrower," as the case may be, in the Agreement shall, subject to the provisions of this Annex (including, among other provisions, the limitations on Agent's liability in Section 3 of this Annex), be construed to reflect that (i) each Principal shall have, in connection with any Loan or Loans entered into by Agent on its behalf, the rights, responsibilities, privileges and obligations of a "Lender" or "Borrower," as the case may be, directly entering into such Loan or Loans with the other party under the Agreement, and (ii) Agent's Principal or Principals have designated Agent as their sole agent for performance of Lender's obligations to Borrower or Borrower's obligations to Lender, as the case may be, and for receipt of performance by Borrower of its obligations to Lender or Lender of its obligations to Borrower, as the case may be, in connection with any Loan or Loans under the Agreement (including, among other things, as Agent for each Principal in connection with transfers of securities, cash or other property and as agent for giving and receiving all notices under the Agreement). Both Agent and its Principal or Principals shall be deemed "parties" to the Agreement and all references to a "party" or "either party" in the Agreement shall be deemed revised accordingly (and any Default by Agent under the Agreement shall be deemed a Default by Lender or Borrower, as the case may be).

Annex II

Market Value

Unless otherwise agreed by Borrower and Lender:

1. If the principal market for the Securities to be valued is a national securities exchange in the United States, their Market Value shall be determined by their last sale price on such exchange at the most recent Close of Trading or, if there was no sale on the Business Day of the most recent Close of Trading, by the last sale price at the Close of Trading on the next preceding Business Day on which there was a sale on such exchange, all as quoted on the Consolidated Tape or, if not quoted on the Consolidated Tape, then as quoted by such exchange.

2. If the principal market for the Securities to be valued is the over-the-counter market, and the Securities are quoted on The Nasdaq Stock Market ("Nasdaq"), their Market Value shall be the last sale price on Nasdaq at the most recent Close of Trading or, if the Securities are issues for which last sale prices are not quoted on Nasdaq, the last bid price at such Close of Trading. If the relevant quotation did not exist at such Close of Trading, then the Market Value shall be the relevant quotation on the next preceding Close of Trading at which there was such a quotation.

3. Except as provided in Section 4 of this Annex, if the principal market for the Securities to be valued is the over-the-counter market, and the Securities are not quoted on Nasdaq, their Market Value shall be determined in accordance with market practice for such Securities, based on the price for such Securities as of the most recent Close of Trading obtained from a generally recognized source agreed to by the parties or the closing bid quotation at the most recent Close of Trading obtained from such a source. If the relevant quotation did not exist at such Close of Trading, then the Market Value shall be the relevant quotation on the next preceding Close of Trading at which there was such a quotation.

4. If the Securities to be valued are Foreign Securities, their Market Value shall be determined as of the most recent Close of Trading in accordance with market practice in the principal market for such Securities.

5. The Market Value of a letter of credit shall be the undrawn amount thereof.

6. All determinations of Market Value under Sections 1 through 4 of this Annex shall include, where applicable, accrued interest to the extent not already included therein (other than any interest credited or transferred to, or applied to the obligations of, the other party pursuant to Section 8 of the Agreement), unless market practice with respect to the valuation of such Securities in connection with securities loans is to the contrary.

7. The determinations of Market Value provided for in this Annex shall apply for all purposes under the Agreement, except for purposes of Section 13 of the Agreement.

Annex III

Term Loans

This Annex sets forth additional terms and conditions governing Loans designated as "Term Loans" in which Lender lends to Borrower a specific amount of Loaned Securities ("Term Loan Amount") against a pledge of cash Collateral by Borrower for an agreed upon Cash Collateral Fee until a scheduled termination date ("Termination Date"). Unless otherwise defined, capitalized terms used but not defined in this Annex shall have the meanings assigned in the Securities Loan Agreement of which it forms a part (such agreement, together with this Annex and any other annexes, schedules or exhibits, referred to as the "Agreement").

1. The terms of this Annex shall apply to Loans of Equity Securities only if they are designated as Term Loans in a Confirmation therefor provided pursuant to the Agreement and executed by each party, in a schedule to the Agreement or in this Annex. All Loans of Securities other than Equity Securities shall be "Term Loans" subject to this Annex, unless otherwise agreed in a Confirmation or other writing.

2. The Confirmation for a Term Loan shall set forth, in addition to any terms required to be set forth therein under the Agreement, the Term Loan Amount, the Cash Collateral Fee and the Termination Date. Lender and Borrower agree that, except as specifically provided in this Annex, each Term Loan shall be subject to all terms and conditions of the Agreement, including, without limitation, any provisions regarding the parties' respective rights to terminate a Loan.

3. In the event that either party exercises its right under the Agreement to terminate a Term Loan on a date (the "Early Termination Date") prior to the Termination Date, Lender and Borrower shall, unless otherwise agreed, use their best efforts to negotiate in good faith a new Term Loan (the "Replacement Loan") of comparable or other Securities, which shall be mutually agreed upon by the parties, with a Market Value equal to the Market Value of the Term Loan Amount under the terminated Term Loan (the "Terminated Loan") as of the Early Termination Date. Such agreement shall, in accordance with Section 2 of this Annex, be confirmed in a new Confirmation at the commencement of the Replacement Loan and be executed by each party. Each Replacement Loan shall be subject to the same terms as the corresponding Terminated Loan, other than with respect to the commencement date and the identity of the Loaned Securities. The Replacement Loan shall commence on the date on which the parties agree which Securities shall be the subject of the Replacement Loan and shall be scheduled to terminate on the scheduled Termination Date of the Terminated Loan.

4. Borrower and Lender agree that, except as provided in Section 5 of this Annex, if the parties enter into a Replacement Loan, the Collateral for the related Terminated Loan need not be returned to Borrower and shall instead serve as Collateral for such Replacement Loan.

5. If the parties are unable to negotiate and enter into a Replacement Loan for some or all of the Term Loan Amount on or before the Early Termination Date, (a) the party requesting termination of the Terminated Loan shall pay to the other party a Breakage Fee computed in accordance with Section 6 of this Annex with respect to that portion of the Term Loan Amount for which a Replacement Loan is not entered into and (b) upon the transfer by Borrower to Lender of the Loaned Securities subject to the Terminated Loan, Lender shall transfer to Borrower Collateral for the Terminated Loan in accordance with and to the extent required under the Agreement, provided that no Default has occurred with respect to Borrower.

6. For purposes of this Annex, the term "Breakage Fee" shall mean a fee agreed by Borrower and Lender in the Confirmation or otherwise orally or in writing. In the absence of any such agreement, the term "Breakage Fee" shall mean, with respect to Loans of Government Securities, a fee equal to the sum of (a) the cost to the non-terminating party (including all fees, expenses and commissions) of entering into replacement transactions and entering into or terminating hedge transactions in connection with or as a result of the termination of the Terminated Loan, and (b) any other loss, damage, cost or expense directly arising or resulting from the termination of the Terminated Loan that is incurred by the non-terminating party (other than consequential losses or costs for lost profits or lost opportunities), as determined by the non-terminating party in a commercially reasonable manner, and (c) any other amounts due and payable by the terminating party to the non-terminating party under the Agreement on the Early Termination Date.

CLO HOLDCO, LTD.'S RESERVATION OF RIGHTS AND RESPONSE TO DEBTOR'S MOTION FOR ENTRY OF ORDER APPROVING SETTLEMENT WITH (A) ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P. AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP LLC; (B) JOSHUA N. TERRY AND JENNIFER G. TERRY; AND (C) ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, LP

CLO Holdco, Ltd. ("CLO"), a creditor and party-in-interest in this case, files this Reservation of Rights and Response (the "Response") to the Debtor's Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with (A) Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP LLC, (B) Joshua N. Terry and Jennifer G. Terry, and (C) Acis Capital Management, L.P., and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith (the "Acis Settlement Motion") [Dkt. No. 1087]. In support of this Response, CLO states:

RESERVATION OF RIGHTS & RESPONSE

1. CLO's Response is limited in scope. CLO does not generally oppose the Debtor's settlement of claims and causes of action involving the Acis parties. CLO notes, however, that the Acis Settlement Motion fails to reference a portion of the proposed settlement that could materially affect numerous non-debtor parties who may not have received notice of the proposed settlement.

2. Exhibit 1 to the Declaration of Gregory V. Demo in support of the Acis Settlement Motion (the "Settlement Agreement") [Dkt. No. 1088-1] contains the following material provision:

> On the effective date of a plan of reorganization proposed by HCMLP and confirmed by the Bankruptcy Court, if HCMLP receives written advise of nationally recognized external counsel that it is legally permissible consistent with HCMLP's contractual and legal duties to transfer all of its direct and indirect right, title and interest in Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd. to Acis or its nominee and that doing so would not reasonably subject HCMLP to liability, HCMLP shall transfer all of its right, title and interest in Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd., whether its ownership is direct or indirect, to Acis or its nominee, subject at all times to Acis's right to unilaterally reject the transfer in its sole and absolute discretion;

Settlement Agreement, ¶ 1.(c).

3. Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd. serves as a fund advisor and portfolio manager to numerous parties-in-interest, including funds in which CLO owns a material interest. The Debtor's representatives have noted, on many occasions, Acis's atrocious performance managing CLO funds during the period following Acis' plan confirmation in February, 2019. From CLO's perspective, Acis's performance conclusively validates the Debtor's representatives' allegations. CLO has suffered dearly from Acis's mismanagement of CLO funds in which it owns an interest, and has seen its interests decline in value by tens of millions of dollars since Acis began managing certain fund portfolios.

4. By this Response, CLO reserves its rights against the Debtor should the Debtor effectuate a transfer of Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd. to Acis or its nominee. Given the Debtor's prior representations, CLO questions how the Debtor could effectuate such a transfer in good faith and whether such a transfer would violate its fiduciary duties. Moreover, given the potential change-in-control of Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd., CLO reserves the right to exercise all rights and remedies against Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd., any proposed successor-in-interest, and against the Debtor arising from any breach of any applicable advisory or portfolio management agreement to which CLO, the Debtor, and Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd. are parties.

WHEREFORE, CLO reserves all rights against the Debtor, Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd., and Acis or its nominee should the Debtor attempt to or effectuate a transfer of its interests in Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd. to Acis or its nominee.

ORDER GRANTING REDEEMER COMMITTEE OF THE HIGHLAND CRUSADER FUND AND THE CRUSADER FUNDS' MOTION FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT

This matter came before the court on the motion (the "Motion") of (i) the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Funds (the "Redeemer Committee") and (ii) Highland Crusader Offshore Partners, L.P., Highland Crusader Fund, L.P., Highland Crusader Fund, Ltd. and Highland Crusader Fund II, Ltd. (collectively, the "Crusader Funds") for summary judgment concerning their Objection to Proof of Claim Nos. 190 and 191 [ECF No. 933] in their favor and against UBS AG London Branch and UBS Securities, LLC (together, "UBS") with respect to Proof of Claim Nos. 190 and 191 submitted by UBS (such claims, the "UBS Claim").

It is hereby FOUND AND DETERMINED that:

A. The Court has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334.

B. This is a core proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(A) and (B).

C. Notice of the Motion was sufficient under the circumstances.

D. Based on this Court's review of the pleadings, the documents submitted in connection with the Motion, discovery materials on file, and other documents submitted during the Debtor's bankruptcy case, there is no genuine issue as to any material fact in respect of the relief sought in the Motion.

E. The Redeemer Committee and the Crusader Funds are entitled to summary judgment concerning (i) the application of res judicata to the UBS Claim, and (ii) the release of UBS's claims for losses or other relief arising from the March 2009 asset transfers to the Crusader Funds and the Credit Strategies Fund, such that judgment must be, and hereby is, entered in the Redeemer Committee and the Crusader Funds' favor concerning the Crusader Objection as requested in the Motion.

Accordingly, the Court having determined that the Redeemer Committee and the Crusader Funds are entitled to summary judgment on the relief requested in the Motion based on the legal and factual bases set forth in the Motion, the Memorandum of Law submitted in support of the Motion, and the arguments of counsel at the hearing on the Motion:

It is hereby ORDERED that:

1. The Motion is GRANTED.

2. Capitalized terms not defined herein shall have the meanings ascribed to them in the Motion or Memorandum of Law.

3. Summary judgment is hereby entered in the Redeemer Committee and Crusader Funds' favor on the Crusader Objection, as requested in the Motion.

4. The UBS Claim is hereby disallowed to the extent that it seeks to hold the Debtor liable for (i) damages based on breaches or other conduct that occurred before February 24, 2009; and (ii) damages arising from the March 2009 Transfers to the Credit Strategies Fund and the Crusader Funds, including in each case as relief for the Debtor's alleged breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing.

5. This Order shall be effective immediately upon entry by the Court.

RULES

UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch (together, "UBS"), by and through their undersigned counsel, hereby submit this objection (the "Objection") to the Debtor's Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlements with (A) The Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund (Claim No. 72), and (B) The Highland Crusader Funds (Claim No. 81), and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Dkt. No. 1089] (the "Motion") regarding the proofs of claim filed by the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund ("Redeemer" and the "Redeemer Claim") and the Highland Crusader Funds ("Crusader"[2] and the "Crusader Claim"). In support of this Objection, UBS respectfully states as follows:

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

Under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9019, a bankruptcy court must make an independent judgment of the merits of any settlement proposed by a debtor to ensure that it is fair, equitable, and in the best interest of the debtor's estate. While settlements are certainly desirable in the context of a bankruptcy case—especially in this case, which is particularly complex and fraught with allegations of fraud and bad faith—a settlement should not be approved just because the debtor says it should be. Here, Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor") acknowledges that it made "substantial compromises" to strike a deal with Crusader and Redeemer, but contends that those compromises benefit the Debtor's estate. A closer review of the Proposed Settlement (as defined below), however, belies such assertion and evidences that the Debtor has not met its burden of showing this is a fair and equitable compromise within the range of reasonable alternatives.

[2] Crusader refers to a collection of four funds: Highland Crusader Offshore Partners, L.P., Highland Crusader Fund, L.P., Highland Crusader Fund, Ltd., and Highland Crusader Fund II, Ltd.

The Debtor's "modest reductions" to the Redeemer Claim do not account for the significant risk that a substantial portion of the Redeemer Claim (based on an Arbitration Award) is subject to vacatur. More importantly, under the Proposed Settlement, the Debtor would forfeit rights to over $30 million in cash and valuable assets potentially worth more than $80 million, permitting a significant windfall to Redeemer to the detriment of the Debtor's estate and other creditors.

The Redeemer Claim is based on an Arbitration Award that required the Debtor, inter alia, to pay $118,929,666 (including prejudgment interest and attorneys' fees) in damages and to pay Redeemer $71,894,891 (including prejudgment interest) in exchange for all of Crusader's shares in Cornerstone. Pursuant to that same Arbitration Award, the Debtor also retained the right to receive $32,313,000 in Deferred Fees upon Crusader's liquidation. As shown below, after accounting for those reciprocal obligations to the Debtor and depending on the true value of the Cornerstone shares to be tendered (which is disputed), the actual value of the Arbitration Award to Redeemer is between $74,911,557 and $128,011,557.[3]

Under the Proposed Settlement, however, Redeemer stands to gain far more because the Debtor has inexplicably agreed to release its rights to Crusader's Cornerstone shares and the Deferred Fees (with a combined value that could be as much as $115,913,000)—providing a substantial windfall to Redeemer. The Debtor has failed to provide sufficient information to permit this Court to meaningfully evaluate the true value of the Proposed Settlement, including the fair value of the Cornerstone shares, which it must do in order for this Court to have the information it needs to approve the Proposed Settlement. Depending on the valuation of the Cornerstone shares, [3] The potential range of value attributable to the Cornerstone shares is significant because, according to the Debtor's liquidation analysis, the Debtor expects to have only $195 million total in value to distribute, and only $161 million to distribute to general unsecured creditors under its proposed plan. See Liquidation Analysis [Dkt. No. 1173-1]; First Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. [Dkt. No. 1079].

the value of the Proposed Settlement to Redeemer may be as much as $253,609,610—which substantially exceeds the face amount of the Redeemer Claim.

In the meantime, other general unsecured creditors of the Debtor will receive a much lower percentage recovery than they would if those assets were instead transferred to the Debtor's estate, as required by the Arbitration Award, and evenly distributed among the Debtor's creditors. The Proposed Settlement is only in the best interests of Redeemer and, as such, it should be rejected.

BACKGROUND[4]

A. Procedural Background

1. The Debtor is an investment management firm that manages a variety of hedge funds, structured investment vehicles, and mutual funds.

2. On October 16, 2019 (the "Petition Date"), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for chapter 11 relief in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware. Pursuant to an order dated December 4, 2019, the Debtor's bankruptcy proceedings were transferred to this Court under the above-captioned case number (the "Chapter 11 Case").

3. On March 2, 2020, this Court entered the Order (I) Establishing Bar Dates for Filing Claims and (II) Approving the Form and Manner of Notice Thereof [Dkt. No. 488]. Pursuant to that order, the general bar date for proofs of claim was set for April 8, 2020.

4. On April 3, 2020, Redeemer filed Proof of Claim No. 72 against the Debtor's estate, claiming (1) $190,824,557 (its so-called "Damages Award"); (2) "post-petition interest, attorneys' fees, costs and other expenses;" (3) the right to distribute funds held in the "Deferred Fee Account" to Crusader investors; and (4) the transfer or cancellation of certain limited partner interests in Crusader held by the Debtor, the Charitable DAF Fund, L.P. ("DAF"), and Eames, Ltd. ("Eames").

Redeemer Claim Rider at 1-2. The Redeemer Claim is predicated upon an "Arbitration Award," which it characterizes as an "executory contract." Redeemer Claim Rider at 1.

5. As discussed in further detail below, the Arbitration Award is actually made up of three awards: (i) a March 6, 2019 "Partial Final Award," (ii) a March 14, 2019 "Modification Award," and (iii) an April 29, 2019 "Final Award"—all issued by the same panel of arbitrators in the same arbitration proceeding, but none of which has ever been confirmed or otherwise entered as a final judgment by any court of competent jurisdiction. See Mot. ¶ 15.

6. On April 6, 2020, Crusader filed Proof of Claim No. 81 against the Debtor's estate alleging the Debtor had been a faithless fiduciary and claiming (1) $55,796,446, including the disgorgement of $8,233,337 in "Management Fees" and $15,250,109 in "Distribution Fees" previously paid to the Debtor for its service as investment manager, as well as forfeiture of the Debtor's right to $32,313,000 in "Deferred Fees" and any "Other Fees" that "may now or in the future otherwise be owing to [the Debtor]"; (2) any other Deferred Fees the Debtor "might otherwise become entitled in the future"; (3) "pre- and post-petition interest, attorneys' fees, costs and other expenses"; and (4) a right of setoff against any claim that the Debtor may assert against it for "Withheld Amounts." Crusader Claim Rider at 1-2;[5] Crusader Claim at 2; see Mot. ¶ 22.

7. On August 26, 2020, UBS filed its Objection to the Proof of Claim Filed by Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund [Dkt. No. 996] (the "UBS Objection"). UBS objected to the Redeemer Claim's: (1) characterization of the Arbitration Award as an executory contract, (2) inclusion of relief in the so-called Damages Award that was impermissibly awarded for the first time in the Final Award and thus is subject to vacatur, and (3) failure to take into account the value of assets that Redeemer is obligated to transfer to the Debtor's estate under the same Arbitration Award. UBS Obj. at 3, 19.

8. On September 23, 2020, the Debtor filed the Motion and the Declaration of John A. Morris in Support of the Debtor's Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with (A) the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund (Claim No. 72), and (B) the Highland Crusader Funds (Claim No. 81), and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Dkt. No. 1090] (the "Morris Declaration"). The Motion seeks approval of a stipulation, attached as Exhibit 1 to the Morris Declaration [Dkt. No. 1090-1] (the "Proposed Settlement").

B. The Arbitration Award

9. From Crusader's inception through August 2016, the Debtor served as Crusader's investment manager. Mot. ¶¶ 10, 13; Crusader Claim Rider at 1. In late 2008, Crusader was put into wind-down. Mot. ¶ 11. That process was governed by a Joint Plan of Distribution of the Crusader Funds and the Scheme of Arrangement Between the Crusader Funds and their Scheme Creditors (the "Plan and Scheme"),[6] both adopted in 2011 in an attempt to permit redeeming investors to be able to realize additional monetary benefits that would not ordinarily be realized through general liquidation. Plan & Scheme at 14-16; see also Mot. ¶ 12. This arrangement was not intended to be a risk-free choice. Plan & Scheme at 16 ("There is a risk that the Company Redeemers' Distributions may be less than their Redemption Amounts . . .").

10. Pursuant to the Plan and Scheme, payment of certain fees owed to the Debtor as compensation for its role as investment manager was deferred (the "Deferred Fees") until [6] The Plan and Scheme, filed under seal at Docket No. 953, is Exhibit 22 to Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Funds and the Highland Crusader Funds' Objection to the Proofs of Claim of UBS AG, London Branch and UBS Securities LLC and Joinder in the Debtor's Objection [Dkt. No. 933]. UBS notes, however, that Redeemer and Crusader filed only a pre-execution draft. E.g. Plan & Scheme at 38 (reflecting track change revisions).

liquidation of Crusader's assets was complete. Mot. ¶¶ 10, 13, 25; Plan & Scheme at 37, 73-74. Unlike certain "Distribution Fees" that the Debtor would not be entitled to receive if removed for cause, Plan & Scheme at 48, 73, the "Deferred Fees are payable under all circumstances to HCMLP," except for the "Deferred Fee Account." Plan & Scheme at 20 (emphasis added). For those amounts in the Deferred Fee Account, the Debtor had the right to "potentially receive" those amounts if it met specified distribution targets on time. Plan & Scheme at 15, 57-58, 82-83.

11. Redeemer was entrusted with oversight of this process from the start and at all times had the power to terminate the Debtor as Crusader's investment manager upon thirty days' notice, with or without cause. Plan and Scheme at 15-16, 18, 51, 76. Redeemer chose not to exert this power until July 5, 2016, when Redeemer provided the Debtor with notice it was being terminated as investment manager and an arbitration proceeding was being initiated against it. Mot. ¶¶ 13-14. Pursuant to this notice, the Debtor's investment management services ended effective August 4, 2016. Mot. ¶ 13. The Debtor was replaced by Alvarez & Marsal CRT Management, LLC ("Alvarez"). PFA at 4. Concurrently with its arbitration demand, Redeemer initiated an action in the Delaware Chancery Court (the "Delaware Court") for a status quo order, id., where the Debtor added Alvarez as a third party defendant. See Mot. ¶ 14 n.3; Ex. A, Debtor Brief to Vacate (REDEEMER_001635).

12. In the arbitration proceeding, Redeemer asserted breach of contract and breach of fiduciary duty claims against the Debtor seeking disgorgement and other relief based on the Debtor's service as Crusader's investment manager. Mot. ¶ 14; PFA at 3-4. Redeemer chose not to allege the Debtor had been a faithless servant. PFA at 8, 49. After "the record was declared closed" on December 12, 2018, id. at 7, the panel of arbitrators (the "Panel") rendered a "Partial Final Award" (or "PFA") [Dkt. No. 1128] on March 6, 2019. The Partial Final Award was a 56-page single-spaced reasoned decision unanimously signed by all three members of the Panel. See generally id. Four aspects of the Partial Final Award are of particular relevance here:

- Deferred Fees. The Panel found that the Debtor was entitled to receive the Deferred Fees but had paid them to itself prematurely. PFA at 3; Mot. ¶ 25. Because Redeemer was deprived of the use of these funds during the improper period, the Panel awarded damages of $41,320,655, consisting of $32,313,000 in damages and $9,007,655[7] in prejudgment interest. Importantly, the Panel made no finding that the Debtor's misconduct required it to give up its right to receive the Deferred Fees at the time set forth in the Plan and Scheme. PFA at 14.[8] Under the Plan & Scheme, the Deferred Fees are required to be paid to the Debtor's estate upon Crusader's complete liquidation, which as UBS understands, is largely tied to the disposition of the Cornerstone shares. See PFA at 51.

- Cornerstone Award. The Panel also found that the Debtor had breached its fiduciary duty by failing to liquidate Crusader's shares in Cornerstone Healthcare Group ("Cornerstone"). Mot. ¶ 30. The Arbitration Award ordered the Debtor to pay Redeemer $48,070,407 (at the fair market value of $3,241.41 per share, calculated as of the date of the Debtor's interference, PFA at 42, 48), plus $21,169,417 in prejudgment interest, and ordered Redeemer to transfer Crusader's Cornerstone shares to the Debtor. PFA at 55; id. at 48 ("[We] order that the [Redeemer] Committee simultaneously cause the Crusader Fund to surrender its interest in Cornerstone to Highland."). Neither Redeemer nor Crusader was provided any future interest in Cornerstone or right to seek retention of the Cornerstone shares in lieu of damages. See PFA at 48, 55; Mot. ¶ 31.

- Barclays LP Interests. The Panel ruled on one of Redeemer's core allegations—namely, that the Debtor improperly transferred certain limited partner interests in Crusader that belonged to Barclays (the "Barclays LP Interests") from Barclays to Eames, see, e.g., PFA at 8, 15, 20-22, 54—and determined that such transfers were a breach of the parties' agreement. PFA at 21-22, 54. But the Panel did not treat the Debtor's transfers of the Barclays LP Interests as an independent wrongdoing. Instead, the Partial Final Award only discussed the transfer of the Barclays LP Interests in the context of one of Redeemer's broader sets of claims, known as its "Distribution Fee Claim." See PFA at 15; id. at 20 (analyzing "Payments to Barclays and Eames as Distributions"). After determining that the Debtor's transfers of the Barclays LP Interests were "improper," PFA at 20-22, 54, the Panel awarded Redeemer a "total" of $14,452,275 in aggregate damages (plus prejudgment interest) to cover all of the conduct relating to its Distribution Fee Claim—a claim that specifically included the Debtor's transfers of the Barclays LP Interests. E.g., PFA at 22.

[7] The Partial Final Award included interest "through the date of this Partial Final Award." Id. at 14. The Final Award's extension of the prejudgment accumulation period added an additional $1,784,740 in interest bringing the total Deferred Fees award to $43,105,395.

[8] In fact, the Debtor asserted a counterclaim against Redeemer to recover the Deferred Fees prior to complete liquidation of Crusader, because it alleged Alvarez should have completed the Crusader liquidation by December 2017, triggering the payment to the Debtor. PFA at 8, 49. The Panel, however, found that Alvarez was not responsible for any delay. Id. at 51. Notably, Redeemer did not raise a faithless servant defense. PFA at 8, 49.

- Prejudgment Interest. As noted, the Panel awarded Redeemer prejudgment interest on its damages awards, see e.g., PFA at 48, 54-55, accruing from the time of the alleged breaches through March 6, 2019, the date of the Partial Final Award. E.g., PFA at 54 (awarding "statutory interest of 9%, calculated on a simple basis, from the dates of taking in January and April 2016 through the date of this Partial Final Award").

13. On March 7, 2019, one day after the Panel issued the Partial Final Award, Redeemer requested a modification to the Partial Final Award. FA at 1. On March 11, 2019, before the Debtor was required to respond to the request, the Panel responded by email that it "[would] be modifying" the Partial Final Award. Ex. A, Debtor Brief to Vacate at 5 (REDEEMER_001644). Next, on March 14, 2019, and also before the Debtor was required to respond to the request, the Panel unilaterally issued a "Disposition of Application for Modification of Award" [Dkt. No. 1129] (the "Modification Award" or "MA"). This email and the Modification Award added a completely new category of damages as a result of the Debtor's "improper" transfer of the Barclays LP Interests—damages above and beyond the $14.5 million already ordered for such conduct in the Partial Final Award. FA at 11.

14. The Modification Award purported to be issued pursuant to Rule 50 of the AAA Commercial Rules, which allows a panel to "correct any clerical, typographical, or computational errors in the award." MA at 1; FA at 1 n.1. If Rule 50 had been properly applied, the Debtor would have had "10 calendar days to respond to [Redeemer's] request" in writing. AAA R-50. Instead, the Modification Award was issued on March 14, 2019—just 7 days after Redeemer's request and 3 days short of the timeframe for objections provided for in Rule 50. FA at 1; Mot. ¶ 15. The Debtor timely opposed Redeemer's modification request on March 17, 2019, and requested that the Panel withdraw its Modification Award and refrain from any further modification of the Partial Final Award. FA at 2(a). That did not happen.

15. Almost three weeks later, on April 5, 2019 (ten days after Rule 50's allotted period for modification requests closed), Redeemer submitted yet another formal written request for modification of the Partial Final Award, this time asking the Panel to "award further damages in connection with the Barclays claim" and to "award prejudgment interest through" an extended date. FA at 2. Again, the Debtor opposed Redeemer's request for such "further damages" on the basis that such post-award modifications are improper under the AAA Rules and governing law. FA at 2-3.

16. On April 29, 2019,[9] the Panel issued a new "Final Award." In that Final Award, the Panel "re-adopt[ed] all prior findings and conclusions" but "specifically modified" portions of the earlier Partial Final Award. FA at 1. The "modifications" included several substantive changes to the Partial Final Award by: (1) awarding Redeemer an additional $21,768,743 in damages due to the transfers of the Barclays LP Interests, as well as $9,042,623 in prejudgment interest on these new damages; (2) granting injunctive relief that required the Debtor to return improperly taken limited partner interests held by Eames to Redeemer; and (3) extending the time for prejudgment interest to accrue until "the date paid or the entry of a final judgment." FA at 2, 14-15. Put differently, the relief awarded through the Arbitration Award included:

Award	Modification	Amount Added	Total Liquidated Damages Award
Partial Final Award	n/a	n/a	$154,314,614[10]
Modification Award	New damages related to Barclays LP Interests	$30,811,366	$183,923,629
Final Award	Incorporated MA; added injunctive relief (Eames); extended accrual period for prejudgment interest	$6,900,921 & injunctive relief	$190,824,557

[9] Two of three arbitrators signed on April 29, the third arbitrator signed on May 9, 2019. FA at 19-22; see Mot. ¶ 15 (referencing a May 9, 2019 Final Award).

[10] The Partial Final Award explicitly found liability and awarded damages for the "Sale of CLO interests" and "Credit Suisse claims," as well as for attorneys' fees, but directed the parties to confer regarding the appropriate amount of damages or, if no agreement could be reached, the Panel would determine the amount. PFA at 55-56. These amounts was properly clarified in the Final Award and such amounts are included in this calculation.

17. After the Final Award was issued, and prior to the Petition Date, Redeemer moved in the Delaware Court to have that award confirmed as a judgment. Mot. ¶ 17. Also prior to the Petition Date, the Debtor moved the Delaware Court to vacate at least $36.5 million of the Arbitration Award on the grounds that the Panel was without authority to modify its Partial Final Award ("Motion to Vacate"). Mot. ¶ 17. Both motions were scheduled to be heard by the Delaware Court on the day that the Debtor filed its Chapter 11 Case.[11] The Delaware proceedings are currently stayed by section 362 of the Bankruptcy Code.

C. The Proposed Settlement

18. On July 8, 2020, the Debtor informed this Court that it and Redeemer had reached a settlement in principle as to Redeemer's claim and would file their agreement when certain language was finalized. Dkt. 817, July 8, 2020 Hr'g Tr.

19. Subsequently, and in parallel with the Debtor and Redeemer finalizing their agreement, the Debtor, Redeemer and other parties in interest, including UBS, proceeded with mediation. A brief summary of the terms of the Redeemer settlement was announced to the mediation parties on the first day of mediation, August 27, 2020.

20. Then, on September 23, 2010, the Debtor filed its Motion and Proposed Settlement. As the Debtor has acknowledged to this Court in the past, a settlement of the Redeemer Claim based on the Arbitration Award is not as simple or straightforward as with a typical arbitration award. Dkt. No. 817, July 8, 2020 Hr'g Tr. This is, in part, because of the obligations imposed by the Arbitration Award and Plan and Scheme that require Redeemer to transfer meaningful assets

[11] The Motion emphasizes that Redeemer "timely moved" to confirm the Arbitration Award, but implies that the timeliness of the Debtor's Motion to Vacate is in question. See Mot. ¶¶ 17-18 n.4 (citing the three-month statutory time limit under the Federal Arbitration Act, 9 U.S.C. § 12). The Debtor's Motion to Vacate was filed on June 6, 2019, less than six weeks after the Final Award was issued, and the Debtor's brief was filed on July 10, 2019, pursuant to an ordered briefing schedule. See, e.g., Ex. A, Debtor Brief to Vacate at 9 (REDEEMER_001648).

to the Debtor's estate—i.e., the Deferred Fees and Cornerstone shares. Under the Proposed Settlement, Redeemer is relieved of those obligations, and the Debtor forfeits the estate's rights to those assets. Among other terms (in addition to an exchange of releases and discontinuation of litigation), under the Proposed Settlement:

- The Redeemer Claim would be allowed in the amount of $137,696,610. Mot. ¶ 23; Proposed Settlement ¶ 1.
- The Crusader Claim would be allowed in the amount of $50,000. Mot. ¶ 23; Proposed Settlement ¶ 2.
- Limited partner interests in Crusader held by (i) the Debtor, (ii) the DAF, and (iii) Eames, would be cancelled, and the "Reserved Distributions" associated with those interests would be forfeited. Mot. ¶ 23; Proposed Settlement ¶ 3.
- The Debtor would forfeit its right to collect approximately $32,313,000 of Deferred Fees owed to it upon Crusader's completed liquidation. Mot. ¶ 23; Proposed Settlement ¶ 5.
- The Debtor would forfeit its right to the Cornerstone shares held by Crusader, in exchange for an approximately $30,500,000 reduction of the Redeemer Claim "to account for the perceived fair market value of those shares," and Redeemer and the Debtor would work together to monetize Cornerstone. Mot. ¶ 23; Proposed Settlement ¶ 8.

21. These terms purport to reflect two self-styled "substantial compromise[s]" and "other modest reductions" that were applied to reduce the Redeemer Claim from an asserted claim of $190,824,557 to an allowed claim of $137,808,302. See Mot. ¶ 28, 32; id. ¶¶ 27, 31. First, Redeemer "agreed to reduce the Damages Award by $21,592,000" (which the Debtor claims is "approximately two-thirds of the Deferred Fees" component of the so-called Damages Award), and in exchange, the Debtor agreed to forfeit its right to collect approximately $32,313,000 in Deferred Fees upon liquidation of Crusader. Mot. ¶ 27. Second, Redeemer agreed to reduce the $71,894,891 component of the so-called Damages Award "by approximately $30,500,000 to account for the perceived fair market value of" the Cornerstone shares, and in exchange, the Debtor agreed to forfeit its right to receive the Cornerstone shares. Mot. ¶ 31. Under the Proposed Settlement, Crusader would retain its minority interest in Cornerstone, and Redeemer would cooperate with the Debtor to liquidate the Cornerstone investment as a whole. Id. Finally, the parties agreed to further reduce the so-called Damages Award by approximately $924,255, for unspecified reasons.[12] Mot. ¶ 32.

D. The Cornerstone Shares

22. The Cornerstone shares undoubtedly provide value to whatever entity holds them. Crusader currently owns 14,830 shares (or approximately 40%) of Cornerstone. The Motion states that the "perceived fair market value" of those shares is $30.5 million ($2,059/share), Mot. ¶ 31, but does not provide any details whatsoever regarding whose "perception" this is, what it is based on, when it was calculated, or what information was taken into account to arrive at this valuation. And the Motion does not provide any evidence at all to support such a valuation.

23. On October 12, 2020, REDACTED

Alvarez, Crusader's investment manager and a released "Crusader Additional Party" under the Proposed Settlement. See Proposed Settlement at 1, ¶ 11; Ex. B, 6/4/20 Presentation to Redeemer at 16 (REDEEMER_004899).

24. The true value of Crusader's Cornerstone shares (and thus, the true value of the rights forfeited by the Debtor) is much higher than the $30.5 million assigned to them for [12] Under the Proposed Settlement, the Debtor and Eames would also forfeit all rights to "certain other monies as to which the Debtor and Eames may have had an interest in the absence of this Stipulation." Proposed Settlement ¶ 5. But it is unclear what those "other monies" are. Other aspects of the Proposed Settlement are equally unclear, for example, the Debtor's forfeiture of its interest in any "Reserved Distributions," future "Distribution Fees," and "Management Fees" that may relate either to "the Cancelled LP Interests or any other role or position of the Debtor with respect to the Crusader Funds (including but not limited to its role as the investment manager for the Crusader Funds until August 4, 2016)." Id. These unquantified fees that may be "currently accrued or that might have accrued in the future," id., appear to provide value for the Crusader Claim that could be well beyond the $50,000 allowed claim. See Crusader Claim Rider at 2 (asserting a claim "[i]n the amount of any other compensation, fees or distributions which may now or in the future otherwise be owing to [the Debtor]"). These items were not sought in the Redeemer Claim. See generally Redeemer Claim Rider.

settlement purposes. REDACTED

25. REDACTED

26. UBS's own financial advisor in this matter, Grant Thornton LLP, has evaluated both the Crusader Houlihan June Valuation and the Debtor Houlihan Valuation. See Declaration of W. Kevin Moentmann (the "GT Declaration"). REDACTED

[13] It is unclear whether the same individuals at Houlihan prepared both analyses.

REDACTED

27. Moreover, based on the data made available to it and using the methodology described in the Declaration submitted herewith, Grant Thornton has calculated that the actual value of Cornerstone as of June 30, 2020 might be as high as between $116 million and $208.7 million, in the aggregate. GT Decl. ¶ 5. That means that Crusader's 14,830 shares might have an actual value of between $46.5 million and $83.6 million, id. ¶ 6 (the "Grant Thornton Estimation")—i.e., nearly triple the $30.5 million fair market value calculated REDACTED , which apparently forms the basis for the Debtor's decision to forfeit its rights to Crusader's 14,830 shares in exchange for a $30.5 million reduction of the Redeemer Claim in the Proposed Settlement.

ARGUMENT

28. The Debtor's own evaluation of the deal it struck cannot and should not "be automatically accepted as reasonable" by this Court. In re Alfonso, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 2816, at *9 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. Sept. 6, 2019). Instead, when evaluating a claim compromise under Bankruptcy Rule 9019, the Court must be apprised "of the relevant facts and law so that it can make an informed and intelligent decision on whether the settlement proposed is fair and equitable to parties in interest.'" Id. at *8; In re Rogumore, 393 B.R. 474, 480 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2008) (applying the court's independent judgment and finding the proposed compromise must be denied).

29. Such information is necessary because, while settlements are desirable, the Court cannot "simply accept the [settling parties'] word that the settlement is reasonable," nor can it "merely 'rubber-stamp'" a settlement. In re Shankman, 2010 Bankr. LEXIS 619, at *9 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Mar. 2, 2010) (Isgur, M.). Rather, a Court must determine whether the compromise struck is "fair, equitable, and in the best interest of the estate." Id. at *7.[14] To make that determination, the Court must balance the "terms of the compromise with the likely rewards of litigation" by considering several factors: "(1) The probability of success in the litigation, with due consideration for the uncertainty in fact and law; (2) The complexity and likely duration of the litigation and any attendant expense, inconvenience and delay; and (3) All other factors bearing on the wisdom of the compromise," including the "best interests of the creditors, with proper deference to their reasonable views" and the "extent to which the settlement is truly the product of arms-length bargaining, and not of fraud or collusion." E.g., id.; In re Alfonso, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 2816, at *8.

30. Importantly, the Court should not just consider whether the compromise as a whole is fair, rather, the Court must look at each component to determine whether the Proposed Settlement is in the best interest of the Debtor's estate. See In re Allied Props., LLC, 2007 Bankr. LEXIS 2174, at *13 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. June 25, 2007) (Isgur, M.) (rejecting a settlement despite "[m]ost provisions" of the compromise being fair, equitable, and in the best interest of the debtor's estate, because "two provisions do not meet this standard"). It is the Debtor's burden to establish that the Proposed Settlement is within the range of reasonable alternatives and would lead to a fair and equitable claim settlement. Id. at *12.

31. Here, the Proposed Settlement includes several components that are not fair, equitable, or in the best interest of the Debtor's estate. The Debtor acknowledges that it made "substantial compromises." Mot. ¶¶ 28, 47. All settlements necessarily include compromises. But those compromises must be reasonable concessions, not capitulations. The Debtor misleadingly portrays those compromises as providing its estate with "immediate[]" benefits. Mot.

[14] Unless noted, all internal quotations have been omitted.

¶ 64. UBS disagrees. In fact, those compromises—which provide no reductions for substantial litigation risk, and forfeit the estate's rights to meaningful assets—provide Redeemer with a windfall to the detriment of the Debtor's estate and other creditors.

32. For these reasons and others, there is sufficient basis to reject the Proposed Settlement based on the Bankruptcy Rule 9019 factors set forth by the Fifth Circuit.

A. The Debtor Is More Likely Than Not To Succeed On Its Motion To Vacate

33. Under the first factor, the Debtor argues that it is unlikely to succeed in contesting the Redeemer Claim because the claim is based on the Arbitration Award, which addressed every claim and argument asserted by the parties, after the Panel examined extensive evidence, heard lengthy argument, and made detailed legal and factual findings. Mot. ¶ 43. But the Proposed Settlement does not account for the fact that the Arbitration Award is contingent, disputed, and has never been confirmed by any court of competent jurisdiction.[15]

34. The Debtor argues that Redeemer "could simply move to lift the automatic stay for the sole purpose of having the Arbitration Award confirmed, thereby eliminating the alleged 'contingent' nature of the claim." Mot. ¶ 46. But the Debtor ignores that, even if this Court granted Redeemer's motion to lift the automatic stay, the Debtor's Motion to Vacate is also fully briefed and pending before the Delaware Court. While litigation outcomes are never guaranteed, at minimum, the Debtor's chance of success on its Motion to Vacate and Redeemer's Motion to Confirm is much closer to 50% than the 0% chance of success the Proposed Settlement appears to assign to it, by applying no reduction to account for this litigation risk.

[15] For this reason and others, UBS objected to Redeemer's characterization of the Arbitration Award as an "executory contract" under 11 U.S.C. § 365, rather than as the prepetition litigation damages claim that it is. UBS Obj. ¶¶ 21-22 (citing, e.g., In re Denman, 513 B.R. 720, 723 (Bankr. W.D. Tenn. 2014) ("[A]n executory contract must be a 'contract' and not some other legal instrument.")). The Debtor argues that this issue is "moot" because the Proposed Settlement does not treat the Arbitration Award as an executory contract.

35. As the Debtor itself argued in the Motion to Vacate, and as addressed more fully in the UBS Objection, see UBS Obj. ¶¶ 23-32, the Panel overstepped its fundamental authority as arbitrators by modifying certain aspects of the Partial Final Award, in violation of well-established state law, the Federal Arbitration Act, and Rule 50 of the AAA Commercial Arbitration Rules. See Weinberg v. Silber, 140 F. Supp. 2d 712, 724 (N.D. Tex. 2001) ("[T]he arbitrator shall not revisit his decision on the merits, as his authority to do so has expired."), aff'd, 57 F. App'x 211 (5th Cir. 2003); 9 U.S.C. §10; AAA R-50 ("[Parties] may request the arbitrator, . . . , to correct any clerical typographical, or computational errors in the award," but "[t]he arbitrator is not empowered to redetermine the merits of any claim already decided."). The new Final Award improperly modified the Partial Final Award in two distinct ways.

36. First, the Final Award dramatically expanded the Debtor's purported liability for Redeemer's claim that the Debtor had improperly transferred the Barclays LP Interests to Eames. The Partial Final Award acknowledged Redeemer's claims included the "payment of Distribution Fees" and "transfer of Barclays' Fund interests without Redeemer Committee approval." See PFA at 8; but see Mot. ¶ 54 (arguing the UBS Objection "conflates two separate and distinct issues" related to Barclays). Whereas the Partial Final Award discussed both claims and awarded Redeemer total damages in the amount of $14,452,275 (and prejudgment interest through March 6, 2019) for the Distribution Fee Claim, including for the Debtor's "improper" transfer of Barclays LP Interests, the Panel elected in the Final Award to grant Redeemer an additional $21,768,743 in damages arising out of the Debtor's "improper" transfer of the Barclays LP Interests. FA at 18. That is not all. The Final Award also awarded Redeemer prejudgment interest on these new compensatory damages—a sum that, on its own, adds yet another $9,042,623 to the award. Id. All told, the Panel's modification of these aspects of the Partial Final Award resulted in a combined total of $30,811,366 in new damages for the Debtor's transfers of the Barclays LP Interests—an amount Redeemer itself now refers to as the "Barclays Claim." Redeemer Claim Rider at 2.[16]

37. Second, in the Final Award, the Panel reconsidered its prior ruling on prejudgment interest. The Panel had previously ordered that the Debtor pay Redeemer a finite amount of prejudgment interest (9% per simple interest annum) "through the date of this Partial Final Award" (March 6, 2019), PFA at 14, yet the Panel threw that limitation out entirely in the Final Award. After openly acknowledging its prior ruling, see FA at 14, the Panel announced in the Final Award that it was doing away with that March 6, 2019 end date and, instead, all such interest would run through "the earlier of the date paid or the entry of a final judgment," id. at 2, 14. In addition to the $30.8 million in additional damages for the Barclays LP Interests, the additional interest contemplated by the Final Award accounted for at least another $5.7 million through the Petition Date, for a total of approximately $36.5 million in new damages.

38. Any suggestion that the two major modifications discussed above were attempts to correct "clerical, typographical, or computational errors," AAA R-50, is belied by their sweeping impact. Prior to the Final Award, the aggregate amount of compensatory damages expressly awarded to Redeemer under the Partial Final Award was roughly $142 million (excluding fees and costs). The Panel's two modifications described above, standing alone, immediately add no less than $36,500,000 to that compensatory damages sum—more than a 25% increase (in addition to mandatory injunctive relief purporting to require the Debtor to take the Barclays LP Interests from Eames and transfer them to Redeemer).[17] FA at 18. The portions of the Final Award reflecting

[16] On top of these additional liquidated damages, the Panel ordered the Debtor to "take all necessary steps to cause the improperly taken [] LP interests currently owned and controlled by Respondent through Eames, Ltd to be transferred to Claimant . . . within sixty (60) days from the date of transmittal of this Final Award"—mandatory injunctive relief that is also not mentioned anywhere in the Partial Final Award. FA at 18.

[17] Eames's limited partner interests in Crusader are valued at several million dollars, and possibly more based on the other amounts related to these interests released in the Proposed Settlement. In addition to being subject to these improper, material modifications are examples of the Panel exceeding its authority and are subject to vacatur. Smith v. Transp. Workers Union of Am., 374 F.3d 372, 375 (5th Cir. 2004) ("If an arbitral panel exceeds its authority, it provides grounds for a court to vacate that aspect of its decision.").

39. The Proposed Settlement does not appear to account for the very real risk that a court would vacate those aspects of the Arbitration Award, as the Debtor strongly believed itself when it advocated for vacatur on the same grounds described above to the Delaware Court. The Debtor argues now that "[t]hese procedural attacks on the Arbitration Award were considered and rejected by the Panel" and are unlikely to succeed "here" or in the Delaware Court, if the automatic stay were lifted. Mot. ¶ 49. But the Panel's self-serving evaluation of its conduct is unreasonable and irrelevant to a court's independent analysis of whether that same Panel exceeded its authority under the applicable law and rules.

40. In fact, the Panel's own excuses for its conduct removes any doubt that it exceeded its authority. In the Final Award, the Panel claims the new damages awarded for the Barclays LP Interests were "clear" in the Partial Final Award but it left that "paragraph missing from the damages portion" inadvertently. FA at 9. But courts have considered, and rejected, this exact "explanation" before. See Wein v. Morris, 909 A.2d 1186, 1198 (N.J. Super. Ct. App. Div. 2006) (deciding that AAA Rule 46, the predecessor to Rule 50, does not allow modifications to address "inadvertent omissions" and "neither expressly states nor suggests that claims denied through inadvertence could also be revisited").

vacatur for the reasons discussed above, the Debtor's Motion to Vacate also challenged this injunctive relief on the basis that Eames was not a party to the arbitration and it was therefore outside of the Panel's powers to award this relief. Ex. A, Debtor Brief to Vacate at 8, 15, 17-18.

41. To justify the settlement, the Debtor now credits Redeemer's arguments that the Partial Final Award was labeled "Partial," directed the parties to confer regarding the amount of certain damages, and left the hearing open for those issues to be agreed upon or decided by the Panel. Mot. ¶ 51. But this loses sight of an important distinction: the Panel did not leave the hearing open until all issues were resolved; the panel left the "hearing open until all issues set forth above have been agreed upon by the Parties or decided by the Tribunal." PFA at 56. The issues "set forth above" did not include damages for the Barclays LP Interests or prejudgment interest because those issues had already been directly addressed and decided in the Partial Final Award. E.g., PFA at 14, 24. The Panel conceded as much, see FA at 14 ("In the March 6 Partial Final Award, we awarded damages and interest through the date of that award"), but decided to reach a different conclusion in the Final Award because, in its own view, the prior ruling in the Partial Final Award was "not determinative of this issue." FA at 15. That is exactly what the Panel cannot do. A partial final award rendered on any issue is, by definition, determinative of the issue. See Fluor Daniel Intercontinental, Inc. v. GE, 2007 WL 766290, at *2-3 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 13, 2007); see also Trade & Transp., Inc. v. Nat. Petroleum Charterers Inc., 931 F.2d 191, 195 (2d Cir. 1991).

42. No court has ever ruled on the propriety of the Panel's attempts to redetermine the merits of claims already decided. The Debtor argues that under the Federal Arbitration Act, this Court would be required to defer to the Panel's exercise of its discretion under AAA Rule 8 to "interpret and apply" the AAA Rules, "so long as it is 'within reasonable limits.'" Mot. ¶ 58 (quoting Commc'ns Workers of Am., AFL-CIO, v. Sw. Bell Tel. Co., 953 F.3d 822, 827 (5th Cir. 2020)) (emphasis added). But the Debtor cannot seriously expect that this Court (with its equitable powers) or the Delaware Court would view changes that fundamentally alter—and in this instance, significantly increase—the relief granted to Redeemer as a mere correction of a "clerical error" and a "reasonable" interpretation of AAA Rule 50. Nor does the Debtor's Motion grapple with the fact that the modifications requested by Redeemer, which prompted changes in the Final Award, were requested too late under Rule 50.[18]

43. UBS recognizes that litigation is uncertain. But even if the likelihood of the Debtor prevailing on its Motion to Vacatur is assigned a 50% chance of success, that would suggest a $18,250,000 ($36,500,000 x 50%) reduction of the Redeemer Claim to account for that uncertainty, millions above the "modest" unspecified reduction of $924,255 included the Proposed Settlement. Mot. ¶ 32. UBS submits that the Debtor's failure to take into account the litigation risk associated with its arguments for vacatur is an exercise of business judgment that falls below any range of reasonableness. In re Allied Props., LLC, 2007 Bankr. LEXIS 2174, at *20 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. June 25, 2007) (Isgur, M.) (requiring the trustee to "show that his decision falls within the range of reasonable litigation alternatives").

B. This Court Or the Delaware Court Could Decide The Motions To Confirm And Vacate With Minimal Expenditure Of Time And Resources

44. Under the second factor, the Debtor seems to place the Redeemer Claim at both ends of this spectrum. To show that the complexity of litigation favors settlement, the Debtor asserts that issues in the Redeemer Claim "are fairly complex; litigation would require meaningful resources, would take time, and would delay the Debtor's efforts to get to a confirmable plan." Mot. ¶ 59. But as discussed above, the Debtor also acknowledges that its Motion to Vacate and Redeemer's Motion to Confirm were both fully briefed prior to the Petition Date, and that [18] In contrast to Redeemer's April 5, 2019 submission, Redeemer's March 7, 2019 submission was timely—but the Panel responded to that request before the Debtor's 10-day response period had lapsed. See generally MA; FA at 1.

Redeemer "could simply move to lift the automatic stay for the sole purpose of having the Arbitration Award confirmed." Id. ¶ 46.

45. UBS does not dispute that the Panel already made extensive findings of fact, legal rulings, and credibility determinations. The only issue left to be litigated is the propriety of the Panel's modifications to the Arbitration Award at issue. No further discovery, evidence, or witness testimony is needed to decide that issue, so the remaining litigation would be a much "simpler" proceeding than the previous evidentiary hearing before the Panel, which featured four expert witnesses as well as eleven fact witnesses and spanned nine days. Mot. ¶ 43. Nor would this consume meaningful resources or cause significant delay—all that is left to do is for a court (this Court or the Delaware Court) to rule on the Debtor and Redeemer's pending motions.[19] In fact, the Debtor would likely spend only a very small sum of money in legal fees (if anything), to possibly reduce the Redeemer Claim by as much as $36,500,000.

C. The Proposed Settlement Is Not In The Best Interests Of All Creditors

46. Under the third factor, this Court must consider all other factors bearing on the wisdom of the Proposed Settlement, including most importantly, whether the Proposed Settlement is in the best interests of all the creditors. Applying this factor, courts generally look at "the consideration offered by the settling creditor and the degree to which creditors object." In re Rogumore, 393 B.R. 474, 480 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2008); In re Shankman, 2010 Bankr. LEXIS 619, [19] The Motion also references how "notoriously complex" setoff issues would arise with respect to the Deferred Fees and Cornerstone shares in litigation. Mot. ¶ 59. To "make an informed and independent judgment, however, the court needs facts, not allegations." Protective Comm. for Indep. Stockholders of TMT Trailer Ferry v. Anderson, 390 U.S. 414, 437 (1967); see In re Allied Props., LLC, 2007 Bankr. LEXIS 2174, at *15. The Debtor states, without citation, that "under principles of setoff, the Redeemer Committee may have only been required to tender shares equal in value to the recovery of its claim." Mot. n.15. It is unclear how traditional principles of setoff—under which a Debtor's monetary debt owed to a creditor is offset by a separate monetary debt owed by the creditor to the Debtor—applies to a situation like this one, where the Deferred Fees and Cornerstone shares are real assets owed to the Debtor. Without further elaboration, the Debtor does not show that this Court would need to address this "notoriously complex" issue.

at *9 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Mar. 2, 2010) (Isgur, M.). Where a significant unsecured creditor affected by the Proposed Settlement—here, UBS—objects, "the Court must look to the reasonable views of" that creditor. Id. at *20 (rejecting a settlement when only two creditors "strenuously opposed" but it became "clear that they will not receive any benefit under the proposed compromise).[20]

47. The Debtor describes the Proposed Settlement as purportedly benefitting the estate, doing so "on reasonable terms," and in the exercise of "sound business judgment." Mot. ¶ 63. But the Proposed Settlement's terms should not be viewed as anything approaching "reasonable" to any creditor, except Redeemer. When studied carefully, the supposed benefits to the estate are illusory. In re Shankman, 2010 Bankr. LEXIS 619, at *10 (rejecting the proposed settlement because it offered only "illusory benefits" and was not just, equitable, and in the best interests of the estate).

48. In addition to the lack of any reduction to account for the litigation uncertainty associated with the risk of vacatur discussed above, in the Proposed Settlement, the Debtor forfeits the right to meaningful assets that otherwise would be transferred to the estate and distributed pro rata among all of the estate's unsecured creditors. This provides a windfall to Redeemer to the detriment of other creditors, by not only permitting Redeemer to receive more than its pro rata share of the Debtor's estate, but also requiring the Debtor to forfeit the estate's rights to valuable assets. When these components are factored in, Redeemer could receive a greater than 100% recovery on the Redeemer Claim, and all other creditors would lose out. Accordingly, this [20] The Motion asserts that the UBS Objection was the only objection made to the Redeemer Claim or Crusader Claim. Mot. ¶ 33 n.10. The number of creditors who object to a claim or settlement is not dispositive of this factor or the resolution. Regardless of whether any creditors object, "[t]he Court is obliged to independently consider whether the creditor's best interests are being served." In re Allied Props., LLC, 2007 Bankr. LEXIS 2174, at *27 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. June 25, 2007) (Isgur, M.). Even when no creditors object, a Court must reject a claim settlement if the compromise is not fair, equitable, and in the best interest of the debtor's estate. In re Rogumore, 393 B.R. at 479 (finding a compromise was not fair, equitable, or in the best interests of the debtor's estate "[a]lthough no objections to the motions were filed").

compromise violates the third factor that courts in the Fifth Circuit have focused on in evaluating settlements. In re Allied Props., LLC, 2007 Bankr. LEXIS 2174, at *18-19 ("Th[e third] factor focuses on the degree to which the compromise serves all creditors' interests. The compromise provides no material benefits to the estate. Consequently, to the extent that the compromise gives Black Mountain assets that otherwise would be distributed pro rata among all the estate's unsecured creditors, the compromise violates the third factor.").

1. The Debtor Would Forfeit Its Right To Collect Deferred Fees

49. The Debtor acknowledges that while the Panel found that $32,313,000 in Deferred Fees were prematurely taken by the Debtor, the Debtor ultimately would be entitled to those fees pursuant to the Plan and Scheme, upon the completion of the liquidation of Crusader. Mot. ¶¶ 25-27. In the Proposed Settlement, the Debtor and Redeemer claimed to have reached a "substantial compromise," whereby Redeemer "agreed to reduce the Damage Award by $21,592,000," which the Debtor characterizes as "approximately two-thirds" of the Deferred Fees component, in exchange for the Debtor forfeiting its right to collect the Deferred Fees. Mot. ¶ 27. According to the Debtor, this compromise results in the estate "immediately" receiving a benefit (through the reduction of the Damages Award), rather than waiting for the completion of Crusader's liquidation and "litigating at some future date the merits of" the "faithless servant" defense. Mot. ¶ 64. This characterization of the compromise, and who it really "benefits," is misleading at best.

50. As an initial matter, the Debtor's claim that the Proposed Settlement discounted the Deferred Fee component of the Arbitration Award by "approximately two-thirds" is inaccurate. Mot. ¶ 27. The Deferred Fee component of the Arbitration Award listed in the Redeemer Claim is $43,105,395 (not $32,313,000), which includes $10,792,395 in pre-judgment interest.[21] Redeemer Claim Rider at 1. Thus, an "apples-to-apples" or "claim-to-claim" comparison of the asserted claim and allowed claim would acknowledge that a reduction of the so-called Damages Award by approximately $21,592,000 is only one-half, rather than two-thirds, of the Deferred Fee component. Redeemer retains $21,513,395 of its claim based on the Deferred Fees ($43,105,395 - $21,592,000), and does not have to pay the Debtor $32,313,000 upon complete liquidation of Crusader. The Debtor, meanwhile, forfeits its right to receive any of the Deferred Fees indisputably owed to it upon Crusader's completed liquidation.

51. None of Redeemer's counterarguments (or the Debtor's justifications) provides a reasonable basis for the Debtor to forfeit its right to $32,313,000 in Deferred Fees in the future altogether. First, Redeemer apparently expressed its view that it was entitled to recover all of the Deferred Fees found by the Panel to be prematurely taken. Mot. ¶ 26. But Redeemer previously argued, and the Panel agreed, that the Debtor's conduct was improper because it transferred the Deferred Fees to itself too soon. Mot. ¶ 25. The Debtor's entitlement to the Deferred Fees in the future was not in question, however. For this reason, the Panel made clear that "measuring the damages suffered by [Redeemer] by referencing the full amount of the Deferred Fees taken is not the same as literally ordering a return of the moneys." PFA at 14; id. at 3. The Motion does not explain why Redeemer, not the Debtor, would be legally entitled to those fees under any scenario. Under the Plan and Scheme, contracts to which Redeemer is a party, the Debtor alone is entitled to those fees, and the Arbitration Award did not alter those rights in any way or order that the Debtor "return" or forfeit the fees.

52. Second, the Debtor implies that it will not receive the Deferred Fees until some point far in the future, when Crusader's liquidation is complete, but the Debtor provides no facts to ascertain what assets besides the Cornerstone shares, if any, remain at Crusader to be liquidated or when Crusader's liquidation may be completed. Crusader went into wind down in 2008—twelve years ago. See Mot. ¶ 11. The Arbitration Award suggests the Cornerstone shares are among the last assets at Crusader to be liquidated. PFA at 51 (discussing whether liquidation of the Cornerstone shares had delayed liquidation being completed). Therefore, it is entirely possible that Crusader may be liquidated before the close of this Chapter 11 Case. The uncertainty of when the Debtor's estate will receive the Deferred Fees is not reason to forfeit them altogether.

53. Third, Redeemer's argument that the Debtor would be barred from recovering any of the Deferred Fees from Crusader upon its complete liquidation because of the "faithless servant" doctrine is meritless and ignores the Debtor's valid defenses. See Mot. ¶ 26. Redeemer contends that waiver and estoppel are inapplicable because "that is a defense that would only be required to be asserted when HCMLP made a claim for the Deferred Fees—as it did during the negotiations." Mot. ¶ 28 n.9. However, recent negotiations were not the first time the Debtor sought to collect the Deferred Fees, meaning this defense was "required to be asserted" previously. When the Debtor asserted a counterclaim for the Deferred Fees during arbitration, Redeemer defended itself against that claim without ever raising the faithless servant defense. PFA at 49. Moreover, under the Proposed Settlement, the parties agreed to an allowed claim of $50,000 for the Crusader Claim—a claim based in its entirety on the same "faithless servant" doctrine—because, as the Debtor points out, it "is very likely to defeat this claim based on, among other things, affirmative defenses, including the statute of limitations, waiver, laches, and estoppel." Mot. ¶ 58 n.14.

54. The Debtor's forfeiture of its clear right to the Deferred Fees is not a sound exercise of business judgment. The $32,313,000 in Deferred Fees is a cash receivable, a valuable asset that Redeemer would otherwise be required to transfer to the estate upon liquidation of Crusader, at which point it would be available to increase all creditors' pro rata recoveries on their allowed claims. That would be a real benefit to the estate, even if not an "immediate" one. In that scenario, Redeemer would end up giving more in real, cash assets to the Debtor through this pay-back obligation than it would receive on a pro rata basis recovery on its Deferred Fee Claim. Instead, Redeemer avoids this obligation altogether. There is nothing fair or equitable about this compromise from the perspective of all other creditors.

2. The Debtor Would Forfeit Its Right To Crusader's Cornerstone Shares, Which May Be Worth Double The Value Assigned To Them For Settlement Purposes

55. Next, there is no dispute that the Arbitration Award requires Redeemer, simultaneously with a damages payment from the Debtor (including prejudgment interest), to have Crusader "tender its Cornerstone shares to [the Debtor]." FA at 17; PFA at 48; see Mot. ¶ 31. In the UBS Objection, UBS expressed concern regarding how the value of Crusader's 14,380 Cornerstone shares would be taken into account when calculating the true value of the Redeemer Claim. UBS Objection ¶ 20. The Debtor dismisses these concerns as "moot" with little explanation: "these obligations were fully considered by the Debtor and form the basis for substantial compromises embedded in the Stipulation." Mot. ¶¶ 35, 47. UBS's concerns, however, are only heightened by the treatment of Crusader's Cornerstone shares in the Proposed Settlement.

56. Under the Proposed Settlement, the Debtor "agreed to treat the Cornerstone Shares differently from the process required under the Arbitration Award." Mot. ¶ 31. Rather than tendering the Cornerstone shares, Redeemer's "Damage Award will be reduced by approximately $30.5 million to account for the perceived fair market value of those shares," and Crusader will retain the shares. Id. This "substantial compromise" is actually a complete surrender.

57. As an initial matter, this reduction translates to Redeemer receiving over half of the Cornerstone component in its allowed claim. The Cornerstone component of the Arbitration Award listed in the Redeemer Claim is $71,894,891 (not $48,070,407, as the Debtor suggests), which includes $23,824,284 in pre-judgment interest.[22] Redeemer Claim Rider at 1. Thus, an "apples-to-apples" or "claim-to-claim" comparison of the asserted claim and allowed claim would acknowledge that a reduction of the total payments by approximately $30.5 million is a less than 50% reduction of the Cornerstone component ($71,894,891). Put differently, Redeemer retains both $17,570,407 of its asserted claim based on the Cornerstone shares ($48,070,407 - $30,500,000), plus another $23.8 million (the full amount of pre-judgment interest awarded by the Final Award), for a total of $41,394,691 in an allowed claim to be paid pro rata from the estate. And on top of that, Redeemer retains the value of Crusader's Cornerstone shares upon their liquidation, while the Debtor "does not have to purchase" Crusader's Cornerstone shares for $48,070,407 in cash (which the Debtor points out it does not have).

58. But that is not the way that the Arbitration Award was supposed to operate and it is certainly not an equitable way to proceed in this Chapter 11 Case. The Debtor was supposed to pay to Redeemer a fixed amount, which included the Panel's calculation of the fair market value of Crusader's 14,380 shares in Cornerstone plus prejudgment interest. PFA at 48. In return, Crusader was required to tender its Cornerstone shares to the Debtor. That the Debtor does not have $48,070,407 in cash (right now) to pay the full amount assigned by the Panel to the Cornerstone component of the Damages Award is beside the point. Based on the Debtor's current asset valuation, no general unsecured creditors, other than perhaps certain retained employees, will receive a full recovery on account of their prepetition claims. But permitting Redeemer to avoid that downside by keeping both half of the amount that was supposed to be paid for the Cornerstone shares and the Cornerstone shares provides Redeemer with a windfall that the Panel did not contemplate.

59. Moreover, the Debtor's reduction of the Redeemer claim by $30.5 million falls below any reasonable range of valuation, including the Debtor Houlihan Valuation or even the Crusader Houlihan June Valuation. REDACTED higher than the $30.5 million fair market value calculated in the Crusader Houlihan March Valuation and used by the Debtor for settlement purposes. It is unreasonable for the Debtor to accept a lower valuation calculated by the exact same financial firm, while failing to provide the Court with any explanation of what analysis the Debtor or Houlihan performed to determine that this lower value is reasonable (and should be fixed in March as opposed to June, when the value of Cornerstone increased in those three months). See In re Rogumore, 393 B.R. 474, 481 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2008) (rejecting a settlement under Rule 9019 and questioning why the estate should "be forced to accept the low valuation at whatever date," when "[n]o party to the Compromise adequately explained why the cash surrender value should be fixed at the March 24 value").

60. In fact, UBS believes that the valuation of Crusader's shares in Cornerstone is potentially nearly triple the $30.5 million calculated in the Crusader Houlihan March Valuation and used by the Debtor for settlement purposes. According to the Grant Thornton Estimation, the true value of Cornerstone as of June 30, 2020 might be between $116 million and $208.7 million. GT Decl. ¶ 5. This means that Crusader's 14,830 shares might have a value of between $46.5 million and $83.6 million, id. ¶ 6, which Redeemer will receive upon a sale of Cornerstone.

61. Indeed, such a sale is contemplated by the Proposed Settlement. Specifically, the Proposed Settlement requires the Debtor to "in good faith, use commercially reasonable efforts to monetize all shares of capital stock of Cornerstone held by the Debtor, any funds managed by the Debtor, and the Crusader Funds," and requires Redeemer to cooperate in the sale process. Mot. ¶ 23. According to the Debtor, Redeemer's cooperation means that Cornerstone "may be sold as a whole, to the likely benefit of all creditors." Mot. ¶ 64. Redeemer's cooperation is an illusory benefit. If instead, Redeemer was required to comply with its obligations under the Arbitration Award, Crusader's minority interest in Cornerstone would be transferred to the Debtor, and the Debtor would have the same ability to sell Cornerstone "as a whole."[23] Plus, as UBS understands, Cornerstone is among the last of Crusader's assets to be liquidated, so under the Plan and Scheme, the Debtor could (upon receipt of Crusader's shares) trigger payment of the $32,313,000 of Deferred Fees due to the Debtor upon completion of the Crusader liquidation.

3. The Proposed Settlement May Result In Redeemer Recovering More Than 100% On Its Claim

62. All told, the Debtor's forfeiture, and Redeemer's retention, of the Deferred Fees and Cornerstone shares may in fact result in Redeemer recovering more than 100% on its claim. The Debtor's Plan has not been approved and the general unsecured creditor class pro rata recovery

[23] The "Amended & Restated Stockholders' Agreement" filed with the Proposed Settlement, Dkt. No. 1090-1 at Schedule A, raises further questions about the Proposed Settlement—and the Debtor's acceptance of it—by including a Schedule of "Highland Capital Stockholders" that is inconsistent with other documentation provided regarding which Highland entities currently hold Cornerstone shares.

remains uncertain, for a variety of reasons. See, e.g., First Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. [Dkt. No. 1079]. Under the Proposed Settlement, however, when the value of the forfeited assets are taken into account, Redeemer may fare far better than it would have under the underlying Arbitration Award and far better than other general unsecured creditors in this Chapter 11 Case.

63. To illustrate the potential windfall to Redeemer under the Proposed Settlement, a comparison of Redeemer's recovery under the Arbitration Award versus its potential recovery under the Proposed Settlement is helpful. Under the Arbitration Award, the Debtor was required to pay Redeemer 118,929,666 (including prejudgment interest and attorneys' fees) in damages and to pay Redeemer $71,894,891 (including prejudgment interest) in exchange for all of Crusader's shares in Cornerstone. In exchange, Redeemer remained obligated to (i) tender Crusader's Cornerstone shares; and (ii) pay the Debtor $32,313,000 in Deferred Fees upon liquidation of Crusader. As shown below, after accounting for its reciprocal obligations to the Debtor, and depending on the value of the Cornerstone shares to be tendered (which is disputed), the value of the Arbitration Award to Redeemer is between $74,911,557 (using the Grant Thornton Estimation) and $128,011,557 (using the Crusader Houlihan March Valuation):

Redeemer Recovery (Arbitration Award)

Highland Payments	$190,824,557
Pay Deferred Fees	($32,313,000)
REDACTED
Total Recovery	$74,911,557	$104,811,557	$103,111,557	$128,011,557

[24] For purposes of this chart, the highest ends of the ranges calculated by Grant Thorton and Houlihan ("HL") are used, except for the Crusader Houlihan March Valuation, which uses the low end of the range, as the Debtor does.

64. Under the Proposed Settlement, however, Redeemer stands to gain far more. Depending on the valuation of the Cornerstone shares, Redeemer could receive or retain value in an amount up to $253,609,610 (based on the Grant Thornton Estimation) or $200,509,610 (based on the Crusader Houlihan March Valuation), each of which exceeds the face amount of the Redeemer Claim ($190,824,557) and the highest recovery it would have received under the Arbitration Award ($128,011,557), as reflected in the chart above.

Redeemer Recovery (Proposed Settlement)

Allowed Claim	$137,696,610
Release of Deferred Fees	$32,313,000

Total Recovery	$253,609,610	$223,709,610	$225,409,610	$200,509,610

65. Not only does the Proposed Settlement create a likelihood that Redeemer will recover more than 100% of its filed claim amount, it does so while depriving the Debtor's estate of valuable assets that could be used to pay other creditors and increase their pro rata recovery. This contradicts any assertion that the "proposed settlement is in the best interests of the Debtor's creditors." See Mot. ¶ 62. Where, as here, the Proposed Settlement "adversely affect[s] recovery by the estate's other creditors," it is not "fair and equitable" and should be rejected. In re Alfonso, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 2816, at *13 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. Sept. 6, 2019).

CONCLUSION

[25] For purposes of this chart, the highest ends of the ranges calculated by Grant Thornton and Houlihan ("HL") are used, except for the Crusader Houlihan March Valuation, which uses the low end of the range, as the Debtor does.

66. For the foregoing reasons, UBS respectfully requests that the Court independently assess the merits of the Proposed Settlement. Upon doing so, UBS submits that the Court should deny the Motion and provide any such other and further relief to which UBS and all creditors might be entitled. UBS respectfully submits that such relief should include an Order requiring the Debtor to provide sufficient information for UBS and the Court to assess the true value of the Cornerstone shares held by Crusader, and/or an Order requiring the Debtor to obtain a valuation of Cornerstone from an independent, third-party financial advisor.

67. In the alternative, even if the Court approves the Proposed Settlement, UBS respectfully requests that when the Debtor and Redeemer have sold the Cornerstone shares, if the sale price of Crusader's 14,380 shares exceeds the $30,500,000 "perceived" fair market value assigned to them in the Proposed Settlement, the Court take the additional proceeds of that sale into consideration when calculating Redeemer's pro rata recovery from the Debtor's estate, under Section 105 of the Bankruptcy Code.

HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P.,	:	Case No. 19-34054
Debtor.	:

HARBOURVEST LIMITED OBJECTION AND RESERVATION OF RIGHTS TO DEBTOR'S MOTION FOR ENTRY OF AN ORDER APPROVING SETTLEMENT WITH (A) ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P. AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP LLC (CLAIM NO. 23), (B) JOSHUA N. TERRY AND JENNIFER G. TERRY (CLAIM NO. 156), AND (C) ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P. (CLAIM NO. 159), AND AUTHORIZING ACTIONS CONSISTENT THEREWITH

HarbourVest 2017 Global Fund L.P., HarbourVest 2017 Global AIF L.P., HarbourVest Dover Street IX Investment L.P., HV International VIII Secondary L.P., HarbourVest Skew Base AIF L.P., and

HarbourVest Partners L.P., on behalf of funds and accounts under management (collectively, "HarbourVest") hereby files this limited objection (the "Objection") to the Debtor's Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with (A) Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP LLC (Claim No. 23), (B) Joshua N. Terry and Jennifer G. Terry (Claim No. 156), and (C) Acis Capital Management, L.P. (Claim No. 159), and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith (Docket No. 1087) (the "Acis Settlement") by Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor" or "Highland"). In support of the Objection, the HarbourVest respectfully represents the following:

I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. HarbourVest objects to the Acis Settlement, on which it otherwise takes no position, to the extent that it attempts to infringe upon HarbourVest's claims or other rights. Specifically, HarbourVest objects to those portions of the Acis Settlement that purport to (i) to release HarbourVest's claims without the consent or involvement of HarbourVest or (ii) mandate the transfer of Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd. ("Advisor") to Acis Capital Management, L.P. ("Acis") without the consent of HCLOF or its investors, including HarbourVest, in violation of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 and its applicable agreements.

II. RELEVANT BACKGROUND

2. HarbourVest owns an approximately 49% interest in Highland CLO Funding, f/k/a Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. ("HCLOF"). Advisor, a subsidiary of the Debtor, is the current portfolio manager of HCLOF. As described in its proofs of claim, listed in the Debtor's claim register as claims number 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, and 154 (the "Proofs of Claim") and further detailed in the HarbourVest Response to Debtor's First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims; (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No-Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-

Documentation Claims [Docket No. 1057] HarbourVest also has significant claims against the Debtor (the "HarbourVest Claims").

3. The Acis Settlement was negotiated without any input from, or involvement of, HarbourVest, and HarbourVest has not consented to any of its terms or to the transactions contemplated thereby.

III. LIMITED OBJECTION

A. The Acis Settlement Purports to Release HarbourVest's Claims

4. The General Release, attached Exhibit 2 to the Declaration of Gregory V. Demo in Support of the Debtor's Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with (A) Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP LLC (Claim No. 23), (B) Joshua N. Terry and Jennifer G. Terry (Claim No. 156), and (C) Acis Capital Management, L.P. (Claim No. 159), and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No.1088] (the "General Release") included in the Acis Settlement purports to release the claims of, and provide releases to, a wide variety of parties – none of whom were party to the settlement – including HarbourVest.

5. The General Release provides for each "HCMLP Released Party" to mutually release all claims against each "Acis Party." General Release at §1(b). "HCMLP Released Parties" include, but are not limited to, entities "managed by either [the Debtor] or a direct or indirect subsidiary of [the Debtor]" and members of such managed entities. General Release at §1(a). As HarbourVest is a member of HCLOF, which in turn is an entity for which Advisor—a subsidiary of the Debtor—acts as portfolio manager, it is arguably included in the definition of HCMLP Released Parties. While HCLOF is expressly excluded as an HCMLP Released Party, HarbourVest is not.

6. It is not clear whether the Debtor intended to attempt to release HarbourVest's claims through this settlement, and nor can the Debtor purport to do so in the context of a settlement between itself and Acis. Nonetheless, out of an abundance of caution, HarbourVest files this limited objection to ensure all of its rights and claims are preserved and unaffected by the Acis Settlement.

7. For the avoidance of doubt, HarbourVest did not and does not consent to this release. An involuntary release of this nature is beyond the proper scope of the Acis Settlement. To the extent the Release, or any other provision of the Acis Settlement or the proposed order approving the same, purports to release any HarbourVest Claims, or any other claims or rights of HarbourVest, HarbourVest objects. HarbourVest respectfully requests that the Court make clear that the rights, and claims, of HarbourVest and its employees and affiliates remain unaffected.

B. The Acis Settlement Purports to Unlawfully Transfer Highland HCF Advisor to Acis

8. The Acis Settlement purports to require the Debtor to "transfer all of its right, title and interest in Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd., whether its ownership is direct or indirect to Acis or its nominee." Exhibit 1 to the Declaration of Gregory V. Demo, § 1(c) (the "Settlement Agreement"). Any such transfer, absent the consent of, among others, HarbourVest as an investor in HCLOF, would violate Advisor's portfolio management agreement as well as the Investment Advisers Act of 1940. To the extent that the Acis Settlement purports to authorize any such transfer absent HarbourVest's express consent, HarbourVest objects. HarbourVest respectfully requests that the Court make clear that all of its rights under applicable non-bankruptcy law (including those which arise under contract or under the Investment Advisors Act of 1940) are expressly preserved.

NEXPOINT REAL ESTATE PARTNERS LLC'S RESPONSE TO DEBTOR'S FIRST OMNIBUS OBJECTION TO CERTAIN (A) DUPLICATE CLAIMS; (B) OVERSTATED CLAIMS; (C) LATE FILED CLAIMS; (D) SATISFIED CLAIMS; (E) NO-LIABILITY CLAIMS; AND (F) INSUFFICIENT-DOCUMENTATION CLAIMS

NexPoint Real Estate Partners, LLC f/k/a HCRE Partners, LLC ("HCREP") files this Response to the Debtor's First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims; (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No-Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-Documentation Claims (the "Objection") and respectfully states as follows:

I. PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

1. On or about April 8, 2020, HCREP filed its Proof of Claim with Highland Capital Management, LP's (the "Debtor") claims agent, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit 1. [Claim No. 146] (the "Proof of Claim"). In the Proof of Claim, HCREP asserts a claim against the Debtor based on the parties' interests and agreements in connection with an entity called SE

Multifamily Holdings, LLC ("SE Multifamily"). In the Proof of Claim, HCREP notes that it has requested information from the Debtor to ascertain the exact amount of its claim, such process is on-going, and has been delayed due to the outbreak of the Coronavirus. See Proof of Claim, Ex. A.

2. On July 30, 2020, Debtor filed its Objection, objecting to various categories of claims that it seeks to disallow, expunge, or reduce. HCREP's Proof of Claim was included in Schedule 5 to the Objection, which the Debtor characterized as alleged "No-Liability Claims." Specifically, the Debtor claims that the Proof of Claim has no basis in the Debtor's Books and Records and is not an obligation of the Debtor. See Objection, ¶ 22. The Debtor seeks to disallow and expunge the Proof of Claim.

3. After initial discussions between HCREP and the Debtor, the Debtor agreed to multiple extensions of HCREP's deadline to respond to the Objection, such that the agreed deadline for HCREP to respond to the Objection is now October 16, 2020. The parties have attempted to resolve the Objection; however, have not yet been able to do so.

4. For the reasons set forth in detail below, HCREP respectfully requests the Court enter a scheduling order to allow for discovery in connection with HCREP's Proof of Claim, set an evidentiary hearing on HCREP's Proof of Claim, and overrule the Debtor's Objection and allow the claim in the amount determined at such evidentiary hearing.

II. RESPONSE

5. After reviewing what documentation is available to HCREP with the Debtor, HCREP believes the organizational documents relating to SE Multifamily Holdings, LLC (the "SE Multifamily Agreement") improperly allocates the ownership percentages of the members thereto due to mutual mistake, lack of consideration, and/or failure of consideration. As such, HCREP has a claim to reform, rescind and/or modify the agreement.

6. However, HCREP requires additional discovery, including, but not limited to, email communications and testimony, to determine what happened in connection with the memorialization of the parties' agreement and improper distribution provisions, evaluate the amount of its claim against the Debtor, and protect its interests under the agreement. Accordingly, HCREP requests the Court enter a scheduling order allowing for formal discovery and set an evidentiary hearing after such discovery has occurred.

III. CONCLUSION

For these reasons, the HCREP respectfully requests that the Court (i) hold a status conference at which it sets a scheduling order in connection with this contested matter; (ii) set a date for an evidentiary hearing on the Proof of Claim; (iii) overrule the Objection and allow HCREP's Proof of Claim in the amount established at such evidentiary hearing; and (iii) grant HCREP such other relief at law or in equity to which it may be entitled.

DEBTOR'S OBJECTION TO PATRICK HAGAMAN DAUGHERTY'S MOTION FOR TEMPORARY ALLOWANCE OF CLAIM FOR VOTING PURPOSES PURSUANT TO BANKRUPTCY RULE 3018

[1] The last four digits of the Debtor's taxpayer identification number are (6725). The headquarters and service address for the above-captioned Debtor is 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, TX 75201.

Debtor and debtor-in-possession Highland Capital Management, L.P. ("Debtor") hereby objects (the "Objection") to the Motion for Temporary Allowance of Claim for Voting Purposes Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 3018 ("Estimation Motion") [Docket No. 1281] filed by creditor Patrick Hagaman Daugherty ("Daugherty"),[2] and represents as follows:

I. INTRODUCTION

1. Daugherty's operative claim is Proof of Claim No. 77 in the amount of "at least $37,483,876.62" (the "Daugherty Claim"), to which the Debtor has objected.[3] He has pending a motion for leave to amend his claim to increase it to $40,710,819.42, and by the Estimation Motion seeks temporary allowance in that amount for voting purposes.

2. In support of his Estimation Motion, Daugherty needlessly presents the Court with dozens of pages of blow-by-blow allegations and argument relating to claims to which the Debtor does not object. Specifically, the Debtor's Board determined not to contest Daugherty's claim to enforce against the Debtor his $2.6 million judgment against Highland Employee Retention Assets LLC ("HERA"), which totaled approximately $3.7 million with interest to the petition date. Claim Objection ¶¶ 3(i), 40. Hence, Daugherty's description of the transfer of HERA's assets to the Debtor, and the Debtor's failure to escrow and restore to HERA assets to pay his judgment, serves little purpose other than as a transparent attempt to poison the well.

3. The Debtor also does not object to the temporary allowance of the Daugherty Claim for voting purposes in an amount equal to the maximum damages alleged by Daugherty's expert in pre-petition litigation – approximately $9.1 million. While the Debtor reserves the right to dispute such damages on the merits, they represent (when combined with the pre-petition judgment, plus interest) the maximum plausible value of the Daugherty claim.

[2] Daugherty also filed a Memorandum of Law and Brief in Support of the Estimation Motion (the "Estimation Brief") [Docket No. 1282].
[3] See Debtor's (I) Objection to Claim No. 77 of Patrick Hagaman Daugherty and (II) Complaint to Subordinate Claim of Patrick Hagaman Daugherty (filed as an adversary complaint due to its request for subordination of any allowed claim for a partner distribution) (the "Claim Objection") [Docket No. 1008].

4. Of the balance of the $40 million claim that Daugherty seeks to vote: (a) approximately $21 million is based on claims that were dismissed by the Delaware Chancery Court; (b) an additional approximately $7.74 million is for a claimed right to a distribution to pay a possible personal tax liability resulting from an audit, which is not a creditor claim and would be subordinated even if it were; and (c) the balance consists of several million dollars in attorneys' fees incurred in personal and mostly unsuccessful litigation with the Debtor, which Daugherty wrongly contends are subject to indemnification.

5. The Debtor objects to the foregoing parts of the Daugherty Claim, on the grounds set forth in the Claim Objection and summarized herein. However, to avoid unnecessary litigation and remove the need for the Court to delve prematurely into factually or legally complex issues, the Debtor proposes for voting purposes that the Daugherty Claim be allowed in an amount equal to (1) $3,722,019, on account of the HERA Judgment (as defined below), plus (2) $5,412,000, the maximum amount set forth in the Wazzan Report (as defined below), for a total of $9,134,019, an amount far in excess of the $3,722,019 million that the Debtor has already conceded and believes should ultimately be allowed for distribution purposes.

II. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

6. Daugherty is a former limited partner of the Debtor and a former officer of the Debtor's general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc. ("Strand"). His employment by Strand ended on May 28, 2009, and he resigned from the Debtor on September 28, 2011. Litigation ensued in Texas state court (the "Texas Action"). The Debtor prevailed on claims against Daugherty for breach of contract and breach of fiduciary duty for non-monetary damages and obtained an award of $2.8 million in attorneys' fees.

7. Daugherty lost on all claims against the Debtor. He did, however, prevail on a third-party claim against HERA, which was an employee deferred compensation vehicle. He was awarded the value of his ownership interest in HERA—$2.6 million—on a claim against HERA for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing in connection with actions that allegedly deprived him of the value of those interests (the "HERA Judgment").

8. Daugherty was unable to collect on the HERA Judgment against HERA. The Debtor had purchased the interests of all HERA members except Daugherty, and HERA's assets, consisting of cash and stock (the "HERA Assets"), were transferred to the Debtor, which represented that it would escrow the assets and restore to HERA amounts needed to satisfy a Daugherty judgment. That did not occur. Not wishing to return to the Texas state court, Daugherty commenced an action against the Debtor, HERA, and others in the Delaware Chancery Court (the "Delaware Action").

9. The Daugherty Claim attaches and incorporates his operative complaint in the Delaware Action, which was in the midst of trial when this bankruptcy commenced, and adds two additional claims to reach an asserted total of "at least $37,483,876.62." The Daugherty Claim has the following components:

- Enforcement of the HERA Judgment against the Debtor, pursuant to unjust enrichment, promissory estoppel and fraudulent transfer claims, in the amount of $2.6 million plus prepetition interest of $1.13 million. (Daugherty contends that interest has continued to accrue post-petition).

- The value of what Daugherty contends is his continuing interest in the HERA Assets transferred to the Debtor, notwithstanding that he was already awarded the value of that interest in the Texas Action. In the Delaware Action, Daugherty contends that his 19.1% ownership interest in HERA translated to an interest in the HERA Assets valued by his damages expert, Paul Wazzan, in a range from approximately $4,023,000 to $5,412,000.

    - The Debtor contends that this would constitute a double-recovery, at the expense of the Debtor's other creditors, for the reasons set forth below. To avoid unnecessary and premature litigation, however, the Debtor does not object to the temporary allowance of this aspect of Daugherty's Claim solely for voting purposes.

- The value of the other 81.9% ownership interests in HERA, on the theory that Daugherty actually owns 100% of HERA, because the Debtor was not permitted to acquire the interests that it purchased from the former members. This allegedly leaves Daugherty by default as the 100% owner of the HERA Assets, which Daugherty asserts are worth $26 million as a whole.

    - Daugherty reveals in a footnote that this $21 million component of the Daugherty Claim, which is frivolous in any event, was dismissed as time-barred by the Delaware Chancery Court. Estimation Motion at 39, n. 120.

- "Indemnification" as a former partner of the Debtor for any personal tax liability arising from a pending 2008/09 IRS audit of the Debtor that may result in additional pass-through income to the Debtor's partners. He values this claim at $7,744,692 ($6,751,902.41, plus interest of $992,790.40). As set forth below, the claim is frivolous, overstated, and even if allowable would be subordinated pursuant to 11 U.S.C § 510. It is a claim for a tax distribution, and partners do not have the rights of creditors for partnership distributions.

- Indemnification of attorneys' fees incurred in the Texas Action and the Delaware Action under the Debtor's partnership agreement.

- Defamation damages stemming from a November 30, 2017 press release. Daugherty appears to have dropped this time-barred claim.[4]

10. On the day this bankruptcy case was filed, Daugherty was about to present expert testimony on his asserted damages in the Delaware Action, which is the basis for the Daugherty Claim. Daugherty's damages expert, Paul Wazzan, had prepared a report (the "Wazzan Report"), which asserted a range of damages from approximately $4,023,000 to $5,413,000.[5]

11. As explained below, the Debtor does not dispute approximately $3.7 million of the Daugherty Claim. Although it disputes the balance of the damages addressed in the Wazzan Report, in order to resolve this matter, the Debtor will not object to the temporary allowance of the Daugherty Claim for voting purposes at the high end of damages asserted therein.

[4] Daugherty asserted that the Debtor "defam[ed] him on its website pursuant to its November 30, 2017 press release." See Daugherty Claim. The claim is barred by the one-year statute of limitations. TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 16.002(a), which runs from the date of first publication of the allegedly defamatory statement on the defendant's website. Glassdoor, Inc v. Andra Group, LP, 575 S.W.3d 523, 528–29 (Tex. 2019).

[5] The Wazzan Report is attached as Exhibit 1 to the Declaration of John A. Morris In Support of Debtor's Objection to Patrick Hagaman Daugherty's Motion for Temporary Allowance of Claim for Voting Purposes Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 3018, filed contemporaneously herewith ("Morris Dec.").

12. Now, however, Daugherty apparently believes the Wazzan Report was faulty and seeks the temporary allowance of the Daugherty Claim in the amount of $40,710,819.42.

13. As described herein, the Daugherty Claim has other components that the Debtor believes are meritless for the reasons set forth in the Claim Objection, including indemnification for his fees incurred litigating against the Debtor and for an equity holder distribution to cover his personal taxes ($7.7 million). The Estimation Motion fails to explain why he should be entitled to vote a $40 million claim instead.

14. Instead, in a single paragraph (Estimation Brief ¶83) that purports to incorporate an entirely different brief (his Pretrial Brief in the Delaware Action), Daugherty argues that his asserted interest in HERA, which was never more than 19.1% (and which the Debtors contend has no value beyond the damages awarded in the HERA Judgment), has become 100% (or, more than five times the maximum amount of damages that Daugherty's expert claimed Daugherty was entitled to). But as Daugherty is forced to acknowledge, this claim has already been dismissed by the Delaware court. Estimation Brief at 39, n. 120.[6]

A. The Debtor Does Not Object to Daugherty's Claim to Collect the HERA Judgment

15. The Debtor does not object to Daugherty's claims related to the HERA Judgment ($2.6 Million), prejudgment interest ($279,500), and post-judgment interest to the Petition Date ($842,519), totaling $3,722,019. Claim Objection ¶¶ 3(i), 40.

16. Daugherty claims he is also entitled to postpetition interest because the HERA Judgment is against a nondebtor, HERA. "As such, postjudgment interest continues to accrue against HERA, and thus the damages arising from the unjust enrichment, promissory estoppel, and fraudulent transfer continues to increase as a result of postjudgment interest." Estimation Motion at 30. But the Bankruptcy Code is not so easily circumvented. Claims are measured as of the petition date, and Daugherty offers no support for the novel proposition that it matters whether the claim is based on a judgment, a common count, or a statute.

[6] Daugherty suggests that he intends to appeal this adverse ruling (id.), but a year after the Debtor filed for bankruptcy, he has yet to move to lift the stay for that purpose.

17. HERA was a deferred compensation plan that held interests in certain Highland-related entities. At the time Daugherty resigned on September 28, 2011, he owned (and in his view still owns) 19.1% of the HERA units. The other 80.91% is owned by the Debtor.

18. On February 16, 2012, HERA enacted a Second Amended and Restated LLC Agreement (the "HERA Agreement"). Section 12.1 provided that legal fees incurred in a lawsuit relating to the HERA Agreement may be offset against the capital balance of the LLC member bringing the lawsuit. After Daugherty filed claims against HERA and the Debtor in the Texas Action, the Debtor bought out all other members of HERA and, based on Section 12.1, issued a capital balance statement of "zero" to Daugherty for his HERA membership units.

19. On April 30, 2013, HERA assigned to the Debtor all of HERA's remaining assets, consisting of (i) $9,527,375 in limited partnership interests in Highland Restoration Capital Partners, L.P. ("RCP"); (ii) 5,424 shares in stock in NexPoint Credit Strategies Fund ("NHF"); and (iii) $6,338,702 in cash (the "Distribution Assets").

20. In December 2013, the Debtor agreed to escrow Daugherty's alleged ratable 19.1% share of the Distribution Assets, namely (i) $1,820,050 in RCP units, (ii) the cash equivalent of 1,088 shares of NHF, and (iii) $1,201,502 in cash (the "Escrow Assets"). The escrow agreement stated that if Daugherty prevailed against HERA, the Debtor would return the Escrow Assets to HERA.

21. Daugherty prevailed against HERA in the Texas Action. The jury found that HERA used Section 12.1 to deny Daugherty the value of his HERA units, that this breached HERA's duty of good faith and fair dealing, and that the market value of the HERA units was

$2.6 million. On July 14, 2014, the Texas court rendered the HERA Judgment, comprising a judgment against HERA of $2.6 million, plus prejudgment and post-judgment interest at 5%.

22. Daugherty was unable to collect the HERA Judgment from HERA. On December 1, 2016, the escrow agent resigned and returned the Escrow Assets to the Debtor rather than HERA, leaving HERA without assets. In the Delaware Action, Daugherty asserts, inter alia, claims against the Debtor, HERA, Highland ERA Management, LLC, and James Dondero for fraudulent transfer, promissory estoppel, and unjust enrichment. Daugherty alleges the Escrow Assets were pledged as security against his claims and should have been transferred to HERA and then to him after confirmation of the HERA Judgment on appeal.

23. The Debtor has defenses to the constructive fraudulent transfer claims. Nonetheless, the Debtor determined not to object to the allowance of the Daugherty Claim in the amount of the HERA Judgment ($2.6 million), plus prejudgment interest ($279,500) and post-judgment interest to the Petition Date ($842,519), totaling $3,722,019. Daugherty is not entitled to postpetition interest on the claim, whatever its substantive basis.

B. The Debtor Does Not Object to the Temporary Allowance Solely for Voting Purposes of Daugherty's Purported Claim for the Value of His Former 19.1% Interest in HERA Assets

24. The HERA Judgment was based on Daugherty's assertion that the transactions below deprived him of the value of that interest, and it was measured by the value of that interest. Notwithstanding, the Daugherty Claim also asserts that Daugherty is entitled to the present value of all of the Distribution Assets, which Daugherty alleges is $26,009,573. But even if Daugherty had a continuing ownership interest in HERA (which the Debtor disputes), it would be 19.1%. That is exactly how his expert in the Delaware Action, Paul Wazzan, calculated Daugherty's damages. See, e.g., Morris Dec. Ex. 1 ¶¶ 63, 64. The Debtor does not object to including the maximum amount advocated in the Wazzan Report in Daugherty's temporarily allowed claim for voting purposes.

25. To be clear, the Debtor believes the claim is baseless. Patently, it constitutes a double recovery. The very nature of Daugherty's claim was that the actions that the jury found had breached the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing had deprived him of the value of his membership units in HERA. Even if those membership units were not extinguished, Daugherty's capital account would have been reduced to zero by the award, entitling him to no further distributions. It would be a double recovery to Daugherty if he also retained that ownership interest and recovered the value of the Distribution Assets again.

26. Still further, even if Daugherty did have a continuing ownership interest, any award for the value of that interest must be reduced by the amount he was already awarded in the HERA Judgment for the diminution in value of that interest. Daugherty does not articulate any way in which he is not being compensated twice for the same harm. He asserts that "[t]he damages awarded in the HERA Judgment are attributable to the decline in the value of Daugherty's HERA units as a result of HERA's breach of its duty of good faith and fair dealing. Put differently, Daugherty was damaged because the value of his HERA units went down by $2.6 Million as a result of the February 2012 HERA Amendment and the Lose-Lose clause contained therein." Estimation Motion ¶80. But the damages are not different: the asserted bad faith was the zeroing of his capital account through the amendment to HERA's operating agreement. His HERA interest was valued and awarded in the HERA Judgment. Restoring his interest in those assets is another way of compensating the exact same loss. If the present value of those assets is greater, and if he is entitled to the present value rather than the amount that was calculated at the time of the HERA Judgment (which he is not), that present value would at minimum have to be reduced by the amount he was already awarded for the same loss.

27. The basis for Daugherty's assertion of a continuing ownership interest is a negative inference, drawn from the fact that the Texas court struck-through language in the judgment that would have made express that Daugherty had no further interest in HERA:

> Furthermore, the Court, after considering the jury's findings regarding HERA's breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, finds and concludes that Daugherty is entitled to relief hereinafter given.
>
> It is therefore further ORDERED that Daugherty have and recover $2,600,000 from HERA, ~~representing the full value of Daugherty's interest in HERA as determined by the jury.~~
>
> It is further ORDERED that Daugherty shall no longer have any ownership or other interest in HERA or any proceeds or accounts arising from Daugherty's prior interest in HERA that were not distributed to Daugherty prior to the entry of this judgment, Daugherty having been awarded the full value of that interest in HERA as determined by the jury.
>
> It is further ORDERED that total amount of the actual damages rendered against HERA herein will bear prejudgment interest at the rate of 5% simple interest from May 22, 2012, until the day before this judgment is signed.
> It is further ORDERED that the total amount of the judgment here rendered against HERA will bear interest at the rate of 5% per annum, compounded annually, from the date this judgment is signed until paid.

28. Daugherty divines that the Texas court intended to confirm that he still owns 19.1% of HERA. But it is far more likely that the court struck the language because it was outside the scope of the jury's findings, concerning instead the prospective effect of the judgment, which was not before the court. Daugherty's statement that the Debtor's argument has been made and rejected on multiple occasions is incorrect. Daugherty has no greater insight than the Debtor as to why the Texas court struck the language. If the inference is that it was intended to give Daugherty an award to compensate for the zeroing of his capital account and a continuing ownership interest in HERA assets, and if at minimum the former is not subtracted from the latter, the result is a double recovery at the expense of the Debtor's creditors.

C. The Debtor Objects to Allowance For Any Purpose of Daugherty's Claim for the Value of All HERA Assets

29. Even if Daugherty had a continuing ownership interest in HERA's assets, it would be limited to his former 19.1% share, not 100% (i.e., the "Escrowed Assets" and not the "Distribution Assets"). Daugherty's overreaching claim for 100% of HERA's assets is not new: Daugherty asserted in the Delaware Action that he was entitled to 100% of HERA's assets, increasing his claim by $21 million, based on a theory that the Debtor's purchases of the other members' interests were ineffective:

> [W]hen Dondero and the Debtor attempted to take control of HERA by buying all of the preferred units other than Daugherty's, the Debtor was not an authorized holder or assignee of HERA preferred units. Thus, when the prior holder of HERA preferred units relinquished all of their rights and interests in their HERA preferred units, Daugherty remained the only holder of preferred units in HERA and the entire value of HERA should be returned to HERA, with Daugherty as the sole rightful owner.[120]

Estimation Motion ¶81.

30. Daugherty discloses in the footnote, however, that the claim that is the basis of over half of his asserted $40 million claim was dismissed in the Delaware Action:

> [120] Daugherty notes that this claim was dismissed in the Delaware I Case based upon a laches argument. Daugherty intends to appeal the ruling, and includes herein in order to fully preserve the claim and the value related thereto.

31. Daugherty provides no legally tenable basis for assigning any value whatsoever, even for voting purposes, to a dismissed claim, particularly when the decision appears to have been discretionary. And even if the claim was not previously dismissed, this attempted windfall would fail. To start, Daugherty does not specify the legal basis on which the Debtor could not purchase membership interests, on what basis those purchases if ineffective would redound to Daugherty's benefit, or how the Debtor was obligated to transfer back to HERA any more than Daugherty's 19.1% share, either under the escrow agreement or fraudulent transfer law.

32. On this basis alone, therefore, the Daugherty Claim must be reduced by $21 million even for voting purposes.

D. The Debtor Objects to Allowance For Any Purpose of Daugherty's Claim for Tax "Indemnification" or a Tax Distribution[7]

33. The Daugherty Claim has a damages breakdown that contains what is referred to as an indemnification claim of $992,790.40, including interest and penalties, on account of a pending IRS audit of the Debtor. Daugherty states:

> Daugherty is a former senior partner of Highland Capital Management, LP and this claim arises out of a 2008/2009 pending undecided audit/dispute (06252018 0028) between the Debtor and the Internal Revenue Service that remains unresolved.

34. The IRS audit of the Debtor's return for 2007-08 (not 2008-09 as erroneously stated in the Daugherty Claim) resulted in a determination that additional taxes were owed by the Debtor's partners as the owners of a pass-through entity. The audit determination is subject to appeal. Daugherty's 4% share of the additional distributions comes to $1,475,860. Assuming a 35% marginal rate ($440,227), and adding penalties ($88,045) and interest ($212,035), his total exposure approximates $740,307 at this time.

35. Regardless of amount, Daugherty has no right to mandatory indemnification of his personal tax liability as a former partner of the Debtor. Section 4.1(h) of the Partnership Agreement provides for indemnification of limited partners in the "sole and unfettered discretion" of the general partner. It does provide for mandatory indemnification of the general partner, Strand, of which Daugherty was an officer, but that provision is inapplicable to his personal tax liabilities. In relevant part, Section 4.1(h) reads as follows:

> Indemnification. The Partnership shall indemnify and hold harmless the General Partner and any director, officer, employee, agent, or representative of the General Partner (collectively, the "GP Party"), against all liabilities, losses, and damages incurred by any of them by reason of any act performed or omitted to be performed in the name of or on behalf of the Partnership, or in connection with the Partnership's business, including, without limitation, attorneys' fees and any amounts expended in the settlement of any claims or liabilities, losses, or damages, to the fullest extent permitted by the Delaware Act; provided, however, the Partnership shall have no obligation to indemnify and hold harmless a GP Party for any action or inaction that constitutes gross negligence or willful or wanton misconduct.

36. Daugherty's personal income taxes on distributions received in his capacity as a limited partner of the Debtor do not fall within the Debtor's indemnification of its general partner for "liabilities, losses, and damages incurred . . . by reason of any act performed or omitted to be performed in the name of or on behalf of the Partnership, or in connection with the Partnership's business . . . ." Daugherty incurred personal taxes on his income. The closest nexus to the Debtor would be that an indeterminate portion of that income came from the Debtor. He did not incur any loss or liability in his asserted capacity as a "GP Party," i.e., an officer of Strand, the indemnified general partner. Therefore the indemnity clause does not apply by its express terms and as a matter of common sense.

37. Nor does Daugherty have a claim for a tax distribution from the Debtor. The last Partnership Agreement to which Daugherty was a signatory was the Second Amended and Restated Agreement of Limited Partnership. Morris Ex. 2. Distributions are addressed in section 3.9, which provides in part:

> (a) General. The General Partner shall review the Partnership's accounts at the end of each calendar quarter to determine whether distributions are appropriate. The General Partner may make such pro rata or non-pro rata distributions as it may determine in its sole and unfettered discretion, without being limited to current or accumulated income or gains, but no such distribution shall be made out of funds required to make current payments on Partnership indebtedness. The > Partnership has entered into one or more credit facilities with financial institutions that may limit the amount and timing of distributions to the Partners. Thus, the Partners acknowledge that distributions from the Partnership may be limited. . . .

>
> (b) Tax Distributions. The General Partner shall promptly declare and make cash distributions pursuant hereto to the Partners to allow the federal and state income tax attributable to the Partnership's taxable income that is passed through the Partnership to the Partners to be paid by such Partners (a "Tax Distribution"). To satisfy this requirement, the Partnership shall pay to each Partner on or before April 14 of each Fiscal Year….

Id.

38. Partners have no right to distributions as if they were creditors. That is why section 3.9(a) clearly states that distributions will be limited if funds are insufficient to pay current debt. A partnership agreement is simply an agreement between partners as to when and how distributions may be made if the partnership has the funds to do so. Even if there were such an obligation, the Debtor had not made any distributions that would be subject to tax, and so would have had no obligation at that time to make tax distributions. And even if the Partnership Agreement were interpreted to call for a tax distribution to be made on account of income that is imputed to its partners ten years later as a result of the IRS audit (which is still contingent), the Debtor may not have funds in excess of current debt. Thus, Daugherty has no claim for tax indemnification or a tax distribution.

39. Even if Daugherty had a claim under the Partnership Agreement, it would be subordinated under Bankruptcy Code section 510(b), which provides:

> (b) For the purpose of distribution under this title, a claim arising from rescission of a purchase or sale of a security of the debtor or of an affiliate of the debtor, for damages arising from the purchase or sale of such a security, or for reimbursement or contribution allowed under section 502 on account of such a claim, shall be subordinated to all claims or interests that are senior to or equal the claim or interest represented by such security, except that if such security is common stock, such claim has the same priority as common stock.

40. Section 510(b) applies to the ownership interests in a limited partnership. See In re SeaQuest Diving, LP, 579 F.3d 411 (5th Cir. 2009); Templeton v. O'Cheskey (In re Am. Hous.

Found.), 785 F.3d 143, 154 (5th Cir. (2015); In re Garrison Mun. Partners, LP, 2017 Bankr. LEXIS 3765, *8 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Oct. 31, 2017).

41. Thus, there are three distinct categories of claims subject to mandatory subordination under section 510(b): (1) a claim arising from rescission of a purchase or sale of a security of the debtor (the rescission category); (2) a claim for damages arising from the purchase or sale of a security of the debtor (the damages category); and (3) a claim for reimbursement or contribution allowed under 11 U.S.C. § 502 on account of either (1) or (2). SeaQuest, 579 F.3d at 418.

42. Even if Daugherty had a claim under the Partnership Agreement to cover his taxes, such a claim would be a claim for damages "arising from" the purchase of a security (category 2). The category covers claims arising from not just the purchase itself but all claims arising thereafter as incidents of ownership, except where the claim is genuinely a "debt"—e.g., where it arises from a documented loan or other distinct transaction between the partner and the partnership:

> For purposes of the damages category, the circuit courts agree that a claim arising from the purchase or sale of a security can include a claim predicated on post-issuance conduct, such as breach of contract. They also agree that the term "arising from" is ambiguous, so resort to the legislative history is necessary. For a claim to "arise from" the purchase or sale of a security, there must be some nexus or causal relationship between the claim and the sale. Further, the fact that the claims in the case seek to recover a portion of claimants' equity investment is the most important policy rationale.

SeaQuest, 579 F.3d at 421 (internal citations omitted). In SeaQuest, the Fifth Circuit ruled that a settlement that essentially effected a rescission and, when breached, resulted in a judgment, was nonetheless subordinated under section 510(b). Id. at 423-26 ("For purposes of § 510(b), we may look behind the state court judgment to determine whether the . . . claim 'arises from' the rescission of a purchase or sale of a security of the debtor.").

43. In Garrison Municipal Partners, a redemption claim arising from withdrawal from the partnership was subordinated under section 510(b). The situations identified by the court in which section 510(b) would not apply illustrate why it would likely apply here:

> Debtor's failure to pay the Greens' claim upon withdrawal is a claim for breach of contract arising from the withdrawal. The Greens are seeking to recover their equity investment. Thus, under Section 510(b), their claim is subordinated and has the same priority as the other prepetition investors.
> The Greens' argument that their notice of withdrawal is a redemption claim similar to those in In re Montgomery Ward Holding Co. 272 B.R. 836 (Bankr. D. Del. 2001), abrogated on other grounds by In re Telegroup, Inc., 281 F.3d 133 (3d Cir. 2002) lacks merit. A redemption claim requires a separate note, see SeaQuest, 579 F.3d, at 423, and must be independent of the partnership agreement. See In re American Housing Foundation, 785 F.3d 143 (5th Cir. 2015). In this case, the notice of withdrawal was not self-executing so as to give the Greens an interest in the assets of the partnership. The partnership agreement required action on the part of the general partner to repay the Greens equity interests.

Garrison Mun. Partners, 2017 Bankr. LEXIS 3765 at *9; see also Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors v. FLI Deep Marine LLC (In re Deep Marine Holdings, Inc.), 2011 Bankr. LEXIS 579 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Jan. 19, 2011) (claims for right of appraisal, fraud, and accounting were causally linked to status as shareholders and so were subordinated); Queen v. Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors (In re Response U.S.A., Inc.), 288 B.R. 88 (D.N.J. 2003) (shareholder cannot avoid subordination under 11 USC § 510(b) by placing risk-limiting provision in stock purchase agreement in order to claim creditor status in bankruptcy proceedings).

44. By comparison, Stucki v. Orwig, No. 3:12-CV-1064-L, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 53139, at *15-19 (N.D. Tex. Apr. 12, 2013) found section 510(b) inapplicable where the claim arose from breach of a settlement agreement by which the shareholders withdrew a lawsuit seeking to compel a shareholders' meeting and election of directors. Id. at *17. The court reasoned as follows: "[I]n both In re SeaQuest and In re Deep Marine Holdings, the claims essentially sought to recover the claimants' equity interests in the debtor. There is no suggestion in the record that the shareholders sought to do the same here. The court therefore concludes that the connection or causal relationship between the Breach Claim and the actual or virtual purchase or sale of any security interests in FirstPlus is too attenuated to bring it within § 510(b)'s reach." Id. at *19. That decision seems debatable, but in any event, it is a far cry from this case, where what Daugherty is effectively demanding is a distribution on account of his partnership interest. Such a claim should fall squarely under section 510(b).

45. Daugherty is asserting a right under the Partnership Agreement for a subsequent distribution on ownership interests in the Debtor to cover the taxes he owes on the distributions he previously received on account of his ownership interest in the Debtor. To the extent he has such a right, it is an incident of ownership arising from the Partnership Agreement and not from any ancillary transaction such as a loan. It is in the nature of a "partner claim," not a creditor claim, and must be subordinated.

E. Daugherty Is Not Entitled to Indemnification of Fees in His Personal Litigation with the Debtor, But the Debtor Does Not Object to Temporary Allowance for Voting Purposes

46. Daugherty also asserts two indemnification claims against the Debtor for fees incurred defending claims against him by the Debtor in the Texas Action based on his employment performance, which he states were nonsuited, and for "fees on fees" for prosecuting his asserted right to indemnification in the Delaware Action. It appears from the proof of claim that these claims are represented by two line items of $3,139,452 and $3,479,318. These portions of the Daugherty Claim should be disallowed even for voting purposes, for the reasons discussed in the Claim Objection. Claim Objection ¶¶45-56.

47. The claims in the Texas Action which Daugherty alleges are subject to indemnification, as reflected on the jury verdict (referenced as Exhibit O to the Daugherty Claim), are as follows:

Claim	Description of Claim	Outcome
Highland 1	Declaratory judgment that Highland did not owe Daugherty any compensation or payments under Highland's long-term incentive plan ("LTIP") because his conduct forfeited his rights. Ex. O at 8.	Voluntarily dismissed pre-trial
Highland 2	Breach of employment agreement and a buy-sell agreement relating to purported complaints from other Highland employees about Daugherty and purported disclosures of confidential information that "violated his common law duties to Highland, as well as several agreements between him and Highland." Ex. O at 9.	Jury found Daugherty liable.
Highland 3	Breach of fiduciary duty and a claim of entitlement to "all compensation paid to Daugherty during the time he was breaching his duties, as well as to an award of exemplary and punitive damages." Ex. O at 9.	Jury found Daugherty liable.
Highland 4	A claim for violation of the Texas Theft LiabilityAct related to purported theft of Highland's trade secrets.	Voluntarily dismissed pre-trial
Highland 5	Tortious interference with Highland's business relations seeking exemplary and punitive damages	Jury found Daugherty not liable.
Highland 6	Defamation related to Daugherty's purported statements about Highland to potential investors	Jury found Daugherty not liable.
Highland 7	Misappropriation of trade secrets and other confidential information, including on behalf of Cornerstone	Voluntarily dismissed pre-trial
Highland 8	Conversion related to purported conversion of confidential information, including on behalf of Cornerstone	Voluntarily dismissed pre-trial
Highland 9	Business disparagement, including on behalf of Cornerstone. Id. at 13-15	Voluntarily dismissed pre-trial

48. The Debtor prevailed on claims for breach of the Employment Agreement and for breach of fiduciary duty, which Daugherty minimizes as "only" having to do with confidential information with no compensatory damages, but on which the Debtor was awarded $2.8 million in attorneys' fees. The Debtor was found to have complied with the Employment Agreement and honored all obligations concerning the LTIP Plan, the HERA Agreement, and severance pay.

49. As discussed above in connection with Daugherty's attempt to be indemnified for his personal tax liability, indemnification of limited partners is discretionary under the Debtor's Partnership Agreement; hence, Daugherty relies upon its mandatory indemnification of the general partner, Strand, under Section 4.1(h). He claims to be a "GP Party," which is "any director, officer, employee, agent, or representative of the General Partner." GP Parties are indemnified for:

> all liabilities, losses, and damages incurred … [including attorneys' fees] by reason of any act performed or omitted to be performed in the name of or on behalf of [the Debtor] or in connection with the Partnership's business … to the fullest extent permitted by the Delaware Act … [except] for any action or inaction that constitutes gross negligence or willful or wanton misconduct. (emphasis added).

50. Daugherty claims he is entitled to indemnification as a GP Party because all of his litigation expense was purportedly "in connection with [the Debtor's] business." He contends there is no limitation to defensive litigation expenses, nor any even any requirement that he be successful.

51. Daugherty was a GP Party as an officer of Strand only until May 29, 2009, and he resigned from the Debtor on September 28, 2011. Other than the first non-suited claim, which relates to his personal compensation, all of the claims for which he was not found liable involve actions taken well after he left Strand and even after he left the Debtor, as to which he was not a GP Party. None of the Debtor's claims against Daugherty related to his time as an officer of Strand, when he was a GP Party.

52. Second, Daugherty was not an "agent" for any relevant purpose that would make him an indemnified GP Party for these purposes. None of the actions for which the Debtor sued him were taken at the instruction or on behalf of the General Partner as its "agent or representative." See Fasciana v. Elec. Data Sys. Corp., 829 A.2d 160, 163 (Del. Ch. 2003) (in reference to 8 Del. C. §145, governing indemnification of corporate officers, "I read §145 as embracing the more restrictive common law definition of agent, which generally applies only when a person (the agent) acts on behalf of another (the principal) in relations with third parties."). Furthermore, Delaware "[c]ourt[s] limit[] agency in the indemnification context to only those situations when an outside contractor can be said to be acting as an arm of the corporation vis-à-vis the outside world." Pasternack v. N.E. Aviation Corp., No. 12082-VCMR, 2018 WL 5895827, at *8 (Del. Ch. Nov. 9, 2018).

53. Third, even if Daugherty were to prove he was a GP Party at a relevant time, and even if he were to prove that he was acting in the capacity of an agent—i.e., interacting on behalf of Strand with third parties—decisions under the Delaware General Corporation Law ("DGCL") hold that a director is not entitled to indemnification in respect of employment litigation between the director and the corporation. See Shearin v. E.F. Hutton Group, Inc., 652 A.2d 578, 594 (Del. Ch. 1994) (holding that former officer was not entitled to indemnification for claims relating to breach of her employment contract because those claims did not involve the officer's duties to the corporation and its shareholders); Stifel Fin. Corp. v. Cochran, 809 A.2d 555, 562 (Del. 2002) ("Although Cochran's termination is the event that triggered the relevant provisions of the employment contract, Cochran's decision to breach the contract was entirely a personal one, pursued for his sole benefit.")

> When a corporate officer signs an employment contract committing to fill an office, he is acting in a personal capacity in an adversarial, arms-length transaction. To the extent that he binds himself to certain obligations under that contract, he owes a personal obligation to the corporation. When the corporation brings a claim and proves its entitlement to relief because the officer has breached his individual obligations, it is problematic to conclude that the suit has been rendered an "official capacity" suit subject to indemnification under § 145 and implementing bylaws.

Paolino v. Mace Sec. Int'l, Inc., 985 A.2d 392, 404 (Del. Ch. 2009) (citing the Cochran Chancery Court decision, 2000 Del. Ch. LEXIS 179, 2000 WL 1847676, at *6 (reversed in part on other grounds).

54. The Daugherty Claim anticipates the defense under Cochran that the subject claims were "personal employment-related" claims, and attempts to distinguish it on the basis that the Delaware Revised Uniform Limited Partnership Act ("DRULPA") is more permissive than the DGCL and does not preclude indemnification even when the indemnitee has been adjudged liable to the partnership (if a court deems it fair in view of all the circumstances). If it provides for coverage to the full extent permitted under the law, then it is to be provided unless the partnership agreement or law provide otherwise.

55. Citing Paolino, supra, Daugherty specifically argues that Cochran is inapplicable because his employment conduct was not "personal" in distinction from the compensation issues in Cochran. Regardless, he did not incur losses "by reason of any act performed or omitted to be performed . . . in connection with the Partnership's business" under section 4.1 of the Partnership Agreement. The "by reason of the fact" standard is not met where the claims at issue do not involve the exercise of judgment, discretion, or decision-making authority on behalf of the corporation. Batty v. UCAR Int'l Inc., No. 2018-0376-KSJM, 2019 Del. Ch. LEXIS 114, at *19 (Del. Ch. Apr. 3, 2019) (quoting Paolino). Here, the Debtor's Claims 4-9 related solely to conduct after Daugherty left the Debtor's employ. Daugherty was found liable on Claims 2 and 3, and the Partnership Agreement provides that "the Partnership shall have no obligation to indemnity and hold harmless a GP Party for any action or inaction that constitutes gross negligence or willful or wonton misconduct.").

56. Even if Daugherty were to surmount all other hurdles, even under his construction, any rights to fees would be discretionary. The Debtor respectfully submits that the facts do not support penalizing the Debtor's other creditors by awarding Daugherty fees in his personal litigation with the Debtor on account of his status as an officer of Strand, relating to conduct that had nothing to do with actions taken or not taken in his capacity as an officer of Strand, and largely post-dating that tenure.

57. Finally, Daugherty should have to segregate his attorneys' fees between those incurred on any indemnifiable claims and other claims, in particular those on his counter- and third-party claims. Indemnification under Partnership Agreement §4.1(h) relates to acts performed or not performed by Daugherty (as an agent of Strand) in connection with the Debtor's business. Daugherty's counter- and third-party claims in the Texas Action related to (i) his departure from the Debtor (defamation and breach of employment agreement by the Debtor relating to severance, all of which Daugherty lost), (ii) a separate incentive vehicle called Sierra Verde which was wound down separate from Daugherty's resignation, (iii) claims related to Daugherty's value in HERA, and (iv) claims in relation to his LTIP.[8] Of these, categories (ii) and (iii) related to third-party claims against compensation vehicles, and Daugherty lost claims in categories (i) and (iv). In fact, Daugherty succeeded on only one of his twenty total affirmative claims.

III. CONCLUSION

WHEREFORE, the Debtor requests that the Daugherty Claim be temporarily allowed for voting purposes in an amount equal to $9,134,019.

Highland Capital Management, L.P., the debtor and debtor-in-possession (the "Debtor") in the above-captioned chapter 11 case (the "Bankruptcy Case"), submits this reply in support of the Debtor's Motion for Partial Summary Judgment on Proof of Claim Nos. 190 and 191 of UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch [D.E. 1180] (the "Motion"), and in response to UBS's Brief in Opposition to Motions for Partial Summary Judgment on Proof of Claim Nos. 190 and 191 and in Support of Rule 56(d) Request [D.E. 1341] (the "Opposition") filed by UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch (collectively, "UBS"). For the reasons set forth herein, in the Motion, and in the Debtor's opening brief in support of the Motion [D.E. 1181] (the "Opening Brief"), the Debtor respectfully requests that the Court enter an order, in substantially the form attached as Exhibit A to the Motion, granting partial summary judgment in favor of the Debtor on the UBS Claim.[2]

INTRODUCTION

1. UBS has been telling everyone – most importantly, this Court – that UBS has a more than $1 billion claim against the Debtor based on the breach of contract judgment it obtained against SOHC and CDO Fund (collectively, the "Funds"). Nothing could be further from the truth. The Motion requires UBS to substantiate its position with specific facts and evidence, and yet UBS has responded with just a series of ineffectual ducks and dives that only serve to highlight the fallacy of UBS's purported $1 billion claim.

2. UBS admits that it is not presently seeking to enforce the $1 billion judgment against the Debtor and is not presently asserting that the Debtor is the alter ego of the Funds. In a desperate attempt to keep up its charade, however, UBS argues that it can try to hold the Debtor liable as an alter ego at some point in the future because alter ego is a "theory of liability"

[2] Capitalized terms not otherwise defined herein have the meanings ascribed to such terms in the Opening Brief. All citations herein to "A__" refer to the Appendix of Exhibits in Support of Debtor's Motion for Partial Summary Judgment on Proof of Claim Nos. 190 and 191 of UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch [D.E. 1184], and all citations herein to "B__" refer to the Appendix of Exhibits to Debtor's Reply in Support of Motion for Partial Summary Judgment on Proof of Claim Nos. 190 and 191 of UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch, filed concurrently herewith.

and not a "claim" that needed to be asserted by the UBS Bar Date. A "claim" is, of course, broadly defined in the Bankruptcy Code to include any "right to payment" and any "equitable remedy for breach of performance" whether or not reduced to judgment, contingent, unliquidated, unmatured, or disputed. 11 U.S.C. § 101(5). UBS does not even try to explain how a "theory of liability" is not a "right to payment" from the Debtor, and thus a "claim" under the Bankruptcy Code. UBS's failure to assert any alter ego claim against the Debtor by the UBS Bar Date operates as a complete bar to any such claim.

3. UBS also has failed to rebut the fact that res judicata prevents UBS from asserting any alter ego claim against the Debtor based on any conduct occurring prior to February 24, 2009. That is the date UBS filed its first complaint against the Debtor, which resulted in a judgment on the merits in favor of the Debtor. And, accordingly, February 24, 2009 is the date which the New York Appellate Division ruled is the line of demarcation prior to which no alleged conduct can stand as the basis of a claim against the Debtor.

4. To try to slide under the res judicata bar, UBS argues that "alter ego is generally not a theory of liability that is subject to res judicata under New York law." Opposition p. 47. But UBS's position cannot be reconciled with the fact that the Appellate Division already has applied res judicata to UBS's assertion of alter ego liability against one of the Debtor's co-defendants (HFP), holding that res judicata bars UBS from seeking alter ego relief to recover against HFP for pre-February 24, 2009 claims, because HFP was in privity with the Debtor and thus is entitled to the same res judicata protection. See UBS v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., 93 A.D.3d 489, 490 (N.Y. App. Div. 2012). If res judicata prohibits UBS from seeking alter ego relief against the Debtor's privy for pre-February 24, 2009 conduct – which would include the December 2008 breach of contract underlying UBS's $1 billion judgment – it indisputably prohibits UBS from seeking the same relief against the Debtor.

5. With no ability to enforce the $1 billion judgment against the Debtor, the UBS Claim is at most a theoretical claim for a maximum principal amount of approximately $233 million, which represents the value of certain assets transferred by HFP or its subsidiaries in March 2009. UBS seeks to recover this amount by alleging that the March 2009 transfers were fraudulent conveyances by entities with which UBS was not in privity and that those transfers breached a supposed implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing under the warehouse agreements which UBS had previously terminated. UBS attempts to avoid the $233 million cap on the UBS Claim by arguing that the "record evidence" reflects that "the bases for its implied covenant claim extend beyond the March 2009 transfers." Opposition p. 25. Given this statement, one would expect UBS to provide examples of that "record evidence" in support of its Opposition, and indeed UBS was required to do so in response to the Motion. Nonetheless, after spending pages of its Opposition claiming that it has evidence of additional post-February 24, 2009 conduct, UBS then fails to identify a single piece of evidence showing any actionable conduct beyond the March 2009 transfers. Instead, UBS cites only evidence of pre-February 24, 2009 conduct – which is not actionable – and its own allegations – which are not competent summary judgment evidence. Furthermore, UBS's unsupported allegations themselves amount to nothing more than an argument that the Debtor supposedly had an implied duty to guarantee payment by the Funds, a position that cannot be reconciled with the Appellate Division's determination that the warehouse agreements imposed no duty on the Debtor "to ensure or guarantee" performance by the Funds, or the fact that the warehouse agreements explicitly place all responsibility for 100% of any warehouse facility losses on the Funds, not the Debtor.

6. In recognition of the fact that it has not adequately responded to the Motion, UBS requests that the Court deny or defer the Motion to allow UBS time to conduct additional discovery on the claims that have been pending for more than a decade. This is a transparent attempt to avoid summary judgment. UBS conducted extensive discovery in the State Court litigation and certified to the State Court seven years ago that discovery was complete and UBS's case was trial-ready. UBS also insisted to this Court, at the October 6, 2020 status conference on the UBS Claim, that UBS was fully prepared to proceed to trial this month, in advance of the Debtor's confirmation hearing. And, finally, UBS acknowledges that the Debtor's production in response to UBS's document requests has been completed. Therefore, UBS cannot meet its burden of showing, pursuant to Rule 56(d) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, that any further discovery will produce evidence creating a genuine issue of material fact in this case.
