DALLAS DIVISION

In re:

HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P.,

Reorganized Debtor.

Chapter 11

Case No. 19-34054-sgj11

HIGHLAND'S MOTION TO STAY CONTESTED MATTER [DKT NO. 4000] OR FOR ALTERNATIVE RELIEF

Highland Capital Management, L.P., the reorganized debtor in this chapter 11 case (“HCMLP”), and the Highland Claimant Trust (the “Claimant Trust” and, together with HCMLP, “Highland”), move the Court for an order staying all proceedings (the “Stay Motion”) in connection with the Motion for Leave to File a Delaware Complaint [Docket No. 4000], filed by Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (“HMIT”) on January 1, 2024 (the “Delaware Motion for Leave”).

I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT¹

1. The relief HMIT seeks in the Delaware Motion for Leave depends on the Court’s determination of whether HMIT is a beneficiary of the Plan-created Claimant Trust. That issue is already squarely before this Court in Adversary Proceeding No. 23-03038 (the “Valuation Proceeding”), in which HMIT is a plaintiff and in which Highland moved to dismiss HMIT’s complaint on the basis that HMIT is not entitled to any of the relief it seeks in the complaint because, among other reasons, HMIT is not a beneficiary of the Claimant Trust under the plain terms of the Plan and Claimant Trust Agreement and under applicable law. Briefing on Highland’s motion to dismiss the Valuation Proceeding will be complete by January 19, 2024, and oral argument is scheduled for February 14, 2024, just a month from now.

2. As explained more fully below, if this Court rules that HMIT is not a beneficiary of the Claimant Trust as a matter of law—and if HMIT does not prevail on its likely appeal of such a ruling—then the ruling will necessarily dispose of the Delaware Motion for Leave. It would be needlessly duplicative and wasteful of judicial and estate resources to litigate the same threshold issue in the Valuation Proceeding and again in this matter, particularly since the issue will be sub judice in the Valuation Proceeding in several weeks. Accordingly, Highland respectfully requests the Court stay all proceedings in connection with the Delaware Motion for Leave until there is a final, non-appealable determination in the Valuation Proceeding regarding whether or not HMIT is a beneficiary of the Claimant Trust under the plain terms of the Plan and Claimant Trust Agreement and under applicable law.²

II. BACKGROUND

3. On December 7, 2022, the Court issued an order [Docket No. 3645] finding that an adversary proceeding was necessary with regard to the relief sought in a motion filed by The Dugaboy Investment Trust (“Dugaboy”) [Docket No. 3382 and Docket No. 3533] (the “Valuation Motion”), which sought a “determination by this Court of the current value of the estate and an accounting of the assets currently held by the Claimant Trust and available for distribution to creditors.”³

4. On May 10, 2023, Dugaboy and HMIT commenced the Valuation Proceeding by filing a complaint seeking essentially the same relief originally sought in the Valuation Motion. Highland filed a motion to dismiss the Valuation Proceeding on November 22, 2023 [Adv. Proc. 23-03038, Docket No. 13] (the “Motion to Dismiss Valuation Complaint”), asserting, among other arguments, that neither Dugaboy nor HMIT are beneficiaries of the Trust and, therefore, are not entitled to any of the relief sought in the Valuation Proceeding. Briefing on the Motion to Dismiss Valuation Complaint will be completed with the filing of Highland’s reply in support on January 19, 2024, and oral argument is scheduled for February 14, 2024 [Adv. Proc. 23-03038, Docket No. 19], after which this Court will determine, among other things, whether HMIT is a beneficiary of the Trust.⁴

² Alternatively, if the Court denies the Stay Motion (a “Denial Order”), Highland respectfully requests that the Court simultaneously enter an order granting Highland an extension of time to respond to the Delaware Motion for Leave equal to 21 days from the date any Denial Order is entered.

³ HMIT filed various pleadings in support of Dugaboy’s Valuation Motion. See Docket Nos. 3467, 3605, 3606, and 3638.

⁴ On March 28, 2023, HMIT filed a separate Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding [Docket No. 3699], which was later supplemented and modified [Docket Nos. 3760, 3815, and 3816] (collectively, the “First Motion for Leave”). On August 25, 2023, this Court denied the First Motion for Leave on the ground

5. This Court’s ruling on whether HMIT is a Claimant Trust beneficiary in the Valuation Proceeding (and following the inevitably ensuing appeals if HMIT does not prevail in this Court) will necessarily directly affect the viability of the Delaware Motion for Leave.

6. The Delaware Motion for Leave seeks leave under the Plan’s gatekeeper provision to file the five-count complaint attached to the Delaware Motion for Leave (the “Proposed Delaware Complaint”) in the Delaware Court of Chancery, principally to remove James Seery as trustee of the Claimant Trust. HMIT explicitly bases each of the five counts in the Proposed Delaware Complaint on HMIT’s allegation that, notwithstanding the plain terms of the Claimant Trust Agreement, it is somehow a beneficiary of the Claimant Trust under Delaware law.⁵

7. But whether HMIT is a Claimant Trust beneficiary under applicable law is already squarely before this Court in the Valuation Proceeding. A determination of HMIT’s status vis-à-vis the Claimant Trust is coming, and it is coming undoubtedly sooner than it would come were the Delaware Motion for Leave fully litigated and then appealed. Instead, such a determination in the Valuation Proceeding that HMIT is not a beneficiary would necessarily dispose of the Delaware Motion for Leave. This Court should stay all proceedings related to the Delaware Motion for Leave pending a final, non-appealable determination regarding whether or not HMIT is a

(among others) that HMIT lacked standing to assert the claims because it is not a beneficiary under the Claimant Trust. Docket No. 3903; In re Highland Cap. Mgmt., L.P., 2023 Bankr. LEXIS 2104, 2023 WL 5523949 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Aug. 25, 2023) (the “Order Denying Leave”). HMIT has appealed the Order Denying Leave to the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas (Case No. 3:23-cv-02071-E) along with seven (7) related interlocutory orders entered in connection with the First Motion for Leave. Given the scope of the appeal, it is unclear whether the District Court will address the Bankruptcy Court’s determination that HMIT is not a beneficiary under the Claimant Trust.

beneficiary of the Claimant Trust under the plain terms of the Plan, the Claimant Trust Agreement, and applicable law.

III. RELIEF REQUESTED AND BASIS FOR IT

8. Because this Court (or, ultimately, the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals) will determine conclusively whether HMIT is a beneficiary of the Claimant Trust, and because such a determination—if adverse to HMIT—will dispose of the Delaware Motion for Leave, Highland respectfully urges the Court to conserve judicial resources and the time, effort, and expense of the litigants and stay all proceedings in connection with the Delaware Motion for Leave until a final, non-appealable order determines HMIT’s status vis-à-vis the Claimant Trust.⁶

9. Federal courts, including this Court, have the inherent power to control their own dockets and to stay proceedings when appropriate.⁷ The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals has also recognized the power to stay proceedings as part of the court’s power to control its own docket and avoid wasting time and effort.⁸ Courts are sensitive to the prejudice a stay would have on the non-moving party, such as “the hardship of being forced to wait for an indefinite and ... lengthy time before their causes are heard.”⁹

10. Here, HMIT will not be harmed by a stay of its latest (third) motion for leave to sue under the gatekeeper provision. HMIT is litigating, right now, the issue of whether it is a beneficiary of the Claimant Trust in the Valuation Proceeding before this Court. Staying the Delaware Motion for Leave will not force HMIT to wait any time for that issue to be litigated and

⁸ See, e.g., United States v. Rainey, 757 F.3d 234, 241 (5th Cir. 2014).

⁹ Gold v. Johns-Manville Sales Corp., 723 F.2d 1068, 1076 (3d Cir. 1983) (citing Landis, 299 U.S. at 254–55).

decided, much less an “indefinite” or even “lengthy” time. Staying the Delaware Motion for Leave will have no effect on HMIT’s ability to litigate the issue of its contingent, unvested interest in the Claimant Trust. HMIT will not be harmed by a stay.

11. A stay will, however, significantly conserve resources for this Court and for these parties. There is no good reason to require the parties to brief and argue during the course of (likely) months of litigation an issue that will be determined by this Court in the Valuation Proceeding after argument on February 14, 2024. A final, non-appealable order on the fundamental, threshold issue of whether HMIT is a beneficiary under the Claimant Trust will apply to the Delaware Motion for Leave, either by disposing of that motion because HMIT is not a Claimant Trust beneficiary or by precluding Highland from arguing that HMIT is not a Claimant Trust beneficiary in opposing the Delaware Motion for Leave.¹⁰

12. A stay of the Delaware Motion for Leave serves common sense, is well within this Court’s discretion, and will allow HMIT full reign to litigate and appeal and appeal again the issue of whether it is a beneficiary of the Claimant Trust in the Valuation Proceeding already underway and significantly further along than the nascent Delaware Motion for Leave.

IV. CONCLUSION

13. For these reasons, the Court should grant this motion and stay all proceedings on the Delaware Motion for Leave until entry of a final, non-appealable order determining whether HMIT is or is not a beneficiary of the Claimant Trust under the plain terms of the Plan, the Claimant Trust Agreement, and applicable law.

¹⁰ In such case, Highland reserves, and does not waive, all other defenses available to it.

EXHIBIT 9

I. INTRODUCTION

Before the court is a motion to dismiss (“Rule 12(b) Motion”) the above-referenced adversary proceeding (“Adversary Proceeding”).¹ The Rule 12(b) Motion was filed by the two Defendants named in the Adversary Proceeding: Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“Highland” or the “Reorganized Debtor”) and the Highland Claimant Trust (“Claimant Trust”). Highland obtained confirmation of a chapter 11 Plan² on February 22, 2021 (which Plan went effective on August 21, 2021). The Claimant Trust was established pursuant to the terms of the Plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement approved pursuant thereto. The Claimant Trust was created for the benefit of “Claimant Trust Beneficiaries,” which was defined under the Plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement to be the holders of allowed general unsecured (Class 8) and subordinated claims (Class 9) against Highland.

The Adversary Proceeding was brought more than two-years post-confirmation by Plaintiffs Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (“HMIT”) and The Dugaboy Investment Trust (“Dugaboy₂” and, together with HMIT, the “Plaintiffs”).³ These two Plaintiffs are controlled by Highland’s co-founder and former President and Chief Executive Officer, James D. Dondero (“Dondero”). The Plaintiffs held equity interests (i.e., limited partnership interests) in Highland. Pursuant to the terms of the Highland Plan, Plaintiffs now hold unvested contingent interests in the Claimant Trust—since the limited partnership interests in Highland were cancelled in exchange for unvested contingent interests in the Claimant Trust. These contingent interests will vest if, and only if, the Claimant Trustee certifies that the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries (i.e., the Class 8 general unsecured claims and Class 9 subordinated claims under the Plan), have been paid in full and certain other obligations – primarily, the Claimant Trust’s significant indemnity obligations – have been satisfied.

No. 13. A memorandum of law in support of the Motion to Dismiss (“MTD Brief”) was filed at Dkt. No. 14.

² Capitalized terms not defined in this introduction shall be defined later herein.

In this Adversary Proceeding, Plaintiffs seek: (1) an order from the bankruptcy court compelling the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trustee to disclose certain information about the assets and liabilities remaining in the Claimant Trust, and, if they are compelled to disclose that information, (2) a declaratory judgment regarding the relative value of those assets and liabilities, and (3) if assets exceed liabilities, a declaratory judgment that HMIT’s and Dugaboy’s unvested contingent interests in the Claimant Trust are likely to vest at some point in the future.

To be clear, it is undisputed that neither HMIT nor Dugaboy are currently Claimant Trust Beneficiaries under the terms of the Plan and Claimant Trust Agreement and that the vesting conditions under the terms of the Plan and Claimant Trust Agreement have not occurred.

Highland and the Claimant Trust filed their Motion to Dismiss, seeking a dismissal, with prejudice, of all three counts of the Complaint. For the following reasons, the court grants the Motion to Dismiss.

I. JURISDICTION

This court has jurisdiction to consider and determine this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157(b)(1) and (b)(2)(A) and (O) and 1334.

II. BACKGROUND

A. The Bankruptcy Case and the Plan

Highland was a Dallas-based investment firm that was co-founded in 1993 by Dondero and Mark Okada. It managed billion-dollar investment portfolios and assets, both directly and indirectly, through numerous affiliates that were owned or controlled by Dondero. On October 16, 2019 (the “Petition Date”), Highland, with Dondero in control⁴ and acting as its CEO, president, and portfolio manager, and facing a myriad of massive, business litigation claims, filed for relief under chapter 11 of the United States Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware. The bankruptcy case was transferred to the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division in December 2019.

Highland, a Delaware limited partnership, had three classes of limited partnership interests (Class A, Class B, and Class C) as of the Petition Date.⁵ The Class A interests were held by the Plaintiff Dugaboy, and also Mark Okada’s family trusts, and Strand Advisors, Inc. (the latter of which was an entity wholly owned by Dondero and was also Highland’s only general partner). The Class B and C interests were held by the Plaintiff HMIT.⁶

Very shortly after the Petition Date, the official committee of unsecured creditors (the “Committee”) threatened to seek the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee due to concerns over and distrust of Dondero, his numerous conflicts of interest, and his history of alleged mismanagement. Later, the United States Trustee actually moved for the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee. Under the specter of a possible appointment of a trustee, Highland engaged in substantial and lengthy negotiations with the Committee, resulting in a corporate governance settlement approved by this court on January 9, 2020.⁷ As a result of this corporate governance settlement, Dondero relinquished control of Highland and resigned his positions as officer or director of Highland and its general partner, Strand,⁸ although he stayed on with Highland as an unpaid portfolio manager.

⁸ Dondero agreed to this settlement pursuant to a stipulation he executed and that was filed in connection with Highland’s motion to approve the settlement. See Stipulation in Support of Motion of the Debtor for Approval of

Three independent directors (“Independent Directors”) were chosen to lead Highland through its chapter 11 case: James P. Seery, Jr. (“Seery”), John S. Dubel, and retired bankruptcy judge Russell Nelms. Seery was appointed Highland’s Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer in July 2020.⁹ According to Seery’s testimony at various hearings, it was during subsequent negotiations regarding a plan for Highland that Dondero made a threat to “burn down the place” if Dondero’s own proposed plan terms were not accepted by the company and its creditors. Indeed, soon after Highland negotiated compromises with its major creditors in the case (e.g., the Redeemer Committee of the Crusader Fund; Joshua Terry; Acis; UBS) and began pursuing a plan supported by those creditors, Dondero and entities under his control began engaging in substantial, costly, and time-consuming litigation in the Highland case.¹⁰ As the Fifth Circuit has described the situation, after Dondero’s plans failed, “he and others under his control began to frustrate the proceedings by objecting to settlements, appealing orders, seeking writs of mandamus, interfering with Highland’s management, threatening employees, and canceling trades between Highland and its clients.”¹¹

Highland’s negotiations with the Committee eventually culminated in the filing of the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (as Modified) (the Settlement With the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in Ordinary Course, Bankr. Dkt. No. 338.

“Plan”),¹² which was confirmed¹³ in February 2021 over the objections of Dondero and Dondero-controlled entities. The Plan, which became effective on August 21, 2021 (“Effective Date”), is essentially an “asset monetization” plan pursuant to which the Committee was dissolved, and four new entities were created: the Reorganized Debtor; a new general partner for the Reorganized Debtor called HCMLP GP, LLC; the Claimant Trust (administered by Seery, its trustee); and a Litigation Sub-Trust (administered by its trustee, Marc Kirschner). The Claimant Trust owns the limited partnership interests in the Reorganized Debtor, HCMLP GP LLC, and the Litigation Sub-Trust and is charged with winding down Highland over a three-year period by monetizing its assets and making distributions to the “Claimant Trust Beneficiaries,” as defined in the Plan and the CTA. General unsecured claims were classified as Class 8, and subordinated claims were classified as Class 9. Under the terms of the Plan, the holders of claims in Classes 8 and 9 received as of the Effective Date, in exchange for their claims, beneficial interests in the Claimant Trust and became “Claimant Trust Beneficiaries.” HMIT’s and Dugaboy’s former limited partnership interests in Highland were classified as Class 10 and Class 11, respectively. Under the terms of the Plan, these interests were cancelled in exchange for unvested contingent interests in the Claimant Trust (“Contingent Trust Interests”) that will vest if, and only if, the Claimant Trustee certifies that the Class 8 general unsecured claims and Class 9 subordinated claims have been paid in full, all disputed claims in Classes 8 and 9 have been resolved, and certain other obligations – primarily, the Claimant Trust’s significant indemnity obligations – have been satisfied.¹⁴ In other words, HMIT and Dugaboy will become “Claimant Trust Beneficiaries” if, and only if, the vesting conditions occur.

B. Information Rights under the CTA

The Claimant Trust is a Delaware statutory trust established pursuant to the terms of that certain Claimant Trust Agreement (“CTA”), effective August 11, 2021, for the benefit of Claimant Trust Beneficiaries, which are defined in the CTA to be¹⁵

the Holders of Allowed General Unsecured Claims, Holders of Allowed Subordinated Claims, and, only upon certification by the Claimant Trustee that the Holders of such Claims have been paid indefeasibly in full plus, to the extent applicable, post-petition interest at the federal judgment rate in accordance with the terms and conditions set forth herein, Holders of Allowed Class B/C Limited Partnership Interests, and Holders of Allowed Class A Limited Partnership Interests.

Under the clear terms of the CTA, information rights are limited, and the Claimant Trustee has no duty to provide an accounting of the Claimant Trust’s assets to any party, including the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries.¹⁶ The CTA grants limited information rights solely to a “Claimant Oversight Board”¹⁷ and the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries:¹⁸

The Claimant Trustee shall provide quarterly reporting to the Oversight Board and Claimant Trust Beneficiaries of (i) the status of the Claimant Trust Assets, (ii) the balance of Cash held by the Claimant Trust (including in each of the Claimant Trust Expense Reserve and Disputed Claim Reserve), (iii) the determination and any re-

¹⁵ CTA § 1.1(h). The CTA was expressly incorporated into and is a part of the Plan. See Confirmation Order ¶ 25, at 27; Plan Art. IV(J). The final form of the CTA was filed with the court at docket number 1811-2, as modified by docket number 1875-4.

¹⁷ “Oversight Board” was defined in the CTA as “the board comprised of five (5) Members established pursuant to the Plan and Article III of this Agreement to oversee the Claimant Trustee’s performance of his duties and otherwise serve the functions set forth in this Agreement and those of the “Claimant Trust Oversight Committee” described in the Plan. Subject to the terms of this Agreement, the initial Members of the Oversight Board shall be: (i) Eric Felton, as representative of the Redeemer Committee; (ii) Josh Terry, as representative of Acis; (iii) Elizabeth Kozlowski, as representative of UBS; (iv) Paul McVoy, as representative of Meta-e Discovery; and (v) David Pauker.”

determination, as applicable, of the total amount allocated to the Disputed Claim Reserve, (iv) the status of Disputed Claims and any resolutions thereof, (v) the status of any litigation, including the pursuit of the Causes of Action, (vi) the Reorganized Debtor's performance, and (vii) operating expenses; provided, however, that the Claimant Trustee may, with respect to any Member of the Oversight Board or Claimant Trust Beneficiary, redact any portion of such reports that relate to such Entity's Claim or Equity Interest, as applicable and any reporting provided to Claimant Trust Beneficiaries may be subject to such Claimant Trust Beneficiary's agreement to maintain confidentiality with respect to any non-public information.

Nothing in the Plan or the CTA grants any other information rights, and, in fact, the CTA makes clear that the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries do not have any information rights outside of those limited information rights set forth in the CTA,¹⁹ which do not include rights to the granular asset and subsidiary level information that the Plaintiffs are asking for in their Complaint (as later further discussed).

As earlier noted, the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries are defined in the CTA to be only the holders of allowed Class 8 general unsecured claims and allowed Class 9 subordinated claims unless and until the Contingent Trust Interests held by the holders of the former limited partnership interests (classified in Classes 10 and 11 under the Plan) vest, at which point, the Class 10 and Class 11 claimants will become Contingent Trust Beneficiaries.²⁰ The CTA specifically provides that the holders of Contingent Trust Interests "shall not have any rights under this Agreement" and will not "be deemed 'Beneficiaries' under this Agreement," "unless and until" they vest in accordance with the Plan and the CTA and the Claimant Trustee files with the Bankruptcy Court a certification that all holders of general unsecured claims have been indefeasibly paid in full,

¹⁹ CTA § 5.10(a) ("The Claimant Trust Beneficiaries shall have no rights other than those set forth in this Agreement, the Confirmation Order, or the Plan (including any Plan Supplement documents incorporated therein).").

²⁰ See CTA § 1.1(h); Plan Art. I.B.27.

including, as to Class 8 claims, “all accrued and unpaid post-petition interest consistent with the Plan and all Disputed Claims have been resolved (the ‘GUC Payment Certification’).”²¹

C. The Complaint and Motion to Dismiss

1. The Complaint

On May 10, 2023, HMIT and Dugaboy filed the Complaint in this Adversary Proceeding, asserting one claim for equitable relief and, if the court grants the request for equitable relief, two claims for declaratory relief.

In Count I,²² entitled “First Claim for Relief - Disclosures of Claimant Trust Assets and Request for Accounting,” Plaintiffs seek an order compelling Highland and the Claimant Trust “to provide information regarding the Claimant Trust assets, including the amount of cash and the remaining non-cash assets, and details of all transactions that have occurred since the [alleged] wall of silence was erected, and all liabilities.”²³ Plaintiffs acknowledge in their Complaint that, under the terms of the Plan and the CTA, they are not entitled to the information they seek: While “[t]he Plan requires the Claimant Trustee to determine the fair market value of the Claimant Trust Assets as of the Effective Date and to notify the applicable Claimant Trust Beneficiaries of such a valuation, as well as distribute tax information to Claimant Trust Beneficiaries as appropriate[,]”²⁴ . . . no like information regarding valuation of the Claimant Trust Assets is available to Plaintiffs as holders of Contingent Claimant Trust Interests . . .²⁵ Thus, Plaintiffs seek equitable relief

²¹ See CTA § 5.1(c).

²² For ease of reference, the court will refer to the Plaintiffs’ “First Claim for Relief,” “Second Claim for Relief,” and “Third Claim for Relief” as Count I, Count II, and Count III, respectively.

in Count I – an order compelling the Highland Parties to disclose information that Plaintiffs admit they are not otherwise entitled to under the terms of the Plan and the CTA.

In Count II, entitled “Second Claim for Relief – Declaratory Judgment Regarding Value of Claimant Trust Assets,” Plaintiffs seek a declaratory judgment and “determination from the Court of the relative value of the Claimant Trust assets compared to the bankruptcy estate obligations,” “[o]nce Defendants are compelled to provide information about the Claimant Trust assets.”²⁶

Finally, in Count III, entitled “Third Claim for Relief – Declaratory Judgment and Determination Regarding Nature of Plaintiffs’ Interests,” the Plaintiffs seek a declaratory judgment and determination, “[i]n the event that the Court determines that the Claimant Trust assets exceed the obligations of the bankruptcy estate in an amount sufficient so that all Allowable Claims may be indefeasibly paid . . . that the conditions are such that their Contingent Claimant Trust Interests are likely to vest into Claimant Trust Interests, making them Claimant Trust Beneficiaries.”²⁷ HMIT and Dugaboy, by asking the court for a declaratory judgment that “the conditions are such that their Contingent Claimant Trust Interests are likely to vest into Claimant Trust Interests, making them Claimant Trust Beneficiaries”²⁸ (if the court first grants the equitable relief requested in Count I and the declaratory relief in Count II), admit and acknowledge that they are not Claimant Trust Beneficiaries and that their Claimant Trust Interests have not vested under the terms of the Plan and CTA. In fact, HMIT and Dugaboy clarify in footnote 6, with respect to Count III, that “[they] do not ask the Court to determine that they are Claimant Trust Beneficiaries or otherwise to convert their contingent interests into non-contingent interests[,]” and they acknowledge that “[a]ll of that must be done according to the terms of the Plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement.”²⁹

2. The Valuation Motion, Precursor to the Complaint

This is not the first time Plaintiffs have sought a valuation and accounting from the Claimant Trustee. In fact, the Complaint was filed after two prior efforts by the Plaintiffs to seek a valuation and accounting for the purported purpose of having the court determine that the Claimant Trust assets exceeded liabilities such that they were “in the money” and therefore, they argued, their Contingent Trust Interests were likely to vest in the near future. The first time was via a motion³⁰ that Dugaboy (with the support of HMIT)³¹ filed in June 2022, that this court denied³² on the ground that it was procedurally defective – that the claims for equitable and declaratory relief sought therein must be brought as an adversary proceeding. Specifically, this court held that, in asking the court to determine whether Dugaboy was “in the money” and whether “its status as a holder of a ‘Contingent Trust Interest’ [would] soon spring into the status of a ‘Claimant Trust Beneficiary,’” the Valuation Motion was asking “for the court to determine the extent of Dugaboy’s interest in the property in the Creditor’s Trust,” which is a “proceeding to ²⁹ Id. ¶ 94 n.6, at 27.

³⁰ On June 30, 2022, Dugaboy filed a Motion for Determination of the Value of the Estate and Assets Held by the Claimant Trust in which Dugaboy sought “a determination by this Court of the current value of the estate and an accounting of the assets currently held the [sic] Claimant Trust and available for distribution to creditors” and, on September 21, 2022, a Supplemental and Amended Motion for Determination of the Value of the Estate and Assets Held by the Claimant Trust in which Dugaboy further stated that “the Court should conduct an evidentiary hearing and require disclosure by the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trustee of the value of the estate and all assets held by Claimant Trust that are available for distribution to creditors and residual equity holders.” (together, the “Valuation Motion”). In the Valuation Motion, the movants sought a determination of the value of the assets of the Claimant Trust and the entry of “an order: (i) finding that Dugaboy has standing in these bankruptcy proceedings under 11 U.S.C. § 1109(b), Delaware trust law, and Article III of the United States Constitution; and (ii) setting an evidentiary hearing to ascertain the assets currently available for distribution to allowed claimants, to determine the current value of those assets, and to determine whether there is a potential for settling the estate now”

³¹ HMIT filed a Limited Response in Support of Certain Requested Relief on August 24, 2022.

determine the validity, priority, or extent of . . . [an] interest in property” under Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7001(2) that must be brought as an adversary proceeding.³³ Additionally, the court held that the movants’ request for the court to make a determination of the current value of the estate and for an accounting of the Claimant Trust assets was a request for equitable relief that was not provided for in the Plan, and that such a request must be brought via an adversary complaint pursuant to Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7001(7).³⁴ Finally, the court held that the request in the Valuation Motion clearly was requesting a declaratory judgment as to the value of assets, the extent of Dugaboy’s and HMIT’s interests in assets, and ultimately, “a declaration as to Dugaboy’s standing” that should be brought as an adversary proceeding under the terms of Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7001(9) as “a proceeding to obtain declaratory judgment relating to any of the foregoing [types of procedures listed in Rule 7001].”³⁵ Accordingly, the court denied the Valuation Motion “for procedural deficiency[,] without prejudice to the filing of an adversary proceeding.”³⁶

Next, Dugaboy and HMIT filed a motion seeking leave from this court to file the Complaint, pursuant to the “Gatekeeper Provisions” of the court’s prior orders and the Plan (which have been discussed at length in various Highland opinions),³⁷ but then withdrew the motion for leave (the “Withdrawn Motion for Leave”), after Highland agreed at a status conference held on April 24, 2023 that leave of court was not necessary for the filing of this particular Adversary

Proceeding.³⁸ Plaintiffs then filed the Complaint that initiated this Adversary Proceeding on May 10, 2023.

3. Meanwhile, HMIT Files Gatekeeper Motion for Leave to File a Different Adversary Proceeding against the Claimant Trustee and Others Regarding Claims Trading

Meanwhile, HMIT filed a separate Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding (“HMIT Motion for Leave Regarding Claims Trading”),³⁹ which was later supplemented and modified.⁴⁰ HMIT’s Motion for Leave Regarding Claims Trading should not be confused with its (and Dugaboy’s) earlier Withdrawn Motion for Leave, just discussed. In the HMIT Motion for Leave Regarding Claims Trading, it sought leave pursuant to the Gatekeeper Provisions to sue Highland, Seery (i.e., the Claimant Trustee), and certain purchasers of large unsecured claims based upon allegations of “insider trading” and breach of fiduciary duty. A hearing was held on the HMIT Motion for Leave Regarding Claims Trading, following which the court took the matter under advisement.

While the matter was pending under advisement, Dondero and certain of his controlled entities (the “Dondero Parties”) filed a Motion to Stay and to Compel Mediation (the “Mediation Motion”),⁴¹ which was granted, in part, on August 2, 2023.⁴² In compliance with an agreed-upon court order⁴³ and in furtherance of mediation, Highland filed a pro forma adjusted balance sheet ³⁸ In confirming that Highland had agreed that a gatekeeper motion would not be necessary “since the adversary would just be seeking a valuation and not monetary or other relief,” Highland’s counsel reported that Highland “does not believe [HMIT] or Dugaboy is entitled to any information whatsoever” and that “[t]hey certainly have no legal right to the information [which is] why they have to pursue . . . an equitable claim.” Transcript of April 24, 2023 Status Conference, 4:7-23. (“Pro Forma Adjusted Balance Sheet”) for the Claimant Trust,⁴⁴ which disclosed a May 31, 2023 point-in-time $152 million in assets (of which only $37 million was cash or restricted cash) and $130 million in liabilities, for a total equity value of $22 million. The information disclosed on the Pro Forma Adjusted Balance Sheet was consistent with information that had already been filed in the Bankruptcy Case in certain “Post-Confirmation Reports” as of April 2023.⁴⁵ Highland and the Claimant Trustee represent that the Post-Confirmation Reports were “enhanced” and publicly filed to provide interested parties substantially more information than was required, and that these disclosures should have resolved any good faith dispute around receiving sufficient information with which to make a global settlement offer.⁴⁶ In any event, the Pro Forma Adjusted Balance Sheet and Post-Confirmation Reports are now central to Highland and the Claimant Trustee’s “mootness” argument later discussed herein.

On August 25, 2023, the court issued a 105-page memorandum opinion and order denying HMIT’s Motion for Leave Regarding Claims Trading (“Order Denying Leave to Bring Claims Pertaining to Claims Trading”)⁴⁷ on multiple grounds, including on the bases that: (a) HMIT lacked constitutional standing to bring the claims; (b) even if it had constitutional standing, it lacked prudential standing under Delaware trust law to bring the claims; and (c) the proposed claims also were not “colorable” claims that the court, pursuant to its gatekeeping function under the Gatekeeper Provisions, should allow HMIT to bring. The court found, among other things, that HMIT was not a “Claimant Trust Beneficiary” and not a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust. The court further determined that HMIT should not be treated as a “Claimant Trust Beneficiary” after both “considering the current value of the Claimant Trust Assets” and the allegations of wrongful conduct by the Claimant Trustee, as the court “does not have the power to equitably deem HMIT’s Contingent Trust Interest to be vested.” The court noted that “HMIT’s status as a ‘beneficiary’ of the Claimant Trust is defined by the CTA itself, pure and simple,” and it was undisputed that HMIT’s Contingent Trust Interest had not vested yet under the terms of the Plan and the CTA.

On September 8, 2023, HMIT filed a motion to reconsider (“HMIT’s Motion to Reconsider Lack of Standing”)⁴⁸ the Order Denying Leave to Bring Claims Pertaining to Claims Trading. HMIT argued that the court should reconsider its ruling because the Pro Forma Adjusted Balance Sheet, filed in July 2023 (after the court took the HMIT Motion for Leave Regarding Claims Trading under advisement, but before the court issued its August 2023 Order Denying Leave to Bring Claims Pertaining to Claims Trading, established that (1) the value of the Claimant Trust assets exceeded liabilities; (2) HMIT was “in the money”; and (3) its unvested Contingent Trust Interest was likely to vest and, therefore, HMIT had both constitutional and prudential standing as a Claimant Trust Beneficiary to bring the proposed claims.

On October 6, 2023, the court entered an order denying reconsideration (“Order Denying HMIT’s Motion to Reconsider Lack of Standing”),⁴⁹ finding that the Pro Forma Adjusted Balance sheet did not “demonstrate that HMIT’s contingent interest [wa]s ‘in the money,’” noting that HMIT d[id] not give proper attention to the voluminous supplemental notes” in the Pro Form Adjusted Balance Sheet that are “integral to understanding the numbers therein.”⁵⁰ In addition

4. The Rule 12(b) Motion

As noted earlier, this Adversary Proceeding was briefly stayed pending a court-ordered⁵² mediation that ultimately proved to have been unsuccessful.⁵³ Then, on November 22, 2023, Highland and the Claimant Trustee filed their Rule 12(b) Motion that is now pending before the court.⁵⁴

In their Rule 12(b) Motion, Highland and the Claimant Trustee seek a dismissal of Counts I and III pursuant to Rule 12(b)(1) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure⁵⁵ (made applicable herein pursuant to Rule 7012 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure⁵⁶) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction—specifically, Counts I and III based on mootness, and Count III based on the additional ground that Plaintiffs seek an impermissible advisory opinion. Thus, there is no justiciable controversy with respect to either of these counts. In addition to the lack of subject matter arguments, Highland and the Claimant Trustee also seek dismissal of Count III on the basis that the Plaintiffs are collaterally estopped from bringing the claim for declaratory relief. Finally, the Highland Parties seek dismissal of all three counts pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) (made applicable herein by Bankruptcy Rule 7012) for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.⁵⁷

The court has considered the Rule 12(b) Motion, HMIT's and Dugaboy's response⁵⁸ in opposition, and the reply thereto.⁵⁹ Oral arguments were heard on February 14, 2024, following which this court took the matter under advisement.⁶⁰ Having considered all of this, the undisputed facts set forth in the Complaint, and certain facts of which this court takes judicial notice, and for the following reasons, this court concludes that: (a) it does not lack subject matter jurisdiction over Count I of the Complaint but that HMIT and Dugaboy have failed to state a claim upon which relief can be granted as to Count I, and thus, Count I should be dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6); (b) that Count II of the Complaint is not justiciable and that, pursuant to Rule 12(b)(1) and Rule 12(h)(3), Count II of the Complaint should be dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction; and, (c) Count III of the Complaint is not justiciable and that, pursuant to Rule 12(b)(1), Count III of the Complaint should be dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction.

III. CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

A. Legal Standards

“When a Rule 12(b)(1) motion is filed in conjunction with other Rule 12 motions, the court should consider the Rule 12(b)(1) jurisdictional attack before addressing any attack on the merits.” Ramming v. United States, 281 F.3d 158, 161 (5th Cir. 2001) (citation omitted). “Moreover, when a complaint could be dismissed for both lack of jurisdiction and failure to state a claim, the court should dismiss only on the jurisdictional ground under Rule 12(b)(1), without reaching the questions of failure to state a claim under Rule 12(b)(6)—a “practice [that] prevents courts from issuing advisory opinions.” Crenshaw-Logal v. City of Abilene, Texas, 436 F. App’x 306 (5th Cir. 2011) (cleaned up). “The practice also prevents courts without jurisdiction ‘from prematurely dismissing a case with prejudice.’” Id. (quoting Ramming, 281 F.3d at 161). Thus, the court will address the Rule 12(b)(1) issues and, then, to the extent the court finds that it has subject matter jurisdiction over any of the claims asserted by the Plaintiffs, the court will address the separate collateral estoppel argument and whether the Plaintiffs have failed to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.

1. Rule 12(b)(1) – Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction

As noted, the Defendants argue that the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction over Plaintiffs’ claims asserted in Counts I and III of their Complaint, and, therefore, they must be dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(1). The court notes that, pursuant to Rule 12(h)(3), the court “must dismiss the action” “if [it] determines at any time that it lacks subject matter jurisdiction,” whether the issue is raised by a party or sua sponte by the court. This is so because federal courts have a “constitutional duty . . . to decline subject matter jurisdiction where it does not exist—and that is so whether the parties challenge Article III standing or not.” Abraugh v. Altimus, 26 F.4th 298, 304 (5th Cir. 2022).

Under Article III of the Constitution, a federal court “may only adjudicate actual, ongoing controversies.” Shemwell v. City of McKinney, Texas, 63 F.4th 480, 483 (5th Cir. 2023) (citing Honig v. Doe, 484 U.S. 305, 317 (1988)). and thus “[w]hether a case or controversy remains live throughout litigation is a jurisdictional matter.” Id. (citations omitted). “If a dispute is not a proper case or controversy, the courts have no business deciding it, or expounding the law in the course of doing so.” DaimlerChrysler Corp. v. Cuno, 547 U.S. 332, 341 (2006). As noted by the Supreme Court, “the doctrines of [constitutional standing,] mootness, ripeness, and political question all originate in Article III’s ‘case’ or ‘controversy’ language.” Id. at 352 (citations omitted). The justiciability requirement found in Article III forms the basis of the overarching and, at times, overlapping well-settled rule that federal courts are not permitted to issue advisory opinions. See Su v. F Elephant, Inc. (In re TMT Procurement Corp.), No. 21-20146, 2022 WL 38985, at *2 (5th Cir. Jan. 4, 2022) (“[T]he federal courts established pursuant to Article III of the Constitution do not render advisory opinions,’ and parties must articulate ‘concrete legal issues, presented in actual cases, not abstractions.’”) (quoting Golden v. Zwickler, 394 U.S. 103, 108 (1969) (quoting United Public Workers of America (C.I.O.) v. Mitchell, 330 U.S. 75, 89 (1947))). The Fifth Circuit in *Shemwell*⁶¹ recently expounded on the “interplay among the justiciability doctrines” that are “rooted in the Constitution”:

Our justiciability doctrines – including mootness – are rooted in the Constitution. Under Article III of the Constitution, this court may only adjudicate actual, ongoing controversies. Accordingly, whether a case or controversy remains live throughout litigation is a jurisdictional matter. Reframed in the familiar taxonomy of standing and ripeness, this means that, throughout the litigation, the plaintiff must have suffered, or be threatened with, an actual injury traceable to the defendant and likely to be redressed by a favorable judicial decision. Or, as the Court has sometimes articulated the interplay among the justiciability doctrines, standing generally assesses whether the [requisite] interest exists at the outset, while the doctrine of mootness considers whether it exists throughout the proceedings.

The Supreme Court has interpreted the “cases” and “controversies” language in Article III “to demand that an actual controversy be extant at all stages of review, not merely at the time the complaint is filed,” and, thus, “[i]f an intervening circumstance deprives the plaintiff of a personal stake in the outcome of the lawsuit, at any point during litigation, the action can no longer proceed and must be dismissed as moot.” Campbell-Ewald Co. v. Gomez, 577 U.S. 153, 160-161 (2016)

(cleaned up); see also Center for Individual Freedom v. Carmouche, 449 F.3d 655, 661 (5th Cir. 2006) (“Mootness is the doctrine of standing in a time frame. The requisite personal interest that must exist at the commencement of litigation (standing) must continue throughout its existence (mootness).”) (cleaned up). “A case becomes moot, however, only when it is impossible for a court to grant any effectual relief whatever to the prevailing party.” Campbell-Ewald, 577 U.S. at 161 (cleaned up). In other words, “A case becomes moot—and therefore no longer a ‘Case’ or ‘Controversy’ for purpose of Article III—when the issues presented are no longer ‘live’ or the parties lack a legally cognizable interest in the outcome” and “no matter how vehemently the parties continue to dispute the lawfulness of the conduct that precipitated the lawsuit, the case is moot if the dispute is no longer embedded in any actual controversy about the plaintiffs’ particular legal rights.” Yarls v. Bunton, 905 F.3d 905, 909 (5th Cir. 2018) (cleaned up).

As alluded to above, ripeness is another justiciability doctrine that originates in Article III’s “case” or “controversy” requirement. See also Orix Credit Alliance, Inc. v. Wolfe, 212 F.3d 891, 895 (5th Cir. 2000) (quoting Abbott Laboratories v. Gardner, 387 U.S. 136, 148-49 (1967) (“Ripeness is a constitutional prerequisite to the exercise of jurisdiction.”)). “Ripeness ‘separates those matters that are premature because the injury is speculative and may never occur from those that are appropriate for judicial review.’” In re Boyd Veigel, P.C., 575 F. App’x 393, 396 (5th Cir. 2014) (quoting United Transp. Union v. Foster, 205 F.3d 851, 857 (5th Cir. 2000) and citing and quoting United Pub. Workers v. Mitchell, 330 U.S. 75, 89 (1947) on the doctrine of ripeness). The Fifth Circuit set forth the standard for determining whether a dispute is ripe for adjudication in New Orleans Pub. Serv., Inc. v. Council of New Orleans, 833 F.2d 583 (5th Cir. 1987): “A court should dismiss a case for lack of ‘ripeness’ when the case is abstract or hypothetical. . . . A case is generally ripe if any remaining questions are purely legal ones; conversely, a case is not ripe if further factual development is required.” Orix, 212 F.3d at 895 (quoting id. at 586-87) (additional citations omitted).

As noted by the Orix court, “[m]any courts have recognized that applying the ripeness doctrine in the declaratory judgment context presents a unique challenge.” When considering a declaratory judgment action (and Plaintiffs here are seeking declaratory relief in Counts II and III), the court must first determine whether the action is justiciable, as the court must do in connection with all claims for relief. Under the federal Declaratory Judgment Act, “any court of the United States” is authorized to “declare the rights and other legal relations” of parties in “a case of actual controversy.” 28 U.S.C. § 2201; Fed. R. Civ. P. 57; see also Texas Cent. Bus. Lines Corp. v. City of Midlothian, 669 F.3d 525, 534 (5th Cir. 2012). “That controversy must be of a justiciable nature, thus excluding an advisory decree upon a hypothetical state of facts.” Id. (cleaned up).⁶² The “unique challenge” that applying the ripeness doctrine to requests for declaratory judgment presents arises from the fact that declaratory judgments are “typically sought before a completed ‘injury-in-fact’ has occurred,” Orix, 212 F.3d at 896 (quoting Foster, 205 F.3d 851, 857 (5th Cir. 2000)), and, “declaratory actions contemplate an ‘ex ante determination of rights’ that ‘exists in some tension with traditional notions of ripeness.’” Orix, 212 F.3d at 896 (quoting Rhode Island v. Narragansett Indian Tribe, 19 F.3d 685, 692 (1st Cir. 1994)). Notwithstanding this tension that exists in applying the justiciability requirements to declaratory judgment actions, “a declaratory judgment action, like any other action, must be ripe in order to be justiciable.” Id. “Thus, courts will not grant declaratory judgments unless the suit is ripe for review.” Boyd Veigel, 575 F. App’x at 396 (citing Foster, 205 F.3d at 857); see also Mitchell, 330 U.S. at 89 (“As is well known the federal courts established pursuant to Article III of the Constitution do not render advisory opinions. For adjudication of constitutional issues, concrete legal issues, presented in actual cases, not abstractions are requisite. This is as true of declaratory judgments as any other field.”) (cleaned up).

In addressing the ripeness doctrine in the declaratory judgment context, the Fifth Circuit has stated that “the question in each case is whether the facts alleged, under all the circumstances, show that there is a substantial controversy, between parties having adverse legal interests, of sufficient immediacy and reality to warrant the issuance of a declaratory judgment,” Boyd Veigel, 575 F. App’x at 396 (quoting Md. Cas. Co. v. Pac. Coal & Oil Co., 312 U.S. 270, 273 (1941)), and that “[w]hether particular facts are sufficiently immediate to establish an actual controversy is a question that must be addressed on a case-by-case basis. Orix, 212 F.3d at 896 (citations omitted). “The controversy must be such that it can presently be litigated and decided and not hypothetical, conjectural, conditional or based upon the possibility of a factual situation that may never develop.” Val-Com Acquisitions Tr. v. Chase Home Fin., L.L.C., 434 F. App’x 395, 395-96 (5th Cir. 2011) (cleaned up).

“The burden of proof for a Rule 12(b)(1) motion to dismiss is on the party asserting jurisdiction, so the plaintiff constantly bears the burden of proof that jurisdiction does in fact exist.” Shemwell v. City of McKinney, Texas, 63 F.4th 480, 483 (5th Cir. 2023) (citing id.) (cleaned up) see also Val-Com, 434 F. App’x at 396 (“The plaintiffs have the burden of establishing the existence of an actual controversy under the [Declaratory Judgment] Act.”). “Lack of subject matter jurisdiction may be found in any one of three instances: (1) the complaint alone; (2) the complaint supplemented by undisputed facts evidenced in the record; or (3) the complaint supplemented by undisputed facts plus the court's resolution of disputed facts.” Ramming v. United States, 281 F.3d 158, 161 (5th Cir. 2001).

2. Rule 12(b)(6) – Failure to State a Claim upon which Relief Can Be Granted

As noted, Highland and the Claimant Trust also argue that all three counts of the Complaint should be dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6), made applicable herein by Bankruptcy Rule 7012, because Plaintiffs have failed “to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.” To survive a motion to dismiss pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6), a plaintiff must plead “enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.” Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007). “A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009). “The plausibility standard is not akin to a ‘probability requirement,’ but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.” Id. (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 556). “Where a complaint pleads facts that are ‘merely consistent with’ a defendant’s liability, it ‘stops short of the line between possibility and plausibility of entitlement to relief.’” Id. (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 557). “When well-pleaded facts fail to meet th[e] [Twombly] standard, the complaint has alleged—but it has not shown—that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Id. at 679. “In ruling on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss, the court cannot look beyond the pleadings and must accept as true those well-pleaded factual allegations in the complaint,” Hall v. Hodgkins, 305 F. App’x 224, 227 (5th Cir. 2008) (cleaned up), but it is “not bound to accept as true a legal conclusion couched as factual allegation.” Randall D. Wolcott MD PA v. Sebelius, 635 F.3d 757, 763 (5th Cir. 2011) (cleaned up). The court “may also consider matters of which it may take judicial notice, and it is clearly proper in deciding a 12(b)(6) motion to take judicial notice of matters of public record.” Hall v. Hodgkins, 305 F. App’x at 227 (cleaned up). Dismissal is proper under Rule 12(b)(6), if, after taking the facts alleged in the complaint as true, “it appears certain that the plaintiff cannot prove any set of facts that would entitle it to the relief it seeks.” Test

Masters Educ. Servs., Inc. v. Singh, 428 F.3d 559, 570 (5th Cir. 2005) (quoting C.C. Port, Ltd. v. Davis-Penn Mortg. Co., 61 F.3d 288, 289 (5th Cir. 1995)).

3. Collateral Estoppel

Highland and the Claimant Trust also argue that Plaintiffs' claims for declaratory relief asserted in Count III should be dismissed for the additional reason that Plaintiffs are collaterally estopped from bringing the claim. Collateral estoppel, or issue preclusion, is a preclusive doctrine that falls under the umbrella of the res judicata doctrine, which affords preclusive effect to final judgments, orders, and decrees of a federal court, including those of bankruptcy courts. See In re Reddy Ice Holdings, Inc., 611 B.R. 802, 808 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2020) (quoting Test Masters, 428 F.3d at 571 (“The rule of res judicata encompasses two separate but linked preclusive doctrines: (1) true res judicata or claim preclusion and (2) collateral estoppel or issue preclusion.”) and citing Bullard v. Blue Hills Bank, 575 U.S. 496, 501-02 (2015)). Whereas “claim preclusion, or true res judicata, precludes parties from relitigating claims or causes of action that were or could have been raised in earlier litigation,” id., issue preclusion, or collateral estoppel, “prevents the same parties or their privies from relitigating [an issue of fact or law] . . . when: ‘(1) the identical issue was previously adjudicated; (2) the issue was actually litigated; and (3) the previous determination was necessary to the decision.’” Bradberry v. Jefferson Co., Texas, 732 F.3d 540, 548 (5th Cir. 2013) (quoting Pace v. Bogalusa City Sch. Bd., 403 F.3d 272, 290 (5th Cir. 2005)); see also In re Reddy Ice, 611 B.R. at 809-10 (“To establish collateral estoppel under federal law one must show: (1) that the issue at stake be identical to the one involved in the prior litigation; (2) that the issue has been actually litigated in the prior litigation; and (3) that the determination of the issue in the prior litigation has been a critical and necessary part of the judgment in that earlier action.”) (quoting Rabo Agrifinance, Inc. v. Terra XXI, Ltd., 583 F.3d 348, 353 (5th Cir. 2009)). “By precluding parties from contesting matters that they have had a full and fair opportunity to litigate, these two doctrines protect against the expense and vexation attending multiple lawsuits, conserve judicial resources, and foster reliance on judicial action by minimizing the possibility of inconsistent decisions.” In re Reddy Ice, 611 B.R. at 808 (quoting Taylor v. Sturgell, 553 U.S. 880, 891 (2008)). Although as a general rule res judicata must be pled as an affirmative defense, Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7008; Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(c)(1), “[i]f, based on the facts pleaded and judicially noticed, a successful affirmative defense appears, then dismissal under Rule 12(b)(6) is proper.” Hall v. Hodgkins, 305 F. App’x at 227-28.⁶³

B. Application of the Legal Standards Here

1. Count I – Disclosure and Accounting

a) Plaintiffs’ equitable claim for disclosure and accounting in Count I cannot be considered “moot”; Defendants’ motion to dismiss Count I pursuant to Rule 12(b)(1) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction must be denied.

As earlier noted, in Count I of their Complaint, Plaintiffs seek an order compelling Highland and the Claimant Trust “to provide information regarding the Claimant Trust assets, including the amount of cash and the remaining non-cash assets, and details of all transactions that have occurred since the wall of silence was erected, and all liabilities.”⁶⁴ Plaintiffs, as holders of Contingent Trust Interests, have neither a contractual right to an accounting of the Claimant Trust assets nor a contractual right to whatever limited information rights under the terms of the Plan and CTA that are afforded to the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries. Plaintiffs acknowledge that they are not “Claimant Trust Beneficiaries.” But they ask the court, without any supporting facts or authority, to treat them as such and to order the Defendants to disclose not just information that ⁶³ A court may also raise the issue of res judicata or collateral estoppel sua sponte in dismissing a claim or cause of action “in the interest of judicial economy where both actions were brought before the same court” or “where all of the relevant facts are contained in the record and all are uncontroverted.” McIntyre v. Ben E. Keith Co., 754 F. App’x 264-65 (5th Cir. 2018) (cleaned up).

Claimant Trust Beneficiaries are entitled to under the Plan and CTA but also information and an accounting that is not otherwise available even to the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries. To be clear, the Plaintiffs are asking this court to disregard the unambiguous and plain terms of the CTA and the Plan and grant the relief sought in Count I based upon equitable considerations.

Ignoring for a moment the Defendants’ Rule 12(b)(6) “failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted” argument, this court will first focus on Defendants’ argument that Plaintiffs’ claim for equitable relief in Count I is moot and, thus, nonjusticiable and must be dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction pursuant to Rule 12(b)(1).

Highland and the Claimant Trust take the position that their filing of the Pro Forma Adjusted Balance Sheet in July 2023, nearly two months after the filing of the Complaint on May 10, 2023, renders moot the Plaintiffs’ request for equitable relief in Count I because the balance sheet provided Plaintiffs (and all parties) with the very information Plaintiffs are asking for in Count I. Thus, “the issue presented in Count I is no longer ‘live.’”⁶⁵ Highland and the Claimant Trust add that the Post-Confirmation Reports, filed on the bankruptcy court docket in April 2023, prior to the Complaint being filed, “similarly disclose the financial information requested in Count One, including, inter alia, the cash and the identification of remaining assets.” In essence, Defendants argue that the filing of these two items “ha[s] thus eliminated the ‘actual controversy’ at the core of Count One, and there is no conceivable relief available to Plaintiffs through this claim that has not already been provided.”⁶⁶

Plaintiffs argue that Highland and the Claimant Trust’s mootness argument is exactly backward—that the filing of the Pro Forma Balance Sheet has not eliminated the “actual controversy” between the parties precisely because of the Defendants’ persistent “contentions and arguments that the Balance Sheet is not conclusive [as to the issue of whether Plaintiffs’ Contingent Trust Interests are likely to vest]” – that whether assets exceed liabilities at any one given point in time and whether Plaintiffs appear to be “in the money” is irrelevant to the question of vesting under the terms of the Plan and CTA.⁶⁷ Plaintiffs point out that Defendants have argued that Plaintiffs should not rely on the balance sheet, which, again, gives pro forma values as of May 31, 2023, adding that it is not determinative of whether Plaintiffs Contingent Trust Interests will likely vest at any point in the future because, under the terms of the CTA and Plan, Plaintiffs’ unvested, contingent interests in the Claimant Trust will vest if, and only if, the Claimant Trustee files the GUC Payment Certification, certifying that the Class 8 general unsecured claims and Class 9 subordinated claims, the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries under the CTA who are entitled to distributions of the Claimant Trust assets and have other rights under the terms of the CTA, have been indefeasibly paid in full (including as to Class 8, accrued and unpaid post-petition interest), all disputed claims in Classes 8 and 9 have been resolved, and certain other obligations – primarily, the Claimant Trust’s significant indemnity obligations – have been satisfied. Because it is impossible to know or predict, in particular, what the indemnity obligations and the professional fees will be going forward, it would be just as impossible for the court to make any determination of whether Plaintiffs are “in the money” or whether their contingent interests are likely to vest.

⁶⁵ MTD Brief ¶ 25.

⁶⁶ MTD Brief ¶¶ 25-26.

This court cannot conclude that Defendants’ production and filing of the point-in-time Pro Forma Balance Sheet (as of May 31, 2023) and the Post-Confirmation Reports has rendered Plaintiffs’ current request in Count I for information and an accounting moot. A balance sheet and financial disclosures generally are fluid concepts. Relevant information in early 2023 may not remain relevant in mid-2024. Thus, Plaintiffs' equitable claim is not mooted by these earlier filed items, and the Count I request is justiciable. Accordingly, Defendants' motion to dismiss Count I under Rule 12(b)(1) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction will be denied. This determination simply means that the court has subject matter jurisdiction here to address Count I. Thus, this court will now consider whether Plaintiffs have stated a claim (in Count I) upon which relief can be granted under Rule 12(b)(6) standards.

b) Plaintiffs have failed to state a claim upon which relief can be granted in Count I; dismissal of Count I is proper under Rule 12(b)(6).

As noted above, dismissal under Rule 12(b)(6) is proper if, based upon the facts alleged in the Complaint, taken as true, as well as any judicially noticed facts, "it appears certain that the [Plaintiffs] cannot prove any set of facts that would entitle [them] to the relief [they] seek[]." Test Masters, 428 F.3d at 570 (quoting C.C. Port, Ltd., 61 F.3d at 289). As noted above, in Count I, Plaintiffs, as holders of unvested contingent interests in the Claimant Trust, seek an order from this court compelling Defendants "to provide information regarding the Claimant Trust assets, including the amount of cash and the remaining non-cash assets," and a detailed accounting of "all transactions that have occurred since [an alleged] wall of silence was erected, and all liabilities." As also noted above, Plaintiffs have acknowledged⁶⁸ that their contingent interests in the Claimant Trust have not vested, and Plaintiffs are not Claimant Trust Beneficiaries; thus, under the terms of the CTA, they are not entitled to the information and accounting they seek and do not have even the limited information rights afforded to the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries under the CTA.⁶⁹

The court takes judicial notice of its Order Denying Leave to Bring Claims Pertaining to Claims Trading, in which the court found that HMIT, as a holder of a "Contingent Claimant Trust

⁶⁸ See supra p.10.

⁶⁹ See supra pp. 7-9 (discussion of information rights under the terms of the CTA).

Interest” was not a Claimant Trust Beneficiary, who, under the terms of the CTA and Delaware law, are the “beneficial owners” of the Claimant Trust, and rejected HMIT’s argument that its Contingent Claimant Trust Interest makes it a contingent beneficiary of the Claimant Trust, which, in turn, makes it a present “beneficial owner” under Delaware trust law.⁷⁰ The court concluded that, under Delaware Trust law, “HMIT’s status as a ‘beneficiary’ of the Claimant Trust is defined by the CTA itself, pure and simple” and that under the terms of the CTA, the holders of Contingent Trust Interests have no rights under the agreement and will not “be deemed ‘Beneficiaries’” under the CTA “‘unless and until’ they vest in accordance with the Plan and the CTA” and that “the court does not have the power to equitably deem HMIT’s Contingent Trust Interest to be vested based on HMIT’s unsupported allegation of wrongdoing on the part of . . . the Claimant Trustee.”⁷¹

Now, as before, the court finds and concludes that under the terms of the CTA and Delaware law, Plaintiffs are not beneficiaries or “beneficial owners” of the Claimant Trust who would be entitled to assert rights under the CTA. The court specifically rejects an argument of Plaintiffs that Delaware trust law does not define “beneficiary,” so the court should ignore the terms of the CTA and look to the definition of “beneficiary” under the Restatement (Third) of Trusts, under which they would be considered “beneficiaries” of the Claimant Trust, albeit a contingent beneficiary, who would be entitled under Delaware law to the relief they are requesting. The Claimant Trust is a Delaware statutory trust governed by the Delaware Statutory Trust Act (the “Trust Act,” Chapter 38 of Title 12 of the Delaware Code), and the Trust Act does define “beneficial owner” and uses that term exclusively to refer to the beneficiaries of a Delaware statutory trust. Specifically, under the Trust Act, a statutory trust’s “beneficial owners” are “any owner[s] of a beneficial interest in a statutory trust, the fact of ownership *to be determined and evidenced . . . in conformity to the applicable provisions of the governing instrument of the statutory trust.*⁷² Thus, the question of whether Plaintiffs are “beneficiaries” of the Claimant Trust is (as the court concluded in the Order Denying Leave to Bring Claims Pertaining to Claims Trading) determined “by the CTA itself, pure and simple.” And, under the terms of the CTA, “Claimant Trust Beneficiaries” is defined to exclude Plaintiffs, who hold Class 10 and 11 unvested, contingent interests in the Claimant Trust, unless and until the GUC Payment Certification has been filed by the Claimant Trust. Until then, Plaintiffs “shall not have any rights under [the CTA]” and will not “be deemed ‘Beneficiaries’ under [the CTA].”⁷³

Plaintiffs ask the court to ignore the plain terms of the CTA and to grant them the relief they have requested on an equitable basis because they “are unable to determine whether their Contingent Claimant Trust Interests may vest into Claimant Trust Interests.”⁷⁴ But, they have not alleged any set of facts that would entitled them to equitable relief either. The court makes the same observation regarding Plaintiffs as it made in its Order Denying Valuation Motion: It appears that Plaintiffs “may be frustrated that they did not negotiate or obtain the same oversight rights as the actual Claimant Trust Beneficiaries in the Plan and CTA.” The Plan with the incorporated CTA was confirmed over three years ago now, and neither of the Plaintiffs objected to or appealed the terms of the Plan or CTA that dictate oversight rights.⁷⁵ The Fifth Circuit, in September 2022, affirmed the Confirmation Order and the terms of the Plan and its incorporated documents, including the CTA, in all respects other than striking certain exculpations. NexPoint Advisors, L.P. v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P. (In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P.), 48 F.4th 419 (5th Cir. 2022). As was the case when the court entered its Order Denying Leave to Bring Claims Pertaining to Claims Trading, “[i]t is undisputed that HMIT’s [and Dugaboy’s] Contingent Trust Interest[s] ha[ve] not vested under the terms of the Plan and the CTA, and the court does not have the power to equitably deem HMIT’s [and Dugaboy’s] Contingent Trust Interest[s] to be vested.”⁷⁶ The court did not have that power back in August 2023 (when it entered the Order Denying Leave to Bring Claims Pertaining to Claims Trading), and the court does not have that power now. Equitable relief is not available where, as here, the parties’ rights and obligations at issue are set forth in the Plan and the CTA. See In re Am. Home Mortg. Holdings, Inc., 386 Fed. Appx. 209, 212-13 (3d Cir. 2010) (affirming bankruptcy court’s denial of equitable relief to distributions under trust documents where, among other things, the trust documents controlled distribution of monthly payments, and the Trust Certificate “cannot be rewritten on equitable grounds,” and noting “[i]n interpreting the provisions of the Trust Documents, we apply Delaware law, which instructs that a party is bound by the plain meaning of clear and unequivocal contract terms.”).

⁷³ See, e.g., Plan, Art. I.B.44; CTA §§ 1.1(h), 5.1(c).

⁷⁵ HMIT did not file an objection to confirmation of the Plan and did not appeal the Confirmation Order. Dugaboy filed an objection to confirmation and appealed the Confirmation Order, but did not object to the terms of the CTA that limited oversight and information rights to “Claimant Trust Beneficiaries” and specifically excluded the holders of the unvested, contingent interests in the Claimant Trust – such as Plaintiffs – from having any rights under the CTA unless and until their interests vested. The CTA was filed prior to the confirmation hearing and Plaintiffs and other parties could have objected to the terms of the Plan or CTA; they could have complained then about any lack of transparency, oversight, and information rights they believe existed under the terms of the CTA. They did not.

Plaintiffs’ make an argument that an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing under Delaware law necessarily means that the terms of the CTA that govern the parties’ rights, here, including the information rights and rights to an accounting from the Claimant Trustee that Plaintiffs are seeking in Count I, can be overridden here. The court disagrees. Courts will not use the implied covenant of good faith to override the rights and responsibilities that were bargained for in a trust agreement. See IKB Int’l S.A. v. Wilmington Trust Co., 774 F. App’x 719, 727-28 (3d

⁷⁶ Order Denying Leave to Bring Claims Pertaining to Claims Trading, 78.

Cir. 2019)(citing Homan v. Turoczy, 2005 WL 2000756 (Del. Ch. Aug. 12, 2005)); see also Dunlap v. State Farm Fire and Cas. Co., 878 A.2d 434, 441 (Del. 2005) (“Existing contract terms control such that implied good faith cannot be used to circumvent the parties’ bargain or to create a free-floating duty unattached to the underlying legal document.”) (cleaned up); Gilbert v. El Paso Co., 575 A.2d 1131, 1143 (Del. 1990) (holding that the “subjective standards [of good faith and fair dealing] cannot override the literal terms of an agreement.”) (citation omitted). Because the terms of the CTA expressly address the Claimant Trustee’s duties to provide, and parties’ rights to receive, information and an accounting with respect to the Claimant Trust, and those duties do not inure to the benefit of the Plaintiffs, who are not Claimant Trust Beneficiaries, the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing cannot be used by the Plaintiffs or the court to compel the Claimant Trustee to disclose the information or provide the accounting as requested in Count I.

After considering the facts alleged in the Complaint, taken as true, and the facts and record of which the court has taken judicial notice, the court has determined that Plaintiffs cannot prove any set of facts that would entitle them to the relief they seek. Thus, dismissal of their claim for disclosure of additional information and for an accounting in Count I under Rule 12(b)(6) is proper.

2. Count II – Request for Declaratory Relief

In Count II of the Complaint, Plaintiffs seek a declaratory judgment and “determination from the Court of the relative value of the Claimant Trust assets compared to the bankruptcy estate obligations,” but this is only if “Defendants are compelled to provide information about the Claimant Trust assets” – in other words, this Count II request is conditioned on the court granting the equitable relief Plaintiffs seek in Count I.⁷⁷

⁷⁷ Complaint ¶¶ 89-92.

Defendants seek dismissal of Count II under Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Before the court can address Defendants’ Rule 12(b)(6) motion, the court must first determine whether the claim for declaratory relief in Count II is justiciable such that the court has constitutional jurisdiction – subject matter jurisdiction – to consider and rule on the merits of Plaintiffs’ claim.⁷⁸ As noted above,⁷⁹ Plaintiffs’ request for declaratory relief in Count II is clearly predicated on the court first granting the relief requested in Count I: ordering the Defendants to disclose information about the Claimant Trust assets and liabilities (beyond what is contained in the Pro Forma Balance Sheet) and to provide to Plaintiffs a detailed accounting of all transactions involving the Claimant Trust. The court has concluded that Plaintiffs are not entitled to the information and accounting they have requested in Count I and that Count I should, thus, be dismissed under Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Because Plaintiffs’ request for declaratory relief in Count II is predicated on the court granting the relief requested in Count I and the court has denied that relief, Count II has now been rendered moot or, at least, not ripe such that it is not justiciable. See American Precision Ammunition, L.L.C. v. City of Mineral Wells, 90 F.4th 820, 827 (2024) (where the Fifth Circuit affirmed the district court’s Rule 12(b)(1) dismissal of a claim to reinstate an agreement as moot, where plaintiff’s claim was predicated on a finding by the district court that the agreement was valid and ⁷⁸ Even though Defendants did not raise the issue of subject matter jurisdiction with respect to Count II, the court has an independent duty to assure itself that it has subject matter jurisdiction over a claim or cause of action before it addresses the merits of the claim under Rule 12(b)(6). See supra pp. 18-19; see also Abraugh v. Altimus, 26 F.4th 298, 304 (2022) (federal courts have a “constitutional duty . . . to decline subject matter jurisdiction where it does not exist—and that is so whether the parties challenge Article III standing or not.”).

⁷⁹ See supra note 26.

enforceable, and the Fifth Circuit agreed with the district court that the agreement was unenforceable).⁸⁰

In summary, the court has determined that Defendants’ request for declaratory relief in Count II is not justiciable and, as such, Count II must be dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(h)(3) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. Anything this court might conclude with respect to Defendants’ motion to dismiss Count II under Rule 12(b)(6) would be an impermissible advisory opinion, so the court will not address Defendants’ arguments that Count II should be dismissed for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.

3. Count III – Request for Declaratory Relief

In Count III of the Complaint, Plaintiffs seek a declaratory judgment and determination, “[i]n the event that the Court determines that the Claimant Trust assets exceed the obligations of the bankruptcy estate in an amount sufficient so that all Allowable Claims may be indefeasibly paid . . . that the conditions are such that their Contingent Claimant Trust Interests are likely to vest into Claimant Trust Interests, making them Claimant Trust Beneficiaries.”⁸¹

Defendants argue that the court should dismiss Count III under Rule 12(b)(1) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction on the basis that their request for declaratory relief in Count III is not justiciable because it is moot and otherwise seeks an impermissible advisory opinion. Defendants also argue that, if the court determines that it does have subject matter jurisdiction over Plaintiff’s claim for declaratory relief in Count III, Count III should be dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, including on the ground that Plaintiffs ⁸⁰ Although Defendants did not argue in their briefing that Count II was not justiciable and so must be dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(1) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, in so many words, Defendants did argue during oral argument that “Count II must . . . be dismissed because it depends on Highland being ‘compelled to provide information about the Claimant Trust assets.’ . . . So if the Court doesn’t compel Highland, the Court has no ability to make the declaration that’s sought.” Feb. 14, 2024 Hrg. Trans., 17:9-13.

⁸¹ Id. ¶¶ 93-95, at 27.

are collaterally estopped from asserting the claim for declaratory relief in Count III. The court agrees with Defendants that Count III is not justiciable and that Count III should be dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(1) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, and, thus, the court does not have jurisdiction to issue any pronouncement regarding the merits of Plaintiffs' claim for declaratory relief in Count III (and so it will not address Defendants' motion to dismiss pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) with respect to Count III).

Similar to Plaintiffs' request for declaratory relief in Count II, Plaintiffs' request for declaratory relief in Count III is a contingent request – this one being predicated on the court first granting the declaratory relief in Count II, which, itself, is predicated on the court granting the equitable relief requested in Count I. Because Counts I and II are being dismissed for failure to state a claim and lack of subject matter jurisdiction, respectively, Plaintiffs' claim for declaratory relief in Count III is, thus, rendered not justiciable. That Counts II and III fall, if Count I falls, is inherent in the way Plaintiffs framed their claims and causes of action in the Complaint. Because Plaintiffs are not entitled to the information and accounting they are requesting in Count I, Plaintiffs' claims for declaratory relief in Counts II and III are rendered moot and/or not ripe and, thus, not justiciable. Plaintiffs' request for a declaratory judgment in Count III is not ripe for adjudication for the additional reason that Plaintiffs are asking the court to issue an opinion based on a set of “hypothetical, conjectural, conditional” facts “or based upon the possibility of a factual situation that may never develop” – the “likely” vesting of Plaintiffs' contingent interests in the Claimant Trust, making them Claimant Trust Beneficiaries. This is something federal courts are not permitted to do, even in the context of a request for declaratory relief (as is the case here with Counts II and III).⁸² The court finds and concludes that Plaintiffs' claim for declaratory relief in Count III is not justiciable and thus must be dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(1) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction.

This being the case, the court, as it must, declines to address the merits of whether Count III should be dismissed under Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted (including based on Defendants' collateral estoppel argument).

Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED that Defendants' Motion to Dismiss Count I of the Complaint for lack of subject matter jurisdiction pursuant to Rule 12(b)(1), be, and hereby is, DENIED;

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Plaintiffs have failed to state a claim upon which relief can be granted in Count I of the Complaint, and thus Count I of the Complaint is DISMISSED pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6);

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Count II of the Complaint is not justiciable and that, pursuant to Rule 12(b)(1) and Rule 12(h)(3), Count II of the Complaint is DISMISSED for lack of subject matter jurisdiction;

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Count III of the Complaint is not justiciable and that, pursuant to Rule 12(b)(1), Count III of the Complaint is DISMISSED for lack of subject matter jurisdiction.

HUNTER MOUNTAIN INVESTMENT TRUST’S SUPPLEMENT TO RESPONSE TO MOTION TO STAY

Hunter Mountain Investment Trust submits the following Supplement to Response to Stay in anticipation of the status conference, currently scheduled for June 12, 2024.

On January 1, 2024, Hunter Mountain Investment Trust ("HMIT") filed its Motion for Leave to File a Delaware Complaint [Dkt. No. 4000] (the "Motion for Leave"). HMIT filed the Motion for Leave, seeking permission to file a complaint in Delaware asking the court to remove James Seery as Clamant Trustee as a result of his breach of his fiduciary duties.

HCMLP and the Highland Claimant Trust filed a motion ("Motion to Stay") asking the court to indefinitely stay all proceeding in connection with HMIT's Motion for Leave. On January 31, 2024, the court issued an Order Granting in Part Highland's Motion to Stay Contested Matter, in which the court stayed all proceedings until the court issued an order determining The Highland Parties' Motion to Dismiss Complaint to (I) Compel Disclosures About the Assets of the Highland Claimant Trust and (II) Determine (A) Relative Value of Those Assets, and (B) Nature of Plaintiffs' Interests in the Claimant Trust [Adv. Proc. 23-03038-sgj, Dkt. No. 13], and holds a status conference with the parties in connection with the Motion for Leave to consider whether to terminate or extend the stay.

On May 24, 2024, the court issued its opinion on the Motion to Dismiss Complaint and the court scheduled a status conference pursuant to the order for June 12, 2024.

HMIT is filing this supplement to bring additional cases to the court's attention that are relevant to the standing issue. Specifically, attached is Exhibit A is a true and correct copy of the opinion issued by the Delaware Supreme Court in Morris v. Spectra Energy Partners (DE) GP, LP, 246 A.3d 121, 136 (Del. 2021).

Morris demonstrates how the Delaware Supreme Court has held that a standing analysis should be more flexible when a defendant controls the facts giving rise to standing. By way of example, although standing to assert derivative claims in the context of mergers typically requires equity ownership, there are exceptions. One of these exceptions includes when “the merger itself is the subject to a fraud claim, perpetrated to deprive shareholders of their standing to bring or maintain a derivative action.” Morris, 246 A.3d at 129 (Del. 2021). Morris stands for the proposition that strict adherence to formulaic standing on a motion to dismiss must yield where the defendant's allegedly unfair conduct attempts to destroy standing.²

Similarly, HMIT also submits a true and correct copy of the following case: Shaev v. Wyly, 1998 WL 13858, at *4 (Del. Ch. Jan. 6, 1998) (equitable standing allowed to challenge excessive compensation of directors because “to deny standing on these facts would insulate defendants from potential liability for their alleged misdeeds”), as Exhibit B.

² HCMLP is familiar with each of these cases submitted here as they were cited in Appellant's Reply Brief, Hunter Mountain Investment Trust v. Highland Capital Management, L.P., et al., Case No. 3:23-cv-02071-E, Doc. No. 38. <https://www.kccllc.net/hcmlp/document/193405424040400000000001>

SPECTRA ENERGY PARTNERS (DE)

No. 489, 2019

Submitted: October 28, 2020

Decided: January 22, 2021

Synopsis

Background: Former minority unitholder of acquired master limited partnership brought class action against general partner, alleging that merger exchange ratio was unfair because general partner agreed to merger that did not reflect material value of his derivative claims. The Court of Chancery, Sam Glasscock, Vice Chancellor, 2019 WL 4751521, dismissed the action. Minority unitholder appealed.

Holdings: The Supreme Court, Seitz, C.J., held that:

[1] challenge to fairness of merger itself was preserved for appeal;

[2] arguments about materiality were preserved for appeal; and

[3] derivative claim was material at motion to dismiss stage.

Reversed and remanded.

Procedural Posture(s): On Appeal; Motion to Dismiss for Lack of Standing.

West Headnotes (18)

[1] Corporations and Business Organizations Effect of merger, acquisition, reorganization, or dissolution

Corporations and Business Organizations Fairness of transaction

With limited exceptions, a merger extinguishes an equity owner's standing to pursue a derivative claim against the target entity's directors or controller, but the same plaintiff has standing to pursue a post-closing suit if they challenge the validity of the merger itself as unfair because the controller failed to secure the value of a material asset, like derivative claims that pass to the acquirer in the merger.

[2] Corporations and Business Organizations Fairness of transaction

To establish standing to pursue a claim challenging a merger because the equity owners are not being fairly compensated for the value of material derivative claims, the plaintiff must allege a viable derivative claim, that is material to the overall transaction, and will not be pursued by the buyer and is not reflected in the merger consideration.

6 Cases that cite this headnote

[3] Appeal and Error Corporations and other organizations

De novo review applies to a Court of Chancery's finding that a plaintiff lacked standing to pursue his post-merger claims challenging the fairness of a merger consideration for failure to recoup some or all of the value of the derivative claims.

[4] Action Persons entitled to sue

Standing refers to the right of a party to invoke the jurisdiction of a court to enforce a claim or redress a grievance.

Constitutional Law 🔑 Advisory Opinions

Standing is required to ensure that the litigation before the tribunal is a “case or controversy” that is appropriate for the exercise of the court's judicial powers; it allows Delaware courts, as a matter of self-restraint, to avoid the rendering of advisory opinions at the behest of parties who are mere intermeddlers.

2 Cases that cite this headnote

[6] Action 🔑 Persons entitled to sue

Standing is properly a threshold question that a court may not avoid.

3 Cases that cite this headnote

[7] Action 🔑 Persons entitled to sue

If a plaintiff alleges a direct claim, it means that the equity owner has alleged that they have suffered the injury, and will receive the benefit of any recovery; thus, at least at the pleading stage, the plaintiff has met the injury-in-fact requirement and properly invoked the court's jurisdiction to redress an injury.

[8] Corporations and Business
Organizations 🔑 Derivative action as distinct from direct or individual action in general

For a derivative action, the equity owner acts in a representative capacity on behalf of an entity; in that representative capacity, the plaintiff steps into the shoes of the entity and asserts the injury on its behalf.

1 Case that cites this headnote

[9] Corporations and Business
Organizations 🔑 Effect of merger, acquisition, reorganization, or dissolution

An equity owner does not have standing to pursue derivative claims post-merger except when the merger itself is the subject to a fraud claim, perpetrated to deprive shareholders of their standing to bring or maintain a derivative action, and when the merger is essentially a reorganization that does not affect the equity owner's relative ownership in the post-merger enterprise.

1 Case that cites this headnote

[10] Corporations and Business
Organizations 🔑 Fairness of transaction

Corporations and Business
Organizations 🔑 Good faith and fiduciary duties

To state a direct claim with respect to a merger, a stockholder must challenge the validity of the merger itself, usually by charging the directors with breaches of fiduciary duty resulting in unfair dealing or unfair price.

2 Cases that cite this headnote

[11] Corporations and Business
Organizations 🔑 Purchase or Sale of Stock to or from Director, Officer, or Agent

A cause of action for misuse of confidential corporate information, requires a plaintiff to demonstrate that: (1) the corporate fiduciary possessed material, nonpublic company information, and (2) the corporate fiduciary used that information improperly by making trades because she was motivated, in whole or in part, by the substance of that information.

[12] Appeal and Error 🔑 Nature or Subject-Matter of Issues or Questions

Challenge to fairness of merger itself was preserved for appeal by former minority unitholder of acquired master limited partnership, in action against general partner, where minority unitholder alleged that former public unitholders were harmed because general partner allowed acquiring business to engineer “roll up” of minority-held units involving merger between limited partnership and acquiring business on terms that were patently unfair and unreasonable to limited partnership and its public unitholders, and that could not have been approved in good faith by new conflicts committee or general partner's board.

[13] Appeal and Error 🔑 Nature or subject-matter in general

Arguments about materiality were preserved for appeal of dismissal of class action that had been brought by former minority unitholder of acquired master limited partnership alleging that merger exchange ratio was unfair because general partner agreed to merger that did not reflect material value of his derivative claims, since general partner disputed how court should consider litigation risk when assessing materiality by arguing that minority unitholder's chance of prevailing on derivative claims was "toss-up" or "one-in-five" chance.

[14] Partnership 🔑 Persons entitled to sue; standing

Derivative claim was material at motion to dismiss stage, and therefore former minority unitholder of acquired master limited partnership had standing to bring class action alleging that merger exchange ratio was unfair because general partner agreed to merger that did not reflect material value of his derivative claims; even if it was proper to discount $660 million in damages alleged in complaint to reflect public unitholders' interest in derivative recovery, $112 million pro rata interest in derivative claim recovery was comparable to public unitholders' 17 percent proportional interest in merger consideration that was valued at $3.3 billion, i.e., $112 million had to be compared to $561 million.

[15] Corporations and Business Organizations 🔑 Fairness of transaction

When the court is faced with a post-merger claim challenging the fairness of a merger based on the defendant's failure to secure value for derivative claims, (1) a court must decide whether the underlying derivative claims were viable; (2)

the derivative claim recovery as pled must be material in relation to the merger consideration, and (3) the court should assess whether the complaint alleges that the acquirer would not assert the underlying derivative claim and did not provide value for it.

12 Cases that cite this headnote

[16] Pretrial Procedure 🔑 Parties, Defects as to Pretrial Procedure 🔑 Construction of pleadings

When assessing standing at the motion to dismiss stage of the proceedings, a court must accept the plaintiff's factual allegations as true and draw all reasonable inferences in his favor; this does not mean that the court is bound by unreasonable, unsupported, or speculative derivative suit damages claims, but if it is reasonably conceivable that the plaintiff could recover the damages claimed in the complaint, the court must accept that allegation as true for purposes of the motion to dismiss for lack of standing.

[17] Corporations and Business Organizations 🔑 Fairness of transaction

If the plaintiff has alleged a viable derivative claim, where it is reasonably conceivable that the claim is material when compared to the merger consideration and could result in the damages pled in the complaint challenging the merger on fairness grounds, the plaintiff has satisfied the materiality requirement at the motion to dismiss stage for standing purposes; a percentage-based risk reduction should not be applied at the pleading stage of the proceedings.

2 Cases that cite this headnote

[18] Action 🔑 Persons entitled to sue

Standing is concerned only with the question of who is entitled to mount a legal challenge and not with the merits of the subject matter in controversy.

[1] With limited exceptions, a merger extinguishes an equity owner's standing to pursue a derivative claim against the target entity's directors or controller. But the same plaintiff has standing to pursue a post-closing suit if they challenge the validity of the merger itself as unfair because the controller failed to secure the value of a material asset—like derivative claims that pass to the acquirer in the merger. Given the difficulties of pursuing such claims, not the least of which is proof that the equity owner received an unfair merger price for their ownership interest, the plaintiff might not prevail on the merits, but they have sufficiently alleged a direct claim to survive a motion to dismiss for lack of standing.

After a $3.3 billion “roll up” of minority-held units involving a merger between Enbridge, Inc. (“Enbridge”) and Spectra Energy Partners L.P. (“SEP”), Paul Morris, a former SEP minority unitholder, lost standing to litigate an alleged $661 million derivative suit on behalf of SEP against its general partner, Spectra Energy Partners (DE) GP, LP (“SEP GP”). Morris reprised the derivative claim dismissal by filing a new class action complaint that alleged the Enbridge/SEP merger exchange ratio was unfair because SEP GP agreed to a merger *125 that did not reflect the material value of his derivative claims.

The Court of Chancery granted SEP GP's motion to dismiss the new complaint for lack of standing. The court held that, to have standing to bring a post-merger claim, Morris had to allege a viable and material derivative claim that the buyer would not assert and provided no value for in the merger. Focusing on the materiality requirement, the court first discounted the $661 million recovery to $112 million to reflect the public unitholders' beneficial interest in the derivative litigation recovery. Then, the court discounted the $112 million further to $28 million to reflect what the court estimated was a one in four chance of success in the litigation. After the discounting, the $28 million—less than 1% of the merger consideration—was immaterial to a $3.3 billion merger.

On appeal, Morris argues that the court should not have dismissed the plaintiff's direct claims for lack of standing. We agree with Morris and find that, on a motion to dismiss for lack of standing, he has sufficiently pled a direct claim attacking the fairness of the merger itself for SEP GP's failure to secure value for his pending derivative claims. Thus, we reverse the Court of Chancery's judgment and remand for further proceedings.

I.

The plaintiff, Paul Morris, owned common units of SEP, a master limited partnership that traded on the New York Stock Exchange.¹ Enbridge owned 83% of SEP's outstanding units through a series of wholly-owned subsidiaries, including SEP GP.² Spectra Energy Corp (“SE Corp”) was Enbridge's predecessor-in-interest.

Prior to selling to Enbridge, SE Corp agreed to a 50-50 joint venture with Phillips 66 whereby Phillips would contribute

$1.5 billion and SE Corp would contribute a one-third interest in two long haul natural gas pipelines, implying a $1.5 billion valuation of the contributed assets. Because SEP owned the assets, the parties proposed a “reverse dropdown” to sell the assets from SEP to SE Corp. To purchase the assets from SEP, SE Corp offered to “(i) surrender 20 million SEP limited partner units to SEP for redemption ... and (ii) waive its right to receive up to $4 million in incentive distribution rights [] for twelve consecutive quarters ...”³ SEP GP authorized a conflicts committee to evaluate the reverse dropdown.

SEP's limited partnership agreement required the general partner's conflicts committee to act in “subjective good faith.”⁴ According to the complaint's allegations, a financial advisor identified three ways the transaction would provide value to SEP: the redeemed units, the waived distribution rights, and other reduced cash flow due to the loss of assets. Later, however, the adviser included only the first two components as consideration—valued at $946 million—and issued a fairness opinion. The conflicts committee recommended approval, and SEP GP's board approved the reverse dropdown.

After reviewing SEP's books and records, the plaintiff filed a class action derivative 126 complaint on behalf of all owners of SEP public units against SEP GP and SE Corp. The complaint alleged that SEP only received $946 million in the reverse dropdown when SE Corp valued the assets at $1.5 billion. Morris pleaded three derivative claims, including a claim for breach of the limited partnership agreement's “good faith” obligation in approving the reverse dropdown.⁵ The court dismissed two of the claims for failure to state a claim, but declined to dismiss the breach of the “good faith” obligation claim. The court found, after drawing all reasonable inferences in Morris's favor, that the complaint “made adequate allegations showing that under reasonably conceivable circumstances a facially unreasonable gap in consideration exists sufficient to infer subjective bad faith.”⁶ According to the court, “it was ‘reasonably conceivable that the General Partner acted in subjective bad faith.’ ”⁷ The parties conducted discovery and SEP GP moved for summary judgment. During the litigation, and with the motion summary judgment pending, Enbridge acquired SE Corp in a stock-for-stock merger, becoming SEP GP's ultimate parent and controller of SEP.

In March 2018, SEP's stock price declined by twenty percent in reaction to announcements from the Federal Energy

Regulatory Commission (“FERC”). SEP recognized in its filings with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission that “[t]he change in FERC's policy has had a negative impact on the MLP sector” and that SEP “would attempt to mitigate the impact of the policy change.”⁸ In May, Enbridge offered a stock-for-stock exchange to buyout SEP's public unitholders. SEP's public unitholders would receive 1.0123 common shares of Enbridge in exchange for each publicly held common unit of SEP based on the SEP common units' and Enbridge common shares' closing price on the NYSE as of May 16, 2018. SEP closed at a unit price of $33.10 and Enbridge common shares closed at $32.70. According to the plaintiff, this was an opportunistic offer to squeeze out the public unitholders due to an artificially depressed trading price. Another three-member SEP GP conflicts committee went to work, two of whom were on the committee that reviewed the reverse dropdown transaction.

Morris's counsel sent a letter to the conflicts committee and told them that the derivative claim was worth more than $500 million and must be taken into account when negotiating the merger exchange ratio. Counsel also noted that the proposed offer was “woefully inadequate” and “fail[ed] to provide SEP and its public unitholders with any value associated with” the derivative claim.⁹ After Morris's counsel met with the conflicts committee's legal and financial advisors, the conflicts committee ultimately determined that the value of the derivative claim, net of defense costs, “was less than $0.”¹⁰ The conflicts 127 committee also found the value of the reverse dropdown to SEP to be about $1.5 billion after adding back the reduced distributions its advisor previously excluded.

As the parties negotiated the buyout, the conflicts committee decided to give no value to the derivative claim but attributed $4 million in saved litigation costs. They also agreed to an exchange ratio “whereby Enbridge would acquire all publicly held SEP units at an exchange ratio of 1.111 shares of Enbridge stock for each publicly held unit of SEP.”¹¹ On August 24, 2018, SEP announced a definitive merger agreement with Enbridge and its wholly-owned subsidiaries where Enbridge would acquire all publicly held SEP units at an exchange ratio of 1.111 shares of Enbridge stock for each publicly held unit of SEP. The transaction was not subject to approval by a majority of the minority unitholders. The transaction was approved on December 13, 2018. At that time, Enbridge affiliates held about 83% of the outstanding units. About 39% of publicly held units voted in favor of the transaction. After the deal closed, the court dismissed the derivative claim by stipulation of the parties.¹²

After another books and records request, Morris filed this class action on February 8, 2019 against SEP GP, as SEP's general partner, for breaching SEP's limited partnership agreement and the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. Morris claimed that the conflicts committee and SEP GP's board of directors failed to attribute appropriate value to the pre-merger derivative claim or secure any value for the claim. SEP GP moved to dismiss for lack of standing and failure to state a claim.

[2] The Court of Chancery dismissed Morris's complaint for lack of standing without reaching the arguments for failure to state a claim. The court applied the three-part test from its decision in In re Primedia, Inc. Shareholders Litigation.¹³ The Primedia test applies to claims challenging a merger because the equity owners are not being fairly compensated for the value of material derivative claims. To establish standing the plaintiff must allege a viable derivative claim, that is material to the overall transaction, and will not be pursued by the buyer and is not reflected in the merger consideration.¹⁴

The court found Morris's derivative claim viable because it had already survived a motion to dismiss.¹⁵ Also, the parties did not dispute that SEP's public unitholders received no value for the derivative claim, Enbridge did not intend to pursue the derivative claims post-merger, and Morris pled damages of $661 million. But the court dismissed Morris's two direct claims. First, the court discounted the $661 potential recovery to $112 million to reflect the public unitholders' proportionate share of the litigation recovery. And second, the court discounted the $112 million further to about $28 million to reflect a one-in-four chance of prevailing in the litigation. Finally, the court compared the $28 million to the $3.3 billion merger transaction and found it immaterial. Thus, the court granted SEP GP's motion to dismiss for lack of standing without reaching SEP GP's alternative *128 argument that Morris failed to state a claim for relief.

II.

On appeal the parties have focused their attention on the Court of Chancery's application of its Primedia decision to assess standing. To reiterate, under Primedia's three-part test, which applies to claims alleging an unfair merger because the price does not reflect the value of derivative claims, the plaintiff must allege a viable derivative claim assessed by a motion to dismiss standard.¹⁶ The plaintiff must also allege that the derivative claim was material to the overall merger transaction, will not be pursued by the buyer, and is not reflected in the merger consideration.¹⁷

According to Morris, the Court of Chancery should not have dismissed his complaint for lack of standing because he pled in detail a direct claim that satisfied the Primedia factors. The parties and the court agreed that the derivative claim was viable because it had survived a motion to dismiss. They also agreed that Enbridge would not assert the claim and provided no value for the claim in the exchange ratio. And, as Morris alleged, the $112 million potential recovery was material to the $3.3 billion transaction. According to Morris, if the Court of Chancery had accepted his well-pleaded factual allegations as true and drawn all reasonable inferences in his favor, it would not have discounted the potential value of the claim such that it became immaterial to the merger value.

The defendants counter that Morris supposedly did not challenge the fairness of the exchange ratio, undermining the claim that SEP GP did not negotiate fair consideration for the public unitholders' SEP units. For the litigation discount issue, the defendants contend that Morris conceded in the Court of Chancery that the derivative claim should be discounted for litigation risk. The defendants also argue that discounting for litigation risk is consistent with prior cases.¹⁸ And, according to the defendants, the "fraud exception to the continuous ownership rule" is the proper method to assess the plaintiff's standing to assert post-merger claims.¹⁹

[3] We review de novo the Court of Chancery's finding that the plaintiff lacked standing to pursue his post-merger claims challenging the fairness of the merger consideration for failure to recoup some or all of the value of the derivative claims.²⁰

[4] [5] [6] The Court of Chancery dismissed Morris's complaint for lack of standing. Standing "refers to the right of a party to invoke the jurisdiction of a court to enforce a claim or redress a grievance.”²¹ Standing *129 is required to “ensure that the litigation before the tribunal is a ‘case or controversy’ that is appropriate for the exercise of the court’s judicial powers.”²² It allows Delaware courts, “as a matter of self-restraint,” to “avoid the rendering of advisory opinions at the behest of parties who are mere intermeddlers.”²³ “[S]tanding is properly a threshold question that the Court may not avoid.”²⁴

[7] The standing inquiry “has assumed special significance in the area of corporate law.”²⁵ Classifying a claim as either direct or derivative bears directly on standing and is in many ways outcome-determinative in post-merger litigation.²⁶ If a plaintiff alleges a direct claim, it means that the equity owner has alleged that they have suffered the injury, and will receive the benefit of any recovery.²⁷ Thus, at least at the pleading stage, the plaintiff has met the injury-in-fact requirement and properly invoked the court’s jurisdiction to redress an injury.

[8] [9] In contrast, for a derivative action, the equity owner acts in a representative capacity on behalf of an entity. In that representative capacity, the plaintiff steps into the shoes of the entity and asserts the injury on its behalf.²⁸ If the equity holder has successfully jumped over 8 Del. C. § 327 of the Delaware General Corporation Law, Court of Chancery Rule 23.1, and our decisional law hurdles, standing exists to pursue a derivative claim on behalf of the entity.²⁹ But, under  Lewis v. Anderson,³⁰ the equity owner no longer has standing to pursue derivative claims post-merger except in two instances—when the merger itself is the subject to a fraud claim, perpetrated to deprive shareholders of their standing to bring or maintain a derivative action; and when the merger is essentially a reorganization that does not affect the equity owner’s relative ownership in the post-merger enterprise.³¹

The Supreme Court and the Court of Chancery are frequently called upon to *130 draw the dividing line between direct and derivative claims following a merger. Our recent decision in  *El Paso Pipeline GP Co., L.L.C. v. Brinckerhoff*³² is particularly relevant here, as it addressed standing following a merger in the context of a master limited partnership. In  El Paso, the plaintiff filed derivative claims on behalf of the limited partnership against the general partner claiming that the limited partnership substantially overpaid for the assets in a transaction. While the derivative suits were pending, the limited partnership was acquired in a merger. Although the Court of Chancery recognized that a merger typically results in the plaintiff losing standing to pursue pending derivative claims, it characterized the plaintiff’s claims as both direct and derivative, circumventing the post-merger standing impediment. The court also held that, even if the plaintiff’s claims were purely derivative, they survived the merger because dismissal would leave the minority equity owners without a remedy for the general partner’s unfair dealing.

On appeal, this Court reversed. First, we noted that standing in corporate cases is a threshold inquiry because it implicates the exercise of the court’s jurisdiction.³³ We observed that derivative standing is a “creature of equity” that allows a court of equity to hear claims by equity owners “to prevent a complete failure of justice on behalf of the corporation.”³⁴ We also viewed standing as a fluid concept, that can change as a result of “a myriad of subsequent legal or factual causes that occur while the litigation is in progress” such as the loss of the plaintiff’s status as an equity holder.³⁵ If standing is lost, “the court lacks the power to adjudicate the matter, and the action will be dismissed as moot unless an exception applies.”³⁶

Second, we held that the plaintiff brought his claims as derivative claims, and his claims remained derivative claims throughout the litigation. Even though the plaintiff’s derivative claims involved a limited partnership, where most rights are governed by agreement rather than fiduciary duties, our Court held that  Tooley v. Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette, Inc.,³⁷ and its two-part test for drawing a line between direct and derivative claims, applied.³⁸ Under  Tooley, the court must answer *131 two questions: “[w]ho suffered the alleged harm—the corporation or the suing stockholder individually,” and “who would receive the benefit of the recovery or other remedy?”³⁹ In  El Paso, we found under  Tooley that the limited partnership suffered the harm and would benefit from any recovery. Thus, the plaintiff’s claims were purely derivative, and under  Lewis v. Anderson the derivative claims passed to the buyer following the merger. The plaintiff no longer had standing to pursue the derivative claims.

Finally, and directly relevant to this appeal, we recognized in El Paso that, even though the plaintiff lost standing to pursue derivative claims post-merger, a narrow avenue of relief was still available to the plaintiff—a direct claim challenging the validity of the merger when the general partner failed to secure the value of material derivative claims in the merger for the minority equity owners:

Under our law, equity holders confronted by a merger in which derivative claims will pass to the buyer have the right to challenge the merger itself as a breach of the duties they are owed. In many cases, it might be difficult to allege that the value they are receiving in the merger is unfair simply as a result of the failure to consider value associated with their derivative suit. But that reality may also suggest that, even according full value to the potential recovery in the derivative suit (rarely a guarantee), the plaintiffs still received fair value in the merger. ... The derivative plaintiff's recourse was to file a money damages challenge to the merger and prove that the failure to accord value to the limited partnership in the merger was somehow violative of his rights.⁴⁰

In reaching this conclusion, we relied on our decision in *Parnes v. Bally Entertainment Corp.*⁴¹ In Parnes, the plaintiff alleged that in negotiations between Bally Entertainment Corp. and Hilton Hotels Corp., the CEO's actions—requiring a bribe of “several substantial cash payments and asset transfers” before consenting to a merger—resulted in the stockholders receiving an unfair price.⁴² After the merger closed, the Court of Chancery found the claim derivative and dismissed the complaint for lack of standing. We reversed, finding that the complaint “directly challenges the fairness of the process and the price in the Bally/Hilton merger.”⁴³

We distinguished the direct claim attacking the merger itself from the derivative claim in Kramer v. Western Pacific Industries.⁴⁴ In Kramer, the plaintiff alleged “wrongful transactions associated with the merger (such as the award of golden parachutes) [that] reduced the amount paid to [the target's] stockholders,” but “did not allege that the merger *132 price was unfair or that the merger was obtained through unfair dealing.”⁴⁵ Our Court held that the complaint stated only a derivative claim for mismanagement.⁴⁶ Although the plaintiff alleged that wrongful transactions associated with the merger reduced the amount paid to the target's stockholders, “it did not allege that the merger price was unfair or that the merger was obtained through unfair dealing.”⁴⁷ That “such a claim is asserted in the context of a merger does not change its fundamental nature.”⁴⁸

[10] Thus, in Kramer what the plaintiff failed to plead was a challenge to the merger itself rather than attack the side benefits secured by some merger participants. After Parnes, “to state a direct claim with respect to a merger, a stockholder must challenge the validity of the merger itself, usually by charging the directors with breaches of fiduciary duty resulting in unfair dealing and/or unfair price.”⁴⁹ Finally, in Parnes we separated the standing inquiry from whether the complaint states a claim for relief.⁵⁰ After reversing the court on standing, we also reversed the court's conclusion that the complaint failed to state a claim under Rule 12(b)(6) because the complaint alleged sufficient facts of unfairness to overcome business judgment rule review.⁵¹

As noted in Parnes, “it is often difficult to determine whether a stockholder is challenging the merger itself, or alleged wrongs associated with the merger”⁵² After Parnes, the Court of Chancery was left to fill in the details. It was not an easy assignment. In Golaine v. Edwards,⁵³ the plaintiff challenged a $20 million payment to Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co., L.P. (“KKR”) made in connection with a merger between The Gillette Company and Duracell International, Inc. KKR's affiliate, KKR Associates, L.P., owned 34% of Duracell's outstanding common stock. The defendants filed a motion to dismiss and claimed that Golaine's challenge to the $20 million payment was a derivative rather than direct claim because the plaintiff failed to allege that the merger terms were tainted by the $20 million fee. In granting the defendants' motion to dismiss, the court concluded that the fee did not taint the merger negotiation process or the merger terms. Thus, the transaction was not unfair to Duracell's non-KKR stockholders, and the plaintiff failed to state an individual claim. It also held that the complaint failed to plead facts rebutting the business judgment rule's presumptive applicability to the Duracell board's decision to award KKR the fees or plead facts to support a waste claim.

*133 In applying Parnes, the court in Golaine focused less on standing and more on the merits of a post-merger direct claim, and remarked about how the two inquiries overlap at times:

the derivative-individual distinction as articulated in Parnes is revealed as primarily a way of judging whether a plaintiff has stated a claim on the merits. ... Parnes can be straightforwardly read as stating the following basic proposition: a target company stockholder cannot state a claim for breach of fiduciary duty in the merger context unless he adequately pleads that the merger terms were tainted by unfair dealing. If the plaintiff cannot meet that pleading standard, then he has simply not stated a claim under Rule 12(b)(6). This merits focus of Parnes is, in my view, a more candid approach that places primary emphasis on whether compensable injury to the target stockholders is alleged rather than on whether the target stockholder's complaint has articulated only a waste or mismanagement claim for which there is likely no proper plaintiff on earth.⁵⁴

In In re Massey Energy Co. Derivative & Class Action Litigation,⁵⁵ stockholders of a coal mining corporation filed derivative suits against the board and company officers for lack of oversight and to hold them responsible for the financial harm from a tragic mine disaster. While the derivative suits progressed, Massey's board entered into a merger agreement with another mining company. The plaintiffs sought a preliminary injunction to prevent the merger from closing, claiming that the Massey Board should have negotiated to have the derivative claims transferred into a litigation trust for the benefit of Massey stockholders. According to the plaintiffs, the merger was unfair because it allowed the buyer to acquire Massey without paying fair value for the value of the derivative claims.

While the merger had not yet closed and the court viewed the case through a preliminary injunction lens, the court had to grapple with the value of derivative claims and the loss of standing to pursue them once the merger closed.⁵⁶

First, the court found the *Caremark*⁵⁷ claims against the defendants viable. Second, and fatal to the plaintiffs' preliminary injunction claim, the court found that a best-case successful recovery of $95 million was immaterial to an $8.5 billion merger. Thus, given the relative immateriality of the derivative claims, the court was not persuaded on a preliminary injunction record that the merger would likely be found to be economically unfair to the Massey stockholders for failing to capture the value of the derivative claims. Importantly, the court did not couch its ruling on standing grounds. Instead, *134 the court found that the plaintiff had failed to demonstrate a likelihood of success on the merits to earn a preliminary injunction enjoining the merger.

[11] After Golaine and Massey, the Court of Chancery in Primedia gathered the strands of these and other post-Parnes cases and knitted them together into a three-part test. In Primedia, the plaintiffs filed a derivative action on Primedia Inc.'s behalf and alleged that KKR traded on inside information in a 2002 preferred stock purchase. They sought disgorgement of KKR's profits under *Brophy v. Cities Service Co.*⁵⁸ While they litigated the derivative case, Primedia, Inc. merged with a private equity entity. The plaintiffs then filed a class action suit and alleged that the merger terms were unfair because the Primedia directors failed to obtain any value for the Brophy claim. They also argued that the merger conferred a special benefit on KKR because KKR knew any acquirer was unlikely to pursue the Brophy claim post-merger. The special benefit, according to the plaintiffs, required court review of the merger under entire fairness.

Recognizing that the post-merger class action complaint required application of the  Parnes decision, on a motion to dismiss the Court of Chancery read  Parnes to require first an inquiry into standing, and second, an evaluation of the merits of the claims.⁵⁹ Drawing from the court's  Golaine and  Massey decisions, the court distilled the standing inquiry into a three-part test:

A plaintiff claiming standing to challenge a merger directly under  Parnes because of a board's alleged failure to obtain value for an underlying derivative claim must meet a three part test. First, the plaintiff must plead an underlying derivative claim that has survived a motion to dismiss or otherwise could state a claim on which relief could be granted. Second, the value of the derivative claim must be material in the context of the merger. Third, the complaint challenging the merger must support a pleadings-stage inference that the acquirer would not assert the underlying derivative claim and did not provide value for it.⁶⁰

The Court of Chancery found the  Brophy derivative claim viable because it *135 would survive a motion to dismiss. For the materiality requirement, the court found potential recoverable damages of $190 million plus substantial prejudgment interest, which was material when compared to the $330 million merger. The court also noted that the amounts were material even if discounted to reflect the minority stockholders' beneficial interest in the litigation recovery. Primedia's minority stockholders owned 42% of its outstanding stock. Their pro rata share of the merger consideration was $133 million. Their pro rata share of a $190 million recovery on the  Brophy claim would be $80 million.

In a parting comment illustrating the materiality of the derivative claims, the court risk-adjusted the potential recovery and found it material in relation to the proceeds the minority would receive in the merger:

Clearly there is risk in the litigation, and to succeed, plaintiffs will have to prove materiality and scienter. These challenges, however, are not similar to those that led Chancellor Strine in  Massey Energy to discount so heavily the value of the derivative claims. If I assume prevailing on the Brophy claim was a toss-up, or even a 1-in-5 proposition, the risk-adjusted, pre-interest recoveries for the minority of $40 million and $16 million, respectively, remain material when compared to their $133 million share of the proceeds from the Merger.⁶¹

After finding that the derivative claims were viable and material, the court also found that the acquirer would not assert the  Brophy claim post-merger and provided no value for it in the merger consideration. Turning to whether the plaintiffs stated a claim for relief, the court held that it was reasonably conceivable that KKR received a special benefit in the merger because no acquirer likely would have pursued the  Brophy claim post-merger, and the defendants did not extract value for or take steps to preserve the  Brophy claim. Thus, the entire fairness standard of review applied to the merger, and the plaintiffs alleged sufficient grounds that the merger was not entirely fair.⁶²

[12] [13] In this appeal the procedural issues do not warrant lengthy discussion. After a review of the record, we are satisfied that Morris preserved for appeal a challenge to the fairness of the merger itself, and SEP GP disputed how the court should consider litigation risk when assessing materiality. Morris alleged that former public unitholders were harmed because “SEP GP has allowed Enbridge to engineer the Roll-Up Transaction on terms that were patently unfair and unreasonable to SEP and its public unitholders, and that could not have been approved in good faith by the New Conflicts Committee or the SEP GP Board.”⁶³ Specifically, Morris pled that “the New Conflicts Committee and the SEP GP Board utterly failed to attempt to (i) appropriately value the Derivative Claim, or (ii) secure any value for the Derivative Claim in its negotiations concerning the Roll-Up Transaction.”⁶⁴ SEP GP also argued that Morris's chance *136 of prevailing on the derivative claims was a “toss-up” or a “one-in-five” chance, essentially copying the odds from the  Primedia decision.⁶⁵ Thus, the parties preserved their appellate arguments about materiality.

[14] The main issue on appeal is whether the Court of Chancery stayed true to the standard of review on a motion to dismiss for lack of standing. In other words, did the court accept as true all reasonable factual allegations in the complaint and consider whether it was reasonably conceivable that Morris asserted a direct claim that could lead to a $661 million recovery on the derivative claims? After our review of the complaint, we find that the court strayed from the proper standard of review, and Morris had standing to pursue his post-merger complaint.

As discussed earlier, to have standing, the plaintiff must plead a direct claim. Under  Parnes, to plead a direct claim, the plaintiff must allege that the merger itself was unfair, “by charging the directors with breaches of fiduciary duty resulting in unfair dealing and/or unfair price.”⁶⁶ When the court is faced with a post-merger claim challenging the fairness of a merger based on the defendant's failure to secure value for derivative claims, we think that the  Primedia framework provides a reasonable basis to conduct a pleadings-based analysis to evaluate standing on a motion to dismiss.

[15] First, the court must decide whether the underlying derivative claims were viable, meaning they would survive a motion to dismiss. Meritless derivative claims would have no impact on the merger price. Second, the derivative claim recovery as pled must be material in relation to the merger consideration. An immaterial derivative claim would have little or no impact on the merger price. For example, a $10 million derivative claim could not reasonably be expected to be material to a $1 billion merger value. The same derivative claim would be material to a $20 million merger. And finally, the court should also assess whether the complaint alleges that the acquirer would not assert the underlying derivative claim and did not provide value for it.⁶⁷

[16] When assessing standing at the motion to dismiss stage of the proceedings, the court must accept the plaintiff's factual allegations as true and draw all reasonable inferences in his favor. This does not mean that the court is bound by unreasonable, unsupported, or speculative derivative suit damages claims. But if it is reasonably conceivable that the plaintiff could recover the damages claimed in the complaint, the court must accept that allegation as true for purposes of the motion to dismiss for lack of standing.

Here, the parties do not dispute the viability of the derivative claim. Morris's derivative claim survived a motion to dismiss.

*137 The parties also did not dispute that SEP GP secured no value for the derivative claim, and Enbridge would not assert the claim post-merger. Regarding materiality, Morris alleged that his derivative claim could lead to a more than $660 million damages award, including prejudgment interest, which was material when compared to a $3.3 billion merger.⁶⁸ The court could reasonably infer that if Morris prevailed on his challenge to the reverse dropdown transaction, Morris could recover at least $660 million.

The court, however, discounted the potential $660 million recovery to $112 million to reflect the minority unitholders' 17% beneficial interest in the derivative litigation recovery. The Court of Chancery then reduced the $112 million further to account for litigation risk because it was still “a litigable question whether Reduced GP Cash Flow represented value to the Partnership in the Reverse Dropdown, which would vindicate the Defendant's approval of the transaction objectively.”⁶⁹ The court also held that even if SEP GP's valuation was incorrect, it would not breach the limited partnership agreement because Morris would still have to prove “the work of the Defendant's advisor, Simmons, on the Reverse Dropdown did not fit in the parameters of Section 7.10(b) of the Second A & R LPA.”⁷⁰ The court observed that Morris would have to demonstrate that “SEP GP did not ‘reasonably believe’ that the valuation of the transaction was within Simmons' competence, negating any ‘safe harbor’ for the Defendant.”⁷¹ Finally, Morris would also “have to demonstrate the Defendant's subjective bad faith to recover damages on behalf of SEP ...”⁷² Taking these difficulties into account, the court concluded:

I find that the chance of success of the Derivative Claim was slim, and certainly less than one-in-four. Twenty-five percent of $112,370,000 is $28,092,500. This represents less than one percent of the total value of the Roll-Up. One percent is not material in the context of the Roll-Up. The Plaintiff consequently does not have standing to pursue his claims.⁷³

We see two errors in the court's materiality analysis at the motion to dismiss stage of the proceedings. First, as discussed earlier, the court must accept Morris's factual allegations as true and draw all reasonable inferences in his favor.⁷⁴ In its prior decision the court found that Morris's complaint "made adequate allegations showing that under reasonably conceivable circumstances a facially unreasonable gap in consideration exists sufficient to infer subjective bad faith."⁷⁵ Thus, "it was 'reasonably conceivable that the General Partner acted in subjective bad faith.'"⁷⁶ It was *138 also reasonably conceivable that, had Morris succeeded in the derivative suit challenging the reverse drop down transaction, the recovery could have been at least $660 million. Applying a further litigation risk discount at the pleading stage was inconsistent with the court's standard of review on a motion to dismiss for lack of standing.

Second, even if it was proper to discount the $660 million in damages alleged in the complaint to reflect the public unitholders' interest in the derivative recovery, to maintain equivalence, the court should have compared the $112 million pro rata interest in the derivative claim recovery to the public unitholders' proportional interest in the merger consideration. The public unitholders had a 17% interest in SEP. The merger consideration was valued at $3.3 billion. An apples-to-apples comparison would have compared $112 million to $561 million.⁷⁷ Under this calculation, the derivative claim was material at the motion to dismiss stage.

Neither Massey nor Primedia require a different result. As discussed earlier, in Massey the plaintiffs alleged in their complaint Caremark damages equal to the damages that the company suffered from the mining disaster—estimated to be $900 million to $1.4 billion. Even though the plaintiffs pled a viable Caremark claim, the court refused to equate the value of the Caremark claim with the damages suffered from the mine explosion. Unlike here, where Morris is entitled to certain presumptions in his favor, the court made its assessment as part of a preliminary injunction motion, where likelihood of success is one of the requirements. The court properly took into consideration the substantive difficulties confronting the plaintiff in proving and collecting on their Caremark claims. On an extensive record before the court, it predicted that the best-case recovery was $95 million, based not on the full damages caused the company by the mine disaster but on the policy limits for directors' and officers' insurance coverage. The plaintiff did not show a likelihood that it would succeed on its challenge to the fairness of the merger for failing to secure value for a $95 million derivative claim recovery as part of a $8.5 billion merger.⁷⁸ Importantly, the court did not apply a percentage reduction based on litigation risk. Instead, on a substantial record, the court gave the plaintiffs the benefit of their realistic, best-case recovery.

Primedia is also distinguishable. The court in Primedia found that the plaintiffs' Brophy claim was material and did not face the same impediments to recovery as the plaintiffs faced in Massey. It was only after the court found that the plaintiffs had a strong and material derivative case that the court concluded its analysis with what can be best characterized as confirmation of its materiality conclusion.

The court stated that even if the Brophy claim "was a toss-up, or even a 1-in-5 proposition, the risk-adjusted, pre-interest recoveries for the minority of $40 million and $16 million, respectively, remain material when compared to their $133 million share of the proceeds from the Merger."⁷⁹ As we interpret the court's percentage risk adjustment, *139 it served only as a hypothetical to illustrate the strength and materiality of the plaintiffs' claims even if there were obstacles to recovery.

[17] In any event, on a motion to dismiss for lack of standing, we are not addressing the likelihood of success on a preliminary injunction record. A percentage-based risk reduction should not be applied at this stage of the proceedings. If the plaintiff has alleged a viable derivative claim, where it is reasonably conceivable that the claim is material when compared to the merger consideration and could result in the damages pled in the complaint, the plaintiff has satisfied the materiality requirement at the motion to dismiss stage for standing purposes. Morris has met this standard and his claims should not be dismissed for lack of standing.

III.

[18] Standing is concerned “only with the question of who is entitled to mount a legal challenge and not with the merits of the subject matter in controversy.”⁸⁰ If the court finds that the plaintiff has standing, on the defendant's motion the court should also consider a motion to dismiss for failure to state

a claim. For the first time on appeal, SEP GP has asked us to consider its motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim. Because the record is complex and it is not clear what has been incorporated by reference, we think that the Court of Chancery should consider the motion first. It also might be a better use of the court's scarce resources to consider a motion for summary judgment, after the completion of discovery, rather than a motion to dismiss. But we leave it to the Court of Chancery's discretion. We reverse the Court of Chancery's judgment and remand for further proceedings. Jurisdiction is not retained.

*1 On defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment, I find that where plaintiff: (1) currently owns shares in two independent corporations that used to stand in a parent/wholly-owned subsidiary relationship and (2) once had legal standing as a shareholder of the parent to bring a double derivative action on behalf of the former subsidiary for its directors' alleged breach of fiduciary duty but (3) lost that legal standing when the parent "spun-off" the subsidiary, plaintiff nonetheless has equitable standing to bring a derivative action on behalf of the former subsidiary to recover for the alleged breach of fiduciary duty, even though the challenged actions occurred before plaintiff could have owned shares in the subsidiary.

Facts

Plaintiff, David B. Shaev, brings this derivative action on behalf of Sterling Commerce, Inc. ("Commerce"). Commerce was formed in December of 1995 as a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sterling Software, Inc. ("Software"). Plaintiff has owned shares of Software for several years, but he first became a shareholder of Commerce on September 30, 1996, as the result of a spin-off in which he received shares of Commerce as a dividend.

On February 12, 1996, several months before the spin-off, Commerce's directors, Sam Wyly, Charles J. Wyly, Evan A. Wyly, Sterling L. Williams, Warner C. Blow, Honor R. Hill and Robert E. Cook (collectively "defendants"),¹ granted themselves options on 9,000,000 shares of Commerce stock, exercisable at $24 per share.² Software's directors, at least four of whom were also directors of Commerce, approved the option plan on the same day. Software announced its approval of the option plan to its shareholders in a prospectus dated March 8, 1996. Software sold 18.4% of its Commerce shares in a public offering on March 13, 1996, and it divested itself of the remaining 81.6% in the spin-off.

Plaintiff alleges that the options, which may extract from Commerce between $139 million and $245 million, constitute excessive compensation to defendants. Plaintiff concedes that because he was a Software shareholder on March 8, 1996, he could have challenged the option plan at that time by filing a double derivative suit on Commerce's behalf. Once the Commerce spin-off was complete, and Software was no longer Commerce's parent, however, plaintiff lost his legal standing to bring a double derivative action on Commerce's behalf. Thus, on February 20, 1997, plaintiff filed suit derivatively on Commerce's behalf, alleging that defendants, "most of [whom] have two or three other full-time jobs ... as their primary occupations" and "cannot reasonably be expected to devote full time attention and service to the business of Commerce,"³ breached their fiduciary duty of loyalty by granting themselves excessive compensation in a self-interested transaction. Plaintiff seeks, inter alia, rescission of the option plan.

Defendants filed a Motion for Summary Judgment, arguing that because the board enacted the option plan when Commerce was a wholly-owned subsidiary of Software, they owed fiduciary duties solely to Software and its shareholders. Although plaintiff held Software shares at the time the options were granted, he did not bring suit in his capacity as a Software shareholder, double derivatively. Defendants contend that they owed plaintiff no fiduciary duty as a “prospective” shareholder of Commerce and that plaintiff lacks standing to sue as a current shareholder of Commerce, because he does not satisfy the contemporaneous ownership requirement of 8 Del. C. § 327.

Discussion

*2 A motion for summary judgment may be granted when no genuine issue of material fact is in dispute, and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.⁴ It is undisputed that at the time the option plan was created, Commerce was a wholly-owned subsidiary of Software. Defendants contend that under Anadarko Petroleum Corp. v. Panhandle Eastern Corp.,⁵ “[t]he directors of a wholly owned subsidiary cannot be held liable to post-spin stockholders for actions taken by those directors prior to the spin-off.”⁶ Defendants argue that Anadarko is directly on point and mandates that summary judgment be granted in their favor.

A brief discussion of Anadarko's facts will reveal that the case is not on all fours with the instant case. In Anadarko, the Supreme Court addressed “whether a corporate parent and directors of a wholly-owned subsidiary owe fiduciary duties to the prospective stockholders of the subsidiary after the parent declares its intention to spin-off the subsidiary.”⁷ On August 20, 1986, Panhandle, the parent corporation of Anadarko, announced that on October 1, 1986, it would “distribut[e] one share of Anadarko common stock for each issued and outstanding share of Panhandle stock held of record on September 12, 1986.”⁸ To increase the value of the spin-off, representatives of the two corporations applied, successfully, to the New York Stock Exchange to create a market in Anadarko stock before the date of distribution. Approximately three million Anadarko shares were traded on a when-issued basis, reflecting the value of Anadarko as an independent entity, before the dividend distribution date.⁹ On September 30, 1996, one day before the distribution date, Anadarko's board, by a 3-2 vote, agreed to modify existing contracts between Panhandle and Anadarko in a manner that was favorable to Panhandle and unfavorable to Anadarko.

Anadarko sued Panhandle and the three former Anadarko directors who had approved the contract modifications. On appeal, Anadarko argued that the contracts were voidable because they were “unfair and were approved in violation of fiduciary duties owed to the prospective stockholders of Anadarko.”¹⁰ The Supreme Court began its analysis by stating two settled rules of law: (1) “a parent does not owe a fiduciary duty to its wholly[[]-]owned subsidiary,”¹¹ and (2) “in a parent and wholly-owned subsidiary context, the directors of the subsidiary are obligated only to manage the affairs of the subsidiary in the best interests of the parent and its shareholders.”¹² Anadarko argued, inter alia, that the case at bar presented an exception to these general rules because “by setting a record date for the dividend distribution and by establishing a market for Anadarko shares to be traded on a when-issued basis,” Panhandle created a class of beneficial owners of Anadarko stock to whom it and the Anadarko directors owed fiduciary duties.¹³ The Supreme Court disagreed and held that even under the unique circumstances presented, no fiduciary duties were owed to the prospective Anadarko shareholders before the date of distribution.

*3 Anadarko is not controlling in the present case. Software did nothing between the announcement of the spin-off and the distribution date that could arguably suggest it created fiduciary duties where there otherwise were none, and plaintiff does not claim that Commerce's directors owed him a duty as a prospective Commerce shareholder. Unlike Anadarko, the spin-off in the present action had not been announced, and may not even have been contemplated, at the time the events now challenged as a breach of fiduciary duty took place. While the general fiduciary duty rules of parents and wholly-owned subsidiaries stated in Anadarko apply, the distinct scenario addressed in Anadarko is not in issue here. At the time the option plan was enacted, Commerce owed fiduciary duties only to Software and Software's shareholders. That is why, as both parties concede, plaintiff could have filed a double derivative action on Commerce's behalf between March 8 and September 30. Plaintiff never instituted such an action, however. Instead, plaintiff filed a derivative action as a current Commerce shareholder.

This brings us to defendants' second argument. It is undisputed that the option plan was enacted on February 12, 1996, but that plaintiff did not become a Commerce shareholder until September 30, 1996. Thus, defendants contend that plaintiff lacks standing to bring this derivative action, and this Court must grant defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment as a matter of law, because plaintiff was not a Commerce shareholder at the time of the alleged wrong. 8 Del. C. § 327 states:

In any derivative suit instituted by a stockholder of a corporation, it shall be averred in the complaint that the plaintiff was a stockholder of the corporation at the time of the transaction of which he complains or that his stock devolved upon him by operation of law.

Plaintiff argues that this presents a catch-22; he alleges that he can make out a case of corporate wrongdoing but, because of the strict application of some technical legal rules, he can sue neither derivatively nor double derivatively, and the alleged wrongdoers are insulated from suit. Plaintiff contends that a court of equity cannot sanction such a result. Indeed, this Court stated as much in Helpand v. Gambee.¹⁴

The plaintiff in Helpand owned shares in Twentieth Century Fox Film Corporation (“Fox of N.Y.”). Fox of N.Y. produced and distributed films and, through its wholly-owned subsidiary, National Theaters Corp. (“NTC”), owned and operated movie theatres. In 1951, pursuant to an antitrust consent decree, Fox of N.Y. began a reorganization to separate its film production and distribution assets from its theatre assets. The result of the reorganization, in simplified terms, was that Fox of N.Y. and NTC were dissolved and replaced by two new corporations, respectively, Fox of Delaware and National Theatres, Inc. (“NTI”). The former shareholders of Fox of N.Y., including the plaintiff, held two shares of stock for each share of Fox of N.Y. they had owned, one in Fox of Delaware and one in NTI. The shares in Fox of Delaware represented the shareholders’ interest in Fox’s film production and distribution business, and the shares in NTI represented the shareholders’ interest in Fox’s theatre business.

*4 The plaintiff later filed a derivative action on behalf of NTI seeking an accounting by its directors, who had also been directors of NTC, for their activities both before and after the reorganization. The director defendants moved to dismiss portions of the complaint on the grounds that, under section 327, the plaintiff had no standing to sue for alleged wrongdoing that occurred before she became a shareholder of NTI. It should be noted, although the Helpand Court did not, that before September of 1952, the plaintiff could have filed a double derivative action on behalf of NTC.

This Court allowed the plaintiff to pursue her derivative action, despite the language of section 327 and the fact that the plaintiff had voted in favor the reorganization. The Court found that the purpose of section 327, to prevent the purchasing of shares for the purpose of bringing a derivative action to recover for wrongdoing antedating the purchase, would not be served by preventing the plaintiff’s suit because she was not such a purchaser.¹⁵ The Court also noted that section 327 was not enacted “to prevent the correction of corporate wrongdoing.”¹⁶ Furthermore, the plaintiff had owned shares in Fox of N.Y. since 1941. Thus, the Court stated: “the fact that she holds two pieces of paper instead of one as evidence of her 1941 investment in Fox of New York should not ... foreclose her from complaining of acts antedating the incorporation of [NTI] when such corporation is in effect a successor to Fox of New York.”¹⁷

This case is analogous to Helpand. Plaintiff here did not purchase shares in Commerce to bring suit for actions taken before he was a shareholder. Like the plaintiff in Helpand, plaintiff here “was not a direct party to a transaction which made [him] a stockholder de novo.”¹⁸ Rather, plaintiff has owned shares in Software for several years, and he became a shareholder in Commerce only because Software declared the stock dividend. Thus, the sole aim of section 327 would not be served by denying plaintiff standing to sue.¹⁹ To the contrary, to deny standing on these facts would insulate defendants from potential liability for their alleged misdeeds.

Defendants argue that Helpand is no longer good law, having been implicitly overruled by Anadarko. Again, I believe defendants’ interpretation of Anadarko misses the mark. The contemporaneous ownership requirement of section 327 was not implicated in Anadarko because the former subsidiary corporation brought suit on its own behalf; no shareholder sued derivatively. Anadarko’s holding, that under the circumstances of that case, the parent corporation did not assume fiduciary duties with respect to a class of prospective shareholders the parent created by its own actions, has no applicability to the present case, where plaintiff seeks relief for alleged wrongs that occurred when plaintiff could not have been a prospective shareholder because the impending spin-off had not been announced and may not even have been contemplated.

Conclusion

*5 Plaintiff, as a Software shareholder, had the right to bring a double derivative action on behalf of Commerce for a period of months. Why he did not do so is unclear. I decide only that Software's decision to divest itself of its entire interest in Commerce cannot, as a matter of law, deprive plaintiff of standing to bring a derivative action on behalf of Commerce, even where the challenged actions occurred before plaintiff owned shares in Commerce.

2 THE CLERK: All rise.

3 THE COURT: Please be seated. We will now begin a
4 status conference we have set in Highland Capital, Case No.
5 19-34054. This pertains to an order staying a contested
6 matter that was initiated by Hunter Mountain Investment Trust.

7 All right. So let's get our lawyer appearances. We'll 8 ask for Hunter Mountain, your appearance, please?

9 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Good morning, Your Honor. This 10 is Deborah Deitsch-Perez from Stinson for Hunter Mountain.
11 Mr. Aigen is also on the line, I see, and he may assist me by 12 pulling up a PowerPoint.

13 THE COURT: All right. I'm not sure why we're going 14 to need a PowerPoint, but things are complex, shall we say, in 15 this case as a general matter.

16 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: A short one.

17 THE COURT: So we will see what that's going to be 18 about.

19 All right. For the Debtor, who do we have appearing?

20 MR. MORRIS: Good morning, Your Honor. It's John 21 Morris from Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones on behalf of 22 Highland Capital Management, LP.

23 THE COURT: Okay. I should say Reorganized Debtor,
24 not Debtor. We're a few years down the road.

25 All right. Do we have other lawyers who want to appear

1 today?

2 MR. STANCIL: Your Honor, this is Mark Stancil from 3 Willkie Farr & Gallagher. I'm joined by my colleague, Josh
4 Levy. We represent Mr. Seery.

5 THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

6 Would that be all of our lawyer appearances, I presume?

7 All right. Well, let's be clear about why we are here.
8 And I'm sure the lawyers will correct me if I'm wrong. There
9 was a motion filed, I don't know, I would say January-ish of 10 this year by Hunter Mountain Trust -- I'll call it a 11 Gatekeeper Motion -- where Hunter Mountain was wanting leave
12 of this Court to file a lawsuit in the Delaware Chancery Court
13 against Mr. Seery regarding his role as the Claimant Trust
14 Trustee. And we had a hearing January 25th, and the Court
15 indicated it would stay the motion because I had -- I think
16 that was when I had under advisement, maybe I'd just taken
17 under advisement a Hunter Mountain motion for leave to file --
18 to go forward with another type of suit involving -- I think 19 it was the Valuation Suit.

20 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor? Your Honor?

21 THE COURT: Okay. So, anyway, I know I stayed the 22 motion for leave to go forward in Delaware Chancery Court.
23 Ms. Deitsch-Perez, what were you wanting to say?

24 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: I was going to say I believe Your 25 Honor stayed the case awaiting your hearing and decision of 1 the motion to dismiss the valuation complaint.

2 MR. MORRIS: Correct.

3 THE COURT: All right. So, and I did go back and 4 look at my order a few days ago, and I said we'd have a status
5 conference after I ruled on that, right? So that's why we're 6 here?

7 MR. MORRIS: Yes.

8 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: I think so. What Your Honor said
9 was that you thought it was possible that your decision in the 10 valuation case might bear on the motion to stay -- on the 11 motion for leave, and so you stayed the matter, said we would 12 have a status conference after it was decided. After it was 13 decided, we called Ms. Ellison and asked for a status
14 conference so that we could address whether or not the 15 dismissal of the valuation complaint had any bearing on this 16 matter.

17 In a nutshell, the Court dismissed the valuation complaint
18 on the ground that the Plaintiffs had no standing to seek the 19 valuation because the conditions in the CTA had not been met.
20 Putting aside whether the parties believe that was correct --
21 it is being appealed -- the motion for leave is materially
22 different and cannot and should not be decided on the same
23 basis. And that's what we're here to discuss today.

24 THE COURT: All right. So we're here on the status
25 conference because I ruled we would have a status conference

1 down the road to look at whether should we continue to stay
2 the Hunter Mountain motion for leave to go forward in the 3 Delaware Chancery Court.

4 So we're here pursuant to my prior order. And your 5 client, Hunter Mountain, is arguing this is materially
6 different, and so I can't figure out for the life of me why
7 this is materially different. I'm just going to share my 8 thinking right now. I have ruled three times now, right, that 9 Hunter Mountain doesn't have standing. And I --

10 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor, I --

11 THE COURT: And if it didn't have standing Time 1, 2, 12 and 3, why on earth would it have standing now?

13 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor, I'm prepared to 14 explain why it's different. But if Your Honor has already 15 decided on the basis of what you already have before you that 16 Hunter Mountain has no standing, even though, here, the 17 allegations concern -- are that Mr. Seery is deliberately 18 manipulating the estate to maintain his tenure at his 19 $150,000-a-month job by not paying creditors and refusing to 20 issue the certification. And that allegation, and the fact
21 that the law requires that this be decided by a Delaware
22 court, if those things are not enough for Your Honor to 23 believe that this matter is different and should be decided 24 differently, then we would ask that you simply rule that 25 Hunter Mountain has no standing and is not entitled to have a

1 Delaware court make the decision of the matters at issue in 2 the motion for leave, and we would take it up at the same time
3 as the valuation motion, so that the issue that Your Honor was 4 concerned about --

5 THE COURT: What do you mean, you would take it up at 6 the same time as the valuation motion?

7 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: In other words, if Your Honor
8 were to rule right now, as you've indicated, that you believe 9 that --

10 THE COURT: Right. You would appeal, and then what?
11 What do you mean?

12 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: If I could finish, Your Honor.
13 If Your Honor ruled that Hunter Mountain has no standing to 14 seek leave to sue Mr. Seery in Delaware court and that the CTA
15 overrides Delaware law if Delaware law --

16 THE COURT: Got it, got it, got it.

17 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Right? Okay. If Your Honor were 18 to rule that and deny the motion for leave, we would appeal
19 that at the same time -- on the same timeline as the appeal of 20 the valuation decision. And then Your Honor's concern about 21 potentially conflicting rulings would not exist. We would 22 consent to the same court hearing both so that we --

23 THE COURT: What makes you think a district judge
24 would consolidate these two appeals? Or I guess it would be 25 three appeals.

1 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: We have no control over that, but
2 we would consent to it. The Debtor has expressed a concern
3 about inconsistent rulings, and so if both parties sought for 4 them to be -- the matters to be heard by the same judge --
5 we've done that in the past with all the -- with the reports
6 and recommendations arising out of the withdrawal of the 7 reference -- in every instance where the parties have 8 requested the same judge to hear appeals from this Court, the 9 District Court has agreed.

10 So while I certainly don't presume to control the District
11 Court, we have good evidence that they would do so. And that 12 would be the most efficient. It would minimize the chances of 13 inconsistent rulings.

14 THE COURT: Okay. I'm going to hear your PowerPoint
15 and see if there's something I'm missing, but this is really 16 -- you said extremely different, or words to that effect. But 17 I'm going to tell you right now, I would not -- to all the 18 lawyers -- I would not be presumptuous and think that some 19 district judge, let's say the one who has the current Hunter
20 Mountain appeals, I don't know if it's one judge or two, is 21 going to say, sure, we'll consolidate.

22 I mean, that's just not the way they work. Maybe you got 23 lucky. Probably it was the Note Litigation, okay, where it 24 made a ton of sense to consolidate that. But let me just be 25 blunt. Bankruptcy is not their priority. The Constitution

1 requires that criminal matters be their priority. They're 2 just, you know, they're not going to --

3 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor, all we can do is ask.

4 THE COURT: They don't see the world the way we 5 bankruptcy nerds see the world. Okay? That's just my 6 experience. And I don't expect them to.

7 But, anyway, I -- who, by the way, has the Hunter Mountain
8 appeals? Do we have that handy? I'm just curious.

9 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: I don't --

10 THE COURT: Judge Ada Brown? Does she have all of 11 them, or just --

12 MR. MORRIS: She does. She has the main appeal of 13 the order denying the motion for leave to sue Mr. Seery, 14 Stonehill, and Farallon, the one that was the subject of the 15 evidentiary hearing last June. She does have that matter
16 right now.

17 THE COURT: And right now, do we have a judge
18 assigned to the more recent order denying --

19 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: That was just --

20 THE COURT: -- Hunter Mountain leave?

21 MR. MORRIS: Not that I know of.

22 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: That was --

23 MR. MORRIS: That notice of appeal was just filed, I
24 think, on June 7th, and I don't know if that's been assigned 25 yet.

1 THE COURT: My law clerk over here is saying no.
2 You're correct; there's no judge assigned to that. So we, you
3 know, we --

4 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: So it is possible, then, that we 5 could ask Judge Brown to hear all three. That's a 6 possibility.

7 MR. MORRIS: May I be heard at some point, Your 8 Honor?

9 THE COURT: Well, absolutely. Absolutely. But I am 10 just, I'm focusing on procedure at the moment. And we'll let 11 you explain why you think this is different, but surely you
12 know where my brain is.

13 I've ruled three times now that Hunter Mountain does not
14 have standing under the terms of the plan and under Delaware
15 law. And three times, we have written lengthy opinions on 16 that. And my impression, after sitting here 18 years, is the 17 District Court is going to be very irritated with me and 18 everyone else if I rule yet a fourth time on this and there is 19 an appeal sent their way. Consolidation or no consolidation, 20 at some point judicial economy and efficiency of the parties
21 rears its head.

22 I mean, why wouldn't I stay this further and see how Judge
23 Brown rules in the other matter? Heck, --

24 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor, the --

25 THE COURT: -- at some point this plan could go

1 effective. I mean, excuse me, could be fully implemented.
2 But I think we know why it hasn't been. My impression is 3 certainly all we have left is to resolve all the litigation
4 involving your client.

5 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor, the reason you cannot 6 stay it is because the Fifth Circuit and the Supreme Court
7 have a very high standard for staying litigation, and by 8 staying it you would be effectively denying the very relief
9 that's being sought. Hunter Mountain is entitled to try to 10 end this by removing a trustee with a conflict who is eating
11 up the costs -- the money in the estate. And we're entitled 12 to have that decided. And by staying it, you are effectively
13 denying the relief. That's what's impermissible. The Fifth 14 Circuit and the Supreme Court have set a very high bar to 15 staying litigation.

16 This is not like the motion for mediation, where we 17 harbored no illusion whatsoever that Your Honor would stay
18 litigation over the Debtor's objection. The only --

19 THE COURT: Okay. It never would have occurred to me
20 this was analogous to the motion to stay litigation. I think 21 it's analogous to three different motions your client has 22 filed and I've ruled on. I don't know, --

23 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor, I will show you why
24 it's different.

25 THE COURT: -- what number of pages, Courtney, were

1 our three rulings? And I say three because --

2 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor?

3 THE COURT: -- there was a motion for 4 reconsideration. I mean, a couple hundred pages of ink spilt
5 that some district judge --

6 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor?

7 THE COURT: -- has got to read? And why are we doing
8 the same thing over and over? It's like the famous --

9 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: That's what I --

10 THE COURT: -- Einstein saying. You know, the famous 11 Einstein saying. What did he say?

12 MR. MORRIS: The definition of insanity, Your Honor, 13 doing the same thing over and over again, expecting a 14 different result? That was going to be my opening line.

15 THE COURT: Oh, wow. Oh, wow. Okay. Well, that's

17 MR. MORRIS: So we're in the same place.

18 THE COURT: -- definitely the one I was thinking.

19 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor, the difference --

20 THE COURT: Okay. Ms. Deitsch, just --

21 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: The difference is that this was 22 --

23 THE COURT: -- let's make -- just make your 24 presentation and then we'll hear Mr. Morris's presentation.
25 If something is horribly lost on me, this is your chance to

1 show me that I am totally missing the boat on why this 2 situation is different.

3 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Okay. There are two points here.
4 One is we would like you to understand why it's different and 5 see why it's different. But if you have already made up your 6 mind, then simply deny the motion for leave, opine that the 7 CTA overrides Delaware law, and the most efficient path is to 8 have this evaluation and the insider trading case be appealed 9 where that will be the most efficient use of resources.

10 So let me go -- could I ask --

11 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, I apologize.

12 THE COURT: Okay. Before we do the whole PowerPoint,

14 MR. MORRIS: I would love to be heard on the 15 procedural point. Just the procedural point.

16 THE COURT: All right. You may, Mr. Morris.

17 MR. MORRIS: There is no motion to dismiss pending
18 before the Court. What you're being asked to do, the Court
19 doesn't have the authority to do. What we're here today to 20 decide is whether or not to extend the stay. The answer is 21 either going to be yes or no.

22 If the stay is extended, we're done. If the stay is not 23 extended, then we're going to have to answer the complaint.
24 And we're going to make a motion to dismiss. And we're going
25 to have a whole -- with a Rule 11 motion, because this is all

1 collaterally estopped. But putting that aside for the moment,
2 going to the District Court would be appropriate only if 3 Hunter Mountain agrees that the issues are the exact same as 4 raised in the stay.

5 You're about to hear a presentation that says, oh, no, no,
6 they're not. These issues have never been heard before,
7 they've never been briefed before, and there is no chance that 8 it would be appropriate that the Court would have the 9 authority to send this -- to make a decision on a case on a 10 matter that's never been briefed. Right?

11 It's either a stay or it's not a stay. If it's a stay,
12 let's go home. If it's not a stay, then we're going to answer
13 the complaint with a motion to dismiss, and they can come back
14 and tell us at that time, in writing, with notice, why they're 15 not collaterally estopped by Your Honor's prior orders.

16 That's all.

17 THE COURT: Okay.

18 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: And that would normally be the 19 case, Your Honor, but here the Court can sua sponte deny the 20 motion. The Court has said repeatedly that it views it as the 21 same. And so we are saying we would forego further briefing
22 if Your Honor wanted to simply sua sponte dismiss the matter
23 so that it could be appealed. And so it could be appealed on 24 the same timeline more or less as the other matters that are 25 proceeding.

1 I'll continue on now with --

2 THE COURT: Okay. Well, --

3 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: -- with the presentation.

4 THE COURT: I'll state the obvious. And as Mr.
5 Morris said but I think you know very well, Ms. Deitsch-Perez,
6 this is just a motion to unstay the contested matter -- I
7 mean, it may be premature to call it a contested matter -- to 8 unstay proceedings on Hunter Mountain's motion for leave to 9 file a complaint in the Delaware Chancery Court. Should I
10 keep the stay in place or not? Okay? So, --

11 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: I understand we're --

12 THE COURT: -- I don't think anyone has any confusion
13 about that, and it's the reason why I said something about you 14 having a PowerPoint. I was a little surprised that you would 15 have a PowerPoint on this, but if you do, you do. I'll let 16 you present it.

17 But I would never jump ahead, just so everyone is crystal
18 clear, I would never jump ahead to a substantive ruling today
19 that I'm denying your motion for leave to file the complaint 20 in the Delaware Chancery Court. It would be either we're 21 continuing the stay, we're going to continue the stay, please 22 upload a new order supplementing my prior order saying the 23 stay is going to be continued until whatever we decide, or 24 it's going to be the stay is lifted, parties have, you know,
25 21 days to respond to Hunter Mountain's motion for leave to

1 file a complaint. Okay? So I hope there was no confusion on 2 that.

3 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: No, Your Honor, we were simply 4 responding to your repeated suggestion that this is the same
5 and Hunter Mountain has no standing and the CTA overrides
6 Delaware law, which was, if that was already determined and 7 you did not need further explanation from the Reorganized
8 Debtor on that in opposition, because we've already filed the 9 motion for leave, then we would not argue as a procedural
10 point that Your Honor could not simply make a decision.

12 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: I understand that Mr. Morris is 13 saying he does not want that because the whole goal here is to 14 delay this long enough so that we can never be heard in 15 Delaware. So I understand Mr. Morris's position.

16 MR. MORRIS: You know, Your Honor, I just, I so 17 regret these ad hominem attacks. The fact of the matter is we 18 don't have a pleading. We're about to hear arguments from Ms.
19 Deitsch-Perez for the very first time. She's never briefed
20 these issues. And I'm just going to leave it at that. This 21 is just so improper.

22 THE COURT: All right. Well, how lengthy is your 23 PowerPoint, and is it really geared towards the stay issue?

24 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: It is, Your Honor. It's seven 25 slides.

1 THE COURT: Okay.

2 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: It's not very long. And there is 3 nothing that we are going to raise that the Debtor is not 4 aware of.

5 THE COURT: All right. Well, I'll let you present
6 your seven slides. And, again, I think we're all crystal
7 clear. This is just about is it time to lift the stay. And 8 we've had a lot of preliminary discussions and I've made a lot
9 of comments because it just seemed like the common-sense
10 approach we might all agree to was let the District Court
11 decide your appeal. She may say --

12 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: We do not agree to that --

13 THE COURT: -- Hunter Mountain has standing. She may 14 say Hunter Mountain has standing, let them go forward with 15 their valuation thing, with their suit they want to file
16 against Farallon and whoever the other one was, I can't 17 remember. You know, let them -- they have standing. She may 18 view the plan documents, the Claimant Trust Agreement,
19 Delaware law different. If she does, then absolutely I
20 probably should lift the stay in this matter. I mean, I
21 guess. I don't know.

22 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor?

23 THE COURT: But it just seems like a matter of 24 efficiency. You filed the appeals. You want it heard.
25 You're entitled to that. Let that happen, and then we'll

1 figure out where we go from there. Except, as we well know,
2 probably one party will file an appeal to the Fifth Circuit.
3 So I'm just trying to understand what is rational here, and --

4 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: The Fifth Circuit has already 5 rejected this very maneuver. And we have a slide that will 6 tell you the --

7 THE COURT: Maneuver? What maneuver? What maneuver?
8 Whose maneuver?

9 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: The maneuver is to stay a case,
10 but it's the Debtor's request, to stay a case while awaiting 11 other cases' decisions on standing. That's not proper. All 12 of the cases should go up at the same time. If there's a 13 dispositive ruling on standing at some point, well, it could 14 be raised at that time. But there's no reason to stay, to 15 prevent a party from having its day in court, because of the 16 potential that another case is going to decide a similar or 17 even the very same --

18 THE COURT: Okay. Present your PowerPoint and we'll 19 perhaps better understand.

20 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Okay. So, I'm --

21 Mike, if you can pull it up and go to Slide 2.

22 Okay. So, and before I get to that, yesterday we filed a
23 notice of supplemental authority because since -- this is a 24 very unusual circumstance.

25 THE COURT: Where did you file that?

1 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: In the bankruptcy. We filed a
2 copy of the Morris v. Spectra Delaware case that the Debtor
3 already had because we had found it, I think Mr. Aigen
4 deserves the credit for this, and had provided it to the other
5 counsel for HMIT to --

6 THE COURT: Okay. Just so you know, I've not seen
7 it, I've not read it. So, --

8 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Okay. I will describe it --

9 THE COURT: And I would not have been looking for it
10 before a status conference.

11 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Okay. I will -- it's very easy
12 to describe. It's a Delaware case. And that was a case where 13 someone was attempting to challenge -- a former shareholder
14 was attempting to challenge a merger. And normally the rule
15 in Delaware is, if you're not a shareholder, you can't 16 challenge it anymore. You're not a shareholder; you can't 17 challenge the merger.

18 But the claim there was that the Defendants had wrongfully 19 caused the merger to eliminate the shareholders' ability to 20 complain. And the Delaware Supreme Court said, gee, if 21 someone deliberately does something to strip someone of their 22 standing, we're not going to allow that, so we are going to 23 allow someone who is no longer a shareholder to still complain
24 about the merger.

25 And this is what we found, this is the most analogous

1 Delaware law we have found, and shows that it is appropriate,
2 if someone does something that prevents someone from having
3 standing, the Court should still allow the case to go forward.

4 So that's one reason why this is different. But the right
5 to be heard in Delaware on an issue of the workings of a 6 trust, on the issue of removing a trust, that's something that 7 is subject to Delaware law and has to be decided by a Delaware
8 court. And we cited in the opposition to the stay the United 9 Brotherhood case and the Delaware statute that provides that.

10 And so that's another reason this case is different than 11 the insider trading case or the valuation case, because this 12 expressly involves the internal workings of a trust, which,
13 even if you had a contract that had a venue provision,
14 Delaware law says you can ignore that because this is 15 important enough that we want this resolved by a Delaware
16 court.

17 So, in Your Honor's decision dismissing the valuation
18 proceeding, you relied on the Plaintiff's supposed agreement
19 to the CTA as precluding them from challenging it or from 20 invoking the duty of good faith and fair dealing. And I think 21 you said something like that earlier today also. But that 22 analysis is wrong here.

23 First, Hunter Mountain didn't negotiate or agree to the 24 CTA. If you remember, at the time of the plan, the estate's
25 projections were that payments would only be made through

1 Class 8. So Classes 10 or 11 had no reason to address the 2 CTA.

3 But second, the duty of good faith and fair dealing can,
4 should, really, must be raised when a party's actions actually
5 prevent a condition precedent from occurring.

6 So the Court's conclusion that the existence of a 7 condition precedent -- in other words, the conditions for 8 vesting -- precludes a claim for good faith and fair dealing 9 ignores the whole body of law that a party can't take 10 advantage of his own wrongdoing.

11 So this isn't a case -- this usually comes up in the 12 circumstance where somebody is claiming there's a breach of 13 good faith and fair dealing because a party didn't do 14 something that's expressly not required by the contract, where 15 the duty of good faith and fair dealing is being used to 16 contradict the contract. But that's not what's happening
17 here.

18 Here, the complaint that is sought to be brought in 19 Delaware is saying that Mr. Seery is thwarting the occurrence
20 of the condition precedent, and the Plaintiff is entitled to 21 have its allegations taken as true. And if that is true, that 22 is the classic case for the invocation of good faith and fair
23 dealing.

24 And we cite in the motion for leave the Dunlap case, the 25 Injective Labs case, and the Snow Phipps case, all of which

1 are cases where there was some condition in the contract that 2 the other side was alleged to be preventing from happening,
3 and the courts allowed those -- either allowed the -- said
4 that the parties (inaudible) to make that clear or allow the 5 claim to go forward.

6 So these cases are directly counter to this case's
7 mistaken conclusion that the vesting provision precludes HMIT
8 from raising the good faith and fair dealing here. This is 9 exactly when you must raise good faith and fair dealing, and 10 it's entirely appropriate. So it is not like the valuation
11 case, which was asking for information. It's not exactly like 12 the insider trading case, either. Here, it is exactly when 13 good faith and fair dealing governs.

14 So, for all of these reasons, the Court's prior decisions
15 aren't governing here and are not a basis for staying or 16 denying the gatekeeper matter.

17 But as we've said, if the Court's already decided 18 otherwise, we would not object to the procedure of the Court
19 sua sponte simply sending this on. What would not be fair 20 would be stalling this case to prevent HMIT from seeking the 21 Delaware decision-making to which it's entitled. And that's 22 why, when the issue is a stay of court proceedings, the Fifth
23 Circuit and the Supreme Court have a very high bar.

24 Mike, next slide. Mike, Slide 3. Okay.

25 Okay. So let's remember the standard for obtaining a

1 stay: A strong showing of likelihood to succeed on the 2 merits; whether the movant -- that's the Debtor here -- will 3 be irreparably harmed absent a stay; whether the issuance of a
4 stay will injure other interested parties -- Hunter Mountain;
5 and where the public interest lies.

6 And the Supreme Court has characterized the circumstances
7 in which a stay is appropriate as rare. And that's the Landis
8 case cited by the Northern District.

9 And Highland, in the motion for stay, doesn't address this 10 standard at all. And in the initial hearing we had, Highland 11 said, and the Court seemed to agree, well, the standard isn't 12 required because, remember, when you all sought a stay for the 13 mediation, you didn't raise the standard.

14 But that was very different, because for the mediation we 15 had no illusion that Your Honor would grant a stay over the 16 objection of the Debtor. So, really, what we were talking 17 about in that circumstance is a consensual stay. And then the 18 standard wouldn't apply.

19 Let's go to Slide 4, Mike.

20 Okay. And here is the case, the Jamison case, which 21 relied on Supreme Court Landis case, said the defendant
22 requested a stay pending the Supreme Court's rulings on two 23 different cases where the same or virtually the same standing
24 question was raised, and the Court denied the motion, saying 25 that, because standing is an issue that can be raised at any

1 time, there was no reason to stay, because if the Supreme
2 Court made a ruling that was dispositive it could be raised
3 when that happened.

4 And that's exactly what the circumstance is here. The 5 case should go forward, and if the Fifth Circuit makes a 6 dispositive ruling, if there's a dispositive ruling that would 7 end one of these other cases and is not distinguishable, it
8 could be raised at that time.

9 So, go to the next slide.

10 Okay. And so the Fifth Circuit has also said
11 discretionary stays, even when -- if they are lengthy or 12 indefinite, should not be granted. That is exactly what the 13 Debtor is asking for here. Let's take a look at how long 14 things have been taking.

15 Go to Slide 6.

16 Okay. The Notes cases, the Court's reports and 17 recommendations, December '22, the Notes case is still pending
18 in the Fifth Circuit, the HarbourVest settlement. And this is 19 not including the lower court, the District Court intermediate 20 action. Two years. UBS, I mean, huge amounts of time. It's 21 one and half to two years. All of them.

22 So if in fact the Court were to stay until a final 23 decision, or even the decision of the next court, we are 24 talking about a long enough time that it creates the very harm
25 that the motion for leave -- that the complaint that Hunter

1 Mountain is trying to file is seeking to avoid.

2 This Court knows how long it takes to get through the 3 District Court, out of the Fifth Circuit, much less, as we 4 have with the release matter, going all the way to the Supreme
5 Court.

6 So, if Hunter Mountain has to await a final nonappealable
7 decision of the valuation proceeding before it can even start
8 to seek to remove Seery in Delaware court, even winning would 9 be a pyrrhic victory, because Mr. Seery will have remained 10 employed and spending money and moving money into the 11 indemnity subtrust for two or more years. And so a stay
12 thereby creates irreparable harm for Hunter Mountain.

13 So, in sum, using the Claimant Trust Agreement to preclude 14 Hunter Mountain from seeking removal of the Trustee actually 15 underscores why Delaware law is crafted the way it is. Were 16 it not for the duty of good faith and fair dealing imposed by 17 Delaware law, Mr. Seery could arguably continually increase
18 the funds set aside for indemnification, indefinitely withhold 19 final distributions to Class 9 -- we believe Class 8 has 20 already been paid in full -- and refuse to file the GUC
21 certification.

22 Would it be okay if he paid everything other than $10 and 23 refused to issue the GUC certification based on a theoretical 24 possibility that he might need more money for indemnification?
25 The amount that's been set aside for indemnification is so

1 much more than the $25 million that was originally 2 contemplated at the time of the plan. So this is exactly the 3 kind of conflict that Delaware Code Section 3327 regarding the 4 removal of trustees is designed to prevent. It's designed to 5 prevent the conflict where the trustee has a reason to hold
6 onto the money that he or it is holding in trust for another
7 party.

8 This is -- whatever the excess is, that belongs to Hunter
9 Mountain. It doesn't belong to the professionals. It doesn't 10 belong to Mr. Seery. And so someone who does not have this 11 conflict should be making these decisions. And Hunter
12 Mountain is entitled to go to Delaware for that decision.

13 So, putting this on ice is simply allowing the Claimant
14 Trust to avoid scrutiny, and we would ask that Your Honor not 15 do that.

17 THE COURT: Mr. Morris?

18 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, I just want to begin where 19 counsel left off. The excess -- if there is such a thing, and 20 I don't know that there is, and I don't know that anybody will 21 know until the case is over -- but the so-called excess
22 belongs first to indemnified parties. Indemnified parties
23 have a contractual right to be indemnified, frankly, before
24 Class 8 or Class 9 receive a nickel, let alone Class 10 or 11.

25 So let's be really clear that what's happening here, as

1 Your Honor alluded to earlier, is that resources must be
2 husbanded because of the ongoing onslaught of litigation.
3 This case could be over tomorrow if Mr. Dondero would give a
4 release to all protected parties.

5 So, just a little bit of background, though. Obviously,
6 this issue of Hunter Mountain and Dugaboy's standing has been
7 percolating for exactly two years. It was in June of 2022
8 that Mr. Draper on behalf of Dugaboy brought the first 9 valuation motion. He was soon joined by Mr. Phillips on 10 behalf of Hunter Mountain. That effort was the subject of 11 substantial briefing over the rights or so-called rights or 12 potential rights of Class 10 and Class 11, and ultimately Your 13 Honor decided that the relief they sought was not appropriate
14 as a contested matter and had to proceed as an adversary
15 proceeding.

16 The next calendar year, 2023, we have a new lawyer for 17 Hunter Mountain, Sawnie McEntire and his firm. Again, the 18 issues of standing and Hunter Mountain's unvested contingent 19 interest and the meaning of that were the subject of 20 substantial litigation in 2023.

21 Now we've got a third lawyer, the Stinson firm, again
22 representing Hunter Mountain, again raising basically the 23 exact same issue.

24 Your Honor has issued multiple decisions that go into 25 great detail. I want to just read just a couple of lines from

1 the Court's most recent decision that was filed at Docket No.
2 26 in Adversary Proceeding 23-03038.

3 On Page 29, the Court wrote that the Court "finds and 4 concludes that under the terms of the CTA and Delaware law,
5 Plaintiffs are not beneficiaries or beneficial owners of the 6 Claimant Trust who would be entitled to assert rights under 7 the CTA. The Claimant Trust is a Delaware statutory trust
8 governed by the Delaware Statutory Trust Act, and the Trust
9 Act does define 'Beneficial Owner' and uses that term
10 exclusively to refer to the beneficiaries of a Delaware
11 statutory trust. Specifically, under the Trust Act, a trust's 12 -- a statutory trust's beneficial owners are any owners of a 13 beneficial interest in a statutory trust, the fact of 14 ownership to be determined and evidenced in conformity with 15 the applicable provisions of the governing instrument of the 16 statutory trust."

17 Your Honor went on at Page 30, said, "It appears that 18 Plaintiffs may be frustrated that they did not negotiate or 19 obtain the same oversight rights as the actual Claimant Trust
20 beneficiaries in the plan and the CTA. The plan, with the 21 incorporated CTA, was confirmed over three years ago now, and 22 neither the Plaintiff -- neither of the Plaintiffs objected or 23 appealed to the terms of the plan or the CTA that dictate
24 those oversight rights. The Fifth Circuit, in September of 25 2022, affirmed the confirmation order and the terms of the

1 plan and its incorporated documents, including the CTA, in all
2 respects other than striking certain exculpations."

3 Then, finally, Your Honor pointed out that "Plaintiffs 4 make an argument that an implied covenant of good faith and 5 fair dealing under Delaware law necessarily means that the 6 terms of the CTA that govern the parties' rights here,
7 including the information rights and the rights to an 8 accounting from the Claimant Trustee that Plaintiffs seek in 9 Count One can be overridden here. The Court disagrees. The 10 Court will not use the implied covenant of good faith to 11 override the rights and responsibilities that were bargained
12 for in the trust agreement."

13 An exhaustive opinion. It is collateral estoppel at this 14 point. I frankly think that Rule 11 gets implicated when 15 lawyers continue to push issues that have already been 16 decided.

17 It is the exact same issue. There is no claim for breach 18 of good faith and fair dealing in the complaint. Just look at 19 the proposed complaint that was filed at Docket No. 4000.
20 Exhibit 1. There are five causes of action. Every one of 21 them is premised not on a breach of good faith and fair
22 dealing but on a breach of Delaware Corporate Law 3327. And 23 as Your Honor knows from the extensive briefing that we've 24 had, the Court looks to the trust document to determine the 25 rights of the beneficiaries, and only beneficiaries have

1 rights under 3327.

2 This is law of the case. These parties are collaterally
3 estopped from continuing to do this. The fact that they 4 suggest that they could just bring lawsuit after lawsuit after 5 lawsuit after lawsuit, where standing is always going to a 6 threshold issue, until every single judge in the Northern 7 District of Texas has an opportunity to weigh in is 8 preposterous.

9 Let me go through -- let me just refer and respond to a
10 couple of these last points. The statute that Ms. Deitsch-11 Perez cited in her first slide, 3804(e), it only applies if 12 you're a beneficial owner. This Court has decided multiple 13 times Hunter Mountain and Dugaboy are not beneficial owners.

14 Next. The duty of good faith and fair dealing, as I
15 mentioned, it's not even a claim in the proposed complaint.
16 And I know of no law, and I don't think anybody will ever be 17 able to cite any law, that suggests a party to a contract owes 18 a duty of good faith and fair dealing to someone with no
19 rights under the contract. How is that even -- how does that 20 even make sense?

21 I have no rights under the contract, that's what this 22 Court has already held, but somehow Mr. Seery has an implied
23 duty of good faith and fair dealing. Makes absolutely no
24 sense.

25 The standard of likelihood of success on the merits.

1 Right? I don't think that standard applies when the Court is 2 just policing its docket. But even if it did, likelihood of 3 success on the merits? It's a certainty. The Court has 4 already decided. We have won. Right? They can't -- they 5 have no standing. So there's a hundred-percent certainty that 6 we're likely to succeed on the merits.

7 This is not going to be lengthy or indefinite, and I will,
8 you know, just say, Your Honor, that the Plaintiffs here have 9 some control over this. There probably hasn't been five 10 percent of the appeals where we don't get eventually some 11 request for an extension of time. It happens every time.
12 They're taking weeks now to file their appellate record.
13 They're within the rules. They have the right to do. But if 14 they want this to proceed more quickly, stop asking for 15 extensions of time. We'll move quickly. We don't have a 16 problem doing that at all.

17 Mr. Seery owes no --

18 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your -- I have to interrupt on 19 that.

20 THE COURT: You will have your rebuttal time, but let 21 Mr. Morris finish, please.

22 MR. MORRIS: Mr. Seery owes no duties to Hunter
23 Mountain and to Dugaboy. He never has. We have an agreement.
24 The agreement has been affirmed. The merits of that have been 25 decided multiple times.

1 The Court should continue the stay here. The Court should 2 allow the District Court, and, if necessary, the Fifth
3 Circuit, to opine and let it take its course. Right? We're
4 happy to work as quickly as they want. Not on an expedited
5 basis, but within the rules. And if they do the same, I think 6 this will get decided much quicker than they think.

7 In the alternative, Your Honor, if the Court for any 8 reason wants to lift the stay, we would request 30 days to 9 file an opposition here, and we will be filing a Rule 11.

10 I do just want to mention one last thing. Because as 11 counsel pointed out, they filed a so-called supplement at 7:00
12 p.m. Eastern Time last night on the docket. I was out with my 13 wife at the theater, and really haven't had any opportunity to 14 look at this in any detail.

15 I will tell you that I -- Ms. Deitsch-Perez and I emailed 16 multiple times yesterday. She and Mr. Aigen have been 17 emailing me multiple times in the last week. No courtesy of a 18 heads up. No suggestion that maybe we should adjourn this.
19 No citation in their pleading as to why they think they get to 20 file a surreply the eve before trial. There's no rule that 21 allows them to do so.

22 And I would just, you know, just very quickly, Your Honor, 23 the two cases that they cite are from 2021 and 1998. Those 24 cases were decided even before Mr. Draper filed his first 25 motion for valuation information two years ago.

1 The cases are easily distinguishable. They have nothing
2 to do with statutory trusts. They have nothing to do with the 3 definition of beneficiaries. They have nothing to do with 4 Section 3327.

5 But I will say, Your Honor, if, upon reflection, the Court
6 has any thought that those cases are at all relevant, we would 7 respectfully request the opportunity to brief it. I don't 8 think it's necessary. I think the filing was improper. But 9 even if the Court accepts them, I think those cases are so
10 easily distinguishable that it won't matter. But if, you
11 know, it's not fair to be treated this way, to email multiple 12 times, to give no notice, to file it 15 hours before a 13 hearing, with no rule citation, with no right to do so, and 14 expect the Court or expect me, frankly, to be prepared to 15 fully address it. I've addressed it as best I'm able under 16 the circumstances.

17 I think the motion to stay should be extended until a
18 court of competent jurisdiction issues a final nonappealable,
19 you know, affirmation, determination, on Your Honor's motion
20 to dismiss the valuation proceeding.

21 THE COURT: All right. Before I hear any last word
22 from Ms. Deitsch-Perez, I know Mr. Seery's counsel made an 23 appearance. Is there anything you would like to say?

24 MR. STANCIL: No, Your Honor. I think Mr. Morris
25 covered it quite well.

1 THE COURT: All right. Ms. Deitsch-Perez, you get 2 the last word.

3 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor, I've explained why
4 this case is different and why a party cannot prevent another
5 party from gaining rights under a contract. That is the 6 epitome of breaching the contract by breaching the duty of 7 good faith and fair dealing which is inherent in the contract.

8 Mr. Morris's argument that, oh, the stay is of no great 9 moment because you could move expeditiously is incorrect,
10 because, for example, the delays in the record, that is not
11 something -- and he well knows, that is not something a party
12 can control. The Court moves the record and the parties are 13 stuck with however long that takes. And if one were to look 14 at the record of the extensions in the appeals, they have -- 15 equally well if not more so than the Debtor's side. And so I 16 take exception to that.

17 And finally, the Reorganized Debtor is something of a 18 bully. Every time that they don't like something, there has 19 been a threat that we're going to seek sanctions. It's a way 20 of trying to scare lawyers from exercising their duties to 21 their clients. If he's going to make -- if the Debtor is 22 going to make a sanctions motion, we'll fight it. We've 23 fought it before. Sometimes they've threatened it and not 24 done it.

25 But it is, I will point out, it is itself a violation of

1 Rule 11 to willfully and disingenuously threaten sanctions to 2 try and prevent litigation. And that's what we think is going
3 on here. It's a club.

4 If this matter is stayed, Hunter Mountain -- it's no
5 different than if this Court simply denied the motion, because 6 the passage of time will eviscerate what's in the estate.

7 Thank you.

8 THE COURT: I'm going to ask this question. I've 9 asked it before in prior hearings, but I'm asking it again.
10 And I always am asking it because of, well, a couple reasons.
11 I've raised the issue of judicial economy and concerns about 12 the efficient administration of justice and what's in the 13 interest of the parties. How many appeals do we have pending
14 or have been made since confirmation of the plan in February 15 2021? And I'm concerned about judicial economy, yes, but I'm 16 also --

17 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor, --

18 THE COURT: Let me -- here is another reason I ask.
19 It is argued as part of the lawsuit you want to file that Mr.
20 Seery isn't wrapping things up. But, of course, part of that 21 hinges on are there appeals still pending. Okay? So I ask 22 for those two reasons. I don't know if anyone has it at their 23 fingertips, but it is --

24 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor?

25 THE COURT: -- germane to everything I've heard here.

1 Okay? So who has --

2 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor, there --

3 THE COURT: -- the answer at their fingertips?

4 Either one of you?

5 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor, there are not very 6 many appeals still pending, but I would point out that some of 7 these have been successful. That Your Honor's contempt
8 decision was reversed. The release issue was partially 9 reversed. So, --

10 THE COURT: Reversed and remanded for me to have 11 follow-up hearings. So not done, by the way, but anyway,
12 we'll have a hearing on that remand at some point.

13 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: But these are --

14 THE COURT: So, but anyway, the question was how 15 many.

16 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: And I don't know exactly how 17 many, but there are relatively few. If the issue is how much 18 money is needed to be set aside for indemnification, there are 19 relatively few appeals pending.

20 THE COURT: That is a non-answer. Okay?

21 MR. MORRIS: I'm counting, Your Honor.

22 THE COURT: Okay.

23 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: I would object to an off-the-cuff
24 response.

25 MR. MORRIS: I'm counting.

1 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: We will follow up with the Court
2 and give you an exact number.

3 THE COURT: You know what, I --

4 MR. MORRIS: I believe -- I think --

5 THE COURT: My decision today is likely not going to 6 hinge on the precise answer here. Okay? I'm just asking a 7 question because I'm worried about judicial economy and what's 8 efficient, and I'm worried about a lingering continuing
9 argument that Mr. Seery is not wrapping things up quickly
10 enough. And I think the answer --

11 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: There's not a hundred million
12 dollars.

13 THE COURT: -- to this question is relevant to both 14 of those concerns. Having the precise answer, you know, no,
15 but I'd like a ballpark answer --

16 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Here's the --

17 THE COURT: -- at least, if not precise.

18 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, the ballpark --

19 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Here's the important answer, Your 20 Honor.

21 MR. MORRIS: The ballpark --

22 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: It's there's not a hundred 23 million dollars' worth of legal work left to do.

24 THE COURT: I just --

25 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: It's --

1 THE COURT: -- asked for the answer to a question,
2 not an argument.

3 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor?

4 THE COURT: Mr. Morris, do you have an answer?

5 MR. MORRIS: It's approximately 55. But that 6 includes --

7 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: There are not 55 appeals
8 outstanding.

9 THE COURT: Stop interrupting. I want to hear the 10 complete answer.

11 Fifty-five is what, the number of notices of appeal ever
12 filed since the plan was confirmed?

13 MR. MORRIS: There are approximately 55 appeals that 14 have been filed in the Highland bankruptcy case. Some of 15 them, admittedly, include both an appeal to the District Court
16 and then, you know, depending on the outcome there, an appeal
17 to the Fifth Circuit. So it might involve the same case.

18 THE COURT: Okay.

19 MR. MORRIS: But there have been 55 appeals. Could 20 be 54, could be 56, something like that.

21 THE COURT: Okay.

22 MR. MORRIS: And there's -- and there's probably -- 23 there's probably at least eight or ten in the pipeline.

24 THE COURT: Eight or ten, do you mean still pending
25 when you say in the pipeline?

1 MR. MORRIS: Still pending. Either haven't been
2 briefed at all; they've been briefed and we're waiting for a
3 court to rule; you know, it's in the District Court so we'll 4 have to await the outcome there and then see if we go to the 5 Fifth Circuit. I think there are -- I think we're waiting on 6 several decisions for the Fifth Circuit. I think there are 7 three matters in the pipeline in the Fifth Circuit, and 8 there's probably four or five in the District Court.

9 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Most of which have been largely 10 briefed, so that we are awaiting decision. It's a small 11 handful where there's still work to be done.

12 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, just -- your decision last 13 week, we don't even have a judge in the District Court. The 14 notion that this is somehow, you know, on the precipice of 15 completing litigation, it's just not realistic. I'll just 16 leave it --

17 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: That's not the point. The point
18 --

19 THE COURT: Look, I've heard about this enough. I
20 know that sometimes, luck of the draw, you have a judge, let's
21 say a district judge who doesn't have criminal jury trials
22 week, week, week, week, week, for the next six months, and 23 sometimes you have someone who just wrapped up something huge 24 and can get to an appeal quickly. We're coming up on August
25 before we know it, when we have changes of law clerks, new law

1 clerks coming in. And just who knows. Nobody can predict.
2 But I just wanted sheer numbers.

3 And my last question on this is, we technically had a
4 three-year trust duration, right? And I'm sure this is like 5 every other one I've ever seen in all these years: There's an 6 ability to extend the life of the trust. Am I correct that in 7 August we have a three-year end of trust --

8 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor?

9 THE COURT: -- unless otherwise extended, Mr. Morris?

10 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, you're exactly right. And 11 we will be filing a motion, probably in the next week or two,
12 to continue the trust, precisely because of all of this 13 litigation will not be resolved on the third anniversary. So 14 you're exactly right, Your Honor. We're in the process of 15 drafting it. I can't see how it will be opposed, but I'm sure 16 it will be.

17 We'll have a chart of all of the outstanding litigation.
18 Your Honor will see how many pieces of litigation are still 19 outstanding at that time. But I do expect to file that with 20 the Court in the next week or two.

21 THE COURT: All right. And I won't get ahead of 22 myself, but, really, the only thing, I'm guessing, after close 23 to three years, that is left as far as trust administration is 24 concluding these lawsuits. Probably all the assets have been 25 liquidated, right, at this point? Or --

1 MR. MORRIS: You know, I don't know off the top of my 2 head. I think there are a handful of assets, there may be a
3 few assets that remain unsold. There's some, you know,
4 managerial responsibilities over certain funds that we have to 5 dispose of. But all of that is kind of irrelevant because all 6 of that, I'm certain, will be completed before the end of the 7 litigation cycle. You know, like, we can talk about the cases
8 that are pending, but, you know, we had a new case filed just 9 recently, right, for leave to remove Jim Seery as Trustee.
10 And so, you know, if there's -- that's -- we're talking about 11 the litigation that's pending. We also have to be concerned
12 with what litigation Mr. Dondero might bring in the future.
13 And, you know, if he can promise that he'll never bring 14 another lawsuit, we might have a different view. But, you 15 know, with the threat of ongoing litigation, yeah, we're just 16 going to have to continue to husband resources.

17 But back to your specific question of the length of the 18 trust, we do expect to file a motion shortly to extend the 19 life of the trust, probably by a year, maybe two, but probably 20 by a year.

21 THE COURT: Okay. All right. The Court --

22 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, I really apologize, but I
23 just have to tell you that I'm really low battery on my 24 computer. For some reason, my charger is not working. And if 25 I go blank, you'll know why. I'll switch to my phone.

1 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

2 As far as the ruling here today, I will extend the stay of 3 this what I'll call a contested matter. Even though we don't
4 have a response to Hunter Mountain's motion for leave to file
5 the Delaware lawsuit on file yet, I'm calling it a contested
6 matter that's been initiated by the Hunter Mountain motion.
7 I'm going to extend the stay on letting the contested matter
8 go forward until all appeals have been finally exhausted in 9 connection with this Court's prior orders in which it has 10 ruled Hunter Mountain does not have stay to either file the 11 lawsuit -- oh, yes, I'm misspeaking, I meant to say standing
12 just now when I said stay. The parties know the orders I'm 13 talking about. Twice now, this Court has ruled that Hunter 14 Mountain does not have standing to pursue litigation. The 15 first time was in connection with when Hunter Mountain wanted
16 to sue claims purchasers Farallon and Stonegate, I think it
17 was called, Stonehill, and Mr. Seery concerning certain claims
18 trading that, I'll call it, that happened during the case.

19 I ruled extensively then, and I hear Judge Brown has it on 20 appeal now, why this Court thought Hunter Mountain did not 21 have standing under the confirmation order, the plan, the 22 Claimant Trust Agreement, or Delaware law.

23 And then I understand there's a new appeal when the Court
24 ruled Hunter Mountain doesn't have standing to pursue a 25 valuation complaint.

1 So, until all appeals, whether it ends in the District
2 Court or ends in the Fifth Circuit or I suppose a cert
3 petition could be filed to the Supreme Court, until all of 4 those appeals have been exhausted, this matter will not go
5 forward.

6 I have not been convinced today that the standing issues
7 now with regard to this newest Hunter Mountain motion are 8 sufficiently different where I should go forward and hear the 9 motion for leave.

10 So, as I've alluded to a couple of times, I think it's in 11 the interests of judicial economy and the efficient
12 administration of justice and in the interests of the parties
13 that I continue the stay in effect. I think there are very 14 real issues that we do have, collateral estoppel and law of 15 the case and other sorts of estoppel issues that would even 16 preclude me, should preclude me, from looking at the current 17 motion for leave.

18 But I will nevertheless look at the four-prong test for 19 stays that traditionally are applied. Prong #1, whether there 20 has been a showing of likelihood of success on the merits.
21 Again, I view that I've already ruled on this, and I've spilt
22 much ink on this, written well over a hundred pages on this.
23 And I think there is a likelihood of success on the merits
24 with regard to the issue of Hunter Mountain not having 25 standing on appeal.

1 I think there would be certainly harm and injury here,
2 I'll say irreparable harm, if we had to go through this yet
3 again, yet again, yet again. The balance of harms certainly 4 -- well, I don't just find the Reorganized Debtor to be 5 harmed. Whether Hunter Mountain realizes it or not, everyone
6 is going to be harmed if more litigation, more expense, is 7 incurred litigating the same darn thing again. And again,
8 based on what I've heard today, I don't see it any 9 differently.

10 The cases that were filed at 7:00 p.m. Central Time last 11 night, as I said, I wasn't even aware of it. I haven't looked 12 at them. But they are older cases. It's not like something 13 hot off the press from last week that Hunter Mountain would be 14 justified in putting before the Court if it was germane. And 15 just glancing at them, they don't seem to be relevant to this 16 situation, where you have a plan that went out on notice,
17 voting, opportunity for people to object, the Court approved
18 the plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement in a confirmation
19 order that was appealed.

20 We have, on top of that, the Delaware law that seemed to 21 be fairly dispositive that Hunter Mountain is not to be deemed 22 a beneficial owner of the trust.

23 So it is not in anyone's interest, as far as balancing of 24 harms here, in this matter going forward, as long as the 25 issues are primed for an appellate judge to either say you got

1 it wrong, Judge Jernigan, or you got it right. And the public
2 interest is, I think, in favor of judicial economy and 3 efficient administration of justice in this regard.

4 So if I go to the four-pronged test, it results in, I
5 think, the stay being extended here. But, again, this is kind
6 of a unique animal. I'm not sure that's even the way we 7 should view it. The way we should view it is I've been asked
8 again and again and again to rule on this issue. I've ruled
9 on it -- I say three times because I did a lengthy order on a 10 motion to reconsider the first time I did an order on this.
11 So I have done three lengthy rulings on this.

12 I guess I'm just going to say, in closing, and I want this 13 to be helpful but I'm guessing it might not be: The optics
14 here, Ms. Deitsch-Perez, look terrible. Terrible. I mean, 15 how else should it look to the Court? It's just like this has 16 become a blood sport and the optics make it look like, well, 17 it's not about justice and fairness. It's taken this very 18 ugly turn some time ago that let's try --

19 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: We agree the --

20 THE COURT: -- let's try to destroy Mr. Seery. What 21 else is a rational judge supposed to think?

22 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor, Mr. Seery --

23 THE COURT: Now it's gotten to the point of raising 24 the same issue again and again and again. And guess what. If 25 this was going forward, if there was not going to be a stay in

1 place, I would be inclined to consider Rule 11 sanctions. How 2 many times is it proper for a party to keep asking for the 3 same thing again and again? You know, we'll use a different
4 counsel this time. We'll say it's different this time. It's 5 not different.

6 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Your Honor, it is different, and 7 Mr. Seery -- and put it -- take it away from Mr. Seery. The 8 Claimant Trustee is the fiduciary for the parties who may 9 benefit ultimately from the Claimant Trust. And so they have 10 a right to make sure that the Claimant Trustee is not 11 preventing their rights from vesting. It is a perfectly
12 legitimate exercise. It is a perfectly legitimate endeavor.

13 And the optics do look bad. It looks like that the estate
14 is doing everything it can to prevent scrutiny of that.

15 So we agree the optics are bad, but in exactly the 16 opposite way. If there were transparency here, if we could 17 actually get a trustee who doesn't have this conflict, this 18 case could be resolved.

19 THE COURT: The 55 appeals, eight or ten of which are 20 still in the pipeline. Relatively few, as you said. But we 21 are three years post-effective date. That was the optics I'm 22 talking about. There is no reason for this case not to be 23 over except for this. That's the optics I'm talking about.

24 And it's one thing to legitimately exercise your right to 25 appeal, a party's right to appeal when they disagree. God

1 bless America. That's what our judicial system is about. But 2 when you start bringing the same motion again and again and 3 again, that is definitely Rule 11 territory and definitely
4 affects credibility. Okay?

5 Mr. Morris, if you're still there, please upload a simple
6 form of order reflecting what the Court ruled today.

7 We are adjourned.

8 MR. MORRIS: I am. Thank you. Thank you, Your 9 Honor.

10 THE CLERK: All rise.
