In addition, the Debtor's Plan contains sweeping release, exculpation provisions, and a channeling injunction requiring that any permitted causes of action to be vetted and resolved by the Bankruptcy Court. On their face, these provisions violate Pacific Lumber, in with the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit rejected similarly broad exculpation clauses. The U.S. Trustee's Office in Dallas has, in all cases but this one, vigorously protected the rights of third parties against such exculpation clauses. In this case, the U.S. Trustee's Office objected to the Plan, but it did not pursue that objection at the confirmation hearing (nor even bother to attend the first day of the hearing),<sup>8</sup> nor did it appeal the order of the Bankruptcy Court approving the Plan and its exculpation clauses.

As a result of this failure, third-party investors in entities managed by the Debtor are now barred from asserting or channeled into the Bankruptcy Court to assert any claim against the Debtor or its management for transactions that occurred at the non-debtor affiliate level. Those investors' claims are barred notwithstanding that they were not notified of the releases and have never been given any information with which to evaluate their potential claims, nor given the opportunity to "opt out." Conversely, the releases insulate claims purchasers from the risk of potential actions by investors in funds managed by the Debtor (for breach of fiduciary duty, diminution in value, or otherwise). These releases are directly at odds with investors' expectations when they invest in managed funds—i.e., that fund managers will act in a fiduciary capacity to maximize investors' returns and that investors will have recourse for any failure to do so. While the agreements executed by investors may limit the exposure of fund managers, typically those provisions require the fund manager to obtain a third-party fairness opinion where there is a conflict between the manager's duty to the estate and his duty to fund investors.

As an example, the Court approved the settlement of UBS's claim against the Debtor and two funds managed by the Debtor (collectively referred to as "MultiStrat"). Pursuant to that settlement, MultiStrat agreed to pay UBS $18.5 million and represented that it was advised by "independent legal counsel" in the negotiation of the settlement.<sup>9</sup> That representation is untrue; and Highland, and HarbourVest filed claims in the Highland bankruptcy approximating $300 million in relation to damages allegedly due to HarbourVest as a result of that dispute. Although the Debtor initially placed no value on HarbourVest's claim (the Debtor's monthly operating report for December 2020 indicated that HarbourVest's allowed claims would be $0), eventually the Debtor entered into a settlement with HarbourVest—approved by the Bankruptcy Court—which entitled HarbourVest to $80 million in claims. In return, HarbourVest agreed to convey its interest in HCLOF to the SPE designated by the Debtor and to vote in favor of the Debtor's Plan.

MultiStrat did not have separate legal counsel and instead was represented only by the Debtor’s counsel.<sup>10</sup> If that representation and/or the terms of the UBS/MultiStrat settlement in some way unfairly impacted MultiStrat’s investors, they now have no recourse against the Debtor. The release and exculpation provisions in Highland’s Plan do not afford third parties any meaningful recourse to third parties, even when they are negatively impacted by misrepresentations of the type contained in the UBS/MultiStrat settlement or when their interests are impaired by fund managers’ failure to obtain fairness opinions to resolve conflicts of interest.

The U.S. Trustee’s Office recently has argued in the context of the bankruptcy of Purdue Pharmaceuticals that release and exculpations clauses akin to those contained in Highland’s Plan violate both the Bankruptcy Code and the Due Process Clause of the United States Constitution.<sup>11</sup> It has been the U.S. Trustee’s position that where, as here, third parties whose claims are being released did not receive notice of the releases and had no way of knowing, based on the Plan’s language, what claims were extinguished, third-party releases are contrary to law.<sup>12</sup> This position comports with Fifth Circuit case law, which makes clear that releases must be consensual, and that the released party must make a substantial contribution in exchange for any release. Highland’s Plan does not provide for consent by third parties (or an opt-out provision), nor does it require that released parties provide value for their releases. Under these circumstances, it is difficult to understand why the U.S. Trustee’s Office in Dallas did not lodge an objection to the Plan’s release and exculpation provisions. Several parties have appealed this issue to the Fifth Circuit.

4. The Lack Of Transparency Facilitated Potential Insider Trading

The biggest problem with the lack of transparency at every step is that it created a need for access to non-public confidential information. The Debtor (as well as its advisors and professionals) and the Creditors’ Committee (and its counsel) were the only parties with access to critical information upon which any reasonable investor would rely. But the public did not.

In the context of this non-transparency, it is notable that three of the four members of the Creditors’ Committee and one non-committee member sold their claims to two buyers, Muck Holdings LLC (“Muck”) and Jessup Holdings LLC (“Jessup”). The four claims that were sold comprise the largest four claims in the Highland bankruptcy by a substantial margin,<sup>13</sup> collectively totaling almost $270 million in Class 8 claims and $95 million in Class 9 claims<sup>14</sup>:

Claimant	Class 8 Claim	Class 9 Claims	Date Claim Settled
Redeemer Committee	$136,696,610	N/A	October 28, 2020
Acis Capital	$23,000,000	N/A	October 28, 2020
HarbourVest	$45,000,000	$35,000,000	January 21, 2021
UBS	$65,000,000	$60,000,000	May 27, 2021
TOTAL:	$269,696,610	$95,000,000

Muck is owned and controlled by Farallon Capital Management (“Farallon”), and we have reason to believe that Jessup is owned and controlled by Stonehill Capital Management (“Stonehill”). As the purchasers of the four largest claims in the bankruptcy, Muck (Farallon) and Jessup (Stonehill) will oversee the liquidation of the Reorganized Debtor and the payment over time to creditors who have not sold their claims.

This is concerning because there is substantial evidence that Farallon and Stonehill may have been provided material, non-public information to induce their purchase of these claims.<sup>15</sup> In particular, there are three primary reasons we believe that non-public information was made available to facilitate these claims purchases:

- The scant publicly-available information regarding the Debtor’s estate ordinarily would have dissuaded sizeable investment in purchases of creditors’ claims;
- The information that actually was publicly available ordinarily would have compelled a prudent investor to conduct robust due diligence prior to purchasing the claims;
- Yet these claims purchasers spent in excess of $100 million (and likely closer to $150 million) on claims, ostensibly without any idea of what they were purchasing.

We believe the claims purchases of Stonehill and Farallon can be summarized as follows:

Creditor	Class 8	Class 9	Purchaser	Purchase Price
Redeemer	$137.0	$0.0	Stonehill	$78.0 <sup>16</sup>
ACIS	$23.0	$0.0	Farallon	$8.0
HarbourVest	$45.0	$35.0	Farallon	$27.0
UBS	$65.0	$60.0	Stonehill and Farallon	$50.0 <sup>17</sup>

To elaborate on our reasons for suspicion, an analysis of publicly-available information would have revealed to any potential investor that:

- There was a $200 million dissipation in the estate’s asset value, which started at a scheduled amount of $556 million on October 16, 2019, then plummeted to $328 million as of September 30, 2020, and then increased only slightly to $364 million as of January 31, 2021.<sup>18</sup>

<sup>17</sup> Based on the publicly-available information at the time Stonehill and Farallon purchased the UBS claim, the purchase made no economic sense. At the time, the publicly-disclosed Plan Analysis estimated that there would be a 71.32% distribution to Class 8 creditors and a 0.00% distribution to Class 9 creditors, which would mean that Stonehill and Farallon paid $50 million for claims worth only $46.4 million. See Appendix, p. A-28. If, however, Stonehill and Farallon had access to information that only came to light later—i.e., that the estate was actually worth much, much more (between $472-600 million as opposed to $364 million)—then it makes sense that they would pay what they did to buy the UBS claim.

<sup>18</sup> Compare Jan. 31, 2021 Monthly Operating Report [Doc. 2030], with Disclosure Statement (approved on Nov. 24, 2020) [Doc. 1473]. The increase in value between September 2020 and January 2021 is attributable to the Debtor’s settlement with HarbourVest, which granted HarbourVest a Class 8 claim of $45 million and a Class 9 Claim of $35 million, and in exchange the Debtor received HarbourVest’s interest in HCLOF, which we believe was worth approximately $44.3 million as of January 31, 2021. See Appendix, p. A-25. It is also notable that the January 2021

- The total amount of allowed claims against the estate increased by $236 million; indeed, just between the time the Debtor's disclosure statement was approved on November 24, 2020, and the time the Debtor's exhibits were introduced at the confirmation hearing, the amount of allowed claims increased by $100 million.
- Due to the decrease in the value of the Debtor's assets and the increase in the allowed claims amount, the ultimate projected recovery for creditors in bankruptcy went from 87.44% to 62.99% in just a matter of months.<sup>19</sup>

No prudent investor or hedge fund investing third-party money would purchase substantial claims out of the Highland estate based on this publicly-available information without conducting thorough due diligence to be satisfied that the assets of the estate would not continue to deteriorate or that the allowed claims against the estate would not continue to grow.

There are other good reasons to investigate whether Muck and Jessup (through Farallon and Stonehill) had access to material, non-public information that influenced their claims purchasing. In particular, there are close relationships between the claims purchasers, on the one hand, and the selling Creditors' Committee members and the Debtor's management, on the other hand. What follows is our understanding of those relationships:

- Farallon and Stonehill have long-standing, material, undisclosed relationships with the members of the Creditors' Committee and Mr. Seery.<sup>20</sup> Mr. Seery formerly was the Global Head of Fixed Income Loans at Lehman Bros. until its collapse in 2009. While at Lehman, Mr. Seery did a substantial amount of business with Farallon. After the Lehman collapse, Mr. Seery joined Sidley & Austin as co-head of the corporate restructuring and bankruptcy group, where he worked with Matt Clemente, counsel to the Creditors' Committee in these bankruptcy proceedings.
- In addition, Grovesnor, one of the lead investors in the Crusader Fund from the Redeemer Committee (which appointed Seery as its independent director) both played a substantial role on the Creditors' Committee and is a large investor in Farallon and Stonehill.
- According to Farallon principals Raj Patel and Michael Linn, while at Sidley, Mr. Seery represented Farallon in its acquisition of claims in the Lehman estate.
- Also while at Sidley, Mr. Seery represented the Steering Committee in the Blockbuster Video bankruptcy; Stonehill (through its Managing Member, John Motulsky) was one of the five members of the Steering Committee.
- Mr. Seery left Sidley in 2013 to become the President and Senior Investment Partner of River Birch Capital, a hedge fund founded by his former Lehman colleagues. He left River Birch in October 2017 just before the fund imploded. In 2017, River Birch and Stonehill Capital were two of the biggest note holders in the Toys R Us bankruptcy and were members of the Toys R Us creditors' committee.

It does not seem a coincidence that two firms with such significant ties to Mr. Seery have purchased $365 million in claims. The nature of the relationships and the absence of public data warrants an investigation into whether the claims purchasers may have had access to non-public information.

Other transactions occurring during the Highland bankruptcy also reinforce the suspicion that insider trading occurred. In particular, it appears that one of the claims buyers, Stonehill, used non-public information obtained incident to the bankruptcy to purchase stock in NexPoint Strategic Opportunities Fund (NYSE: NHF), a publicly traded, closed-end '40 Act fund with many holdings in common with assets held in the Highland estate outlined above. Stonehill is a registered investment adviser with $3 billion under management that has historically owned very few equity interests, particularly equity interests in a closed-end fund. As disclosed in SEC filings, Stonehill acquired enough stock in NHF during the second quarter of 2021 to make it Stonehill's eighth largest equity position.

The timing of the acquisitions of claims by Farallon and Stonehill also warrants investigation. In particular, although notices of the transfer of the claims were filed immediately after the confirmation of the Debtor's Plan and prior to the effective date of the Plan, it seems likely that negotiations began much earlier. Transactions of this magnitude do not take place overnight and typically require robust due diligence. We know, for example, that Muck was formed on March 9, 2021, more than a month before it filed notice that it was purchasing the Acis claim. If the negotiation or execution of a definitive agreement for the purchase began before or contemporaneously with Muck's formation, then there is every reason to investigate whether selling Creditors' Committee members and/or Debtor management provided Farallon with critical non-public information well before the Creditors' Committee members sold their claims and withdrew from the Committee. Indeed, Mr. Patel and Mr. Linn have stated to others that they purchased the Acis and HarbourVest claims in late January or early February. We believe an investigation will reveal whether negotiations of the sale and the purchase of claims from Creditors' Committee members preceded the confirmation of the Debtor's Plan and the resignation of those members from the Committee.

Likewise, correspondence from the fund adviser to the Crusader Fund indicates that the Crusader Fund and the Redeemer Committee had "consummated" the sale of the Redeemer Committee's claims and other assets on April 30, 2021, "for $78 million in cash, which was paid in full to the Crusader Funds at closing."<sup>21</sup> We also know that there was a written agreement among Stonehill, the Crusader Fund, and the Redeemer Committee that potentially dates back to the fourth quarter of 2020. Presumably such an agreement, if it existed, would impose affirmative and negative covenants upon the seller and grant the purchaser discretionary approval rights during the pendency of the sale. An investigation by your office is necessary to determine whether there were any such agreement, which would necessarily conflict with the Creditors' Committee members' fiduciary obligations.

The sale of the claims by the members of the Creditors' Committee also violates the guidelines provided to committee members that require a selling committee member to obtain approval from the Bankruptcy Court prior to any sale of such member's claim. The instructions provided by the U.S. Trustee's Office (in this instance the Delaware Office) state:

In the event you are appointed to an official committee of creditors, the United States Trustee may require periodic certifications of your claims while the bankruptcy case is pending. Creditors wishing to serve as fiduciaries on any official committee are advised that they may not purchase, sell or otherwise trade in or transfer claims against the Debtor while they are committee members absent an order of the Court. By submitting the enclosed Questionnaire and accepting membership on an official committee of creditors, you agree to this prohibition. The United States Trustee reserves the right to take appropriate action, including removing a creditor from any committee, if the information provided in the Questionnaire is inaccurate, if the foregoing prohibition is violated, or for any other reason the United States Trustee believes is proper in the exercise of her discretion. You are hereby notified that the United States Trustee may share this information with the Securities and Exchange Commission if deemed appropriate.

In this case, no Court approval was ever sought or obtained, and the Dallas U.S. Trustee's Office took no action to enforce this guideline. The Creditors' Committee members were sophisticated entities, and they were privy to inside information that was not available to other unsecured creditors. For example, valuations of assets placed into a specially-created affiliated entities, such as the assets acquired in the HarbourVest settlement, and valuations of assets held by other entities owned or controlled by the Debtor, were available to the selling Creditors' Committee members, but not other creditors or parties-in-interest.

While claims trading itself is not necessarily prohibited, the circumstances surrounding claims trading often times prompt investigation due to the potential for abuse. This case warrants such an investigation due to the following:

- a) The selling parties were three of the four Creditors' Committee members, and each one had access to information they received in a fiduciary capacity;
- b) Some of the information they received would have been available to other parties-in-interest if Rule 2015.3 had been enforced;
- c) The sales allegedly occurred after the Plan was confirmed, and certain other matters immediately thereafter came to light, such as the Debtor's need for an exit loan (although the Debtor testified at the confirmation hearing that no loan was needed) and the inability of the Debtor to obtain Directors and Officer insurance;
- d) The Debtor settled a dispute with UBS and obligated itself (using estate assets) to pursue claims and transfers and to transfer certain recoveries to UBS, as opposed to distributing those recoveries to creditors, and the Debtor used third-party assets as consideration for the settlement<sup>22</sup>;
- e) The projected recovery to creditors changed significantly between the approval of the Disclosure Statement and the confirmation of the Debtor's Plan; and
- f) There was a suspicious purchase of stock by Stonehill in NHF, a closed-end fund that is publicly traded on the New York stock exchange. The Debtor's assets and the positions held by the closed-end fund are similar.

Further, there is reason to believe that insider claims-trading negatively impacted the estate's ultimate recovery. Immediately prior to the Plan confirmation hearing, Judge Jernigan suggested that the Creditors' Committee and Mr. Dondero attempt to reach a settlement. Mr. Dondero, through counsel, made numerous offers of settlement that would have maximized the estate's recovery, even going so far as to file a proposed Plan of Reorganization. The Creditors' Committee did not timely respond to these efforts. It was not until The Honorable Former Judge D. Michael Lynn, counsel for Mr. Dondero, reminded the Creditors' Committee counsel that its members had a fiduciary duty to respond that a response was forthcoming. Mr. Dondero's proposed plan offered a greater recovery than what the Debtor had reported would be the expected Plan recovery. The Creditors' Committee's failure to timely respond to that offer suggests that some members may have been contractually constrained from doing so, which itself warrants investigation.

We encourage the EOUST to question and explore whether, at the time that Mr. Dondero's proposed plan was filed, the Creditors' Committee members already had committed to sell their claims and therefore were contractually restricted from accepting Mr. Dondero's materially better offer. If that were the case, the contractual tie-up would have been a violation of the Committee members' fiduciary duties. The reason for the U.S. Trustee's guideline concerning the sale of claims by Committee members was to allow a public hearing on whether Committee members were acting within the bounds of their fiduciary duties to the estate incident to the sale of any claim. The failure to enforce this guideline has left open questions about sale of Committee members' claims that should have been disclosed and vetted in open court.

In summary, the failure of the U.S. Trustee's Office to demand appropriate reporting and transparency created an environment where parties needed to obtain and use non-public information to facilitate claims trading and potential violations of the fiduciary duties owed by Creditors' Committee members. At the very least, there is enough credible evidence to warrant an investigation. It is up to the bankruptcy bar to alert your office to any perceived abuses to ensure that the system is fair and transparent. The Bankruptcy Code is not written for those who hold the largest claims but, rather, it is designed to protect all stakeholders. A second Neiman Marcus should not be allowed to occur.

We would appreciate a meeting with your office at your earliest possible convenience to discuss the contents of this letter and to provide additional information and color that we believe will be valuable in making a determination about whether and what to investigate. In the interim, if you need any additional information or copies of any particular pleading, we would be happy to provide those at your request.

Very truly yours,

Debtor Protocols [Doc. 466-1]

I. Definitions

- A. “Court” means the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas.
- B. “NAV” means (A) with respect to an entity that is not a CLO, the value of such entity’s assets less the value of its liabilities calculated as of the month end prior to any Transaction; and (B) with respect to a CLO, the CLO’s gross assets less expenses calculated as of the quarter end prior to any Transaction.
- C. “Non-Discretionary Account” means an account that is managed by the Debtor pursuant to the terms of an agreement providing, among other things, that the ultimate investment discretion does not rest with the Debtor but with the entity whose assets are being managed through the account.
- D. “Related Entity” means collectively (A)(i) any non-publicly traded third party in which Mr. Dondero, Mr. Okada, or Mr. Grant Scott, or Mr. John Honis (with respect to Messrs. Okada, Scott and Honis, only to the extent known by the Debtor) has any direct or indirect economic or ownership interest, including as a beneficiary of a trust; (ii) any entity controlled directly or indirectly by Mr. Dondero, Mr. Okada, Mr. Grant Scott, or Mr. John Honis (with respect to Messrs. Okada, Scott and Honis, only to the extent known by the Debtor); (iii) MGM Holdings, Inc.; (iv) any publicly traded company with respect to which the Debtor or any Related Entity has filed a Form 13D or Form 13G; (v) any relative (as defined in Section 101 of the Bankruptcy Code) of Mr. Dondero or Mr. Okada each solely to the extent reasonably knowable by the Debtor; (vi) the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust and Dugaboy Investment Trust; (vii) any entity or person that is an insider of the Debtor under Section 101(31) the Bankruptcy Code, including any “non-statutory” insider; and (viii) to the extent not included in (A)(i)-(vii), any entity included in the listing of related entities in Schedule B hereto (the “Related Entities Listing”); and (B) the following Transactions, (x) any intercompany Transactions with certain affiliates referred to in paragraphs 16.a through 16.e of the Debtor’s cash management motion [Del. Docket No. 7]; and (y) any Transactions with Charitable DAF Fund, L.P. (provided, however, that additional parties may be added to this subclause (y) with the mutual consent of the Debtor and the Committee, such consent not to be unreasonably withheld).
- E. “Stage 1” means the time period from the date of execution of a term sheet incorporating the protocols contained below the (“Term Sheet”) by all applicable parties until approval of the Term Sheet by the Court.
- F. “Stage 2” means the date from the appointment of a Board of Independent Directors at Strand Advisors, Inc. until 45 days after such appointment, such appointment being effective upon Court approval.
- G. “Stage 3” means any date after Stage 2 while there is a Board of Independent Directors at Strand Advisors, Inc.
- H. “Transaction” means (i) any purchase, sale, or exchange of assets, (ii) any lending or borrowing of money, including the direct payment of any obligations of another entity, (iii) the satisfaction of any capital call or other contractual requirement to pay money, including the satisfaction of any redemption requests, (iv) funding of affiliates and (v) the creation of any lien or encumbrance.

- I. "Ordinary Course Transaction" means any transaction with any third party which is not a Related Entity and that would otherwise constitute an "ordinary course transaction" under section 363(c) of the Bankruptcy Code.
- J. "Notice" means notification or communication in a written format and shall include supporting documents necessary to evaluate the propriety of the proposed transaction.
- K. "Specified Entity" means any of the following entities: ACIS CLO 2017-7 Ltd., Brentwood CLO, Ltd., Gleneagles CLO, Ltd., Greenbriar CLO, Ltd., Highland CLO 2018-1, Ltd., Highland Legacy Limited, Highland Loan Funding V Ltd., Highland Park CDO I, Ltd., Pam Capital Funding LP, PamCo Cayman Ltd., Rockwall CDO II Ltd., Rockwall CDO Ltd., Southfork CLO Ltd., Stratford CLO Ltd., Westchester CLO, Ltd., Aberdeen Loan Funding, Ltd., Bristol Bay Funding Ltd. Eastland CLO, Ltd., Grayson CLO, Ltd., Highland Credit Opportunities CDO Ltd., Jasper CLO, Ltd., Liberty Cayman Holdings, Ltd., Liberty CLO, Ltd., Red River CLO, Ltd., Valhalla CLO, Ltd.

II. Transactions involving the (i) assets held directly on the Debtor's balance sheet or the balance sheet of the Debtor's wholly-owned subsidiaries, including Jefferies Prime Account, and (ii) the Highland Select Equity Fund, L.P., Highland Multi Strategy Credit Fund, L.P., and Highland Restoration Capital Partners

- A. Covered Entities: N/A (See entities above).
- B. Operating Requirements
  - 1. Ordinary Course Transactions do not require Court approval (All Stages).
    - a) Stage 1 and Stage 2: ordinary course determined by the CRO.
    - b) Stage 3: ordinary course determined by the Debtor.
  - 2. Related Entity Transactions
    - a) Stage 1 and Stage 2: Transactions with Related Entities require prior approval of CRO and five business days advance notice to the Committee and if the Committee objects, the burden is on the Debtor to seek Court approval, which the Committee agrees may be sought on an expedited basis.
    - b) Stage 3:
      - (1) Transactions with Related Entities greater than $1,000,000 (either individually or in the aggregate basis on a rolling 30 day period) require five business days advance notice to the Committee and if the Committee objects, the burden is on the Debtor to seek Court approval, which the Committee agrees may be sought on an expedited basis.

- (2) Transactions with Related Entities greater than $2,000,000 (either individually or in the aggregate basis on a rolling 30 day period) require Court approval, which the Committee agrees may be sought on an expedited basis.

3. Third Party Transactions (All Stages)

- a) Except as set forth in (b) and (c) below, Transactions in excess of $2,000,000 (either individually or in the aggregate basis on a rolling 30 day period) require three business days advance notice to Committee and if the Committee objects, the burden is on the Debtor to seek Court approval, which the Committee agrees may be sought on an expedited basis.
  - b) The Debtor may satisfy any redemption requests from entities that are not Related Entities without advance notice so long as the Debtor provides notice of such Transactions to the Committee as soon as reasonably practicable. The Debtor will provide the Committee with five business days advance notice of any redemption requests made by and payable to a Related Entity, and if the Committee objects, the burden is on the Debtor to seek Court approval, which the Committee agrees may be sought on an expedited basis.
  - c) The Debtor may satisfy margin calls and short covers without providing the Committee advance notice if the exigencies do not allow advance notice so long as the Debtor provides notice of such Transactions to the Committee as soon as reasonably practicable.
- C. Weekly Reporting: The Debtor will provide the Committee with weekly reports showing all Transactions under this category.

III. Transactions involving entities the Debtor manages and in which the Debtor holds a direct or indirect interest (other than the entities discussed in Section I above)

- A. Covered Entities: See Schedule A hereto. Schedule A includes or will include all entities the Debtor manages and in which the Debtor holds a direct or indirect interest (other than the entities discussed in Section I above).<sup>1</sup>
- B. Operating Requirements
  1. Ordinary Course Transactions do not require Court approval (All Stages).
    - a) Stage 1 and Stage 2: ordinary course determined by the CRO.
    - b) Stage 3: ordinary course determined by the Debtor.
  2. Related Entity Transactions

<sup>1</sup> The Debtor is continuing to review the Related Entities List and to determine whether any additional parties or entities should be included on Schedule A. The Debtor will update Schedule A as soon as reasonably practicable to the extent necessary.

- a) Stage 1 and Stage 2: Transactions with Related Entities require prior approval of CRO and five business days advance notice to the Committee and if the Committee objects, the burden is on the Debtor to seek Court approval, which the Committee agrees may be sought on an expedited basis.
  - b) Stage 3:
    - (1) Transactions with Related Entities greater than $1,000,000 (either individually or in the aggregate basis on a rolling 30 day period) require five business days advance notice to the Committee and if the Committee objects, the burden is on the Debtor to seek Court approval, which the Committee agrees may be sought on an expedited basis.
    - (2) Transactions with Related Entities greater than $2,000,000 (either individually or in the aggregate basis on a rolling 30 day period) require Court approval, which the Committee agrees may be sought on an expedited basis.
3. Third Party Transactions (All Stages)
- a) Except as set forth in (b) and (c) below, Transactions in excess of $2,000,000 (either individually or in the aggregate basis on a rolling 30 day period) require three business days advance notice to Committee and if the Committee objects, the burden is on the Debtor to seek Court approval, which the Committee agrees may be sought on an expedited basis.
  - b) The Debtor may satisfy any redemption requests from entities that are not Related Entities without advance notice so long as the Debtor provides notice of such Transactions to the Committee as soon as reasonably practicable. The Debtor will provide the Committee with five business days advance notice of any redemption requests made by and payable to a Related Entity, and if the Committee objects, the burden is on the Debtor to seek Court approval, which the Committee agrees may be sought on an expedited basis.
  - c) The Debtor may satisfy margin calls and short covers without providing the Committee advance notice if the exigencies do not allow advance notice so long as the Debtor provides notice of such Transactions to the Committee as soon as reasonably practicable.
- C. Weekly Reporting: The Debtor will provide the Committee with weekly reports showing all Transactions under this category.

IV. Transactions involving entities that the Debtor manages but in which the Debtor does not hold a direct or indirect interest

- A. Covered Entities: See Schedule A hereto. Schedule A includes or will include all entities that the Debtor manages but in which the Debtor does not hold a direct or indirect interest.<sup>2</sup>

2 the screen, please?

3 A. Page what?

4 Q. I think it is page 174.

5 A. Of the PDF or of the document?

6 Q. Of the disclosure statement that

7 was filed. It is up on the screen right

8 now.

9 COURT REPORTER: Do you intend

10 this as another exhibit for today's

11 deposition?

12 MR. DRAPER: We'll mark this

13 Exhibit 2.

14 (So marked for identification as

15 Seery Exhibit 2.)

16 Q. If you look to the recovery to

17 Class 8 creditors in the November 2020

18 disclosure statement was a recovery of

19 87.44 percent?

20 A. That actually says the percent

21 distribution to general unsecured

22 creditors was 87.44 percent. Yes.

23 Q. And in the new document that was

24 filed, given to us yesterday, the recovery

25 is 62.5 percent?

Page 16

1 J. SEERY

2 anybody else?

3 A. I said Mr. Doherty.

4 Q. In looking at the two elements,

5 and what I have asked you to look at is

6 the claims pool. If you look at the

7 November disclosure statement, if you look

8 down Class 8, unsecured claims?

9 A. Yes.

10 Q. You have 176,000 roughly?

11 A. Million.

12 Q. 176 million. I am sorry. And

13 the number in the new document is 313

14 million?

15 A. Correct.

16 Q. What accounts for the

17 difference?

18 A. An increase in claims.

19 Q. When did those increases occur?

20 Were they yesterday? A month ago? Two

21 months ago?

22 A. Over the last couple months.

23 Q. So in fact over the last couple

24 months you knew in fact that the recovery

25 in the November disclosure statement was

Page 15

1 J. SEERY

2 A. It says the percent distribution

3 to general unsecured creditors is

4 62.14 percent.

5 Q. Have you communicated the

6 reduced recovery to anybody prior to the

7 date -- to yesterday?

8 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the

9 form of the question.

10 A. I believe generally, yes. I

11 don't know if we have a specific number,

12 but generally yes.

13 Q. And would that be members of the 14 Creditors' Committee who you gave that

15 information to?

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. Did you give it to anybody other

18 than members of the Creditors' Committee?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. Who?

21 A. HarbourVest.

22 Q. And when was that?

23 A. Within the last two months.

24 Q. You did not feel the need to

25 communicate the change in recovery to

Page 17

1 J. SEERY

2 not accurate?

3 A. Yes. We secretly disclosed it

4 to the Bankruptcy Court in open court

5 hearings.

6 Q. But you never did bother to

7 calculate the reduced recovery; you just

8 increased --

9 (Reporter interruption.)

10 Q. You just advised as to the

11 increased claims pool. Correct?

12 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the

13 form of the question.

14 A. I don't understand your

15 question.

16 Q. What I am trying to get at is,

17 as you increase the claims pool, the

18 recovery reduces. Correct?

19 A. No. That is not how a fraction

20 works.

21 Q. Well, if the denominator

22 increases, doesn't the recovery ultimately

23 decrease if --

24 A. No.

25 Q. -- if the numerator stays the

Page 26

1 J. SEERY

2 were amended without consideration a few

3 years ago. So, for our purposes we didn't

4 make the assumption, which I am sure will

5 happen, a fraudulent conveyance claim on

6 those notes, that a fraudulent conveyance

7 action would be brought. We just assumed

8 that we'd have to discount the notes

9 heavily to sell them because nobody would

10 respect the ability of the counterparties

11 to fairly pay.

12 Q. And the same discount was

13 applied in the liquidation analysis to

14 those notes?

15 A. Yes.

16 Q. Now --

17 A. The difference -- there would be

18 a difference, though, because they would

19 pay for a while because they wouldn't want

20 to accelerate them. So there would be

21 some collections on the notes for P and I.

22 Q. But in fact as of January you

23 have accelerated those notes?

24 A. Just one of them, I believe.

25 Q. Which note was that?

Page 28

1 J. SEERY

2 you whether they are included in the asset

3 portion of your $257 million number, all

4 right? Mr. Morris didn't want me to go

5 into specific asset value, and I don't

6 intend to do that.

7 The first question I have for

8 you is, the equity in Trustway Highland

9 Holdings, is that included in the 10 $257 million number?

11 A. There is no such entity.

12 Q. Then I will do it in a different

13 way. In connection with the sale of the

14 hard assets, what assets are included in

15 there specifically?

16 A. Off the top of my head -- it is

17 Trustway Holdings and all the value that

18 flows up from Trustway Holdings. It

19 flows up from Targa. It includes CCS

20 to the Debtor from CCS Medical. It

21 includes Cornerstone and all the value

22 that would flow from Cornerstone. It

Page 27

1 J. SEERY

2 A. NexPoint, I said. They

3 defaulted on the note and we accelerated

4 it.

5 Q. So there is no need to file a

6 fraudulent conveyance suit with respect to

7 that note. Correct, Mr. Seery?

8 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the

9 form of the question.

10 A. Disagree. Since it was likely

11 intentional fraud, there may be other

12 recoveries on it. But to collect on the

13 note, no.

14 Q. My question was with respect to

15 that note. Since you have accelerated it,

16 you don't need to deal with the issue of

17 when it's due?

19 form of the question.

20 A. That wasn't your question. But

21 to that question, yes, I don't need to

22 deal with when it's due.

23 Q. Let me go over certain assets.

24 I am not going to ask you for the

25 valuation of them but I am going to ask

Page 29

1 J. SEERY

2 includes any other securities and all the

3 value that would flow from Cornerstone.

4 It includes HCLOF and all the value that

5 would flow up from HCLOF. It includes

6 from Korea.

7 There may be others off the top

8 of my head. I don't recall them. I don't

9 have a list in front of me.

10 Q. Now, with respect to those

11 assets, have you started the sale process

12 of those assets?

13 A. No. Well, each asset is

14 different. So, the answer is, with

15 respect to any securities, we do seek to

16 sell those regularly and we do seek to

17 monetize those assets where we can

18 depending on whether there is a

19 restriction or not and whether there is

20 liquidity in the market.

21 With respect to the PE assets or

22 the companies I described -- Targa, CCS,

23 Cornerstone, JHT -- we have not --

24 Trustway. We have not sought to sell

Page 38

1 J. SEERY

2 A. I don't recall the specific

3 limitation on the trust. But if there was

4 a reason to hold on to the asset, if there

5 is a limitation, we can seek an extension.

6 Q. Let me ask a question. With

7 respect to these businesses, the Debtor

8 merely owns an equity interest in them.

9 Correct?

10 A. Which business?

11 Q. The ones you have identified as

12 operating businesses earlier?

13 A. It depends on the business.

14 Q. Well, let me -- again, let's try

15 to be specific. With respect to SSP, it

16 was your position that you did not need to

17 get court approval for the sale. Correct?

18 A. That's correct.

19 Q. Which one of the operating

20 businesses that are here, that you have

21 identified, do you need court authority

22 for a sale?

24 form of the question.

25 A. [REDACTED]

Page 40

1 J. SEERY

2 or determined the discount that has been

3 placed between the two, plan analysis

4 versus liquidation analysis?

5 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form

6 of the question.

7 A. To which document are you

8 referring?

9 Q. Both the June -- the January and

10 the November analysis has a different

11 estimated proceeds for monetization for

12 the plan analysis versus the liquidation

13 analysis. Do you see that?

14 A. Yes.

15 Q. And there is a note under there.

16 "Assumes Chapter 7 trustee will not be

17 able to achieve the same sales proceeds as

18 Claimant trustee."

19 A. I see that, yes.

20 Q. Do you see that note?

21 A. Yes.

22 Q. Who arrived at that discount?

23 A. I did.

24 Q. What percentage did you use?

25 A. Depended on the asset. Each one

Page 39

1 J. SEERY

2 different analysis that we'll undertake

3 with bankruptcy counsel to determine what

4 we would need depending on when it is

5 [REDACTED]

6 either under the code are or under the

7 plan.

8 Q. Is there anything that would

9 stop you from selling these businesses if

10 the Chapter 11 went on for a year or two

11 years?

13 of the question.

14 A. Is there anything that would

15 stop me? We'd have to follow the

16 strictures of the code and the protocols,

17 but there would be no prohibition -- let

18 me finish, please.

19 There would be no prohibition

20 that I am aware of.

21 Q. Now, in connection with your

22 differential between the liquidation of

23 what I will call the operating businesses

24 under the liquidation analysis and the

25 plan analysis, who arrived at the discount

Page 41

1 J. SEERY

2 is different.

3 Q. Is the discount a function of

4 capability of a trustee versus your

5 capability, or is the discount a function

6 of timing?

7 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form.

8 A. It could be a combination.

9 Q. So, let's -- let me walk through

10 this. Your plan analysis has an

11 assumption that everything is sold by

12 December 2022. Correct?

13 A. Correct.

14 Q. And the valuations that you have

15 used here for the monetization assume a

16 sale between -- a sale prior to December

17 of 2022. Correct?

18 A. Sorry. I don't quite understand

19 your question.

20 Q. The 257 number, and then let's

21 take out the notes. Let's use the 210

22 number.

23 MR. MORRIS: Can we put the

24 document back on the screen, please?

25 Sorry, Douglas, to interrupt, but it

Page 42

1 J. SEERY
 2 would be helpful.
 3 MR. DRAPER: That is fine, John.
 4 (Pause.)
 5 MR. MORRIS: Thank you very
 6 much.
 7 Q. Mr. Seery, do you see the 257?
 8 A. In the one from yesterday?
 9 Q. Yes.
 10 A. Second line, 257,941. Yes.
 11 Q. That assumes a monetization of
 12 all assets by December of 2022?
 13 A. Correct.
 14 Q. And so everything has been sold
 15 by that time; correct?
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. So, what I am trying to get at 18 is, there is both the capability between
 19 you and a trustee, and then the second
 20 issue is timing. So, what discount was 21 put on for timing, Mr. Seery, between when
 22 a trustee would sell it versus when you
 23 would sell it?
 24 MR. MORRIS: Objection.
 25 Q. What is the percentage you

Page 44

1 J. SEERY
 2 as capable as you are?
 3 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the
 4 form of the question.
 5 A. I don't know.
 6 Q. Is there anybody as capable as
 7 you are?
 8 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the
 9 form of the question.
 10 A. Certainly.
 11 Q. And they could be hired.
 12 Correct?
 13 A. Perhaps. I don't know.
 14 Q. And if you go back to the 15 November 2020 liquidation analysis versus
 16 plan analysis, it is also the same note
 17 about that a trustee would bring less, and
 18 there is the same sort of discount between 19 the estimated proceeds under the plan and
 20 under the liquidation analysis.
 21 MR. MORRIS: If that is a
 22 question, I object.
 23 Q. Is that correct, Mr. Seery,
 24 looking at the document?
 25 A. There are discounts, yes.

Page 43

1 J. SEERY
 2 applied?
 3 A. Each of the assets is different.
 4 Q. Is there a general discount that
 5 you used?
 6 A. Not a general discount, no. We
 7 looked at each individual asset and went
 8 through and made an assessment.
 9 Q. Did you apply a discount for
 10 your capability versus the capability of a
 11 trustee?
 12 A. No.
 13 Q. So a trustee would be as capable
 14 as you are in monetizing these assets?
 15 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the
 16 form of the question.
 17 Q. Excuse me? The answer is?
 18 A. The answer is maybe.
 19 Q. Couldn't a trustee hire somebody
 20 as capable as you are?
 21 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the
 22 form of the question.
 23 A. Perhaps.
 24 Q. Sir, that is a yes or no
 25 question. Could the trustee hire somebody

Page 45

1 J. SEERY
 2 Q. Again, the discounts are applied
 3 for timing and capability?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. Now, in looking at the November
 6 plan analysis number of $190 million and
 7 the January number of $257 million, what
 8 accounts for the increase between the two
 9 dates? What assets specifically?
 10 A. There are a number of assets.
 11 Firstly, the HCLOF assets are added.
 12 Q. How much are those?
 13 A. Approximately 22 and a half
 14 million dollars.
 15 Q. Okay.
 16 A. Secondly, there is a significant
 17 increase in the value of the assets.
 18 assets over this time period.
 19 Q. Which assets, Mr. Seery?
 20 A. There are a number. They
 21 include MGM stock, they include Trustway,
 22 they include Targa.
 23 Q. And what is the percentage
 24 increase from November to January,
 25 November of 2020 to January of 2021?

Page 46

1 J. SEERY

2 A. Do you mean what is the

3 percentage increase from 190 to 257?

4 Q. No. You just identified three

5 assets. MGM stock, we can go look at the

6 exchange and figure out what the price

7 increase is; correct?

8 A. No.

9 Q. Why not? Is the MGM stock

10 publicly traded?

11 A. Yes. It doesn't trade on --

12 Q. Excuse me?

13 A. It doesn't trade on an exchange.

14 Q. Is there a public market for the

15 MGM stock that we could calculate the

16 increase?

17 A. There is a semipublic market;

18 yes.

19 Q. So it is a number that is

20 readily available between the two dates?

21 A. It's available.

22 Q. Now, you identified Targa and

23 Trustway. Correct?

24 A. Yes.

25 Q. Those are not readily available

Page 48

1 J. SEERY

2 Q. [REDACTED]

3 [REDACTED]

4 valuation for those two businesses showed

5 a significant increase between November of

6 [REDACTED]

7 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form

8 of the question.

9 A. I didn't say that.

10 Q. I am trying to account for the

11 [REDACTED]

12 identified three assets. You identified

13 MGM stock, which has, I can guess, as you

14 [REDACTED]

15 Then you identified two others that the

16 valuation is based upon something Houlihan

17 Lokey provided you. Correct?

18 A. I gave you three examples. I

19 never said "readily." That is your word,

20 [REDACTED]

21 had a significant change in their

22 valuation.

23 Q. So let's now go back to the

24 question. There is an increase in value

25 [REDACTED]

Page 47

1 J. SEERY

2 markets; correct?

3 A. No.

4 Q. Those are operating businesses?

5 A. Correct.

6 Q. [REDACTED]

7 the November 2020 liquidation analysis?

8 A. We use a combination of the

9 value that we get from Houlihan Lokey for

10 [REDACTED]

11 [REDACTED]

12 Q. And the adjustment was up or

13 down?

14 A. When?

15 Q. [REDACTED]

16 [REDACTED]

17 adjusted it. Did you adjust it up or did

18 you adjust it down?

19 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form

20 of the question.

21 A. [REDACTED]

22 adjusted it down, and for January we

23 adjusted it down. I don't recall off the

24 [REDACTED]

25 [REDACTED]

Page 49

1 J. SEERY

2 of 2021, the magnitude being roughly 60

3 some odd million dollars. Correct?

4 A. Correct.

5 Q. We can account for $22 million

6 [REDACTED]

7 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form.

8 A. Correct.

9 Q. [REDACTED]

10 settlement, so that leaves roughly

11 [REDACTED]

12 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the

13 form of the question if that is a

14 question. It is accounted for.

15 Q. What makes up that difference,

16 Mr. Seery?

17 A. A change in the plan value of

18 the assets.

19 Q. Okay. Which assets? Let's sort

20 [REDACTED]

21 A. There are numerous assets in the

22 plan formulation. I gave you three

23 examples of the operating businesses. The

24 securities, I believe, have increased in

Page 50

1 J. SEERY
 2 for one. On the operating businesses, we
 3 looked at each of them and made an
 4 assessment based upon where the market is
 5 [REDACTED]
 6 have moved those valuations.
 7 Q. Let me look at some numbers
 8 again. In the liquidation analysis in
 9 November of 2020, the liquidation value is 10 $149 million. Correct?
 11 A. Yes.
 12 Q. And in the liquidation analysis
 13 in January of 2021, you have $191 million?
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. You see that number. So there
 16 is $51 million there, right?
 17 A. No.
 18 Q. What is the difference between
 19 191 and -- sorry. My math may be a little 20 off. What is the difference between the 21 two numbers, Mr. Seery?
 22 A. Your math is off.
 23 Q. Sorry. It is 41 million?
 24 A. Correct.
 25 Q. $22 million of that is the

Page 52

1 J. SEERY
 2 of the question.
 3 Q. Mr. Seery, yes or no?
 4 A. I said no.
 5 Q. What is that based on, then?
 6 A. The person's ability to assess
 7 the market and timing.
 8 Q. Okay. And again, couldn't a
 9 trustee hire somebody as capable as you to
 10 both, A, assess the market and, B, make a
 11 determination as to when to sell?
 12 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form
 13 of the question.
 14 A. I suppose a trustee could.
 15 Q. And there are better people or
 16 people equally or better than you at
 17 assessing a market. Correct?
 18 A. Yes.
 19 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form
 20 of the question.
 21 Q. So, again, let's go back to
 22 that. We have accounted for, out of
 23 $41 million where the liquidation analysis
 24 increases between the two dates,
 25 $22 million of it. That leaves

Page 51

1 J. SEERY
 2 HarbourVest settlement, right?
 3 A. I believe that's correct.
 4 Q. Is that fair, Mr. Seery?
 5 A. I believe that is correct, yes.
 6 Q. And part of that differential
 7 are publicly traded or ascertainable
 8 securities. Correct?
 9 A. Yes.
 10 Q. And basically you can get, or
 11 under the plan analysis or trustee
 12 analysis, if it is a marketable security
 13 or where there is a market, the 14 liquidation number should be the same for 15 both. Is that fair?
 16 A. No.
 17 Q. And why not?
 18 A. We might have a different price
 19 target for a particular security than the
 20 current trading value.
 21 Q. I understand that, but I mean
 22 that is based upon the capability of the 23 person making the decision as to when to 24 sell. Correct?
 25 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form

Page 53

1 J. SEERY
 2 $18 million. How much of that is publicly
 3 traded or ascertainable assets versus
 4 operating businesses?
 5 A. I don't know off the top of my
 6 head the percentages.
 7 Q. All right. The same question
 8 for the plan analysis where you have the
 9 differential between the November number
 10 and the January number. How much of it is 11 marketable securities versus an operating
 12 business?
 13 A. I don't recall off the top of my 14 head.
 15 MR. DRAPER: Let me take a
 16 few-minute break. Can we take a
 17 ten-minute break here?
 18 THE WITNESS: Sure.
 19 (Recess.)
 20 BY MR. DRAPER:
 21 Q. Mr. Seery, what I am going to
 22 show you and what I would ask you to look
 23 at is in the note E, in the statement of
 24 assumptions for the November 2020
 25 disclosure statement. It discusses fixed

Sale of Assets of Affiliates or Controlled Entities

Asset	Sales Price
Structural Steel Products	$50 million
Life Settlements	$35 million
OmniMax	$50 million
Targa	$37 million

- These assets were sold over the contemporaneous objections of James Dondero, who was the Portfolio Manager and key-man on the funds.
- Mr. Seery admitted<sup>1</sup> that he must comply with the Bankruptcy Code, the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, and the Protocols for the sale of major assets of the estate. We believe that a competitive bid process and court approval should have been required for the sale of each of these assets (as was done for the sale of the building at 2817 Maple Ave. [a $9 million asset] and the sale of the interest in PetroCap [a $3 million asset]).

8/9/2021	Notice of Transfer of Claim - UBS to Jessup (Stonehill Capital)
8/9/2021	Notice of Transfer of Claim - UBS to Muck (Farallon Capital)

Critical unknown dates and information:

- The date on which Muck entered into agreements with HarbourVest and Acis to acquire their claims and what negative and affirmative covenants those agreements contained.
- The date on which Jessup entered into an agreement with the Redeemer Committee and the Crusader Fund to acquire their claim and what negative and affirmative covenants the agreement contained.
- The date on which the sales actually closed versus the date on which notice of the transfer was filed (i.e., did UCC members continue to serve on the committee after they had sold their claims).

AND AUTHORIZING ACTIONS CONSISTENT THEREWITH

TO THE HONORABLE STACEY G. C. JERNIGAN,
UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY JUDGE:

Highland Capital Management, L.P., the above-captioned debtor and debtor-in-possession (“Highland” or the “Debtor”), files this motion (the “Motion”) for entry of an order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A, pursuant to Rule 9019 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the “Bankruptcy Rules”), approving a settlement agreement (the “Settlement Agreement”),<sup>2</sup> a copy of which is attached as Exhibit 1 to the Declaration of John A. Morris in Support of the Debtor's Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with HarbourVest (Claim Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154) and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith being filed simultaneously with this Motion (“Morris Dec.”), that, among other things, fully and finally resolves the proofs of claim filed by HarbourVest 2017 Global Fund L.P., HarbourVest 2017 Global AIF L.P., HarbourVest Dover Street IX Investment L.P., HV International VIII Secondary L.P., HarbourVest Skew Base AIF L.P., and HarbourVest Partners L.P. (collectively, “HarbourVest”). In support of this Motion, the Debtor represents as follows:

JURISDICTION

1. This Court has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. This matter is a core proceeding within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2). Venue in this District is proper pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409.

2. The statutory predicates for the relief sought herein are sections 105(a) and 363 of title 11 of the United States Code (the “Bankruptcy Code”), and Rule 9019 of the Bankruptcy Rules.

RELEVANT BACKGROUND

A. Procedural Background

3. On October 16, 2019 (the “Petition Date”), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the “Delaware Court”).

4. On October 29, 2019, the official committee of unsecured creditors (the “Committee”) was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in the Delaware Court.

5. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the Debtor’s case to this Court [Docket No. 186].<sup>3</sup>

6. On December 27, 2019, the Debtor filed that certain Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 281] (the “Settlement Motion”). This Court approved the Settlement Motion on January 9, 2020 [Docket No. 339] (the “Settlement Order”).

7. In connection with the Settlement Order, an independent board of directors was constituted at the Debtor’s general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc., and certain operating protocols were instituted.

8. On July 16, 2020, this Court entered an order appointing James P. Seery, Jr., as the Debtor’s chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer [Docket No. 854].

9. The Debtor has continued in the possession of its property and has continued to operate and manage its business as a debtor-in-possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. No trustee or examiner has been appointed in this chapter 11 case.

B. Overview of HarbourVest's Claims

10. HarbourVest's claims against the Debtor's estate arise from its $80 million investment in Highland CLO Funding, f/k/a Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. ("HCLOF"), pursuant to which HarbourVest obtained a 49 percent interest in HCLOF (the "Investment").

11. In brief, HarbourVest contends that it was fraudulently induced into entering into the Investment based on the Debtor's misrepresentations and omissions concerning certain material facts, including that the Debtor: (1) failed to disclose that it never intended to pay an arbitration award obtained by a former portfolio manager, (2) failed to disclose that it engaged in a series of fraudulent transfers for the purpose of preventing the former portfolio manager from collecting on his arbitration award and misrepresented the reasons changing the portfolio manager for HCLOF immediately prior to the Investment, (3) indicated that the dispute with the former portfolio manager would not impact investment activities, and (4) expressed confidence in the ability of HCLOF to reset or redeem the collateralized loan obligations ("CLOs") under its control.

12. HarbourVest seeks to rescind its Investment and claims damages in excess of $300 million based on theories of fraud, fraudulent inducement, fraudulent concealment, fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, and breach of fiduciary duty (under Guernsey law), and on alleged violations of state securities laws and the Racketeer Influenced Corrupt Organization Act ("RICO").

<sup>4</sup> Solely for purposes of this Motion, and not for any other reason, the facts set forth herein are adopted largely from the HarbourVest Response to Debtor's First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims; (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No-Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-Documentation Claims [Docket No. 1057] (the "Response").

C. Summary of HarbourVest's Factual Allegations

14. At the time HarbourVest made its Investment, the Debtor was embroiled in an arbitration against Joshua Terry ("Mr. Terry"), a former employee of the Debtor and limited partner of Acis Capital Management, L.P. ("Acis LP"). Through Acis LP, Mr. Terry managed Highland's CLO business, including CLO-related investments held by Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. ("Acis Funding").

15. The litigation between Mr. Terry and the Debtor began in 2016, after the Debtor terminated Mr. Terry and commenced an action against him in Texas state court. Mr. Terry asserted counterclaims for wrongful termination and for the wrongful taking of his ownership interest in Acis LP and subsequently had certain claims referred to arbitration where he obtained an award of approximately $8 million (the "Arbitration Award") on October 20, 2017.

16. HarbourVest alleges that the Debtor responded to the Arbitration Award by engaging in a series of fraudulent transfers and corporate restructurings, the true purposes of which were fraudulently concealed from HarbourVest.

17. For example, according to HarbourVest, the Debtor changed the name of the target fund from Acis Funding to "Highland CLO Funding, Ltd." ("HCLOF") and "swapped out" Acis LP for Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd. as portfolio manager (the "Structural Changes"). The Debtor allegedly told HarbourVest that it made these changes because of the "reputational harm" to Acis LP resulting from the Arbitration Award. The Debtor further told HarbourVest that in lieu of redemptions, resetting the CLOs was necessary, and that it would be easier to reset them under the "Highland" CLO brand instead of the Acis CLO brand.

18. In addition, HarbourVest also alleges that the Debtor had no intention of allowing Mr. Terry to collect on his Arbitration Award, and orchestrated a scheme to "denude"

Acis of assets by fraudulently transferring virtually all of its assets and attempting to transfer its profitable portfolio management contracts to non-Acis, Debtor-related entities.

19. Unaware of the fraudulent transfers or the true purposes of the Structural Changes, and in reliance on representations made by the Debtor, HarbourVest closed on its Investment in HCLOF on November 15, 2017.

20. After discovering the transfers that occurred between Highland and Acis between October and December 2017 following the Arbitration Award (the “Transfers”), on January 24, 2018, Terry moved for a temporary restraining order (the “TRO”) from the Texas state court on the grounds that the Transfers were pursued for the purpose of rendering Acis LP judgment-proof. The state court granted the TRO, enjoining the Debtor from transferring any CLO management contracts or other assets away from Acis LP.

21. On January 30, 2018, Mr. Terry filed involuntary bankruptcy petitions against Acis LP and its general partner, Acis Capital Management GP, LLC. See In re Acis Capital Management, L.P., Case No. 18-30264-sgj11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018) and In re Acis Capital Management GP, LLC, Case No. 18-30265-sgj11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018) (collectively, the “Acis Bankruptcy Case”). The Bankruptcy Court overruled the Debtor’s objection, granted the involuntary petitions, and appointed a chapter 11 trustee (the “Acis Trustee”). A long sequence of events subsequently transpired, all of which relate to HarbourVest’s claims, including:

- On May 31, 2018, the Court issued a sua sponte TRO preventing any actions in furtherance of the optional redemptions or other liquidation of the Acis CLOs.
- On June 14, 2018, HCLOF withdrew optional redemption notices.
- The TRO expired on June 15, 2018, and HCLOF noticed the Acis Trustee that it was requesting an optional redemption.

- HCLOF’s request was withdrawn on July 6, 2018, and on June 21, 2018, the Acis Trustee sought an injunction preventing Highland/HCLOF from seeking further redemptions (the “Preliminary Injunction”).
- The Court granted the Preliminary Injunction on July 10, 2018, pending the Acis Trustee’s attempts to confirm a plan or resolve the Acis Bankruptcy.
- On August 30, 2018, the Court denied confirmation of the First Amended Joint Plan for Acis, and held that the Preliminary Injunction must stay in place on the ground that the “evidence thus far has been compelling that numerous transfers after the Josh Terry judgment denuded Acis of value.”
- After the Debtor made various statements implicating HarbourVest in the Transfers, the Acis Trustee investigated HarbourVest’s involvement in such Transfers, including extensive discovery and taking a 30(b)(6) deposition of HarbourVest’s managing director, Michael Pugatch, on November 17, 2018.
- On March 20, 2019, HCLOF sent a letter to Acis LP stating that it was not interested in pursuing, or able to pursue, a CLO reset transaction.

D. The Parties’ Pleadings and Positions Concerning HarbourVest’s Proofs of Claim

22. On April 8, 2020, HarbourVest filed proofs of claim against Highland that were subsequently denoted by the Debtor’s claims agents as claim numbers 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, and 154, respectively (collectively, the “Proofs of Claim”). Morris Dec. Exhibits 2-7.

23. The Proofs of Claim assert, among other things, that HarbourVest suffered significant harm due to conduct undertaken by the Debtor and the Debtor’s employees, including “financial harm resulting from (i) court orders in the Acis Bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise relegated the activity of HCLOF [i.e., the Preliminary Injunction]; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis Bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF.” See, e.g., Morris Dec. Exhibit 2 ¶3.

24. HarbourVest also asserted “any and all of its right to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor in connection with and relating to the forgoing harm, including for any amounts due or owed under the various agreements with the Debtor in connection with relating to” the Operative Documents “and any and all legal and equitable claims or causes of action relating to the forgoing harm.” See, e.g., Morris Dec. Exhibit 2 ¶4.

25. Highland subsequently objected to HarbourVest’s Proofs of Claim on the grounds that they were no-liability claims. [Docket No. 906] (the “Claim Objection”).

26. On September 11, 2020, HarbourVest filed its Response. The Response articulated specified claims under U.S. federal and state and Guernsey law, including claims for fraud, fraudulent concealment, fraudulent inducement, fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation (collectively, the “Fraud Claims”), U.S. State and Federal Securities Law Claims (the “Securities Claims”), violations of the Federal Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (“RICO”), breach of fiduciary duty and misuse of fund assets, and an unfair prejudice claim under Guernsey law (collectively, with the Proofs of Claim, the “HarbourVest Claims”).

27. On October 18, 2020, HarbourVest filed its Motion of HarbourVest Pursuant to Rule 3018 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure for Temporary Allowance of Claims for Purposes of Voting to Accept or Reject the Plan [Docket No. 1207] (the “3018 Motion”). In its 3018 Motion, HarbourVest sought for its Claims to be temporarily allowed for voting purposes in the amount of more than $300 million (based largely on a theory of treble damages).

E. Settlement Discussions

28. In October, the parties discussed the possibility of resolving the Rule 3018 Motion.

29. In November, the parties broadened the discussions in an attempt to reach a global resolution of the HarbourVest Claims. In the pursuit thereof, the parties and their counsel participated in several conference calls where they engaged in a spirited exchange of perspectives concerning the facts and the law.

30. During follow up meetings, the parties' interests became more defined. Specifically, HarbourVest sought to maximize its recovery while fully extracting itself from the Investment, while the Debtor sought to minimize the HarbourVest Claims consistent with its perceptions of the facts and law.

31. After the parties' interests became more defined, the principals engaged in a series of direct, arm's-length, telephonic negotiations that ultimately lead to the settlement, whose terms are summarized below.

F. Summary of Settlement Terms

32. The Settlement Agreement contains the following material terms, among others:

- HarbourVest shall transfer its entire interest in HCLOF to an entity to be designated by the Debtor;<sup>5</sup>
- HarbourVest shall receive an allowed, general unsecured, non-priority claim in the amount of $45 million and shall vote its Class 8 claim in that amount to support the Plan;
- HarbourVest shall receive a subordinated, allowed, general unsecured, non-priority claim in the amount of $35 million and shall vote its Class 9 claim in that amount to support the Plan;
- HarbourVest will support confirmation of the Debtor's Plan, including, but not limited to, voting its claims in support of the Plan;
- The HarbourVest Claims shall be allowed in the aggregate amount of $45 million for voting purposes;
- HarbourVest will support the Debtor's pursuit of its pending Plan of Reorganization; and
- The parties shall exchange mutual releases.

<sup>5</sup> The NAV for HarbourVest's 49.98% interest in HCLOF was estimated to be approximately $22 million as of December 1, 2020.

See generally Morris Dec. Exhibit 1.

BASIS FOR RELIEF REQUESTED

33. Bankruptcy Rule 9019 governs the procedural prerequisites to approval of a settlement, providing that:

On motion by the trustee and after notice and a hearing, the court may approve a compromise or settlement. Notice shall be given to creditors, the United States trustee, the debtor, and indenture trustees as provided in Rule 2002 and to any other entity as the court may direct.

34. Settlements in bankruptcy are favored as a means of minimizing litigation, expediting the administration of the bankruptcy estate, and providing for the efficient resolution of bankruptcy cases. See Myers v. Martin (In re Martin), 91 F.3d 389, 393 (3d Cir. 1996); Rivercity v. Herpel (In re Jackson Brewing Co.), 624 F.2d 599, 602 (5th Cir. 1980). Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019(a), a bankruptcy court may approve a compromise or settlement as long as the proposed settlement is fair, reasonable, and in the best interest of the estate. See In re Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d 530, 540 (5th Cir. 2015). Ultimately, “approval of a compromise is within the sound discretion of the bankruptcy court.” See United States v. AWECO, Inc. (In re AWECO, Inc.), 725 F.2d 293, 297 (5th Cir. 1984); Jackson Brewing, 624 F.2d at 602–03.

35. In making this determination, the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit applies a three-part test, “with a focus on comparing ‘the terms of the compromise with the rewards of litigation.’” Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors v. Cajun Elec. Power Coop. (In re Cajun Elec. Power Coop.), 119 F.3d 349, 356 (5th Cir. 1997) (citing Jackson Brewing, 624 F.2d at 602). The Fifth Circuit has instructed courts to consider the following factors: “(1) The probability of success in the litigation, with due consideration for the uncertainty of law and fact, (2) The complexity and likely duration of the litigation and any attendant expense, inconvenience and delay, and (3) All other factors bearing on the wisdom of the compromise.” Id. Under the rubric of the third factor referenced above, the Fifth Circuit has specified two additional factors that bear on the decision to approve a proposed settlement. First, the court should consider “the paramount interest of creditors with proper deference to their reasonable views.” Id.; Conn. Gen. Life Ins. Co. v. United Cos. Fin. Corp. (In re Foster Mortgage Corp.), 68 F.3d 914, 917 (5th Cir. 1995). Second, the court should consider the “extent to which the settlement is truly the product of arms-length bargaining, and not of fraud or collusion.” Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d at 540; Foster Mortgage Corp., 68 F.3d at 918 (citations omitted).

36. There is ample basis to approve the proposed Settlement Agreement based on the Rule 9019 factors set forth by the Fifth Circuit.

37. First, although the Debtor believes that it has valid defenses to the HarbourVest Claims, there is no guarantee that the Debtor would succeed in its litigation with HarbourVest. Indeed, to establish its defenses, the Debtor would be required to rely, at least in part, on the credibility of witnesses whose veracity has already been called into question by this Court. Moreover, it will be difficult to dispute that the Transfers precipitated the Acis Bankruptcy, and, ultimately, the imposition of the Bankruptcy Court’s TRO that restricted HCLOF’s ability to reset or redeem the CLOs and that is at the core of the HarbourVest Claims.

38. The second factor—the complexity, duration, and costs of litigation—also weighs heavily in favor of approving the Settlement Agreement. As this Court is aware, the events forming the basis of the HarbourVest Claims—including the Terry Litigation and Acis Bankruptcy—proceeded for years in this Court and in multiple other forums, and has already cost the Debtor’s estate millions of dollars in legal fees. If the Settlement Agreement is not approved, then the parties will expend significant resources litigating a host of fact-intensive issues including, among other things, the substance and materiality of the Debtor's alleged fraudulent statements and omissions and whether HarbourVest reasonably relied on those statements and omissions.

39. Third, approval of the Settlement Agreement is justified by the paramount interest of creditors. Specifically, the settlement will enable the Debtor to: (a) avoid incurring substantial litigation costs; (b) avoid the litigation risk associated with HarbourVest's $300 million claim; and (c) through the plan support provisions, increase the likelihood that the Debtor's pending plan of reorganization will be confirmed.

40. Finally, the Settlement Agreement was unquestionably negotiated at arm's-length. The terms of the settlement are the result of numerous, ongoing discussions and negotiations between the parties and their counsel and represent neither party's "best case scenario." Indeed, the Settlement Agreement should be approved as a rational exercise of the Debtor's business judgment made after due deliberation of the facts and circumstances concerning HarbourVest's Claims.

NO PRIOR REQUEST

41. No previous request for the relief sought herein has been made to this, or any other, Court.

NOTICE

42. Notice of this Motion shall be given to the following parties or, in lieu thereof, to their counsel, if known: (a) counsel for HarbourVest; (b) the Office of the United States Trustee; (c) the Office of the United States Attorney for the Northern District of Texas; (d) the Debtor's principal secured parties; (e) counsel to the Committee; and (f) parties requesting notice pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 2002. The Debtor submits that, in light of the nature of the relief requested, no other or further notice need be given.

WHEREFORE, the Debtor respectfully requests entry of an order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A, (a) granting the relief requested herein, and (b) granting such other relief as is just and proper.

Dated: December 23, 2020.

Exhibit 1
Settlement Agreement

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This Settlement Agreement (the “Agreement”) is entered into as of March 30, 2021, by and among (i) Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“HCMLP” or the “Debtor”), (ii) Highland Credit Opportunities CDO, L.P. (n/k/a Highland Multi Strategy Credit Fund, L.P.) (“Multi-Strat,” and together with its general partner and its direct and indirect wholly-owned subsidiaries, the “MSCF Parties”), (iii) Strand Advisors, Inc. (“Strand”), and (iv) UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG London Branch (collectively, “UBS”).

Each of HCMLP, the MSCF Parties, Strand, and UBS are sometimes referred to herein collectively as the “Parties” and individually as a “Party.”

RECITALS

WHEREAS, in 2007, UBS entered into certain contracts with HCMLP and two funds managed by HCMLP—Highland CDO Opportunity Master Fund, L.P. (“CDO Fund”) and Highland Special Opportunities Holding Company (“SOHC,” and together with CDO Fund, the “Funds”) related to a securitization transaction (the “Knox Agreement”);

WHEREAS, in 2008, the parties to the Knox Agreement restructured the Knox Agreement;

WHEREAS, UBS terminated the Knox Agreement and, on February 24, 2009, UBS filed a complaint in the Supreme Court of the State of New York, County of New York (the “State Court”) against HCMLP and the Funds seeking to recover damages related to the Knox Agreement, in an action captioned UBS Securities LLC, et al. v. Highland Capital Management, L.P., et al., Index No. 650097/2009 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.) (the “2009 Action”);

WHEREAS, UBS’s lone claim against HCMLP in the 2009 Action for indemnification was dismissed in early 2010, and thereafter UBS amended its complaint in the 2009 Action to add five new defendants, Highland Financial Partners, L.P. (“HFP”), Highland Credit Strategies Master Funds, L.P. (“Credit-Strat”), Highland Crusader Offshore Partners, L.P. (“Crusader”), Multi-Strat, and Strand, and to add new claims for fraudulent inducement, fraudulent conveyance, tortious interference with contract, alter ego, and general partner liability;

WHEREAS, UBS filed a new, separate action against HCMLP on June 28, 2010, for, inter alia, fraudulent conveyance and breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, captioned UBS Securities LLC, et al. v. Highland Capital Management, L.P., Index No. 650752/2010 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.) (the “2010 Action”);

WHEREAS, in November 2010, the State Court consolidated the 2009 Action and the 2010 Action (hereafter referred to as the “State Court Action”), and on May 11, 2011, UBS filed a Second Amended Complaint in the 2009 Action;

WHEREAS, in 2015, UBS entered into settlement agreements with Crusader and Credit-Strat, and thereafter UBS filed notices with the State Court in the State Court Action dismissing its claims against Crusader and Credit-Strat;

EXECUTION VERSION

WHEREAS, the State Court bifurcated claims asserted in the State Court Action for purposes of trial, with the Phase I bench trial deciding UBS's breach of contract claims against the Funds and HCMLP's counterclaims against UBS;

WHEREAS, on August 7, 2017, the Funds, along with Highland CDO Opportunity Fund, Ltd., Highland CDO Holding Company, Highland Financial Corp., and HFP, purportedly sold assets with a purported collective fair market value of $105,647,679 (the "Transferred Assets") and purported face value of over $300,000,000 to Sentinel Reinsurance, Ltd. ("Sentinel") pursuant to a purported asset purchase agreement (the "Purchase Agreement");

WHEREAS, Sentinel treated the Transferred Assets as payment for a $25,000,000 premium on a document entitled "Legal Liability Insurance Policy" (the "Insurance Policy");

WHEREAS, the Insurance Policy purports to provide coverage to the Funds for up to $100,000,000 for any legal liability resulting from the State Court Action (the "Insurance Proceeds");

WHEREAS, one of the Transferred Assets CDO Fund transferred to Sentinel was CDO Fund's limited partnership interests in Multi-Strat (the "CDOF Interests");

WHEREAS, Sentinel had also received from HCMLP limited partnership interests in Multi-Strat for certain cash consideration (together with the CDOF Interests, the "MSCF Interests");

WHEREAS, the existence of the Purchase Agreement and Insurance Policy were unknown to Strand's independent directors and the Debtor's bankruptcy advisors prior to late January 2021;

WHEREAS, in early February 2021, the Debtor disclosed the existence of the Purchase Agreement and Insurance Policy to UBS;

WHEREAS, prior to such disclosure, the Purchase Agreement and Insurance Policy were unknown to UBS;

WHEREAS, on November 14, 2019, following the Phase I trial, the State Court issued its decision determining that the Funds breached the Knox Agreement on December 5, 2008 and dismissing HCMLP's counterclaims;

WHEREAS, Sentinel purportedly redeemed the MSCF Interests in November 2019 and the redeemed MSCF Interests are currently valued at approximately $32,823,423.50 (the "Sentinel Redemption");

WHEREAS, on February 10, 2020, the State Court entered a Phase I trial judgment against the Funds in the amount of $1,039,957,799.44 as of January 22, 2020 (the "Phase I Judgment");

WHEREAS, Phase II of the trial of the State Court Action, includes, inter alia, UBS's claim for breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing against HCMLP, UBS's

EXECUTION VERSION

fraudulent transfer claims against HCMLP, HFP, and Multi-Strat, and UBS's general partner claim against Strand;

WHEREAS, on October 16, 2019, HCMLP filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of title 11 of the United States Code (the "Bankruptcy Code") in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware (the "Bankruptcy Case"). The Bankruptcy Case was transferred to the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the "Bankruptcy Court") on December 4, 2019;

WHEREAS, Phase II of the trial of the State Court Action was automatically stayed as to HCMLP by HCMLP's bankruptcy filing;

WHEREAS, on May 11, 2020, UBS, Multi-Strat, Highland Credit Opportunities CDO, Ltd., and Highland Credit Opportunities CDO Asset Holdings, L.P. (collectively, the "May Settlement Parties"), entered into a Settlement Agreement (the "May Settlement") pursuant to which the May Settlement Parties agreed to the allocation of the proceeds of certain sales of assets held by Multi-Strat, including escrowing a portion of such funds, and restrictions on Multi-Strat's actions;

WHEREAS, on June 26, 2020, UBS timely filed two substantively identical claims in the Bankruptcy Case: (i) Claim No. 190 filed by UBS Securities LLC; and (ii) Claim No. 191 filed by UBS AG London Branch (hereinafter collectively referred to as the "UBS Claim"). The UBS Claim asserts a general unsecured claim against HCMLP for $1,039,957,799.40;

WHEREAS, on August 3, 2020, the Bankruptcy Court entered an Order Directing Mediation [Docket No. 912] pursuant to which HCMLP, UBS, and several other parties were directed to mediate their Bankruptcy Case disputes before two experienced third-party mediators, Retired Judge Allan Gropper and Sylvia Mayer (together, the "Mediators"). HCMLP and UBS formally met with the Mediators together and separately on numerous occasions, including on August 27, September 2, 3, and 4, and December 17, 2020, and had numerous other informal discussions outside of the presence of the Mediators, in an attempt to resolve the UBS Claim;

WHEREAS, on August 7, 2020, HCMLP filed an objection to the UBS Claim [Docket No. 928]. Also on August 7, 2020, the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund, and Crusader, Highland Crusader Fund, L.P., Highland Crusader Fund, Ltd., and Highland Crusader Fund II, Ltd. (collectively, the "Redeemer Committee"), objected to the UBS Claim [Docket No. 933]. On September 25, 2020, UBS filed its response to these objections [Docket No. 1105];

WHEREAS, on October 16, 2020, HCMLP and the Redeemer Committee each moved for partial summary judgment on the UBS Claim [Docket Nos. 1180 and 1183, respectively], and on November 6, 2020, UBS opposed these motions [Docket No. 1337];

WHEREAS, by Order dated December 9, 2020, the Bankruptcy Court granted, as set forth therein, the motions for partial summary judgment filed by HCMLP and the Redeemer Committee and denied UBS's request for leave to file an amended proof of claim [Docket No. 1526];

EXECUTION VERSION

WHEREAS, on November 6, 2020, UBS filed UBS's Motion for Temporary Allowance of Claims for Voting Purposes Pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 3018 [Docket No. 1338] (the "3018 Motion"), and on November 16, 2020, HCMLP and the Redeemer Committee each opposed the 3018 Motion [Docket Nos. 1404 and 1409, respectively];

WHEREAS, by Order dated December 8, 2020, the Bankruptcy Court granted the 3018 Motion and allowed the UBS Claim, on a temporary basis and for voting purposes only, in the amount of $94,761,076 [Docket No. 1518];

WHEREAS, on January 22, 2021, the Debtor filed the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization for Highland Capital Management, L.P. (As Modified) [Docket No. 1808] (as amended, and as may be further amended, supplemented, or otherwise modified, the "Plan");

WHEREAS, on March 29, 2021, the Debtor caused CDO Fund to make a claim on the Insurance Policy to collect the Insurance Proceeds pursuant to the Phase I Judgment;

WHEREAS, on March 29, 2021, UBS filed an adversary proceeding seeking injunctive relief and a motion for a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction to, among other things, enjoin the Debtor from allowing Multi-Strat to distribute the Sentinel Redemption to Sentinel or any transferee of Sentinel (the "Multi-Strat Proceeding"), which relief the Debtor, in its capacity as Multi-Strat's investment manager and general partner, does not oppose;

WHEREAS, the Parties wish to enter into this Agreement to settle all claims and disputes between and among them, to the extent and on the terms and conditions set forth herein, and to exchange the mutual releases set forth herein, without any admission of fault, liability, or wrongdoing on the part of any Party; and

WHEREAS, this Agreement will be presented to the Bankruptcy Court for approval pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9019 ("Rule 9019") and section 363 of the Bankruptcy Code;

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the above recitals, the covenants, conditions, and promises made herein, and other good and valuable consideration, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, the Parties agree as follows:

AGREEMENT

1. Settlement of Claims. In full and complete satisfaction of the UBS Released Claims (as defined below):

(a) The UBS Claim will be allowed as (i) a single, general unsecured claim in the amount of $65,000,000 against HCMLP, which shall be treated as a Class 8 General Unsecured Claim under the Plan;<sup>1</sup> and (ii) a single, subordinated unsecured claim in the amount of $60,000,000 against HCMLP, which shall be treated as a Class 9 Subordinated General Unsecured Claim under the Plan.

EXECUTION VERSION

(b) Multi-Strat will pay UBS the sum of $18,500,000 (the “Multi-Strat Payment”) as follows: (i) within two (2) business days after the Order Date, the May Settlement Parties will submit a Joint Release Instruction (as defined in the May Settlement) for the release of the amounts held in the Escrow Account (as defined in the May Settlement) to be paid to UBS in partial satisfaction of the Multi-Strat Payment on the date that is ten (10) business days following the Order Date; and (ii) Multi-Strat will pay UBS the remainder of the Multi-Strat Payment in immediately available funds on the date that is ten (10) business days following the Order Date, provided that, for the avoidance of doubt, the amounts held in the Escrow Account will not be paid to UBS until and unless the remainder of the Multi-Strat Payment is made.

(c) Subject to applicable law, HCMLP will use reasonable efforts to (i) cause CDO Fund to pay the Insurance Proceeds in full to UBS as soon as practicable, but no later than within 5 business days of CDO Fund actually receiving the Insurance Proceeds from or on behalf of Sentinel; (ii) if Sentinel refuses to pay the Insurance Proceeds, take legal action reasonably designed to recover the Insurance Proceeds or the MSCF Interests or to return the Transferred Assets to the Funds to satisfy the Phase I Judgment and in addition shall provide reasonable assistance to UBS in connection with any legal action UBS takes to recover the Insurance Proceeds or to return the Transferred Assets to the Funds to satisfy the Phase I Judgment or obtain rights to the MSCF interests, including but not limited to the redemption payments in connection with the MSCF Interests; (iii) cooperate with UBS and participate (as applicable) in the investigation or prosecution of claims or requests for injunctive relief against the Funds, Multi-Strat, Sentinel, James Dondero, Isaac Leventon, Scott Ellington, Andrew Dean, Christopher Walter, Jean Paul Sevilla, Matthew DiOrio, Katie Irving, and/or any other current or former employee or director of the Funds or Sentinel and/or any other former employee or former director of any of the HCMLP Parties that is believed to be involved with the Purchase Agreement, Insurance Policy, Transferred Assets, the transfer of the MSCF Interests, or any potentially fraudulent transfer of assets from the Funds to Sentinel, excluding the individuals listed on the schedule provided to UBS on March 25, 2021 (the “HCMLP Excluded Employees”); (iv) as soon as reasonably practicable, provide UBS with all business and trustee contacts at the Funds, HFP, Greenbriar CLO Ltd., Greenbriar CLO Corp., Aberdeen Loan Funding Ltd, Eastland CLO Ltd, Grayson CLO Ltd, Valhalla CLO Ltd, and Governance Re Ltd, if any, that are actually known by the Debtor after reasonable inquiry; (v) as soon as reasonably practicable, provide UBS with a copy of the governing documents, prospectuses, and indenture agreements for the Funds, HFP, Greenbriar CLO Ltd., Greenbriar CLO Corp., Aberdeen Loan Funding Ltd, Eastland CLO Ltd, Grayson CLO Ltd, Valhalla CLO Ltd, and Governance Re Ltd, as applicable, that are in the Debtor’s actual possession, custody, or control, (vi) as soon as reasonably practicable, provide, to the extent possible, any CUSIP numbers of the securities of the Funds, HFP, Greenbriar CLO Ltd., Greenbriar CLO Corp., Aberdeen Loan Funding Ltd, Eastland CLO Ltd, Grayson CLO Ltd, Valhalla CLO Ltd, and Governance Re Ltd., as applicable, including information regarding the location and amount of any cash related to those entities’ holdings, in each case only to the extent actually known by the Debtor after reasonable inquiry; (vii) cooperate with UBS to assign or convey any such assets described in Section 1(c)(vi) or any other assets owned or controlled by the Funds and/or HFP, including for avoidance of doubt any additional assets currently unknown to the Debtor that the Debtor discovers in the future after the Agreement Effective Date; (viii) respond as promptly as reasonably possible to requests by UBS for access to relevant documents and approve as promptly as reasonably possible requests for access to relevant documents from third parties as needed with respect to the Transferred Assets, the Purchase Agreement, the Insurance Policy, the

MSCF Interests and any other assets currently or formerly held by the Funds or HFP, including without limitation the requests listed in Appendix A (provided, however, that the provision of any such documents or access will be subject to the common interest privilege and will not constitute a waiver of any attorney-client or other privilege in favor of HCMLP) that are in the Debtor's actual possession, custody, or control; (ix) preserve all documents in HCMLP's possession, custody, or control regarding or relating to the Purchase Agreement, the Insurance Policy, the MSCF Interests, or any transfer of assets from the Funds to Sentinel, including but not limited to the documents requested in Appendix A, from 2016 to present, and issue a litigation hold to all individuals deemed reasonably necessary regarding the same; and (x) otherwise use reasonable efforts to assist UBS to collect its Phase I Judgment against the Funds and HFP and assets the Funds and/or HFP may own, or have a claim to under applicable law ahead of all other creditors of the Funds and HFP; provided, however, that, from and after the date hereof, HCMLP shall not be required to incur any out-of-pocket fees or expenses, including, but not limited to, those fees and expenses for outside consultants and professionals (the "Reimbursable Expenses"), in connection with any provision of this Section 1(c) in excess of $3,000,000 (the "Expense Cap"), and provided further that, for every dollar UBS recovers from the Funds (other than the assets related to Greenbriar CLO Ltd. or Greenbriar CLO Corp.), Sentinel, Multi-Strat (other than the amounts set forth in Section 1(b) hereof), or any other person or entity described in Section 1(c)(iii) in connection with any claims UBS has that arise out of or relate to the Phase I Judgment, the Purchase Agreement, the Insurance Policy, the Transferred Assets, the MSCF Interests, or the Insurance Proceeds (the "UBS Recovery"), UBS will reimburse HCMLP ten percent of the UBS Recovery for the Reimbursable Expenses incurred by HCMLP, subject to: (1) the occurrence of the Agreement Effective Date and (2) UBS's receipt and review of invoices and time records (which may be redacted as reasonably necessary) for outside consultants and professionals in connection with such efforts described in this Section 1(c), up to but not exceeding the Expense Cap after any disputes regarding the Reimbursable Expenses have been resolved pursuant to procedures to be agreed upon, or absent an agreement, in a manner directed by the Bankruptcy Court; and provided further that in any proceeding over the reasonableness of the Reimbursable Expenses, the losing party shall be obligated to pay the reasonable fees and expenses of the prevailing party; and provided further that any litigation in which HCMLP is a co-plaintiff with UBS or a plaintiff pursuing claims on behalf of or for UBS's benefit pursuant to this Section 1(c) shall be conducted in consultation with UBS, including but not limited to the selection of necessary outside consultants and professionals to assist in such litigation; and provided further that UBS shall have the right to approve HCMLP's selection of outside consultants and professionals to assist in any litigation in which HCMLP is a co-plaintiff with UBS or a plaintiff pursuing claims on behalf of or for UBS's benefit pursuant to this Section 1(c).

(d) Redeemer Appeal.

(i) On the Agreement Effective Date, provided that neither the Redeemer Committee nor any entities acting on its behalf or with any assistance from or coordination with the Redeemer Committee have objected to this Agreement or the 9019 Motion (as defined below), UBS shall withdraw with prejudice its appeal of the Order Approving Debtor's Settlement with (A) the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund (Claim No. 72) and (B) the Highland Crusader Funds (Claim No. 81), and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No. 1273] (the "Redeemer Appeal"); and

EXECUTION VERSION

(ii) The Parties have stipulated to extend the deadline for the filing of any briefs in the Redeemer Appeal to June 30, 2021 and will agree to such further extensions as necessary to facilitate this Settlement Agreement.

(e) As of the Agreement Effective Date, the restrictions and obligations set forth in the May Settlement, other than those in Section 7 thereof, shall be extinguished in their entirety and be of no further force or effect.

(f) On the Agreement Effective Date, the Debtor shall instruct the claims agent in the Bankruptcy Case to adjust the claims register in accordance with this Agreement.

(g) On the Agreement Effective Date, any claim the Debtor may have against Sentinel or any other party, and any recovery related thereto, with respect to the MSCF Interests shall be automatically transferred to UBS, without any further action required by the Debtor. For the avoidance of doubt, the Debtor shall retain any and all other claims it may have against Sentinel or any other party, and the recovery related thereto, unrelated to the MSCF Interests.

2. Definitions.

(a) “Agreement Effective Date” shall mean the date the full amount of the Multi-Strat Payment defined in Section 1(b) above, including without limitation the amounts held in the Escrow Account (as defined in the May Settlement), is actually paid to UBS.

(b) “HCMLP Parties” shall mean (a) HCMLP, in its individual capacity; (b) HCMLP, as manager of Multi-Strat; and (c) Strand.

(c) “Order Date” shall mean the date of an order entered by the Bankruptcy Court approving this Agreement pursuant to a motion filed under Rule 9019 and section 363 of the Bankruptcy Code.

(d) “UBS Parties” shall mean UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG London Branch.

3. Releases.

(a) UBS Releases. Upon the occurrence of the Agreement Effective Date, and to the maximum extent permitted by law, each of the UBS Parties hereby forever, finally, fully, unconditionally, irrevocably, and completely releases, relieves, acquits, remises, exonerates, forever discharges, and covenants never to sue (A) the HCMLP Parties and each of their current and former advisors, attorneys, trustees, directors, officers, managers, members, partners, employees, beneficiaries, shareholders, agents, participants, subsidiaries, parents, affiliates, successors, designees, and assigns (each in their capacities as such), except as expressly set forth below, and (B) the MSCF Parties and each of their current and former advisors, attorneys, trustees, directors, officers, managers, members, partners, employees, beneficiaries, shareholders, agents, participants, subsidiaries, parents, affiliates, successors, designees, and assigns (each in their capacities as such), except as expressly set forth below, for and from any and all claims, debts, liabilities, demands, obligations, promises, acts, agreements, liens, losses, costs and expenses (including, without limitation, attorneys’ fees and related costs), damages, injuries, suits, actions, and causes of action of whatever kind or nature, whether known their current and former advisors, attorneys, trustees, directors, officers, managers, members, partners, employees, beneficiaries, shareholders, agents, participants, subsidiaries, parents, affiliates, successors, designees, and assigns (each in their capacities as such), for and from any and all claims, debts, liabilities, demands, obligations, promises, acts, agreements, liens, losses, costs and expenses (including, without limitation, attorneys' fees and related costs), damages, injuries, suits, actions, and causes of action of whatever kind or nature, whether known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, matured or unmatured, liquidated or unliquidated, contingent or fixed, at law or in equity, or statutory or otherwise, including, without limitation, any claims, defenses, and affirmative defenses, whether known or unknown, including, without limitation, those that have been or could have been alleged or asserted in the State Court Action or the Bankruptcy Case (collectively, the "HCMLP Released Claims"), provided, however, that notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, such releases shall not apply to the obligations of the UBS Parties under this Agreement or Section 7 of the May Settlement; and (b) the obligations of the UBS Parties in connection with the UBS Unrelated Investments.

(c) Multi-Strat Release. Upon the occurrence of the Agreement Effective Date, and to the maximum extent permitted by law, each of the MSCF Parties hereby forever, finally, fully, unconditionally, irrevocably, and completely releases, relieves, acquits, remises, exonerates, forever discharges, and covenants never to sue any of the UBS Parties and each of their current and former advisors, attorneys, trustees, directors, officers, managers, members, partners, employees, beneficiaries, shareholders, agents, participants, subsidiaries, parents, affiliates, successors, designees, and assigns (each in their capacities as such), for and from any and all claims, debts, liabilities, demands, obligations, promises, acts, agreements, liens, losses, costs and expenses (including, without limitation, attorneys' fees and related costs), damages, injuries, suits, actions, and causes of action of whatever kind or nature, whether known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, matured or unmatured, liquidated or unliquidated, contingent or fixed, at law or in equity, or statutory or otherwise, including, without limitation, any claims, defenses, and affirmative defenses, whether known or unknown, including, without limitation, those that have been or could have been alleged or asserted in the State Court Action or the Bankruptcy Case (collectively, the "Multi-Strat Released Claims"), provided, however, that notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, such releases shall not apply to the obligations of the UBS Parties under this Agreement or Section 7 of the May Settlement.

4. No Third Party Beneficiaries. Except for the parties released by this Agreement, no other person or entity shall be deemed a third-party beneficiary of this Agreement.

5. UBS Covenant Not to Sue. Subject to the occurrence of the Agreement Effective date, if UBS ever controls any HCMLP-affiliated defendant in the State Court Action by virtue of the prosecution, enforcement, or collection of the Phase I Judgment (collectively, the "Controlled State Court Defendants"), UBS covenants on behalf of itself and the Controlled State Court Defendants, if any, that neither UBS nor the Controlled State Court Defendants will assert or pursue any claims that any Controlled State Court Defendant has or may have against any of the HCMLP Parties; provided, however, that nothing shall prohibit UBS or a Controlled State Court Defendant from taking any of the actions set forth in Section 3(a)(1)-(6); provided further, however, if and to the extent UBS receives any distribution from any Controlled State Court Defendant that is derived from a claim by a Controlled State Court Defendant against the Debtor, subject to the exceptions set forth in Section 3(a), which distribution is directly attributable to any property the Controlled State Court Defendant receives from the Debtor and separate and distinct from property owned or controlled by CDO Fund, SOHC, or Multi-Strat, then such recovery shall be credited against all amounts due from the Debtor's estate on account of the UBS Claim allowed pursuant to Section 1(a) of this Agreement, or if such claim has been paid in full, shall be promptly turned over to the Debtor or its successors or assigns.

6. Agreement Subject to Bankruptcy Court Approval.

(a) The force and effect of this Agreement and the Parties' obligations hereunder are conditioned in all respects on the approval of this Agreement and the releases herein by the Bankruptcy Court. The Parties agree to use reasonable efforts to have this Agreement expeditiously approved by the Bankruptcy Court by cooperating in the preparation and prosecution of a mutually agreeable motion and proposed order (the "9019 Motion") to be filed by the Debtor no later than five business days after execution of this Agreement by all Parties unless an extension is agreed to by both parties.

7. Representations and Warranties.

(a) Each UBS Party represents and warrants that (i) it has full authority to enter into this Agreement and to release the UBS Released Claims and has not sold, transferred, or assigned any UBS Released Claim to any other person or entity, and (ii) no person or entity other than such UBS Party has been, is, or will be authorized to bring, pursue, or enforce any UBS Released Claim on behalf of, for the benefit of, or in the name of (whether directly or derivatively) such UBS Party.

(b) Each HCMLP Party represents and warrants that (i) it has full authority to enter into this Agreement and to release the HCMLP Released Claims and has not sold, transferred, or assigned any HCMLP Released Claim to any other person or entity, and (ii) no person or entity other than such HCMLP Party has been, is, or will be authorized to bring, pursue, or enforce any HCMLP Released Claim on behalf of, for the benefit of, or in the name of (whether directly or derivatively) such HCMLP Party.

(c) Each MSCF Party represents and warrants that (i) it has full authority to enter into this Agreement and to release the Multi-Strat Released Claims and has not sold, transferred, or assigned any Multi-Strat Released Claim to any other person or entity, and (ii) no person or entity other than such MSCF Party has been, is, or will be authorized to bring, pursue, or enforce any Multi-Strat Released Claim on behalf of, for the benefit of, or in the name of (whether directly or derivatively) such MSCF Party.

EXECUTION VERSION

8. No Admission of Liability. The Parties acknowledge that there is a bona fide dispute with respect to the UBS Claim. Nothing in this Agreement shall be construed, expressly or by implication, as an admission of liability, fault, or wrongdoing by HCMLP, the MSCF Parties, Strand, UBS, or any other person, and the execution of this Agreement does not constitute an admission of liability, fault, or wrongdoing on the part of HCMLP, the MSCF Parties, Strand, UBS, or any other person.

9. Successors-in-Interest. This Agreement shall be binding upon and shall inure to the benefit of each of the Parties and their representatives, successors, and assigns.

10. Notice. Each notice and other communication hereunder shall be in writing and will, unless otherwise subsequently directed in writing, be delivered by email and overnight delivery, as set forth below, and will be deemed to have been given on the date following such mailing.

11. Advice of Counsel. Each of the Parties represents that such Party has: (a) been adequately represented by independent legal counsel of its own choice, throughout all of the negotiations that preceded the execution of this Agreement; (b) executed this Agreement upon the advice of such counsel; (c) read this Agreement, and understands and assents to all the terms and conditions contained herein without any reservations; and (d) had the opportunity to have this Agreement and all the terms and conditions contained herein explained by independent counsel, who has answered any and all questions asked of such counsel, or which could have been asked of such counsel, including, but not limited to, with regard to the meaning and effect of any of the provisions of this Agreement.

12. Entire Agreement. This Agreement contains the entire agreement and understanding concerning the subject matter of this Agreement, and supersedes and replaces all prior negotiations and agreements, written or oral and executed or unexecuted, concerning such subject matter. Each of the Parties acknowledges that no other Party, nor any agent of or attorney for any such Party, has made any promise, representation, or warranty, express or implied, written or oral, not otherwise contained in this Agreement to induce any Party to execute this Agreement. The Parties further acknowledge that they are not executing this Agreement in reliance on any promise, representation, or warranty not contained in this Agreement, and that any such reliance would be unreasonable. This Agreement will not be waived or modified except by an agreement in writing signed by each Party or duly authorized representative of each Party.

13. No Party Deemed Drafter. The Parties acknowledge that the terms of this Agreement are contractual and are the result of arm's-length negotiations between the Parties and their chosen counsel. Each Party and its counsel cooperated in the drafting and preparation of this Agreement. In any construction to be made of this Agreement, the Agreement will not be construed against any Party.

14. Future Cooperation. The Parties agree to cooperate and execute such further documentation as is reasonably necessary to effectuate the intent of this Agreement.

15. Counterparts. This Agreement may be executed in counterparts with the same force and effect as if executed in one complete document. Each Party's signature hereto will signify acceptance of, and agreement to, the terms and provisions contained in this Agreement.

Warren Hellman: One of the good guys

Warren Hellman was a devoted family man, highly successful businessman, active philanthropist, dedicated musician, arts patron, endurance athlete and all-around good guy. Born in New York City in 1934, he grew up in the Bay Area, graduating from the University of California at Berkeley. After serving in the U.S. Army and attending Harvard Business School, Warren began his finance career at Lehman Brothers, becoming the youngest partner in the firm's history at age 26 and subsequently serving as President. After a distinguished career on Wall Street, Warren moved back west and co-founded Hellman & Friedman, building it into one of the industry's leading private equity firms.

Warren deeply believed in the power of people to accomplish incredible things and used his success to improve and enrich the lives of countless people. Throughout his career, Warren helped found or seed many successful businesses including Matrix Partners, Jordan Management Company, Farallon Capital Management and Hall Capital Partners.

Within the community, Warren and his family were generous supporters of dozens of organizations and causes in the arts, public education, civic life, and public health, including creating and running the San Francisco Free Clinic. Later in life, Warren became an accomplished 5-string banjo player and found great joy in sharing the love of music with others. In true form, he made something larger of this avocation to benefit others by founding the Hardly Strictly Bluegrass Festival, an annual three-day, free music festival that draws hundreds of thousands of people together from around the Bay Area.

An accomplished endurance athlete, Warren regularly completed 100-mile runs, horseback rides and combinations of the two. He also was an avid skier and national caliber master ski racer and served as president of the U.S. Ski Team in the late 1970s, and is credited with helping revitalize the Sugar Bowl ski resort in the California Sierras.

In short, Warren Hellman embodied the ideal of living life to the fullest. He had an active mind and body, and a huge heart. We are lucky to call him our founder. ## GCM Grosvenor to Go Public

The $57 billion alternatives manager will become a public company after merging with a SPAC backed by Cantor Fitzgerald.

August 03, 2020

Chicago, IL. (Tim Boyle/Bloomberg)

In a sign of the times, GCM Grosvenor will become a public company through a SPAC.

The Chicago-based alternative investments firm is planning to go public by merging with a special purpose acquisition company in a deal valued at $2 billion. The 50-year-old firm has $57 billion in assets in private equity, infrastructure, real estate, credit, and absolute return investments.

“We have long valued having external shareholders and we wanted to preserve the accountability and focus that comes with that,” Michael Sacks, GCM Grosvenor’s chairman and CEO, said in a statement.

GCM Grosvenor will combine with CF Finance Special Acquisition Corp, a SPAC backed by Cantor Fitzgerald, according to an announcement from both companies on Monday. After the company goes public, Sacks will continue to lead GCM Grosvenor, which is owned by management and Hellman & Friedman, a private equity firm. Hellman & Friedman, which has owned a minority stake of the Chicago asset manager since 2007, will sell its equity as

Case Study – Large Loan Origination

Debt origination for an affiliate of Simon Property Group Inc. and Farallon Capital Management

Date	June 2007
Asset Class	Retail
Asset Size	1,808,506 Sq. Ft.
Sponsor	Simon Property Group Inc. / Farallon Capital Management
Transaction Type	Refinance
Total Debt Amount	Lehman Brothers: $121 million JP Morgan: $200 million

Transaction Overview

- ◆ In June 2007, Lehman Brothers co-originated a loan in the aggregate amount of $321 million (Lehman portion: $121 million) with JP Morgan to a special purpose affiliate of a joint venture between Simon Property Group Inc (“Simon”) and Farallon Capital Management (“Farallon”) secured by the shopping center known as Gurnee Mills Mall (the “Property”) located in Gurnee, IL .
- ◆ The Property consists of a one-story, 200 store discount mega-mall comprised of 1,808,506 square feet anchored by Burlington Coat Factory, Marshalls, Bed Bath & Beyond and Kohls among other national retailers. Built in 1991, the Property underwent a $5 million interior renovation in addition to a $71 million redevelopment between 2004 and 2005. As of March 2007, the Property had a in-line occupancy of 99.5%.

Lehman Brothers Role

- ◆ Simon and Farallon comprised the sponsorship which eventually merged with The Mills Corporation in early 2007 for $25.25 per common share in cash. The total value of the transaction was approximately $1.64 billion for all of the outstanding common stock, and approximately $7.9 billion including assumed debt and preferred equity.
- ◆ Lehman and JP Morgan subsequently co-originated $321 million loan at 79.2% LTV based on an appraisal completed in March by Cushman & Wakefield. The Loan was used to refinance the indebtedness secured by the Property.

Sponsorship Overview

- ◆ The Mills Corporation, based in Chevy Chase MD is a developer owner and manager of a diversified portfolio of retail destinations including regional shopping malls and entertainment centers. They currently own 38 properties in the United States totaling 47 million square feet.

Angeles, CA 9

July 6, 2021

Re: Update & Notice of Distribution

Dear Highland Crusader Funds Stakeholder,

As you know, in October 2020, the Bankruptcy Court approved a settlement of the Redeemer Committee's and the Crusader Funds' claims against Highland Capital Management L.P. ("HCM"), as a result of which the Redeemer Committee was allowed a general unsecured claim of $137,696,610 against HCM and the Crusader Funds were allowed a general unsecured claim of $50,000 against HCM (collectively, the "Claims"). In addition, as part of the settlement, various interests in the Crusader Funds held by HCM and certain of its affiliates are to be extinguished (the "Extinguished Interests"), and the Redeemer Committee and the Crusader Funds received a general release from HCM and a waiver by HCM of any claim to distributions or fees that it might otherwise receive from the Crusader Funds (the "Released Claims" and, collectively with the Extinguished Interests, the "Retained Rights").

A timely appeal of the settlement was taken by UBS (the "UBS Appeal") in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division. However, the Bankruptcy Court subsequently approved a settlement between HCM and UBS, resulting in dismissal of the UBS Appeal with prejudice on June 14, 2021.

On April 30, 2021, the Crusader Funds and the Redeemer Committee consummated the sale of the Claims against HCM and the majority of the remaining investments held by the Crusader Funds to Jessup Holdings LLC ("Jessup") for $78 million in cash, which was paid in full to the Crusader Funds at closing. The sale specifically excluded the Crusader Funds' investment in Cornerstone Healthcare Group Holding Inc. and excluded certain specified provisions of the settlement agreement with HCM (the "Settlement Agreement"), including, but not limited to, the Retained Rights. The sale of the Claims and investments was made with no holdbacks or escrows.

The sale to Jessup resulted from a solicitation of offers to purchase the Claims commenced by Alvarez & Marsal CRF Management LLC ("A&M CRF"), as Investment Manager of the Crusader Funds, in consultation with the Redeemer Committee. Ultimately, the Crusader Funds and the Redeemer Committee entered exclusive negotiations with Jessup, culminating in the sale to Jessup.

A&M CRF, pursuant to the Plan and Scheme and with the approval of House Hanover, the Redeemer Committee and the Board of the Master Fund, now intends to distribute the proceeds from the Jessup transaction ($78 million), net of any applicable tax withholdings and with no reserves for the Extinguished Claims or the Released Claims. In addition, the distribution will include approximately $9.4 million in proceeds that have been redistributed due to the cancellation and extinguishment of the interests and shares in the Crusader Funds held by HCM, Charitable DAF and Eames in connection with the Settlement Agreement, resulting in a total gross distribution of $87.4 million. Distributions will be based on net asset value as of June 30, 2021.

Please note that A&M CRF intends to make the distributions by wire transfer no later than July 31, 2021. Please confirm your wire instructions on or before July 20, 2021. If there are any revisions to your wire information, please use the attached template to provide SEI and A&M CRF your updated information on investor letterhead. This information should be sent on or before July 20, 2021 to Alvarez & Marsal CRF and SEI at CRFInvestor@alvarezandmarsal.com and AIFS-IS\_Crusader@seic.com, respectively.

The wire payments will be made to the investor bank account on file with an effective and record date of July 1, 2021. Should you have any questions, please contact SEI or A&M CRF at the e-mail addresses listed above.

Sincerely,

Alvarez & Marsal CRF Management, LLC

Re: Highland Capital Management, L.P. Bankruptcy Case
Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ) Bankr. N.D. Tex.

Dear Ms. Eitel:

I am a senior bankruptcy practitioner who has worked closely with Douglas Draper (representing separate, albeit aligned, clients) in the above-referenced Chapter 11 case. I have represented debtors-in-possession on multiple occasions, have served as an adjunct professor of law teaching advanced corporate restructuring, and consider myself not only a bankruptcy expert, but an expert on the practicalities and realities of how estates and cases are administered and, therefore, how they could be manipulated for personal interests. I write to follow up on the letter that Douglas sent to your offices on October 4, 2021, on account of additional information my clients have learned in this matter. So that you understand, my clients in the case are NexPoint Advisors, L.P. and Highland Capital Management Fund Advisors, L.P., both of whom are affiliated with and controlled by James Dondero, and I write this letter on their behalf and based on information they have obtained.

I share Douglas' view that serious abuses of the bankruptcy process occurred during the bankruptcy of Texas-headquartered Highland Capital Management, L.P. ("Highland" or the "Debtor") which, left uninvestigated and unaddressed, may represent a systemic issue that I believe would be of concern to your office and within your office's sphere of authority. Those abuses include potential insider trading and breaches of fiduciary duty by those charged with protecting creditors, understated estimations of estate value seemingly designed to benefit insiders and management, gross mistreatment of employees who were key to the bankruptcy process, and ultimately a plan aimed at liquidating an otherwise viable estate, to the detriment of third-party investors in Debtor-managed funds. To be clear, I recognize that the Bankruptcy Court has ruled the way that it has and I am not criticizing the Bankruptcy Court or seeking to attack any of its orders. Rather, as has been and will be shown, the Bankruptcy Court acted on misinformation presented to it, intentional lack of transparency, and manipulation of the facts and circumstances by the fiduciaries of the estate. I therefore wish to add my voice to Douglas' aforementioned letter, provide additional information, encourage your investigation, and offer whatever information or assistance I can.

The abuses here are akin to the type of systemic abuse of process that took place in the bankruptcy of Neiman Marcus (in which a core member of the creditors' committee admittedly attempted to perpetrate a massive fraud on creditors), and which is something that lawmakers should be concerned about, particularly to the extent that debtor management and creditors' committee members are using the federal bankruptcy process to shield themselves from liability for otherwise harmful, illegal, or fraudulent acts.

BACKGROUND

Highland Capital Management and its Founder, James Dondero

Highland Capital Management, L.P. is an SEC-registered investment advisor co-founded by James Dondero in 1993. A graduate of the University of Virginia with highest honors, Mr. Dondero has over thirty years of experience successfully overseeing investment and business activities across a range of investment platforms. Of note, Mr. Dondero is chiefly responsible for ensuring that Highland weathered the global financial crisis, evolving the firm's focus from high-yield credit to other areas, including real estate, private equity, and alternative investments. Prior to its bankruptcy, Highland served as advisor to a suite of registered funds, including open-end mutual funds, closed-end funds, and an exchange-traded fund.

In addition to managing Highland, Mr. Dondero is a dedicated philanthropist who has actively supported initiatives in education, veterans' affairs, and public policy. He currently serves as a member of the Executive Board of the Southern Methodist University Cox School of Business and sits on the Executive Advisory Council of the George W. Bush Presidential Center.

Circumstances Precipitating Bankruptcy

Notwithstanding Highland's historical success with Mr. Dondero at the helm, Highland's funds—like many other investment platforms—suffered losses during the financial crisis, leading to myriad lawsuits by investors. One of the most contentious disputes involved a group of investors who had invested in Highland-managed funds collectively termed the "Crusader Funds." During the financial crisis, to avoid a run on the Crusader Funds at low-watermark prices, the funds' manager temporarily suspended redemptions, leading investors to sue. That dispute resolved with the formation of an investor committee self-named the "Redeemer Committee" and the orderly liquidation of the Crusader Funds, which resulted in investors' receiving a return of their investments plus a return, as opposed to the 20 cents on the dollar they would have received had their redemption requests been honored when made.

Despite this successful liquidation, the Redeemer Committee sued Highland again several years later, claiming that Highland had improperly delayed the liquidation and paid itself fees not authorized under the parties' earlier settlement agreement. The dispute went to arbitration, ultimately resulting in an arbitration award against Highland of $189 million (of which Highland expected to make a net payment of $110 million once the award was confirmed).

Believing that a restructuring of its judgment liabilities was in Highland's best interest, on October 16, 2019, Highland—a Delaware limited partnership—filed a voluntary petition for relief under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware.<sup>1</sup>

On October 29, 2019, the Bankruptcy Court appointed the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors ("Creditors' Committee"). The Creditors' Committee Members (and the contact individuals for those members) are: (1) The Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund (Eric Felton), (2) Meta e-Discovery (Paul McVoy), (3) UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG London Branch (Elizabeth Kozlowski), and (4) Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLP (Joshua Terry).<sup>2</sup> At the time of their appointment, creditors agreeing to serve on the Creditors' Committee were given an Instruction Sheet by the Office of the United States Trustee, instructing as follows:

Creditors wishing to serve as fiduciaries on any official committee are advised that they may not purchase, sell or otherwise trade in or transfer claims against the Debtor while they are committee members absent an order of the Court. By submitting the enclosed Questionnaire and accepting membership on an official committee of creditors, you agree to this prohibition. The United States Trustee reserves the right to take appropriate action, including removing the creditor from any committee, if the information provided in the Questionnaire is inaccurate, if the foregoing prohibition is violated, or for any other reason the United States Trustee believes is proper in the exercise of her discretion.

See Instruction Sheet, Ex. A (emphasis in original).

In response to a motion by the Creditors' Committee, on December 4, 2019, the Delaware Bankruptcy Court unexpectedly transferred the bankruptcy case to the Northern District of Texas, to Judge Stacey G.C. Jernigan's court.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Dondero Gets Pushed Out of Management and New Debtor Management Announces Plans to Liquidate the Estate

From the outset of the case, the Creditors' Committee and the U.S. Trustee's Office in Dallas pushed to replace Mr. Dondero as the sole director of the Debtor's general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc. ("Strand"). To avoid a protracted dispute and to facilitate the restructuring, on January 9, 2020, Mr. Dondero agreed to resign as the sole director, on the condition that he would be replaced by three independent directors who would act as fiduciaries of the estate and work to restructure Highland's business so it could continue operating and emerge from bankruptcy as a going concern. As Mr. Draper previously has explained, the agreement approved by the Bankruptcy Court allowed Mr. Dondero, UBS (which held one of the largest claims against the estate), and the Redeemer Committee each to choose one director, and also established protocols for operations going forward. Mr. Dondero chose The Honorable Former Judge Russell F. Nelms, UBS chose John Dubel, and the Redeemer Committee chose James Seery.<sup>4</sup>

In brokering the agreement, Mr. Dondero made clear his expectations that new, independent management would not only preserve Highland's business by expediting an exit from bankruptcy in three to six months, but would also preserve jobs and enable continued collaboration with charitable causes supported by Highland and Mr. Dondero. Unfortunately, those expectations did not materialize. Rather, it quickly became clear that Strand's and Highland's management was being dominated by one of the independent directors, Mr. Seery (as will be seen, for his self-gain). Shortly after his placement on the Board, on March 15, 2020, Mr. Seery became de facto Chief Executive Officer, after which he immediately took steps to freeze Mr. Dondero out of operations completely, to the detriment of Highland's business and its employees. The Bankruptcy Court formally approved Mr. Seery's appointment as CEO and Chief Restructuring Officer on July 14, 2020.<sup>5</sup> Although Mr. Seery publicly represented that his goal was to restructure the Debtor's business and enable it to emerge as a going concern, privately he was engineering a much different plan. Less than two months after Mr. Seery's appointment as CEO/CRO, the Debtor filed its initial plan of reorganization, disclosing for the first time its intention to terminate substantially all employees by the end of 2020 and to liquidate Highland's assets by 2022.<sup>6</sup>

Over objections by Mr. Dondero and numerous other stakeholders, the Bankruptcy Court confirmed Highland's Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization on February 22, 2021 (the "Plan").<sup>7</sup> There are appeals of that Plan, as well as many of the other rulings made by the Bankruptcy Court, currently pending before the United States District Court and the Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

Transparency Problems Pervade the Bankruptcy Proceedings

The Regulatory Framework

As you are aware, one of the most important features of federal bankruptcy proceedings is transparency. The EOUST instructs that "Debtors-in-possession and trustees must account for the receipt, administration, and disposition of all property; provide information concerning the estate and the estate's administration as parties in interest request; and file periodic reports and summaries of a debtor's business, including a statement of receipts and disbursements, and such other information as the United States Trustee or the United States Bankruptcy Court requires." See <http://justice.gov/ust/chapter-11-information> (citing 11 U.S.C. § 1106(a)(1), 1107(a)). And Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 2015.3(a) states that "the trustee or debtor in possession shall file periodic financial reports of the value, operations, and profitability of each entity that is not a publicly traded corporation or a debtor in a case under title 11, and in which the estate holds a substantial or controlling interest." This rule requires the trustee or a debtor in possession to file a report for each non-debtor affiliate prior to the first meeting of creditors and every six months thereafter until the effective date of a plan of reorganization. Fed R. Bankr. P. 2015.3(b). Importantly, the rule does not absolve a debtor from filing reports due prior to the effective date merely because a plan has become effective.<sup>8</sup> Notably, the U.S. Trustee has the duty to ensure that debtors in possession properly and timely file all required reports. 28 U.S.C. § 1112(b)(4)(F), (H).

The entire purpose of these guidelines and rules is to ensure that external stakeholders can fairly evaluate the progress of bankruptcy proceedings, including compliance with legal requirements. Particularly in large bankruptcies, creditors and investors alike should expect that debtors, their management, and representatives on creditors' committees abide by their reporting obligations and all other legal requirements. Bankruptcy is not meant to be a safe haven for lawlessness, nor is it designed to obfuscate the operations of the debtor. Instead, transparency is mandatory so that the debtor is accountable to stakeholders and so that stakeholders can ensure that all insiders are operating for the benefit of the estate.

In Highland's Bankruptcy, the Regulatory Framework Is Ignored

Against this regulatory backdrop, and on the heels of high-profile bankruptcy abuses like those that occurred in the context of the Neiman Marcus bankruptcy, the Highland bankruptcy offered almost no transparency to stakeholders. Traditional reporting requirements were ignored. This opened the door to numerous abuses of process and potential violations of federal law, as detailed below.

As Mr. Draper already has highlighted, one significant problem in Highland's bankruptcy was the Debtor's failure to file any of the reports required under Bankruptcy Rule 2015.3, either on behalf of itself or its affiliated entities. Typically, such reports would include information like asset value, income from financial operations, profits, and losses for each non-publicly traded entity in which the estate has a substantial or controlling interest. This was very important here, where the Debtor held the bulk of its value—hundreds of millions of dollars—in non-debtor subsidiaries. The Debtor's failure to file the required Rule 2015.3 reports was brought to the attention of the Debtor, the Bankruptcy Court, and the U.S. Trustee's Office. During the hearing on Plan confirmation, the Debtor was questioned about the failure to file the reports. The sole excuse offered by the Debtor's Chief Restructuring Officer and Chief Executive Officer, Mr. Seery, was that the task "fell through the cracks."<sup>9</sup> Nor did the Debtor or its counsel ever attempt to show "cause" to gain exemption from the reporting requirement. That is because there was no good reason for the Debtor's failure to file the required reports. In fact, although the Debtor and the Creditors' Committee often refer to the Debtor's structure as a "byzantine empire," the assets of the estate fall into a handful of discrete investments, most of which have audited financials and/or are required to make monthly or quarterly net-asset-value or fair-value determinations.<sup>10</sup> Rather than disclose financial information that was readily available, the Debtor appears to have taken deliberate and strategic steps to avoid transparency.

In stark contrast to its non-existent public disclosures, the Debtor provided the Creditors' Committee with robust weekly information regarding transactions involving assets held by the Debtor or its wholly-owned subsidiaries, transactions involving managed entities and non-managed entities in which the Debtor held an interest, transactions involving non-discretionary accounts, and weekly budget-to-actuals reports referencing non-Debtor affiliates' 13-week cash flow budget. In other words, the Committee member had real-time financial information with respect to the affairs of non-debtor affiliates, which is precisely the type of information that should have been disclosed to the public pursuant to Rule 2015.3. Yet, the fact that the Committee members alone had this information enabled some of them to trade on it, for their personal benefit.

The Debtor's management failed and refused to make other critical disclosures as well. As explained in detail below, during the bankruptcy proceedings, the Debtor sold off sizeable assets without any notice and without seeking Bankruptcy Court approval. The Debtor characterized these transactions as the "ordinary course of business" (allowing it to avoid the Bankruptcy Court approval process), but they were anything but ordinary. In addition, the Debtor settled the claims of at least one creditor—former Highland employee Patrick Daugherty—without seeking court approval of the settlement pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9019. We understand that the Debtor paid Mr. Daugherty $750,000 in cash as part of that settlement, done as a “settlement” to obtain Mr. Daugherty’s withdrawal of his objection to the Debtor’s plan.

Despite all of these transparency problems, the Debtor’s confirmed Plan contains provisions that effectively release the Debtor from its obligation to file any of the reports due for any period prior to the effective date—thereby sanctioning the Debtor’s failure and refusal to follow the rules. The U.S. Trustee also failed to object to this portion of the Court’s order of confirmation, which is directly at odds with the spirit and mandate of the Periodic Reporting Requirements recently adopted by the EOUST and historical rules mandating transparency.<sup>11</sup>

As will become apparent, because neither the federal Bankruptcy Court nor the U.S. Trustee advocated or demanded compliance with the rules, the Debtor, its newly-appointed management, and the Creditors’ Committee charged with protecting the interests of all creditors were able to manipulate the estate for the benefit of a handful of insiders, seemingly in contravention of law.

Debtor And Debtor-Affiliate Assets Were Deliberately Hidden and Mischaracterized

Largely because of the Debtor’s failure to file Rule 2015.3 reports for affiliate entities, interested parties and creditors wishing to evaluate the worth and mix of assets held in non-Debtor affiliates could not do so. This is particularly problematic, because during proceedings, the Debtor sold $172 million in assets, which altered the mix of assets and liabilities of the Debtor’s affiliates and controlled entities. In addition, the estate’s asset value decreased by approximately $200 million in a matter of months. Absent financial reporting, it was impossible for stakeholders to determine whether the $200 impairment in asset value reflected actual realized losses or merely temporary mark-downs precipitated by problems experienced by certain assets during the pandemic (including labor shortages, supply-chain issues, travel interruptions, and the like). Although the Bankruptcy Court held that such sales did not require Court approval, a Rule 2015.3 report would have revealed the mix of assets and the corresponding reduction in liabilities of the affiliated or controlled entity—information that was critical in evaluating the worth of claims against the estate or future investments into it.

One transaction that was particularly problematic involved alleged creditor HarbourVest, a private equity fund with approximately $75 billion under management. Prior to Highland’s bankruptcy, HarbourVest had invested $80 million into (and obtained 49.98% of the outstanding shares of) a Highland fund called Acis Loan Funding, later rebranded as Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (“HCLOF”). A charitable fund called Charitable DAF Fund, L.P. (“DAF”) held 49.02% member interests in HCLOF, and the remaining 2.00% was held by Highland and certain of its employees. Prior to Highland’s bankruptcy proceedings, a dispute arose between HarbourVest and Highland, in which HarbourVest claimed it was duped into making the investment because Highland allegedly failed to disclose key facts relating to the investment (namely, that Highland was engaged in ongoing litigation with former employee, Josh Terry, which would result in HCLOF's incurring legal fees and costs). HarbourVest alleged that, as a result of the Terry lawsuit, HCLOF incurred approximately $15 million in legal fees and costs.<sup>12</sup>

In the context of Highland's bankruptcy, however, HarbourVest filed a proof of claim alleging that it was due over $300 million in damages in the dispute, a claim that bore no relationship to economic reality. As a result, Debtor management initially valued HarbourVest's claims at $0, a value consistently reflected in the Debtor's publicly-filed financial statements, up through and including its December 2020 Monthly Operating Report.<sup>13</sup> Eventually, however, the Debtor announced a settlement with HarbourVest which entitled HarbourVest to $45 million in Class 8 claims and $35 million in Class 9 claims.<sup>14</sup> At the time, the Debtor's public disclosures reflected that Class 8 creditors could expect to receive approximately 70% payout on their claims, and Class 9 creditors could expect 0.00%. In other words, HarbourVest's total $80 million in allowed claims would allow HarbourVest to realize a $31.5 million return.<sup>15</sup>

As consideration for this potential payout, HarbourVest agreed to convey its interest in HCLOF to a special-purpose entity ("SPE") designated by the Debtor (a transaction that involved a trade of securities) and to vote in favor of the Debtor's Plan. In its pleadings and testimony in support of the settlement, the Debtor represented that the value of HarbourVest's interest in HCLOF was $22.5 million. It later came to light, however, that the actual value of that asset was at least $44 million.

There are numerous problems with this transaction which may not have occurred with the requisite transparency. As a registered investment advisor, the Debtor had a fiduciary obligation to disclose the true value of HarbourVest's interest in HCLOF to investors in that fund. The Debtor also had a fiduciary obligation to offer the investment opportunity to the other investors prior to purchasing HarbourVest's interest for itself. Mr. Seery has acknowledged that his fiduciary duties to the Debtor's managed funds and investors supersedes any fiduciary duties owed to the Debtor and its creditors in bankruptcy. Nevertheless, the Debtor and its management appear to have misrepresented the value of the HarbourVest asset, brokered a purchase of the asset without disclosure to investors, and thereafter placed the HarbourVest interest into a non-reporting SPE.<sup>16</sup> This meant that no outside stakeholder had any ability to assess the value of that interest, nor could any outsider possibly ascertain how the acquisition of that interest impacted the bankruptcy estate. In the absence of Rule 2015.3 reports or listing of the HCLOF interest on the Debtor's balance sheet, it was impossible to determine at the time of the HarbourVest settlement (or thereafter) whether the Debtor properly accounted for the asset on its balance sheet.

Highland engaged in several other asset sales in bankruptcy without disclosing those sales in advance to outside stakeholders or investors, and without offering investors in funds impacted by the sales the opportunity to purchase the assets. For example:

<sup>12</sup> Assuming that HarbourVest were entitled to fraud damages as it claimed, the true amount of its damages was less than $7.5 million (because HarbourVest only would have borne 49.98% of the $15 million in legal fees).

<sup>15</sup> We have reason to believe that HarbourVest's Class 8 and Class 9 claims were contemporaneously sold to Farallon Capital Management—an SEC-registered investment advisor—for approximately $28 million.

- The Debtor sold approximately $25 million of NexPoint Residential Trust shares that today are valued at over $70 million; the Debtor likewise sold $6 million of PTLA shares that were taken over less than 60 days later for $18 million.
- The Debtor divested interests worth $145 million held in certain life settlements (which paid on the death of the individuals covered, whose average age was 90) for $35 million rather than continuing to pay premiums on the policies, and did so without obtaining updated estimates of the life settlements' value, to the detriment of the fund and investors (today two of the covered individuals have a life expectancy of less than one year);
- The Debtor sold interests in OmniMax without informing the Bankruptcy Court, without engaging in a competitive bidding process, and without cooperating with other funds managed by Mr. Dondero, resulting in what we believe is substantially lesser value to investors;
- The Debtor sold interests in Structural Steel Products (worth $50 million) and Targa (worth $37 million), again without any process or notice to the Bankruptcy Court or outside stakeholders, resulting in what we believe is diminished value for the estate and investors.

Because the Bankruptcy Code does not define what constitutes a transaction in the "ordinary course of business," the Debtor's management was able to characterize these massive sales as ordinary course transactions when they were anything but ordinary, resulting in diminution in value to the estate and its creditors.

In summary, the consistent lack of transparency throughout bankruptcy proceedings facilitated sales and deal-making that failed to maximize value for the estate and precluded outside stakeholders from evaluating or participating in asset purchases or claims trading that might have benefitted the estate and outside investors in Debtor-managed funds.

The Debtor Reneged on Its Promise to Pay Key Employees, Contrary to Sworn Testimony

Highland's bankruptcy also diverges from the norm in its treatment of key employees, who usually can expect to be fairly compensated for pre-petition work and post-petition work done for the benefit of the estate. That did not happen here, despite the Debtor's representation to the Bankruptcy Court that it would.

By way of background, prior to its bankruptcy, Highland offered employees two bonus plans: an Annual Bonus Plan and a Deferred Bonus Plan. Under the Annual Bonus Plan, all of Highland's employees were eligible for a yearly bonus payable in up to four equal installments, at six-month intervals, on the last business day of each February and August. Under the Deferred Bonus Plan, Highland's employees were awarded shares of a designated publicly traded stock, the right to which vested 39 months later. Under both bonus plans, the only condition to payment was that the employee be employed by Highland at the time the award (or any portion of it) vested.

At the outset of the bankruptcy proceedings, the Debtor promised that pre-petition bonus plans would be honored. Specifically, in its Motion For Entry of an Order Authorizing the Debtor to Pay and Honor Ordinary Course Obligations Under Employee Bonus Plans and Granting Related Relief, the Debtor informed the Court that employee bonuses "continue[d] to be earned on a post-petition basis," and that "employee compensation under the Bonus Plans [was] critical to the Debtor's ongoing

Ms. Nan R. Eitel
November 3, 2021

operations and that any threat of nonpayment under such plans would have a potentially catastrophic impact on the Debtor's reorganization efforts.<sup>17</sup> Significantly, the Debtor explained to the Court that its operations were leanly staffed, such that all employees were critical to ongoing operations and such that it expected to compensate all employees. As a result of these representations, key employees continued to work for the Debtor, some of whom invested significant hours at work ensuring that the Debtor's new management had access to critical information for purposes of reorganizing the estate.

Having induced Highland's employees to continue their employment, the Debtor abruptly changed course, refusing to pay key employees awards earned pre-petition under the Annual Bonus Plan and bonuses earned pre-petition under the Deferred Bonus Plan that vested post-petition. In fact, Mr. Seery chose to terminate four key employees just before the vesting date in an effort to avoid payment, despite his repeated assurances to the employees that they would be "made whole." Worse still, notwithstanding the Debtor's failure and refusal to pay bonuses earned and promised to these terminated employees, in Monthly Operating Reports signed by Mr. Seery under penalty of perjury, the Debtor continued to treat the amounts owed to the employees as post-petition obligations, which the Debtor continued to accrue as post-petition liabilities even after termination of their employment.

The Debtor's misrepresentations to the Bankruptcy Court and to the employees themselves fly in the face of usual bankruptcy procedure. As the Fifth Circuit has explained, administrative expenses like key employee salaries are an "actual and necessary cost" that provides a "benefit to the state and its creditors."<sup>18</sup> It is undisputed that these employees continued to work for the Debtor, providing an unquestionable benefit to the estate post-petition, but were not provided the promised compensation, for reasons known only to the Debtor.

Again, this is not business as usual in bankruptcy proceedings, and if we are to ensure the continued success of debtors in reorganization proceedings, it is important that key employees be paid in the ordinary course for their efforts in assisting debtors and that debtor management be made to live up to promises made under penalty of perjury to the bankruptcy courts.

There Is Substantial Evidence that Insider Trading Occurred

Perhaps one of the biggest problems with the lack of transparency at every step is that it facilitated potential insider trading. The Debtor (as well as its advisors and professionals) and the Creditors' Committee (and its counsel) had access to critical information upon which any reasonable investor would rely. But because of the lack of reporting, the public did not.

Mr. Draper's October 4, 2021 letter sets forth in detail the reasons for suspecting that insider trading occurred, but his explanation bears repeating here. In the context of a non-transparent bankruptcy proceeding, three of the four members of the Creditors' Committee and one non-committee member sold their claims to two buyers, Muck Holdings LLC ("Muck") and Jessup Holdings LLC ("Jessup"). The four claims sold comprise the largest four claims in the Highland bankruptcy by a substantial margin,<sup>19</sup> collectively totaling almost $270 million in Class 8 claims and $95 million in Class 9 claims:

Muck is owned and controlled by Farallon Capital Management (“Farallon”), and we believe Jessup is owned and controlled by Stonehill Capital Management (“Stonehill”). As the purchasers of the four largest claims in the bankruptcy, Muck (Farallon) and Jessup (Stonehill) will oversee the liquidation of the reorganized Debtor and the payment over time to creditors who have not sold their claims. These two hedge funds also will determine the performance bonus due to Mr. Seery for liquidating the estate. As set forth in the attached balance sheet dated August 31, 2021, we estimate that the estate today is worth nearly $600 million,<sup>20</sup> which could result in Mr. Seery’s receipt of a performance bonus approximating $50 million.

This is concerning because there is substantial evidence that Farallon and Stonehill may have been provided material, non-public information to induce their purchase of these claims. We agree with Mr. Draper that there are three primary reasons to believe that non-public information was made available to facilitate these claims purchases:

- The scant publicly-available information regarding the Debtor’s estate ordinarily would have dissuaded sizeable investment in purchases of creditors’ claims;
- The information that actually was publicly available ordinarily would have compelled a prudent investor to conduct robust due diligence prior to purchasing the claims;
- Yet these claims purchasers spent in excess of $100 million (and likely closer to $150 million) on claims, ostensibly without any idea of what they were purchasing.

Credible information indicates that the claims purchases of Stonehill and Farallon can be summarized as follows:

Redeemer	$137.0	$0.0	Stonehill	$78.0 <sup>21</sup>
ACIS	$23.0	$0.0	Farallon	$8.0
HarbourVest	$45.0	$35.0	Farallon	$27.0
UBS	$65.0	$60.0	Stonehill and Farallon	$50.0

An analysis of publicly-available information would have revealed to any potential investor that:

- The estate's asset value had decreased by $200 million, from $556 million on October 16, 2019, to $328 million as of September 30, 2020 (increasing only slightly to $364 million as of January 31, 2021).<sup>22</sup>
- Allowed claims against the estate increased by a total amount of $236 million.
- Due to the decrease in the value of the Debtor's assets and the increase in the allowed claims amount, the ultimate projected recovery for creditors in bankruptcy decreased from 87.44% to 62.99% in just a matter of months.<sup>23</sup>

No prudent investor or hedge fund investing third-party money would purchase substantial claims out of the Highland estate based on this publicly-available information absent robust due diligence demonstrating that the investment was sound.

As discussed by Mr. Draper, the very close relationships between the claims purchasers, on the one hand, and the selling Creditors' Committee members and the Debtor's management, on the other hand also raise red flags. In particular:

- Farallon and Stonehill have long-standing, material relationships with the members of the Creditors' Committee and Mr. Seery. Mr. Seery formerly was the Global Head of Fixed Income Loans at Lehman Bros. until its collapse in 2009. While Mr. Seery was Global Head, Lehman Bros. did substantial business with Farallon. After Lehman's collapse, Mr. Seery joined Sidley & Austin as co-head of the corporate restructuring and bankruptcy group, where he worked with Matt Clemente, counsel to the Creditors' Committee in Highland's bankruptcy proceedings.
- In addition, Grovesnor, one of the lead investors in the Crusader Funds from the Redeemer Committee (which appointed Seery as its independent director) both played a substantial role on the Creditors' Committee and is a large investor in Farallon and Stonehill. It is unclear whether Grovesnor, a registered investment advisor, notified minority investors in the Crusader Funds or Farallon and Stonehill of these facts.
- According to Farallon principals Raj Patel and Michael Linn, while at Sidley, Mr. Seery assisted Farallon in its acquisition of claims in the Lehman estate, and Farallon realized more than $100 million in claims on those trades.

<sup>22</sup> Compare Jan. 31, 2021 Monthly Operating Report [Dkt. 2030], with Disclosure Statement (approved on Nov. 24, 2020) [Dkt. 1473]. The increase in value between September 2020 and January 2021 is attributable to the Debtor's settlement with HarbourVest, which granted HarbourVest a Class 8 claim of $45 million and a Class 9 Claim of $35 million, and in exchange the Debtor received HarbourVest's interest in HCLOF, which in reality was worth approximately $44.3 million as of January 31, 2021. See Ex. C. It is also notable that the January 2021 monthly financial report values Class 8 claims at $267 million, an exponential increase over their estimated value of $74 million in December 2020.

- Also while at Sidley, Mr. Seery represented the Steering Committee in the Blockbuster Video bankruptcy; Stonehill (through its Managing Member, John Motulsky) was one of the five members of the Steering Committee.
- Mr. Seery left Sidley in 2013 to become the President and Senior Investment Partner of River Birch Capital, a hedge fund founded by his former Lehman colleagues. He left River Birch in October 2017 just before the fund imploded. In 2017, River Birch and Stonehill Capital were two of the biggest note holders in the Toys R Us bankruptcy and were members of the Toys R Us creditors' committee.

I strongly agree with Mr. Draper that it is suspicious that two firms with such significant ties to Mr. Seery have purchased $365 million in claims. The aggregate $150 million purchase price paid by Farallon and Stonehill is 56% of all Class 8 claims, virtually the full plan value expected to be realized after two years. We believe it is worth investigating whether these claims buyers had access to material, non-public information regarding the actual value of the estate.

Other transactions occurring during the Highland bankruptcy also reinforce the suspicion that insider trading occurred. In particular, it appears that one of the claims buyers, Stonehill, used non-public information obtained incident to the bankruptcy to purchase stock in NexPoint Strategic Opportunities Fund (NYSE: NHF), a publicly traded, closed-end '40 Act fund with many holdings in common with assets held in the Highland estate outlined above. Stonehill is a registered investment adviser with $3 billion under management that has historically owned very few equity interests, particularly equity interests in a closed-end fund. As disclosed in SEC filings, Stonehill acquired enough stock in NHF during the second quarter of 2021 to make it Stonehill's eighth largest equity position.

The timing of the acquisitions of claims by Farallon and Stonehill also raises suspicion. For example, although notices of the transfer of the claims were filed immediately after the confirmation of the Debtor's Plan and prior to the effective date of the Plan, it seems likely that negotiations began much earlier. Transactions of this magnitude do not take place overnight and typically require robust due diligence. Muck was formed on March 9, 2021, more than a month before it filed notice that it was purchasing the Acis claim. If the negotiation or execution of a definitive agreement for the purchase began before or contemporaneously with Muck's formation, then there is every reason to believe that selling Creditors' Committee members and/or Debtor management provided Farallon with critical non-public information well before the Creditors' Committee members sold their claims and withdrew from the Committee. Indeed, Mr. Patel and Mr. Linn have stated to others that they purchased the Acis and HarbourVest claims in late January or early February. This is strong evidence that negotiation and/or agreements relating to the purchase of claims from Creditors' Committee members preceded the confirmation of the Debtor's Plan and the resignation of those members from the Committee.

Likewise, correspondence from the fund adviser to the Crusader Funds indicates that the Crusader Funds and the Redeemer Committee had "consummated" the sale of the Redeemer Committee's claims and other assets on April 30, 2021, "for $78 million in cash, which was paid in full to the Crusader Funds at closing."<sup>24</sup> In addition, that there was a written agreement among Stonehill, the Crusader Funds, and the Redeemer Committee that sources indicate dates back to the fourth quarter of 2020. That agreement presumably imposed affirmative and negative covenants upon the seller and granted the purchaser discretionary approval rights during the pendency of the sale. Such an agreement would necessarily conflict with the Creditors' Committee members' fiduciary obligations.

The sale of the claims by the members of the Creditors' Committee also violates the instructions provided to committee members by the U.S. Trustee that required a selling committee member to obtain approval from the Bankruptcy Court prior to any sale of such member's claim. No such Court approval was ever sought or obtained, and the Dallas U.S. Trustee's Office took no action to enforce this guideline. The Creditors' Committee members were sophisticated entities, and they were privy to inside information that was not available to other unsecured creditors. For example, valuations of assets placed into a specially-created affiliated entities, such as the assets acquired in the HarbourVest settlement, and valuations of assets held by other entities owned or controlled by the Debtor, were available to the selling Creditors' Committee members, but not to other creditors or parties-in-interest.

While claims trading itself is not prohibited, there is reason to believe that the claims trading that occurred in the Highland bankruptcy violated federal law:

- a) The selling parties were three of the four Creditors' Committee members, and each one had access to information they received in a fiduciary capacity;
- b) Some of the information they received would have been available to other parties-in-interest if Rule 2015.3 had been enforced;
- c) The projected recovery to creditors decreased significantly between the approval of the Disclosure Statement and the confirmation of the Debtor's Plan; and
- d) There was a suspicious purchase of stock by Stonehill in NHF, a closed-end fund previously affiliated with Highland (and now managed by NexPoint Advisors, L.P.) that is publicly traded on the New York stock exchange. The Debtor's assets and the positions held by the closed-end fund are similar.

Mr. Seery's Compensation Structure Encouraged Misrepresentations Regarding the Value of the Estate and Assets of the Estate

An additional problem in Highland's bankruptcy is that Mr. Seery, as an Independent Director as well as the Debtor's CEO and CRO, received financial incentives that encouraged claims trading and dealing in insider information.

Mr. Seery received sizeable compensation for his heavy-handed role in Highland's bankruptcy. Upon his appointment as an Independent Director in January 2020, Mr. Seery received compensation from the Debtor of $60,000 per month for the first three months, $50,000 per month for the following three months, and $30,000 per month for remaining months, subject to adjustment by agreement with the Debtor.<sup>25</sup> When Mr. Seery subsequently was appointed the Debtor's CEO and CRO in July 2020, he received additional compensation, including base compensation of $150,000 per month retroactive to March 2020 and for so long as he served in those roles, as well as a "Restructuring Fee."<sup>26</sup> Mr. Seery's employment agreement contemplated that the Restructuring Fee could be calculated in one of two ways:

- (1) If Mr. Seery were able to resolve a material amount of outstanding claims against the estate, he would be entitled to $1 million on confirmation of what the Debtor termed a “Case Resolution Plan,” $500,000 at the effective date of the Case Resolution Plan, and $750,000 upon completion of distributions to creditors under the plan.

- (2) If, by contrast, Mr. Seery were not able to resolve the estate and instead achieved a “Monetization Vehicle Plan,” he would be entitled to $500,000 on confirmation of the Monetization Vehicle Plan, $250,000 at the effective date of that plan, and—most importantly—a to-be-determined “contingent restructuring fee” based on “performance under the plan after all material distributions” were made.

The Restructuring Fee owed for a Case Resolution Plan was materially higher than that payable under the Monetization Vehicle Plan and provided a powerful economic incentive for Mr. Seery to resolve creditor claims in any way possible. Notably, at the time of Mr. Seery’s formal appointment as CEO/CRO, he had already negotiated settlements in principle with Acis and the Redeemer Committee, leaving only the HarbourVest and UBS claims to resolve.

Further, after the Plan’s effective date, as appointed Claimant Trustee, Mr. Seery was promised compensation of $150,000 per month (termed his “Base Salary”), subject to the negotiation of additional “go-forward” compensation, including a “success fee” and severance pay.<sup>27</sup> Mr. Seery’s success fee presumably will be based on whether the Plan outperforms what was disclosed in the Plan Analysis. In other words, Mr. Seery had a financial incentive to grossly understate the value of the estate in public disclosures, not only to facilitate claims trading and resolution of the biggest claims in bankruptcy (for purposes of obtaining the larger Case Resolution Fee) but also to ensure that he eventually receives a large “success fee.” Again, we estimate that, based on the estate’s nearly $600 million value today, Mr. Seery’s success fee could approximate $50 million.

One excellent example of the way in which Mr. Seery facilitated claims trading and thereby lined his own pockets is the sale of UBS’s claim. Based on the publicly-available information at the time Stonehill and Farallon purchased the UBS claim, the purchase made no economic sense. At the time, the publicly-disclosed Plan Analysis estimated that there would be a 71.32% distribution to Class 8 creditors and a 0.00% distribution to Class 9 creditors, which would mean believe is that, at the time of their claims purchase, the estate actually was worth much, much more (between $472-$600 million). If, prior to their claims purchases, Mr. Seery (or others in the Debtor’s management) apprised Stonehill and Farallon of the true estate value (which was material, non-public information at the time), then the value they paid for the UBS claim made sense, because they would have known they were likely to recover close to 100% on Class 8 and Class 9 claims.

But perhaps the most important evidence of mismanagement of this bankruptcy proceeding and misalignment of financial incentives is the Debtor’s repeated refusal to resolve the estate in full despite dozens of opportunities to do so. Immediately prior to the Plan confirmation hearing, Judge Jernigan suggested that the Creditors’ Committee and Mr. Dondero attempt to reach a settlement. Mr. Dondero, through counsel, already had made 35 offers of settlement that would have maximized the estate’s recovery, even going so far as to file a proposed plan of reorganization. Some of these offers were valued between $150 and $232 million. And we now believe that as of August 1, 2020, the Debtor’s estate had an actual value of at least $460 million, including $105 million in cash and a $50 million revolving credit facility. With Mr. Dondero’s offer, the Debtor’s cash and the credit facility could have resolved the estate, which would have enabled the Debtor to pay all proofs of claim, leave a residual estate intact for equity holders, and allow the company to continue to operate as a going concern.

Ms. Nan R. Eitel

Nonetheless, neither the Debtor nor the Creditors' Committee responded to Mr. Dondero's offers. It was not until The Honorable Former Judge D. Michael Lynn, counsel for Mr. Dondero, reminded the Creditors' Committee counsel that its members had a fiduciary duty to respond that a response was forthcoming. We believe Mr. Dondero's proposed plan offered a materially greater recovery than what the Debtor had reported would be the expected Plan recovery. The Creditors' Committee's failure to timely respond to that offer suggests that Debtor management, the Creditors' Committee, or both were financially disincentivized from accepting a case resolution offer and that some members of the Creditors' Committee were contractually constrained from doing so.

What happened instead was that the Debtor, its management, and the Creditors' Committee brokered deals that allowed grossly inflated claims and sales of those claims to a small group of investors with significant ties to Debtor management. In a transparent bankruptcy proceeding, we question whether any of this could have happened. What we do know is that the Debtor's non-transparent bankruptcy has ensured there will be nothing left for residual stakeholders, while enriching a handful of intimately connected individuals and investors.

The Debtor's Management and Advisors Are Almost Totally Insulated From Liability

Despite the mismanagement of bankruptcy proceedings, the Bankruptcy Court has issued a series of orders ensuring that the Debtor and its management cannot not be held liable for their actions in bankruptcy.

In particular, the Court issued a series of orders protecting Mr. Seery from potential liability for any act undertaken in the management of the Debtor or the disposition of its assets:

- In its order approving the settlement between the Creditors' Committee and Mr. Dondero, the Court barred any Debtor entity "from commenc[ing] or pursu[ing] a claim or cause of action of any kind against any Independent Director, any Independent Director's agents, or any Independent Director's advisors relating in any way to the Independent Director's role as an independent director" unless the Court first (1) determined the claim was a "colorable" claim for willful misconduct or gross negligence, and (2) authorized an entity to bring the claim. The Court also retained "sole jurisdiction" over any such claim.<sup>28</sup>
- In its order approving the Debtor's retention of Mr. Seery as its Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer, the Court issued an identical injunction barring any claims against Mr. Seery in his capacity as CEO/CRO without prior court approval.<sup>29</sup> The same order authorized the Debtor to indemnify Mr. Seery for any claims or losses arising out of his engagement as CEO/CRO.<sup>30</sup>

Worse still, the Plan approved by the Bankruptcy Court contains sweeping release and exculpation provisions that make it virtually impossible for third parties, including investors in the Debtor's managed funds, to file claims against the Debtor, its related entities, or their management. The Plan's exculpation provisions contain also contain a requirement that any potential claims be vetted and approved by the Bankruptcy Court. As Mr. Draper already explained, these provisions violate the holding of In re Pacific Lumber Co., in which the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit rejected similarly broad exculpation clauses.<sup>31</sup>

The fundamental problem with the Plan's broad exculpation and release provisions has been brought into sharp focus in recent days, with the filing of a lawsuit by the Litigation Trustee against Mr. Dondero, other individuals formerly affiliated with Highland, and several trusts and entities affiliated with Mr. Dondero.<sup>32</sup> Among other false accusations, that lawsuit alleges that the aggregate amount of allowed claims in bankruptcy was high because the Debtor and its management were forced to settle with various purported judgment creditors who had engaged in pre-petition litigation with Mr. Dondero and Highland. But it was Mr. Seery and Debtor's management, not Mr. Dondero and the other defendants, who negotiated those settlements with creditors in bankruptcy and who decided what value to assign to their claims. Ordinarily, Mr. Dondero and the other defendants could and would file compulsory counterclaims against the Debtor and its management for their role in brokering and settling claims in bankruptcy. But the Bankruptcy Court has effectively precluded such counterclaims (absent the defendants obtaining the Court's advance permission to assert them) by releasing the Debtor and its management from virtually all liability in relation to their roles in the bankruptcy case. That is a violation of due process.

Notably, the U.S. Trustee's Office recently has argued in the context of the bankruptcy of Purdue Pharma that release and exculpations clauses akin to those contained in Highland's Plan violate both the Bankruptcy Code and the Due Process Clause of the United States Constitution.<sup>33</sup> In addition, the U.S. Trustee explained that the bankruptcy courts lack constitutional authority to release state-law causes of action against debtor management and non-debtor entities.<sup>34</sup> Indeed, it has been the U.S. Trustee's position that where, as here, third parties whose claims are being released did not receive notice of the releases and had no way of knowing, based on the applicable plan's language, what claims were extinguished, third-party releases are contrary to law.<sup>35</sup> This position comports with Fifth Circuit case law, which makes clear that releases must be consensual, and that the released party must make a substantial contribution in exchange for any release.

As a result of the release and exculpation provisions of the Plan, employees and third-party investors in entities managed by the Debtor who are harmed by actions taken by the Debtor and its management in bankruptcy are barred from asserting their claims without prior Bankruptcy Court approval. Those third parties' claims are barred notwithstanding that they were not notified of the releases and have never been given any information with which to evaluate their potential claims (as mentioned, the Debtor has not disclosed several major assets sales, nor does the Plan require the Debtor to disclose post-confirmation asset sales). Conversely, the releases insulate claims purchasers from the risk of potential actions by investors in funds managed by the Debtor (for breach of fiduciary duty, diminution in value, or otherwise). These releases are directly at odds with investors' expectations and the written documents delivered to and approved by investors when they invest in managed funds—i.e., that fund managers will act in a fiduciary capacity to maximize investors' returns and that investors will have recourse for any failure to do so.

As an example, the Court approved the settlement of UBS's claim against the Debtor and two funds managed by the Debtor (collectively referred to as "MultiStrat"). Pursuant to that settlement, MultiStrat agreed to pay UBS $18.5 million. But the settlement made no sense for several reasons. First, Highland owns approximately 48% of MultiStrat, so causing MultiStrat to make such a substantial payment to settle a claim in Highland's bankruptcy necessarily negatively impacted its other non-Debtor investors. Second, in its lawsuit, UBS alleged that MultiStrat wrongfully received a $6 million payment, but MultiStrat paid more than three times this amount to settle allegations against it—a deal that made little economic sense. Finally, as part of the settlement, MultiStrat represented that it was advised by "independent legal counsel" in the negotiation of the settlement, a representation that was patently untrue.<sup>36</sup> In reality, the only legal counsel advising MultiStrat was the Debtor's counsel, who had economic incentives to broker the deal in a manner that benefited the Debtor rather than MultiStrat and its investors.<sup>37</sup> If (as it seems) that representation and/or the terms of the UBS/MultiStrat settlement unfairly impacted MultiStrat's investors, they now have no recourse against the Debtor. The release and exculpation provisions in Highland's Plan do not afford third parties any meaningful recourse, even when they are negatively impacted by misrepresentations of the type contained in the UBS/MultiStrat settlement or when their interests are impaired by fund managers' failure to obtain fairness opinions to resolve conflicts of interest.

Bankruptcy Proceedings Are Used As an End-Run Around Applicable Legal Duties

The UBS deal is but one example of how Highland's bankruptcy proceedings, including the settlement of claims and claims trading that occurred, seemingly provided a safe harbor for violations of multiple state and federal laws. For example, the Investment Advisors Act of 1940 requires registered investment advisors like the Debtor to act as fiduciaries of the funds that they manage. Indeed, the Act imposes an "affirmative duty of 'utmost good faith' and full and fair disclosure of material facts" as part of advisors' duties of loyalty and care to investors. See 17 C.F.R. Part 275. Adherence to these duties means that investment advisors cannot buy securities for their account prior to buying them for a client, cannot make trades that may result in higher commissions for the advisor or their investment firm, and cannot trade using material, non-public information. In addition, investment advisors must ensure that they provide investors with full and accurate information regarding the assets managed.

State blue sky laws similarly prohibit firms holding themselves out as investment advisors from breaching these core fiduciary duties to investors. For example, the Texas Securities Act prohibits any registered investment advisor from trading on material, non-public information. The Act also conveys a private right of action to investors harmed by breaches of an investment advisor's fiduciary duties.

As explained above, Highland executed numerous transactions during its bankruptcy that may have violated the Investment Advisors Act and state blue sky laws. Among other things:

- Highland facilitated the purchase of HarbourVest's interest in HCLOF (placing that interest in an SPE designated by the Debtor) without disclosing the true value of the interest and without first offering it to other investors in the fund;

<sup>37</sup> The Court's order approving the UBS settlement is under appeal in part based on MultiStrat's lack of independent legal counsel.

- Highland concealed the estate's true value from investors in its managed funds, making it impossible for those investors to fairly evaluate the estate or its assets during bankruptcy;
- Highland facilitated the settlement of UBS's claim by causing MultiStrat, a non-Debtor managed entity, to pay $18.5 million to the Debtor, to the detriment of MultiStrat's investors; and
- Highland and its CEO/CRO, Mr. Seery, brokered deals between three of four Creditors' Committee members and Farallon and Stonehill—deals that made no sense unless Farallon and Stonehill were supplied material, non-public information regarding the true value of the estate.

In short, Mr. Seery effectuated trades that seemingly lined his own pockets, in transactions that we believe detrimentally impacted investors in the Debtor's managed funds.

CONCLUSION

The Highland bankruptcy is an example of the abuses that can occur if the Bankruptcy Code and Bankruptcy Rules are not enforced and are allowed to be manipulated, and if federal law enforcement and federal lawmakers abdicate their responsibilities. Bankruptcy should not be a safe haven for perjury, breaches of fiduciary duty, and insider trading, with a plan containing third-party releases and sweeping exculpation sweeping everything under the rug. Nor should it be an avenue for opportunistic venturers to prey upon companies, their investors, and their creditors to the detriment of third-party stakeholders and the bankruptcy estate. My clients and I join Mr. Draper in encouraging your office to investigate, fight, and ultimately eliminate this type of abuse, now and in the future.

Debtor Protocols [Doc. 466-1]

I. Definitions

- A. “Court” means the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas.
- B. “NAV” means (A) with respect to an entity that is not a CLO, the value of such entity’s assets less the value of its liabilities calculated as of the month end prior to any Transaction; and (B) with respect to a CLO, the CLO’s gross assets less expenses calculated as of the quarter end prior to any Transaction.
- C. “Non-Discretionary Account” means an account that is managed by the Debtor pursuant to the terms of an agreement providing, among other things, that the ultimate investment discretion does not rest with the Debtor but with the entity whose assets are being managed through the account.
- D. “Related Entity” means collectively (A)(i) any non-publicly traded third party in which Mr. Dondero, Mr. Okada, or Mr. Grant Scott, or Mr. John Honis (with respect to Messrs. Okada, Scott and Honis, only to the extent known by the Debtor) has any direct or indirect economic or ownership interest, including as a beneficiary of a trust; (ii) any entity controlled directly or indirectly by Mr. Dondero, Mr. Okada, Mr. Grant Scott, or Mr. John Honis (with respect to Messrs. Okada, Scott and Honis, only to the extent known by the Debtor); (iii) MGM Holdings, Inc.; (iv) any publicly traded company with respect to which the Debtor or any Related Entity has filed a Form 13D or Form 13G; (v) any relative (as defined in Section 101 of the Bankruptcy Code) of Mr. Dondero or Mr. Okada each solely to the extent reasonably knowable by the Debtor; (vi) the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust and Dugaboy Investment Trust; (vii) any entity or person that is an insider of the Debtor under Section 101(31) the Bankruptcy Code, including any “non-statutory” insider; and (viii) to the extent not included in (A)(i)-(vii), any entity included in the listing of related entities in Schedule B hereto (the “Related Entities Listing”); and (B) the following Transactions, (x) any intercompany Transactions with certain affiliates referred to in paragraphs 16.a through 16.e of the Debtor’s cash management motion [Del. Docket No. 7]; and (y) any Transactions with Charitable DAF Fund, L.P. (provided, however, that additional parties may be added to this subclause (y) with the mutual consent of the Debtor and the Committee, such consent not to be unreasonably withheld).
- E. “Stage 1” means the time period from the date of execution of a term sheet incorporating the protocols contained below the (“Term Sheet”) by all applicable parties until approval of the Term Sheet by the Court.
- F. “Stage 2” means the date from the appointment of a Board of Independent Directors at Strand Advisors, Inc. until 45 days after such appointment, such appointment being effective upon Court approval.
- G. “Stage 3” means any date after Stage 2 while there is a Board of Independent Directors at Strand Advisors, Inc.
- H. “Transaction” means (i) any purchase, sale, or exchange of assets, (ii) any lending or borrowing of money, including the direct payment of any obligations of another entity, (iii) the satisfaction of any capital call or other contractual requirement to pay money, including the satisfaction of any redemption requests, (iv) funding of affiliates and (v) the creation of any lien or encumbrance.

- I. "Ordinary Course Transaction" means any transaction with any third party which is not a Related Entity and that would otherwise constitute an "ordinary course transaction" under section 363(c) of the Bankruptcy Code.
- J. "Notice" means notification or communication in a written format and shall include supporting documents necessary to evaluate the propriety of the proposed transaction.
- K. [26] Memorandum of opinion granting motion to dismiss adversary proceeding in which contingent interest holders in Chapter 11 Plan Trust seek a post-confirmation valuation of Trust assets) Entered on 5/24/2024

APPELLANT RECORD

with respect to its appeal of the Order Granting Motion to Dismiss Adversary Proceeding in which Contingent Interest Holders in Chapter 11 Plan Trust Seek a Post-Confirmation Valuation of Trust Assets [Doc.26-27] which was entered by the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas on May 24, 2024.

I. STATEMENT OF ISSUES TO BE PRESENTED ON APPEAL

1. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred in granting The Highland Parties' Motion to Dismiss Complaint to (I) Compel Disclosures About the Assets of the Highland Claimant Trust and (II) Determine (A) Relative Value of Those Assets, and (B) Nature of Plaintiffs' Interests in the Claimant Trust.
2. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred by dismissing Count I under Rule 12(b)(6) based on the Bankruptcy Court's finding that Appellants could not prove any facts that would entitle them to the relief that they sought when the Appellants properly alleged that they have a legal and equitable right to information under the Claimant Trust Agreement and under Delaware and Texas law.
3. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred by dismissing Count II because it was predicated on Count I and was therefore not justiciable under Rule 12(h)(3) when Count I was improperly dismissed.
4. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred by dismissing Count III because it was predicated on Count I and was therefore not justiciable under Rule 12(b)(1) when Count I was improperly dismissed.
5. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred in dismissing Count III because the Bankruptcy Court found that Appellants were asking it to issue an opinion based on a set of hypothetical facts and was therefore not justiciable under Rule 12(b)(1) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction when Count III seeks only a declaration that the Claimant Trust assets exceed the obligations of the bankruptcy estate or must be deemed to do so such that Appellants' contingent trust interests are effectively vested, or as an equitable matter, must be treated as vested because the putative defendants are preventing the conditions for formal vesting from occurring.

The first question I have for you, 25 have you seen the Notice of Deposition

2 the screen, please?

3 A. Page what?

4 Q. I think it is page 174.

5 A. Of the PDF or of the document?

6 Q. Of the disclosure statement that

7 was filed. It is up on the screen right

8 now.

9 COURT REPORTER: Do you intend

10 this as another exhibit for today's

11 deposition?

13 Exhibit 2.

14 (So marked for identification as

15 Seery Exhibit 2.)

16 Q. If you look to the recovery to

17 Class 8 creditors in the November 2020

18 disclosure statement was a recovery of

19 87.44 percent?

20 A. That actually says the percent

21 distribution to general unsecured

22 creditors was 87.44 percent. Yes.

23 Q. And in the new document that was

24 filed, given to us yesterday, the recovery

25 is 62.5 percent?

Page 16

1 J. SEERY

2 anybody else?

3 A. I said Mr. O'Cherty.

4 Q. In looking at the two elements,

5 and what I have asked you to look at is

6 the claims pool. If you look at the

7 November disclosure statement, if you look

8 down Class 8, unsecured claims?

9 A. Yes.

10 Q. You have 176,000 roughly?

11 A. Million.

12 Q. 176 million. I am sorry. And

13 the number in the new document is 313

14 million?

15 A. Correct.

16 Q. What accounts for the

17 difference?

18 A. An increase in claims.

19 Q. When did those increases occur?

20 Were they yesterday? A month ago? Two

21 months ago?

22 A. Over the last couple months.

23 Q. So in fact over the last couple

24 months you knew in fact that the recovery

25 in the November disclosure statement was

Page 15

1 J. SEERY

2 A. It says the percent distribution

3 to general unsecured creditors is

4 62.14 percent.

5 Q. Have you communicated the

6 reduced recovery to anybody prior to the

7 date -- to yesterday?

8 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the

9 form of the question.

10 A. I believe generally, yes. I

11 don't know if we have a specific number,

12 but generally yes.

13 Q. And would that be members of the

14 Creditors' Committee who you gave that

15 information to?

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. Did you give it to anybody other

18 than members of the Creditors' Committee?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. Who?

21 A. HarbourVest.

22 Q. And when was that?

23 A. Within the last two months.

24 Q. You did not feel the need to

25 communicate the change in recovery to

Page 17

1 J. SEERY

2 not accurate?

3 A. Yes. We secretly disclosed it

4 to the Bankruptcy Court in open court

5 hearings.

6 Q. But you never did bother to

7 calculate the reduced recovery; you just

8 increased --

9 (Reporter interruption.)

10 Q. You just advised as to the

11 increased claims pool. Correct?

12 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the

13 form of the question.

14 A. I don't understand your

15 question.

16 Q. What I am trying to get at is,

17 as you increase the claims pool, the

18 recovery reduces. Correct?

19 A. No. That is not how a fraction

20 works.

21 Q. Well, if the denominator

22 increases, doesn't the recovery ultimately

23 decrease if --

24 A. No.

25 Q. -- if the numerator stays the

Page 26

1 J. SEERY

2 were amended without consideration a few

3 years ago. So, for our purposes we didn't

4 make the assumption, which I am sure will

5 happen, a fraudulent conveyance claim on

6 those notes, that a fraudulent conveyance

7 action would be brought. We just assumed

8 that we'd have to discount the notes

9 heavily to sell them because nobody would

10 respect the ability of the counterparties

11 to fairly pay.

12 Q. And the same discount was

13 applied in the liquidation analysis to

14 those notes?

15 A. Yes.

16 Q. Now --

17 A. The difference -- there would be

18 a difference, though, because they would

19 pay for a while because they wouldn't want

20 to accelerate them. So there would be

21 some collections on the notes for P and I.

22 Q. But in fact as of January you

23 have accelerated those notes?

24 A. Just one of them, I believe.

25 Q. Which note was that?

Page 28

1 J. SEERY

2 you whether they are included in the asset

3 portion of your $257 million number, all

4 right? Mr. Morris didn't want me to go

5 into specific asset value, and I don't

6 intend to do that.

7 The first question I have for

8 you is, the equity in Trustway Highland

9 Holdings, is that included in the

10 $257 million number?

11 A. There is no such entity.

12 Q. Then I will do it in a different

13 way. In connection with the sale of the

14 hard assets, what assets are included in

15 there specifically?

16 A. Off the top of my head -- it is

17 all of the assets, but it includes

18 Trustway Holdings and all the value that

19 flows up from Trustway Holdings. It

20 includes Targa and all the value that

21 flows up from Targa. It includes CCS

22 Medical and all the value that would flow

23 to the Debtor from CCS Medical. It

24 includes Cornerstone and all the value

25 that would flow from Cornerstone. It

Page 27

1 J. SEERY

2 A. NexPoint, I said. They

3 defaulted on the note and we accelerated

4 it.

5 Q. So there is no need to file a

6 fraudulent conveyance suit with respect to

7 that note. Correct, Mr. Seery?

8 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the

9 form of the question.

10 A. Disagree. Since it was likely

11 intentional fraud, there may be other

12 recoveries on it. But to collect on the

13 note, no.

14 Q. My question was with respect to

15 that note. Since you have accelerated it,

16 you don't need to deal with the issue of

17 when it's due?

18 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the

19 form of the question.

20 A. That wasn't your question. But

21 to that question, yes, I don't need to

22 deal with when it's due.

23 Q. Let me go over certain assets.

24 I am not going to ask you for the

25 valuation of them but I am going to ask

Page 29

1 J. SEERY

2 includes any other securities and all the

3 value that would flow from Cornerstone.

4 It includes HCLOF and all the value that

5 would flow up from HCLOF. It includes

6 Korea and all the value that would flow up

7 from Korea.

8 There may be others off the top

9 of my head. I don't recall them. I don't

10 have a list in front of me.

11 Q. Now, with respect to those

12 assets, have you started the sale process

13 of those assets?

14 A. No. Well, each asset is

15 different. So, the answer is, with

16 respect to any securities, we do seek to

17 sell those regularly and we do seek to

18 monetize those assets where we can

19 depending on whether there is a

20 restriction or not and whether there is

21 liquidity in the market.

22 With respect to the PE assets or

23 the companies I described -- Targa, CCS,

24 Cornerstone, JHT -- we have not --

25 Trustway. We have not sought to sell

Page 38

1 J. SEERY

2 A. I don't recall the specific

3 limitation on the trust. But if there was

4 a reason to hold on to the asset, if there

5 is a limitation, we can seek an extension.

6 Q. Let me ask a question. With

7 respect to these businesses, the Debtor

8 merely owns an equity interest in them.

9 Correct?

10 A. Which business?

11 Q. The ones you have identified as

12 operating businesses earlier?

13 A. It depends on the business.

14 Q. Well, let me -- again, let's try

15 to be specific. With respect to SSP, it

16 was your position that you did not need to

17 get court approval for the sale. Correct?

18 A. That's correct.

19 Q. Which one of the operating

20 businesses that are here, that you have

21 identified, do you need court authority

22 for a sale?

23 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the

24 form of the question.

25 A. Each of the businesses will be a

Page 40

1 J. SEERY

2 or determined the discount that has been

3 placed between the two, plan analysis

4 versus liquidation analysis?

5 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form

6 of the question.

7 A. To which document are you

8 referring?

9 Q. Both the June -- the January and

10 the November analysis has a different

11 estimated proceeds for monetization for

12 the plan analysis versus the liquidation

13 analysis. Do you see that?

14 A. Yes.

15 Q. And there is a note under there.

16 "Assumes Chapter 7 trustee will not be

17 able to achieve the same sales proceeds as

18 Claimant trustee."

19 A. I see that, yes.

20 Q. Do you see that note?

21 A. Yes.

22 Q. Who arrived at that discount?

23 A. I did.

24 Q. What percentage did you use?

25 A. Depended on the asset. Each one

Page 39

1 J. SEERY

2 different analysis that we'll undertake

3 with bankruptcy counsel to determine what

4 we would need depending on what is

5 going to happen and what the restrictions

6 either under the code are or under the

7 plan.

8 Q. Is there anything that would

9 stop you from selling these businesses if

10 the Chapter 7 went on for a year or two

11 years?

12 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form

13 of the question.

14 A. Is there anything that would

15 stop me? We'd have to follow the

16 strictures of the code and the protocols,

17 but there would be no prohibition -- let

18 me know, please.

19 There would be no prohibition

20 that I am aware of.

21 Q. Now, in connection with your

22 differential between the liquidation of

23 what I will call the operating businesses

24 under the liquidation analysis and the

25 plan analysis, who arrived at the discount

Page 41

1 J. SEERY

2 is different.

3 Q. Is the discount a function of

4 capability of a trustee versus your

5 capability, or is the discount a function

6 of timing?

7 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form.

8 A. It could be a combination.

9 Q. So, let's -- let me walk through

10 this. Your plan analysis has an

11 assumption that everything is sold by

12 December 2022. Correct?

13 A. Correct.

14 Q. And the valuations that you have

15 used here for the monetization assume a

16 sale between -- a sale prior to December

17 of 2022. Correct?

18 A. Sorry. I don't quite understand

19 your question.

20 Q. The 257 number, and then let's

21 take out the notes. Let's use the 210

22 number.

23 MR. MORRIS: Can we put the

24 document back on the screen, please?

25 Sorry, Douglas, to interrupt, but it

Page 42

1 J. SEERY
 2 would be helpful.
 3 MR. DRAPER: That is fine, John.
 4 (Pause.)
 5 MR. MORRIS: Thank you very
 6 much.
 7 Q. Mr. Seery, do you see the 257?
 8 A. In the one from yesterday?
 9 Q. Yes.
 10 A. Second line, 257,941. Yes.
 11 Q. That assumes a monetization of
 12 all assets by December of 2022?
 13 A. Correct.
 14 Q. And so everything has been sold
 15 by that time; correct?
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. So, what I am trying to get at 18 is, there is both the capability between
 19 you and a trustee, and then the second
 20 issue is timing. So, what discount was 21 put on for timing, Mr. Seery, between when
 22 a trustee would sell it versus when you
 23 would sell it?
 24 MR. MORRIS: Objection.
 25 Q. What is the percentage you

Page 44

1 J. SEERY
 2 as capable as you are?
 3 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the
 4 form of the question.
 5 A. I don't know.
 6 Q. Is there anybody as capable as
 7 you are?
 8 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the
 9 form of the question.
 10 A. Certainly.
 11 Q. And they could be hired.
 12 Correct?
 13 A. Perhaps. I don't know.
 14 Q. And if you go back to the
 15 November 2020 liquidation analysis versus
 16 plan analysis, it is also the same note
 17 about that a trustee would bring less, and
 18 there is the same sort of discount between 19 the estimated proceeds under the plan and
 20 under the liquidation analysis.
 21 MR. MORRIS: If that is a
 22 question, I object.
 23 Q. Is that correct, Mr. Seery,
 24 looking at the document?
 25 A. There are discounts, yes.

Page 43

1 J. SEERY
 2 applied?
 3 A. Each of the assets is different.
 4 Q. Is there a general discount that
 5 you used?
 6 A. Not a general discount, no. We
 7 looked at each individual asset and went
 8 through and made an assessment.
 9 Q. Did you apply a discount for
 10 your capability versus the capability of a
 11 trustee?
 12 A. No.
 13 Q. So a trustee would be as capable
 14 as you are in monetizing these assets?
 15 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the
 16 form of the question.
 17 Q. Excuse me? The answer is?
 18 A. The answer is maybe.
 19 Q. Couldn't a trustee hire somebody
 20 as capable as you are?
 21 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the
 22 form of the question.
 23 A. Perhaps.
 24 Q. Sir, that is a yes or no
 25 question. Could the trustee hire somebody

Page 45

1 J. SEERY
 2 Q. Again, the discounts are applied
 3 for timing and capability?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. Now, in looking at the November
 6 plan analysis number of $190 million and
 7 the January number of $257 million, what
 8 accounts for the increase between the two
 9 dates? What assets specifically?
 10 A. There are a number of assets.
 11 Firstly, the HCLOF assets are added.
 12 Q. How much are those?
 13 A. Approximately 22 and a half
 14 million dollars.
 15 Q. Okay.
 16 A. Secondly, there is a significant
 17 increase in the value of certain of the 18 assets over this time period.
 19 Q. Which assets, Mr. Seery?
 20 A. There are a number. They
 21 include MGM stock, they include Trustway,
 22 they include Targa.
 23 Q. And what is the percentage
 24 increase from November to January,
 25 November of 2020 to January of 2021?

Page 46

1 J. SEERY

2 A. Do you mean what is the

3 percentage increase from 190 to 257?

4 Q. No. You just identified three

5 assets. MGM stock, we can go look at the

6 exchange and figure out what the price

7 increase is; correct?

8 A. No.

9 Q. Why not? Is the MGM stock

10 publicly traded?

11 A. Yes. It doesn't trade on --

12 Q. Excuse me?

13 A. It doesn't trade on an exchange.

14 Q. Is there a public market for the

15 MGM stock that we could calculate the

16 increase?

17 A. There is a semipublic market;

18 yes.

19 Q. So it is a number that is

20 readily available between the two dates?

21 A. It's available.

22 Q. Now, you identified Targa and

23 Trustway. Correct?

24 A. Yes.

25 Q. Those are not readily available

Page 48

1 J. SEERY

2 Q. And if I understand what you

3 just said, it is that the Houlihan Lokey

4 valuation for those two businesses showed

5 a significant increase between November of

6 2020 and January of 2021?

7 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form

8 of the question.

9 A. I didn't say that.

10 Q. I am trying to account for the

11 increase between the two dates, and you

12 identified three assets. You identified

13 MGM stock, which has, I can guess, as you

14 have said, a readily ascertainable value.

15 Then you identified two others that the

16 valuation is based upon something Houlihan

17 Lokey provided you. Correct?

18 A. I gave you three examples. I

19 never said "readily." That is your word,

20 not mine. And I didn't say that Houlihan

21 had a significant change in their

22 valuation.

23 Q. So let's now go back to the

24 question. There is an increase in value

25 from November 24th of 2020 to January 28th

Page 47

1 J. SEERY

2 markets; correct?

3 A. No.

4 Q. Those are operating businesses?

5 A. Correct.

6 Q. Who provided the valuation for

7 the November 2020 liquidation analysis?

8 A. We use a combination of the

9 value that we get from Houlihan Lokey for 10 mark purposes and then we adjust it for 11 plan purposes.

12 Q. And the adjustment was up or

13 down?

14 A. When?

15 Q. For both November and January.

16 You got a number from Houlihan Lokey. You

17 adjusted it. Did you adjust it up or did

18 you adjust it down?

19 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form

20 of the question.

21 A. I believe that for November we

22 adjusted it down, and for January we

23 adjusted it down. I don't recall off the

24 top of my head but I believe both of them

25 were adjusted down.

Page 49

1 J. SEERY

2 of 2021, the magnitude being roughly 60

3 some odd million dollars. Correct?

4 A. Correct.

5 Q. We can account for $22 million

6 of it easily, right?

7 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form.

8 A. Correct.

9 Q. That is the HarbourWest

10 settlement, so that leaves roughly

11 $40 million unaccounted for?

12 MR. MORRIS: Objection to the

13 form of the question if that is a

14 question. It is accounted for.

15 Q. What makes up that difference,

16 Mr. Seery?

17 A. A change in the plan value of

18 the assets.

19 Q. Okay. Which assets? Let's sort

20 of go back to where we were.

21 A. There are numerous assets in the

22 plan formulation. I gave you three

23 examples of the operating businesses. The

24 securities, I believe, have increased in

25 value since the plan, so those would go up

Page 50

1 J. SEERY
2 for one. On the operating businesses, we
3 looked at each of them and made an
4 assessment based upon where the market is 5 and what we believe the values are, and we
6 have moved those valuations.
7 Q. Let me look at some numbers
8 again. In the liquidation analysis in
9 November of 2020, the liquidation value is
10 $149 million. Correct?
11 A. Yes.
12 Q. And in the liquidation analysis
13 in January of 2021, you have $191 million?
14 A. Yes.
15 Q. You see that number. So there
16 is $51 million there, right?
17 A. No.
18 Q. What is the difference between
19 191 and -- sorry. My math may be a little 20 off. What is the difference between the
21 two numbers, Mr. Seery?
22 A. Your math is off.
23 Q. Sorry. It is 41 million?
24 A. Correct.
25 Q. $22 million of that is the

Page 52

1 J. SEERY
2 of the question.
3 Q. Mr. Seery, yes or no?
4 A. I said no.
5 Q. What is that based on, then?
6 A. The person's ability to assess
7 the market and timing.
8 Q. Okay. And again, couldn't a
9 trustee hire somebody as capable as you to
10 both, A, assess the market and, B, make a
11 determination as to when to sell?
12 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form
13 of the question.
14 A. I suppose a trustee could.
15 Q. And there are better people or
16 people equally or better than you at
17 assessing a market. Correct?
18 A. Yes.
19 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form
20 of the question.
21 Q. So, again, let's go back to
22 that. We have accounted for, out of
23 $41 million where the liquidation analysis
24 increases between the two dates,
25 $22 million of it. That leaves

Page 51

1 J. SEERY
2 HarbourVest settlement, right?
3 A. I believe that's correct.
4 Q. Is that fair, Mr. Seery?
5 A. I believe that is correct, yes.
6 Q. And part of that differential
7 are publicly traded or ascertainable
8 securities. Correct?
9 A. Yes.
10 Q. And basically you can get, or
11 under the plan analysis or trustee
12 analysis, if it is a marketable security
13 or where there is a market, the
14 liquidation number should be the same for 15 both. Is that fair?
16 A. No.
17 Q. And why not?
18 A. We might have a different price
19 target for a particular security than the
20 current trading value.
21 Q. I understand that, but I mean
22 that is based upon the capability of the 23 person making the decision as to when to 24 sell. Correct?
25 MR. MORRIS: Objection to form

Page 53

1 J. SEERY
2 $18 million. How much of that is publicly
3 traded or ascertainable assets versus
4 operating businesses?
5 A. I don't know off the top of my
6 head the percentages.
7 Q. All right. The same question
8 for the plan analysis where you have the
9 differential between the November number
10 and the January number. How much of it is 11 marketable securities versus an operating
12 business?
13 A. I don't recall off the top of my 14 head.
15 MR. DRAPER: Let me take a
16 few-minute break. Can we take a
17 ten-minute break here?
18 THE WITNESS: Sure.
19 (Recess.)
20 BY MR. DRAPER:
21 Q. Mr. Seery, what I am going to
22 show you and what I would ask you to look
23 at is in the note E, in the statement of
24 assumptions for the November 2020
25 disclosure statement. It discusses fixed

Sale of Assets of Affiliates or Controlled Entities

Asset	Sales Price
Structural Steel Products	$50 million
Life Settlements	$35 million
OmniMax	$50 million
Targa	$37 million

- These assets were sold over the contemporaneous objections of James Dondero, who was the Portfolio Manager and key-man on the funds.
- Mr. Seery admitted<sup>1</sup> that he must comply with the Bankruptcy Code, the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, and the Protocols for the sale of major assets of the estate. We believe that a competitive bid process and court approval should have been required for the sale of each of these assets (as was done for the sale of the building at 2817 Maple Ave. [a $9 million asset] and the sale of the interest in PetroCap [a $3 million asset]).

DEBTOR’S MOTION FOR ENTRY OF AN ORDER APPROVING
SETTLEMENT WITH HARBOURVEST (CLAIM NOS. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154)
AND AUTHORIZING ACTIONS CONSISTENT THEREWITH

TO THE HONORABLE STACEY G. C. JERNIGAN,
UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY JUDGE:

Highland Capital Management, L.P., the above-captioned debtor and debtor-in-possession (“Highland” or the “Debtor”), files this motion (the “Motion”) for entry of an order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A, pursuant to Rule 9019 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the “Bankruptcy Rules”), approving a settlement agreement (the “Settlement Agreement”),<sup>2</sup> a copy of which is attached as Exhibit 1 to the Declaration of John A. Morris in Support of the Debtor’s Motion for Entry of an Order Approving Settlement with HarbourVest (Claim Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154) and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith being filed simultaneously with this Motion (“Morris Dec.”), that, among other things, fully and finally resolves the proofs of claim filed by HarbourVest 2017 Global Fund L.P., HarbourVest 2017 Global AIF L.P., HarbourVest Dover Street IX Investment L.P., HV International VIII Secondary L.P., HarbourVest Skew Base AIF L.P., and HarbourVest Partners L.P. (collectively, “HarbourVest”). In support of this Motion, the Debtor represents as follows:

JURISDICTION

1. This Court has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. This matter is a core proceeding within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2). Venue in this District is proper pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409.

2. The statutory predicates for the relief sought herein are sections 105(a) and 363 of title 11 of the United States Code (the “Bankruptcy Code”), and Rule 9019 of the Bankruptcy Rules.

<sup>2</sup> All capitalized terms used but not defined herein shall have the meanings given to them in the Settlement Agreement.

A. Procedural Background

3. On October 16, 2019 (the “Petition Date”), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the “Delaware Court”).

4. On October 29, 2019, the official committee of unsecured creditors (the “Committee”) was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in the Delaware Court.

5. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the Debtor’s case to this Court [Docket No. 186].<sup>3</sup>

6. On December 27, 2019, the Debtor filed that certain Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 281] (the “Settlement Motion”). This Court approved the Settlement Motion on January 9, 2020 [Docket No. 339] (the “Settlement Order”).

7. In connection with the Settlement Order, an independent board of directors was constituted at the Debtor’s general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc., and certain operating protocols were instituted.

8. On July 16, 2020, this Court entered an order appointing James P. Seery, Jr., as the Debtor’s chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer [Docket No. 854].

9. The Debtor has continued in the possession of its property and has continued to operate and manage its business as a debtor-in-possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. No trustee or examiner has been appointed in this chapter 11 case.

B. Overview of HarbourVest's Claims

10. HarbourVest's claims against the Debtor's estate arise from its $80 million investment in Highland CLO Funding, f/k/a Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. ("HCLOF"), pursuant to which HarbourVest obtained a 49 percent interest in HCLOF (the "Investment").

11. In brief, HarbourVest contends that it was fraudulently induced into entering into the Investment based on the Debtor's misrepresentations and omissions concerning certain material facts, including that the Debtor: (1) failed to disclose that it never intended to pay an arbitration award obtained by a former portfolio manager, (2) failed to disclose that it engaged in a series of fraudulent transfers for the purpose of preventing the former portfolio manager from collecting on his arbitration award and misrepresented the reasons changing the portfolio manager for HCLOF immediately prior to the Investment, (3) indicated that the dispute with the former portfolio manager would not impact investment activities, and (4) expressed confidence in the ability of HCLOF to reset or redeem the collateralized loan obligations ("CLOs") under its control.

12. HarbourVest seeks to rescind its Investment and claims damages in excess of $300 million based on theories of fraud, fraudulent inducement, fraudulent concealment, fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, and breach of fiduciary duty (under Guernsey law), and on alleged violations of state securities laws and the Racketeer Influenced Corrupt Organization Act ("RICO").

<sup>4</sup> Solely for purposes of this Motion, and not for any other reason, the facts set forth herein are adopted largely from the HarbourVest Response to Debtor's First Omnibus Objection to Certain (A) Duplicate Claims; (B) Overstated Claims; (C) Late-Filed Claims; (D) Satisfied Claims; (E) No-Liability Claims; and (F) Insufficient-Documentation Claims [Docket No. 1057] (the "Response").

C. Summary of HarbourVest's Factual Allegations

14. At the time HarbourVest made its Investment, the Debtor was embroiled in an arbitration against Joshua Terry ("Mr. Terry"), a former employee of the Debtor and limited partner of Acis Capital Management, L.P. ("Acis LP"). Through Acis LP, Mr. Terry managed Highland's CLO business, including CLO-related investments held by Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. ("Acis Funding").

15. The litigation between Mr. Terry and the Debtor began in 2016, after the Debtor terminated Mr. Terry and commenced an action against him in Texas state court. Mr. Terry asserted counterclaims for wrongful termination and for the wrongful taking of his ownership interest in Acis LP and subsequently had certain claims referred to arbitration where he obtained an award of approximately $8 million (the "Arbitration Award") on October 20, 2017.

16. HarbourVest alleges that the Debtor responded to the Arbitration Award by engaging in a series of fraudulent transfers and corporate restructurings, the true purposes of which were fraudulently concealed from HarbourVest.

17. For example, according to HarbourVest, the Debtor changed the name of the target fund from Acis Funding to "Highland CLO Funding, Ltd." ("HCLOF") and "swapped out" Acis LP for Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd. as portfolio manager (the "Structural Changes"). The Debtor allegedly told HarbourVest that it made these changes because of the "reputational harm" to Acis LP resulting from the Arbitration Award. The Debtor further told HarbourVest that in lieu of redemptions, resetting the CLOs was necessary, and that it would be easier to reset them under the "Highland" CLO brand instead of the Acis CLO brand.

18. In addition, HarbourVest also alleges that the Debtor had no intention of allowing Mr. Terry to collect on his Arbitration Award, and orchestrated a scheme to "denude"

Acis of assets by fraudulently transferring virtually all of its assets and attempting to transfer its profitable portfolio management contracts to non-Acis, Debtor-related entities.

19. Unaware of the fraudulent transfers or the true purposes of the Structural Changes, and in reliance on representations made by the Debtor, HarbourVest closed on its Investment in HCLOF on November 15, 2017.

20. After discovering the transfers that occurred between Highland and Acis between October and December 2017 following the Arbitration Award (the “Transfers”), on January 24, 2018, Terry moved for a temporary restraining order (the “TRO”) from the Texas state court on the grounds that the Transfers were pursued for the purpose of rendering Acis LP judgment-proof. The state court granted the TRO, enjoining the Debtor from transferring any CLO management contracts or other assets away from Acis LP.

21. On January 30, 2018, Mr. Terry filed involuntary bankruptcy petitions against Acis LP and its general partner, Acis Capital Management GP, LLC. See In re Acis Capital Management, L.P., Case No. 18-30264-sgj11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018) and In re Acis Capital Management GP, LLC, Case No. 18-30265-sgj11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018) (collectively, the “Acis Bankruptcy Case”). The Bankruptcy Court overruled the Debtor’s objection, granted the involuntary petitions, and appointed a chapter 11 trustee (the “Acis Trustee”). A long sequence of events subsequently transpired, all of which relate to HarbourVest’s claims, including:

- On May 31, 2018, the Court issued a sua sponte TRO preventing any actions in furtherance of the optional redemptions or other liquidation of the Acis CLOs.
- On June 14, 2018, HCLOF withdrew optional redemption notices.
- The TRO expired on June 15, 2018, and HCLOF noticed the Acis Trustee that it was requesting an optional redemption.

- HCLOF's request was withdrawn on July 6, 2018, and on June 21, 2018, the Acis Trustee sought an injunction preventing Highland/HCLOF from seeking further redemptions (the "Preliminary Injunction").
- The Court granted the Preliminary Injunction on July 10, 2018, pending the Acis Trustee's attempts to confirm a plan or resolve the Acis Bankruptcy.
- On August 30, 2018, the Court denied confirmation of the First Amended Joint Plan for Acis, and held that the Preliminary Injunction must stay in place on the ground that the "evidence thus far has been compelling that numerous transfers after the Josh Terry judgment denuded Acis of value."
- After the Debtor made various statements implicating HarbourVest in the Transfers, the Acis Trustee investigated HarbourVest's involvement in such Transfers, including extensive discovery and taking a 30(b)(6) deposition of HarbourVest's managing director, Michael Pugatch, on November 17, 2018.
- On March 20, 2019, HCLOF sent a letter to Acis LP stating that it was not interested in pursuing, or able to pursue, a CLO reset transaction.

22. On April 8, 2020, HarbourVest filed proofs of claim against Highland that were subsequently denoted by the Debtor's claims agents as claim numbers 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, and 154, respectively (collectively, the "Proofs of Claim"). Morris Dec. Exhibits 2-7.

23. The Proofs of Claim assert, among other things, that HarbourVest suffered significant harm due to conduct undertaken by the Debtor and the Debtor's employees, including "financial harm resulting from (i) court orders in the Acis Bankruptcy that prevented certain CLOs in which HCLOF was invested from being refinanced or reset and court orders that otherwise relegated the activity of HCLOF [i.e., the Preliminary Injunction]; and (ii) significant fees and expenses related to the Acis Bankruptcy that were charged to HCLOF." See, e.g., Morris Dec. Exhibit 2 ¶3.

24. HarbourVest also asserted "any and all of its right to payment, remedies, and other claims (including contingent or unliquidated claims) against the Debtor in connection with and relating to the forgoing harm, including for any amounts due or owed under the various agreements with the Debtor in connection with relating to” the Operative Documents “and any and all legal and equitable claims or causes of action relating to the forgoing harm.” See, e.g., Morris Dec. Exhibit 2 ¶4.

25. Highland subsequently objected to HarbourVest’s Proofs of Claim on the grounds that they were no-liability claims. [Docket No. 906] (the “Claim Objection”).

26. On September 11, 2020, HarbourVest filed its Response. The Response articulated specified claims under U.S. federal and state and Guernsey law, including claims for fraud, fraudulent concealment, fraudulent inducement, fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation (collectively, the “Fraud Claims”), U.S. State and Federal Securities Law Claims (the “Securities Claims”), violations of the Federal Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (“RICO”), breach of fiduciary duty and misuse of fund assets, and an unfair prejudice claim under Guernsey law (collectively, with the Proofs of Claim, the “HarbourVest Claims”).

27. On October 18, 2020, HarbourVest filed its Motion of HarbourVest Pursuant to Rule 3018 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure for Temporary Allowance of Claims for Purposes of Voting to Accept or Reject the Plan [Docket No. 1207] (the “3018 Motion”). In its 3018 Motion, HarbourVest sought for its Claims to be temporarily allowed for voting purposes in the amount of more than $300 million (based largely on a theory of treble damages).

E. Settlement Discussions

28. In October, the parties discussed the possibility of resolving the Rule 3018 Motion.

29. In November, the parties broadened the discussions in an attempt to reach a global resolution of the HarbourVest Claims. In the pursuit thereof, the parties and their counsel participated in several conference calls where they engaged in a spirited exchange of perspectives concerning the facts and the law.

30. During follow up meetings, the parties' interests became more defined. Specifically, HarbourVest sought to maximize its recovery while fully extracting itself from the Investment, while the Debtor sought to minimize the HarbourVest Claims consistent with its perceptions of the facts and law.

31. After the parties' interests became more defined, the principals engaged in a series of direct, arm's-length, telephonic negotiations that ultimately lead to the settlement, whose terms are summarized below.

F. Summary of Settlement Terms

32. The Settlement Agreement contains the following material terms, among others:

- HarbourVest shall transfer its entire interest in HCLOF to an entity to be designated by the Debtor;<sup>5</sup>
- HarbourVest shall receive an allowed, general unsecured, non-priority claim in the amount of $45 million and shall vote its Class 8 claim in that amount to support the Plan;
- HarbourVest shall receive a subordinated, allowed, general unsecured, non-priority claim in the amount of $35 million and shall vote its Class 9 claim in that amount to support the Plan;
- HarbourVest will support confirmation of the Debtor's Plan, including, but not limited to, voting its claims in support of the Plan;
- The HarbourVest Claims shall be allowed in the aggregate amount of $45 million for voting purposes;
- HarbourVest will support the Debtor's pursuit of its pending Plan of Reorganization; and
- The parties shall exchange mutual releases.

<sup>5</sup> The NAV for HarbourVest's 49.98% interest in HCLOF was estimated to be approximately $22 million as of December 1, 2020.

See generally Morris Dec. Exhibit 1.

BASIS FOR RELIEF REQUESTED

33. Bankruptcy Rule 9019 governs the procedural prerequisites to approval of a settlement, providing that:

On motion by the trustee and after notice and a hearing, the court may approve a compromise or settlement. Notice shall be given to creditors, the United States trustee, the debtor, and indenture trustees as provided in Rule 2002 and to any other entity as the court may direct.

34. Settlements in bankruptcy are favored as a means of minimizing litigation, expediting the administration of the bankruptcy estate, and providing for the efficient resolution of bankruptcy cases. See Myers v. Martin (In re Martin), 91 F.3d 389, 393 (3d Cir. 1996); Rivercity v. Herpel (In re Jackson Brewing Co.), 624 F.2d 599, 602 (5th Cir. 1980). Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019(a), a bankruptcy court may approve a compromise or settlement as long as the proposed settlement is fair, reasonable, and in the best interest of the estate. See In re Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d 530, 540 (5th Cir. 2015). Ultimately, “approval of a compromise is within the sound discretion of the bankruptcy court.” See United States v. AWECO, Inc. (In re AWECO, Inc.), 725 F.2d 293, 297 (5th Cir. 1984); Jackson Brewing, 624 F.2d at 602–03.

35. In making this determination, the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit applies a three-part test, “with a focus on comparing ‘the terms of the compromise with the rewards of litigation.’” Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors v. Cajun Elec. Power Coop. (In re Cajun Elec. Power Coop.), 119 F.3d 349, 356 (5th Cir. 1997) (citing Jackson Brewing, 624 F.2d at 602). The Fifth Circuit has instructed courts to consider the following factors: “(1) The probability of success in the litigation, with due consideration for the uncertainty of law and fact, (2) The complexity and likely duration of the litigation and any attendant expense, inconvenience and delay, and (3) All other factors bearing on the wisdom of the compromise.” Id. Under the rubric of the third factor referenced above, the Fifth Circuit has specified two additional factors that bear on the decision to approve a proposed settlement. First, the court should consider “the paramount interest of creditors with proper deference to their reasonable views.” Id.; Conn. Gen. Life Ins. Co. v. United Cos. Fin. Corp. (In re Foster Mortgage Corp.), 68 F.3d 914, 917 (5th Cir. 1995). Second, the court should consider the “extent to which the settlement is truly the product of arms-length bargaining, and not of fraud or collusion.” Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d at 540; Foster Mortgage Corp., 68 F.3d at 918 (citations omitted).

36. There is ample basis to approve the proposed Settlement Agreement based on the Rule 9019 factors set forth by the Fifth Circuit.

37. First, although the Debtor believes that it has valid defenses to the HarbourVest Claims, there is no guarantee that the Debtor would succeed in its litigation with HarbourVest. Indeed, to establish its defenses, the Debtor would be required to rely, at least in part, on the credibility of witnesses whose veracity has already been called into question by this Court. Moreover, it will be difficult to dispute that the Transfers precipitated the Acis Bankruptcy, and, ultimately, the imposition of the Bankruptcy Court’s TRO that restricted HCLOF’s ability to reset or redeem the CLOs and that is at the core of the HarbourVest Claims.

38. The second factor—the complexity, duration, and costs of litigation—also weighs heavily in favor of approving the Settlement Agreement. As this Court is aware, the events forming the basis of the HarbourVest Claims—including the Terry Litigation and Acis Bankruptcy—proceeded for years in this Court and in multiple other forums, and has already cost the Debtor’s estate millions of dollars in legal fees. If the Settlement Agreement is not approved, then the parties will expend significant resources litigating a host of fact-intensive issues including, among other things, the substance and materiality of the Debtor's alleged fraudulent statements and omissions and whether HarbourVest reasonably relied on those statements and omissions.

39. Third, approval of the Settlement Agreement is justified by the paramount interest of creditors. Specifically, the settlement will enable the Debtor to: (a) avoid incurring substantial litigation costs; (b) avoid the litigation risk associated with HarbourVest's $300 million claim; and (c) through the plan support provisions, increase the likelihood that the Debtor's pending plan of reorganization will be confirmed.

40. Finally, the Settlement Agreement was unquestionably negotiated at arm's-length. The terms of the settlement are the result of numerous, ongoing discussions and negotiations between the parties and their counsel and represent neither party's "best case scenario." Indeed, the Settlement Agreement should be approved as a rational exercise of the Debtor's business judgment made after due deliberation of the facts and circumstances concerning HarbourVest's Claims.

NO PRIOR REQUEST

41. No previous request for the relief sought herein has been made to this, or any other, Court.

NOTICE

42. Notice of this Motion shall be given to the following parties or, in lieu thereof, to their counsel, if known: (a) counsel for HarbourVest; (b) the Office of the United States Trustee; (c) the Office of the United States Attorney for the Northern District of Texas; (d) the Debtor's principal secured parties; (e) counsel to the Committee; and (f) parties requesting notice pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 2002. The Debtor submits that, in light of the nature of the relief requested, no other or further notice need be given.

WHEREFORE, the Debtor respectfully requests entry of an order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A, (a) granting the relief requested herein, and (b) granting such other relief as is just and proper.

Dated: December 23, 2020.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This Settlement Agreement (the “Agreement”) is entered into as of March 30, 2021, by and among (i) Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“HCMLP” or the “Debtor”), (ii) Highland Credit Opportunities CDO, L.P. (n/k/a Highland Multi Strategy Credit Fund, L.P.) (“Multi-Strat,” and together with its general partner and its direct and indirect wholly-owned subsidiaries, the “MSCF Parties”), (iii) Strand Advisors, Inc. (“Strand”), and (iv) UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG London Branch (collectively, “UBS”).

Each of HCMLP, the MSCF Parties, Strand, and UBS are sometimes referred to herein collectively as the “Parties” and individually as a “Party.”

RECITALS

WHEREAS, in 2007, UBS entered into certain contracts with HCMLP and two funds managed by HCMLP—Highland CDO Opportunity Master Fund, L.P. (“CDO Fund”) and Highland Special Opportunities Holding Company (“SOHC,” and together with CDO Fund, the “Funds”) related to a securitization transaction (the “Knox Agreement”);

WHEREAS, in 2008, the parties to the Knox Agreement restructured the Knox Agreement;

WHEREAS, UBS terminated the Knox Agreement and, on February 24, 2009, UBS filed a complaint in the Supreme Court of the State of New York, County of New York (the “State Court”) against HCMLP and the Funds seeking to recover damages related to the Knox Agreement, in an action captioned UBS Securities LLC, et al. v. Highland Capital Management, L.P., et al., Index No. 650097/2009 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.) (the “2009 Action”);

WHEREAS, UBS’s lone claim against HCMLP in the 2009 Action for indemnification was dismissed in early 2010, and thereafter UBS amended its complaint in the 2009 Action to add five new defendants, Highland Financial Partners, L.P. (“HFP”), Highland Credit Strategies Master Funds, L.P. (“Credit-Strat”), Highland Crusader Offshore Partners, L.P. (“Crusader”), Multi-Strat, and Strand, and to add new claims for fraudulent inducement, fraudulent conveyance, tortious interference with contract, alter ego, and general partner liability;

WHEREAS, UBS filed a new, separate action against HCMLP on June 28, 2010, for, inter alia, fraudulent conveyance and breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, captioned UBS Securities LLC, et al. v. Highland Capital Management, L.P., Index No. 650752/2010 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.) (the “2010 Action”);

WHEREAS, in November 2010, the State Court consolidated the 2009 Action and the 2010 Action (hereafter referred to as the “State Court Action”), and on May 11, 2011, UBS filed a Second Amended Complaint in the 2009 Action;

WHEREAS, in 2015, UBS entered into settlement agreements with Crusader and Credit-Strat, and thereafter UBS filed notices with the State Court in the State Court Action dismissing its claims against Crusader and Credit-Strat;

EXECUTION VERSION

WHEREAS, the State Court bifurcated claims asserted in the State Court Action for purposes of trial, with the Phase I bench trial deciding UBS's breach of contract claims against the Funds and HCMLP's counterclaims against UBS;

WHEREAS, on August 7, 2017, the Funds, along with Highland CDO Opportunity Fund, Ltd., Highland CDO Holding Company, Highland Financial Corp., and HFP, purportedly sold assets with a purported collective fair market value of $105,647,679 (the "Transferred Assets") and purported face value of over $300,000,000 to Sentinel Reinsurance, Ltd. ("Sentinel") pursuant to a purported asset purchase agreement (the "Purchase Agreement");

WHEREAS, Sentinel treated the Transferred Assets as payment for a $25,000,000 premium on a document entitled "Legal Liability Insurance Policy" (the "Insurance Policy");

WHEREAS, the Insurance Policy purports to provide coverage to the Funds for up to $100,000,000 for any legal liability resulting from the State Court Action (the "Insurance Proceeds");

WHEREAS, one of the Transferred Assets CDO Fund transferred to Sentinel was CDO Fund's limited partnership interests in Multi-Strat (the "CDOF Interests");

WHEREAS, Sentinel had also received from HCMLP limited partnership interests in Multi-Strat for certain cash consideration (together with the CDOF Interests, the "MSCF Interests");

WHEREAS, the existence of the Purchase Agreement and Insurance Policy were unknown to Strand's independent directors and the Debtor's bankruptcy advisors prior to late January 2021;

WHEREAS, in early February 2021, the Debtor disclosed the existence of the Purchase Agreement and Insurance Policy to UBS;

WHEREAS, prior to such disclosure, the Purchase Agreement and Insurance Policy were unknown to UBS;

WHEREAS, on November 14, 2019, following the Phase I trial, the State Court issued its decision determining that the Funds breached the Knox Agreement on December 5, 2008 and dismissing HCMLP's counterclaims;

WHEREAS, Sentinel purportedly redeemed the MSCF Interests in November 2019 and the redeemed MSCF Interests are currently valued at approximately $32,823,423.50 (the "Sentinel Redemption");

WHEREAS, on February 10, 2020, the State Court entered a Phase I trial judgment against the Funds in the amount of $1,039,957,799.44 as of January 22, 2020 (the "Phase I Judgment");

WHEREAS, Phase II of the trial of the State Court Action, includes, inter alia, UBS's claim for breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing against HCMLP, UBS's

EXECUTION VERSION

fraudulent transfer claims against HCMLP, HFP, and Multi-Strat, and UBS's general partner claim against Strand;

WHEREAS, on October 16, 2019, HCMLP filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of title 11 of the United States Code (the "Bankruptcy Code") in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware (the "Bankruptcy Case"). The Bankruptcy Case was transferred to the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the "Bankruptcy Court") on December 4, 2019;

WHEREAS, Phase II of the trial of the State Court Action was automatically stayed as to HCMLP by HCMLP's bankruptcy filing;

WHEREAS, on May 11, 2020, UBS, Multi-Strat, Highland Credit Opportunities CDO, Ltd., and Highland Credit Opportunities CDO Asset Holdings, L.P. (collectively, the "May Settlement Parties"), entered into a Settlement Agreement (the "May Settlement") pursuant to which the May Settlement Parties agreed to the allocation of the proceeds of certain sales of assets held by Multi-Strat, including escrowing a portion of such funds, and restrictions on Multi-Strat's actions;

WHEREAS, on June 26, 2020, UBS timely filed two substantively identical claims in the Bankruptcy Case: (i) Claim No. 190 filed by UBS Securities LLC; and (ii) Claim No. 191 filed by UBS AG London Branch (hereinafter collectively referred to as the "UBS Claim"). The UBS Claim asserts a general unsecured claim against HCMLP for $1,039,957,799.40;

WHEREAS, on August 3, 2020, the Bankruptcy Court entered an Order Directing Mediation [Docket No. 912] pursuant to which HCMLP, UBS, and several other parties were directed to mediate their Bankruptcy Case disputes before two experienced third-party mediators, Retired Judge Allan Gropper and Sylvia Mayer (together, the "Mediators"). HCMLP and UBS formally met with the Mediators together and separately on numerous occasions, including on August 27, September 2, 3, and 4, and December 17, 2020, and had numerous other informal discussions outside of the presence of the Mediators, in an attempt to resolve the UBS Claim;

WHEREAS, on August 7, 2020, HCMLP filed an objection to the UBS Claim [Docket No. 928]. Also on August 7, 2020, the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund, and Crusader, Highland Crusader Fund, L.P., Highland Crusader Fund, Ltd., and Highland Crusader Fund II, Ltd. (collectively, the "Redeemer Committee"), objected to the UBS Claim [Docket No. 933]. On September 25, 2020, UBS filed its response to these objections [Docket No. 1105];

WHEREAS, on October 16, 2020, HCMLP and the Redeemer Committee each moved for partial summary judgment on the UBS Claim [Docket Nos. 1180 and 1183, respectively], and on November 6, 2020, UBS opposed these motions [Docket No. 1337];

WHEREAS, by Order dated December 9, 2020, the Bankruptcy Court granted, as set forth therein, the motions for partial summary judgment filed by HCMLP and the Redeemer Committee and denied UBS's request for leave to file an amended proof of claim [Docket No. 1526];

EXECUTION VERSION

WHEREAS, on November 6, 2020, UBS filed UBS's Motion for Temporary Allowance of Claims for Voting Purposes Pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 3018 [Docket No. 1338] (the "3018 Motion"), and on November 16, 2020, HCMLP and the Redeemer Committee each opposed the 3018 Motion [Docket Nos. 1404 and 1409, respectively];

WHEREAS, by Order dated December 8, 2020, the Bankruptcy Court granted the 3018 Motion and allowed the UBS Claim, on a temporary basis and for voting purposes only, in the amount of $94,761,076 [Docket No. 1518];

WHEREAS, on January 22, 2021, the Debtor filed the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization for Highland Capital Management, L.P. (As Modified) [Docket No. 1808] (as amended, and as may be further amended, supplemented, or otherwise modified, the "Plan");

WHEREAS, on March 29, 2021, the Debtor caused CDO Fund to make a claim on the Insurance Policy to collect the Insurance Proceeds pursuant to the Phase I Judgment;

WHEREAS, on March 29, 2021, UBS filed an adversary proceeding seeking injunctive relief and a motion for a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction to, among other things, enjoin the Debtor from allowing Multi-Strat to distribute the Sentinel Redemption to Sentinel or any transferee of Sentinel (the "Multi-Strat Proceeding"), which relief the Debtor, in its capacity as Multi-Strat's investment manager and general partner, does not oppose;

WHEREAS, the Parties wish to enter into this Agreement to settle all claims and disputes between and among them, to the extent and on the terms and conditions set forth herein, and to exchange the mutual releases set forth herein, without any admission of fault, liability, or wrongdoing on the part of any Party; and

WHEREAS, this Agreement will be presented to the Bankruptcy Court for approval pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9019 ("Rule 9019") and section 363 of the Bankruptcy Code;

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the above recitals, the covenants, conditions, and promises made herein, and other good and valuable consideration, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, the Parties agree as follows:

AGREEMENT

1. Settlement of Claims. In full and complete satisfaction of the UBS Released Claims (as defined below):

(a) The UBS Claim will be allowed as (i) a single, general unsecured claim in the amount of $65,000,000 against HCMLP, which shall be treated as a Class 8 General Unsecured Claim under the Plan;<sup>1</sup> and (ii) a single, subordinated unsecured claim in the amount of $60,000,000 against HCMLP, which shall be treated as a Class 9 Subordinated General Unsecured Claim under the Plan.

EXECUTION VERSION

(b) Multi-Strat will pay UBS the sum of $18,500,000 (the “Multi-Strat Payment”) as follows: (i) within two (2) business days after the Order Date, the May Settlement Parties will submit a Joint Release Instruction (as defined in the May Settlement) for the release of the amounts held in the Escrow Account (as defined in the May Settlement) to be paid to UBS in partial satisfaction of the Multi-Strat Payment on the date that is ten (10) business days following the Order Date; and (ii) Multi-Strat will pay UBS the remainder of the Multi-Strat Payment in immediately available funds on the date that is ten (10) business days following the Order Date, provided that, for the avoidance of doubt, the amounts held in the Escrow Account will not be paid to UBS until and unless the remainder of the Multi-Strat Payment is made.

(c) Subject to applicable law, HCMLP will use reasonable efforts to (i) cause CDO Fund to pay the Insurance Proceeds in full to UBS as soon as practicable, but no later than within 5 business days of CDO Fund actually receiving the Insurance Proceeds from or on behalf of Sentinel; (ii) if Sentinel refuses to pay the Insurance Proceeds, take legal action reasonably designed to recover the Insurance Proceeds or the MSCF Interests or to return the Transferred Assets to the Funds to satisfy the Phase I Judgment and in addition shall provide reasonable assistance to UBS in connection with any legal action UBS takes to recover the Insurance Proceeds or to return the Transferred Assets to the Funds to satisfy the Phase I Judgment or obtain rights to the MSCF interests, including but not limited to the redemption payments in connection with the MSCF Interests; (iii) cooperate with UBS and participate (as applicable) in the investigation or prosecution of claims or requests for injunctive relief against the Funds, Multi-Strat, Sentinel, James Dondero, Isaac Leventon, Scott Ellington, Andrew Dean, Christopher Walter, Jean Paul Sevilla, Matthew DiOrio, Katie Irving, and/or any other current or former employee or director of the Funds or Sentinel and/or any other former employee or former director of any of the HCMLP Parties that is believed to be involved with the Purchase Agreement, Insurance Policy, Transferred Assets, the transfer of the MSCF Interests, or any potentially fraudulent transfer of assets from the Funds to Sentinel, excluding the individuals listed on the schedule provided to UBS on March 25, 2021 (the “HCMLP Excluded Employees”); (iv) as soon as reasonably practicable, provide UBS with all business and trustee contacts at the Funds, HFP, Greenbriar CLO Ltd., Greenbriar CLO Corp., Aberdeen Loan Funding Ltd, Eastland CLO Ltd, Grayson CLO Ltd, Valhalla CLO Ltd, and Governance Re Ltd, if any, that are actually known by the Debtor after reasonable inquiry; (v) as soon as reasonably practicable, provide UBS with a copy of the governing documents, prospectuses, and indenture agreements for the Funds, HFP, Greenbriar CLO Ltd., Greenbriar CLO Corp., Aberdeen Loan Funding Ltd, Eastland CLO Ltd, Grayson CLO Ltd, Valhalla CLO Ltd, and Governance Re Ltd, as applicable, that are in the Debtor’s actual possession, custody, or control, (vi) as soon as reasonably practicable, provide, to the extent possible, any CUSIP numbers of the securities of the Funds, HFP, Greenbriar CLO Ltd., Greenbriar CLO Corp., Aberdeen Loan Funding Ltd, Eastland CLO Ltd, Grayson CLO Ltd, Valhalla CLO Ltd, and Governance Re Ltd., as applicable, including information regarding the location and amount of any cash related to those entities’ holdings, in each case only to the extent actually known by the Debtor after reasonable inquiry; (vii) cooperate with UBS to assign or convey any such assets described in Section 1(c)(vi) or any other assets owned or controlled by the Funds and/or HFP, including for avoidance of doubt any additional assets currently unknown to the Debtor that the Debtor discovers in the future after the Agreement Effective Date; (viii) respond as promptly as reasonably possible to requests by UBS for access to relevant documents and approve as promptly as reasonably possible requests for access to relevant documents from third parties as needed with respect to the Transferred Assets, the Purchase Agreement, the Insurance Policy, the

MSCF Interests and any other assets currently or formerly held by the Funds or HFP, including without limitation the requests listed in Appendix A (provided, however, that the provision of any such documents or access will be subject to the common interest privilege and will not constitute a waiver of any attorney-client or other privilege in favor of HCMLP) that are in the Debtor's actual possession, custody, or control; (ix) preserve all documents in HCMLP's possession, custody, or control regarding or relating to the Purchase Agreement, the Insurance Policy, the MSCF Interests, or any transfer of assets from the Funds to Sentinel, including but not limited to the documents requested in Appendix A, from 2016 to present, and issue a litigation hold to all individuals deemed reasonably necessary regarding the same; and (x) otherwise use reasonable efforts to assist UBS to collect its Phase I Judgment against the Funds and HFP and assets the Funds and/or HFP may own, or have a claim to under applicable law ahead of all other creditors of the Funds and HFP; provided, however, that, from and after the date hereof, HCMLP shall not be required to incur any out-of-pocket fees or expenses, including, but not limited to, those fees and expenses for outside consultants and professionals (the "Reimbursable Expenses"), in connection with any provision of this Section 1(c) in excess of $3,000,000 (the "Expense Cap"), and provided further that, for every dollar UBS recovers from the Funds (other than the assets related to Greenbriar CLO Ltd. or Greenbriar CLO Corp.), Sentinel, Multi-Strat (other than the amounts set forth in Section 1(b) hereof), or any other person or entity described in Section 1(c)(iii) in connection with any claims UBS has that arise out of or relate to the Phase I Judgment, the Purchase Agreement, the Insurance Policy, the Transferred Assets, the MSCF Interests, or the Insurance Proceeds (the "UBS Recovery"), UBS will reimburse HCMLP ten percent of the UBS Recovery for the Reimbursable Expenses incurred by HCMLP, subject to: (1) the occurrence of the Agreement Effective Date and (2) UBS's receipt and review of invoices and time records (which may be redacted as reasonably necessary) for outside consultants and professionals in connection with such efforts described in this Section 1(c), up to but not exceeding the Expense Cap after any disputes regarding the Reimbursable Expenses have been resolved pursuant to procedures to be agreed upon, or absent an agreement, in a manner directed by the Bankruptcy Court; and provided further that in any proceeding over the reasonableness of the Reimbursable Expenses, the losing party shall be obligated to pay the reasonable fees and expenses of the prevailing party; and provided further that any litigation in which HCMLP is a co-plaintiff with UBS or a plaintiff pursuing claims on behalf of or for UBS's benefit pursuant to this Section 1(c) shall be conducted in consultation with UBS, including but not limited to the selection of necessary outside consultants and professionals to assist in such litigation; and provided further that UBS shall have the right to approve HCMLP's selection of outside consultants and professionals to assist in any litigation in which HCMLP is a co-plaintiff with UBS or a plaintiff pursuing claims on behalf of or for UBS's benefit pursuant to this Section 1(c).

(d) Redeemer Appeal.

(i) On the Agreement Effective Date, provided that neither the Redeemer Committee nor any entities acting on its behalf or with any assistance from or coordination with the Redeemer Committee have objected to this Agreement or the 9019 Motion (as defined below), UBS shall withdraw with prejudice its appeal of the Order Approving Debtor's Settlement with (A) the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund (Claim No. 72) and (B) the Highland Crusader Funds (Claim No. 81), and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No. 1273] (the "Redeemer Appeal"); and

EXECUTION VERSION

(ii) The Parties have stipulated to extend the deadline for the filing of any briefs in the Redeemer Appeal to June 30, 2021 and will agree to such further extensions as necessary to facilitate this Settlement Agreement.

(e) As of the Agreement Effective Date, the restrictions and obligations set forth in the May Settlement, other than those in Section 7 thereof, shall be extinguished in their entirety and be of no further force or effect.

(f) On the Agreement Effective Date, the Debtor shall instruct the claims agent in the Bankruptcy Case to adjust the claims register in accordance with this Agreement.

(g) On the Agreement Effective Date, any claim the Debtor may have against Sentinel or any other party, and any recovery related thereto, with respect to the MSCF Interests shall be automatically transferred to UBS, without any further action required by the Debtor. For the avoidance of doubt, the Debtor shall retain any and all other claims it may have against Sentinel or any other party, and the recovery related thereto, unrelated to the MSCF Interests.

2. Definitions.

(a) “Agreement Effective Date” shall mean the date the full amount of the Multi-Strat Payment defined in Section 1(b) above, including without limitation the amounts held in the Escrow Account (as defined in the May Settlement), is actually paid to UBS.

(b) “HCMLP Parties” shall mean (a) HCMLP, in its individual capacity; (b) HCMLP, as manager of Multi-Strat; and (c) Strand.

(c) “Order Date” shall mean the date of an order entered by the Bankruptcy Court approving this Agreement pursuant to a motion filed under Rule 9019 and section 363 of the Bankruptcy Code.

(d) “UBS Parties” shall mean UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG London Branch.

3. Releases.

(a) UBS Releases. Upon the occurrence of the Agreement Effective Date, and to the maximum extent permitted by law, each of the UBS Parties hereby forever, finally, fully, unconditionally, irrevocably, and completely releases, relieves, acquits, remises, exonerates, forever discharges, and covenants never to sue (A) the HCMLP Parties and each of their current and former advisors, attorneys, trustees, directors, officers, managers, members, partners, employees, beneficiaries, shareholders, agents, participants, subsidiaries, parents, affiliates, successors, designees, and assigns (each in their capacities as such), except as expressly set forth below, and (B) the MSCF Parties and each of their current and former advisors, attorneys, trustees, directors, officers, managers, members, partners, employees, beneficiaries, shareholders, agents, participants, subsidiaries, parents, affiliates, successors, designees, and assigns (each in their capacities as such), except as expressly set forth below, for and from any and all claims, debts, liabilities, demands, obligations, promises, acts, agreements, liens, losses, costs and expenses (including, without limitation, attorneys’ fees and related costs), damages, injuries, suits, actions, and causes of action of whatever kind or nature, whether known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, matured or unmatured, liquidated or unliquidated, contingent or fixed, at law or in equity, or statutory or otherwise, including, without limitation, any claims, defenses, and affirmative defenses, whether known or unknown, including, without limitation, those that have been or could have been alleged or asserted in the State Court Action or the Bankruptcy Case (collectively, the “UBS Released Claims”), provided, however, that notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, such releases shall not apply to (1) the obligations of the HCMLP Parties and MSCF Parties under this Agreement, including without limitation the allowance of or distributions on account of the UBS Claim or the settlement terms described in Sections 1(a)-(g) above; (2) the Funds or HFP, including for any liability with respect to the prosecution, enforcement, collection, or defense of the Phase I Judgment, Purchase Agreement, and/or Insurance Policy, or such prosecution, enforcement, collection, or defense of the Phase I Judgment, Purchase Agreement, and/or Insurance Policy by UBS; (3) James Dondero or Mark Okada, or any entities, including without limitation Hunter Mountain Investment Trust, Dugaboy Investment Trust, and NexBank, SSB, owned or controlled by either of them, other than the HCMLP Parties and MSCF Parties (but for the avoidance of doubt, such releases of the HCMLP Parties and MSCF Parties shall be solely with respect to such entities and shall not extend in any way to James Dondero or Mark Okada in their individual capacity or in any other capacity, including but not limited to as an investor, officer, trustee, or director in the HCMLP Parties or MSCF Parties); (4) Sentinel or its subsidiaries, parents, affiliates, successors, designees, assigns, employees, or directors, including James Dondero, Isaac Leventon, Scott Ellington, Andrew Dean, Christopher Walter, Jean Paul Sevilla, Matthew DiOrio, Katie Irving, and/or any other current or former employee or director of the Funds or Sentinel and/or any other former employee or former director of any of the HCMLP Parties that is believed to be involved with the Purchase Agreement, Insurance Policy, MSCF Interests, or Transferred Assets, including for any liability with respect to the prosecution, enforcement, collection, or defense of the Phase I Judgment, Purchase Agreement, the MSCF Interests, any potentially fraudulent transfer of assets from the Funds to Sentinel and/or Insurance Policy, excluding the HCMLP Excluded Employees; (5) the economic rights or interests of UBS in its capacity as an investor, directly or indirectly (including in its capacity as an investment manager and/or investment advisor), in any HCMLP-affiliated entity, including without limitation in the Redeemer Committee and Credit Strat, and/or in such entities’ past, present or future subsidiaries and feeders funds (the “UBS Unrelated Investments”); and (6) any actions taken by UBS against any person or entity, including any HCMLP Party or MSCF Party, to enjoin a distribution on the Sentinel Redemption or the transfer of any assets currently held by or within the control of CDO Fund to Sentinel or a subsequent transferee or to seek to compel any action that only such person or entity has standing to pursue or authorize in order to permit UBS to recover the Insurance Proceeds, Transferred Assets, the Phase I Judgment or any recovery against HFP; provided, however, that, from and after the date hereof, any out-of-pocket fees or expenses incurred by HCMLP in connection with this Section 3(a)(6) will be considered Reimbursable Expenses and shall be subject to, and applied against, the Expense Cap as if they were incurred by HCMLP pursuant to Section 1(c) subject to the occurrence of the Agreement Effective Date and after any disputes regarding such Reimbursable Expenses have been resolved in the manner described in Section 1(c).

(b) HCMLP Release. Upon the occurrence of the Agreement Effective Date, and to the maximum extent permitted by law, each of the HCMLP Parties hereby forever, finally, fully, unconditionally, irrevocably, and completely releases, relieves, acquits, remises, exonerates, forever discharges, and covenants never to sue any of the UBS Parties and each of their current and former advisors, attorneys, trustees, directors, officers, managers, members, partners, employees, beneficiaries, shareholders, agents, participants, subsidiaries, parents, affiliates, successors, designees, and assigns (each in their capacities as such), for and from any and all claims, debts, liabilities, demands, obligations, promises, acts, agreements, liens, losses, costs and expenses (including, without limitation, attorneys' fees and related costs), damages, injuries, suits, actions, and causes of action of whatever kind or nature, whether known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, matured or unmatured, liquidated or unliquidated, contingent or fixed, at law or in equity, or statutory or otherwise, including, without limitation, any claims, defenses, and affirmative defenses, whether known or unknown, including, without limitation, those that have been or could have been alleged or asserted in the State Court Action or the Bankruptcy Case (collectively, the "HCMLP Released Claims"), provided, however, that notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, such releases shall not apply to the obligations of the UBS Parties under this Agreement or Section 7 of the May Settlement; and (b) the obligations of the UBS Parties in connection with the UBS Unrelated Investments.

(c) Multi-Strat Release. Upon the occurrence of the Agreement Effective Date, and to the maximum extent permitted by law, each of the MSCF Parties hereby forever, finally, fully, unconditionally, irrevocably, and completely releases, relieves, acquits, remises, exonerates, forever discharges, and covenants never to sue any of the UBS Parties and each of their current and former advisors, attorneys, trustees, directors, officers, managers, members, partners, employees, beneficiaries, shareholders, agents, participants, subsidiaries, parents, affiliates, successors, designees, and assigns (each in their capacities as such), for and from any and all claims, debts, liabilities, demands, obligations, promises, acts, agreements, liens, losses, costs and expenses (including, without limitation, attorneys' fees and related costs), damages, injuries, suits, actions, and causes of action of whatever kind or nature, whether known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, matured or unmatured, liquidated or unliquidated, contingent or fixed, at law or in equity, or statutory or otherwise, including, without limitation, any claims, defenses, and affirmative defenses, whether known or unknown, including, without limitation, those that have been or could have been alleged or asserted in the State Court Action or the Bankruptcy Case (collectively, the "Multi-Strat Released Claims"), provided, however, that notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, such releases shall not apply to the obligations of the UBS Parties under this Agreement or Section 7 of the May Settlement.

4. No Third Party Beneficiaries. Except for the parties released by this Agreement, no other person or entity shall be deemed a third-party beneficiary of this Agreement.

5. UBS Covenant Not to Sue. Subject to the occurrence of the Agreement Effective date, if UBS ever controls any HCMLP-affiliated defendant in the State Court Action by virtue of the prosecution, enforcement, or collection of the Phase I Judgment (collectively, the "Controlled State Court Defendants"), UBS covenants on behalf of itself and the Controlled State Court Defendants, if any, that neither UBS nor the Controlled State Court Defendants will assert or pursue any claims that any Controlled State Court Defendant has or may have against any of the HCMLP Parties; provided, however, that nothing shall prohibit UBS or a Controlled State Court Defendant from taking any of the actions set forth in Section 3(a)(1)-(6); provided further, however, if and to the extent UBS receives any distribution from any Controlled State Court Defendant that is derived from a claim by a Controlled State Court Defendant against the Debtor, subject to the exceptions set forth in Section 3(a), which distribution is directly

attributable to any property the Controlled State Court Defendant receives from the Debtor and separate and distinct from property owned or controlled by CDO Fund, SOHC, or Multi-Strat, then such recovery shall be credited against all amounts due from the Debtor's estate on account of the UBS Claim allowed pursuant to Section 1(a) of this Agreement, or if such claim has been paid in full, shall be promptly turned over to the Debtor or its successors or assigns.

6. Agreement Subject to Bankruptcy Court Approval.

(a) The force and effect of this Agreement and the Parties' obligations hereunder are conditioned in all respects on the approval of this Agreement and the releases herein by the Bankruptcy Court. The Parties agree to use reasonable efforts to have this Agreement expeditiously approved by the Bankruptcy Court by cooperating in the preparation and prosecution of a mutually agreeable motion and proposed order (the "9019 Motion") to be filed by the Debtor no later than five business days after execution of this Agreement by all Parties unless an extension is agreed to by both parties.

7. Representations and Warranties.

(a) Each UBS Party represents and warrants that (i) it has full authority to enter into this Agreement and to release the UBS Released Claims and has not sold, transferred, or assigned any UBS Released Claim to any other person or entity, and (ii) no person or entity other than such UBS Party has been, is, or will be authorized to bring, pursue, or enforce any UBS Released Claim on behalf of, for the benefit of, or in the name of (whether directly or derivatively) such UBS Party.

(b) Each HCMLP Party represents and warrants that (i) it has full authority to enter into this Agreement and to release the HCMLP Released Claims and has not sold, transferred, or assigned any HCMLP Released Claim to any other person or entity, and (ii) no person or entity other than such HCMLP Party has been, is, or will be authorized to bring, pursue, or enforce any HCMLP Released Claim on behalf of, for the benefit of, or in the name of (whether directly or derivatively) such HCMLP Party.

(c) Each MSCF Party represents and warrants that (i) it has full authority to enter into this Agreement and to release the Multi-Strat Released Claims and has not sold, transferred, or assigned any Multi-Strat Released Claim to any other person or entity, and (ii) no person or entity other than such MSCF Party has been, is, or will be authorized to bring, pursue, or enforce any Multi-Strat Released Claim on behalf of, for the benefit of, or in the name of (whether directly or derivatively) such MSCF Party.

EXECUTION VERSION

8. No Admission of Liability. The Parties acknowledge that there is a bona fide dispute with respect to the UBS Claim. Nothing in this Agreement shall be construed, expressly or by implication, as an admission of liability, fault, or wrongdoing by HCMLP, the MSCF Parties, Strand, UBS, or any other person, and the execution of this Agreement does not constitute an admission of liability, fault, or wrongdoing on the part of HCMLP, the MSCF Parties, Strand, UBS, or any other person.

9. Successors-in-Interest. This Agreement shall be binding upon and shall inure to the benefit of each of the Parties and their representatives, successors, and assigns.

10. Notice. Each notice and other communication hereunder shall be in writing and will, unless otherwise subsequently directed in writing, be delivered by email and overnight delivery, as set forth below, and will be deemed to have been given on the date following such mailing.

11. Advice of Counsel. Each of the Parties represents that such Party has: (a) been adequately represented by independent legal counsel of its own choice, throughout all of the negotiations that preceded the execution of this Agreement; (b) executed this Agreement upon the advice of such counsel; (c) read this Agreement, and understands and assents to all the terms and conditions contained herein without any reservations; and (d) had the opportunity to have this Agreement and all the terms and conditions contained herein explained by independent counsel, who has answered any and all questions asked of such counsel, or which could have been asked of such counsel, including, but not limited to, with regard to the meaning and effect of any of the provisions of this Agreement.

12. Entire Agreement. This Agreement contains the entire agreement and understanding concerning the subject matter of this Agreement, and supersedes and replaces all prior negotiations and agreements, written or oral and executed or unexecuted, concerning such subject matter. Each of the Parties acknowledges that no other Party, nor any agent of or attorney for any such Party, has made any promise, representation, or warranty, express or implied, written or oral, not otherwise contained in this Agreement to induce any Party to execute this Agreement. The Parties further acknowledge that they are not executing this Agreement in reliance on any promise, representation, or warranty not contained in this Agreement, and that any such reliance would be unreasonable. This Agreement will not be waived or modified except by an agreement in writing signed by each Party or duly authorized representative of each Party.

13. No Party Deemed Drafter. The Parties acknowledge that the terms of this Agreement are contractual and are the result of arm's-length negotiations between the Parties and their chosen counsel. Each Party and its counsel cooperated in the drafting and preparation of this Agreement. In any construction to be made of this Agreement, the Agreement will not be construed against any Party.

14. Future Cooperation. The Parties agree to cooperate and execute such further documentation as is reasonably necessary to effectuate the intent of this Agreement.

15. Counterparts. This Agreement may be executed in counterparts with the same force and effect as if executed in one complete document. Each Party's signature hereto will signify acceptance of, and agreement to, the terms and provisions contained in this Agreement.

EXECUTION VERSION

Photographic, electronic, and facsimile copies of signed counterparts may be used in lieu of the originals of this Agreement for any purpose.

16. Governing Law; Venue; Attorneys' Fees and Costs. The Parties agree that this Agreement will be governed by and will be construed according to the laws of the State of New York without regard to conflict-of-law principles. Each of the Parties hereby submits to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court during the pendency of the Bankruptcy Case and thereafter to the exclusive jurisdiction of the state and federal courts located in the Borough of Manhattan, New York, with respect to any disputes arising from or out of this Agreement. In any action to enforce this Agreement, the prevailing party shall be entitled to recover its reasonable and necessary attorneys' fees and costs (including experts).

Warren Hellman: One of the good guys

Warren Hellman was a devoted family man, highly successful businessman, active philanthropist, dedicated musician, arts patron, endurance athlete and all-around good guy. Born in New York City in 1934, he grew up in the Bay Area, graduating from the University of California at Berkeley. After serving in the U.S. Army and attending Harvard Business School, Warren began his finance career at Lehman Brothers, becoming the youngest partner in the firm's history at age 26 and subsequently serving as President. After a distinguished career on Wall Street, Warren moved back west and co-founded Hellman & Friedman, building it into one of the industry's leading private equity firms.

Warren deeply believed in the power of people to accomplish incredible things and used his success to improve and enrich the lives of countless people. Throughout his career, Warren helped found or seed many successful businesses including Matrix Partners, Jordan Management Company, Farallon Capital Management and Hall Capital Partners.

Within the community, Warren and his family were generous supporters of dozens of organizations and causes in the arts, public education, civic life, and public health, including creating and running the San Francisco Free Clinic. Later in life, Warren became an accomplished 5-string banjo player and found great joy in sharing the love of music with others. In true form, he made something larger of this avocation to benefit others by founding the Hardly Strictly Bluegrass Festival, an annual three-day, free music festival that draws hundreds of thousands of people together from around the Bay Area.

An accomplished endurance athlete, Warren regularly completed 100-mile runs, horseback rides and combinations of the two. He also was an avid skier and national caliber master ski racer and served as president of the U.S. Ski Team in the late 1970s, and is credited with helping revitalize the Sugar Bowl ski resort in the California Sierras.

In short, Warren Hellman embodied the ideal of living life to the fullest. He had an active mind and body, and a huge heart. We are lucky to call him our founder. ## GCM Grosvenor to Go Public

The $57 billion alternatives manager will become a public company after merging with a SPAC backed by Cantor Fitzgerald.

August 03, 2020

Chicago, IL (Tim Boyle/Bloomberg)

In a sign of the times, GCM Grosvenor will become a public company through a SPAC.

The Chicago-based alternative investments firm is planning to go public by merging with a special purpose acquisition company in a deal valued at $2 billion. The 50-year-old firm has $57 billion in assets in private equity, infrastructure, real estate, credit, and absolute return investments.

“We have long valued having external shareholders and we wanted to preserve the accountability and focus that comes with that,” Michael Sacks, GCM Grosvenor’s chairman and CEO, said in a statement.

GCM Grosvenor will combine with CF Finance Special Acquisition Corp, a SPAC backed by Cantor Fitzgerald, according to an announcement from both companies on Monday. After the company goes public, Sacks will continue to lead GCM Grosvenor, which is owned by management and Hellman & Friedman, a private equity firm. Hellman & Friedman, which has owned a minority stake of the Chicago asset manager since 2007, will sell its equity as

Debt origination for an affiliate of Simon Property Group Inc. and Farallon Capital Management

Date	June 2007
Asset Class	Retail
Asset Size	1,808,506 Sq. Ft.
Sponsor	Simon Property Group Inc. / Farallon Capital Management
Transaction Type	Refinance
Total Debt Amount	Lehman Brothers: $121 million JP Morgan: $200 million

- ◆ In June 2007, Lehman Brothers co-originated a loan in the aggregate amount of $321 million (Lehman portion: $121 million) with JP Morgan to a special purpose affiliate of a joint venture between Simon Property Group Inc (“Simon”) and Farallon Capital Management (“Farallon”) secured by the shopping center known as Gurnee Mills Mall (the “Property”) located in Gurnee, IL .
- ◆ The Property consists of a one-story, 200 store discount mega-mall comprised of 1,808,506 square feet anchored by Burlington Coat Factory, Marshalls, Bed Bath & Beyond and Kohls among other national retailers. Built in 1991, the Property underwent a $5 million interior renovation in addition to a $71 million redevelopment between 2004 and 2005. As of March 2007, the Property had a in-line occupancy of 99.5%.

Lehman Brothers Role

- ◆ Simon and Farallon comprised the sponsorship which eventually merged with The Mills Corporation in early 2007 for $25.25 per common share in cash. The total value of the transaction was approximately $1.64 billion for all of the outstanding common stock, and approximately $7.9 billion including assumed debt and preferred equity.
- ◆ Lehman and JP Morgan subsequently co-originated $321 million loan at 79.2% LTV based on an appraisal completed in March by Cushman & Wakefield. The Loan was used to refinance the indebtedness secured by the Property.

Sponsorship Overview

- ◆ The Mills Corporation, based in Chevy Chase MD is a developer owner and manager of a diversified portfolio of retail destinations including regional shopping malls and entertainment centers. They currently own 38 properties in the United States totaling 47 million square feet.

Investor Communication to Highland Crusader Funds Stakeholders

Alvarez & Marsal
Management, LLC 2029 Gei
Park East Suite 206C
Angeles, CA 9

July 6, 2021

Re: Update & Notice of Distribution

Dear Highland Crusader Funds Stakeholder,

As you know, in October 2020, the Bankruptcy Court approved a settlement of the Redeemer Committee's and the Crusader Funds' claims against Highland Capital Management L.P. ("HCM"), as a result of which the Redeemer Committee was allowed a general unsecured claim of $137,696,610 against HCM and the Crusader Funds were allowed a general unsecured claim of $50,000 against HCM (collectively, the "Claims"). In addition, as part of the settlement, various interests in the Crusader Funds held by HCM and certain of its affiliates are to be extinguished (the "Extinguished Interests"), and the Redeemer Committee and the Crusader Funds received a general release from HCM and a waiver by HCM of any claim to distributions or fees that it might otherwise receive from the Crusader Funds (the "Released Claims" and, collectively with the Extinguished Interests, the "Retained Rights").

A timely appeal of the settlement was taken by UBS (the "UBS Appeal") in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division. However, the Bankruptcy Court subsequently approved a settlement between HCM and UBS, resulting in dismissal of the UBS Appeal with prejudice on June 14, 2021.

On April 30, 2021, the Crusader Funds and the Redeemer Committee consummated the sale of the Claims against HCM and the majority of the remaining investments held by the Crusader Funds to Jessup Holdings LLC ("Jessup") for $78 million in cash, which was paid in full to the Crusader Funds at closing. The sale specifically excluded the Crusader Funds' investment in Cornerstone Healthcare Group Holding Inc. and excluded certain specified provisions of the settlement agreement with HCM (the "Settlement Agreement"), including, but not limited to, the Retained Rights. The sale of the Claims and investments was made with no holdbacks or escrows.

The sale to Jessup resulted from a solicitation of offers to purchase the Claims commenced by Alvarez & Marsal CRF Management LLC ("A&M CRF"), as Investment Manager of the Crusader Funds, in consultation with the Redeemer Committee. Ultimately, the Crusader Funds and the Redeemer Committee entered exclusive negotiations with Jessup, culminating in the sale to Jessup.

A&M CRF, pursuant to the Plan and Scheme and with the approval of House Hanover, the Redeemer Committee and the Board of the Master Fund, now intends to distribute the proceeds from the Jessup transaction ($78 million), net of any applicable tax withholdings and with no reserves for the Extinguished Claims or the Released Claims. In addition, the distribution will include approximately $9.4 million in proceeds that have been redistributed due to the cancellation and extinguishment of the interests and shares in the Crusader Funds held by HCM, Charitable DAF and Eames in connection with the Settlement Agreement, resulting in a total gross distribution of $87.4 million. Distributions will be based on net asset value as of June 30, 2021.

Please note that A&M CRF intends to make the distributions by wire transfer no later than July 31, 2021. Please confirm your wire instructions on or before July 20, 2021. If there are any revisions to your wire information, please use the attached template to provide SEI and A&M CRF your updated information on investor letterhead. The wire payments will be made to the investor bank account on file with an effective and record date of July 1, 2021. Should you have any questions, please contact SEI or A&M CRF at the e-mail addresses listed above.

Sincerely,

IN RE:	§	IN THE DISTRICT COURT
HUNTER MOUNTAIN	§

Petitioner,	§
	§	DALLAS COUNTY, TEXAS

DECLARATION OF JAMES DONDERO

STATE OF TEXAS §
 COUNTY OF DALLAS §

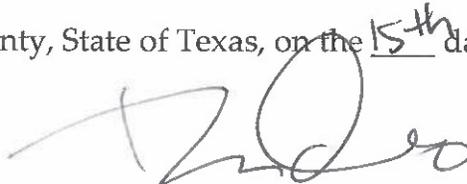

The undersigned provides this Declaration pursuant to Texas Civil Practice & Remedies Code § 132.001 and declares as follows:

1. My name is James Dondero. I am over twenty-one (21) years of age. I am of sound mind and body, and I am competent to make this declaration. The facts stated within this declaration are based upon my personal knowledge and are true and correct.
2. I previously served as the Chief Executive Officer (“CEO”) of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“HCM”). Jim Seery succeeded me in this capacity following the entry of various orders in the bankruptcy proceedings styled In re Highland Capital Management, L.P., Case No. 19-34054 (“HCM Bankruptcy Proceedings”).
3. On December 17, 2020, I sent an email to employees at HCM, including the then Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer Jim Seery, containing non-public information regarding Amazon and Apple’s interest in acquiring MGM. I became aware of this information due to my involvement as a member of the board of MGM. My purpose was to alert Mr. Seery and others that MGM stock, which was owned either directly or indirectly by HCM, should be on a restricted list and not be involved in any trades. A true and correct copy of this email is attached hereto as Exhibit “1”.

4. In late Spring of 2021, I had phone calls with two principals at Farallon Capital Management, LLC (“Farallon”), Raj Patel and Michael Linn. During these phone calls, Mr. Patel and Mr. Linn informed me that Farallon had a deal in place to purchase the Acis and HarbourVest claims, which I understood to refer to claims that were a part of settlements in the HCM Bankruptcy Proceedings. Mr. Patel and Mr. Linn stated that Farallon agreed to purchase these claims based solely on conversations with Mr. Seery because they had made significant profits when Mr. Seery told them to purchase other claims in the past. They also stated they were particularly optimistic because of the expected sale of MGM.
5. During one of these calls involving Mr. Linn, I asked whether they would sell the claims for 30% more than they had paid. Mr. Linn said no because Mr. Seery said they were worth a lot more. I asked Mr. Linn if he would sell at any price and he said that he was unwilling to do so. I believe these conversations with Farallon were taped by Farallon.
6. My name is James Dondero, my date of birth is June 29, 1962, and my address is 3807 Miramar Ave., Dallas, Texas 75205, United States of America. I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

FURTHER DECLARANT SAYETH NOT.

Executed in Dallas County, State of Texas, on the 15th day of February 2023.

The undersigned provides this Declaration pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 1746 and declares as follows:

1. My name is Sawnie A. McEntire. I am over 21 years of age. I am of sound mind and body and I am competent to make this declaration. Unless otherwise indicated, the facts stated within this declaration are based upon my personal knowledge and are true and correct.
2. I am a licensed attorney in good standing with the State Bar of Texas. I am a Director and Shareholder at the firm Parsons McEntire McCleary PLLC. I serve as lead counsel for Hunter Mountain Investment Trust ("HMIT") in these proceedings in regard to the motion described in Paragraph 3 below. I also served as lead counsel for HMIT in Rule 202 Proceedings filed in the 191st District Court of Dallas County, Texas, Cause No. DC-23-01004 ("Rule 202 Proceedings").
3. I submit this declaration in support of HMIT's Emergency Motion for Leave to File Adversary Proceeding ("Emergency Motion") to which this Declaration is attached.

4. On January 20, 2023, HMIT filed its Verified Rule 202 Petition in the 191st District Court of Dallas County, Texas, Cause No. DC-23-01004. A true and correct copy of HMIT's Verified Rule 202 Petition, with accompanying exhibits, is attached to this declaration as Exhibit 4-A.
5. HMIT served notice of the Rule 202 Petition and hearing on Farallon Capital Management, LLC ("Farallon"), Stonehill Capital Management, LLC ("Stonehill"), Muck Holdings LLC ("Muck"), and Jessup Holdings LLC ("Jessup") in February 2023. Farallon and Stonehill entered an appearance, responded to the proceedings, and were represented by David Shulte of the law firm of Holland & Knight. Among other things, the Rule 202 Petition sought discovery related to Farallon and Stonehill's due diligence, if any, concerning the sale and transfer of four allowed bankruptcy claims in the above-referenced bankruptcy proceedings from the Redeemer Committee/Crusader Fund, Acis, HarbourVest, and UBS (collectively the "Claims") in April and August of 2021.<sup>1</sup>
6. On February 22, 2023, HMIT's Verified Rule 202 Petition was heard by the Honorable Gena Slaughter of the 191st District Court of Dallas County, Texas. A true and correct copy of the Hearing Transcript of the Rule 202 Proceedings on February 22, 2023, is attached to this declaration as Exhibit 4-B ("Transcript"). At this hearing, I argued on behalf of HMIT and Mr. Shulte argued on behalf of Farallon and Stonehill. During this hearing, Farallon and Stonehill admitted they acquired the Claims through their respective "special purpose entities," as reflected in the Transcript. Farallon resisted the requested discovery in the state district court.
7. A true and correct copy of a certified copy of Muck's formation papers in the State of Delaware, showing Muck was created on March 9, 2021, is attached to this Declaration as Exhibit 4-D. A true and correct copy of a certified copy of Jessup's formation papers in Delaware, showing Jessup was created on April 8, 2021, is attached to this Declaration as Exhibit 4-E. Muck and Jessup's corporate formation documents do not identify their respective members or managing members. See Exhibit 4-D and 4-E.
8. On March 8, 2023, the state district court denied and dismissed HMIT's Verified Rule 202 Petition. This ruling was necessarily without prejudice. A true and correct copy of the related Order, dated March 8, 2023, is attached to this declaration as Exhibit 4-C.

9. On March 9, 2023, my law partner, Roger McCleary sent correspondence to Mr. Schulte, as Farallon and Stonehill's counsel, requesting disclosure of the details of their respective legal relationships to Muck and Jessup. Farallon and Stonehill never responded to this inquiry. A true and correct copy of this email correspondence, dated March 9, 2023, is attached to this declaration as Exhibit 4-F.

10. I declare under the penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.
Executed on March 27, 2023.

FURTHER DECLARANT SAYETH NOT.

Executed in Dallas County, State of Texas, on the 27th day of March 2023.

IN RE:	§	IN THE DISTRICT COURT
	§	191st
HUNTER MOUNTAIN	§
INVESTMENT TRUST	§	____th JUDICIAL DISTRICT
Petitioner,	§
	§	DALLAS COUNTY, TEXAS

PETITIONER HUNTER MOUNTAIN INVESTMENT TRUST’S VERIFIED RULE 202 PETITION

TO THE HONORABLE JUDGE OF SAID COURT:

Petitioner, Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (“HMIT”), files this Verified Petition (“Petition”) pursuant to Rule 202 of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure, seeking pre-suit discovery from Respondent Farallon Capital Management, LLC (“Farallon”) and Respondent Stonehill Capital Management, LLC (“Stonehill”) (collectively “Respondents”), to allow HMIT to investigate potential claims against Respondents and other potentially adverse entities, and would respectfully show:

PARTIES

1. HMIT is a Delaware statutory trust that was the largest equity holder in Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“HCM”), holding a 99.5% limited partnership interest. HCM filed chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings in 2019 and, as a result of these proceedings,<sup>1</sup> HMIT held a Class 10 claim which, post-confirmation, was converted to a Contingent Trust Interest in HCM's post-reorganization sole limited partner.

2. Farallon is a Delaware limited liability company with its principal office in California, which is located at One Maritime Plaza, Suite 2100, San Francisco, CA 94111.

3. Stonehill is a Delaware limited liability company with its principal office in New York, which is located at 320 Park Avenue, 26th Floor, New York, NY 10022.

VENUE AND JURISDICTION

4. Venue is proper in Dallas County, Texas, because all or substantially all of the events or omissions giving rise to HMIT's potential common law claims occurred in Dallas County, Texas. In the event HMIT elects to proceed with a lawsuit against Farallon and Stonehill, venue of such proceedings will be proper in Dallas County, Texas.

5. This Court has jurisdiction over the subject matter of this Petition pursuant to Texas Rule of Civil Procedure 202.<sup>2</sup> The amount in controversy of any potential claims against Farallon or Stonehill far exceeds this Court's minimum jurisdictional requirements. Without limitation, HMIT specifically seeks to investigate potentially actionable claims for unjust enrichment, imposition of a constructive trust with disgorgement, knowing participation in breaches of fiduciary duty, and tortious interference with business expectancies.

<sup>1</sup> These proceedings were initially filed in Delaware but were ultimately transferred to and with venue in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas.

<sup>2</sup> The discovery relief requested in this Petition does not implicate the HCM bankruptcy court's jurisdiction. Furthermore, this Rule 202 Petition is not subject to removal because there is no amount in actual controversy and there is no cause of action currently asserted.

6. This Court has personal jurisdiction over the Respondents from which discovery is sought because both Farallon and Stonehill are doing business in Texas under Texas law including, without limitation, TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE §17.042. Consistent with due process, Respondents have established minimum contacts with Texas, and the assertion of personal jurisdiction over Respondents complies with traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice. HMIT's potential claims against Respondents arise from and/or relate to Farallon's and Stonehill's contacts in Texas. Respondents also purposefully availed themselves of the privilege of conducting business activities within Texas, thus invoking the benefits and protections of Texas law.

SUMMARY

7. HMIT seeks to investigate potential claims relating to the sale and transfer of large, unsecured creditors' claims in HCM's bankruptcy to special purpose entities affiliated with and/or controlled by Farallon and Stonehill (the "Claims"). Upon information and belief, Farallon and Stonehill historically had and benefited from close relationships with James Seery ("Seery"), who was serving as HCM's Chief Executive Officer ("CEO") and Chief Restructuring Officer ("CRO") at the time of the Claims purchases. Furthermore, still upon information and belief, because Farallon and Stonehill acquired or controlled the acquisition of the Claims under highly questionable circumstances. HMIT seeks to investigate whether Respondents received material non-public information and were involved in insider trading in connection with the acquisition of the Claims.

8. The pre-suit discovery which HMIT seeks is directly relevant to potential claims, and it is clearly appropriate under Rule 202.1(b). HMIT anticipates the institution of a future lawsuit in which it may be a party due to its status as a stakeholder as former equity in HCM or in its current capacity as a Contingent Trust Interest holder, as well as under applicable statutory and common law principles relating to the rights of trust beneficiaries. In this context, HMIT may seek damages on behalf of itself or, alternatively, in a derivative capacity and without limitation, for damages or disgorgement of monies for the benefit of the bankruptcy estate.

9. HMIT currently anticipates a potential lawsuit against Farallon and Stonehill as defendants and, as such, Farallon and Stonehill have adverse interests to HMIT in connection with the anticipated lawsuit. The addresses and telephone numbers are as follows: Farallon Capital Management LLC, One Maritime Plaza, Suite 2100, San Francisco, CA 94111, Telephone: 415-421-2132; Stonehill Capital Management, LLC, 320 Park Avenue, 26th Floor, New York, NY 10022, 212-739-7474 . Additionally, the following parties also may be parties with adverse interests in any potential lawsuit: Muck Holdings LLC, c/o Crowell & Moring LLP, Attn: Paul B. Haskel, 590 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10022, 212-530-1823; Jessup Holdings LLC, c/o Mandel, Katz and Brosnan

BACKGROUND<sup>3</sup>

A. Procedural Background

10. On or about October 16, 2019, HCM filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in Delaware Bankruptcy Court, which was later transferred to the Northern District of Texas Bankruptcy Court, Dallas Division, on December 4, 2019.

11. On October 29, 2019, the U.S. Trustee's office appointed a four-member Unsecured Creditors Committee ("UCC") consisting of three judgment creditors—the Redeemer Committee, which is a committee of investors in an HCM-affiliated fund known as the Crusader Fund that obtained an arbitration award against HCM in the hundreds of millions of dollars; Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP LLC (collectively "Acis"); and UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG London Branch (collectively "UBS") - and an unpaid vendor, Meta-E Discovery.

12. Following the venue transfer to Texas on December 27, 2019, HCM filed its Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary <sup>3</sup> All footnote references to evidence involve documents filed in the HCM bankruptcy proceedings and are cited by "Dkt." reference. HMIT asks the Court to take judicial notice of the documents identified by these docket entries.

Course (“HCM’s Governance Motion”).<sup>4</sup> On January 9, 2020, the Court signed an order approving HCM’s Settlement Motion (the “Governance Order”).<sup>5</sup>

13. As part of the Governance Order, an independent board of directors—which included Seery as one of the UCC’s selections—was appointed to the Board of Directors (the “Board”) of Strand Advisors, Inc., (“Strand Advisors”) HCM’s general partner. Following the approval of the Governance Order, the Board then appointed Seery as HCM’s Chief Executive Officer (“CEO”) and Chief Restructuring Officer (“CRO”) in place of the previous CEO.<sup>6</sup> Seery currently serves as Trustee of the Claimant Trust (HCM’s sole post-reorganization limited partner) and, upon information and belief, continues to serve as CEO of HCM following the effective date of the HCM bankruptcy reorganization plan (“Plan”).<sup>7</sup>

B. Seery’s Relationships with Stonehill and Farallon

14. Farallon and Stonehill are two capital management firms (similar to HCM) that, upon information belief, have long-standing relationships with Seery. Upon information and belief, they eventually participated in, directed and/or controlled the acquisition of hundreds of millions of dollars of unsecured Claims in HCM’s bankruptcy on behalf of funds which they manage. It appears they did so without any meaningful due diligence, much less reasonable due diligence, and ostensibly based their investment decisions only on Seery's input.

15. Upon information and belief, Seery historically has had a substantial business relationship with Farallon and he previously served as legal counsel to Farallon in other matters. Upon information and belief, Seery also has had a long-standing relationship with Stonehill. GCM Grosvenor, a global asset management firm, held four seats on the Redeemer Committee<sup>8</sup> (an original member of the Unsecured Creditors Committee in HCM's bankruptcy). Upon information and belief, GCM Grosvenor is a significant investor in Stonehill and Farallon. Grosvenor, through Redeemer, also played a large part in appointing Seery as a director of Strand Advisors and approved his appointment as HCM's CEO and CRO.

C. Claims Trading

16. Imbued with his powers as CEO and CRO, Seery negotiated and obtained bankruptcy court approval of settlements with Redeemer, Acis, UBS, and another major creditor, HarbourVest<sup>9</sup> (the "Settlements") (Redeemer, Acis, UBS, and HarbourVest are collectively the "Settling Parties"), resulting in the following allowed claims:<sup>10</sup>

Redeemer	$137 mm	$0 mm
Acis	$23 mm	$0 mm
HarbourVest	$45 mm	$35 mm
UBS	$65 mm	$60 mm

17. Although these Settlements were achieved after years of hard-fought litigation,<sup>11</sup> each of the Settling Parties curiously sold their claims to Farallon or Stonehill (or affiliated special purpose entities) shortly after they obtained court approval of their Settlements. One of these “trades” occurred within just a few weeks before the Plan’s Effective Date.<sup>12</sup> Upon information and belief, Farallon and Stonehill coordinated and controlled the purchase of these Claims through special purpose entities, Muck Holdings, LLC (“Muck”) and Jessup Holdings, LLC (“Jessup”) (collectively “SPEs”).<sup>13</sup> Upon information and belief, both of these SPEs were created on the eve of the Claims purchases for the ostensible purpose of taking and holding title to the Claims.

18. Upon information and belief, Farallon and Stonehill directed and controlled the investment of over $160 million dollars to acquire the Claims in the absence of any publicly available information that could rationally justify this substantial investment. These “trades” are even more surprising because, at the time of the confirmation of HCM’s Plan, the Plan provided only pessimistic estimates that these Claims would ever receive full satisfaction:

- a. HCM's Disclosure Statement projected payment of 71.32% of Class 8 claims, and 0% of claims in Classes 9-11;<sup>14</sup>
  - i. This meant that Farallon and Stonehill invested more than $163 million in Claims when the publicly available information indicated they would receive $0 in return on their investment as Class 9 creditors and substantially less than par on their Class 8 Claims.
- b. In HCM's Q3 2021 Post-Confirmation Report, HCM reported that the amount of Class 8 claims expected to be paid dropped even further from 71% to 54% (down approximately $328.3 million);<sup>15</sup>
- c. From October 2019, when the original Chapter 11 Petition was filed, to January 2021, just before the Plan was confirmed, the valuation of HCM's assets dropped over $200 million from $566 million to $328.3 million;<sup>16</sup>
- d. Despite the stark decline in the valuation of the HCM bankruptcy estate and reduction in percentage of Class 8 Claims expected to be satisfied, Stonehill, through Jessup, and Farallon, through Muck, nevertheless purchased the four largest bankruptcy claims from the Redeemer Committee/Crusader Fund, Acis, HarbourVest, and UBS (collectively the "Claims") in April and August of 2021<sup>17</sup> in the combined amount of approximately $163 million; and
- e. Upon information and belief:
  - i. Stonehill, through an SPE, Jessup, acquired the Redeemer Committee's claim for approximately $78 million;<sup>18</sup>

<sup>18</sup> July 6, 2021 Letter from Alvarez & Marsal CRF Management, LLC to Highland Crusader Funds Stakeholders.

- ii. The $23 million Acis claim<sup>19</sup> was sold to Farallon/Muck for approximately $8 million;
- iii. HarbourVest sold its combined approximately $80 million in claims to Farallon/Muck for approximately $27 million; and
- iv. UBS sold its combined approximately $125 million in claims for approximately $50 million to both Stonehill/Jessup and Farallon/Muck at a time when the total projected payout was only approximately $35 million.

19. In Q3 2021, just over $6 million of the projected $205 million available to satisfy general unsecured claims was disbursed.<sup>20</sup> No additional distributions were made to general unsecured claimholders until, suddenly, in Q3 2022 almost $250 million was paid toward Class 8 general unsecured claims—$45 million more than was ever projected.<sup>21</sup> According to HCM’s Motion for Exit Financing,<sup>22</sup> and a recent motion filed by Dugaboy Investment Trust,<sup>23</sup> there remain substantial assets to be monetized for the benefit of HCM’s creditors. Thus, upon information and belief, the funds managed by Stonehill and Farallon stand to realize significant profits on their Claims purchases. In turn, upon information and belief, Stonehill and Farallon will garner (or already have garnered) substantial fees – both base fees and performance fees – as the result of their acquiring and/or managing the purchase of the Claims.

<sup>19</sup> Seery/HCM have argued that $10 million of the Acis claim is self-funding. Dkt. 1271, Transcript of Hearing on Motions to Compromise Controversy with Acis Capital Management [1087] and the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund [1089], p. 197.

D. *Material Information is Not Disclosed

20. Bankruptcy Rule 2015.3 requires debtors to “file periodic financial reports of the value, operations, and profitability of each entity that is not a publicly traded corporation or a debtor in a case under title 11, and in which the estate holds a substantial or controlling interest.” No public reports required by Rule 2015.3 were filed. Seery testified they simply “fell through the cracks.”<sup>24</sup>

21. As part of the HarbourVest Settlement, Seery negotiated the purchase of HarbourVest’s interest in HCLOF for approximately $22.5 million as part of the transaction.<sup>25</sup> Approximately 19.1% of HCLOF’s assets were comprised of debt and equity in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios, Inc. (“MGM”). The HCLOF interest was not to be transferred to HCM for distribution as part of the bankruptcy estate, but rather to “to an entity to be designated by the Debtor”—i.e., one that was not subject to typical bankruptcy reporting requirements.<sup>26</sup>

22. Six days prior to the filing of the motion seeking approval of the HarbourVest Settlement, upon information and belief, it appears that Seery may have acquired material non-public information regarding Amazon’s now-consummated interest in acquiring MGM,<sup>27</sup> yet there is no record of Seery’s disclosure of such information to the Court, HCM's creditors, or otherwise. Upon the receipt of this material non-public information, HMIT understands, upon information and belief, that MGM was supposed to be placed on HCM's "restricted list," but Seery nonetheless continued to move forward with deals that involved MGM assets.<sup>28</sup>

23. As HCM additionally held its own direct interest in MGM,<sup>29</sup> the value of MGM was of paramount importance to the value of HCM's bankruptcy estate. HMIT believes, upon information and belief, that Seery conveyed material non-public information regarding MGM to Stonehill and Farallon as inducement to purchase the Claims.

E. *Seery's Compensation

24. Upon information and belief, a component of Seery's compensation is a "success fee" that depends on the actual liquidation of HCM's bankruptcy estate assets versus the Plan projections. As current holders of the largest claims against the HCM estate, Muck and Jessup, the SPEs apparently created and controlled by Stonehill and Farallon, were installed as two of the three members of an Oversight Board in charge of monitoring the activities of HCM, as the Reorganized Debtor, and the Claimant Trust.<sup>30</sup> Thus, along with a single independent restructuring professional, Farallon and

Stonehill's affiliates oversee Seery's go-forward compensation, including any "success" fee.<sup>31</sup>

DISCOVERY REQUESTED

25. HMIT seeks to investigate whether Farallon and Stonehill received material non-public information in connection with, and as inducement for, the negotiation and sale of the claims to Farallon and Stonehill or its affiliated SPEs. Discovery is necessary to confirm or deny these allegations and expose potential abuses and unjust enrichment.

26. The requested discovery from Farallon is attached as Exhibit "A", and includes the deposition of one or more of its corporate representatives and the production of documents. The requested discovery from Stonehill is attached as Exhibit "B", and includes the deposition of Stonehill's corporate representative(s) and the production of documents.

27. Pursuant to Rule 202.2(g), the requested discovery will include matters that will allow HMIT to evaluate and determine, among other things:

- a. The substance and types of information upon which Stonehill and Farallon relied in making their respective decisions to invest in or acquire the Claims;
- b. Whether Farallon and Stonehill conducted due diligence, and the substance of any due diligence when evaluating the Claims;

- c. The extent to which Farallon and Stonehill controlled the SPEs, Muck and Jessup, in connection with the acquisition of the Claims;
- d. The creation and organizational structure of Farallon, Stonehill, Muck, and Jessup, as well as the purpose of creating Muck and Jessup as SPEs to hold the Claims;
- e. Any internal valuations of Muck or Jessup's net asset value (NAV);
- f. Any external valuation or audits of the NAV attributable to the Claims;
- g. Any documents reflecting expected profits from the purchase of the Claims;
- h. All communications between Farallon and Seery concerning the value and purchase of the Claims;
- i. All communications between Stonehill and Seery concerning the value and purchase of the Claims;
- j. All documents reflecting the expected payout on the Claims;
- k. All communications between Farallon or Stonehill and HarbourVest concerning the purchase of the Claims;
- l. All communications between Farallon or Stonehill and Acis regarding the purchase of the Claims;
- m. All communications between Farallon or Stonehill and UBS regarding the purchase of the Claims;
- n. All communications between Farallon or Stonehill and The Redeemer Committee regarding the purchase of the Claims;
- o. All communications between Farallon and Stonehill regarding the purchase of the Claims;

- p. All communications between Farallon and Stonehill and investors in their respective funds regarding purchase of the Claims or valuation of the Claims;
- q. All communications between Seery and Stonehill or Farallon regarding Seery's compensation as the Trustee of the Claimant Trust;
- r. All documents relating to, regarding, or reflecting any agreements between Seery and the Oversight Committee regarding compensation;
- s. All documents reflecting the base fees and performance fees which Stonehill has received or may receive in connection with management of the Claims;
- t. All documents reflecting the base fees and performance fees which Farallon has received or may receive in connection with management of the Claims;
- u. All monies received by and distributed by Muck in connection with the Claims;
- v. All monies received by and distributed by Jessup in connection with the Claims;
- w. All documents reflecting whether Farallon is a co-investor in any fund which holds an interest in Muck; and
- x. All documents reflecting whether Stonehill is a co-investor in any fund which holds an interest in Jessup.

BENEFIT OUTWEIGHS THE BURDEN

28. The beneficial value of the requested discovery greatly outweighs any conceivable burden that could be placed on the Respondents. The requested information also should be readily available because the Respondents have been engaged in the bankruptcy proceedings relating to the matters at issue for several years.

29. The important benefit associated with this requested discovery is also clear – it is reasonably calculated to determine whether the Respondents have unjustly garnered tens of millions of dollars of benefit based upon insider information. If this occurred, the monies received as a result of such conduct are properly subject to a constructive trust and disgorged. This would result in substantial funds available for other creditors, including those creditors in Class 10, which includes HMIT as a beneficiary. This significant benefit, in addition to the value of bringing proper light to the activities of Farallon and Stonehill as discussed in this petition, far outweighs any purported burden associated with requiring Respondents to sit for focused depositions concerning the topics and documents identified in Exhibits A and B.

REQUEST FOR HEARING AND ORDER

30. After service of this Petition and notice, Rule 202.3(a) requires the Court to hold a hearing on this Petition.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

31. Petitioner Hunter Mountain Investment Trust respectfully requests that the Court issue an order pursuant to Texas Rule of Civil Procedure 202 authorizing HMIT to take a deposition of designated representatives of Farallon Capital Management, LLC and Stonehill Capital Management, LLC. HMIT additionally requests authorization to issue subpoenas duces tecum compelling the production of documents in connection with the depositions in compliance with Tex. R. Civ. P. 205, and asks that the Court grant HMIT all such other and further relief to which it may be justly entitled.

Respectfully Submitted,

THE COURT: Okay. Good morning, Counsel.
We are here in DC-23-01004, In re:

Hunter Mountain Investment Trust.

And who is here for the plaintiff?

MR. McENTIRE: For the petitioner,
Your Honor, Sawnie McEntire and my partner
Roger McCleary.

THE COURT: Okay. And then for Farallon?

MR. SCHULTE: My name is David Schulte and
I represent both of the respondents. It's Farallon
Capital Management, LLC, and Stonehill Capital Management, LLC.

THE COURT: We are here today on a request for a 202 petition. I know one of the issues is the related suit, but let's just plow into it and we'll go from there.

Okay. Counsel?

MR. McENTIRE: May I approach the bench?

THE COURT: Yes, you may.

MR. McENTIRE: And I've given Mr. Schulte copies of all these materials.

In the interest of time, I have all the key pleadings here, which I will give you a copy of.

1 THE COURT: Thank you.

2 MR. McENTIRE: And this is the evidentiary
3 submission that we submitted about a week ago.

4 THE COURT: Right.

5 MR. McENTIRE: To the extent you are 6 interested, it is cross-referenced by exhibit number 7 to the references in our petition to the docket in the 8 bankruptcy court.

9 THE COURT: I appreciate that. Otherwise,
10 I go hunting for stuff.

11 MR. McENTIRE: This is a PowerPoint.

12 THE COURT: Okay.

13 MR. McENTIRE: And, lastly, a proposed
14 order.

15 THE COURT: Wonderful.

16 MR. McENTIRE: And Mr. Schulte has copies
17 of it all.

18 THE COURT: Okay.

19 MR. McENTIRE: May I proceed, Your Honor?

20 THE COURT: You may.

21 MR. McENTIRE: All right. Your Honor,
22 we are here for leave of court to conduct discovery
23 under Rule 202 to investigate potential claims.

24 The issue before the court is not whether 25 we have an actual claim.

1 THE COURT: Right.

2 MR. McENTIRE: We do not even need to
3 state a cause of action. It is simply the investigation
4 of potential claims.

5 Mr. Mark Patrick is here with us today.
6 He's behind me. Mr. Patrick is the administrator of 7 Hunter Mountain, which is a Delaware trust.

8 THE COURT: Okay.

9 MR. McENTIRE: He is the manager of 10 Rand Advisors, which is also an investment manager
11 of the trust. And, in effect, for all intents and 12 purposes, Mr. Patrick manages the assets of the trust on 13 a daily basis.

14 THE COURT: Okay.

15 MR. McENTIRE: There are potential claims
16 that we're investigating. And I'll go through some 17 of these because I know opposing counsel has raised
18 standing issues.

19 THE COURT: Right.

20 MR. McENTIRE: And I think we can address
21 all those standing issues.

22 Insider trading is in itself a wrong
23 as recognized by courts. And I'll refer you to the 24 opinions. We believe there's a breach of fiduciary 25 duties, and that may take a little explanation.

1 At the time that Farallon and Stonehill
2 acquired these claims, through their special purpose
3 entities Muck and Jessup, they were outsiders.

4 THE COURT: Right.

5 MR. McENTIRE: But by acquiring the
6 information in the manner in which we believe they did,
7 they became insiders. And when they became insiders,
8 under relevant authorities they owe fiduciary duties.

9 And at the time they acquired the claims,
10 my client Hunter Mountain Investment Trust was the 11 99.5 percent interest holder or stakeholder in 12 Highland Capital.

13 THE COURT: Right.

14 MR. McENTIRE: We also believe a knowing 15 participation of breach of fiduciary duties under 16 another name, aiding and abetting. But Texas recognizes 17 it as knowing participation. Unjust enrichment,
18 constructive trust, and tortious interference.

19 THE COURT: Okay.

20 MR. McENTIRE: Farallon and Stonehill are 21 effectively hedge funds. And so is Highland Capital.

22 They were created. They actually did
23 create Muck and Jessup. Those are the two entities 24 that actually are titled with the claims. They 25 acquired it literally days before the transfers.

1                   So the reason we're focusing our discovery
2 effort on Farallon and Stonehill, we are confident
3 that any meaningful discovery -- emails, letters,
4 correspondence, document drafts, things of that 5 nature -- probably predated the existence of 6 Muck and Jessup.

7                   THE COURT: Right.

8                   MR. McENTIRE: That's why we're focusing 9 our discovery effort on Farallon and on Stonehill.

10                   But, needless to say, Farallon, Stonehill,
11 Muck and Jessup, having all participated in this 12 acquisition, they're all insiders for purposes
13 of assuming fiduciary duties.

14                   And as I said, outsiders become insiders 15 under the relevant authority. And one key case is the 16 Washington Mutual case --

17                   THE COURT: Right.

18                   MR. McENTIRE: -- which we cited in our 19 materials.

20                   I would also just let you know, this is 21 not something in total isolation. We understand we're 22 not privy to the details. But we understand the Texas
23 State Security Board also has an open investigation that 24 has not been closed.

25                   THE COURT: Okay.

1 MR. McENTIRE: And that's by way of
2 background.

3 202 allows presuit discovery for a couple
4 of reasons. And I won't belabor the point. One is to 5 investigate potential claims.

6 There is no issue of notice or service
7 here. There's no issue of personal jurisdiction.
8 Farallon and Stonehill made a general appearance.

9 THE COURT: Right.

10 MR. McENTIRE: There's no issue concerning 11 subject-matter jurisdiction. They actually concede that 12 the court has jurisdiction on page 8 of their response.

13 The court's inquiry today is a limited
14 judicial inquiry. There are really two avenues which 15 I'll explain, but, first, I think the salient avenue
16 is does the benefit of the discovery outweigh the 17 burden.

18 And I think as I will hopefully
19 demonstrate, I think that we clearly do.

20 THE COURT: Okay.

21 MR. McENTIRE: The merits of a potential
22 claim, the case law is clear, is not before the court.

23 Much of their brief and their response
24 is devoted to trying to attack the fact that there
25 is no duty or things such as standing.

1 But the reality of it is we are not
2 required to actually prove up a cause of action to 3 this court although I think I can. In this process,
4 I probably certainly can identify a potential cause of 5 action. That's not our obligation to carry our burden.

6 There was an issue about timely submission
7 of evidence they raised in a footnote, but I think that 8 was resolved before the court took the bench.

9 THE COURT: Okay.

10 MR. McENTIRE: I've handed you a binder
11 with Mr. Mark Patrick's affidavit and Jim Dondero's
12 affidavit.

13 As I understand it, correct me if I'm 14 wrong, you're not objecting to the submission of that 15 evidence. Is that correct?

16 MR. SCHULTE: Almost.

17 THE COURT: Okay.

18 MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, I do object
19 to the two declarations that were submitted I believe 20 five days before the hearing.

21 THE COURT: Okay.

22 MR. SCHULTE: As Your Honor is aware,
23 Rule 202 contemplates 15 days' notice. The petition
24 itself was required to be verified. It was verified
25 and then new substance was added by way of these

1 declarations five days before the hearing.

2 And so we would argue that that has the 3 effect of amending or supplementing the petition within 4 that 15-day notice period.

5 All that said, I don't have any issue with 6 the majority of the documents attached to Mr. Patrick's
7 declaration.

8 THE COURT: Okay.

9 MR. SCHULTE: So I do object on the 10 grounds of hearsay and timeliness to the declarations.

11 On Exhibit H to Mr. Patrick's declaration,
12 I object to that document on the grounds of hearsay.

13 THE COURT: Okay. Which one?

14 MR. SCHULTE: Exhibit H to Mr. Patrick's
15 declaration on the basis of hearsay.

16 All the other documents are I believe 17 file-stamped copies of the pleadings filed in the 18 bankruptcy, which I don't have any issue with that.

19 And then the exhibit to Mr. Dondero's
20 declaration is an email that's objected to on the basis
21 of hearsay. And it hasn't been proven up as a business
22 record or any other way that will get past hearsay.

23 THE COURT: Okay.

24 MR. SCHULTE: So those are the limited
25 objections I have to what's in that filing, Your Honor.

1 MR. McENTIRE: And I will address those
2 objections. And we're prepared to put Mr. Patrick on 3 the stand, if necessary.

4 I would point out that the case law is
5 very clear that there's no 15-day rule here.

6 THE COURT: Okay.

7 MR. McENTIRE: We have asked the court
8 to take judicial notice of all of our evidence in our 9 petition itself.

10 The 15 days is the amount of time you have 11 to give notice before the hearing --

12 THE COURT: Right.

13 MR. McENTIRE: -- but the case law
14 is clear that I can put live testimony on, I can 15 put affidavit testimony on.

16 THE COURT: This is an evidentiary
17 hearing.

18 MR. McENTIRE: That's correct.

19 And that includes affidavits. And 20 affidavits are routinely accepted in these types of 21 proceedings and I have the case law I can cite to the 22 court.

23 MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, in contrast,
24 I think if this were, for example, an injunction
25 hearing, I don't believe that an affidavit would be

1 the substitute in an injunction hearing for live
2 testimony.

3 And so if this is an evidentiary standard,
4 I don't think that these affidavits should come in for 5 the truth of the matter asserted. The witnesses should 6 testify to the facts that they want to prove up.

7 MR. McENTIRE: I could give the court a
8 cite.

9 THE COURT: Okay.

10 MR. McENTIRE: It's Glassdoor, Inc. versus 11 Andra Group.

12 THE COURT: What was the name of it?

13 MR. McENTIRE: Glassdoor, Inc. versus
14 Andra Group. It is 560 S.W.3d 281. It specifically 15 addresses the use and relies upon affidavits in the 16 record for purposes of a Rule 202.

17 So, with that said, I will address it in 18 more detail in a moment. The evidentiary rule, to be 19 clear, is it has to be supported by evidence. Seven 20 days was the date that I picked because it was well
21 in advance. It's the standard rule that's used for 22 discovery issues. It's seven days before a hearing.

23 So I picked it. He's had it for seven 24 days. He's never filed any written objections to my 25 evidence. None.

1                   And under the Local Rules I would think
2 he would have objected within three business days.
3 He did not do that, and so I'm a little surprised
4 by the objection.

5                   THE COURT:   Okay.

6                   MR. McENTIRE:   All right.   We do have 7 copies of all the certified records, but I gave you
8 the agenda on that.   And we talked about the two
9 declarations.

10                   So the limited judicial inquiry is the 11 only issue before the district court.   It's whether 12 or not to allow the discovery, not the merits of any 13 claim yea or nay.

14                   THE COURT:   Right.

15                   MR. McENTIRE:   There's no need for us to 16 even plead a cause of action, although we did.

17                   Mr. Schulte goes to great length in 18 his response to take issue with our cause of action, 19 suggesting we had none.   We do.   But we're not even 20 under an obligation to plead it; nevertheless, we did.

21                   This is actually a two-part test.   The 22 first part was allowing the petitioner -- in this case,
23 Hunter Mountain -- to take the requested deposition may 24 prevent a failure or delay of justice, or the likely 25 benefit outweighs the burden.   Both apply here.

1                   These trades took place in April of 2021,
2 three of the four. The fourth I think took place in the 3 summer.

4                   And our goal is to obtain the discovery
5 in a timely manner so we do not have any argument, valid
6 or invalid, that there's a limitations issue.

7                   THE COURT: Okay.

8                   MR. McENTIRE: And so any further delay, 9 such as transferring this to another court or back to 10 the bankruptcy court, which it does not have 11 jurisdiction, would cause tremendous delay.

12                   THE COURT: Okay.

13                   MR. McENTIRE: Hunter Mountain, a little 14 bit of background. It is an investment trust. When 15 it has money, it participates directly in funding the 16 Dallas Foundation --

17                   THE COURT: Okay.

18                   MR. McENTIRE: -- which is a very I think
19 well-respected and recognized charitable foundation.

20                   Certain individuals and pastors from 21 various churches are actually here because Hunter
22 Mountain indirectly, but ultimately, provides a
23 significant source of funding for their outreach
24 programs and their charitable functions and programs.

25                   THE COURT: Okay.

1 MR. McENTIRE: The empirical evidence in 2 the documents that are before the court, regardless of 3 what's in the affidavits, just screams that there was 4 no due diligence here.

5 Now, we know in Mr. Dondero's affidavit
6 he had a conversation with representatives of Farallon,
7 which would be admissions against interest. They're 8 admissions basically against interest that they 9 effectively did no due diligence.

10 Yet we believe, upon information and 11 belief, that they invested over $167 million. There 12 are two sets of claims. There's a Class 8 claim and 13 a Class 9 creditor claim.

14 THE COURT: Right.

15 MR. McENTIRE: Their expectations at the 16 time that they acquired these claims was that Class 9
17 would get zero recovery.

18 So who spends $167 million when their 19 expectation on return of investment is zero? Who spends 20 $167 million even in Class 8 when the expected return is 21 just 71 percent and is actually declining? And I think 22 it's actually admitted in the affidavit that Mr. Dondero
23 provided.

24 So without being hyperbolic or
25 exaggerating, the data that was available publicly

1 was extremely pessimistic and doubtful that there would
2 be any recovery.

3 We have direct information -- admissions,
4 frankly -- that Farallon had access to non-public
5 material, non-public information. And that was 6 the fact that MGM Studios was up for sale.

7 Mr. Dondero was on the board of directors.

8 THE COURT: Okay.

9 MR. McENTIRE: He communicated, because
10 of his responsibilities, this information to Mr. Seery.

11 And Mr. Seery, apparently, would have been 12 restricted. He couldn't use it or distribute it.

13 THE COURT: Right.

14 And I don't know a lot about securities
15 law but, yeah, that would be insider information.

17 MR. McENTIRE: Yes.

18 And it appears from the affidavit that 19 Mr. Dondero submitted that Farallon was aware of the 20 information before the sale closed, before they closed
21 their acquisitions.

22 And Mr. Dondero asked the question are 23 you willing to even sell your claims and they said no.
24 Or even 30 percent more and they said no. We're told 25 that they're going to be very valuable.

1 Well, no one else had this information, so
2 we have a problem here that we have two outsiders who 3 are now insiders. They've acquired potentially very 4 valuable claims with the sale of MGM.

5 They also acquired information concerning
6 the portfolios of these companies over which Highland
7 Capital managed and had ownership interests, so we're 8 talking about having access to information that any 9 other bidder or suitor would not have.

10 So this is how they were divided up.
11 $270 million in Class 8. Each of the creditors
12 right here are the unsecured creditors who sold.
13 They were the sellers.

14 THE COURT: Right.

15 MR. McENTIRE: And these are the claims in 16 the Class 9.

17 So you have $95 million in Class 9 claims
18 that are being acquired when the expectation is that 19 there will be zero return on investment. You have 20 $270 million where the expectation was extremely 21 low and pessimistic.

22 And here are the documents. And 23 Mr. Schulte has not objected to these. This particular 24 document is Exhibit 1-J to Mr. Patrick's affidavit.

25 THE COURT: Okay.

1 MR. McENTIRE: This came out of the plan.
2 So when the bankruptcy plan was confirmed in February
3 2021, Farallon, Stonehill, Muck and Jessup, the latter
4 two weren't even in existence.

5 THE COURT: Right.

6 MR. McENTIRE: Farallon and Stonehill were 7 complete strangers to the bankruptcy proceedings, yet
8 they come in in the wake of this information and 9 they invest tens if not hundreds of millions of 10 dollars with no apparent due diligence.

11 The situation gets even worse. And this 12 is Exhibit 1-I to Mr. Patrick's affidavit. And as 13 I understand, Mr. Schulte does not object to these 14 documents. It's declining. And then, suddenly,
15 they're in the money.

16 And at the end of the third quarter last 17 year, they're already making 255 million bucks. And 18 that's a far cry from the original investment. This 19 is for both Class 8 and Class 9.

20 So Mr. Patrick states the purpose of 21 this is to seek cancellation. Another word for it 22 in bankruptcy-ese would be disallowance. But the 23 cancellation of these claims and disgorgement.

24 If these are ill-gotten gains, regardless
25 of the rubric or the monicker that you place on it --

1 breach of fiduciary duty as insiders, aiding and
2 abetting or knowing participation in fiduciary duties,
3 because a lot of people have fiduciary duties on this
4 stuff. No matter what you call it, disgorgement is a
5 remedy.

6 Wrongdoers should not be entitled to 7 profit from their wrongdoing.

8 Mr. Schulte makes a big point that we 9 can't prove damages. Well, first of all, I don't agree
10 with the conclusion.

11 THE COURT: Right.

12 MR. McENTIRE: But even if he was right,
13 disgorgement is a proxy for damages. And we have an 14 entitlement and a right to explore how much they have 15 actually received, when did they receive it.

16 The weathervane is tilting in one
17 direction here, Judge.

18 Clearly, there is a creditor trust
19 agreement. That's a very important document. It spells
20 out rights and obligations. It's part of the plan.

21 There's a waterfall. And on page 27 of 22 the creditor trust agreement a waterfall is exactly 23 what it suggests. You have one bucket gets full,
24 you go to the next bucket all the way down.

25 THE COURT: Class 1 or tier 1.

1 I can't remember the category. I don't
2 do bankruptcy. But, yeah, those get paid, then the 3 next level, then the next level.

4 So by the time you get down to 5 level 10, which I think is what Hunter Mountain was,
6 theoretically, there wouldn't have been anything left.

7 MR. McENTIRE: That's correct.

8 But here, if Class 8 and Class 9 -- and 9 I will say the big elephant in those two classes are 10 Farallon and Stonehill or their special purpose entity
11 bucket Jessup -- they have 95 percent of that category.

12 And suddenly they're not entitled to keep 13 what they've got, and suddenly there's a disallowance,
14 or suddenly a cancellation regardless of the theory
15 or the cause of action -- and we have several avenues 16 here -- a lot of money is going to flow into the 17 coffers of Hunter Mountain, and a lot of money will flow
18 into the Dallas Foundation, and a lot of money will flow
19 into the coffers of charities.

20 So there is standing here. Standing
21 requires the existence of a duty. We think we have 22 duties.

23 And a concrete injury. And if these 24 claims were manipulated, we have a concrete injury
25 and our proxy is disgorgement.

1 We've been deprived of an opportunity to 2 share in category 10 or as we just described it in the 3 waterfall under the creditor trust agreement.

4 THE COURT: Right.

5 MR. McENTIRE: Their burden is to show
6 that this discovery has no benefit. No. That's my 7 burden to show benefit. But their burden would be 8 to show that it's overly burdensome to them.

9 And I find that difficult to understand
10 since part of their response is devoted to the fact 11 that, hey, judge in Dallas County, you should turn
12 this over to Judge Jernigan in the bankruptcy court.

13 THE COURT: Because it's bankruptcy,
14 you know.

15 MR. McENTIRE: In bankruptcy, that's their 16 invitation.

17 THE COURT: Right.

18 MR. McENTIRE: Well, if they're inviting 19 us to go do the discovery in bankruptcy court, it 20 doesn't seem to be that burdensome because it's 21 going to be the same discovery.

22 And, by the way, Judge Jernigan actually
23 does not have jurisdiction over these proceedings.
24 The other earlier proceeding, as you know, they 25 attempted to remove it to her court and it was remanded.

1 Clearly, she does not have jurisdiction.

2 The problem with bankruptcy involved,
3 in addition, if I wanted to do Rule 2004 discovery like 4 they're suggesting, that's their invitation. They would 5 like you to push us down the road.

6 Well, we can't afford to push it down the 7 road. Because if they push it down the road, I've got 8 to go file a motion with Judge Jernigan, get leave to 9 issue subpoenas.

10 THE COURT: Right.

11 MR. McENTIRE: They have 14 days to file
12 a motion to quash, then I have to file another motion.
13 And it's 21 days before their response is even filed.
14 And there's another 14 or 15 days before the reply is 15 filed. We're looking at 60, 70 days. And that's one
16 of the reasons we selected this procedure.

17 And, by the way, you hear the phrase forum
18 shopping a lot. Well, without engaging in the negative
19 inference that that term suggests, a plaintiff, a 20 petitioner, has the right to select its venue for a 21 variety of reasons.

22 Our venue is the state district courts
23 of Texas because it has an accelerated procedure. And 24 that's why we're here.

25 THE COURT: Right.

1 MR. McENTIRE: I've identified the
2 potential causes of action. Entities or people that
3 breach fiduciary duties and receive ill-gotten gains
4 a constructive trust may be imposed, disgorgement.
5 Then we do run into bankruptcy concepts.

6 But it's important to know that some of 7 these are not bankruptcy. Some of these are common law.

8 I suggest to the court, I don't have to 9 go get Judge Jernigan's permission to sue Farallon or 10 Stonehill for breach of fiduciary duties. I don't have 11 to get her permission to sue for knowing participation.

12 If I'm actually looking for equitable 13 disallowance, probably, maybe. But I can do the 14 discovery here and then make that decision whether 15 I need to go back to bankruptcy court.

16 I'm not foolish. I'm not going to run
17 afoul of Judge Jernigan's orders. If I have to go back
18 to Judge Jernigan to get permission, I will do it.

19 THE COURT: Right. Because only an 20 idiot runs afoul of the bankruptcy court.

21 MR. McENTIRE: Hopefully, I'm not that.

22 So I clearly understand what both my 23 ethical and lawyer obligations are. And I'm not 24 going to run afoul of any court orders.

25 But some of these remedies don't require

1 an overview by Judge Jernigan or the bankruptcy court.

2 THE COURT: Okay.

3 MR. McENTIRE: They have a duty not to 4 commit fraud, whether it's commit fraud against us or 5 commit fraud against the estate.

6 They have a duty not to interfere with 7 the expectancies that we have as a B/C beneficiary.
8 That's a code name for a former Class 10 creditor.

9 They have a duty not to trade on inside
10 information, and that's the Washington Mutual case.

11 And I've just already mentioned that 12 because they were outsiders, they're insiders now.

13 These are their arguments. Our evidence
14 is timely. It's not untimely. It's not speculative.
15 It's not speculative because the events have already 16 taken place. I'm not talking about something 17 hypothetical.

18 THE COURT: Right.

19 MR. McENTIRE: My remedy flows from that.
20 So we're not projecting that I might have 21 a claim later on. I have a claim today. If I have a 22 claim today, I have it today. I have it and I want to 23 confirm it by this discovery. Because their wrongdoing
24 has already taken place, it's not hypothetical, it's not 25 futuristic, it's already occurred.

1                   When they say they have no duty to us,
2 they're just wrong. They have duties not to breach
3 fiduciary duties. We have direct standing I believe to 4 bring a claim in that regard.

5                   We have a right to bring direct standing
6 under the Washington Mutual case, which I'll discuss.

7                   And we also have a right to bring a
8 derivative action.

9                   THE COURT: Right.

10                  MR. McENTIRE: And I notice that 11 they made a comment about that in their response.
12 But I can sue individually.

13                  And I can also bring an action in the 14 alternative as a derivative action for the estate.
15 And these are all valid claims for the estate.

16                  THE COURT: Okay.

17                  MR. McENTIRE: Transfer. This is not a 18 related case because it's not the litigation.

19                  So if you just go to the very first 20 instance and you look at the Local Rule, it talks
21 about litigation and causes of action.

22                  THE COURT: Right.

23                  MR. McENTIRE: We don't have a cause
24 of action. We're not asserting one in this petition.
25 So this is not a related case that falls within the

1 four corners of the Local Rule.

2 THE COURT: Well, I guess the thing
3 is it's still a related case. Like if you file a 202
4 and then you file a lawsuit, that would be considered
5 related.

6 I looked at it and you're right.
7 Technically, it's different parties. I'll just say it's 8 a grey zone at best.

9 MR. McENTIRE: That's correct.

10 This is not a lawsuit in terms of causes
11 of action. It might be a related case if Mr. Dondero
12 had come in and filed a lawsuit. That would be a 13 related case. Mr. Dondero is not involved in this 14 process, other than as a fact witness.

15 These are all the evidentiary issues
16 that perhaps he's raised. Live testimony, affidavit
17 testimony is admissible.

18 The court considered numerous affidavits
19 filed with the court. And that's as recently as 2017.
20 These are all good cases, good law.

21 Equitable disallowance. It's kind of a 22 fuzzy image. This is a bankruptcy court case, but this 23 is simply to underscore the fact that in addition to 24 my common law remedies there is a very substantial 25 remedy in bankruptcy court.

1                   It's not one I necessarily have to pursue,
2 but if I wanted to I could. But what it does do is it
3 helps to find some duties.

4                   And here, the court has the right
5 to disallow a claim on equitable grounds in extreme
6 instances, perhaps very rare, where it is necessary
7 as a remedy. And they did it in this case.

8                   THE COURT: Okay.

9                   MR. McENTIRE: This is simply an analogy
10 to securities fraud and the 10b-5 statute.

11                   Insiders of a corporation are not limited
12 to officers and directors, but may include temporary 13 insiders who have entered into a special confidential
14 relationship in the conduct of the business of the 15 enterprise and are given access to information solely 16 for corporate purposes.

17                   Well, what about the MGM stock? The court
18 finds that the Equity Committee -- so here's the 19 equity -- has stated a colorable claim. We were 20 99.5 percent equity.

21                   The Equity Committee has stated a 22 colorable claim that the settlement noteholders became 23 temporary insiders because they acquired information
24 that was not of public knowledge in connection with 25 their acquisition.

1 And allowed them to participate in
2 negotiations with JPMC -- JPMorgan Chase -- for the 3 shared goal of reaching a settlement.

4 So these were outsiders that suddenly
5 became temporary insiders because of access to inside
6 information.

7 This is not a new concept. It comes
8 from the United States Supreme Court. Fiduciaries
9 cannot utilize inside information.

10 THE COURT: Right.

11 MR. McENTIRE: And we believe we 12 have enough before the court to support and justify 13 a further investigation that this may have occurred.

14 THE COURT: Okay.

15 MR. McENTIRE: Now, not a related case.
16 The Jim Dondero case is actually closed.

17 THE COURT: Right.

18 MR. McENTIRE: And I'll be frank with you.
19 In all candor, I never thought this was a possible
20 related case.

21 THE COURT: I mean, we're talking about
22 the same events, but there are differences, I agree.

23 MR. McENTIRE: We're talking about one
24 similar event dealing with Farallon. Other events
25 are different.

1 THE COURT: Okay.

2 MR. McENTIRE: So we have different dates.

3 THE COURT: Right.

4 MR. McENTIRE: Different parties on the 5 petitioner's side, different law firms.

6 The only common party is Farallon.

7 Alvarez & Marsal are not parties to this but Stonehill 8 is. Stonehill was not a party to the prior proceedings.

9 And the standing is manifest. With no
10 criticism of Mr. Dondero's lawyer, I searched in his 11 argument where he was articulating standing.

12 And without going further, I will tell
13 you I think our standing is clear. We're in the money.

14 THE COURT: Okay.

15 MR. McENTIRE: We are in the money if 16 there's a disgorgement or a disallowance.

17 THE COURT: Okay.

18 MR. McENTIRE: We have all types of 19 claims, including insider trading and a creation of 20 fiduciary duties.

21 Our remedies, as far as I can tell, he 22 didn't identify any. We have several. Disgorgement, 23 disallowance, subordination, a variety. And damages.

24 So we suggest strongly that it is not a
25 related case.

1                   And I must tell you, the reference
2 to say send this to bankruptcy court or defer to the 3 bankruptcy court or send us over to Judge Purdy, with 4 all due respect to opposing counsel, it's really just 5 a delay mechanism.

6                   And what they're seeking to do through 7 their invective, their criticisms, the references to 8 these other courts, is seeking an opportunity to push us
9 down the road and put us in a bad position potentially 10 and a not enviable position in connection with statute
11 of limitations.

12                   Your Honor, we would offer the binder
13 of exhibits that we submitted on February 15, 2022,
14 including the affidavits and all the attached exhibits.

15                   I would ask the court to take judicial 16 notice of all the exhibits that we referred to in our 17 petition, which I think is appropriate since we were 18 specifying with particularity what we were requesting 19 the court to take judicial notice of. And that's the 20 large index, that's the list.

21                   THE COURT: Obviously, I can take 22 judicial notice of any kind of court pleadings, 23 whether they're state or federal.

24                   MR. McENTIRE: That's correct.

25                   THE COURT: That's clear.

1 MR. McENTIRE: We would offer both
2 affidavits and all the attachments into evidence
3 at this time.

4 THE COURT: Okay. Do you have exhibit
5 numbers for them?

6 MR. McENTIRE: Yes. It's Exhibit 1 with 7 attachments. 1-A, 1-B, 1-C, 1-D, 1-E, 1-F and then
8 Exhibit 1-G, Exhibit 1-H, Exhibit 1-J, Exhibit 1-K.

9 Everything in the binder, Your Honor.
10 It's Exhibit 1 and Exhibit 2 with the attachments.

11 THE COURT: Okay.

12 MR. McENTIRE: I believe they're all
13 identified. I can put a sticker on them, if you'd like.

14 THE COURT: Yeah. To admit them, it will 15 need a sticker.

16 So I'm going to hold off on admitting 17 them for just a minute because I do want to hear his 18 objections and then we can go back to it. So just make 19 sure we do that.

20 I'm not trying to not admit them, but I do
21 want to let him have his objections.

22 Okay. Anything else, Counsel?

23 MR. McENTIRE: That's all I have right
24 now, Judge.

25 THE COURT: Okay. Counsel?

1 MR. SCHULTE: Should I start with those
2 exhibits, Your Honor?

3 THE COURT: Why don't you do that. That's 4 probably the easiest way.

5 MR. SCHULTE: In light of the authorities
6 that Mr. McEntire shared about the affidavits, I'll 7 withdraw the objections to the affidavits or the 8 declarations.

9 THE COURT: Okay.

10 MR. SCHULTE: I'm taking Mr. McEntire's
11 word that those cases say what he says they say.

12 THE COURT: I'll tell you because 202
13 is not a lawsuit, you don't necessarily have a right
14 to cross-examine, et cetera. So, yeah, affidavits are 15 frequently used on 202s.

16 MR. SCHULTE: And that's fine, Your Honor.
17 I'll take Mr. McEntire's word what those cases say.

18 But I will maintain the objection to 19 Exhibit H -- it's the declaration of Mr. Patrick --
20 on the grounds of hearsay. That is not a court record
21 or a file-stamped pleading from federal or state court.
22 It's just a letter. So that's hearsay. And it hasn't 23 been properly authenticated.

24 The other issue is the exhibit to 25 Mr. Dondero's declaration. That's just an email

1 from Mr. Dondero, so I object on the grounds of hearsay.

2 THE COURT: Mr. McEntire, what's your
3 response specifically to Exhibit H as attached to 4 the Patrick declaration and then the attachment
5 to the Dondero declaration?

6 MR. McENTIRE: Exhibit H to Mr. Patrick's
7 affidavit would be hearsay, but there's an exception
8 that it's not controversial.

9 THE COURT: Okay.

10 MR. McENTIRE: And there's no indication 11 that there's any challenge of the reliability of the 12 document.

13 THE COURT: What is the exhibit?
14 I'm trying to pull it up. Sorry.

15 MR. McENTIRE: It's Exhibit 1-H. It is 16 a letter from Alvarez & Marsal simply indicating what 17 they paid for the claim.

18 THE COURT: Is it the July 6th, 2021,
19 letter?

20 MR. McENTIRE: Yes, Your Honor.

21 THE COURT: I've got it.

22 MR. McENTIRE: And the exhibit to 23 Mr. Dondero's is not being offered for the truth of 24 the matter asserted, just the state of mind of Farallon.

25 THE COURT: Okay.

1 MR. McENTIRE: He has proved it up
2 that it's authentic. It's a true and accurate copy.

3 And it goes to the state of mind of 4 Farallon and it goes to the state of mind of Mr. Seery
5 as well who are basically individuals who are trading on 6 inside information.

7 And Mr. Seery would not have known about 8 the MGM sale but for that email. And Farallon and 9 Stonehill would not know about MGM but for Mr. Seery.

10 THE COURT: Okay. So the response to 11 hearsay is that it goes to state of mind.

12 MR. McENTIRE: It goes to state of mind.

13 THE COURT: Okay, Counsel. How do you
14 respond to that?

15 MR. SCHULTE: I'll start with the last 16 one, Your Honor. I think that's the definition of 17 hearsay, is that you're purporting to establish the 18 state of mind of the parties who are not before the 19 court.

20 It's been emphasized that Mr. Dondero has 21 no relation to HMIT. And none of the recipients of the 22 email are parties to this proceeding.

23 This purports to establish the state of 24 mind of Mr. Seery, who is not before the court, and the 25 state of mind of Farallon, just based on the say so of 1 Mr. Dondero in this email. That's hearsay.

2 And as for the first letter, this is a
3 letter on the letterhead of A&M which, by the way, is 4 one of the parties in the Dondero Rule 202 petition.

5 And it's not on the letterhead of any of 6 the parties to this case so the letter isn't properly
7 authenticated.

8 And I'm not aware of the not controversial
9 exception to hearsay.

10 THE COURT: Well, there is a thing that 11 talks about if you're admitting something that's just 12 not controverted. Right? It's everybody agrees "X"
13 happened. We're just admitting evidence to have that.
14 So what this basically is is just showing the claim of 15 the funds.

16 And I guess my question is what's the 17 objection. Is there an objection to the substance of 18 it?

19 MR. SCHULTE: I don't think there's any 20 dispute that Farallon and Stonehill, through their 21 respective special purpose entities, purchased the 22 claims that are at issue here.

23 And if that's the sole purpose
24 of admitting this letter into evidence, I don't 25 think that's a matter that's genuinely in dispute.

1 THE COURT: Okay.

2 MR. SCHULTE: So if that's the only issue
3 as raised by this letter, I don't know that there's a
4 dispute there.

5 THE COURT: Right. Well, that's the whole
6 thing.

7 MR. McENTIRE: I think we're almost 8 solving the issue on the fact of how much they paid,
9 $75 million.

10 THE COURT: Okay. So I will sustain the 11 objection to the email to Mr. Dondero's declaration, 12 Exhibit P 2-1.

13 I am going to overrule the objection
14 to -- I don't know what the letter is of the attachment.

15 MR. McENTIRE: It's Exhibit P 1-H to 16 Mr. Patrick's affidavit.

17 THE COURT: Correct. Sorry.

18 Okay, Counsel. If you'll proceed.

19 MR. SCHULTE: May I approach the bench,
20 Your Honor? I have a binder of exhibits also.

21 THE COURT: Yes, you may.

22 MR. SCHULTE: These have all been
23 marked with exhibit stickers already. There are tabs
24 for each of the exhibits. They're marked R1 through 17,
25 I believe. And "R," of course, stands for Respondents.

1 THE COURT: I take the shortcut of calling
2 everybody "Plaintiff" and "Defendant" just because
3 I'm so used to using that language in court.

4 But I do agree. It's Petitioner
5 and Respondent. You're not technically a defendant.

6 Okay. So, first of all, I'm going to 7 admit Plaintiff's Exhibit 1 and Plaintiff's Exhibit 2,
8 with the sole exception of the email to Mr. Dondero's
9 declaration that I sustained.

10 And then are there objections to the 11 respondent's exhibits?

12 MR. McENTIRE: Very few.

13 I object to Exhibit No. 1 and 14 Exhibit No. 2 as irrelevant.

15 THE COURT: What's the objection to 1?

16 MR. McENTIRE: They're offering the order
17 from Judge Purdy.

18 THE COURT: Okay. I can take judicial 19 notice of that. I mean, it's a court record from 20 Dallas County. So I don't think that that's 21 particularly relevant.

22 To be bluntly honest, I looked at it last 23 night. Right? Because of the issue that there's 24 a related case, I pulled that file too and looked 25 at everything.

1                   So I can take judicial notice of that.
2   Whether it's relevant or not, I can look at it.  And,
3   obviously, if it's not relevant, I'll disregard it.

4                   MR. McENTIRE:  Fair enough.

5                   THE COURT:  I'll overrule that objection.
6                   What's next?

7                   MR. McENTIRE:  The only other objections
8   are Exhibit 12 and 13.  I just don't know what they 9   are or for what purpose they would be offered.

10                  THE COURT:  Okay.  So 12 is a notice of 11   appearance and request for service in the bankruptcy
12   court on behalf of Hunter Mountain Trust.

13                  So what's the issue, Counsel?

14                  MR. SCHULTE:  Your Honor, these are 15   notices of appearance filed by Hunter Mountain in the 16   bankruptcy court.

17                  And the purpose of these notices is simply 18   to show -- and maybe this is not genuinely in dispute -- 19   that Hunter Mountain, through its counsel, would have 20   received notice of all the activity that was going on 21   in the bankruptcy court.

22                  THE COURT:  It's the same issue I've 23   got with everything that Plaintiff submitted.  It's a 24   bankruptcy pleading.  I can take notice of it.  If it's 25   irrelevant, I'll disregard it.

1 So I'll overrule that objection.

2 And then what's 13?

3 MR. McENTIRE: The same objection.

4 THE COURT: I'll overrule it because
5 again, I can take judicial notice of those.

6 MR. McENTIRE: No other objections,
7 Your Honor.

8 THE COURT: So Respondent's Exhibits
9 1 through 17 are so admitted.

10 MR. SCHULTE: May I proceed, Your Honor?

11 THE COURT: Yes, you may.

12 MR. SCHULTE: HMIT -- Hunter Mountain --
13 races into this court seeking extensive and burdensome
14 presuit discovery about claims trading that took place
15 in the Highland bankruptcy two years ago.

16 Mr. McEntire has talked about the harm
17 that would result from delay if a different court were 18 to consider this request for presuit discovery. That is 19 a function of waiting two years after the subject claims
20 transfers to seek relief in this court.

21 The exact same allegations of claims
22 trading and misconduct by Jim Seery -- those allegations
23 are not on the slides that you looked at. But those 24 allegations are common in Mr. Dondero's Rule 202
25 petition and this petition.

1 THE COURT: Right. They're common.

2 I know you make the allegation that
3 Dondero is related to Hunter Mountain, but I guess
4 I don't have any evidence of that.

5 Or do you have evidence of that? Because 6 otherwise, while it involves some of the same issues in 7 the sense of the underlying facts, technically Farallon
8 is the common respondent.

9 But there's a different respondent and 10 there's a different petitioner in that case.

11 MR. SCHULTE: Yes. That's true,
12 Your Honor. And we've said that on information and 13 belief.

14 THE COURT: Okay.

15 MR. SCHULTE: That's our suspicion.

16 We believe that to be the case, but 17 I don't have evidence of it. I didn't hear a denial
18 of it, but, nevertheless, that is where things stand.

19 But what's important about the case is 20 even if this court and Judge Purdy determined that the 21 cases are not related, what is important is that the 22 same allegations related to this claims trading and the 23 same allegations of inside information being shared by 24 Mr. Seery, those were front and center in the July 2021
25 petition filed by Mr. Dondero.

1 Even if there are other dissimilarities
2 between the cases, those are issues that are common.

3 THE COURT: Okay.

4 MR. SCHULTE: And it's important to note
5 that as HMIT has filed this petition, it has glossed
6 over issues of its own standing and the assertion of 7 viable claims that will justify this discovery.

8 Now, I know that HMIT has cited these 9 cases that say, Your Honor, I don't have to state a 10 really specific claim right now.

11 But you do have to articulate some ground
12 for relief, some theory, that would justify the expense
13 and the burden that you're trying to put the respondents
14 to in responding to all this discovery.

15 And this isn't simple discovery.
16 We're talking about deposition topics with I believe
17 29 topics each and 13 sets of really broad discovery
18 requests with a bunch of subcategories.

19 THE COURT: Right.

20 MR. SCHULTE: We're not talking about some 21 minimal burden here. This is an intrusion into entities
22 that are not parties to a lawsuit, but rather this 23 investigation.

24 And HMIT has ignored that there is 25 a specific mechanism in the bankruptcy court that's

1 available to it under federal bankruptcy Rule 2004 and
2 that the substance of HMIT's petition, which is claims
3 trading and bankruptcy, falls squarely within the 4 expertise of Judge Jernigan, the presiding bankruptcy
5 judge.

6 THE COURT: And I agree. You could do
7 this in federal court. But there's a lot of things
8 that can be done in state court or done in federal 9 court.

10 They get to choose the method of getting 11 the information, so why should I say, theoretically, 12 yes, this is a good thing, I should do it, but, hey,
13 send it to bankruptcy. Why?

14 MR. SCHULTE: The bankruptcy judge has 15 actually answered that question directly.

16 THE COURT: Okay.

17 MR. SCHULTE: It is true, as HMIT
18 has said, the federal bankruptcy court doesn't have 19 jurisdiction over a Rule 202 proceeding. That's not in 20 dispute.

21 THE COURT: Right.

22 MR. SCHULTE: We tried to remove the 23 last case to federal bankruptcy court and it was a state
24 claim.

25 But what the bankruptcy judge pointed out

1 when she remanded the case back to Judge Purdy, who 2 ended up dismissing Dondero's petition, is it pointed 3 out, one, there's this mechanism in bankruptcy where 4 they can do the exact same thing, Rule 2004.

5 And the bankruptcy judge pointed out that
6 it is in the best position to consider Hunter Mountain's
7 request.

8 It pointed out when it remanded the 9 case that it had grave misgivings about doing so.
10 It confirmed that it is in the best position to 11 consider this presuit discovery.

12 THE COURT: Okay. This is part of one of 13 the exhibits?

14 MR. SCHULTE: Yes, Your Honor. This is 15 in one of the opinions that I included in the binder,
16 a courtesy copy of one of those opinions.

17 THE COURT: Oh, at the back?

18 MR. SCHULTE: Yes, Your Honor.

19 THE COURT: Okay.

20 MR. SCHULTE: It's 2022 Bankruptcy
21 Lexis 5.

22 THE COURT: Okay. I got it.

23 And real quick, for the record,
24 it's Dondero versus Alvarez & Marsal. It's 25 2022 Bankruptcy Lexis 5.

1 MR. SCHULTE: Right.

2 And in particular, Your Honor, I'm looking
3 at pages 31 to 32 of that order.

4 THE COURT: Okay.

5 MR. SCHULTE: What the judge is pointing
6 out here is it has grave misgivings about remanding the 7 case because it knows a thing or two about the Highland 8 bankruptcy, having presided over the case and all the 9 related litigation for over what's now three years.

10 And it's familiar with the legal
11 and factual issues. It's familiar with the parties.
12 It's familiar with claims trading in a bankruptcy case, 13 which was the very crux of the Dondero petition. It's 14 also the crux of this petition by Hunter Mountain.

15 And it observed, the bankruptcy court
16 did, that any case that could be fashioned from the 17 investigation would end up in bankruptcy court anyway
18 because it would be related to the Highland bankruptcy.

19 So you ask a really good question,
20 Your Honor. Why should I ship it off to the bankruptcy
21 court. The answer is Judge Jernigan is in a position
22 to efficiently and practically deal with this request
23 because she deals with it all the time and she is 24 intimately familiar with the legal and factual
25 issues and with claims trading.

1                   It's not like Hunter Mountain gets poured
2 out if it goes to bankruptcy court. It has a mechanism
3 to seek the exact same discovery from Judge Jernigan who 4 is very familiar with these very particular issues.

5                   Now, Hunter Mountain says, well,
6 bankruptcy court is too time-consuming and cumbersome.
7 It's going to take 60 days to even get this before the
8 bankruptcy court.

9                   Well, we're talking about the fact that 10 they've waited two years to file this proceeding related 11 to these claims transfers that took place in 2021.

12                   So, again, what HMIT is asking this court
13 to do is inefficient and is impractical. This court
14 would need to devote a lot of resources to understand 15 what the proper scope of any discovery should be,
16 whether the claims are cognizable.

17                   And that's just a tall order, Your Honor.
18 The request is more appropriately dealt with by the 19 bankruptcy judge, according to a proper bankruptcy
20 filing.

21                   It's undisputed that while the bankruptcy
22 court doesn't have jurisdiction over a 202 petition,
23 there's no question that it has jurisdiction over a Rule
24 2004 request for discovery, which is the counterpart
25 for this type of discovery in bankruptcy court.

1 THE COURT: Right.

2 MR. SCHULTE: The real issue, Your Honor,
3 and this is the part that Hunter Mountain is dancing
4 around, is that Hunter Mountain doesn't want to be 5 in front of Judge Jernigan.

6 Judge Jernigan held Mark Patrick --
7 that is HMIT's principal who verified this petition.
8 She held him along with Dondero and Dondero's counsel 9 and others in civil contempt and sanctioned them nearly 10 $240,000 for trying to join Seery to a lawsuit in 11 violation of Judge Jernigan's gatekeeping orders.

12 HMIT is trying to dodge the bankruptcy
13 court and its scrutiny of what HMIT is doing as this 14 petition also targets Seery and the inside information
15 that he purportedly gave to Farallon and Stonehill.

16 This is forum shopping, plain and simple.
17 And the court should dismiss the petition so that HMIT
18 can seek this discovery in bankruptcy court.

19 Now, I don't want to spend a lot of time
20 on the related case, but I will emphasize just what I've 21 mentioned, which is while some of the parties may be 22 different, we're still talking about the same claims
23 trading activity that took place in 2021 and the same
24 allegations of insider dealing by Seery.

25 And Judge Purdy, on remand, dismissed

1 that petition where some of the same arguments were made
2 about judicial efficiency and that the case should be
3 filed in bankruptcy court.

4 And it bears noting, by the way, that
5 after Judge Purdy dismissed Dondero's Rule 202 petition,
6 where we had argued that this ought to be in the 7 bankruptcy court, Dondero didn't file in the bankruptcy
8 court, which sort of makes the point that they didn't 9 want to be in front of Judge Jernigan on this either.

10 Okay. Now let's turn to the merits,
11 Your Honor. While Mr. McEntire has gone to great 12 lengths to say we don't have to state claims, he stated
13 five or six on that PowerPoint presentation of claims
14 that he envisions.

15 But what made it all really crystal clear
16 is in that notice of supplemental evidence, and that 17 includes the declaration of Mr. Patrick, there in 18 paragraphs 15 and 16 it's made clear what Hunter
19 Mountain really wants.

20 THE COURT: Okay.

21 MR. SCHULTE: What the goal of this
22 discovery is is to invalidate the claims that Farallon
23 and Stonehill's entities purchased.

24 So let's unpack what it is they purchased.

25 THE COURT: Okay.

1 MR. SCHULTE: These are claims that were
2 not ever held by Hunter Mountain. These are claims
3 that were held by Redeemer, Acis, UBS, and HarbourVest.

4 THE COURT: Right. They were the Class 8
5 and 9. Right?

6 MR. SCHULTE: I believe that's correct.

7 THE COURT: Okay.

8 MR. SCHULTE: Those claims were always
9 superior to whatever it was that Hunter Mountain held.

10 So Redeemer, Acis, UBS, and HarbourVest
11 held those claims. The parties in the bankruptcy had 12 the opportunity to file objections to those claims.
13 And they did.

14 And Seery, on behalf of the debtor,
15 negotiated with Redeemer, Acis, UBS, and HarbourVest 16 and reached settlements that resolved the priority and 17 amounts of those claims.

18 THE COURT: Right.

19 MR. SCHULTE: And then filed what's 20 referred to -- and I'm sure Your Honor knows this -- 21 as a Rule 9019 motion to approve those settlements in 22 the bankruptcy court.

23 THE COURT: Actually, I don't. I've never 24 done bankruptcy but I read it. I know the general
25 process and I did read it.

1 MR. SCHULTE: All right.

2 THE COURT: Just FYI, I've never done
3 bankruptcy law. They've got their own rules.

4 MR. SCHULTE: Well, the parties in 5 the bankruptcy had the opportunity to object to those 6 settlements and some did so.

7 And after evidentiary hearings, the 8 bankruptcy court granted those motions and allowed
9 and approved those claims.

10 That is really important, Your Honor.

11 THE COURT: Okay.

12 MR. SCHULTE: That's Exhibits 14 through 13 17 in the binder that I handed you.

14 And these are the same exhibits that are 15 referenced in Hunter Mountain's petition. And it bears 16 noting that the U.S. District Court affirmed those 17 orders after appeals were taken.

18 But the bankruptcy court's approval of 19 the very same claims that Hunter Mountain now seeks to 20 investigate and invalidate is entitled to res judicata.

21 HMIT can't now second-guess the bankruptcy
22 court's orders approving those very same claims. That's 23 the effect of the investigation that Hunter Mountain
24 seeks, the invalidation of claims that are already 25 bankruptcy court approved.

1                   And it bears noting that each of those
2 four orders, Exhibits 14 through 17, provides the 3 following: quote, "The court" -- the bankruptcy
4 court -- "shall retain exclusive jurisdiction to 5 hear and determine all matters arising from the 6 implementation of this order."

7                   This would include HMIT's stated goal
8 of conducting discovery to try to invalidate these 9 very claims.

10                   This is yet another reason, Your Honor, to 11 answer your question earlier of why this request for 12 discovery should be posed to the bankruptcy court.

13                   Judge Jernigan, I suspect, would have 14 views on whether her own orders authorizing these claims
15 should be overturned.

16                   Okay. So HMIT -- Hunter Mountain --
17 alleges that after the bankruptcy court approved these 18 claims, Seery disclosed inside information to Farallon
19 and to Stonehill to encourage them to buy these claims
20 from the original claimants. Again, UBS, Redeemer, 21 Acis, and HarbourVest.

22                   Farallon, through Muck, which is its 23 special purpose entity, and Stonehill through Jessup, 24 which is Stonehill's special purpose entity, acquired
25 those transferred claims in 2021.

1                   And there's no magic in bankruptcy court
2 to claims transfers. It's a contractual matter between 3 the transferors and the transferees. It's strictly 4 between them.

5                   THE COURT: Okay.

6                   MR. SCHULTE: And there's no bankruptcy
7 court approval that's even required.

8                   The transferee, so in this case Muck and 9 Jessup, had simply to file under federal bankruptcy
10 Rule 3001(e) a notice saying these claims were 11 transferred to us. And they did so.

12                   Your Honor, that's Exhibit 6 through 11 in 13 the binder that I handed to you.

14                   THE COURT: Okay.

15                   MR. SCHULTE: The filings evidencing those 16 claims transfers were public. And Hunter Mountain
17 received the claims transfer notices.

18                   And that's the exhibits that we were 19 talking about, Exhibits 12 through 13, where Hunter
20 Mountain's lawyers had appeared in the case before those 21 claims transfer notices were filed.

22                   So not surprisingly, Hunter Mountain did 23 not file any objections to those claims transfers. And 24 that's not surprising because under Rule 3001, the only 25 party that could object to the claims transfers were

1 the transferors themselves.

2 THE COURT: Right.

3 MR. SCHULTE: Essentially saying, hold on.
4 We didn't transfer these claims. But of course there's 5 no dispute that the transfers were made.

6 Here, HMIT was neither the transferor nor 7 the transferee of the claims. It had no interest in 8 these claims. It never did. It didn't before the 9 claims transfers and it didn't after the claims
10 transfers.

11 The claims originally belonged to 12 Redeemer, Acis, UBS, and HarbourVest, and they were then 13 transferred to Muck and Jessup, which are Farallon's and 14 Stonehill's entities.

15 THE COURT: Right.

16 MR. SCHULTE: So why does that matter?
17 That matters because these claims were approved by the 18 bankruptcy court. The claims didn't change or become 19 more valuable after they were transferred. The only 20 difference is who is holding the claims.

21 So Hunter Mountain says, hold on. What 22 we're alleging here is that the claims that Farallon and 23 Stonehill purchased with the benefit of this purported
24 inside information from Mr. Seery, they're secretly
25 worth more than expected.

1                   Those allegations, they're disputed, to be
2                   sure. But let's assume they're true. That situation
3                   has zero impact on Hunter Mountain.

4                   THE COURT: Okay.

5                   MR. SCHULTE: And that's because this is a
6                   matter that's strictly between the parties to the claims
7                   transfers. Again, Redeemer, Acis, UBS, and HarbourVest
8                   on the one hand and Farallon and Stonehill on the other.

9                   And the way we know this is let's
10                  pretend that Muck and Jessup didn't buy these claims, 11                  Your Honor, and that the claims instead have remained 12                  with UBS, HarbourVest, Acis, and whatever the other 13                  one I'm forgetting. The claims wouldn't have been 14                  transferred, and they would have remained with those 15                  entities.

16                  In that case, the original claimants would 17                  have held those claims for longer than they wanted. And 18                  if HMIT is right, then the claims would have ended up 19                  being worth more than even they expected.

20                  So why does that matter? Well, that 21                  matters because if that is all true, Hunter Mountain
22                  would be in the exact same place today. Neither better 23                  nor worse off, it would be in the exact same place.

24                  Either Farallon and Stonehill's entities
25                  are gaining more on these claims than they expected

1 or UBS, HarbourVest, Acis, and Redeemer, they are
2 realizing more on these claims than they expected.

3 But Hunter Mountain never stood to be paid
4 on these claims to which it was a stranger. These are 5 claims in which Hunter Mountain never had any interest.

6 THE COURT: So presuming that Hunter
7 Mountain had expressed interest in buying these claims
8 and there was insider trading, you don't think that 9 would be a tortious interference in a potential
10 contract?

11 MR. SCHULTE: If there was insider trading
12 of the type that Hunter Mountain alleges in this case,
13 it would have no impact on the rights of Hunter
14 Mountain.

15 If that's true, maybe there was a fraud on 16 the bankruptcy court. The bankruptcy court would surely 17 be interested in that. Maybe there was a fraud on the 18 transferors. I mean, maybe UBS, Redeemer, Acis -- why
19 do I always forget the third one? -- and HarbourVest.

20 THE COURT: Like I said, I had a chart
21 last night of all the names. Obviously, I haven't been 22 involved in this case up until now, and there's a lot of 23 names.

24 MR. SCHULTE: Yes.

25 The transferors of the claims might say,

1 well, wait a minute. I wish I would have known this
2 inside information. I'm the one that was really injured
3 here.

4 Because if there was really meat on this
5 bone, Your Honor, then the injured parties would be 6 the transferors of the claims: Redeemer, Acis, UBS,
7 and HarbourVest.

8 Because the crux of HMIT's petition is 9 that those entities, the transferors, were duped into 10 selling their claims for too little when the claims were 11 secretly worth more.

12 Well, if that's true, you would expect
13 that the transferors would be screaming up and down
14 the hallway, saying we didn't get paid enough.

15 THE COURT: Right.

16 MR. SCHULTE: We are the injured parties
17 here, we are the ones with damages, we want to unwind
18 these claims transfers, or we want to be paid more on 19 these claims transfers.

20 But the rights of those entities,
21 the transferors, to complain about these allegations
22 doesn't mean that Hunter Mountain can also stand up and 23 say, well, I want to complain too. Because Hunter
24 Mountain never stood to be paid on these claims.

25 The question is if somebody was duped,

1 if somebody was injured, if anybody it was the 2 transferors, not Hunter Mountain. The transferors would 3 be the only real parties in interest that would have 4 been injured by what Hunter Mountain alleges.

5 But it's notable that none of those
6 transferors has filed an objection to these transfers.

7 THE COURT: Right.

8 MR. SCHULTE: None of them has filed a
9 Rule 202 proceeding. None of them has filed a Rule 2004
10 proceeding seeking discovery about inside information
11 that Farallon and Stonehill allegedly had. It is 12 Hunter Mountain who is an absolute stranger to 13 these claims trading transactions.

14 And so HMIT is trying to inject itself
15 into a transaction to which it was never a party and 16 which it never had any interest.

17 The sellers were entitled to sell those 18 claims to any buyer they wanted to on whatever terms
19 they agreed to.

20 And if there was some information that 21 they didn't have the benefit of that the buyers did,
22 you would expect the transferors, if anyone at all,
23 to be the ones complaining about it. But that's not 24 what we have here.

25 THE COURT: Okay.

1 MR. SCHULTE: All right. Another note
2 that Hunter Mountain glosses over is duty.

3 So all the claims that were listed on 4 the PowerPoint all require that there must have been 5 some kind of a duty owed by Farallon and Stonehill to 6 Hunter Mountain. But there's no duty owed to a stranger
7 to a claims trading transaction.

8 Yet again, if anybody were to have a
9 duty owed to it, I guess it would be the transferors
10 of the claims even though that was an arm's length
11 transaction.

12 But it's not a stranger to the transaction
13 and a stranger that has no interest in the claims that 14 we're talking about here.

15 THE COURT: Okay.

16 MR. SCHULTE: Nor has Hunter Mountain
17 identified any authority for a private cause of action
18 belonging to Hunter Mountain related to these claims
19 transfers.

20 Hunter Mountain doesn't have the right to 21 assert claims on behalf of other parties. It only has 22 the right to assert claims on behalf of itself when it
23 has been personally aggrieved.

24 I heard Mr. McEntire say several times
25 during his presentation that Hunter Mountain had a

1 99.5 percent equity interest in Highland Capital.

2 THE COURT: Right.

3 MR. SCHULTE: I think it's important to
4 point out that that equity interest was completely
5 extinguished by the confirmed plan in the bankruptcy
6 case.

7 As Your Honor pointed out, we have the 8 waterfall, and Classes 1 through 9 have to be paid in 9 full. And you know what Classes 8 and 9 are? General
10 unsecured claims and subordinated claims.

11 And the only way that Hunter Mountain
12 is ever in the money, as Mr. McEntire was saying, with 13 its Class 10 claim is if Seery, the claimant trustee, 14 certifies that all claims in 1 through 9 are paid in 15 full 100 percent with interest and all indemnity claims
16 are satisfied.

17 There has been no such certification by 18 Mr. Seery, and there may never be such a certification
19 by Mr. Seery.

20 THE COURT: Okay.

21 MR. SCHULTE: So that is real important
22 because the idea that Hunter Mountain stands to somehow
23 gain from this transaction is flawed for the reasons
24 we've already talked about.

25 But it's also flawed because they have

1 what is, at best, a contingent interest. It's 2 contingent on things that have not yet occurred. And 3 under the case law, they don't have standing conferred
4 on them in that interest.

5 THE COURT: Okay.

6 MR. SCHULTE: So for all those reasons why
7 there is no interest in the claims, no legal damages, no
8 duty owed to it, no private cause of action belonging
9 to it and a hypothetical and contingent interest, HMIT
10 lacks standing to investigate or challenge these claims 11 and claims transfers to which it was not a party and in 12 which it had zero interest.

13 And for any or all of the reasons
14 we've talked about, Your Honor, their petition should be 15 dismissed. I welcome any questions the court may have.

16 THE COURT: No. My head is kind of 17 spinning. Like I said, I spent all day yesterday 18 reading stuff. As I said, I will admit I've never 19 practiced bankruptcy law.

20 I mean, my joking statement is I pretty
21 much know enough to not be in contempt of bankruptcy
22 court. Because I have cases where one of the defendants 23 or one of the parties ends up in bankruptcy court and 24 whether or not I can proceed with my case, et cetera.
25 That's my whole goal is not to be in contempt of court.

1 MR. SCHULTE: That should be the goal, is 2 to not be in contempt of the bankruptcy court.

3 MR. McENTIRE: May I have just five or ten
4 minutes?

5 THE COURT: I don't have another hearing,
6 so we're fine on time.

7 MR. McENTIRE: All right. In all due
8 deference to Mr. Schulte, the last 15 minutes of his 9 argument misstates the law.

10 THE COURT: Okay.

11 MR. McENTIRE: The Washington Mutual case
12 addresses almost 90 percent of what he just talked
13 about. Their equity was entitled to bring an action 14 to basically disallow an interest that was acquired by 15 inside information.

16 Okay. And so he has not addressed the 17 Washington Mutual case at all.

18 THE COURT: Well, okay. So my question
19 is let's say that the insider trading didn't happen.

20 I mean, when I was playing with the 21 numbers last night, it doesn't appear that Hunter
22 Mountain, being Class 10, would have gotten anything
23 anyways even if. Right?

24 Like I said, I did a lot of reading last 25 night, so I want to make sure I understand.

1 MR. McENTIRE: Fair enough. I think I can
2 address that.

3 The bottom line is a wrongdoer should
4 not be entitled to profit from his wrong. That's 5 the fundamental premise behind the restatement on 6 restitution. That's the fundamental purpose of 7 the Washington Mutual case.

8 You have remedies, including disgorgement,
9 disallowance or subordination.

10 THE COURT: I'm just trying to be devil's
11 advocate because I'm trying to work through this.

12 So let's say it did happen and the court
13 ordered disgorgement and invalidated these transfers, 14 then the money would just go to the Class 8 and 15 Class 9. Right? To Acis, UBS, HarbourVest, etc.

16 MR. McENTIRE: No, they would not.
17 Because those claims have already been traded.

18 THE COURT: Okay. Well, that's 19 what I'm saying.

20 If the court said there was insider
21 trading and to disallow the transfer and ordered
22 disgorgement, theoretically, back to Highland Capital,
23 then the money is there.

24 Okay. So then it would just go to Acis
25 and UBS. Right?

1 MR. McENTIRE: The remedy here is to
2 subordinate their claims. HarbourVest, UBS, Acis, and 3 the Redeemer committee have sold their claims. They can 4 intervene if they want and that's up to them. If they 5 want to take the position that they were defrauded,
6 that's up to them.

7 THE COURT: Okay.

8 MR. McENTIRE: Otherwise, the remedy is to 9 disgorge the proceeds and put them back into the coffers
10 of the bankruptcy court in which case Category 8 and 9 11 would be brimful, overflowing, and flow directly into 12 the coffers in Class 10.

13 And that's the purpose of 15 and 16 in 14 Mr. Patrick's affidavit.

15 THE COURT: Okay.

16 MR. McENTIRE: I find it amazing that he 17 refers to Judge Jernigan's orders where he said anything
18 dealing with these claims must come back to me. I have 19 exclusive jurisdiction. I recall that argument.

20 THE COURT: Right.

21 MR. McENTIRE: Well, she could have 22 accepted the removal of Mr. Dondero in that other 23 proceeding. She didn't. She said I don't have 24 jurisdiction over this. I'm sending it back to 25 the state court.

1 THE COURT: Okay. Because it was filed
2 as a 202. If it had been filed as a Rule 404, then she
3 would have had jurisdiction because you're specifically
4 invoking a state court process. Right?

5 MR. McENTIRE: I'm invoking exclusively
6 a state court process because of the benefit it
7 provides. That is a strategic choice that this 8 petitioner has elected. It has nothing to do with 9 bankruptcy court, other than bankruptcy court is too
10 slow.

11 All the invective about the prior contempt
12 order has nothing to do with these proceedings.
13 Mr. Dondero is not involved in these proceedings.

14 If HarbourVest and UBS want to intervene
15 in some subsequent lawsuit, they have a right to do so.
16 I can't stop them.

17 But until then, we have stated a cause
18 of action or at least a potential cause of action which 19 is insider trading. That from an outsider makes them an 20 insider that owes fiduciary duties to the equity.

21 Washington Mutual allowed equity to come
22 in and disallow those claims. And if those claims are 23 disallowed, the Class 10 is going to be overflowing on 24 the waterfall. And that's my client.

25 A couple of other things. Hunter Mountain

1 is not a stranger. Hunter Mountain was the big elephant
2 in the room until the effective date of the plan.

3 We held 99.5 percent of the equity stake
4 and when all of these wrongdoings occurred, Hunter
5 Mountain was still the 99.5 percent equity stakeholder.

6 It's only after the bankruptcy plan had 7 gone effective, after these claims had already been --

8 THE COURT: Wait. The insider trading
9 happened after the bankruptcy had been filed but before
10 the bankruptcy was resolved.

11 So it's during that process. Right?

12 MR. McENTIRE: You have filing a 13 bankruptcy. You have a bankruptcy plan. You have 14 confirmation of the plan, but it doesn't go effective
15 until six months later.

16 THE COURT: Right.

17 MR. McENTIRE: After the bankruptcy
18 plan was confirmed and they had dismal estimates of 19 recovery -- 71 percent on Class 8, zero percent on 20 Class 9 -- that's when Farallon and Stonehill purchased 21 the claims.

22 But they purchased the claims at a time
23 before the bankruptcy wasn't effective. And so the 24 so-called claimant trust agreement had not gone into 25 effect until several months later.

1 THE COURT: Okay.

2 MR. McENTIRE: And during this period of 3 time Hunter Mountain was the very, very largest 4 stakeholder.

5 THE COURT: Okay.

6 MR. McENTIRE: And so to call it a
7 stranger is just not right and it's not fair because 8 we're anything but a stranger.

9 They make an argument that Hunter Mountain
10 didn't object to the settlements. Well, so what?
11 I'm not attacking the underlying settlements.
12 I'm attacking the claims transfers.

13 And then he says, well, why didn't they 14 object to the claims transfers. Well, he finally 15 conceded that the claims transfers are not actually 16 subject to a judicial scrutiny by the bankruptcy court.

17 This court is uniquely qualified to 18 review these claims transfers as is Judge Jernigan.
19 Insider information is insider information as a rose
20 is a rose is a rose. And any court of law is qualified 21 to determine whether insider information was used.

22 Judge Jernigan did not say, okay,
23 Farallon, you can buy this claim. There was no
24 judicial process here.

25 THE COURT: Right. I mean, it's a motion.

1 We want to do this, just get approval.

2 MR. McENTIRE: They don't even have to get
3 approval.

4 THE COURT: Okay.

5 MR. McENTIRE: All they have to do is file
6 notice.

7 THE COURT: Okay. File the notice.

8 MR. McENTIRE: Judge Jernigan was not 9 involved at all.

10 We had no reason to object. All we know
11 there's a claims transfer. It's not until later that 12 we discover that inside information was used and that's 13 why we're here.

14 So we didn't object to the original
15 claims. There was no need to. The original settlements
16 rather. There was no need to. There was no objection
17 to the claims transfers.

18 There was no mechanism to object, other 19 than what we're doing here today. This is our 20 objection. This is our attempt to object.

21 Because we believe that they have acquired 22 hundreds of millions of dollars of ill-gotten gain and 23 if that is true, not only will Hunter Mountain be 24 benefited tremendously, but other unsecured creditors.
25 They are very few but they will be also benefited.

1 Frankly, Judge Jernigan may want that to 2 happen.

3 THE COURT: Okay.

4 MR. McENTIRE: But we're here to get the 5 discovery so I can pull it all together within the next
6 30 days or 40 days. So I can make decisions before 7 somebody might suggest, hey, well, you should have 8 filed this a little bit earlier.

9 And so, Judge, that's why we're here,
10 in the interest of time. And that was my decision.
11 That was my strategic decision to bring it here.

12 THE COURT: Right.

13 MR. McENTIRE: He says that Rule 3001 is 14 the exclusive remedy. Only transferors can complain
15 about transferees or vice versa.

16 THE COURT: You're not necessarily 17 complaining about the actual transfer. It's how 18 the transfer came about.

19 MR. McENTIRE: That's right.

20 And to suggest that that is the governing
21 principle that this court should consider is an absolute
22 contradiction to the Washington Mutual case.

23 Because if fraud is in play, if inside
24 information is in play, then it impacts everyone who 25 is a stakeholder. Everyone.

1 THE COURT: Okay.

2 MR. McENTIRE: And we are one of the 3 largest stakeholders in the bankruptcy proceedings,
4 even today. So that's all I have.

5 I thank you for your attention,
6 Your Honor. Clearly, the benefit here is we get to 7 uncover some things that need to be uncovered. And 8 we'd like to do it so in a timely fashion.

9 And if we don't have a claim, we don't
10 have a claim. If we have a claim, then we may file it
11 in a state district court.

12 And if Judge Jernigan and her gate-keeping 13 orders require us to go there, we'll go there. I'm not 14 going to run afoul of any rule she has, but we need to 15 get this underway.

16 THE COURT: Okay.

17 MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, may I make some 18 rifle-shot responses?

19 THE COURT: Yeah. That's fine.

20 MR. SCHULTE: Okay. Mr. McEntire has said
21 that they are one of the largest stakeholders in the 22 Highland bankruptcy based on this 99.5 percent equity.
23 That equity was extinguished in the fifth amended plan.

24 That's Exhibit 3 that I handed you,
25 Your Honor. That plan was filed in January of 2021

1 before any of these claims transfers took place.

2 The equity was extinguished by virtue of the plan.

3 THE COURT: Okay.

4 MR. SCHULTE: Mr. McEntire was talking
5 about this Washington Mutual case. I read the case.

6 But what he said repeatedly, and I think
7 it's really important to listen to what Mr. McEntire
8 said about this case, is that that court allowed the 9 equity to come in and talk about these transfers.

10 Hunter Mountain doesn't have any equity.
11 That equity was extinguished in the plan for reasons
12 I just discussed. So for being the largest stakeholder, 13 according to Mr. McEntire, in the bankruptcy what does 14 Hunter Mountain have to show for that? A Class 10.

15 As Your Honor pointed out, a Class 10
16 interest, that is below everybody else. And that's 17 where they've been relegated.

18 And to answer your question, Your Honor,
19 that you posed to Mr. McEntire that I'm not sure was 20 ever answered, HMIT -- Hunter Mountain -- at Class 10
21 stood to gain nothing when the plan was put together.
22 So the largest stakeholder stood to gain nothing.

23 I've pointed to the language in the 24 court's order about how the court has exclusive
25 jurisdiction.

1                   And Your Honor nailed the answer to the 2 concern raised by Mr. McEntire, which is the bankruptcy
3 court didn't have jurisdiction over a 202 proceeding.
4 But it unquestionably has authority over the 5 counterpart, 2004 in bankruptcy court.

6                   THE COURT: Right.

7                   MR. SCHULTE: Finally, I have never argued
8 and if I did say this, I apologize. I have never argued 9 that Hunter Mountain is somehow a stranger to the 10 bankruptcy.

11                   THE COURT: Right. They were obviously 12 involved in the bankruptcy, but they're a stranger to 13 these transfers.

14                   MR. SCHULTE: Exactly. They were a 15 stranger to these transactions. They didn't have any 16 interest in these claims.

17                   They don't stand to gain anything if 18 the claims are either rescinded or if the claims are 19 invalidated or the transfers are invalidated. They 20 don't stand to get anything because they never had 21 any interest in these claims.

22                   The claims are the claims and either UBS, 23 Redeemer, Acis, and HarbourVest stood to gain more than 24 expected or Farallon and Stonehill stand to gain more
25 than expected.

1                   And if anybody is really injured here,
2 it's not Hunter Mountain. It's the transferors who
3 were duped into these transfers, according to Hunter
4 Mountain. And they would be the ones that would have 5 damage and have a claim along the lines of what
6 Hunter Mountain is trying to assert on behalf
7 of all stakeholders.

8                   Your Honor, I have a proposed order, as 9 Mr. McEntire does.

10                   May I bring it up?

11                   THE COURT: Yes, you may.

12                   Okay, Mr. McEntire. Anything else?

13                   MR. McENTIRE: His last few statements are 14 inconsistent with the law, Your Honor.

15                   THE COURT: Okay.

16                   MR. McENTIRE: Because the law clearly,
17 clearly indicates that we are a beneficiary. And 18 that's what the Washington Mutual case stands for.

19                   THE COURT: Okay. Wait. Let me make sure
20 I know which one.

21                   Do you have a cite for that case?

22                   MR. McENTIRE: Yes, ma'am. It's in the 23 PowerPoint.

24                   THE COURT: That's fine. I just wanted
25 to make sure I could find it.

1 MR. McENTIRE: There's also a Fifth
2 Circuit case that talks about subordination where 3 a Class 8 and Class 9 would actually be subordinated,
4 Your Honor, to our claim.

5 So that's another approach to this, is 6 subordination.

7 THE COURT: Okay.

8 MR. McENTIRE: And that's the In re Mobile
9 Steel case out of the Fifth Circuit. I think there's a 10 cite in our brief.

11 THE COURT: Okay.

12 MR. McENTIRE: I acknowledge that
13 we're now classified with a different name. We're 14 a B/C limited partner. And we're, in effect, a Class 10
15 beneficial interest.

16 But we're there having been a 99.5. And 17 the lion share of any money, 99.5 percent of any money
18 that overflows into bucket No. 10 is ours.

19 THE COURT: Right.

20 Okay. I am processing. Obviously, I need
21 to take this into consideration. I haven't had a chance
22 to go through Respondent's exhibits.

23 I've looked through the plaintiff's
24 exhibits, but now I have much more of a focus of what 25 I'm doing.

1                   So I will try to get you all a ruling
2 by the end of next week. I apologize. I've got a
3 special setting next week that's going to be kind
4 of crazy, but I will do everything I can.

5                   If you all haven't heard from me by next
6 Friday afternoon, call my coordinator Texxa and tell
7 her to bug me.

8                   MR. McENTIRE: Thank you for your time.

9                   THE COURT: You all are excused. Have 10 a great day.

	§	IN THE DISTRICT COURT
HUNTER MOUNTAIN INVESTMENT TRUST,	§
	§	DALLAS COUNTY, TEXAS
Petitioner.	§
	§	191ST JUDICIAL DISTRICT

ORDER

Came on for consideration Petitioner Hunter Mountain Investment Trust's Verified Rule 202 Petition ("Petition") filed by petitioner Hunter Mountain Investment Trust ("HMIT"). The Court, having considered the Petition, the joint verified response in opposition filed by respondents Farallon Capital Management, L.L.C. ("Farallon") and Stonehill Capital Management LLC ("Stonehill"), HMIT's reply, the evidence admitted during the hearing conducted on February 22, 2023, the argument of counsel during that hearing, Farallon's and Stonehill's post-hearing brief, the record, and applicable authorities, concludes that HMIT's Petition should be denied and that this case should be dismissed. Therefore,

The Court ORDERS that HMIT's Petition be, and is hereby, DENIED, and that this case be, and is hereby, DISMISSED.

THE COURT SO ORDERS.

Signed this  day of March, 2023.

David,

Thank you. This ruling denies Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (“HMIT”) the investigatory discovery sought from Farallon Capital Management, LLC (“Farallon”) and Stonehill Capital Management, LLC (“Stonehill”) under Tex. R. Civ. P. 202. Accordingly, HMIT requests that Farallon and Stonehill advise whether they will voluntarily provide some or all of the information and documents requested in HMIT’s Rule 202 Petition and, if so, under what terms. Please let us know by Tuesday, March 14th, whether Farallon and Stonehill will consider doing so. If so, we are available to discuss this at your earliest convenience.

In any event, HMIT also requests that Farallon and Stonehill voluntarily respond to the following two specific requests, which they can answer in a matter of minutes:

1. A simple description of the legal relationship: a) between Farallon and Muck Holdings, LLC (“Muck”), and b) between Stonehill and Jessup Holdings, LLC (“Jessup”).
2. Whether: a) Farallon is a co-investor in any fund in which Muck holds an interest related to the Claims at issue in the Rule 202 Petition; b) Stonehill is a co-investor in any fund which Jessup holds an interest related to the Claims at issue in the Rule 202 Petition.

We would also appreciate prompt written responses to these two specific requests. To the extent we do not receive written responses to these two requests by close of business on Tuesday, March 14th, this will be taken as Farallon and Stonehill’s refusal to provide the requested responses. Similarly, to the extent we do not receive a written confirmation of Farallon and Stonehill’s willingness to discuss voluntary production of more of the information and documents requested in HMIT’s Rule 202 Petition by then, this will be taken as their refusal to consider doing so.

Please let us know if you or your clients have any questions about this request. Thank you.

Regards, Roger.

ORDER GRANTING HUNTER MOUNTAIN INVESTMENT TRUST’S EMERGENCY MOTION FOR LEAVE TO FILE ADVERSARY PROCEEDING

Upon consideration of the Emergency Motion for Leave to File Adversary Proceeding [Dkt. __] (the “Motion”) filed by Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (“HMIT”), and having considered any responses thereto, the Court finds that: (1) the claims alleged in HMIT’s Proposed Adversary Complaint [Dkt. __-1] against James P. Seery (“Seery”), Stonehill Capital Management, LLC, Farallon Capital Management, LLC, Muck Holdings, LLC, and Jessup Holdings, LLC (the “Claims”) are colorable; (2) any demand on any other persons or entities to prosecute the Claims would be futile; (3) HMIT is an appropriate party to bring the Claims on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and the Highland Claimant Trust; and (4) HMIT's Motion should be granted.

It is therefore ORDERED THAT:

1. The Motion is GRANTED.
2. HMIT is granted leave to file its Proposed Adversary Complaint [Dkt. __-1] as an adversary proceeding in this Court.

APPELLANTS' STATEMENT OF ISSUES AND DESIGNATION OF RECORD ON APPEAL

Pursuant to Rules 8009(a)(1)(A)-(B) and (a)(4) of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, Dugaboy Investment Trust and Hunter Mountain Investment Trust ("Appellants") hereby designate the following items to be included in the record and identifies the following issues

APPELLANTS' STATEMENT OF ISSUES AND

with respect to its appeal of the Order Granting Motion to Dismiss Adversary Proceeding in which Contingent Interest Holders in Chapter 11 Plan Trust Seek a Post-Confirmation Valuation of Trust Assets [Doc.26-27] which was entered by the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas on May 24, 2024.

I. STATEMENT OF ISSUES TO BE PRESENTED ON APPEAL

1. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred in granting The Highland Parties' Motion to Dismiss Complaint to (I) Compel Disclosures About the Assets of the Highland Claimant Trust and (II) Determine (A) Relative Value of Those Assets, and (B) Nature of Plaintiffs' Interests in the Claimant Trust.
2. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred by dismissing Count I under Rule 12(b)(6) based on the Bankruptcy Court's finding that Appellants could not prove any facts that would entitle them to the relief that they sought when the Appellants properly alleged that they have a legal and equitable right to information under the Claimant Trust Agreement and under Delaware and Texas law.
3. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred by dismissing Count II because it was predicated on Count I and was therefore not justiciable under Rule 12(h)(3) when Count I was improperly dismissed.
4. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred by dismissing Count III because it was predicated on Count I and was therefore not justiciable under Rule 12(b)(1) when Count I was improperly dismissed.
5. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred in dismissing Count III because the Bankruptcy Court found that Appellants were asking it to issue an opinion based on a set of hypothetical facts and was therefore not justiciable under Rule 12(b)(1) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction when Count III seeks only a declaration that the Claimant Trust assets exceed the obligations of the bankruptcy estate or must be deemed to do so such that Appellants' contingent trust interests are effectively vested, or as an equitable matter, must be treated as vested because the putative defendants are preventing the conditions for formal vesting from occurring.

GLOBAL NOTES TO POST CONFIRMATION REPORT

The Highland Claimant Trust has filed the attached post-confirmation report (the “PCR”) in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division (the “Court”), with respect to the case of Reorganized Debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P., Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ) (the “Bankruptcy Case”). The Highland Claimant Trust prepared the PCR with the assistance of the Reorganized Debtor’s employees, advisors, and professionals. The PCR was prepared solely for the purpose of complying with the post-confirmation quarterly reporting requirements established by the United States Trustee Program (see <https://www.justice.gov/ust/chapter-11-operating-reports>). The PCR should not be relied upon by any persons for any information in connection with current or future financial conditions or events relating to the Highland Claimant Trust, the Reorganized Debtor or its estate.

The financial information contained in the PCR is preliminary, unaudited, limited in scope, and is not prepared in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America nor in accordance with other applicable non-bankruptcy law. In preparing the PCR, the Highland Claimant Trust relied on financial data from the books and records available to it at the time of such preparation, as well as certain filings on the docket in the Bankruptcy Case. Although the Highland Claimant Trust made commercially reasonable efforts to ensure the accuracy and completeness of the PCR, inadvertent errors or omissions may exist. The Highland Claimant Trust reserves the right to amend and supplement the PCR as may be necessary or appropriate.

Part 2: Preconfirmation Professional Fees and Expenses

The Highland Claimant Trust did not make any payment of professional fees prior to Confirmation of the Plan.

Part 3: Recoveries of the Holders of Claims and Interests under Confirmed Plan

For presentation purposes, the chart showing claims anticipated under the plan, paid claims and allowed claims are reflected in both the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trust post-confirmation report under Part 3: Recoveries of the Holders of Claims and Interests under the Confirmed Plan.

The presentation contained in this PCR does not reflect the material and necessary reserves that will be taken in accordance with the Claimant Trust's governing documents and the Plan.

All amounts herein EXCLUDE the Highland Indemnity Trust (“Indemnity Trust”) and the cash held within the Disputed Claims Reserve, which are described separately, as well as any other segregated agency or shareholder representative account(s) for which cash is held solely for the benefit of others.

[2] Based upon the baseless filed motion seeking to litigate against indemnified parties and threats from vexatious parties, the Claimant Trustee expects to fund significant additional amounts into the Indemnity Trust.

Item 2: Class 8 / Class 9 Summary (in $ millions)

Note that payments described within Part 3 of the quarterly operating report include payments to classes 6, 7, 8, and 9, whereas payments below only include payments to classes 8 and 9, as applicable.

Class 8 / 9 Summary (in $ millions)
	Cash Payments through March 31, 2023	Disputed Claims Reserve	Remaining [3]
Class 8	$263.4	$11.6	$28.7
Class 9	$0.0	$0.0	$98.8
Classes 8 + 9	$263.4	$11.6	$127.4

[3] Face amount of allowed class 8/9 claims PLUS face amount of pending class 8/9 claims LESS cumulative payments to classes 8/9 LESS cumulative reserves for classes 8/9. Amounts EXCLUDE accrued interest on claim balances as well as amounts of pending admin priority claims, and unliquidated pending class 8/9 claims. Any future distributions to classes 8 and 9 are subject to satisfaction of Claimant Trust senior obligations.

Item 3: Remaining disputed/expunged or pending claims (in $ millions)

Amounts reserved within the Disputed Claims Reserve are in no way indicative of the value or validity of the claim, but rather are simply established based on the face amount of the claim and the proportionate calculation of amounts already distributed to actual allowed claimholders.

Party	Claim number(s)	Face amount	Reserved in Disputed Claims Reserve	Unreserved
Highland CLO Management, Ltd.	Scheduled/Disputed	$10.1	($9.2)	$1.0
Patrick Daugherty [4]	205	$2.7	($2.4)	$0.3
CLO Holdco, Ltd. [5]	254	Unliquidated	$0.0	See note
HCRE Partners, LLC [6]	146	Unliquidated	$0.0	See note

Highland Capital Management Fund Advisors, LP and NexPoint Advisors, LP [8]	239	$6.7	$0.0	$6.7
Total		$19.5	($11.6)	$7.9

[4] Proof of claim has been partially settled, with the exception of the Reserved Claim as described in the settlement agreement with Mr. Daugherty [Docket No. 3298]. Claimant may assert additional amounts may be owed.

[5] CLO Holdco, Ltd., initially filed proof of claim 133 and subsequently amended that claim to $0.00 in open court and then by filing proof of claim 198. HCMLP relied on that agreement and amendment. Subsequently, CLO Holdco, Ltd., sought to amend claim 198 to an estimated amount of $3.8 million by filing proof of claim 254. The Litigation Trust objected to the attempted amended claim, and CLO Holdco, Ltd.’s claim was adjudicated at $0.00. CLO HoldCo, Ltd., has appealed.

[6] HCRE Partners, LLC filed a motion to withdraw proof of claim 146. HCMLP contested that the withdrawal of the claim. The matter is sub judice.

[7] Proof of claim 186 was expunged, but alleged transferee of expunged claim has appealed; appeal pending.

[8] Proof of claim 239, which is an administrative priority claim, was expunged and judgment was granted against alleged creditor, but alleged creditor has appealed.

Item 4: Interest-bearing debt outstanding as of March 31, 2023 (in $ millions)

No interest-bearing debt outstanding. Exit Facility retired in 2022. [9]

[9] Encompasses Claimant Trust, HCMLP (re-organized), Litigation Trust, HCMLP GP LLC, but does not look-through to their respective subsidiaries and/or private funds or companies held by private funds.

Item 5: Remaining investments, notes, and other assets [10]

Asset (alphabetic sorting, except “Other misc.”)	Description
Breach of contract judgment	Direct asset. Bonded judgment against Highland Capital Management Fund Advisors, LP and NexPoint Advisors, LP, pending appeal.
Contempt civil penalty	Direct asset. Civil penalty owed by Mr. Dondero from the first of two contempt orders against him (his second contempt civil penalty was already received from subsidiary of DAF).
Contingent rights, post-sale	Residual contingent rights tied to milestones from a company that was sold Pre-Petition – direct and indirect interests through managed fund(s).
Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (“HCLOF”)	Majority-owned by HCMLP or Claimant Trust (directly or indirectly) but controlled by two independent Guernsey-based directors – investments of this entity are predominantly subordinated notes of Acis-managed CLOs, whose remaining value is predominantly cash. Remaining distributions are held up due to litigation against Acis-related entities and HCLOF by Mr. Dondero’s entities.
NHT.U (TSXV exchange)	Direct asset. Hospitality REIT managed by a subsidiary of NexPoint Advisors, LP.
NHT Holdco LLC	Hospitality REIT managed by a subsidiary of NexPoint Advisors, LP. Indirect interests held through a Delaware LLC created for the sole purpose of holding shares of the hospitality REIT. Mr. Dondero is the manager of the entity. HCMLP has demanded shares as provided in the LLC agreement but has yet to receive delivery of the shares.
Note from Hunter Mountain Investment Trust	Direct asset. Defaulted note. Subject to Litigation Trustee collecting.
Note from The Dugaboy Investment Trust (“Dugaboy”)	Direct asset. Term note. Last receipt in December 2022. Next scheduled receipt in December 2023.
Notes from Mr. Dondero + his affiliates (except Dugaboy)	Direct asset. Demand notes and accelerated term notes, plus costs of collection. Subject to Claimant Trust collection litigation.
Post-sale escrows	Residual escrow(s) remaining related to the monetizations of two private companies. Direct and indirect interests through managed fund(s).
Private companies	Direct and indirect interests in two privately held companies.
Private equity fund interests	Direct or indirect interests in two private funds that make Oil & Gas and Healthcare-related investments, respectively.
SE Multifamily Holdings LLC	Direct asset. Membership interests. Subject to Claimant Trust litigation.
Other misc.	Future revenue streams; receivables; misc. investments; cash (unrestricted and reserved); litigation claims of the Litigation Trust; indemnification claims.

[10] Listing is not comprehensive, but rather is intended to capture potentially significant asset categories that have yet to be fully monetized. Listing includes assets of the Claimant Trust, HCMLP (re-organized), Litigation Trust, and HCMLP GP LLC. Descriptions herein indicate whether the asset is directly owned by one or more of these entities and/or whether the asset is indirectly beneficially owned.

HUNTER MOUNTAIN INVESTMENT TRUST’S SUPPLEMENT TO EMERGENCY MOTION FOR LEAVE TO FILE VERIFIED ADVERSARY PROCEEDING

Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (“HMIT”), Movant, files this Supplement to Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding (the “Supplement”), both in its individual capacity and on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor, Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“HCM” or “Reorganized Debtor”) and the Highland Claimant Trust

(“Claimant Trust”) (the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trust are collectively the “Highland Parties”) against Muck Holdings, LLC (“Muck”), Jessup Holdings LLC (“Jessup”), Farallon Capital Management, L.L.C. (“Farallon”), Stonehill Capital Management LLC (“Stonehill”), James P. Seery, Jr. (“Seery”) and John Doe Defendants Nos. 1-10 (Muck, Jessup, Stonehill, Farallon, Seery and the John Doe Defendants Nos. 11-10 are collectively “Respondents” or “Proposed Defendants”).<sup>1</sup>

OVERVIEW

1. This Supplement is not intended to amend or supersede the Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding (Doc. 3699) (“Emergency Motion for Leave”); rather, it is intended as a supplement to address procedural matters and to bring forth additional facts that further confirm the appropriateness of the derivative action.

2. Recent events make clear that (1) Seery, as Trustee, has a conflict of interest which precludes him from bringing the proposed claims; and (2) Seery, as Trustee, has abandoned and actively attempted to avoid a merits-based determination of the proposed claims. These facts are set forth in a revised Adversary Complaint attached to this Supplement as Exhibit 1-A.

<sup>1</sup> All capitalized terms not otherwise defined herein have the meaning ascribed to them in HMIT’s Emergency Motion for Leave.

3. The revised Adversary Complaint also re-postures the Highland Parties as nominal defendants to address any procedural issues. Although the Court may authorize HMIT to bring the derivative action on behalf of the Highland Parties as Plaintiffs, their joinder as nominal defendants is also a recognized pleading practice. This recharacterization does not change the substance of the derivative action, which remains for the benefit of the Highland Parties.

4. Additional factual allegations are set forth in the revised Adversary Complaint. These additional allegations do not alter the substantive nature of the proposed causes of actions.

5. This Supplement is timely. The hearing will be scheduled no earlier than May 18, 2023. As such, the Respondents have at least 25 days from the filing of this Supplement before any scheduled hearing.

RECENT EVENTS RELATED TO EMERGENCY MOTION FOR LEAVE

6. On March 28, 2023, HMIT filed its Emergency Motion for Leave, seeking leave to represent the Highland Parties in a derivative capacity and seeking damages and other relief on behalf of itself, individually, as well as on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust.

7. HMIT also filed its Application for Expedited Hearing on its Emergency Motion for Leave ("Application") seeking a hearing prior to April 16, 2022. In its Application, HMIT presented what it believed was good cause under Rule 9006 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure to authorize a shortened time for a response and hearing.

8. On March 30, 2023, the so-called “Highland Parties,” which then also included Seery (Doc. 3707), and separately, Muck, Jessup, Farallon, and Stonehill (Doc. 3704), filed their Objections to the Application. One of the arguments advanced in these Objections by counsel for the “Highland Parties” was that the Court should delay a ruling on HMIT’s Application so Seery and other parties could develop a potential statute of limitations defense.

9. Regarding the proposed claims, Seery attempted to avoid the claims to protect his own self-interest at the expense of the Highland Parties and HMIT. Seery unilaterally characterized the Highland Parties as the “Highland Defendants” and claimed they were opposed to HMIT’s Emergency Motion for Leave. To be clear, HMIT seeks to assert its proposed claims on behalf of the Highland Parties, not against them.

10. Because recent events clearly establish HMIT’s capacity and standing to bring its derivative claims, a revised Adversary Complaint is attached hereto as Exhibit 1-A. In addition to new factual allegations, the revised Adversary Complaint also includes allegations regarding fraudulent concealment and the discovery rule because these recent events make clear that the Proposed Defendants seek to fabricate a limitations argument which otherwise would not exist.

ARGUMENTS & AUTHORITIES

11. Seery has known about HMIT's proposed claims for some time, yet, as Claimant Trustee with a duty to protect the Estate, Seery has made no attempt to prosecute these claims, is possessed of a debilitating conflict of interest and, in fact, has urged this Court to weaponize the gatekeeping protocol to make certain he and the other defendants can better take advantage of a purported statute of limitations defense. See Motion, n. 14. (Doc. 3707, ¶¶ 6, 17). Seery has opposed the Emergency Motion for Leave to advance his personal self-interest. Aware that "[t]he Plan does not release . . . Causes of Action arising from willful misconduct, criminal misconduct, actual fraud, or gross negligence," Seery is clearly seeking other means by which to insulate himself.

12. Seery's recent conduct confirms he is disqualified to bring the Proposed Claims due to his manifest conflict of interest. His recent actions are to the detriment of the Highland Parties and HMIT, making it all the more necessary for the Court to grant HMIT leave to bring the proposed claims. See Louisiana World Exposition v. Fed. Ins. Co., 858 F.2d 233, 252-53 (5th Cir. 1988) (granting leave to creditors' committee to bring breach of fiduciary duty claim against bankruptcy estate's officers and directors for mismanagement of the bankruptcy estate due to debtor-in-possession's incapacity to do so due to apparent conflict of interest).

13. In Louisiana World Expedition, the Fifth Circuit explained: “In light of our analysis, we find that the debtor-in-possession’s refusal to pursue LWE’s cause of action against its officers and directors for negligent management was indeed unjustified. The Committee outlined a colorable claim which, if pursued successfully, could have greatly increased the value of the estate. While the debtor-in-possession’s refusal was understandable given the grave conflict of interest implications, we cannot ignore the fact that the creditors’ interests in seeing the property of the estate collected were not protected. Where the interests of an estate and its creditors are impaired by the refusal of a trustee or a debtor-in-possession to initiate adversary proceedings to recover property of the estate, we must consider that refusal unjustified.” Id. at 252.

PRAYER

WHEREFORE, PREMISES CONSIDERED, Hunter Mountain Investment Trust respectfully requests this Court:

1. grant HMIT leave authorizing it to file the Adversary Complaint, attached as Exhibit 1-A, as an Adversary Proceeding in this United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, in its own name and as a derivative action on behalf of the Debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P. and the Highland Claimant Trust, against Muck Holdings, LLC, Jessup Holdings, LLC, Farallon Capital Management, LLC, Stonehill Capital Management, LLC, James P. Seery, Jr., and John Doe Defendants Nos. 1 – 10 (and against Highland Capital Management, L.P. and the Highland Claimant Trust as nominal defendants to the extent necessary); and
2. further grant HMIT all such other and further relief to which HMIT may be justly entitled.

VERIFIED ADVERSARY COMPLAINT

Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (“HMIT”) files this Verified Adversary Complaint (“Complaint”) in its individual capacity and as a derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor, Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“HCM” or “Reorganized Debtor”), and the Highland Claimant Trust (“Claimant Trust”) (the Claimant Trust and Reorganized Debtor are collectively referred to as “Nominal Defendants”), (collectively the Nominal Defendants and HMIT, in its various capacities, are referred to as “Plaintiffs”) complaining of Muck Holdings, LLC (“Muck”), Jessup Holdings LLC (“Jessup”), Farallon Capital Management, L.L.C. (“Farallon”), Stonehill Capital Management LLC ("Stonehill"), James P. Seery, Jr., ("Seery"), and John Doe Defendants Nos. 1-10 (Muck, Jessup, Stonehill, Farallon, Seery, and the John Doe Defendants Nos. 1-10 are collectively "Defendants"), and would show:

I. Introduction

A. Preliminary Statement

1. HMIT brings this Verified Adversary Complaint ("Complaint") on behalf of itself, individually, and as a derivative action benefitting and on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and the Highland Claimant Trust, as defined in the Claimant Trust Agreement (Doc. 3521-5) ("CTA").<sup>1</sup> This action has become necessary because of the wrongful conduct of the Defendants, involving self-dealing, breaches of fiduciary duties, and aiding and abetting those breaches of duty.

2. This lawsuit focuses on a scheme involving Seery and his close business associates and allies. Seery held command of the Debtor, Highland Capital Management, L.P., in a complex bankruptcy. The Debtor's business involved hundreds of millions of dollars in assets that were held by the Debtor's Estate in a variety of entities, managed funds, and other investments. It was not and still is not a narrowly focused business with the type of uncomplicated, transparent assets that almost any potential claim purchaser could meaningfully evaluate. Seery effectively enjoyed despotic control over how these assets were managed, sold, or monetized, and many of his activities were never subject to judicial scrutiny or accountability. Indeed, Seery failed to cause the Debtor to make the financial disclosures required in such proceedings.

<sup>1</sup> Solely in the alternative, and in the unlikely event HMIT's proposed causes of actions against Seery, Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and/or Jessup are considered to be "Estate Claims" as those terms are used and defined within the CTA and Exhibit A to the Notice of Final Term Sheet [Docket No. 354] in HCM's bankruptcy (and without admitting the same), HMIT alternatively seeks standing to bring this action as a derivative action on behalf of the Litigation Sub-Trust as appropriate. Any demand on the Litigation Sub-Trust would be equally futile for the same reasons addressed in HMIT's Emergency Motion for Leave (Doc. 3699).

3. Thus, acting within a cloak of secrecy, Seery provided close business acquaintances, the other Defendants (“Defendant Purchasers”), with material non-public information concerning the value of assets which they then used to purchase the largest approved unsecured claims. The Defendant Purchasers paid well over a hundred million dollars to buy these claims without the kind of independent due diligence that would be reasonably expected, if not required, because of their own fiduciary duties to their investors. It made no sense for the Defendant Purchasers to invest millions of dollars for assets that – per the publicly available information – did not offer a sufficient potential profit to justify the publicly disclosed risk. The counter-intuitive nature of the purchases at issue compels the conclusion that the Defendant Purchasers acted on inside information and Seery’s secret assurances of great profits. Indeed, based upon publicly available information, their investment was projected to yield a small return with virtually no margin for error. But as they must have anticipated, they have already recovered the purchase price and returns far greater than what was publicly projected, with the expectation of significant more profits if not deterred. These facts fit classic insider trading activity.

4. As part of the scheme, the Defendant Purchasers obtained a position to approve Seery's ongoing compensation - to Seery's benefit and also to the detriment of the Claimant Trust, the Reorganized Debtor, and HMIT. Initially, Seery's compensation package was composed of a flat monthly pay. Now, however, it is also performance based. This allows the Defendant Purchasers to satisfy the quid pro quo at the heart of the scheme. Seery would help the Defendant Purchasers make large profits and they would help enrich Seery with big pay days.

5. To further advance their scheme, the Defendants have participated in the pursuit of contrived litigation against HMIT and others, through litigation sponsored by the Litigation Sub Trust. Upon information and belief, Seery also directed or authorized legal counsel for the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trust (who, tellingly, also represented Seery) to oppose HMIT's efforts to obtain leave to file this adversary proceeding. These obstructive tactics are self-serving, with the apparent goals of attempting to: (a) exhaust financial resources in an effort to delay recognition of the vesting of HMIT's interests under the terms of the CTA; (b) reduce the value of HMIT's interests under the CTA; and (c) deprive HMIT of claims relating to breaches of fiduciary duty stemming from the scheme. The Defendants and Litigation Sub Trust have used millions of dollars of assets to finance these obstructive tactics. Every dollar misapplied by Defendants to further this scheme is damaging to HMIT, the Reorganized Debtor, and the Claimant Trust.

6. This derivative action is brought pursuant to Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and B. R. Rule 7023.1. At the time of the transactions at issue, HMIT held a 99.5% limited partnership in Highland Capital Management, L.P., the Original Debtor. This derivative action is not a collusive effort to confer jurisdiction that the Court would otherwise lack.

7. This action also is brought subject to the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (as Modified) (Doc. 1943, Exhibit A) (the "Plan") Article IX.F. Consistent with such provisions, this action is not brought against the nominal party Reorganized Debtor or the nominal party Claimant Trust, but as a derivative action on their behalf and for their benefit.<sup>2</sup> Additionally, HMIT is a person or party aggrieved by the conduct of the Defendants and, therefore, HMIT has constitutional standing to bring this action.

B. *The Claimant Trust, the Derivative Action, the Futility of Further Demand, Abandonment of Claims, and Conflict of Interest

8. Upon the Effective Date, the assets of the bankruptcy estate of Highland Capital Management, L.P., as the Original Debtor (the "Debtor's Estate"), were transferred to the Highland Claimant Trust under the terms of the Plan, and as defined in the CTA. These assets include all “causes of action” that the Debtor’s Estate had before the Effective Date including, without limitation, the causes of action set forth in this Adversary Proceeding. Furthermore, the Claimant Trust is also managed by the Claimant Trustee, Seery, who has self-servingly and falsely characterized the claims as allegedly meritless (Doc. 3707).

<sup>2</sup> To the extent the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust are considered necessary parties for the purposes of this derivative action, they have been included as nominal defendants.

9. Seery, as Claimant Trustee, breached his fiduciary duties and abandoned the current claims in this Adversary Complaint by objecting to HMIT’s Emergency Motion for Leave to File this Adversary Complaint (Doc. 3699) and Application for Emergency Hearing (Doc. 3700). Seery is attempting to weaponize the gatekeeping protocols in the Plan to arm himself and others with potential defense arguments to avoid a merits-based determination of the claims against Seery and the other Defendants. In other words, Seery is attempting to protect his own self-interest at the expense of the Reorganized Debtor, the Claimant Trust, and HMIT. Therefore, any demand upon Seery to prosecute the claims in this Complaint would be futile because Seery is a Defendant.

10. Similarly, the Oversight Board exercises supervision over Seery as Claimant Trustee, and Muck and Jessup are controlling members of the Oversight Board. Any demand upon Muck and Jessup to prosecute these claims would be equally futile because they also filed objections to the expedited prosecution of these or similar claims (falsely characterizing the claims as an alleged waste of judicial resources) (Doc. 3704). Upon information and belief, Muck and Jessup are also controlled by Farallon and Stonehill, further evidencing the futility of any such demand on Muck and Jessup.

11. All conditions precedent to bringing this derivative action have otherwise been satisfied or waived, and the Defendants are estopped from asserting otherwise. HMIT is an appropriate party to bring this action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust.

C. *Nature of the Action

12. The insider trading scheme was implemented after confirmation of the Plan, but before the Effective Date. Prior to the Effective Date, HMIT owned 99.5% of the limited partnership interest in the Debtor and was the beneficiary of fiduciary duties owed by Seery.

13. Seery, the Original Debtor's Chief Executive Officer ("CEO") and former Chief Restructuring Officer ("CRO"), wrongfully facilitated and promoted the insider trades by providing material non-public information to Defendant Purchasers concerning the value of assets in the Debtor's Estate. Farallon and Stonehill, who were otherwise strangers to the bankruptcy proceedings, wrongfully purchased the claims through their special purpose entities, Muck and Jessup, based upon this inside information. Seery's dealings with the Defendant Purchasers were not arm's-length, but instead were covert, undisclosed, and collusive.

14. Motivated by corporate greed, the Defendant Purchasers aided and abetted or, alternatively, knowingly participated in Seery's wrongful conduct. They also breached their own duties as "non-statutory insiders." Because of their long-standing, historical relationships with Seery, and their use of material non-public information, the Defendant Purchasers obtained effective control over various affairs of the Debtor's bankruptcy, including compensation awards to Seery. As such, they became non-statutory insiders.

15. HMIT was formerly the largest equity holder in the Debtor, holding a 99.5% limited partnership interest. As part of the scheme, Seery is attempting to delay recognition of HMIT's vesting of its interests under the CTA. As an allowed Class 10 Class B/C Limited Partnership Interest and Contingent Trust Interest holder, HMIT's right to recover from the Claimant Trust would be junior to the Reorganized Debtor's unsecured creditors, now known as Claimant Trust Beneficiaries. However, the vast majority of the approved unsecured claims superior to HMIT's interest are those claims wrongfully acquired by the insider trading and the breaches of duty at issue in this proceeding.

16. By wrongfully soliciting, fostering, and encouraging the wrongful insider trades at issue, Seery violated his fiduciary duties to the Debtor's Estate and to HMIT, including specifically his duty of loyalty and his duty to avoid self-dealing. But Seery was motivated out of self-interest to garner personal benefit by strategically "planting" his allies onto the Oversight Board which, as a consequence, does not act as an independent board in the exercise of its responsibilities. Rather, imbued with powers to effectively control Seery's compensation, the Defendant Purchasers are postured to reward Seery for their illicit dealings and, upon information and belief, they have done so.

17. By receiving and acting upon material non-public information concerning the financial condition of the Debtor's Estate, Stonehill and Farallon, acting individually and through special purpose shell entities they created and controlled, directly or indirectly, are also liable for aiding and abetting Seery's breaches of fiduciary duties. By acquiring the claims at issue, Muck and Jessup, the shell entities created and controlled by Stonehill and Farallon, also became non-statutory insiders, and also aided and abetted Seery's breaches of fiduciary duties.

18. Because of their willful, inequitable misconduct and bad faith, Plaintiffs ask the Court to require the Defendant Purchasers to disgorge their ill-gotten profits and equitably disallow the remaining unpaid balances on the following allowed claims: Claim Nos. 23, 72, 81, 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154, 190, and 191 (the "Claims") currently held by Muck and Jessup. Because the Defendant Purchasers received substantial distributions from the Claimant Trust in connection with these Claims, HMIT seeks to disgorge from Defendant Purchasers all such distributions above the Defendant Purchasers' initial investment—compelling restitution of such funds to the Claimant Trust for the benefit of other creditors and former equity pursuant to the waterfall established under the Plan and the CTA. Plaintiffs also ask the Court to require Seery to disgorge all compensation from the date his collusive conduct first occurred. Alternatively, Plaintiffs seek damages on behalf of the Claimant Trust in an amount equal to all compensation paid to Seery from the onset of his collusive conduct to present.

19. By this Complaint, Plaintiffs do not seek to challenge the Plan or the Order confirming the Plan.

II. Jurisdiction and Venue

20. Pursuant to Misc. Order No. 33 Order of Reference of Bankruptcy Cases, U.S. District Court for N.D. Texas (the “Order of Reference”), this Complaint is commenced in the Bankruptcy Court because it is “related to a case under Title 11.” The filing of this Complaint is expressly subject to and without waiver of Plaintiffs’ rights and ability to seek withdrawal of the reference pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(d), FED. R. BANKR. P. 5011, and Local Bankruptcy Rule 5011-1. Plaintiffs hereby demand a right to a trial by jury of all claims asserted herein and nothing in this Complaint, nor Plaintiffs’ compliance with the Order of Reference, shall be deemed a waiver of this right. To the extent necessary, Plaintiffs seek to withdraw the reference at this time.

21. This Court has jurisdiction of the subject matter and the parties as a “related to” proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1334 and 157(a) and Articles IX.F., and XI. of the Plan.

22. Pursuant to Rule 7008 of the Bankruptcy Rules, Plaintiffs do not consent to the entry of final orders or judgment by the bankruptcy court.

23. Venue is proper in this district and division pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409, and Articles IX.F., and XI. of the Plan.

III. Parties

24. HMIT is a Delaware statutory trust that was the largest equity holder in the Original Debtor, holding a 99.5% limited partnership interest. HMIT is also the holder of a Contingent Trust Interest in the Claimant Trust, but HMIT should be treated as a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary due to Defendants' wrongful conduct and considering the current value of the Claimant Trust Assets before and after the relief requested herein. Due to Seery's abandonment of the claims asserted herein, and his patent conflict of interest, HMIT has constitutional standing and capacity to bring these claims both individually and derivatively.

25. The Reorganized Debtor, Highland Capital Management, L.P., is a limited partnership formed under the laws of Delaware and may be served at its principal place of business address of 100 Crescent Court, Suite 1850, Dallas, Texas 75201. The Reorganized Debtor is a nominal defendant only, and a primary beneficiary of this lawsuit.

26. Pursuant to the Plan and the CTA, the Claimant Trust holds the assets of the Reorganized Debtor, including the causes of action that accrued to the Debtor's Estate before the Effective Date. The Claimant Trust is established in accordance with the Delaware Statutory Trust Act and Treasury Regulatory Section 301.7701-4(d). The Claimant Trust may be served at its Principal Office where the Claimant Trust is maintained: 100 Crescent Court, Suite 1850, Dallas, Texas 75201. The Claimant Trust is a nominal defendant only, and a primary beneficiary of this lawsuit.

27. Muck is a Delaware limited liability company, with its principal office in California, and may be served with process at One Maritime Plaza, Suite 2100, San Francisco, CA 94111. Muck has made prior appearances in the Debtor's bankruptcy.

28. Jessup is a Delaware limited liability company, with its principal office in New York, and may be served with process via its registered agent, Vcorp Services, LLC, at 108 W. 13th Street Suite 100, Wilmington, Delaware 19801. Jessup has made prior appearances in the Debtor's bankruptcy.

29. Farallon is a Delaware limited liability company, with its principal office in California, and may be served with process at One Maritime Plaza, Suite 2100, San Francisco, CA 94111. Farallon is a capital management company that manages hedge funds and is a registered investment advisor. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Farallon because Farallon's conduct giving rise to or relating to the claims in this Adversary Proceeding occurred in Texas, thereby satisfying all minimum contacts requirements and due process considerations.

30. Stonehill is a Delaware limited liability company, with its principal office in New York, and may be served with process at 320 Park Avenue, 26th Floor, New York, NY 10022. Stonehill is a capital management company managing hedge funds and is a registered investment advisor. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Stonehill because Stonehill's conduct giving rise to or relating to the claims in this Adversary Proceeding occurred in Texas, thereby satisfying all minimum contacts and all due process considerations.

31. Seery is an individual citizen and resident of the State of New York. Mr. Seery may be served with process at 100 Crescent Court, Suite 1805, Dallas, Texas 75201.

32. HMIT separately seeks recovery against John Doe Defendants Nos. 1-10. Farallon has actively concealed the precise legal relationship between itself and Muck. Stonehill also actively concealed the precise legal relationship between itself and Jessup. What is known, however, is that Farallon and Stonehill created these special purpose shell entities, on the eve of the insider trades to acquire ownership of the Claims and to otherwise control the affairs of the Oversight Board. Both Farallon and Stonehill rejected inquiries concerning the exact nature of their relationship with these special purpose entities. Accordingly, HMIT seeks equitable tolling of any statute of limitations concerning claims against unknown business entities or individuals that Farallon and Stonehill may have created and inserted as intermediate corporate layers in the transactions at issue. John Doe Defendants Nos. 1-10 are currently unknown individuals or business entities who may be identified in discovery as involved in the wrongful transactions at issue.

IV. Facts

A. Procedural Background

33. On October 16, 2019, the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in Delaware Bankruptcy Court,<sup>3</sup> which was later transferred to the Northern District of Texas Bankruptcy Court, Dallas Division, on December 4, 2019.<sup>4</sup>

34. On October 29, 2019, the U.S. Trustee's office appointed a four-member Unsecured Creditors Committee ("UCC") consisting of three judgment creditors—the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund ("Redeemer"); Acis Capital Management, L.P., and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC (collectively "Acis"); and UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG London Branch (collectively "UBS")—and an unpaid vendor, Meta-E Discovery.

35. Following the venue transfer to Texas on December 27, 2019, the Debtor filed its Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course (“Governance Motion”).<sup>5</sup> On January 9, 2020, the Court signed a Governance Order granting the Governance Motion.<sup>6</sup>

36. As part of the Governance Order, an independent board of directors—which included Seery as one of the selections of the Unsecured Creditors Committee—was appointed to the Board of Directors (the “Board”) of Strand, the Original Debtor’s general partner. The Board then appointed Seery as the Chief Executive Officer in place of the previous CEO, Mr. James Dondero, as well as the CRO.<sup>7</sup> Seery currently serves as Trustee of the Claimant Trust under the terms of the CTA and as CEO of the Reorganized Debtor.<sup>8</sup>

B. The Targeted Claims

37. In his capacity as the Original Debtor’s CEO and CRO, Seery negotiated and obtained court approval for settlements with several large unsecured creditors including Redeemer, Acis, UBS, and another major unsecured creditor, HarbourVest (Redeemer, Acis, UBS, and HarbourVest are collectively the “Settling Parties”), resulting in the following allowed Claims:

Creditor	Class 8	Class 9
Redeemer	$137 mm	$0 mm
Acis	$23 mm	$0 mm
HarbourVest	$45 mm	$35 mm

<sup>7</sup> Doc. 854, Order Approving Retention of Seery as CEO/CRO.

<sup>8</sup> See Doc. 1943, Order Approving Plan, p. 34.

UBS	$65 mm	$60 mm
(Totals)	$270 mm	$95 mm

As reflected in these settlements, HarbourVest and UBS owned Class 9 claims in addition to Class 8 claims. Class 9 claims were subordinated to Class 8 claims in the distribution waterfall in the Plan.

38. Each of the Settling Parties sold their Claims to Farallon and Stonehill (or affiliated special purpose entities) shortly after receiving court approval of the settlements. One of these “trades” took place within just a few weeks before the Plan’s Effective Date.<sup>9</sup> All of these trades occurred when HMIT held its 99.5% equity stake in the Debtor. Notice of these trades was first provided in filings in the records of the Original Debtor’s bankruptcy proceedings, as follows: Claim No. 23 (Doc. 2211, 2212, and 2215), Claim Nos. 190 and 191 (Doc. 2697 and 2698), Claim Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153 and 154 (Doc. 2263), Claim No. 81 (Doc. 2262), Claim No. 72 (Doc. 2261).

39. Farallon and Stonehill, both of whom are registered investment advisors that manage hedge funds, are acutely aware that they owe fiduciary duties to their investors. Yet, they both invested many tens of millions of dollars, directly or indirectly, to acquire the Claims in the absence of any publicly available information that could provide any economic justification for their investment decisions.

40. Upon information and belief, Stonehill and Farallon collectively invested an estimated amount exceeding $160 million to acquire the Claims with a face amount of $365 million, but a far lower publicly projected value at the time, and they did so in the absence of any meaningful due diligence. Indeed, Farallon has admitted that it conducted no due diligence but relied on Seery's profit guarantees.

41. The Defendant Purchasers' investments become even more suspicious because the Debtor, through Seery, provided the only publicly available information which, at the time, included pessimistic projections that certain of the Claims would receive partial payment, while the subordinated class of Claims would receive no distribution:

- a. From October 2019, when the original Chapter 11 Petition was filed, to January 2021, just before the Plan was confirmed, the projected value of HCM's assets dropped over $200 million from $566 million to $364 million.<sup>10</sup>
- b. HCM's Disclosure Statement publicly projected payment of only 71.32% of Class 8 claims, and 0% of claims in Classes 9-11.<sup>11</sup>
  - o This meant that the Defendant Purchasers invested more than an estimated $160 million in the Claims when the publicly available information indicated they would receive $0 in return on their investment as Class 9 creditors and substantially less than par value on their Class 8 Claims. At best, the Defendant Purchasers would receive a marginal return that could not justify the risk.

- c. Despite the stark decline in the value of the Debtor's Estate and in the midst of substantial reductions in the percentage of Class 8 Claims expected to be satisfied, Stonehill, through Jessup, and Farallon, through Muck, nevertheless purchased the four largest bankruptcy claims from the Redeemer Committee/Crusader Fund, Acis, HarbourVest, and UBS (collectively, again, the "Claims") in April and August of 2021 in the combined estimated amount of at least $163 million.<sup>12</sup>

42. Upon information and belief, Stonehill, through its special purpose entity, Jessup, acquired the Redeemer Committee's claim for $78 million.<sup>13</sup> Upon information and belief, the $23 million Acis claim<sup>14</sup> was sold to Farallon/Muck for $8 million. Upon information and belief, HarbourVest sold its combined $80 million in claims to Farallon/Muck for $27 million. UBS sold its combined $125 million in claims for $50 million to both Stonehill/Jessup and Farallon/Muck. In the instance of UBS, the total projected payout was only $35 million. Indeed, as part of these transactions, both Farallon and Stonehill purchased Class 9 Claims at a time when the Debtor's Estate projected a zero dollar return on all such Claims.

43. Furthermore, although the publicly available projections suggested only a small margin of error on any profit potential for its significant investment, Farallon, upon information and belief, indicated it would refuse to sell its stake in the Claims for a 40% premium or more above its investment—claiming that its stake was far more valuable based upon Seery’s assurances. This is a striking admission that Farallon had and used material non-public inside information.

C. *Material Non-Public Information is Disclosed to Seery’s Affiliates at Stonehill and Farallon

44. One of many significant assets of the Debtor’s Estate was the Debtor’s direct and indirect holdings in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios, Inc. (“MGM”).<sup>15</sup>

45. On December 17, 2020, James Dondero sent an email to Seery. At that time, Dondero was a member of the MGM board, and the email contained material non-public information regarding Amazon and Apple’s interest in acquiring MGM.<sup>16</sup> Of course, any such sale would significantly enhance the value of the Debtor’s Estate.

46. Upon receipt of this material non-public information, Seery should have halted all transactions involving MGM stock, yet just six days later Seery filed a motion in the Bankruptcy Court seeking approval of the Debtor’s settlement with HarbourVest - resulting in a transfer to the Debtor’s Estate of HarbourVest’s interest in a Debtor-advised fund, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (“HCLOF”), which held substantial MGM debt and equity.<sup>17</sup> Conspicuously, the HCLOF interest was not transferred to the Debtor’s Estate for distribution as part of the bankruptcy estate, but rather to “to an entity to be designated by the Debtor” — i.e., one that was not subject to typical bankruptcy reporting requirements.<sup>18</sup>

47. Upon information and belief, aware that the Debtor’s stake in MGM afforded a new profit center, Seery saw this and the value of other assets as an opportunity to increase his own compensation. He then enlisted the help of Stonehill and Farallon to extract further value from the Debtor’s Estate. This quid pro quo included, at a minimum, an understanding that Seery would be well-compensated for the scheme once the Defendant Purchasers, acting through Muck and Jessup, obtained control of the Oversight Board following the Effective Date.

48. Until 2009, Seery was the Global Head of Fixed Income Loans at Lehman Brothers<sup>19</sup> where, upon information and belief, he conducted substantial business with Farallon. Following the collapse of Lehman Brothers, Seery continued to work with, and indeed represented Farallon as its legal counsel. Seery ultimately joined a hedge fund, River Birch Capital,<sup>20</sup> which, along with Stonehill, served on the creditors committee in other bankruptcy proceedings. GCM Grovesnor, a global asset management firm, held four seats on the Redeemer Committee<sup>21</sup> and, upon information and belief, is a significant investor in Stonehill and Farallon. Grovesnor, through Redeemer, played a large part in appointing Seery as a director of Strand Advisors. Seery was beholden to Grovesnor from the outset, and, by extension, Grovesnor's affiliates Stonehill and Farallon.

49. As successful capital management firms, with advisory and fiduciary duties to their own clients, Stonehill and Farallon typically engage in robust due diligence before making significant investments. Yet, in this case, it would have been impossible for Stonehill and Farallon (in the absence of inside information) to forecast any significant profit at the time of their multi-million-dollar investments given the publicly available, negative financial information.

50. Seery shared with Stonehill and Farallon material non-public information concerning certain assets of the Debtor's Estate. Otherwise, it makes no sense that the Defendant Purchasers would have made their multi-million-dollar investments under these circumstances.

51. Fed. R. Bank. P. 2015.3(a) requires "periodic financial reports of the value, operations, and profitability of each entity that is not a publicly traded corporation or debtor . . . in which the estate holds a substantial of controlling interest." The purpose of Rule 2015.3 is "to assist parties in interest taking steps to ensure that the debtor's interest in any entity . . . is used for payment of allowed claims against the debtor." Pub. L. 109-8 § 419(b) (2005). However, these reports were not provided, thereby giving the Defendant Purchasers the added benefit of being insiders having access to information that was not made publicly available to other stakeholders.

52. When questioned at the confirmation hearing regarding the failure to file these reports, Seery explained that he “did not get it done and it fell through the cracks” (Doc. 1905 at 49:18-21). Yet even now — two years later — complete reports identifying the asset values and profitability of each non-publicly traded entity (in which the Reorganized Debtor has or held interests) have not been disclosed. Upon information and belief, this includes several entities including, but not limited to: Highland Select Equity Fund; Highland Select Entity Fund, L.P., Highland Restoration Capital Partners, L.P.; Highland CLO Funding, Ltd.; Highland Multi Strategy Credit Fund, L.P.; Highland Capital Management Korea Limited; Cornerstone Healthcare; Trussway Industries, LLC; Trussway Holdings, LLC; OmniMax International; Targa; CCS Medical; JHT Holdings; and other entities.<sup>22</sup> Upon information and belief, the Reorganized Debtors’ interest in some of these entities has been sold,<sup>23</sup> but the sales prices have not been fully disclosed (except as reported by certain purchasers in public SEC filings).

53. Rather than providing the required reports, only generic information was provided (by way of examples, as “private security,” “private portfolio company,” and “private equity fund”) with a total reported value of $224,267,777.21.<sup>24</sup> Entities were sold without Court approval and without any 2015.3 report filings. In sum, upon information and belief, the Debtor had and the Reorganized Debtor has significant assets in a variety of funds and investments that were not publicly disclosed.

54. By wrongfully exploiting such material non-public insider information, Stonehill and Farallon—acting through Muck and Jessup—became the largest holders of unsecured claims in the Debtor’s Estate with resulting control over the Oversight Board and a front row seat to the reorganization and distribution of Claimant Trust Assets. As such, they were given control (through Muck and Jessup) to approve discretionary bonuses and success fees for Seery from these assets.

D. Distributions

55. The MGM sale was ultimately consummated in March 2022 for $6.1 billion in cash, plus $2.5 billion in debt that Amazon assumed and immediately repaid.<sup>25</sup>

56. HCM and its wholly owned subsidiary, HCMLP Investments, own 50.612% of HCLOF, which, as of December 31, 2021, had a total net asset value of $76.1 million, a substantial amount of which has been monetized.<sup>26</sup> Upon information and belief, HCM’s interest in HCLOF was worth at least $38 million.

57. On or about September 1, 2022, upon information and belief, Trussway was sold to Builder's First Source for $274.8 million, net of cash.<sup>27</sup> Prior to the sale, upon information and belief, Highland Select Equity Fund, L.P. ("HSEF") owned "approximately 90%" of Trussway, and HCM owned 100% of HSEF.<sup>28</sup> Upon information and belief, HCM should have netted at least $247.8 million from the sale of Trussway.

58. According to HCM's most recent Form ADV, filed on March 31, 2023, HCM currently owns at least $127.5 million in Highland Multi Strategy Credit Fund, L.P., Highland Restoration Capital Partners Master, LP, Highland Restoration Capital Partners, L.P., and Stonebridge-Highland Healthcare Private Equity Fund (collectively, the "Private Funds"), in addition to interests in HCM's client-CLOs and other non-regulatory assets.

59. Accordingly, and upon information and belief, and based solely on the Reorganized Debtor's interests in Trussway, HCLOF, and the Private Funds, the Reorganized Debtor has over $413.3 million in estimated liquid or monetizable assets—which alone exceeds the $397.5 million in general unsecured claims, and indeed all allowed claims<sup>29</sup>—notwithstanding the value realized from the Reorganized Debtor's interests in MGM, Trussway, Cornerstone, and other substantial assets that may remain to be monetized.<sup>30</sup>

60. By the end of Q3 2021, just over $6 million of the projected $205 million available for general unsecured claimants had been disbursed.<sup>31</sup> No additional distributions were made to general unsecured claimholders until, suddenly, in Q3 2022 almost $250 million was paid toward Class 8 general unsecured claims—$45 million more than was ever projected.<sup>32</sup> Thus, Stonehill (Jessup) and Farallon (Muck) already have received returns that far eclipse their estimated investments. They also stand to make further significant profits on their investments, including distributions on their Class 9 Claims.

61. As of March 31, 2023, the Claimant Trust has distributed $270,205,592.<sup>33</sup> On a pro rata basis, this means that other creditors (excluding Muck and Jessup) have received an estimated $24,332,361.07 in distributions against the stated value of their allowed claims.<sup>34</sup> That leaves an estimated unpaid balance of only $2,456,596.93.

<sup>34</sup> Stonehill (Jessup) and Farallon (Muck)'s Claims collectively represent an estimated 91% of all Class 8 claims. The other creditors therefore represent an estimated 9%. Upon information and belief, Stonehill (Jessup) and Farallon (Muck) hold 100% of the Class 9 claims.

V. Causes of Action

A. Count I (against Seery): Breach of Fiduciary Duties

62. The allegations in paragraphs 1-61 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

63. As CEO and CRO of a debtor-in-possession, Seery owed fiduciary duties to HMIT, as equity, and to the Debtor's Estate, including, without limitation, the duty of loyalty and the duty to avoid conflicts of interests, but Seery willfully and knowingly engaged in conduct which conflicted with his fiduciary duties—and he did so out of financial self-interest.

64. By disclosing material non-public information to Stonehill and Farallon in an effort to gain personal financial benefit, Seery willfully and knowingly breached his fiduciary duties. By failing to disclose the inside trades at issue, including his role in those inside trades, Seery willfully and knowingly breached his fiduciary duties.

65. As a result of his willful misconduct, Seery was unfairly advantaged by receiving assurances of additional undisclosed compensation and bonuses from the assets of the Debtor's Estate and from the Claimant Trust Assets—to the detriment of other stakeholders, including HMIT.

66. Seery's misconduct constituted fraud, willful misconduct, and bad faith.

67. Plaintiffs sue for all actual damages caused by Seery's misconduct. Seery should also be held liable for disgorgement of all compensation he received since his collusion with the Defendant Purchasers first began. Alternatively, Seery should be disgorged of all compensation paid to him under the terms of the CTA since the Effective Date of the Plan in August 2021.

68. Alternatively, Plaintiffs are entitled to recover damages measured by all ill-gotten compensation which Seery has received since his first collusive conduct began.

B. *Count II (against all Defendant Purchasers and the John Doe Defendants): Knowing Participation in Breach of Fiduciary Duties

69. The allegations in paragraphs 1-68 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

70. Seery owed fiduciary duties to HMIT and the Debtor's Estate, and he willfully and knowingly breached these duties. Without limiting the foregoing, Seery owed a duty of loyalty which he willfully and knowingly breached. Seery also owed a duty to not engage in self-interested conduct to the detriment of the Debtor's Estate and innocent stakeholders. Seery willfully and knowingly breached this duty.

71. The Defendant Purchasers were aware of Seery's fiduciary duties and, by purchasing the Claims and approving bonuses and other compensation for Seery, Stonehill (acting through Jessup) and Farallon (acting through Muck), willfully and knowingly participated in Seery's breaches or, alternatively, willfully aided and abetted such breaches.

72. Stonehill (Jessup) and Farallon (Muck) unfairly received many millions of dollars in profits and fees—and stand to earn even more profits and fees.

73. The Defendant Purchasers' misconduct constitutes bad faith, fraud, and willful misconduct.

74. Plaintiffs sue for all actual damages caused by the Defendant Purchasers' wrongful conduct. The Defendant Purchasers are also liable for disgorgement of all profits Defendant Purchasers earned from their participation in the purchase of the Claims. Plaintiffs also seek damages against the Defendant Purchasers for excessive compensation paid to Seery as part of the covert quid pro quo with Seery.

C. Count III (against all Defendants): Conspiracy

75. The allegations in paragraphs 1-74 above are incorporated herein as if incorporated herein verbatim.

76. Defendants conspired with each other to unlawfully breach fiduciary duties to HMIT and the Debtor's Estate, and to conceal their wrongful trades.

77. Seery's disclosure of material non-public information to the Defendant Purchasers and Seery's receipt of additional compensation as a quid pro quo for the insider-claims trading are overt acts in furtherance of the conspiracy.

78. HMIT's interest in the residual of the Claimant Trust Assets has been adversely impacted by this conspiracy. The assets have been depleted by virtue of Seery's compensation awards.

79. All Defendants' misconduct constitutes bad faith, fraud, and willful misconduct.

80. Plaintiffs sue for all actual damages caused by the Defendants' wrongful conduct. All Defendants should be disgorged of their ill-gotten profits and gains.

81. Plaintiffs sue all Defendants for damages associated with Seery's compensation awards pursuant to the scheme.

D. *Count IV (against Muck and Jessup): Equitable Disallowance

82. The allegations in paragraphs 1-81 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

83. By purchasing the Claims based on material non-public information, Stonehill and Farallon, through Jessup and Muck, engaged in inequitable conduct.

84. By earning significant profits on their purchases, Muck and Jessup have been unfairly advantaged.

85. Muck and Jessup's misconduct constitutes bad faith, fraud, and willful misconduct.

86. Given this willful, inequitable, and bad faith conduct, equitable disallowance of Muck's and Jessup's Claims to the extent over and above their initial investment is appropriate and consistent with the purposes of the Bankruptcy Code.

87. Pleading in the alternative only, subordination of Muck's and Jessup's General Unsecured Claim Trust Interests and Subordinated Claim Trust Interests to all other interests in the Claimant Trust, including HMIT's Contingent Trust Interest, is necessary and appropriate to remedy Muck's and Jessup's wrongful, willful, and bad faith conduct, and is also consistent with the purposes of the Bankruptcy Code.

E. Count V (against all Defendants): Unjust Enrichment and Constructive Trust

88. The allegations in paragraphs 1-87 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

89. By acquiring the Claims using material non-public information, Stonehill and Farallon were unjustly enriched and gained an undue advantage over other creditors and former equity.

90. All Defendants' misconduct constitutes bad faith, fraud, and willful misconduct.

91. Allowing Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and Jessup to retain their ill-gotten benefits would be unconscionable.

92. Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and Jessup should be forced to disgorge all distributions over and above their original investment in the Claims as restitution for their unjust enrichment.

93. The proceeds Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and Jessup have received from the Claimant Trust are traceable and identifiable. A constructive trust should be imposed on such proceeds to secure the restitution of these improperly retained benefits.

94. Seery was also unjustly enriched by his participation in this scheme and he should be required to disgorge or retribute all compensation he has received from the outset of his collusive activities. Alternatively, he should be required to disgorge and retribute all compensation received since the Effective Date. A constructive trust should be imposed on all such funds to secure the restitution of these improperly obtained benefits.

F. *Count VI (Against all Defendants): Declaratory Relief

95. The allegations in paragraphs 1-94 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

96. HMIT seeks declaratory relief. The Court has jurisdiction to provide declaratory judgment relief when there is an actual controversy that has arisen and exists relating to the rights and duties of the parties.

97. Bankruptcy Rule 7001 provides that “a proceeding to recover property or money,” may include declaratory relief. See, Fed. R. Bank P. 7001(1), (9).

98. The CTA is governed under Delaware law. The CTA incorporates and is subject to Delaware trust law.

99. HMIT seeks a declaration, as follows:

- a. There is a ripe controversy concerning HMIT’s rights and entitlements under the Claimant Trust Agreement;
- b. HMIT has standing to bring an action even if its interest is considered contingent and because it is an aggrieved party and enjoys constitutional standing;
- c. HMIT has capacity and standing to bring these claims derivatively because Seery, as Trustee, has abandoned the claims;

- d. HMIT has capacity and standing to bring these claims derivatively because Seery, as Trustee, and Muck and Jessup have a conflict of interest;
- e. HMIT is an appropriate party to bring the derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust;
- f. Alternatively, HMIT's status as a Claimant Trust Beneficiary is fully vested now;
- g. HMIT's status as a Claimant Trust Beneficiary is fully vested upon disgorgement by Muck and Jessup, and by extension, Farallon and Stonehill, of their ill-gotten profits;
- h. HMIT's status as a Claimant Trust Beneficiary is fully vested upon the equitable disallowance of the Claims held by Muck and Jessup over and above their initial investments. Alternatively, HMIT's status as a Claimant Trust Beneficiary is fully vested when all of Muck's and Jessup's trust interests are subordinated to the trust interests held by HMIT;
- i. Seery is properly estopped from asserting that HMIT is not an appropriate party to bring this derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and/or the Claimant Trust because of Seery's conduct, bad faith, willful misconduct, and unclean hands;
- j. Muck and Jessup are properly estopped from asserting that HMIT is not an appropriate party to bring this derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust because of their fraudulent conduct, bad faith, willful misconduct, and unclean hands; and
- k. All Defendants are estopped from asserting that HMIT does not have standing in its individual capacity due to their fraudulent conduct, bad faith, willful misconduct, and unclean hands.

VI. Punitive Damages

100. The allegations in paragraphs 1-99 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

101. The Defendants' misconduct was intentional, knowing, willful, in bad faith, fraudulent, and in total disregard of the rights of others. An award of punitive damages as allowed by law is appropriate and necessary under the facts of this case.

VII. Conditions Precedent

102. All conditions precedent to recovery herein have been satisfied or have been waived.

VIII. Fraudulent Concealment and Equitable Tolling

103. The allegations in paragraphs 1-102 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

104. The illicit conduct of Defendants as described herein was concealed from Plaintiffs, who did not know, and could not reasonably discover, either that conduct of Defendants or the injury that would result. Specifically, as described herein, Defendants conspired to trade on material nonpublic information in breach of duties to the Original Debtors and Debtor's Estate. Defendants used deception to conceal the causes of action alleged herein and continue to refuse formal and informal discovery requests of facts, information, and documents related to the Plaintiffs' claims. HMIT reasonably relied on Defendants' deceptive representations, and otherwise exercised all diligence in this matter, yet the causes of action were inherently undiscoverable.

105. Defendants continued to engage in the illicit practices described herein, and consequently, Plaintiffs were continually injured by Defendants' illicit conduct. Therefore, Plaintiffs submit that each instance that one or more of the Defendants engaged in the conduct complained of in this action constitutes part of a continuing violation and operates to toll the statutes of limitation applicable to all causes of action in this matter.

106. Defendants' conduct was and is, by its nature, self-concealing. In addition, Defendants, through a series of affirmative acts and omissions, suppressed the dissemination of truthful information regarding their illicit conduct, and have actively foreclosed Plaintiffs from learning of their illicit, unfair, self-dealing, disloyal, and/or deceptive acts.

107. To the extent that one or more of the Defendants asserts a defense of statute of limitations or other time-based defense, they are estopped from doing so and Plaintiffs affirmatively pleads fraudulent concealment should toll or otherwise prevent application of any alleged statute of limitation defense. Plaintiffs further affirmatively plead equitable estoppel.

108. By reason of the foregoing, Plaintiffs' claims on behalf of itself and on behalf of the Highland Parties are timely under any applicable statute of limitations, pursuant to the discovery rule, pursuant to the equitable tolling doctrine, pursuant to fraudulent concealment, and/or pursuant to any other applicable tolling doctrine.

IX. Jury Demand

109. Plaintiffs hereby demand a right to a trial by jury of all claims asserted herein involving triable issues of fact.

X. Prayer

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs pray for judgment against each of the Defendants as follows:

1. That all Defendants be cited to appear and answer herein;
2. Finding that HMIT has capacity and standing to bring these claims individually and derivatively because Seery, as trustee, has abandoned the claims and has a conflict of interest;
3. Finding that HMIT has capacity and standing to bring these claims individually and derivatively because Muck and Jessup have a conflict of interest;
4. Awarding equitable disallowance of the Claims over and above Muck's and Jessup's original investments (or, alternatively, subordination of their Claimant Trust Interests, as addressed herein);
5. Awarding disgorgement of all funds distributed from the Claimant Trust to the Defendant Purchasers and any John Doe Defendants over and above their original investments;
6. Awarding disgorgement of all compensation paid to Seery from the date of his first collusive activities, or alternatively, from the Effective Date;
7. Imposition of a constructive trust as to all ill-gotten profits received by the Defendant Purchasers and any John Doe Defendants;
8. Awarding declaratory relief as described herein;

9. Awarding actual damages as described herein;
10. Awarding exemplary damages as described herein;
11. Awarding pre-judgment and post-judgment interest at the highest rate allowed by law; and
12. Awarding all such other and further relief to which Plaintiffs may be justly entitled.

Respectfully Submitted,

Muck Holdings, LLC (“Muck”), Jessup Holdings LLC (“Jessup”), Farallon Capital Management, L.L.C. (“Farallon”), and Stonehill Capital Management LLC (“Stonehill”, and collectively, with Muck, Jessup, and Farallon, the “Claim Purchasers”) file this Objection to Hunter Mountain Investment Trust’s (i) Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding; and (ii) Supplement to Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding (the “Objection”). In support, the Claim Purchasers respectfully state as follows:

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. Hunter Mountain Investment Trust’s (“HMIT”) Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding (“Motion to File Complaint”) is a continuation of James Dondero’s (“Dondero”) relentless barrage of meritless litigation against the bankruptcy estate of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“HCMLP” or the “Debtor”). Brought almost two years after the alleged “wrongdoing,” the Motion to File Complaint seeks leave for HMIT, a Dondero affiliate, to file an adversary proceeding against the Claim Purchasers, James P. Seery, the post-effective date trustee of the Debtor’s estate (“Seery”), and others based upon private bilateral claim sales between the Claim Purchasers and third-party sellers (“Claims Sellers”). HMIT lacks standing to complain about transactions between the Claim Purchasers and Claims Sellers, and for that reason alone, the Motion to File Complaint should be denied.

2. In addition, the Claims Purchasers owed no duties to the bankruptcy estate or any equity holders of the bankruptcy estate (including Dondero or HMIT) at the time of the claims transfers. As this Court knows, the trading of claims is not a process that involves the Court or the bankruptcy estate, other than the perfunctory filing of notice under FED. R. BANKR. P. 3001(e)(2). The Claim Purchasers filed Rule 3001 notices (most more than two years ago) and not one objection, response, or statement was filed with in response to those notices.

3. Moreover, none of the third-party Claims Sellers (who are sophisticated parties represented by skilled bankruptcy and transactional counsel) has ever made any allegation that the claims transfers damaged them or were in any way not valid, appropriately informed, arms-length transactions. The record shows that the Claims Sellers were well familiar with the circumstances of the Highland bankruptcy, having litigated for many years with Highland and Dondero themselves. The Claims Sellers sold their claims and have put their involvement behind them.

4. The structure of the bankruptcy estate shows that HMIT cannot better its position by pursuing the claims in the Proposed Complaint. Fundamentally, and fatally—whether HMIT could upend the transfers, or whether it could succeed in equitably subordinating the validly transferred claims—HMIT would be in the same position it is today: an equity holder with a speculative interest in the residual rump of the bankruptcy estate. With this Proposed Complaint, it is obvious that HMIT does not seek to bring justice to the Claims Sellers or even to the estate; it wants to bring nuisance against Seery and the Claim Purchasers. The law does not allow such actions, and the gatekeeper process should preclude HMIT from filing its Proposed Complaint.

5. Setting aside HMIT’s lack of standing and lack of cognizable claims, which should cause the Proposed Complaint to fail even under a motion to dismiss standard, the claims HMIT seeks to assert are not colorable and thus cannot pass through the Plan’s gatekeeper provision. The gravamen of the Proposed Complaint is that Seery provided the Claim Purchasers with “material non-public information” concerning Amazon’s potential acquisition of MGM Holdings, Inc. (“MGM”), prompting the Claim Purchasers to acquire certain claims asserted in the bankruptcy case. The claims are not securities, of course, and HMIT’s pleading fails to allege an information disparity between the transferors and Claims Purchasers. But why would Seery, an individual who did owe fiduciary duties to the bankruptcy estate, take such an unprecedented risk that would imperil his role in the case and irreparably damage his reputation? HMIT alleges that Seery took such action to benefit himself by replacing the claims transferors with the Claim Purchasers, who allegedly agreed to “rubber stamp” Seery’s compensation requests post-effective date. In other words, HMIT dreamed-up a “quid pro quo” where “inside information” was exchanged for an agreement to excessively compensate Seery later. There is no plausibility to that outlandish claim.

6. HMIT must establish a “prima facie” case that its claims have foundation. This standard requires that HMIT do more than simply plead speculative “facts” and have the Court treat them as true. Rather, HMIT must show that its allegations are “plausible on their face”; otherwise, the Plan’s gatekeeper provision has no practical limitation on vexatious litigation. HMIT has not met this standard. Indeed, HMIT alleges no plausible facts supporting an inference that Seery shared non-public information with the Claim Purchasers, that the Claims Sellers were deceived in selling their claims, or that Seery and the Claim Purchasers agreed to a “quid pro quo.”

7. Allowing HMIT to proceed with litigation, after more than a year of harassing the Claim Purchasers in Texas state court (with no success), flies in the face of the central purpose of the Plan’s gatekeeper provision. The HCMLP bankruptcy estate, led by Seery, is engaged in substantive litigation against Dondero and his affiliated entities to recoup losses arising from various breaches and malfeasance allegedly committed by Dondero and his affiliated entities.<sup>2</sup> HMIT and Dondero are vexatious litigants who are desperately attempting to gain leverage in the litigation pending against them. They seek to send a message to the market that participation in the Highland liquidation case and in related adversary proceedings will come at great cost and with substantial downside to anyone who dares attempt to recoup losses caused by Dondero and his entities and thereby profit from the vestiges of the HCMLP estate that Dondero no longer controls. This Court should deliver to HMIT and Dondero the stronger message that the gatekeeper terms were designed to control exactly this kind of baseless and damaging litigation.

BACKGROUND

8. On October 16, 2019, HCMLP filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of title 11 of the United States Code (the “Bankruptcy Code”) in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware (the “Delaware Court”), instituting a voluntary chapter 11 bankruptcy case styled In re Highland Capital Management, L.P., Case No. 19-12239 (Bankr. D. Del. Oct. 16, 2019) (the “Delaware Case”). On November 11, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors filed its Motion of the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors for an Order Transferring Venue of This Case to the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas [Delaware Case at Dkt. No. 86] (the “Venue Motion”). On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court granted the Venue Motion [Delaware Case at Dkt. No. 184], transferring the Debtor’s case to the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the “Court”).

A. Claims are Filed, Settled, Allowed, and Transferred at Arms-Length

9. As set forth below, the claims transferred by the Claims Sellers were filed, settled, and ultimately allowed by this Court. Further, at every turn, Dondero and his affiliated entities objected to the settlements and were overruled. The Claim Purchasers acquired the claims through various arm’s-length transactions, after the respective claims were allowed by this Court, and in each case, Rule 3001 notices were filed as reflected below:

Claimant(s)	Date Filed/ Claim No.	Asserted Amount	Claim Settled/Allowed Amount	Rule 3001 Notice Filed
Acis Capital Management LP and Acis Capital Management, GP LLC (together, “Acis”)	12/31/2019  Claim No. 23	$23,000,000	Yes [Dkt. No. 1302] <sup>3</sup>  $23,000,000	Dkt. No. 2215 (Muck)
Redeemer Committee Highland Crusader Fund (the “Redeemer Committee”)	4/3/2020  Claim No. 72	$190,824,557	Yes [Dkt. No. 1273]  $137,696,610	Dkt. No. 2261 (Jessup)
HarbourVest 2017 Global Fund, LP, HarbourVest 2017 Global AIF, LP, HarbourVest Partners LP, HarbourVest Dover Street IX Investment LP, HV International VIII Secondary LP, HarbourVest Skew Base AIF LP (collectively, the “HarbourVest Parties”)	April 8, 2020  Claim Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154	Unliquidated	Yes [Dkt. No. 1788] <sup>4</sup>  $80,000,000 in aggregate ($45,000,000 General Unsecured Claim, and $35,000,000 subordinated claim)	Dkt. No. 2263 (Muck)
UBS Securities LLC, UBS AG, London Branch (the “UBS Parties”)	June 26, 2020  Claim Nos. 190, 191	$1,039,957,799.40	Yes [Dkt. No. 2389] <sup>5</sup>  $125,000,000 in aggregate ($65,000,000 General	Dkt. No. 2698 (Muck) and Dkt. No. 2697 (Jessup)

<sup>4</sup> The Debtor’s settlement with the HarbourVest Parties was approved over the objections of James Dondero [Dkt. No. 1697] and The Dugaboy Investment Trust and Get Good Trust [Dkt. No. 1706].

<sup>5</sup> The Debtor’s settlement with the UBS Parties was approved over the objections of James Dondero [Dkt. No. 2295], and the Dugaboy Investment Trust and Get Good Trust [Dkt. Nos. 2268, 2293].

			Unsecured Claim and $60,000,000 subordinated claim)
--	--	--	--	--

10. HMIT hypothesizes, without alleging any credible facts, that the Claim Purchasers acquired the claims based on “inside information” disclosed by Seery in return for an agreement to approve excessive compensation for Seery at some point in the future. Indeed, while HMIT bears the burden of satisfying the gatekeeper standard, the record shows that the Claims Sellers, who are the only possible victims under HMIT’s theories, have expressed no interest whatsoever in HMIT’s allegations. And only the Claims Sellers have standing to dispute a claim sale. See, e.g., Aaron L. Hammer & Michael A. Brandess, Claims Trading: The Wild West of Chapter 11s, Am. Bankr. Inst. J. 62 (July/Aug. 2010) (“In 1991, Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(e) was amended to limit the court’s oversight on claims trading” such that “only the transferor may object to a transfer.”).

B. Plan is Filed, Confirmed and Goes Effective

11. On November 24, 2020, the Debtor filed its Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. [Dkt. No. 1472] (the “Plan”). With respect to the claims held by the Claim Purchasers, the Plan provided, inter alia, that “[o]n or as soon as reasonably practicable after the Effective Date, each holder of an Allowed Class 8 Claim, in full satisfaction, settlement, discharge and release of, and in exchange for, such Claim” will receive interests in the Claimant Trust.<sup>6</sup> Plan at Art. III(H)(8). Further, the Plan provides

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, after the Effective Date and subject to the other provisions of this Plan, the Debtor, the Reorganized Debtor, and the Claimant Trust, as applicable, will have and will retain any and all rights and defenses under bankruptcy or nonbankruptcy law that the Debtor had with respect to any General Unsecured Claim, except with respect to any General Unsecured Claim Allowed by Final Order of the Bankruptcy Court.

Id. (emphasis added).<sup>7</sup>

12. On February 22, 2021, the Court entered the Order (i) Confirming the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (as Modified) and (ii) Granting Related Relief [Dkt. No. 1943] (the “Confirmation Order”).

13. All of the claim trades were consummated after the Confirmation Order was entered.

14. On August 11, 2021, the Debtor filed its Notice of Occurrence of Effective Date of Confirmed Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. [Dkt. No. 2700], indicating that the Plan went effective on August 11, 2021.

C. Dondero and HMIT Unsuccessfully Seek Discovery in State Court

15. In July of 2021, Dondero filed a pre-suit discovery request, targeting Farallon and Alvarez & Marsal (“A&M”), under TEX. R. CIV. P. 202 (“Rule 202”): In Re: James Dondero, Cause No. DC-21-09534, in the 95th Judicial District Court of Dallas County, Texas (“First 202”). While the First 202 did not seek discovery from Seery directly, Farallon and A&M removed that case to this Court, as it was clear that the purpose of the First 202 was to impugn Seery’s conduct. After extensive briefing and a hearing, due to misalignment of Rule 202 proceedings and bankruptcy cases, the Court remanded the First 202 to the Texas state court “with grave misgivings.” The state court ultimately denied and dismissed the First 202 on June 1, 2022.

16. As the Court is aware, Dondero waited over six months and filed a new Rule 202 petition through his affiliate HMIT – raising the same issues related to claims trading as in the

<sup>7</sup> The Plan includes substantially similar language with respect to Class 9 Subordinated Claims. Plan at Art. III(H)(8)-(9)

First 202, based on the same allegations of misconduct by Seery – but now in a different Texas state court: In re: Hunter Mountain Investment Trust, Cause No. DC-23-01004, in the 191st Judicial District of Dallas County, Texas (“Second 202”). The recipient of the Second 202 was once again Farallon, with the addition of Stonehill. HMIT, undeterred by the dismissal of the First 202, carefully avoided not only this Court, but also the 95th Judicial District Court that dismissed the First 202, and it sought to convince yet another state court judge that it had a valid basis to “investigate” claims purchases in a bankruptcy proceeding. After briefing and a hearing, the Second 202 met the same fate as the first: it was denied and dismissed on March 8, 2023.

17. Only after Dondero and HMIT failed to obtain state-court permission to harass the Claim Purchasers with broad discovery in support of futile theories did HMIT file its Motion to File Complaint, which is supported primarily with affidavits from Dondero, making the same baseless allegations that he and his lawyers have made for more than two years.

OBJECTION

18. HMIT’s Motion to File Complaint [Dkt. No. 3699] should be denied because (i) HMIT lacks standing to pursue the claims asserted in the verified complaint attached as Exhibit 1-A to HMIT’s Supplement to Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding [Dkt. No. 3760] (the “Proposed Complaint”), (ii) HMIT has no cognizable claims against the Claims Purchasers, (iii) the Claim Purchasers are protected by the “Gatekeeper Provision” of the Plan, and (iv) the claims alleged by HMIT are not colorable.

A. HMIT has no standing to assert the causes of action in the Proposed Complaint.

19. For a party to have standing to assert a cause of action, inter alia, the alleged injury must be fairly traceable to the defendant’s conduct. See, e.g., Friends of the Earth, Inc. v. Crown Cent. Petroleum Corp., 95 F.3d 358, 360 (5th Cir. 1996) (“To demonstrate that [plaintiffs] have standing, [plaintiffs] must show that: 1) its members have suffered an actual or threatened injury; 2) the injury is ‘fairly traceable’ to the defendant's actions; and 3) the injury will likely be redressed if it prevails in the lawsuit.”); Heckman v. Williamson Cnty., 369 S.W.3d 137, 155 (Tex. 2012) (“The second element of the standing test requires that the plaintiff's alleged injury be ‘fairly traceable’ to the defendant's conduct.”); Vichi v. Koninklijke Philips Elecs. N.V., 62 A.3d 26, 38 (Del. Ch. 2012) (“there must be a causal connection between the injury and the conduct complained-of-the injury has to be fairly traceable to the challenged action of the [respondent]...”).

20. HMIT lacks standing to pursue the claims asserted in the Proposed Complaint because (i) neither HMIT nor the Bankruptcy Estate was affected or harmed by the Claim Purchasers’ acquisition of the claims; and (ii) the Proposed Complaint fails to allege a cause of action against the Claim Purchasers because it lacks a theory of cognizable damages to the Debtor’s bankruptcy estate, the Claimant Trust (as defined in the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. [Dkt. No. 1808] (the “Plan”)<sup>8</sup>), and/or the beneficiaries of the Claimant Trust, such that HMIT has been injured.

21. Under the Plan, HMIT held a Class 10 claim which was converted post-confirmation to a contingent trust interest in the Claimant Trust. HMIT admits that the requisite conditions have not been satisfied to convert its contingent trust interest into a beneficial interest, and that more than $9.5 million must be paid to creditors other than the Claim Purchasers before HMIT becomes a Claimant Trust Beneficiary.<sup>9</sup> In an attempt to bridge this gap, HMIT asserts that it (or the bankruptcy estate) is entitled to the equitable disallowance, equitable subordination,

<sup>8</sup> Capitalized terms used herein but not otherwise defined have the meanings ascribed in the Plan.

<sup>9</sup> See, e.g., Motion to File Complaint, ¶ 17 (stating that creditors other than the Claim Purchasers are owed at least $9.627 million). This $9.5 million does not include the tens of millions still owed to the Claim Purchasers.

disgorgement and/or constructive trust of amounts paid or owed to the Claim Purchasers on account of their claims. Yet the transactions with which HMIT takes issue are private claim sales between the Claim Purchasers and various creditors of the Debtor's estate (the Claim Sellers). Neither HMIT nor the bankruptcy estate (including the Claimant Trust) has standing to challenge these sales.<sup>10</sup> Even assuming that the allegations in the Proposed Complaint are true (which is disputed), it is the Claim Sellers who potentially would have been damaged, not the bankruptcy estate. Whether the claims are held by the Claim Purchasers or the Claim Sellers, the economic effect on the bankruptcy estate (and thus on HMIT and its rights under the Plan) is the same.<sup>11</sup>

22. Perhaps realizing this deficiency in the Proposed Complaint, HMIT asserts that the Claim Purchasers and their proposed co-defendants are liable for excess compensation paid to Seery in furtherance of an alleged fraudulent scheme.<sup>12</sup> Yet HMIT has not pleaded facts sufficient to show that, even if Seery received extraordinary and excess compensation and such compensation was returned, HMIT's contingent interests in the Claimant Trust would vest. In fact, the Proposed Complaint is devoid of any factual assertions regarding the magnitude of the excess compensation Seery has received or will receive. HMIT admits that creditors, other than the Claim Purchasers, are owed more than $9.627 million and remain ahead of HMIT in priority, which creditors must be paid before HMIT becomes a Claimant Trust Beneficiary.<sup>13</sup> Accordingly, even if everything in the Proposed Complaint were true (which is disputed), HMIT failed to plead facts showing that it has been damaged, and thus it lacks standing.

<sup>11</sup> Notably, the Claim Sellers have not alleged that improper conduct occurred with respect to the relevant claim sales, despite having the greatest economic incentive to do so.

<sup>13</sup> See, e.g., Plan, Art. I.B.44; Motion to File Complaint, ¶ 17 (stating that creditors other than the Claim Purchasers are owed at least $9.627 million).

23. Further, because HMIT’s alleged injury is not actual or imminent—but rather, is hypothetical and contingent, as it depends on HMIT becoming a Claimant Trust Beneficiary at some future date—it lacks standing to prosecute the causes of action it threatens (or such threatened claims are not ripe because they depend on contingent or hypothetical facts or events that have not yet occurred). See, e.g., Little v. KPMG LLP, 575 F.3d 533, 540 (5th Cir. 2009) (“However, allegations of injury that is merely conjectural or hypothetical do not suffice to confer standing.”); DaimlerChrysler Corp. v. Inman, 252 S.W.3d 299, 304-05 (Tex. 2008) (“For standing, a plaintiff must be personally aggrieved; his alleged injury must be concrete and particularized, actual or imminent, not hypothetical.”); Vichi v. Koninklijke Philips Elecs. N.V., 62 A.3d 26, 38 (Del. Ch. 2012) (stating that for a claimant to have standing, the alleged injury must be “concrete and particularized,” “actual or imminent,” and “not conjectural or hypothetical”). HMIT must identify “an existing—rather than future or speculative—right that may be presently asserted.” Id. Here, as any interest it has in the Claimant Trust is contingent, HMIT has no such right to assert. For this additional reason, HMIT’s Motion to File Complaint should be denied. Id.

24. In addition, the Plan specifically reserves only to the Debtor, the Reorganized Debtor, and the Claimant Trustee the right to seek equitable subordination:

The allowance, classification, and treatment of all Claims under the Plan shall take into account and conform to the contractual, legal, and equitable subordination rights relating thereto, whether arising under general principles of equitable subordination, section 510(b) of the Bankruptcy Code, or otherwise. Upon written notice and hearing, the Debtor the Reorganized Debtor, and the Claimant Trustee reserve the right to seek entry of an order by the Bankruptcy Court to re-classify or to subordinate any Claim in accordance with any contractual, legal, or equitable subordination relating thereto, and the treatment afforded any Claim under the Plan that becomes a subordinated Claim at any time shall be modified to reflect such subordination.

Resp. Ex. 3 (Plan), Art. III.J. (emphasis added). There is no independent right under the Plan for creditors like HMIT to seek to equitably subordinate other creditors’ claims. HMIT lacks standing to assert the proposed claims because the Plan does not authorize these claims by such parties.

B. Equitable disallowance and equitable subordination are not available to HMIT.

25. As an initial matter, the Claim Purchasers no longer have claims which could be subordinated and/or disallowed. All of the relevant claims were settled and allowed prior to the Effective Date of the Plan.<sup>14</sup> Pursuant to the terms of the Plan, on the Effective Date of the Plan, such claims were exchanged for interests in the Claimant Trust, and thus there are no claims left which could be subordinated or disallowed. See Plan at Art. III(H)(8)-(9).

26. Further, the Plan provides that only the Debtor, the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trustee reserved the right to seek to reclassify or subordinate claims. Plan, Art. III(J). However, any rights or defenses the Debtor's estate had with respect to the relevant claims were expressly disclaimed under the Plan, since all of the relevant claims were allowed by a final order of the Court, and thus no party has standing to seek to subordinate or disallow the Claim Purchasers' claims. See, e.g., Plan at Art. III(H)(8)-(9) ("Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, after the Effective Date and subject to the other provisions of this Plan, the Debtor, the Reorganized Debtor, and the Claimant Trust, as applicable, will have and will retain any and all rights and defenses under bankruptcy or nonbankruptcy law that the Debtor had with respect to any General Unsecured Claim, except with respect to any General Unsecured Claim Allowed by Final Order of the Bankruptcy Court.") (emphasis added).

27. Even if the relevant claims still remain subject to challenge, the remedies sought by HMIT are either not available, or cannot benefit HMIT. HMIT primarily seeks the equitable disallowance of the Claim Purchasers' claims. Proposed Complaint, ¶¶ 82-87. However, the Fifth Circuit has recognized that "equitable considerations can justify only the subordination of claims, not their disallowance." In re Mobile Steel Co., 563 F.2d 692, 699 (5th Cir. 1977). Further, the Supreme Court has indicated that the only grounds for disallowing a claim are those enumerated in section 502(b) of the Bankruptcy Code. Travelers Cas. & Sur. Co. of Am. v. Pac. Gas & Elec. Co., 549 U.S. 443, 444 (2007) (“But even where a party in interest objects, the court ‘shall allow’ the claim ‘except to the extent that’ the claim implicates any of the nine exceptions enumerated in § 502(b).”). Inequitable conduct, as alleged by HMIT, is not one of the enumerated grounds for disallowance under section 502(b). See 11 U.S.C. § 502(b).

28. The cases cited by HMIT in support of equitable disallowance, in addition to being out of circuit and counter to Fifth Circuit precedent, are inapposite. First, as the Southern District of New York has noted, “[w]hile courts ... have permitted claims for equitable disallowance to survive motions to dismiss, no court has ever employed equitable disallowance as a remedy or sanction under the Bankruptcy Code.” In re LightSquared Inc., 504 B.R. 321, 338 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2013). Notably, the statement from Lightsquared specifically cites to each of the cases that HMIT uses to advance its equitable disallowance argument. Id.

29. Further, in each of the cited cases, the claims for which equitable disallowance was sought belonged to estate fiduciaries. See Pepper v. Litton, 308 U.S. 295, 311 (1939) (analyzing the ability to disallow claims of a fiduciary); In re Adelpia Commc’ns Corp., 365 B.R. 24, 71 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2007) (same); In re Washington Mut., Inc., 461 B.R. 200 (Bankr. D. Del. 2011) (same). Here, the claims were filed and settled by non-fiduciaries, and were allowed while the claims were still held by non-fiduciaries. Further, the claims were acquired by the Claim Purchasers well before they became members of the Claimant Trust Oversight Committee, and thus before they were estate fiduciaries. Id. Thus, the considerations discussed in Adelpia, Pepper, and Washington Mutual do not apply under the circumstances.

30. In the alternative, HMIT seeks equitable subordination of the Claim Purchasers' claims. Proposed Complaint, ¶ 87 ("Pleading in the alternative only, subordination of Muck's and Jessup's [claims] to all other interests in the Claimant Trust ... is necessary and appropriate."). But the plain language of section 510(c) of the Bankruptcy Code precludes the relief sought by HMIT: "under principles of equitable subordination, [the court may] subordinate for purposes of distribution all or part of an allowed claim to all or part of another allowed claim or all or part of an allowed interest to all or part of another allowed interest." 11 U.S.C. § 510(c).

31. "Under the express language of 11 U.S.C. § 510(c), the Court may not subordinate a claim to an equity interest; it may only subordinate one claim to another claim and one equity interest to another equity interest." In re Perry, 425 B.R. 323, 380 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2010); see also SED Holdings, LLC v. 3 Star Props., LLC, 2019 WL 13192236, *2 (S.D. Tex. Sept. 11, 2019) ("the claim may only be subordinated, but not disallowed."); In re Winstar Commc'ns, Inc., 554 F.3d 382, 414 (3d Cir. 2009) ("Finally, Lucent contends that the Bankruptcy Court's equitable subordination holding was inconsistent with the Bankruptcy Code because § 510(c) does not permit the subordination of debt to equity. We agree.").

32. HMIT's claims are based upon its previous equity interests in the Debtor. See, e.g., Motion to File Complaint, ¶ 8 ("HMIT was the largest equity holder in the Original Debtor and held a 99.5% limited partnership interest."). Because the claims held by the Claim Purchasers cannot be subordinated to HMIT's interests, equitable subordination would not benefit HMIT.

C. HMIT has not established a legally cognizable claim.

33. HMIT does not allege that it has any interest in the claims that were transferred to Muck and Jessup, yet HMIT still seeks to challenge such transfers based on conclusory allegations devoid of substance. Here, the Claim Sellers were creditors of the Debtor, and they were entitled to sell their claims to Muck and Jessup (or to any other buyer) on whatever terms (including price) the parties agreed to. HMIT has no right to second-guess those terms.

i. Claim Purchasers owed no duty owed to HMIT

34. HMIT has not identified any legal duty that the Claim Purchasers owed to HMIT related to the claims transfers; nor has HMIT identified any authority for a private cause of action belonging to HMIT related to the claims transfers. The Claim Purchasers owed no duty (fiduciary or otherwise) to the bankruptcy estate, creditor, or equity holder at the time of the claim transfers. See, e.g., In re Exec. Office Ctrs., Inc., 96 B.R. 642, 651 (Bankr. E.D. La. 1988) (finding that an acquirer of a claim had no fiduciary duty to third parties, and the claim’s effect on the bankruptcy estate before or after the claim’s acquisition was the same, and “[t]herefore, there are no grounds for this Court to invoke its equitable powers to disallow or limit the claim of [the claim acquirer] in this bankruptcy case.”); In re Lorraine Castle Apartments Bldg. Corp., 149 F.2d 55, 57 (7th Cir. 1945) (finding that claim purchasers had no fiduciary duties to the estate or its beneficiaries).

35. This is not a mere academic point. HMIT must have sustained a legal injury as a result of a breach of a legal duty. See, e.g., Nobles v. Marcus, 533 S.W.2d 923, 927 (Tex. 1976) (“It is a fundamental rule of law that only the person whose primary legal right has been breached may seek redress for an injury. ... Without breach of a legal right belonging to the plaintiff no cause of action can accrue to his benefit.”). This is fatal to HMIT’s proposed claims.

ii. Claim Purchasers are not “non-statutory” insiders

36. HMIT tries to avoid the fact that no duty was owed to it by the Claim Purchasers by alleging that the Claim Purchasers were non-statutory insiders at the time of the claim transfers. Proposed Complaint, ¶¶ 14, 17. This Court has addressed similar arguments in another case. See, e.g., In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., 604 B.R. 484, 535 (N.D. Tex. 2019), aff’d sub nom. Matter of Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., 850 F. App’x 302 (5th Cir. 2021).

37. In deciding whether a person is a non-statutory insider, this Court has considered two factors: (i) the closeness of the relationship between the putative insider and the debtor; and (ii) whether the transactions between the putative insider and the debtor were conducted at arm's length. In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., 604 B.R. 484, 535. "Under this test, because prongs one and two are conjunctive, a court's conclusion that the relevant transaction was conducted at arm's length necessarily defeats a finding of non-statutory insider status, regardless of how close a person's relationship with the debtor is or whether he is otherwise comparable to a statutorily enumerated insider." U.S. Bank Nat. Ass'n ex rel. CWC Capital Asset Mgmt. LLC v. Vill. at Lakeridge, LLC, 138 S. Ct. 960, 970 (2018) (concurrency). Here, HMIT fails to plead facts sufficient to show that the Claim Purchasers are non-statutory insiders.

38. One prong of the test requires a showing that the transactions between the putative insider and the debtor were not conducted at arm's length. See, e.g., Acis Capital Mgmt., 604 B.R. at 535. Here, the complained-of transactions are between the Claim Purchasers and the Claim Sellers, not the Debtor. See, e.g., Proposed Complaint, ¶ 14 ("Because of their long-standing, historical relationships with Seery, and their use of material non-public information, the Defendant Purchasers obtained effective control over various affairs of the Debtor's bankruptcy, including compensation awards to Seery. As such, they became nonstatutory insiders.") (emphasis added); id., ¶ 17 ("By acquiring the claims at issue, Muck and Jessup, the shell entities created and controlled by Stonehill and Farallon, also became non-statutory insiders, and also aided and abetted Seery's breaches of fiduciary duties."). HMIT's allegations miss the necessary element that the debtor be a party to the contested transaction.

39. On the other prong of the test, showing an unwholesome relationship between the third party and the debtor, the factual bases upon which HMIT asserts that Claim Purchasers are non-statutory insiders of the Debtors are insufficient. Essentially, HMIT argues that because Seery and the Claim Purchasers had business dealings in the past, including Seery allegedly representing Farallon as its legal counsel, that the Claim Purchasers should be deemed non-statutory insiders. See Proposed Complaint, ¶ 48. But prior business dealings alone is insufficient to confer non-statutory insider status on a non-debtor third party. See Stalnaker v. Gratton (In re Rosen Auto Leasing), 346 B.R. 798, 801 (8th Cir. BAP 2006) (finding that a social relationship turned business relationship between a debtor's chairman and a third party was insufficient for such third party to be deemed a non-statutory insider of the debtor). Neither is a prior attorney-client relationship. In re Olmos Equip., Inc., 601 B.R. 412, 426 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 2019) (finding that a prior attorney-client relationship was insufficient to deem a third party a non-statutory insider). Accordingly, HMIT fails to meet the first prong of the non-statutory insider test.

40. And, even assuming that the Claim Purchasers' acquisitions of the claims were the type of transaction that might confer non-statutory insider status on the Claim Purchasers, HMIT has not pleaded credible facts sufficient to show that the Claim Purchasers' acquisitions of the relevant claims were not at arm's-length. And, aside from conclusory implausible statements, the Proposed Complaint fails to set forth facts about any transactions between the Claim Purchasers, Seery, and/or the Debtor regarding Seery's compensation that can give rise to a reasonable inference that compensation decisions were not negotiated and agreed at arm's-length. HMIT's Proposed Complaint on its face fails to meet the second prong of the non-statutory insider test.

41. Simply put, there is no meritorious, legally cognizable claim related to the transferred claims for HMIT to pursue, and thus the Motion to File Complaint should be denied.

D. The Alleged Claims Must be “Colorable” to Overcome the Gatekeeper Provision.

42. The Claim Purchasers are protected by the “gatekeeper provision” in the Plan. Due to concerns about Dondero and his affiliates inundating the Debtor’s bankruptcy estate with vexatious litigation,<sup>15</sup> the Plan contains a provision which requires any entity seeking to assert a claim against a “Protected Party”<sup>16</sup> to first obtain leave of the Bankruptcy Court before filing an action. See Plan, Art. IX(f). Specifically, the Plan states as follows:

Subject in all respects to ARTICLE XII.D, no Entity may commence or pursue a claim or cause of action of any kind against any Protected Party that arose from or is related to the Chapter 11 Case, the negotiation of this Plan, the administration of the Plan or property to be distributed under the Plan, the wind down of the business of the Debtor or Reorganized Debtor, the administration of the Claimant Trust, or the transactions in furtherance of the foregoing without the Bankruptcy Court (i) first determining, after notice, that such claim or cause of action represents a colorable claim of bad faith, criminal misconduct, willful misconduct, fraud, or gross negligence against a Protected Party and (ii) specifically authorizing such Entity to bring such claim against any such Protected Party . . . .

<sup>15</sup> See Confirmation Order, ¶ 79 (“The Bankruptcy Court further finds that unless the Bankruptcy Court approves the Gatekeeper Provision, the Claimant Trustee and the Claimant Trust Oversight Board will not be able to obtain D&O insurance, the absence of which will present unacceptable risks to parties currently willing to serve in such roles. The Bankruptcy Court heard testimony from Mark Tauber, a Vice President with AON Financial Services, the Debtor’s insurance broker (‘AON’), regarding his efforts to obtain D&O insurance. Mr. Tauber credibly testified that of all the insurance carriers that AON approached to provide D&O insurance coverage after the Effective Date, the only one willing to do so without an exclusion for claims asserted by Mr. Dondero and his affiliates otherwise requires that this Order approve the Gatekeeper Provision.”)

<sup>16</sup> “Protected Party” is defined as “collectively, (i) the Debtor and its successors and assigns, direct and indirect majority-owned subsidiaries, and the Managed Funds, (ii) the Employees, (iii) Strand, (iv) the Reorganized Debtor, (v) the Independent Directors, (vi) the Committee, (vii) the members of the Committee (in their official capacities), (viii) the Claimant Trust, (ix) the Claimant Trustee, (x) the Litigation Sub-Trust, (xi) the Litigation Trustee, (xii) the members of the Claimant Trust Oversight Committee (in their official capacities), (xiii) New GP LLC, (xiv) the Professionals retained by the Debtor and the Committee in the Chapter 11 Case, (xv) the CEO/CRO; and (xvi) the Related Persons of each of the parties listed in (iv) through (xv); provided, however, that, for the avoidance of doubt, none of James Dondero, Mark Okada, NexPoint Advisors, L.P. (and any of its subsidiaries and managed entities), the Charitable Donor Advised Fund, L.P. (and any of its subsidiaries, including CLO Holdco, Ltd., and managed entities), Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (and any of its subsidiaries, members, and managed entities), NexBank, SSB (and any of its subsidiaries), Highland Capital Management Fund Advisors, L.P. (and any of its subsidiaries and managed entities), the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (or any trustee acting for the trust), the Dugaboy Investment Trust (or any trustee acting for the trust), or Grant Scott is included in the term ‘Protected Party.’” Plan, Art. I(B)(104).

Id.

43. Here, as members of the Claimant Trust Oversight Committee (or Related Persons<sup>17</sup> of members of the Claimant Trust Oversight Committee), the Claim Purchasers are “Protected Parties.” Because the allegations in the Proposed Complaint hinge on the Claim Purchasers acting as members of the Claimant Trust Oversight Committee to overpay Seery, the Claim Purchasers are Protected Parties.<sup>18</sup> Accordingly, all of the causes of action that HMIT seeks to assert against the Claim Purchasers in the Proposed Complaint are gated by the gatekeeper provision.

E. The Claims in the Proposed Complaint are not Plausible or Colorable.

44. HMIT has argued that it must only satisfy the Rule 12(b)(6) pleading standard to establish that a colorable claim exists sufficient to overcome the gatekeeper provision. But if that were the case, HMIT’s allegations would be presumed true, and the gatekeeper provision would have no practical effect. Rather, the proper inquiry is found under the Barton doctrine.

45. In 1881, the Supreme Court established the Barton doctrine, which precluded suit being filed against court-appointed receivers absent the permission of the appointing court. See Barton v. Barbour, 104 U.S. 126, 127 (1881) (“It is a general rule that before suit is brought against a receiver leave of the court by which he was appointed must be obtained.”). The Barton doctrine has since been expanded to protect, inter alia, court-appointed bankruptcy trustees. See In re Christensen, 598 B.R. 658, 664 (Bankr. D. Utah 2019) (stating that the Barton doctrine “precludes suit against a bankruptcy trustee for claims based on alleged misconduct in the discharge of a

<sup>17</sup> As defined in the Plan, “Related Persons” means “with respect to any Person, such Person’s predecessors, successors, assigns (whether by operation of law or otherwise), and each of their respective present and former officers, directors, employees, managers, managing members, members, financial advisors, attorneys, accountants, investment bankers, consultants, professionals, advisors, shareholders, principals, partners, employees, subsidiaries, divisions, management companies, and other representatives, in each case solely in their capacity as such.” Plan, Art. I(B)(110).

trustee's official duties absent approval from the appointing bankruptcy court.”). Because HMIT seeks to file suit against Seery for alleged misconduct committed in furtherance of his official duties, and because these allegations are inextricably intertwined with the allegations against the Claim Purchasers, HMIT must satisfy Barton before its claims can move forward.

46. The Barton doctrine is strictly a “jurisdictional gatekeeping doctrine,” and it strips all courts—except the bankruptcy court that appointed the trustee—of subject-matter jurisdiction to hear a lawsuit against the trustee unless the bankruptcy court orders otherwise. Id. Under the Barton Doctrine, a court must determine if the party seeking to sue a trustee made “a prima facie case showing that [their claims are] not without foundation.” Id. Failure to establish a prima facie case results in denial of leave to sue. Id. Although similar to the standard for a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim under FED. R. CIV. P. 12(b)(6), the “not without foundation” standard is more flexible, and the proposed plaintiff must allege facts sufficient to state a claim to relief that is “plausible on its face.” Id. The Proposed Complaint fails to state facially plausible claims.

i. The Proposed Complaint fails to plead facts which lead to the inference that the Claim Purchasers engaged in quid pro quo with Seery.

47. The Proposed Complaint asserts that the Claim Purchasers were “given control (through Muck and Jessup) to approve discretionary bonuses and success fees for Seery from [the Debtor’s assets].” Proposed Complaint, ¶ 54; see also id., ¶¶ 4, 14, 16, 65, 71. The Proposed Complaint is devoid of any factual assertions as to how the Claim Purchasers have affected Seery’s compensation, and for this reason alone, the Proposed Complaint fails to assert a colorable cause against the Claim Purchasers for “knowing participation in Breach of Fiduciary Duties” (Count II) or “Conspiracy” (Count III), as each relies on the Claim Purchasers providing quid pro quo in exchange for allegedly receiving material non-public information. Proposed Complaint, ¶¶ 71, 77.

ii. The Proposed Complaint fails to plead facts which lead to the inference that Seery provided the Claim Purchasers with material, non-public information.

48. The allegations in the Proposed Complaint against the Claim Purchasers rely on the conclusory assertion that Seery provided the Claim Purchasers with material, non-public information that the Claim Purchasers used to their benefit in purchasing the claims. See, e.g., Proposed Complaint, ¶ 3 (“Thus, acting within a cloak of secrecy, Seery provided close business acquaintances, the other Defendants, with material non-public information concerning the value of assets which they then used to purchase the largest approved unsecured claims.”). In support of that allegation, however, HMIT offers no factual support, and in fact admits that a logical leap is required to arrive at the conclusion that the Claim Purchasers were involved in nefarious activity:

It made no sense for the Defendant Purchasers to invest millions of dollars for assets that –per the publicly available information – did not offer a sufficient potential profit to justify the publicly disclosed risk. The counter-intuitive nature of the purchases at issue compels the conclusion that the Defendant Purchasers acted on inside information and Seery’s secret assurance of great profits.

Id. (emphasis added). Unsubstantiated claims of “counter-intuitive,” “secret,” unprofessional actions by the respected professional this Court appointed are not plausible. For this reason alone, the Proposed Complaint fails to assert a colorable claim. Yet the Proposed Complaint suffers from other deficiencies rendering the causes of action it seeks to assert non-colorable.

49. The Proposed Complaint admits that when the Claim Purchasers acquired the relevant claims, they would have turned a profit based upon then-existing projections. See, e.g., id., ¶ 3 (arguing only that the purchased claims “did not offer sufficient potential profit” to justify their purchase); id. ¶ 43 (“Furthermore, although the publicly available projections suggested only a small margin of error on any profit potential for its significant investment . . . .”); id. ¶ 49 (“Yet, in this case, it would have been impossible for Stonehill and Farallon (in the absence of inside information) to forecast any significant profit at the time of their multi-million-dollar investments given the publicly available, negative financial information.”) (bold added). HMIT’s speculation about what level of projected return would be sufficient for the Claims Purchasers to purchase the claims does not give rise to a plausible inference that they acted improperly.

50. Second, contrary to the Proposed Complaint’s statement that it would have been “impossible for Stonehill and Farallon (in the absence of insider information) to forecast any significant profit at the time of their multi-million-dollar investments,” there was already media reporting that MGM was engaging with Apple and others on selling its media portfolio. See, e.g., Benjamin Mullin, MGM Holdings, Studio Behind ‘James Bond,’ Explores a Sale, THE WALL STREET JOURNAL (Dec. 21, 2020, 6:38 p.m.), <https://www.wsj.com/articles/mgm-holdings-studio-behind-james-bond-explores-a-sale-11608588732>. Far from material non-public information, the fact that MGM was negotiating a potential transaction was publicly known. HMIT’s suggestion that the Claims Purchasers had information not known to the Claims Sellers is not plausible.

51. Finally, the Claim Purchasers acquired the UBS Claims approximately two and a half months after the announcement of the Amazon/MGM transaction, a fact which the Proposed Complaint neither discloses nor attempts to harmonize with its overall theory of the Claim Purchasers profiting from inside information. The Proposed Complaint’s lack of internal consistency, as well as its lack of consistency with verifiable public facts, renders it implausible.

52. Accordingly, the Proposed Complaint is devoid of necessary factual assertions, and what facts are pleaded do not take the causes of action in the Proposed Complaint from the realm of “conceivable” to being “plausible,” as required under relevant law.

For these reasons, the Claim Purchasers respectfully request that the Court deny the Motion to File Complaint, and grant the Claim Purchasers such other and further relief as is just and proper.

Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“HCMLP” or, as applicable, the “Debtor”), the reorganized debtor in the above-referenced bankruptcy case, the Highland Claimant Trust (the “Trust”; together with HCMLP, “Highland”), and James P. Seery, Jr., HCMLP’s Chief Executive Officer and the Claimant Trustee of the Trust (“Seery”; together with Highland, the “Highland Parties”), by and through their undersigned counsel, hereby file this opposition (the “Opposition”) to Hunter Mountain Investment Trust’s (“HMIT”) Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Petition (“Initial Motion” or “Mot.”; Docket No. 3699) and Hunter Mountain Investment Trust’s Supplement to Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding (“Supplemental Motion” or “Supp. Mot.”; Docket No. 3760; collectively, the “Motion”). In support of their Opposition, the Highland Parties state as follows:

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT<sup>1</sup>

1. This Motion is the latest attempt by James Dondero (“Dondero”) to make good on his threat to “burn down the place.” This iteration involves baseless and personal attacks against the Proposed Defendants,<sup>2</sup> harassing those individuals charged with maximizing value for creditors while (perversely) wasting Highland’s resources. Dondero’s demonstrated hostility to Highland’s legitimate goals is precisely why this Court entered the Gatekeeper Provision at issue here, and the current Motion vividly illustrates the wisdom of installing that prophylaxis. HMIT’s Motion should be denied.

<sup>2</sup> “Proposed Defendants” refers to, collectively, Seery, Muck Holdings, LLC (“Muck”), Jessup Holdings, LLC (“Jessup”), Farallon Capital Management, LLC (“Farallon”), Stonehill Capital Management, LLC (“Stonehill”; collectively with Muck, Jessup, and Farallon, the “Claims Purchasers”), and John Doe Defendant Nos. 1–10.

2. HMIT’s proposed Complaint (“Compl.”; Docket No. 3760-1) is long on rhetoric, unsupported conspiracy theories, and conclusory statements, but short on actual factual allegations. For all its bluster, the Complaint rests entirely on the following assertions:

- On December 17, 2021, Dondero sent an unsolicited email to Seery regarding a potential acquisition of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios, Inc. (“MGM”). At the time, the Debtor owned MGM stock directly and managed an entity that owned, among numerous other assets, subordinated debt in other entities that owned MGM stock (Compl. ¶¶ 44–45);
- Seery purportedly communicated with principals at Farallon and Stonehill, entities with which Seery allegedly did “substantial business” more than a decade before he assumed his roles at Highland. (Id. ¶ 48.) The Complaint contains no allegations regarding when these communications supposedly occurred, but speculates that Seery provided “material non-public information” about MGM and vague “assurances of great profits” on Highland claims (id. ¶¶ 3, 13–14, 47, 50);
- In April 2021 (four months after Dondero’s unsolicited email), Farallon and Stonehill purchased “approved unsecured claims” of Highland at a 65% discount to face value. Based on the “publicly projected” estimates in Debtor’s November 30, 2020, Disclosure Statement—which the Complaint touts as the only public source of information regarding the claims’ potential value—Farallon and Stonehill stood to earn at least an 18% return on those purchases (id. ¶¶ 3, 37, 42); and
- In August 2021 (eight months after Dondero’s unsolicited email), Farallon and Stonehill became members of the Claimant Oversight Board (“COB”). Under the Court-approved Chapter 11 Plan, Seery earned a set base salary and a performance-based bonus. The Complaint speculates that negotiations over the latter component “were not arm’s-length,” but contains no allegations about the negotiation process or the terms of Seery’s final compensation package (id. ¶¶ 4, 13, 54).

The remainder of the Complaint consists of rhetorical rehash of these basic contentions, ad hominem attacks, or a self-serving (and utterly unsupported) claim by Dondero that a Farallon principal confessed this purported scheme to Dondero.

3. The Motion should be denied for three, independently sufficient reasons. First, as a threshold legal matter, HMIT, as a holder of unvested, contingent interests, lacks standing to bring derivative claims on behalf of the Trust or HCMLP under applicable state law and the Claimant Trust Agreement (“Trust Agreement” or “Trust Agmt.”). HMIT cannot escape this reality by alternatively asserting its claims as nonexistent direct claims.

4. Second, HMIT’s claims are not “colorable” as that term is used in the Court-approved Plan and the Gatekeeper Provision included in this Court’s Confirmation Order. (Plan Art. IX.F; Confirmation Order ¶¶ 72, 76, 81.) As the Confirmation Order expressly stated, the Gatekeeper Provision requires Dondero to make a threshold showing consistent with the (i) “the Supreme Court’s ‘Barton Doctrine,’ Barton v. Barbour, 104 U.S. 126 (1881)),” and (ii) “the notion of a prefiling injunction to deter vexatious litigants, that has been approved by Fifth Circuit.” (Id. ¶¶ 76–81.) The Fifth Circuit confirmed as much when it rejected (in relevant part) Dondero’s confirmation appeal, holding that the Gatekeeper Provision “screen[s] and prevent[s] bad-faith litigation against Highland Capital, its successors, and other bankruptcy participants that could disrupt the Plan’s effectiveness.” NexPoint Advisors, L.P. v. Highland Cap. Mgmt., L.P. (In re Highland Cap. Mgmt., L.P.), 48 F.4th 419, 435 (5th Cir. 2022).

5. It is well-settled that “colorability” in this context requires HMIT to demonstrate more than the bare-bones Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6) “plausibility” standard. HMIT must demonstrate the “foundation” for its “prima facie case.” In re VistaCare Grp., LLC, 678 F.3d 218, 232 (3d Cir. 2012). Accordingly, and contrary to HMIT’s contention, evidentiary hearings are routinely conducted in this setting—particularly where (as here) the movant has larded its complaint with unsupported, conclusory assertions that cannot withstand even passing scrutiny and has attached hundreds of pages of exhibits and two self-serving declarations in support of its motion. HMIT’s proffered gatekeeping standard, by contrast, would impose no hurdle at all and would render the threshold entirely duplicative of the motion to dismiss standard that every litigant already faces. In addition to ignoring the stated purposes and intent of the Gatekeeper Provision (which are long since beyond collateral attack) and the factual bases upon which it was adopted, HMIT offers no reason why litigants whose serial abuses earned the imposition of the Gatekeeper Provision should be subject to the same standard as everyone else. To state that absurd contention is to refute it, and would essentially nullify this Court's authority to police its own docket.

6. Third, even if the Rule 12(b)(6) standard applied, HMIT's bare-bones Complaint would fail. Even accepting the sparse factual allegations as true for purposes of this Motion, its central conclusions collapse under their own weight. For example, assuming that Dondero's unsolicited December 17, 2020 email, which violated this Court's TRO, included confidential information regarding MGM, the Complaint does not allege that such information remained nonpublic at the unidentified time Seery supposedly communicated with Farallon and Stonehill—and the Complaint acknowledges that neither entity purchased claims before April 2021. Likewise, although the Complaint's central thesis is that Farallon and Stonehill would not have purchased the Highland claims without knowing the supposedly secret MGM information, the Complaint acknowledges that the November 30, 2020 Disclosure Statement predicted a recovery significantly above what Farallon and Stonehill allegedly paid for the claims in April 2021.

7. While such self-contradictory and sparse allegations ordinarily might counsel in favor of denying the Motion under the Rule 12(b)(6) standard (i.e., obviating the need to decide whether the Barton/vexatious-litigant standard applies), the Highland Parties respectfully request that this Court conduct the Rule 12(b)(6) analysis only in the alternative. Given the litigiousness of Dondero and his affiliated entities, who inevitably will appeal any adverse decision, the Fifth Circuit will benefit from a full record. Applying the correct heightened standard will also serve important interests going forward. This Motion is unlikely to be the last to require application of the Gatekeeper Provision, and significant interests of judicial economy will be served by definitively establishing the threshold standard and propriety of an evidentiary hearing.

RELEVANT FACTUAL BACKGROUND

A. The Gatekeeper Provision Was Adopted To Prevent Baseless Litigation.

8. HMIT was required to file the Motion in accordance with a provision in Highland's confirmed Plan known as the "gatekeeper" (the "Gatekeeper Provision"). (Morris Dec. Ex. 1 at 51–52.)<sup>3</sup> The Gatekeeper Provision states, in pertinent part, that:

[N]o Enjoined Party may commence or pursue a claim or cause of action of any kind against any Protected Party that arose or arises from or is related to the Chapter 11 Case . . . without the Bankruptcy Court (i) first determining, after notice and a hearing, that such claim or cause of action represents a colorable claim of any kind, including, but not limited to, negligence, bad faith, criminal misconduct, willful misconduct, fraud, or gross negligence against a Protected Party and (ii) specifically authorizing such Enjoined Party to bring such claim or cause of action against such Protected Party.

(Id. (emphasis added).)<sup>4</sup>

9. The Gatekeeper Provision is not a garden-variety plan provision. Rather, as this Court stated in its order confirming the Plan,<sup>5</sup> the Gatekeeper Provision was adopted as a direct result of Dondero's history of harassing, costly litigation. In describing the factual support for the Gatekeeper Provision, this Court observed that "prior to the commencement of the Debtor's

Ex. ___" are to the exhibits attached to the Declaration of John A. Morris In Support of Highland Capital Management, L.P., Highland Claimant Trust, and James P. Seery, Jr.'s Joint Opposition to Hunter Mountain Investment Trust's Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding accompanying this Opposition.

<sup>4</sup> Under the Plan, HMIT is an "Enjoined Party," and HCMLP, the Trust, Seery (in various capacities), Farallon, and Stonehill (in their capacities as members of the COB approving Seery's compensation) are "Protected Parties." (Plan Arts. I.B.56, I.B.105.)

bankruptcy case, and while under the direction of Mr. Dondero, the Debtor had been involved in a myriad of litigation some of which had gone on for years and, in some cases, over a decade . . . . During the last several months, Mr. Dondero and the Dondero Related Entities have harassed the Debtor, which has resulted in further substantial, costly, and time-consuming litigation for the Debtor.” (Confirmation Order ¶ 77.)

10. The Court further found that the “Dondero Post-Petition Litigation [as defined] was a result of Mr. Dondero failing to obtain creditor support for his plan proposal and consistent with his comments, as set forth in Mr. Seery’s credible testimony, that if Mr. Dondero’s plan proposal was not accepted, he would ‘burn down the place.’” (Id. ¶ 78.)

11. These findings of fact—all of which the Fifth Circuit left undisturbed while affirming, in relevant part, the Confirmation Order—were the foundation upon which the Gatekeeper Provision was adopted:

Approval of the Gatekeeper Provision will prevent baseless litigation designed merely to harass the post-confirmation entities charged with monetizing the Debtor’s assets for the benefit of its economic constituents, will avoid abuse of the Court system and preempt the use of judicial time that properly could be used to consider the meritorious claims of other litigants.

(Id. ¶ 79 (emphasis added).)

B. Dondero, Patrick, And HMIT Unsuccessfully Search For Allegations To Manufacture A Complaint.

12. HMIT’s proposed Complaint is premised on two primary allegations emanating from Dondero: (i) Seery supposedly shared with the Claims Purchasers “material, non-public inside information” that he had obtained from Dondero as part of a quid pro quo pursuant to which the Claims Purchasers would someday return the favor by joining the COB and “rubber-stamping” Seery’s compensation package, and (ii) a representative of Farallon essentially confessed to the arrangement in one or more phone calls with Dondero in the late Spring of 2021. Despite knowing of these alleged “facts,” Dondero, Mark Patrick (“Patrick”),<sup>6</sup> HMIT’s purported manager, and HMIT did not bring any claims but instead sought discovery—which two different Texas state courts denied.

1. The First Rule 202 Petition

13. On July 22, 2021, Dondero filed a petition in Texas state court seeking pre-suit discovery against Farallon and Alvarez & Marsal pursuant to Tex. R. Civ. P. 202 (the “First Rule 202 Petition”). (Morris Dec. Ex. 3.) The First Rule 202 Petition was based, in part, on Dondero’s allegations that (i) Seery possessed “non-public, material information” that “[u]pon information and belief . . . was the basis for instructing Farallon to purchase the Claims,” and that (ii) he had a telephone call with Michael Linn (“Linn”), a representative of Farallon, in which Linn allegedly told Dondero that “Farallon had purchased the claims sight unseen—relying entirely on Mr. Seery’s advice solely because of their prior dealings.” (Id. ¶¶ 21, 23.)<sup>7</sup>

14. After the targets of the First Rule 202 Petition removed it to the Bankruptcy Court, this Court held a hearing, after which it entered an Order remanding the proceeding back to Texas state court despite having “grave misgivings.” (Morris Dec. Ex. 6 at 20.) In doing so, the Court noted that it was “familiar with the concept of claims-trading in bankruptcy (including the fact that, for decades now, since a rule change in the last century, no court approval and order is necessary unless the transferor objects)” and that it appeared that Dondero’s motives were “highly suspect.” (Id. at 21.)

<sup>6</sup> Patrick has worked closely with Dondero for over a decade. Patrick was hired by Highland in 2008 and now serves as manager of the “Charitable DAF,” which is controlled by Dondero. On August 3, 2021, this Court held Patrick “in civil contempt of court” after “basically abdicating responsibility” for “executing the litigation strategy” to Dondero. (Aug. 3, 2021 Order at 20–21, 30, Docket No. 2660.)

<sup>7</sup> As described in more detail below, Dondero later amended the First Rule 202 Petition (Morris Dec. Ex. 4) to, among other things, modify his description of his conversation with Linn and, several weeks after doing so, offered his third sworn version of his purported communication(s) with Farallon (id. Ex. 5).

15. After remand, the Texas state court slammed the gate closed, denying the First Rule 202 Petition (as amended) and dismissing Dondero’s case. (Morris Dec. Ex. 7.)

2. The Second Rule 202 Petition

16. Seven months later, in January 2023, HMIT filed another petition in a different Texas state court again seeking pre-suit discovery regarding, among other things, alleged wrongdoing in connection with the Claims Purchasers’ acquisition of claims in the Debtor’s bankruptcy case. (Morris Dec. Ex. 8 (the “Second Rule 202 Petition”).) While the Second Rule 202 Petition was embellished and contained a few more speculative and conclusory assertions, it was based on many of the same allegations contained in the First Rule 202 Petition. Indeed, Dondero submitted yet another sworn statement, this one in support of the Second Rule 202 Petition, which included the fourth version of his purported communication(s) with Farallon. (Morris Dec. Ex. 9.)

17. On March 8, 2023, the Texas state court again slammed the gate closed, denying the Second Rule 202 Petition and dismissing HMIT’s case. (Morris Dec. Ex. 10.)

18. Having been refused entry by two different Texas state courts, HMIT finally knocked on this Court’s door on March 28, 2023 by filing the Motion, on an emergency basis, and contending that its 18-month detour in the Texas state court system left it at risk of blowing the statute of limitations on certain claims. The Motion is largely based on the same threadbare facts and speculative and conclusory statements that were insufficient to obtain discovery in both the First Rule 202 Petition and the Second Rule 202 Petition.

C. The Premise Of HMIT’s Proposed Complaint—An Alleged Quid Pro Quo Between Seery And The Claims Purchasers—Is Demonstrably False.

19. HMIT asserts various legal theories resting on the assertion that Seery passed on material, non-public information concerning MGM to his purportedly “past business partners and close allies” Farallon and Stonehill, so that they could buy claims on the cheap and later reward

Seery by “rubber-stamp[ing]” an oversized compensation package. (Mot. ¶¶ 22, 24; see also Compl. ¶¶ 3–4, 16, 47, 54, 71, 77.)

20. HMIT primarily relies on: (i) an email Dondero sent to Seery on December 17, 2020, in which Dondero purportedly disclosed material, non-public inside information; (ii) Dondero’s prior sworn statements concerning, among other things, his supposed recollection of one or more telephone calls he had with one or more representatives of Farallon in the late Spring of 2021; and (iii) two letters summarizing “investigations” commissioned by Dondero, the results of which were apparently delivered to the Executive Office of the United States Trustee (“EOUST”). (Mot. ¶ 1 (“This Motion is separately supported by . . . the declarations of James Dondero, dated May 2022 (Ex. 2), James Dondero, dated February 2023 (Ex. 3), and Sawnie A. McEntire with attached evidence (Ex. 4).”))

21. Based on the facts set forth below, and as will further be demonstrated at the upcoming hearing, HMIT cannot meet its burden of establishing that there is a good faith basis for the allegations concerning the “quid pro quo.”

D. The Allegations Concerning MGM and Insider Trading Have No Basis In Fact.

22. As a member of MGM’s Board, Dondero was admittedly the source of the so-called material, non-public inside information. (Compl. ¶ 45.) On December 17, 2020, Dondero—in violation of an existing temporary restraining order—sent an email to Seery and others with the subject line “Trading Restriction re MGM – material non public information” stating:

Just got off a pre board call, board call at 3:00. Update is as follows: Amazon and Apple actively diligencing in Data Room. Both continue to express material interest. Probably first quarter event, will update as facts change. Note also any sales are subject to a shareholder agreement.

(Morris Dec. Ex. 11 (the “MGM E-Mail”).)<sup>8</sup>

1. Dondero Had An Axe To Grind When He Sent The MGM E-Mail.

23. By December 17, 2020, Dondero viewed Seery as his enemy. The MGM E-Mail was initially just another clumsy and improper attempt to impede the Debtor’s asset sales (see infra ¶ 25), but when that failed, Dondero shifted gears and began peddling the “inside information” angle, in multiple forums, hoping to make life difficult for Seery and anyone Dondero perceived to be supporting him.<sup>9</sup> But viewed in context, the MGM E-Mail and related allegations provide no basis for the assertion of “colorable” claims.

24. After causing the Debtor to file for bankruptcy protection in October 2019, Dondero was forced to surrender his control positions at the Debtor—including his positions as President and Chief Executive Officer—in January 2020 as part of a broader corporate governance settlement entered into to avoid the appointment of a Chapter 11 trustee. (Morris Dec. Ex. 12.) He remained an unpaid employee of the Debtor, including maintaining his title as portfolio manager for all funds and investment vehicles for which he then held titles, subject to the authority of the newly-appointed independent board of directors (the “Independent Board”).<sup>10</sup>

25. By the Fall of 2020, however, the Independent Board demanded (and obtained) Dondero’s resignation, and the Debtor had (1) reached proposed settlements with certain of its larger creditors, (2) proposed an asset-monetization plan, (3) obtained court approval of its

<sup>8</sup> Notably, the MGM E-Mail is internally inconsistent because it simultaneously purports to impose a “[t]rading [r]estriction” while also stating that “sales are subject to a shareholder agreement,” which permits sales in certain circumstances.

<sup>9</sup> Neither Dondero nor HMIT ever explain how Dondero could have disclosed “material non-public inside information” that he purportedly obtained as a member of the MGM Board without violating his own fiduciary duties to MGM. The absence of any explanation is further indication that Dondero did not believe that the MGM E-Mail contained “material non-public inside information.”

Disclosure Statement, and (4) begun to solicit votes in support of its proposed Plan. In response to these developments and others, Dondero began disrupting preparations for the implementation of the proposed Plan. The events in the weeks leading up to the MGM E-Mail are as follows:

- October 9: In accordance with the Independent Board’s demand, made after threats and disruptions to the Debtor’s operations, Dondero is forced to resign from all positions with the Debtor and its affiliates (Morris Dec. Ex. 13);
- October 16: Dondero’s affiliates attempt to impede the Debtor’s trading activities by demanding—with no legal basis—that Seery cease selling certain assets (id. Ex. 14; id. Ex. 15 at 13–15);
- November 24: This Court enters an Order approving the Debtor’s Disclosure Statement, scheduling the confirmation hearing on the Debtor’s Plan for January 13, 2021, and granting related relief (id. Ex. 16);
- November 24–27: Dondero personally interferes with certain securities trades ordered by Seery (id. Ex. 15 at 30–36);
- November 30: The Debtor provides written notice of termination of shared services agreements with Dondero’s affiliates, NexPoint Advisors, L.P. (“NexPoint”) and Highland Capital Management Fund Advisors, L.P. (“HCMFA”); together with NexPoint, the “Advisors”) (id. Ex. 17);
- December 3: The Debtor makes written demands to Dondero and certain affiliates for payment of all amounts due under certain promissory notes that had an aggregate face amount of more than $60 million (id. Exs. 18–21);
- December 3: Dondero responds by threatening Seery in a text message: “Be careful what you do -- last warning” (id. Ex. 22 (emphasis added));
- December 10: Dondero’s interference and threat cause the Debtor to seek and obtain a temporary restraining order (“TRO”) against Dondero (id. Ex. 23);
- December 16: The Court denies as “frivolous” a motion filed by certain Dondero affiliates in which they sought “temporary restrictions” on certain asset sales (id. Ex. 24); and
- December 17: After exhausting other avenues to curtail the asset sales Debtor conducted in furtherance of the proposed Plan, Dondero sends the MGM E-Mail to Seery (id. Ex. 11).

2. Dondero Had No Duty To Send The MGM E-Mail To Seery And He Violated An Existing TRO When He Did So.

26. With his efforts to disrupt the proposed Plan stymied, Dondero sent the MGM E-Mail to Seery. While HMIT alleges that Dondero disclosed “material non-public information regarding Amazon and Apple’s interest in acquiring MGM” to Seery on December 17, 2020 (Compl. ¶ 45), HMIT does not state or suggest why Dondero did so.

27. That failure is unsurprising. As of December 17, 2020, Dondero owed no duty of any kind to the Debtor or any entity controlled by the Debtor because (i) in January 2020, he surrendered direct and indirect control of the Debtor to the Independent Board as part of the corporate governance settlement (see Docket Nos. 339, 354-1 (Term Sheet)), and (ii) in October 2020, he resigned from all roles at the Debtor and affiliates.

28. Notably, Dondero admitted elsewhere that his goal in sending the MGM E-Mail was to impede the Debtor and Seery from engaging in any transactions involving MGM:

On December 17, 2020, I sent an email to employees at HCM, including the then Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer Jim Seery, containing non-public information regarding Amazon and Apple’s interest in acquiring MGM. I became aware of this information due to my involvement as a member of the board of MGM. My purpose was to alert Mr. Seery and others that MGM stock, which was owned either directly or indirectly by HCM, should be on a restricted list and not be involved in any trades.

(Morris Dec. Ex. 9 ¶ 3 (emphasis added).)

29. Dondero had no relationship of any kind with the Debtor when he sent the MGM E-Mail, and he directly violated the TRO by sending it to Seery without copying Debtor’s counsel.<sup>11</sup> Particularly against the backdrop of Dondero’s attempted interference with the Debtor’s trading activities just weeks before and just days after December 17, 2020,<sup>12</sup> the MGM E-Mail was another transparent attempt to impede asset sales and undermine Seery's efforts to bring the Debtor's bankruptcy to a close.

3. The MGM E-Mail Did Not Disclose Material, Non-Public Inside Information.

30. HMIT's contention that the MGM E-Mail contained "material non-public inside information" is belied by press reports issued before December 17, 2020.

31. For example, as early as January 2020, Apple and Amazon were identified as being among a new group of "Big 6" global media companies and MGM was identified as being a leading media acquisition target. Indeed, according to at least one media report, "MGM, in particular, seems like a logical candidate to sell this year" having already held "preliminary talks with Apple, Netflix and other larger media companies." (Morris Dec. Ex. 25.)

32. In October 2020, the Wall Street Journal reported that MGM's largest shareholder, Anchorage Capital Group ("Anchorage"), was facing mounting pressure to sell the company. Anchorage was led by Kevin Ulrich, who also served as Chairman of MGM's Board. The article reported that "[i]n recent months, Mr. Ulrich has said he is working toward a deal," and he specifically named Amazon and Apple as being among four possible buyers. (Id. Ex. 26.)

33. The forgoing is a small sample of publicly available information showing that MGM and Anchorage faced substantial pressure in 2020 and were contemplating a sale, and that Amazon and Apple were expected to be among interested bidders. No one following the MGM story would have been surprised to learn in December 2020 that Apple and Amazon were conducting due diligence and had expressed "material interest" in acquiring MGM.

34. Even if the MGM E-Mail contained “material non-public information” when Dondero sent it on December 17, 2020 (which it did not), its substance was fully and publicly disclosed to the market in the days and weeks that followed.

35. For example, on December 21, 2020, a Wall Street Journal article titled MGM Holdings, Studio Behind ‘James Bond,’ Explores a Sale (the “Wall Street Journal Article”), reported that MGM had “tapped investment banks Morgan Stanley and LionTree LLC and begun a formal sale process,” and had “a market value of around $5.5 billion, based on privately traded shares and including debt.” The Wall Street Journal Article reiterated that (i) Anchorage “has come under pressure in recent years from weak performance and defecting clients, and its illiquid investment in MGM has become a larger percentage of its hedge fund as it shrinks,” and (ii) “Mr. Ulrich has told clients in recent months he was working toward a deal for the studio and has spoken of big technology companies as logical buyers.” (Id. Ex. 27.)

36. The Wall Street Journal article thus contained more information than the MGM E-Mail, insofar as the former (i) disclosed that investment bankers had been retained; (ii) disclosed the identity of the investment bankers; (iii) reported that MGM had commenced a “formal sales process”; (iv) provided an indication of market value; and (v) reiterated that Anchorage, MGM’s largest shareholder, was under pressure to sell its illiquid position and was actively “working toward a deal for the studio.”

37. The Wall Street Journal’s reporting was picked up and expanded upon in other publications soon after. For example:

- On December 23, 2020, Business Matters published an article specifically identifying Amazon as a potential suitor for MGM. The article, titled The World is not enough! Amazon Joins other Streaming services in £4bn Bidding war for Bond films as MGM Considers Selling Back Catalogue, cited the Wall Street Journal Article and further reported that MGM “hopes to spark a battle that could interest streaming services such as Amazon Prime” (id. Ex. 28);

- On December 24, 2020, an article in iDropNews specifically identified Apple as entering the fray. In an article titled Could Apple be Ready to Gobble Up MGM Studios Entirely?, the author observed that “it’s now become apparent that MGM is actually up on the auction block,” noting that the Wall Street Journal was “reporting that the studio has begun a formal sale process” and that Apple—with a long history of exploratory interest in MGM—would be a likely bidder (id. Ex. 29); and
  - On January 15, 2021, Bulwark published an article entitled MGM is For Sale (Again) that identified attributes of MGM likely to appeal to potential purchasers and handicapped the odds of seven likely buyers—with Apple and Amazon named as two of three potential buyers most likely to close on an acquisition (id. Ex. 30).
4. Dondero’s Conduct Confirms That He Did Not Believe He Disclosed Material, Non-Public Inside Information To Seery; The MGM E-Mail Played No Role In The HarbourVest Settlement.

38. Dondero’s conduct further demonstrates that he did not believe he disclosed material, non-public information to Seery in December 2020.

39. HMIT contends that, upon receipt of the MGM E-Mail, “Seery should have halted all transactions involving MGM stock, yet just six days later Seery filed a motion in the Bankruptcy Court seeking approval of the Debtor’s settlement with HarbourVest – resulting in a transfer to the Debtor’s Estate of HarbourVest’s interest in a Debtor-advised fund, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. (“HCLOF”), which held substantial MGM debt and equity.” (Compl. ¶ 46.) These allegations do not withstand scrutiny for several reasons.

40. First, the Debtor and HarbourVest had already reached an agreement in principle—including the core question of consideration—to settle their disputes on December 10, 2020, a week before Dondero sent the MGM E-Mail to Seery. (See Morris Dec. Ex. 31.)<sup>13</sup> Thus, even assuming that the MGM E-Mail contained “material non-public inside information” (which it did

<sup>13</sup> In its motion for approval of the HarbourVest settlement, Highland valued the interest in HCLOF that it was receiving as part of the settlement of HarbourVest’s claim at $22.5 million. Dondero and other affiliates ostensibly controlled by Patrick have previously alleged that the valuation was “stale.” It was not; rather, it was based on the then most recent report made available to holders of interests in HCLOF, including Dondero. (Morris Dec. Ex. 31-a.) In any event, HCLOF did not directly own any “MGM debt and equity.”

not), the substance of that communication played no role in Seery's negotiations, which had concluded before he received the MGM E-Mail.

41. Second, neither Dondero nor any of his affiliates ever raised this issue with the Court when lodging objections to the HarbourVest settlement, which were filed just weeks after Dondero sent the MGM E-Mail to Seery. In fact, Dondero contended that the Debtor was overpaying HarbourVest via the settlement to buy votes and that the settlement was neither reasonable nor in the best interests of the Debtor's estate. (Morris Dec. Ex. 32.)

42. Dondero and HMIT cannot reconcile their current assertion that Seery misused allegedly "material, non-public inside information" with their failure to object to the HarbourVest settlement on that basis.

5. The Texas State Securities Board Has Determined That No Action Is Warranted.

43. In its Motion, HMIT claimed that the Texas State Securities Board (the "TSSB") "opened an investigation into the subject matter of the insider trades at issue," and argued that the "continuing nature of this investigation underscores HMIT's position that the claims described in the attached Adversary Proceeding are plausible and certainly far more than merely 'colorable.'" (Mot. ¶ 37.)

44. HMIT's characterization is misleading because the TSSB never "opened an investigation"; rather, the TSSB reviewed a "complaint" (undoubtedly filed at Dondero's direction). That review is now complete. On May 9, 2023, the TSSB issued the following statement:

The staff of the Texas State Securities Board (the "Staff") has completed its review of the complaint received by the Staff against Highland Capital Management, L.P. The issues raised in the complaint and information provided to our Agency were given full consideration, and a decision was made that no further regulatory action is warranted at this time.

(Morris Dec. Ex. 33.)

45. The TSSB’s decision that no further action is warranted underscores the Highland Parties’ position that the claims described in the proposed Complaint are neither plausible nor “colorable.”

E. HMIT’s Allegations Concerning Seery’s Alleged Relationships With The Claims Purchasers Are Unsupported And Provide No Foundation For The Purported Inferences.

46. HMIT asserts that Seery and the Claims Purchasers had substantial pre-existing relationships that provided the foundation for the alleged “quid pro quo.” (See, e.g., Compl. ¶¶ 14, 47–48.) These allegations appear to be based solely on a review of Seery’s resume and some internet searches conducted as part of the “investigation” commissioned by Dondero, the results of which were presented to the EOUST in an unsuccessful effort to convince that agency to investigate further. (See Mot. Ex. 2 ¶ 4 & Exs. A–B.) As HMIT’s pleadings and the documents presented to the EOUST show, and as will be further established at the hearing, these conclusory allegations have no basis in fact.

1. HMIT’s Allegations Concerning Stonehill

47. HMIT’s conclusory allegation that Seery and Stonehill had a “close business relationship” is based on two alleged “facts.”

48. First, HMIT contends that Seery “joined a hedge fund, River Birth Capital,” that “served on the creditors committee in other bankruptcy proceedings” with Stonehill. (Compl. ¶ 48.) But HMIT fails to (i) identify those proceedings or when they occurred; (ii) allege that Seery was aware of, let alone participated in, any “bankruptcy proceedings” with Stonehill; or (iii) suggest how the unidentified “bankruptcy proceedings” resulted in a relationship close enough to support the wide-ranging conspiracy HMIT imagines.

49. HMIT tries to bolster this supposed connection by pointing to a decade-old court filing showing that the law firm for which Seery worked (Sidley Austin LLP) represented a “Steering Group of Senior Secured Noteholders” in the Blockbuster bankruptcy, and that, at some point, Stonehill was one of five members of that group. (Mot. Ex. 2 at A-66.)<sup>14</sup> There is no evidence or non-conclusory allegation that Seery (or his then-firm) ever represented Stonehill individually or that any individual involved in the Blockbuster bankruptcy on Stonehill’s behalf had any involvement in Stonehill’s decision to purchase claims in the Highland bankruptcy.

50. Second, HMIT alleges that (i) a global asset management firm called GCM Grovesnor held four seats on the Redeemer Committee; (ii) “upon information and belief” GCM Grovesnor “is a significant investor in Stonehill and Farallon”; (iii) Grovesnor “through Redeemer, played a large part in appointing Seery as a director of Strand Advisors”; and (iv) Seery was therefore “ beholden to Grovesnor from the outset, and, by extension, Grovesnor’s affiliates Stonehill and Farralon [sic].” (Id.)

51. These allegations, however, are based on unsupported speculation and tortured inferences, and certain of them make no sense.<sup>15</sup>

2. HMIT’s Allegations Concerning Farallon

52. Likewise, the speculative and unsupported allegations concerning Seery’s alleged relationship with Farallon cannot withstand scrutiny.

<sup>14</sup> The Complaint incorrectly claims that “Seery represented Farallon as its legal counsel” (Compl. ¶ 48), but its Motion appends a court filing referring to Stonehill (Mot. Ex. 2 at A-66).

<sup>15</sup> For example, HMIT alleges that Grovesnor is a “significant investor” in Stonehill and Farallon and that Grovesnor is an “affiliate” of Stonehill and Farallon, while also effectively alleging that Stonehill and Farallon fleeced the Redeemer Committee by buying its claim while in possession of “material, non-public inside information.” Notably, the Redeemer Committee—the actual party that would have been harmed if HMIT’s allegations had any merit (which they do not)—has never sought to intervene in this matter even though Dondero first floated these allegations in 2021 as part of the First Rule 202 Petition (nor, for that matter, has Acis, UBS, or HarbourVest ever voiced any concerns about supposedly being victimized by the Claims Purchasers).

53. HMIT alleges “upon information and belief” that Seery “conducted substantial business with Farallon” while he was the Global Head of Fixed Income Loans at Lehman Brothers. (Compl. ¶ 48.) But the only “fact” supposedly supporting this broad allegation is a single page taken from (what appears to be) a Lehman Brothers real estate group promotional document stating that Farallon participated in a secured real estate loan in 2007. (Mot. Ex. 2 at A-65.) HMIT does not allege that Seery knew of, let alone participated in, this transaction, nor does it identify any other business (let alone “substantial business”) that Seery allegedly conducted with Farallon while at Lehman Brothers.

F. HMIT’s “Insider Trading” Allegations Are Unsupported And Provide No Foundation For The Purported Inferences.

54. One of HMIT’s principal allegations is that, as part of the purported quid pro quo, Seery disclosed to the Claims Purchasers “material non-public inside” information concerning MGM that he obtained from Dondero to entice them to buy claims in Highland’s bankruptcy case. (See, e.g., Compl. ¶¶ 13, 47, 50, 83, 89.)

1. Dondero’s Description Of His Communication(s) With Farallon Have Changed Over Time.

55. HMIT’s Motion is based in substantial part on Dondero’s description of communication(s) he purportedly had with one or two representatives of Farallon in the “late spring” of 2021 concerning Farallon’s acquisition of certain claims in the Highland bankruptcy. (Mot. ¶ 1 & Ex. 3; Morris Dec. Ex. 9.)

56. Because (i) Dondero’s description of his communication(s) with Farallon has substantially changed over time, (ii) neither HMIT nor Dondero offer any rational reason why Farallon would voluntarily confess to improprieties to a third party with a well-earned reputation for using overly aggressive litigation tactics, and (iii) certain aspects of his various descriptions are contradicted by documentary evidence, they cannot be the basis for any claim.<sup>16</sup>

57. In the First Rule 202 Petition filed in July 2021, Dondero swore, among other things, that:

[Seery] has an age-old connection to Farallon and, upon information and belief, advised Farallon to purchase the claims.

On a telephone call between [Dondero] and a representative of Farallon, Michael Lin [sic], Mr. Lin [sic] informed [Dondero] that Farallon had purchased the claims sight unseen—relying entirely on Mr. Seery’s advice solely because of their prior dealings.

As Highland’s current CEO, Mr. Seery had non-public, material information concerning Highland. Upon information and belief, such non-public, material information was the basis for instructing Farallon to purchase the Claims.

(Morris Dec. Ex. 3 ¶¶ 20–21, 23 (“Version 1”).)

58. Version 1 is notable because it (i) did not state what Dondero said, if anything, (ii) referred to a single phone call, (iii) made no mention of MGM, (iv) made no mention of Raj Patel (who features later); and (v) stated only “upon information and belief” that Farallon purchased the Claims based on “non-public, material information.”<sup>17</sup>

59. On May 2, 2022, Dondero amended the First Rule 202 Petition. In his new verified pleading, Dondero swore, among other things, that:

[Seery] has an age-old connection to Farallon and, upon information and belief, advised Farallon to purchase the claims.

<sup>16</sup> Notably, there is no allegation that anyone ever communicated with Stonehill about its claims purchases (let alone obtained a “confession”); thus, HMIT’s “conspiracy” theory against Stonehill rests on nothing but rank speculation based on unsupportable inferences.

<sup>17</sup> Later in 2021, Dondero “commissioned an investigation by counsel” who produced written reports to the EOUST. The first such report was prepared by Douglas Draper, counsel to Dondero’s family trusts, and delivered to the EOUST on October 5, 2021. Draper provided several reasons to support his speculation that “Farallon and Stonehill may have been provided material, non-public information to induce their purchase of claims” and to justify his request for further investigation—but conspicuously failed to mention Dondero’s telephone call(s) with Farallon. (Mot. Ex. 2-A at 7.)

On a telephone call between [Dondero] and Michael Lin [sic], a representative of Farallon, Mr. Lin [sic] informed [Dondero] that Farallon had purchased the claims sight unseen and with no due diligence—100% relying on Mr. Seery’s say-so because they had made so much money in the past when Mr. Seery told them to purchase claims.

In other words, Mr. Seery had inside information on the price and value of the claims that he shared with no one but Farallon for their benefit.

(Id. Ex. 4 ¶¶ 22–24 (“Version 2”) (emphasis added).)

60. Like Version 1, Version 2 also (i) did not state what Dondero said, if anything; (ii) referred to a single phone call; (iii) made no mention of MGM; and (iv) made no mention of Raj Patel. But in contrast to Version 1, Version 2 embellished Linn’s alleged comments and—more importantly—now expressly asserted that Seery “shared” inside information with “no one but Farallon” rather than adopting Version 1’s statement that “upon information and belief,” Farallon purchased the Claims based on “non-public, material information.”<sup>18</sup>

61. About four weeks later, Dondero provided yet another version of his discussion with Linn. In a declaration sworn to on May 31, 2022, Dondero stated, among other things, that:

Last year, I called Farallon’s Michael Lin [sic] about purchasing their claims in the bankruptcy. I offered them 30% more than what they paid. I was told by Michael Lin [sic] of Farallon that they purchased the interests without doing any due diligence other than what Mr. James Seery—the CEO of Highland—told them, and that he told them that the interests would be worth far more than what Farallon paid.

(Id. Ex. 5 ¶ 2 (“Version 3”) (emphasis added).)

62. Version 3 introduces several new topics. For example, Dondero asserts for the first time that he called Linn because he was interested in purchasing Farallon’s claims. Dondero also

---

<sup>18</sup>If, as Dondero contends, Seery “shared” inside information with “no one but Farallon,” then he did not share the inside information with Stonehill.

asserts that he offered “30% more than what they paid.”<sup>19</sup> Finally, and significantly, Dondero asserts for the first time that Linn reported Seery telling him that the “interests would be worth far more than what Farallon paid.”

63. On February 15, 2023, Dondero filed yet another sworn statement concerning his 2021 discussion(s) with Farallon, this time in support of HMIT’s Verified Rule 202 Petition. (Id. Ex. 9.) In this version, Dondero stated that:

In late Spring of 2021, I had phone calls with two principals at Farallon Capital Management, LLC (“Farallon”), Raj Patel and Michael Linn. During these phone calls, Mr. Patel and Mr. Linn informed me that Farallon had a deal in place to purchase the Acis and HarbourVest claims, which I understood to refer to claims that were a part of settlements in the HCM Bankruptcy Proceedings. Mr. Patel and Mr. Linn stated that Farallon agreed to purchase these claims based solely on conversations with Mr. Seery because they had made significant profits when Mr. Seery told them to purchase other claims in the past. They also stated that they were particularly optimistic because of the expected sale of MGM.

(id. Ex. 9 ¶ 4 (“Version 4”) (emphasis added).)

64. Version 4 introduces still more new topics. For example, Dondero asserted for the first time that (i) more than one telephone call occurred; (ii) Raj Patel also participated in these calls on Farallon’s behalf; (iii) he was told that “Farallon had a deal in place to purchase the Acis and HarbourVest claims”; and (iv) he learned that Farallon was “particularly optimistic because of the expected sale of MGM.”

65. Finally, in its Motion, HMIT attributes statements to Farallon that even Dondero never described. For example, HMIT contends that “Farallon bragged about the value of its investment referencing non-public information regarding Amazon, Inc.’s (‘Amazon’) interest in

<sup>19</sup> Ironically, Dondero appears to have offered to purchase Farallon’s claims without conducting any due diligence because (i) he provides no indication that he knew at that time how much Farallon paid for its claims yet he blindly offered to pay “30% more than what” Farallon paid, and (ii) HMIT alleges that the Debtor was not transparent. (See Compl. ¶¶ 51–53.)

acquiring Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios Inc.” (Mot. ¶ 32.)<sup>20</sup> While HMIT cites Version 4 as support, neither that version nor any prior version is consistent with HMIT’s description of Dondero’s purported communication(s) with Farallon.<sup>21</sup>

2. Dondero’s Offer to Purchase Farallon’s and Stonehill’s Claims In 2022 Contradicts HMIT’s Allegations.

66. According to HMIT, Dondero offered to buy Farallon’s claims in the Highland bankruptcy for 30% more than what Farallon was paid, but that Farallon insisted it would not sell at any price. (Morris Dec. Ex. 5 ¶ 2.)

67. Yet, on October 14, 2022, before the Second Rule 202 Petition was filed, HCMFA (one of Dondero’s advisory firms) made written offers to Stonehill and Farallon to purchase their claims at cost “plus a five percent (5%) return.” (Morris Dec. Ex. 35.) Dondero’s offer to purchase claims at 5% above cost is inconsistent with his purported knowledge that Farallon would not sell at any price.

G. A Rational Basis Exists For the Claims Purchases—Although Only the Claim Sellers Could Have Been Harmed in Any Event.

68. HMIT insists that it “made no sense” for the Claims Purchasers to buy claims because “the publicly available information [] did not offer a sufficient potential profit to justify the publicly disclosed risk,” and “their investment was projected to yield a small return with

<sup>20</sup> This purported statement that HMIT attributes to Farallon makes little sense because the MGM-Amazon deal was publicly announced on May 26, 2021 (Morris Dec. Ex. 34), before Dondero and Farallon ever spoke.

<sup>21</sup> Conspicuously absent from HMIT’s pleadings is any evidence corroborating any of the five versions of Dondero’s conversation(s) with Farallon. Given the importance of the Farallon’s alleged confessional, one would have expected Dondero to contemporaneously (i) send a confirming e-mail to Farallon to make sure there was a written record of the discussion, (ii) send an e-mail to a colleague so that others were informed, (iii) make notes to himself; or (iv) tell someone what happened. Yet, no such corroborating evidence was presented or referred to in the First Rule 202 Petition, either of the EOUST Letters, the Second Rule 202 Petition, the Motion, the original proposed Complaint, the Supplement, or the amended proposed Complaint.

virtually no margin for error.” (Compl. ¶ 3.) HMIT’s arguments are belied by the publicly available facts and its own allegations.

69. In advance of Plan confirmation, the Debtor projected that Class 8 general unsecured creditors would recover 71.32% on their allowed claims. (Docket No. 1875 Ex. A.) In its proposed Complaint, HMIT sets forth the amounts the Claims Purchasers purportedly paid for their claims. (Compl. ¶ 42.) Taking into account the face amount of the allowed claims, the Claims Purchasers’ projected profits (in millions of dollars) were as follows:

Creditor	Class 8	Class 9	Ascribed Value <sup>22</sup>	Purchaser	Purchase Price	Projected Profit
Redeemer	$137.0	$0.0	$97.71	Stonehill	$78.0	$19.71
Acis	$23.0	$0.0	$16.4	Farallon	$8.0	$8.40
HarbourVest	$45.0	$35.0	$32.09	Farallon	$27.0	$5.09
UBS	$65.0	$60.0	$46.39	Stonehill & Farallon	$50.0	($3.61)

70. As HMIT acknowledges, by the time Dondero spoke with Farallon in the “late spring” of 2021, the Claims Purchasers had acquired the allowed claims previously held by Acis, Redeemer, and HarbourVest. (Compl. ¶ 41 n.12.)<sup>23</sup> Based on an aggregate purchase price of $113 million, the Claims Purchasers would have expected to net over $33 million in profits, or nearly 30% on their investment, had Highland met its projections. The Claims Purchasers would make even more money if Highland beat its projections because they also purchased the Class 9 claims, and would therefore capture any upside. In this context, HMIT assertions in its proposed Complaint lack any rational basis.

<sup>22</sup> “Ascribed Value” is derived by multiplying the Class 8 amount by the projected recovery of 71.32% for that class.

<sup>23</sup> The UBS claims were not acquired until August 2021, long after the alleged “quid pro quo” was supposedly agreed upon and the MGM-Amazon deal was announced. (Morris Dec. Ex. 34.)

71. Notably, none of the selling claimholders—all of which are sophisticated parties that were represented by sophisticated counsel—have raised any objections or complaints. In fact, three of the four selling claimholders (Redeemer, Acis, and UBS) were members of the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors.

72. Finally, even if HMIT’s allegations had any merit (they do not), only the selling claimholders would have cause to complain. The estate (and HMIT) would not have been harmed because it made (and may in the future make) the exact same distributions to claimholders regardless of what entity owns the claims.

H. Seery’s Compensation Structure Is Consistent With The Plan And The Trust Agreement, And Was The Product Of Arms’-Length Negotiations.

73. According to HMIT, Seery provided “material non-public information” to the Claims Purchasers so that he could someday “plant friendly allies onto the [COB] to rubber stamp compensation demands.” (Mot. ¶ 22; see also id. ¶¶ 3, 24, 48.) HMIT alleges in its revised Complaint:

As part of the scheme, the Defendant Purchasers obtained a position to approve Seery’s ongoing compensation – to Seery’s benefit and also to the detriment of the Claimant Trust, the Reorganized Debtor, and HMIT. Initially, Seery’s compensation package was composed of a flat monthly pay [sic]. Now, however, it is also performance based. This allows the Defendant Purchasers to satisfy the quid pro quo at the heart of the scheme. Seery would help the Defendant Purchasers make large profits and they would help enrich Seery with big pay days.

(Compl. ¶ 4.)

74. Notably, these allegations (i) describe a compensation structure that is entirely consistent with the incentive compensation plan structure in the Court-confirmed Plan and set forth in the Trust Agreement; and (ii) are devoid of any actual facts (e.g., the terms of Seery’s compensation plan or how it was calculated or negotiated). In reality, Seery’s compensation package was the product of arm's-length negotiations with the COB (including the active participation of the COB's independent member) over a four-month period, the result of which was an incentive compensation plan that aligned Seery's interests with those of the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries (i.e., to maximize value and creditor recoveries).

75. As a threshold matter, HMIT's allegation that "[i]nitially, Seery's compensation package was composed of a flat monthly pay [sic]" (Compl. ¶ 4) is plainly wrong. Seery was appointed Highland's Chief Executive Officer (effective as of March 15, 2020) pursuant to a Bankruptcy Court order entered on July 16, 2020 without objection. (Morris Dec. Ex. 36 (the "July Order").) The July Order approved the terms of a separate employment agreement (a copy of which was included in the Debtor's motion (Docket No. 774 Ex. A-1) and attached to the July Order) (the "Original Employment Agreement").

76. Under the Original Employment Agreement, Seery was to receive (i) Base Compensation in the amount of $150,000 per month, plus (ii) a Restructuring Fee, the amount of which would be determined by whether a Case Resolution Plan (i.e., a plan with substantial creditor support) or a Monetization Vehicle Plan (i.e., a plan lacking substantial creditor support) was achieved (as those terms are defined in the Original Employment Agreement).

77. On November 24, 2020, after notice and a hearing, the Bankruptcy Court entered an Order (Docket No. 1476) approving the adequacy of The Disclosure Statement of the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (Morris Dec. Ex. 37 (the "Disclosure Statement").) The Disclosure Statement provided in pertinent part that:

The salient terms of each Trustee's employment, including such Trustee's duties and compensation shall be set forth in the Claimant Trust Agreement . . . The Trustees shall each be entitled to reasonable compensation in an amount consistent with that of similar functionaries in similar types of bankruptcy cases.

(Id. Art. III.F.2(e); see Plan Art. IV.B.6 (incorporating identical language).)

78. The Trust Agreement was part of a Plan Supplement (as amended) filed in advance of the confirmation hearing (Morris Dec. Ex. 38), and provided in pertinent part:

Compensation. As compensation for any services rendered by the Claimant Trustee in connection with this Agreement, the Claimant Trustee shall receive compensation of $150,000 per month (the “Base Salary”). Within the first forty-five days following the Confirmation Date, the Claimant Trustee on the one hand, and the Committee, if prior to the Effective Date, or the Oversight Board, if on or after the Effective Date, on the other, will negotiate go-forward compensation for the Claimant Trustee which will include (a) the Base Salary, (b) a success fee, and (c) severance.

(Trust Agmt. § 3.13(a)(i).)<sup>24</sup>

79. The Plan went effective on August 11, 2021, and, as a result, the COB was formed. The COB ultimately had three members: a representative of Farallon (Michael Linn), a representative of Stonehill (Christopher Provost), and an independent member (Richard Katz).

80. On August 26, 2021, the COB held a regularly scheduled meeting during which it discussed the incentive compensation program (“ICP”). The minutes of this meeting reflect that:

Mr. Seery also presented the Board with an overview of his Incentive Compensation Program proposal which would include not only Mr. Seery but the current HCMLP team. (The terms and structure of the proposal had been previewed with the Board in prior operating models presented by Mr. Seery.) Mr. [Seery] reviewed the proposal and stated his view that the proposal was market based and was designed to align incentives between himself and the HCMLP team on the one hand and the Claimant Trust [B]eneficiaries on the other. The Board asked questions regarding proposal and determined that is [sic] would consider the proposal and revert to Mr. Seery with a counter proposal.

(Morris Dec. Ex. 39 (emphasis added).)

81. Far from being a “rubber stamp,” the minutes show that the COB did not simply accept Seery’s initial proposed ICP but “asked questions” and indicated that it would provide a “counter proposal.”

82. On August 30, 2021, the COB convened for “an off-cycle (non-regular) meeting.” As reflected in the minutes of this meeting, the COB again discussed the ICP:

Mr. Katz began the meeting by walking the Oversight Board and Mr. Seery through the Oversight Board’s counter-proposal to the HCMLP incentive compensation proposal, including the review of a spreadsheet and summary of the counter-proposal. Discussion was joined by Mr. Linn and Mr. Stern. Mr. Seery asked numerous questions and received detailed responses from the Oversight Board. Mr. Seery and the Oversight Board agreed to continue the discussion and negotiations regarding the proposed incentive compensation plan for the Claimant Trustee and the HCMLP [employees].

(Id. Ex. 40 (emphasis added).)

83. Seery and the COB continued to exchange and discuss additional proposals and counter-proposals over the coming months.<sup>25</sup> Finally, on December 6, 2021, Seery and the COB executed a Memorandum of Agreement stating that:

In accordance with the provisions of the Highland Claimant Trust Agreement and the Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“HCMLP”) Plan of Reorganization, the Oversight Board of the Highland Claimant Trust and the Claimant Trustee/Chief Executive Officer of HCMLP engaged in robust, arm’s length and good faith negotiations regarding the incentive compensation program for the Claimant Trust/CEO and the HCMLP post-effective date operating team (“HCMLP Team”). After considering various structures and incentives to motivate performance on behalf of the Claimant Trust, the parties reached the binding agreement reflected in the attached HCMLP and Claimant Trust Management Incentive Compensation Program.

<sup>25</sup> In particular, (i) Seery delivered another proposal to the COB on October 9, 2021, which he further revised later in the month; (ii) Katz (the independent COB member) responded on behalf of the COB on October 26 and proposed that the parties agree upon the structure of the proposal before addressing the specific numbers; (iii) Seery responded on November 3; (iv) further discussions were held on November 9; (v) on November 17, Linn provided a “wholesome response” in which he “updated the term sheet” and raised certain issues that he did not believe would have “much a difference for this negotiation”; (vi) Seery wrote to the COB indicating that he wanted to “finalize the ICP” but had “a couple of asks and one question”; and (vii) still further negotiations took place thereafter.

(Morris Dec. Ex. 41 (emphasis added).)

84. Notably, in November 2021, one of the “investigative reports” commissioned by Dondero incorrectly speculated that “Mr. Seery’s success fee presumably will be based on whether the Plan outperforms what was disclosed in the Plan Analysis.” (Mot. Ex. 2-B at 14.) In fact, Seery’s bonus is tied to creditor recoveries so that the interests of stakeholders are aligned.

85. Dondero’s commissioned report also incorrectly “estimate[d] that, based on the estate’s [alleged] $600 million value today, Mr. Seery’s success fee could be approximate [sic] $50 million.” (Id.) In reality, under the negotiated terms of the ICP (Morris Dec. Ex. 41), the maximum bonus Seery can receive is approximately $8.8 million—which would require all Class 8 and 9 claimholders to receive cash distributions for the full amount of their claims plus interest—82.4% less than the baseless success fee presented to the EOUST on Dondero’s behalf.

RELEVANT PROCEDURAL HISTORY

86. To avoid the appointment of a Chapter 11 trustee, on January 9, 2020, this Court approved a settlement (the “January Order”; Docket No. 339) removing Dondero from control of Highland and appointing an Independent Board consisting of John Dubel, Russell Nelms, and Seery (the “Independent Directors”). The January Order prohibited litigation against the Independent Directors without this Court’s prior authorization and limited claims to those arising from willful misconduct or gross negligence.<sup>26</sup>

<sup>26</sup> (January Order ¶ 10 (“No entity may commence or pursue a claim or cause of action of any kind against any Independent Director . . . relating in any way to the Independent Director’s role as an independent director . . . without the Court (i) first determining after notice that such claim or cause of action represents a colorable claim of willful misconduct or gross negligence against Independent Director . . .”).)

87. Highland later moved to have Seery appointed its Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer. This Court approved his appointment in the July Order (Morris Dec. Ex. 36), which like the January Order, prohibited litigation against Seery without this Court’s prior authorization and limited claims to those arising from willful misconduct or gross negligence.<sup>27</sup>

88. On February 22, 2021, this Court issued the Confirmation Order confirming the Plan. The confirmed Plan included the Gatekeeper Provision prohibiting Enjoined Parties, including HMIT, from bringing claims against Protected Parties, including Seery, unless, after notice and a hearing, this Court found the claims “colorable.” (Plan Art. IX.F.) The Gatekeeper Provision was affirmed by the Fifth Circuit. NexPoint, 48 F.4th at 425–26, 435–39. The detail factual findings in the Confirmation Order supporting the Gatekeeper Provision were not challenged or disturbed on appeal.

89. On August 11, 2021, the Plan became effective (Docket No. 2700), and pursuant to the Plan:

- All prepetition partnership interests in the Debtor, including HMIT’s, were cancelled;
- HCMLP was reorganized as a Delaware limited liability partnership;
- The Trust, a Delaware statutory trust, was established pursuant to the Trust Agreement;
- HCMLP’s limited partnership interests were issued to the Trust;
- HCMLP’s general partnership interests were issued to HCMLP GP LLC, a newly-established Delaware limited liability company;

<sup>27</sup> (July Order ¶ 5 (“No entity may commence or pursue a claim or cause of action of any kind against Mr. Seery relating in any way to his role as the chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer of the Debtor without the Bankruptcy Court (i) first determining after notice that such claim or cause of action represents a colorable claim of willful misconduct or gross negligence against Mr. Seery . . . .”).)

- The majority of HCMLP’s assets, including its “Causes of Action,”<sup>28</sup> were transferred to the Trust;
- Seery was appointed reorganized HCMLP’s Chief Executive Officer and trustee of the Trust (the “Claimant Trustee”);
- “Estate Claims” (i.e., Causes of Action against HCMLP’s insiders)<sup>29</sup> were transferred to the newly-established Highland Litigation Sub-Trust (the “Litigation Trust”), a Delaware statutory trust and subsidiary of the Trust;
- An oversight board was appointed to oversee the management of the Trust, reorganized HCMLP, and the Litigation Trust;
- Holders of allowed general and subordinated unsecured claims (i.e., Class 8 and 9) received interests in the Trust (collectively, the “Trust Interests”) and became “Claimant Trust Beneficiaries” (as defined in the Plan); and
- Holders of the Debtor’s prepetition partnership interests (i.e., Class 10 and 11) were allocated unvested contingent interests (the “Contingent Interests”) in the Trust that vest if, and only if, the Claimant Trustee certifies that all Claimant Trust Beneficiaries (i.e., Class 8 and 9) have been paid in full, Class 8 have received post-petition interest, and all disputed claims in Class 8 and 9 have been resolved.

(See Plan Art. IV.)

90. On October 8, 2021, the Trust irrevocably transferred and assigned to the Litigation Trust “any and all Causes of Action not previously transferred or assigned by operation of the Plan, the Litigation Sub-Trust Agreement, or otherwise” except for causes of action then being

<sup>28</sup> “Causes of Action” are defined in the Plan as: “any action, claim, cross-claim, third-party claim, cause of action, controversy, demand, right, Lien, indemnity, contribution, guaranty, suit, obligation, liability, debt, damage, judgment, account, defense, remedy, offset, power, privilege, license and franchise of any kind or character whatsoever, in each case whether known, unknown, contingent or non-contingent, matured or unmatured, suspected or unsuspected, liquidated or unliquidated, disputed or undisputed, foreseen or unforeseen, direct or indirect, choate or inchoate, secured or unsecured, assertable directly or derivatively (including, without limitation, under alter ego theories), whether arising before, on, or after the Petition Date, in contract or in tort, in law or in equity or pursuant to any other theory of law.” (Plan Art. I.B.19.)

<sup>29</sup> “Estate Claims” are defined in the Plan as “estate claims and causes of action against Dondero, Okada, other insiders of the Debtor, and each of the Related Entities, including any promissory notes held by any of the foregoing” other than causes of action against any current employee of Highland other than Dondero. (Plan Art. I.B.61.)

pursued by the Trust or which the Trust intended to pursue on behalf of entities managed by reorganized HCMLP. (See Morris Dec. Ex. 42.)<sup>30</sup>

91. On March 28, 2023, HMIT filed its Initial Motion with a proposed Verified Adversary Complaint totaling 387 pages with exhibits. This Court scheduled a conference for Monday, April 24, 2023. (Docket No. 3751.) On Friday, April 21, 2023, HMIT filed objections to any evidentiary hearing or briefing on its Initial Motion. (“Objs.”; Docket No. 3758.) On Sunday, April 23, 2023, HMIT filed a Supplemental Motion with an amended proposed Verified Adversary Complaint, which added HCMLP and the Trust as nominal defendants and dropped a claim for “fraud by misrepresentation and material nondisclosure.” (Docket No. 3760.) On April 24, 2023, this Court held a conference, set a briefing schedule on the Motion, and scheduled a hearing for June 8, 2023. (Docket Nos. 3763–64.)

LEGAL STANDARD

92. HMIT concedes, as it must, that its proposed lawsuit is subject to this Court’s “gatekeeping protocol,” and “the injunction and exculpation provision in the Plan.” (Mot. ¶¶ 1, 4, 14; Supp. Mot. ¶ 11.) But HMIT fundamentally misunderstands the threshold showing it must make to clear that hurdle.

A. HMIT Misconstrues The “Colorability” Standard Established In The Gatekeeper Provision.

93. This Court made extensive factual findings and approved the Gatekeeper Provision on two grounds: (i) “the Supreme Court’s ‘Barton Doctrine,’ Barton v. Barbour, 104 U.S. 126 (1881)),” and (ii) “the notion of a prefiling injunction to deter vexatious litigants[] that has been approved by Fifth Circuit.” (Confirmation Order ¶¶ 76–81.) Those doctrines operate to “prevent baseless litigation designed merely to harass the post-confirmation entities,” “avoid abuse of the court system,” and “preempt the use of judicial time that properly could be used to consider the meritorious claims of other litigants.” (Id. ¶ 79.) The Fifth Circuit confirmed that “the injunction and gatekeeping provisions are sound,” explaining that “[c]ourts have long recognized bankruptcy courts can perform a gatekeeping function,” including “[u]nder the ‘Barton’ doctrine.” NexPoint, 48 F.4th at 435, 438–39 (collecting cases). The Fifth Circuit further recognized that the Gatekeeper Provision here was necessary to prevent “bad-faith litigation” from consuming the resources of the reorganized debtor and those working to maximize claims of legitimate stakeholders. Id.

94. Under the Barton doctrine, “[a] party seeking leave of court to sue a trustee must make a prima facie case against the trustee, showing that its claim is not without foundation.” VistaCare, 678 F.3d at 232 (cleaned up) (citing Anderson v. United States, 520 F.2d 1027, 1029 (5th Cir. 1975); Kashani v. Fulton (In re Kashani), 190 B.R. 875, 885 (B.A.P. 9th Cir 1995)); see also, e.g., CFTC v. Hunter Wise Commodities, LLC, 2020 WL 13413703, at *1 (S.D. Fla. Mar. 5, 2020) (“Under the Barton doctrine, . . . before leave to sue a receiver or trustee is granted, the plaintiff must demonstrate that he has a prima facie case against the trustee or receiver.”) (citing Anderson, 520 F.2d at 1029); Fin. Indus. Assoc. v. SEC, 2013 WL 11327680, at *4 (M.D. Fla. July 24, 2013) (same). Contrary to HMIT’s contention, this standard “involves a greater degree of flexibility” than a “Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss,” because “the bankruptcy court, which, given its familiarity with the underlying facts and the parties, is uniquely situated to determine whether a claim against the trustee has merit,” and “[t]he bankruptcy court is also uniquely situated to determine the potential effect of a judgment against the trustee on the debtor’s estate.” VistaCare, 678 F.3d at 233 (emphasis added).

95. To satisfy the “prima facie case standard,” “the movant must do more than meet the liberal notice-pleading requirements of Rule 8.” In re World Mktg. Chi., LLC, 584 B.R. 737, 743 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2018) (cleaned up; collecting cases). “[I]f the [bankruptcy] court relied on mere notice-pleading standards rather than evaluating the merits of the allegations, the leave requirement would become meaningless.” Leighton Holdings, Ltd. v. Belofsky (In re Kids Creek Partners, L.P.), 2000 WL 1761020, at *2 (N.D. Ill. Nov. 30, 2000). “To apply a less stringent standard would eviscerate the protections” of the Gatekeeper Provision. World, 584 B.R. at 743 (quoting Leighton, 2000 WL 1761020, at *2).

96. Similarly, courts in the vexatious litigant context require the movant to “show that the claims sought to be asserted have sufficient merit,” including that “the proposed filing is both procedural and legally sound,” and “that the claims are not brought for any improper purpose, such as harassment.” Silver v. City of San Antonio, 2020 WL 3803922, at *1 (W.D. Tex. July 7, 2020) (denying leave to file lawsuit); see also Silver v. Perez, 2020 WL 3790489, at *1 (W.D. Tex. July 7, 2020) (same). “[T]o protect courts and innocent parties from abusive and vexatious litigation[,] . . . courts may apply whatever standard deemed warranted when reviewing the proposed complaint.” Silver, 2020 WL 3803922, at *6. “For a prefiling injunction to have the intended impact, it must not merely require a reviewing official to apply an already existing level of review,” such as the “plausibility” standard for a Rule 12(b)(6) motion. Id. Rather, courts apply “an additional layer of review,” and “may appropriately deny leave to file when even part of the pleading fails to satisfy the reviewer that it warrants a federal civil action” or that the “litigant’s allegations are unlikely,” especially “when prior cases have shown the litigant to be untrustworthy or not credible . . . .” Id.

97. HMIT argues that “a claim is colorable if it is ‘plausible’ and could survive a motion to dismiss” under Rule 12(b)(6). (Mot. ¶¶ 38–42.) But HMIT’s motion does not even mention the specific bases this Court invoked in the Confirmation Order—the Barton doctrine and vexatious-litigant provisions—as supporting the Gatekeeper Provision, much less has HMIT identified a single case in the Barton doctrine or vexatious litigant context that supports its interpretation. (Id.; see also Morris Dec. Ex. 43 at 15:25–16:4 (THE COURT: “[D]id you find any legal authority in the Barton doctrine context that you think sheds light? Because that seems to me the most analogous context, right?” MR. MCENTIRE: “Specifically to answer -- to respond to your question directly, the answer is no.”).) HMIT relies instead on cases from inapposite contexts, such as whether a bankruptcy court should grant a creditor’s committee derivative standing after a trustee or debtor-in-possession declined to pursue a claim.<sup>31</sup> None of those cases, of course, involves gatekeeping orders entered in response to a pattern of abusive conduct that specifically rely on Barton and vexatious-litigant authorities. Moreover, and as discussed below, even those cases recognize that a claim must not only be likely to survive a motion to dismiss, but also that the debtor has “unjustifiably” refused to pursue it. La. World, 858 F.2d at 247–48. That requirement demands that the proposed claims be subjected to a realistic cost-benefit analysis, which here would be fatal to HMIT’s speculative, Hail Mary conspiracy theory.

98. HMIT also relies on a series of cases that are even farther afield from the Gatekeeper Provision here. Those include benefits coverage disputes under ERISA, Medicare coverage disputes, and constitutional challenges.<sup>32</sup> None of those cases implicate the Barton doctrine and vexatious-litigant concerns. (See Mot. ¶¶ 39–41; Objs. ¶¶ 9–13.)

B. Evidentiary Hearing

99. Courts in the Barton doctrine context regularly conduct an evidentiary hearing to determine whether a proposed complaint meets the necessary threshold. “Whether to hold a hearing is within the sound discretion of the bankruptcy court.” VistaCare, at 232 n.12 “[T]he decision whether to grant leave may involve a ‘balancing of the interests of all parties involved,’ which will ordinarily require an evidentiary hearing. Id. at 233 (quoting Kashani, 190 B.R. at 886–87). In VistaCare, for example, the bankruptcy court “held a hearing on CGL’s motion for leave” in which “the sole owner of CGL, and the Trustee, testified.” Id. at 223, 232. The Fifth Circuit has affirmed a colorability analysis in the Barton context, which involved an evidentiary hearing, without any concern that the inquiry was somehow improper. See Foster v. Aurzada (In re Foster), 2023 WL 20872, at *1 (5th Cir. Jan. 3, 2023) (affirming dismissal of an action to sue a trustee under Barton “[a]fter a hearing [by] the bankruptcy court”); Howell v. United States, 468 U.S. 317, 326 n.6 (1984) (discussing whether criminal defendant’s double jeopardy claim was “colorable” such that it could be appealed before final judgments); Trippodo v. SP Plus Corp., 2021 WL 2446204, at *3 (S.D. Tex. June 15, 2021) (assessing whether plaintiff stated a “colorable claim” against proposed additional defendants in determining whether plaintiff could amend complaint); Reyes v. Med. Hospice Care, LLC v. Azar, 2020 WL 9814144, at *5 (W.D. Tex. Dec. 9, 2020) (same); Harry v. Colvin, 2013 WL 12174300, at *5 (W.D. Tex. Nov. 6, 2013) (considering whether plaintiff asserted a “colorable constitutional claim” such that the court could exercise jurisdiction); Sabhari v. Mukasey, 522 F.3d 842, 844 (8th Cir. 2008) (same); Stanley v. Gonzales, 476 F.3d 653, 657 (9th Cir. 2007) (same).

close examination” of the evidence revealed only that the trustee “acted within the scope of [his] duties”), aff’d 799 F. App’x 271 (5th Cir. 2020).

100. Recognizing that the Barton doctrine requires more than a mere Rule 12(b)(6) analysis, courts of appeals routinely review “a bankruptcy court’s decision to grant a motion for leave to sue a trustee under the deferential abuse of discretion standard.” VistaCare, 678 F.3d at 224 (citing In re Linton, 136 F.3d 544, 546 (7th Cir. 1998); In re Beck Indus., Inc., 725 F.2d 880, 889 (2d Cir. 1984)).<sup>33</sup> Application of the Rule 12(b)(6) standard, of course, is subject to de novo review. Indeed, as this Court noted at the April 24, 2023 status conference, HMIT’s “original motion for leave attached something like 387 pages of not just Dondero affidavits, but other evidentiary support,” which is inconsistent with HMIT’s position that this Court “just need[ed] to look at the four corners and apply a 12(b)(6) standard.” (Morris Dec. Ex. 43 at 43:16–18, 44:4–7.) Although HMIT’s belatedly counsel suggested it might seek to “withdraw the Dondero affidavits” (id. at 22:17–18), HMIT has filed no such motion and “reserve[d] the opportunity to revisit the issue of withdrawing Mr. Dondero’s declarations” (id. at 55:1–5). As this Court noted, “parties are always given the chance to cross-examine an affiant or a declarant.” (Id. at 22:2–3.) This Court should exercise its discretion to hold an evidentiary hearing to permit the parties to present evidence, including through cross-examination of Dondero—even if HMIT now engages in gamesmanship by seeking to withdraw the Dondero declarations before the hearing.

<sup>33</sup> Although the Fifth Circuit has not squarely addressed this issue, all nine Circuits that have considered this issue have also adopted an abuse-of-discretion standard. See In re Bednar, 2021 WL 1625399, at *3 (B.A.P. 10th Cir. Apr. 27, 2021) (“[T]he Bankruptcy Court’s decision to decline leave to sue the Trustee under the Barton doctrine is reviewed for abuse of discretion . . .”) (citing VistaCare); SEC v. N. Am. Clearing, Inc., 656 F. App’x 969, 973–74 (11th Cir. 2016) (“Although we have never determined the standard of review for a challenge to the denial of a Barton motion, other Circuits that have considered the issue review a lower court’s ruling on a Barton motion for an abuse of discretion.”) (citing VistaCare); In re Lupo, 2014 WL 4653064, at *3 (B.A.P. 1st Cir. Sept. 17, 2014) (“Appellate courts review a bankruptcy court’s decision to deny a motion for leave to sue under the abuse of discretion standard.”) (citing VistaCare); Grant, Konvalinka & Harrison, PC v. Banks (In re McKenzie), 716 F.3d 404, 422 (6th Cir. 2013) (holding that abuse-of-discretion standard applies to Barton doctrine); Alexander v. Hedback, 718 F.3d 762 (8th Cir. 2013) (applying abuse-of-discretion standard to Barton doctrine).

C. Exculpation and Release

101. This Court’s January Order and July Order exculpated Seery from all claims except “those alleging willful misconduct and gross negligence.” (January Order ¶ 10; July Order ¶ 5.) The Plan’s exculpation provision also limited claims against Seery, in his role as an Independent Director, to those arising “from willful misconduct, criminal misconduct...or gross negligence.” (Plan Art. IV.D; Confirmation Order ¶¶ 72–73.) The Trust Agreement similarly limits claims against Seery to “fraud, willful misconduct, or gross negligence.” (Trust Agmt. § 8.1; see also id. §§ 8.3–8.4.) Thus, HMIT cannot assert claims other than those expressly permitted under these Orders and court-approved documents.

ARGUMENT

102. HMIT lacks standing to bring the derivative claims alleged in the Complaint (see infra Sections I–II), did not satisfy the procedural requirements to bring derivative claims (see infra Section III), and cannot bring derivative claims under the guise of direct claims (see infra Section IV). Even if HMIT could assert claims (which it cannot), they fail under any standard (see infra Section V).

I. HMIT Lacks Standing To Bring Derivative Claims Under Delaware Law.

103. HMIT acknowledges that any “fiduciary duties and claims involving breaches of those duties” with respect to HCMLP and the Claimant Trust are “governed by Delaware law” under the “Internal Affairs Doctrine.” (Motion ¶ 21 & n.24; see also Plan Art. XII.M (“corporate governance matters . . . shall be governed by the laws of the state of organization” of the respective entity)); Sagarra Inversiones, S.L. v. Cementos Portland Valderrivas, S.A., 34 A.3d 1074, 1081–82 (Del. 2011) (“In American corporation law, the internal affairs doctrine is a dominant and overarching choice of law principle.”). HMIT lacks standing to bring any such claims under Delaware law.

A. HMIT Lacks Standing To Bring Derivative Claims On Behalf Of The Trust.

104. The Trust is a Delaware statutory trust governed by the Delaware Statutory Trust Act, 12 Del. C. §§ 3801–29. (Compl. ¶ 26.) “[T]o proceed derivatively against a Delaware statutory trust, a plaintiff has the burden of satisfying the continuous ownership requirement” such that “the plaintiff must be a beneficial owner” continuously from “the time of the transaction of which the plaintiff complains” through “the time of bringing the action.” Hartsel v. Vanguard Grp., Inc., 2011 WL 2421003, at *19 n.123 (Del. Ch. June 15, 2011), aff’d 38 A.3d 1254 (Del. 2012); 12 Del C. § 3816(b). This requirement is “mandatory and exclusive” and only “a beneficial owner” “has standing to bring a derivative claim on behalf of the Trust.” In re Nat’l Coll. Student Loan Tr. Litig., 251 A.3d 116, 191 (Del. Ch. 2020) (citing CML V, LLC v. Bax, 28 A.3d 1037, 1042 (Del. 2011)).

105. HMIT is not a “beneficial owner” of the Trust and therefore lacks standing to bring derivative claims on its behalf. The “beneficial owners” of the Trust are the “Claimant Trust Beneficiaries.” (See Trust Agmt. § 2.8 (“The Claimant Trust Beneficiaries shall be the sole beneficiaries of the Claimant Trust . . .”).) The Claimant Trust Beneficiaries are “the Holders of Allowed General Unsecured Claims” and “Holders of Allowed Subordinated Claims.” (Plan Art. I.B.44; see also Trust Agmt. § 1.1(h).)<sup>34</sup> HMIT is neither. HMIT was an “equity holder in the

<sup>34</sup> (See Morris Dec. Ex. 1, Plan Art. I.B.44 (“‘Claimant Trust Beneficiaries’ means the Holders of Allowed General Unsecured Claims, Holders of Allowed Subordinated Claims, including, upon Allowance, Disputed General Unsecured Claims and Disputed Subordinated Claims that become Allowed following the Effective Date, and, only upon certification by the Claimant Trustee that the Holders of such Claims have been paid indefeasibly in full plus, to the extent all Allowed unsecured Claims, excluding Subordinated Claims, have been paid in full, post-petition interest from the Petition Date at the Federal Judgment Rate in accordance with the terms and conditions set forth in the Claimant Trust Agreement and all Disputed Claims in Class 8 and Class 9 have been resolved, Holders of Allowed Class B/C Limited Partnership Interests, and Holders of Allowed Class A Limited Partnership Interests.”); Trust Agmt. at 1 n.2 (“For the avoidance of doubt, and as set forth in the Plan, Holders of Class A Limited Partnership Interests and Class B/C Limited Partnership Interests will be Claimant Trust Beneficiaries only upon certification by the Claimant Trustee that the Holders of such Claims have been paid indefeasibly in full plus, to the extent applicable, post-petition interest in accordance with the terms and conditions set forth herein and in the Plan.”).)

Original Debtor” and now holds only an unvested “Contingent Trust Interest in the Claimant Trust.” (Compl. ¶ 24.) HMIT argues, without justification, that it “should be treated as a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary.” (Id.) But, under the Trust Agreement, “Contingent Trust Interests” “shall not have any rights under this Agreement” and will not “be deemed ‘Beneficiaries’ under this Agreement,” “unless and until” they vest in accordance with the Plan and Trust Agreement. (Trust Agmt. § 5.1(c).) Because it is undisputed that the Contingent Trust Interests have not vested, HMIT is not a “beneficial owner” and lacks standing to bring derivative claims under Delaware law. See Nat’l Coll., 251 A.3d at 190–92 (dismissing creditors’ derivative claims because they were not “beneficial owners of the Trusts”); Hartsel, 2011 WL 2421003, at *19 n.123 (dismissing derivative claims by investors that “no longer own shares” because “those investors no longer have standing to pursue a derivative claim”).<sup>35</sup>

B. HMIT Lacks Standing To Bring Derivative Claims On HCMLP’s Behalf.

106. Reorganized HCMLP is a Delaware a limited liability partnership governed by the Delaware Limited Partnership Act, 6 Del. C. § 17-101, et seq. (Compl. ¶ 25.) To bring “a derivative action” on behalf of a limited partnership, “the plaintiff must be a partner or an assignee of a partnership interest” continuously from “the time of the transaction of which the plaintiff complains” through “the time of bringing the action.” 6 Del. C. § 17-1002; see Tow v. Amegy Bank, N.A., 976 F. Supp. 2d 889, 904 (S.D. Tex. 2013) (“The [Delaware] partnership act facially bars any party other than a limited partner from suing derivatively. . . . Delaware courts historically have interpreted the provisions as giving the partners exclusive rights to sue for breach of another

<sup>35</sup> If HMIT were a Claimant Trust Beneficiary (which it is not), its claims must be brought in this Court and it has “waived any right to a trial jury.” (Trust Agmt. § 5.10(d).) HMIT would also be required to reimburse the Claimant Trustee and any member of the COB if its suit fails (id. § 5.10(b)), and this Court could require HMIT “to post a bond ensuring that the full costs of a legal defense can be reimbursed” (id. § 5.10(c)). The Highland Parties reserve the right to seek reimbursement and posting of a bond commensurate with the enormous burdens this litigation would impose.

party’s fiduciary duties to them.”) (quoting CML V, LLC v. Bax, 6 A.3d 238, 245 (Del. Ch. 2010), aff’d 28 A.3d 1037 (Del. 2011)); El Paso Pipeline GP Co. v. Brinckerhoff, 152 A.3d 1248, 1265 n.87 (Del. 2016) (“The statutory foundation for the continuous ownership requirement in the corporate realm is echoed in the limited partnership context.”) (citing 6 Del. C. § 17-211(h)).

107. HMIT is not a partner of reorganized HCMLP and therefore lacks standing to bring derivative claims on its behalf. “HMIT held a 99.5% limited partnership in Highland Capital Management, L.P., the Original Debtor.” (Compl. ¶ 6; see id. ¶¶ 12, 15, 24.) But that limited partnership interest was extinguished by the Plan on August 11, 2021 (the Effective Date of the Plan) and HMIT does not own any partnership interest in reorganized HCMLP. (Plan Art. IV.A.) Because HMIT would not hold a partnership interest at “the time of bringing the action,” it “lacks derivative standing” to bring claims “on the partnership’s behalf.” Tow, 976 F. Supp. 2d at 904 (dismissing derivative claims by creditor on behalf of partnership for lack of standing).

108. HMIT also cannot satisfy “the continuous ownership requirement.” When HMIT’s partnership interest was extinguished on the Plan’s Effective Date, HMIT “los[t] standing to continue a derivative suit” on behalf of the Debtor.<sup>36</sup> El Paso, 152 A.3d at 1265 (cleaned up) (dismissing derivative action for lack of standing where plaintiff’s partnership interest was extinguished by a merger transaction); see also Schmermerhorn v. CenturyTel, Inc. (In re SkyPort Global Commcn’s, Inc.), 2011 WL 111427, at *25–26 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Jan. 13, 2011) (holding that pre-petition shareholders “lack standing to bring a derivative claim” under Delaware law because they “had their equity interests in the company extinguished pursuant to the merger under the Plan”); In re WorldCom, Inc., 351 B.R. 130, 134 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2006) (“[T]he cancellation of WorldCom shares under the Plan ... prevents the required continuation of shareholder status through the litigation.”) (cleaned up).

C. HMIT Lacks Standing To Bring A “Double Derivative” Action.

109. “[A] double derivative suit is one brought by a shareholder of a parent corporation to enforce a claim belonging to a subsidiary that is either wholly owned or majority controlled.” Lambrecht v. O’Neal, 3 A.3d 277, 282 (Del. 2010). Under “Delaware’s ‘double derivative’ standing jurisprudence,” “parent level standing is required to enforce a subsidiary’s claim derivatively.” Sagarra, 34 A.3d at 1079–81 (capitalization omitted) (citing Lambrecht, 3 A.3d at 282).

110. To the extent HMIT seeks to bring a double derivative action on behalf of the Trust based on claims purportedly held by its wholly owned subsidiary, HCMLP, HMIT lacks standing. Because HMIT lacks derivative standing to bring claims on behalf of the parent Trust, it also lacks standing to bring a double derivative action. (See supra Section I.A.)

111. The Trust also lacks standing to bring these claims on behalf of HCMLP. The Claimant Trust received limited partnership interests in Highland on August 11, 2021, the Effective Date of the Plan. (See supra ¶ 79.) HMIT challenges trades that occurred in April and August 2021 (Compl. ¶ 41 & n.12), which predate the Effective Date of the Plan. Because the Trust did not hold limited partnership interests “[a]t the time of the transaction of which the plaintiff complains,” 6 Del. C. § 17-1002, it cannot bring a derivative action based on these trades, and HMIT lacks standing to bring a double derivative action.

II. HMIT Lacks Standing To Bring Derivative Claims Under Federal Bankruptcy Law.

112. HMIT ignores its inability to proceed derivatively under Delaware law and instead insists it has derivative standing as a matter of federal bankruptcy law. (Mot. ¶¶ 9–14.) HMIT also lacks derivative standing under federal bankruptcy law because (i) HMIT's lack of standing under Delaware law is dispositive regardless of forum, and (ii) HMIT, in any event, cannot meet the requirements for suing on behalf of a debtor under the federal bankruptcy case law it cites.

A. Federal Law Does Not Confer Standing Prohibited By Delaware Law.

113. HMIT's invocation of federal bankruptcy law cannot remedy HMIT's lack of derivative standing under Delaware law. HMIT cites Fed. R. Civ. P. 23.1, which "applies to this proceeding pursuant to" Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7023.1. (Mot. ¶ 10.) But Rule 23.1 "speaks only to the adequacy of the . . . pleadings," and "cannot be understood to 'abridge, enlarge, or modify any substantive right.'" Kamen v. Kemper Fin. Servs., Inc., 500 U.S. 90, 96 (1991) (quoting 28 U.S.C. § 2072(b)). Thus, the question of whether HMIT has a right to proceed derivatively is governed not by Rule 23.1, but by the "source and content of the substantive law" governing the requirements for derivative actions, which is Delaware law. Id. at 96–97.

114. HMIT's own authority (see Mot. ¶¶ 12–13) further supports that Delaware law governs the standing analysis and precludes HMIT's suit. Louisiana World Exposition v. Federal Insurance Co., 858 F.2d 233 (5th Cir. 1988), on which HMIT relies, "is the leading case from the Fifth Circuit . . . articulating when a creditors committee may be permitted standing to pursue estate causes of action." Reed v. Cooper (In re Cooper), 405 B.R. 801, 809 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009). To the extent Louisiana World applies post-Effective Date,<sup>37</sup> it does not supersede state law requirements for derivative standing. Before addressing the requirements a creditors' committee must meet to sue derivatively as a matter of federal bankruptcy law (discussed below), the Fifth Circuit conducted a lengthy analysis to determine "as a threshold issue" whether the creditors' committee in that case could assert its claims under Louisiana law. 858 F.2d at 236–45. The court specifically addressed whether the creditors’ committee could pursue a derivative action under Louisiana law and concluded that “there is no bar in Louisiana law to actions brought by or in the name of a corporation against the directors and officers of the corporation which benefit only the creditors of the corporation; indeed, Louisiana law specifically recognizes such actions.” Id. at 243. The opposite is equally true: where state law imposes such a bar, a creditor cannot flout that prohibition because it is in bankruptcy court. See In re Dura Automotive Sys., LLC, No. 19-123728 (Bankr. D. Del. June 10, 2020), Docket No. 1115 at 46 (“To determine that the third party may bring the claim under the derivative basis and, thus, step into the shoes of the debtor to pursue them, the Court must look to the law of the debtors’ state of incorporation or formation.”) (denying creditors’ committee standing to sue derivatively on behalf of a Delaware LLC because the committee lacked standing under the Delaware LLC Act).

<sup>37</sup> Louisiana World, in certain circumstances, allows creditors to "file suit on behalf of a debtor-in-possession or a [bankruptcy] trustee." La. World, 858 F.2d at 247. HCMLP is no longer a debtor-in-possession; it has been reorganized.

115. Because HMIT lacks standing to bring derivative claims under Delaware law (see supra Section I), it cannot satisfy the “threshold issue” to proceed derivatively, whether in state or federal court.

B. HMIT Cannot Meet The Louisiana World Standard Governing Derivative Actions By Creditors In Bankruptcy.

116. Even if Delaware law did not preclude HMIT from suing derivatively (it does), HMIT still would lack standing under federal bankruptcy law. Under Fifth Circuit precedent, a bankruptcy court may authorize a creditor to proceed derivatively only if: (i) the creditor’s claims are “colorable”; (ii) the trustee or debtor-in-possession “refused unjustifiably to pursue the claim”; and (iii) the creditor “first receive[d] leave to sue from the bankruptcy court.” La. World, 858 F.2d at 247; see also, e.g., PW Enters., 540 F.3d at 899 (same). “These requirements ensure that derivative standing does not risk interfering with the debtor or trustee and prevents creditors from pursuing weak claims.” In re On-Site Fuel Serv., Inc., 2020 WL 3703004, at *9 (Bankr. S.D. Miss. May 8, 2020). HMIT does not and cannot satisfy these requirements.

117. HMIT focuses solely on the first of these three requirements—asserting that its claims are “colorable.” (See Mot. ¶¶ 12–14, 38–42; Objs. ¶¶ 3–4, 7–15; Supp. Mot. ¶ 13.) Even if HMIT could satisfy the “colorable claim” requirement under Louisiana World, which it cannot (see infra Section V), it does not even try to satisfy the second requirement—that Highland “refused unjustifiably to pursue the claim”—because it cannot.

118. To assess whether a debtor’s refusal was unjustified, courts “must look to whether the interests of creditors were left unprotected as a result” by conducting a “cost-benefit analysis” that takes into account whether the potential action is “valid and profitable.” La. World, 858 F.2d at 253 n.20; see also Reed, 405 B.R. at 810 (same); Canadian Pac., 66 F.3d at 1442 (“[I]f a creditor pleads facts to support the conclusion that it has a colorable claim . . . and if the bankruptcy court finds that the claim will likely benefit the estate based on a cost-benefit analysis, then the creditor has raised a rebuttable presumption that the debtor-in-possession’s failure to bring that claim is unjustified.”). This requirement is not easily met. Under HMIT’s own authority (see Mot. ¶ 40) “the real challenge for the creditor will be to persuade the bankruptcy court that the trustee unjustifiably refuses to bring its claim.” PW Enters., 540 F.3d at 900. As the Eighth Circuit explained:

To satisfy its burden, the creditor, at a minimum, must provide the bankruptcy court with specific reasons why it believes the trustee’s refusal is unjustified. A creditor thus does not meet its burden with a naked assertion that ‘the trustee’s refusal is unjustified.’ . . . The creditor, not the bankruptcy court, has the onus of establishing the trustee unjustifiably refuses to bring the creditor’s claim.

Id. (emphasis in original).

119. In conducting the “cost/benefit” analysis required to determine if a debtor’s refusal to sue is unjustified, courts consider (i) the probability of success on the claims and the financial recovery to the estate, (ii) the proposed cost of the litigation, and (iii) the delay and expense of bringing the litigation. PW Enters., 540 F.3d at 901; see also Official Comm., 225 B.R. at 282 (“The mandated cost/benefit analysis involves the weighing of the probability of success and financial recovery, whether it is preferable to appoint a trustee to bring suit instead of the creditors’ committee, and ‘the terms relative to attorneys’ fees on which suit might be brought.’”) (quoting In re STN Enterps., 779 F.2d 901, 905 (2d Cir. 1985)). A creditor seeking to proceed derivatively must establish “a sufficient likelihood of success” to “justify the anticipated delay and expense to the bankruptcy estate that the initiation and continuation of litigation will likely produce.” Official Comm., 225 B.R. at 282 (quoting STN, 779 F.2d at 906. If the creditor carries its burden, it shifts to the debtor to refute by a preponderance of the evidence. PW Enters., 540 F.3 at 900 n.9; Canadian Pac., 66 F.3d at 1442; see also La. World, 858 F.2d at 248 n.15 (noting that an “evidentiary hearing was unnecessary under the circumstances,” where the debtor-in-possession’s officers and directors “neither refuted any of the Committee’s claims nor objected to them”).

120. HMIT does not even attempt to meet its burden to establish that HCMLP or the Trust unjustifiably refused to pursue HMIT’s claims, or to present facts to enable the Court to conduct a cost-benefit analysis and conclude that HMIT’s proposed claims are “valid and profitable.” La. World, 858 F.2d at 253 n.20. Under HMIT’s own authority (see Mot. ¶¶ 39–41), courts permitted creditors to sue derivatively on behalf of debtors only after conducting such an evidentiary analysis. For example, in Louisiana World, the court found that “the Committee demonstrated”—and the debtor-in-possession did not “refute[]” or “rebut[]”—“the existence of a potential cause of action, a demand on the debtor-in-possession, a refusal or inability on the part of the debtor-in-possession to bring suit, the possibility of a sizeable monetary recovery and, given the contingent nature of the attorney’s fee schedule, a limited cost factor.” 858 F.2d at 248 n.15.

121. Here, as discussed at length above, the evidence shows that HMIT’s “claims” are spurious, would be a waste of time, money, and effort, and have no purpose but to further Dondero’s crusade to burn Highland down, and make good on his explicit threat against Seery. (See supra ¶¶ 8–85.)

122. HMIT’s vague assertion that the COB has “conflicts of interest” does not excuse HMIT from having to ask HCMLP and/or the Trust to pursue HMIT’s alleged claims or from proving that any refusal to do so was “unjustified.” (Mot. ¶¶ 12–14.) In Louisiana World, the court conducted the cost-benefit analysis even though the directors and officers of the debtor-in-possession were conflicted. La. World, 858 F.2d at 234.<sup>38</sup>

C. HMIT Lacks Standing To Bring Derivative Claims Challenging Pre-Confirmation Conduct.

123. “When a Chapter 11 plan is confirmed,” the debtor loses “its authority to pursue claims as through it were trustee,” unless it makes a “specific and unequivocal” “reservation of claims.” Wooley v. Haynes & Boone, L.L.P. (In re SI Restructuring, Inc.), 714 F.3d 860, 864 (5th Cir. 2013) (cleaned up; collecting cases). “Without an effective reservation, the debtor has no standing to pursue a claim that the estate owned before it was dissolved.” Id. (cleaned up).

124. HCMLP did not reserve any claims against Seery or any other Proposed Defendant. (Docket No. 1875-3.) Therefore, neither HCMLP nor the Trust has standing to bring claims against Seery based on conduct occurring before August 11, 2021, the Effective Date of the Plan. Wooley, 714 F.3d at 864. Because HMIT seeks to bring derivative claims on behalf of both HCMLP and

<sup>38</sup> Moreover, HMIT did not ask the COB’s independent member to pursue its proposed “claims,” even though the independent member is empowered to make decisions on behalf of the COB if the other members are conflicted. (Trust Agmt. § 4.6(c).)

the Trust, HMIT's "standing is contingent upon" HCMLP's and the Trust's standing." Id. ("[A] creditor can derive standing to bring a debtor's claim only if the debtor itself could bring the claim."). HMIT therefore lacks standing to challenge any pre-confirmation conduct. Other than the "success fee" portion of Seery's compensation, every single allegation against Seery, including the alleged breaches of fiduciary duties, is based on pre-effective date conduct.<sup>39</sup>

III. HMIT Did Not Satisfy The Procedural Requirements To Bring A Derivative Action.

A. HMIT Failed To Include The Litigation Trust As A Party.

125. It is settled law that "[a]n action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest." Fed. R. Civ. P. 17(a); see BCC Merch. Sols., Inc. v. Jet Pay, LLC, 129 F. Supp. 3d 440, 450 (N.D. Tex. 2015) ("The Rule 17(a) requirement is in essence a codification of the prudential standing requirement that a litigant cannot sue in federal court to enforce the rights of third parties.") (cleaned up; collecting cases). "The real party in interest is the person with the right to sue under substantive law, and the determination whether one is the real party in interest with respect to a particular claim is based on the controlling state or federal substantive laws." BCC, 129 F. Supp. 3d at 453 (cleaned up; collecting cases).

126. HMIT seeks to bring a "derivative action benefitting and on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor [HCMLP] and the [] Claimant Trust." (Compl. ¶¶ 1, 11.) But the Claimant Trustee transferred to the Litigation Trust "any and all Causes of Action," with limited exceptions not relevant here. (See supra ¶ 89.) The Litigation Trust is therefore the "real party in interest,"

<sup>39</sup> The movant in Wooley also alleged that (i) the complained-of breaches of fiduciary duty were kept "secret," (ii) the movant did not discover the claims until after confirmation, and (iii) it would therefore be inequitable to preclude its lawsuits. 714 F.3d at 865–66. The Fifth Circuit denied standing, notwithstanding later discovered "facts," because "[a]llowing [movant] to assert these claims simply because some of the underlying facts were unknown at the time the Plan was confirmed would be inconsistent with the 'nature of a bankruptcy which is designed primarily to secure prompt, effective administration and settlement of all debtor's assets and liabilities within a limited time.'" Id. at 866. Here, HMIT had knowledge of at least some of the "facts," including Dondero's alleged disclosure of MGM's inside information to Seery, before confirmation and did not object.

and HMIT lacks prudential standing to bring derivative claims on behalf of Highland. See, e.g., BlackRock Allocation Target Shares: Series S Portfolio v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 247 F. Supp. 3d 377, 414–15 (S.D.N.Y. 2017) (holding that plaintiff “lacks standing to bring a derivative claim against Defendant” because it “transferred all rights to such claim”).

127. The Litigation Trust is likewise “an indispensable party to a [beneficiary’s] derivative suit,” so HMIT cannot bring a derivative action without including the Litigation Trust. Schwab v. Oscar (In re SII Liquidation Co.), 2012 WL 4327055, at *8 (Bankr. S.D. Ohio Sept. 20, 2012) (cleaned up) (dismissing derivative action); see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 19(a)(1) (requiring joinder of indispensable party); Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7019; Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(7) (permitting dismissal for “failure to join a party under Rule 19”); Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7012(b).

128. HMIT’s footnoted assertion that it “seeks standing to bring this action as a derivative action on behalf of the Litigation Sub-Trust” (Compl. ¶ 1 n.1) fails because, as discussed above, HMIT lacks standing to bring such “double derivative” claims (see supra Section I.C). The Litigation Trust is wholly owned by the Trust and, as matter of Delaware law, HMIT must demonstrate “parent level standing” to bring a “double derivative” claim that belongs to the Litigation Trust. Sagarra, 34 A.3d at 1079–81; Lambrecht, 3 A.3d at 282. Because HMIT lacks standing to bring a derivative claim on behalf of the Trust (see supra Section I.A), it also lacks standing to bring a double derivative claim.

B. HMIT Failed To Make Any Demand To The Litigation Trustee And Fails To Plead Demand Futility With Particularity.

129. HMIT’s failure to include the Litigation Trust as a party was no accident. The Litigation Trust is a Delaware statutory trust and wholly-owned subsidiary of the Trust. (Litigation Sub-Trust Agmt. § 1.1(e).) Even if HMIT had standing under Delaware law to bring a derivative action on behalf of the Litigation Trust, which it does not (see supra ¶ 128), HMIT can proceed derivatively only “if (i) [HMIT] demanded that the [Trustee] pursue the corporate claim and [he] wrongfully refused to do so or (ii) demand is excused because the [Trustee is] incapable of making an impartial decision regarding the litigation.” United Food & Comm. Workers Union v. Zuckerberg, 250 A.3d 862, 876 (Del. Ch. 2020) (collecting cases). Accordingly, to allege a derivative action under Rule 23.1, which HMIT claims governs (see Compl. ¶ 6), HMIT must “state with particularity: (A) any effort by the plaintiff to obtain the desired action from the directors or comparable authority and, if necessary, from the shareholders or members; and (B) the reasons for not obtaining the action or not making the effort.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23.1(b)(3); Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7023.1. HMIT failed to do so.

130. This Court approved Marc Kirschner (“Kirschner”) as Litigation Trustee. (Confirmation Order ¶ 45; see also Morris Dec. Ex. 44 (the “Litigation Sub-Trust Agreement”) § 1.1(r).) HMIT admits that it did not make any effort to make a pre-filing demand to Kirschner regarding this action. (Compl. ¶ 1 n.1.) Instead, HMIT asserts that “[a]ny demand on the Litigation Sub-Trust would be [] futile” because “the Litigation Trustee serves at the direction of the Oversight Board.” (Id. ¶ 1 n.1; Mot. ¶ 11 n.13.) This conclusory assertion does not allege a single fact casting “reasonable doubt” on Kirschner’s objectivity or showing that he was “dominate[d]” by interested parties, let alone with particularity. Zuckerberg, 250 A.3d at 877–91 (surveying Delaware demand futility law); (Mot. ¶ 11).<sup>40</sup> Because HMIT has not satisfied either the demand requirement or demand futility, it cannot bring a derivative action. See, e.g., Zuckerberg, 250 A.3d at 900–901 (granting “motion to dismiss under Rule 23.1”); In re Six Flags Ent. Corp. Deriv. Litig., 2021 WL 1662466, at *8 (N.D. Tex. Apr. 28, 2021) (dismissing derivative action with prejudice for failure to plead demand futility under Delaware law “under Rule 23.1’s heightened standard”).

<sup>40</sup> As discussed supra note 38, HMIT also does not explain its failure to make any pre-filing demand to the independent member of the COB, who it does not allege is conflicted. (Compl. ¶ 10.)

C. HMIT Cannot “Fairly And Adequately” Represent The Interests of Claimant Trust Beneficiaries.

131. Rule 23.1 provides that a “derivative action may not be maintained if it appears that the plaintiff does not fairly and adequately represent the interests of shareholders or members who are similarly situated in enforcing the right of the corporation or association.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23.1(a); Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7023.1. To be an adequate representative, “a plaintiff in a [] derivative action must not have ulterior motives and must not be pursuing an external personal agenda.” Energytec, Inc. v. Proctor, 2008 WL 4131257, at *6 (N.D. Tex. Aug. 29, 2008) (cleaned up) (quoting Smith v. Ayres, 977 F.2d 946, 949 (5th Cir. 1992)). To determine adequacy, courts evaluate, inter alia, “economic antagonisms between representative and class,” “other litigation pending between the plaintiff and defendants,” “plaintiff’s vindictiveness towards the defendant,” and “the degree of support plaintiff was receiving from the [beneficiaries] he purported to represent.” Id. *6–7 (quoting Davis v. Comed, Inc., 619 F.2d 588, 593–94 (6th Cir. 1980)).

132. HMIT is an inadequate representative. HMIT is effectively controlled by Dondero, and the Plan recognizes HMIT as a Dondero Related Entity (Plan Art. I.B.110). This Court found that “Mr. Dondero and the Dondero Related Entities have harassed the Debtor,” including with “substantial, costly, and time-consuming litigation.” (Confirmation Order ¶ 77.) This Court also found that Dondero threatened to “burn down the place” if he did not get his way and that “Mr. Dondero and his related entities,” including HMIT, “will likely commence litigation against the Protected Parties,” including Seery. (Id. ¶ 78.) This Court has even referred to Dondero as an “antagonist” whose conduct has made this bankruptcy “contentious, protracted, and unpleasant,” and akin to a “corporate divorce.” In re Highland Cap. Mgmt., L.P., 2021 WL 2326350, at *1, *25

(Bankr. N.D. Tex. June 7, 2021) (holding Dondero in “civil contempt of court”). The Fifth Circuit similarly recognized that Dondero and his related entities sought to “frustrate the proceedings by objecting to settlements, appealing orders, seeking writs of mandamus, interfering with Highland Capital’s management, threatening employees, and canceling trades between Highland Capital and its clients.” NexPoint, 48 F.4th at 426; see also id. at 427–28. Dondero’s own written threats confirm these findings: “Be careful what you do -- last warning.” (See supra ¶ 25.) Dondero-controlled HMIT is pursuing this derivative action for “ulterior motives” of “antagonism” and “vindictiveness,” cannot “fairly and adequately the interests” of the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries, and should be not be permitted to “bring a derivative suit on their behalf.” Energytec, 2008 WL 4131257, at *6–7 (dismissing derivative action by former CEO on adequacy grounds because he sought to “revers[e] the events leading to his removal” and was in litigation with other shareholders).<sup>41</sup>

IV. HMIT Has No Direct Claims Against The Highland Parties.

133. Throughout its Motion and Complaint, HMIT makes vague references to unspecified direct claims against the Proposed Defendants. (See, e.g., Motion ¶ 10 (“HMIT has individual standing to bring this action because Seery owed fiduciary duties directly to HMIT at that time . . . .”); id. ¶ 67 (arguing that “HMIT has [d]irect [s]tanding”); Compl. ¶ 24 (“HMIT has constitutional standing and capacity to bring these claims both individually and derivatively.”).) But “a claim is not ‘direct’ simply because it is pleaded that way.” Schmermerhorn, 2011 WL 111427, at *26 (quoting Gatz v. Ponsoldt, 2004 WL 3029868 at *7 (Del. Ch. Nov. 5, 2004)). “Fifth

<sup>41</sup> HMIT and Dondero also have a “personal economic interest” and other claimants “do not share this interest.” Energytec, 2008 WL 4131257, at *7. Specifically, HMIT has asserted in another proceeding that Highland has sufficient assets “to pay class 8 and class 9 creditors 100 cents on the dollar.” (Docket No. 3662 ¶ 5.) If true, HMIT’s proposed claims will benefit only HMIT and, potentially, The Dugaboy Investment Trust (controlled by Dondero) and Mark Okada (HCMLP’s co-founder) as the holders of Class 11 interests. Proposed Defendants reserve the right to contest HMIT’s assertion.

Circuit precedent [] dictates that,” to determine whether claims are direct or derivative, “this Court look at the substance of the Petition, and the nature of the wrongs alleged therein, rather than the Plaintiffs’ characterization.” Id. (citing Armstrong v. Capshaw, Goss & Bowers LLP, 404 F.3d 933, 936 (5th Cir. 2005)).

134. Under Delaware law, “whether a claim is solely derivative or may continue as a dual-natured claim ‘must turn solely on the following questions: (1) who suffered the alleged harm (the corporation or the suing stockholders, individually); and (2) who would receive the benefit of any recovery or other remedy (the corporation or the stockholders, individually)?” El Paso, 152 A.3d at 1260 (quoting Tooley v. Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette, Inc., 845 A.2d 1031, 1033 (Del. 2004)) (emphasis in original). “In addition, to prove that a claim is direct, a plaintiff ‘must demonstrate that the duty breached was owed to the stockholder and that he or she can prevail without showing an injury to the corporation.’” Id. (quoting Tooley, 845 A.2d at 1033); see also Schmermerhorn, 2011 WL 111427, at *24 (same).

135. Similarly, in the bankruptcy context, “[i]f the harm to the creditor comes about only because of harm to the debtor, then its injury is derivative, and the claim is property of the estate.” Meridian Cap. CIS Fund v. Burton (In re Buccaneer Res., L.L.C.), 912 F.3d 291, 293 (5th Cir. 2019) (citing 11 U.S.C. § 541(a)(1)). “In that situation, only the bankruptcy trustee has standing to pursue the claim for the estate . . . .” Id. “To pursue a claim on its own behalf, a creditor must show this direct injury is not dependent on injury to the estate.” Id.

136. Even if HMIT had viable claims (it does not), they would be derivative, not direct, under both Delaware law and federal bankruptcy law. HMIT argues that the Proposed Defendants’ “alleged actions devalued HMIT’s interest in the Debtor’s Estate, including, without limitation, payment of excessive compensation to Seery.” (Mot. ¶ 67.) Thus, by its own admission, any alleged harm to HMIT “comes about only because of harm to the debtor,” so the alleged “injury is derivative.” Meridian, 912 F.3d at 293–94 (“The creditors’ injury (reduced bankruptcy recovery) derived from injury to the debtor (the loss of estate assets), so only the estate could sue the third parties.”); see also El Paso, 152 A.3d at 1260–61 & n.60 (holding that claim “claims of corporate overpayment are normally treated as causing harm solely to the corporation and, thus, are regarded as derivative”) (collecting cases); Gerber v EPE Holdings, LLC, 2013 WL 209658, at *12 (Del. Ch. Jan. 18, 2013) (holding that claims were derivative because plaintiff had “not identified any independent harm suffered by the limited partners”; “the partnership suffered all the harm at issue—it paid too much”).

137. HMIT’s reliance on Pike v. Texas EMC Management, LLC, 610 S.W.3d 763 (Tex. 2020), is misplaced. The fact that “a partner or other stakeholder in a business organization has constitutional standing to sue for an alleged loss in the value of its interest in the organization” (Mot. ¶ 67 (quoting Pike, 610 S.W.3d at 778) (emphasis added)) is irrelevant. As the Court explained, it is “the statutory provisions that define and limit a stakeholder’s ability to recover certain measures of damages, which protect the organization’s status as a separate and independent entity,” and therefore considered the matter under Texas partnership law. Pike, 610 S.W.3d at 778–79. Here, HMIT admits that both the Trust and HCMLP are governed by Delaware law, which does not recognize any direct (or derivative) claims by HMIT.

138. Even assuming, arguendo, that HMIT could bring direct claims (it cannot), the Highland Parties cannot be held liable for them. “Under the Delaware Statutory Trust Act, ‘a trustee, when acting in such capacity, shall not be personally liable to any person other than the statutory trust or a beneficial owner for any act, omission or obligation of the statutory trust or any trustee thereof’ except ‘to the extent otherwise provided’ by the trust’s governing document.”

Athene Life & Annuity Co. v. Am. Gen. Life Ins. Co., 2020 WL 2521557, at *8 (Del. Super. May 18, 2020) (quoting 12 Del C. §§ 3803(b)–(c)). The Trust Agreement likewise limits “personal liability” “to the fullest extent provided under Section 8303 of the Delaware Statutory Trust Act.” (Trust Agmt. § 8.3.) Because, as discussed above, HMIT is not a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust (see supra Section I.A), it cannot bring direct claims against Proposed Defendants under Delaware law.

V. HMIT’s Proposed Complaint Fails To Plausibly Allege Any Claims Against The Proposed Defendants.

139. Because HMIT lacks standing, this Court need not reach the merits of HMIT’s proposed Adversary Complaint. As a matter of judicial economy, however, the Highland Parties respectfully request that this Court address the lack of merit as an alternative basis to deny the Motion. HMIT fails to adequately allege its claims under any standard. HMIT’s claims are not colorable because they lack foundation, and HMIT’s “[t]hreadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory statements,” fail to “[c]ross the line from conceivable to plausible.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 679–80 (2009) (quoting Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555, 570 (2007)).

A. HMIT Does Not Adequately Allege Any Breach Of Fiduciary Duties (Count I).

140. HMIT alleges that Seery breached his fiduciary duties (i) “[b]y disclosing material non-public information to Stonehill and Farallon” before their purchase of certain Highland claims, and (ii) by receiving “compensation paid to him under the terms of the [Trust Agreement] since the Effective Date of the Plan in August 2021.” (Compl. ¶¶ 64–67.) Under Delaware law, which HMIT admits governs (see Mot. ¶ 21 n.24), “[t]o bring a claim for breach of fiduciary duty, a plaintiff must allege ‘(1) that a fiduciary duty existed and (2) that the defendant breached that duty.’” Brooks v. United Dev. Funding III, L.P., 2020 WL 6132230, at *30 (N.D. Tex. Apr. 15, 2020) (quoting Joseph C. Bamford & Young Min Ban v. Penfold, L.P., 2020 WL 967942, at *8 (Del. Ch. Feb. 28, 2020)). HMIT fails to plausibly allege either element.

141. First, HMIT’s “legal conclusion[]” that Seery “owed fiduciary duties to HMIT, as equity, and to the Debtor’s Estate” (Compl. ¶ 63) “do[es] not suffice” to plausibly allege the existence of any actionable fiduciary relationship. Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678 (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555). Officers and directors generally owe fiduciary duties only to the entity and its stakeholders as a whole, not to individual shareholders. See Gilbert v El Paso Co., 1988 WL 124325, at *9 (Del. Ch. Nov. 21, 1988) (“[D]irectors’ fiduciary duty runs to the corporation and to the entire body of shareholders generally, as opposed to specific shareholders or shareholder subgroups.”) aff’d, 575 A.2d 1131 (Del. 1990); Klaassen v Allegro Dev. Corp., 2013 WL 5967028, at *11 (Del. Ch. Nov. 7, 2013) (same). Because Seery did not owe any “duty” to HMIT directly and individually, the Complaint fails to state a claim for breach of fiduciary duty to HMIT.

142. Second, to the extent Seery owed any fiduciary duties to HMIT or the Debtor, he did not breach them by allegedly communicating with Farallon and Stonehill. (See Compl. ¶ 64.) As this Court recognized, “claims trading in bankruptcy is [] pretty unregulated—it’s just kind of between the claims trader and the transferee.” (Morris Dec. Ex. 43 at 53:6–7.) In fact, this Court recognized that “for decades now, since a rule change in the last century, no court approval and order is necessary unless the transferor objects.” (Morris Dec. Ex. 6 at 20); see also Aaron L. Hammer & Michael A. Brandess, Claims Trading: The Wild West of Chapter 11s, 29 Am. Bankr. Inst. J. 61 (July/Aug. 2010) (“In 1991, Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(e) was amended to limit the court’s oversight on claims trading” such that “only the transferor may object to a transfer.”) (quoting Michael H. Whitaker, Regulating Claims Trading in Chapter 11 Bankruptcies: A Proposal for Mandatory Disclosure, 3 Cornell J.L. & Pub. Pol’y 303, 320 (1994)). Because none of the transferors objected to the claims trades at issue, Seery's alleged actions in connection with them cannot constitute a breach of any fiduciary duties.

143. Third, HMIT's "conclusory allegations" and "legal conclusions" are "purely speculative, devoid of factual support," and therefore "stop[] short of the line between possibility and plausibility of entitlement to relief." Reed v. Linehan (In re Soporex, Inc.), 463 B.R. 344, 367, 386 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2011) (cleaned up). As to Seery's discussions with Farallon and Stonehill, HMIT asserts that Seery "disclose[d] material non-public information to Stonehill and Farallon," and they "acted on inside information and Seery's secret assurances of great profits." (Compl. ¶¶ 3, 64; see also id. ¶¶ 13–14, 40, 47, 50.) HMIT never alleges when any of these purported communications occurred, what material non-public information Seery provided, or what "assurances" he made. The few facts HMIT provides contradict its own allegations. The only purportedly "material non-public information" identified is the Complaint is the MGM E-Mail Dondero sent to Seery containing "information regarding Amazon and Apple's interest in acquiring MGM." (Compl. ¶ 45.) This information was widely reported in the financial press at the time (see supra ¶¶ 30–37), so it cannot constitute material non-public information as a matter of law. See, e.g., SEC v. Cuban, 2013 WL 791405, at *10–11 (N.D. Tex. Mar. 5, 2013) (holding that information is not "material, nonpublic information" and "'becomes public when disclosed to achieve a broad dissemination to the investing public'" (quoting SEC v. Mayhew, 121 F.3d 44, 50 (2d Cir. 1997))). HMIT asserts that Farallon and Stonehill's purchases "made no sense" without access to "material non-public information." (Compl. ¶¶ 3, 50.) But HMIT admits that Farallon and Stonehill purchased Highland claims at discounts of 43% to 65% to their allowed amounts, so they would therefore receive at least an 18% return based on publicly available estimates in Highland's Court-approved Disclosure Statement. (Id. ¶¶ 3, 37, 42.)

144. As to Seery’s compensation, HMIT asserts that it was “excessive,” and speculates that compensation negotiations between Seery and the COB “were not arm’s-length.” (Compl. ¶¶ 4, 13, 54, 74.) But HMIT does not say one word about the process for negotiating and approving Seery’s compensation. Nor does HMIT allege what Seery’s compensation actually is, let alone compare it to others’ compensation to show that it is “excessive.” HMIT’s assertion that Seery’s compensation package was initially “composed of a flat monthly pay” but now “is also performance based” (id. ¶ 4) is wrong and contradicted by Court-approved documents. The structure of Seery’s post-effective date compensation, which includes a “Base Salary,” “success fee,” and “severance,” was fully disclosed in the Trust Agreement, which was publicly filed in advance of the Plan confirmation hearing and approved by this Court and the Fifth Circuit as part of the Plan (see supra ¶¶ 78–79).

145. Thus, HMIT fails to allege facts that, even if true (and they are not), support a reasonable inference that Mr. Seery breached his fiduciary duty to HMIT or the estate as a result of bad faith, self-interest, or other intentional misconduct rising to the level of a breach of the duty of loyalty. See Pfeffer v. Redstone, 965 A.2d 676, 690 (Del. 2009) (dismissing claim for breach of duty of loyalty against a director where “conclusory allegations” failed to give rise to inference that director failed to perform fiduciary duties); McMillan v. Intercargo Corp., 768 A.2d 492, 507 (Del. Ch. 2000) (dismissing claim for breach of fiduciary duty where “[a]lthough the complaint makes the conclusory allegation that the defendants breached their duty of disclosure in a ‘bad faith and knowing manner,’ no facts pled in the complaint buttress that accusation.”)

B. HMIT’s Theories Of Secondary Liability Fail (Counts II and III).

146. HMIT seeks to hold Proposed Defendants secondarily liable for Seery’s alleged breach of fiduciaries duties on an aid/abet theory (Compl. ¶¶ 69–74) and conspiracy theory of liability (id. ¶¶ 75–81). As a threshold matter, HMIT has not plausibly alleged any primary breach of fiduciary duties, so it cannot pursue secondary liability for the same alleged wrongdoing. See English v. Narang, 2019 WL 1300855, at *14 (Del. Ch. Mar. 20, 2019) (“As a matter of law and logic, there cannot be secondary liability for aiding and abetting an alleged harm in the absence of primary liability.”) (cleaned up; collecting cases); Hill v. Keliher, 2022 WL 213978, at *10 (Tex. App. Jan. 25, 2022) (“[A] defendant’s liability for conspiracy depends on participation in some underlying tort for which the plaintiff seeks to hold at least one of the named defendants liable.”) (quoting Tilton v. Marshall, 925 S.W.2d 672, 681 (Tex. 1996)).<sup>42</sup>

147. Even if HMIT could pursue secondary liability, it has not plausibly alleged any civil conspiracy. Under Texas law, “civil conspiracy is a theory of vicarious liability and not an independent tort.” Agar Corp., Inc. v. Electro Circuits Int’l, LLC, 580 S.W.3d 136, 142 (Tex. 2019). “[T]he elements of civil conspiracy [are] “(1) two or more persons; (2) an object to be accomplished; (3) a meeting of minds on the object or course of action; (4) one or more unlawful, overt acts; and (5) damages as the proximate result.” Id. at 141 (cleaned up).

148. HMIT has not plausibly alleged any “meeting of the minds.” HMIT asserts that “Defendants conspired with each other to unlawfully breach fiduciary duties” (Compl. ¶ 76), which is precisely the sort of “legal conclusion” the Supreme Court held is “not entitled to the assumption of truth.” Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 680 (citing Twombly, 555 U.S. at 565–66). HMIT repeats four times that Seery provided information to Farallon and Stonehill as a “as a quid pro quo” for “additional compensation” (Compl. ¶ 77; see also id. ¶¶ 4, 47, 74), but never provides

<sup>42</sup> Because HMIT breach of fiduciary duty claim is governed by Delaware law, its aid/abet theory of liability is also governed by Delaware law. See Xtreme Power Plan Tr. v. Schindler (In re Xtreme Power), 563 B.R. 614, 632, 645 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 2016) (applying Delaware law to claim for aiding and abetting breach of fiduciary duty involving Delaware corporation headquartered in Texas); By contrast, “conspiracy is not an internal affair” or a matter of corporate governance, so it is governed by Texas law under the Plan. Klinek v. LuxeYard, Inc., 596 S.W.3d 437, 450 n.9 (Tex. App. – Houston [14th Dist.] 2020) (applying Delaware law to fiduciary duty claim and Texas law to conspiracy theory); (Plan Art. XII.M).

“nonconclusory factual allegations” in support. Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 680 (citing Twombly, 550 U.S. at 565–66). HMIT vaguely alleges “upon information and belief” that Seery “did business with Farallon” and “served on [a] creditors committee” with Stonehill. (Compl. ¶ 48.) HMIT also asserts “[u]pon information and belief” that Farallon “conducted no due diligence but relied on Seery’s profit guarantees.” (Id. ¶ 40.) These allegations “upon information belief” are “wholly speculative and conclusory,” and therefore do “not satisfy the pleading requirements under Rule 8(a).” Hargrove v. WMC Mortg. Corp., 2008 WL 4056292, at *3 (S.D. Tex. Aug. 29, 2008) (citing Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555).

C. HMIT Seeks Remedies That Are Not Available As A Matter Of Law (Counts IV, V, and VI).

149. HMIT seeks a grab bag of unavailable remedies, including (1) equitable disallowance (Compl. ¶¶ 82–87), (2) unjust enrichment (id. ¶¶ 88–94), (3) declaratory relief (id. ¶¶ 95–99), (4) punitive damages (id. ¶¶ 100–01), and (5) equitable tolling (id. ¶¶ 103–08), several of which are incorrectly pleaded as causes of action. None of these remedies are available under applicable law.

150. First, Seery does not have any bankruptcy claims that can be subordinated or disallowed. (Id. ¶¶ 82–87.) In any event, the Fifth Circuit has expressly rejected equitable disallowance as remedy available under the Bankruptcy Code. See SED Holdings, LLC v. 3 Star Props., LLC, 2019 WL 13192236, at *2 (S.D. Tex. Sept. 11, 2019) (“[T]he claim may only be subordinated, but not disallowed.”) (citing Benjamin v. Diamond (In re Mobile Steel Co.), 563 F.2d 692, 699 (5th Cir. 1977)); see also In re Lightsquared Inc., 504 B.R. 321, 339–40 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2013) (“[T]he Bankruptcy Code, pursuant to section 510(c) or otherwise, does not permit equitable disallowance of claims that are otherwise allowable under section 502(b).”) (citing Mobile Steel, 563 F.2d at 699 n.10).

151. Second, under Texas law, “[u]njust enrichment is not an independent cause of action but rather characterizes the result of a failure to make restitution of benefits either wrongfully or passively received under circumstances which give rise to an implied or quasi-contractual obligation to repay.” Taylor v. Trevino, 569 F. Supp. 3d 414, 435 (N.D. Tex. 2021) (cleaned up); see also Yowell v. Granite Operating Co., 630 S.W.3d 566, 578 (Tex. App. 2021) (same).<sup>43</sup> Thus, “when a valid, express contract covers the subject matter of the parties’ dispute, there can be no recovery under a quasi-contract theory.” Taylor, 569 F. Supp. 3d at 435 (quoting Fortune Prod. Co. v. Conoco, Inc., 52 S.W.3d 671, 684 (Tex. 2000)). Here, Seery’s compensation is governed by express agreements (see supra ¶¶ 78–79), so unjust enrichment is unavailable as a theory of recovery.

152. Third, HMIT brings “claims for declaratory relief, but a request for declaratory relief is not an independent cause of action, [and] in the absence of any underlying viable claims such relief is unavailable.” Green v. Wells Fargo Home Mtg., 2016 WL 3746276, at *2 (S.D. Tex. June 7, 2016) (citing Collins Cnty., Texas v. Homeowners Ass’n for Values Essential to Neighborhoods, 915 F.2d 167, 170–71 (5th Cir. 1990)).

153. Fourth, HMIT has no basis to seek punitive damages. HMIT abandoned its fraud claim so its sole claim for primary liability is breach of fiduciary duty. As a matter of Delaware law, the “court cannot award punitive damages in [a] fiduciary duty action.” Buchwald v. Renco Grp. (In re Magnesium Corp. of Am.), 539 B.R. 31, 52 (S.D.N.Y. 2015) (citing Gesoff v. IIC Indus., Inc., 902 A.2d 1130, 1154 (Del. Ch. 2006)), aff’d 682 F. App’x 24 (2d Cir. 2017).

<sup>43</sup> Under the Plan, Texas law governs HMIT’s “claim” for unjust enrichment because it is not a “corporate governance matter.” (Plan Art. XII.M.) It also governs HMIT’s “claim” for constructive trust, which “is merely a remedy used to grant relief on the underlying cause of action.” Sherer v. Sherer, 393 S.W.3d 480, 491 (Tex. App. 2013).

154. Finally, HMIT cannot invoke “the discovery rule,” “equitable tolling doctrine,” “fraudulent concealment,” or “any other applicable tolling doctrine” to toll the statute of limitations (Compl. ¶ 108), because this Court has held that that HMIT “has known about the conduct underlying the desired lawsuit for well over a year, based on activity that has occurred in the bankruptcy court” (Docket No. 3713 at 2–3); see also Order at 2–3, In re Hunter Mt. Inv. Tr., No. 23-10376 (5th Cir. Apr. 12, 2023) (declining to disturb this Court’s “appropriate” Order, because HMIT “approached the brink of the limitations period before seeking leave to assert its claim”).

CONCLUSION

155. For the foregoing reasons, the Highland Parties respectfully request that this Court deny the Motion in its entirety and grant such other relief this Court deems just and proper.<sup>44</sup>

---

<sup>44</sup> Denial should be with prejudice. HMIT “has known about the conduct underlying the desired lawsuit for well over a year” (Docket No. 3713 at 2–3) and has already filed two proposed Complaints. It should not be permitted to file a third (or more), which “would be futile.” Marucci Sports, L.L.C. v. NCAA, 751 F.3d 368, 378 (5th Cir. 2014) (affirming denial of leave to amend as futile) (collecting cases).

HUNTER MOUNTAIN INVESTMENT TRUST’S EMERGENCY MOTION FOR LEAVE TO FILE VERIFIED ADVERARY PROCEEDING

Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (“HMIT”), Movant, files this Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding (“Motion”), both in its individual capacity and as a derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor, Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“HCM” or “Reorganized Debtor”) and the Highland Claimant Trust against Muck Holdings, LLC (“Muck”), Jessup Holdings, LLC (“Jessup”), Farallon

Capital Management, LLC (“Farallon”), Stonehill Capital Management, LLC (“Stonehill”), James P. Seery, Jr. (“Seery”) and John Doe Defendant Nos. 1-10 (Muck, Jessup, Stonehill, Farallon, Seery and the John Doe Defendant Nos. 11-10 are collectively “Respondents” or “Proposed Defendants”).

I. Good Cause for Expedited Relief

1. HMIT seeks leave to file an Adversary Proceeding pursuant to the Court’s “gatekeeping” orders, as well as the injunction and exculpation provisions in the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (Doc. 1943), as modified (the “Plan”).<sup>1</sup> A copy of HMIT’s proposed Verified Adversary Proceeding (“Adversary Proceeding”) is attached as Exhibit 1 to this Motion. This Motion is separately supported by objective evidence derived from historical filings in the bankruptcy proceedings.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>2</sup> Unless otherwise referenced, all references to evidence involving documents filed in the Debtor’s bankruptcy proceedings (Case No. 19-34054-sgj11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex.)) are cited by “Doc.” reference. HMIT asks the Court to take judicial notice of the documents identified by such entries.

2. The expedited nature of this Motion is permitted under Fed. R. Bank P. 9006 (c)(1), which authorizes a shortened time for a response and hearing for good cause. For the reasons set forth herein, HMIT has shown good cause and requests that the Court schedule a hearing on this Motion on three (3) days' notice, and that any responses be filed no later than twenty-four hours before the scheduled hearing.<sup>4</sup>

3. HMIT brings this Motion on behalf of itself and derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and the Highland Claimant Trust ("Claimant Trust"), as defined in the Claimant Trust Agreement (Doc. 3521-5) ("CTA").<sup>5</sup> Upon the Plan's Effective Date, Highland Capital Management, LP, as the original Debtor ("Original Debtor"), transferred its assets, including its causes of action, to the Claimant Trust, including the causes of action set forth in the attached Adversary Proceeding. The attached Adversary Proceeding alleges claims which are substantially more than "colorable" based upon plausible allegations that the Proposed Defendants, acting in concert, perpetrated a fraud,<sup>6</sup> including a fraud upon innocent stakeholders, as well as breaches of fiduciary

<sup>4</sup> Expedited action on this Motion is also warranted to hasten Movants' opportunity to file suit, pursue prompt relevant discovery, and reduce the threat of loss of potentially key evidence. Upon information and belief, Seery has been deleting text messages on his personal iPhone via a rolling, automatic deletion setting.

<sup>5</sup> Solely in the alternative, and in the unlikely event HMIT's proposed causes of actions against Seery, Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and/or Jessup are considered to be "Estate Claims" as those terms are used and defined within the CTA and Exhibit A to the Notice of Final Term Sheet [Docket No. 354] in HCM's bankruptcy (and without admitting the same), HMIT alternatively seeks standing to bring this action as a derivative action on behalf of the Litigation Sub-Trust as appropriate.

<sup>6</sup> Neither this Motion nor the proposed Adversary Complaint seeks to challenge the Court's Orders or the Plan. In addition, neither this Motion nor the proposed Adversary Complaint seeks to redistribute the assets of the Claimant Trust in a manner that would adversely impact innocent creditors. Rather, the duties and knowing participation in (or aiding and abetting) breaches of fiduciary duty. The Adversary Proceeding also alleges that the Proposed Defendants did so collectively by falsely representing the value of the Debtor's Estate, failing to timely disclose accurate values of the Debtor's Estate, and trading on material non-public information regarding such values. HMIT also alleges that the Proposed Defendants colluded to manipulate the Debtor's Estate—providing Seery the opportunity to plant close business allies into positions of control to approve Seery's compensation demands following the Effective Date.

4. Emergency relief is needed because of a fast-approaching date (April 16, 2023) that one or more of the Proposed Defendants may argue, depending upon choice of law, constitutes the expiration of the statute of limitations concerning some of the common law claims available to the Claimant Trust, as well as to HMIT.<sup>7</sup> Although HMIT offered to enter tolling agreements from each of the Proposed Defendants, they either rejected HMIT's requests or have not confirmed their willingness to do so, thereby necessitating the expedited nature of this Motion.<sup>8</sup> Because this Motion is subject to the proposed Adversary Proceeding seeks to benefit all innocent stakeholders while working within the terms and provisions of the Plan, as well as the Claimant Trust Agreement.

<sup>7</sup> The first insider trade at issue involved the sale and transfer of Claim 23 in the amount of $23 million held by ACMLD Claim, LLC to Muck on April 16, 2021 (Doc. 2215).

<sup>8</sup> HMIT has been diligent in its efforts to investigate the claims described in this Motion, including the filing of a Tex. R. Civ. P. Rule 202 proceeding in January 2023, which was not adjudicated until recently in March 2023. Those proceedings were conducted in the 191st Judicial District Court in Dallas County, Texas, under Cause DC-23-01004. WITHDRAWN Farallon and Stonehill defended those proceedings by aggressively arguing, in significant part, that the discovery issues were better undertaken in this Court.<sup>8</sup> The Rule 202 Petition was recently dismissed (necessarily without prejudice)

Court's "gatekeeping" orders and the injunction provisions of the Plan, emergency leave is required.

5. This Motion will come as no surprise to the Proposed Defendants. Farallon and Stonehill were involved in recent pre-suit discovery proceedings under Rule 202 of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure relating to the same insider trading allegations described in this Motion. Muck and Jessup, special purpose entities created and ostensibly controlled by Farallon and Stonehill, respectively, also were provided notice of these Rule 202 Proceedings in February 2023.<sup>10</sup> Like this Motion, the Rule 202 Proceedings focused on Muck, Jessup, Farallon, and Stonehill and their wrongful purchase of large, allowed claims in the Original Debtor's bankruptcy based upon material non-public information. Seery is also aware of these insider trading allegations because of a prior written demand.

6. In light of the Proposed Defendants' apparent refusal to enter tolling agreements, or their failure to fully affirm their willingness to do so, HMIT is forced to seek emergency relief from this Court to proceed timely with the proposed Adversary Proceeding before the expiration of any arguable limitations period.<sup>10</sup>

on March 8, 2023, ostensibly based on such arguments. However, it is telling that Stonehill and Farallon admitted during the Rule 202 Proceedings to their "affiliation" with Muck and Jessup and that they bought the Claims through these entities.

WITHDRAWN

<sup>10</sup> HMIT respectfully requests that this Motion be addressed and decided on an expedited basis that provides HMIT sufficient time to bring the proposed action timely. In the event the Court denies the requested relief, HMIT respectfully requests prompt notice of the Court's ruling to allow HMIT sufficient

II. Summary of Claims

7. HMIT requests leave to commence the proposed Adversary Proceeding, attached as Exhibit 1, seeking redress for breaches of duty owed to HMIT, breaches of duties owed to the Original Debtor's Estate, aiding and abetting breaches of those fiduciary duties, conspiracy, unjust enrichment, and fraud. HMIT also alleges several viable remedies, including (i) imposition of a constructive trust; (ii) equitable disallowance of any unpaid balance on the claims at issue;<sup>11</sup> (iii) disgorgement of ill-gotten profits (received by Farallon, Stonehill, Muck and Jessup) to be restituted to the Claimant Trust; (iv) disgorgement of ill-gotten compensation (received by Seery) to be restituted to the Claimant Trust; (v) declaratory judgment relief; (vi) actual damages; and (vii) punitive damages.

III. Standing

8. HMIT. Prior to the Plan's Effective Date, HMIT was the largest equity holder in the Original Debtor and held a 99.5% limited partnership interest. HMIT currently holds a Class 10 Claim as a contingent Claimant Trust Interest under the CTA

time to seek, if necessary, appropriate relief in the United States District Court. In order to have a fair opportunity to seek such relief on a timely basis and protect HMIT's rights and the rights of the Reorganized Debtor, HMIT will need to seek such relief on or before Wednesday, April 5, 2023, if this Motion has not been resolved.

<sup>11</sup> In the alternative only, subordination of Muck's and Jessup's General Unsecured Claim Trust Interests and Subordinated Claim Trust Interests to all other interests in the Claimant Trust, including HMIT's Contingent Trust Interest, is necessary and appropriate to remedy Muck's and Jessup's wrongful conduct, and is also consistent with the purposes of the Bankruptcy Code.

(Doc. 3521-5). Upon information and belief, all conditions precedent to HMIT's certification as a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary would be readily satisfied but for the Defendants' wrongful actions and conduct described in this Motion and the attached Adversary Proceeding.

9. Reorganized Debtor. Although HMIT has standing as a former Class B/C Equity Holder, Class 10 claimant, and now contingent Claimant Trust Interest under the CTA,<sup>12</sup> this Motion separately seeks authorization to prosecute the Adversary Proceeding derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trust. All conditions precedent to bringing a derivative action are satisfied.

10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23.1 provides the procedural steps for "derivative actions," and applies to this proceeding pursuant to Fed. R. Bank. P. 7023.1. Applying Rule 7023.1, the Proposed Defendants' wrongful conduct occurred, and the improper trades consummated, in the spring and early summer of 2021, before the Effective Date in August 2021. During this period, HMIT was the 99.5% Class B/C limited partner in the original Debtor. As such, HMIT has individual standing to bring this action because Seery owed fiduciary duties directly to HMIT at that time, and the other Proposed Defendants aided and abetted breaches of those duties at that time.

<sup>12</sup> The last transaction at issue involved Claim 190, the Notice for which was filed on August 9, 2021. (Doc. 2698).

11. The derivative nature of this proceeding is also appropriate because any demand on Seery would be futile.<sup>13</sup> Seery is the Claimant Trustee under the terms of the CTA. Furthermore, any demand on the Oversight Board to prosecute these claims would be equally futile because Muck and Jessup, both of whom are Proposed Defendants, dominate the Oversight Board.<sup>14</sup>

12. The “classic example” of a proper derivative action is when a debtor-in-possession is “unable or unwilling to fulfill its obligations” to prosecute an otherwise colorable claim where a conflict of interest exists. Cooper, 405 B.R. at 815 (quoting Louisiana World, 858 F.2d at 252). Here, because HMIT’s proposed Adversary Proceeding includes claims against Seery, Muck, and Jessup, the conflicts of interest are undeniable. Seery is the Trustee of the Claimant Trust Assets under the CTA, and he also serves as the “Estate Representative.”<sup>15</sup> Muck and Jessup, as successors to Acis, the Redeemer Committee and UBS, effectively control the Oversight Board, with the responsibility to “monitor and oversee the administration of the Claimant Trust and the Claimant Trustee’s performance . . . .”<sup>16</sup>

<sup>13</sup> Any demand on the Litigation Sub-Trust would be equally futile for the same reasons addressed herein, since the Litigation Trustee serves at the direction of the Oversight Board.

<sup>14</sup> See Footnote 8, infra. In December 2021, several stakeholders made a demand on the Debtor through James Seery, in his capacity as Trustee to the Claimant Trust, to pursue claims related to these insider trades.

In Chapter 11 [cases], there is both a textual basis . . . and, frequently, a non-textual, equitable rationale for granting a creditor or creditors committee derivative standing to pursue estate actions (i.e., the equitable rationale coming into play when the debtor-in-possession has a conflict of interest in pursuing an action, such as in the situation of an insider-defendant).

In re Cooper, 405 B.R. 801, 803 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009) (also noting that “[c]onflicts of

necessary, if not critical.

<sup>17</sup> See Citicorp Venture Cap., Ltd. v. Comm. of Creditors Holding Unsecured Claims, 160 F.3d 982, 987 (3d Cir. 1998) (settlement noteholders purchased Debtors' securities with “the benefit of non-public information acquired as a fiduciary” for the “dual purpose of making a profit and influenc[ing] the reorganization in [their] own self-interest.”), see also, Wolf v. Weinstein, 372 U.S. 633, 642, 83 S.Ct. 969, 10 L.Ed.2d 33 (1963) (“Access to inside information or strategic position in a corporate reorganization renders the temptation to profit by trading in the Debtor's stock particularly pernicious.”).

14. The proposed Adversary Proceeding also sets forth claims that readily satisfy the Court's threshold standards requiring "colorable" claims, as well as the requirements for a derivative action. This Motion, which is supported by objective evidence contained in historical filings in the bankruptcy proceedings, also incorporates sworn declarations. At the very least, this additional evidence satisfies the Court's threshold requirements of willful misconduct and fraud set forth in the "gatekeeping" orders, as well as the injunction and exculpation provisions in the Plan.<sup>18</sup> This evidence also supports well-pleaded allegations exempted from the scope of the releases included in the Plan.

15. HMIT is an appropriate party to bring this action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust. If successful, the Adversary Proceeding will likely recover well over $100 million for the Claimant Trust, thereby enabling the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trust to pay off any remaining innocent creditors and make significant distributions to HMIT as a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary.

16. As of December 31, 2022, the Claimant Trust had distributed 64.2% of the total $397,485,568 par value of all Class 8 and Class 9 unsecured creditor claims. The

<sup>18</sup> HMIT recognizes that it is an "Enjoined Party" under the Plan. The Plan requires a showing, inter alia, of bad faith, willful misconduct, or fraud against a "Protected Party." Seery is a "Protected Party" and an "Exculpated Party" in his capacity as an Independent Director. Muck and Jessup may be "Protected Parties" as members of the Oversight Committee, but they were not "protected" when they purchased the Claims before the Effective Date. While it is HMIT's position that Farallon and Stonehill do not qualify as "Protected Parties," they are included in this Motion in the interest of judicial economy.

Claims acquired by Muck and Jessup have an allowed par value of $365,000,000. Based on these numbers, the innocent unsecured creditors hold approximately $32 million in allowed claims.<sup>19</sup>

17. As of December 31, 2022, the Claimant Trust has distributed $255,201,228.<sup>20</sup> On a pro rata basis, that means that innocent creditors have received approximately $22,373,000 in distributions against the stated value of their allowed claims. That leaves a remaining unpaid balance of approximately $9,627,000.

18. Muck and Jessup already have received approximately $232.8 million on their Claims. Assuming and original investment of approximately $160 million, this represents over $72 million in ill-gotten profits that, if disgorged, would be far more than what is required to fully pay all other innocent creditors - immediately placing HMIT in the status of a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary. The benefits to the Reorganized Debtor, the Claimant Trust and innocent stakeholders are undeniable.<sup>21</sup>

19. Seery and the Oversight Board should be estopped from challenging HMIT's status to bring this derivative action on behalf of the Claimant Trust. Seery, Muck and Jessup have committed fraud, acted in bad faith and have unclean hands, and they should not be allowed to undermine the proposed Adversary Proceeding - which seeks to rectify significant wrongdoing. To hold otherwise would allow Seery, Muck, Jessup, Stonehill, and Farallon the opportunity to not just “guard the hen house,” but to also open the door and take what they want.<sup>22</sup> HMIT seeks a declaratory judgment of its rights, accordingly.

IV. The Proposed Defendants

20. Seery acted in several capacities during relevant times. He served as the Debtor’s Chief Executive Officer (“CEO”) and Chief Restructuring Officer (“CRO”). He also served as member of the Debtor’s Independent Board.<sup>23</sup> He currently serves as Claimant Trustee under the CTA and remains the CEO of the Reorganized Debtor.

21. There is no doubt Seery owed the Original Debtor’s Estate, as well as equity, fiduciary duties, including the duty of loyalty and the duty to avoid conflicts of interest. See In re Xtreme Power Inc., 563 B.R. 614, 632-33 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 2016) (detailing fiduciary duties owed by corporate officers and directors under Delaware law); Louisiana World, 858 F.2d at 245-46 (detailing duties owed by debtors-in-possession).<sup>24</sup>

<sup>22</sup> “The doctrine of ‘unclean hands’ provides that “a litigant who engages in reprehensible conduct in relation to the matter in controversy ... forfeits his right to have the court hear his claim, regardless of its merit. [T]he purpose of the clean hands maxim is to protect the court against misuse by one who, because of his conduct, has forfeited his right to have the court consider his claims, regardless of their merit. As such it is not a matter of defense to be applied on behalf of a litigant; rather it is a rule of public policy.” Portnoy v. Cryo-Cell Int’l, Inc., 940 A.2d 43, 80–81 (Del. Ch. 2008) (citations omitted) (internal quotations omitted for clarity).

<sup>24</sup> The Internal Affairs Doctrine dictates choice of law. Here, the Debtor, Highland Capital Management, was organized under the law of Delaware. As much, Seery’s fiduciary duties and claims involving breaches of those duties will be governed by Delaware law.

22. Farallon and Stonehill are capital management companies which manage hedge funds; they are also Seery's close business allies with a long history of business ventures and close affiliation. Although they were strangers to the Original Debtor's bankruptcy on the petition date, and were not original creditors, they became entangled in this bankruptcy at Seery's invitation and encouragement—and then knowingly participated in the wrongful insider trades at issue. By doing so, Seery was able to plant friendly allies onto the Oversight Board to rubber stamp compensation demands. The proposed Adversary Proceeding alleges that Farallon and Stonehill bargained to receive handsome pay days in exchange.

23. Muck and Jessup are special purpose entities, admittedly created by Farallon and Stonehill on the eve of the alleged insider trades, and they were used as vehicles to assume ownership of the purchased claims. The record is clear that Muck and Jessup did not exist before confirmation of the Plan in February 2021.<sup>26</sup> Now, however, Muck and Jessup serve on the Oversight Board with immense powers under the CTA.<sup>27</sup> When they purchased the claims at issue, Muck and Jessup were not acting in their official capacities on the Oversight Committee and, therefore, they were not "Protected Persons" under the Plan.

■ WITHDRAWN

<sup>26</sup> WITHDRAWN Muck was created on March 9, 2021 before the Effective Date. Jessup was created on April 8, 2021, before the Effective Date.

<sup>27</sup> See Doc. 3521-5, Sec. 4(a) and 4(b).

24. By trading on the alleged material non-public information, Farallon, Stonehill, Muck, and Jessup became non-statutory “insiders” with duties owed directly to HMIT at a time when HMIT was the largest equity holder.<sup>28</sup> See S.E.C. v. Cuban, 620 F.3d 551, 554 (5th Cir. 2010) (“The corporate insider is under a duty to ‘disclose or abstain’ —he must tell the shareholders of his knowledge and intention to trade or abstain from trading altogether.”). In this context, there is no credible doubt that Farallon’s and Stonehill’s dealings with Seery were not arms-length. Again, Farallon and Stonehill were Seery’s past business partners and close allies.<sup>29</sup> By virtue of the insider trades at issue, Farallon and Stonehill acquired control (acting through Muck and Jessup) over the Original Debtor and Reorganized Debtor through Seery’s compensation agreement and awards, as well as supervisory powers over the Claimant Trust. This makes Farallon and Stonehill paradigm non-statutory insiders.

25. HMIT also seeks recovery against John Doe Defendant Nos. 1 through 10.<sup>30</sup>

It is clear Farallon and Stonehill refuse to disclose the precise details of their legal

<sup>29</sup> Farallon and Stonehill are two capital management firms (similar to HCM) with whom Seery has had substantial business relationships. Also, Seery previously served as legal counsel to Farallon. Seery also has a long-standing relationship with Stonehill. GCM Grosvenor, a global asset management firm, held four seats on the Redeemer Committee (an original member of the Unsecured Creditors Committee in HCM’s bankruptcy). Upon information and belief, GCM Grosvenor is a significant investor in Stonehill and Farallon. GCM Grosvenor, through Redeemer, also played a large part in appointing Seery as a director of Strand Advisors and approved his appointment as HCM’s CEO and CRO.

<sup>30</sup> Farallon and Stonehill consummated their trades concealing their actual involvement through Muck and Jessup as shell companies. Farallon’s and Stonehill’s identities were not discovered until much later after the fact.

relationships with Muck and Jessup. They resisted such discovery in the prior Rule 202 Proceedings in state district court.█ They also refused to disclose such details in response to a prior inquiry to their counsel.█ Furthermore, the corporate filings of both Muck and Farallon conspicuously omit the identity of their respective members or managing members.█ Accordingly, HMIT intends to prosecute claims against John Doe Defendant Nos. 1 -- 10 seeking equitable tolling pending further discovery whether Farallon and Stonehill inserted intermediate corporate layers between themselves and the special purpose entities (Muck and Jessup) they created. See In re ATP Oil & Gas Corp., No. 12-36187, 2017 WL 2123867, *4 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. May 16, 2017) (Isgur .J.); see also In re IFS Fin. Corp. No. 02-39553, 2010 WL 4614293, *3 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. ## V. Background

26. As part of this Court's Governance Order, an independent board of directors—which included Seery as one of the selections of the Unsecured Creditor's Committee—was appointed to the Board of Directors (the "Board") of Strand Advisors, Inc., ("Strand Advisors"), the Original Debtor's general partner. Following approval of the Governance Order, the Board then appointed Seery as the Original Debtor's CEO and CRO.<sup>34</sup> Following the Effective Date of the Plan, Seery now serves as Trustee of the Claimant Trust (the Reorganized Debtor's sole post-reorganization limited partner), and continues to serve as the Reorganized Debtor's CEO.<sup>35</sup>

27. Imbued with his powers as CEO and CRO, Seery negotiated and obtained bankruptcy court approval of several settlements prior to the Effective Date, resulting in the following approximate allowed claims (hereinafter "Claims"):<sup>36</sup>

Creditor	Class 8	Class 9
Redeemer	$137 mm	$0 mm
Acis	$23 mm	$0 mm
HarbourVest	$45 mm	$35 mm
UBS	$65 mm	$60 mm
(Totals)	$270 mm	$95 mm

Each of the settling parties curiously sold their Claims to Farallon or Stonehill (or their affiliated special purpose entities) shortly after they obtained court approval of their settlements. One of these “trades” occurred within just a few weeks before the Effective Date. Farallon and Stonehill coordinated and controlled the purchase of these Claims through Muck and Jessup, and they admitted in open court that Muck and Jessup were created to allow their purchase of the Claims.<sup>17</sup>

28. HMIT alleges that Seery filed (or caused to be filed) deflated, misleading projections regarding the value of the Debtor’s Estate,<sup>38</sup> while inducing unsecured creditors to discount and sell their Claims to Farallon and Stonehill. But as reflected in the attached declarations, it is now known that Seery provided material, non-public information to Farallon. The circumstantial evidence is also clear that both Farallon and Stonehill had access to and used this non-public information in connection with their purchase decisions.

29. Farallon and Stonehill are registered investment advisors who have their own fiduciary duties to their investors, and they are acutely aware of what these duties entail. Yet, upon information and belief, they collectively invested over $160 million dollars to purchase the Claims in the absence of any publicly available information that could rationally justify such investments. These “trades” become even more suspect because, at the time of confirmation, the Plan provided pessimistic projections advising stakeholders that the Claim holders would never receive full satisfaction:

- From October 2019, when the original Chapter 11 Petition was filed, to January 2021, just before the Plan was confirmed, the valuation of HCM’s assets dropped over $200 million from $566 million to $328.3 million.<sup>39</sup>
- HCM’s Disclosure Statement projected payment of 71.32% of Class 8 claims, and 0% of claims in Classes 9-11;<sup>40</sup>
  - This meant that Farallon and Stonehill invested more than $103 million in Claims when the publicly available information indicated they would receive $0 in return on their investment as Class 9 creditors and substantially less than par on their Class 8 Claims.
- In HCM’s Q3 2021 Post-Confirmation Report, HCM reported that the amount of Class 8 claims expected to be paid dropped even further from 71% to 54%;<sup>41</sup>

30. In the third financial quarter of 2021, just over $6 million of the projected $205 million available to satisfy general unsecured creditors was disbursed.<sup>42</sup> No additional distributions were made to the unsecured claimholders until, suddenly, in Q3 2022 almost $250 million was paid toward Class 8 general unsecured claims—$45 million more than was ever projected.<sup>43</sup>

31. According to Highland Capital’s Motion for Exit Financing,<sup>44</sup> and a recent motion filed by Dugaboy Investment Trust,<sup>45</sup> there remain substantial assets to be monetized for the benefit of the Reorganized Debtor’s creditors. Thus, upon information and belief, Stonehill and Farallon, stand to realize significant profits on their wrongful investments. In turn, Stonehill and Farallon will garner (and already have garnered) substantial fees – both base fees and performance fees – as the result of their acquiring and/or managing the Claims. Upon information and belief, HMIT also alleges that Seery has received excessive compensation and bonuses approved by Farallon (Muck) and Stonehill (Jessup) as members of the Oversight Board.

32. [REDACTED] WITHDRAWN [REDACTED]

- Farallon admitted it conducted no due diligence and relied upon Seery in making its multi-million-dollar investment decisions at issue.<sup>44</sup>
- Farallon admitted it was unwilling to sell its stake in these Claims at any price because Seery assured Farallon that the Claims were tremendously valuable.<sup>45</sup>
- Farallon bragged about the value of its investment referencing non-public information regarding Amazon, Inc.’s (“Amazon”) interest in acquiring Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios Inc. (“MGM”).<sup>46</sup>

- Farallon was unwilling to sell its stake in the newly acquired Claims even though publicly available information suggested that Farallon would lose millions of dollars on its investment.<sup>49</sup>

Farallon can offer no credible explanation to explain its significant investment, and its refusal to sell at any price, except Farallon's access to material non-public information. In essence, Seery became the guarantor of Farallon's significant investment. Farallon admitted as much in its statements to James Dondero.

33. The same holds true for Stonehill. Given the negative, publicly available information, Stonehill's multi-million-dollar investments make no rational sense unless Stonehill had access to material non-public information.

34. Fed. R. Bank. P. 2015.3 requires debtors to "file periodic financial reports of the value, operations, and profitability of each entity that is not a publicly traded corporation or a debtor in a case under title 11, and in which the estate holds a substantial or controlling interest." However, no public reports required by Rule 2015.3 were filed. Seery testified they simply "fell through the cracks."<sup>50</sup>

35. Six days prior to the filing of the motion seeking approval of the HarbourVest Settlement, Seery acquired material non-public information regarding Amazon's interest in acquiring MGM.<sup>51</sup> Upon receipt of this material non-public information, MGM should have been placed on the Original Debtor’s “restricted list,” but Seery continued to move forward with deals that involved MGM stock and notes.<sup>52</sup> Because the Original Debtor additionally held direct interests in MGM,<sup>53</sup> the value of MGM was of paramount importance to the value of the estate.

36. Armed with this and other insider information, Farallon—through Muck—proceeded to invest in the Claims and, acting through Muck, acceded to a powerful position on the Oversight Board to oversee future distributions to Muck and itself. It is no coincidence Seery invited his business allies into these bankruptcy proceedings with promises of great profits. Seery’s allies now oversee his compensation.<sup>54</sup>

37. The Court also should be aware that the Texas States Securities Board (“TSSB”) opened an investigation into the subject matter of the insider trades at issue, and this investigation has not been closed. The continuing nature of this investigation

<sup>52</sup> As part of the HarbourVest Settlement, Seery negotiated the purchase of HarbourVest’s interest in HCLOF for approximately $22.5 million as part of the transaction. Approximately 19.1% of HCLOF’s assets were comprised of debt and equity in MGM. The HCLOF interest was not to be transferred to the Debtor for distribution as part of the bankruptcy estate, but rather to “to an entity to be designated by the Debtor”—i.e., one that was not subject to typical bankruptcy reporting requirements. Doc. 1625, p. 9, n. 5. Doc. 1625.

<sup>54</sup> Amazon closed on its acquisition of MGM in March 2022, but the evidence strongly suggests that agreements for the trades already had been reached - while announcement of the trades occurred strategically after the MGM news became public. Now, as a result of their wrongful conduct, Stonehill and Farallon profited significantly on their investments, and they stand to gain substantially more profits.

underscores HMIT's position that the claims described in the attached Adversary Proceeding are plausible and certainly far more than merely "colorable."

VI. Argument

A. HMIT has asserted Colorable Claims against Seery, Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and Jessup.

38. Unlike the terms "Enjoined Party," "Protected Party," or "Exculpated Party," the Plan does not define what constitutes a "colorable" claim. Nor does the Bankruptcy Code define the term. However, relevant authorities suggest that a Rule 12(b)(6) standard is an appropriate analogue.

39. The Fifth Circuit has held that a "colorable" claim standard is met if a [movant], such as HMIT, has asserted claims for relief that, on appropriate proof, would allow a recovery. A court need not and should not conduct an evidentiary hearing but must ensure that the claims do not lack any merit whatsoever. Louisiana World Exposition v. Fed. Ins. Co., 858 F.2d 233, 248 (5th Cir. 1988). Stated differently, the Court need not be satisfied there is an evidentiary basis for the asserted claims but instead should allow the claims if they appear to have some merit.

40. Other federal appellate courts have reached similar conclusions. For example, the Eighth Circuit holds that "creditors' claims are colorable if they would survive a motion to dismiss." In re Racing Services, Inc., 540 F.3d 892, 900 (8th Cir. 2008); accord In Re Foster, 516 B.R. 537, 542 (B.A.P. 8th Cir. 2014), aff'd 602 Fed. Appx. 356 (8th Cir. 2015) (per curiam). The Sixth Circuit has adopted a similar test requiring that the court look only to the face of the complaint to determine if claims are colorable. In re The Gibson Group, Inc., 66 F.3d 1436, 1446 (6th Cir. 1995) (emphasis added).

41. Although there is a dearth of federal court authorities in Texas, other federal courts have adopted the same standard—i.e., a claim is colorable if it is “plausible” and could survive a motion to dismiss. See In re America’s Hobby Center, Inc., 223 B.R. 273, 282 (S.D.N.Y. 1998). In addition, in the non-bankruptcy context, the District Court for the Northern District of Texas explained that “[t]he requirement of a ‘colorable claim’ means only that the plaintiff must have an ‘arguable claim’ and not that the plaintiff must be able to succeed on that claim.” Gonzales v. Columbia Hosp. at Med. City Dallas Subsidiary, L.P., 207 F. Supp. 2d 570, 577 (N.D. Tex. 2002) (Emphasis added).

42. Thus, in this instance, this Court’s gatekeeping inquiry is properly limited to whether HMIT has stated a plausible claim on the face of the proposed pleadings involving “bad faith,” “willful misconduct,” or “fraud.” Because the face of the Adversary Complaint alleges plausible facts, HMIT’s Motion is properly granted. Clearly, the attached Adversary Proceeding would survive a Rule 12(b)(6) challenge. Furthermore, the supporting declarations and documentary evidence provide additional support, and the circumstantial evidence proves that Farallon and Stonehill, strangers to the bankruptcy on the petition date, would not have leaped into these proceedings without undisclosed assurances of profit.

B. Fraud

43. As set forth in the proposed Adversary Proceeding, HMIT alleges a colorable claim for fraud—both fraud by knowing misrepresentation and fraud by omission of material fact. Here, these allegations of fraud are appropriately governed by Texas law under appropriate choice of law principals.<sup>55</sup>

44. Seery had a duty to not provide material inside information to his business allies. But, he did so. At the latest, Seery became aware of the potential sale of MGM in December 2020 when he received an email from Jim Dondero. ■ Thus, Seery knew at that time that this potential sale would likely yield significant value to the Original Debtor's Estate. Yet, the financial disclosures associated with the Plan's confirmation, which were provided only a month later, presented an entirely different outlook for both Class 8 and Class 9 unsecured creditors.<sup>57</sup> Seery knew at that time that these pessimistic disclosures were misleading, if not inaccurate.

45. There is no credible doubt Seery intended that innocent stakeholders would rely upon the pessimistic projections set forth in the Plan Analysis. Indeed, the singular purpose of the Plan Analysis was to advise stakeholders. As such, HMIT alleges that Seery knowingly made misrepresentations with the intention that innocent stakeholders

<sup>55</sup> However, Delaware law is substantially similar on the elements of fraud. See Malinalis v. Kramer, No. CIV.A. CPU 6-11002145, 2012 WL 174958, at 2 (Del. Com. PI. Jan. 5, 2012)

■ WITHDRAWN

would rely, and that he failed to disclose material information concerning his entanglements with Farallon and Stonehill, as well as the related negotiations that were chock full of conflicts of interest.

46. On the flip side of this conspiracy coin, Farallon and Stonehill were engaged in negotiations to acquire the Claims at discounted prices; and, they successfully did so. HMIT alleges that their success was based on knowledge that the financial disclosures associated with the Plan Analysis were significantly understated. Otherwise, it would make no financial sense for Farallon and Stonehill to do the deals at issue. Indeed, Farallon admitted that it would not sell the Claims at any price, expressing great confidence in the substantial profits it expected even in the absence of any supporting, publicly available information.■

47. All of the Proposed Defendants had a duty of affirmative disclosure under these circumstances. Seery always had this duty. Muck, Jessup, Farallon, and Stonehill assumed this duty when they became non-statutory “insiders.” Thus, all of the Proposed Defendants are liable for conspiring to perpetrate a fraud by omission of material facts.

48. HMIT also claims that Seery and the other Proposed Defendants failed to disclose material information concerning Seery’s involvement in brokering the Claims in exchange for quid pro quo assurances of enhanced compensation. Seery’s compensation should be disgorged or, alternatively, such compensation constitutes a damage recoverable by the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trust as assignees (or transferees) of the Original Debtor's causes of action. This compensation was the product of the alleged self-dealing, breaches of fiduciary duty, and fraud.

C. Breaches and Aiding and Abetting Breaches of Fiduciary Duties

49. It is beyond dispute Seery owed fiduciary duties to the Estate. See Xtreme Power, 563 B.R. at 632-33 (detailing fiduciary duties owed by corporate officers and directors under Delaware law);<sup>59</sup> Louisiana World, 858 F.2d at 245-46 (5th Cir. 1988) (detailing duties owed by debtors-in-possession). Although Seery did not buy the Claims at issue, he stood to profit from these sales because his close business allies would do his bidding after they had acceded to positions of power and control on the Oversight Board. Muck and Jessup were essentially stepping into the shoes of three of the largest unsecured creditors who were already slated to serve on the Oversight Board. Thus, by acquiring their Claims, all of the Proposed Defendants knew that Muck and Jessup would occupy these powerful oversight positions after the Effective Date.

50. Thus, the alleged conspiracy was successfully implemented before the Effective Date. Farallon and Stonehill now occupy control positions through the shell

<sup>59</sup> The Xtreme case also notes that "several Delaware courts have recognized that 'directors who are corporate employees lack independence because of their substantial interest in retaining their employment.'" 563 B.R. at 633-34. Because Muck and Jessup are now in control of Seery's compensation, it follows that Seery is beholden to them, and Seery's disclosure of inside information to Stonehill and Farallon confirms his conflict of interest.

entities (Muck and Jessup) overseeing large compensation packages for Seery. Of course, this control (and the opportunity to control) presented a patent conflict of interest which Seery should have avoided, but instead knowingly created, fostered, and encouraged. HMIT alleges that Seery breached his duty to avoid this conflict or otherwise disclose this conflict and Farallon and Stonehill aided and abetted this breach.

51. The Original Debtor, as an investment adviser registered with the SEC, is also required to make public disclosures on its Form ADV, the uniform registration form for investment advisers required by the SEC. These Form ADV disclosures, which were in effect at the time of the insider trades at issue, explicitly forbade “any access person from trading either personally or on behalf of others . . . on material non-public information or communicating material non-public information to others in violation of the law or duty owed to another party.”<sup>60</sup> It now appears these representations were false when made. Seery’s alleged conduct also violated, at minimum, the duties Seery owed in his various capacities with the Original Debtor under the Form ADV disclosures.

52. Although initially strangers to the original bankruptcy, by accepting and using inside information, Farallon and Stonehill became “temporary insiders” and thus owed separate duties to the Estate. See S.E.C. v. Cuban, 620 F.3d 551 (5th Cir. 2010) (“[E]ven an individual who does not qualify as a traditional insider may become a ‘temporary insider’ if by entering ‘into a special confidential relationship in the conduct of the business of the enterprise [they] are given access to information solely for corporate purposes.” In re Washington Mut., Inc., 461 B.R. 200 (Bankr. D. Del. 2011), vacated in part, 08-12229 MFW, 2012 WL 1563880 (Bankr. D. Del. Feb. 24, 2012) (finding that equity committee stated colorable claim for equitable disallowance against creditors who “became temporary insiders of the Debtors when the Debtors gave them confidential information and allowed them to participate in negotiations with JPMC for the shared goal of reaching a settlement that would form the basis of a consensual plan of reorganization”; vacated in part as a condition of settlement only);<sup>61</sup> See also, In re Smith, 415 B.R. 222, 232-33 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009) (“[a]n insider is an entity or person with ‘a sufficiently close relationship with the debtor that his conduct is made subject to closer scrutiny than those dealing at arm’s length with the debtor.’ ‘Thus, the term “insider” is viewed to encompass two classes: (1) per se insiders as listed in the Code and (2) extra-statutory insiders that do not deal at arm’s length.” (citations omitted)). Farallon, Stonehill, Muck, and Jessup clearly fall into this latter category.

https://files.adviserinfo.sec.gov/IAPD/Content/Common/crd\_iapd\_Brochure.aspx?BRCHR\_VRSN\_ID=777026.

<sup>61</sup> Although the Washington Mutual case was subsequently vacated, the Court’s intellectual reasoning remains valid because the vacatur was mandated by a mediated settlement, not because the court’s logic was flawed or changed, and the court expressly noted that the parties’ settlement was conditioned on vacatur. See In re Washington Mut., Inc., No. 08-12229 MFW, 2012 WL 1563880, *8 (Bankr. D. Del. Feb. 24, 2012) (“grant[ing] partial vacatur . . . in furtherance of the settlement embodied in the Plan,” and noting that “absent the requested vacatur, the collapse of the Plan could result in the termination of the Global Settlement Agreement.” (emphasis added)).

53. Because Farallon and Stonehill (acting through Muck and Jessup) now hold the majority of the seats on the Oversight Board, they, along with Seery, exercise control of the reorganization proceedings. At no time were Farallon, Stonehill, or Seery's plans disclosed to the other creditors or equity. In fact, the only inference that can be reasonably drawn is that Farallon and Stonehill brazenly sought to conceal their involvement by establishing shell entities—Muck and Jessup—to nominally hold the Claims and create an opaque barrier to any effort to identify the "Oz behind the curtain." Such conduct aligns precisely with the inequitable conduct detailed in Citicorp and Adelphia (discussed below).

54. In sum, the proposed Adversary Proceeding sets forth plausible allegations that Stonehill and Farallon were aware of Seery's fiduciary duties. Indeed, as registered investment advisors, both Farallon and Stonehill were acutely aware of Seery's fiduciary obligations, including, without limitation, the duty to act in the best interests of the Original Debtor's Estate and the duty not to engage in insider trading that would benefit Seery, as an insider, and themselves, as non-statutory insiders. By accepting and then acting on material non-public information, Farallon and Stonehill (as well as Muck and Jessup) aided and abetted breaches of these fiduciary duties. By placing themselves in positions to control Seery's compensation, Farallon and Stonehill (acting through Muck and Jessup) induced, encouraged, aided and abetted Seery's self-dealing.

D. Equitable Disallowance is an Appropriate Remedy

55. HMIT also seeks equitable disallowance. Although the Fifth Circuit in Matter of Mobile Steel Co. generally limited the court's equitable powers to subordination rather than disallowance,<sup>62</sup> the Fifth Circuit did not foreclose the viability of equitable disallowance as a potential remedy. See 563 F.2d 692, 699 n. 10 (5th Cir. 1977). Binding U.S. Supreme Court precedent in Pepper v. Litton also permits bankruptcy courts to fashion disallowance remedies. 308 U.S. 295, 304-11 (1939). Bankruptcy Code § 510, which supplies the authority for equitable subordination, was "intended to codify case law, such as Pepper v. Litton . . . and is not intended to limit the court's power in any way. . . . Nor does [it] preclude a bankruptcy court from completely disallowing a claim in appropriate circumstances." In re Adelpia Commun. Corp., 365 B.R. 24, 71-72 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2007), aff'd in part sub nom. Adelpia Recovery Tr. v. Bank of Am., N.A., 390 B.R. 64 (S.D.N.Y. 2008), adhered to on reconsideration, 05 CIV. 9050 (LMM), 2008 WL 1959542 (S.D.N.Y. May 5, 2008) (emphasis and omissions in original).<sup>63</sup>

56. The Fifth Circuit's decision in Mobile Steel also was premised on the notion that disallowance would not add to the quiver of defenses to fight unfairness because creditors “are fully protected by subordination” and “[i]f the misconduct directed against the bankrupt is so extreme that disallowance might appear to be warranted, then surely the claim is either invalid or the bankrupt possesses a clear defense against it.” Mobile Steel, 563 F.2d at 699 n. 10 (emphasis added). Importantly, however, the factual scenarios considered in Mobile Steel do not exist here.

<sup>63</sup> In Washington Mutual, the Court's intellectual reasoning when imposing disallowance is instructive. See In re Washington Mut., Inc., No. 08-12229 MFW, 2012 WL 1563880, *8 (Bankr. D. Del. Feb. 24, 2012) ("grant[ing] partial vacatur . . . in furtherance of the settlement embodied in the Plan," and noting that "absent the requested vacatur, the collapse of the Plan could result in the termination of the Global Settlement Agreement." (emphasis added)).

57. Here, Muck and Jessup purchased both Class 8 and Class 9 Claims, and they now effectively occupy more than 90% of the entire field of unsecured creditors in these two claimant tiers. Thus, subordination cannot effectively address the current facts where the Original Debtor’s CEO and CRO conspired directly with close business allies who acquired the largest unsecured claims to the detriment of other innocent creditors and former equity. The reasoning in published cases from other circuits supports this conclusion. See Adelphia, 365 B.R. at 71-73; Citicorp Venture Capital, Ltd. v. Comm. of Creditors Holding Unsecured Claims, 160 F.3d 982, 991 n. 7 (3d Cir. 1998).

58. The purpose of equitable subordination is to assure that the wrongdoer does not profit from bad conduct. In the typical case, subordination to other creditors will achieve this deterrence. But, it is clear that the Third Circuit’s decision in Citicorp was structured to use subordination as just one tool in a larger tool box to make sure “at a minimum, the remedy here should deprive – [the fiduciary] of its profit on the purchase of the notes.” Id at 991. In Adelphia, the Southern District of New York also used equitable subordination as a remedy to address wrongs of non-insiders who aided and abetted breaches a fiduciary duty by the debtor's management. 365 B.R. at 32.

59. But subordination cannot adequately address the wrongful conduct at issue. This is because subordination is typically limited to instances where one creditor is subordinated to other creditors, not equity. Here, for all practical purposes, there are only a few other unsecured creditors with relatively small stakes. Therefore, subordination as a weapon of deterrence is neutered.

60. In sum, by engaging in the alleged wrongful acts, including aiding and abetting Seery's breaches of fiduciary duty, Farallon, Stonehill, Muck, and Jessup should not be rewarded. The Proposed Defendants engaged in alleged conduct which damaged the Original Debtor's estate, including improper agreements to compensate Seery under the terms of the CTA. Equitable disallowance is an appropriate remedy which, when combined with disgorgement of all ill-gotten profits, will deprive the Proposed Defendants of their ill-gotten gains.

E. Disgorgement and Unjust Enrichment

61. The law is clear that disgorgement is an available remedy for breach of fiduciary duty both under Texas Law, see Kinzbach Tool Co. v. Corbett-Wallace Corporation, 160 S.W. 2d 509 (Tex. 1942), and under Delaware law, see Metro Storage International, LLC v. Harron, 275 A.3d 810 (Del. Ch. 2022). Disgorgement is also an appropriate remedy for unjust enrichment under Texas law, Hunter v. Shell Oil Co., 198 F.2d 485 (5th Cir. 1952), and under Delaware law, In re Tyson Foods, Inc. Consolidated Shareholder Litigation, 919 A.2d 563 (Del. Ch. 2007).<sup>64</sup>

62. Likewise, the imposition of a constructive trust is proper for addressing unjust enrichment under both Delaware and Texas law, see Teacher's Retirement System of Louisiana v. Aidinoff, 900 A.2d 654 (Del. Ch. 2006) and Hsin-Chi-Su v. Vantage Drilling Company, 474 S.W. 3d 384 (Tex. App. – 14th Dist. 2015), pet. denied. The elements of unjust enrichment are: (1) the defendant must have gained a benefit (2) at the expense of plaintiff, (3) and retention of that benefit must be shown to be unjust. See Restatement (Third) of Restitution and Unjust Enrichment §321, cmt. e (2011).

63. Here, the imposition of a constructive trust and disgorgement are clearly appropriate to provide redress for the alleged breaches of fiduciary duty and the knowing participation in (or aiding and abetting) those breaches. Furthermore, the imposition of a constructive trust and disgorgement are appropriate to disgorge the improper benefits that all of the Proposed Defendants received by virtue of collusion and insider trading.

64. As set forth in the proposed Adversary Proceeding, Seery gained the opportunity to have his compensation demands rubber stamped. The other Defendants gained the opportunity to purchase valuable claims at a discount knowing that pessimistic financial projections were false and that the upside investment potential was great. Retention of the benefits they received would be unjust and inequitable.

---

<sup>64</sup> It is likely that the Internal Affairs Doctrine will dictate that Delaware choice of law governs the breach of fiduciary duty claims.

65. Clearly, the Debtor's Estate was damaged by virtue of the claimed conduct. Seery obtained profits and compensation to the detriment of that estate as well as the estate of the Reorganized Debtor, other innocent creditors and HMIT, as former equity and as a contingent Claimant Trust Beneficiary.

F. Declaratory Relief

66. HMIT also seeks declaratory relief pursuant to Fed. R. Bank P. 7001(9). Specifically, HMIT seeks a declaratory judgment that: (a) there is a ripe controversy concerning HMIT's rights and entitlements under the Claimant Trust Agreement; (b) as a general matter, HMIT has standing to bring an action against a trustee even if its interest is considered "contingent;" (c) HMIT's status as a Claimant Trust Beneficiary is fully vested upon disgorgement of the ill-gotten profits of Muck and Jessup, and by extension, Farallon and Stonehill; (d) HMIT's status as a Claimant Trust Beneficiary is fully vested upon the equitable disallowance of the Claims held by Muck and Jessup over and above their initial investments; (e) Seery is properly estopped from asserting that HMIT is not an appropriate party to bring this derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and/or the Claimant Trust because of fraudulent conduct, bad faith, willful misconduct, and unclean hands; (f) Muck and Jessup are properly estopped from asserting that HMIT is not an appropriate party to bring this derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized

Debtor and the Claimant Trust because of their fraudulent conduct, bad faith, willful misconduct, and unclean hands; and (g) all of the Proposed Defendants are estopped from asserting that HMIT does not have standing in its individual capacity due to their fraudulent conduct, bad faith, willful misconduct, and unclean hands.

G. HMIT has Direct Standing.

67. The Texas Supreme Court recently held that “a partner or other stakeholder in a business organization has constitutional standing to sue for an alleged loss in the value of its interest in the organization.” Pike v. Texas EMC Mgt., LLC, 610 S.W.3d 763, 778 (Tex. 2020). In so holding, the Court considered federal law and found that the traditional “incantation that a shareholder may not sue for the corporation’s injury” is really a question of capacity, which goes to the merits of a claim, rather than an issue of standing that would impact subject matter jurisdiction. Id. at 777 (noting that the 5th Circuit and “[o]ther federal circuits agree that a plaintiff has standing to sue for the lost value of its investment in a corporation”). Because Seery, Muck, Jessup, Stonehill, Farallon’s alleged actions devalued HMIT’s interest in the Debtor’s Estate, including, without limitation, payment of excessive compensation to Seery, HMIT has standing to pursue its common law claims directly. HMIT also has direct standing to seek declaratory relief as set forth in the proposed Adversary Proceeding.

VII. Prayer

WHEREFORE, PREMISES CONSIDERED, Hunter Mountain Investment Trust respectfully requests this Court grant HMIT leave authorizing it to file the Adversary Complaint, attached as Exhibit 1, as an Adversary Proceeding in this United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, in its own name and as a derivative action on behalf of the Debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P., against Muck Holdings, LLC, Jessup Holdings, LLC, Farallon Capital Management, LLC, Stonehill Capital Management, LLC, James P. Seery, Jr., and John Doe Defendants Nos. 1 – 10, and further grant HMIT all such other and further relief to which HMIT may be justly entitled.

VERIFIED ADVERSARY COMPLAINT

Hunter Mountain Investment Trust ("HMIT") files this Verified Adversary Complaint in its individual capacity and, as a derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor, Highland Capital Management L.P. ("HCM" or "Reorganized Debtor") and the Highland Claimant Trust (collectively "Plaintiffs"), complaining of Muck Holdings, LLC ("Muck"), Jessup Holdings, LLC ("Jessup"), Farallon Capital Management, LLC ("Farallon"), Stonehill Capital Management, LLC ("Stonehill"), James P. Seery, Jr., ("Seery") and John Doe Defendant Nos. 1-10 (Muck, Jessup, Stonehill, Farallon, Seery and the John Doe Defendants Nos. 1-10 are collectively "Defendants"), and would show:

I. Introduction

1. HMIT brings this Verified Adversary Complaint ("Complaint") on behalf of itself, individually, and as a derivative action benefitting the Reorganized Debtor and on behalf of the Highland Claimant Trust (“Claimant Trust”), as defined in the Claimant Trust Agreement (Doc. 3521-5) (“CTA”).<sup>1</sup> This derivative action is specifically brought pursuant to Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and B. R. Rule 7023.1. At the time of the transactions at issue, HMIT held a 99.5% limited partnership in Highland Capital Management, LP, the Original Debtor, as described herein. This derivative action is not a collusive effort to confer jurisdiction that the Court would otherwise lack.

2. Upon the Effective Date, the assets of the bankruptcy estate of Highland Capital Management, L.P., as the Original Debtor (the “Debtor’s Estate”) were transferred to the Highland Claimant Trust under the terms of the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (as Modified) [Doc. 1943, Exhibit A] (the “Plan”) and as defined in the CTA. These assets include all “causes of action” that the Debtor’s Estate had before the Effective Date including, without limitation, the causes of action set forth in this Adversary Proceeding. Furthermore, the Claimant Trust is managed by the Claimant Trustee, Seery. Therefore, any demand upon Seery to prosecute the claims set forth in this Complaint would be futile because Seery is a Defendant. Similarly, the Oversight Board exercises supervision over Seery as Claimant

<sup>1</sup> Solely in the alternative, and in the unlikely event HMIT’s proposed causes of actions against Seery, Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and/or Jessup are considered to be “Estate Claims” as those terms are used and defined within the CTA and Exhibit A to the Notice of Final Term Sheet [Docket No. 354] in HCM’s bankruptcy (and without admitting the same), HMIT alternatively seeks standing to bring this action as a derivative action on behalf of the Litigation Sub-Trust as appropriate. Any demand on the Litigation Sub-Trust would be equally futile for the same reasons addressed in HMIT’s Emergency Motion for Leave (Doc. ___).

Trustee, and Muck and Jessup are members of the Oversight Board. Any demand upon Muck and Jessup to prosecute these claims would be equally futile. All conditions precedent to bringing this derivative action have otherwise been satisfied.

3. This action has become necessary because of Defendants' tortious conduct. This tortious conduct occurred before the Effective Date of the Plan, but its effects have caused damage both before and after the Effective Date. Prior to the Effective Date, HMIT owned 99.5% of the limited partnership interest in the Original Debtor and was the beneficiary of fiduciary duties owed by Seery.

4. Seery, the Original Debtor's CEO and former Chief Restructuring Officer ("CRO"), wrongfully facilitated and promoted the sale of large unsecured creditor claims to his close business allies and friends, Farallon and Stonehill. He did so by providing material non-public information to them concerning the value of the Original Debtor's Estate that other stakeholders did not know. Farallon and Stonehill, who were otherwise strangers to the bankruptcy proceedings, wrongfully purchased the claims through their special purpose entities, Muck and Jessup, based upon this inside information, and they are now profiting from their misconduct. Seery's dealings with the other Defendants were not arm's length, but instead were covert, undisclosed, and collusive.

5. Motivated by corporate greed, the other Defendants aided and abetted or, alternatively, knowingly participated in Seery's wrongful conduct. They also breached their own duties as "non-statutory insiders." Because of their long-standing, historical relationships with Seery, and their use of material non-public information, Farallon, Stonehill, Muck, and Jessup assumed positions of control over the affairs of the Debtor's bankruptcy, including compensation awards to Seery. As such, they became non-statutory insiders.

6. HMIT was formerly the largest equity holder in the Debtor, holding a 99.5% limited partnership interest. HMIT now holds an Allowed Class 10 Class B/C Limited Partnership Interest and a Contingent Trust Interest under the CTA. Given HMIT's position as former equity, HMIT's right to recover from the Claimant Trust is junior to the Reorganized Debtor's unsecured creditors, now known as Claimant Trust Beneficiaries. However, the vast majority of the approved unsecured claims superior to HMIT's interest are the claims wrongfully acquired by insider trading and the breaches of duty at issue in this proceeding.

7. By wrongfully soliciting, fostering, and encouraging the wrongful insider trades, Seery violated his fiduciary duties to the Debtor's Estate, specifically his duty of loyalty and his duty to maximize the value of the Estate with corresponding recovery by legitimate creditors and former equity. Seery was motivated out of self-interest to garner personal benefit (to the detriment of the Debtor's Estate) by strategically benefitting his business allies with non-public information. He then successfully "planted" his allies onto the Oversight Board, which, as a consequence does not act as an independent board in the exercise of its responsibilities. Rather, imbued with powers to oversee Seery's future compensation, the other Defendants are postured to reward Seery financially regarding Defendants' illicit dealings and, upon information and belief, they have done so.

8. By receiving and acting upon material non-public information concerning the financial condition of the Debtor's Estate, Stonehill and Farallon, acting individually and through special purpose shell entities they created and controlled, directly or indirectly, are also liable for aiding and abetting Seery's breaches of fiduciary duties. By acquiring the claims at issue, Muck and Jessup, the shell entities created and controlled by Stonehill and Farallon, also became non-statutory insiders owing duties of disclosure which they also breached.

9. HMIT separately seeks recovery against John Doe Defendant Nos. 1-10. Farallon actively concealed the precise legal relationship between Farallon and Muck. Stonehill actively concealed the precise legal relationship between Stonehill and Jessup. What is known, however, is that Farallon and Stonehill created these special purpose shell entities on the eve of the insider trades to acquire ownership of the claims and to otherwise control the affairs of the Oversight Board. Both Farallon and Stonehill rejected inquiries concerning the exact nature of their relationship with these special purpose entities. Accordingly, HMIT seeks equitable tolling of any statute of limitations concerning claims against unknown business entities that Farallon and Stonehill may have created and inserted as intermediate corporate layers in the transactions at issue.

10. HMIT seeks to disgorge all Defendants' ill-gotten profits and equitable disallowance of the remaining unpaid balances on the following allowed claims: Claim Nos. 23, 72, 81, 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154, 190, and 191 (the "Claims") currently held by Muck and Jessup. Because Defendants received substantial distributions from the Claimant Trust in connection with these Claims, HMIT seeks to disgorge all such distributions above Defendants' initial investment—compelling restitution of such funds to the Claimant Trust for the benefit of innocent creditors and former equity pursuant to the waterfall established under the Plan and the CTA. HMIT also seeks to disgorge Seery's compensation from the date his collusive conduct first occurred. Alternatively, HMIT seeks damages on behalf of the Claimant Trust in an amount equal to all compensation paid to Seery from the onset of his collusive conduct to present.

II. Jurisdiction and Venue

11. Pursuant to Misc. Order No. 33 Order of Reference of Bankruptcy Cases, U.S. District Court for N.D. Texas (the "Order of Reference"), this Complaint is commenced in the Bankruptcy Court because it is "related to a case under Title 11." The filing of this Complaint is expressly subject to and without waiver of Plaintiff' rights and ability to seek withdrawal of the reference pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(d), FED. R. BANKR. P. 5011, and Local Bankruptcy Rule 5011-1. Plaintiffs hereby demand a right to a trial by jury of all claims asserted herein and nothing in this Complaint, nor Plaintiffs' compliance with the Order of Reference, shall be deemed a waiver of this right.

12. This Court has jurisdiction of the subject matter and the parties as a “related to” proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1334 and 157(a) and Articles IX.F, and XI. of the Plan.

13. Pursuant to Rule 7008 of the Bankruptcy Rules, Plaintiffs do not consent to the entry of final orders or judgment by the bankruptcy court.

14. Venue is proper in this district and division pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409, and Articles IX.F, and XI. of the Plan.

III. Parties

15. HMIT is a Delaware statutory trust that was the largest equity holder in the Original Debtor, holding a 99.5% limited partnership interest. HMIT is also the holder of a Contingent Trust Interest in the Claimant Trust, but should be treated as a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary due to Defendants’ wrongful conduct.

16. Pursuant to the Plan and the CTA, the Claimant Trust holds the assets of the Reorganized Debtor, including the causes of action that accrued to the Original Debtor before the Effective Date. The Claimant Trust is established in accordance with the Delaware Statutory Trust Act and Treasury Regulatory Section 301.7701-4(d).

17. Muck is a Delaware limited liability company, with its principal office in California, and may be served with process at One Maritime Plaza, Suite 2100, San Francisco, CA 94111. Muck has made prior appearances in the Debtor’s bankruptcy.

18. Jessup is a Delaware limited liability company, with its principal office in New York, and may be served with process via its registered agent, Vcorp Services, LLC, at 108 W. 13th Street Suite 100, Wilmington, Delaware 19801. Jessup has made prior appearances in the Debtor's bankruptcy.

19. Farallon is a Delaware limited liability company, with its principal office in California, and may be served with process at One Maritime Plaza, Suite 2100, San Francisco, CA 94111. Farallon is a capital management company that manages hedge funds and is a registered investment advisor. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Farallon because Farallon's conduct giving rise to or relating to the claims in this Adversary Proceeding occurred in Texas, thereby satisfying all minimum contacts requirements and due process considerations.

20. Stonehill is a Delaware limited liability company, with its principal office in New York, and may be served with process at 320 Park Avenue, 26th Floor, New York, NY 10022. Stonehill is a capital management company managing hedge funds and is a registered investment advisor. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Stonehill because Stonehill's conduct giving rise to or relating to the claims in this Adversary Proceeding occurred in Texas, thereby satisfying all minimum contacts and all due process considerations.

21. Seery is an individual citizen and resident of the State of New York. Mr. Seery may be served with process at 100 Crescent Court, Suite 1805, Dallas, Texas 75201.

22. John Doe Defendant Nos. 1-10 are currently unknown individuals or business entities who may be identified in discovery as involved in the wrongful transactions at issue.

IV. Facts

A. Procedural Background

23. On October 16, 2019, the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in Delaware Bankruptcy Court,<sup>2</sup> which was later transferred to the Northern District of Texas Bankruptcy Court, Dallas Division, on December 4, 2019.<sup>3</sup>

24. On October 29, 2019, the U.S. Trustee's office appointed a four-member Unsecured Creditors Committee ("UCC") consisting of three judgment creditors—the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund ("Redeemer"); Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC (collectively "Acis"); and UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG London Branch (collectively "UBS")—and an unpaid vendor, Meta-E Discovery.

25. Following the venue transfer to Texas, on December 27, 2019, the Debtor filed its Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of

Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course (“Governance Motion”).<sup>4</sup> On January 9, 2020, the Court signed a Governance Order granting the Governance Motion.<sup>5</sup>

26. As part of the Governance Order, an independent board of directors—which included Seery as one of the selections of the Unsecured Creditors Committee—was appointed to the Board of Directors (the “Board”) of Strand, the Original Debtor’s general partner. The Board then appointed Seery as the Chief Executive Officer in place of the previous CEO, Mr. James Dondero, as well as the CRO.<sup>6</sup> Seery currently serves as Trustee of the Claimant Trust under the terms of the CTA and the CEO of the Reorganized Debtor.<sup>7</sup>

B. *The Targeted Claims

27. In his capacity as the Original Debtor’s CEO and CRO, Seery negotiated and obtained court approval for settlements with several large unsecured creditors including Redeemer, Acis, UBS, and another major unsecured creditor, HarbourVest (Redeemer, Acis, UBS, and HarbourVest are collectively the “Settling Parties”), resulting in the following allowed Claims:

Creditor	Class 8	Class 9
Redeemer	$137 mm	$0 mm

<sup>5</sup> Doc. 339.

<sup>6</sup> Doc. 854, Order Approving Retention of Seery as CEO/CRO.

<sup>7</sup> See Doc. 1943, Order Approving Plan, p. 34.

Acis	$23 mm	$0 mm
HarbourVest	$45 mm	$35 mm
UBS	$65 mm	$60 mm
(Totals)	$270 mm	$95 mm

As reflected in these settlements, HarbourVest and UBS owned Class 9 claims in addition to Class 8 Claims. Class 9 Claims were subordinated to Class 8 Claims in the distribution waterfall in the Plan.

28. Each of the Settling Parties sold their Claims to Farallon and Stonehill (or affiliated special purpose entities) shortly after receiving court approval of the settlements. One of these “trades” took place within just a few weeks before the Plan’s Effective Date.<sup>8</sup> All of these trades occurred when HMIT held its 99.5% equity stake in the Debtor. Notice of these trades was first provided in filings in the records of the Original Debtor’s bankruptcy proceedings, as follows: Claim No. 23 (Doc. 2211, 2212, and 2215), Claim Nos. 190 and 191 (Doc. 2697 and 2698), Claim Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153 and 154 (Doc. 2263), Claim No. 81 (Doc. 2262), Claim No. 72 (Doc. 2261).

29. Farallon and Stonehill, both of whom are registered investment advisors that manage hedge funds, have fiduciary duties to their own investors. As such, they are acutely aware of their duties and obligation as fiduciaries. Yet, they both invested many tens of millions of dollars, directly or indirectly, to acquire the Claims in the absence of any publicly available information that could provide any economic justification for their investment decisions.

30. Upon information and belief, Stonehill and Farallon collectively invested an estimated $160 million to acquire the Claims with a face amount of $365 million, and they did so in the absence of any meaningful due diligence. Indeed, Farallon has admitted that it conducted no due diligence but relied on Seery's guarantees.

31. Stonehill and Farallon's investments become even more suspicious because the Plan provided the only publicly available information, which, at the time, included pessimistic projections that the Claims would ever receive full payment:

- a. From October 2019, when the original Chapter 11 Petition was filed, to January 2021, just before the Plan was confirmed, the projected value of HCM's assets dropped over $200 million from $566 million to $364 million.<sup>9</sup>
- b. HCM's Disclosure Statement projected payment of 71.32% of Class 8 claims, and 0% of claims in Classes 9-11.<sup>10</sup>
  - o This meant that Farallon and Stonehill invested more than $163 million in Claims when the publicly available information indicated they would receive $0 in return on their investment as Class 9 creditors and substantially less than par on their Class 8 Claims.
- c. In HCM's Q3 2021 Post-Confirmation Report, HCM reported that the amount of Class 8 claims expected to be paid dropped even further from 71% to 54%.

d. Despite the stark decline in the value of the estate and in the midst of substantial reductions in the percentage of Class 8 Claims expected to be satisfied, Stonehill, through Jessup, and Farallon, through Muck, nevertheless purchased the four largest bankruptcy claims from the Redeemer Committee/Crusader Fund, Acis, HarbourVest, and UBS (collectively, again, the “Claims”) in April and August of 2021 in the combined amount of $163 million.<sup>11</sup>

32. Upon information and belief, Stonehill, through its special purpose entity, Jessup, acquired the Redeemer Committee’s claim for $78 million.<sup>12</sup> Upon information and belief, the $23 million Acis claim<sup>13</sup> was sold to Farallon/Muck for $8 million. Upon information and belief, HarbourVest sold its combined $80 million in claims to Farallon/Muck for $27 million. UBS sold its combined $125 million in claims for $50 million to both Stonehill/Jessup and Farallon/Muck. In the instance of UBS, the total projected payout was only $35 million. Indeed, as part of these transactions, both Farallon and Stonehill purchased Class 9 Claims at a time when the Debtor’s Estate projected a zero dollar return on all such Claims.

<sup>11</sup> Notices of Transfers [Docs. 2212, 2215, 2261, 2262, 2263, 2215, 2297, 2298]. The Acis claim was transferred on April 16, 2021; the Redeemer, Crusader, and HarbourVest claims were transferred on April 30, 2021; and the UBS claims were transferred on August 9, 2021.

<sup>12</sup> July 6, 2021, letter from Alvarez & Marsal CRF Management, LLC to Highland Crusader Funds Stakeholders.

<sup>13</sup> Seery/HCM have argued that $10 million of the Acis claim is self-funding.

C. *Material Non-Public Information is Disclosed to Seery's Affiliates at Stonehill and Farallon.

33. One of the significant assets of the Debtor's Estate was the Debtor's direct and indirect holdings in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios, Inc. ("MGM").<sup>14</sup>

34. On December 17, 2020, James Dondero, sent an email to Seery. At that time, Dondero was a member of the MGM board, and the email contained material non-public information regarding Amazon and Apple's interest in acquiring MGM.<sup>15</sup> Of course, any such sale would significantly enhance the value of the Original Debtor's estate.

35. Upon receipt of this material non-public information, Seery should have halted all transactions involving MGM stock, yet just six days later Seery filed a motion in this Court seeking approval of the Original Debtor's settlement with HarbourVest - resulting in a transfer to the Original Debtor of HarbourVest's interest in a Debtor-advised fund, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. ("HCLOF"), which held substantial MGM debt and equity.<sup>16</sup> Conspicuously, the HCLOF interest was not transferred to the Original Debtor for distribution as part of the bankruptcy estate, but rather to "to an entity to be designated by the Debtor" — i.e., one that was not subject to typical bankruptcy reporting requirements.<sup>17</sup>

36. Upon information and belief, aware that the Debtor's stake in MGM afforded a new profit center, Seery saw an opportunity to increase his own compensation and enlisted the help of Stonehill and Farallon to extract further value from the Original Debtor's Estate at the expense of other innocent creditors and equity. This quid pro quo included, at a minimum, a tacit, if not express, understanding that Seery would be well-compensated.

37. Until 2009, Seery was the Global Head of Fixed Income Loans at Lehman Brothers<sup>18</sup> where, on information and belief, he conducted substantial business with Farallon. Following the collapse of Lehman Brothers, Seery continued to work with, and indeed represented Farallon as its legal counsel. Seery ultimately joined a hedge fund, River Birch Capital,<sup>19</sup> which, along with Stonehill, served on the creditors committee in other bankruptcy proceedings. GCM Grovesnor, a global asset management firm, held four seats on the Redeemer Committee<sup>20</sup> and, upon information and belief, is a significant investor in Stonehill and Farallon. Grovesnor, through Redeemer, played a large part in appointing Seery as a director of Strand Advisors. Seery was beholden to Grovesnor from the outset, and, by extension, Grovesnor's affiliates Stonehill and Farallon.

38. As successful capital management firms, with advisory and fiduciary duties to their own clients, Stonehill and Farallon typically engage in robust due diligence before making significant investments. Yet, in this case, it would have been impossible for Stonehill and Farallon to forecast any profit at the time of their multi-million-dollar investments given the negative financial information disclosed by the Original Debtor's Estate. Seery, as the CEO, was aware of and involved in approving these negative financial projections. In doing so, Seery intentionally caused the publication of misleading, false information.

39. Seery shared with Stonehill and Farallon non-public information concerning the value of the Original Debtor's Estate which was higher than publicly available information. Thus, the only logical conclusion is that all Defendants knew that the publicly available projections, which accompanied the Plan, were understated, false, and misleading. Otherwise, Farallon, Muck, Stonehill and Jessup would not have made their multi-million-dollar investments. None of the Defendants disclosed their knowledge of the misleading nature of these financial projections when they had a duty to do so. None of the Defendants disclosed the nature of their dealings in acquiring the Claims.

40. By wrongfully exploiting non-public insider information, Stonehill and Farallon—acting through Muck and Jessup—became the largest holders of unsecured claims in the Debtor's Estate with resulting control over the Oversight Board and a front row seat to the reorganization and distribution of Claimant Trust Assets. As such, they were given control (through Muck and Jessup) to approve discretionary bonuses and success fees for Seery from these assets.

D. Distributions

41. The MGM sale was ultimately consummated in March 2022 for $6.1 billion in cash, plus $2.5 billion in debt that Amazon assumed and immediately repaid.<sup>21</sup>

42. By the end of Q3 2021, just over $6 million of the projected $205 million available for general unsecured claimants had been disbursed.<sup>22</sup> No additional distributions were made to general unsecured claimholders until, suddenly, in Q3 2022 almost $250 million was paid toward Class 8 general unsecured claims—$45 million more than was ever projected.<sup>23</sup> Thus, Stonehill (Jessup) and Farallon (Muck) have already received returns that far eclipse their investment. They also stand to make further significant profits on their investments, including payments on Class 9 Claims.

43. As of December 31, 2022, the Claimant Trust has distributed $255,201,228. On a pro rata basis, that means that innocent creditors have received approximately $22,373,000 in distributions against the stated value of their allowed claims. That leaves a remaining unpaid balance of approximately $9,627,000.

44. Muck and Jessup already have received approximately $232.8 million on their Claims. Assuming and original investment of approximately $160 million, this represents over $72 million in ill-gotten profits that, if disgorged, would be far more than what is required to fully pay all other innocent creditors - immediately placing HMIT in the status of a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary.

45. It is clear Seery facilitated the sale of the Claims to Stonehill (Jessup) and Farallon (Muck) at discounted prices and used misleading financial projections to facilitate these trades. This was part of a larger strategy to install Stonehill (Jessup) and Farallon (Muck), his business allies, onto the Oversight Board where they would oversee lucrative bonuses and other compensation for Seery in exchange for hefty profits they expected to receive.

V. Causes of Action

A. Count I (against Seery): Breach of Fiduciary Duty

46. The allegations in paragraphs 1-45 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

47. As CEO and CRO of a debtor-in-possession, Seery owed fiduciary duties to HMIT, as equity, and to the Debtor's Estate, including, without limitation, the duty of loyalty. Seery also was under a duty to avoid conflicts of interests, but Seery willfully and knowingly engaged in conduct which conflicted with his fiduciary duties—and he did so out of financial self-interest.

48. By fraudulently providing and/or approving negative projections of the Debtor's Estate when he knew otherwise, Seery willfully and knowingly breached his fiduciary duties.

49. By misusing and disclosing confidential, material non-public information to Stonehill and Farallon, Seery willfully and knowingly breached his fiduciary duties.

50. By failing to disclose his role in the inside trades at issue, Seery willfully and knowingly breached his fiduciary duties.

51. As a result of his willful misconduct, Seery was unfairly advantaged by receiving additional undisclosed compensation and bonuses from the assets of the Debtor's Estate and from the Claimant Trust Assets—to the detriment of other innocent stakeholders, including HMIT, as former equity and a contingent Claimant Trust Beneficiary.

52. To remedy these breaches, Seery is liable for disgorgement of all compensation he received since his collusion with Farallon and Stonehill first began. Alternatively, Seery should be disgorged of all compensation paid to him under the terms of the CTA since the Effective Date of the Plan in August 2021.

53. Alternatively, Plaintiffs are entitled to recover damages measured by all ill-gotten compensation which Seery has received since his first collusive conduct began.

B. Count II (against Stonehill, Farallon, Jessup and Muck): Breaches of Fiduciary Duty and Knowing Participation in Breach of Fiduciary Duty

54. The allegations in paragraphs 1-53 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

55. Seery owed fiduciary duties to HMIT and the Debtor's Estate, and he willfully and knowingly breached these duties. Without limiting the foregoing, Seery owed a duty of loyalty which he willfully and knowingly breached. Seery also owed a duty to not engage in self-interested conduct to the detriment of the Debtor's Estate and innocent stakeholders. Seery also willfully and knowingly breached this duty.

56. Stonehill and Farallon were aware of Seery's fiduciary duties and, by purchasing the Claims and approving bonuses and other compensation for Seery, Stonehill (acting through Jessup) and Farallon (acting through Muck), willfully and knowingly participated in Seery's breaches or, alternatively, willfully aided and abetted such breaches.

57. Stonehill (Jessup) and Farallon (Muck) unfairly received many millions of dollars in profits and fees—and stand to earn even more profits and fees—to the detriment of innocent stakeholders, including HMIT.

58. Stonehill and Farallon are liable for disgorgement of all profits earned from their purchase of the Claims. In addition, they are liable in damages for excessive compensation paid to Seery as part of the covert quid pro quo with Seery.

C. Count III (against all Defendants): Fraud by Misrepresentation and Material Nondisclosure

59. The allegations in paragraphs 1-58 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

60. Based on Seery's duties as CEO and CRO of a debtor-in-possession, and the other Defendants' duties as non-statutory insiders, Seery, Stonehill (Jessup), and Farallon (Muck) had a duty to disclose Stonehill and Farallon's plans to purchase the Claims, but they deliberately failed to do so. Seery also had a duty to disclose correct financial projections but, rather, misrepresented such values or failed to correct false and misleading projections. These factual misrepresentations and omissions were material.

61. The withheld financial information was material because it has had an adverse impact on control over the eventual distributions to creditors and former equity, as well as the right to control Seery's compensation. By withholding such information, Seery was able to plant friendly business allies on the Oversight Board to the detriment of innocent stakeholders.

62. Defendants knew that HMIT and other creditors were ignorant of their plans, and HMIT and other stakeholders did not have an equal opportunity to discover their scheme. HMIT and the other innocent stakeholders justifiably relied on misleading information relating to the value of the Original Debtor's Estate.

63. By failing to disclose material information, and by making or aiding and abetting material misrepresentations, Seery, Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and Jessup intended to induce HMIT to take no affirmative action.

64. HMIT justifiably relied on Seery, Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and Jessup's nondisclosures and representations, and HMIT was injured as a result and the Debtor's Estate was also injured.

65. As a result of their frauds, all Defendants should be disgorged of all profits and ill-gotten compensation derived from their fraudulent scheme. Seery is also liable for damages measured by excessive compensation he has received since he first engaged in willful misconduct.

D. Count IV (against all Defendants): Conspiracy

66. The allegations in paragraphs 1-65 above are incorporated herein as if incorporated herein verbatim.

67. Defendants conspired with each other to unlawfully breach fiduciary duties to HMIT and the Debtor's Estate, to conceal their fraudulent trades, and to interfere with HMIT's entitlement to the residual of the Claimant Trust Asset.

68. Seery's disclosure of material non-public information to Stonehill and Farallon, and Muck and Jessup's purchase of the Claims, are each overt acts in furtherance of the conspiracy.

69. HMIT's interest in the residual of the Claimant Trust Assets has been adversely impacted by this conspiracy. The assets have been depleted by virtue of Seery's compensation awards.

E. Count V (against Muck and Jessup): Equitable Disallowance

70. The allegations in paragraphs 1-69 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

71. By purchasing the Claims based on material non-public information, Stonehill and Farallon, through Jessup and Muck, engaged in inequitable conduct.

72. By earning significant profits on their purchases, Muck and Jessup have been unfairly advantaged to the detriment of the remaining stakeholders, including HMIT.

73. Given this inequitable conduct, equitable disallowance of Muck's and Jessup's Claims to the extent over and above their initial investment is appropriate and consistent with the purposes of the Bankruptcy Code.

74. Pleading in the alternative only, subordination of Muck's and Jessup's General Unsecured Claim Trust Interests and Subordinated Claim Trust Interests to all other interests in the Claimant Trust, including HMIT's Contingent Trust Interest, is necessary and appropriate to remedy Muck's and Jessup's wrongful conduct, and is also consistent with the purposes of the Bankruptcy Code.

F. Count VI (against all Defendants): Unjust Enrichment and Constructive Trust

75. The allegations in paragraphs 1-74 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

76. By acquiring the Claims using material non-public information, Stonehill and Farallon breached a relationship of trust with the Original Debtor's Estate and other innocent stakeholders and were unjustly enriched and gained an undue advantage over other creditors and former equity.

77. Allowing Stonehill, Farallon, Muck and Jessup to retain their ill-gotten benefits at the expense of other innocent stakeholders and HMIT, as former equity, would be unconscionable.

78. Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and Jessup should be forced to disgorge all distributions over and above their original investment in the Claims as restitution for their unjust enrichment.

79. The proceeds Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and Jessup have received from the Claimant Trust are traceable and identifiable. A constructive trust should be imposed on such proceeds to secure the restitution of these improperly retained benefits.

F. Count VI (Against all Defendants): Declaratory Relief

80. The allegations in paragraphs 1-79 are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

81. HMIT seeks declaratory relief. The Court has jurisdiction to provide declaratory judgment relief when there is an actual controversy that has arisen and exists relating to the rights and duties of the parties.

82. Bankruptcy Rule 7001 provides that “a proceeding to recover property or money,” may include declaratory relief. See, Fed. R. Bank P. 7001(1), (9).

83. The Claimant Trust Agreement is governed under Delaware law. The Claimant Trust Agreement incorporates and is subject to Delaware trust law. HMIT seeks a declaration, as follows:

- a. There is a ripe controversy concerning HMIT’s rights and entitlements under the Claimant Trust Agreement;
- b. As a general matter, HMIT has standing to bring an action against a trustee even if its interest is considered contingent;
- c. HMIT’s status as a Claimant Trust Beneficiary is fully vested upon disgorgement of the ill-gotten profits of Muck and Jessup, and by extension, Farallon and Stonehill;
- d. HMIT’s status as a Claimant Trust Beneficiary is fully vested upon the equitable disallowance of the Claims held by Muck and Jessup over and above their initial investments. Alternatively, HMIT’s status as a Claimant Trust Beneficiary is fully vested when all of Muck’s and Jessup’s trust interests are subordinated to the trust interests held by HMIT;
- e. Seery is properly estopped from asserting that HMIT is not an appropriate party to bring this derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and/or the Claimant Trust because of Seery’s fraudulent conduct, bad faith, willful misconduct and unclean hands;

- f. Muck and Jessup are properly estopped from asserting that HMIT is not an appropriate party to bring this derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust because of their fraudulent conduct, bad faith, willful misconduct and unclean hands;
- g. All Defendants are estopped from asserting that HMIT does not have standing in its individual capacity due to their fraudulent conduct, bad faith, willful misconduct and unclean hands.

VI. Punitive Damages

84. The allegations in paragraphs 1-74 are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

85. The Defendants' misconduct was intentional, knowing, willful and fraudulent and in total disregard of the rights of others. An award of punitive damages is appropriate and necessary under the facts of this case.

86. All conditions precedent to recovery herein have been satisfied.

VII. Prayer

WHEREFORE, HMIT prays for judgment as follows:

1. Equitable disallowance of the Claims over and above Muck's and Jessup's original investments (or, alternatively, subordination of their Claimant Trust Interests, as addressed herein);
2. Disgorgement of all funds distributed from the Claimant Trust to Muck and/or Jessup over and above their original investments;
3. Disgorgement of compensation paid to Seery in managing or administering the Original and Reorganized Debtor's Estate;
4. Imposition of a constructive trust;

5. Declaratory relief as described herein;
6. An award of actual damages as described herein;
7. An award of exemplary damages as allowed by law;
8. Pre- and post-judgment interest; and,
9. All such other and further relief to which HMIT may be justly entitled.

Respectfully Submitted,

DESIGNATION OF RECORD ON APPEAL

Pursuant to Rules 8009(a)(1)(A)-(B) and (a)(4) of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, Dugaboy Investment Trust and Hunter Mountain Investment Trust ("Appellants") hereby designate the following items to be included in the record and identifies the following issues

APPELLANTS' STATEMENT OF ISSUES AND

with respect to its appeal of the Order Granting Motion to Dismiss Adversary Proceeding in which Contingent Interest Holders in Chapter 11 Plan Trust Seek a Post-Confirmation Valuation of Trust Assets [Doc.26-27] which was entered by the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas on May 24, 2024.

I. STATEMENT OF ISSUES TO BE PRESENTED ON APPEAL

1. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred in granting The Highland Parties' Motion to Dismiss Complaint to (I) Compel Disclosures About the Assets of the Highland Claimant Trust and (II) Determine (A) Relative Value of Those Assets, and (B) Nature of Plaintiffs' Interests in the Claimant Trust.
2. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred by dismissing Count I under Rule 12(b)(6) based on the Bankruptcy Court's finding that Appellants could not prove any facts that would entitle them to the relief that they sought when the Appellants properly alleged that they have a legal and equitable right to information under the Claimant Trust Agreement and under Delaware and Texas law.
3. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred by dismissing Count II because it was predicated on Count I and was therefore not justiciable under Rule 12(h)(3) when Count I was improperly dismissed.
4. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred by dismissing Count III because it was predicated on Count I and was therefore not justiciable under Rule 12(b)(1) when Count I was improperly dismissed.
5. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred in dismissing Count III because the Bankruptcy Court found that Appellants were asking it to issue an opinion based on a set of hypothetical facts and was therefore not justiciable under Rule 12(b)(1) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction when Count III seeks only a declaration that the Claimant Trust assets exceed the obligations of the bankruptcy estate or must be deemed to do so such that Appellants' contingent trust interests are effectively vested, or as an equitable matter, must be treated as vested because the putative defendants are preventing the conditions for formal vesting from occurring.

HUNTER MOUNTAIN INVESTMENT TRUST’S EMERGENCY MOTION FOR LEAVE TO FILE VERIFIED ADVERARY PROCEEDING

Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (“HMIT”), Movant, files this Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding (“Motion”), both in its individual capacity and as a derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor, Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“HCM” or “Reorganized Debtor”) and the Highland Claimant Trust against Muck Holdings, LLC (“Muck”), Jessup Holdings, LLC (“Jessup”), Farallon

Capital Management, LLC (“Farallon”), Stonehill Capital Management, LLC (“Stonehill”), James P. Seery, Jr. (“Seery”) and John Doe Defendant Nos. 1-10 (Muck, Jessup, Stonehill, Farallon, Seery and the John Doe Defendant Nos. 11-10 are collectively “Respondents” or “Proposed Defendants”).

I. Good Cause for Expedited Relief

1. HMIT seeks leave to file an Adversary Proceeding pursuant to the Court’s “gatekeeping” orders, as well as the injunction and exculpation provisions in the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (Doc. 1943), as modified (the “Plan”).<sup>1</sup> A copy of HMIT’s proposed Verified Adversary Proceeding (“Adversary Proceeding”) is attached as Exhibit 1 to this Motion. This Motion is separately supported by objective evidence derived from historical filings in the bankruptcy proceedings.<sup>2</sup>

WITHDRAWN

---

<sup>2</sup> Unless otherwise referenced, all references to evidence involving documents filed in the Debtor’s bankruptcy proceedings (Case No. 19-34054-sgj11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex.)) are cited by “Doc.” reference. HMIT asks the Court to take judicial notice of the documents identified by such entries.

WITHDRAWN

WITHDRAWN

2. The expedited nature of this Motion is permitted under Fed. R. Bank P. 9006 (c)(1), which authorizes a shortened time for a response and hearing for good cause. For the reasons set forth herein, HMIT has shown good cause and requests that the Court schedule a hearing on this Motion on three (3) days' notice, and that any responses be filed no later than twenty-four hours before the scheduled hearing.<sup>4</sup>

3. HMIT brings this Motion on behalf of itself and derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and the Highland Claimant Trust ("Claimant Trust"), as defined in the Claimant Trust Agreement (Doc. 3521-5) ("CTA").<sup>5</sup> Upon the Plan's Effective Date, Highland Capital Management, LP, as the original Debtor ("Original Debtor"), transferred its assets, including its causes of action, to the Claimant Trust, including the causes of action set forth in the attached Adversary Proceeding. The attached Adversary Proceeding alleges claims which are substantially more than "colorable" based upon plausible allegations that the Proposed Defendants, acting in concert, perpetrated a fraud,<sup>6</sup> including a fraud upon innocent stakeholders, as well as breaches of fiduciary

<sup>4</sup> Expedited action on this Motion is also warranted to hasten Movants' opportunity to file suit, pursue prompt relevant discovery, and reduce the threat of loss of potentially key evidence. Upon information and belief, Seery has been deleting text messages on his personal iPhone via a rolling, automatic deletion setting.

<sup>5</sup> Solely in the alternative, and in the unlikely event HMIT's proposed causes of actions against Seery, Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and/or Jessup are considered to be "Estate Claims" as those terms are used and defined within the CTA and Exhibit A to the Notice of Final Term Sheet [Docket No. 354] in HCM's bankruptcy (and without admitting the same), HMIT alternatively seeks standing to bring this action as a derivative action on behalf of the Litigation Sub-Trust as appropriate.

<sup>6</sup> Neither this Motion nor the proposed Adversary Complaint seeks to challenge the Court's Orders or the Plan. In addition, neither this Motion nor the proposed Adversary Complaint seeks to redistribute the assets of the Claimant Trust in a manner that would adversely impact innocent creditors. Rather, the duties and knowing participation in (or aiding and abetting) breaches of fiduciary duty. The Adversary Proceeding also alleges that the Proposed Defendants did so collectively by falsely representing the value of the Debtor's Estate, failing to timely disclose accurate values of the Debtor's Estate, and trading on material non-public information regarding such values. HMIT also alleges that the Proposed Defendants colluded to manipulate the Debtor's Estate—providing Seery the opportunity to plant close business allies into positions of control to approve Seery's compensation demands following the Effective Date.

4. Emergency relief is needed because of a fast-approaching date (April 16, 2023) that one or more of the Proposed Defendants may argue, depending upon choice of law, constitutes the expiration of the statute of limitations concerning some of the common law claims available to the Claimant Trust, as well as to HMIT.<sup>7</sup> Although HMIT offered to enter tolling agreements from each of the Proposed Defendants, they either rejected HMIT's requests or have not confirmed their willingness to do so, thereby necessitating the expedited nature of this Motion.<sup>8</sup> Because this Motion is subject to the proposed Adversary Proceeding seeks to benefit all innocent stakeholders while working within the terms and provisions of the Plan, as well as the Claimant Trust Agreement.

<sup>7</sup> The first insider trade at issue involved the sale and transfer of Claim 23 in the amount of $23 million held by ACMLD Claim, LLC to Muck on April 16, 2021 (Doc. 2215).

<sup>8</sup> HMIT has been diligent in its efforts to investigate the claims described in this Motion, including the filing of a Tex. R. Civ. P. Rule 202 proceeding in January 2023, which was not adjudicated until recently in March 2023. Those proceedings were conducted in the 191st Judicial District Court in Dallas County, Texas, under Cause DC-23-01004. WITHDRAWN Farallon and Stonehill defended those proceedings by aggressively arguing, in significant part, that the discovery issues were better undertaken in this Court.<sup>8</sup> The Rule 202 Petition was recently dismissed (necessarily without prejudice)

Court's "gatekeeping" orders and the injunction provisions of the Plan, emergency leave is required.

5. This Motion will come as no surprise to the Proposed Defendants. Farallon and Stonehill were involved in recent pre-suit discovery proceedings under Rule 202 of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure relating to the same insider trading allegations described in this Motion. Muck and Jessup, special purpose entities created and ostensibly controlled by Farallon and Stonehill, respectively, also were provided notice of these Rule 202 Proceedings in February 2023.<sup>10</sup> Like this Motion, the Rule 202 Proceedings focused on Muck, Jessup, Farallon, and Stonehill and their wrongful purchase of large, allowed claims in the Original Debtor's bankruptcy based upon material non-public information. Seery is also aware of these insider trading allegations because of a prior written demand.

6. In light of the Proposed Defendants' apparent refusal to enter tolling agreements, or their failure to fully affirm their willingness to do so, HMIT is forced to seek emergency relief from this Court to proceed timely with the proposed Adversary Proceeding before the expiration of any arguable limitations period.<sup>10</sup>

on March 8, 2023, ostensibly based on such arguments. However, it is telling that Stonehill and Farallon admitted during the Rule 202 Proceedings to their "affiliation" with Muck and Jessup and that they bought the Claims through these entities.

WITHDRAWN

<sup>10</sup> HMIT respectfully requests that this Motion be addressed and decided on an expedited basis that provides HMIT sufficient time to bring the proposed action timely. In the event the Court denies the requested relief, HMIT respectfully requests prompt notice of the Court's ruling to allow HMIT sufficient

II. Summary of Claims

7. HMIT requests leave to commence the proposed Adversary Proceeding, attached as Exhibit 1, seeking redress for breaches of duty owed to HMIT, breaches of duties owed to the Original Debtor's Estate, aiding and abetting breaches of those fiduciary duties, conspiracy, unjust enrichment, and fraud. HMIT also alleges several viable remedies, including (i) imposition of a constructive trust; (ii) equitable disallowance of any unpaid balance on the claims at issue;<sup>11</sup> (iii) disgorgement of ill-gotten profits (received by Farallon, Stonehill, Muck and Jessup) to be restituted to the Claimant Trust; (iv) disgorgement of ill-gotten compensation (received by Seery) to be restituted to the Claimant Trust; (v) declaratory judgment relief; (vi) actual damages; and (vii) punitive damages.

III. Standing

8. HMIT. Prior to the Plan's Effective Date, HMIT was the largest equity holder in the Original Debtor and held a 99.5% limited partnership interest. HMIT currently holds a Class 10 Claim as a contingent Claimant Trust Interest under the CTA

time to seek, if necessary, appropriate relief in the United States District Court. In order to have a fair opportunity to seek such relief on a timely basis and protect HMIT's rights and the rights of the Reorganized Debtor, HMIT will need to seek such relief on or before Wednesday, April 5, 2023, if this Motion has not been resolved.

<sup>11</sup> In the alternative only, subordination of Muck's and Jessup's General Unsecured Claim Trust Interests and Subordinated Claim Trust Interests to all other interests in the Claimant Trust, including HMIT's Contingent Trust Interest, is necessary and appropriate to remedy Muck's and Jessup's wrongful conduct, and is also consistent with the purposes of the Bankruptcy Code.

(Doc. 3521-5). Upon information and belief, all conditions precedent to HMIT's certification as a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary would be readily satisfied but for the Defendants' wrongful actions and conduct described in this Motion and the attached Adversary Proceeding.

9. Reorganized Debtor. Although HMIT has standing as a former Class B/C Equity Holder, Class 10 claimant, and now contingent Claimant Trust Interest under the CTA,<sup>12</sup> this Motion separately seeks authorization to prosecute the Adversary Proceeding derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trust. All conditions precedent to bringing a derivative action are satisfied.

10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23.1 provides the procedural steps for "derivative actions," and applies to this proceeding pursuant to Fed. R. Bank. P. 7023.1. Applying Rule 7023.1, the Proposed Defendants' wrongful conduct occurred, and the improper trades consummated, in the spring and early summer of 2021, before the Effective Date in August 2021. During this period, HMIT was the 99.5% Class B/C limited partner in the original Debtor. As such, HMIT has individual standing to bring this action because Seery owed fiduciary duties directly to HMIT at that time, and the other Proposed Defendants aided and abetted breaches of those duties at that time.

<sup>12</sup> The last transaction at issue involved Claim 190, the Notice for which was filed on August 9, 2021. (Doc. 2698).

11. The derivative nature of this proceeding is also appropriate because any demand on Seery would be futile.<sup>13</sup> Seery is the Claimant Trustee under the terms of the CTA. Furthermore, any demand on the Oversight Board to prosecute these claims would be equally futile because Muck and Jessup, both of whom are Proposed Defendants, dominate the Oversight Board.<sup>14</sup>

12. The “classic example” of a proper derivative action is when a debtor-in-possession is “unable or unwilling to fulfill its obligations” to prosecute an otherwise colorable claim where a conflict of interest exists. Cooper, 405 B.R. at 815 (quoting Louisiana World, 858 F.2d at 252). Here, because HMIT’s proposed Adversary Proceeding includes claims against Seery, Muck, and Jessup, the conflicts of interest are undeniable. Seery is the Trustee of the Claimant Trust Assets under the CTA, and he also serves as the “Estate Representative.”<sup>15</sup> Muck and Jessup, as successors to Acis, the Redeemer Committee and UBS, effectively control the Oversight Board, with the responsibility to “monitor and oversee the administration of the Claimant Trust and the Claimant Trustee’s performance . . . .”<sup>16</sup>

<sup>13</sup> Any demand on the Litigation Sub-Trust would be equally futile for the same reasons addressed herein, since the Litigation Trustee serves at the direction of the Oversight Board.

<sup>14</sup> See Footnote 8, infra. In December 2021, several stakeholders made a demand on the Debtor through James Seery, in his capacity as Trustee to the Claimant Trust, to pursue claims related to these insider trades.

13. Creditors' committees frequently bring suit on behalf of bankruptcy estates.

Yet, it is clear that any appropriately designated party also may bring derivative claims.

In Chapter 11 [cases], there is both a textual basis . . . and, frequently, a non-textual, equitable rationale for granting a creditor or creditors committee derivative standing to pursue estate actions (i.e., the equitable rationale coming into play when the debtor-in-possession has a conflict of interest in pursuing an action, such as in the situation of an insider-defendant).

In re Cooper, 405 B.R. 801, 803 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009) (also noting that “[c]onflicts of ‘fox guarding the hen house’ is often apropos”); see also In re McConnell, 122 B.R. 41, 43-44 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 1989) (“[I]ndividual creditors can also act in lieu of the trustee or necessary, if not critical.

<sup>17</sup> See Citicorp Venture Cap., Ltd. v. Comm. of Creditors Holding Unsecured Claims, 160 F.3d 982, 987 (3d Cir. 1998) (settlement noteholders purchased Debtors' securities with “the benefit of non-public information acquired as a fiduciary” for the “dual purpose of making a profit and influenc[ing] the reorganization in [their] own self-interest.”), see also, Wolf v. Weinstein, 372 U.S. 633, 642, 83 S.Ct. 969, 10 L.Ed.2d 33 (1963) (“Access to inside information or strategic position in a corporate reorganization renders the temptation to profit by trading in the Debtor's stock particularly pernicious.”).

14. The proposed Adversary Proceeding also sets forth claims that readily satisfy the Court's threshold standards requiring "colorable" claims, as well as the requirements for a derivative action. This Motion <sup>WITHDRAWN</sup> is supported by <sup>WITHDRAWN</sup> <sup>WITHDRAWN</sup> historical filings in the bankruptcy proceedings <sup>WITHDRAWN</sup> <sup>WITHDRAWN</sup>. At the very least, this <sup>WITHDRAWN</sup> satisfies the Court's threshold requirements of willful misconduct and fraud set forth in the "gatekeeping" orders, as well as the injunction and exculpation provisions in the Plan.<sup>18</sup> This <sup>WITHDRAWN</sup> also supports well-pleaded allegations exempted from the scope of the releases included in the Plan.

15. HMIT is an appropriate party to bring this action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust. If successful, the Adversary Proceeding will likely recover well over $100 million for the Claimant Trust, thereby enabling the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trust to pay off any remaining innocent creditors and make significant distributions to HMIT as a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary.

16. As of December 31, 2022, the Claimant Trust had distributed 64.2% of the total $397,485,568 par value of all Class 8 and Class 9 unsecured creditor claims. The

<sup>18</sup> HMIT recognizes that it is an "Enjoined Party" under the Plan. The Plan requires a showing, inter alia, of bad faith, willful misconduct, or fraud against a "Protected Party." Seery is a "Protected Party" and an "Exculpated Party" in his capacity as an Independent Director. Muck and Jessup may be "Protected Parties" as members of the Oversight Committee, but they were not "protected" when they purchased the Claims before the Effective Date. While it is HMIT's position that Farallon and Stonehill do not qualify as "Protected Parties," they are included in this Motion in the interest of judicial economy.

Claims acquired by Muck and Jessup have an allowed par value of $365,000,000. Based on these numbers, the innocent unsecured creditors hold approximately $32 million in allowed claims.<sup>19</sup>

17. As of December 31, 2022, the Claimant Trust has distributed $255,201,228.<sup>20</sup> On a pro rata basis, that means that innocent creditors have received approximately $22,373,000 in distributions against the stated value of their allowed claims. That leaves a remaining unpaid balance of approximately $9,627,000.

18. Muck and Jessup already have received approximately $232.8 million on their Claims. Assuming and original investment of approximately $160 million, this represents over $72 million in ill-gotten profits that, if disgorged, would be far more than what is required to fully pay all other innocent creditors - immediately placing HMIT in the status of a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary. The benefits to the Reorganized Debtor, the Claimant Trust and innocent stakeholders are undeniable.<sup>21</sup>

19. Seery and the Oversight Board should be estopped from challenging HMIT's status to bring this derivative action on behalf of the Claimant Trust. Seery, Muck and Jessup have committed fraud, acted in bad faith and have unclean hands, and they should not be allowed to undermine the proposed Adversary Proceeding - which seeks to rectify significant wrongdoing. To hold otherwise would allow Seery, Muck, Jessup, Stonehill, and Farallon the opportunity to not just “guard the hen house,” but to also open the door and take what they want.<sup>22</sup> HMIT seeks a declaratory judgment of its rights, accordingly.

IV. The Proposed Defendants

20. Seery acted in several capacities during relevant times. He served as the Debtor’s Chief Executive Officer (“CEO”) and Chief Restructuring Officer (“CRO”). He also served as member of the Debtor’s Independent Board.<sup>23</sup> He currently serves as Claimant Trustee under the CTA and remains the CEO of the Reorganized Debtor.

21. There is no doubt Seery owed the Original Debtor’s Estate, as well as equity, fiduciary duties, including the duty of loyalty and the duty to avoid conflicts of interest. See In re Xtreme Power Inc., 563 B.R. 614, 632-33 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 2016) (detailing fiduciary duties owed by corporate officers and directors under Delaware law); Louisiana World, 858 F.2d at 245-46 (detailing duties owed by debtors-in-possession).<sup>24</sup>

<sup>22</sup> “The doctrine of ‘unclean hands’ provides that “a litigant who engages in reprehensible conduct in relation to the matter in controversy ... forfeits his right to have the court hear his claim, regardless of its merit. [T]he purpose of the clean hands maxim is to protect the court against misuse by one who, because of his conduct, has forfeited his right to have the court consider his claims, regardless of their merit. As such it is not a matter of defense to be applied on behalf of a litigant; rather it is a rule of public policy.” Portnoy v. Cryo-Cell Int’l, Inc., 940 A.2d 43, 80–81 (Del. Ch. 2008) (citations omitted) (internal quotations omitted for clarity).

<sup>24</sup> The Internal Affairs Doctrine dictates choice of law. Here, the Debtor, Highland Capital Management, was organized under the law of Delaware. As much, Seery’s fiduciary duties and claims involving breaches of those duties will be governed by Delaware law.

22. Farallon and Stonehill are capital management companies which manage hedge funds; they are also Seery's close business allies with a long history of business ventures and close affiliation. Although they were strangers to the Original Debtor's bankruptcy on the petition date, and were not original creditors, they became entangled in this bankruptcy at Seery's invitation and encouragement—and then knowingly participated in the wrongful insider trades at issue. By doing so, Seery was able to plant friendly allies onto the Oversight Board to rubber stamp compensation demands. The proposed Adversary Proceeding alleges that Farallon and Stonehill bargained to receive handsome pay days in exchange.

23. Muck and Jessup are special purpose entities, admittedly created by Farallon and Stonehill on the eve of the alleged insider trades, and they were used as vehicles to assume ownership of the purchased claims. ■ WITHDRAWN ■ Muck and Jessup did not exist before confirmation of the Plan in February 2021.<sup>26</sup> Now, however, Muck and Jessup serve on the Oversight Board with immense powers under the CTA.<sup>27</sup> When they purchased the claims at issue, Muck and Jessup were not acting in their official capacities on the Oversight Committee and, therefore, they were not "Protected Persons" under the Plan.

■ WITHDRAWN ■

<sup>26</sup> ■ WITHDRAWN ■ Muck was created on March 9, 2021 before the Effective Date. Jessup was created on April 8, 2021, before the Effective Date.

<sup>27</sup> See Doc. 3521-5, Sec. 4(a) and 4(b).

24. By trading on the alleged material non-public information, Farallon, Stonehill, Muck, and Jessup became non-statutory “insiders” with duties owed directly to HMIT at a time when HMIT was the largest equity holder.<sup>28</sup> See S.E.C. v. Cuban, 620 F.3d 551, 554 (5th Cir. 2010) (“The corporate insider is under a duty to ‘disclose or abstain’ —he must tell the shareholders of his knowledge and intention to trade or abstain from trading altogether.”). In this context, there is no credible doubt that Farallon’s and Stonehill’s dealings with Seery were not arms-length. Again, Farallon and Stonehill were Seery’s past business partners and close allies.<sup>29</sup> By virtue of the insider trades at issue, Farallon and Stonehill acquired control (acting through Muck and Jessup) over the Original Debtor and Reorganized Debtor through Seery’s compensation agreement and awards, as well as supervisory powers over the Claimant Trust. This makes Farallon and Stonehill paradigm non-statutory insiders.

25. HMIT also seeks recovery against John Doe Defendant Nos. 1 through 10.<sup>30</sup>

It is clear Farallon and Stonehill refuse to disclose the precise details of their legal

<sup>29</sup> Farallon and Stonehill are two capital management firms (similar to HCM) with whom Seery has had substantial business relationships. Also, Seery previously served as legal counsel to Farallon. Seery also has a long-standing relationship with Stonehill. GCM Grosvenor, a global asset management firm, held four seats on the Redeemer Committee (an original member of the Unsecured Creditors Committee in HCM’s bankruptcy). Upon information and belief, GCM Grosvenor is a significant investor in Stonehill and Farallon. GCM Grosvenor, through Redeemer, also played a large part in appointing Seery as a director of Strand Advisors and approved his appointment as HCM’s CEO and CRO.

<sup>30</sup> Farallon and Stonehill consummated their trades concealing their actual involvement through Muck and Jessup as shell companies. Farallon’s and Stonehill’s identities were not discovered until much later after the fact.

relationships with Muck and Jessup. They resisted such discovery in the prior Rule 202 Proceedings in state district court.█ They also refused to disclose such details in response to a prior inquiry to their counsel.█ Furthermore, the corporate filings of both Muck and Farallon conspicuously omit the identity of their respective members or managing members.█ Accordingly, HMIT intends to prosecute claims against John Doe Defendant Nos. 1 -- 10 seeking equitable tolling pending further discovery whether Farallon and Stonehill inserted intermediate corporate layers between themselves and the special purpose entities (Muck and Jessup) they created. See In re ATP Oil & Gas Corp., No. 12-36187, 2017 WL 2123867, *4 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. May 16, 2017) (Isgur .J.); see also In re IFS Fin. Corp. No. 02-39553, 2010 WL 4614293, *3 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. No. 2, 2010) (“The identity of the party concealing the fraud is immaterial, the critical factor is whether any of the parties involved concealed property of the estate.” “In either case, the trustee must demonstrate that despite exercising diligence, he could not have discovered the identity of the [unnamed] defendants prior to the expiration of the limitations period.”) ATP Oil, 2017 WL 2123867 at *4. That burden is easily satisfied here.

V. Background

26. As part of this Court’s Governance Order, an independent board of directors—which included Seery as one of the selections of the Unsecured Creditor’s Committee—was appointed to the Board of Directors (the “Board”) of Strand Advisors, Inc., (“Strand Advisors”), the Original Debtor’s general partner. Following approval of the Governance Order, the Board then appointed Seery as the Original Debtor’s CEO and CRO.<sup>34</sup> Following the Effective Date of the Plan, Seery now serves as Trustee of the Claimant Trust (the Reorganized Debtor’s sole post-reorganization limited partner), and continues to serve as the Reorganized Debtor’s CEO.<sup>35</sup>

27. Imbued with his powers as CEO and CRO, Seery negotiated and obtained bankruptcy court approval of several settlements prior to the Effective Date, resulting in the following approximate allowed claims (hereinafter “Claims”):<sup>36</sup>

Creditor	Class 8	Class 9
Redeemer	$137 mm	$0 mm
Acis	$23 mm	$0 mm
HarbourVest	$45 mm	$35 mm
UBS	$65 mm	$60 mm
(Totals)	$270 mm	$95 mm

Each of the settling parties curiously sold their Claims to Farallon or Stonehill (or their affiliated special purpose entities) shortly after they obtained court approval of their settlements. One of these “trades” occurred within just a few weeks before the Effective Date. Farallon and Stonehill coordinated and controlled the purchase of these Claims through Muck and Jessup, and they admitted in open court that Muck and Jessup were created to allow their purchase of the Claims.<sup>17</sup>

28. HMIT alleges that Seery filed (or caused to be filed) deflated, misleading projections regarding the value of the Debtor’s Estate,<sup>38</sup> while inducing unsecured creditors to discount and sell their Claims to Farallon and Stonehill. But WITHDRAWN

WITHDRAWN it is now known that Seery provided material, non-public information to Farallon. The circumstantial evidence is also clear that both Farallon and Stonehill had access to and used this non-public information in connection with their purchase decisions.

29. Farallon and Stonehill are registered investment advisors who have their own fiduciary duties to their investors, and they are acutely aware of what these duties entail. Yet, upon information and belief, they collectively invested over $160 million dollars to purchase the Claims in the absence of any publicly available information that could rationally justify such investments. These “trades” become even more suspect because, at the time of confirmation, the Plan provided pessimistic projections advising stakeholders that the Claim holders would never receive full satisfaction:

- From October 2019, when the original Chapter 11 Petition was filed, to January 2021, just before the Plan was confirmed, the valuation of HCM’s assets dropped over $200 million from $566 million to $328.3 million.<sup>39</sup>
- HCM’s Disclosure Statement projected payment of 71.32% of Class 8 claims, and 0% of claims in Classes 9-11;<sup>40</sup>
  - This meant that Farallon and Stonehill invested more than $103 million in Claims when the publicly available information indicated they would receive $0 in return on their investment as Class 9 creditors and substantially less than par on their Class 8 Claims.
- In HCM’s Q3 2021 Post-Confirmation Report, HCM reported that the amount of Class 8 claims expected to be paid dropped even further from 71% to 54%;<sup>41</sup>

30. In the third financial quarter of 2021, just over $6 million of the projected $205 million available to satisfy general unsecured creditors was disbursed.<sup>42</sup> No additional distributions were made to the unsecured claimholders until, suddenly, in Q3 2022 almost $250 million was paid toward Class 8 general unsecured claims—$45 million more than was ever projected.<sup>43</sup>

31. According to Highland Capital’s Motion for Exit Financing,<sup>44</sup> and a recent motion filed by Dugaboy Investment Trust,<sup>45</sup> there remain substantial assets to be monetized for the benefit of the Reorganized Debtor’s creditors. Thus, upon information and belief, Stonehill and Farallon, stand to realize significant profits on their wrongful investments. In turn, Stonehill and Farallon will garner (and already have garnered) substantial fees – both base fees and performance fees – as the result of their acquiring and/or managing the Claims. Upon information and belief, HMIT also alleges that Seery has received excessive compensation and bonuses approved by Farallon (Muck) and Stonehill (Jessup) as members of the Oversight Board.

32. [REDACTED] WITHDRAWN [REDACTED]

- Farallon admitted it conducted no due diligence and relied upon Seery in making its multi-million-dollar investment decisions at issue.<sup>W1</sup>
- Farallon admitted it was unwilling to sell its stake in these Claims at any price because Seery assured Farallon that the Claims were tremendously valuable.<sup>W1</sup>
- Farallon bragged about the value of its investment referencing non-public information regarding Amazon, Inc.’s (“Amazon”) interest in acquiring Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios Inc. (“MGM”).<sup>W1</sup>

- Farallon was unwilling to sell its stake in the newly acquired Claims even though publicly available information suggested that Farallon would lose millions of dollars on its investment.<sup>49</sup>

Farallon can offer no credible explanation to explain its significant investment, and its refusal to sell at any price, except Farallon's access to material non-public information. In essence, Seery became the guarantor of Farallon's significant investment. Farallon admitted as much in its statements to James Dondero.

33. The same holds true for Stonehill. Given the negative, publicly available information, Stonehill's multi-million-dollar investments make no rational sense unless Stonehill had access to material non-public information.

34. Fed. R. Bank. P. 2015.3 requires debtors to "file periodic financial reports of the value, operations, and profitability of each entity that is not a publicly traded corporation or a debtor in a case under title 11, and in which the estate holds a substantial or controlling interest." However, no public reports required by Rule 2015.3 were filed. Seery testified they simply "fell through the cracks."<sup>50</sup>

35. Six days prior to the filing of the motion seeking approval of the HarbourVest Settlement, Seery acquired material non-public information regarding Amazon's interest in acquiring MGM.<sup>51</sup> Upon receipt of this material non-public information, MGM should have been placed on the Original Debtor's "restricted list," but Seery continued to move forward with deals that involved MGM stock and notes.<sup>52</sup> Because the Original Debtor additionally held direct interests in MGM,<sup>53</sup> the value of MGM was of paramount importance to the value of the estate.

36. Armed with this and other insider information, Farallon—through Muck—proceeded to invest in the Claims and, acting through Muck, acceded to a powerful position on the Oversight Board to oversee future distributions to Muck and itself. It is no coincidence Seery invited his business allies into these bankruptcy proceedings with promises of great profits. Seery's allies now oversee his compensation.<sup>54</sup>

37. The Court also should be aware that the Texas States Securities Board ("TSSB") opened an investigation into the subject matter of the insider trades at issue, and this investigation has not been closed. The continuing nature of this investigation

<sup>52</sup> As part of the HarbourVest Settlement, Seery negotiated the purchase of HarbourVest's interest in HCLOF for approximately $22.5 million as part of the transaction. Approximately 19.1% of HCLOF's assets were comprised of debt and equity in MGM. The HCLOF interest was not to be transferred to the Debtor for distribution as part of the bankruptcy estate, but rather to "to an entity to be designated by the Debtor"—i.e., one that was not subject to typical bankruptcy reporting requirements. Doc. 1625, p. 9, n. 5. Doc. 1625.

<sup>54</sup> Amazon closed on its acquisition of MGM in March 2022, but the evidence strongly suggests that agreements for the trades already had been reached - while announcement of the trades occurred strategically after the MGM news became public. Now, as a result of their wrongful conduct, Stonehill and Farallon profited significantly on their investments, and they stand to gain substantially more profits.

underscores HMIT's position that the claims described in the attached Adversary Proceeding are plausible and certainly far more than merely "colorable."

VI. Argument

A. HMIT has asserted Colorable Claims against Seery, Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and Jessup.

38. Unlike the terms "Enjoined Party," "Protected Party," or "Exculpated Party," the Plan does not define what constitutes a "colorable" claim. Nor does the Bankruptcy Code define the term. However, relevant authorities suggest that a Rule 12(b)(6) standard is an appropriate analogue.

39. The Fifth Circuit has held that a "colorable" claim standard is met if a [movant], such as HMIT, has asserted claims for relief that, on appropriate proof, would allow a recovery. A court need not and should not conduct an evidentiary hearing but must ensure that the claims do not lack any merit whatsoever. Louisiana World Exposition v. Fed. Ins. Co., 858 F.2d 233, 248 (5th Cir. 1988). Stated differently, the Court need not be satisfied there is an evidentiary basis for the asserted claims but instead should allow the claims if they appear to have some merit.

40. Other federal appellate courts have reached similar conclusions. For example, the Eighth Circuit holds that "creditors' claims are colorable if they would survive a motion to dismiss." In re Racing Services, Inc., 540 F.3d 892, 900 (8th Cir. 2008); accord In Re Foster, 516 B.R. 537, 542 (B.A.P. 8th Cir. 2014), aff'd 602 Fed. Appx. 356 (8th Cir. 2015) (per curiam). The Sixth Circuit has adopted a similar test requiring that the court look only to the face of the complaint to determine if claims are colorable. In re The Gibson Group, Inc., 66 F.3d 1436, 1446 (6th Cir. 1995) (emphasis added).

41. Although there is a dearth of federal court authorities in Texas, other federal courts have adopted the same standard—i.e., a claim is colorable if it is “plausible” and could survive a motion to dismiss. See In re America’s Hobby Center, Inc., 223 B.R. 273, 282 (S.D.N.Y. 1998). In addition, in the non-bankruptcy context, the District Court for the Northern District of Texas explained that “[t]he requirement of a ‘colorable claim’ means only that the plaintiff must have an ‘arguable claim’ and not that the plaintiff must be able to succeed on that claim.” Gonzales v. Columbia Hosp. at Med. City Dallas Subsidiary, L.P., 207 F. Supp. 2d 570, 577 (N.D. Tex. 2002) (Emphasis added).

42. Thus, in this instance, this Court’s gatekeeping inquiry is properly limited to whether HMIT has stated a plausible claim on the face of the proposed pleadings involving “bad faith,” “willful misconduct,” or “fraud.” Because the face of the Adversary Complaint alleges plausible facts, HMIT’s Motion is properly granted. Clearly, the attached Adversary Proceeding would survive a Rule 12(b)(6) challenge. Furthermore, the supporting WITHDRAWN documentary evidence provide additional support, and the circumstantial evidence proves that Farallon and Stonehill, strangers to the bankruptcy on the petition date, would not have leaped into these proceedings without undisclosed assurances of profit.

B. Fraud

43. As set forth in the proposed Adversary Proceeding, HMIT alleges a colorable claim for fraud—both fraud by knowing misrepresentation and fraud by omission of material fact. Here, these allegations of fraud are appropriately governed by Texas law under appropriate choice of law principals.<sup>55</sup>

44. Seery had a duty to not provide material inside information to his business allies. But, he did so. At the latest, Seery became aware of the potential sale of MGM in December 2020 when he received an email from Jim Dondero. ■ Thus, Seery knew at that time that this potential sale would likely yield significant value to the Original Debtor's Estate. Yet, the financial disclosures associated with the Plan's confirmation, which were provided only a month later, presented an entirely different outlook for both Class 8 and Class 9 unsecured creditors.<sup>57</sup> Seery knew at that time that these pessimistic disclosures were misleading, if not inaccurate.

45. There is no credible doubt Seery intended that innocent stakeholders would rely upon the pessimistic projections set forth in the Plan Analysis. Indeed, the singular purpose of the Plan Analysis was to advise stakeholders. As such, HMIT alleges that Seery knowingly made misrepresentations with the intention that innocent stakeholders

<sup>55</sup> However, Delaware law is substantially similar on the elements of fraud. See Malinalis v. Kramer, No. CIV.A. CPU 6-11002145, 2012 WL 174958, at 2 (Del. Com. PI. Jan. 5, 2012)

■ WITHDRAWN

would rely, and that he failed to disclose material information concerning his entanglements with Farallon and Stonehill, as well as the related negotiations that were chock full of conflicts of interest.

46. On the flip side of this conspiracy coin, Farallon and Stonehill were engaged in negotiations to acquire the Claims at discounted prices; and, they successfully did so. HMIT alleges that their success was based on knowledge that the financial disclosures associated with the Plan Analysis were significantly understated. Otherwise, it would make no financial sense for Farallon and Stonehill to do the deals at issue. Indeed, Farallon admitted that it would not sell the Claims at any price, expressing great confidence in the substantial profits it expected even in the absence of any supporting, publicly available information.■

47. All of the Proposed Defendants had a duty of affirmative disclosure under these circumstances. Seery always had this duty. Muck, Jessup, Farallon, and Stonehill assumed this duty when they became non-statutory “insiders.” Thus, all of the Proposed Defendants are liable for conspiring to perpetrate a fraud by omission of material facts.

48. HMIT also claims that Seery and the other Proposed Defendants failed to disclose material information concerning Seery’s involvement in brokering the Claims in exchange for quid pro quo assurances of enhanced compensation. Seery’s compensation should be disgorged or, alternatively, such compensation constitutes a damage recoverable by the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trust as assignees (or transferees) of the Original Debtor's causes of action. This compensation was the product of the alleged self-dealing, breaches of fiduciary duty, and fraud.

C. Breaches and Aiding and Abetting Breaches of Fiduciary Duties

49. It is beyond dispute Seery owed fiduciary duties to the Estate. See Xtreme Power, 563 B.R. at 632-33 (detailing fiduciary duties owed by corporate officers and directors under Delaware law);<sup>59</sup> Louisiana World, 858 F.2d at 245-46 (5th Cir. 1988) (detailing duties owed by debtors-in-possession). Although Seery did not buy the Claims at issue, he stood to profit from these sales because his close business allies would do his bidding after they had acceded to positions of power and control on the Oversight Board. Muck and Jessup were essentially stepping into the shoes of three of the largest unsecured creditors who were already slated to serve on the Oversight Board. Thus, by acquiring their Claims, all of the Proposed Defendants knew that Muck and Jessup would occupy these powerful oversight positions after the Effective Date.

50. Thus, the alleged conspiracy was successfully implemented before the Effective Date. Farallon and Stonehill now occupy control positions through the shell

<sup>59</sup> The Xtreme case also notes that "several Delaware courts have recognized that 'directors who are corporate employees lack independence because of their substantial interest in retaining their employment.'" 563 B.R. at 633-34. Because Muck and Jessup are now in control of Seery's compensation, it follows that Seery is beholden to them, and Seery's disclosure of inside information to Stonehill and Farallon confirms his conflict of interest.

entities (Muck and Jessup) overseeing large compensation packages for Seery. Of course, this control (and the opportunity to control) presented a patent conflict of interest which Seery should have avoided, but instead knowingly created, fostered, and encouraged. HMIT alleges that Seery breached his duty to avoid this conflict or otherwise disclose this conflict and Farallon and Stonehill aided and abetted this breach.

51. The Original Debtor, as an investment adviser registered with the SEC, is also required to make public disclosures on its Form ADV, the uniform registration form for investment advisers required by the SEC. These Form ADV disclosures, which were in effect at the time of the insider trades at issue, explicitly forbade “any access person from trading either personally or on behalf of others . . . on material non-public information or communicating material non-public information to others in violation of the law or duty owed to another party.”<sup>60</sup> It now appears these representations were false when made. Seery’s alleged conduct also violated, at minimum, the duties Seery owed in his various capacities with the Original Debtor under the Form ADV disclosures.

52. Although initially strangers to the original bankruptcy, by accepting and using inside information, Farallon and Stonehill became “temporary insiders” and thus owed separate duties to the Estate. See S.E.C. v. Cuban, 620 F.3d 551 (5th Cir. 2010) (“[E]ven an individual who does not qualify as a traditional insider may become a ‘temporary insider’ if by entering ‘into a special confidential relationship in the conduct of the business of the enterprise [they] are given access to information solely for corporate purposes.” In re Washington Mut., Inc., 461 B.R. 200 (Bankr. D. Del. 2011), vacated in part, 08-12229 MFW, 2012 WL 1563880 (Bankr. D. Del. Feb. 24, 2012) (finding that equity committee stated colorable claim for equitable disallowance against creditors who “became temporary insiders of the Debtors when the Debtors gave them confidential information and allowed them to participate in negotiations with JPMC for the shared goal of reaching a settlement that would form the basis of a consensual plan of reorganization”; vacated in part as a condition of settlement only);<sup>61</sup> See also, In re Smith, 415 B.R. 222, 232-33 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009) (“[a]n insider is an entity or person with ‘a sufficiently close relationship with the debtor that his conduct is made subject to closer scrutiny than those dealing at arm’s length with the debtor.’ “Thus, the term “insider” is viewed to encompass two classes: (1) per se insiders as listed in the Code and (2) extra-statutory insiders that do not deal at arm’s length.” (citations omitted)). Farallon, Stonehill, Muck, and Jessup clearly fall into this latter category.

https://files.adviserinfo.sec.gov/IAPD/Content/Common/crd\_iapd\_Brochure.aspx?BRCHR\_VRSN\_ID=777026.

<sup>61</sup> Although the Washington Mutual case was subsequently vacated, the Court’s intellectual reasoning remains valid because the vacatur was mandated by a mediated settlement, not because the court’s logic was flawed or changed, and the court expressly noted that the parties’ settlement was conditioned on vacatur. See In re Washington Mut., Inc., No. 08-12229 MFW, 2012 WL 1563880, *8 (Bankr. D. Del. Feb. 24, 2012) (“grant[ing] partial vacatur . . . in furtherance of the settlement embodied in the Plan,” and noting that “absent the requested vacatur, the collapse of the Plan could result in the termination of the Global Settlement Agreement.” (emphasis added)).

53. Because Farallon and Stonehill (acting through Muck and Jessup) now hold the majority of the seats on the Oversight Board, they, along with Seery, exercise control of the reorganization proceedings. At no time were Farallon, Stonehill, or Seery's plans disclosed to the other creditors or equity. In fact, the only inference that can be reasonably drawn is that Farallon and Stonehill brazenly sought to conceal their involvement by establishing shell entities—Muck and Jessup—to nominally hold the Claims and create an opaque barrier to any effort to identify the "Oz behind the curtain." Such conduct aligns precisely with the inequitable conduct detailed in Citicorp and Adelphia (discussed below).

54. In sum, the proposed Adversary Proceeding sets forth plausible allegations that Stonehill and Farallon were aware of Seery's fiduciary duties. Indeed, as registered investment advisors, both Farallon and Stonehill were acutely aware of Seery's fiduciary obligations, including, without limitation, the duty to act in the best interests of the Original Debtor's Estate and the duty not to engage in insider trading that would benefit Seery, as an insider, and themselves, as non-statutory insiders. By accepting and then acting on material non-public information, Farallon and Stonehill (as well as Muck and Jessup) aided and abetted breaches of these fiduciary duties. By placing themselves in positions to control Seery's compensation, Farallon and Stonehill (acting through Muck and Jessup) induced, encouraged, aided and abetted Seery's self-dealing.

D. Equitable Disallowance is an Appropriate Remedy

55. HMIT also seeks equitable disallowance. Although the Fifth Circuit in Matter of Mobile Steel Co. generally limited the court's equitable powers to subordination rather than disallowance,<sup>62</sup> the Fifth Circuit did not foreclose the viability of equitable disallowance as a potential remedy. See 563 F.2d 692, 699 n. 10 (5th Cir. 1977). Binding U.S. Supreme Court precedent in Pepper v. Litton also permits bankruptcy courts to fashion disallowance remedies. 308 U.S. 295, 304-11 (1939). Bankruptcy Code § 510, which supplies the authority for equitable subordination, was "intended to codify case law, such as Pepper v. Litton . . . and is not intended to limit the court's power in any way. . . . Nor does [it] preclude a bankruptcy court from completely disallowing a claim in appropriate circumstances." In re Adelpia Commun. Corp., 365 B.R. 24, 71-72 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2007), aff'd in part sub nom. Adelpia Recovery Tr. v. Bank of Am., N.A., 390 B.R. 64 (S.D.N.Y. 2008), adhered to on reconsideration, 05 CIV. 9050 (LMM), 2008 WL 1959542 (S.D.N.Y. May 5, 2008) (emphasis and omissions in original).<sup>63</sup>

56. The Fifth Circuit's decision in Mobile Steel also was premised on the notion that disallowance would not add to the quiver of defenses to fight unfairness because creditors “are fully protected by subordination” and “[i]f the misconduct directed against the bankrupt is so extreme that disallowance might appear to be warranted, then surely the claim is either invalid or the bankrupt possesses a clear defense against it.” Mobile Steel, 563 F.2d at 699 n. 10 (emphasis added). Importantly, however, the factual scenarios considered in Mobile Steel do not exist here.

57. Here, Muck and Jessup purchased both Class 8 and Class 9 Claims, and they now effectively occupy more than 90% of the entire field of unsecured creditors in these two claimant tiers. Thus, subordination cannot effectively address the current facts where the Original Debtor’s CEO and CRO conspired directly with close business allies who acquired the largest unsecured claims to the detriment of other innocent creditors and former equity. The reasoning in published cases from other circuits supports this conclusion. See Adelphia, 365 B.R. at 71-73; Citicorp Venture Capital, Ltd. v. Comm. of Creditors Holding Unsecured Claims, 160 F.3d 982, 991 n. 7 (3d Cir. 1998).

58. The purpose of equitable subordination is to assure that the wrongdoer does not profit from bad conduct. In the typical case, subordination to other creditors will achieve this deterrence. But, it is clear that the Third Circuit’s decision in Citicorp was structured to use subordination as just one tool in a larger tool box to make sure “at a minimum, the remedy here should deprive – [the fiduciary] of its profit on the purchase of the notes.” Id at 991. In Adelphia, the Southern District of New York also used equitable subordination as a remedy to address wrongs of non-insiders who aided and abetted breaches a fiduciary duty by the debtor's management. 365 B.R. at 32.

59. But subordination cannot adequately address the wrongful conduct at issue. This is because subordination is typically limited to instances where one creditor is subordinated to other creditors, not equity. Here, for all practical purposes, there are only a few other unsecured creditors with relatively small stakes. Therefore, subordination as a weapon of deterrence is neutered.

60. In sum, by engaging in the alleged wrongful acts, including aiding and abetting Seery's breaches of fiduciary duty, Farallon, Stonehill, Muck, and Jessup should not be rewarded. The Proposed Defendants engaged in alleged conduct which damaged the Original Debtor's estate, including improper agreements to compensate Seery under the terms of the CTA. Equitable disallowance is an appropriate remedy which, when combined with disgorgement of all ill-gotten profits, will deprive the Proposed Defendants of their ill-gotten gains.

E. Disgorgement and Unjust Enrichment

61. The law is clear that disgorgement is an available remedy for breach of fiduciary duty both under Texas Law, see Kinzbach Tool Co. v. Corbett-Wallace Corporation, 160 S.W. 2d 509 (Tex. 1942), and under Delaware law, see Metro Storage International, LLC v. Harron, 275 A.3d 810 (Del. Ch. 2022). Disgorgement is also an appropriate remedy for unjust enrichment under Texas law, Hunter v. Shell Oil Co., 198 F.2d 485 (5th Cir. 1952), and under Delaware law, In re Tyson Foods, Inc. Consolidated Shareholder Litigation, 919 A.2d 563 (Del. Ch. 2007).<sup>64</sup>

62. Likewise, the imposition of a constructive trust is proper for addressing unjust enrichment under both Delaware and Texas law, see Teacher's Retirement System of Louisiana v. Aidinoff, 900 A.2d 654 (Del. Ch. 2006) and Hsin-Chi-Su v. Vantage Drilling Company, 474 S.W. 3d 384 (Tex. App. – 14th Dist. 2015), pet. denied. The elements of unjust enrichment are: (1) the defendant must have gained a benefit (2) at the expense of plaintiff, (3) and retention of that benefit must be shown to be unjust. See Restatement (Third) of Restitution and Unjust Enrichment §321, cmt. e (2011).

63. Here, the imposition of a constructive trust and disgorgement are clearly appropriate to provide redress for the alleged breaches of fiduciary duty and the knowing participation in (or aiding and abetting) those breaches. Furthermore, the imposition of a constructive trust and disgorgement are appropriate to disgorge the improper benefits that all of the Proposed Defendants received by virtue of collusion and insider trading.

64. As set forth in the proposed Adversary Proceeding, Seery gained the opportunity to have his compensation demands rubber stamped. The other Defendants gained the opportunity to purchase valuable claims at a discount knowing that pessimistic financial projections were false and that the upside investment potential was great. Retention of the benefits they received would be unjust and inequitable.

---

<sup>64</sup> It is likely that the Internal Affairs Doctrine will dictate that Delaware choice of law governs the breach of fiduciary duty claims.

65. Clearly, the Debtor's Estate was damaged by virtue of the claimed conduct. Seery obtained profits and compensation to the detriment of that estate as well as the estate of the Reorganized Debtor, other innocent creditors and HMIT, as former equity and as a contingent Claimant Trust Beneficiary.

F. Declaratory Relief

66. HMIT also seeks declaratory relief pursuant to Fed. R. Bank P. 7001(9). Specifically, HMIT seeks a declaratory judgment that: (a) there is a ripe controversy concerning HMIT's rights and entitlements under the Claimant Trust Agreement; (b) as a general matter, HMIT has standing to bring an action against a trustee even if its interest is considered "contingent;" (c) HMIT's status as a Claimant Trust Beneficiary is fully vested upon disgorgement of the ill-gotten profits of Muck and Jessup, and by extension, Farallon and Stonehill; (d) HMIT's status as a Claimant Trust Beneficiary is fully vested upon the equitable disallowance of the Claims held by Muck and Jessup over and above their initial investments; (e) Seery is properly estopped from asserting that HMIT is not an appropriate party to bring this derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and/or the Claimant Trust because of fraudulent conduct, bad faith, willful misconduct, and unclean hands; (f) Muck and Jessup are properly estopped from asserting that HMIT is not an appropriate party to bring this derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized

Debtor and the Claimant Trust because of their fraudulent conduct, bad faith, willful misconduct, and unclean hands; and (g) all of the Proposed Defendants are estopped from asserting that HMIT does not have standing in its individual capacity due to their fraudulent conduct, bad faith, willful misconduct, and unclean hands.

G. HMIT has Direct Standing.

67. The Texas Supreme Court recently held that “a partner or other stakeholder in a business organization has constitutional standing to sue for an alleged loss in the value of its interest in the organization.” Pike v. Texas EMC Mgt., LLC, 610 S.W.3d 763, 778 (Tex. 2020). In so holding, the Court considered federal law and found that the traditional “incantation that a shareholder may not sue for the corporation’s injury” is really a question of capacity, which goes to the merits of a claim, rather than an issue of standing that would impact subject matter jurisdiction. Id. at 777 (noting that the 5th Circuit and “[o]ther federal circuits agree that a plaintiff has standing to sue for the lost value of its investment in a corporation”). Because Seery, Muck, Jessup, Stonehill, Farallon’s alleged actions devalued HMIT’s interest in the Debtor’s Estate, including, without limitation, payment of excessive compensation to Seery, HMIT has standing to pursue its common law claims directly. HMIT also has direct standing to seek declaratory relief as set forth in the proposed Adversary Proceeding.

VII. Prayer

WHEREFORE, PREMISES CONSIDERED, Hunter Mountain Investment Trust respectfully requests this Court grant HMIT leave authorizing it to file the Adversary Complaint, attached as Exhibit 1, as an Adversary Proceeding in this United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, in its own name and as a derivative action on behalf of the Debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P., against Muck Holdings, LLC, Jessup Holdings, LLC, Farallon Capital Management, LLC, Stonehill Capital Management, LLC, James P. Seery, Jr., and John Doe Defendants Nos. 1 – 10, and further grant HMIT all such other and further relief to which HMIT may be justly entitled.

VERIFIED ADVERSARY COMPLAINT

Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (“HMIT”) files this Verified Adversary Complaint in its individual capacity and, as a derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor, Highland Capital Management L.P. (“HCM” or “Reorganized Debtor”) and the Highland Claimant Trust (collectively “Plaintiffs”), complaining of Muck Holdings, LLC (“Muck”), Jessup Holdings, LLC (“Jessup”), Farallon Capital Management, LLC (“Farallon”), Stonehill Capital Management, LLC (“Stonehill”), James P. Seery, Jr., (“Seery”) and John Doe Defendant Nos. 1-10 (Muck, Jessup, Stonehill, Farallon, Seery and the John Doe Defendants Nos. 1-10 are collectively “Defendants”), and would show:

I. Introduction

1. HMIT brings this Verified Adversary Complaint (“Complaint”) on behalf of itself, individually, and as a derivative action benefitting the Reorganized Debtor and on behalf of the Highland Claimant Trust (“Claimant Trust”), as defined in the Claimant Trust Agreement (Doc. 3521-5) (“CTA”).<sup>1</sup> This derivative action is specifically brought pursuant to Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and B. R. Rule 7023.1. At the time of the transactions at issue, HMIT held a 99.5% limited partnership in Highland Capital Management, LP, the Original Debtor, as described herein. This derivative action is not a collusive effort to confer jurisdiction that the Court would otherwise lack.

2. Upon the Effective Date, the assets of the bankruptcy estate of Highland Capital Management, L.P., as the Original Debtor (the “Debtor’s Estate”) were transferred to the Highland Claimant Trust under the terms of the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (as Modified) [Doc. 1943, Exhibit A] (the “Plan”) and as defined in the CTA. These assets include all “causes of action” that the Debtor’s Estate had before the Effective Date including, without limitation, the causes of action set forth in this Adversary Proceeding. Furthermore, the Claimant Trust is managed by the Claimant Trustee, Seery. Therefore, any demand upon Seery to prosecute the claims set forth in this Complaint would be futile because Seery is a Defendant. Similarly, the Oversight Board exercises supervision over Seery as Claimant

<sup>1</sup> Solely in the alternative, and in the unlikely event HMIT’s proposed causes of actions against Seery, Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and/or Jessup are considered to be “Estate Claims” as those terms are used and defined within the CTA and Exhibit A to the Notice of Final Term Sheet [Docket No. 354] in HCM’s bankruptcy (and without admitting the same), HMIT alternatively seeks standing to bring this action as a derivative action on behalf of the Litigation Sub-Trust as appropriate. Any demand on the Litigation Sub-Trust would be equally futile for the same reasons addressed in HMIT’s Emergency Motion for Leave (Doc. ___).

Trustee, and Muck and Jessup are members of the Oversight Board. Any demand upon Muck and Jessup to prosecute these claims would be equally futile. All conditions precedent to bringing this derivative action have otherwise been satisfied.

3. This action has become necessary because of Defendants' tortious conduct. This tortious conduct occurred before the Effective Date of the Plan, but its effects have caused damage both before and after the Effective Date. Prior to the Effective Date, HMIT owned 99.5% of the limited partnership interest in the Original Debtor and was the beneficiary of fiduciary duties owed by Seery.

4. Seery, the Original Debtor's CEO and former Chief Restructuring Officer ("CRO"), wrongfully facilitated and promoted the sale of large unsecured creditor claims to his close business allies and friends, Farallon and Stonehill. He did so by providing material non-public information to them concerning the value of the Original Debtor's Estate that other stakeholders did not know. Farallon and Stonehill, who were otherwise strangers to the bankruptcy proceedings, wrongfully purchased the claims through their special purpose entities, Muck and Jessup, based upon this inside information, and they are now profiting from their misconduct. Seery's dealings with the other Defendants were not arm's length, but instead were covert, undisclosed, and collusive.

5. Motivated by corporate greed, the other Defendants aided and abetted or, alternatively, knowingly participated in Seery's wrongful conduct. They also breached their own duties as "non-statutory insiders." Because of their long-standing, historical relationships with Seery, and their use of material non-public information, Farallon, Stonehill, Muck, and Jessup assumed positions of control over the affairs of the Debtor's bankruptcy, including compensation awards to Seery. As such, they became non-statutory insiders.

6. HMIT was formerly the largest equity holder in the Debtor, holding a 99.5% limited partnership interest. HMIT now holds an Allowed Class 10 Class B/C Limited Partnership Interest and a Contingent Trust Interest under the CTA. Given HMIT's position as former equity, HMIT's right to recover from the Claimant Trust is junior to the Reorganized Debtor's unsecured creditors, now known as Claimant Trust Beneficiaries. However, the vast majority of the approved unsecured claims superior to HMIT's interest are the claims wrongfully acquired by insider trading and the breaches of duty at issue in this proceeding.

7. By wrongfully soliciting, fostering, and encouraging the wrongful insider trades, Seery violated his fiduciary duties to the Debtor's Estate, specifically his duty of loyalty and his duty to maximize the value of the Estate with corresponding recovery by legitimate creditors and former equity. Seery was motivated out of self-interest to garner personal benefit (to the detriment of the Debtor's Estate) by strategically benefitting his business allies with non-public information. He then successfully "planted" his allies onto the Oversight Board, which, as a consequence does not act as an independent board in the exercise of its responsibilities. Rather, imbued with powers to oversee Seery's future compensation, the other Defendants are postured to reward Seery financially regarding Defendants' illicit dealings and, upon information and belief, they have done so.

8. By receiving and acting upon material non-public information concerning the financial condition of the Debtor's Estate, Stonehill and Farallon, acting individually and through special purpose shell entities they created and controlled, directly or indirectly, are also liable for aiding and abetting Seery's breaches of fiduciary duties. By acquiring the claims at issue, Muck and Jessup, the shell entities created and controlled by Stonehill and Farallon, also became non-statutory insiders owing duties of disclosure which they also breached.

9. HMIT separately seeks recovery against John Doe Defendant Nos. 1-10. Farallon actively concealed the precise legal relationship between Farallon and Muck. Stonehill actively concealed the precise legal relationship between Stonehill and Jessup. What is known, however, is that Farallon and Stonehill created these special purpose shell entities on the eve of the insider trades to acquire ownership of the claims and to otherwise control the affairs of the Oversight Board. Both Farallon and Stonehill rejected inquiries concerning the exact nature of their relationship with these special purpose entities. Accordingly, HMIT seeks equitable tolling of any statute of limitations concerning claims against unknown business entities that Farallon and Stonehill may have created and inserted as intermediate corporate layers in the transactions at issue.

10. HMIT seeks to disgorge all Defendants' ill-gotten profits and equitable disallowance of the remaining unpaid balances on the following allowed claims: Claim Nos. 23, 72, 81, 143, 147, 149, 150, 153, 154, 190, and 191 (the "Claims") currently held by Muck and Jessup. Because Defendants received substantial distributions from the Claimant Trust in connection with these Claims, HMIT seeks to disgorge all such distributions above Defendants' initial investment—compelling restitution of such funds to the Claimant Trust for the benefit of innocent creditors and former equity pursuant to the waterfall established under the Plan and the CTA. HMIT also seeks to disgorge Seery's compensation from the date his collusive conduct first occurred. Alternatively, HMIT seeks damages on behalf of the Claimant Trust in an amount equal to all compensation paid to Seery from the onset of his collusive conduct to present.

II. Jurisdiction and Venue

11. Pursuant to Misc. Order No. 33 Order of Reference of Bankruptcy Cases, U.S. District Court for N.D. Texas (the "Order of Reference"), this Complaint is commenced in the Bankruptcy Court because it is "related to a case under Title 11." The filing of this Complaint is expressly subject to and without waiver of Plaintiff' rights and ability to seek withdrawal of the reference pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(d), FED. R. BANKR. P. 5011, and Local Bankruptcy Rule 5011-1. Plaintiffs hereby demand a right to a trial by jury of all claims asserted herein and nothing in this Complaint, nor Plaintiffs' compliance with the Order of Reference, shall be deemed a waiver of this right.

12. This Court has jurisdiction of the subject matter and the parties as a “related to” proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1334 and 157(a) and Articles IX.F, and XI. of the Plan.

13. Pursuant to Rule 7008 of the Bankruptcy Rules, Plaintiffs do not consent to the entry of final orders or judgment by the bankruptcy court.

14. Venue is proper in this district and division pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409, and Articles IX.F, and XI. of the Plan.

III. Parties

15. HMIT is a Delaware statutory trust that was the largest equity holder in the Original Debtor, holding a 99.5% limited partnership interest. HMIT is also the holder of a Contingent Trust Interest in the Claimant Trust, but should be treated as a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary due to Defendants’ wrongful conduct.

16. Pursuant to the Plan and the CTA, the Claimant Trust holds the assets of the Reorganized Debtor, including the causes of action that accrued to the Original Debtor before the Effective Date. The Claimant Trust is established in accordance with the Delaware Statutory Trust Act and Treasury Regulatory Section 301.7701-4(d).

17. Muck is a Delaware limited liability company, with its principal office in California, and may be served with process at One Maritime Plaza, Suite 2100, San Francisco, CA 94111. Muck has made prior appearances in the Debtor’s bankruptcy.

18. Jessup is a Delaware limited liability company, with its principal office in New York, and may be served with process via its registered agent, Vcorp Services, LLC, at 108 W. 13th Street Suite 100, Wilmington, Delaware 19801. Jessup has made prior appearances in the Debtor's bankruptcy.

19. Farallon is a Delaware limited liability company, with its principal office in California, and may be served with process at One Maritime Plaza, Suite 2100, San Francisco, CA 94111. Farallon is a capital management company that manages hedge funds and is a registered investment advisor. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Farallon because Farallon's conduct giving rise to or relating to the claims in this Adversary Proceeding occurred in Texas, thereby satisfying all minimum contacts requirements and due process considerations.

20. Stonehill is a Delaware limited liability company, with its principal office in New York, and may be served with process at 320 Park Avenue, 26th Floor, New York, NY 10022. Stonehill is a capital management company managing hedge funds and is a registered investment advisor. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Stonehill because Stonehill's conduct giving rise to or relating to the claims in this Adversary Proceeding occurred in Texas, thereby satisfying all minimum contacts and all due process considerations.

21. Seery is an individual citizen and resident of the State of New York. Mr. Seery may be served with process at 100 Crescent Court, Suite 1805, Dallas, Texas 75201.

22. John Doe Defendant Nos. 1-10 are currently unknown individuals or business entities who may be identified in discovery as involved in the wrongful transactions at issue.

IV. Facts

A. Procedural Background

23. On October 16, 2019, the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in Delaware Bankruptcy Court,<sup>2</sup> which was later transferred to the Northern District of Texas Bankruptcy Court, Dallas Division, on December 4, 2019.<sup>3</sup>

24. On October 29, 2019, the U.S. Trustee's office appointed a four-member Unsecured Creditors Committee ("UCC") consisting of three judgment creditors—the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund ("Redeemer"); Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC (collectively "Acis"); and UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG London Branch (collectively "UBS")—and an unpaid vendor, Meta-E Discovery.

25. Following the venue transfer to Texas, on December 27, 2019, the Debtor filed its Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of

Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course (“Governance Motion”).<sup>4</sup> On January 9, 2020, the Court signed a Governance Order granting the Governance Motion.<sup>5</sup>

26. As part of the Governance Order, an independent board of directors—which included Seery as one of the selections of the Unsecured Creditors Committee—was appointed to the Board of Directors (the “Board”) of Strand, the Original Debtor’s general partner. The Board then appointed Seery as the Chief Executive Officer in place of the previous CEO, Mr. James Dondero, as well as the CRO.<sup>6</sup> Seery currently serves as Trustee of the Claimant Trust under the terms of the CTA and the CEO of the Reorganized Debtor.<sup>7</sup>

B. *The Targeted Claims

27. In his capacity as the Original Debtor’s CEO and CRO, Seery negotiated and obtained court approval for settlements with several large unsecured creditors including Redeemer, Acis, UBS, and another major unsecured creditor, HarbourVest (Redeemer, Acis, UBS, and HarbourVest are collectively the “Settling Parties”), resulting in the following allowed Claims:

Creditor	Class 8	Class 9
Redeemer	$137 mm	$0 mm

<sup>4</sup> Doc. 281.

<sup>5</sup> Doc. 339.

<sup>6</sup> Doc. 854, Order Approving Retention of Seery as CEO/CRO.

<sup>7</sup> See Doc. 1943, Order Approving Plan, p. 34.

Acis	$23 mm	$0 mm
HarbourVest	$45 mm	$35 mm
UBS	$65 mm	$60 mm
(Totals)	$270 mm	$95 mm

As reflected in these settlements, HarbourVest and UBS owned Class 9 claims in addition to Class 8 Claims. Class 9 Claims were subordinated to Class 8 Claims in the distribution waterfall in the Plan.

28. Each of the Settling Parties sold their Claims to Farallon and Stonehill (or affiliated special purpose entities) shortly after receiving court approval of the settlements. One of these “trades” took place within just a few weeks before the Plan’s Effective Date.<sup>8</sup> All of these trades occurred when HMIT held its 99.5% equity stake in the Debtor. Notice of these trades was first provided in filings in the records of the Original Debtor’s bankruptcy proceedings, as follows: Claim No. 23 (Doc. 2211, 2212, and 2215), Claim Nos. 190 and 191 (Doc. 2697 and 2698), Claim Nos. 143, 147, 149, 150, 153 and 154 (Doc. 2263), Claim No. 81 (Doc. 2262), Claim No. 72 (Doc. 2261).

29. Farallon and Stonehill, both of whom are registered investment advisors that manage hedge funds, have fiduciary duties to their own investors. As such, they are acutely aware of their duties and obligation as fiduciaries. Yet, they both invested many tens of millions of dollars, directly or indirectly, to acquire the Claims in the absence of any publicly available information that could provide any economic justification for their investment decisions.

30. Upon information and belief, Stonehill and Farallon collectively invested an estimated $160 million to acquire the Claims with a face amount of $365 million, and they did so in the absence of any meaningful due diligence. Indeed, Farallon has admitted that it conducted no due diligence but relied on Seery's guarantees.

31. Stonehill and Farallon's investments become even more suspicious because the Plan provided the only publicly available information, which, at the time, included pessimistic projections that the Claims would ever receive full payment:

- a. From October 2019, when the original Chapter 11 Petition was filed, to January 2021, just before the Plan was confirmed, the projected value of HCM's assets dropped over $200 million from $566 million to $364 million.<sup>9</sup>
- b. HCM's Disclosure Statement projected payment of 71.32% of Class 8 claims, and 0% of claims in Classes 9-11.<sup>10</sup>
  - o This meant that Farallon and Stonehill invested more than $163 million in Claims when the publicly available information indicated they would receive $0 in return on their investment as Class 9 creditors and substantially less than par on their Class 8 Claims.
- c. In HCM's Q3 2021 Post-Confirmation Report, HCM reported that the amount of Class 8 claims expected to be paid dropped even further from 71% to 54%.

d. Despite the stark decline in the value of the estate and in the midst of substantial reductions in the percentage of Class 8 Claims expected to be satisfied, Stonehill, through Jessup, and Farallon, through Muck, nevertheless purchased the four largest bankruptcy claims from the Redeemer Committee/Crusader Fund, Acis, HarbourVest, and UBS (collectively, again, the “Claims”) in April and August of 2021 in the combined amount of $163 million.<sup>11</sup>

32. Upon information and belief, Stonehill, through its special purpose entity, Jessup, acquired the Redeemer Committee’s claim for $78 million.<sup>12</sup> Upon information and belief, the $23 million Acis claim<sup>13</sup> was sold to Farallon/Muck for $8 million. Upon information and belief, HarbourVest sold its combined $80 million in claims to Farallon/Muck for $27 million. UBS sold its combined $125 million in claims for $50 million to both Stonehill/Jessup and Farallon/Muck. In the instance of UBS, the total projected payout was only $35 million. Indeed, as part of these transactions, both Farallon and Stonehill purchased Class 9 Claims at a time when the Debtor’s Estate projected a zero dollar return on all such Claims.

<sup>11</sup> Notices of Transfers [Docs. 2212, 2215, 2261, 2262, 2263, 2215, 2297, 2298]. The Acis claim was transferred on April 16, 2021; the Redeemer, Crusader, and HarbourVest claims were transferred on April 30, 2021; and the UBS claims were transferred on August 9, 2021.

<sup>13</sup> Seery/HCM have argued that $10 million of the Acis claim is self-funding.

C. *Material Non-Public Information is Disclosed to Seery's Affiliates at Stonehill and Farallon.

33. One of the significant assets of the Debtor's Estate was the Debtor's direct and indirect holdings in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios, Inc. ("MGM").<sup>14</sup>

34. On December 17, 2020, James Dondero, sent an email to Seery. At that time, Dondero was a member of the MGM board, and the email contained material non-public information regarding Amazon and Apple's interest in acquiring MGM.<sup>15</sup> Of course, any such sale would significantly enhance the value of the Original Debtor's estate.

35. Upon receipt of this material non-public information, Seery should have halted all transactions involving MGM stock, yet just six days later Seery filed a motion in this Court seeking approval of the Original Debtor's settlement with HarbourVest - resulting in a transfer to the Original Debtor of HarbourVest's interest in a Debtor-advised fund, Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. ("HCLOF"), which held substantial MGM debt and equity.<sup>16</sup> Conspicuously, the HCLOF interest was not transferred to the Original Debtor for distribution as part of the bankruptcy estate, but rather to "to an entity to be designated by the Debtor" — i.e., one that was not subject to typical bankruptcy reporting requirements.<sup>17</sup>

36. Upon information and belief, aware that the Debtor's stake in MGM afforded a new profit center, Seery saw an opportunity to increase his own compensation and enlisted the help of Stonehill and Farallon to extract further value from the Original Debtor's Estate at the expense of other innocent creditors and equity. This quid pro quo included, at a minimum, a tacit, if not express, understanding that Seery would be well-compensated.

37. Until 2009, Seery was the Global Head of Fixed Income Loans at Lehman Brothers<sup>18</sup> where, on information and belief, he conducted substantial business with Farallon. Following the collapse of Lehman Brothers, Seery continued to work with, and indeed represented Farallon as its legal counsel. Seery ultimately joined a hedge fund, River Birch Capital,<sup>19</sup> which, along with Stonehill, served on the creditors committee in other bankruptcy proceedings. GCM Grovesnor, a global asset management firm, held four seats on the Redeemer Committee<sup>20</sup> and, upon information and belief, is a significant investor in Stonehill and Farallon. Grovesnor, through Redeemer, played a large part in appointing Seery as a director of Strand Advisors. Seery was beholden to Grovesnor from the outset, and, by extension, Grovesnor's affiliates Stonehill and Farallon.

38. As successful capital management firms, with advisory and fiduciary duties to their own clients, Stonehill and Farallon typically engage in robust due diligence before making significant investments. Yet, in this case, it would have been impossible for Stonehill and Farallon to forecast any profit at the time of their multi-million-dollar investments given the negative financial information disclosed by the Original Debtor's Estate. Seery, as the CEO, was aware of and involved in approving these negative financial projections. In doing so, Seery intentionally caused the publication of misleading, false information.

39. Seery shared with Stonehill and Farallon non-public information concerning the value of the Original Debtor's Estate which was higher than publicly available information. Thus, the only logical conclusion is that all Defendants knew that the publicly available projections, which accompanied the Plan, were understated, false, and misleading. Otherwise, Farallon, Muck, Stonehill and Jessup would not have made their multi-million-dollar investments. None of the Defendants disclosed their knowledge of the misleading nature of these financial projections when they had a duty to do so. None of the Defendants disclosed the nature of their dealings in acquiring the Claims.

40. By wrongfully exploiting non-public insider information, Stonehill and Farallon—acting through Muck and Jessup—became the largest holders of unsecured claims in the Debtor's Estate with resulting control over the Oversight Board and a front row seat to the reorganization and distribution of Claimant Trust Assets. As such, they were given control (through Muck and Jessup) to approve discretionary bonuses and success fees for Seery from these assets.

D. Distributions

41. The MGM sale was ultimately consummated in March 2022 for $6.1 billion in cash, plus $2.5 billion in debt that Amazon assumed and immediately repaid.<sup>21</sup>

42. By the end of Q3 2021, just over $6 million of the projected $205 million available for general unsecured claimants had been disbursed.<sup>22</sup> No additional distributions were made to general unsecured claimholders until, suddenly, in Q3 2022 almost $250 million was paid toward Class 8 general unsecured claims—$45 million more than was ever projected.<sup>23</sup> Thus, Stonehill (Jessup) and Farallon (Muck) have already received returns that far eclipse their investment. They also stand to make further significant profits on their investments, including payments on Class 9 Claims.

43. As of December 31, 2022, the Claimant Trust has distributed $255,201,228. On a pro rata basis, that means that innocent creditors have received approximately $22,373,000 in distributions against the stated value of their allowed claims. That leaves a remaining unpaid balance of approximately $9,627,000.

44. Muck and Jessup already have received approximately $232.8 million on their Claims. Assuming an original investment of approximately $160 million, this represents over $72 million in ill-gotten profits that, if disgorged, would be far more than what is required to fully pay all other innocent creditors - immediately placing HMIT in the status of a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary.

45. It is clear Seery facilitated the sale of the Claims to Stonehill (Jessup) and Farallon (Muck) at discounted prices and used misleading financial projections to facilitate these trades. This was part of a larger strategy to install Stonehill (Jessup) and Farallon (Muck), his business allies, onto the Oversight Board where they would oversee lucrative bonuses and other compensation for Seery in exchange for hefty profits they expected to receive.

V. Causes of Action

A. Count I (against Seery): Breach of Fiduciary Duty

46. The allegations in paragraphs 1-45 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

47. As CEO and CRO of a debtor-in-possession, Seery owed fiduciary duties to HMIT, as equity, and to the Debtor's Estate, including, without limitation, the duty of loyalty. Seery also was under a duty to avoid conflicts of interests, but Seery willfully and knowingly engaged in conduct which conflicted with his fiduciary duties—and he did so out of financial self-interest.

48. By fraudulently providing and/or approving negative projections of the Debtor's Estate when he knew otherwise, Seery willfully and knowingly breached his fiduciary duties.

49. By misusing and disclosing confidential, material non-public information to Stonehill and Farallon, Seery willfully and knowingly breached his fiduciary duties.

50. By failing to disclose his role in the inside trades at issue, Seery willfully and knowingly breached his fiduciary duties.

51. As a result of his willful misconduct, Seery was unfairly advantaged by receiving additional undisclosed compensation and bonuses from the assets of the Debtor's Estate and from the Claimant Trust Assets—to the detriment of other innocent stakeholders, including HMIT, as former equity and a contingent Claimant Trust Beneficiary.

52. To remedy these breaches, Seery is liable for disgorgement of all compensation he received since his collusion with Farallon and Stonehill first began. Alternatively, Seery should be disgorged of all compensation paid to him under the terms of the CTA since the Effective Date of the Plan in August 2021.

53. Alternatively, Plaintiffs are entitled to recover damages measured by all ill-gotten compensation which Seery has received since his first collusive conduct began.

B. Count II (against Stonehill, Farallon, Jessup and Muck): Breaches of Fiduciary Duty and Knowing Participation in Breach of Fiduciary Duty

54. The allegations in paragraphs 1-53 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

55. Seery owed fiduciary duties to HMIT and the Debtor's Estate, and he willfully and knowingly breached these duties. Without limiting the foregoing, Seery owed a duty of loyalty which he willfully and knowingly breached. Seery also owed a duty to not engage in self-interested conduct to the detriment of the Debtor's Estate and innocent stakeholders. Seery also willfully and knowingly breached this duty.

56. Stonehill and Farallon were aware of Seery's fiduciary duties and, by purchasing the Claims and approving bonuses and other compensation for Seery, Stonehill (acting through Jessup) and Farallon (acting through Muck), willfully and knowingly participated in Seery's breaches or, alternatively, willfully aided and abetted such breaches.

57. Stonehill (Jessup) and Farallon (Muck) unfairly received many millions of dollars in profits and fees—and stand to earn even more profits and fees—to the detriment of innocent stakeholders, including HMIT.

58. Stonehill and Farallon are liable for disgorgement of all profits earned from their purchase of the Claims. In addition, they are liable in damages for excessive compensation paid to Seery as part of the covert quid pro quo with Seery.

C. Count III (against all Defendants): Fraud by Misrepresentation and Material Nondisclosure

59. The allegations in paragraphs 1-58 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

60. Based on Seery's duties as CEO and CRO of a debtor-in-possession, and the other Defendants' duties as non-statutory insiders, Seery, Stonehill (Jessup), and Farallon (Muck) had a duty to disclose Stonehill and Farallon's plans to purchase the Claims, but they deliberately failed to do so. Seery also had a duty to disclose correct financial projections but, rather, misrepresented such values or failed to correct false and misleading projections. These factual misrepresentations and omissions were material.

61. The withheld financial information was material because it has had an adverse impact on control over the eventual distributions to creditors and former equity, as well as the right to control Seery's compensation. By withholding such information, Seery was able to plant friendly business allies on the Oversight Board to the detriment of innocent stakeholders.

62. Defendants knew that HMIT and other creditors were ignorant of their plans, and HMIT and other stakeholders did not have an equal opportunity to discover their scheme. HMIT and the other innocent stakeholders justifiably relied on misleading information relating to the value of the Original Debtor's Estate.

63. By failing to disclose material information, and by making or aiding and abetting material misrepresentations, Seery, Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and Jessup intended to induce HMIT to take no affirmative action.

64. HMIT justifiably relied on Seery, Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and Jessup's nondisclosures and representations, and HMIT was injured as a result and the Debtor's Estate was also injured.

65. As a result of their frauds, all Defendants should be disgorged of all profits and ill-gotten compensation derived from their fraudulent scheme. Seery is also liable for damages measured by excessive compensation he has received since he first engaged in willful misconduct.

D. Count IV (against all Defendants): Conspiracy

66. The allegations in paragraphs 1-65 above are incorporated herein as if incorporated herein verbatim.

67. Defendants conspired with each other to unlawfully breach fiduciary duties to HMIT and the Debtor's Estate, to conceal their fraudulent trades, and to interfere with HMIT's entitlement to the residual of the Claimant Trust Asset.

68. Seery's disclosure of material non-public information to Stonehill and Farallon, and Muck and Jessup's purchase of the Claims, are each overt acts in furtherance of the conspiracy.

69. HMIT's interest in the residual of the Claimant Trust Assets has been adversely impacted by this conspiracy. The assets have been depleted by virtue of Seery's compensation awards.

E. Count V (against Muck and Jessup): Equitable Disallowance

70. The allegations in paragraphs 1-69 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

71. By purchasing the Claims based on material non-public information, Stonehill and Farallon, through Jessup and Muck, engaged in inequitable conduct.

72. By earning significant profits on their purchases, Muck and Jessup have been unfairly advantaged to the detriment of the remaining stakeholders, including HMIT.

73. Given this inequitable conduct, equitable disallowance of Muck's and Jessup's Claims to the extent over and above their initial investment is appropriate and consistent with the purposes of the Bankruptcy Code.

74. Pleading in the alternative only, subordination of Muck's and Jessup's General Unsecured Claim Trust Interests and Subordinated Claim Trust Interests to all other interests in the Claimant Trust, including HMIT's Contingent Trust Interest, is necessary and appropriate to remedy Muck's and Jessup's wrongful conduct, and is also consistent with the purposes of the Bankruptcy Code.

F. Count VI (against all Defendants): Unjust Enrichment and Constructive Trust

75. The allegations in paragraphs 1-74 above are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

76. By acquiring the Claims using material non-public information, Stonehill and Farallon breached a relationship of trust with the Original Debtor's Estate and other innocent stakeholders and were unjustly enriched and gained an undue advantage over other creditors and former equity.

77. Allowing Stonehill, Farallon, Muck and Jessup to retain their ill-gotten benefits at the expense of other innocent stakeholders and HMIT, as former equity, would be unconscionable.

78. Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and Jessup should be forced to disgorge all distributions over and above their original investment in the Claims as restitution for their unjust enrichment.

79. The proceeds Stonehill, Farallon, Muck, and Jessup have received from the Claimant Trust are traceable and identifiable. A constructive trust should be imposed on such proceeds to secure the restitution of these improperly retained benefits.

F. Count VI (Against all Defendants): Declaratory Relief

80. The allegations in paragraphs 1-79 are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

81. HMIT seeks declaratory relief. The Court has jurisdiction to provide declaratory judgment relief when there is an actual controversy that has arisen and exists relating to the rights and duties of the parties.

82. Bankruptcy Rule 7001 provides that “a proceeding to recover property or money,” may include declaratory relief. See, Fed. R. Bank P. 7001(1), (9).

83. The Claimant Trust Agreement is governed under Delaware law. The Claimant Trust Agreement incorporates and is subject to Delaware trust law. HMIT seeks a declaration, as follows:

- a. There is a ripe controversy concerning HMIT’s rights and entitlements under the Claimant Trust Agreement;
- b. As a general matter, HMIT has standing to bring an action against a trustee even if its interest is considered contingent;
- c. HMIT’s status as a Claimant Trust Beneficiary is fully vested upon disgorgement of the ill-gotten profits of Muck and Jessup, and by extension, Farallon and Stonehill;
- d. HMIT’s status as a Claimant Trust Beneficiary is fully vested upon the equitable disallowance of the Claims held by Muck and Jessup over and above their initial investments. Alternatively, HMIT’s status as a Claimant Trust Beneficiary is fully vested when all of Muck’s and Jessup’s trust interests are subordinated to the trust interests held by HMIT;
- e. Seery is properly estopped from asserting that HMIT is not an appropriate party to bring this derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and/or the Claimant Trust because of Seery’s fraudulent conduct, bad faith, willful misconduct and unclean hands;

- f. Muck and Jessup are properly estopped from asserting that HMIT is not an appropriate party to bring this derivative action on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust because of their fraudulent conduct, bad faith, willful misconduct and unclean hands;
- g. All Defendants are estopped from asserting that HMIT does not have standing in its individual capacity due to their fraudulent conduct, bad faith, willful misconduct and unclean hands.

VI. Punitive Damages

84. The allegations in paragraphs 1-74 are incorporated herein as if set forth verbatim.

85. The Defendants' misconduct was intentional, knowing, willful and fraudulent and in total disregard of the rights of others. An award of punitive damages is appropriate and necessary under the facts of this case.

86. All conditions precedent to recovery herein have been satisfied.

VII. Prayer

WHEREFORE, HMIT prays for judgment as follows:

1. Equitable disallowance of the Claims over and above Muck's and Jessup's original investments (or, alternatively, subordination of their Claimant Trust Interests, as addressed herein);
2. Disgorgement of all funds distributed from the Claimant Trust to Muck and/or Jessup over and above their original investments;
3. Disgorgement of compensation paid to Seery in managing or administering the Original and Reorganized Debtor's Estate;
4. Imposition of a constructive trust;

5. Declaratory relief as described herein;
6. An award of actual damages as described herein;
7. An award of exemplary damages as allowed by law;
8. Pre- and post-judgment interest; and,
9. All such other and further relief to which HMIT may be justly entitled.

Respectfully Submitted,

Highland Claimant Trust
Summarized Consolidated Balance Sheet <sup>(1)</sup>
As of May 31, 2023

Notes:

(1) This presentation is not in accordance with US GAAP and is unaudited, but has nevertheless been prepared in good faith and with the intention of providing the reader with a comprehensive understanding of the remaining assets and liabilities of the Highland Claimant Trust, Highland Capital Management, LP, HCMLP GP LLC, and Highland Litigation Trust (the "Consolidated Entities"). These entities have each been aggregated on a stand-alone basis, with intercompany amounts eliminated. Funds and entities that may otherwise be consolidated by one or more of the Consolidated Entities under US GAAP are not fully consolidated and rather are included solely at their equity value. For example, if Highland Capital Management, LP is a 20% investor in a managed fund with assets of $100 million and liabilities of zero that would normally require consolidation under US GAAP, the presentation contained herein reflects an investment of $20 million as opposed to fully consolidating the $100 million fund and reflecting minority interest of $80 million. The value of the Highland Indemnity Trust is not included herein. As of May 31, 2023, $35 million has been funded to the Highland Indemnity Trust. Highland Indemnity Trust beneficiaries are Claimant Trust Indemnified Parties. Any unused assets remaining after satisfying indemnification obligations will be transferred to the Highland Claimant Trust or otherwise be distributed to the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries in accordance with the Indemnity Trust Agreement. For presentation purposes, it is assumed that outstanding indemnification obligations will consume the entirety of the Highland Indemnity Trust. Further, no current recovery amount has been ascribed to the "Kirschner Adversary" as all such value is considered to be contingent, nor have any liabilities been reserved for various success fees payable to professionals associated with the Kirschner Adversary or any other litigations. Such liabilities are also contingent in nature.

(2) Amounts already authorized for distribution, but reserved in the Disputed Claims Reserve related to resolution of pending disputed claims.

(3) Value reflected herein consists primarily of ownership in private funds and subsidiaries, valued using NAV as the practical expedient, public & private investments (including residual sale escrows), valued at fair value, and SE Multifamily Holdings, LLC, valued using book equity value as of the most recent financials received. See note 6 for further information. There is substantial risk and uncertainty with respect to the timing and ultimate cash value to be received from monetizations of these investments and such value could ultimately be materially impacted by actual monetizations.

(4) Book amounts reflect principal amounts outstanding on various notes, without discount, adjustment, or estimates of future costs of collection, with two exceptions. The first exception is to the note receivable from Hunter Mountain Investment Trust for which over $90 million of principal and interest is currently due, payable, and in default. These notes are a component of the "Kirschner Adversary" which is currently stayed. These principal and interest amounts are fully reserved based on the assumption that Hunter Mountain Investment Trust has no other assets other than a contingent, unvested interest in the Highland Claimant Trust. That assumption is subject to change. The second exception relates to the note receivable from Highland Select Equity Master Fund, LP. This amount is fully reserved based on the pendency of the Ch. 7 proceeding for Highland Select Equity Master Fund, LP and the minimal remaining value of Highland Select Equity Master Fund, LP's assets, which is expected to be further consumed (at least in part) by trustee and professional fees. Aside from these exceptions, approximately $65 million of these principal amounts (further described below) are subject to ongoing litigation with various note counterparties who are contesting the validity of their obligations. These disputed amounts are contained within the "Balance per books" column herein without discount or adjustment. While the makers have asserted defenses, Highland believes they are meritless and is confident that judgments will ultimately be entered in Highland's favor. However, based on Mr. Dondero's history of failing to satisfy judgments entered against his affiliates by others (e.g., UBS, the Redeemer Committee, Joshua Terry, and Patrick Daugherty), the effect of complete non-payment of principal is reflected in the "adjustments" column, which also assumes non-payment of the currently performing $18 million note receivable from The Dugaboy Investment Trust. Ultimate recoveries from these notes could differ materially from the current principal outstanding depending on the outcome of the pending litigation and no recovery can be assured. Accrued interest is captured in the "Other assets" line item, subject to the exceptions discussed within this footnote. While there is currently a report & recommendation from the bankruptcy court for summary judgment, plus costs of collection, no costs of collection are reflected as assets on this balance sheet, so would be incremental. The estimated amount of such costs of collections are over $3 million.

Detail of note principal amounts subject to report & recommendations of the bankruptcy court, currently pending in district court (excludes accrued interest):

Note Maker	Principal O/S	Comments
NexPoint Advisors, LP	$ 25	Consists of a single note
NexPoint Real Estate Partners, LLC	12	fka HCRE Partners, LLC; five underlying notes comprise balance
NexPoint Asset Management, LP	11	fka Highland Capital Management Fund Advisors, LP; four underlying notes comprise balance
James Dondero	10	Three underlying notes comprise balance
Highland Capital Management Services, Inc.	7	Five underlying notes comprise balance
Sub-total	$ 65

(5) The book equity amount reflects a multitude of estimates including, but not limited to the value of investments and collectability of notes receivable. For book purposes, no contingent liabilities or indemnification reserves have been recorded as liabilities that would reduce book equity, notwithstanding that it is currently expected that there will be a) a need to maintain further highly material indemnification reserves; and b) further incurrence of springing contingent liabilities if distribution milestones are achieved. The amount of further incremental indemnification reserves are currently expected to exceed $90 million, and may ultimately be greater, which will be required to be funded (at least in part) prior to any further material distributions to Trust Beneficiaries. In the absence of a global settlement that, among other things, fully and finally releases all Claimant Trust Indemnified Parties, Highland believes the additional indemnification reserves are required because, among other reasons, (a) based on the so-called "Dondero exclusion," insurance is likely to remain cost-prohibitive and/or unsatisfactory, leaving the Claimant Trust and Indemnity Trust assets as the sole sources of funding for indemnity obligations, (b) approximately twenty (20) matters are being actively litigated in at least 9 different forums; and (c) based on history, new litigation can be expected. Any unused assets remaining after satisfaction of indemnity obligations will be distributed as required by the Indemnity Trust Agreement. The amount of incremental springing contingent liabilities are expected to range from $5 million to $15 million, which are exclusive of various success fees associated with recoveries under the "Kirschner Adversary" and others. No reserves have been accrued for any current, pending, or threatened litigation brought by any Dondero-related parties. Lastly, it is expected that the trust and its subsidiaries will operate at an operating loss prospectively. The corresponding information in the "adjustments" column above is an estimate of the effects of these incremental indemnification reserves and contingent liabilities, but does not assume any expected future operating cash burn, which is expected to be significant.

(6) The value of SE Multifamily Holdings LLC maintained on this balance sheet is $15.7 million, which is a component of the "Investments" line item and is based on a several years stale book-basis balance sheet. Notwithstanding Dondero-entities' previous disclosures of this interest at values of $20 million and $12 million, Highland also received interest from Dondero to acquire the interest for $3.8 million, among other assets. The purpose of this adjustment is to assume that the holding could be monetized at the lower $3.8 million level, which would result in a $11.9 million decrease to Highland's book equity if it were hypothetically transacted at that level. Highland has initiated proceedings in Delaware to receive books and records relating to SE Multifamily Holdings LLC, for which it has the contractual right and has been seeking for approximately a year, but for which Dondero-controlled entities have not provided to date.

(7) Amounts described herein represent the face amounts of outstanding allowed and pending claims. The pending claim amounts do not include amounts that are the subject of various appeals or that are unliquidated. The allowed and pending claims (along with accrued interest) could ultimately be satisfied in part or in full using 1) the assets of the disputed claims reserve, 2) the residual amount of cash in the indemnity trust after satisfying all indemnification obligations, and 3) the residual amount of cash remaining after monetizing all other non-cash assets and paying liabilities and future expenses.

The information contained in this summarized consolidated balance sheet (the "Summary") is based on estimates, and therefore should not be relied upon, as actual results may differ materially from the estimates contained herein.

This Summary is neither an offer nor a solicitation of an offer to buy or sell securities.

Information contained herein is not indicative of, nor does it guarantee, future results. The information contained in this Summary is based on matters as they exist as of the date of preparation and not as of any future date. Valuations do not reflect performance in different economic or market cycles and there can be no assurances that valuations will be achieved. Trust Beneficiaries may experience materially different results and outcomes.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER PURSUANT TO PLAN “GATEKEEPER PROVISION” AND PRE-CONFIRMATION “GATEKEEPER ORDERS”: DENYING
HUNTER MOUNTAIN INVESTMENT TRUST’S EMERGENCY MOTION FOR
[BANKR. DKT. NOS. 3699, 3760, 3815, and 3816]

I. INTRODUCTION

BEFORE THIS COURT is yet another post-confirmation dispute relating to the Chapter 11 bankruptcy case of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“Highland” or “Reorganized Debtor”).

<sup>1</sup> On August 2, 2023, this court signed an Order [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3897] that was agreed to among various parties, after the filing of a Motion to Stay and Compel Mediation [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3752] filed by James D. Dondero and related entities. Pursuant to paragraph 7 of that order, certain pending matters in the bankruptcy court are stayed pending mediation. The parties did not agree to stay the matter addressed in this Memorandum Opinion and Order.

It is now more than two and half years since the confirmation of Highland’s Plan<sup>2</sup>—the Plan having been confirmed on February 22, 2021.<sup>3</sup> The Plan was never stayed; it went effective on August 11, 2021 (“Effective Date”), and it was affirmed almost in its entirety by the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit (“Fifth Circuit”), in late summer 2022, including an approval of the so-called Gatekeeper Provision<sup>4</sup> therein. The Gatekeeper Provision—and how and whether it should now be exercised or interpreted to allow a certain lawsuit to be filed—is at the heart of the current Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding [Bankr. Dkt. Nos. 3699, 3760, 3815, 3816] (collectively, the “Motion for Leave”) filed by a movant known as Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (“HMIT”).

A. Who is the Movant, HMIT?

Who is HMIT? It is undisputed that it is a former equity owner of Highland. It held 99.5% of Highland’s Class B/C limited partnership interests and was classified in a Class 10 under the confirmed Plan, which class treatment provided it with a contingent interest in the Highland Claimant Trust (“Claimant Trust”) created under the Plan, and as defined in the Claimant Trust Agreement. This means that HMIT could receive consideration under the Plan if all claims against Highland are ultimately paid in full, with interest. As later further discussed, it is undisputed that

<sup>4</sup> In an initial opinion dated August 19, 2022, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the Confirmation Order in large part, “revers[ing] only insofar as the plan exculpates certain non-debtors in violation of 11 U.S.C. § 524(e), strik[ing] those few parties from the plan’s exculpation, and affirm[ing] on all remaining grounds.” In re Highland Capital Management, L.P., No. 21-10449, 2022 WL 3571094, at *1 (5th Cir. Aug. 19, 2022). On September 7, 2022, following a petition for limited panel rehearing filed by certain appellants on September 2, 2022, “for the limited purpose of clarifying and confirming one part of its August 19, 2022 opinion,” the Fifth Circuit withdrew its original opinion and replaced it with its opinion reported at NexPoint Advisors, L.P. v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P. (In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P.), 48 F.4th 419, 424 (5th Cir. 2022). The substituted opinion differed from the original opinion only by the replacement of one sentence from section “IV(E)(2) – Injunction and Gatekeeper Provisions” of the original opinion: “The injunction and gatekeeper provisions are, on the other hand, perfectly lawful.” was replaced with “We now turn to the Plan’s injunction and gatekeeper provisions.” In all other respects, the Fifth Circuit panel’s original ruling remained unchanged. Petitions for writs of certiorari regarding the Confirmation Order have been pending at the United States Supreme Court since January 2023.

HMIT's only asset is its contingent interest in the Claimant Trust. It has no employees or revenue. HMIT's representative has testified that HMIT is liable on more than $62 million of indebtedness owed to The Dugaboy Investment Trust ("Dugaboy"), a family trust of which James Dondero ("Dondero"), the co-founder and former chief executive officer ("CEO") of Highland, and his family members are beneficiaries, and that Dugaboy also is paying HMIT's legal fees. HMIT vehemently disputes the suggestion that it is controlled by Dondero.

B. What Does the Movant HMIT Seek Leave to File?

HMIT seeks leave to file an adversary proceeding ("Proposed Complaint")<sup>5</sup> in the bankruptcy court to bring claims on behalf of itself and, derivatively, on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust for alleged breach of fiduciary duties by the Reorganized Debtor's CEO and Claimant Trustee, James P. Seery, Jr. ("Seery") and conspiracy against: (1) Seery; and (2) purchasers of $365 million face amount of allowed unsecured claims in this case, who purchased their claims post-confirmation but prior to the occurrence of the Effective Date of the Plan ("Claims Purchasers,"<sup>6</sup> and with Seery, the "Proposed Defendants"). To be clear (and as later further explained), the claims acquired by the Claims Purchasers were acquired by them after extensive litigation, mediation, and settlements were approved by the bankruptcy court and after the original claims-holders had voted on the Plan and after Plan confirmation. As later explained,

<sup>5</sup> In its original Motion for Leave filed at Bankruptcy Docket No. 3699 on March 28, 2023, HMIT sought leave to file the proposed complaint ("Initial Proposed Complaint") attached as Exhibit 1 to the Motion for Leave. Nearly a month later, on April 23, 2023, HMIT filed a Supplement to Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding ("Supplement") [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3760], a revised proposed complaint as Exhibit 1-A, and stating that "[t]he Supplement is not intended to supersede the [Motion for Leave]; rather, it is intended as a supplement to address procedural matters and to bring forth additional facts that further confirm the appropriateness of the derivative action." Supplement, ¶ 1 and Exhibit 1-A. It is this revised proposed complaint to which this court will refer, when it uses the defined term "Proposed Complaint," even though HMIT filed redacted versions of its Motion for Leave on June 5, 2023 at Bankruptcy Docket Nos. 3815 and 3816 that attached the Initial Proposed Complaint as Exhibit 1.

<sup>6</sup> The Claims Purchasers identified in the Proposed Complaint are Farallon Capital Management, LLC ("Farallon"); Muck Holdings, LLC ("Muck"), which is a special purpose entity created by Farallon to purchase allowed unsecured claims against Highland; Stonehill Capital Management, LLC ("Stonehill"); and Jessup Holdings, LLC ("Jessup"), which is a special purpose entity created by Stonehill to purchase allowed unsecured claims against Highland.

the Claims Purchasers filed notices of their purchases as required by Bankruptcy Rule 3001(e)(2), and no objections were filed thereto. In any event, various damages or remedies are sought against the Proposed Defendants revolving around the Claims Purchasers' claims purchasing activities.

C. Why Does HMIT Need to Seek Leave?

As alluded to above, HMIT filed its Motion for Leave to comply with the provision in the Plan known as a "gatekeeper" provision ("Gatekeeper Provision") and with this court's prior gatekeeper orders entered in January and July 2020, which all require that, before a party may commence or pursue claims relating to the bankruptcy case against certain protected parties, it must first obtain (1) a finding from the bankruptcy court that its proposed claims ("Proposed Claims") are "colorable"; and (2) specific authorization by the bankruptcy court to pursue the Proposed Claims.<sup>7</sup> The Gatekeeper Provision was not included in the Plan sans raison. Indeed, as the Fifth Circuit recognized in affirming confirmation of the Plan, the Gatekeeper Provision (along with the other "protection provisions" in the Plan) had been included in the Plan to address the "continued litigiousness" of Mr. James Dondero ("Dondero"), Highland's co-founder and former chief executive officer ("CEO"), that began prepetition and escalated following the post-petition "nasty breakup" between Highland and Dondero, by "screen[ing] and prevent[ing] bad-faith litigation against Highland Capital, its successors, and other bankruptcy participants that could disrupt the Plan's effectiveness."<sup>8</sup>

<sup>7</sup> To be clear, the Gatekeeper Provision in the Plan was not the first or even second injunction of its type issued in this bankruptcy case. The Gatekeeper Orders were entered by the bankruptcy court pre-confirmation: (a) in January 2020, just a few months into the case, as part of this court's order approving a corporate governance settlement between Highland and its unsecured creditors committee, in which Dondero, Highland's co-founder and former CEO, was removed from any management role at Highland and three independent directors ("Independent Directors") were appointed in lieu of a chapter 11 trustee being appointed ("January 2020 Order"); and (b) in July 2020, in this court's order authorizing the employment of Seery (one of the three Independent Directors) as the Debtor's new Chief Executive Officer, Chief Restructuring Officer, and Foreign Representative ("July 2020 Order," together with the January 2020 Order, the "Gatekeeper Orders").

Since confirmation of the Plan, hundreds of millions of dollars have been paid out to creditors under the Plan, and there are numerous adversary proceedings and contested matters still pending, at various stages of litigation, in the bankruptcy court, the district court, and the Fifth Circuit, almost exclusively involving Dondero and entities that he owns or controls. To be sure, the post-confirmation litigation in this case does not consist of the usual adversaries and contested matters one typically sees by and against a reorganized debtor and/or litigation trustee, such as preference or other avoidance actions and litigation over objections to claims that are still pending after confirmation of a plan. Indeed, the claims of the largest creditors in this case (with claims asserted in the aggregate of more than one billion dollars) were successfully mediated and incorporated into the Plan—a plan which was ultimately accepted by the votes of an overwhelming majority of Highland’s non-insider creditors. Dondero and entities under his control were the only parties who appealed the Confirmation Order, and Dondero and entities under his control have been the appellants in virtually every appeal that has been filed regarding this bankruptcy case. Petitions for writs of mandamus (which have been denied) have been filed in the district court and in the Fifth Circuit by some of these same entities, including one by HMIT, when this court denied setting an emergency hearing on the instant Motion for Leave (HMIT had sought a setting on three-days’ notice).

A recent list of active matters involving Dondero and/or entities and/or individuals affiliated or associated with him, filed in the bankruptcy case by Highland and the Claimant Trust, reveals that there were at least 30 pending and “Active Dondero-Related Litigation” matters as of July 14, 2023: six (6) proceedings in this court; six (6) active appeals or actions are pending in the District Court for the Northern District of Texas; seven (7) appeals in the Fifth Circuit; two (2)

petitions for writs of certiorari in the United States Supreme Court; and nine (9) other proceedings or actions with or affecting the Highland Parties (“Highland,” the “Claimant Trust,” and “Seery”) in various other state, federal, and foreign jurisdictions.<sup>9</sup>

The above-described context is included because the Proposed Defendants assert that the Motion for Leave is just a continuation of Dondero’s unrelenting barrage of meritless and harassing litigation, making good on his oft-mentioned alleged threat to “burn down the place” after not achieving the results he wanted in the Highland bankruptcy case. Indeed, the Motion for Leave was filed after two years of unsuccessful attempts by, first, Dondero personally, and then HMIT to obtain pre-suit discovery from the Proposed Defendants (i.e., the Claims Purchasers) through two different Texas state court proceedings, pursuant to Tex. R. Civ. P. 202 (“Rule 202”). In each of these Rule 202 proceedings, Dondero and HMIT espoused the same Seery/Claims

<sup>9</sup> See Bankr. Dkt. No. 3880 (filed on July 14, 2023, providing a list of “Active Dondero-Related Litigation” and noting that the list is “a summary of active pending actions only and does not include actions that were resolved by final orders, including actions finally resolved after appeals to the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas and/or the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.”). Just since the filing by the Highland Parties of the list, three of the appeals pending in the Fifth Circuit have been decided against the Dondero-related appellants, two of which upheld the district court’s dismissal of appeals by Dondero-related entities of bankruptcy court orders based on the lack of bankruptcy appellate standing on behalf of the appellant. On July 19, 2023, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the district court’s dismissal of an appeal by NexPoint Advisors, L.P. (“NexPoint”) of bankruptcy court orders approving professional compensation on the basis that NexPoint did not meet the bankruptcy appellate standing test of being a “person aggrieved” by the entry of the orders. NexPoint Advisors, L.P. v. Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones, L.L.P. (In re Highland Capital Management, L.P.), 74 F.4th 361 (5th Cir. 2023). On July 31, 2023, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the district court’s dismissal of an appeal by Dugaboy—the Dondero family trust that, like the movant here in this Motion for Leave, was the holder of a limited partnership interest in Highland, and, as such, now has a contingent interest in the Claimant Trust—which had appealed a bankruptcy court order approving a Rule 9019 settlement on the same basis: Dugaboy did not meet the bankruptcy appellate standing test of being a “person aggrieved” by the entry of the settlement order. The Dugaboy Inv. Tr. v. Highland Capital Mgt., L.P. (In re Highland Capital Mgt., L.P.), No. 22-10960, 2023 WL 4861770 (5th Cir. July 31, 2023). The July 31, 2023 ruling followed the Fifth Circuit’s ruling on February 21, 2023, affirming the district court’s dismissal of an appeal by Dugaboy of yet another bankruptcy court order for lack of bankruptcy appellate standing. The Dugaboy Inv. Tr. v. Highland Capital Mgt., L.P. (In re Highland Capital Mgt., L.P.), No. 22-10831, 2023 WL 2263022 (5th Cir. Feb. 28, 2023). These rulings by the Fifth Circuit are discussed in greater detail below. The third ruling by the Fifth Circuit since July 14, 2023, was issued by the Fifth Circuit in a per curium opinion not designated for publication on July 26, 2023, this one affirming the district court’s affirmance of yet another Rule 9019 settlement order of the bankruptcy court that was appealed by Dugaboy, agreeing with the district court that the bankruptcy court had jurisdiction to approve a settlement among the Debtor, an entity affiliated with the Debtor but not a debtor itself, and UBS (the Debtor’s largest prepetition creditor and the seller of its claims to the Claims Purchasers, which is one of the claims trading transactions HMIT complains about in the Proposed Complaint). See The Dugaboy Inv. Tr. v. Highland Capital Mgt., L.P., No. 22-10983, 2023 WL 4842320 (5th Cir. July 26, 2023).

Purchasers conspiracy theory espoused in the Motion for Leave—that Seery must have provided one or more of the Claims Purchasers with material nonpublic information to induce them to want to purchase large, allowed, unsecured claims at a discount; a quid pro quo is suggested, such that the Claims Purchasers were allegedly told they would make a hefty profit on the claims they purchased and, in return, they would gladly “rubber stamp” Seery’s “excessive compensation” as the Claimant Trustee of the Claimant Trust. In sum, HMIT alleges this constituted wrongful “insider trading” of the bankruptcy claims. In addition, certain lawyers for Dondero and Dugaboy sent letters reporting this alleged conspiracy and “insider trading” to the Texas State Securities Board (“TSSB”) and the Executive Office of the United States Trustee (“EOUST”).

It is against this background and in this context that the court must analyze, in the exercise of its gatekeeping function under the confirmed Plan and its prior Gatekeeping Orders, whether HMIT should be allowed to pursue the Proposed Claims (i.e., whether the Proposed Claims are “colorable” claims as contemplated under the Gatekeeper Orders and the Gatekeeper Provision of the Plan). The court held an evidentiary hearing on the Motion for Leave on June 8, 2023 (“June 8 Hearing”), during which the court admitted exhibits and heard testimony from three witnesses both in support of and in opposition to the Motion for Leave. Having considered the Motion for Leave, the response of the Proposed Defendants thereto, HMIT’s reply to the response, and the arguments and evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave, the court denies HMIT’s request for leave to pursue its Proposed Claims. The court’s reasoning is set forth below.

II. BACKGROUND

A. Highland’s Bankruptcy Case, Dondero’s Removal as CEO, and the Plan

Highland was co-founded in Dallas in 1993 by Dondero and Mark Okada (“Okada”). It operated as a global investment adviser that provided investment management and advisory services and managed billions of dollars of assets, both directly and indirectly through numerous affiliates. Highland’s equity interest holders included HMIT (99.5%), Dugaboy (0.1866%), Okada, personally and through trusts (0.0627%), and Strand Advisors, Inc. (“Strand”), which was wholly owned by Dondero and was the only general partner of Highland (0.25%). On October 16, 2019 (the “Petition Date”), Highland, with Dondero in control<sup>10</sup> and acting as its CEO, president, and portfolio manager, and facing a myriad of massive, business litigation claims – many of which had finally become or were about to be liquidated (after a decade or more of contentious litigation in multiple fora all over the world—filed for relief under chapter 11 of the United States Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware. The bankruptcy case was transferred to the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division in December 2019. The official committee of unsecured creditors (the “Committee”) (and later, the United States Trustee) expressed a desire for the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee due to concerns over and distrust of Dondero, his numerous conflicts of interest, and his history of alleged mismanagement (and perhaps worse).

After many weeks under the specter of a possible appointment of a trustee, Highland and the Committee engaged in substantial and lengthy negotiations, resulting in a corporate governance settlement approved by this court on January 9, 2020.<sup>11</sup> As a result of this settlement, Dondero relinquished control of Highland and resigned his positions as officer or director of Highland and its general partner, Strand,<sup>12</sup> and three independent directors (“Independent Directors”) were

<sup>11</sup> This order is hereinafter referred to as the “January 2020 Order” and was entered by the court on January 9, 2020 [Bankr. Dkt. No. 339] pursuant to the Motion of the Debtor to Approve Settlement with Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding the Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operation in the Ordinary Course [Bankr. Dkt. No. 281].

<sup>12</sup> Dondero agreed to this settlement pursuant to a stipulation he executed and that was filed in connection with Highland’s motion to approve the settlement. See Stipulation in Support of Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement With the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in Ordinary Course [Bankr. Dkt. No. 338].

chosen to lead Highland through its chapter 11 case: Seery, John S. Dubel, and retired bankruptcy judge Russell Nelms. Given the Debtor’s perceived culture of constant litigation while Dondero was at the helm, it was purportedly not easy to get such highly qualified persons to serve as independent board members. At the hearing on the corporate governance settlement motion, the court heard credible testimony that none of the Independent Directors would have taken on the role without (1) an adequate directors and officers’ (“D&O”) insurance policy protecting them; (2) indemnification from Strand that would be guaranteed by the Debtor; (3) exculpation from mere negligence claims; and (4) a gatekeeper provision prohibiting the commencement of litigation against the Independent Directors without the bankruptcy court’s prior authority. The gatekeeper provision approved by the court in its January 9 Order states,<sup>13</sup>

No entity may commence or pursue a claim or cause of action of any kind against any Independent Director, any Independent Director’s agents, or any Independent Director’s advisors relating in any way to the Independent Director’s role as an independent director of Strand without the Court (i) first determining after notice that such claim or cause of action represents a colorable claim of willful misconduct or gross negligence against Independent Director, any Independent Director’s agents, or any Independent Director’s advisors and (ii) specifically authorizing such entity to bring such claim. The Court will have sole jurisdiction to adjudicate any such claim for which approval of the Court to commence or pursue has been granted.

Dondero agreed to remain with Highland as an unpaid portfolio manager following his resignation and did so “subject at all times to the supervision, direction and authority of the Independent Directors” and to his agreement to “resign immediately” “[i]n the event the Independent Directors determine for any reason that the Debtor shall no longer retain Dondero as an employee”<sup>14</sup> and to “not cause any Related Entity to terminate any agreements with the Debtor.”<sup>15</sup> The court later entered, on July 16, 2020, an order approving the appointment of Seery as Highland’s Chief Executive Officer, Chief Restructuring Officer, and Foreign Representative,<sup>16</sup> which included essentially the same “gatekeeper” language with respect to the pursuit of claims against Seery acting in these roles. The gatekeeper provision in the July 2020 Order was essentially the same as the gatekeeper provision in the January 2020 Order:

No entity may commence or pursue a claim or cause of action of any kind against Seery relating in any way to his role as the chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer of the Debtor without the Bankruptcy Court (i) first determining after notice that such claim or cause of action represents a colorable claim of willful misconduct or gross negligence against Seery, and (ii) specifically authorizing such entity to bring such claim. The Bankruptcy Court shall have sole jurisdiction to adjudicate any such claim for which approval of the Court to commence or pursue has been granted.

July 2020 Order, 3, ¶5. Neither the January 2020 Order nor the July 2020 Order were appealed.

Throughout the summer of 2020, Dondero informally proposed several reorganization plans, none of which were embraced by the Committee or the Independent Directors. When Dondero’s plans failed to gain support, he and entities under his control engaged in substantial, costly, and time-consuming litigation for Highland.<sup>17</sup> As the Fifth Circuit described the situation, after Dondero’s plans failed “he and other creditors began to frustrate the proceedings by objecting to settlements, appealing orders, seeking writs of mandamus, interfering with Highland Capital’s management, threatening employees, and canceling trades between Highland Capital and its clients.”<sup>18</sup> On October 9, 2020, Dondero resigned from all positions with the Debtor and its

<sup>17</sup> According to Seery’s credible testimony during the hearing on confirmation of the Plan that had been negotiated between the Committee and the Independent Directors, Dondero had threatened to “burn the place down” if his proposed plan was not accepted. The Independent Directors and the Committee had negotiated their own plan of reorganization which culminated in the filing by Highland of its Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (as Modified) (the "Plan") [Bankr. Dkt. No. 1808] on January 22, 2021.<sup>20</sup> Highland had negotiated settlements with most of its major creditors following mediation and had amended its initially proposed plan to address the objections of most of its creditors, leaving only the objections of Dondero and entities under his control (the "Dondero Parties") at the time of the confirmation hearing,<sup>21</sup> which was held over two days in early February 2021. The Plan is essentially an "asset monetization" plan pursuant to which the Committee was dissolved, and four new entities were created: the Reorganized Debtor; a new general partner for the Reorganized Debtor called HCMLP GP, LLC; the Claimant Trust (administered by Seery, its trustee); and a Litigation Sub-Trust (administered by its trustee, Marc Kirschner). Highland's various servicing agreements were vested in the Reorganized Debtor, which continues to manage collateralized loan obligation vehicles ("CLOs") and various other investments postconfirmation. The Claimant Trust owns the limited partnership interests in the Reorganized Debtor, HCMLP GP LLC, and the Litigation Sub-Trust and is charged with winding down the Reorganized Debtor over a three-year period by monetizing its assets and making

The Claimant Trust is overseen by a Claimant Trust Oversight Board (“CTOB”), and pursuant to the terms of the Plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement (“CTA”),<sup>22</sup> the CTOB approved Seery’s compensation package as the CEO of the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trustee. Following their acquisition of their unsecured claims, representatives of Claims Purchasers Muck and Jessup became members of the CTOB.<sup>23</sup> Seery’s compensation included the same base salary that he was receiving as CEO and CRO of Highland, plus an added incentive bonus tiered to recoveries and distributions to the creditors under the Plan. The Plan provides for the cancellation of the limited partnership interests in Highland held by HMIT, Dugaboy, and Okada and his family trusts in exchange for each holder’s pro rata share of a contingent interest in the Claimant Trust (“Contingent Claimant Trust Interest”), as holders of allowed interests in Class 10 (holders of Class B/C limited partnership interests) or Class 11 (holders of Class A limited partnership interests) under the Plan.

1. The December 17, 2020 MGM Email

Between Dondero’s forced resignation from Highland in October 2020 and the confirmation hearing in February 2021, Dondero engaged in what appeared to be attempts to thwart, impede, and otherwise interfere with the Plan being proposed by the Independent Directors and the Committee. In the midst of this, on December 17, 2020, Dondero sent Seery<sup>24</sup> an email

<sup>24</sup> Dondero sent the email to others as well but did not copy counsel for the Independent Directors (including Seery) in violation of the terms of an existing temporary restraining order that enjoined Dondero from, among other things, “communicating . . . with any Board member” (including Seery) without including Debtor’s counsel. (the “MGM Email”) that featured prominently in HMIT’s Motion for Leave. According to HMIT and Dondero, the MGM Email contained material nonpublic information (“MNPI”) regarding the possibility of an imminent acquisition of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios, Inc. (“MGM”), likely by either Amazon or Apple.<sup>25</sup> At the time Dondero sent the MGM Email, Dondero sat on the board of directors of MGM, and the Debtor owned MGM stock directly. The Debtor also managed and partially owned a couple of other entities that owned MGM stock and managed various CLOs that owned some MGM stock as well. HMIT alleges now that Seery later misused and wrongfully disclosed to the Claims Purchasers this purported MNPI as part of a quid pro quo scheme, whereby the Claims Purchasers agreed to approve excessive compensation for Seery in the future (in exchange for him providing this allegedly “insider” information that inspired them to purchase unsecured claims with an alleged expectation of future large profits).<sup>26</sup> A timeline of events (in late 2020) in the weeks leading up to Dondero’s MGM Email to Seery, following Dondero’s departure from Highland, helps to put the email in full context:

- October 16: Dondero and his affiliates attempt to impede the Debtor’s trading activities by demanding—with no legal basis—that Seery cease selling certain assets;<sup>27</sup>
- November 24: Bankruptcy Court enters an Order approving the Debtor’s Disclosure Statement, scheduling the confirmation hearing on the Debtor’s Plan for January 13, 2021, and granting related relief;<sup>28</sup>
- November 24–27: Dondero personally interferes with the Debtor’s

<sup>36</sup> Seery testified at the June 8 Hearing that Dondero knowingly violated the TRO when he sent the MGM Email:

[The MGM Email] . . . followed the imposition of a TRO for interfering with the business. He knew what was in the TRO and he knew what it applied to, and it restricted him from communicating with me or any of the other independent directors without Pachulski [Debtor's counsel] being on it. Furthermore, Pachulski had advised Dondero's counsel that not only could they not communicate with us, if they wanted to communicate they had to prescreen the topics. And how do we know that? Because Dondero filed a motion to modify the TRO. And that was all before this email.

June 8 Hearing Transcript, 273:13-22.

The MGM Email had the subject line “Trading Restriction re MGM – material non public information” and stated:

Just got off a pre board call, board call at 3:00. Update is as follows: Amazon and Apple actively diligencing in Data Room. Both continue to express material interest. Probably first quarter event, will update as facts change. Note also any sales are subject to a shareholder agreement.<sup>37</sup>

Seery credibly testified at the June 8 Hearing that he was “highly suspicious” when he received the MGM Email. This was because, among other reasons, Dondero sent it after: (i) unsuccessful efforts to impede the Debtor’s trading activities (followed by the TRO); (ii) the “be careful what you do” text to Seery by Dondero; (iii) Highland’s termination of its shared service arrangements with Dondero’s various affiliated entities; (iv) the bankruptcy court’s approval of the disclosure statement; and (v) Highland’s demand to collect on the demand notes for which Dondero and his entities were liable.<sup>38</sup> Highland’s Chapter 11 case was fast approaching the finish line. Moreover, MGM was already on the restricted list at Highland Capital, and had been for a long time, and Dondero would know this.<sup>39</sup> Still further, as of December 17, 2020 (the date Dondero sent the unsolicited MGM Email to Seery), Dondero no longer owed a duty of any kind to the Debtor or any entity controlled by the Debtor, having surrendered in January 2020 direct and indirect control of the Debtor to the Independent Board as part of the corporate governance settlement<sup>40</sup> and having resigned from all roles at the Debtor and affiliates in October 2020. Still further, Dondero—to the extent he was sharing with Seery MNPI that he obtained as a member of the board of directors of MGM—would have been violating his own fiduciary duties to MGM.

In any event, in a declaration filed by Dondero in support of HMIT's Rule 202 petition in Texas state court for pre-suit discovery,<sup>41</sup> he indicated that his goal in sending the MGM E-mail was to impede the Debtor and Seery from engaging in any transactions involving MGM:

On December 17, 2020, I sent an email to employees at HCM, including the then Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer Jim Seery, containing non-public information regarding Amazon and Apple's interest in acquiring MGM. I became aware of this information due to my involvement as a member of the board of MGM. My purpose was to alert Seery and others that MGM stock, which was owned either directly or indirectly by HCM, should be on a restricted list and not be involved in any trades.

It is noteworthy that Dondero's labeling of the MGM Email (in the subject line) as a communication containing "material non public information" did not make it so. In fact, it appears from the credible evidence presented at the June 8, 2023 hearing on HMIT's Motion for Leave that the MGM Email did not disclose information to Seery that was not already made available to the public at the time it was sent. Seery testified that he did not think the MGM Email contained MNPI and that he did not personally "take any steps . . . to make sure that MGM stock was placed on a restricted list at Highland Capital after [he] received [the MGM Email]" because—as earlier noted—"MGM was already on the restricted list at Highland Capital . . . before I got to Highland."<sup>42</sup> Indeed, MGM was ultimately purchased by Amazon after a sale process that had been quite publicly discussed in media reports for several months<sup>43</sup> and that was officially

<sup>42</sup> June 8 Hearing Transcript, 215:21-216:9. Seery elaborated upon further questioning from HMIT's counsel that he did not think the indications in the MGM Email (that came from a member of the board of directors of MGM) that "it was probably a first-quarter event" and that "Amazon and Apple were actively diligencing – are diligencing in the data room, both continue to express material interest" were not MNPI. Id., 217:23-218:10. He testified that "it was clear [before he received the MGM Email] from the media reports and the actual quotes from Kevin Ulrich of Anchorage, who was the chairman at MGM, that a transaction would have to take place very quickly. And, in fact, the transaction did not take place in the first quarter." Id., 219:3-7.

<sup>43</sup> See Highland Ex. 25 ("MGM has held preliminary talks with Apple, Netflix and other larger media companies . . . . MGM, in particular, seems like a logical candidate to sell this year. Its owners include Anchorage Capital, Highland Capital and Solus Alternative Asset Management, hedge funds that acquired the company out of bankruptcy in 2010.") (article dated 1/26/20); Highland Ex. 26 (describing prospects of an MGM sale, noting that, among its largest announced to the public in late May 2021 (just a few weeks after the Claims Purchasers purchased some of their claims, but a few months before certain of their claims—the UBS claims—were purchased).<sup>44</sup> For example, as early as January 2020, Apple and Amazon were identified as being among a new group of “Big 6” global media companies, and MGM was identified as being a leading media acquisition target. Indeed, according to at least one media report on January 26, 2020, “MGM, in particular, seems like a logical candidate to sell this year” having already held “preliminary talks with Apple, Netflix and other larger media companies.”<sup>45</sup> In October 2020, the Wall Street Journal reported that MGM’s largest shareholder, Anchorage Capital Group (“Anchorage”), was facing mounting pressure to sell the company. Anchorage was led by Kevin Ulrich, who also served as Chairman of MGM’s Board. The article reported that “[i]n recent months, Mr. Ulrich has said he is working toward a deal,” and he specifically named Amazon and Apple as being among four possible buyers.<sup>46</sup> Thus, no one following the MGM story would have been surprised to learn in December 2020 that Apple and Amazon were conducting due diligence and had expressed “material interest” in acquiring MGM. Dondero testified during the June 8 Hearing that, at the time he sent the MGM Email, he “knew with certainty from the board level that Amazon had hit our price, and it was going to close in the next couple of months,”<sup>47</sup> that “as of December 17th, Amazon had made an offer that was acceptable to MGM, [and that] that’s what the board meeting was. <sup>44</sup> The MGM-Amazon deal was ultimately consummated in March 2022 for approximately $6.1 billion, net of cash acquired, plus approximately $2.5 billion in debt that Amazon assumed and immediately repaid.

them.”<sup>48</sup> Notwithstanding this testimony, Dondero eventually admitted (after a lengthy and torturous cross examination) that he did not actually communicate this supposed “inside” information to Seery in the MGM Email. He did not “say anything about Amazon hitting the price.” He did not say anything about the MGM board going into exclusive negotiations with Amazon “to culminate the merger with them.” Rather, he communicated information that Seery and any member of the public who cared to look could have gleaned from publicly available information as of December 17, 2020, regarding a much-written-about potential MGM transaction that involved interest from numerous companies, including, specifically, Amazon and Apple. When questioned why “[he felt] the need to mention Apple [in the MGM Email] if Amazon had already hit the price,” Dondero simply answered, “The only way you generally get something done at attractive levels in business is if two people are interested,” suggesting that he specifically did not communicate the purported inside information he obtained as a MGM board member—that Amazon had met MGM’s strike price and that the MGM board was moving forward with exclusive negotiations with Amazon—because he wanted it to appear that there was still a competitive process going on that included both Amazon and Apple.<sup>49</sup>

Even if the MGM Email contained MNPI on the day it was sent (four months prior to the first of the Claim Purchases that occurred in April 2021), the information was fully and publicly disclosed to the market in the days and weeks that followed. For example, on December 21, 2020, just four days later, a Wall Street Journal article titled MGM Holdings, Studio Behind ‘James Bond,’ Explores a Sale, reported that MGM had “tapped investment banks Morgan Stanley and LionTree LLC and begun a formal sale process,” and had “a market value of around $5.5 billion, based on privately traded shares and including debt.” The Wall Street Journal Article reiterated that (i) Anchorage “has come under pressure in recent years from weak performance and defecting clients, and its illiquid investment in MGM has become a larger percentage of its hedge fund as it shrinks,” and (ii) “Mr. Ulrich has told clients in recent months he was working toward a deal for the studio and has spoken of big technology companies as logical buyers.”<sup>50</sup> (Id. Ex. 27.) The Wall Street Journal’s reporting was picked up and expanded upon in other publications soon after. For example:

- On December 23, 2020, Business Matters published an article specifically identifying Amazon as a potential suitor for MGM. The article, titled The world is not enough! Amazon joins other streaming services in £4bn bidding war for Bond films as MGM considers selling back catalogue, cited the Wall Street Journal article and further reported that MGM “hopes to spark a battle that could interest streaming services such as Amazon Prime”;<sup>51</sup>
- On December 24, 2020, an article in iDropNews specifically identified Apple as entering the fray. In an article titled Could Apple be Ready to Gobble Up MGM Studios Entirely?, the author observed that “it’s now become apparent that MGM is actually up on the auction block,” noting that the Wall Street Journal was “reporting that the studio has begun a formal sale process” and that Apple—with a long history of exploratory interest in MGM—would be a likely bidder;<sup>52</sup> and
- On January 15, 2021, Bulwark published an article entitled MGM is For Sale (Again) that identified attributes of MGM likely to appeal to potential purchasers and handicapped the odds of seven likely buyers—with Apple and Amazon named as two of three potential buyers most likely to close on an acquisition.<sup>53</sup>

Finally, Highland and entities it controlled did not sell their MGM stock while the MGM-Amazon deal was under discussion and/or not made public but, instead, they tendered their MGM holdings in connection with, and as part of, the ultimate MGM-Amazon transaction after it closed in March 2022.

2. No Evidence to Support HMIT/Dondero’s Assumptions that Seery Shared Alleged MNPI in the MGM Email with Claims Purchasers

One of HMIT’s allegations in the Proposed Complaint it seeks leave to file—which is central to HMIT’s and Dondero’s conspiracy theory—is that Seery shared the alleged MNPI from the MGM Email with the Claims Purchasers (or at least Farallon—the owner/affiliate of Muck, one of the Claims Purchasers) and that the Claims Purchasers only acquired the purchased claims (“Purchased Claims”) based on, and because, of their receipt of the MNPI from Seery. HMIT essentially admits in the original version of its Motion for Leave that it has no direct evidence that Seery communicated the alleged MNPI to any of the Claims Purchasers. Rather, its allegation is based on inferences it wants the court to make based on “circumstantial” evidence and on the Dondero Declarations that were attached to the Motion for Leave, which described communications Dondero purportedly had with one or two representatives of Farallon in the “late spring” of 2021 concerning Farallon’s recent acquisition of certain claims in the Highland bankruptcy case.<sup>54</sup> Based on these communications, HMIT and Dondero only assume Seery must have provided the MNPI about MGM to Farallon, which must have caused both Farallon and the other Claims Purchaser, Stonehill, to acquire the Purchased Claims.<sup>55</sup>

At the June 8 Hearing, HMIT offered Dondero’s testimony that he had three telephone conversations with two representatives of Farallon, Mike Linn (“Linn”) and Raj Patel (“Patel”),

<sup>55</sup> Motion for Leave (Bankr. Dkt. No. 3699) ¶ 28. HMIT subsequently filed the final version of the Motion for Leave that was revised to withdraw the Dondero Declarations and delete all references therein to the Dondero Declarations (but, notably, leaving in the allegations that were based on the Dondero Declaration(s)). This was done after the court ruled that it would allow the Proposed Defendants to examine Dondero regarding his Declarations. HMIT contended at that point that the court should consider the Motion for Leave on a no-evidence Rule 12(b)(6) type basis (but could not explain why it had attached the Dondero Declarations as evidence that “supported” the Motion for Leave, if it believed no evidence should be considered). See Motion for Leave (Bankr. No. 3816) ¶ 28; see also infra pages 45 to 47 regarding the “sideshow” litigation that occurred prior to the June 8 Hearing over whether the hearing on the Motion for Leave would be an evidentiary hearing.

who allegedly told him that they purchased the claims without conducting any due diligence and based solely on Seery’s assurances that the claims were valuable. These conversations allegedly took place on May 28, 2021—two days after the MGM-Amazon deal was officially announced to the public (on May 26, 2021). Dondero also testified that a photocopy of handwritten notes (“Dondero Notes”)<sup>56</sup> (which were partially cut off) were notes he took contemporaneously with these short telephone conversations he initiated (one with Patel and two follow-up conversations with Linn).<sup>57</sup> He testified that his purpose in taking these notes and in initiating the phone calls was that “[w]e’d been trying nonstop to settle the case for two-plus years. . . . [a]nd when we heard the claims traded, we realized there were new parties to potentially negotiate to resolve the case . . . [s]o I reached out [to] the Farallon guys,”<sup>58</sup> and further, on voir dire from the Proposed Defendants’ counsel, that the purpose of taking the notes was so that he had “a written record of the important points that [he] discussed . . . so I know how to address it the next time.”<sup>59</sup> The handwritten notes<sup>60</sup> stated:

Raj Patel bought it because of Seery	1
50-70¢ not compelling	2
Class 8	3
Asked what would be compelling	4
-- No Offer	5
Bought in Feb/March timeframe	6
Bought assets w/ Claims	7
Offered him 40-50% premium	8
130% of cost; “Not Compelling”	9
No Counter; Told Discovery coming	10

<sup>56</sup> HMIT Ex. 4. The handwritten notes were admitted into evidence after voir dire, not for the truth of anything Patel or Linn allegedly said to him during the three telephone conversations, but as Dondero’s “present sense impression” of the telephone conversations.

<sup>60</sup> HMIT Ex. 4. The court has placed in a table and numbered each line for ease of reference. The table does not include the separate apparent partial date from the top left corner that Dondero testified was the date that he made the initial call to Patel: May 28, 2021.

On direct examination, Dondero testified that line 1 is what he wrote contemporaneously with the short call he initiated to Patel of Farallon in which Patel allegedly told Dondero “that he bought it because Seery told him to buy it and they had made money with Seery before”<sup>61</sup> and that Farallon “bought [the claim] because he was very optimistic regarding MGM”<sup>62</sup> before referring him to Linn, a portfolio manager at Farallon. Dondero testified that the rest of the handwritten notes (reflected in lines 2 through 10 of the table) were notes he took contemporaneously with two telephone conversations he had with Linn following his call to Patel, with lines 2-8 referring to Dondero’s first call with Linn and lines 9 and 10 referring to his second call with Linn.<sup>63</sup> Dondero testified that the “50-70¢” in line 2 referred to his offer to Linn to pay 70 cents on the dollar to buy Farallon’s<sup>64</sup> claims because “[w]e knew that they had – that the claims had traded around 50 cents” and “[w]e wanted to prevent the $5 million-a-month burn” (referring to attorney’s fees in the Highland case) and that “not compelling Class 8” in lines 2-3 referred to Linn’s response to him that the offer was not compelling.<sup>65</sup> Dondero testified that lines 4-5 referred to him asking Linn what amount would be compelling and to Linn’s response that “he had no offer.”<sup>66</sup> Dondero testified that lines 6-8 referred to Linn telling Dondero that Farallon bought the claims in the February, March timeframe and that Dondero told Linn that, given that the estate was spending $5 million a month on legal fees, Farallon should want to sell its claims and Linn’s alleged response that “Seery told him it was worth a lot more.”<sup>67</sup> Lastly, Dondero testified on direct examination that the last two lines referred to a second telephone conversation he had with Linn in which Dondero offered 130 percent of cost for the claims and that Linn told him that the offer was not compelling, and he would not give a price at which he would sell.<sup>68</sup>

On cross-examination, Dondero acknowledged that, though he had testified that the handwritten notes were intended to be a written record of the important points from the telephone conversations he had with Patel and Linn, there was no mention in the notes of: (1) MGM; (2) or that Farallon was very optimistic about MGM; (3) the sharing of MNPI; (4) a quid pro quo; or (5) Seery's compensation, and that his last note—"Told Discovery coming"—was a reference to Dondero telling Linn (not Linn telling Dondero) that discovery was coming in response to Dondero's own supposition that Farallon must have traded on MNPI.<sup>69</sup> Cross-examination also revealed that Farallon never told Dondero that Seery gave them MNPI, and that Dondero only believed Seery must have given Farallon MNPI, because Farallon (Patel and Linn) had told him that the only reason Farallon bought their claims was because of their prior dealings with Seery, which Dondero took to mean that they had conducted no due diligence on their own prior to acquiring the claims. Dondero also testified that he did not have any personal knowledge as to how Seery's compensation package, as CEO of the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trustee, was determined because he was "not involved" in the setting of Seery's compensation pursuant to the Claimant Trust<sup>70</sup> and that he never discussed Seery's compensation with Farallon.<sup>71</sup>

As noted earlier, Dondero attempted to obtain discovery from the Claims Purchasers in a Texas state court pursuant to Rule 202 of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure. The Texas state court denied the First Rule 202 petition on June 1, 2022, after having considered the amended petition, the responses, the record, applicable authorities and having conducted a hearing on the petition on June 1, 2022.<sup>72</sup>

3. Dondero Unsuccessfully Seeks Discovery and to Have Various Agencies and Courts Outside of the Bankruptcy Court Acknowledge His Insider Trading Theories

Dondero acknowledged at the June 8 Hearing that the verified petition (“First Rule 202 Petition”) he signed and filed on July 22, 2021, in the first Texas Rule 202 proceeding—just weeks after his telephone calls with Linn and Patel—was true and accurate. In it, he swore under oath as to what Linn told him in the telephone call concerning Farallon’s purchase of the claims, and the only reason he gave for wanting discovery was that Linn told him Farallon bought the claims “sight unseen—relying entirely on Seery’s advice solely because of their prior dealings.”<sup>73</sup> Dondero acknowledged, as well, that his sworn statement that he filed in support of an amended verified Rule 202 petition filed in the same Texas Rule 202 proceeding, but nearly ten months later (in May 2022), described the same telephone conversation he had with Linn, and it did not mention MGM at all and did not say that Linn told him that Seery gave him MNPI; rather, the sworn statement stated only that “On a telephone call between Petitioner and Michael Lin[n], a representative of Farallon, Mr. Lin[n] informed Petitioner that Farallon had purchased the claims sight unseen and with no due diligence—100% relying on Seery’s say-so because they had made so much money in the past when Seery told them to purchase claims” and that Linn did not tell him that Seery gave them MNPI, but he concluded that Seery gave Farallon MNPI based on what Linn did tell him.<sup>74</sup>

<sup>74</sup> Id., 195:11-197:17; Highland Ex. 4, Amended Verified Petition to Take Deposition before Suit and Seek Documents, ¶ 23.

Nine days later, Dondero filed a declaration in the same proceeding, in which he described the same call with Linn as follows:<sup>75</sup>

Last year, I called Farallon’s Michael Lin[n] about purchasing their claims in the bankruptcy. I offered them 30% more than what they paid. I was told by Michael Lin[n] of Farallon that they purchased the interests without doing any due diligence other than what Mr. James Seery—the CEO of Highland—told them, and that he told them that the interests would be worth far more than what Farallon paid. Given the value of those claims that Seery had testified in court, it made no sense to me that Mr. Lin[n] would think that the claims were worth more than what Seery testified under oath was the value of the bankruptcy claims.

Dondero further stated in his declaration that “I have an interest in ensuring that the claims purchased by [Farallon] are not used as a means to deprive the equity holders of their share of the funds,” and that “[i]t has become obvious that despite the fact that the bankruptcy estate has enough money to pay all claimants 100 cents on the dollar, there is plainly a movement afoot to drain the bankrupt estate and deprive equity of their rights. Accordingly, “I commissioned an investigation by counsel who have been in communication with the Office of the United States Trustee.”<sup>76</sup> Dondero attached as Exhibit A to his declaration a letter from Douglas Draper (“Draper”), an attorney with the law firm of Heller, Draper & Horn, L.L.C. in New Orleans, to the office of the General Counsel, Executive Office for U.S. Trustees, dated October 5, 2021, in which Draper opens the letter by stating that “[t]he purpose of this letter is to request that your office investigate the circumstances surrounding the sale of claims by members of the [Creditors’ Committee] in the bankruptcy of [Highland],” and later noted that he “became involved in Highland’s bankruptcy through my representation of [Dugaboy], an irrevocable trust of which Dondero is the primary beneficiary.”<sup>77</sup> Mr. Draper laid out the same allegations of insider claims trading, breach of fiduciary duties, and conspiracy that HMIT seeks to bring in the Proposed Complaint.<sup>78</sup> The U.S. Trustee’s office took no action. Dondero made a second and third attempt to get the U.S. Trustee’s office to conduct an investigation into the same allegations laid out in Draper’s letter, this time in “follow-up” letters to the Office of the U.S. Trustee on November 3, 2021, and six months later, on May 11, 2022, through another lawyer, Davor Rukavina (“Rukavina”), in which Rukavina wrote “to provide additional information regarding the systemic abuses of bankruptcy process occasioned during the [Highland] bankruptcy.”<sup>79</sup> Again, the U.S. Trustee’s office took no action.

On February 15, 2023, Dondero filed yet another sworn statement about his alleged conversation with Linn, this time in support of a Verified Rule 202 Petition filed by HMIT (“Second Rule 202 Petition”), filed in a different Texas state court (Texas District Court, 191st Judicial District, Dallas County, Texas), following Dondero’s unsuccessful attempts throughout 2021 and 2022 to obtain discovery in the First Rule 202 proceeding and based on the same allegations of misconduct by Seery and Farallon.<sup>80</sup> In this new sworn statement, Dondero describes for the first time the “call” he had with Linn as having been “phone calls” with Patel and Linn and mentions MGM and Farallon’s alleged optimism about the expected sale of MGM.<sup>81</sup>

In late Spring of 2021, I had phone calls with two principals at Farallon Capital Management, LLC (“Farallon”), Raj Patel and Michael Linn. During these phone calls, Mr. Patel and Mr. Linn informed me that Farallon had a deal in place to purchase the Acis and HarbourVest claims, which I understood to refer to claims that were a part of settlements in the HCM Bankruptcy Proceedings. Mr. Patel and Mr. Linn stated that Farallon agreed to purchase these claims based solely on conversations with Seery because they had made significant profits when Seery told them to purchase other claims in the past. They also stated that they were particularly optimistic because of the expected sale of MGM.

The Second Rule 202 Petition was also denied by the second Texas state court on March 8, 2023.<sup>82</sup>

HMIT, in an apparent attempt to provide support for its argument that the Proposed Claims are “colorable,” stated in its Motion for Leave that “[t]he Court also should be aware that the Texas States [sic] Securities Board (“TSSB”) opened an investigation into the subject matter of the insider trades at issue, and this investigation has not been closed. The continuing nature of this investigation underscores HMIT’s position that the claims described in the attached Adversary Proceeding are plausible and certainly far more than merely ‘colorable.’”<sup>83</sup> But, two days before opposition briefing was due, on May 9, 2023, the TSSB issued a letter (“TSSB Letter”) to Highland, informing it that “[t]he staff of the [TSSB] has completed its review of the complaint received by the Staff against [Highland]. The issues raised in the complaint and information provided to our Agency were given full consideration, and a decision was made that no further regulatory action is warranted at this time.”<sup>84</sup> HMIT’s counsel (frankly, to the astonishment of the court) objected to the admission of the TSSB Letter at the June 8 Hearing “on the grounds of relevance, 403, hearsay, and authenticity . . . [a]nd I also . . . think it's important that the decision by a regulatory body has no bearing on this cause of action or the colorability of this claim, and the Texas State Securities Board will tell you that. This is completely and utterly irrelevant to your inquiry.”<sup>85</sup> The court overruled HMIT’s objection to the relevance of this exhibit—considering, among other things, that HMIT, in its Motion for Leave, specifically mentioned the allegedly open TSSB “investigation” as relevant evidence the court “should be aware” of in making its determination of whether the Proposed Claims were “colorable.”<sup>86</sup>

C. Claims Purchasers Purchase Claims and File Notices of Transfers of Claims

To be clear about the time line here, it was after confirmation of the Plan but prior to the Effective Date of the Plan, that the Claims Purchasers: (1) purchased several large unsecured claims that had been allowed following, and as part of, Rule 9019 settlements, each of which were approved by the bankruptcy court, after notice and hearing, prior to the confirmation hearing; and (2) filed notices of the transfers of those claims pursuant to Rule 3001(e)(2) of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure. The noticing of the claims transfers began on April 16, 2021, with the notice of transfer of the claim held by Acis Capital Management to Muck, and ended on August 9, 2021, with the notices of transfers of the claims held by UBS Securities to Muck and Jessup:

HMIT insists that it “made no sense” for the Claims Purchasers to buy the Purchased Claims because “the publicly available information [] did not offer a sufficient potential profit to justify the publicly disclosed risk,” and “their investment was projected to yield a small return with virtually no margin for error.”<sup>91</sup> Dondero testified that it was his view that there was insufficient information in the public to justify the claims purchases.<sup>92</sup> But, HMIT’s arguments here are contradicted by the information that was publicly available to Farallon and Stonehill at the time of their purchases and by HMIT’s own allegations. In advance of Plan confirmation, Highland projected that Class 8 general unsecured creditors would recover 71.32% on their allowed claims. In the Proposed Complaint, HMIT sets forth the amounts the Claims Purchasers purportedly paid for their claims.<sup>93</sup> Taking into account the face amount of the allowed claims, the Claims Purchasers’ projected profits (in millions of dollars) were as follows:

Redeemer	$137.0	$0.0	$97.71	Stonehill	$78.0	$19.71

<sup>92</sup> June 8 Hearing Transcript, 187:3-7 (“Q: And it’s your testimony that there wasn’t sufficient information in the public for them to buy – this is your view – that there wasn’t sufficient information in the public to justify their purchases. Is that your view? A: Correct.”).

<sup>94</sup> “Ascribed Value” is derived by multiplying the Class 8 amount by the projected recovery of 71.32% for that class.

HarbourVest	$45.0	$35.0	$32.09	Farallon	$27.0	$5.09
UBS	$65.0	$60.0	$46.39	Stonehill & Farallon	$50.0	($3.61)

As HMIT acknowledges, by the time Dondero spoke with Farallon in the “late spring” of 2021, the Claims Purchasers had acquired the allowed claims previously held by Acis, Redeemer, and HarbourVest.<sup>95</sup> Based on an aggregate purchase price of $113 million for these three claims, the Claims Purchasers would have expected to net over $33 million in profits, or nearly 30% on their investment, had Highland met its projections. The Claims Purchasers would make even more money if Highland beat its projections, because they also purchased the Class 9 claims and would therefore capture any upside. In this context, HMIT’s and Dondero’s assertions that it did not “make any sense” for the Claims Purchasers to purchase their claims when they did does not pass muster—given the publicly available information about potential recoveries under the Plan. Dondero even acknowledged, on cross-examination, that he was prepared to pay 30 percent more than Farallon had paid, even though he did not think there was sufficient public information available to justify Farallon’s purchase of the claims.<sup>96</sup> Dondero essentially testified that he wanted to purchase Farallon’s claims because he wanted to be in a position of control to force a settlement or resolution of the bankruptcy case, post-confirmation, under terms acceptable to him. He did not want to try to settle by negotiating with Farallon and Stonehill as creditors, but instead he wanted to purchase the claims because “if we owned all the claims, it would settle the case.”<sup>97</sup>

<sup>95</sup> See Complaint, ¶ 41 n.12. The UBS claims were not acquired until August 2021, long after the alleged “quid pro quo” was supposedly agreed upon and the MGM-Amazon deal was announced in the press in late May 2021. D. Fifth Circuit’s Approval of the Gatekeeper Provision in Plan, Recognition of Res Judicata Effect of the Prior Gatekeeper Orders, and the Bankruptcy Court’s Order Approving Highland’s Motion to Conform Plan

Harkening back to February 22, 2021, after a robust confirmation hearing, this court entered its order confirming the Plan, over the objections of Dondero and Dondero-Related Parties, specifically questioning the good faith of their objections. The court found, after noting “the remoteness of their economic interests” that “[it] has good reason to believe that [the Dondero Parties] are not objecting to protect economic interests they have in the Debtor but to be disruptors. Dondero wants his company back. This is understandable, but it is not a good faith basis to lob objections to the Plan.”<sup>94</sup> The Plan became effective on August 11, 2021.

Of relevance to the Motion for Leave, the confirmed Plan included certain exculpations, releases, and injunctions designed to protect the Debtor and other bankruptcy participants from bad-faith litigation. These participants included: Highland’s employees (with certain exceptions); Seery as Highland’s CEO and CRO; Strand (after the appointment of the Independent Directors); the Independent Directors; the successor entities; the CTOB and its members; the Committee and its members; professionals retained in the case; and all “Related Persons.” The injunction provisions contained a Gatekeeper Provision which is similar to the gatekeeper provisions in the prior Gatekeeper Orders in that it provided that the bankruptcy court will act as a “gatekeeper” to screen and prevent bad-faith litigation against the Protected Parties. The Gatekeeper Provision in the Plan states, in pertinent part:<sup>98</sup>

No Enjoined Party may commence or pursue a claim or cause of action of any kind against any Protected Party that arose or arises from or is related to the Chapter 11 Case . . . without the Bankruptcy Court (i) first determining, after notice and a hearing, that such claim or cause of action represents a colorable claim of any kind, including, but not limited to, negligence, bad faith, criminal misconduct, willful misconduct, fraud, or gross negligence against a Protected Party and (ii) specifically authorizing such Enjoined Party to bring such claim or cause of action against such Protected Party.

The Plan defines Protected Parties as,

collectively, (i) the Debtor and its successors and assigns, direct and indirect majority-owned subsidiaries, and the Managed Funds, (ii) the Employees, (iii) Strand, (iv) the Reorganized Debtor, (v) the Independent Directors, (vi) the Committee, (vii) the members of the Committee (in their official capacities), (viii) the Claimant Trust, (ix) the Claimant Trustee, (x) the Litigation Sub-Trust, (xi) the Litigation Trustee, (xii) the members of the [CTOB] (in their official capacities), (xiii) [HCMLP GP LLC], (xiv) the Professionals retained by the Debtor and the Committee in the Chapter 11 Case, (xv) the CEO/CRO; and (xvi) the Related Persons of each of the parties listed in (iv) through (xv); [but excluding Dondero and Okada and various entities including HMIT and Dugaboy].

The court notes that the Gatekeeper Provision in the Plan provides protection to a broader number of persons than the persons protected under the January 2020 Order (addressing the Independent Directors and their agents and advisors) and the July 2020 Order (addressing Seery in his role as CEO and CRO of the Debtor). But, at the same time, it is less restrictive than the gatekeeping provisions under the Gatekeeper Orders, in that the gatekeeping provisions in the prior orders shield the protected parties from any claim that is not both “colorable” and a claim for “willful misconduct or gross negligence,” effectively providing the protected parties under the prior orders with a limited immunity from claims of simple negligence or breach of contract that do not rise to the level of “willful misconduct or gross negligence,” whereas the Gatekeeping Provision under the Plan does not act as a release or exculpation of the Protected Parties in any way because it does not prohibit any party from bringing any kind of claim against a Protected Party, provided the proposed claimant first obtains a finding in the bankruptcy court that its proposed claims are “colorable.”<sup>99</sup>

<sup>99</sup> It should be noted that--as discussed further below--there are, separately in the Plan, exculpations as to a smaller universe of persons--e.g., the Debtor, the Committee and its members, and the Independent Directors.

Dondero and some of the entities under his control appealed<sup>100</sup> the Confirmation Order directly to the Fifth Circuit, arguing, among other issues, that the Plan’s exculpation, release, and injunction provisions, including the Gatekeeper Provision (collectively, the “Protection Provisions”) impermissibly provide certain non-debtor bankruptcy participants with a discharge, purportedly in contravention of the provisions of Bankruptcy Code § 524(e)’s statutory bar on non-debtor discharges. As noted above, the Fifth Circuit, “affirm[ed] the confirmation order in large part” and “reverse[d] only insofar as the plan exculpates certain non-debtors in violation of 11 U.S.C. § 524(e), strik[ing] those few parties from the plan’s exculpation, and affirm[ed] on all remaining grounds.”<sup>101</sup> The Fifth Circuit specifically found the “injunction and gatekeeping provisions [to be] sound” and found that it was only “the exculpation of certain non-debtors” that “exceed[ed] the bankruptcy court’s authority,” agreeing with the bankruptcy court’s conclusions that the Protection Provisions were legal, necessary under the circumstances, and in the best interest of all parties” in part, and only disagreeing to the extent that the exculpation provision improperly extended to certain bankruptcy participants other than Highland, the Committee and its members, and the Independent Directors and “revers[ing] and strik[ing] the few unlawful parts

<sup>100</sup> On appeal, the appellant funds (“Funds”), whom this court found to be “owned and/or controlled” by Dondero despite their purported independence, also asked the Fifth Circuit to vacate this court’s factual finding “because it threatens the Funds’ compliance with federal law and damages their reputations and values” and because “[a]ccording to the Funds, the characterization is unfair, as they are not litigious like Dondero and are completely independent from him.” NexPoint Advisors, L.P. v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P. (In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P.), 48 F.4th at 434. Applying the “clear error” standard of review, the Fifth Circuit “le[ft] the bankruptcy court’s factual finding undisturbed” because “nothing in this record leaves us with a firm and definite conviction that the bankruptcy court made a mistake in finding that the Funds are ‘owned and/or controlled by [Dondero].’” Id. at 434-35.

<sup>101</sup> See supra note 4. The Fifth Circuit replaced its initial opinion with its final opinion a few days after certain appellants had filed a short (four-and-one-half pages) motion for rehearing (the “Motion for Rehearing”) on September 2, 2022. The movants had asked the Fifth Circuit to “narrowly amend the [initial] Opinion in order to confirm the Court’s holding that the impermissibly exculpated parties are similarly struck from the protections of the injunction and gatekeeper provisions of the plan (in other words, that such parties cannot constitute ‘Protected Parties’).” In the final Fifth Circuit opinion, same as the initial Fifth Circuit opinion, the Fifth Circuit stated that, with regard to the Confirmation Order, the panel would “reverse only insofar as the plan exculpates certain non-debtors in violation of 11 U.S.C. § 524(e), strike those few parties from the plan’s exculpation, and affirm on all remaining grounds.” Highland Capital, 48 F.4th at 424. No findings, discussion, or rulings regarding the injunction and gatekeeper provisions that were in the initial Fifth Circuit opinion were disturbed.

of the Plan’s exculpation provision.<sup>102</sup> The Fifth Circuit then remanded to the Bankruptcy Court “for further proceedings in accordance with the opinion.”<sup>103</sup>

In the course of analyzing the Protection Provisions under the Plan, the Fifth Circuit noted that the protection provisions in the January and July 2020 Orders appointing the Independent Directors and Seery as CEO and CRO of Highland were res judicata and that “those orders have the effect of exculpating the Independent Directors and Seery in his executive capacities” such that “[d]espite removal from the exculpation provision in the confirmation order, the Independent Directors’ agents, advisors, and employees, as well as Seery in his official capacities are all exculpated to the extent provided in the January and July 2020 Orders.”<sup>104</sup>

The Reorganized Debtor filed a motion in the bankruptcy court to conform the plan to the Fifth Circuit’s mandate, proposing that only one change was needed to make the Plan compliant with the Fifth Circuit’s ruling: narrow the defined term for “Exculpated Parties” to read as follows:

“Exculpated Parties” means, collectively, (i) the Debtor, (ii) the Independent Directors, (iii) the Committee, and (iv) members of the Committee (in their official capacities).

The Reorganized Debtor proposed that this one simple revision of this defined term removed the exculpations deemed by the Fifth Circuit to violate section 524(e) of the Bankruptcy Code, and that no other changes would be required to conform the Plan and Confirmation Order to the Fifth Circuit’s mandate. Some of the Dondero-related entities objected to the motion to conform, arguing that the Fifth Circuit’s ruling required more surgery on the Plan than simply narrowing the defined term “Exculpated Parties.” On February 27, 2023, this court entered its order granting Highland’s motion to conform the Plan, ordering that one change be made to the Plan – revising the definition of “Exculpated Parties” – and no more.<sup>105</sup> The objecting parties’ direct appeal of this order has been certified to the Fifth Circuit and is one of the numerous currently active appeals by Dondero-related parties pending in the Fifth Circuit.

E. HMIT’s Motion for Leave

HMIT filed its emergency Motion for Leave on March 28, 2023, which, with attachments, as first filed, was 387 pages in length, including an initial proposed complaint (“Initial Proposed Complaint”) and two sworn declarations of Dondero that were attached as “objective evidence” in “support[ ]” of the Motion for Leave,<sup>106</sup> and with it, an application for an emergency setting on the hearing on the Motion to Leave. On April 23, 2023, HMIT filed a pleading entitled a “supplement” to its Motion to Leave (“Supplement”),<sup>107</sup> to which it attached a revised proposed verified complaint (“Proposed Complaint”)<sup>108</sup> as Exhibit 1-A to the Motion for Leave and stated that “[t]he Supplement is not intended to amend or supersede the [Motion for Leave]; rather, it is intended as a supplement to address procedural matters and to bring forth additional facts that further confirm the appropriateness of the derivative action.”<sup>109</sup> The HMIT Motion for Leave was later amended to eliminate the Dondero Declarations and references to the same (but not the underlying allegations that were supposedly supported by the Dondero Declarations).<sup>110</sup>

<sup>110</sup> Bankr. Dkt. Nos. 3815 and 3816. Both of these filings had the Initial Proposed Complaint attached as Exhibit 1 to the Motion for Leave.

As earlier noted, HMIT desires leave to sue the Proposed Defendants regarding the post-confirmation, pre-Effective Date purchase of allowed unsecured claims. The Proposed Defendants would be:

Seery, who was a stranger to Highland until approximately four months following the Petition Date when he was brought in as one of the three Independent Directors, and now serves as the CEO of the Reorganized Debtor and the Trustee of the Claimant Trust (and also was previously Highland’s CRO during the case, then CEO, and, also, an Independent Board Member of Highland’s general partner during the Highland case). Seery is best understood as the man who took Dondero’s place running Highland—per the request of the Committee.

Claims Purchasers, who were strangers to Highland until the end of the bankruptcy case. They are identified as Farallon Capital Management, LLC (“Farallon”); Muck Holdings, LLC (“Muck”), which was a special purpose entity created by Farallon to purchase unsecured claims against Highland; Stonehill Capital Management, LLC (“Stonehill”); and Jessup Holdings, LLC (“Jessup”), which was a special purpose entity created by Stonehill to purchase unsecured claims against Highland (collectively, the “Claims Purchasers”). The Claims Purchasers purchased $240 million face value of already-allowed unsecured claims post-confirmation and pre-Effective Date in the spring of 2021 and another $125 million face value of already-allowed unsecured claims in August 2021. Bankruptcy Rule 3001(e) notices—giving notice of same—were filed on the bankruptcy clerk’s docket regarding these purchases. The claims had previously been held by the creditors known as the Crusader Redeemer Committee, Acis Capital, HarbourVest, and UBS (three of these four creditors formerly served on the Committee during the Highland bankruptcy case).

John Doe Defendants Nos. 1-10, which are described to be “currently unknown individuals or business entities who may be identified in discovery as involved in the wrongful transactions at issue.”

Highland, as a nominal defendant. HMIT added Highland as a nominal defendant in the Revised Proposed Complaint attached to the Supplement.

Claimant Trust, as a nominal defendant. HMIT added the Claimant Trust as a nominal defendant in the Revised Proposed Complaint attached to the Supplement.

The proposed plaintiffs would be:

HMIT, which, again, was the largest equity holder in Highland and held a 99.5% limited partnership interest (specifically, Class B/C limited partnership interests). HMIT is the holder of a Class 10 interest under the Plan, pursuant to which HMIT’s limited partnership interest in Highland was extinguished as of the Effective Date in exchange for a pro rata share of a contingent interest in the Claimant Trust.

Highland, as a nominal party. HMIT wishes to bring its complaint on behalf of itself and derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor.

Claimant Trust, as a nominal party. HMIT wishes to bring its complaint on behalf of itself and derivatively on behalf of the Claimant Trust.

In the Proposed Complaint, HMIT asserts the following six counts: Count I (against Seery) for breach of fiduciary duties; Count II (against the Claims Purchasers and John Doe Defendants) for knowing participation in breach of fiduciary duties; Count III (against all Proposed Defendants) for conspiracy; Count IV (against Muck and Jessup) for equitable disallowance of their claims; Count V (against all Proposed Defendants) for unjust enrichment and constructive trust; and Count VI (against all Proposed Defendants) for declaratory relief.<sup>111</sup> The gist of the Proposed Complaint is as follows. HMIT asserts that something seems amiss regarding the post-confirmation/pre-Effective Date purchase of claims by the Claims Purchasers. Actually, more bluntly, HMIT asserts that “wrongful conduct occurred” and “improper trades” were made.<sup>112</sup> HMIT believes the Claims Purchasers paid around $160 million for the $365 million face amount of claims they purchased. HMIT believes that this amount was too high for any rational claim purchaser (particularly hedge funds who expect high returns) to have paid for the claims—based on Highland’s Disclosure Statement and Plan projections regarding the projected distributions under the Plan to holders of allowed unsecured claims. And, of course, Dondero purports to have concluded from the three phone conversations he had with representatives of one of the Claims Purchasers that they did no due diligence before purchasing the claims. Therefore, HMIT surmises, Seery must have given these Claims Purchasers MNPI regarding Highland that convinced them that it was to their economic advantage to purchase the claims. In particular, HMIT surmises Seery must have shared

---

<sup>111</sup> In the Initial Proposed Complaint, HMIT proposed to bring claims against the various Proposed Defendants in seven counts, including a count for fraud by misrepresentation and material nondisclosure against all Proposed Defendants. In the Proposed Complaint, HMIT abandons its claim for fraud by misrepresentation and material nondisclosure.

MNPI regarding the likely imminent sale of MGM, in which Highland had, directly and indirectly, substantial holdings. As noted earlier, MGM was ultimately purchased by Amazon after a sale process that had been quite publicly discussed in media reports for several months and that was officially announced to the public in late May 2021 (just a few weeks after the Claims Purchasers purchased some of their claims, but a few months before certain of their claims—the UBS claims—were purchased).<sup>113</sup> In summary, while the Proposed Complaint is lengthy and at times hard to follow, it boils down to allegations that: (a) Seery filed (or caused to be filed) deflated, pessimistic, misleading projections regarding the value of the Debtor’s estate in connection with the Plan, (b) then induced very sophisticated unsecured creditors to discount and sell their claims to the likewise very sophisticated Claims Purchasers, (c) which Claims Purchasers are allegedly friendly with Seery, and are now happily approving Seery’s allegedly excessive compensation demands post-Effective Date (resulting in less money in the pot to pay off the creditor body in full, and, thus, a diminished likelihood that HMIT will realize any recovery on its contingent Class 10 interest). HMIT argues that Seery should be required to disgorge his compensation. It appears that HMIT also seeks other damages in the form of equitable disallowance of the Claims Purchasers’ claims and disgorgement of distributions on account of those claims, the imposition of a constructive trust over all disgorged funds, and declaratory relief.

HMIT claims that, in seeking to file the Proposed Complaint, it is seeking to protect the rights and interests of the Reorganized Debtor, the Claimant Trust, and “innocent stakeholders” who were allegedly injured by Seery’s and the Claims Purchasers’ alleged conspiratorial and fraudulent scheme to line Seery's pockets with excessive compensation for his role as Claimant Trustee. In its Motion for Leave, HMIT states that "[t]he attached Adversary Proceeding alleges claims which are substantially more than 'colorable' based upon plausible allegations that the Proposed Defendants, acting in concert, perpetrated a fraud, including a fraud upon innocent stakeholders, as well as breaches of fiduciary duties and knowing participation in (or aiding or abetting) breaches of fiduciary duty."<sup>114</sup>

<sup>113</sup> The MGM-Amazon deal was ultimately consummated in March 2022 for approximately $6.1 billion, net of cash acquired, plus approximately $2.5 billion in debt that Amazon assumed and immediately repaid. Credible testimony from Seery at the June 8 Hearing revealed that Highland and entities it controlled tendered their MGM holdings in connection with the Amazon transaction (they did not sell their holdings while the MGM-Amazon deal was under discussion and/or not made public).

F. Is HMIT Really Dondero by Another Name?

The Proposed Defendants argue that HMIT's Motion for Leave is nothing more than a continuation of the harassing and bad-faith litigation by Dondero and his related entities that the Gatekeeper Provisions were intended to prevent and, thus, this is one of multiple reasons that the Motion for Leave should be denied.

To be clear, HMIT asserts that it is controlled by Mark Patrick ("Patrick"), who has been HMIT's administrator since August 2022. Patrick asserts that he is not influenced or controlled by Dondero, in general, and specifically not in its efforts to pursue the Proposed Claims against Seery and the Claims Purchasers. However, the testimony elicited at the June 8 Hearing—the hearing at which HMIT had the burden of showing the court that its Proposed Claims were "colorable" such that it should be allowed to pursue them through the filing of the Proposed Complaint—paints a different picture. Somewhat tellingly, HMIT chose not to call Patrick—allegedly HMIT's only representative and control person—as a witness in support of its Motion for Leave. Rather, Dondero was HMIT's first witness called in support of its motion, and the first

<sup>114</sup> See Motion for Leave (Bankr. Dkt. No. 3816) ¶ 3. HMIT notes, in a footnote 6, that "Neither this Motion nor the proposed Adversary Complaint seeks to challenge the Court's Orders or the Plan. In addition, neither this Motion nor the proposed Adversary Complaint seeks to redistribute the assets of the Claimant Trust in a manner that would adversely impact innocent creditors. Rather, the proposed Adversary Proceeding seeks to benefit all innocent stakeholders while working within the terms and provisions of the Plan, as well as the Claimant Trust Agreement."

questions on direct from HMIT's counsel were aimed at establishing that Dondero was not behind the filing of the Motion for Leave and the pursuit of the Proposed Claims.<sup>115</sup> Dondero testified that he did not (i) "have any current official position" with HMIT, (ii) "attempt to exercise [control] on the business affairs of [HMIT]," (iii) "have any official legal relationship with [HMIT] where [he] can attempt to exercise either direct or indirect control over [HMIT]," or (iv) "participate in the decision of whether or not to file the proceedings that are currently pending before Judge Jernigan."<sup>116</sup> After HMIT rested, Highland and the Claimant Trust called Patrick as a witness, and he testified that he was the administrator of HMIT, that HMIT does not have any employees, operations, or revenues, and, when asked if HMIT owned any assets, Patrick testified, with not a great deal of certainty, that "it's my understanding it has a contingent beneficiary interest in the Claimants [sic] Trust" and that is the only asset HMIT has.<sup>117</sup> Patrick testified that HMIT did not owe any money to Dondero personally, but acknowledged that in 2015, HMIT had issued a secured promissory note in favor of Dondero's family trust, Dugaboy, in the amount of approximately $62.6 million (the "Dugaboy Note") in exchange for Dugaboy transferring a portion of its limited partner interests in Highland to HMIT; the Dugaboy Note was secured in part by the Highland limited partnership interests purchased from Dugaboy.<sup>118</sup> Patrick admitted that, if HMIT's Class 10 interest has no value, HMIT would have no ability to pay the Dugaboy Note.<sup>119</sup> He further testified that neither he nor any representative of HMIT had ever spoken with any representative of Farallon or Stonehill, that he had no personal knowledge about any quid pro quo, the amount of due diligence Farallon or Stonehill conducted prior to buying their claims, or the terms of

Seery's compensation package (until the terms were disclosed to them in opposition to the Motion for Leave).<sup>120</sup> Patrick admitted that Dugaboy was paying HMIT's attorneys' fees pursuant to a settlement agreement between HMIT and Dugaboy.<sup>121</sup>

On cross-examination by HMIT's counsel, Patrick further testified that HMIT has not filed any litigation, as plaintiff, other than its efforts to be a plaintiff in the Motion for Leave and its action as a petitioner in the Texas Rule 202 proceeding filed earlier in 2023 in the Texas state court.<sup>122</sup> HMIT's counsel argued that the point of this questioning was that "they're just trying to draw Dondero into this and – this vexatious litigant argument, and we're just developing the fact that obviously Hunter Mountain has only filed – attempting to file this action and a Rule 202 proceeding."<sup>123</sup> But, Dondero and HMIT's counsel referred during the June 8 Hearing to the First Rule 202 Petition (where Dondero was the petitioner) and the Second Rule 202 Petition (where HMIT was the petitioner) as "our" Rule 202 petitions, and also to the numerous attempts at getting the discovery (that Dondero had warned Linn was coming) in the collective. For example, in objecting to the admission of Highland's Exhibit 10 – the Texas state court order denying and dismissing the Second Rule 202 Petition – on the basis of relevance, HMIT's counsel referred to the order as "an order denying our second" Rule 202 Petition.<sup>124</sup> And, Dondero testified that his warning to Linn in May 2021 that "discovery was coming" was "my response to I knew they had traded on material nonpublic information" and that "I thought it would be a lot easier to get discovery on a situation like this than it has been for the last two years” and that “we’ve been trying for two years to get . . . discovery.”<sup>125</sup>

Dondero’s use of an entity over which he exerts influence and control to pursue his own agenda in the bankruptcy case is not new. Rather, this has been part of Dondero’s modus operandi since the “nasty breakup” between Dondero and Highland that culminated with Dondero’s ouster in October 2020, whereby Dondero, after not getting his way in the bankruptcy court, continued to lob objections and create obstacles to Highland’s implementation of the Plan through entities he owns or controls. As noted above, the Fifth Circuit specifically upheld this court’s finding in the Confirmation Order that Dondero owned or controlled the various entities that had objected to confirmation of the Plan and appealed the Confirmation Order, where the Dondero-related appellants made similar protestations that they are not owned or controlled by Dondero and asked the Fifth Circuit to vacate this court’s factual finding because, among other reasons, “[a]ccording to the Funds, the characterization is unfair, as they are not litigious like Dondero and are completely independent from him.”<sup>126</sup> Based on the totality of the evidence in this proceeding, the court finds that, contrary to the protestations of HMIT’s counsel and Patrick otherwise, Dondero is the driving force behind HMIT’s Motion for Leave and the Proposed Complaint. The Motion for Leave is just one more attempt by Dondero to press his conspiracy theory that he has pressed for over two years now, unsuccessfully, in Texas state court through Rule 202 proceedings, with the Texas State Securities Board, and with the United States Trustee’s office.

G. Opposition to Motion for Leave: Arguing No Standing and No “Colorable” Claims

Highland, the Claimant Trust, and Seery (together, the “Highland Parties”) filed a joint opposition (“Joint Opposition”) to HMIT’s Motion for Leave on May 11, 2023.<sup>127</sup> The Claims Purchasers filed a separate objection (“Claims Purchasers’ Objection”) to the Motion for Leave on May 11, 2023, as well.<sup>128</sup> In the Joint Opposition, the Highland Parties urge the court to deny HMIT leave to pursue the Proposed Claims because, as a threshold matter, HMIT does not have standing to bring them, directly or derivatively against the Proposed Defendants. They argue, in the alternative, that the Motion for Leave should be denied even if HMIT had standing to pursue the Proposed Claims because none of the Proposed Claims are “colorable” claims as that term is used in the Gatekeeper Provision of the Plan (and Gatekeeper Orders).<sup>129</sup>

The Claims Purchasers likewise argue that HMIT lacks standing to complain about claims trading in the bankruptcy which occurred between sophisticated Claims Purchasers and sophisticated sellers (“Claims Sellers”), represented by skilled bankruptcy and transactional counsel. Moreover, they argue HMIT cannot show that it or the Reorganized Debtor or the Claimant Trust were injured by the claims trading at issue because the Purchased Claims had already been adjudicated as allowed claims in the bankruptcy case—thus, distributions under the Plan on account of the Purchased Claims remain the same, the only difference being who holds the claims. Moreover, even if HMIT could succeed in equitably subordinating the validly transferred allowed claims, HMIT would still be in the same position it is today: the holder of a

Finally, the Proposed Defendants argue that the standard of review for assessing whether the Proposed Claims are “colorable” (as such term is used in the Gatekeeper Provision and Gatekeeping Orders) is a standard that is a higher than the “plausibility” standard applied to Rule 12(b)(6). They argue that HMIT should be required to meet a higher bar with respect to colorability that includes making a prima facie showing that the Proposed Claims have merit (and/or are not without foundation) which requires HMIT to do more than meet the liberal notice-pleading standards.

H. HMIT’s Reply to the Proposed Defendants’ Opposition to the Motion for Leave

In its reply brief (“Reply”), filed by HMIT on May 18, 2023,<sup>130</sup> it argues that it has constitutional standing as an “aggrieved party” to bring the Proposed Claims on behalf of itself.<sup>131</sup> HMIT also argues that it has standing under Delaware Trust law to bring a derivative action on behalf of the Claimant Trust and that it not only has standing to bring the Proposed Claims derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor under the Plan, but it is the best party to bring the claims.<sup>132</sup> Finally, HMIT maintains that the standard of review that the bankruptcy court should apply in assessing the “colorability” of the Proposed Claims is no greater than the standard of review applied to motions to dismiss under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6), which would require the bankruptcy court to look only to the “four corners” of the Proposed Complaint

<sup>132</sup> See, Reply ¶ 23 n.5, where HMIT argues “The nature of this injury, in addition to Seery’s influence over the Claimant Trust, and the lack of prior action by the Claimant Trust to pursue the claims HMIT seeks to pursue derivatively, among other things, demonstrate that HMIT is not only a proper party to assert its derivative claims – but the best party to do so.”

and “not weigh extraneous evidence,”<sup>133</sup> take all allegations as true, and view all allegations and inferences in a light most favorable to HMIT. As discussed in greater length below, HMIT argues that, under this standard, the bankruptcy court should not consider evidence in making its determination as to whether the Proposed Complaint presents “colorable” claims.

I. Litigation within the Litigation: The Pre- June 8 Hearing Skirmishes

Suffice it to say there was significant activity before the Motion for Leave actually was presented at the June 8 hearing. HMIT sought an emergency hearing on its Motion for Leave (wanting a hearing on three days’ notice). When the bankruptcy court denied an emergency hearing, HMIT unsuccessfully pursued an interlocutory appeal of the denial of an emergency hearing to the district court. HMIT then petitioned for a writ of mandamus at the Fifth Circuit regarding the emergency hearing denial, which was denied by the Fifth Circuit on April 12, 2023.

Next, there were multiple pleadings and hearings regarding what kind of hearing the bankruptcy court should or should not hold on the Motion for Leave—particularly focusing on whether or not it would be an evidentiary hearing.<sup>134</sup> The resolution of this issue turned on what standard of review the court should apply in exercising its gatekeeping function and determining the colorability of the Proposed Claims. HMIT (although it had submitted two declarations of Dondero with its original Motion for Leave and approximately 350 pages of total evidentiary support) was adamant that there should be no evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave, arguing that the standard for review should be the plausibility standard under Rule 12(b)(6)

<sup>134</sup> Highland, joined by Seery and the Claims Purchasers, had filed a motion asking the bankruptcy court to set a briefing schedule on the Motion for Leave and to schedule a status conference, indicating that Highland’s proposed timetable for same was opposed by HMIT. HMIT subsequently filed a response unopposed to a briefing schedule and status conference, but, before the status conference, HMIT filed a brief, stating it was opposed to there being any evidence at the ultimate hearing on the HMIT Motion for Leave—arguing the bankruptcy court did not need evidence to exercise its gatekeeping function and determine if HMIT has a “colorable” claim. Rather, the court need only engage in a Rule 12(b)(6)-type plausibility analysis.

motions to dismiss such that “the threshold inquiry is very, very low. Evidence is not allowed. . . . [S]imilar to a 12(b)(6) inquiry, [the court] is limited to the four corners of the principal pleading – in this case, the complaint, or now the revised complaint.”<sup>135</sup> Counsel for the Proposed Defendants argued that the standard of review for colorability here, in the specific context of the court exercising its gatekeeping function under the Plan, is more akin to the standards applied under the Supreme Court’s Barton Doctrine<sup>136</sup> pursuant to which that the bankruptcy court must apply a higher standard than the 12(b)(6) standard, including the consideration of evidence at the hearing on the motion for leave; if the standard of review presents no greater hurdle to the movant than the 12(b)(6) standard applied to every plaintiff in every case, then the gatekeeping provisions mean nothing and do nothing to protect the parties from the harassing, bad-faith litigation they were put in place to prevent.<sup>137</sup> On May 22, 2023, after receipt of post-hearing briefing on the issue, the court entered an order stating that “the court has determined that there may be mixed questions of fact and law implicated by the Motion for Leave” and “[t]herefore, the parties will be permitted to present evidence (including witness testimony) at the June 8, 2023 hearing [on the Motion to Leave] if they so choose.”

Two days later, HMIT filed an emergency motion for expedited discovery or alternatively for continuance of the June 8, 2023 hearing, seeking expedited depositions of corporate

<sup>136</sup> The Barton Doctrine was established in the 19th century Supreme Court case of Barton v. Barbour, 104 U.S. 126 (1881), and states that a party wishing to sue a court-appointed trustee or receiver must first obtain leave of the appointing court by making a prima facie case that the claim it wishes to bring is not without foundation.

<sup>137</sup> See April 24 Transcript, 36:24-37:4 (“[W]e’re exactly today where the Court had predicted in entering [the Confirmation Order], that the costs and distraction of this litigation are substantial. And if all we’re doing is replicating a 12(b)(6) hearing on a motion for leave, we’re actually not doing anything to reduce, as the Court made clear, the burdens, distractions, of litigation.”); 37:5-13 (“The Fifth Circuit likewise cited Barton in its order affirming the confirmation order. representatives of the Claims Purchasers and of Seery and production of documents pursuant to deposition notices and subpoenas duces tecum that HMIT had attached to the motion. On May 26, 2023, this court held yet another status conference. Following the status conference, the court granted in part and denied in part HMIT's request for expedited discovery by ordering only Seery and Dondero to be made available for depositions prior to the June 8 Hearing. The court reached what seemed like appropriate middle ground by allowing the deposition of Seery and allowing the other parties to depose Dondero (for whom sworn declarations had been submitted), but the court was not going to allow any more discovery (i.e., of the Claims Purchasers) at so late an hour. The court was aware that HMIT and Dondero had been seeking discovery relating to the very claims trades that are the subject of the Revised Proposed Complaint from the Claims Purchasers in Texas state court "Rule 202" proceedings for approximately two years, where their attempts were rebuffed.

Approximately 60 hours before the June 8 Hearing, HMIT filed its Witness and Exhibit List disclosing for the first time two potential expert witnesses (along with biographical information and a disclosure regarding the subject matter of their likely testimony). Highland, the Claimant Trust, and Seery filed a joint motion to exclude the expert testimony and documents ("Motion to Exclude"), which the court ultimately granted in a separate order.

During the full-day June 8 Hearing on the Motion to Leave, the court admitted over 50 HMIT exhibits and over 30 Highland/Claimant Trust exhibits. The court heard testimony from HMIT's witnesses Dondero and Seery (as an adverse witness) and from the Highland Parties' witness Mark Patrick, the administrator of HMIT since August 2022 (as an adverse witness). The bankruptcy court allowed HMIT to make a running objection to all evidence—as it continued to argue that evidence was not appropriate.

III. LEGAL ANALYSIS

In determining whether HMIT should be granted leave, pursuant to the Gatekeeper Provision of the Plan and the court's prior Gatekeeper Orders, to pursue the Proposed Claims, the court must address the issue of whether HMIT would have standing to bring the Proposed Claims in the first instance. If so, the next question is whether the Proposed Claims are "colorable." But prior to getting into the weeds on standing and "colorability," some general discussion regarding the topic of claims trading in the bankruptcy world seems appropriate, given that HMIT's Proposed Claims are based, in large part, on allegations of improper claims trading.

A. Claims Trading in the Context of Bankruptcy Cases—Can It Be Tortious or Otherwise Actionable?

As noted, at the crux of HMIT's desired lawsuit is what this court will refer to as "claims trading activity" that occurred shortly after the Plan was confirmed, but before the Plan went effective. HMIT believes that the claims trading activity gave rise to various torts: breach of fiduciary duty on the part of Seery; knowing participation in breach of fiduciary duty by the other Proposed Defendants; and conspiracy by all Defendants. HMIT also believes that the following remedies should be imposed: equitable disallowance of the Purchased Claims; disgorgement of the alleged profits the Claims Purchasers made on their purchases; and disgorgement of all Seery's compensation received since the beginning of his "collusion" with the other Defendants. Without a doubt, the Motion for Leave and Proposed Complaint revolve almost entirely around the claims trading activity.

This begs the question: When (or under what circumstances) might claims trading activity during a bankruptcy case give rise to a cause of action that either the bankruptcy estate or an economic stakeholder in the case might have standing to bring? Here, the claims trading wasn't even "during a bankruptcy case" really—it was post-confirmation and pre-effective date, and it happened to be: (a) after mediation of the claims, (b) after Rule 9019 settlement motions, (c) after objections by Dondero and certain of his family trusts were lodged, (d) after evidentiary hearings, and (e) after orders were ultimately entered allowing the claims (and in most cases, such orders were appealed). The further crux of HMIT's desired lawsuit is that Seery allegedly "wrongfully facilitated and promoted the sale of large unsecured creditor claims to his close business allies and friends" by sharing material non-public information to them regarding the potential value of the claims (i.e., the potential value of the bankruptcy estate), and this is what made the claims trading activity particularly pernicious. The alleged sharing of MNPI allegedly caused the Claims Purchasers to purchase their claims without doing any due diligence and with knowledge that the claims would be worth much more than the Plan's "pessimistic" projections might have suggested, and also allowed Seery to plant friendly allies into the creditor constituency (and on the post-confirmation CTOB) that would "rubber stamp" his generous compensation. This is all referred to as "not arm's-length" and "collusive." Notably, the MNPI mostly pertained to a likely future acquisition of MGM by Amazon (which transaction, indeed, occurred in 2022, after being publicly announced in Spring of 2021); as noted earlier, Highland owned, directly and indirectly, common stock in MGM. Also notably, there had been rumors and media attention regarding a potential sale of MGM for many months.<sup>138</sup> In summary, to be clear, HMIT's desired lawsuit is laced with a theme of "insider trading"—although this isn't a situation of securities trading per se (i.e., the unsecured Purchased Claims were not securities), and, as noted earlier, the Texas State Securities Board has not seen fit to investigate the claims trading activity.

So, preliminarily, is claims trading in bankruptcy sinister per se? The answer is no.

The activity of investing in distressed debt (which frequently occurs during a bankruptcy case—sometimes referred to as “claims trading”) is ubiquitous and, indeed, has been so for a very long time. As noted by one scholar:

The creation of a market in bankruptcy claims is the single most important development in the bankruptcy world since the Bankruptcy Code’s enactment in 1978. [Citations omitted.] Claims trading has revolutionized bankruptcy by making it a much more market-driven process. [Citations omitted.] . . . The development of a robust market for all types of claims against debtors has changed the cast of characters involved in bankruptcies. In addition to long-standing relational creditors, like trade creditors or a single senior secured bank or bank group, bankruptcy cases now involve professional distressed debt investors, whose interests and behavior are often quite different than traditional relational counterparty creditors.

As a pure policy matter, some practitioners have bemoaned this claims trading phenomenon, suggesting that “distressed debt traders may sacrifice the long-term viability of a debtor for the ability to realize substantial and quick returns on their investments.”<sup>140</sup> Others suggest that claims trading in bankruptcy is beneficial, in that it allows creditors of a debtor an early exit from a potentially long bankruptcy case, enabling them to save expense and administrative hassles, realize immediate liquidity on their claims (albeit discounted), and may

So, what are the “rules of the road” here? What does the Bankruptcy Code dictate regarding claims trading? The answer is nothing. The Bankruptcy Code itself has no provisions whatsoever regarding claims trading. The only thing resembling any regulation of claims trading during a bankruptcy case is found at Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 3001(e)—the current version of which went into effect in 1991—and it imposes extremely light regulation—if it could even be called that. This rule requires, in pertinent part (at subsection (2)), that “[i]f a claim other than one based on a publicly traded note, bond, or debenture” is traded during the case after a proof of claim is filed, notice/evidence of that trade must be filed with the bankruptcy clerk by the transferee. The transferor shall then be notified and given 21 days to object. If there is an objection, the bankruptcy court will hold a hearing regarding whether a transfer, in fact, took place. If there is no objection, nothing further needs to happen, and the transferee will be considered substituted for the transferor.

There are several things noteworthy about Rule 3001(e)(2). First, the only party given the opportunity to object is the transferor of the claim (presumably, in the situation of a dispute regarding whether there was truly an agreement regarding the transfer of the claim). Second, there is no need for a bankruptcy court order approving the transfer (except in the event of an objection by the alleged transferor). Third, the economic consideration paid need not be disclosed to the court or anyone. Fourth, there is no requirement or definition of timeliness. Finally, it explicitly does not apply with regard to publicly traded debt. This, alone, means that many claims trades are not even reported in a bankruptcy case. But it is not just publicly traded debt that will not be reflected with a Rule 3001(e) filing. For example, bank debt, in modern times, is often syndicated (i.e., fragmented into many beneficial holders of portions of the debt) and only the administrative agent for the syndicate (or the “lead bank”) will file a proof of claim in the bankruptcy—thus, as the syndicated interests (participations) change hands, and they frequently do, there typically will not be a Rule 3001(e) notice filed.<sup>143</sup> To be clear here, this syndication-of-bank-debt fact, along with the fact that there are financial products whereby bank debt might be carved up into economic interests separate and apart from legal title to the loan, means there are many situations in which trading of claims during a bankruptcy case is not necessarily transparent or, for that matter, policed by the bankruptcy court. This is the world of modern bankruptcy. Most of the claims trading that gets reported through a Rule 3001(e) notice is the trading of small vendor claims. And this is all regarded as private sale transactions for the most part.<sup>144</sup>

Suffice it to say that there is not a wealth of case law dealing with claims trading in a bankruptcy context. Perhaps this is not surprising, since it is not prohibited and is mostly a matter of private contract between buyer and seller. The case law that does exist seems to arise in situations of perceived bad faith of a purchaser—for example, when there was an attempt to control voting and/or ultimate control of the debtor through the plan process (not always problematic, but there are outlier cases where this was found to cross a line and result in consequences such as disallowing votes on a plan or even equitable subordination of a claim).<sup>145</sup> Another type of case that has generated case law is where the purchaser of claims occupied a fiduciary status with the debtor.<sup>146</sup> Still another type of case that has generated case law is where there is an attempt to cleanse claims that might have risks because of a seller's malfeasance, by trading the claim to a new claim holder.<sup>147</sup>

<sup>144</sup> Note that Bankruptcy Rule 3001(e) was very different before 1991. Between 1983-1991, the rule required that parties transferring claims inform the court that a transfer of claims was taking place and also disclose the consideration paid for the transferred claims. A hearing would take place prior to the execution of a trade. Judicial involvement was required and resulted in judicial scrutiny of transactions—something that simply does not exist today.

The following is a potpourri of the more notable cases that have addressed claims trading in different contexts. Most of them imposed no adverse consequences on claims traders: In re Kreisler, 546 F.3d 863, 864 (7th Cir. 2008) (where a corporation named Garlin, that was owned by the individual chapter 7 debtors' sister and close friend, purchased a $900,000 bank claim for $16,500, and there was no disclosure of Garlin's connections to debtors and no Rule 3001(e)(2) notice was filed, the Seventh Circuit reversed the bankruptcy court's invocation of the doctrine of equitable subordination to the claim, stating: "Equitable subordination is generally appropriate only if a creditor is guilty of misconduct that causes injury to the interests of other creditors;" the Seventh Circuit further stated that it could "put to one side whether the court's finding of inequitable conduct was correct" because even if there was misconduct, it did not harm the other creditors, who were in the same position whether the original creditor or Garlin happened to own the claim; the Seventh Circuit did note that Garlin's decision to purchase the original bank

Suffice it to say that the courts have, more often than not, been unwilling to impose legal consequences, for an actor's involvement with claims trading. At most, in outlier-type situations during a case, courts have taken steps to disallow claims for voting purposes or to subordinate claims to other unsecured creditors for distribution purposes.<sup>148</sup> But the case at bar does not present facts that are typical of any of the situations in reported cases.

For one thing, unlike in the reported cases this court has located, there seems to have been complete symmetry of sophistication among the claim sellers and claim purchasers here—and complete symmetry with HMIT for that matter. All persons involved are highly sophisticated financial institutions, hedge funds, or private equity funds. No one was a “mom-and-pop” type business or vendor that might be vulnerable to chicanery. The claims ranged from being worth $10's of millions of dollars to $100's of millions of dollars in face value. And, of course, the sellers/transfersors of the claims have never shown up, subsequent to the claims trading

<sup>148</sup> Note that, while some cases suggest that outright disallowance of an unsecured claim, in the case of “inequitable conduct” might be permitted (not merely equitable subordination to unsecured creditors)—usually citing to Pepper v. Litton, 308 U.S. 295 (1939)—the Fifth Circuit has suggested otherwise. In re Mobile Steel Co., Inc., 563 F.2d 692, 699-700 (5th Cir. 1977) (cleaned up) (noting that “equitable considerations can justify only the subordination of claims, not their disallowance” and also noting that “three conditions must be satisfied before exercise of the power of equitable subordination is appropriate[:]: (i) The claimant must have engaged in some type of inequitable conduct[:]; (ii) The misconduct must have resulted in injury to the creditors of the bankrupt or conferred an unfair advantage on the claimant[:]; and] (iii) Equitable subordination of the claim must not be inconsistent with the provisions of the Bankruptcy Act.” In Mobile Steel, the Fifth Circuit held that the bankruptcy judge exceeded the bounds of his equitable jurisdiction by disallowing a group of claims and also reversed the subordination of certain claims, on the grounds that the bankruptcy court had made clearly erroneous findings regarding alleged inequitable conduct and other necessary facts. Contrast In re Lothian Oil Inc., 650 F.3d 539 (5th Cir. 2011) (involving the question of whether a bankruptcy court may recharacterize a claim as equity rather than debt; the court held yes, but it has nothing to do with inequitable conduct per se; rather section 502(b)'s language that a claim should be allowed unless it is “unenforceable against the debtor and property of the debtor, under any agreement or applicable law....” is the relevant authority; unlike equitable subordination, recharacterization is about looking at the true substance of a transaction not the conduct of a party (if it looks like a duck and quacks like a duck, it's a duck—i.e., equity); the court indicated that section 105 is not a basis to recharacterize debt as equity; it's a matter of looking at state law to determine if there is any basis and looking at the nature of the underlying transaction—as either a lending arrangement or equity infusion.

transactions, to complain about anything. Everyone involved here is, essentially, a behemoth and there is literally no sign of innocent creditors getting harmed. Second, the case at bar is unique in that the claims traded here had all been allowed after objections, mediation, and Rule 9019 settlements during the bankruptcy case. Thus, the amounts that would be paid on them were “locked in,” so to speak. There was no risk to a hypothetical claims-purchaser of disallowance, offset, or any “claw-back” litigation (or—one might have reasonably assumed—any type of litigation). Third, the terms for distributions on unsecured claims had been established in a confirmed plan (although the claims were purchased before the effective date of the Plan). Thus, there was a degree of certainty regarding return on investment for the Claims Purchasers here that was much higher than if the claims had been purchased early, during, or mid-way through the case.<sup>149</sup> This was post-confirmation, pre-effective date claims purchasing. Interestingly, all three of these facts might suggest that little due diligence would be undertaken by any hypothetical purchaser. The rules of the road had been set. The court makes this observation because HMIT has suggested there is something highly suspicious about the fact that Farallon allegedly told Dondero that it did no due diligence before purchasing its claims (leading him to conclude that the Claims Purchasers must have purchased their claims based on receiving MNPI from Seery). Not only has there been no colorable evidence suggesting that insider information was shared, but the lack of due diligence in this context does not reasonably seem suspicious. The claims purchases

Some claims purchasers buy before the bankruptcy petition is filed, some at the beginning of the case, and some towards the end. For example, there are investors who look to purchase at low prices either when a business is failing or early in the bankruptcy and ride through the case until payouts are fairly certain. [Citations omitted.] These investors might be hoping to buy at 30 cents on the dollar and get a payout at 70 cents on the dollar. Perhaps if they waited another six months, the payout would be 74 cents on the dollar, but the additional 4 cents on the dollar for six months might not be a worthwhile return for the time value of the investment. Other investors might not want to assume the risk that exists in the early days of a case when the fate of the debtor is much less certain, but they would gladly purchase at 70 cents on the dollar at the end of the case to get a payout of 74 cents on the dollar six months later.

were almost like passive investments, at this point—there was no risk of a claim objection and there was a confirmed plan, with a lengthy disclosure statement that described not only plan payment terms and projections, but essentially anything that any investor might want to know.

To reiterate, here, HMIT seeks leave to assert the following causes of action:

- I. Breach of Fiduciary Duties (Seery)
- II. Knowing Participation in Breach of Fiduciary Duties (Claims Purchasers)
- III. Conspiracy (all Proposed Defendants)
- IV. Equitable Disallowance (Claims Purchasers)
- V. Unjust Enrichment and Constructive Trust (all Proposed Defendants)
- VI. Declaratory Judgment (all Proposed Defendants)

The court struggles to fathom how any of these proposed causes of action or remedies can be applied in the context of: (a) post-confirmation claims trading; (b) where the claims have all been litigated and allowed.

In reflecting on the case law and various Bankruptcy Code provisions, the court can fathom the following hypotheticals in which claims trading during a bankruptcy case might be somehow actionable:

Hypothetical #1: The most obvious situation would be if a purchaser of a claim files a Rule 3001(e) Notice, and the seller/transferor then files an objection thereto. There would then be a contested hearing between purchaser and seller regarding the validity of the transfer with the bankruptcy court issuing an appropriate order after the hearing on the objection. As noted, there was no objection to the Rule 3001(e) notices here.

Hypothetical #2: Alternatively, there could be a breach of contract suit between purchaser and seller if one thinks the other breached the purchase-sale agreement somehow. Perhaps torts might also be alleged in such litigation. As noted, there is no dispute between purchasers and sellers here.

Hypothetical #3: If there is believed to be fraud in connection with a plan, a party in interest might, pursuant to section 1144 of the Bankruptcy Code, move for revocation of the plan “at any time before 180 days after the date of entry of the order for confirmation” and the court “may revoke such order if and only if such order was procured by fraud.” As noted, here HMIT has suggested that the “pessimistic” plan projections may have been fraudulent or misrepresentations somehow. The time elapsed long ago to seek revocation of the Plan.

Hypothetical #4: As discussed above, in rare situations (bad faith), during a Chapter 11 case, before a plan is confirmed, a claims purchaser’s claim might not be allowed for voting purposes. See Sections 1126(e) of the Bankruptcy Code (“the court may designate any entity whose acceptance or rejection of such plan was not in good faith”). Obviously, in this case, this is not applicable—the claims were purchased post-confirmation.

Hypothetical #5: As discussed above, in rare situations (inequitable conduct), a court might equitably subordinate claims to other claims. See Section 510(c) of the Bankruptcy Code. But here, HMIT is seeking either: (a) equitable subordination of the claims of the Claims Purchaser to HMIT’s Class 10 former equity interest (in contravention of the explicit terms of section 510(c)) or, (b) equitable disallowance of the claims of the Claims Purchasers (in contravention of Mobile Steel).

Hypothetical #6: Bankruptcy Code section 502(b)(1) and the Fifth Circuit’s Lothian Oil case may permit “recharacterization” of a claim from debt to equity in certain circumstances, but not in circumstances like the ones in this case. Here, the claims have already been adjudicated and allowed (some after mediation, and all after Rule 9019 settlement orders). The only way to reconsider a claim in a bankruptcy case that has already been allowed is through Bankruptcy Code section 502(j) (“A claim that has been allowed or disallowed may be reconsidered for cause. . . according to the equities of the case.”). The problem here is that Bankruptcy Rule 9024 provides that a motion for “reconsideration of an order allowing or disallowing a claim against the estate entered without a contest is not subject to the one year limitation prescribed in Rule 60(c)” (emphasis added). Here there was most definitely “a contest” with regard to all of these purchased claims. Thus, it would appear that any effort to have a court reconsider these claims pursuant to section 502(j) is untimely—as it has been well beyond a year since they were allowed.

Hypothetical #7: If a party believes “insider trading” occurred there are governmental agencies that investigate and police that. Here, the purchased claims (which were not based on bonds or certificated equity interests) would not be securities so as to fall under the SEC’s purview. Moreover, there was evidence that HMIT or Dondero-Related entities requested that the Texas State Securities Board investigate the claims trading and the board did not find a basis to pursue anyone for wrongdoing.

Hypothetical #8: The United States Trustee can investigate wrongdoing by a debtor or unsecured creditors committee. While the United States Trustee would naturally have concerns about members of an unsecured creditors committee (or an officer of a debtor-in-possession) adhering to fiduciary duties and not putting their own interests above those of the estate, here, there are a couple of points that seem noteworthy. One, the claims trading activity was post-confirmation so—while certain of the claim-sellers may have still been on the unsecured creditors committee, as the effective date of the plan had not yet occurred—the circumstances are very different than if this had all happened during the early, contentious stages of the case. It seems inconceivable that there was somehow a disparity of information that might be troubling—the Plan had been confirmed and it was available for the world to see. The whole notion of “insider information” (just after confirmation here) feels a bit off-point. Bankruptcy practitioners and judges sometimes call bankruptcy a fishbowl or use the “open kimono” metaphor for good reason. It is generally a very open process. And information-sharing on the part of a debtor-in-possession or unsecured creditors committee is intended to be robust. See, e.g., Bankruptcy Code sections 521 and 1102(b)(3). In a way, HMIT here seems to be complaining about this very situation that the Code and Rules have designed.

In summary, claims trading is a highly unregulated activity in the bankruptcy world.

HMIT is attempting to pursue causes of action here that, to this court’s knowledge, have never been allowed in a context like this.

B. Back to Standing—Would HMIT Have Standing to Bring the Proposed Claims?

The Proposed Defendants argue that HMIT lacks standing to bring the Proposed Claims, either: (a) derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trust, or (b) directly on behalf of itself. Thus, they argue that this is one reason that the Motion for Leave should be denied.

In making their specific standing arguments, the parties analyze things slightly differently:

The Claims Purchasers focus primarily on HMIT’s lack of constitutional standing but also argue that HMIT does not have prudential standing under Delaware trust law to bring the Proposed Claims either individually or derivatively. Why do they mention Delaware trust law? Because the Claimant Trust is a Delaware statutory trust governed by the Delaware Statutory Trust Act, 12 Del. C. §§ 3801–29.<sup>150</sup>

The Highland Parties’ standing arguments focus almost entirely on HMIT’s lack of prudential standing under Delaware trust law to bring the Proposed Claims.

HMIT argues that the Proposed Defendants “play fast and loose with standing arguments” and that HMIT has constitutional standing as a “party aggrieved”<sup>151</sup> to bring the Proposed Claims on behalf of itself. HMIT also argues that it has standing under Delaware trust law to bring a derivative action on behalf of the Claimant Trust, and that it not only has standing to bring the Proposed Claims derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor under the Plan, but it is the best party to do so.

1. The Different Types of Standing: Constitutional Versus Prudential

The parties are addressing two concepts of standing that can sometimes be confused and misapplied by both attorneys and judges: constitutional Article III standing, which implicates federal court subject matter jurisdiction,<sup>152</sup> and the narrower standing concept of prudential standing, which does not implicate subject matter jurisdiction but nevertheless might prevent a party from having capacity to sue, pursuant to limitations set by courts, statutes or other law.

Article III constitutional standing works as follows: a plaintiff, as the party invoking federal jurisdiction, bears the burden of establishing three elements: (1) that he or she suffered an injury in fact that is concrete, particularized, and actual or imminent—not conjectural or hypothetical, (2) that there is a causal connection between the injury and the conduct complained of, and (3) it must be likely, not speculative, that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision.<sup>153</sup> “If the plaintiff does not claim to have suffered an injury that the defendant caused and the court can remedy, there is no case or controversy for the federal court to resolve.”<sup>154</sup> These elements ensure that a plaintiff has “such a personal stake in the outcome of the controversy’ as to warrant his invocation of federal-court jurisdiction and to justify exercise of the court’s remedial powers on his behalf.”<sup>155</sup>

<sup>152</sup> Article III, Section 2 of the U.S. Constitution gives federal courts jurisdiction over enumerated cases and controversies.

<sup>153</sup> See Thole v. U.S. Bank, N.A., 140 S.Ct. 1615, 1618 (2020)(citing the Supreme Court’s seminal case on the tripartite test for Article III constitutional standing, Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560-61 (1992), where the Supreme Court stated that “the irreducible constitutional minimum of standing contains [the] three elements”); see also Spokeo, 578 U.S. at 338; Abraugh v. Altimus, 26 F.4th 298, 302 (5th Cir. 2022) (citing id.).

Apart from this minimal constitutional mandate, courts and statutes have set other limits on the class of persons who may seek judicial remedies—and this is the concept of prudential standing. In its recent opinion in Abraugh v. Altimus,<sup>156</sup> the Fifth Circuit set forth a detailed analysis of the two types of “standing,” noting that the term “standing” is often “misused” in our legal system, which has led to confusion for both attorneys and judges.<sup>157</sup> The constitutional standing that is necessary for a court to exercise subject matter jurisdiction is broader than prudential standing and is only the first hurdle a party must clear before pursuing a claim in federal court.

The Fifth Circuit explained that in addition to Article III constitutional standing, “courts have occasionally articulated other ‘standing’ requirements that plaintiffs must satisfy under certain conditions, beyond those imposed by Article III,”<sup>158</sup> such as the “standing” requirement that might be imposed by a statute or by jurisprudence. The Abraugh case was a perfect example of the latter.

Abraugh involved the civil rights statutes that provide, among other things, that “a party must have standing under the state wrongful death or survival statutes to bring [a § 1983 cause of action]” and noted that these statutes impose additional “standing” requirements that are a matter of prudential standing, not constitutional standing.<sup>159</sup> In Abraugh, the Fifth Circuit reversed and remanded a district court’s dismissal of a § 1983 civil rights cause of action—noting that the district court had stated that it was dismissing based on a “lack of subject matter jurisdiction” because the plaintiff in that action lacked standing.<sup>160</sup> The plaintiff was the mother of a prisoner who died by suicide while in custody who brought a § 1983 action against Louisiana correctional officers and officials. After finding that the plaintiff/mother lacked standing under Louisiana’s wrongful death and survival statutes (because there had been a surviving child and wife of the prisoner who were the proper parties with capacity to sue), the district court held that it was dismissing for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. The Fifth Circuit pointed out that the plaintiff/mother may have lacked standing under Louisiana’s wrongful death and survival statutes to bring the claim under § 1983, but that type of standing was matter of prudential standing, and the plaintiff/mother actually did have Article III constitutional standing (“a constitutionally cognizable interest in the life of her son”).<sup>161</sup> Thus, the district court’s error was not in finding that the plaintiff/mother lacked prudential standing but in improperly conflating the two standing concepts when it held that it had lacked subject matter jurisdiction to consider any of the plaintiff’s/mother’s amended complaints.<sup>162</sup> The Fifth Circuit noted specifically that<sup>163</sup> prudential standing does not present a jurisdictional question, but “a merits question: who, according to the governing substantive law, is entitled to enforce the right?” As the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure make clear, “an action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest.” FED. R. CIV. P. 17(a)(1). And a violation of this rule is a failure of “prudential” standing. “Not one of our precedents holds that the inquiry is jurisdictional.” It goes only to the validity of the cause of action. And “the absence of a valid . . . cause of action does not implicate subject-matter jurisdiction.”

Somewhat relevant to this prudential standing discussion is the fact that, in this bankruptcy case, there have been dozens of appeals of bankruptcy court orders by Dondero and Dondero-related entities. In connection therewith, both the district court and the Fifth Circuit, in evaluating the appellate standing of the appellants, have taken pains to distinguish between the concepts of:

<sup>162</sup> Id. at 301, 303-304. The Fifth Circuit opined that “the district court did not err in describing [the mother’s] inability to sue under Louisiana law as a defect of ‘standing[, b]ut it is a defect of prudential standing, not Article III standing” thus technically not implicating the federal court’s subject matter jurisdiction. Id. at 303.

(a) traditional, constitutional standing, and (b) a type of prudential standing known as the “person aggrieved” test, which is applied in the Fifth Circuit in determining whether a party has standing to appeal a bankruptcy court order—which it describes as a narrower and “more exacting” standard than constitutional standing. As explained in a Fifth Circuit opinion addressing the standing of a Dondero-related entity called NexPoint to appeal bankruptcy court orders allowing professional fees, the “person aggrieved” standard that is typically applied to ascertain bankruptcy appellate standing originated in a statute in the Bankruptcy Act. The Fifth Circuit continued to apply it after Congress removed the provision when it enacted the Bankruptcy Code in 1978.<sup>164</sup> Because it is narrower and “more exacting” than the test for Article III constitutional standing, it involves application of prudential standing considerations.<sup>165</sup> The Fifth Circuit describes the “person aggrieved” test for bankruptcy appellant standing as requiring that an appellant show that it was “directly and adversely affected pecuniarily by the order of the bankruptcy court,” requiring “a higher causal nexus between act and injury than traditional standing . . . that best deals with the unique posture of bankruptcy actions.”<sup>166</sup> In affirming the district court’s dismissal of NexPoint’s appeal of the bankruptcy court’s fee orders, due to NexPoint’s lack of prudential standing under the “person aggrieved” test, the court rejected NexPoint’s argument that it had standing to appeal

because “it meets traditional Article III standing requirements [and that the more exacting] prudential standing considerations such as the ‘person aggrieved’ standard” did not survive the Supreme Court’s 2014 Lexmark<sup>167</sup> opinion,<sup>168</sup> which addressed standing issues in the context of false advertising claims under the Lanham Act and reminded that courts may not “limit a cause of action that Congress has created merely because ‘prudence’ dictates.”<sup>169</sup> The Fifth Circuit held that the Supreme Court’s reminder in Lexmark did not nullify the “person aggrieved” test for prudential standing in bankruptcy appeals, citing its own decision in Superior MRI Services Inc. v. Alliance Healthcare Services, Inc.<sup>170</sup> (rendered a year after Lexmark was decided), in which it held that Lexmark applied only to the circumstances of that case, “rather than broadly modifying—or undermining—all prudential standing concerns, such as the one animating the ‘person aggrieved’ standard in bankruptcy appeals.”<sup>171</sup>

Similarly, in yet another appeal in this bankruptcy case involving three Dondero-related entities as appellants (NexPoint, Dugaboy, and HCMFA)—this one an appeal of a bankruptcy court order authorizing the creation of an indemnity subtrust and entry into an indemnity trust agreement—the district court noted the parties’ confusion about the standing issue, as exemplified in the parties’ reference to constitutional standing when they were actually arguing that they had prudential standing under the “person aggrieved” test: “Although the parties frame this issue as one of constitutional standing . . . they cite case law and present arguments about the prudential standing requirement embodied in the ‘person aggrieved’ test.”<sup>172</sup> The district court noted that it had an “independent obligation to consider constitutional standing before reaching its prudential aspects.”<sup>173</sup> The district court dismissed the appeal as to Dugaboy and HCMFA for lack of standing but, upon concluding that NexPoint did have standing, dismissed the appeal as to it on the merits. The Fifth Circuit affirmed.<sup>174</sup> Interestingly, the court noted that, while the parties did not contest the district court’s determination that NexPoint had standing to pursue the appeal, it “may consider prudential standing issues sua sponte.”<sup>175</sup> In doing so, the Fifth Circuit recognized the distinction between constitutional standing and the prudential “person aggrieved” test applied to bankruptcy appeals, which “is, of necessity, quite limited” and “an even more exacting standard than traditional constitutional standing,” as it requires an appellant to show that it is “directly, adversely, and financially impacted by a bankruptcy order.”<sup>176</sup>

In summary, in analyzing whether HMIT would have standing to bring the Proposed Claims, this court must first determine whether HMIT would have constitutional standing under Article III (which is a subject matter jurisdiction hurdle) and, assuming it does, then additionally address whether HMIT would also have prudential standing (i.e., capacity to sue) pursuant to any applicable statutes (e.g., Delaware statutes), jurisprudence, or other substantive law that might limit who may sue. Notwithstanding HMIT’s argument that it has standing under the “person aggrieved” test<sup>177</sup>—which, as discussed above, is a matter of prudential standing—this is applied only in the context of bankruptcy appellate matters.<sup>178</sup> As noted in its most recent opinion discussing standing in an appeal from the Highland bankruptcy case, the Fifth Circuit reiterated that the “person aggrieved” test is a test for bankruptcy appellate standing, which is narrower than a party in interest’s right to be heard in bankruptcy cases in general.<sup>179</sup> The court rejected an argument that Bankruptcy Code § 1109, which provides that “[a] party in interest . . . may raise and may appear and be heard on any issue in a case under this chapter” confers appellate standing, noting that “one’s standing to appear and be heard before the bankruptcy court [is] a concept distinct from standing to appeal the merits of a decision” and that the “person aggrieved” test for bankruptcy appellate standing is narrower than the test for determining one’s standing to appear and be heard in a bankruptcy proceeding.<sup>180</sup>

Thus, the court will now analyze whether HMIT would, at a minimum, have constitutional standing to bring the Proposed Claims.

2. HMIT Would Lack Article III Constitutional Standing to Bring the Proposed Claims.

As noted above, the Supreme Court and the Fifth Circuit have made clear that constitutional standing is necessary for a court to exercise subject matter jurisdiction. It is only the first hurdle a party must clear before pursuing a claim in federal court. HMIT, as plaintiff, would bear the

<sup>177</sup> HMIT insists that it has constitutional standing to bring claims on its individual behalf “as an aggrieved party.” See Reply, ¶ 7.

<sup>178</sup> HMIT’s argument in this matter that it has constitutional standing because it is a “party aggrieved” incorrectly conflates the prudential bankruptcy appellate “person aggrieved” test with the broader test that is applied to constitutional standing. The court is not being critical of this mistake. As noted at supra note 149, the Fifth Circuit in Abraugh pointed out that courts and attorneys alike have created confusion by misusing the term “standing” when they equate a lack of “standing,” in all instances, with a lack of subject matter jurisdiction, even when the party is found to lack only prudential standing. Thus, HMIT is not alone in its confusion over the two different concepts of standing.

burden of establishing: (1) that it suffered an injury in fact that is concrete, particularized, and actual or imminent—not conjectural or hypothetical, (2) that there is a causal connection between the injury and the conduct complained of, and (3) it must be likely, not speculative, that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision.<sup>181</sup>

Concrete and Particularized; Actual or Imminent. As the Supreme Court made clear in the Lujan case, the injury in fact element requires a showing that the injury was “concrete and particularized” and “actual or imminent, not conjectural or hypothetical.”<sup>182</sup> The Supreme Court in the Spokeo case expounded on the “concrete and particularized” requirements of the “injury in fact” element. Particularization requires a showing that the injury “must affect the plaintiff in a personal and individual way,” but while particularization is necessary, it alone is “not sufficient,” because an injury in fact must also be “concrete.”<sup>183</sup> And, concreteness is “quite different from particularization.”<sup>184</sup> A “concrete” injury must be “real,” and “not abstract,” though it does not mean that the injury must be “tangible,” as the injury can be intangible and nevertheless be concrete.<sup>185</sup> In addition to the concreteness and particularization requirements, an injury in fact must be “actual or imminent” such that “allegations of injury that is merely conjectural or hypothetical do not suffice to confer standing.”<sup>186</sup> “Although imminence is concededly a somewhat elastic concept, it cannot be stretched beyond its purpose, which is to ensure that the alleged injury is not too speculative for Article III purposes—that the injury is certainly impending”; “allegations of possible future injury are not sufficient.”<sup>187</sup>

Traceability - Causal Connection. As to the second element—that the injury was caused by the defendant—the Supreme Court in Lujan further described it as requiring a showing that “the injury has to be fairly traceable to the challenged action of the defendant.”<sup>188</sup> The “fairly traceable” test requires an examination of “the causal connection between the assertedly unlawful conduct and the alleged injury.”<sup>189</sup>

Redressability. The third element—redressability—requires the court to examine the connection “between the alleged injury and the judicial relief requested.”<sup>190</sup> “Relief that does not remedy the injury suffered cannot bootstrap a plaintiff into federal court.”<sup>191</sup> “[A] court must determine that there is an available remedy which will have a ‘substantial probability’ of redressing the plaintiff’s injury.”<sup>192</sup>

The Claims Purchasers argue that HMIT lacks constitutional standing to pursue the claims asserted in the Proposed Complaint because: (i) neither HMIT nor the Bankruptcy Estate was injured by the Claim Purchasers’ acquisition of the claims; and (ii) the Proposed Complaint lacks a theory of cognizable damages to the Reorganized Debtor, the Claimant Trust, and/or the beneficiaries of the Claimant Trust.<sup>193</sup>

<sup>193</sup> As noted earlier, certain of the Proposed Defendants—the Highland Parties—do not focus on HMIT’s lack of constitutional standing to pursue the Proposed Claims against them, but on its lack of prudential standing under

The court agrees with the Claims Purchasers' argument here. What is HMIT's concrete and particularized injury—that is “real” and is not abstract? That is not conjectural or hypothetical? That is actual or imminent?

Recall that, under the Plan, HMIT holds a Class 10 contingent interest in the Claimant Trust that only realizes value if all creditors are paid in full with interest. HMIT alleges the following injury: it has suffered a devaluation of its unvested Contingent Claimant Trust Interest by virtue of the alleged over-compensation of Seery as the Claimant Trustee—Seery's alleged over-compensation depletes the assets in the Claimant Trust available for distribution to creditors under the Plan, such that there is less likely a chance that HMIT ultimately receives any distributions on account of its Class 10 Contingent Claimant Trust Interest.<sup>194</sup> Yet, HMIT testified, through both witnesses Dondero and Patrick, that it had no personal knowledge of what Seery's actual compensation is under the CTA at the time HMIT filed its Motion for Leave. It was clear that HMIT's allegations regarding Seery's “excessive” compensation were based entirely on Dondero's pure speculation. In reality, Seery's base salary is exactly what the bankruptcy court approved during the bankruptcy case by a court order (after negotiations between Seery and the Committee). The CTA now further governs his compensation. The CTA, which was publicly filed in advance of the Plan confirmation hearing and approved by this court as part of the Plan applicable law. Because constitutional standing is a matter of subject matter jurisdiction, the court has an independent duty to determine whether HMIT would have constitutional standing to pursue the Proposed Claims in federal court. The issue cannot be forfeited or waived by a party. See Abraugh v. Y & H Corp., 546 U.S. 500, 514 (2006) (“[S]ubject-matter jurisdiction, because it involves a court's power to hear a case, can never be forfeited or waived. <sup>194</sup> At the June 8 Hearing, HMIT's counsel was unable to identify any other injury HMIT has alleged to have suffered. HMIT's counsel acknowledged that claims trades, in and of themselves, would not “involve injury to the Reorganized Debtor and to the Claimant Trust” and that claims trades are “normally outside the purview of the bankruptcy court” but that “[h]ere, we have alleged . . . injury [that] takes the form of unearned excessive fees that Mr. Seery has garnered as a result of his relationship and arrangements, as we have alleged, with the Claims Purchasers.” June 8 Hearing Transcript, 67:16-68:8. HMIT can only point to Seery's excess compensation as injury.

(which has been affirmed by the Fifth Circuit), specifically provides that Seery’s post-Effective Date compensation would include a “Base Salary” (again, same as during the bankruptcy case), a “success fee,” and “severance.”<sup>195</sup> The CTA discussed the role of the Committee and then the CTOB in setting the success fee and severance and the like. A fully executed copy of the CTA was admitted into evidence at the June 8 Hearing. HMIT is essentially arguing that its injury (i.e., diminished likelihood of realizing value on its Contingent Claimant Trust Interest) stems from a court-sanctioned and creditor-approved process for approving compensation to Seery. Moreover, HMIT has failed to plead facts sufficient to show that, even if Seery received excessive compensation and that compensation is ordered to be returned, HMIT’s Contingent Claimant Trust Interest will ever vest. The district court and the Fifth Circuit in various appeals by Dugaboy, another Dondero-related entity that, similar to HMIT, was a holder of a limited partnership interest in Highland whose interests were terminated as of the Effective Date of the Plan in exchange for a Contingent Claimant Trust Interest, have repeatedly rejected Dugaboy’s claims to have standing based on the speculative nature of its alleged injuries as a contingent beneficiary of the Claimant Trust under the Plan. For example, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the district court’s dismissal of an appeal by Dugaboy of the bankruptcy court’s order authorizing the creation of an indemnity subtrust, wherein Judge Fitzwater found that, in addition to lacking prudential standing under the

<sup>195</sup> The Disclosure Statement that was approved by this court, after notice and a hearing, on November 24, 2020, provided that “The salient terms of each Trustee’s employment, including such Trustee’s duties and compensation shall be set forth in the Claimant Trust Agreement . . . .” The CTA was part of a Plan Supplement (as amended) that was filed in advance of the confirmation hearing and provided:

Compensation. As compensation for any services rendered by the Claimant Trustee in connection with this Agreement, the Claimant Trustee shall receive compensation of $150,000 per month (the “Base Salary”). Within the first forty-five days following the Confirmation Date, the Claimant Trustee, on the one hand, and the Committee, if prior to the Effective Date, or the Oversight Board, if on or after the Effective Date, on the other, will negotiate go-forward compensation for the Claimant Trustee which will include (a) the Base Salary, (b) a success fee, and (c) severance.

With regard to the second requirement of constitutional standing—whether HMIT could show “traceability” with respect to the Claims Purchasers and/or Seery (i.e., a “causal connection between the assertedly unlawful conduct and the alleged injury”<sup>198</sup>), as noted above, there is only a speculative injury. Even if there is unlawful conduct asserted (i.e., sharing of MNPI to Claims Purchasers who then, as a quid pro quo, rubber stamped excessive compensation for Seery), there is nothing other than a hypothetical theory of an alleged injury (i.e., an allegedly less likelihood of a distribution on a Contingent Claimant Trust Interest).

With respect to the third requirement of constitutional standing—whether HMIT can show “redressability” (i.e., that it is likely, not speculative, that the injury can be redressed by a favorable decision), there are multiple problems here.<sup>199</sup> The major remedy sought here is the equitable disallowance of the allowed Purchased Claims (and disgorgement and/or constructive trust of amounts paid or owed to the Claim Purchasers on account of their claims). There is no such remedy available here. As noted earlier, there is a similar concept of equitable subordination of a claim to another claim, or of an interest to another interest, pursuant to Bankruptcy Code section 510(c). But under the literal terms of section 510(c), claims cannot be subordinated to interests. Moreover, the Fifth Circuit noted in the Mobile Steel case,<sup>200</sup> that equitable disallowance of a claim (as opposed to equitable subordination of a claims) is not an available remedy. Bankruptcy Code section 502(b)(1) and the Fifth Circuit’s Lothian Oil case might permit “recharacterization” of a claim from debt to equity in certain circumstances—but not based on inequitable conduct but rather on the nature of a financial transaction. In any event, here, the claims have already been adjudicated and allowed (some after mediation, and all after Rule 9019 settlement orders). The only way to reconsider a claim in a bankruptcy case that has already been allowed is through Bankruptcy Code section 502(j) (“A claim that has been allowed or disallowed may be reconsidered for cause. . . according to the equities of the case.”). As noted earlier, the problem here is that Bankruptcy Rule 9024 provides that a motion for “reconsideration of an order allowing or disallowing a claim against the estate entered without a contest is not subject to the one year limitation prescribed in Rule 60(c)” (emphasis added). As further noted earlier, here there was most definitely a “contest” with regard to all of these purchased claims. Thus, it would appear

<sup>199</sup> See supra notes 182-184 and accompanying text. The court will note that, as discussed supra note 141 and pages 71-72, the remedy of equitable subordination (as to the Claims Purchasers) would not redress HMIT’s alleged injury (because equitable subordination of claims to interests is not an available remedy in the Fifth Circuit and thus subordination of the Purchased Claims to other claims would not change HMIT’s distributions from the Claimant Trust, if any), and because outright disallowance of all or part of the already allowed Purchased Claims is not an available remedy either, HMIT would not be able to meet the “redressability” requirement with respect to the Claims Purchasers.

3. HMIT Would Also Lack Prudential Standing to Bring the Proposed Claims.

Even if HMIT would have constitutional standing to bring the Proposed Claims in an adversary proceeding filed in the bankruptcy court, the Proposed Claims would still be barred if HMIT would lack prudential standing to bring them under applicable state or federal law. HMIT argues that it does have prudential standing under both federal bankruptcy law and Delaware law to pursue the Proposed Claims derivatively and also to bring the Proposed Claims in its individual capacity.

With regard to “federal bankruptcy law,” HMIT argues that it has standing pursuant to: (a) Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, pertaining to derivative actions, which “applies to this proceeding pursuant to” Rule 7023.1 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, and (b) Louisiana World Exposition v. Federal Insurance Co. (“LWE”),<sup>201</sup> the Fifth Circuit’s leading case addressing when a creditors committee may be granted standing to bring causes of action on behalf of a bankruptcy estate. But, federal bankruptcy law does not confer standing where the plaintiff otherwise lacks standing under applicable state law. In other words, whether HMIT would have prudential standing to sue under Delaware law is dispositive of the issue, regardless of the forum. Rule 23.1 “speaks only to the adequacy of the . . . pleadings,” and “cannot be understood to ‘abridge, enlarge, or modify any substantive right,’”<sup>202</sup> including a right (or lack thereof) to bring a derivative action under the substantive law of Delaware. Additionally, HMIT’s reliance on LWE is misplaced: LWE permits creditors, in certain circumstances during a bankruptcy case, to “file suit on behalf of a debtor-in-possession or a trustee”<sup>203</sup> and does not apply to a party’s right to sue, derivatively, on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor or any entity that is the assignee of the former bankruptcy estate’s assets. Upon confirmation of the Plan, the bankruptcy estate of Highland ceased to exist,<sup>204</sup> Highland is no longer a debtor-in-possession but a reorganized debtor, and the Claimant Trust is a new entity created under the Plan and Claimant Trust Agreement. Even if LWE did apply in this post-confirmation context, it supports the application of Delaware law to the issue of prudential standing and does not supersede state-law requirements for standing. In LWE, before addressing the requirements a creditors’ committee must meet to sue derivatively on behalf of a bankruptcy estate as a matter of federal bankruptcy law, the Fifth Circuit conducted a lengthy analysis to determine “as a threshold issue” whether the creditors’ committee in that case could assert its claims under Louisiana law.<sup>205</sup> The court specifically addressed whether the creditors’ committee could pursue a derivative action under Louisiana law and concluded that “there is no bar in Louisiana law to actions brought by or in the name of a corporation against the directors and officers of the corporation which benefit only the creditors of the corporation; indeed, Louisiana law specifically recognizes such actions.”<sup>206</sup> So, even under LWE (which the court does not think applies in this post-confirmation context), if HMIT would be barred from bringing a derivative action on behalf the Reorganized Debtor or Claimant Trust under state law, the analysis stops there.<sup>207</sup> Thus, the court looks to Delaware law to determine if HMIT would have prudential standing to pursue the derivative claims on behalf the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust.

HMIT acknowledges that both the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust are organized under Delaware law, and thus the cause of action against Seery alleging breach of fiduciary duties to the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust are governed by Delaware law under the “Internal Affairs Doctrine.”<sup>208</sup> In addition, because HMIT’s breach of fiduciary duties claim is governed by Delaware law, its aiding and abetting theory of liability as to the Claims Purchasers is also governed by Delaware law.<sup>209</sup> For the reasons set forth below, the court finds that HMIT would lack prudential standing under Delaware law to bring the claims set forth in the Proposed Complaint, derivatively, on behalf of either the Claimant Trust or the Reorganized Debtor.

- a) First, HMIT Would Lack Prudential Standing Under Delaware Law to Bring Derivative Actions on behalf of the Claimant Trust.

The Claimant Trust is a Delaware statutory trust governed by the Delaware Statutory Trust Act, 12 Del. C. §§ 3801–29,<sup>210</sup> and “to proceed derivatively against a Delaware statutory trust, a plaintiff has the burden of satisfying the continuous ownership requirement” such that “the plaintiff must be a beneficial owner” continuously from “the time of the transaction of which the plaintiff complains” through “the time of bringing the action.”<sup>211</sup> This requirement is “mandatory and exclusive” and only “a beneficial owner” “has standing to bring a derivative claim on behalf of the Trust.”<sup>212</sup> The Highland Parties argue that HMIT is not a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust and, therefore, would lack standing to bring derivative claims on behalf of the Claimant Trust. HMIT argues to the contrary: that it is currently, and was at all relevant times, a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust under Delaware trust law such that it would have standing to bring derivative claims on behalf of the Claimant Trust if it were allowed to proceed with the filing of the Proposed Complaint. The disagreement turns on the nature of HMIT’s interest under the Plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement and whether HMIT, as a holder of such interest, would be considered a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust under Delaware trust law.

As noted, pursuant to the Plan, HMIT’s former limited partnership interest in Highland was cancelled as of the Effective Date in exchange for its pro rata share of a “Contingent Claimant Trust Interest,” as defined under the Plan.<sup>213</sup> HMIT argues that its Contingent Claimant Trust Interest makes it a contingent beneficiary of the Claimant Trust, which makes it a present “beneficial owner” under Delaware trust law.

The Highland Parties argue that HMIT is not a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust; rather, the “beneficial owners” of the Claimant Trust are the “Claimant Trust Beneficiaries,”<sup>214</sup> which are defined in the Plan and the CTA as “the Holders of Allowed General Unsecured Claims” (which are in Class 8 under the Plan) and “Holders of Allowed Subordinated Claims” (which are in Class 9 under the Plan);<sup>215</sup> HMIT, a holder of a Class 10 interest under the Plan, is neither.

HMIT acknowledges this requirement in its Reply: “Delaware statutory trust law provides that a plaintiff in a derivative action on behalf of a trust must be a beneficial owner at the time of the action and at the time of the transaction.” Reply, ¶ 19 (citing 12 Del C. § 3816).

HMIT, as the holder of a “Contingent Claimant Trust Interest,” has only an unvested contingent interest in the Claimant Trust and, as such, is not a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust for standing purposes under Delaware trust law. HMIT argues that it “should be treated as a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary due to [the Proposed Defendants’] wrongful conduct and considering the current value of the Claimant Trust Assets before and after the relief requested herein.”<sup>216</sup> The court disagrees.

HMIT’s status as a “beneficiary” of the Claimant Trust is defined by the CTA itself, pure and simple. The CTA specifically provides that “Contingent Trust Interests” “shall not have any rights under this Agreement” and will not “be deemed ‘Beneficiaries’ under this Agreement,” “unless and until” they vest in accordance with the Plan and the CTA. It is undisputed that HMIT’s Contingent Trust Interest has not vested under the terms of the Plan and the CTA, and the court does not have the power to equitably deem HMIT’s Contingent Trust Interest to be vested based on HMIT’s unsupported allegation of wrongdoing on the part of Seery, the Claimant Trustee. Thus, the court finds that HMIT is not a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust and, therefore, lacks prudential standing under Delaware law to bring derivative claims on behalf of the Claimant Trust.<sup>217</sup>

- b) HMIT Would Likewise Lack Prudential Standing Under Delaware Law to Bring Derivative Actions on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor.

HMIT acknowledges that the Reorganized Debtor, Highland Capital Management, L.P., is a Delaware limited liability partnership governed by the Delaware Limited Partnership Act, 6 Del. C. § 17-101, et seq.<sup>218</sup> To bring “a derivative action” on behalf of a limited partnership, “the plaintiff must be a partner or an assignee of a partnership interest” continuously from “the time of the transaction of which the plaintiff complains” through “the time of bringing the action.”<sup>219</sup>

HMIT is not a partner, general or limited, of the Reorganized Debtor limited partnership. HMIT was a limited partner in the original debtor (specifically, a holder of Class B/C Limited Partnership interests in Highland), but that limited partnership interest was extinguished on August 11, 2021 (the Effective Date of the Plan) per the terms of the Plan, and HMIT does not own any partnership interest in the newly created Reorganized Debtor limited partnership.<sup>220</sup> Because HMIT would not hold a partnership interest in the Reorganized Debtor at “the time of bringing the action,” it “lacks derivative standing” to bring claims “on the partnership’s behalf.”<sup>221</sup> HMIT likewise cannot satisfy “the continuous ownership requirement”; when HMIT’s limited partnership interest in the original Debtor was cancelled on the Plan’s Effective Date, HMIT “los[t] standing to continue a derivative suit” on behalf of the Debtor.<sup>222</sup> Finally, to the extent HMIT seeks to bring a “double derivative” action on behalf of the Claimant Trust based on claims purportedly held by its wholly owned subsidiary, the Reorganized Debtor, HMIT lacks standing. A “double derivative” action is a suit “brought by a shareholder of a parent corporation to enforce a claim belonging to a subsidiary that is either wholly owned or majority controlled.”<sup>223</sup> And, under Delaware law, “parent level standing is required to enforce a subsidiary’s claim derivatively.”<sup>224</sup> Because HMIT would lack derivative standing to bring claims on behalf of the parent Claimant Trust,<sup>225</sup> it also would lack standing to bring a double derivative action.

c) Finally, HMIT Would Also Lack Prudential Standing under Applicable Law to Bring the Proposed Claims As Direct Claims.

HMIT argues that it has “direct” standing to pursue the Proposed Claims on behalf of itself, individually.<sup>226</sup> But just because HMIT asserts that some or even all of the Proposed Claims are direct, not derivative claims, does not make it so: “a claim is not ‘direct’ simply because it is pleaded that way.”<sup>227</sup> Rather, in determining whether claims are direct or derivative, a court must “look at the substance of the Petition, and the nature of the wrongs alleged therein, rather than the Plaintiffs’ characterization.”<sup>228</sup> And, under Delaware law, “whether a claim is solely derivative or may continue as a dual-natured claim ‘must turn solely on the following questions: (1) who suffered the alleged harm (the corporation or the suing stockholders, individually); and (2) who would receive the benefit of any recovery or other remedy (the corporation or the stockholders, individually)?’”<sup>229</sup> “In addition, to prove that a claim is direct, a plaintiff ‘must demonstrate that the duty breached was owed to the stockholder and that he or she can prevail without showing an injury to the corporation.’”<sup>230</sup> Similarly, in the bankruptcy context, whether a creditor can assert a claim directly or whether the claim belongs to the estate turns on the nature of the injury for which relief is sought: “[i]f the harm to the creditor comes about only because of harm to the debtor, then its injury is derivative, and the claim is property of the estate,” such that “only the bankruptcy trustee has standing to pursue the claim for the estate . . . .”<sup>231</sup> “To pursue a claim on its own behalf, a creditor must show this direct injury is not dependent on injury to the estate.”<sup>232</sup>

As a reminder, HMIT argues that the injury it has suffered is a devaluation of its interests in the Claimant Trust by virtue of alleged over-compensation of Seery as the Claimant Trustee. HMIT was unable, when pressed during closing arguments, to identify any other injury. It essentially admitted that the claims trades, in and of themselves, would not have harmed the Claimant Trust, the Reorganized Debtor, or individual stakeholders, including HMIT, since the Claims Purchasers acquired already allowed unsecured claims, such that the distributions on those claims pursuant to the Plan would be unchanged in the hands of new holders of the claims.

Thus, by its own concessions, any alleged harm to HMIT (through devaluation of assets in the Claimant Trust) “comes about only because of harm to the debtor,” so the alleged “injury is derivative.”<sup>233</sup> The court concludes that all of the claims set forth in the Proposed Complaint allege derivative claims only, and that none would be direct claims against the Proposed Defendants. Thus, HMIT would lack prudential standing to bring any of the Proposed Claims in the Proposed Complaint, so its Motion for Leave should be denied.

d) Some Final Points Regarding Standing.

In this standing discussion, one should not lose sight of the fact that there are both procedural safeguards in place, as well as certain independent individuals in place with fiduciary duties that might act in the event of any shenanigans regarding Claimant Trust activities. Under section 4.1 of the CTA (approved as part of the Plan process), the CTOB, which includes an independent disinterested member in addition to representatives of the Claims Purchasers,<sup>234</sup> oversees the Claimant Trustee’s performance of his duties, approves his compensation, and may remove him for cause. Moreover, there is a separate “Litigation Trustee” in this case who was brought in, post-confirmation, as an independent fiduciary to pursue claims and causes of action. These independent persons are checks and balances in the post-confirmation wind down of Highland. This is what creditors voted on in connection with the Plan. Seery and the Claims Purchasers are not in sole control of anything. The CTA, as well as Delaware law, very clearly set forth who can bring an action in the event of some colorable claim. This is the reality of prudential standing. Just as in the Abraugh case, where Louisiana law dictated that a mother could not bring a wrongful death case when the deceased prisoner had a surviving wife and child, Delaware law and the CTA dictate here that a contingent beneficiary cannot bring the Proposed Claims here. This is separate and apart from whether the claims are colorable.

C. Are the Proposed Claims “Colorable”?

1. What is the Proper Standard of Review for a “Colorability” Determination?

Although the court has determined that HMIT would not have standing (constitutional or prudential) to bring the Proposed Claims, this court will nevertheless evaluate whether the claims—assuming HMIT somehow has standing—might be “colorable.” This, in turn, requires the court to assess what the legal standard is to determine if a claim is “colorable.” As a reminder, the Plan’s Gatekeeper Provision and this court’s prior Gatekeeper Orders entered in January and July 2020 each required that, before a party may commence or pursue claims relating to the bankruptcy case against certain protected parties, it must first obtain a finding from the bankruptcy court that its proposed claims are “colorable.” The Gatekeeper Provision and Gatekeeper Orders did not specifically define “colorable” or what type of legal standard should apply.

HMIT argues that the standard for review to be applied by this court is the same as a simple “plausibility” standard used in connection with a Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss. In other words, the court should simply assess whether the allegations of the Proposed Complaint, taken as true and with all inferences drawn in favor of the movant, state a plausible claim for relief (i.e., colorable equals plausible), and that this standard does not allow for the weighing of evidence by the court.<sup>235</sup> The Proposed Defendants, however, argue that the test for colorability should be more akin to the test applied under the Barton doctrine,<sup>236</sup> under which a plaintiff must make a prima facie case that a proposed claim against a bankruptcy trustee is “not without foundation.” In this regard, they argue that the court can and should consider evidence outside of the four corners of the complaint—especially since HMIT attached to its Motion for Leave, as “evidence” to support it, two declarations of Dondero (as part of a 350-page attachment) and only attempted to withdraw those declarations after the Highland Parties urged that they be permitted to cross-examine Dondero on them.

This court ultimately determined that the “colorability” standard was somewhat of a mixed question of fact and law and, therefore, the parties could put on evidence at the June 8 Hearing if they so-chose. The court would not require it. It was up to the parties. But, in any event, the Proposed Defendants should have an opportunity to cross-examine Dondero on the statements made in his declarations since the declarations had been filed on the docket and the court had reviewed them at this point. HMIT attempted to withdraw the declarations and any reference to them in the Motion for Leave, by filing redacted versions of the Motion for Leave,<sup>237</sup> less than 72 hours before the June 8 Hearing; however, the redacted versions did not redact any allegations in the Motion for Leave that were purportedly supported by the Dondero declarations. Also, HMIT called Dondero as a direct witness, in addition to calling Seery as an adverse witness at the June 8 Hearing, albeit subject to its running objection to the evidentiary format of the hearing.<sup>238</sup> HMIT also filed a witness and exhibit list attaching 80 exhibits and over 2850 pages of evidence and moved for the admission of those exhibits at the June 8 Hearing (again, subject to its running objection to the evidentiary format of the hearing).<sup>239</sup>

In determining what appropriate legal standard applies here in the “colorability” analysis, the context in which the Gatekeeper Provision of the Plan was approved seems very relevant. In determining that the Gatekeeper Provision was legal, necessary, and in the best interest of all of the parties, this court set forth in the Confirmation Order a lengthy discussion of the factual support for it, and made specific findings relating to Dondero’s post-petition litigation and the need for inclusion of the Gatekeeper Provision in the Plan.<sup>240</sup> This court observed that “prior to the commencement of the Debtor’s bankruptcy case, and while under the direction of Dondero, the Debtor had been involved in a myriad of litigation, some of which had gone on for years and, in some cases, over a decade” and that “[d]uring the last several months, Dondero and the Dondero Related Entities have harassed the Debtor, which has resulted in further substantial, costly, and time-consuming litigation for the Debtor.”<sup>241</sup> This court further found that: (1) Dondero’s post-petition litigation “was a result of Dondero failing to obtain creditor support for his plan proposal and consistent with his comments, as set forth in Seery’s credible testimony, that if Dondero’s plan proposal was not accepted, he would ‘burn down the place,’”<sup>242</sup> (2) without the Gatekeeper Provision in place, “Dondero and his related entities will likely commence litigation against the Protected Parties after the Effective Date” and that “the threat of continued litigation by Dondero and his related entities after the Effective Date will impede efforts by the Claimant Trust to monetize assets for the benefit of creditors and result in lower distributions to creditors because of costs and distraction such litigation or the threats of such litigation would cause,”<sup>243</sup> and, (3) “unless the [court] approves the Gatekeeper Provision, the Claimant Trustee and the Claimant Trust Oversight Board will not be able to obtain D&O insurance,<sup>244</sup> the absence of which will present unacceptable risks to parties currently willing to serve in such roles.” Thus, as set forth in the Confirmation Order, the Gatekeeper Provision (and the Gatekeeper Orders as well, which were approved based on the same concerns regarding the threat of continued litigation by Dondero and his related entities) required Dondero and related entities to make a threshold showing of colorability, noting that the:

Gatekeeper Provision is also within the spirit of the Supreme Court’s “Barton Doctrine.” Barton v. Barbour, 104 U.S. 126 (1881). The Gatekeeper Provision is also consistent with the notion of a prefiling injunction to deter vexatious litigants, that has been approved by the Fifth Circuit in such cases as Baum v. Blue Moon Ventures, LLC, 513 F.3d 181, 189 (5th Cir. 2008), and In re Carroll, 850 F.3d 811 (5th Cir. 2017).<sup>245</sup>

The Fifth Circuit, in approving the Gatekeeper Provision on appeal, noted that that the Plan injunction and Gatekeeper Provision “screen and prevent bad-faith litigation against Highland Capital, its successors, and other bankruptcy participants that could disrupt the Plan’s effectiveness.”<sup>246</sup>

Again, the court believes it is appropriate to consider the context in which—and the purpose for which—the Gatekeeper Orders and Gatekeeper Provision were entered in assessing

how “colorability” should work here. It seems that applying HMIT’s proposed Rule 12(b)(6) “plausibility” standard would impose no hurdle at all to litigants and would render the threshold for bringing claims under the Gatekeeper Provision and Gatekeeper Orders entirely duplicative of the motion to dismiss standard that every litigant already faces.

The authorities cited by HMIT in support of its argument for applying a Rule 12(b)(6) standard are inapposite. HMIT has cited no authority that addresses the appropriate standard for assessing the “colorability” of claims in the context of a plan gatekeeper provision—specifically, one implemented in response to a demonstrated need to screen and prevent continued bad-faith, harassing litigation against a chapter 11 debtor that would impede the debtor’s implementation of a plan, which is what we have here. HMIT relies on a bevy of cases that include benefits coverage disputes under ERISA, Medicare coverage disputes, and constitutional challenges<sup>247</sup>—none of which implicate the Barton doctrine and vexatious-litigant concerns that were referenced by the court in the Plan as justifications for the gatekeeping provisions at issue here.

In affirming the Plan’s Gatekeeper Provision, the Fifth Circuit stated, “Courts have long recognized bankruptcy courts can perform a gatekeeping function” and noted, by way of example, that “[u]nder the ‘Barton doctrine,’ the bankruptcy court may require a party to ‘obtain leave of the bankruptcy court before initiating an action in district court when the action is against the trustee or other bankruptcy-court-appointed officer, for acts done in the actor’s official capacity.”<sup>248</sup> As noted above, the Fifth Circuit found that the Gatekeeper Provision, which “requires that, before any lawsuit is filed, the plaintiff must seek the bankruptcy court’s approval of the claim as ‘colorable’”—i.e., to “screen and prevent bad-faith litigation,”—is “sound.”<sup>249</sup>

On balance, the court views jurisprudence applying the Barton doctrine and vexatious litigant injunctions—while not specifically addressing the “colorability” standard under gatekeeping provisions in a plan<sup>250</sup>—as more informative on how to approach “colorability” than any of the other authorities presented by the parties. One example is In re VistaCare Group, LLC.<sup>251</sup>

In VistaCare, the Third Circuit noted that, under the Barton doctrine, “[a] party seeking leave of court to sue a trustee must make a prima facie case against the trustee, showing that its claim is not without foundation,” and emphasized that the “not without foundation” standard, while similar to the standard courts apply in evaluating Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss, “involves a greater degree of flexibility” than a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss because “the bankruptcy court, which given its familiarity with the underlying facts and the parties, is uniquely situated to determine whether a claim against the trustee has merit,” and “is also uniquely situated to determine the potential effect of a judgment against the trustee on the debtor’s estate.”<sup>252</sup> To satisfy the “prima facie case standard,” “the movant must do more than meet the liberal notice-pleading requirements of Rule 8.”<sup>253</sup> “[I]f the [bankruptcy] court relied on mere notice-pleading standards rather than evaluating the merits of the allegations, the leave requirement would become meaningless.”<sup>254</sup> This court agrees with the notion, that “[t]o apply a less stringent standard would eviscerate the protections” of the Gatekeeper Provision and Gatekeeper Orders.<sup>255</sup> The court notes, as well, that courts in the Barton doctrine context regularly hold evidentiary hearings on motions for leave to determine if the proposed complaint meets the necessary threshold for pursuing litigation. The Third Circuit in VistaCare noted that “[w]hether to hold a hearing [on a motion for leave to bring suit against a trustee] is within the sound discretion of the bankruptcy court,”<sup>256</sup> and that “the decision whether to grant leave may involve a ‘balancing of the interests of all parties involved,’” which will ordinarily require an evidentiary hearing.<sup>257</sup> The Third Circuit applied “the deferential abuse of discretion standard” in considering whether the bankruptcy court’s granting of leave should be affirmed on appeal.<sup>258</sup>

Courts of appeal routinely apply the deferential abuse of discretion standard to a bankruptcy court’s decision regarding whether leave should be granted to sue a trustee. Although the Fifth Circuit has not squarely addressed this issue, all nine Circuits that have considered this issue have also adopted an abuse-of-discretion standard. See In re Bednar, 2021 WL 1625399, at *3 (B.A.P. 10th Cir. Hedback*, 718 F.3d 762 (8th Cir. 2013) (applying abuse-of-discretion standard to Barton doctrine).

The Fifth Circuit has affirmed a bankruptcy court’s conducting of an evidentiary hearing, in the context of applying a Barton doctrine analysis as to a proposed lawsuit against a trustee, without any concern that the inquiry was somehow improper.<sup>259</sup>

Similarly, courts in the vexatious litigant context, where there was an injunction requiring a movant to seek leave to pursue claims, have required movants to “show that the claims sought to be asserted have sufficient merit,” including that “the proposed filing is both procedural and legally sound,” and “that the claims are not brought for any improper purpose, such as harassment.”<sup>260</sup> “For a prefiling injunction to have the intended impact, it must not merely require a reviewing official to apply an already existing level of review,” such as the “plausibility” standard for a Rule 12(b)(6) motion.<sup>261</sup> Rather, courts apply “an additional layer of review,” and “may appropriately deny leave to file when even part of the pleading fails to satisfy the reviewer that it warrants a federal civil action” or that the “litigant’s allegations are unlikely,” especially “when prior cases have shown the litigant to be untrustworthy or not credible . . . .”<sup>262</sup>

In summary, the court rejects HMIT’s positions: (a) that it need only show, at most, that the allegations in the Proposed Complaint are “plausible” under the Rule 12(b)(6) standard for motions to dismiss; and (b) that this court improperly conducted an evidentiary hearing on the Motion for Leave (i.e., that consideration of evidence in this context is impermissible). The court notes, again, that HMIT’s argument that this court is not permitted to consider evidence in making its “colorability” determination is completely contradictory to HMIT’s actions in filing the Motion for Leave, where it attached two Dondero declarations as part of 350 pages of “objective evidence” that “supported” its motion.

The court concludes that the appropriate standard to be applied in making its “colorability” determination in this bankruptcy case, in the exercise of its gatekeeping function pursuant to the two Gatekeeper Orders and the Gatekeeper Provision in this Plan, is a broader standard than the “plausibility” standard applied to Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss. It is, rather, a standard that involves an additional level of review—one that places on the proposed plaintiff a burden of making a prima facie case that its proposed claims are not without foundation, are not without merit, and are not being pursued for any improper purpose such as harassment. Additionally, this court may, and should, take into consideration its knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings and the parties and any additional evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave. For ease of reference, the court will refer to this standard of “colorability” as the “Gatekeeper Colorability Test.” The court considers this test as a sort of hybrid of what the Barton doctrine contemplates and what courts have applied when considering motions to file suit when a vexatious litigant bar order is in place.

2. HMIT’s Proposed Complaint Does Not Present “Colorable” Claims Under this Court’s Gatekeeper Colorability Test or Even Under a Rule 12(b)(6) “Plausibility” Standard.

The court finds, in the exercise of its gatekeeping function under the Gatekeeper Orders and the Gatekeeping Provision in the Plan, that the Motion for Leave should be denied as the claims set forth in the Proposed Complaint are not “colorable” claims. The court makes this determination after considering evidence admitted at the June 8 Hearing, including the testimony of Dondero, Patrick, and Seery, and the numerous exhibits offered by HMIT and the Highland Parties. HMIT’s Proposed Claims lack foundation, are without merit, and appear to be motivated by the improper purposes of vexatiousness and harassment. But, even under the less stringent

“plausibility” standard under Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss, where all allegations must be accepted as true, HMIT’s “[t]hreadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory statements,” fail to “[c]ross the line from conceivable to plausible.”<sup>263</sup>

HMIT makes unsubstantiated and conclusory allegations in its Motion for Leave and Proposed Complaint that the Claims Purchasers purchased the large allowed unsecured claims only because Seery, while he was CEO of Highland prior to the Effective Date of the Plan, provided them with MNPI and assurances that the Purchased Claims were very valuable. This was allegedly in exchange for their agreement to approve, in their future capacities as members of the CTOB, excessive compensation for Seery in his capacity as the Claimant Trustee after the Effective Date of the Plan. This was an alleged quid pro quo that HMIT claims establishes Seery’s breach of fiduciary duties and the Claims Purchasers’ conspiracy to participate in that breach. As discussed below, these allegations are unsubstantiated and conclusory allegations, and they do not support the inferences that HMIT needs the court to make when it analyzes whether the Proposed Claims are “colorable”—or even merely plausible.

a) HMIT’s Proposed Breach of Fiduciary Duties Claim Set Forth in Count I of the Proposed Complaint

Based on HMIT’s Proposed Complaint and the evidence admitted at the June 8 Hearing, the court finds that HMIT has not pleaded facts that would support a “colorable” breach of fiduciary duties claim against Seery, under this court’s Gatekeeper Colorability Test, nor a plausible claim pursuant to the Rule 12(b) standard. HMIT alleges that Seery breached his fiduciary duties (i) “[b]y disclosing material non-public information to Stonehill and Farallon”

before their purchase of certain Highland claims, and (ii) by receiving “compensation paid to him under the terms of the [CTA] since the Effective Date of the Plan in August 2021.”<sup>264</sup>

As earlier noted, both the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust are organized under Delaware law and, thus, its proposed Count I against Seery for breach of fiduciary duties to these entities is governed by Delaware law under the “Internal Affairs Doctrine.”<sup>265</sup> Under Delaware law, “[t]o bring a claim for breach of fiduciary duty, a plaintiff must allege ‘(1) that a fiduciary duty existed and (2) that the defendant breached that duty.’”<sup>266</sup> HMIT fails to plausibly or sufficiently allege either element such that its breach of fiduciary duty claims against Seery could survive.

Under Delaware law, officers and directors generally owe fiduciary duties only to the entity and its stakeholders as a whole, not to individual shareholders.<sup>267</sup> Because Seery did not owe any “duty” to HMIT directly and individually, the Proposed Complaint fails to state a claim for breach of fiduciary duties to HMIT. HMIT’s “legal conclusion[.]” that Seery “owed fiduciary duties to HMIT, as equity, and to the Debtor’s Estate”<sup>268</sup> “do[es] not suffice” to plausibly allege the existence of any actionable fiduciary relationship.<sup>269</sup> And as discussed earlier in the standing section, HMIT does not have standing to assert a breach of fiduciary claim derivatively on behalf of the Claimant Trust or Reorganized Debtor. But even if HMIT had sufficiently alleged the existence of a fiduciary duty by Seery to HMIT—or to the Reorganized Debtor or Claimant Trust that HMIT would have standing to assert—Seery’s alleged communications with Farallon would not have breached those duties.

HMIT alleges that Seery “disclose[d] material non-public information to Stonehill and Farallon,” and they “acted on inside information and Seery’s secret assurances of great profits.”<sup>270</sup> But the Proposed Complaint does not make any factual allegations regarding HMIT’s “conclusory allegations,” and its “legal conclusions” are “purely speculative, devoid of factual support,” and therefore “stop[] short of the line between possibility and plausibility of entitlement to relief”<sup>271</sup> (and certainly stop short of being “colorable”). HMIT never alleges when any of these purported communications occurred, what material non-public information Seery provided, and what “assurances of great profits” he made to Farallon or to Stonehill. At the June 8 Hearing, Dondero could only clarify that he believed the MGM Email to have been MNPI and that he believed that Seery must have communicated that MNPI to Farallon at some point between December 17, 2020 (the date the MGM Email was sent) and May 28, 2021 (the day that Dondero alleges to have had three telephone calls with representatives of Farallon, Messrs. Patel and Linn, regarding Farallon’s purchase of the bankruptcy claims). Dondero alleges that, during these phone calls, Patel and Linn gave Dondero no reason for their purchase of the claims that “made [any] sense.” Dondero and Patrick also both testified that neither of them had any personal knowledge: (a) of a quid pro quo arrangement between Seery and the Claims Purchasers, (b) of Seery having actually communicated any information from the MGM Email to Farallon, or (c) whether Seery’s post-Effective Date compensation had or had not been negotiated in an arms’ length transaction. speculates regarding these things, because it “made no sense” to him that the Claims Purchasers would have acquired the bankruptcy claims without having received the MNPI. But HMIT admits in the Proposed Complaint that Farallon and Stonehill purchased the Highland claims at discounts of 43% to 65% to their allowed amounts. Thus, they would receive at least an 18% return based on publicly available estimates in Highland’s court-approved Disclosure Statement.<sup>272</sup> The evidence established that, if the acquisition of the UBS claims is excluded—recall that the UBS claims were not purchased until August 2021, which was after the May 28, 2021 phone calls that Dondero made to Farallon personnel—the Claims Purchasers would have expected to net over $33 million in profits, or nearly a 30% return on their investment, had Highland met its projections (this is based on the aggregate purchase price of $113 million for the non-UBS claims purchased in the Spring 2021).

To be clear, the only purported MNPI identified in HMIT’s Proposed Complaint was the MGM Email Dondero sent to Seery containing “information regarding Amazon and Apple’s interest in acquiring MGM.” But, the evidence showed that this information was widely reported in the financial press at the time. Thus, it could not have constituted MNPI as a matter of law.<sup>273</sup> Moreover, the evidence showed that Dondero did not communicate in the MGM Email the actual inside information that he claimed to have obtained as a board member of MGM—which was that Amazon had met MGM’s “strike price” and that the MGM board was going into exclusive negotiations with Amazon to culminate the merger with them (and, thus, Apple was no longer considered a potential purchaser). Dondero admitted that he included Apple in the MGM Email for the purpose of making it look like there was a competitive process still ongoing. In other words, the MGM Email, at the very least, did not include MNPI and, at worst, was deceptive regarding the status of the negotiations between MGM and potential purchasers.

As to HMIT's allegations that Seery's post-Effective Date compensation is "excessive" and that the negotiations between Seery and the CTOB "were not arm's-length,"<sup>274</sup> the evidence at the June 8 Hearing reflected that the allegations are completely speculative, without any foundation whatsoever, and lack merit. And they are also simply not plausible. HMIT fails to allege facts in the Proposed Complaint that would support a reasonable inference that Seery breached his fiduciary duty to HMIT or the estate as a result of bad faith, self-interest, or other intentional misconduct rising to the level of a breach of the duty of loyalty.<sup>275</sup>

b) HMIT's Proposed Claims Set Forth in Counts II (Knowing Participation in Breach of Fiduciaries) and III (Conspiracy)

HMIT seeks to hold the Claims Purchasers secondarily liable for Seery's alleged breach of fiduciaries duties on an aiding and abetting theory in Count II of the Proposed Complaint<sup>276</sup> and, along with Seery, on a civil conspiracy theory of liability in Count III of the Proposed Complaint.<sup>277</sup> Because HMIT's breach of fiduciary duties claim is governed by Delaware law, its aiding and abetting breach of fiduciary duties claim against the Claims Purchasers (Count II) is also governed by Delaware law.<sup>278</sup> HMIT's conspiracy cause of action against the Claims

Purchasers and Seery (Count III), on the other hand, does not involve a matter of “internal affairs” or of corporate governance, so it is governed by Texas law under the Plan.<sup>279</sup>

As an initial matter, because HMIT does not present either a “colorable”—or even plausible claim—that Seery breached his fiduciary duties, it cannot show that it has alleged a “colorable” or plausible claim for secondary liability for the same alleged wrongdoing.<sup>280</sup> In addition, HMIT’s civil conspiracy claim against the Claims Purchasers and Seery is based entirely on Dondero’s speculation and unsupported inferences and, thus, HMIT has not “colorably” alleged, or even plausibly alleged, its conspiracy claim. Under Texas law, “civil conspiracy is a theory of vicarious liability and not an independent tort.”<sup>281</sup> “[T]he elements of civil conspiracy [are] “(1) two or more persons; (2) an object to be accomplished; (3) a meeting of minds on the object or course of action; (4) one or more unlawful, overt acts; and (5) damages as the proximate result.”<sup>282</sup> While HMIT alleges that “Defendants conspired with each other to unlawfully breach fiduciary duties,”<sup>283</sup> it is simply a “legal conclusion” and not the kind of allegation that the court must assume to be true even for purposes of determining plausibility under a motion to dismiss.<sup>284</sup>

HMIT repeats four times that Seery provided MNPI to Farallon and Stonehill as a “as a quid pro quo” for “additional compensation,”<sup>285</sup> each time based upon conclusory allegations based “upon information and belief” and, frankly, pure speculation from Dondero that his imagined “scheme,” “covert quid pro quo,” and secret “conspiracy” between Seery, on the one hand, and Farallon and Stonehill, on the other,<sup>286</sup> must have occurred because “[i]t made no sense for the [Claims] Purchasers to invest millions of dollars for assets that – per the publicly available information – did not offer a sufficient potential profit to justify the publicly disclosed risk” (i.e., “[t]he counter-intuitive nature of the purchases at issue compels the conclusion that the [Claims] Purchasers acted on inside information and Seery’s assurance of great profits.”)<sup>287</sup> Importantly, HMIT admits that the Claims Purchasers would have turned a profit based on the information available to them at the time of their acquisitions of the Purchased Claims.<sup>288</sup> HMIT’s allegations about the level of potential profits were contradicted by their own allegations and other evidence admitted at the June 8 Hearing. But Dondero’s speculation about what level of projected return would be sufficient to justify the acquisition of the claims by the Claims Purchasers, or any other third-party investor, does not give rise to a plausible inference that they acted improperly.<sup>289</sup> Thus, HMIT cannot meet

<sup>286</sup> See id. ¶ 3 (“Thus, acting within a cloak of secrecy, Seery provided close business acquaintances, the other Defendants with material non-public information concerning the value of assets which they then used to purchase the largest approved unsecured claims.”).

<sup>288</sup> See, e.g., id. ¶ 3 (alleging that acquiring the claims “did not offer a sufficient potential profit to justify the publicly disclosed risk”)(emphasis added); ¶ 43 (“Furthermore, although the publicly available projections suggested only a small margin of error on any profit potential for its significant investment . . . .”); ¶ 49 (“Yet, in this case, it would have been impossible for Stonehill and Farallon (in the absence of inside information) to forecast any significant profit at the time of their multi-million-dollar investments given the publicly available, negative financial information.”) (third emphasis added).

<sup>289</sup> In fact, the court did not allow Mr. Dondero to testify regarding what kind of information a hypothetical investor in bankruptcy claims would require or what level of potential profits would justify the purchase of bankruptcy claims by investors in the bankruptcy claims trading market because he was testifying as a fact witness, not an expert. Thus, the court only allowed Dondero to testify as to what data he (or entities he controls or controlled) would rely on, what his risk tolerance would have been, and what level of potential profits he would have required to purchase an allowed unsecured bankruptcy claim in a post-confirmation situation. June 8 Hearing Transcript, 129:6-130:4.

its burden, under the Gatekeeper Colorability Test, of making a prima facie showing that its allegations do not lack foundation or merit. Nor can it meet a plausibility standard.

In addition, contrary to the Proposed Complaint’s statement that it would have been “impossible for Stonehill and Farallon (in the absence of insider information) to forecast any significant profit at the time of their multi-million-dollar investments,” the evidence showed there were already reports in the financial press that MGM was engaging with Amazon, Apple, and others in selling its media portfolio, and thus the prospect of an MGM transaction increasing the value of, and return on, the Purchased Claims, “at the time of their multi-million-dollar investments” was publicly available information.<sup>290</sup> HMIT’s suggestion that the Claims Purchasers were in possession of inside information not publicly available when they acquired the Purchased Claims is simply not plausible. Nor is HMIT’s allegation that “[u]pon information and belief” Farallon “conducted no due diligence but relied on Seery’s profit guarantees” plausible. The allegations regarding Farallon not conducting any due diligence are based, again, entirely on Dondero’s speculation and inferences he made from what Patel and Linn (of Farallon) allegedly told him on May 28, 2021; Dondero did not testify that either Patel or Linn ever told him specifically that they had conducted no due diligence. HMIT’s allegations in the Proposed Complaint that Farallon “conducted no due diligence,” are based on Dondero’s speculation, unsubstantiated, and contradicted by the testimony of Seery, who testified that emails to him from Linn in June 2020 and later in January 2021 indicated to him that Farallon, at least, had been conducting some level of due diligence in that they had been following and paying attention to the

<sup>290</sup> The court notes, as well, that the Claim Purchasers acquired the UBS claims in August 2021—approximately two and a half months after the announcement of the MGM-Amazon transaction (which was on May 26, 2021)—a fact that HMIT makes no attempt to harmonize with its conspiracy theory that the Claims Purchasers profited from the misuse of MNPI allegedly given to them by Seery.

Highland case.<sup>291</sup> In addition, there are no allegations in the Proposed Complaint regarding whether Stonehill conducted due diligence or not, and Patrick testified that neither he nor HMIT had any personal knowledge of how much due diligence Farallon or Stonehill did prior to acquiring the Purchased Claims.<sup>292</sup> The court finds and concludes that HMIT's allegations of aiding and abetting and conspiracy in Counts II and III of the Proposed Complaint are based on unsubstantiated inferences and speculation, lack internal consistency, and lack consistency with verifiable public facts. Accordingly, HMIT has failed to show that these claims have a foundation and merit and has also failed to show that they are plausible.

- c) HMIT's Proposed Claims Set Forth in Counts IV (Equitable Disallowance), V (Unjust Enrichment and Constructive Trust), and VI (Declaratory Relief) of the Proposed Complaint
  - i. Count IV (Equitable Disallowance).

In Count IV of its Proposed Complaint, HMIT seeks "equitable disallowance" of the claims acquired by Farallon's and Stonehill's special purpose entities Muck and Jessup, "to the extent over and above their initial investment," and, in the alternative, equitable subordination of their claims to all claims and interests, including HMIT's unvested Class 10 Contingent Claimant Trust Interest, "given [their] willful, inequitable, bad faith conduct" of allegedly "purchasing the Claims based on material non-public information" and being "unfairly advantaged" in "earning significant profits on their purchases."<sup>293</sup> As noted above, these remedies are not available to HMIT.<sup>294</sup>

First, HMIT's request to equitably subordinate the Purchased Claims to all claims and interests is not permitted because Bankruptcy Code § 510(c), by its terms, permits equitable subordination of a claim to other claims or an interest to other interests but does not permit equitable subordination of a claim to interests.

Second, “equitable” disallowance of claims is not an available remedy in the Fifth Circuit pursuant to the Mobile Steel case.<sup>295</sup>

Third, reconsideration of an already-allowed claim in a bankruptcy case can only be accomplished through Bankruptcy Code § 502(j), which, pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9024, allows reconsideration of allowance of a claim that was allowed following a contest (which is certainly the case with respect to the Purchased Claims) based on the “equities of the case.” But this is only if the request for reconsideration is made within the one-year limitation prescribed in Rule 60(c) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. HMIT’s request for disallowance of Muck and Jessup’s Purchased Claims (if it could somehow be construed as a request for reconsideration of their claims), is clearly untimely, as it is being made well beyond a year since their allowance by this court following contests and approval of Rule 9019 settlements. Thus, the court finds that HMIT has not alleged a colorable or even plausible claim in Count IV of the Proposed Complaint and, therefore, the Motion for Leave should be denied.

ii. Count V (Unjust Enrichment and Constructive Trust)

In Count V of the Proposed Complaint, HMIT alleges that, “by acquiring the Claims using [MNPI], Stonehill and Farallon were unjustly enriched and gained an undue advantage over other creditors and former equity” and that “[a]llowing [the Claims Purchasers] to retain their ill-gotten benefits would be unconscionable;” thus, HMIT alleges, the Claims Purchasers “should be forced to disgorge all distributions over and above their original investment in the Claims as restitution for their unjust enrichment” and “a constructive trust should be imposed on such proceeds . . . .”<sup>296</sup>

HMIT alleges further that “Seery was also unjustly enriched by his participation in this scheme and he should be required to disgorge or restate all compensation he has received from the outset of his collusive activities” and “[a]lternatively he should be required to disgorge and restate all compensation received since the Effective Date” over which a constructive trust should be imposed.<sup>297</sup> HMIT has not alleged a colorable or even a plausible claim for unjust enrichment or constructive trust in Count V.

Under Texas law,<sup>298</sup> “[u]njust enrichment is not an independent cause of action but rather characterizes the result of a failure to make restitution of benefits either wrongfully or passively received under circumstances which give rise to an implied or quasi-contractual obligation to repay.”<sup>299</sup> Thus, “when a valid, express contract covers the subject matter of the parties’ dispute, there can be no recovery under a quasi-contract theory.”<sup>300</sup> Here, as noted above, HMIT’s only alleged injury is a diminution of the value of its unvested Contingent Claimant Trust Interest by virtue of Seery’s allegedly having wrongfully obtained excessive compensation, with the help of the Claims Purchasers. Yet Seery’s compensation is governed by express agreements (i.e., the Plan and the CTA). Thus, HMIT’s claim based on unjust enrichment is not an available theory of recovery.

iii. Count VI (Declaratory Relief)

HMIT seeks declaratory relief in Count VI of the Proposed Complaint, essentially, that Dondero’s conspiracy theory is correct and that HMIT’s would succeed on the merits with respect

<sup>298</sup> Under the Plan, Texas law governs HMIT’s “claim” for unjust enrichment because it is not a “corporate governance matter.” (Plan Art. XII.M.) It also governs HMIT’s “claim” for constructive trust, which “is merely a remedy used to grant relief on the underlying cause of action.” Sherer v. Sherer, 393 S.W.3d 480, 491 (Tex. App. 2013).

to the Proposed Claims if it were permitted leave to bring them in an adversary proceeding.<sup>301</sup> But, a request for declaratory relief is not “an independent cause of action”<sup>302</sup> and “in the absence of any underlying viable claims such relief is unavailable.”<sup>303</sup> This court has already found and concluded that HMIT would not have constitutional or prudential standing to bring the underlying causes of action in the Proposed Complaint. This court has also found and concluded that all of the Proposed Claims are without foundation or merit and are not even plausible and are all; being brought for the improper purpose of continuing Dondero’s vexatious, harassing, bad-faith litigation. Thus, HMIT would not be entitled to pursue declaratory judgement relief as requested in Count VI of the Proposed Complaint.

d) HMIT Has No Basis to Seek Punitive Damages

HMIT separately alleges that the Claims Purchasers’ and Seery’s “misconduct was intentional, knowing, willful, in bad faith, fraudulent, and in total disregard of the rights of others,” thus entitling HMIT to an award of punitive damages under applicable law. But, HMIT abandoned its proposed fraud claim that was in its Original Proposed Complaint, so its sole claim for primary liability is Seery’s alleged breach of his fiduciary duties. And under Delaware law, the “court cannot award punitive damages in [a] fiduciary duty action.”<sup>304</sup>

3. HMIT Does Not Present “Colorable” Claims Under this Court’s Gatekeeper Colorability Test Because It Seeks to Bring the Proposed Complaint for Improper Purposes of Harassment and Bad-Faith, Vexatiousness.

Under this court’s Gatekeeper Colorability Test, in addition to showing that its allegations and claims are not without foundation or merit, HMIT must also show that the Proposed Claims are not being brought for any improper purpose. Taking into consideration the court’s knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings and the parties and the evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave, the court finds that HMIT is acting at the behest of, and under the control or influence of, Dondero in continuing to pursue harassing, bad faith, vexatious litigation to achieve his desired result in these bankruptcy proceedings. So, in addition to failing to show that its Proposed Claims have foundation and merit, HMIT cannot show that it is pursuing the Proposed Claims for a proper purpose and, thus, cannot meet the requirements under the Gatekeeper Colorability Test; HMIT’s Motion for Leave should be denied.

IV. CONCLUSION

The court concludes, having taken into consideration both its knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings and the parties and the evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave, that HMIT’s Motion for Leave should be denied for three independent reasons: (1) HMIT would lack constitutional standing to bring the Proposed Claims (and, thus, the federal courts would lack subject matter jurisdiction over the Proposed Claims); (2) even if HMIT would have constitutional standing to pursue the Proposed Claims, it would lack prudential standing to bring the Proposed Claims; and (3) even if HMIT would have both constitutional standing and prudential standing to bring the Proposed Claims, it has not met its burden under the Gatekeeper Colorability Test of showing that its Proposed Claims are “colorable” claims—that the Proposed Claims are not without foundation, not without merit, and not being pursued for an improper purpose. Moreover, even if this court's Gatekeeper Colorability Test should be replaced with a Rule 12(b)(6) "plausibility" standard, the Proposed Claims are not plausible.

Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED that HMIT's Motion for Leave be, and hereby is DENIED.

INCORPORATED BRIEF

Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (“HMIT”), both in its individual capacity and derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor, Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“HCM” or “Debtor”) and the Highland Claimant Trust,<sup>1</sup> files this Motion to Alter or Amend Order, to

---

<sup>1</sup> And, in all capacities and alternative derivative capacities asserted in the Emergency Motion (as defined herein) [Bankr. Dkt. Nos. 3699, 3815, and 3816], and the supplement to the Emergency Motion [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3760] and the draft Complaint attached to the same [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3760-1].

Amend or Make Additional Findings, for Relief from Order,<sup>2</sup> or, Alternatively, for New Trial Under Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure 7052, 9023, and 9024 and Incorporated Brief (the “Motion”), and respectfully states as follows:

1. HMIT filed an Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding (“Emergency Motion”) [Bankr. Dkt. Nos. 3699, 3815, and 3816], which was supplemented on April 23, 2023 [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3760]. By way of its Emergency Motion, HMIT sought leave to file an Adversary Proceeding pursuant to the Court’s gatekeeping order and the injunction and exculpation provisions in the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. [Bankr. Dkt. 1943], as modified (the “Plan”).

2. A hearing on the Emergency Motion was held on June 8, 2023. On August 25, 2023, the Court issued its Memorandum Opinion and Order Pursuant to Plan “Gatekeeper Provision” and Pre-Confirmation “Gatekeeper Orders”: Denying Hunter Mountain Investment Trust’s Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding (the “Order”) [Bankr. Dkt. Nos. 3903 and 3904]. In the Order, among other things, the Court concluded that HMIT lacked standing to bring the proposed claims and therefore denied the Emergency Motion. Specifically, the Court found that “HMIT’s allegations of injury are, without a doubt, ‘merely conjectural or hypothetical’ and are only speculative of possible future injury if its Contingent Claimant Trust Interest ever vests.” [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3903 at 72].

3. This Motion seeks alteration of, or a new trial to re-consider, these and associated findings and conclusions relating to standing, because post-hearing financial disclosure filings in the bankruptcy matter further evidence that the Court’s standing determinations are incorrect and should be corrected.<sup>3</sup>

4. On July 6, 2023, while the Emergency Motion was pending, the Debtor and the Highland Claimant Trust filed a Notice of Filing of the Current Balance Sheet of the Highland Claimant Trust, showing the “general categories of assets and liabilities of the Highland Claimant Trust, subject to the accompanying notes.” [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3872; a copy of which is attached as Exhibit 1 to this Motion]. And on July 21, 2023, the Debtor filed its Post-Confirmation Report for Highland Capital Management, LP for the Quarter Ending June 30, 2023 [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3888; a copy of which is attached as Exhibit 2 to this Motion] and the Highland Claimant Trust filed its Post-Confirmation Report for Highland Capital Management, LP for the Quarter Ending June 30, 2023 [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3889; a copy of which is attached as Exhibit 3 to this Motion].

5. As explained below, these financial documents further demonstrate that HMIT’s alleged injuries are not “conjectural or hypothetical,” and, instead, demonstrate that its Contingent Claimant Trust Interest will vest, or put colloquially, it is “in the money.” Stated otherwise, the financial documents further establish HMIT’s standing and alleged non-speculative injury.

6. In support of this request, HMIT points the Court to the financial disclosures, which further demonstrates that HMIT is now “in the money.”

<sup>3</sup> HMIT contests and disagrees with other adverse rulings in the Court’s order, including but not limited to (1) the Court’s determination that the “colorability” question presents “mixed questions of law and fact” and its associated decision to hold an evidentiary hearing; (2) the Court’s holding an evidentiary hearing without allowing HMIT to obtain discovery and/or admit expert testimony, and (3) the Court’s determination that HMIT’s claims are not “colorable” for reasons other than standing. HMIT intends to raise these and other issues on appeal and HMIT reserves its rights accordingly. [See, e.g., Bankr. Dkt. Nos. 3790, 3853, 3903-04].

[See Exhibit 1, Bankr. Dkt. 3872, at Ex. A].

7. As this balance sheet demonstrates, even without pursuing the Kirschner Adversary, the Claimant Trust has $247 million in assets and $139 million in Class 8 and 9 claims. Moreover, the Claimant Trust’s balance sheet assets do not include a fully cash-funded $35 million indemnity account that presumably may be used to pay creditors in the event it is not consumed by the indemnity-related expenses. [See Exhibit 1, Bankr. Dkt. 3872 at Ex. A, n. 1]. While the balance sheet includes “non-book” adjustments, they do not change HMIT’s “in the money” status. One adjustment gives zero asset value to the notes payable by affiliates of Jim Dondero. [See id. at Ex. A]. However, $70 million of those notes are (or shortly will be) fully bonded by cash deposited in the registry of the district court. See N.D. Tex. Case No. 3:31-cv-00881-X, Dkt. Nos. 149, 151, and 152. Another “adjustment” creates a $90 million “additional indemnification reserve,” on top of the $35 million cash indemnity reserve. [See Exhibit 1, Bankr.

Dkt. 3872 at Ex. A]. It is unlikely, however, that these extensive indemnity reserves will ever be expended or necessary for indemnity.<sup>4</sup> Additionally, as the Post-Confirmation reports reveal, all of the administrative claims, secured claims, and priority claims have been paid in full. [Exhibit 2, Bankr. Dkt. No. 3888, and Exhibit 3, Bankr. Dkt. No. 3889].

8. For all these reasons, HMIT is “in the money” under Claimant Trust’s recently disclosed balance sheet and disclosures.<sup>5</sup> Moreover, as this Court noted in a prior unrelated matter, HMIT must only show “significant indicia of solvency” to have standing. See In re ADPT DFW Holdings, LLC, Bankr. N.D. Tex. Case No. 17-31432, Dkt. No. 303 at Hrg. Trans. 131:22 – 132:6. HMIT has made the showing and, this showing is further evidenced by the Claimant Trust’s own unadjusted balance sheet.

9. HMIT, along with the other Contingent Trust Interest holders are, as discussed above, “in the money.” In other words, HMIT has both constitutional and prudential standing to bring its asserted claims.

10. For the foregoing reasons, HMIT has standing and a cognizable injury to support the claims in its Emergency Motion. Thus, pursuant to Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure 7052, 9023, and 9024, HMIT requests that the Court alter or amend its findings and judgment that HMIT lacks standing or a cognizable alleged injury. Alternatively, HMIT requests that the

<sup>4</sup> Per the Plan, any indemnity is limited to fees and expenses, as no indemnity right would lie for a judgment entered on a claim for which a plaintiff could assert or recover under the gatekeeper order and applicable law. Nor is it likely that the Claimant Trust will incur even close to the reserved amounts for fees and expenses. For the bankruptcy case as a whole, for example, the debtor’s bankruptcy and non-bankruptcy professional fees and expenses totaled only approximately $40 million, pre-confirmation. [Exhibits 2, 3; Bankr. Dkt. Nos. 3888, 3889]. Also, as is clear from the Motion and Order authorizing the creation of the Indemnity Trust Agreement, the projected indemnity reserve was contemplated to be $25 Million, so the cash amount apparently set aside for indemnification amounts to $100 Million more than contemplated. [Bankr. Dkt. Nos. 2491, 2599, attached as Exhibits 4-5].

Court grant a new trial or hearing pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9023 due to the impact of the financial documents on HMIT's standing and ability to assert the claims.

PRAYER

HMIT respectfully requests that the Court grant this Motion and alter or amend its findings or Order to rule that HMIT has constitutional and prudential standing and a cognizable injury or, alternatively, order a new trial/hearing.

The information contained in this summarized consolidated balance sheet (the "Summary") is based on estimates, and therefore should not be relied upon, as actual results may differ materially from the estimates contained herein.

This Summary is neither an offer nor a solicitation of an offer to buy or sell securities.

Information contained herein is not indicative of, nor does it guarantee, future results. The information contained in this Summary is based on matters as they exist as of the date of preparation and not as of any future date. Trust Beneficiaries may experience materially different results and outcomes.

Highland Claimant Trust
Summarized Consolidated Balance Sheet <sup>(1)</sup>
As of May 31, 2023

Notes:

(1) This presentation is not in accordance with US GAAP and is unaudited, but has nevertheless been prepared in good faith and with the intention of providing the reader with a comprehensive understanding of the remaining assets and liabilities of the Highland Claimant Trust, Highland Capital Management, LP, HCMLP GP LLC, and Highland Litigation Trust (the "Consolidated Entities"). These entities have each been aggregated on a stand-alone basis, with intercompany amounts eliminated. Funds and entities that may otherwise be consolidated by one or more of the Consolidated Entities under US GAAP are not fully consolidated and rather are included solely at their equity value. For example, if Highland Capital Management, LP is a 20% investor in a managed fund with assets of $100 million and liabilities of zero that would normally require consolidation under US GAAP, the presentation contained herein reflects an investment of $20 million as opposed to fully consolidating the $100 million fund and reflecting minority interest of $80 million. The value of the Highland Indemnity Trust is not included herein. As of May 31, 2023, $35 million has been funded to the Highland Indemnity Trust. Highland Indemnity Trust beneficiaries are Claimant Trust Indemnified Parties. Any unused assets remaining after satisfying indemnification obligations will be transferred to the Highland Claimant Trust or otherwise be distributed to the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries in accordance with the Indemnity Trust Agreement. For presentation purposes, it is assumed that outstanding indemnification obligations will consume the entirety of the Highland Indemnity Trust. Further, no current recovery amount has been ascribed to the "Kirschner Adversary" as all such value is considered to be contingent, nor have any liabilities been reserved for various success fees payable to professionals associated with the Kirschner Adversary or any other litigations. Such liabilities are also contingent in nature.

(2) Amounts already authorized for distribution, but reserved in the Disputed Claims Reserve related to resolution of pending disputed claims.

(3) Value reflected herein consists primarily of ownership in private funds and subsidiaries, valued using NAV as the practical expedient, public & private investments (including residual sale escrows), valued at fair value, and SE Multifamily Holdings, LLC, valued using book equity value as of the most recent financials received. See note 6 for further information. There is substantial risk and uncertainty with respect to the timing and ultimate cash value to be received from monetizations of these investments and such value could ultimately be materially impacted by actual monetizations.

(4) Book amounts reflect principal amounts outstanding on various notes, without discount, adjustment, or estimates of future costs of collection, with two exceptions. The first exception is to the note receivable from Hunter Mountain Investment Trust for which over $90 million of principal and interest is currently due, payable, and in default. These notes are a component of the "Kirschner Adversary" which is currently stayed. These principal and interest amounts are fully reserved based on the assumption that Hunter Mountain Investment Trust has no other assets other than a contingent, unvested interest in the Highland Claimant Trust. That assumption is subject to change. The second exception relates to the note receivable from Highland Select Equity Master Fund, LP. This amount is fully reserved based on the pendency of the Ch. 7 proceeding for Highland Select Equity Master Fund, LP and the minimal remaining value of Highland Select Equity Master Fund, LP's assets, which is expected to be further consumed (at least in part) by trustee and professional fees. Aside from these exceptions, approximately $65 million of these principal amounts (further described below) are subject to ongoing litigation with various note counterparties who are contesting the validity of their obligations. These disputed amounts are contained within the "Balance per books" column herein without discount or adjustment. While the makers have asserted defenses, Highland believes they are meritless and is confident that judgments will ultimately be entered in Highland's favor. However, based on Mr. Dondero's history of failing to satisfy judgments entered against his affiliates by others (e.g., UBS, the Redeemer Committee, Joshua Terry, and Patrick Daugherty), the effect of complete non-payment of principal is reflected in the "adjustments" column, which also assumes non-payment of the currently performing $18 million note receivable from The Dugaboy Investment Trust. Ultimate recoveries from these notes could differ materially from the current principal outstanding depending on the outcome of the pending litigation and no recovery can be assured. Accrued interest is captured in the "Other assets" line item, subject to the exceptions discussed within this footnote. While there is currently a report & recommendation from the bankruptcy court for summary judgment, plus costs of collection, no costs of collection are reflected as assets on this balance sheet, so would be incremental. The estimated amount of such costs of collections are over $3 million.

Detail of note principal amounts subject to report & recommendations of the bankruptcy court, currently pending in district court (excludes accrued interest):

Note Maker	Principal O/S	Comments
NexPoint Advisors, LP	$ 25	Consists of a single note
NexPoint Real Estate Partners, LLC	12	fka HCRE Partners, LLC; five underlying notes comprise balance
NexPoint Asset Management, LP	11	fka Highland Capital Management Fund Advisors, LP; four underlying notes comprise balance
James Dondero	10	Three underlying notes comprise balance
Highland Capital Management Services, Inc.	7	Five underlying notes comprise balance
Sub-total	$ 65

(5) The book equity amount reflects a multitude of estimates including, but not limited to the value of investments and collectability of notes receivable. For book purposes, no contingent liabilities or indemnification reserves have been recorded as liabilities that would reduce book equity, notwithstanding that it is currently expected that there will be a) a need to maintain further highly material indemnification reserves; and b) further incurrence of springing contingent liabilities if distribution milestones are achieved. The amount of further incremental indemnification reserves are currently expected to exceed $90 million, and may ultimately be greater, which will be required to be funded (at least in part) prior to any further material distributions to Trust Beneficiaries. In the absence of a global settlement that, among other things, fully and finally releases all Claimant Trust Indemnified Parties, Highland believes the additional indemnification reserves are required because, among other reasons, (a) based on the so-called "Dondero exclusion," insurance is likely to remain cost-prohibitive and/or unsatisfactory, leaving the Claimant Trust and Indemnity Trust assets as the sole sources of funding for indemnity obligations, (b) approximately twenty (20) matters are being actively litigated in at least 9 different forums; and (c) based on history, new litigation can be expected. Any unused assets remaining after satisfaction of indemnity obligations will be distributed as required by the Indemnity Trust Agreement. The amount of incremental springing contingent liabilities are expected to range from $5 million to $15 million, which are exclusive of various success fees associated with recoveries under the "Kirschner Adversary" and others. No reserves have been accrued for any current, pending, or threatened litigation brought by any Dondero-related parties. Lastly, it is expected that the trust and its subsidiaries will operate at an operating loss prospectively. The corresponding information in the "adjustments" column above is an estimate of the effects of these incremental indemnification reserves and contingent liabilities, but does not assume any expected future operating cash burn, which is expected to be significant.

(6) The value of SE Multifamily Holdings LLC maintained on this balance sheet is $15.7 million, which is a component of the "Investments" line item and is based on a several years stale book-basis balance sheet. Notwithstanding Dondero-entities' previous disclosures of this interest at values of $20 million and $12 million, Highland also received interest from Dondero to acquire the interest for $3.8 million, among other assets. The purpose of this adjustment is to assume that the holding could be monetized at the lower $3.8 million level, which would result in a $11.9 million decrease to Highland's book equity if it were hypothetically transacted at that level. Highland has initiated proceedings in Delaware to receive books and records relating to SE Multifamily Holdings LLC, for which it has the contractual right and has been seeking for approximately a year, but for which Dondero-controlled entities have not provided to date.

(7) Amounts described herein represent the face amounts of outstanding allowed and pending claims. The pending claim amounts do not include amounts that are the subject of various appeals or that are unliquidated. The allowed and pending claims (along with accrued interest) could ultimately be satisfied in part or in full using 1) the assets of the disputed claims reserve, 2) the residual amount of cash in the indemnity trust after satisfying all indemnification obligations, and 3) the residual amount of cash remaining after monetizing all other non-cash assets and paying liabilities and future expenses.

The information contained in this summarized consolidated balance sheet (the "Summary") is based on estimates, and therefore should not be relied upon, as actual results may differ materially from the estimates contained herein.

This Summary is neither an offer nor a solicitation of an offer to buy or sell securities.

Information contained herein is not indicative of, nor does it guarantee, future results. The information contained in this Summary is based on matters as they exist as of the date of preparation and not as of any future date. Valuations do not reflect performance in different economic or market cycles and there can be no assurances that valuations will be achieved. Trust Beneficiaries may experience materially different results and outcomes.

professionals. The amounts listed for Hunton and Wilmer Hale include the OCP payments and employed professional payments.

In Section C of the PCR, the Reorganized Debtor totals all payments included in Sections A and B, along with payments made to professional employed by the official committee of unsecured creditors (the "Committee").

The approved current quarter, approved cumulative, and paid cumulative will have the same amount listed due to approval and payment of final fee applications.

Part 3: Recoveries of the Holders of Claims and Interests under Confirmed Plan

The payments made to holders of General Unsecured Claims were disbursed from the Claimant Trust, but for presentation purposes, have been included in Part 3 of the post-confirmation report for the Reorganized Debtor.

The presentation contained in this PCR does not reflect the material and necessary reserves that will be taken in accordance with Reorganized Debtor's governing documents and the Plan.

The Debtor reserves all right to object to any claim in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

GLOBAL NOTES TO POST CONFIRMATION REPORT

The Highland Claimant Trust has filed the attached post-confirmation report (the “PCR”) in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division (the “Court”), with respect to the case of Reorganized Debtor Highland Capital Management, L.P., Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ) (the “Bankruptcy Case”). The Highland Claimant Trust prepared the PCR with the assistance of the Reorganized Debtor’s employees, advisors, and professionals. The PCR was prepared solely for the purpose of complying with the post-confirmation quarterly reporting requirements established by the United States Trustee Program (see <https://www.justice.gov/ust/chapter-11-operating-reports>). The PCR should not be relied upon by any persons for any information in connection with current or future financial conditions or events relating to the Highland Claimant Trust, the Reorganized Debtor or its estate.

The financial information contained in the PCR is preliminary, unaudited, limited in scope, and is not prepared in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America nor in accordance with other applicable non-bankruptcy law. In preparing the PCR, the Highland Claimant Trust relied on financial data from the books and records available to it at the time of such preparation, as well as certain filings on the docket in the Bankruptcy Case. Although the Highland Claimant Trust made commercially reasonable efforts to ensure the accuracy and completeness of the PCR, inadvertent errors or omissions may exist. The Highland Claimant Trust reserves the right to amend and supplement the PCR as may be necessary or appropriate.

Part 2: Preconfirmation Professional Fees and Expenses

The Highland Claimant Trust did not make any payment of professional fees prior to Confirmation of the Plan.

Part 3: Recoveries of the Holders of Claims and Interests under Confirmed Plan

For presentation purposes, the chart showing claims anticipated under the plan, paid claims and allowed claims are reflected in both the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trust post-confirmation report under Part 3: Recoveries of the Holders of Claims and Interests under the Confirmed Plan.

The presentation contained in this PCR does not reflect the material and necessary reserves that will be taken in accordance with the Claimant Trust's governing documents and the Plan.

DEBTOR’S MOTION FOR ENTRY OF AN ORDER (I) AUTHORIZING THE (A) CREATION OF AN INDEMNITY SUBTRUST AND (B) ENTRY INTO AN INDEMNITY TRUST AGREEMENT AND (II) GRANTING RELATED RELIEF

The above-captioned debtor and debtor-in-possession (the “Debtor”) hereby moves (the “Motion”), pursuant to sections 105(a) and 363(b) of title 11 of the United States Code, 11 U.S.C. §§ 101–1532 (the “Bankruptcy Code”), for the entry of an order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A (the “Proposed Order”), (i) authorizing the (a) creation of an indemnity subtrust (the “Indemnity Subtrust”), and (b) entry into an indemnity trust agreement (the “Trust Agreement”), and (ii) granting related relief.

INTRODUCTION<sup>2</sup>

1. Pursuant to this Motion, the Debtor requests authority to create the Indemnity Subtrust and enter into a Trust Agreement that is substantially consistent with terms set forth in the Term Sheet attached to this Motion as Exhibit B (collectively the “Indemnity Trust Documents”). As discussed below, the Indemnity Trust Documents will secure the indemnity obligations of the Claimant Trust, Litigation Trust and the Reorganized Debtor pursuant to the terms of the Claimant Trust Agreement, the Litigation Trust Agreement, the Reorganized Limited Partnership Agreement and the Plan (collectively the “Indemnity Obligations”).

2. The Debtor intends for the Indemnity Subtrust to be in lieu of directors’ and officers’ insurance (“D&O Insurance”), which the Debtor contemplated obtaining as a condition to the Effective Date for the benefit of the beneficiaries of the Indemnity Obligations. The Debtor and the Committee thoroughly explored the market for obtaining D&O Insurance. Based on such due diligence, the Debtor, in consultation with the Committee, determined that based upon the prohibitive cost of D&O Insurance, securing the Indemnity Obligations through an Indemnity Subtrust is preferable and in the best interests of the Debtor’s estate and its creditors. Moreover, as discussed below, establishing the Indemnity Subtrust will facilitate the Effective

Date of the Plan which the Debtor anticipates will occur on or about August 1, 2021, if the Court approves the Motion.

JURISDICTION

3. The United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (the “Court”) has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. This matter is a core proceeding within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2).

4. The bases for the relief requested herein are sections 105 and 363 of the Bankruptcy Code.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

A. The Debtor’s Bankruptcy Case

5. On October 16, 2019 (the “Petition Date”), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the “Delaware Bankruptcy Court”).

6. On October 29, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the “Committee”) was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in the Delaware Bankruptcy Court. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Bankruptcy Court entered an order transferring venue of the Debtor’s chapter 11 case to this Court [Docket No. 186].<sup>3</sup>

7. The Debtor has continued in the possession of its property and has continued to operate and manage its business as a debtor-in-possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. No trustee or examiner has been appointed in this chapter 11 case.

B. The Court’s Confirmation of the Plan and Denial of Motions for a Stay Pending Appeal.

8. On February 22, 2021, after a two-day hearing, the Bankruptcy Court entered the Order (i) Confirming the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization (as Modified) and (ii) Granting Related Relief [Docket No. 1943] (the “Confirmation Order”) with respect to the Debtor’s Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P., as modified (the “Plan”).<sup>4</sup>

9. James Dondero and certain of his related entities (collectively, the “Dondero Entities”) appealed the Confirmation Order [Docket Nos. 1957, 1966, 1970, 1972] and filed motions in this Court seeking a stay of the Confirmation Order pending appeal [Docket Nos. 1955, 1967, 1971, 1973] (the “Stay Motions”). This Court denied the Stay Motions [Docket Nos. 2084, 2095].

10. Certain of the Dondero Entities subsequently filed motions for stay pending appeal in the District Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division (the “District Court”), in April 2021 (the “District Court Stay Motions”).

11. In May 2021, following the grant of an expedited appeal by the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, certain of the Dondero Entities filed motions for stay pending appeal in the Fifth Circuit in May 2021 (the “Appellate Stay Briefs”) despite not having a ruling on the District Court Stay Motions. On June 21, 2021, the Fifth Circuit denied the Appellate Stay Briefs.

12. On June 23, 2021, the District Court denied the District Court Stay Motions.

<sup>4</sup> Unless otherwise noted, capitalized terms used herein have the meanings given to them in the Plan. The confirmed Plan included certain amendments filed on February 1, 2021. See Debtor’s Notice of Filing of Plan Supplement to the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (as Modified), Ex. B [Docket No. 1875].

C. Conditions to the Effective Date of the Plan.

13. Article VIII of the Plan contains the conditions to the Effective Date of the Plan. The two conditions that have delayed the occurrence of the Effective Date are (i) the Confirmation Order becoming a Final Order and (ii) the Debtor obtaining D&O Insurance acceptable to the Debtor, the Committee, the Claimant Trust Oversight Committee, and the Litigation Trustee.

14. In addition, the Debtor determined, in the weeks following confirmation, that it would require exit financing in order to maintain sufficient liquidity for post-Effective Date operations and to comply with its obligations under the Plan. The facts and circumstances leading to the Debtor's decision to obtain exit financing are set forth in the Motion for Entry of an Order (i) Authorizing the Debtor to (a) Enter into Exit Financing Agreement in Aid of Confirmed Chapter 11 Plan and (b) Incur and Pay Related Fees and Expenses, and (ii) Granting Related Relief [Docket No. 2229] (the "Exit Financing Motion"). The Court approved the Exit Financing at a hearing on June 25, 2021.

15. As discussed at the confirmation hearing, the Debtor encountered difficulty in obtaining D&O Insurance because of the litigiousness of the case and the threat that litigation would continue well beyond confirmation of the Plan. Nevertheless, after confirmation, the Debtor, working closely with the Committee, continued to pursue D&O Insurance. Ultimately, however, the Debtor, the Committee, and the Independent Board, including Mr. Seery, who will be the Claimant Trustee and manage the Reorganized Debtor, determined that the insurance that was available was both insufficient and too costly in light of the coverage being provided.

16. The Debtor, working closely with the Committee, subsequently investigated alternatives to traditional D&O Insurance that could provide the beneficiaries of the Indemnity

Obligations protection after the Effective Date. The most attractive alternative was to create the Indemnity Subtrust, the approval of which is being sought through this Motion. If the Court approves this Motion, the Debtor will waive the condition to the Effective Date requiring the Confirmation Order to become a Final Order and thereby paving the way for the Plan to become effective.

D. Post-Effective Date Governance and Management

17. The Plan provides for the creation of the Claimant Trust, the Litigation Trust, and the Reorganized Debtor on the Effective Date to facilitate the monetization of the Debtor’s assets and the pursuit of Estate Claims for the benefit of the Debtor’s creditors and stakeholders. As currently contemplated, the Claimant Trust will be overseen by James P. Seery, Jr., as the Claimant Trustee, and an Oversight Board, made up of the Debtor’s largest creditors. The Claimant Trust is governed by the terms of the Claimant Trust Agreement.<sup>5</sup> The Litigation Sub-Trust is governed by the terms of the Litigation Trust Agreement.<sup>6</sup> And the Reorganized Debtor will be governed by the Reorganized Limited Partnership Agreement.<sup>7</sup> It is anticipated that Mr. Seery will be the Claimant Trustee and the chief executive officer of the Reorganized Debtor.

E. Post-Effective Date Indemnification

18. The terms of the Claimant Trust Agreement, the Litigation Trust Agreement, and the Reorganized Limited Partnership Agreement each provide for a broad indemnification of the parties tasked with managing the implementation of the Plan (collectively, the “Indemnified Parties”).<sup>8</sup> The costs of indemnifying the Indemnified Parties (the “Indemnification Costs”) were provided for in the Plan and the Plan Documents. The Indemnification Costs would be treated as expenses and be paid before, and be senior to, distributions to the Debtor’s pre-petition creditors, i.e., the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries. The relevant documents also authorized the reservation of assets sufficient to fund the Indemnification Costs.

A. The Indemnity Subtrust and Trust Agreement

19. As discussed above, the Debtor has determined that it is in the best interests of the Debtor’s estate and its stakeholders to create the Indemnity Subtrust pursuant to the terms of the Trust Agreement. The Indemnity Subtrust will be administered by a third-party corporate trustee. The Indemnity Trust will, as discussed below, be funded on the Effective Date with $2.5 million in cash and a note (the “Indemnification Note”) in the principal amount of $22.5 million with such amounts to be held in reserve and used solely to pay Indemnification Costs that are not otherwise paid or payable by the Claimant Trust, Litigation Trust, or Reorganized Debtor, as applicable.

20. As contemplated by the Plan and consistent with the Claimant Trust Agreement, the Litigation Trust Agreement, and the Reorganized Limited Partnership Agreement, the Indemnification Costs have priority to other claims. The Indemnity Subtrust is the vehicle which ensures that adequate provision for such Indemnification Costs is made, notwithstanding the timing pursuant to which assets are monetized and distributions would otherwise be made to such beneficiaries of the Claimant Trust.

<sup>8</sup> The Indemnified Parties of (a) the Claimant Trust are (i) the Claimant Trustee (including each former Claimant Trustee), (ii) Delaware Trustee, (iii) the Oversight Board, and (iv) all past and present Members of the Oversight Board, and the employees, agents, and professionals of each of the foregoing; (b) the Litigation Trust are (i) the Litigation Trustee (including each former Litigation Trustee), (ii) the Oversight Board, and (iii) all past and present Members of the Oversight Board, and the employees, agents, and professionals of each of the foregoing; and (c) the Reorganized Debtor are (i) New GP LLC (as the Reorganized Debtor’s general partner) and each member, partner, director, officer, and agent thereof, (ii) each person who is or becomes an officer of the Reorganized Debtor, and (iii) each person who is or becomes an employee or agent of the Reorganized Debtor if New GP LLC determines in its sole discretion that such employee or agent should be indemnified. See Claimant Trust Agreement, § 8.2; Litigation Trust Agreement, § 8.2.; Reorganized Limited Partnership Agreement, §§ 10(b)-(c).

21. Certain material terms of the Trust Agreement and the Indemnity Subtrust are as follows:<sup>9</sup>

Beneficiaries:	The Indemnified Parties
Indemnity Trustee	A corporate trustee with appropriate trust powers under applicable state and/or federal law.
Indemnity Trust Administrator	Mr. Seery, initially in his capacity as the Claimant Trustee or in his individual capacity if no longer serving as the Claimant Trustee.
Indemnity Trust Corpus	At the inception of the Indemnity Trust, the trust corpus shall consist of the following, to be irrevocably contributed by the Grantor: <ol style="list-style-type: none"><li>1. Cash of $2.5 million; and</li><li>2. the Indemnification Funding Note, in the principal amount of $22.5 million.</li></ol> The foregoing contributions are intended to create and maintain a balance of liquid assets in the Indemnity Trust Account of not less than $25 million (the "Indemnity Trust Account Minimum Balance").
Indemnification Funding Note	The Indemnification Funding Note will represent and document the Claimant Trustee's obligation to make additional cash deposits into the Indemnity Trust Account to satisfy the obligations of the Claimant Trust, the Litigation Sub-Trust, and the Reorganized Debtor, each of which will be jointly and severally liable under the Indemnification Funding Note. After the initial funding of principal under the Indemnification Funding Note, the principal balance thereof will at all times equal the amount representing the difference between (i) the Indemnity Trust Account Minimum Balance and (ii) the balance of liquid assets held in the Indemnity Trust Account, as reported on the most recent quarterly statement issued by the Indemnity Trustee.
Withdrawal of Trust Assets	Consistent with the Indemnity Trust's purpose as a collateral mechanism, withdrawals from the Indemnity Trust Account are contemplated only following a tender of for indemnity pursuant to Section 8.2 of the Claimant Trust Agreement and the failure of such Beneficiary to receive payment in full of such indemnity claim from the Claimant Trust within [30] days.
Duration of the Indemnity Trust	The Indemnity Trust will exist and remain in full force and effect until the earlier of (i) the expiry of all indemnification rights under Section 8.2 of the Claimant Trust Agreement, due to expiration of all applicable statutes of limitations (as determined by the Indemnity Trust Administrator, in his sole and absolute discretion), and (ii) the mutual agreement to terminate the Indemnity Trust by the Grantor and the Indemnity Trust Administrator.
Liquidation and Final Distribution of Trust Assets	Upon dissolution and liquidation of the Indemnity Trust, any assets remaining in the Indemnity Trust Account will be transferred to the Claimant Trust; provided, however, if the Claimant Trust is no longer in existence, then such distribution of the Indemnity Trust assets will be made according to the same distribution methodology contemplated in Section 9.2 of the Claimant Trust

<sup>9</sup> The following is by way of summary only. Parties are encouraged to read the entirety of the Term Sheet. In the event that the description set forth herein is in conflict with the Term Sheet, the Term Sheet will control. All terms are subject to change.

Agreement (or the successor to such numbered section) on the effective date of the termination of the Claimant Trust.

Governance of the Indemnity Trust

Consistent with the Indemnity Trust’s purpose as a collateral mechanism, it is not contemplated that the Indemnity Trust will need any comprehensive governance system. For any action contemplated or required in connection with the operation of the Indemnity Trust, and for any guidance or instruction to be provided to the Indemnity Trustee, such function, rights and responsibility shall be vested in the Indemnity Trust Administrator, and the Indemnity Trustee will take written directions from the Indemnity Trust Administrator, in such form specified in the Indemnity Trust Agreement and otherwise satisfactory to the Indemnity Trustee.

Beneficiaries will not be involved in or have any rights with respect to the administration of the Indemnity Trust or have any right to direct the actions of the Indemnity Trustee with respect to the Indemnity Trust or the assets held in the Indemnity Trust Account, other than the Indemnity Trust Administrator in such capacity.”

22. The Debtor believes that it has the support of the Committee with respect to the implementation of the Indemnity Subtrust. However, the Debtor and the Committee are still discussing the terms of the Trust Agreement and the foregoing terms may change. If the terms change, the Debtor will file an updated Term Sheet as necessary.

B. Entry into the Trust Agreement Is an Exercise of the Debtor’s Sound Business Judgment and Should Be Approved

23. The Bankruptcy Code authorizes a debtor, after notice and a hearing, to “use, sell, or lease, other than in the ordinary course of business, property of the estate.” 11 U.S.C. § 363(b)(1). It is well established in this jurisdiction that a debtor may use property of the estate outside the ordinary course of business if there is a good business reason for doing so. See, e.g., Black v. Shor (In re BNP Petroleum Corp.), 642 F. App’x 429, 435 (5th Cir. 2016) (sale of debtors’ assets under section 363(b) of the Bankruptcy Code must “be supported by an articulated business justification, good business judgment, or sound business reasons.”) (quoting Cadle Co. v. Mims (In re Moore), 608 F.3d 253, 263 (5th Cir. 2010)); Petfinders LLC v. Sherman (In re Ondova Ltd), 620 F. App’x 290, 291 (5th Cir. 2015) (sale of debtors’ assets under section 363(b) of the Bankruptcy Code is exercise of the trustee’s sound business judgment”); In re ASARCO, LLC, 441 B.R. 813, 830 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2010) (outside of the ordinary course of business, “for the debtor-in-possession or trustee to satisfy its fiduciary duty to the debtor, creditors, and equity holders, there must be some articulated business justification for using, selling, or leasing the property”) (quoting In re Continental Air Lines, 780 F.2d 1223, 1226 (5th Cir. 1986)), aff’d, 650 F.3d 593 (5th Cir. 2011).

24. To determine whether the business-judgment test is satisfied, courts require “a showing that the proposed course of action will be advantageous to the estate.” In re Pisces Energy, LLC, 2009 Bankr. LEXIS 4709, at *18 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Dec. 21, 2009). In the absence of a showing of bad faith or an abuse of business discretion, a debtor’s business judgment will not be altered. See, e.g., NLRB v. Bildisco & Bildisco (In re Bildisco), 682 F.2d 72, 79 (3d Cir. 1982), aff’d, 465 U.S. 513 (1984); Lubrizol Enter. v. Richmond Metal Finishers, Inc., 756 F.2d 1043, 1047 (4th Cir. 1985). “Great judicial deference is given” to the “exercise of business judgment.” GBL Holding Co. v. Blackburn/Travis/Cole, Ltd. (In re State Park Bldg. Grp.), 331 B.R. 251, 254 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2005).

25. Entry into and performance under the Trust Agreement and the creation of the Indemnity Subtrust is in the best interests of the Debtor’s estate and represents a sound exercise of the Debtor’s business judgment. The Effective Date of the Plan cannot occur unless it is certain that there will be sufficient resources to pay the Indemnification Costs. As the Court is unfortunately aware, the Dondero Entities’ strategy is to sue the Debtor’s current management and post-Effective Date management whenever possible. Mr. Dondero admitted as much during the hearing held on June 8, 2021. The Debtor is therefore under no illusions. There will be Indemnification Costs and, unfortunately, they probably will be significant.

26. For that reason, among others, without the ability to guarantee payment of the Indemnification Costs, the Debtor would not be able to engage competent management to oversee the implementation of the Plan, including the monetization of the Debtor's assets, prosecution of Estate Claims, and, ultimately, distributions to the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries. As discussed above, execution of the Trust Agreement is in lieu of obtaining D&O Insurance which, because of Mr. Dondero's history of litigiousness and his notoriety in the insurance industry could not be obtained in a cost-effective manner.

27. The Indemnity Subtrust (when coupled with the Exit Facility) will allow the Plan to become effective and permit the Reorganized Debtor to monetize its assets and pay allowed claims, as contemplated under the Plan, while the Reorganized Debtor or Litigation Trustee, as applicable, simultaneously pursues Estate Claims and otherwise attempts to recover value for creditors.

28. For these reasons, the Debtor submits that entering into the Trust Agreement and the creation of the Indemnity Subtrust will be an exercise of its sound business judgment, in the best interests of the Debtor's estate, and should be approved.

C. Waiver of the Stay Period Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 6004(h) Is Proper

29. The Indemnity Subtrust is required to promptly implement the Effective Date. Consequently, the Debtor requests that the Court enter an order providing that the Debtor has established cause to exclude the relief requested herein from the fourteen-day stay period provided under Bankruptcy Rule 6004(h). Accordingly, the Debtor requests that the Order authorizing the Debtor to enter into the Trust Agreement be effective immediately upon entry such that the Debtor may proceed to complete the necessary related work to enable the prompt occurrence of the Effective Date.

Notice

30. Notice of this Motion shall be given to the following parties or, in lieu thereof, to their counsel, if known: (a) the Office of the United States Trustee; (b) the Office of the United States Attorney for the Northern District of Texas; (c) the Debtor's principal secured parties; (d) counsel to the Committee; and (e) parties requesting notice pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 2002. The Debtor submits that, in light of the nature of the relief requested, no other or further notice need be given.

[Remainder of Page Intentionally Blank]

WHEREFORE, the Debtor respectfully requests that the Court enter an order, substantially in the form annexed hereto as Exhibit A, granting the relief requested in the Motion and such other and further relief as may be just and proper.

TERM SHEET FOR INDEMNITY TRUST AGREEMENT

This Term Sheet sets forth the basic terms of a proposed trust (the “Indemnity Trust”) to provide collateral security supporting the indemnification obligations specified in (i) Section 8.2 of that certain Claimant Trust Agreement, effective as of [●], 2021 (the “Claimant Trust Agreement”), establishing that certain claimant trust (the “Claimant Trust”) pursuant to the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management L.P (as Modified) (the “Plan”), (ii) Section 8.2 of the Litigation Sub-Trust Agreement, establishing the Litigation Sub-Trust pursuant to the Plan, and (iii) Section 10 of the Reorganized Limited Partnership Agreement (as defined in the Plan), establishing the Reorganized Debtor (as defined in the Plan) pursuant to the Plan. The Indemnity Trust is based on the fundamental premise, as set forth under the Plan and consistent with the Claimant Trust Agreement and related documents, that the indemnification rights under the Claimant Trust are senior priority obligations of the Claimant Trust, relative to the classes of beneficiaries thereunder, and that adequate provision for such indemnification needs to be funded, notwithstanding the timing pursuant to which assets are realized by the Claimant Trust and distributions would otherwise be made to such beneficiaries of the Claimant Trust. The Indemnity Trust is not intended to address any qualifications, requirements or standards for indemnification; such matters are to be addressed solely under and pursuant to the standards set forth in Section 8.2 of the Claimant Trust Agreement, Section 8.2 of the Litigation Sub-Trust Agreement, and Section 10 of the Reorganized Limited Partnership Agreement. This Term Sheet assumes that the Indemnity Trust is intended solely as a collateral mechanism, to fund indemnification claims that were tendered to but not paid by the Claimant Trust, Litigation Sub-Trust or the Reorganized Debtor within a reasonable period of time (thirty (30) days) following such claim being made. Capitalized terms used but not otherwise defined herein shall have the meanings set forth in the Claimant Trust Agreement.

Grantor	Claimant Trust, pursuant to the authority granted under Section 6.1(a) of the Claimant Trust Agreement.
Beneficiaries	The Beneficiaries of the Indemnity Trust shall be the following: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Indemnified Parties under Section 8.2 of the Claimant Trust Agreement and their respective employees, agents and professionals, which are also indemnitees under the same provision;</li> <li>2. “Indemnified Parties” under Section 8.2 of the Litigation Sub-Trust Agreement and their respective employees, agents and professionals, which are also indemnitees under the same provision; and</li> <li>3. “Covered Persons” under Section 10 of the Reorganized Limited Partnership Agreement.</li> </ol>
Indemnity Trustee	A corporate trustee with appropriate trust powers under applicable state and/or federal law.
Indemnity Trust Administrator	James P. Seery, Jr., initially in his capacity as the Claimant Trustee or in his individual capacity if no longer serving as

	the Claimant Trustee. If James P. Seery, Jr. voluntarily resigns or is unable to serve as Indemnity Trust Administrator, his legal successors or assigns. If Cause (as defined in the Claimant Trust Agreement) to remove James P. Seery Jr. or the then current Indemnity Trust Administrator is shown by final order of a court of competent jurisdiction, a successor chosen by the Claimant Trustee. Governance of the Indemnity Trust shall be effected by and through the Indemnity Trust Administrator (see “Governance”).
Indemnity Trust Corpus	At the inception of the Indemnity Trust, the trust corpus shall consist of the following, to be irrevocably contributed by the Grantor: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Cash of $2.5 million; and</li> <li>2. the Indemnification Funding Note, in the principal amount of $22.5 million.</li> </ol> The foregoing contributions are intended to create and maintain a balance of liquid assets in the Indemnity Trust Account of not less than $25 million (the “Indemnity Trust Account Minimum Balance”).
Indemnification Funding Note	The Indemnification Funding Note will represent and document the Claimant Trustee’s obligation to make additional cash deposits into the Indemnity Trust Account to satisfy the obligations of the Claimant Trust, the Litigation Sub-Trust, and the Reorganized Debtor, each of which will be jointly and severally liable under the Indemnification Funding Note; such deposits are intended to ensure proper allocation of the respective assets of the Claimant Trust, the Litigation Sub-Trust and the Reorganized Debtor to the Indemnity Trust upon material monetizations by the Claimant Trust, reflective of the Claimant Trustee’s power to reserve for senior indemnity claims under Section 6.1(a) of the Claimant Trust Agreement. Payments under the Indemnification Funding Note will be senior in priority to any distributions to the Claimant Trust beneficiaries. The initial principal amount of the Indemnification Funding Note will be $22.5 million, representing the extent of the additional collateral to be allocated to the Indemnity Trust, such that the Indemnity Trust Account

	will maintain the Indemnity Trust Account Minimum Balance. The initial principal amount of the Indemnification Funding Note will be paid in full or in part on the earlier of (a) demand for payment from the Indemnity Trust Administrator or (b) the date at which the net asset value (asset value net of liabilities and expense reserves) is less than 200% of the principal amount of the Indemnification Funding Note. Subject to the foregoing, the Claimant Trustee will have sole and absolute discretion to determine the timing and amount of the payments of the initial principal amount of the Indemnification Funding Note consistent with his view of liquidity needs of the Claimant Trust and related entities and the requirements of any financing agreement binding on the Claimant Trust. Upon the Claimant Trustee's determination that such a payment should be made, the amount of the payment shall be due within five (5) days of such a determination. After the initial funding of principal under the Indemnification Funding Note, the principal balance thereof will at all times equal the amount representing the difference between (i) the Indemnity Trust Account Minimum Balance and (ii) the balance of liquid assets held in the Indemnity Trust Account, as reported on the most recent quarterly statement issued by the Indemnity Trustee. Such principal balance of the Indemnification Funding Note will be documented by the Indemnity Trust Administrator and will be paid in full, in a manner determined by the Claimant Trustee consistent with the procedures set forth in the immediately preceding paragraph hereof. For the avoidance of doubt, the foregoing payments under the Indemnification Funding Note will be senior to any distribution to beneficiaries under the Claimant Trust. In the event that the liquid assets of the Claimant Trust are insufficient to satisfy the foregoing payments, the Claimant Trustee must take all reasonable action to satisfy such obligations under the Indemnification Funding Note, including accessing any available credit lines or third-party leverage, and no current payments to Claimant Trust beneficiaries will be made until all current amounts due under the Indemnification Funding Note have been made. Consistent with the foregoing, upon written request of the Indemnity Trust Administrator, the Claimant Trustee shall provide collateral to secure any amounts due or which may become due under the Indemnification Funding Note, including the posting of a bank letter of

	credit, under terms acceptable to the Indemnity Trust Administrator. The Indemnification Funding Note will not bear interest, other than that which must be imputed under applicable law. All amounts due under the Indemnification Funding Note shall be absolute, regardless of their characterization.
Indemnity Trust Account	A custodial account to be maintained/held by the Indemnity Trustee. The trust corpus and other assets of the Indemnity Trust shall be held in such Indemnity Trust Account maintained by the Indemnity Trustee, for the benefit of the Beneficiaries. Any investment income (see “Investment of Trust Assets”) shall be retained in the Indemnity Trust Account and will be included in the balance of Indemnity Trust Corpus. Any investment income, investment loss and Withdrawals of Trust Assets will be included in the determination of whether the Indemnity Trust Account Minimum Balance has been achieved (see “Indemnification Funding Note”).
Reports and Account Statements	The Indemnity Trustee will provide comprehensive Indemnity Trust Account statements to the Beneficiaries and the Indemnity Trust Administrator on a quarterly basis, beginning at inception. Such statements will include the balance of the assets held in the Indemnity Trust Account as of the subject reporting date, plus a full accounting of all deposits (including amounts collected under the Indemnification Funding Note and any investment income) and any withdrawals/distributions made during the subject period and the effect of any investment losses. Such statements may be redacted for any sensitive information, as determined by the Indemnity Trust Administrator, in his sole and absolute discretion.
Withdrawal of Trust Assets	Consistent with the Indemnity Trust’s purpose as a collateral mechanism, withdrawals from the Indemnity Trust Account are contemplated only following a tender of for indemnity pursuant to Section 8.2 of the Claimant Trust Agreement, Section 8.2 of the Litigation Sub Trust Agreement, or the Reorganized Limited Partnership Agreement and the failure of such Beneficiary to receive payment in full of such indemnity claim from the Claimant Trust within 30 days. It is expressly contemplated that in the ordinary course of their respective businesses, the Claimant Trust, the Litigation Sub-Trust, and the Reorganized Debtor will pay the costs and expenses of

	defending indemnified claims as well as the amount of any such claims if successful. The Indemnity Trust will serve as a source of indemnification for such claims as provided herein in the event that any of the Claimant Trust, the Litigation Sub-Trust, or the Reorganized Debtor, as the case may be, does not pay such claims. A request for withdrawal of assets from the Indemnity Trust Account must be presented to the Indemnity Trustee, with a copy to the Indemnity Trust Administrator, and must be accompanied by an written certification of the following: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. A claim for indemnification was made under Section 8.2 of the Claimant Trust Agreement, Section 8.2 of the Litigation Sub Trust Agreement, or the Reorganized Limited Partnership Agreement, accompanied by a copy of such claim and all underlying documentation.</li> <li>2. The Beneficiary did not receive full payment with respect to such indemnification claim with 30 days.</li> </ol> Following the receipt of the above information, the Indemnity Trust Administrator will issue a withdrawal/distribution order to the Indemnity Trustee, with a copy to the claiming Beneficiary. Upon receipt of such order, the Indemnity Trustee will pay the full amount of the requested distribution to the subject Beneficiary; such payment will be made within 3 business days of receipt. In the event that a claiming Beneficiary receives payment with respect to the subject indemnity claim from the Claimant Trust or any other source, such Beneficiary must promptly notify the Indemnity Trustee and the Indemnity Trust Administrator, and the subject request for payment from the Indemnity Trust will be revised accordingly; to the extent that any such amounts were already received from the Indemnity Trust, such amounts must be repaid to the Indemnity Trust Account, without interest.
Duration of the Indemnity Trust	The Indemnity Trust will exist and remain in full force and effect until the earlier of (i) the expiry of all indemnification rights under Section 8.2 of the Claimant Trust Agreement, Section 8.2 of the Litigation Sub Trust Agreement, and the Reorganized Limited Partnership Agreement due to expiration of all applicable statutes of limitations (as determined by the Indemnity Trust Administrator, in his sole and absolute discretion), and (ii)

	the mutual agreement to terminate the Indemnity Trust by the Grantor and the Indemnity Trust Administrator. For the avoidance of doubt, neither the liquidation or termination of the Claimant Trust nor the legal existence of the Grantor or any other party thereto will have any effect on the legal existence of the Indemnity Trust.
Wind-down	Upon the determination of the Indemnity Trust Administrator that the Claimant Trust has substantially completed its efforts to monetize and distribute its assets or such earlier date that the Indemnity Trust Administrator shall determine, the Indemnity Trust Administrator and the Claimant Trust Oversight Committee shall work in good faith to replace the Indemnity Funding Note with a suitable third-party insurance policy.
Liquidation and Final Distribution of Trust Assets	Upon dissolution and liquidation of the Indemnity Trust, any assets remaining in the Indemnity Trust Account will be transferred to the Claimant Trust; provided, however, if the Claimant Trust is no longer in existence, then such distribution of the Indemnity Trust assets will be made according to the same distribution methodology contemplated in Section 9.2 of the Claimant Trust Agreement (or the successor to such numbered section) on the effective date of the termination of the Claimant Trust.
Limitations on Transferability	A beneficial interest in the Indemnity Trust may not be transferred, assigned or hypothecated without the consent of the Indemnity Trust Administrator in his sole and absolute discretion, provided that such transfer, assignment or hypothecation does not confer upon such assignee status as a Beneficiary under the Indemnity Trust. The Indemnity Trust Administrator may impose such conditions and other terms upon any transfer, assignment or hypothecation as he considers appropriate, in his sole and absolute discretion. In the event of an assignment, the foregoing limitations on transferability will continue to apply in all respects to such beneficial interest and will be binding on the assignee of such beneficial interest.
Governance of the Indemnity Trust	Consistent with the Indemnity Trust’s purpose as a collateral mechanism, it is not contemplated that the Indemnity Trust will need any comprehensive governance system. For any action contemplated or required in connection with the operation of the Indemnity Trust, and for any guidance or instruction to be provided to the Indemnity Trustee, such function, rights and responsibility shall be vested in the Indemnity Trust Administrator, and the Indemnity Trustee will take written directions from the

	Indemnity Trust Administrator, in such form specified in the Indemnity Trust Agreement and otherwise satisfactory to the Indemnity Trustee. Consistent with the foregoing, the Indemnity Trust Administrator shall have the power to take any actions the Indemnity Trust Administrator, in his sole and absolute discretion, deems desirable or necessary in connection with the operation of the Indemnity Trust. The Indemnity Trust Administrator will have the power and authority to retain such experts and other advisors, including financial consultants and legal counsel, as he considers appropriate to address any matter relating to the Indemnity Trust. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, to the extent the Indemnity Trust Administrator identifies any conflict of interest in his roles as the Claimant Trustee, on the one hand, and the Indemnity Trust Administrator, on the other, or otherwise relating to the Indemnity Trust, the Indemnity Trust Administrator may retain such experts, including legal counsel, as he, in his sole and absolute discretion, considers appropriate to evaluate and resolve any such conflict of interest. The cost of any such advisors/experts/counsel will be paid by the Claimant Trust, and if not paid in a timely fashion, can represent a claim for indemnity under the Indemnity Trust Agreement (see “Withdrawal of Trust Assets”). Beneficiaries will not be involved in or have any rights with respect to the administration of the Indemnity Trust or have any right to direct the actions of the Indemnity Trustee with respect to the Indemnity Trust or the assets held in the Indemnity Trust Account, other than the Indemnity Trust Administrator in such capacity.”
Indemnification of Indemnity Trustee	The Indemnity Trustee and the Indemnity Trust Administrator will be provided customary indemnification rights typical for a collateral trust of this type.
Nature and Evidence of Beneficial Interest	A beneficial interest in the Indemnity Trust will not entitle a Beneficiary to any direct right, title or interest in or to the specific assets held in the Indemnity Trust Account, and no Beneficiary will have any right to call for a partition or division of such assets. A beneficial interest in the Indemnity Trust will not be evidenced by any certificate, security, receipt or any other instrument. The Indemnity Trust Administrator will maintain a record of the Beneficiaries and their respective beneficial interests in the Indemnity Trust.

	Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Indemnity Trustee or the Indemnity Trust Administrator will be authorized to provide evidence of beneficiary status upon request by a Beneficiary.
Investment of Trust Assets	The cash or other liquid assets in the Indemnity Trust Account will be invested in a manner consistent with that set forth in Section 3.4 of the Claimant Trust Agreement; provided, however, the approval of the Oversight Board will not be needed. Such investment function will be overseen by the Indemnity Trust Administrator and effected by the Indemnity Trustee.
Governing Law	The Indemnity Trust Agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of Delaware.
Venue	Each of the parties consents and submits to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court of the Northern District of Texas for any action or proceeding instituted for the enforcement and construction of any right, remedy, obligation, or liability arising under or by reason of this Indemnity Trust Agreement or any act or omission of the Indemnity Trustee (acting in his capacity as the Indemnity Trustee or in any other capacity contemplated by this Indemnity Trust Agreement); provided, however, that if the Bankruptcy Court either declines to exercise jurisdiction over such action or cannot exercise jurisdiction over such action, such action may be brought in the state or federal courts located in the Northern District of Texas

RELATED RELIEF

Upon the Debtor’s Motion for Entry of an Order (i) Authorizing the (A) Creation of an Indemnity Subtrust and (b) Entry into an Indemnity Trust Agreement and (ii) Granting Related Relief (the “Motion”),<sup>1</sup> and the Court finding that: (i) this Court has jurisdiction over this matter

pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334; (ii) venue is proper pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409; (iii) this is a core proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2); (iv) due and sufficient notice of the Motion has been given; (v) entry into the Trust Agreement and the consummation of the transactions contemplated thereby is an exercise of the Debtor's sound business judgment; and (vi) it appearing that the relief requested in the Motion is necessary and in the best interests of the Debtor's estate and creditors; and good and sufficient cause appearing therefor, it is hereby

ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED that:

1. The Motion is GRANTED as set forth herein and as modified on the record to provide that the Indemnification Note will be unsecured.

2. Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 363(b) and 105(a), the Debtor is authorized (i) to enter into and perform under the Trust Agreement and consummate the transactions contemplated thereby, including the creation of the Indemnity Subtrust., and (ii) to negotiate, prepare, execute, and deliver all documents and take such other action as may be necessary or appropriate to implement, effectuate, and fully perform its obligations as and when they are incurred and come due under the Trust Agreement.

3. The terms and provisions of this Order shall be binding in all respects upon all parties in this chapter 11 case, the Debtor, its estate, and all successors and assigns thereof.

4. Notwithstanding the possible applicability of Bankruptcy Rule 6004(h) or otherwise, the terms and conditions of this Order shall be immediately effective and enforceable upon its entry.

5. The Debtor is authorized to take all actions necessary to effectuate the relief granted in this Order in accordance with the Motion.

6. This Court retains exclusive jurisdiction with respect to all matters arising from or related to the implementation, interpretation, and enforcement of this Order.

APPELLANT RECORD

with respect to its appeal of the Order Granting Motion to Dismiss Adversary Proceeding in which Contingent Interest Holders in Chapter 11 Plan Trust Seek a Post-Confirmation Valuation of Trust Assets [Doc.26-27] which was entered by the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas on May 24, 2024.

I. STATEMENT OF ISSUES TO BE PRESENTED ON APPEAL

1. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred in granting The Highland Parties' Motion to Dismiss Complaint to (I) Compel Disclosures About the Assets of the Highland Claimant Trust and (II) Determine (A) Relative Value of Those Assets, and (B) Nature of Plaintiffs' Interests in the Claimant Trust.
2. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred by dismissing Count I under Rule 12(b)(6) based on the Bankruptcy Court's finding that Appellants could not prove any facts that would entitle them to the relief that they sought when the Appellants properly alleged that they have a legal and equitable right to information under the Claimant Trust Agreement and under Delaware and Texas law.
3. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred by dismissing Count II because it was predicated on Count I and was therefore not justiciable under Rule 12(h)(3) when Count I was improperly dismissed.
4. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred by dismissing Count III because it was predicated on Count I and was therefore not justiciable under Rule 12(b)(1) when Count I was improperly dismissed.
5. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred in dismissing Count III because the Bankruptcy Court found that Appellants were asking it to issue an opinion based on a set of hypothetical facts and was therefore not justiciable under Rule 12(b)(1) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction when Count III seeks only a declaration that the Claimant Trust assets exceed the obligations of the bankruptcy estate or must be deemed to do so such that Appellants' contingent trust interests are effectively vested, or as an equitable matter, must be treated as vested because the putative defendants are preventing the conditions for formal vesting from occurring.

SEEKING RELIEF PURSUANT TO FEDERAL RULES OF BANKRUPTCY
PROCEDURE 7052, 9023, AND 9024

On September 8, 2023, Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (“HMIT”) filed its Motion to Alter or Amend Order, To Amend or Make Additional Findings, for Relief from Order, or, Alternatively, for New Trial Under Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure 7052, 9023, and 9024 and Incorporated Brief (hereinafter, the “Motion”).<sup>1</sup> In the Motion, HMIT requests that the court alter or amend its findings set forth in its 105-page Memorandum Opinion and Order, dated August

25, 2023 (hereinafter, the “Order Denying HMIT’s Motion for Leave”)<sup>2</sup> in which this court, in the exercise of its “gatekeeping” function pursuant to the Gatekeeper Provision<sup>3</sup> of the Debtors’ confirmed Plan<sup>4</sup> and pre-confirmation Gatekeeper Orders, denied HMIT’s Emergency Motion for Leave To File Verified Adversary Proceeding.<sup>5</sup> The Order Denying HMIT’s Motion for Leave was issued following an evidentiary hearing on June 8, 2023.

HMIT now wants the bankruptcy court to reconsider certain findings and conclusions (or make additional ones—or even grant a new hearing) with regard to the Order Denying HMIT’s Motion for Leave—specifically pertaining to the subject of HMIT’s lack of standing (which was one of multiple reasons the court gave for issuing the Order Denying HMIT’s Motion for Leave). The ground articulated by HMIT is as follows: “because post-hearing financial disclosure filings in the bankruptcy matter further evidence [sic] that the court’s standing determinations are incorrect and should be corrected.” Motion, at ¶ 3.<sup>6</sup> In other words, HMIT suggests that certain “post-hearing financial disclosure filings” filed in the main Highland bankruptcy case by the Reorganized Debtor (on July 6, 2023<sup>7</sup> and July 21, 2023<sup>8</sup>) somehow now demonstrate that HMIT, indeed, has standing to pursue the adversary proceeding that it sought leave to file.

The Motion is denied. First, the court sees no reasonable grounds to reopen the record with these “post-hearing financial disclosures.” For one thing, the “post-hearing financial disclosure filings” are not materially different than information that was already on file in the bankruptcy

<sup>3</sup> Capitalized terms not otherwise defined herein shall have the meaning ascribed to them in the Order Denying HMIT’s Motion for Leave.

<sup>6</sup> HMIT attached the “post-hearing financial disclosure filings in the bankruptcy matter” as exhibits to the Motion. See Exhibits 2 and 3 to the Motion.

case for all to see, before the June 8, 2023 hearing. See Bankr. Dkt. Nos. 3756 & 3757 (routine Post-Confirmation Reports, filed by the Reorganized Debtor on April 21, 2023, which show liabilities, disbursements, and “Remaining investments, notes, and other assets”—albeit without specific values ascribed to the latter). So, to the extent HMIT is arguing that the “post-hearing financial disclosure filings” are something akin to newly discovered evidence or otherwise a ground for granting a new hearing or altering findings, HMIT’s argument lacks merit. Moreover, even if this court were to consider the “post-hearing financial disclosure filings,” the court disagrees with HMIT’s central argument that they demonstrate that HMIT’s contingent interest is “in the money” and, thus, that it has both constitutional and prudential standing to pursue the adversary proceeding it wants to file. Notably, HMIT does not give proper attention to the voluminous supplemental notes in the “post-hearing financial disclosure filings” that are integral to understanding the numbers therein. For example, as mentioned in Note 5 therein, the administrative expenses and legal fees of the Reorganized Highland and the post-confirmation trust continue to deplete their assets, due to the fact that “(b) approximately twenty (20) matters are being actively litigated in at least 9 different forums; and (c) based on history, new litigation can be expected.” This significant and widespread litigation results in massive indemnification obligations, as well as massive, continuing legal fees and expenses. The assets shown in the “post-hearing financial disclosure filings” will only be available for distribution after satisfaction of all legal fees and expenses and indemnity obligations. As also noted in Note 5 therein, it is expected that the Highland post-confirmation trust and its subsidiaries will operate at an operating loss prospectively. The information in the “adjustments” column of the assets section of the post-hearing financial disclosures “does not assume any expected future operating cash burn, which is expected to be significant.” Additionally, as indicated in Note 6, sometimes Highland has been unable to obtain full and complete information regarding asset values for inclusion in the post-hearing financial disclosures—thus impacting the accuracy of some valuations used. For example,

The value of SE Multifamily Holdings LLC maintained on this balance sheet is $15.7 million, which is a component of the “Investments” line item and is based on a several years stale book-basis balance sheet. Notwithstanding Dondero-entities’ previous disclosures of this interest at values of $20 million and $12 million, Highland also received interest from Dondero to acquire the interest for $3.8 million, among other assets. . . . Highland has initiated proceedings in Delaware to receive books and records relating to SE Multifamily Holdings LLC, for which it has the contractual right and has been seeking for approximately a year, but for which Dondero controlled entities have not provided to date.

In summary, HMIT argues no reasonable grounds to justify any of the relief sought in the Motion.

Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED that the Motion be, and hereby is, DENIED.

[BANKR. DKT. NOS. 3699, 3760, 3815, and 3816]

I. INTRODUCTION

BEFORE THIS COURT is yet another post-confirmation dispute relating to the Chapter 11 bankruptcy case of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“Highland” or “Reorganized Debtor”).

<sup>1</sup> On August 2, 2023, this court signed an Order [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3897] that was agreed to among various parties, after the filing of a Motion to Stay and Compel Mediation [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3752] filed by James D. Dondero and related entities. Pursuant to paragraph 7 of that order, certain pending matters in the bankruptcy court are stayed pending mediation. The parties did not agree to stay the matter addressed in this Memorandum Opinion and Order.

It is now more than two and half years since the confirmation of Highland’s Plan<sup>2</sup>—the Plan having been confirmed on February 22, 2021.<sup>3</sup> The Plan was never stayed; it went effective on August 11, 2021 (“Effective Date”), and it was affirmed almost in its entirety by the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit (“Fifth Circuit”), in late summer 2022, including an approval of the so-called Gatekeeper Provision<sup>4</sup> therein. The Gatekeeper Provision—and how and whether it should now be exercised or interpreted to allow a certain lawsuit to be filed—is at the heart of the current Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding [Bankr. Dkt. Nos. 3699, 3760, 3815, 3816] (collectively, the “Motion for Leave”) filed by a movant known as Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (“HMIT”).

A. Who is the Movant, HMIT?

Who is HMIT? It is undisputed that it is a former equity owner of Highland. It held 99.5% of Highland’s Class B/C limited partnership interests and was classified in a Class 10 under the confirmed Plan, which class treatment provided it with a contingent interest in the Highland Claimant Trust (“Claimant Trust”) created under the Plan, and as defined in the Claimant Trust Agreement. This means that HMIT could receive consideration under the Plan if all claims against Highland are ultimately paid in full, with interest. As later further discussed, it is undisputed that

<sup>4</sup> In an initial opinion dated August 19, 2022, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the Confirmation Order in large part, “revers[ing] only insofar as the plan exculpates certain non-debtors in violation of 11 U.S.C. § 524(e), strik[ing] those few parties from the plan’s exculpation, and affirm[ing] on all remaining grounds.” In re Highland Capital Management, L.P., No. 21-10449, 2022 WL 3571094, at *1 (5th Cir. Aug. 19, 2022). On September 7, 2022, following a petition for limited panel rehearing filed by certain appellants on September 2, 2022, “for the limited purpose of clarifying and confirming one part of its August 19, 2022 opinion,” the Fifth Circuit withdrew its original opinion and replaced it with its opinion reported at NexPoint Advisors, L.P. v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P. (In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P.), 48 F.4th 419, 424 (5th Cir. 2022). The substituted opinion differed from the original opinion only by the replacement of one sentence from section “IV(E)(2) – Injunction and Gatekeeper Provisions” of the original opinion: “The injunction and gatekeeper provisions are, on the other hand, perfectly lawful.” was replaced with “We now turn to the Plan’s injunction and gatekeeper provisions.” In all other respects, the Fifth Circuit panel’s original ruling remained unchanged. Petitions for writs of certiorari regarding the Confirmation Order have been pending at the United States Supreme Court since January 2023.

HMIT's only asset is its contingent interest in the Claimant Trust. It has no employees or revenue. HMIT's representative has testified that HMIT is liable on more than $62 million of indebtedness owed to The Dugaboy Investment Trust ("Dugaboy"), a family trust of which James Dondero ("Dondero"), the co-founder and former chief executive officer ("CEO") of Highland, and his family members are beneficiaries, and that Dugaboy also is paying HMIT's legal fees. HMIT vehemently disputes the suggestion that it is controlled by Dondero.

B. What Does the Movant HMIT Seek Leave to File?

HMIT seeks leave to file an adversary proceeding ("Proposed Complaint")<sup>5</sup> in the bankruptcy court to bring claims on behalf of itself and, derivatively, on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust for alleged breach of fiduciary duties by the Reorganized Debtor's CEO and Claimant Trustee, James P. Seery, Jr. ("Seery") and conspiracy against: (1) Seery; and (2) purchasers of $365 million face amount of allowed unsecured claims in this case, who purchased their claims post-confirmation but prior to the occurrence of the Effective Date of the Plan ("Claims Purchasers,"<sup>6</sup> and with Seery, the "Proposed Defendants"). To be clear (and as later further explained), the claims acquired by the Claims Purchasers were acquired by them after extensive litigation, mediation, and settlements were approved by the bankruptcy court and after the original claims-holders had voted on the Plan and after Plan confirmation. As later explained,

<sup>5</sup> In its original Motion for Leave filed at Bankruptcy Docket No. 3699 on March 28, 2023, HMIT sought leave to file the proposed complaint ("Initial Proposed Complaint") attached as Exhibit 1 to the Motion for Leave. Nearly a month later, on April 23, 2023, HMIT filed a Supplement to Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding ("Supplement") [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3760], a revised proposed complaint as Exhibit 1-A, and stating that "[t]he Supplement is not intended to supersede the [Motion for Leave]; rather, it is intended as a supplement to address procedural matters and to bring forth additional facts that further confirm the appropriateness of the derivative action." Supplement, ¶ 1 and Exhibit 1-A. It is this revised proposed complaint to which this court will refer, when it uses the defined term "Proposed Complaint," even though HMIT filed redacted versions of its Motion for Leave on June 5, 2023 at Bankruptcy Docket Nos. 3815 and 3816 that attached the Initial Proposed Complaint as Exhibit 1.

<sup>6</sup> The Claims Purchasers identified in the Proposed Complaint are Farallon Capital Management, LLC ("Farallon"); Muck Holdings, LLC ("Muck"), which is a special purpose entity created by Farallon to purchase allowed unsecured claims against Highland; Stonehill Capital Management, LLC ("Stonehill"); and Jessup Holdings, LLC ("Jessup"), which is a special purpose entity created by Stonehill to purchase allowed unsecured claims against Highland.

the Claims Purchasers filed notices of their purchases as required by Bankruptcy Rule 3001(e)(2), and no objections were filed thereto. In any event, various damages or remedies are sought against the Proposed Defendants revolving around the Claims Purchasers' claims purchasing activities.

C. Why Does HMIT Need to Seek Leave?

As alluded to above, HMIT filed its Motion for Leave to comply with the provision in the Plan known as a "gatekeeper" provision ("Gatekeeper Provision") and with this court's prior gatekeeper orders entered in January and July 2020, which all require that, before a party may commence or pursue claims relating to the bankruptcy case against certain protected parties, it must first obtain (1) a finding from the bankruptcy court that its proposed claims ("Proposed Claims") are "colorable"; and (2) specific authorization by the bankruptcy court to pursue the Proposed Claims.<sup>7</sup> The Gatekeeper Provision was not included in the Plan sans raison. Indeed, as the Fifth Circuit recognized in affirming confirmation of the Plan, the Gatekeeper Provision (along with the other "protection provisions" in the Plan) had been included in the Plan to address the "continued litigiousness" of Mr. James Dondero ("Dondero"), Highland's co-founder and former chief executive officer ("CEO"), that began prepetition and escalated following the post-petition "nasty breakup" between Highland and Dondero, by "screen[ing] and prevent[ing] bad-faith litigation against Highland Capital, its successors, and other bankruptcy participants that could disrupt the Plan's effectiveness."<sup>8</sup>

<sup>7</sup> To be clear, the Gatekeeper Provision in the Plan was not the first or even second injunction of its type issued in this bankruptcy case. The Gatekeeper Orders were entered by the bankruptcy court pre-confirmation: (a) in January 2020, just a few months into the case, as part of this court's order approving a corporate governance settlement between Highland and its unsecured creditors committee, in which Dondero, Highland's co-founder and former CEO, was removed from any management role at Highland and three independent directors ("Independent Directors") were appointed in lieu of a chapter 11 trustee being appointed ("January 2020 Order"); and (b) in July 2020, in this court's order authorizing the employment of Seery (one of the three Independent Directors) as the Debtor's new Chief Executive Officer, Chief Restructuring Officer, and Foreign Representative ("July 2020 Order," together with the January 2020 Order, the "Gatekeeper Orders").

Since confirmation of the Plan, hundreds of millions of dollars have been paid out to creditors under the Plan, and there are numerous adversary proceedings and contested matters still pending, at various stages of litigation, in the bankruptcy court, the district court, and the Fifth Circuit, almost exclusively involving Dondero and entities that he owns or controls. To be sure, the post-confirmation litigation in this case does not consist of the usual adversaries and contested matters one typically sees by and against a reorganized debtor and/or litigation trustee, such as preference or other avoidance actions and litigation over objections to claims that are still pending after confirmation of a plan. Indeed, the claims of the largest creditors in this case (with claims asserted in the aggregate of more than one billion dollars) were successfully mediated and incorporated into the Plan—a plan which was ultimately accepted by the votes of an overwhelming majority of Highland’s non-insider creditors. Dondero and entities under his control were the only parties who appealed the Confirmation Order, and Dondero and entities under his control have been the appellants in virtually every appeal that has been filed regarding this bankruptcy case. Petitions for writs of mandamus (which have been denied) have been filed in the district court and in the Fifth Circuit by some of these same entities, including one by HMIT, when this court denied setting an emergency hearing on the instant Motion for Leave (HMIT had sought a setting on three-days’ notice).

A recent list of active matters involving Dondero and/or entities and/or individuals affiliated or associated with him, filed in the bankruptcy case by Highland and the Claimant Trust, reveals that there were at least 30 pending and “Active Dondero-Related Litigation” matters as of July 14, 2023: six (6) proceedings in this court; six (6) active appeals or actions are pending in the District Court for the Northern District of Texas; seven (7) appeals in the Fifth Circuit; two (2)

petitions for writs of certiorari in the United States Supreme Court; and nine (9) other proceedings or actions with or affecting the Highland Parties (“Highland,” the “Claimant Trust,” and “Seery”) in various other state, federal, and foreign jurisdictions.<sup>9</sup>

The above-described context is included because the Proposed Defendants assert that the Motion for Leave is just a continuation of Dondero’s unrelenting barrage of meritless and harassing litigation, making good on his oft-mentioned alleged threat to “burn down the place” after not achieving the results he wanted in the Highland bankruptcy case. Indeed, the Motion for Leave was filed after two years of unsuccessful attempts by, first, Dondero personally, and then HMIT to obtain pre-suit discovery from the Proposed Defendants (i.e., the Claims Purchasers) through two different Texas state court proceedings, pursuant to Tex. R. Civ. P. 202 (“Rule 202”). In each of these Rule 202 proceedings, Dondero and HMIT espoused the same Seery/Claims

<sup>9</sup> See Bankr. Dkt. No. 3880 (filed on July 14, 2023, providing a list of “Active Dondero-Related Litigation” and noting that the list is “a summary of active pending actions only and does not include actions that were resolved by final orders, including actions finally resolved after appeals to the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas and/or the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.”). Just since the filing by the Highland Parties of the list, three of the appeals pending in the Fifth Circuit have been decided against the Dondero-related appellants, two of which upheld the district court’s dismissal of appeals by Dondero-related entities of bankruptcy court orders based on the lack of bankruptcy appellate standing on behalf of the appellant. On July 19, 2023, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the district court’s dismissal of an appeal by NexPoint Advisors, L.P. (“NexPoint”) of bankruptcy court orders approving professional compensation on the basis that NexPoint did not meet the bankruptcy appellate standing test of being a “person aggrieved” by the entry of the orders. NexPoint Advisors, L.P. v. Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones, L.L.P. (In re Highland Capital Management, L.P.), 74 F.4th 361 (5th Cir. 2023). On July 31, 2023, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the district court’s dismissal of an appeal by Dugaboy—the Dondero family trust that, like the movant here in this Motion for Leave, was the holder of a limited partnership interest in Highland, and, as such, now has a contingent interest in the Claimant Trust—which had appealed a bankruptcy court order approving a Rule 9019 settlement on the same basis: Dugaboy did not meet the bankruptcy appellate standing test of being a “person aggrieved” by the entry of the settlement order. The Dugaboy Inv. Tr. v. Highland Capital Mgt., L.P. (In re Highland Capital Mgt., L.P.), No. 22-10960, 2023 WL 4861770 (5th Cir. July 31, 2023). The July 31, 2023 ruling followed the Fifth Circuit’s ruling on February 21, 2023, affirming the district court’s dismissal of an appeal by Dugaboy of yet another bankruptcy court order for lack of bankruptcy appellate standing. The Dugaboy Inv. Tr. v. Highland Capital Mgt., L.P. (In re Highland Capital Mgt., L.P.), No. 22-10831, 2023 WL 2263022 (5th Cir. Feb. 28, 2023). These rulings by the Fifth Circuit are discussed in greater detail below. The third ruling by the Fifth Circuit since July 14, 2023, was issued by the Fifth Circuit in a per curium opinion not designated for publication on July 26, 2023, this one affirming the district court’s affirmance of yet another Rule 9019 settlement order of the bankruptcy court that was appealed by Dugaboy, agreeing with the district court that the bankruptcy court had jurisdiction to approve a settlement among the Debtor, an entity affiliated with the Debtor but not a debtor itself, and UBS (the Debtor’s largest prepetition creditor and the seller of its claims to the Claims Purchasers, which is one of the claims trading transactions HMIT complains about in the Proposed Complaint). See The Dugaboy Inv. Tr. v. Highland Capital Mgt., L.P., No. 22-10983, 2023 WL 4842320 (5th Cir. July 26, 2023).

Purchasers conspiracy theory espoused in the Motion for Leave—that Seery must have provided one or more of the Claims Purchasers with material nonpublic information to induce them to want to purchase large, allowed, unsecured claims at a discount; a quid pro quo is suggested, such that the Claims Purchasers were allegedly told they would make a hefty profit on the claims they purchased and, in return, they would gladly “rubber stamp” Seery’s “excessive compensation” as the Claimant Trustee of the Claimant Trust. In sum, HMIT alleges this constituted wrongful “insider trading” of the bankruptcy claims. In addition, certain lawyers for Dondero and Dugaboy sent letters reporting this alleged conspiracy and “insider trading” to the Texas State Securities Board (“TSSB”) and the Executive Office of the United States Trustee (“EOUST”).

It is against this background and in this context that the court must analyze, in the exercise of its gatekeeping function under the confirmed Plan and its prior Gatekeeping Orders, whether HMIT should be allowed to pursue the Proposed Claims (i.e., whether the Proposed Claims are “colorable” claims as contemplated under the Gatekeeper Orders and the Gatekeeper Provision of the Plan). The court held an evidentiary hearing on the Motion for Leave on June 8, 2023 (“June 8 Hearing”), during which the court admitted exhibits and heard testimony from three witnesses both in support of and in opposition to the Motion for Leave. Having considered the Motion for Leave, the response of the Proposed Defendants thereto, HMIT’s reply to the response, and the arguments and evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave, the court denies HMIT’s request for leave to pursue its Proposed Claims. The court’s reasoning is set forth below.

II. BACKGROUND

A. Highland’s Bankruptcy Case, Dondero’s Removal as CEO, and the Plan

Highland was co-founded in Dallas in 1993 by Dondero and Mark Okada (“Okada”). It operated as a global investment adviser that provided investment management and advisory services and managed billions of dollars of assets, both directly and indirectly through numerous affiliates. Highland’s equity interest holders included HMIT (99.5%), Dugaboy (0.1866%), Okada, personally and through trusts (0.0627%), and Strand Advisors, Inc. (“Strand”), which was wholly owned by Dondero and was the only general partner of Highland (0.25%). On October 16, 2019 (the “Petition Date”), Highland, with Dondero in control<sup>10</sup> and acting as its CEO, president, and portfolio manager, and facing a myriad of massive, business litigation claims – many of which had finally become or were about to be liquidated (after a decade or more of contentious litigation in multiple fora all over the world—filed for relief under chapter 11 of the United States Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware. The bankruptcy case was transferred to the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division in December 2019. The official committee of unsecured creditors (the “Committee”) (and later, the United States Trustee) expressed a desire for the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee due to concerns over and distrust of Dondero, his numerous conflicts of interest, and his history of alleged mismanagement (and perhaps worse).

After many weeks under the specter of a possible appointment of a trustee, Highland and the Committee engaged in substantial and lengthy negotiations, resulting in a corporate governance settlement approved by this court on January 9, 2020.<sup>11</sup> As a result of this settlement, Dondero relinquished control of Highland and resigned his positions as officer or director of Highland and its general partner, Strand,<sup>12</sup> and three independent directors (“Independent Directors”) were

<sup>11</sup> This order is hereinafter referred to as the “January 2020 Order” and was entered by the court on January 9, 2020 [Bankr. Dkt. No. 339] pursuant to the Motion of the Debtor to Approve Settlement with Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding the Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operation in the Ordinary Course [Bankr. Dkt. No. 281].

<sup>12</sup> Dondero agreed to this settlement pursuant to a stipulation he executed and that was filed in connection with Highland’s motion to approve the settlement. See Stipulation in Support of Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement With the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in Ordinary Course [Bankr. Dkt. No. 338].

chosen to lead Highland through its chapter 11 case: Seery, John S. Dubel, and retired bankruptcy judge Russell Nelms. Given the Debtor’s perceived culture of constant litigation while Dondero was at the helm, it was purportedly not easy to get such highly qualified persons to serve as independent board members. At the hearing on the corporate governance settlement motion, the court heard credible testimony that none of the Independent Directors would have taken on the role without (1) an adequate directors and officers’ (“D&O”) insurance policy protecting them; (2) indemnification from Strand that would be guaranteed by the Debtor; (3) exculpation from mere negligence claims; and (4) a gatekeeper provision prohibiting the commencement of litigation against the Independent Directors without the bankruptcy court’s prior authority. The gatekeeper provision approved by the court in its January 9 Order states,<sup>13</sup>

No entity may commence or pursue a claim or cause of action of any kind against any Independent Director, any Independent Director’s agents, or any Independent Director’s advisors relating in any way to the Independent Director’s role as an independent director of Strand without the Court (i) first determining after notice that such claim or cause of action represents a colorable claim of willful misconduct or gross negligence against Independent Director, any Independent Director’s agents, or any Independent Director’s advisors and (ii) specifically authorizing such entity to bring such claim. The Court will have sole jurisdiction to adjudicate any such claim for which approval of the Court to commence or pursue has been granted.

Dondero agreed to remain with Highland as an unpaid portfolio manager following his resignation and did so “subject at all times to the supervision, direction and authority of the Independent Directors” and to his agreement to “resign immediately” “[i]n the event the Independent Directors determine for any reason that the Debtor shall no longer retain Dondero as an employee”<sup>14</sup> and to “not cause any Related Entity to terminate any agreements with the Debtor.”<sup>15</sup> The court later entered, on July 16, 2020, an order approving the appointment of Seery as Highland’s Chief Executive Officer, Chief Restructuring Officer, and Foreign Representative,<sup>16</sup> which included essentially the same “gatekeeper” language with respect to the pursuit of claims against Seery acting in these roles. The gatekeeper provision in the July 2020 Order was essentially the same as the gatekeeper provision in the January 2020 Order:

No entity may commence or pursue a claim or cause of action of any kind against Seery relating in any way to his role as the chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer of the Debtor without the Bankruptcy Court (i) first determining after notice that such claim or cause of action represents a colorable claim of willful misconduct or gross negligence against Seery, and (ii) specifically authorizing such entity to bring such claim. The Bankruptcy Court shall have sole jurisdiction to adjudicate any such claim for which approval of the Court to commence or pursue has been granted.

July 2020 Order, 3, ¶5. Neither the January 2020 Order nor the July 2020 Order were appealed.

Throughout the summer of 2020, Dondero informally proposed several reorganization plans, none of which were embraced by the Committee or the Independent Directors. When Dondero’s plans failed to gain support, he and entities under his control engaged in substantial, costly, and time-consuming litigation for Highland.<sup>17</sup> As the Fifth Circuit described the situation, after Dondero’s plans failed “he and other creditors began to frustrate the proceedings by objecting to settlements, appealing orders, seeking writs of mandamus, interfering with Highland Capital’s management, threatening employees, and canceling trades between Highland Capital and its clients.”<sup>18</sup> On October 9, 2020, Dondero resigned from all positions with the Debtor and its

<sup>17</sup> According to Seery’s credible testimony during the hearing on confirmation of the Plan that had been negotiated between the Committee and the Independent Directors, Dondero had threatened to “burn the place down” if his proposed plan was not accepted. The Independent Directors and the Committee had negotiated their own plan of reorganization which culminated in the filing by Highland of its Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (as Modified) (the “Plan”) [Bankr. Dkt. No. 1808] on January 22, 2021.<sup>20</sup> Highland had negotiated settlements with most of its major creditors following mediation and had amended its initially proposed plan to address the objections of most of its creditors, leaving only the objections of Dondero and entities under his control (the “Dondero Parties”) at the time of the confirmation hearing,<sup>21</sup> which was held over two days in early February 2021. The Plan is essentially an “asset monetization” plan pursuant to which the Committee was dissolved, and four new entities were created: the Reorganized Debtor; a new general partner for the Reorganized Debtor called HCMLP GP, LLC; the Claimant Trust (administered by Seery, its trustee); and a Litigation Sub-Trust (administered by its trustee, Marc Kirschner). Highland’s various servicing agreements were vested in the Reorganized Debtor, which continues to manage collateralized loan obligation vehicles (“CLOs”) and various other investments postconfirmation. The Claimant Trust owns the limited partnership interests in the Reorganized Debtor, HCMLP GP LLC, and the Litigation Sub-Trust and is charged with winding down the Reorganized Debtor over a three-year period by monetizing its assets and making

The Claimant Trust is overseen by a Claimant Trust Oversight Board (“CTOB”), and pursuant to the terms of the Plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement (“CTA”),<sup>22</sup> the CTOB approved Seery’s compensation package as the CEO of the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trustee. Following their acquisition of their unsecured claims, representatives of Claims Purchasers Muck and Jessup became members of the CTOB.<sup>23</sup> Seery’s compensation included the same base salary that he was receiving as CEO and CRO of Highland, plus an added incentive bonus tiered to recoveries and distributions to the creditors under the Plan. The Plan provides for the cancellation of the limited partnership interests in Highland held by HMIT, Dugaboy, and Okada and his family trusts in exchange for each holder’s pro rata share of a contingent interest in the Claimant Trust (“Contingent Claimant Trust Interest”), as holders of allowed interests in Class 10 (holders of Class B/C limited partnership interests) or Class 11 (holders of Class A limited partnership interests) under the Plan.

1. The December 17, 2020 MGM Email

Between Dondero’s forced resignation from Highland in October 2020 and the confirmation hearing in February 2021, Dondero engaged in what appeared to be attempts to thwart, impede, and otherwise interfere with the Plan being proposed by the Independent Directors and the Committee. In the midst of this, on December 17, 2020, Dondero sent Seery<sup>24</sup> an email

<sup>23</sup> The CTOB had three members: a representative of Muck (Michael Linn), a representative of Jessup (Christopher Provost), and an independent member (Richard Katz). See Joint Opposition ¶ 79.

<sup>24</sup> Dondero sent the email to others as well but did not copy counsel for the Independent Directors (including Seery) in violation of the terms of an existing temporary restraining order that enjoined Dondero from, among other things, “communicating . . . with any Board member” (including Seery) without including Debtor’s counsel. (the “MGM Email”) that featured prominently in HMIT’s Motion for Leave. According to HMIT and Dondero, the MGM Email contained material nonpublic information (“MNPI”) regarding the possibility of an imminent acquisition of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios, Inc. (“MGM”), likely by either Amazon or Apple.<sup>25</sup> At the time Dondero sent the MGM Email, Dondero sat on the board of directors of MGM, and the Debtor owned MGM stock directly. The Debtor also managed and partially owned a couple of other entities that owned MGM stock and managed various CLOs that owned some MGM stock as well. HMIT alleges now that Seery later misused and wrongfully disclosed to the Claims Purchasers this purported MNPI as part of a quid pro quo scheme, whereby the Claims Purchasers agreed to approve excessive compensation for Seery in the future (in exchange for him providing this allegedly “insider” information that inspired them to purchase unsecured claims with an alleged expectation of future large profits).<sup>26</sup> A timeline of events (in late 2020) in the weeks leading up to Dondero’s MGM Email to Seery, following Dondero’s departure from Highland, helps to put the email in full context:

- October 16: Dondero and his affiliates attempt to impede the Debtor’s trading activities by demanding—with no legal basis—that Seery cease selling certain assets;<sup>27</sup>
- November 24: Bankruptcy Court enters an Order approving the Debtor’s Disclosure Statement, scheduling the confirmation hearing on the Debtor’s Plan for January 13, 2021, and granting related relief;<sup>28</sup>
- November 24–27: Dondero personally interferes with the Debtor’s

<sup>36</sup> Seery testified at the June 8 Hearing that Dondero knowingly violated the TRO when he sent the MGM Email:

[The MGM Email] . . . followed the imposition of a TRO for interfering with the business. He knew what was in the TRO and he knew what it applied to, and it restricted him from communicating with me or any of the other independent directors without Pachulski [Debtor’s counsel] being on it. Furthermore, Pachulski had advised Dondero’s counsel that not only could they not communicate with us, if they wanted to communicate they had to prescreen the topics. And how do we know that? Because Dondero filed a motion to modify the TRO. And that was all before this email.

June 8 Hearing Transcript, 273:13-22.

The MGM Email had the subject line “Trading Restriction re MGM – material non public information” and stated:

Just got off a pre board call, board call at 3:00. Update is as follows: Amazon and Apple actively diligencing in Data Room. Both continue to express material interest. Probably first quarter event, will update as facts change. Note also any sales are subject to a shareholder agreement.<sup>37</sup>

Seery credibly testified at the June 8 Hearing that he was “highly suspicious” when he received the MGM Email. This was because, among other reasons, Dondero sent it after: (i) unsuccessful efforts to impede the Debtor’s trading activities (followed by the TRO); (ii) the “be careful what you do” text to Seery by Dondero; (iii) Highland’s termination of its shared service arrangements with Dondero’s various affiliated entities; (iv) the bankruptcy court’s approval of the disclosure statement; and (v) Highland’s demand to collect on the demand notes for which Dondero and his entities were liable.<sup>38</sup> Highland’s Chapter 11 case was fast approaching the finish line. Moreover, MGM was already on the restricted list at Highland Capital, and had been for a long time, and Dondero would know this.<sup>39</sup> Still further, as of December 17, 2020 (the date Dondero sent the unsolicited MGM Email to Seery), Dondero no longer owed a duty of any kind to the Debtor or any entity controlled by the Debtor, having surrendered in January 2020 direct and indirect control of the Debtor to the Independent Board as part of the corporate governance settlement<sup>40</sup> and having resigned from all roles at the Debtor and affiliates in October 2020. Still further, Dondero—to the extent he was sharing with Seery MNPI that he obtained as a member of the board of directors of MGM—would have been violating his own fiduciary duties to MGM.

In any event, in a declaration filed by Dondero in support of HMIT’s Rule 202 petition in Texas state court for pre-suit discovery,<sup>41</sup> he indicated that his goal in sending the MGM E-mail was to impede the Debtor and Seery from engaging in any transactions involving MGM:

On December 17, 2020, I sent an email to employees at HCM, including the then Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer Jim Seery, containing non-public information regarding Amazon and Apple’s interest in acquiring MGM. I became aware of this information due to my involvement as a member of the board of MGM. My purpose was to alert Seery and others that MGM stock, which was owned either directly or indirectly by HCM, should be on a restricted list and not be involved in any trades.

It is noteworthy that Dondero’s labeling of the MGM Email (in the subject line) as a communication containing “material non public information” did not make it so. In fact, it appears from the credible evidence presented at the June 8, 2023 hearing on HMIT’s Motion for Leave that the MGM Email did not disclose information to Seery that was not already made available to the public at the time it was sent. Seery testified that he did not think the MGM Email contained MNPI and that he did not personally “take any steps . . . to make sure that MGM stock was placed on a restricted list at Highland Capital after [he] received [the MGM Email]” because—as earlier noted—“MGM was already on the restricted list at Highland Capital . . . before I got to Highland.”<sup>42</sup> Indeed, MGM was ultimately purchased by Amazon after a sale process that had been quite publicly discussed in media reports for several months<sup>43</sup> and that was officially

<sup>42</sup> June 8 Hearing Transcript, 215:21-216:9. Seery elaborated upon further questioning from HMIT’s counsel that he did not think the indications in the MGM Email (that came from a member of the board of directors of MGM) that “it was probably a first-quarter event” and that “Amazon and Apple were actively diligencing – are diligencing in the data room, both continue to express material interest” were not MNPI. Id., 217:23-218:10. He testified that “it was clear [before he received the MGM Email] from the media reports and the actual quotes from Kevin Ulrich of Anchorage, who was the chairman at MGM, that a transaction would have to take place very quickly. And, in fact, the transaction did not take place in the first quarter.” Id., 219:3-7.

<sup>43</sup> See Highland Ex. 25 (“MGM has held preliminary talks with Apple, Netflix and other larger media companies . . . . MGM, in particular, seems like a logical candidate to sell this year. Its owners include Anchorage Capital, Highland Capital and Solus Alternative Asset Management, hedge funds that acquired the company out of bankruptcy in 2010.”) (article dated 1/26/20); Highland Ex. 26 (describing prospects of an MGM sale, noting that, among its largest them.”<sup>48</sup> Notwithstanding this testimony, Dondero eventually admitted (after a lengthy and torturous cross examination) that he did not actually communicate this supposed “inside” information to Seery in the MGM Email. He did not “say anything about Amazon hitting the price.” He did not say anything about the MGM board going into exclusive negotiations with Amazon “to culminate the merger with them.” Rather, he communicated information that Seery and any member of the public who cared to look could have gleaned from publicly available information as of December 17, 2020, regarding a much-written-about potential MGM transaction that involved interest from numerous companies, including, specifically, Amazon and Apple. When questioned why “[he felt] the need to mention Apple [in the MGM Email] if Amazon had already hit the price,” Dondero simply answered, “The only way you generally get something done at attractive levels in business is if two people are interested,” suggesting that he specifically did not communicate the purported inside information he obtained as a MGM board member—that Amazon had met MGM’s strike price and that the MGM board was moving forward with exclusive negotiations with Amazon—because he wanted it to appear that there was still a competitive process going on that included both Amazon and Apple.<sup>49</sup>

Even if the MGM Email contained MNPI on the day it was sent (four months prior to the first of the Claim Purchases that occurred in April 2021), the information was fully and publicly disclosed to the market in the days and weeks that followed. For example, on December 21, 2020, just four days later, a Wall Street Journal article titled MGM Holdings, Studio Behind ‘James Bond,’ Explores a Sale, reported that MGM had “tapped investment banks Morgan Stanley and LionTree LLC and begun a formal sale process,” and had “a market value of around $5.5 billion, based on privately traded shares and including debt.” The Wall Street Journal Article reiterated that (i) Anchorage “has come under pressure in recent years from weak performance and defecting clients, and its illiquid investment in MGM has become a larger percentage of its hedge fund as it shrinks,” and (ii) “Mr. Ulrich has told clients in recent months he was working toward a deal for the studio and has spoken of big technology companies as logical buyers.”<sup>50</sup> (Id. Ex. 27.) The Wall Street Journal’s reporting was picked up and expanded upon in other publications soon after.

For example:

- On December 23, 2020, Business Matters published an article specifically identifying Amazon as a potential suitor for MGM. The article, titled The world is not enough! Amazon joins other streaming services in £4bn bidding war for Bond films as MGM considers selling back catalogue, cited the Wall Street Journal article and further reported that MGM “hopes to spark a battle that could interest streaming services such as Amazon Prime”;<sup>51</sup>
- On December 24, 2020, an article in iDropNews specifically identified Apple as entering the fray. In an article titled Could Apple be Ready to Gobble Up MGM Studios Entirely?, the author observed that “it’s now become apparent that MGM is actually up on the auction block,” noting that the Wall Street Journal was “reporting that the studio has begun a formal sale process” and that Apple—with a long history of exploratory interest in MGM—would be a likely bidder;<sup>52</sup> and
- On January 15, 2021, Bulwark published an article entitled MGM is For Sale (Again) that identified attributes of MGM likely to appeal to potential purchasers and handicapped the odds of seven likely buyers—with Apple and Amazon named as two of three potential buyers most likely to close on an acquisition.<sup>53</sup>

Finally, Highland and entities it controlled did not sell their MGM stock while the MGM-Amazon deal was under discussion and/or not made public but, instead, they tendered their MGM holdings in connection with, and as part of, the ultimate MGM-Amazon transaction after it closed in March 2022.

2. No Evidence to Support HMIT/Dondero’s Assumptions that Seery Shared Alleged MNPI in the MGM Email with Claims Purchasers

One of HMIT’s allegations in the Proposed Complaint it seeks leave to file—which is central to HMIT’s and Dondero’s conspiracy theory—is that Seery shared the alleged MNPI from the MGM Email with the Claims Purchasers (or at least Farallon—the owner/affiliate of Muck, one of the Claims Purchasers) and that the Claims Purchasers only acquired the purchased claims (“Purchased Claims”) based on, and because, of their receipt of the MNPI from Seery. HMIT essentially admits in the original version of its Motion for Leave that it has no direct evidence that Seery communicated the alleged MNPI to any of the Claims Purchasers. Rather, its allegation is based on inferences it wants the court to make based on “circumstantial” evidence and on the Dondero Declarations that were attached to the Motion for Leave, which described communications Dondero purportedly had with one or two representatives of Farallon in the “late spring” of 2021 concerning Farallon’s recent acquisition of certain claims in the Highland bankruptcy case.<sup>54</sup> Based on these communications, HMIT and Dondero only assume Seery must have provided the MNPI about MGM to Farallon, which must have caused both Farallon and the other Claims Purchaser, Stonehill, to acquire the Purchased Claims.<sup>55</sup>

At the June 8 Hearing, HMIT offered Dondero’s testimony that he had three telephone conversations with two representatives of Farallon, Mike Linn (“Linn”) and Raj Patel (“Patel”),

<sup>55</sup> Motion for Leave (Bankr. Dkt. No. 3699) ¶ 28. HMIT subsequently filed the final version of the Motion for Leave that was revised to withdraw the Dondero Declarations and delete all references therein to the Dondero Declarations (but, notably, leaving in the allegations that were based on the Dondero Declaration(s)). This was done after the court ruled that it would allow the Proposed Defendants to examine Dondero regarding his Declarations. HMIT contended at that point that the court should consider the Motion for Leave on a no-evidence Rule 12(b)(6) type basis (but could not explain why it had attached the Dondero Declarations as evidence that “supported” the Motion for Leave, if it believed no evidence should be considered). See Motion for Leave (Bankr. who allegedly told him that they purchased the claims without conducting any due diligence and based solely on Seery’s assurances that the claims were valuable. These conversations allegedly took place on May 28, 2021—two days after the MGM-Amazon deal was officially announced to the public (on May 26, 2021). Dondero also testified that a photocopy of handwritten notes (“Dondero Notes”)<sup>56</sup> (which were partially cut off) were notes he took contemporaneously with these short telephone conversations he initiated (one with Patel and two follow-up conversations with Linn).<sup>57</sup> He testified that his purpose in taking these notes and in initiating the phone calls was that “[w]e’d been trying nonstop to settle the case for two-plus years. . . . [a]nd when we heard the claims traded, we realized there were new parties to potentially negotiate to resolve the case . . . [s]o I reached out [to] the Farallon guys,”<sup>58</sup> and further, on voir dire from the Proposed Defendants’ counsel, that the purpose of taking the notes was so that he had “a written record of the important points that [he] discussed . . . so I know how to address it the next time.”<sup>59</sup> The handwritten notes<sup>60</sup> stated:

Raj Patel bought it because of Seery	1
50-70¢ not compelling	2
Class 8	3
Asked what would be compelling	4
-- No Offer	5
Bought in Feb/March timeframe	6
Bought assets w/ Claims	7
Offered him 40-50% premium	8
130% of cost; “Not Compelling”	9
No Counter; Told Discovery coming	10

<sup>56</sup> HMIT Ex. 4. The handwritten notes were admitted into evidence after voir dire, not for the truth of anything Patel or Linn allegedly said to him during the three telephone conversations, but as Dondero’s “present sense impression” of the telephone conversations.

<sup>60</sup> HMIT Ex. 4. The court has placed in a table and numbered each line for ease of reference. The table does not include the separate apparent partial date from the top left corner that Dondero testified was the date that he made the initial call to Patel: May 28, 2021.

On direct examination, Dondero testified that line 1 is what he wrote contemporaneously with the short call he initiated to Patel of Farallon in which Patel allegedly told Dondero “that he bought it because Seery told him to buy it and they had made money with Seery before”<sup>61</sup> and that Farallon “bought [the claim] because he was very optimistic regarding MGM”<sup>62</sup> before referring him to Linn, a portfolio manager at Farallon. Dondero testified that the rest of the handwritten notes (reflected in lines 2 through 10 of the table) were notes he took contemporaneously with two telephone conversations he had with Linn following his call to Patel, with lines 2-8 referring to Dondero’s first call with Linn and lines 9 and 10 referring to his second call with Linn.<sup>63</sup> Dondero testified that the “50-70¢” in line 2 referred to his offer to Linn to pay 70 cents on the dollar to buy Farallon’s<sup>64</sup> claims because “[w]e knew that they had – that the claims had traded around 50 cents” and “[w]e wanted to prevent the $5 million-a-month burn” (referring to attorney’s fees in the Highland case) and that “not compelling Class 8” in lines 2-3 referred to Linn’s response to him that the offer was not compelling.<sup>65</sup> Dondero testified that lines 4-5 referred to him asking Linn what amount would be compelling and to Linn’s response that “he had no offer.”<sup>66</sup> Dondero testified that lines 6-8 referred to Linn telling Dondero that Farallon bought the claims in the February, March timeframe and that Dondero told Linn that, given that the estate was spending $5 million a month on legal fees, Farallon should want to sell its claims and Linn’s alleged response that “Seery told him it was worth a lot more.”<sup>67</sup> Lastly, Dondero testified on direct examination that the last two lines referred to a second telephone conversation he had with Linn in which Dondero offered 130 percent of cost for the claims and that Linn told him that the offer was not compelling, and he would not give a price at which he would sell.<sup>68</sup>

On cross-examination, Dondero acknowledged that, though he had testified that the handwritten notes were intended to be a written record of the important points from the telephone conversations he had with Patel and Linn, there was no mention in the notes of: (1) MGM; (2) or that Farallon was very optimistic about MGM; (3) the sharing of MNPI; (4) a quid pro quo; or (5) Seery's compensation, and that his last note—"Told Discovery coming"—was a reference to Dondero telling Linn (not Linn telling Dondero) that discovery was coming in response to Dondero's own supposition that Farallon must have traded on MNPI.<sup>69</sup> Cross-examination also revealed that Farallon never told Dondero that Seery gave them MNPI, and that Dondero only believed Seery must have given Farallon MNPI, because Farallon (Patel and Linn) had told him that the only reason Farallon bought their claims was because of their prior dealings with Seery, which Dondero took to mean that they had conducted no due diligence on their own prior to acquiring the claims. Dondero also testified that he did not have any personal knowledge as to how Seery's compensation package, as CEO of the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trustee, was determined because he was "not involved" in the setting of Seery's compensation pursuant to the Claimant Trust<sup>70</sup> and that he never discussed Seery's compensation with Farallon.<sup>71</sup>

As noted earlier, Dondero attempted to obtain discovery from the Claims Purchasers in a Texas state court pursuant to Rule 202 of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure. The Texas state court denied the First Rule 202 petition on June 1, 2022, after having considered the amended petition, the responses, the record, applicable authorities and having conducted a hearing on the petition on June 1, 2022.<sup>72</sup>

3. Dondero Unsuccessfully Seeks Discovery and to Have Various Agencies and Courts Outside of the Bankruptcy Court Acknowledge His Insider Trading Theories

Dondero acknowledged at the June 8 Hearing that the verified petition (“First Rule 202 Petition”) he signed and filed on July 22, 2021, in the first Texas Rule 202 proceeding—just weeks after his telephone calls with Linn and Patel—was true and accurate. In it, he swore under oath as to what Linn told him in the telephone call concerning Farallon’s purchase of the claims, and the only reason he gave for wanting discovery was that Linn told him Farallon bought the claims “sight unseen—relying entirely on Seery’s advice solely because of their prior dealings.”<sup>73</sup> Dondero acknowledged, as well, that his sworn statement that he filed in support of an amended verified Rule 202 petition filed in the same Texas Rule 202 proceeding, but nearly ten months later (in May 2022), described the same telephone conversation he had with Linn, and it did not mention MGM at all and did not say that Linn told him that Seery gave him MNPI; rather, the sworn statement stated only that “On a telephone call between Petitioner and Michael Lin[n], a representative of Farallon, Mr. Lin[n] informed Petitioner that Farallon had purchased the claims sight unseen and with no due diligence—100% relying on Seery’s say-so because they had made so much money in the past when Seery told them to purchase claims” and that Linn did not tell him that Seery gave them MNPI, but he concluded that Seery gave Farallon MNPI based on what Linn did tell him.<sup>74</sup>

Nine days later, Dondero filed a declaration in the same proceeding, in which he described the same call with Linn as follows:<sup>75</sup>

Last year, I called Farallon’s Michael Lin[n] about purchasing their claims in the bankruptcy. I offered them 30% more than what they paid. I was told by Michael Lin[n] of Farallon that they purchased the interests without doing any due diligence other than what Mr. James Seery—the CEO of Highland—told them, and that he told them that the interests would be worth far more than what Farallon paid. Given the value of those claims that Seery had testified in court, it made no sense to me that Mr. Lin[n] would think that the claims were worth more than what Seery testified under oath was the value of the bankruptcy claims.

Dondero further stated in his declaration that “I have an interest in ensuring that the claims purchased by [Farallon] are not used as a means to deprive the equity holders of their share of the funds,” and that “[i]t has become obvious that despite the fact that the bankruptcy estate has enough money to pay all claimants 100 cents on the dollar, there is plainly a movement afoot to drain the bankrupt estate and deprive equity of their rights. Accordingly, “I commissioned an investigation by counsel who have been in communication with the Office of the United States Trustee.”<sup>76</sup> Dondero attached as Exhibit A to his declaration a letter from Douglas Draper (“Draper”), an attorney with the law firm of Heller, Draper & Horn, L.L.C. in New Orleans, to the office of the General Counsel, Executive Office for U.S. Trustees, dated October 5, 2021, in which Draper opens the letter by stating that “[t]he purpose of this letter is to request that your office investigate the circumstances surrounding the sale of claims by members of the [Creditors’ Committee] in the bankruptcy of [Highland],” and later noted that he “became involved in Highland’s bankruptcy through my representation of [Dugaboy], an irrevocable trust of which Dondero is the primary beneficiary.”<sup>77</sup> Mr. Draper laid out the same allegations of insider claims trading, breach of fiduciary duties, and conspiracy that HMIT seeks to bring in the Proposed Complaint.<sup>78</sup> The U.S. Trustee’s office took no action. Dondero made a second and third attempt to get the U.S. Trustee’s office to conduct an investigation into the same allegations laid out in Draper’s letter, this time in “follow-up” letters to the Office of the U.S. Trustee on November 3, 2021, and six months later, on May 11, 2022, through another lawyer, Davor Rukavina (“Rukavina”), in which Rukavina wrote “to provide additional information regarding the systemic abuses of bankruptcy process occasioned during the [Highland] bankruptcy.”<sup>79</sup> Again, the U.S. Trustee’s office took no action.

On February 15, 2023, Dondero filed yet another sworn statement about his alleged conversation with Linn, this time in support of a Verified Rule 202 Petition filed by HMIT (“Second Rule 202 Petition”), filed in a different Texas state court (Texas District Court, 191st Judicial District, Dallas County, Texas), following Dondero’s unsuccessful attempts throughout 2021 and 2022 to obtain discovery in the First Rule 202 proceeding and based on the same allegations of misconduct by Seery and Farallon.<sup>80</sup> In this new sworn statement, Dondero describes for the first time the “call” he had with Linn as having been “phone calls” with Patel and Linn and mentions MGM and Farallon’s alleged optimism about the expected sale of MGM.<sup>81</sup>

In late Spring of 2021, I had phone calls with two principals at Farallon Capital Management, LLC (“Farallon”), Raj Patel and Michael Linn. During these phone calls, Mr. Patel and Mr. Linn informed me that Farallon had a deal in place to purchase the Acis and HarbourVest claims, which I understood to refer to claims that were a part of settlements in the HCM Bankruptcy Proceedings. Mr. Patel and Mr. Linn stated that Farallon agreed to purchase these claims based solely on conversations with Seery because they had made significant profits when Seery told them to purchase other claims in the past. They also stated that they were particularly optimistic because of the expected sale of MGM.

The Second Rule 202 Petition was also denied by the second Texas state court on March 8, 2023.<sup>82</sup>

HMIT, in an apparent attempt to provide support for its argument that the Proposed Claims are “colorable,” stated in its Motion for Leave that “[t]he Court also should be aware that the Texas States [sic] Securities Board (“TSSB”) opened an investigation into the subject matter of the insider trades at issue, and this investigation has not been closed. The continuing nature of this investigation underscores HMIT’s position that the claims described in the attached Adversary Proceeding are plausible and certainly far more than merely ‘colorable.’”<sup>83</sup> But, two days before opposition briefing was due, on May 9, 2023, the TSSB issued a letter (“TSSB Letter”) to Highland, informing it that “[t]he staff of the [TSSB] has completed its review of the complaint received by the Staff against [Highland]. The issues raised in the complaint and information provided to our Agency were given full consideration, and a decision was made that no further regulatory action is warranted at this time.”<sup>84</sup> HMIT’s counsel (frankly, to the astonishment of the court) objected to the admission of the TSSB Letter at the June 8 Hearing “on the grounds of relevance, 403, hearsay, and authenticity . . . [a]nd I also . . . think it's important that the decision by a regulatory body has no bearing on this cause of action or the colorability of this claim, and the Texas State Securities Board will tell you that. This is completely and utterly irrelevant to your inquiry.”<sup>85</sup> The court overruled HMIT’s objection to the relevance of this exhibit—considering, among other things, that HMIT, in its Motion for Leave, specifically mentioned the allegedly open TSSB “investigation” as relevant evidence the court “should be aware” of in making its determination of whether the Proposed Claims were “colorable.”<sup>86</sup>

C. Claims Purchasers Purchase Claims and File Notices of Transfers of Claims

To be clear about the time line here, it was after confirmation of the Plan but prior to the Effective Date of the Plan, that the Claims Purchasers: (1) purchased several large unsecured claims that had been allowed following, and as part of, Rule 9019 settlements, each of which were approved by the bankruptcy court, after notice and hearing, prior to the confirmation hearing; and (2) filed notices of the transfers of those claims pursuant to Rule 3001(e)(2) of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure. The noticing of the claims transfers began on April 16, 2021, with the notice of transfer of the claim held by Acis Capital Management to Muck, and ended on August 9, 2021, with the notices of transfers of the claims held by UBS Securities to Muck and Jessup:

HMIT insists that it “made no sense” for the Claims Purchasers to buy the Purchased Claims because “the publicly available information [] did not offer a sufficient potential profit to justify the publicly disclosed risk,” and “their investment was projected to yield a small return with virtually no margin for error.”<sup>91</sup> Dondero testified that it was his view that there was insufficient information in the public to justify the claims purchases.<sup>92</sup> But, HMIT’s arguments here are contradicted by the information that was publicly available to Farallon and Stonehill at the time of their purchases and by HMIT’s own allegations. In advance of Plan confirmation, Highland projected that Class 8 general unsecured creditors would recover 71.32% on their allowed claims. In the Proposed Complaint, HMIT sets forth the amounts the Claims Purchasers purportedly paid for their claims.<sup>93</sup> Taking into account the face amount of the allowed claims, the Claims Purchasers’ projected profits (in millions of dollars) were as follows:

Redeemer	$137.0	$0.0	$97.71	Stonehill	$78.0	$19.71

<sup>92</sup> June 8 Hearing Transcript, 187:3-7 (“Q: And it’s your testimony that there wasn’t sufficient information in the public for them to buy – this is your view – that there wasn’t sufficient information in the public to justify their purchases. Is that your view? A: Correct.”).

<sup>94</sup> “Ascribed Value” is derived by multiplying the Class 8 amount by the projected recovery of 71.32% for that class.

HarbourVest	$45.0	$35.0	$32.09	Farallon	$27.0	$5.09
UBS	$65.0	$60.0	$46.39	Stonehill & Farallon	$50.0	($3.61)

As HMIT acknowledges, by the time Dondero spoke with Farallon in the “late spring” of 2021, the Claims Purchasers had acquired the allowed claims previously held by Acis, Redeemer, and HarbourVest.<sup>95</sup> Based on an aggregate purchase price of $113 million for these three claims, the Claims Purchasers would have expected to net over $33 million in profits, or nearly 30% on their investment, had Highland met its projections. The Claims Purchasers would make even more money if Highland beat its projections, because they also purchased the Class 9 claims and would therefore capture any upside. In this context, HMIT’s and Dondero’s assertions that it did not “make any sense” for the Claims Purchasers to purchase their claims when they did does not pass muster—given the publicly available information about potential recoveries under the Plan. Dondero even acknowledged, on cross-examination, that he was prepared to pay 30 percent more than Farallon had paid, even though he did not think there was sufficient public information available to justify Farallon’s purchase of the claims.<sup>96</sup> Dondero essentially testified that he wanted to purchase Farallon’s claims because he wanted to be in a position of control to force a settlement or resolution of the bankruptcy case, post-confirmation, under terms acceptable to him. He did not want to try to settle by negotiating with Farallon and Stonehill as creditors, but instead he wanted to purchase the claims because “if we owned all the claims, it would settle the case.”<sup>97</sup>

<sup>95</sup> See Complaint, ¶ 41 n.12. The UBS claims were not acquired until August 2021, long after the alleged “quid pro quo” was supposedly agreed upon and the MGM-Amazon deal was announced in the press in late May 2021. See, Highland Ex. 34, Amazon’s $8.45 Billion Deal for MGM is Historic But Feels Mundane (dated May 26, 2021).

D. Fifth Circuit’s Approval of the Gatekeeper Provision in Plan, Recognition of Res Judicata Effect of the Prior Gatekeeper Orders, and the Bankruptcy Court’s Order Approving Highland’s Motion to Conform Plan

Harkening back to February 22, 2021, after a robust confirmation hearing, this court entered its order confirming the Plan, over the objections of Dondero and Dondero-Related Parties, specifically questioning the good faith of their objections. The court found, after noting “the remoteness of their economic interests” that “[it] has good reason to believe that [the Dondero Parties] are not objecting to protect economic interests they have in the Debtor but to be disruptors. Dondero wants his company back. This is understandable, but it is not a good faith basis to lob objections to the Plan.”<sup>94</sup> The Plan became effective on August 11, 2021.

Of relevance to the Motion for Leave, the confirmed Plan included certain exculpations, releases, and injunctions designed to protect the Debtor and other bankruptcy participants from bad-faith litigation. These participants included: Highland’s employees (with certain exceptions); Seery as Highland’s CEO and CRO; Strand (after the appointment of the Independent Directors); the Independent Directors; the successor entities; the CTOB and its members; the Committee and its members; professionals retained in the case; and all “Related Persons.” The injunction provisions contained a Gatekeeper Provision which is similar to the gatekeeper provisions in the prior Gatekeeper Orders in that it provided that the bankruptcy court will act as a “gatekeeper” to screen and prevent bad-faith litigation against the Protected Parties. The Gatekeeper Provision in the Plan states, in pertinent part:<sup>98</sup>

No Enjoined Party may commence or pursue a claim or cause of action of any kind against any Protected Party that arose or arises from or is related to the Chapter 11 Case . . . without the Bankruptcy Court (i) first determining, after notice and a hearing, that such claim or cause of action represents a colorable claim of any kind, including, but not limited to, negligence, bad faith, criminal misconduct, willful misconduct, fraud, or gross negligence against a Protected Party and (ii) specifically authorizing such Enjoined Party to bring such claim or cause of action against such Protected Party.

The Plan defines Protected Parties as,

collectively, (i) the Debtor and its successors and assigns, direct and indirect majority-owned subsidiaries, and the Managed Funds, (ii) the Employees, (iii) Strand, (iv) the Reorganized Debtor, (v) the Independent Directors, (vi) the Committee, (vii) the members of the Committee (in their official capacities), (viii) the Claimant Trust, (ix) the Claimant Trustee, (x) the Litigation Sub-Trust, (xi) the Litigation Trustee, (xii) the members of the [CTOB] (in their official capacities), (xiii) [HCMLP GP LLC], (xiv) the Professionals retained by the Debtor and the Committee in the Chapter 11 Case, (xv) the CEO/CRO; and (xvi) the Related Persons of each of the parties listed in (iv) through (xv); [but excluding Dondero and Okada and various entities including HMIT and Dugaboy].

The court notes that the Gatekeeper Provision in the Plan provides protection to a broader number of persons than the persons protected under the January 2020 Order (addressing the Independent Directors and their agents and advisors) and the July 2020 Order (addressing Seery in his role as CEO and CRO of the Debtor). But, at the same time, it is less restrictive than the gatekeeping provisions under the Gatekeeper Orders, in that the gatekeeping provisions in the prior orders shield the protected parties from any claim that is not both “colorable” and a claim for “willful misconduct or gross negligence,” effectively providing the protected parties under the prior orders with a limited immunity from claims of simple negligence or breach of contract that do not rise to the level of “willful misconduct or gross negligence,” whereas the Gatekeeping Provision under the Plan does not act as a release or exculpation of the Protected Parties in any way because it does not prohibit any party from bringing any kind of claim against a Protected Party, provided the proposed claimant first obtains a finding in the bankruptcy court that its proposed claims are “colorable.”<sup>99</sup>

<sup>99</sup> It should be noted that--as discussed further below--there are, separately in the Plan, exculpations as to a smaller universe of persons--e.g., the Debtor, the Committee and its members, and the Independent Directors.

Dondero and some of the entities under his control appealed<sup>100</sup> the Confirmation Order directly to the Fifth Circuit, arguing, among other issues, that the Plan’s exculpation, release, and injunction provisions, including the Gatekeeper Provision (collectively, the “Protection Provisions”) impermissibly provide certain non-debtor bankruptcy participants with a discharge, purportedly in contravention of the provisions of Bankruptcy Code § 524(e)’s statutory bar on non-debtor discharges. As noted above, the Fifth Circuit, “affirm[ed] the confirmation order in large part” and “reverse[d] only insofar as the plan exculpates certain non-debtors in violation of 11 U.S.C. § 524(e), strik[ing] those few parties from the plan’s exculpation, and affirm[ed] on all remaining grounds.”<sup>101</sup> The Fifth Circuit specifically found the “injunction and gatekeeping provisions [to be] sound” and found that it was only “the exculpation of certain non-debtors” that “exceed[ed] the bankruptcy court’s authority,” agreeing with the bankruptcy court’s conclusions that the Protection Provisions were legal, necessary under the circumstances, and in the best interest of all parties” in part, and only disagreeing to the extent that the exculpation provision improperly extended to certain bankruptcy participants other than Highland, the Committee and its members, and the Independent Directors and “revers[ing] and strik[ing] the few unlawful parts

<sup>100</sup> On appeal, the appellant funds (“Funds”), whom this court found to be “owned and/or controlled” by Dondero despite their purported independence, also asked the Fifth Circuit to vacate this court’s factual finding “because it threatens the Funds’ compliance with federal law and damages their reputations and values” and because “[a]ccording to the Funds, the characterization is unfair, as they are not litigious like Dondero and are completely independent from him.” NexPoint Advisors, L.P. v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P. (In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P.), 48 F.4th at 434. Applying the “clear error” standard of review, the Fifth Circuit “le[ft] the bankruptcy court’s factual finding undisturbed” because “nothing in this record leaves us with a firm and definite conviction that the bankruptcy court made a mistake in finding that the Funds are ‘owned and/or controlled by [Dondero].’” Id. at 434-35.

<sup>101</sup> See supra note 4. The Fifth Circuit replaced its initial opinion with its final opinion a few days after certain appellants had filed a short (four-and-one-half pages) motion for rehearing (the “Motion for Rehearing”) on September 2, 2022. The movants had asked the Fifth Circuit to “narrowly amend the [initial] Opinion in order to confirm the Court’s holding that the impermissibly exculpated parties are similarly struck from the protections of the injunction and gatekeeper provisions of the plan (in other words, that such parties cannot constitute ‘Protected Parties’).” In the final Fifth Circuit opinion, same as the initial Fifth Circuit opinion, the Fifth Circuit stated that, with regard to the Confirmation Order, the panel would “reverse only insofar as the plan exculpates certain non-debtors in violation of 11 U.S.C. § 524(e), strike those few parties from the plan’s exculpation, and affirm on all remaining grounds.” Highland Capital, 48 F.4th at 424. No findings, discussion, or rulings regarding the injunction and gatekeeper provisions that were in the initial Fifth Circuit opinion were disturbed.

of the Plan’s exculpation provision.<sup>102</sup> The Fifth Circuit then remanded to the Bankruptcy Court “for further proceedings in accordance with the opinion.”<sup>103</sup>

In the course of analyzing the Protection Provisions under the Plan, the Fifth Circuit noted that the protection provisions in the January and July 2020 Orders appointing the Independent Directors and Seery as CEO and CRO of Highland were res judicata and that “those orders have the effect of exculpating the Independent Directors and Seery in his executive capacities” such that “[d]espite removal from the exculpation provision in the confirmation order, the Independent Directors’ agents, advisors, and employees, as well as Seery in his official capacities are all exculpated to the extent provided in the January and July 2020 Orders.”<sup>104</sup>

The Reorganized Debtor filed a motion in the bankruptcy court to conform the plan to the Fifth Circuit’s mandate, proposing that only one change was needed to make the Plan compliant with the Fifth Circuit’s ruling: narrow the defined term for “Exculpated Parties” to read as follows:

“Exculpated Parties” means, collectively, (i) the Debtor, (ii) the Independent Directors, (iii) the Committee, and (iv) members of the Committee (in their official capacities).

The Reorganized Debtor proposed that this one simple revision of this defined term removed the exculpations deemed by the Fifth Circuit to violate section 524(e) of the Bankruptcy Code, and that no other changes would be required to conform the Plan and Confirmation Order to the Fifth Circuit’s mandate. Some of the Dondero-related entities objected to the motion to conform, arguing that the Fifth Circuit’s ruling required more surgery on the Plan than simply narrowing the defined term “Exculpated Parties.” On February 27, 2023, this court entered its order granting

E. HMIT’s Motion for Leave

HMIT filed its emergency Motion for Leave on March 28, 2023, which, with attachments, as first filed, was 387 pages in length, including an initial proposed complaint (“Initial Proposed Complaint”) and two sworn declarations of Dondero that were attached as “objective evidence” in “support[ ]” of the Motion for Leave,<sup>106</sup> and with it, an application for an emergency setting on the hearing on the Motion to Leave. On April 23, 2023, HMIT filed a pleading entitled a “supplement” to its Motion to Leave (“Supplement”),<sup>107</sup> to which it attached a revised proposed verified complaint (“Proposed Complaint”)<sup>108</sup> as Exhibit 1-A to the Motion for Leave and stated that “[t]he Supplement is not intended to amend or supersede the [Motion for Leave]; rather, it is intended as a supplement to address procedural matters and to bring forth additional facts that further confirm the appropriateness of the derivative action.”<sup>109</sup> The HMIT Motion for Leave was later amended to eliminate the Dondero Declarations and references to the same (but not the underlying allegations that were supposedly supported by the Dondero Declarations).<sup>110</sup>

<sup>110</sup> Bankr. Dkt. Nos. 3815 and 3816. Both of these filings had the Initial Proposed Complaint attached as Exhibit 1 to the Motion for Leave.

As earlier noted, HMIT desires leave to sue the Proposed Defendants regarding the post-confirmation, pre-Effective Date purchase of allowed unsecured claims. The Proposed Defendants would be:

Seery, who was a stranger to Highland until approximately four months following the Petition Date when he was brought in as one of the three Independent Directors, and now serves as the CEO of the Reorganized Debtor and the Trustee of the Claimant Trust (and also was previously Highland’s CRO during the case, then CEO, and, also, an Independent Board Member of Highland’s general partner during the Highland case). Seery is best understood as the man who took Dondero’s place running Highland—per the request of the Committee.

Claims Purchasers, who were strangers to Highland until the end of the bankruptcy case. They are identified as Farallon Capital Management, LLC (“Farallon”); Muck Holdings, LLC (“Muck”), which was a special purpose entity created by Farallon to purchase unsecured claims against Highland; Stonehill Capital Management, LLC (“Stonehill”); and Jessup Holdings, LLC (“Jessup”), which was a special purpose entity created by Stonehill to purchase unsecured claims against Highland (collectively, the “Claims Purchasers”). The Claims Purchasers purchased $240 million face value of already-allowed unsecured claims post-confirmation and pre-Effective Date in the spring of 2021 and another $125 million face value of already-allowed unsecured claims in August 2021. Bankruptcy Rule 3001(e) notices—giving notice of same—were filed on the bankruptcy clerk’s docket regarding these purchases. The claims had previously been held by the creditors known as the Crusader Redeemer Committee, Acis Capital, HarbourVest, and UBS (three of these four creditors formerly served on the Committee during the Highland bankruptcy case).

John Doe Defendants Nos. 1-10, which are described to be “currently unknown individuals or business entities who may be identified in discovery as involved in the wrongful transactions at issue.”

Highland, as a nominal defendant. HMIT added Highland as a nominal defendant in the Revised Proposed Complaint attached to the Supplement.

Claimant Trust, as a nominal defendant. HMIT added the Claimant Trust as a nominal defendant in the Revised Proposed Complaint attached to the Supplement.

The proposed plaintiffs would be:

HMIT, which, again, was the largest equity holder in Highland and held a 99.5% limited partnership interest (specifically, Class B/C limited partnership interests). HMIT is the holder of a Class 10 interest under the Plan, pursuant to which HMIT’s limited partnership interest in Highland was extinguished as of the Effective Date in exchange for a pro rata share of a contingent interest in the Claimant Trust.

Highland, as a nominal party. HMIT wishes to bring its complaint on behalf of itself and derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor.

Claimant Trust, as a nominal party. HMIT wishes to bring its complaint on behalf of itself and derivatively on behalf of the Claimant Trust.

In the Proposed Complaint, HMIT asserts the following six counts: Count I (against Seery) for breach of fiduciary duties; Count II (against the Claims Purchasers and John Doe Defendants) for knowing participation in breach of fiduciary duties; Count III (against all Proposed Defendants) for conspiracy; Count IV (against Muck and Jessup) for equitable disallowance of their claims; Count V (against all Proposed Defendants) for unjust enrichment and constructive trust; and Count VI (against all Proposed Defendants) for declaratory relief.<sup>111</sup> The gist of the Proposed Complaint is as follows. HMIT asserts that something seems amiss regarding the post-confirmation/pre-Effective Date purchase of claims by the Claims Purchasers. Actually, more bluntly, HMIT asserts that “wrongful conduct occurred” and “improper trades” were made.<sup>112</sup> HMIT believes the Claims Purchasers paid around $160 million for the $365 million face amount of claims they purchased. HMIT believes that this amount was too high for any rational claim purchaser (particularly hedge funds who expect high returns) to have paid for the claims—based on Highland’s Disclosure Statement and Plan projections regarding the projected distributions under the Plan to holders of allowed unsecured claims. And, of course, Dondero purports to have concluded from the three phone conversations he had with representatives of one of the Claims Purchasers that they did no due diligence before purchasing the claims. Therefore, HMIT surmises, Seery must have given these Claims Purchasers MNPI regarding Highland that convinced them that it was to their economic advantage to purchase the claims. In particular, HMIT surmises Seery must have shared

---

<sup>111</sup> In the Initial Proposed Complaint, HMIT proposed to bring claims against the various Proposed Defendants in seven counts, including a count for fraud by misrepresentation and material nondisclosure against all Proposed Defendants. In the Proposed Complaint, HMIT abandons its claim for fraud by misrepresentation and material nondisclosure.

MNPI regarding the likely imminent sale of MGM, in which Highland had, directly and indirectly, substantial holdings. As noted earlier, MGM was ultimately purchased by Amazon after a sale process that had been quite publicly discussed in media reports for several months and that was officially announced to the public in late May 2021 (just a few weeks after the Claims Purchasers purchased some of their claims, but a few months before certain of their claims—the UBS claims—were purchased).<sup>113</sup> In summary, while the Proposed Complaint is lengthy and at times hard to follow, it boils down to allegations that: (a) Seery filed (or caused to be filed) deflated, pessimistic, misleading projections regarding the value of the Debtor’s estate in connection with the Plan, (b) then induced very sophisticated unsecured creditors to discount and sell their claims to the likewise very sophisticated Claims Purchasers, (c) which Claims Purchasers are allegedly friendly with Seery, and are now happily approving Seery’s allegedly excessive compensation demands post-Effective Date (resulting in less money in the pot to pay off the creditor body in full, and, thus, a diminished likelihood that HMIT will realize any recovery on its contingent Class 10 interest). HMIT argues that Seery should be required to disgorge his compensation. It appears that HMIT also seeks other damages in the form of equitable disallowance of the Claims Purchasers’ claims and disgorgement of distributions on account of those claims, the imposition of a constructive trust over all disgorged funds, and declaratory relief.

HMIT claims that, in seeking to file the Proposed Complaint, it is seeking to protect the rights and interests of the Reorganized Debtor, the Claimant Trust, and “innocent stakeholders” who were allegedly injured by Seery’s and the Claims Purchasers’ alleged conspiratorial and fraudulent scheme to line Seery’s pockets with excessive compensation for his role as Claimant Trustee. In its Motion for Leave, HMIT states that “[t]he attached Adversary Proceeding alleges claims which are substantially more than ‘colorable’ based upon plausible allegations that the Proposed Defendants, acting in concert, perpetrated a fraud, including a fraud upon innocent stakeholders, as well as breaches of fiduciary duties and knowing participation in (or aiding or abetting) breaches of fiduciary duty.”<sup>114</sup>

<sup>113</sup> The MGM-Amazon deal was ultimately consummated in March 2022 for approximately $6.1 billion, net of cash acquired, plus approximately $2.5 billion in debt that Amazon assumed and immediately repaid. Credible testimony from Seery at the June 8 Hearing revealed that Highland and entities it controlled tendered their MGM holdings in connection with the Amazon transaction (they did not sell their holdings while the MGM-Amazon deal was under discussion and/or not made public).

F. Is HMIT Really Dondero by Another Name?

The Proposed Defendants argue that HMIT’s Motion for Leave is nothing more than a continuation of the harassing and bad-faith litigation by Dondero and his related entities that the Gatekeeper Provisions were intended to prevent and, thus, this is one of multiple reasons that the Motion for Leave should be denied.

To be clear, HMIT asserts that it is controlled by Mark Patrick (“Patrick”), who has been HMIT’s administrator since August 2022. Patrick asserts that he is not influenced or controlled by Dondero, in general, and specifically not in its efforts to pursue the Proposed Claims against Seery and the Claims Purchasers. However, the testimony elicited at the June 8 Hearing—the hearing at which HMIT had the burden of showing the court that its Proposed Claims were “colorable” such that it should be allowed to pursue them through the filing of the Proposed Complaint—paints a different picture. Somewhat tellingly, HMIT chose not to call Patrick—allegedly HMIT’s only representative and control person—as a witness in support of its Motion for Leave. Rather, Dondero was HMIT’s first witness called in support of its motion, and the first

<sup>114</sup> See Motion for Leave (Bankr. Dkt. No. 3816) ¶ 3. HMIT notes, in a footnote 6, that “Neither this Motion nor the proposed Adversary Complaint seeks to challenge the Court’s Orders or the Plan. In addition, neither this Motion nor the proposed Adversary Complaint seeks to redistribute the assets of the Claimant Trust in a manner that would adversely impact innocent creditors. Rather, the proposed Adversary Proceeding seeks to benefit all innocent stakeholders while working within the terms and provisions of the Plan, as well as the Claimant Trust Agreement.”

questions on direct from HMIT's counsel were aimed at establishing that Dondero was not behind the filing of the Motion for Leave and the pursuit of the Proposed Claims.<sup>115</sup> Dondero testified that he did not (i) "have any current official position" with HMIT, (ii) "attempt to exercise [control] on the business affairs of [HMIT]," (iii) "have any official legal relationship with [HMIT] where [he] can attempt to exercise either direct or indirect control over [HMIT]," or (iv) "participate in the decision of whether or not to file the proceedings that are currently pending before Judge Jernigan."<sup>116</sup> After HMIT rested, Highland and the Claimant Trust called Patrick as a witness, and he testified that he was the administrator of HMIT, that HMIT does not have any employees, operations, or revenues, and, when asked if HMIT owned any assets, Patrick testified, with not a great deal of certainty, that "it's my understanding it has a contingent beneficiary interest in the Claimants [sic] Trust" and that is the only asset HMIT has.<sup>117</sup> Patrick testified that HMIT did not owe any money to Dondero personally, but acknowledged that in 2015, HMIT had issued a secured promissory note in favor of Dondero's family trust, Dugaboy, in the amount of approximately $62.6 million (the "Dugaboy Note") in exchange for Dugaboy transferring a portion of its limited partner interests in Highland to HMIT; the Dugaboy Note was secured in part by the Highland limited partnership interests purchased from Dugaboy.<sup>118</sup> Patrick admitted that, if HMIT's Class 10 interest has no value, HMIT would have no ability to pay the Dugaboy Note.<sup>119</sup> He further testified that neither he nor any representative of HMIT had ever spoken with any representative of Farallon or Stonehill, that he had no personal knowledge about any quid pro quo, the amount of due diligence Farallon or Stonehill conducted prior to buying their claims, or the terms of

On cross-examination by HMIT’s counsel, Patrick further testified that HMIT has not filed any litigation, as plaintiff, other than its efforts to be a plaintiff in the Motion for Leave and its action as a petitioner in the Texas Rule 202 proceeding filed earlier in 2023 in the Texas state court.<sup>122</sup> HMIT’s counsel argued that the point of this questioning was that “they’re just trying to draw Dondero into this and – this vexatious litigant argument, and we’re just developing the fact that obviously Hunter Mountain has only filed – attempting to file this action and a Rule 202 proceeding.<sup>123</sup> But, Dondero and HMIT’s counsel referred during the June 8 Hearing to the First Rule 202 Petition (where Dondero was the petitioner) and the Second Rule 202 Petition (where HMIT was the petitioner) as “our” Rule 202 petitions, and also to the numerous attempts at getting the discovery (that Dondero had warned Linn was coming) in the collective. For example, in objecting to the admission of Highland’s Exhibit 10 – the Texas state court order denying and dismissing the Second Rule 202 Petition – on the basis of relevance, HMIT’s counsel referred to the order as “an order denying our second” Rule 202 Petition.<sup>124</sup> And, Dondero testified that his warning to Linn in May 2021 that “discovery was coming” was “my response to I knew they had traded on material nonpublic information” and that “I thought it would be a lot easier to get

Dondero’s use of an entity over which he exerts influence and control to pursue his own agenda in the bankruptcy case is not new. Rather, this has been part of Dondero’s modus operandi since the “nasty breakup” between Dondero and Highland that culminated with Dondero’s ouster in October 2020, whereby Dondero, after not getting his way in the bankruptcy court, continued to lob objections and create obstacles to Highland’s implementation of the Plan through entities he owns or controls. As noted above, the Fifth Circuit specifically upheld this court’s finding in the Confirmation Order that Dondero owned or controlled the various entities that had objected to confirmation of the Plan and appealed the Confirmation Order, where the Dondero-related appellants made similar protestations that they are not owned or controlled by Dondero and asked the Fifth Circuit to vacate this court’s factual finding because, among other reasons, “[a]ccording to the Funds, the characterization is unfair, as they are not litigious like Dondero and are completely independent from him.”<sup>126</sup> Based on the totality of the evidence in this proceeding, the court finds that, contrary to the protestations of HMIT’s counsel and Patrick otherwise, Dondero is the driving force behind HMIT’s Motion for Leave and the Proposed Complaint. The Motion for Leave is just one more attempt by Dondero to press his conspiracy theory that he has pressed for over two years now, unsuccessfully, in Texas state court through Rule 202 proceedings, with the Texas State Securities Board, and with the United States Trustee’s office.

G. Opposition to Motion for Leave: Arguing No Standing and No “Colorable” Claims

Highland, the Claimant Trust, and Seery (together, the “Highland Parties”) filed a joint opposition (“Joint Opposition”) to HMIT’s Motion for Leave on May 11, 2023.<sup>127</sup> The Claims Purchasers filed a separate objection (“Claims Purchasers’ Objection”) to the Motion for Leave on May 11, 2023, as well.<sup>128</sup> In the Joint Opposition, the Highland Parties urge the court to deny HMIT leave to pursue the Proposed Claims because, as a threshold matter, HMIT does not have standing to bring them, directly or derivatively against the Proposed Defendants. They argue, in the alternative, that the Motion for Leave should be denied even if HMIT had standing to pursue the Proposed Claims because none of the Proposed Claims are “colorable” claims as that term is used in the Gatekeeper Provision of the Plan (and Gatekeeper Orders).<sup>129</sup>

The Claims Purchasers likewise argue that HMIT lacks standing to complain about claims trading in the bankruptcy which occurred between sophisticated Claims Purchasers and sophisticated sellers (“Claims Sellers”), represented by skilled bankruptcy and transactional counsel. Moreover, they argue HMIT cannot show that it or the Reorganized Debtor or the Claimant Trust were injured by the claims trading at issue because the Purchased Claims had already been adjudicated as allowed claims in the bankruptcy case—thus, distributions under the Plan on account of the Purchased Claims remain the same, the only difference being who holds the claims. Moreover, even if HMIT could succeed in equitably subordinating the validly transferred allowed claims, HMIT would still be in the same position it is today: the holder of a contingent, speculative Class 10 interest that would only be paid after payment, in full, with interest, of all creditors under the Plan. The Claims Purchasers argue in the alternative that the Proposed Claims are not “colorable.”

Finally, the Proposed Defendants argue that the standard of review for assessing whether the Proposed Claims are “colorable” (as such term is used in the Gatekeeper Provision and Gatekeeping Orders) is a standard that is a higher than the “plausibility” standard applied to Rule 12(b)(6). They argue that HMIT should be required to meet a higher bar with respect to colorability that includes making a prima facie showing that the Proposed Claims have merit (and/or are not without foundation) which requires HMIT to do more than meet the liberal notice-pleading standards.

H. HMIT’s Reply to the Proposed Defendants’ Opposition to the Motion for Leave

In its reply brief (“Reply”), filed by HMIT on May 18, 2023,<sup>130</sup> it argues that it has constitutional standing as an “aggrieved party” to bring the Proposed Claims on behalf of itself.<sup>131</sup> HMIT also argues that it has standing under Delaware Trust law to bring a derivative action on behalf of the Claimant Trust and that it not only has standing to bring the Proposed Claims derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor under the Plan, but it is the best party to bring the claims.<sup>132</sup> Finally, HMIT maintains that the standard of review that the bankruptcy court should apply in assessing the “colorability” of the Proposed Claims is no greater than the standard of review applied to motions to dismiss under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6), which would require the bankruptcy court to look only to the “four corners” of the Proposed Complaint

<sup>132</sup> See, Reply ¶ 23 n.5, where HMIT argues “The nature of this injury, in addition to Seery’s influence over the Claimant Trust, and the lack of prior action by the Claimant Trust to pursue the claims HMIT seeks to pursue derivatively, among other things, demonstrate that HMIT is not only a proper party to assert its derivative claims – but the best party to do so.”

and “not weigh extraneous evidence,”<sup>133</sup> take all allegations as true, and view all allegations and inferences in a light most favorable to HMIT. As discussed in greater length below, HMIT argues that, under this standard, the bankruptcy court should not consider evidence in making its determination as to whether the Proposed Complaint presents “colorable” claims.

I. Litigation within the Litigation: The Pre- June 8 Hearing Skirmishes

Suffice it to say there was significant activity before the Motion for Leave actually was presented at the June 8 hearing. HMIT sought an emergency hearing on its Motion for Leave (wanting a hearing on three days’ notice). When the bankruptcy court denied an emergency hearing, HMIT unsuccessfully pursued an interlocutory appeal of the denial of an emergency hearing to the district court. HMIT then petitioned for a writ of mandamus at the Fifth Circuit regarding the emergency hearing denial, which was denied by the Fifth Circuit on April 12, 2023.

Next, there were multiple pleadings and hearings regarding what kind of hearing the bankruptcy court should or should not hold on the Motion for Leave—particularly focusing on whether or not it would be an evidentiary hearing.<sup>134</sup> The resolution of this issue turned on what standard of review the court should apply in exercising its gatekeeping function and determining the colorability of the Proposed Claims. HMIT (although it had submitted two declarations of Dondero with its original Motion for Leave and approximately 350 pages of total evidentiary support) was adamant that there should be no evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave, arguing that the standard for review should be the plausibility standard under Rule 12(b)(6)

<sup>134</sup> Highland, joined by Seery and the Claims Purchasers, had filed a motion asking the bankruptcy court to set a briefing schedule on the Motion for Leave and to schedule a status conference, indicating that Highland’s proposed timetable for same was opposed by HMIT. HMIT subsequently filed a response unopposed to a briefing schedule and status conference, but, before the status conference, HMIT filed a brief, stating it was opposed to there being any evidence at the ultimate hearing on the HMIT Motion for Leave—arguing the bankruptcy court did not need evidence to exercise its gatekeeping function and determine if HMIT has a “colorable” claim. Rather, the court need only engage in a Rule 12(b)(6)-type plausibility analysis.

motions to dismiss such that “the threshold inquiry is very, very low. Evidence is not allowed. . . . [S]imilar to a 12(b)(6) inquiry, [the court] is limited to the four corners of the principal pleading – in this case, the complaint, or now the revised complaint.”<sup>135</sup> Counsel for the Proposed Defendants argued that the standard of review for colorability here, in the specific context of the court exercising its gatekeeping function under the Plan, is more akin to the standards applied under the Supreme Court’s Barton Doctrine<sup>136</sup> pursuant to which that the bankruptcy court must apply a higher standard than the 12(b)(6) standard, including the consideration of evidence at the hearing on the motion for leave; if the standard of review presents no greater hurdle to the movant than the 12(b)(6) standard applied to every plaintiff in every case, then the gatekeeping provisions mean nothing and do nothing to protect the parties from the harassing, bad-faith litigation they were put in place to prevent.<sup>137</sup> On May 22, 2023, after receipt of post-hearing briefing on the issue, the court entered an order stating that “the court has determined that there may be mixed questions of fact and law implicated by the Motion for Leave” and “[t]herefore, the parties will be permitted to present evidence (including witness testimony) at the June 8, 2023 hearing [on the Motion to Leave] if they so choose.”

Two days later, HMIT filed an emergency motion for expedited discovery or alternatively for continuance of the June 8, 2023 hearing, seeking expedited depositions of corporate

<sup>136</sup> The Barton Doctrine was established in the 19th century Supreme Court case of Barton v. Barbour, 104 U.S. 126 (1881), and states that a party wishing to sue a court-appointed trustee or receiver must first obtain leave of the appointing court by making a prima facie case that the claim it wishes to bring is not without foundation.

<sup>137</sup> See April 24 Transcript, 36:24-37:4 (“[W]e’re exactly today where the Court had predicted in entering [the Confirmation Order], that the costs and distraction of this litigation are substantial. And if all we’re doing is replicating a 12(b)(6) hearing on a motion for leave, we’re actually not doing anything to reduce, as the Court made clear, the burdens, distractions, of litigation.”); 37:5-13 (“The Fifth Circuit likewise cited Barton in its order affirming the confirmation order. representatives of the Claims Purchasers and of Seery and production of documents pursuant to deposition notices and subpoenas duces tecum that HMIT had attached to the motion. On May 26, 2023, this court held yet another status conference. Following the status conference, the court granted in part and denied in part HMIT’s request for expedited discovery by ordering only Seery and Dondero to be made available for depositions prior to the June 8 Hearing. The court reached what seemed like appropriate middle ground by allowing the deposition of Seery and allowing the other parties to depose Dondero (for whom sworn declarations had been submitted), but the court was not going to allow any more discovery (i.e., of the Claims Purchasers) at so late an hour. The court was aware that HMIT and Dondero had been seeking discovery relating to the very claims trades that are the subject of the Revised Proposed Complaint from the Claims Purchasers in Texas state court “Rule 202” proceedings for approximately two years, where their attempts were rebuffed.

Approximately 60 hours before the June 8 Hearing, HMIT filed its Witness and Exhibit List disclosing for the first time two potential expert witnesses (along with biographical information and a disclosure regarding the subject matter of their likely testimony). Highland, the Claimant Trust, and Seery filed a joint motion to exclude the expert testimony and documents (“Motion to Exclude”), which the court ultimately granted in a separate order.

During the full-day June 8 Hearing on the Motion to Leave, the court admitted over 50 HMIT exhibits and over 30 Highland/Claimant Trust exhibits. The court heard testimony from HMIT’s witnesses Dondero and Seery (as an adverse witness) and from the Highland Parties’ witness Mark Patrick, the administrator of HMIT since August 2022 (as an adverse witness). The bankruptcy court allowed HMIT to make a running objection to all evidence—as it continued to argue that evidence was not appropriate.

III. LEGAL ANALYSIS

In determining whether HMIT should be granted leave, pursuant to the Gatekeeper Provision of the Plan and the court’s prior Gatekeeper Orders, to pursue the Proposed Claims, the court must address the issue of whether HMIT would have standing to bring the Proposed Claims in the first instance. If so, the next question is whether the Proposed Claims are “colorable.” But prior to getting into the weeds on standing and “colorability,” some general discussion regarding the topic of claims trading in the bankruptcy world seems appropriate, given that HMIT’s Proposed Claims are based, in large part, on allegations of improper claims trading.

A. Claims Trading in the Context of Bankruptcy Cases—Can It Be Tortious or Otherwise Actionable?

As noted, at the crux of HMIT’s desired lawsuit is what this court will refer to as “claims trading activity” that occurred shortly after the Plan was confirmed, but before the Plan went effective. HMIT believes that the claims trading activity gave rise to various torts: breach of fiduciary duty on the part of Seery; knowing participation in breach of fiduciary duty by the other Proposed Defendants; and conspiracy by all Defendants. HMIT also believes that the following remedies should be imposed: equitable disallowance of the Purchased Claims; disgorgement of the alleged profits the Claims Purchasers made on their purchases; and disgorgement of all Seery’s compensation received since the beginning of his “collusion” with the other Defendants. Without a doubt, the Motion for Leave and Proposed Complaint revolve almost entirely around the claims trading activity.

This begs the question: When (or under what circumstances) might claims trading activity during a bankruptcy case give rise to a cause of action that either the bankruptcy estate or an economic stakeholder in the case might have standing to bring? Here, the claims trading wasn't even "during a bankruptcy case" really—it was post-confirmation and pre-effective date, and it happened to be: (a) after mediation of the claims, (b) after Rule 9019 settlement motions, (c) after objections by Dondero and certain of his family trusts were lodged, (d) after evidentiary hearings, and (e) after orders were ultimately entered allowing the claims (and in most cases, such orders were appealed). The further crux of HMIT's desired lawsuit is that Seery allegedly "wrongfully facilitated and promoted the sale of large unsecured creditor claims to his close business allies and friends" by sharing material non-public information to them regarding the potential value of the claims (i.e., the potential value of the bankruptcy estate), and this is what made the claims trading activity particularly pernicious. The alleged sharing of MNPI allegedly caused the Claims Purchasers to purchase their claims without doing any due diligence and with knowledge that the claims would be worth much more than the Plan's "pessimistic" projections might have suggested, and also allowed Seery to plant friendly allies into the creditor constituency (and on the post-confirmation CTOB) that would "rubber stamp" his generous compensation. This is all referred to as "not arm's-length" and "collusive." Notably, the MNPI mostly pertained to a likely future acquisition of MGM by Amazon (which transaction, indeed, occurred in 2022, after being publicly announced in Spring of 2021); as noted earlier, Highland owned, directly and indirectly, common stock in MGM. Also notably, there had been rumors and media attention regarding a potential sale of MGM for many months.<sup>138</sup> In summary, to be clear, HMIT's desired lawsuit is laced with a theme of "insider trading"—although this isn't a situation of securities trading per se (i.e., the unsecured Purchased Claims were not securities), and, as noted earlier, the Texas State Securities Board has not seen fit to investigate the claims trading activity.

So, preliminarily, is claims trading in bankruptcy sinister per se? The answer is no.

The activity of investing in distressed debt (which frequently occurs during a bankruptcy case—sometimes referred to as “claims trading”) is ubiquitous and, indeed, has been so for a very long time. As noted by one scholar:

The creation of a market in bankruptcy claims is the single most important development in the bankruptcy world since the Bankruptcy Code’s enactment in 1978. [Citations omitted.] Claims trading has revolutionized bankruptcy by making it a much more market-driven process. [Citations omitted.] . . . The development of a robust market for all types of claims against debtors has changed the cast of characters involved in bankruptcies. In addition to long-standing relational creditors, like trade creditors or a single senior secured bank or bank group, bankruptcy cases now involve professional distressed debt investors, whose interests and behavior are often quite different than traditional relational counterparty creditors.

As a pure policy matter, some practitioners have bemoaned this claims trading phenomenon, suggesting that “distressed debt traders may sacrifice the long-term viability of a debtor for the ability to realize substantial and quick returns on their investments.”<sup>140</sup> Others suggest that claims trading in bankruptcy is beneficial, in that it allows creditors of a debtor an early exit from a potentially long bankruptcy case, enabling them to save expense and administrative hassles, realize immediate liquidity on their claims (albeit discounted), and may

So, what are the “rules of the road” here? What does the Bankruptcy Code dictate regarding claims trading? The answer is nothing. The Bankruptcy Code itself has no provisions whatsoever regarding claims trading. The only thing resembling any regulation of claims trading during a bankruptcy case is found at Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 3001(e)—the current version of which went into effect in 1991—and it imposes extremely light regulation—if it could even be called that. This rule requires, in pertinent part (at subsection (2)), that “[i]f a claim other than one based on a publicly traded note, bond, or debenture” is traded during the case after a proof of claim is filed, notice/evidence of that trade must be filed with the bankruptcy clerk by the transferee. The transferor shall then be notified and given 21 days to object. If there is an objection, the bankruptcy court will hold a hearing regarding whether a transfer, in fact, took place. If there is no objection, nothing further needs to happen, and the transferee will be considered substituted for the transferor.

There are several things noteworthy about Rule 3001(e)(2). First, the only party given the opportunity to object is the transferor of the claim (presumably, in the situation of a dispute regarding whether there was truly an agreement regarding the transfer of the claim). Second, there is no need for a bankruptcy court order approving the transfer (except in the event of an objection by the alleged transferor). Third, the economic consideration paid need not be disclosed to the court or anyone. Fourth, there is no requirement or definition of timeliness. Finally, it explicitly does not apply with regard to publicly traded debt. This, alone, means that many claims trades are not even reported in a bankruptcy case. But it is not just publicly traded debt that will not be reflected with a Rule 3001(e) filing. For example, bank debt, in modern times, is often syndicated (i.e., fragmented into many beneficial holders of portions of the debt) and only the administrative agent for the syndicate (or the “lead bank”) will file a proof of claim in the bankruptcy—thus, as the syndicated interests (participations) change hands, and they frequently do, there typically will not be a Rule 3001(e) notice filed.<sup>143</sup> To be clear here, this syndication-of-bank-debt fact, along with the fact that there are financial products whereby bank debt might be carved up into economic interests separate and apart from legal title to the loan, means there are many situations in which trading of claims during a bankruptcy case is not necessarily transparent or, for that matter, policed by the bankruptcy court. This is the world of modern bankruptcy. Most of the claims trading that gets reported through a Rule 3001(e) notice is the trading of small vendor claims. And this is all regarded as private sale transactions for the most part.<sup>144</sup>

Suffice it to say that there is not a wealth of case law dealing with claims trading in a bankruptcy context. Perhaps this is not surprising, since it is not prohibited and is mostly a matter of private contract between buyer and seller. The case law that does exist seems to arise in situations of perceived bad faith of a purchaser—for example, when there was an attempt to control voting and/or ultimate control of the debtor through the plan process (not always problematic, but there are outlier cases where this was found to cross a line and result in consequences such as disallowing votes on a plan or even equitable subordination of a claim).<sup>145</sup> Another type of case that has generated case law is where the purchaser of claims occupied a fiduciary status with the debtor.<sup>146</sup> Still another type of case that has generated case law is where there is an attempt to cleanse claims that might have risks because of a seller's malfeasance, by trading the claim to a new claim holder.<sup>147</sup>

<sup>144</sup> Note that Bankruptcy Rule 3001(e) was very different before 1991. Between 1983-1991, the rule required that parties transferring claims inform the court that a transfer of claims was taking place and also disclose the consideration paid for the transferred claims. A hearing would take place prior to the execution of a trade. Judicial involvement was required and resulted in judicial scrutiny of transactions—something that simply does not exist today.

The following is a potpourri of the more notable cases that have addressed claims trading in different contexts. Most of them imposed no adverse consequences on claims traders: In re Kreisler, 546 F.3d 863, 864 (7th Cir. 2008) (where a corporation named Garlin, that was owned by the individual chapter 7 debtors' sister and close friend, purchased a $900,000 bank claim for $16,500, and there was no disclosure of Garlin's connections to debtors and no Rule 3001(e)(2) notice was filed, the Seventh Circuit reversed the bankruptcy court's invocation of the doctrine of equitable subordination to the claim, stating: "Equitable subordination is generally appropriate only if a creditor is guilty of misconduct that causes injury to the interests of other creditors;" the Seventh Circuit further stated that it could "put to one side whether the court's finding of inequitable conduct was correct" because even if there was misconduct, it did not harm the other creditors, who were in the same position whether the original creditor or Garlin happened to own the claim; the Seventh Circuit did note that Garlin's decision to purchase the original bank

Suffice it to say that the courts have, more often than not, been unwilling to impose legal consequences, for an actor’s involvement with claims trading. At most, in outlier-type situations during a case, courts have taken steps to disallow claims for voting purposes or to subordinate claims to other unsecured creditors for distribution purposes.<sup>148</sup> But the case at bar does not present facts that are typical of any of the situations in reported cases.

For one thing, unlike in the reported cases this court has located, there seems to have been complete symmetry of sophistication among the claim sellers and claim purchasers here—and complete symmetry with HMIT for that matter. All persons involved are highly sophisticated financial institutions, hedge funds, or private equity funds. No one was a “mom-and-pop” type business or vendor that might be vulnerable to chicanery. The claims ranged from being worth $10’s of millions of dollars to $100’s of millions of dollars in face value. And, of course, the sellers/transfersors of the claims have never shown up, subsequent to the claims trading

<sup>148</sup> Note that, while some cases suggest that outright disallowance of an unsecured claim, in the case of “inequitable conduct” might be permitted (not merely equitable subordination to unsecured creditors)—usually citing to Pepper v. Litton, 308 U.S. 295 (1939)—the Fifth Circuit has suggested otherwise. In re Mobile Steel Co., Inc., 563 F.2d 692, 699-700 (5th Cir. 1977) (cleaned up) (noting that “equitable considerations can justify only the subordination of claims, not their disallowance” and also noting that “three conditions must be satisfied before exercise of the power of equitable subordination is appropriate[:]: (i) The claimant must have engaged in some type of inequitable conduct[:]; (ii) The misconduct must have resulted in injury to the creditors of the bankrupt or conferred an unfair advantage on the claimant[:]; and] (iii) Equitable subordination of the claim must not be inconsistent with the provisions of the Bankruptcy Act.” In Mobile Steel, the Fifth Circuit held that the bankruptcy judge exceeded the bounds of his equitable jurisdiction by disallowing a group of claims and also reversed the subordination of certain claims, on the grounds that the bankruptcy court had made clearly erroneous findings regarding alleged inequitable conduct and other necessary facts. Contrast In re Lothian Oil Inc., 650 F.3d 539 (5th Cir. 2011) (involving the question of whether a bankruptcy court may recharacterize a claim as equity rather than debt; the court held yes, but it has nothing to do with inequitable conduct per se; rather section 502(b)’s language that a claim should be allowed unless it is “unenforceable against the debtor and property of the debtor, under any agreement or applicable law....” is the relevant authority; unlike equitable subordination, recharacterization is about looking at the true substance of a transaction not the conduct of a party (if it looks like a duck and quacks like a duck, it’s a duck—i.e., equity); the court indicated that section 105 is not a basis to recharacterize debt as equity; it’s a matter of looking at state law to determine if there is any basis and looking at the nature of the underlying transaction—as either a lending arrangement or equity infusion.

transactions, to complain about anything. Everyone involved here is, essentially, a behemoth and there is literally no sign of innocent creditors getting harmed. Second, the case at bar is unique in that the claims traded here had all been allowed after objections, mediation, and Rule 9019 settlements during the bankruptcy case. Thus, the amounts that would be paid on them were “locked in,” so to speak. There was no risk to a hypothetical claims-purchaser of disallowance, offset, or any “claw-back” litigation (or—one might have reasonably assumed—any type of litigation). Third, the terms for distributions on unsecured claims had been established in a confirmed plan (although the claims were purchased before the effective date of the Plan). Thus, there was a degree of certainty regarding return on investment for the Claims Purchasers here that was much higher than if the claims had been purchased early, during, or mid-way through the case.<sup>149</sup> This was post-confirmation, pre-effective date claims purchasing. Interestingly, all three of these facts might suggest that little due diligence would be undertaken by any hypothetical purchaser. The rules of the road had been set. The court makes this observation because HMIT has suggested there is something highly suspicious about the fact that Farallon allegedly told Dondero that it did no due diligence before purchasing its claims (leading him to conclude that the Claims Purchasers must have purchased their claims based on receiving MNPI from Seery). Not only has there been no colorable evidence suggesting that insider information was shared, but the lack of due diligence in this context does not reasonably seem suspicious. The claims purchases

Some claims purchasers buy before the bankruptcy petition is filed, some at the beginning of the case, and some towards the end. For example, there are investors who look to purchase at low prices either when a business is failing or early in the bankruptcy and ride through the case until payouts are fairly certain. [Citations omitted.] These investors might be hoping to buy at 30 cents on the dollar and get a payout at 70 cents on the dollar. Perhaps if they waited another six months, the payout would be 74 cents on the dollar, but the additional 4 cents on the dollar for six months might not be a worthwhile return for the time value of the investment. Other investors might not want to assume the risk that exists in the early days of a case when the fate of the debtor is much less certain, but they would gladly purchase at 70 cents on the dollar at the end of the case to get a payout of 74 cents on the dollar six months later.

were almost like passive investments, at this point—there was no risk of a claim objection and there was a confirmed plan, with a lengthy disclosure statement that described not only plan payment terms and projections, but essentially anything that any investor might want to know.

To reiterate, here, HMIT seeks leave to assert the following causes of action:

- I. Breach of Fiduciary Duties (Seery)
- II. Knowing Participation in Breach of Fiduciary Duties (Claims Purchasers)
- III. Conspiracy (all Proposed Defendants)
- IV. Equitable Disallowance (Claims Purchasers)
- V. Unjust Enrichment and Constructive Trust (all Proposed Defendants)
- VI. Declaratory Judgment (all Proposed Defendants)

The court struggles to fathom how any of these proposed causes of action or remedies can be applied in the context of: (a) post-confirmation claims trading; (b) where the claims have all been litigated and allowed.

In reflecting on the case law and various Bankruptcy Code provisions, the court can fathom the following hypotheticals in which claims trading during a bankruptcy case might be somehow actionable:

Hypothetical #1: The most obvious situation would be if a purchaser of a claim files a Rule 3001(e) Notice, and the seller/transferor then files an objection thereto. There would then be a contested hearing between purchaser and seller regarding the validity of the transfer with the bankruptcy court issuing an appropriate order after the hearing on the objection. As noted, there was no objection to the Rule 3001(e) notices here.

Hypothetical #2: Alternatively, there could be a breach of contract suit between purchaser and seller if one thinks the other breached the purchase-sale agreement somehow. Perhaps torts might also be alleged in such litigation. As noted, there is no dispute between purchasers and sellers here.

Hypothetical #3: If there is believed to be fraud in connection with a plan, a party in interest might, pursuant to section 1144 of the Bankruptcy Code, move for revocation of the plan “at any time before 180 days after the date of entry of the order for confirmation” and the court “may revoke such order if and only if such order was procured by fraud.” As noted, here HMIT has suggested that the “pessimistic” plan projections may have been fraudulent or misrepresentations somehow. The time elapsed long ago to seek revocation of the Plan.

Hypothetical #4: As discussed above, in rare situations (bad faith), during a Chapter 11 case, before a plan is confirmed, a claims purchaser’s claim might not be allowed for voting purposes. See Sections 1126(e) of the Bankruptcy Code (“the court may designate any entity whose acceptance or rejection of such plan was not in good faith”). Obviously, in this case, this is not applicable—the claims were purchased post-confirmation.

Hypothetical #5: As discussed above, in rare situations (inequitable conduct), a court might equitably subordinate claims to other claims. See Section 510(c) of the Bankruptcy Code. But here, HMIT is seeking either: (a) equitable subordination of the claims of the Claims Purchaser to HMIT’s Class 10 former equity interest (in contravention of the explicit terms of section 510(c)) or, (b) equitable disallowance of the claims of the Claims Purchasers (in contravention of Mobile Steel).

Hypothetical #6: Bankruptcy Code section 502(b)(1) and the Fifth Circuit’s Lothian Oil case may permit “recharacterization” of a claim from debt to equity in certain circumstances, but not in circumstances like the ones in this case. Here, the claims have already been adjudicated and allowed (some after mediation, and all after Rule 9019 settlement orders). The only way to reconsider a claim in a bankruptcy case that has already been allowed is through Bankruptcy Code section 502(j) (“A claim that has been allowed or disallowed may be reconsidered for cause. . . according to the equities of the case.”). The problem here is that Bankruptcy Rule 9024 provides that a motion for “reconsideration of an order allowing or disallowing a claim against the estate entered without a contest is not subject to the one year limitation prescribed in Rule 60(c)” (emphasis added). Here there was most definitely “a contest” with regard to all of these purchased claims. Thus, it would appear that any effort to have a court reconsider these claims pursuant to section 502(j) is untimely—as it has been well beyond a year since they were allowed.

Hypothetical #7: If a party believes “insider trading” occurred there are governmental agencies that investigate and police that. Here, the purchased claims (which were not based on bonds or certificated equity interests) would not be securities so as to fall under the SEC’s purview. Moreover, there was evidence that HMIT or Dondero-Related entities requested that the Texas State Securities Board investigate the claims trading and the board did not find a basis to pursue anyone for wrongdoing.

Hypothetical #8: The United States Trustee can investigate wrongdoing by a debtor or unsecured creditors committee. While the United States Trustee would naturally have concerns about members of an unsecured creditors committee (or an officer of a debtor-in-possession) adhering to fiduciary duties and not putting their own interests above those of the estate, here, there are a couple of points that seem noteworthy. One, the claims trading activity was post-confirmation so—while certain of the claim-sellers may have still been on the unsecured creditors committee, as the effective date of the plan had not yet occurred—the circumstances are very different than if this had all happened during the early, contentious stages of the case. It seems inconceivable that there was somehow a disparity of information that might be troubling—the Plan had been confirmed and it was available for the world to see. The whole notion of “insider information” (just after confirmation here) feels a bit off-point. Bankruptcy practitioners and judges sometimes call bankruptcy a fishbowl or use the “open kimono” metaphor for good reason. It is generally a very open process. And information-sharing on the part of a debtor-in-possession or unsecured creditors committee is intended to be robust. See, e.g., Bankruptcy Code sections 521 and 1102(b)(3). In a way, HMIT here seems to be complaining about this very situation that the Code and Rules have designed.

In summary, claims trading is a highly unregulated activity in the bankruptcy world.

HMIT is attempting to pursue causes of action here that, to this court’s knowledge, have never been allowed in a context like this.

B. Back to Standing—Would HMIT Have Standing to Bring the Proposed Claims?

The Proposed Defendants argue that HMIT lacks standing to bring the Proposed Claims, either: (a) derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trust, or (b) directly on behalf of itself. Thus, they argue that this is one reason that the Motion for Leave should be denied.

In making their specific standing arguments, the parties analyze things slightly differently:

The Claims Purchasers focus primarily on HMIT’s lack of constitutional standing but also argue that HMIT does not have prudential standing under Delaware trust law to bring the Proposed Claims either individually or derivatively. Why do they mention Delaware trust law? Because the Claimant Trust is a Delaware statutory trust governed by the Delaware Statutory Trust Act, 12 Del. C. §§ 3801–29.<sup>150</sup>

The Highland Parties’ standing arguments focus almost entirely on HMIT’s lack of prudential standing under Delaware trust law to bring the Proposed Claims.

HMIT argues that the Proposed Defendants “play fast and loose with standing arguments” and that HMIT has constitutional standing as a “party aggrieved”<sup>151</sup> to bring the Proposed Claims on behalf of itself. HMIT also argues that it has standing under Delaware trust law to bring a derivative action on behalf of the Claimant Trust, and that it not only has standing to bring the Proposed Claims derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor under the Plan, but it is the best party to do so.

1. The Different Types of Standing: Constitutional Versus Prudential

The parties are addressing two concepts of standing that can sometimes be confused and misapplied by both attorneys and judges: constitutional Article III standing, which implicates federal court subject matter jurisdiction,<sup>152</sup> and the narrower standing concept of prudential standing, which does not implicate subject matter jurisdiction but nevertheless might prevent a party from having capacity to sue, pursuant to limitations set by courts, statutes or other law.

Article III constitutional standing works as follows: a plaintiff, as the party invoking federal jurisdiction, bears the burden of establishing three elements: (1) that he or she suffered an injury in fact that is concrete, particularized, and actual or imminent—not conjectural or hypothetical, (2) that there is a causal connection between the injury and the conduct complained of, and (3) it must be likely, not speculative, that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision.<sup>153</sup> “If the plaintiff does not claim to have suffered an injury that the defendant caused and the court can remedy, there is no case or controversy for the federal court to resolve.”<sup>154</sup> These elements ensure that a plaintiff has “such a personal stake in the outcome of the controversy” as to warrant his invocation of federal-court jurisdiction and to justify exercise of the court’s remedial powers on his behalf.”<sup>155</sup>

<sup>153</sup> See Thole v. U.S. Bank, N.A., 140 S.Ct. 1615, 1618 (2020)(citing the Supreme Court’s seminal case on the tripartite test for Article III constitutional standing, Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560-61 (1992), where the Supreme Court stated that “the irreducible constitutional minimum of standing contains [the] three elements”); see also Spokeo, 578 U.S. at 338; Abraugh v. Altimus, 26 F.4th 298, 302 (5th Cir. 2022) (citing id.).

Apart from this minimal constitutional mandate, courts and statutes have set other limits on the class of persons who may seek judicial remedies—and this is the concept of prudential standing. In its recent opinion in Abraugh v. Altimus,<sup>156</sup> the Fifth Circuit set forth a detailed analysis of the two types of “standing,” noting that the term “standing” is often “misused” in our legal system, which has led to confusion for both attorneys and judges.<sup>157</sup> The constitutional standing that is necessary for a court to exercise subject matter jurisdiction is broader than prudential standing and is only the first hurdle a party must clear before pursuing a claim in federal court.

The Fifth Circuit explained that in addition to Article III constitutional standing, “courts have occasionally articulated other ‘standing’ requirements that plaintiffs must satisfy under certain conditions, beyond those imposed by Article III,”<sup>158</sup> such as the “standing” requirement that might be imposed by a statute or by jurisprudence. The Abraugh case was a perfect example of the latter.

Abraugh involved the civil rights statutes that provide, among other things, that “a party must have standing under the state wrongful death or survival statutes to bring [a § 1983 cause of action]” and noted that these statutes impose additional “standing” requirements that are a matter of prudential standing, not constitutional standing.<sup>159</sup> In Abraugh, the Fifth Circuit reversed and remanded a district court’s dismissal of a § 1983 civil rights cause of action—noting that the district court had stated that it was dismissing based on a “lack of subject matter jurisdiction” because the plaintiff in that action lacked standing.<sup>160</sup> The plaintiff was the mother of a prisoner who died by suicide while in custody who brought a § 1983 action against Louisiana correctional officers and officials. After finding that the plaintiff/mother lacked standing under Louisiana’s wrongful death and survival statutes (because there had been a surviving child and wife of the prisoner who were the proper parties with capacity to sue), the district court held that it was dismissing for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. The Fifth Circuit pointed out that the plaintiff/mother may have lacked standing under Louisiana’s wrongful death and survival statutes to bring the claim under § 1983, but that type of standing was matter of prudential standing, and the plaintiff/mother actually did have Article III constitutional standing (“a constitutionally cognizable interest in the life of her son”).<sup>161</sup> Thus, the district court’s error was not in finding that the plaintiff/mother lacked prudential standing but in improperly conflating the two standing concepts when it held that it had lacked subject matter jurisdiction to consider any of the plaintiff’s/mother’s amended complaints.<sup>162</sup> The Fifth Circuit noted specifically that<sup>163</sup>

prudential standing does not present a jurisdictional question, but “a merits question: who, according to the governing substantive law, is entitled to enforce the right?” As the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure make clear, “an action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest.” FED. R. CIV. P. 17(a)(1). And a violation of this rule is a failure of “prudential” standing. “Not one of our precedents holds that the inquiry is jurisdictional.” It goes only to the validity of the cause of action. And “the absence of a valid . . . cause of action does not implicate subject-matter jurisdiction.”

Somewhat relevant to this prudential standing discussion is the fact that, in this bankruptcy case, there have been dozens of appeals of bankruptcy court orders by Dondero and Dondero-related entities. In connection therewith, both the district court and the Fifth Circuit, in evaluating the appellate standing of the appellants, have taken pains to distinguish between the concepts of:

The Fifth Circuit opined that “the district court did not err in describing [the mother’s] inability to sue under Louisiana law as a defect of ‘standing[, b]ut it is a defect of prudential standing, not Article III standing” thus technically not implicating the federal court’s subject matter jurisdiction. Id. at 303.

(a) traditional, constitutional standing, and (b) a type of prudential standing known as the “person aggrieved” test, which is applied in the Fifth Circuit in determining whether a party has standing to appeal a bankruptcy court order—which it describes as a narrower and “more exacting” standard than constitutional standing. As explained in a Fifth Circuit opinion addressing the standing of a Dondero-related entity called NexPoint to appeal bankruptcy court orders allowing professional fees, the “person aggrieved” standard that is typically applied to ascertain bankruptcy appellate standing originated in a statute in the Bankruptcy Act. The Fifth Circuit continued to apply it after Congress removed the provision when it enacted the Bankruptcy Code in 1978.<sup>164</sup> Because it is narrower and “more exacting” than the test for Article III constitutional standing, it involves application of prudential standing considerations.<sup>165</sup> The Fifth Circuit describes the “person aggrieved” test for bankruptcy appellant standing as requiring that an appellant show that it was “directly and adversely affected pecuniarily by the order of the bankruptcy court,” requiring “a higher causal nexus between act and injury than traditional standing . . . that best deals with the unique posture of bankruptcy actions.”<sup>166</sup> In affirming the district court’s dismissal of NexPoint’s appeal of the bankruptcy court’s fee orders, due to NexPoint’s lack of prudential standing under the “person aggrieved” test, the court rejected NexPoint’s argument that it had standing to appeal

because “it meets traditional Article III standing requirements [and that the more exacting] prudential standing considerations such as the ‘person aggrieved’ standard” did not survive the Supreme Court’s 2014 Lexmark<sup>167</sup> opinion,<sup>168</sup> which addressed standing issues in the context of false advertising claims under the Lanham Act and reminded that courts may not “limit a cause of action that Congress has created merely because ‘prudence’ dictates.”<sup>169</sup> The Fifth Circuit held that the Supreme Court’s reminder in Lexmark did not nullify the “person aggrieved” test for prudential standing in bankruptcy appeals, citing its own decision in Superior MRI Services Inc. v. Alliance Healthcare Services, Inc.<sup>170</sup> (rendered a year after Lexmark was decided), in which it held that Lexmark applied only to the circumstances of that case, “rather than broadly modifying—or undermining—all prudential standing concerns, such as the one animating the ‘person aggrieved’ standard in bankruptcy appeals.”<sup>171</sup>

Similarly, in yet another appeal in this bankruptcy case involving three Dondero-related entities as appellants (NexPoint, Dugaboy, and HCMFA)—this one an appeal of a bankruptcy court order authorizing the creation of an indemnity subtrust and entry into an indemnity trust agreement—the district court noted the parties’ confusion about the standing issue, as exemplified in the parties’ reference to constitutional standing when they were actually arguing that they had prudential standing under the “person aggrieved” test: “Although the parties frame this issue as one of constitutional standing . . . they cite case law and present arguments about the prudential standing requirement embodied in the ‘person aggrieved’ test.”<sup>172</sup> The district court noted that it had an “independent obligation to consider constitutional standing before reaching its prudential aspects.”<sup>173</sup> The district court dismissed the appeal as to Dugaboy and HCMFA for lack of standing but, upon concluding that NexPoint did have standing, dismissed the appeal as to it on the merits. The Fifth Circuit affirmed.<sup>174</sup> Interestingly, the court noted that, while the parties did not contest the district court’s determination that NexPoint had standing to pursue the appeal, it “may consider prudential standing issues sua sponte.”<sup>175</sup> In doing so, the Fifth Circuit recognized the distinction between constitutional standing and the prudential “person aggrieved” test applied to bankruptcy appeals, which “is, of necessity, quite limited” and “an even more exacting standard than traditional constitutional standing,” as it requires an appellant to show that it is “directly, adversely, and financially impacted by a bankruptcy order.”<sup>176</sup>

In summary, in analyzing whether HMIT would have standing to bring the Proposed Claims, this court must first determine whether HMIT would have constitutional standing under Article III (which is a subject matter jurisdiction hurdle) and, assuming it does, then additionally address whether HMIT would also have prudential standing (i.e., capacity to sue) pursuant to any applicable statutes (e.g., Delaware statutes), jurisprudence, or other substantive law that might limit who may sue. Notwithstanding HMIT’s argument that it has standing under the “person aggrieved” test<sup>177</sup>—which, as discussed above, is a matter of prudential standing—this is applied only in the context of bankruptcy appellate matters.<sup>178</sup> As noted in its most recent opinion discussing standing in an appeal from the Highland bankruptcy case, the Fifth Circuit reiterated that the “person aggrieved” test is a test for bankruptcy appellate standing, which is narrower than a party in interest’s right to be heard in bankruptcy cases in general.<sup>179</sup> The court rejected an argument that Bankruptcy Code § 1109, which provides that “[a] party in interest . . . may raise and may appear and be heard on any issue in a case under this chapter” confers appellate standing, noting that “one’s standing to appear and be heard before the bankruptcy court [is] a concept distinct from standing to appeal the merits of a decision” and that the “person aggrieved” test for bankruptcy appellate standing is narrower than the test for determining one’s standing to appear and be heard in a bankruptcy proceeding.<sup>180</sup>

Thus, the court will now analyze whether HMIT would, at a minimum, have constitutional standing to bring the Proposed Claims.

2. HMIT Would Lack Article III Constitutional Standing to Bring the Proposed Claims.

As noted above, the Supreme Court and the Fifth Circuit have made clear that constitutional standing is necessary for a court to exercise subject matter jurisdiction. It is only the first hurdle a party must clear before pursuing a claim in federal court. HMIT, as plaintiff, would bear the

<sup>177</sup> HMIT insists that it has constitutional standing to bring claims on its individual behalf “as an aggrieved party.” See Reply, ¶ 7.

<sup>178</sup> HMIT’s argument in this matter that it has constitutional standing because it is a “party aggrieved” incorrectly conflates the prudential bankruptcy appellate “person aggrieved” test with the broader test that is applied to constitutional standing. The court is not being critical of this mistake. As noted at supra note 149, the Fifth Circuit in Abraugh pointed out that courts and attorneys alike have created confusion by misusing the term “standing” when they equate a lack of “standing,” in all instances, with a lack of subject matter jurisdiction, even when the party is found to lack only prudential standing. Thus, HMIT is not alone in its confusion over the two different concepts of standing.

burden of establishing: (1) that it suffered an injury in fact that is concrete, particularized, and actual or imminent—not conjectural or hypothetical, (2) that there is a causal connection between the injury and the conduct complained of, and (3) it must be likely, not speculative, that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision.<sup>181</sup>

Concrete and Particularized; Actual or Imminent. As the Supreme Court made clear in the Lujan case, the injury in fact element requires a showing that the injury was “concrete and particularized” and “actual or imminent, not conjectural or hypothetical.”<sup>182</sup> The Supreme Court in the Spokeo case expounded on the “concrete and particularized” requirements of the “injury in fact” element. Particularization requires a showing that the injury “must affect the plaintiff in a personal and individual way,” but while particularization is necessary, it alone is “not sufficient,” because an injury in fact must also be “concrete.”<sup>183</sup> And, concreteness is “quite different from particularization.”<sup>184</sup> A “concrete” injury must be “real,” and “not abstract,” though it does not mean that the injury must be “tangible,” as the injury can be intangible and nevertheless be concrete.<sup>185</sup> In addition to the concreteness and particularization requirements, an injury in fact must be “actual or imminent” such that “allegations of injury that is merely conjectural or hypothetical do not suffice to confer standing.”<sup>186</sup> “Although imminence is concededly a somewhat elastic concept, it cannot be stretched beyond its purpose, which is to ensure that the alleged injury is not too speculative for Article III purposes—that the injury is certainly

Traceability - Causal Connection. As to the second element—that the injury was caused by the defendant—the Supreme Court in Lujan further described it as requiring a showing that “the injury has to be fairly traceable to the challenged action of the defendant.”<sup>188</sup> The “fairly traceable” test requires an examination of “the causal connection between the assertedly unlawful conduct and the alleged injury.”<sup>189</sup>

Redressability. The third element—redressability—requires the court to examine the connection “between the alleged injury and the judicial relief requested.”<sup>190</sup> “Relief that does not remedy the injury suffered cannot bootstrap a plaintiff into federal court.”<sup>191</sup> “[A] court must determine that there is an available remedy which will have a ‘substantial probability’ of redressing the plaintiff’s injury.”<sup>192</sup>

The Claims Purchasers argue that HMIT lacks constitutional standing to pursue the claims asserted in the Proposed Complaint because: (i) neither HMIT nor the Bankruptcy Estate was injured by the Claim Purchasers’ acquisition of the claims; and (ii) the Proposed Complaint lacks a theory of cognizable damages to the Reorganized Debtor, the Claimant Trust, and/or the beneficiaries of the Claimant Trust.<sup>193</sup>

<sup>193</sup> As noted earlier, certain of the Proposed Defendants—the Highland Parties—do not focus on HMIT’s lack of constitutional standing to pursue the Proposed Claims against them, but on its lack of prudential standing under

The court agrees with the Claims Purchasers’ argument here. What is HMIT’s concrete and particularized injury—that is “real” and is not abstract? That is not conjectural or hypothetical? That is actual or imminent?

Recall that, under the Plan, HMIT holds a Class 10 contingent interest in the Claimant Trust that only realizes value if all creditors are paid in full with interest. HMIT alleges the following injury: it has suffered a devaluation of its unvested Contingent Claimant Trust Interest by virtue of the alleged over-compensation of Seery as the Claimant Trustee—Seery’s alleged over-compensation depletes the assets in the Claimant Trust available for distribution to creditors under the Plan, such that there is less likely a chance that HMIT ultimately receives any distributions on account of its Class 10 Contingent Claimant Trust Interest.<sup>194</sup> Yet, HMIT testified, through both witnesses Dondero and Patrick, that it had no personal knowledge of what Seery’s actual compensation is under the CTA at the time HMIT filed its Motion for Leave. It was clear that HMIT’s allegations regarding Seery’s “excessive” compensation were based entirely on Dondero’s pure speculation. In reality, Seery’s base salary is exactly what the bankruptcy court approved during the bankruptcy case by a court order (after negotiations between Seery and the Committee). The CTA now further governs his compensation. The CTA, which was publicly filed in advance of the Plan confirmation hearing and approved by this court as part of the Plan applicable law. Because constitutional standing is a matter of subject matter jurisdiction, the court has an independent duty to determine whether HMIT would have constitutional standing to pursue the Proposed Claims in federal court. The issue cannot be forfeited or waived by a party. See Abraugh v. Y & H Corp., 546 U.S. 500, 514 (2006) (“[S]ubject-matter jurisdiction, because it involves a court’s power to hear a case, can never be forfeited or waived. <sup>194</sup> At the June 8 Hearing, HMIT’s counsel was unable to identify any other injury HMIT has alleged to have suffered. HMIT’s counsel acknowledged that claims trades, in and of themselves, would not “involve injury to the Reorganized Debtor and to the Claimant Trust” and that claims trades are “normally outside the purview of the bankruptcy court” but that “[h]ere, we have alleged . . . injury [that] takes the form of unearned excessive fees that Mr. Seery has garnered as a result of his relationship and arrangements, as we have alleged, with the Claims Purchasers.” June 8 Hearing Transcript, 67:16-68:8. HMIT can only point to Seery’s excess compensation as injury.

(which has been affirmed by the Fifth Circuit), specifically provides that Seery’s post-Effective Date compensation would include a “Base Salary” (again, same as during the bankruptcy case), a “success fee,” and “severance.”<sup>195</sup> The CTA discussed the role of the Committee and then the CTOB in setting the success fee and severance and the like. A fully executed copy of the CTA was admitted into evidence at the June 8 Hearing. HMIT is essentially arguing that its injury (i.e., diminished likelihood of realizing value on its Contingent Claimant Trust Interest) stems from a court-sanctioned and creditor-approved process for approving compensation to Seery. Moreover, HMIT has failed to plead facts sufficient to show that, even if Seery received excessive compensation and that compensation is ordered to be returned, HMIT’s Contingent Claimant Trust Interest will ever vest. The district court and the Fifth Circuit in various appeals by Dugaboy, another Dondero-related entity that, similar to HMIT, was a holder of a limited partnership interest in Highland whose interests were terminated as of the Effective Date of the Plan in exchange for a Contingent Claimant Trust Interest, have repeatedly rejected Dugaboy’s claims to have standing based on the speculative nature of its alleged injuries as a contingent beneficiary of the Claimant Trust under the Plan. For example, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the district court’s dismissal of an appeal by Dugaboy of the bankruptcy court’s order authorizing the creation of an indemnity subtrust, wherein Judge Fitzwater found that, in addition to lacking prudential standing under the

As compensation for any services rendered by the Claimant Trustee in connection with this Agreement, the Claimant Trustee shall receive compensation of $150,000 per month (the “Base Salary”). Within the first forty-five days following the Confirmation Date, the Claimant Trustee, on the one hand, and the Committee, if prior to the Effective Date, or the Oversight Board, if on or after the Effective Date, on the other, will negotiate go-forward compensation for the Claimant Trustee which will include (a) the Base Salary, (b) a success fee, and (c) severance.

“person aggrieved” test to appeal the bankruptcy court’s order, Dugaboy lacked constitutional standing “because they have not identified any injury fairly traceable to the Order: the injuries identified are speculative at best and nonexistent at worst.”<sup>196</sup> HMIT’s allegations of injury are, without a doubt, “merely conjectural or hypothetical” and are only speculative of possible future injury if its Contingent Claimant Trust Interest ever vests.<sup>197</sup> The court finds that HMIT would not meet the “concrete and particularized” or the “actual or imminent” requirements for an “injury in fact,” and, thus, would lack constitutional standing to pursue the Proposed Claims.

With regard to the second requirement of constitutional standing—whether HMIT could show “traceability” with respect to the Claims Purchasers and/or Seery (i.e., a “causal connection between the assertedly unlawful conduct and the alleged injury”<sup>198</sup>), as noted above, there is only a speculative injury. Even if there is unlawful conduct asserted (i.e., sharing of MNPI to Claims Purchasers who then, as a quid pro quo, rubber stamped excessive compensation for Seery), there is nothing other than a hypothetical theory of an alleged injury (i.e., an allegedly less likelihood of a distribution on a Contingent Claimant Trust Interest).

With respect to the third requirement of constitutional standing—whether HMIT can show “redressability” (i.e., that it is likely, not speculative, that the injury can be redressed by a favorable decision), there are multiple problems here.<sup>199</sup> The major remedy sought here is the equitable disallowance of the allowed Purchased Claims (and disgorgement and/or constructive trust of amounts paid or owed to the Claim Purchasers on account of their claims). There is no such remedy available here. As noted earlier, there is a similar concept of equitable subordination of a claim to another claim, or of an interest to another interest, pursuant to Bankruptcy Code section 510(c). But under the literal terms of section 510(c), claims cannot be subordinated to interests. Moreover, the Fifth Circuit noted in the Mobile Steel case,<sup>200</sup> that equitable disallowance of a claim (as opposed to equitable subordination of a claims) is not an available remedy. Bankruptcy Code section 502(b)(1) and the Fifth Circuit’s Lothian Oil case might permit “recharacterization” of a claim from debt to equity in certain circumstances—but not based on inequitable conduct but rather on the nature of a financial transaction. In any event, here, the claims have already been adjudicated and allowed (some after mediation, and all after Rule 9019 settlement orders). The only way to reconsider a claim in a bankruptcy case that has already been allowed is through Bankruptcy Code section 502(j) (“A claim that has been allowed or disallowed may be reconsidered for cause. . . according to the equities of the case.”). As noted earlier, the problem here is that Bankruptcy Rule 9024 provides that a motion for “reconsideration of an order allowing or disallowing a claim against the estate entered without a contest is not subject to the one year limitation prescribed in Rule 60(c)” (emphasis added). As further noted earlier, here there was most definitely a “contest” with regard to all of these purchased claims. Thus, it would appear that any effort to have a court reconsider and potentially disallow these claims pursuant to section 502(j) is untimely—as it has been well beyond a year since they were allowed.

<sup>199</sup> See supra notes 182-184 and accompanying text. The court will note that, as discussed supra note 141 and pages 71-72, the remedy of equitable subordination (as to the Claims Purchasers) would not redress HMIT’s alleged injury (because equitable subordination of claims to interests is not an available remedy in the Fifth Circuit and thus subordination of the Purchased Claims to other claims would not change HMIT’s distributions from the Claimant Trust, if any), and because outright disallowance of all or part of the already allowed Purchased Claims is not an available remedy either, HMIT would not be able to meet the “redressability” requirement with respect to the Claims Purchasers.

3. HMIT Would Also Lack Prudential Standing to Bring the Proposed Claims.

Even if HMIT would have constitutional standing to bring the Proposed Claims in an adversary proceeding filed in the bankruptcy court, the Proposed Claims would still be barred if HMIT would lack prudential standing to bring them under applicable state or federal law. HMIT argues that it does have prudential standing under both federal bankruptcy law and Delaware law to pursue the Proposed Claims derivatively and also to bring the Proposed Claims in its individual capacity.

With regard to “federal bankruptcy law,” HMIT argues that it has standing pursuant to: (a) Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, pertaining to derivative actions, which “applies to this proceeding pursuant to” Rule 7023.1 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, and (b) Louisiana World Exposition v. Federal Insurance Co. (“LWE”),<sup>201</sup> the Fifth Circuit’s leading case addressing when a creditors committee may be granted standing to bring causes of action on behalf of a bankruptcy estate. But, federal bankruptcy law does not confer standing where the plaintiff otherwise lacks standing under applicable state law. In other words, whether HMIT would have prudential standing to sue under Delaware law is dispositive of the issue, regardless of the forum. Rule 23.1 “speaks only to the adequacy of the . . . pleadings,” and “cannot be understood to ‘abridge, enlarge, or modify any substantive right,’”<sup>202</sup> including a right (or lack thereof) to bring a derivative action under the substantive law of Delaware. Additionally, HMIT’s reliance on LWE is misplaced: LWE permits creditors, in certain circumstances during a bankruptcy case, to “file suit on behalf of a debtor-in-possession or a trustee”<sup>203</sup> and does not apply to a party’s right to sue, derivatively, on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor or any entity that is the assignee of the former bankruptcy estate’s assets. Upon confirmation of the Plan, the bankruptcy estate of Highland ceased to exist,<sup>204</sup> Highland is no longer a debtor-in-possession but a reorganized debtor, and the Claimant Trust is a new entity created under the Plan and Claimant Trust Agreement. Even if LWE did apply in this post-confirmation context, it supports the application of Delaware law to the issue of prudential standing and does not supersede state-law requirements for standing. In LWE, before addressing the requirements a creditors’ committee must meet to sue derivatively on behalf of a bankruptcy estate as a matter of federal bankruptcy law, the Fifth Circuit conducted a lengthy analysis to determine “as a threshold issue” whether the creditors’ committee in that case could assert its claims under Louisiana law.<sup>205</sup> The court specifically addressed whether the creditors’ committee could pursue a derivative action under Louisiana law and concluded that “there is no bar in Louisiana law to actions brought by or in the name of a corporation against the directors and officers of the corporation which benefit only the creditors of the corporation; indeed, Louisiana law specifically recognizes such actions.”<sup>206</sup> So, even under LWE (which the court does not think applies in this post-confirmation context), if HMIT would be barred from bringing a derivative action on behalf the Reorganized Debtor or Claimant Trust under state law, the analysis stops there.<sup>207</sup> Thus, the court looks to Delaware law to determine if HMIT would have prudential standing to pursue the derivative claims on behalf the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust.

HMIT acknowledges that both the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust are organized under Delaware law, and thus the cause of action against Seery alleging breach of fiduciary duties to the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust are governed by Delaware law under the “Internal Affairs Doctrine.”<sup>208</sup> In addition, because HMIT’s breach of fiduciary duties claim is governed by Delaware law, its aiding and abetting theory of liability as to the Claims Purchasers is also governed by Delaware law.<sup>209</sup> For the reasons set forth below, the court finds that HMIT would lack prudential standing under Delaware law to bring the claims set forth in the Proposed Complaint, derivatively, on behalf of either the Claimant Trust or the Reorganized Debtor.

a) First, HMIT Would Lack Prudential Standing Under Delaware Law to Bring Derivative Actions on behalf of the Claimant Trust.

The Claimant Trust is a Delaware statutory trust governed by the Delaware Statutory Trust Act, 12 Del. C. §§ 3801–29,<sup>210</sup> and “to proceed derivatively against a Delaware statutory trust, a plaintiff has the burden of satisfying the continuous ownership requirement” such that “the plaintiff must be a beneficial owner” continuously from “the time of the transaction of which the plaintiff complains” through “the time of bringing the action.”<sup>211</sup> This requirement is “mandatory and exclusive” and only “a beneficial owner” “has standing to bring a derivative claim on behalf of the Trust.”<sup>212</sup> The Highland Parties argue that HMIT is not a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust and, therefore, would lack standing to bring derivative claims on behalf of the Claimant Trust. HMIT argues to the contrary: that it is currently, and was at all relevant times, a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust under Delaware trust law such that it would have standing to bring derivative claims on behalf of the Claimant Trust if it were allowed to proceed with the filing of the Proposed Complaint. The disagreement turns on the nature of HMIT’s interest under the Plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement and whether HMIT, as a holder of such interest, would be considered a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust under Delaware trust law.

As noted, pursuant to the Plan, HMIT’s former limited partnership interest in Highland was cancelled as of the Effective Date in exchange for its pro rata share of a “Contingent Claimant Trust Interest,” as defined under the Plan.<sup>213</sup> HMIT argues that its Contingent Claimant Trust Interest makes it a contingent beneficiary of the Claimant Trust, which makes it a present “beneficial owner” under Delaware trust law.

The Highland Parties argue that HMIT is not a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust; rather, the “beneficial owners” of the Claimant Trust are the “Claimant Trust Beneficiaries,”<sup>214</sup> which are defined in the Plan and the CTA as “the Holders of Allowed General Unsecured Claims” (which are in Class 8 under the Plan) and “Holders of Allowed Subordinated Claims” (which are in Class 9 under the Plan);<sup>215</sup> HMIT, a holder of a Class 10 interest under the Plan, is neither.

HMIT acknowledges this requirement in its Reply: “Delaware statutory trust law provides that a plaintiff in a derivative action on behalf of a trust must be a beneficial owner at the time of the action and at the time of the transaction.” Reply, ¶ 19 (citing 12 Del C. § 3816).

HMIT, as the holder of a “Contingent Claimant Trust Interest,” has only an unvested contingent interest in the Claimant Trust and, as such, is not a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust for standing purposes under Delaware trust law. HMIT argues that it “should be treated as a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary due to [the Proposed Defendants’] wrongful conduct and considering the current value of the Claimant Trust Assets before and after the relief requested herein.”<sup>216</sup> The court disagrees.

HMIT’s status as a “beneficiary” of the Claimant Trust is defined by the CTA itself, pure and simple. The CTA specifically provides that “Contingent Trust Interests” “shall not have any rights under this Agreement” and will not “be deemed ‘Beneficiaries’ under this Agreement,” “unless and until” they vest in accordance with the Plan and the CTA. It is undisputed that HMIT’s Contingent Trust Interest has not vested under the terms of the Plan and the CTA, and the court does not have the power to equitably deem HMIT’s Contingent Trust Interest to be vested based on HMIT’s unsupported allegation of wrongdoing on the part of Seery, the Claimant Trustee. Thus, the court finds that HMIT is not a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust and, therefore, lacks prudential standing under Delaware law to bring derivative claims on behalf of the Claimant Trust.<sup>217</sup>

- b) HMIT Would Likewise Lack Prudential Standing Under Delaware Law to Bring Derivative Actions on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor.

HMIT acknowledges that the Reorganized Debtor, Highland Capital Management, L.P., is a Delaware limited liability partnership governed by the Delaware Limited Partnership Act, 6 Del. C. § 17-101, et seq.<sup>218</sup> To bring “a derivative action” on behalf of a limited partnership, “the plaintiff must be a partner or an assignee of a partnership interest” continuously from “the time of the transaction of which the plaintiff complains” through “the time of bringing the action.”<sup>219</sup>

HMIT is not a partner, general or limited, of the Reorganized Debtor limited partnership. HMIT was a limited partner in the original debtor (specifically, a holder of Class B/C Limited Partnership interests in Highland), but that limited partnership interest was extinguished on August 11, 2021 (the Effective Date of the Plan) per the terms of the Plan, and HMIT does not own any partnership interest in the newly created Reorganized Debtor limited partnership.<sup>220</sup> Because HMIT would not hold a partnership interest in the Reorganized Debtor at “the time of bringing the action,” it “lacks derivative standing” to bring claims “on the partnership’s behalf.”<sup>221</sup> HMIT likewise cannot satisfy “the continuous ownership requirement”; when HMIT’s limited partnership interest in the original Debtor was cancelled on the Plan’s Effective Date, HMIT “los[t] standing to continue a derivative suit” on behalf of the Debtor.<sup>222</sup> Finally, to the extent HMIT

seeks to bring a “double derivative” action on behalf of the Claimant Trust based on claims purportedly held by its wholly owned subsidiary, the Reorganized Debtor, HMIT lacks standing. A “double derivative” action is a suit “brought by a shareholder of a parent corporation to enforce a claim belonging to a subsidiary that is either wholly owned or majority controlled.”<sup>223</sup> And, under Delaware law, “parent level standing is required to enforce a subsidiary’s claim derivatively.”<sup>224</sup> Because HMIT would lack derivative standing to bring claims on behalf of the parent Claimant Trust,<sup>225</sup> it also would lack standing to bring a double derivative action.

c) Finally, HMIT Would Also Lack Prudential Standing under Applicable Law to Bring the Proposed Claims As Direct Claims.

HMIT argues that it has “direct” standing to pursue the Proposed Claims on behalf of itself, individually.<sup>226</sup> But just because HMIT asserts that some or even all of the Proposed Claims are direct, not derivative claims, does not make it so: “a claim is not ‘direct’ simply because it is pleaded that way.”<sup>227</sup> Rather, in determining whether claims are direct or derivative, a court must “look at the substance of the Petition, and the nature of the wrongs alleged therein, rather than the Plaintiffs’ characterization.”<sup>228</sup> And, under Delaware law, “whether a claim is solely derivative or may continue as a dual-natured claim ‘must turn solely on the following questions: (1) who suffered the alleged harm (the corporation or the suing stockholders, individually); and (2) who would receive the benefit of any recovery or other remedy (the corporation or the stockholders, individually)?’”<sup>229</sup> “In addition, to prove that a claim is direct, a plaintiff ‘must demonstrate that the duty breached was owed to the stockholder and that he or she can prevail without showing an injury to the corporation.’”<sup>230</sup> Similarly, in the bankruptcy context, whether a creditor can assert a claim directly or whether the claim belongs to the estate turns on the nature of the injury for which relief is sought: “[i]f the harm to the creditor comes about only because of harm to the debtor, then its injury is derivative, and the claim is property of the estate,” such that “only the bankruptcy trustee has standing to pursue the claim for the estate . . . .”<sup>231</sup> “To pursue a claim on its own behalf, a creditor must show this direct injury is not dependent on injury to the estate.”<sup>232</sup>

As a reminder, HMIT argues that the injury it has suffered is a devaluation of its interests in the Claimant Trust by virtue of alleged over-compensation of Seery as the Claimant Trustee. HMIT was unable, when pressed during closing arguments, to identify any other injury. It essentially admitted that the claims trades, in and of themselves, would not have harmed the Claimant Trust, the Reorganized Debtor, or individual stakeholders, including HMIT, since the Claims Purchasers acquired already allowed unsecured claims, such that the distributions on those claims pursuant to the Plan would be unchanged in the hands of new holders of the claims.

Thus, by its own concessions, any alleged harm to HMIT (through devaluation of assets in the Claimant Trust) “comes about only because of harm to the debtor,” so the alleged “injury is derivative.”<sup>233</sup> The court concludes that all of the claims set forth in the Proposed Complaint allege derivative claims only, and that none would be direct claims against the Proposed Defendants. Thus, HMIT would lack prudential standing to bring any of the Proposed Claims in the Proposed Complaint, so its Motion for Leave should be denied.

d) Some Final Points Regarding Standing.

In this standing discussion, one should not lose sight of the fact that there are both procedural safeguards in place, as well as certain independent individuals in place with fiduciary duties that might act in the event of any shenanigans regarding Claimant Trust activities. Under section 4.1 of the CTA (approved as part of the Plan process), the CTOB, which includes an independent disinterested member in addition to representatives of the Claims Purchasers,<sup>234</sup> oversees the Claimant Trustee’s performance of his duties, approves his compensation, and may remove him for cause. Moreover, there is a separate “Litigation Trustee” in this case who was brought in, post-confirmation, as an independent fiduciary to pursue claims and causes of action. These independent persons are checks and balances in the post-confirmation wind down of Highland. This is what creditors voted on in connection with the Plan. Seery and the Claims Purchasers are not in sole control of anything. The CTA, as well as Delaware law, very clearly set forth who can bring an action in the event of some colorable claim. This is the reality of prudential standing. Just as in the Abraugh case, where Louisiana law dictated that a mother could not bring a wrongful death case when the deceased prisoner had a surviving wife and child, Delaware law and the CTA dictate here that a contingent beneficiary cannot bring the Proposed Claims here. This is separate and apart from whether the claims are colorable.

C. Are the Proposed Claims “Colorable”?

1. What is the Proper Standard of Review for a “Colorability” Determination?

Although the court has determined that HMIT would not have standing (constitutional or prudential) to bring the Proposed Claims, this court will nevertheless evaluate whether the claims—assuming HMIT somehow has standing—might be “colorable.” This, in turn, requires the court to assess what the legal standard is to determine if a claim is “colorable.” As a reminder, the Plan’s Gatekeeper Provision and this court’s prior Gatekeeper Orders entered in January and July 2020 each required that, before a party may commence or pursue claims relating to the bankruptcy case against certain protected parties, it must first obtain a finding from the bankruptcy court that its proposed claims are “colorable.” The Gatekeeper Provision and Gatekeeper Orders did not specifically define “colorable” or what type of legal standard should apply.

HMIT argues that the standard for review to be applied by this court is the same as a simple “plausibility” standard used in connection with a Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss. In other words, the court should simply assess whether the allegations of the Proposed Complaint, taken as true and with all inferences drawn in favor of the movant, state a plausible claim for relief (i.e., colorable equals plausible), and that this standard does not allow for the weighing of evidence by the court.<sup>235</sup> The Proposed Defendants, however, argue that the test for colorability should be more akin to the test applied under the Barton doctrine,<sup>236</sup> under which a plaintiff must make a prima facie case that a proposed claim against a bankruptcy trustee is “not without foundation.” In this regard, they argue that the court can and should consider evidence outside of the four corners of the complaint—especially since HMIT attached to its Motion for Leave, as “evidence” to support it, two declarations of Dondero (as part of a 350-page attachment) and only attempted to withdraw those declarations after the Highland Parties urged that they be permitted to cross-examine Dondero on them.

<sup>235</sup> Reply, ¶ 5 (“[T]he determination of ‘colorability’ does not allow the ‘weighing’ of evidence. At most, a Rule 12(b)(6) ‘plausibility’ standard applies.”).

This court ultimately determined that the “colorability” standard was somewhat of a mixed question of fact and law and, therefore, the parties could put on evidence at the June 8 Hearing if they so-chose. The court would not require it. It was up to the parties. But, in any event, the Proposed Defendants should have an opportunity to cross-examine Dondero on the statements made in his declarations since the declarations had been filed on the docket and the court had reviewed them at this point. HMIT attempted to withdraw the declarations and any reference to them in the Motion for Leave, by filing redacted versions of the Motion for Leave,<sup>237</sup> less than 72 hours before the June 8 Hearing; however, the redacted versions did not redact any allegations in the Motion for Leave that were purportedly supported by the Dondero declarations. Also, HMIT called Dondero as a direct witness, in addition to calling Seery as an adverse witness at the June 8 Hearing, albeit subject to its running objection to the evidentiary format of the hearing.<sup>238</sup> HMIT also filed a witness and exhibit list attaching 80 exhibits and over 2850 pages of evidence and moved for the admission of those exhibits at the June 8 Hearing (again, subject to its running objection to the evidentiary format of the hearing).<sup>239</sup>

In determining what appropriate legal standard applies here in the “colorability” analysis, the context in which the Gatekeeper Provision of the Plan was approved seems very relevant. In determining that the Gatekeeper Provision was legal, necessary, and in the best interest of all of the parties, this court set forth in the Confirmation Order a lengthy discussion of the factual support for it, and made specific findings relating to Dondero’s post-petition litigation and the need for inclusion of the Gatekeeper Provision in the Plan.<sup>240</sup> This court observed that “prior to the commencement of the Debtor’s bankruptcy case, and while under the direction of Dondero, the Debtor had been involved in a myriad of litigation, some of which had gone on for years and, in some cases, over a decade” and that “[d]uring the last several months, Dondero and the Dondero Related Entities have harassed the Debtor, which has resulted in further substantial, costly, and time-consuming litigation for the Debtor.”<sup>241</sup> This court further found that: (1) Dondero’s post-petition litigation “was a result of Dondero failing to obtain creditor support for his plan proposal and consistent with his comments, as set forth in Seery’s credible testimony, that if Dondero’s plan proposal was not accepted, he would ‘burn down the place,’”<sup>242</sup> (2) without the Gatekeeper Provision in place, “Dondero and his related entities will likely commence litigation against the Protected Parties after the Effective Date” and that “the threat of continued litigation by Dondero and his related entities after the Effective Date will impede efforts by the Claimant Trust to monetize assets for the benefit of creditors and result in lower distributions to creditors because of costs and distraction such litigation or the threats of such litigation would cause,”<sup>243</sup> and, (3) “unless the [court] approves the Gatekeeper Provision, the Claimant Trustee and the Claimant Trust Oversight Board will not be able to obtain D&O insurance,<sup>244</sup> the absence of which will present unacceptable risks to parties currently willing to serve in such roles.” Thus, as set forth in the Confirmation Order, the Gatekeeper Provision (and the Gatekeeper Orders as well, which were approved based on the same concerns regarding the threat of continued litigation by Dondero and his related entities) required Dondero and related entities to make a threshold showing of colorability, noting that the:

Gatekeeper Provision is also within the spirit of the Supreme Court’s “Barton Doctrine.” Barton v. Barbour, 104 U.S. 126 (1881). The Gatekeeper Provision is also consistent with the notion of a prefiling injunction to deter vexatious litigants, that has been approved by the Fifth Circuit in such cases as Baum v. Blue Moon Ventures, LLC, 513 F.3d 181, 189 (5th Cir. 2008), and In re Carroll, 850 F.3d 811 (5th Cir. 2017).<sup>245</sup>

The Fifth Circuit, in approving the Gatekeeper Provision on appeal, noted that that the Plan injunction and Gatekeeper Provision “screen and prevent bad-faith litigation against Highland Capital, its successors, and other bankruptcy participants that could disrupt the Plan’s effectiveness.”<sup>246</sup>

Again, the court believes it is appropriate to consider the context in which—and the purpose for which—the Gatekeeper Orders and Gatekeeper Provision were entered in assessing

<sup>244</sup> Asd noted at ¶ 79 of the Confirmation Order, the bankruptcy court heard testimony from Mark Tauber, a Vice President with AON Financial Services, the Debtor’s insurance broker (“AON”), regarding his efforts to obtain D&O insurance for the post-confirmation parties implementing the Plan. Mr. Tauber credibly testified that of all the insurance carriers that AON approached to provide D&O insurance coverage after the Effective Date, the only one willing to do so without an exclusion for claims asserted by Mr. Dondero and his affiliates required that the Confirmation Order approve the Gatekeeper Provision.

how “colorability” should work here. It seems that applying HMIT’s proposed Rule 12(b)(6) “plausibility” standard would impose no hurdle at all to litigants and would render the threshold for bringing claims under the Gatekeeper Provision and Gatekeeper Orders entirely duplicative of the motion to dismiss standard that every litigant already faces.

The authorities cited by HMIT in support of its argument for applying a Rule 12(b)(6) standard are inapposite. HMIT has cited no authority that addresses the appropriate standard for assessing the “colorability” of claims in the context of a plan gatekeeper provision—specifically, one implemented in response to a demonstrated need to screen and prevent continued bad-faith, harassing litigation against a chapter 11 debtor that would impede the debtor’s implementation of a plan, which is what we have here. HMIT relies on a bevy of cases that include benefits coverage disputes under ERISA, Medicare coverage disputes, and constitutional challenges<sup>247</sup>—none of which implicate the Barton doctrine and vexatious-litigant concerns that were referenced by the court in the Plan as justifications for the gatekeeping provisions at issue here.

In affirming the Plan’s Gatekeeper Provision, the Fifth Circuit stated, “Courts have long recognized bankruptcy courts can perform a gatekeeping function” and noted, by way of example, that “[u]nder the ‘Barton doctrine,’ the bankruptcy court may require a party to ‘obtain leave of the bankruptcy court before initiating an action in district court when the action is against the trustee or other bankruptcy-court-appointed officer, for acts done in the actor’s official capacity.”<sup>248</sup> As noted above, the Fifth Circuit found that the Gatekeeper Provision, which “requires that, before any lawsuit is filed, the plaintiff must seek the bankruptcy court’s approval of the claim as ‘colorable’”—i.e., to “screen and prevent bad-faith litigation,”—is “sound.”<sup>249</sup>

On balance, the court views jurisprudence applying the Barton doctrine and vexatious litigant injunctions—while not specifically addressing the “colorability” standard under gatekeeping provisions in a plan<sup>250</sup>—as more informative on how to approach “colorability” than any of the other authorities presented by the parties. One example is In re VistaCare Group, LLC.<sup>251</sup>

In VistaCare, the Third Circuit noted that, under the Barton doctrine, “[a] party seeking leave of court to sue a trustee must make a prima facie case against the trustee, showing that its claim is not without foundation,” and emphasized that the “not without foundation” standard, while similar to the standard courts apply in evaluating Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss, “involves a greater degree of flexibility” than a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss because “the bankruptcy court, which given its familiarity with the underlying facts and the parties, is uniquely situated to determine whether a claim against the trustee has merit,” and “is also uniquely situated to determine the potential effect of a judgment against the trustee on the debtor’s estate.”<sup>252</sup> To satisfy the “prima facie case standard,” “the movant must do more than meet the liberal notice-pleading requirements of Rule 8.”<sup>253</sup> “[I]f the [bankruptcy] court relied on mere notice-pleading standards rather than evaluating the merits of the allegations, the leave requirement would become meaningless.”<sup>254</sup> This court agrees with the notion, that “[t]o apply a less stringent standard would eviscerate the protections” of the Gatekeeper Provision and Gatekeeper Orders.<sup>255</sup> The court notes, as well, that courts in the Barton doctrine context regularly hold evidentiary hearings on motions for leave to determine if the proposed complaint meets the necessary threshold for pursuing litigation. The Third Circuit in VistaCare noted that “[w]hether to hold a hearing [on a motion for leave to bring suit against a trustee] is within the sound discretion of the bankruptcy court,”<sup>256</sup> and that “the decision whether to grant leave may involve a ‘balancing of the interests of all parties involved,’” which will ordinarily require an evidentiary hearing.<sup>257</sup> The Third Circuit applied “the deferential abuse of discretion standard” in considering whether the bankruptcy court’s granting of leave should be affirmed on appeal.<sup>258</sup>

Courts of appeal routinely apply the deferential abuse of discretion standard to a bankruptcy court’s decision regarding whether leave should be granted to sue a trustee. Although the Fifth Circuit has not squarely addressed this issue, all nine Circuits that have considered this issue have also adopted an abuse-of-discretion standard. See In re Bednar, 2021 WL 1625399, at *3 (B.A.P. 10th Cir. Apr. 27, 2021) (“[T]he Bankruptcy Court’s decision to decline leave to sue the Trustee under the Barton doctrine is reviewed for abuse of discretion . . . .”) (citing VistaCare); SEC v. N. Am. Hedback, 718 F.3d 762 (8th Cir. 2013) (applying abuse-of-discretion standard to Barton doctrine).

The Fifth Circuit has affirmed a bankruptcy court’s conducting of an evidentiary hearing, in the context of applying a Barton doctrine analysis as to a proposed lawsuit against a trustee, without any concern that the inquiry was somehow improper.<sup>259</sup>

Similarly, courts in the vexatious litigant context, where there was an injunction requiring a movant to seek leave to pursue claims, have required movants to “show that the claims sought to be asserted have sufficient merit,” including that “the proposed filing is both procedural and legally sound,” and “that the claims are not brought for any improper purpose, such as harassment.”<sup>260</sup> “For a pre-filing injunction to have the intended impact, it must not merely require a reviewing official to apply an already existing level of review,” such as the “plausibility” standard for a Rule 12(b)(6) motion.<sup>261</sup> Rather, courts apply “an additional layer of review,” and “may appropriately deny leave to file when even part of the pleading fails to satisfy the reviewer that it warrants a federal civil action” or that the “litigant’s allegations are unlikely,” especially “when prior cases have shown the litigant to be untrustworthy or not credible . . . .”<sup>262</sup>

In summary, the court rejects HMIT’s positions: (a) that it need only show, at most, that the allegations in the Proposed Complaint are “plausible” under the Rule 12(b)(6) standard for motions to dismiss; and (b) that this court improperly conducted an evidentiary hearing on the Motion for Leave (i.e., that consideration of evidence in this context is impermissible). The court notes, again, that HMIT’s argument that this court is not permitted to consider evidence in making its “colorability” determination is completely contradictory to HMIT’s actions in filing the Motion for Leave, where it attached two Dondero declarations as part of 350 pages of “objective evidence” that “supported” its motion.

The court concludes that the appropriate standard to be applied in making its “colorability” determination in this bankruptcy case, in the exercise of its gatekeeping function pursuant to the two Gatekeeper Orders and the Gatekeeper Provision in this Plan, is a broader standard than the “plausibility” standard applied to Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss. It is, rather, a standard that involves an additional level of review—one that places on the proposed plaintiff a burden of making a prima facie case that its proposed claims are not without foundation, are not without merit, and are not being pursued for any improper purpose such as harassment. Additionally, this court may, and should, take into consideration its knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings and the parties and any additional evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave. For ease of reference, the court will refer to this standard of “colorability” as the “Gatekeeper Colorability Test.” The court considers this test as a sort of hybrid of what the Barton doctrine contemplates and what courts have applied when considering motions to file suit when a vexatious litigant bar order is in place.

2. HMIT’s Proposed Complaint Does Not Present “Colorable” Claims Under this Court’s Gatekeeper Colorability Test or Even Under a Rule 12(b)(6) “Plausibility” Standard.

The court finds, in the exercise of its gatekeeping function under the Gatekeeper Orders and the Gatekeeping Provision in the Plan, that the Motion for Leave should be denied as the claims set forth in the Proposed Complaint are not “colorable” claims. The court makes this determination after considering evidence admitted at the June 8 Hearing, including the testimony of Dondero, Patrick, and Seery, and the numerous exhibits offered by HMIT and the Highland Parties. HMIT’s Proposed Claims lack foundation, are without merit, and appear to be motivated by the improper purposes of vexatiousness and harassment. But, even under the less stringent

“plausibility” standard under Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss, where all allegations must be accepted as true, HMIT’s “[t]hreadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory statements,” fail to “[c]ross the line from conceivable to plausible.”<sup>263</sup>

HMIT makes unsubstantiated and conclusory allegations in its Motion for Leave and Proposed Complaint that the Claims Purchasers purchased the large allowed unsecured claims only because Seery, while he was CEO of Highland prior to the Effective Date of the Plan, provided them with MNPI and assurances that the Purchased Claims were very valuable. This was allegedly in exchange for their agreement to approve, in their future capacities as members of the CTOB, excessive compensation for Seery in his capacity as the Claimant Trustee after the Effective Date of the Plan. This was an alleged quid pro quo that HMIT claims establishes Seery’s breach of fiduciary duties and the Claims Purchasers’ conspiracy to participate in that breach. As discussed below, these allegations are unsubstantiated and conclusory allegations, and they do not support the inferences that HMIT needs the court to make when it analyzes whether the Proposed Claims are “colorable”—or even merely plausible.

a) HMIT’s Proposed Breach of Fiduciary Duties Claim Set Forth in Count I of the Proposed Complaint

Based on HMIT’s Proposed Complaint and the evidence admitted at the June 8 Hearing, the court finds that HMIT has not pleaded facts that would support a “colorable” breach of fiduciary duties claim against Seery, under this court’s Gatekeeper Colorability Test, nor a plausible claim pursuant to the Rule 12(b) standard. HMIT alleges that Seery breached his fiduciary duties (i) “[b]y disclosing material non-public information to Stonehill and Farallon”

before their purchase of certain Highland claims, and (ii) by receiving “compensation paid to him under the terms of the [CTA] since the Effective Date of the Plan in August 2021.”<sup>264</sup>

As earlier noted, both the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust are organized under Delaware law and, thus, its proposed Count I against Seery for breach of fiduciary duties to these entities is governed by Delaware law under the “Internal Affairs Doctrine.”<sup>265</sup> Under Delaware law, “[t]o bring a claim for breach of fiduciary duty, a plaintiff must allege ‘(1) that a fiduciary duty existed and (2) that the defendant breached that duty.’”<sup>266</sup> HMIT fails to plausibly or sufficiently allege either element such that its breach of fiduciary duty claims against Seery could survive.

Under Delaware law, officers and directors generally owe fiduciary duties only to the entity and its stakeholders as a whole, not to individual shareholders.<sup>267</sup> Because Seery did not owe any “duty” to HMIT directly and individually, the Proposed Complaint fails to state a claim for breach of fiduciary duties to HMIT. HMIT’s “legal conclusion[.]” that Seery “owed fiduciary duties to HMIT, as equity, and to the Debtor’s Estate”<sup>268</sup> “do[es] not suffice” to plausibly allege the existence of any actionable fiduciary relationship.<sup>269</sup> And as discussed earlier in the standing section, HMIT does not have standing to assert a breach of fiduciary claim derivatively on behalf of the Claimant Trust or Reorganized Debtor. But even if HMIT had sufficiently alleged the existence of a fiduciary duty by Seery to HMIT—or to the Reorganized Debtor or Claimant Trust that HMIT would have standing to assert—Seery’s alleged communications with Farallon would not have breached those duties.

HMIT alleges that Seery “disclose[d] material non-public information to Stonehill and Farallon,” and they “acted on inside information and Seery’s secret assurances of great profits.”<sup>270</sup> But the Proposed Complaint does not make any factual allegations regarding HMIT’s “conclusory allegations,” and its “legal conclusions” are “purely speculative, devoid of factual support,” and therefore “stop[] short of the line between possibility and plausibility of entitlement to relief”<sup>271</sup> (and certainly stop short of being “colorable”). HMIT never alleges when any of these purported communications occurred, what material non-public information Seery provided, and what “assurances of great profits” he made to Farallon or to Stonehill. At the June 8 Hearing, Dondero could only clarify that he believed the MGM Email to have been MNPI and that he believed that Seery must have communicated that MNPI to Farallon at some point between December 17, 2020 (the date the MGM Email was sent) and May 28, 2021 (the day that Dondero alleges to have had three telephone calls with representatives of Farallon, Messrs. Patel and Linn, regarding Farallon’s purchase of the bankruptcy claims). Dondero alleges that, during these phone calls, Patel and Linn gave Dondero no reason for their purchase of the claims that “made [any] sense.” Dondero and Patrick also both testified that neither of them had any personal knowledge: (a) of a quid pro quo arrangement between Seery and the Claims Purchasers, (b) of Seery having actually communicated any information from the MGM Email to Farallon, or (c) whether Seery’s post-Effective Date compensation had or had not been negotiated in an arms’ length transaction. speculates regarding these things, because it “made no sense” to him that the Claims Purchasers would have acquired the bankruptcy claims without having received the MNPI. But HMIT admits in the Proposed Complaint that Farallon and Stonehill purchased the Highland claims at discounts of 43% to 65% to their allowed amounts. Thus, they would receive at least an 18% return based on publicly available estimates in Highland’s court-approved Disclosure Statement.<sup>272</sup> The evidence established that, if the acquisition of the UBS claims is excluded—recall that the UBS claims were not purchased until August 2021, which was after the May 28, 2021 phone calls that Dondero made to Farallon personnel—the Claims Purchasers would have expected to net over $33 million in profits, or nearly a 30% return on their investment, had Highland met its projections (this is based on the aggregate purchase price of $113 million for the non-UBS claims purchased in the Spring 2021).

To be clear, the only purported MNPI identified in HMIT’s Proposed Complaint was the MGM Email Dondero sent to Seery containing “information regarding Amazon and Apple’s interest in acquiring MGM.” But, the evidence showed that this information was widely reported in the financial press at the time. Thus, it could not have constituted MNPI as a matter of law.<sup>273</sup> Moreover, the evidence showed that Dondero did not communicate in the MGM Email the actual inside information that he claimed to have obtained as a board member of MGM—which was that Amazon had met MGM’s “strike price” and that the MGM board was going into exclusive negotiations with Amazon to culminate the merger with them (and, thus, Apple was no longer considered a potential purchaser). Dondero admitted that he included Apple in the MGM Email for the purpose of making it look like there was a competitive process still ongoing. In other words, the MGM Email, at the very least, did not include MNPI and, at worst, was deceptive regarding the status of the negotiations between MGM and potential purchasers.

As to HMIT's allegations that Seery's post-Effective Date compensation is "excessive" and that the negotiations between Seery and the CTOB "were not arm's-length,"<sup>274</sup> the evidence at the June 8 Hearing reflected that the allegations are completely speculative, without any foundation whatsoever, and lack merit. And they are also simply not plausible. HMIT fails to allege facts in the Proposed Complaint that would support a reasonable inference that Seery breached his fiduciary duty to HMIT or the estate as a result of bad faith, self-interest, or other intentional misconduct rising to the level of a breach of the duty of loyalty.<sup>275</sup>

b) HMIT's Proposed Claims Set Forth in Counts II (Knowing Participation in Breach of Fiduciaries) and III (Conspiracy)

HMIT seeks to hold the Claims Purchasers secondarily liable for Seery's alleged breach of fiduciaries duties on an aiding and abetting theory in Count II of the Proposed Complaint<sup>276</sup> and, along with Seery, on a civil conspiracy theory of liability in Count III of the Proposed Complaint.<sup>277</sup> Because HMIT's breach of fiduciary duties claim is governed by Delaware law, its aiding and abetting breach of fiduciary duties claim against the Claims Purchasers (Count II) is also governed by Delaware law.<sup>278</sup> HMIT's conspiracy cause of action against the Claims

Purchasers and Seery (Count III), on the other hand, does not involve a matter of “internal affairs” or of corporate governance, so it is governed by Texas law under the Plan.<sup>279</sup>

As an initial matter, because HMIT does not present either a “colorable”—or even plausible claim—that Seery breached his fiduciary duties, it cannot show that it has alleged a “colorable” or plausible claim for secondary liability for the same alleged wrongdoing.<sup>280</sup> In addition, HMIT’s civil conspiracy claim against the Claims Purchasers and Seery is based entirely on Dondero’s speculation and unsupported inferences and, thus, HMIT has not “colorably” alleged, or even plausibly alleged, its conspiracy claim. Under Texas law, “civil conspiracy is a theory of vicarious liability and not an independent tort.”<sup>281</sup> “[T]he elements of civil conspiracy [are] “(1) two or more persons; (2) an object to be accomplished; (3) a meeting of minds on the object or course of action; (4) one or more unlawful, overt acts; and (5) damages as the proximate result.”<sup>282</sup> While HMIT alleges that “Defendants conspired with each other to unlawfully breach fiduciary duties,”<sup>283</sup> it is simply a “legal conclusion” and not the kind of allegation that the court must assume to be true even for purposes of determining plausibility under a motion to dismiss.<sup>284</sup>

HMIT repeats four times that Seery provided MNPI to Farallon and Stonehill as a “as a quid pro quo” for “additional compensation,”<sup>285</sup> each time based upon conclusory allegations based “upon information and belief” and, frankly, pure speculation from Dondero that his imagined “scheme,” “covert quid pro quo,” and secret “conspiracy” between Seery, on the one hand, and Farallon and Stonehill, on the other,<sup>286</sup> must have occurred because “[i]t made no sense for the [Claims] Purchasers to invest millions of dollars for assets that – per the publicly available information – did not offer a sufficient potential profit to justify the publicly disclosed risk” (i.e., “[t]he counter-intuitive nature of the purchases at issue compels the conclusion that the [Claims] Purchasers acted on inside information and Seery’s assurance of great profits.”)<sup>287</sup> Importantly, HMIT admits that the Claims Purchasers would have turned a profit based on the information available to them at the time of their acquisitions of the Purchased Claims.<sup>288</sup> HMIT’s allegations about the level of potential profits were contradicted by their own allegations and other evidence admitted at the June 8 Hearing. But Dondero’s speculation about what level of projected return would be sufficient to justify the acquisition of the claims by the Claims Purchasers, or any other third-party investor, does not give rise to a plausible inference that they acted improperly.<sup>289</sup> Thus, HMIT cannot meet

<sup>286</sup> See id. ¶ 3 (“Thus, acting within a cloak of secrecy, Seery provided close business acquaintances, the other Defendants with material non-public information concerning the value of assets which they then used to purchase the largest approved unsecured claims.”).

<sup>288</sup> See, e.g., id. ¶ 3 (alleging that acquiring the claims “did not offer a sufficient potential profit to justify the publicly disclosed risk”)(emphasis added); ¶ 43 (“Furthermore, although the publicly available projections suggested only a small margin of error on any profit potential for its significant investment . . . .”); ¶ 49 (“Yet, in this case, it would have been impossible for Stonehill and Farallon (in the absence of inside information) to forecast any significant profit at the time of their multi-million-dollar investments given the publicly available, negative financial information.”) (third emphasis added).

<sup>289</sup> In fact, the court did not allow Mr. Dondero to testify regarding what kind of information a hypothetical investor in bankruptcy claims would require or what level of potential profits would justify the purchase of bankruptcy claims by investors in the bankruptcy claims trading market because he was testifying as a fact witness, not an expert. Thus, the court only allowed Dondero to testify as to what data he (or entities he controls or controlled) would rely on, what his risk tolerance would have been, and what level of potential profits he would have required to purchase an allowed unsecured bankruptcy claim in a post-confirmation situation. June 8 Hearing Transcript, 129:6-130:4.

its burden, under the Gatekeeper Colorability Test, of making a prima facie showing that its allegations do not lack foundation or merit. Nor can it meet a plausibility standard.

In addition, contrary to the Proposed Complaint’s statement that it would have been “impossible for Stonehill and Farallon (in the absence of insider information) to forecast any significant profit at the time of their multi-million-dollar investments,” the evidence showed there were already reports in the financial press that MGM was engaging with Amazon, Apple, and others in selling its media portfolio, and thus the prospect of an MGM transaction increasing the value of, and return on, the Purchased Claims, “at the time of their multi-million-dollar investments” was publicly available information.<sup>290</sup> HMIT’s suggestion that the Claims Purchasers were in possession of inside information not publicly available when they acquired the Purchased Claims is simply not plausible. Nor is HMIT’s allegation that “[u]pon information and belief” Farallon “conducted no due diligence but relied on Seery’s profit guarantees” plausible. The allegations regarding Farallon not conducting any due diligence are based, again, entirely on Dondero’s speculation and inferences he made from what Patel and Linn (of Farallon) allegedly told him on May 28, 2021; Dondero did not testify that either Patel or Linn ever told him specifically that they had conducted no due diligence. HMIT’s allegations in the Proposed Complaint that Farallon “conducted no due diligence,” are based on Dondero’s speculation, unsubstantiated, and contradicted by the testimony of Seery, who testified that emails to him from Linn in June 2020 and later in January 2021 indicated to him that Farallon, at least, had been conducting some level of due diligence in that they had been following and paying attention to the

<sup>290</sup> The court notes, as well, that the Claim Purchasers acquired the UBS claims in August 2021—approximately two and a half months after the announcement of the MGM-Amazon transaction (which was on May 26, 2021)—a fact that HMIT makes no attempt to harmonize with its conspiracy theory that the Claims Purchasers profited from the misuse of MNPI allegedly given to them by Seery.

Highland case.<sup>291</sup> In addition, there are no allegations in the Proposed Complaint regarding whether Stonehill conducted due diligence or not, and Patrick testified that neither he nor HMIT had any personal knowledge of how much due diligence Farallon or Stonehill did prior to acquiring the Purchased Claims.<sup>292</sup> The court finds and concludes that HMIT's allegations of aiding and abetting and conspiracy in Counts II and III of the Proposed Complaint are based on unsubstantiated inferences and speculation, lack internal consistency, and lack consistency with verifiable public facts. Accordingly, HMIT has failed to show that these claims have a foundation and merit and has also failed to show that they are plausible.

- c) HMIT's Proposed Claims Set Forth in Counts IV (Equitable Disallowance), V (Unjust Enrichment and Constructive Trust), and VI (Declaratory Relief) of the Proposed Complaint
  - i. Count IV (Equitable Disallowance).

In Count IV of its Proposed Complaint, HMIT seeks "equitable disallowance" of the claims acquired by Farallon's and Stonehill's special purpose entities Muck and Jessup, "to the extent over and above their initial investment," and, in the alternative, equitable subordination of their claims to all claims and interests, including HMIT's unvested Class 10 Contingent Claimant Trust Interest, "given [their] willful, inequitable, bad faith conduct" of allegedly "purchasing the Claims based on material non-public information" and being "unfairly advantaged" in "earning significant profits on their purchases."<sup>293</sup> As noted above, these remedies are not available to HMIT.<sup>294</sup>

First, HMIT's request to equitably subordinate the Purchased Claims to all claims and interests is not permitted because Bankruptcy Code § 510(c), by its terms, permits equitable subordination of a claim to other claims or an interest to other interests but does not permit equitable subordination of a claim to interests.

Second, “equitable” disallowance of claims is not an available remedy in the Fifth Circuit pursuant to the Mobile Steel case.<sup>295</sup>

Third, reconsideration of an already-allowed claim in a bankruptcy case can only be accomplished through Bankruptcy Code § 502(j), which, pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9024, allows reconsideration of allowance of a claim that was allowed following a contest (which is certainly the case with respect to the Purchased Claims) based on the “equities of the case.” But this is only if the request for reconsideration is made within the one-year limitation prescribed in Rule 60(c) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. HMIT’s request for disallowance of Muck and Jessup’s Purchased Claims (if it could somehow be construed as a request for reconsideration of their claims), is clearly untimely, as it is being made well beyond a year since their allowance by this court following contests and approval of Rule 9019 settlements. Thus, the court finds that HMIT has not alleged a colorable or even plausible claim in Count IV of the Proposed Complaint and, therefore, the Motion for Leave should be denied.

ii. Count V (Unjust Enrichment and Constructive Trust)

In Count V of the Proposed Complaint, HMIT alleges that, “by acquiring the Claims using [MNPI], Stonehill and Farallon were unjustly enriched and gained an undue advantage over other creditors and former equity” and that “[a]llowing [the Claims Purchasers] to retain their ill-gotten benefits would be unconscionable;” thus, HMIT alleges, the Claims Purchasers “should be forced to disgorge all distributions over and above their original investment in the Claims as restitution for their unjust enrichment” and “a constructive trust should be imposed on such proceeds . . . .”<sup>296</sup>

HMIT alleges further that “Seery was also unjustly enriched by his participation in this scheme and he should be required to disgorge or restate all compensation he has received from the outset of his collusive activities” and “[a]lternatively he should be required to disgorge and restate all compensation received since the Effective Date” over which a constructive trust should be imposed.<sup>297</sup> HMIT has not alleged a colorable or even a plausible claim for unjust enrichment or constructive trust in Count V.

Under Texas law,<sup>298</sup> “[u]njust enrichment is not an independent cause of action but rather characterizes the result of a failure to make restitution of benefits either wrongfully or passively received under circumstances which give rise to an implied or quasi-contractual obligation to repay.”<sup>299</sup> Thus, “when a valid, express contract covers the subject matter of the parties’ dispute, there can be no recovery under a quasi-contract theory.”<sup>300</sup> Here, as noted above, HMIT’s only alleged injury is a diminution of the value of its unvested Contingent Claimant Trust Interest by virtue of Seery’s allegedly having wrongfully obtained excessive compensation, with the help of the Claims Purchasers. Yet Seery’s compensation is governed by express agreements (i.e., the Plan and the CTA). Thus, HMIT’s claim based on unjust enrichment is not an available theory of recovery.

iii. Count VI (Declaratory Relief)

HMIT seeks declaratory relief in Count VI of the Proposed Complaint, essentially, that Dondero’s conspiracy theory is correct and that HMIT’s would succeed on the merits with respect

<sup>298</sup> Under the Plan, Texas law governs HMIT’s “claim” for unjust enrichment because it is not a “corporate governance matter.” (Plan Art. XII.M.) It also governs HMIT’s “claim” for constructive trust, which “is merely a remedy used to grant relief on the underlying cause of action.” Sherer v. Sherer, 393 S.W.3d 480, 491 (Tex. App. 2013).

to the Proposed Claims if it were permitted leave to bring them in an adversary proceeding.<sup>301</sup> But, a request for declaratory relief is not “an independent cause of action”<sup>302</sup> and “in the absence of any underlying viable claims such relief is unavailable.”<sup>303</sup> This court has already found and concluded that HMIT would not have constitutional or prudential standing to bring the underlying causes of action in the Proposed Complaint. This court has also found and concluded that all of the Proposed Claims are without foundation or merit and are not even plausible and are all; being brought for the improper purpose of continuing Dondero’s vexatious, harassing, bad-faith litigation. Thus, HMIT would not be entitled to pursue declaratory judgement relief as requested in Count VI of the Proposed Complaint.

d) HMIT Has No Basis to Seek Punitive Damages

HMIT separately alleges that the Claims Purchasers’ and Seery’s “misconduct was intentional, knowing, willful, in bad faith, fraudulent, and in total disregard of the rights of others,” thus entitling HMIT to an award of punitive damages under applicable law. But, HMIT abandoned its proposed fraud claim that was in its Original Proposed Complaint, so its sole claim for primary liability is Seery’s alleged breach of his fiduciary duties. And under Delaware law, the “court cannot award punitive damages in [a] fiduciary duty action.”<sup>304</sup>

3. HMIT Does Not Present “Colorable” Claims Under this Court’s Gatekeeper Colorability Test Because It Seeks to Bring the Proposed Complaint for Improper Purposes of Harassment and Bad-Faith, Vexatiousness.

Under this court’s Gatekeeper Colorability Test, in addition to showing that its allegations and claims are not without foundation or merit, HMIT must also show that the Proposed Claims are not being brought for any improper purpose. Taking into consideration the court’s knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings and the parties and the evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave, the court finds that HMIT is acting at the behest of, and under the control or influence of, Dondero in continuing to pursue harassing, bad faith, vexatious litigation to achieve his desired result in these bankruptcy proceedings. So, in addition to failing to show that its Proposed Claims have foundation and merit, HMIT cannot show that it is pursuing the Proposed Claims for a proper purpose and, thus, cannot meet the requirements under the Gatekeeper Colorability Test; HMIT’s Motion for Leave should be denied.

IV. CONCLUSION

The court concludes, having taken into consideration both its knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings and the parties and the evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave, that HMIT’s Motion for Leave should be denied for three independent reasons: (1) HMIT would lack constitutional standing to bring the Proposed Claims (and, thus, the federal courts would lack subject matter jurisdiction over the Proposed Claims); (2) even if HMIT would have constitutional standing to pursue the Proposed Claims, it would lack prudential standing to bring the Proposed Claims; and (3) even if HMIT would have both constitutional standing and prudential standing to bring the Proposed Claims, it has not met its burden under the Gatekeeper Colorability Test of showing that its Proposed Claims are “colorable” claims—that the Proposed Claims are not without foundation, not without merit, and not being pursued for an improper purpose. Moreover, even if this court's Gatekeeper Colorability Test should be replaced with a Rule 12(b)(6) "plausibility" standard, the Proposed Claims are not plausible.

Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED that HMIT's Motion for Leave be, and hereby is DENIED.

PROVISION” AND PRE-CONFIRMATION “GATEKEEPER ORDERS”: DENYING
HUNTER MOUNTAIN INVESTMENT TRUST’S EMERGENCY MOTION FOR
[BANKR. DKT. NOS. 3699, 3760, 3815, and 3816]

I. INTRODUCTION

BEFORE THIS COURT is yet another post-confirmation dispute relating to the Chapter 11 bankruptcy case of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (“Highland” or “Reorganized Debtor”).

<sup>1</sup> On August 2, 2023, this court signed an Order [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3897] that was agreed to among various parties, after the filing of a Motion to Stay and Compel Mediation [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3752] filed by James D. Dondero and related entities. Pursuant to paragraph 7 of that order, certain pending matters in the bankruptcy court are stayed pending mediation. The parties did not agree to stay the matter addressed in this Memorandum Opinion and Order.

It is now more than two and half years since the confirmation of Highland’s Plan<sup>2</sup>—the Plan having been confirmed on February 22, 2021.<sup>3</sup> The Plan was never stayed; it went effective on August 11, 2021 (“Effective Date”), and it was affirmed almost in its entirety by the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit (“Fifth Circuit”), in late summer 2022, including an approval of the so-called Gatekeeper Provision<sup>4</sup> therein. The Gatekeeper Provision—and how and whether it should now be exercised or interpreted to allow a certain lawsuit to be filed—is at the heart of the current Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding [Bankr. Dkt. Nos. 3699, 3760, 3815, 3816] (collectively, the “Motion for Leave”) filed by a movant known as Hunter Mountain Investment Trust (“HMIT”).

A. Who is the Movant, HMIT?

Who is HMIT? It is undisputed that it is a former equity owner of Highland. It held 99.5% of Highland’s Class B/C limited partnership interests and was classified in a Class 10 under the confirmed Plan, which class treatment provided it with a contingent interest in the Highland Claimant Trust (“Claimant Trust”) created under the Plan, and as defined in the Claimant Trust Agreement. This means that HMIT could receive consideration under the Plan if all claims against Highland are ultimately paid in full, with interest. As later further discussed, it is undisputed that

<sup>4</sup> In an initial opinion dated August 19, 2022, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the Confirmation Order in large part, “revers[ing] only insofar as the plan exculpates certain non-debtors in violation of 11 U.S.C. § 524(e), strik[ing] those few parties from the plan’s exculpation, and affirm[ing] on all remaining grounds.” In re Highland Capital Management, L.P., No. 21-10449, 2022 WL 3571094, at *1 (5th Cir. Aug. 19, 2022). On September 7, 2022, following a petition for limited panel rehearing filed by certain appellants on September 2, 2022, “for the limited purpose of clarifying and confirming one part of its August 19, 2022 opinion,” the Fifth Circuit withdrew its original opinion and replaced it with its opinion reported at NexPoint Advisors, L.P. v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P. (In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P.), 48 F.4th 419, 424 (5th Cir. 2022). The substituted opinion differed from the original opinion only by the replacement of one sentence from section “IV(E)(2) – Injunction and Gatekeeper Provisions” of the original opinion: “The injunction and gatekeeper provisions are, on the other hand, perfectly lawful.” was replaced with “We now turn to the Plan’s injunction and gatekeeper provisions.” In all other respects, the Fifth Circuit panel’s original ruling remained unchanged. Petitions for writs of certiorari regarding the Confirmation Order have been pending at the United States Supreme Court since January 2023.

HMIT's only asset is its contingent interest in the Claimant Trust. It has no employees or revenue. HMIT's representative has testified that HMIT is liable on more than $62 million of indebtedness owed to The Dugaboy Investment Trust ("Dugaboy"), a family trust of which James Dondero ("Dondero"), the co-founder and former chief executive officer ("CEO") of Highland, and his family members are beneficiaries, and that Dugaboy also is paying HMIT's legal fees. HMIT vehemently disputes the suggestion that it is controlled by Dondero.

B. What Does the Movant HMIT Seek Leave to File?

HMIT seeks leave to file an adversary proceeding ("Proposed Complaint")<sup>5</sup> in the bankruptcy court to bring claims on behalf of itself and, derivatively, on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust for alleged breach of fiduciary duties by the Reorganized Debtor's CEO and Claimant Trustee, James P. Seery, Jr. ("Seery") and conspiracy against: (1) Seery; and (2) purchasers of $365 million face amount of allowed unsecured claims in this case, who purchased their claims post-confirmation but prior to the occurrence of the Effective Date of the Plan ("Claims Purchasers,"<sup>6</sup> and with Seery, the "Proposed Defendants"). To be clear (and as later further explained), the claims acquired by the Claims Purchasers were acquired by them after extensive litigation, mediation, and settlements were approved by the bankruptcy court and after the original claims-holders had voted on the Plan and after Plan confirmation. As later explained,

<sup>5</sup> In its original Motion for Leave filed at Bankruptcy Docket No. 3699 on March 28, 2023, HMIT sought leave to file the proposed complaint ("Initial Proposed Complaint") attached as Exhibit 1 to the Motion for Leave. Nearly a month later, on April 23, 2023, HMIT filed a Supplement to Emergency Motion for Leave to File Verified Adversary Proceeding ("Supplement") [Bankr. Dkt. No. 3760], a revised proposed complaint as Exhibit 1-A, and stating that "[t]he Supplement is not intended to supersede the [Motion for Leave]; rather, it is intended as a supplement to address procedural matters and to bring forth additional facts that further confirm the appropriateness of the derivative action." Supplement, ¶ 1 and Exhibit 1-A. It is this revised proposed complaint to which this court will refer, when it uses the defined term "Proposed Complaint," even though HMIT filed redacted versions of its Motion for Leave on June 5, 2023 at Bankruptcy Docket Nos. 3815 and 3816 that attached the Initial Proposed Complaint as Exhibit 1.

<sup>6</sup> The Claims Purchasers identified in the Proposed Complaint are Farallon Capital Management, LLC ("Farallon"); Muck Holdings, LLC ("Muck"), which is a special purpose entity created by Farallon to purchase allowed unsecured claims against Highland; Stonehill Capital Management, LLC ("Stonehill"); and Jessup Holdings, LLC ("Jessup"), which is a special purpose entity created by Stonehill to purchase allowed unsecured claims against Highland.

the Claims Purchasers filed notices of their purchases as required by Bankruptcy Rule 3001(e)(2), and no objections were filed thereto. In any event, various damages or remedies are sought against the Proposed Defendants revolving around the Claims Purchasers' claims purchasing activities.

C. Why Does HMIT Need to Seek Leave?

As alluded to above, HMIT filed its Motion for Leave to comply with the provision in the Plan known as a "gatekeeper" provision ("Gatekeeper Provision") and with this court's prior gatekeeper orders entered in January and July 2020, which all require that, before a party may commence or pursue claims relating to the bankruptcy case against certain protected parties, it must first obtain (1) a finding from the bankruptcy court that its proposed claims ("Proposed Claims") are "colorable"; and (2) specific authorization by the bankruptcy court to pursue the Proposed Claims.<sup>7</sup> The Gatekeeper Provision was not included in the Plan sans raison. Indeed, as the Fifth Circuit recognized in affirming confirmation of the Plan, the Gatekeeper Provision (along with the other "protection provisions" in the Plan) had been included in the Plan to address the "continued litigiousness" of Mr. James Dondero ("Dondero"), Highland's co-founder and former chief executive officer ("CEO"), that began prepetition and escalated following the post-petition "nasty breakup" between Highland and Dondero, by "screen[ing] and prevent[ing] bad-faith litigation against Highland Capital, its successors, and other bankruptcy participants that could disrupt the Plan's effectiveness."<sup>8</sup>

<sup>7</sup> To be clear, the Gatekeeper Provision in the Plan was not the first or even second injunction of its type issued in this bankruptcy case. The Gatekeeper Orders were entered by the bankruptcy court pre-confirmation: (a) in January 2020, just a few months into the case, as part of this court's order approving a corporate governance settlement between Highland and its unsecured creditors committee, in which Dondero, Highland's co-founder and former CEO, was removed from any management role at Highland and three independent directors ("Independent Directors") were appointed in lieu of a chapter 11 trustee being appointed ("January 2020 Order"); and (b) in July 2020, in this court's order authorizing the employment of Seery (one of the three Independent Directors) as the Debtor's new Chief Executive Officer, Chief Restructuring Officer, and Foreign Representative ("July 2020 Order," together with the January 2020 Order, the "Gatekeeper Orders").

Since confirmation of the Plan, hundreds of millions of dollars have been paid out to creditors under the Plan, and there are numerous adversary proceedings and contested matters still pending, at various stages of litigation, in the bankruptcy court, the district court, and the Fifth Circuit, almost exclusively involving Dondero and entities that he owns or controls. To be sure, the post-confirmation litigation in this case does not consist of the usual adversaries and contested matters one typically sees by and against a reorganized debtor and/or litigation trustee, such as preference or other avoidance actions and litigation over objections to claims that are still pending after confirmation of a plan. Indeed, the claims of the largest creditors in this case (with claims asserted in the aggregate of more than one billion dollars) were successfully mediated and incorporated into the Plan—a plan which was ultimately accepted by the votes of an overwhelming majority of Highland’s non-insider creditors. Dondero and entities under his control were the only parties who appealed the Confirmation Order, and Dondero and entities under his control have been the appellants in virtually every appeal that has been filed regarding this bankruptcy case. Petitions for writs of mandamus (which have been denied) have been filed in the district court and in the Fifth Circuit by some of these same entities, including one by HMIT, when this court denied setting an emergency hearing on the instant Motion for Leave (HMIT had sought a setting on three-days’ notice).

A recent list of active matters involving Dondero and/or entities and/or individuals affiliated or associated with him, filed in the bankruptcy case by Highland and the Claimant Trust, reveals that there were at least 30 pending and “Active Dondero-Related Litigation” matters as of July 14, 2023: six (6) proceedings in this court; six (6) active appeals or actions are pending in the District Court for the Northern District of Texas; seven (7) appeals in the Fifth Circuit; two (2)

petitions for writs of certiorari in the United States Supreme Court; and nine (9) other proceedings or actions with or affecting the Highland Parties (“Highland,” the “Claimant Trust,” and “Seery”) in various other state, federal, and foreign jurisdictions.<sup>9</sup>

The above-described context is included because the Proposed Defendants assert that the Motion for Leave is just a continuation of Dondero’s unrelenting barrage of meritless and harassing litigation, making good on his oft-mentioned alleged threat to “burn down the place” after not achieving the results he wanted in the Highland bankruptcy case. Indeed, the Motion for Leave was filed after two years of unsuccessful attempts by, first, Dondero personally, and then HMIT to obtain pre-suit discovery from the Proposed Defendants (i.e., the Claims Purchasers) through two different Texas state court proceedings, pursuant to Tex. R. Civ. P. 202 (“Rule 202”). In each of these Rule 202 proceedings, Dondero and HMIT espoused the same Seery/Claims

<sup>9</sup> See Bankr. Dkt. No. 3880 (filed on July 14, 2023, providing a list of “Active Dondero-Related Litigation” and noting that the list is “a summary of active pending actions only and does not include actions that were resolved by final orders, including actions finally resolved after appeals to the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas and/or the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.”). Just since the filing by the Highland Parties of the list, three of the appeals pending in the Fifth Circuit have been decided against the Dondero-related appellants, two of which upheld the district court’s dismissal of appeals by Dondero-related entities of bankruptcy court orders based on the lack of bankruptcy appellate standing on behalf of the appellant. On July 19, 2023, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the district court’s dismissal of an appeal by NexPoint Advisors, L.P. (“NexPoint”) of bankruptcy court orders approving professional compensation on the basis that NexPoint did not meet the bankruptcy appellate standing test of being a “person aggrieved” by the entry of the orders. NexPoint Advisors, L.P. v. Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones, L.L.P. (In re Highland Capital Management, L.P.), 74 F.4th 361 (5th Cir. 2023). On July 31, 2023, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the district court’s dismissal of an appeal by Dugaboy—the Dondero family trust that, like the movant here in this Motion for Leave, was the holder of a limited partnership interest in Highland, and, as such, now has a contingent interest in the Claimant Trust—which had appealed a bankruptcy court order approving a Rule 9019 settlement on the same basis: Dugaboy did not meet the bankruptcy appellate standing test of being a “person aggrieved” by the entry of the settlement order. The Dugaboy Inv. Tr. v. Highland Capital Mgt., L.P. (In re Highland Capital Mgt., L.P.), No. 22-10960, 2023 WL 4861770 (5th Cir. July 31, 2023). The July 31, 2023 ruling followed the Fifth Circuit’s ruling on February 21, 2023, affirming the district court’s dismissal of an appeal by Dugaboy of yet another bankruptcy court order for lack of bankruptcy appellate standing. The Dugaboy Inv. Tr. v. Highland Capital Mgt., L.P. (In re Highland Capital Mgt., L.P.), No. 22-10831, 2023 WL 2263022 (5th Cir. Feb. 28, 2023). These rulings by the Fifth Circuit are discussed in greater detail below. The third ruling by the Fifth Circuit since July 14, 2023, was issued by the Fifth Circuit in a per curium opinion not designated for publication on July 26, 2023, this one affirming the district court’s affirmance of yet another Rule 9019 settlement order of the bankruptcy court that was appealed by Dugaboy, agreeing with the district court that the bankruptcy court had jurisdiction to approve a settlement among the Debtor, an entity affiliated with the Debtor but not a debtor itself, and UBS (the Debtor’s largest prepetition creditor and the seller of its claims to the Claims Purchasers, which is one of the claims trading transactions HMIT complains about in the Proposed Complaint). See The Dugaboy Inv. Tr. v. Highland Capital Mgt., L.P., No. 22-10983, 2023 WL 4842320 (5th Cir. July 26, 2023).

Purchasers conspiracy theory espoused in the Motion for Leave—that Seery must have provided one or more of the Claims Purchasers with material nonpublic information to induce them to want to purchase large, allowed, unsecured claims at a discount; a quid pro quo is suggested, such that the Claims Purchasers were allegedly told they would make a hefty profit on the claims they purchased and, in return, they would gladly “rubber stamp” Seery’s “excessive compensation” as the Claimant Trustee of the Claimant Trust. In sum, HMIT alleges this constituted wrongful “insider trading” of the bankruptcy claims. In addition, certain lawyers for Dondero and Dugaboy sent letters reporting this alleged conspiracy and “insider trading” to the Texas State Securities Board (“TSSB”) and the Executive Office of the United States Trustee (“EOUST”).

It is against this background and in this context that the court must analyze, in the exercise of its gatekeeping function under the confirmed Plan and its prior Gatekeeping Orders, whether HMIT should be allowed to pursue the Proposed Claims (i.e., whether the Proposed Claims are “colorable” claims as contemplated under the Gatekeeper Orders and the Gatekeeper Provision of the Plan). The court held an evidentiary hearing on the Motion for Leave on June 8, 2023 (“June 8 Hearing”), during which the court admitted exhibits and heard testimony from three witnesses both in support of and in opposition to the Motion for Leave. Having considered the Motion for Leave, the response of the Proposed Defendants thereto, HMIT’s reply to the response, and the arguments and evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave, the court denies HMIT’s request for leave to pursue its Proposed Claims. The court’s reasoning is set forth below.

II. BACKGROUND

A. Highland’s Bankruptcy Case, Dondero’s Removal as CEO, and the Plan

Highland was co-founded in Dallas in 1993 by Dondero and Mark Okada (“Okada”). It operated as a global investment adviser that provided investment management and advisory services and managed billions of dollars of assets, both directly and indirectly through numerous affiliates. Highland’s equity interest holders included HMIT (99.5%), Dugaboy (0.1866%), Okada, personally and through trusts (0.0627%), and Strand Advisors, Inc. (“Strand”), which was wholly owned by Dondero and was the only general partner of Highland (0.25%). On October 16, 2019 (the “Petition Date”), Highland, with Dondero in control<sup>10</sup> and acting as its CEO, president, and portfolio manager, and facing a myriad of massive, business litigation claims – many of which had finally become or were about to be liquidated (after a decade or more of contentious litigation in multiple fora all over the world—filed for relief under chapter 11 of the United States Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware. The bankruptcy case was transferred to the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division in December 2019. The official committee of unsecured creditors (the “Committee”) (and later, the United States Trustee) expressed a desire for the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee due to concerns over and distrust of Dondero, his numerous conflicts of interest, and his history of alleged mismanagement (and perhaps worse).

After many weeks under the specter of a possible appointment of a trustee, Highland and the Committee engaged in substantial and lengthy negotiations, resulting in a corporate governance settlement approved by this court on January 9, 2020.<sup>11</sup> As a result of this settlement, Dondero relinquished control of Highland and resigned his positions as officer or director of Highland and its general partner, Strand,<sup>12</sup> and three independent directors (“Independent Directors”) were

<sup>11</sup> This order is hereinafter referred to as the “January 2020 Order” and was entered by the court on January 9, 2020 [Bankr. Dkt. No. 339] pursuant to the Motion of the Debtor to Approve Settlement with Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding the Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operation in the Ordinary Course [Bankr. Dkt. No. 281].

<sup>12</sup> Dondero agreed to this settlement pursuant to a stipulation he executed and that was filed in connection with Highland’s motion to approve the settlement. See Stipulation in Support of Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement With the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in Ordinary Course [Bankr. Dkt. No. 338].

chosen to lead Highland through its chapter 11 case: Seery, John S. Dubel, and retired bankruptcy judge Russell Nelms. Given the Debtor’s perceived culture of constant litigation while Dondero was at the helm, it was purportedly not easy to get such highly qualified persons to serve as independent board members. At the hearing on the corporate governance settlement motion, the court heard credible testimony that none of the Independent Directors would have taken on the role without (1) an adequate directors and officers’ (“D&O”) insurance policy protecting them; (2) indemnification from Strand that would be guaranteed by the Debtor; (3) exculpation from mere negligence claims; and (4) a gatekeeper provision prohibiting the commencement of litigation against the Independent Directors without the bankruptcy court’s prior authority. The gatekeeper provision approved by the court in its January 9 Order states,<sup>13</sup>

No entity may commence or pursue a claim or cause of action of any kind against any Independent Director, any Independent Director’s agents, or any Independent Director’s advisors relating in any way to the Independent Director’s role as an independent director of Strand without the Court (i) first determining after notice that such claim or cause of action represents a colorable claim of willful misconduct or gross negligence against Independent Director, any Independent Director’s agents, or any Independent Director’s advisors and (ii) specifically authorizing such entity to bring such claim. The Court will have sole jurisdiction to adjudicate any such claim for which approval of the Court to commence or pursue has been granted.

Dondero agreed to remain with Highland as an unpaid portfolio manager following his resignation and did so “subject at all times to the supervision, direction and authority of the Independent Directors” and to his agreement to “resign immediately” “[i]n the event the Independent Directors determine for any reason that the Debtor shall no longer retain Dondero as an employee”<sup>14</sup> and to “not cause any Related Entity to terminate any agreements with the Debtor.”<sup>15</sup> The court later entered, on July 16, 2020, an order approving the appointment of Seery as Highland’s Chief Executive Officer, Chief Restructuring Officer, and Foreign Representative,<sup>16</sup> which included essentially the same “gatekeeper” language with respect to the pursuit of claims against Seery acting in these roles. The gatekeeper provision in the July 2020 Order was essentially the same as the gatekeeper provision in the January 2020 Order:

No entity may commence or pursue a claim or cause of action of any kind against Seery relating in any way to his role as the chief executive officer and chief restructuring officer of the Debtor without the Bankruptcy Court (i) first determining after notice that such claim or cause of action represents a colorable claim of willful misconduct or gross negligence against Seery, and (ii) specifically authorizing such entity to bring such claim. The Bankruptcy Court shall have sole jurisdiction to adjudicate any such claim for which approval of the Court to commence or pursue has been granted.

July 2020 Order, 3, ¶5. Neither the January 2020 Order nor the July 2020 Order were appealed.

Throughout the summer of 2020, Dondero informally proposed several reorganization plans, none of which were embraced by the Committee or the Independent Directors. When Dondero’s plans failed to gain support, he and entities under his control engaged in substantial, costly, and time-consuming litigation for Highland.<sup>17</sup> As the Fifth Circuit described the situation, after Dondero’s plans failed “he and other creditors began to frustrate the proceedings by objecting to settlements, appealing orders, seeking writs of mandamus, interfering with Highland Capital’s management, threatening employees, and canceling trades between Highland Capital and its clients.”<sup>18</sup> On October 9, 2020, Dondero resigned from all positions with the Debtor and its

<sup>17</sup> According to Seery’s credible testimony during the hearing on confirmation of the Plan that had been negotiated between the Committee and the Independent Directors, Dondero had threatened to “burn the place down” if his proposed plan was not accepted. The Independent Directors and the Committee had negotiated their own plan of reorganization which culminated in the filing by Highland of its Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (as Modified) (the “Plan”) [Bankr. Dkt. No. 1808] on January 22, 2021.<sup>20</sup> Highland had negotiated settlements with most of its major creditors following mediation and had amended its initially proposed plan to address the objections of most of its creditors, leaving only the objections of Dondero and entities under his control (the “Dondero Parties”) at the time of the confirmation hearing,<sup>21</sup> which was held over two days in early February 2021. The Plan is essentially an “asset monetization” plan pursuant to which the Committee was dissolved, and four new entities were created: the Reorganized Debtor; a new general partner for the Reorganized Debtor called HCMLP GP, LLC; the Claimant Trust (administered by Seery, its trustee); and a Litigation Sub-Trust (administered by its trustee, Marc Kirschner). Highland’s various servicing agreements were vested in the Reorganized Debtor, which continues to manage collateralized loan obligation vehicles (“CLOs”) and various other investments postconfirmation. The Claimant Trust owns the limited partnership interests in the Reorganized Debtor, HCMLP GP LLC, and the Litigation Sub-Trust and is charged with winding down the Reorganized Debtor over a three-year period by monetizing its assets and making distributions to Class 8 and Class 9 creditors as Claimant Trust Beneficiaries. The Claimant Trust is overseen by a Claimant Trust Oversight Board (“CTOB”), and pursuant to the terms of the Plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement (“CTA”),<sup>22</sup> the CTOB approved Seery’s compensation package as the CEO of the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trustee. Following their acquisition of their unsecured claims, representatives of Claims Purchasers Muck and Jessup became members of the CTOB.<sup>23</sup> Seery’s compensation included the same base salary that he was receiving as CEO and CRO of Highland, plus an added incentive bonus tiered to recoveries and distributions to the creditors under the Plan. The Plan provides for the cancellation of the limited partnership interests in Highland held by HMIT, Dugaboy, and Okada and his family trusts in exchange for each holder’s pro rata share of a contingent interest in the Claimant Trust (“Contingent Claimant Trust Interest”), as holders of allowed interests in Class 10 (holders of Class B/C limited partnership interests) or Class 11 (holders of Class A limited partnership interests) under the Plan.

1. The December 17, 2020 MGM Email

Between Dondero’s forced resignation from Highland in October 2020 and the confirmation hearing in February 2021, Dondero engaged in what appeared to be attempts to thwart, impede, and otherwise interfere with the Plan being proposed by the Independent Directors and the Committee. In the midst of this, on December 17, 2020, Dondero sent Seery<sup>24</sup> an email

<sup>24</sup> Dondero sent the email to others as well but did not copy counsel for the Independent Directors (including Seery) in violation of the terms of an existing temporary restraining order that enjoined Dondero from, among other things, “communicating . . . with any Board member” (including Seery) without including Debtor’s counsel. (the “MGM Email”) that featured prominently in HMIT’s Motion for Leave. According to HMIT and Dondero, the MGM Email contained material nonpublic information (“MNPI”) regarding the possibility of an imminent acquisition of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios, Inc. (“MGM”), likely by either Amazon or Apple.<sup>25</sup> At the time Dondero sent the MGM Email, Dondero sat on the board of directors of MGM, and the Debtor owned MGM stock directly. The Debtor also managed and partially owned a couple of other entities that owned MGM stock and managed various CLOs that owned some MGM stock as well. HMIT alleges now that Seery later misused and wrongfully disclosed to the Claims Purchasers this purported MNPI as part of a quid pro quo scheme, whereby the Claims Purchasers agreed to approve excessive compensation for Seery in the future (in exchange for him providing this allegedly “insider” information that inspired them to purchase unsecured claims with an alleged expectation of future large profits).<sup>26</sup> A timeline of events (in late 2020) in the weeks leading up to Dondero’s MGM Email to Seery, following Dondero’s departure from Highland, helps to put the email in full context:

- October 16: Dondero and his affiliates attempt to impede the Debtor’s trading activities by demanding—with no legal basis—that Seery cease selling certain assets;<sup>27</sup>
- November 24: Bankruptcy Court enters an Order approving the Debtor’s Disclosure Statement, scheduling the confirmation hearing on the Debtor’s Plan for January 13, 2021, and granting related relief;<sup>28</sup>
- November 24–27: Dondero personally interferes with the Debtor’s

<sup>36</sup> Seery testified at the June 8 Hearing that Dondero knowingly violated the TRO when he sent the MGM Email:

[The MGM Email] . . . followed the imposition of a TRO for interfering with the business. He knew what was in the TRO and he knew what it applied to, and it restricted him from communicating with me or any of the other independent directors without Pachulski [Debtor’s counsel] being on it. Furthermore, Pachulski had advised Dondero’s counsel that not only could they not communicate with us, if they wanted to communicate they had to prescreen the topics. And how do we know that? Because Dondero filed a motion to modify the TRO. And that was all before this email.

June 8 Hearing Transcript, 273:13-22.

The MGM Email had the subject line “Trading Restriction re MGM – material non public information” and stated:

Just got off a pre board call, board call at 3:00. Update is as follows: Amazon and Apple actively diligencing in Data Room. Both continue to express material interest. Probably first quarter event, will update as facts change. Note also any sales are subject to a shareholder agreement.<sup>37</sup>

Seery credibly testified at the June 8 Hearing that he was “highly suspicious” when he received the MGM Email. This was because, among other reasons, Dondero sent it after: (i) unsuccessful efforts to impede the Debtor’s trading activities (followed by the TRO); (ii) the “be careful what you do” text to Seery by Dondero; (iii) Highland’s termination of its shared service arrangements with Dondero’s various affiliated entities; (iv) the bankruptcy court’s approval of the disclosure statement; and (v) Highland’s demand to collect on the demand notes for which Dondero and his entities were liable.<sup>38</sup> Highland’s Chapter 11 case was fast approaching the finish line. Moreover, MGM was already on the restricted list at Highland Capital, and had been for a long time, and Dondero would know this.<sup>39</sup> Still further, as of December 17, 2020 (the date Dondero sent the unsolicited MGM Email to Seery), Dondero no longer owed a duty of any kind to the Debtor or any entity controlled by the Debtor, having surrendered in January 2020 direct and indirect control of the Debtor to the Independent Board as part of the corporate governance settlement<sup>40</sup> and having resigned from all roles at the Debtor and affiliates in October 2020. Still further, Dondero—to the extent he was sharing with Seery MNPI that he obtained as a member of the board of directors of MGM—would have been violating his own fiduciary duties to MGM.

In any event, in a declaration filed by Dondero in support of HMIT’s Rule 202 petition in Texas state court for pre-suit discovery,<sup>41</sup> he indicated that his goal in sending the MGM E-mail was to impede the Debtor and Seery from engaging in any transactions involving MGM:

On December 17, 2020, I sent an email to employees at HCM, including the then Chief Executive Officer and Chief Restructuring Officer Jim Seery, containing non-public information regarding Amazon and Apple’s interest in acquiring MGM. I became aware of this information due to my involvement as a member of the board of MGM. My purpose was to alert Seery and others that MGM stock, which was owned either directly or indirectly by HCM, should be on a restricted list and not be involved in any trades.

It is noteworthy that Dondero’s labeling of the MGM Email (in the subject line) as a communication containing “material non public information” did not make it so. In fact, it appears from the credible evidence presented at the June 8, 2023 hearing on HMIT’s Motion for Leave that the MGM Email did not disclose information to Seery that was not already made available to the public at the time it was sent. Seery testified that he did not think the MGM Email contained MNPI and that he did not personally “take any steps . . . to make sure that MGM stock was placed on a restricted list at Highland Capital after [he] received [the MGM Email]” because—as earlier noted—“MGM was already on the restricted list at Highland Capital . . . before I got to Highland.”<sup>42</sup> Indeed, MGM was ultimately purchased by Amazon after a sale process that had been quite publicly discussed in media reports for several months<sup>43</sup> and that was officially

<sup>42</sup> June 8 Hearing Transcript, 215:21-216:9. Seery elaborated upon further questioning from HMIT’s counsel that he did not think the indications in the MGM Email (that came from a member of the board of directors of MGM) that “it was probably a first-quarter event” and that “Amazon and Apple were actively diligencing – are diligencing in the data room, both continue to express material interest” were not MNPI. Id., 217:23-218:10. He testified that “it was clear [before he received the MGM Email] from the media reports and the actual quotes from Kevin Ulrich of Anchorage, who was the chairman at MGM, that a transaction would have to take place very quickly. And, in fact, the transaction did not take place in the first quarter.” Id., 219:3-7.

<sup>43</sup> See Highland Ex. 25 (“MGM has held preliminary talks with Apple, Netflix and other larger media companies . . . . MGM, in particular, seems like a logical candidate to sell this year. Its owners include Anchorage Capital, Highland Capital and Solus Alternative Asset Management, hedge funds that acquired the company out of bankruptcy in 2010.”) (article dated 1/26/20); Highland Ex. 26 (describing prospects of an MGM sale, noting that, among its largest announced to the public in late May 2021 (just a few weeks after the Claims Purchasers purchased some of their claims, but a few months before certain of their claims—the UBS claims—were purchased).<sup>44</sup> For example, as early as January 2020, Apple and Amazon were identified as being among a new group of “Big 6” global media companies, and MGM was identified as being a leading media acquisition target. Indeed, according to at least one media report on January 26, 2020, “MGM, in particular, seems like a logical candidate to sell this year” having already held “preliminary talks with Apple, Netflix and other larger media companies.”<sup>45</sup> In October 2020, the Wall Street Journal reported that MGM’s largest shareholder, Anchorage Capital Group (“Anchorage”), was facing mounting pressure to sell the company. Anchorage was led by Kevin Ulrich, who also served as Chairman of MGM’s Board. The article reported that “[i]n recent months, Mr. Ulrich has said he is working toward a deal,” and he specifically named Amazon and Apple as being among four possible buyers.<sup>46</sup> Thus, no one following the MGM story would have been surprised to learn in December 2020 that Apple and Amazon were conducting due diligence and had expressed “material interest” in acquiring MGM. Dondero testified during the June 8 Hearing that, at the time he sent the MGM Email, he “knew with certainty from the board level that Amazon had hit our price, and it was going to close in the next couple of months,”<sup>47</sup> that “as of December 17th, Amazon had made an offer that was acceptable to MGM, [and that] that’s what the board meeting was. We were going into exclusive negotiations to culminate the merger with them.”<sup>48</sup> Notwithstanding this testimony, Dondero eventually admitted (after a lengthy and torturous cross examination) that he did not actually communicate this supposed “inside” information to Seery in the MGM Email. He did not “say anything about Amazon hitting the price.” He did not say anything about the MGM board going into exclusive negotiations with Amazon “to culminate the merger with them.” Rather, he communicated information that Seery and any member of the public who cared to look could have gleaned from publicly available information as of December 17, 2020, regarding a much-written-about potential MGM transaction that involved interest from numerous companies, including, specifically, Amazon and Apple. When questioned why “[he felt] the need to mention Apple [in the MGM Email] if Amazon had already hit the price,” Dondero simply answered, “The only way you generally get something done at attractive levels in business is if two people are interested,” suggesting that he specifically did not communicate the purported inside information he obtained as a MGM board member—that Amazon had met MGM’s strike price and that the MGM board was moving forward with exclusive negotiations with Amazon—because he wanted it to appear that there was still a competitive process going on that included both Amazon and Apple.<sup>49</sup>

Even if the MGM Email contained MNPI on the day it was sent (four months prior to the first of the Claim Purchases that occurred in April 2021), the information was fully and publicly disclosed to the market in the days and weeks that followed. For example, on December 21, 2020, just four days later, a Wall Street Journal article titled MGM Holdings, Studio Behind ‘James Bond,’ Explores a Sale, reported that MGM had “tapped investment banks Morgan Stanley and LionTree LLC and begun a formal sale process,” and had “a market value of around $5.5 billion, based on privately traded shares and including debt.” The Wall Street Journal Article reiterated that (i) Anchorage “has come under pressure in recent years from weak performance and defecting clients, and its illiquid investment in MGM has become a larger percentage of its hedge fund as it shrinks,” and (ii) “Mr. Ulrich has told clients in recent months he was working toward a deal for the studio and has spoken of big technology companies as logical buyers.”<sup>50</sup> (Id. Ex. 27.) The Wall Street Journal’s reporting was picked up and expanded upon in other publications soon after.

For example:

- On December 23, 2020, Business Matters published an article specifically identifying Amazon as a potential suitor for MGM. The article, titled The world is not enough! Amazon joins other streaming services in £4bn bidding war for Bond films as MGM considers selling back catalogue, cited the Wall Street Journal article and further reported that MGM “hopes to spark a battle that could interest streaming services such as Amazon Prime”;<sup>51</sup>
- On December 24, 2020, an article in iDropNews specifically identified Apple as entering the fray. In an article titled Could Apple be Ready to Gobble Up MGM Studios Entirely?, the author observed that “it’s now become apparent that MGM is actually up on the auction block,” noting that the Wall Street Journal was “reporting that the studio has begun a formal sale process” and that Apple—with a long history of exploratory interest in MGM—would be a likely bidder;<sup>52</sup> and
- On January 15, 2021, Bulwark published an article entitled MGM is For Sale (Again) that identified attributes of MGM likely to appeal to potential purchasers and handicapped the odds of seven likely buyers—with Apple and Amazon named as two of three potential buyers most likely to close on an acquisition.<sup>53</sup>

Finally, Highland and entities it controlled did not sell their MGM stock while the MGM-Amazon deal was under discussion and/or not made public but, instead, they tendered their MGM holdings in connection with, and as part of, the ultimate MGM-Amazon transaction after it closed in March 2022.

2. No Evidence to Support HMIT/Dondero’s Assumptions that Seery Shared Alleged MNPI in the MGM Email with Claims Purchasers

One of HMIT’s allegations in the Proposed Complaint it seeks leave to file—which is central to HMIT’s and Dondero’s conspiracy theory—is that Seery shared the alleged MNPI from the MGM Email with the Claims Purchasers (or at least Farallon—the owner/affiliate of Muck, one of the Claims Purchasers) and that the Claims Purchasers only acquired the purchased claims (“Purchased Claims”) based on, and because, of their receipt of the MNPI from Seery. HMIT essentially admits in the original version of its Motion for Leave that it has no direct evidence that Seery communicated the alleged MNPI to any of the Claims Purchasers. Rather, its allegation is based on inferences it wants the court to make based on “circumstantial” evidence and on the Dondero Declarations that were attached to the Motion for Leave, which described communications Dondero purportedly had with one or two representatives of Farallon in the “late spring” of 2021 concerning Farallon’s recent acquisition of certain claims in the Highland bankruptcy case.<sup>54</sup> Based on these communications, HMIT and Dondero only assume Seery must have provided the MNPI about MGM to Farallon, which must have caused both Farallon and the other Claims Purchaser, Stonehill, to acquire the Purchased Claims.<sup>55</sup>

At the June 8 Hearing, HMIT offered Dondero’s testimony that he had three telephone conversations with two representatives of Farallon, Mike Linn (“Linn”) and Raj Patel (“Patel”),

<sup>55</sup> Motion for Leave (Bankr. Dkt. No. 3699) ¶ 28. HMIT subsequently filed the final version of the Motion for Leave that was revised to withdraw the Dondero Declarations and delete all references therein to the Dondero Declarations (but, notably, leaving in the allegations that were based on the Dondero Declaration(s)). This was done after the court ruled that it would allow the Proposed Defendants to examine Dondero regarding his Declarations. HMIT contended at that point that the court should consider the Motion for Leave on a no-evidence Rule 12(b)(6) type basis (but could not explain why it had attached the Dondero Declarations as evidence that “supported” the Motion for Leave, if it believed no evidence should be considered). See Motion for Leave (Bankr. Dkt. No. 3816) ¶ 28; see also infra pages 45 to 47 regarding the “sideshow” litigation that occurred prior to the June 8 Hearing over whether the hearing on the Motion for Leave would be an evidentiary hearing.

who allegedly told him that they purchased the claims without conducting any due diligence and based solely on Seery’s assurances that the claims were valuable. These conversations allegedly took place on May 28, 2021—two days after the MGM-Amazon deal was officially announced to the public (on May 26, 2021). Dondero also testified that a photocopy of handwritten notes (“Dondero Notes”)<sup>56</sup> (which were partially cut off) were notes he took contemporaneously with these short telephone conversations he initiated (one with Patel and two follow-up conversations with Linn).<sup>57</sup> He testified that his purpose in taking these notes and in initiating the phone calls was that “[w]e’d been trying nonstop to settle the case for two-plus years. . . . [a]nd when we heard the claims traded, we realized there were new parties to potentially negotiate to resolve the case . . . [s]o I reached out [to] the Farallon guys,”<sup>58</sup> and further, on voir dire from the Proposed Defendants’ counsel, that the purpose of taking the notes was so that he had “a written record of the important points that [he] discussed . . . so I know how to address it the next time.”<sup>59</sup> The handwritten notes<sup>60</sup> stated:

Raj Patel bought it because of Seery	1
50-70¢ not compelling	2
Class 8	3
Asked what would be compelling	4
-- No Offer	5
Bought in Feb/March timeframe	6
Bought assets w/ Claims	7
Offered him 40-50% premium	8
130% of cost; “Not Compelling”	9
No Counter; Told Discovery coming	10

<sup>56</sup> HMIT Ex. 4. The handwritten notes were admitted into evidence after voir dire, not for the truth of anything Patel or Linn allegedly said to him during the three telephone conversations, but as Dondero’s “present sense impression” of the telephone conversations.

<sup>60</sup> HMIT Ex. 4. The court has placed in a table and numbered each line for ease of reference. The table does not include the separate apparent partial date from the top left corner that Dondero testified was the date that he made the initial call to Patel: May 28, 2021.

On direct examination, Dondero testified that line 1 is what he wrote contemporaneously with the short call he initiated to Patel of Farallon in which Patel allegedly told Dondero “that he bought it because Seery told him to buy it and they had made money with Seery before”<sup>61</sup> and that Farallon “bought [the claim] because he was very optimistic regarding MGM”<sup>62</sup> before referring him to Linn, a portfolio manager at Farallon. Dondero testified that the rest of the handwritten notes (reflected in lines 2 through 10 of the table) were notes he took contemporaneously with two telephone conversations he had with Linn following his call to Patel, with lines 2-8 referring to Dondero’s first call with Linn and lines 9 and 10 referring to his second call with Linn.<sup>63</sup> Dondero testified that the “50-70¢” in line 2 referred to his offer to Linn to pay 70 cents on the dollar to buy Farallon’s<sup>64</sup> claims because “[w]e knew that they had – that the claims had traded around 50 cents” and “[w]e wanted to prevent the $5 million-a-month burn” (referring to attorney’s fees in the Highland case) and that “not compelling Class 8” in lines 2-3 referred to Linn’s response to him that the offer was not compelling.<sup>65</sup> Dondero testified that lines 4-5 referred to him asking Linn what amount would be compelling and to Linn’s response that “he had no offer.”<sup>66</sup> Dondero testified that lines 6-8 referred to Linn telling Dondero that Farallon bought the claims in the February, March timeframe and that Dondero told Linn that, given that the estate was spending $5 million a month on legal fees, Farallon should want to sell its claims and Linn’s alleged response that “Seery told him it was worth a lot more.”<sup>67</sup> Lastly, Dondero testified on direct examination that the last two lines referred to a second telephone conversation he had with Linn in which Dondero offered 130 percent of cost for the claims and that Linn told him that the offer was not compelling, and he would not give a price at which he would sell.<sup>68</sup>

On cross-examination, Dondero acknowledged that, though he had testified that the handwritten notes were intended to be a written record of the important points from the telephone conversations he had with Patel and Linn, there was no mention in the notes of: (1) MGM; (2) or that Farallon was very optimistic about MGM; (3) the sharing of MNPI; (4) a quid pro quo; or (5) Seery's compensation, and that his last note—"Told Discovery coming"—was a reference to Dondero telling Linn (not Linn telling Dondero) that discovery was coming in response to Dondero's own supposition that Farallon must have traded on MNPI.<sup>69</sup> Cross-examination also revealed that Farallon never told Dondero that Seery gave them MNPI, and that Dondero only believed Seery must have given Farallon MNPI, because Farallon (Patel and Linn) had told him that the only reason Farallon bought their claims was because of their prior dealings with Seery, which Dondero took to mean that they had conducted no due diligence on their own prior to acquiring the claims. Dondero also testified that he did not have any personal knowledge as to how Seery's compensation package, as CEO of the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trustee, was determined because he was "not involved" in the setting of Seery's compensation pursuant to the Claimant Trust<sup>70</sup> and that he never discussed Seery's compensation with Farallon.<sup>71</sup>

As noted earlier, Dondero attempted to obtain discovery from the Claims Purchasers in a Texas state court pursuant to Rule 202 of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure. The Texas state

<sup>69</sup> Id., 190:14-191:25. Dondero testified that he told Linn that discovery "would be coming in the next few weeks" and noted that "this has been a couple years. . . . [w]e've been trying for two years to get . . . discovery in this."

court denied the First Rule 202 petition on June 1, 2022, after having considered the amended petition, the responses, the record, applicable authorities and having conducted a hearing on the petition on June 1, 2022.<sup>72</sup>

3. Dondero Unsuccessfully Seeks Discovery and to Have Various Agencies and Courts Outside of the Bankruptcy Court Acknowledge His Insider Trading Theories

Dondero acknowledged at the June 8 Hearing that the verified petition (“First Rule 202 Petition”) he signed and filed on July 22, 2021, in the first Texas Rule 202 proceeding—just weeks after his telephone calls with Linn and Patel—was true and accurate. In it, he swore under oath as to what Linn told him in the telephone call concerning Farallon’s purchase of the claims, and the only reason he gave for wanting discovery was that Linn told him Farallon bought the claims “sight unseen—relying entirely on Seery’s advice solely because of their prior dealings.”<sup>73</sup> Dondero acknowledged, as well, that his sworn statement that he filed in support of an amended verified Rule 202 petition filed in the same Texas Rule 202 proceeding, but nearly ten months later (in May 2022), described the same telephone conversation he had with Linn, and it did not mention MGM at all and did not say that Linn told him that Seery gave him MNPI; rather, the sworn statement stated only that “On a telephone call between Petitioner and Michael Lin[n], a representative of Farallon, Mr. Lin[n] informed Petitioner that Farallon had purchased the claims sight unseen and with no due diligence—100% relying on Seery’s say-so because they had made so much money in the past when Seery told them to purchase claims” and that Linn did not tell him that Seery gave them MNPI, but he concluded that Seery gave Farallon MNPI based on what Linn did tell him.<sup>74</sup>

<sup>73</sup> Id., 193:8-194:16; Highland Ex. 3, Verified Petition to Take Deposition before Suit and Seek Documents, ¶ 21. <sup>74</sup> Id., 195:11-197:17; Highland Ex. 4, Amended Verified Petition to Take Deposition before Suit and Seek Documents, ¶ 23.

Nine days later, Dondero filed a declaration in the same proceeding, in which he described the same call with Linn as follows:<sup>75</sup>

Last year, I called Farallon’s Michael Lin[n] about purchasing their claims in the bankruptcy. I offered them 30% more than what they paid. I was told by Michael Lin[n] of Farallon that they purchased the interests without doing any due diligence other than what Mr. James Seery—the CEO of Highland—told them, and that he told them that the interests would be worth far more than what Farallon paid. Given the value of those claims that Seery had testified in court, it made no sense to me that Mr. Lin[n] would think that the claims were worth more than what Seery testified under oath was the value of the bankruptcy claims.

Dondero further stated in his declaration that “I have an interest in ensuring that the claims purchased by [Farallon] are not used as a means to deprive the equity holders of their share of the funds,” and that “[i]t has become obvious that despite the fact that the bankruptcy estate has enough money to pay all claimants 100 cents on the dollar, there is plainly a movement afoot to drain the bankrupt estate and deprive equity of their rights. Accordingly, “I commissioned an investigation by counsel who have been in communication with the Office of the United States Trustee.”<sup>76</sup> Dondero attached as Exhibit A to his declaration a letter from Douglas Draper (“Draper”), an attorney with the law firm of Heller, Draper & Horn, L.L.C. in New Orleans, to the office of the General Counsel, Executive Office for U.S. Trustees, dated October 5, 2021, in which Draper opens the letter by stating that “[t]he purpose of this letter is to request that your office investigate the circumstances surrounding the sale of claims by members of the [Creditors’ Committee] in the bankruptcy of [Highland],” and later noted that he “became involved in Highland’s bankruptcy through my representation of [Dugaboy], an irrevocable trust of which Dondero is the primary beneficiary.”<sup>77</sup> Mr. Draper laid out the same allegations of insider claims trading, breach of fiduciary duties, and conspiracy that HMIT seeks to bring in the Proposed Complaint.<sup>78</sup> The U.S. Trustee’s office took no action. Dondero made a second and third attempt to get the U.S. Trustee’s office to conduct an investigation into the same allegations laid out in Draper’s letter, this time in “follow-up” letters to the Office of the U.S. Trustee on November 3, 2021, and six months later, on May 11, 2022, through another lawyer, Davor Rukavina (“Rukavina”), in which Rukavina wrote “to provide additional information regarding the systemic abuses of bankruptcy process occasioned during the [Highland] bankruptcy.”<sup>79</sup> Again, the U.S. Trustee’s office took no action.

On February 15, 2023, Dondero filed yet another sworn statement about his alleged conversation with Linn, this time in support of a Verified Rule 202 Petition filed by HMIT (“Second Rule 202 Petition”), filed in a different Texas state court (Texas District Court, 191st Judicial District, Dallas County, Texas), following Dondero’s unsuccessful attempts throughout 2021 and 2022 to obtain discovery in the First Rule 202 proceeding and based on the same allegations of misconduct by Seery and Farallon.<sup>80</sup> In this new sworn statement, Dondero describes for the first time the “call” he had with Linn as having been “phone calls” with Patel and Linn and mentions MGM and Farallon’s alleged optimism about the expected sale of MGM.<sup>81</sup>

In late Spring of 2021, I had phone calls with two principals at Farallon Capital Management, LLC (“Farallon”), Raj Patel and Michael Linn. During these phone calls, Mr. Patel and Mr. Linn informed me that Farallon had a deal in place to purchase the Acis and HarbourVest claims, which I understood to refer to claims that were a part of settlements in the HCM Bankruptcy Proceedings. Mr. Patel and Mr. Linn stated that Farallon agreed to purchase these claims based solely on conversations with Seery because they had made significant profits when Seery told them to purchase other claims in the past. They also stated that they were particularly optimistic because of the expected sale of MGM.

The Second Rule 202 Petition was also denied by the second Texas state court on March 8, 2023.<sup>82</sup>

HMIT, in an apparent attempt to provide support for its argument that the Proposed Claims are “colorable,” stated in its Motion for Leave that “[t]he Court also should be aware that the Texas States [sic] Securities Board (“TSSB”) opened an investigation into the subject matter of the insider trades at issue, and this investigation has not been closed. The continuing nature of this investigation underscores HMIT’s position that the claims described in the attached Adversary Proceeding are plausible and certainly far more than merely ‘colorable.’”<sup>83</sup> But, two days before opposition briefing was due, on May 9, 2023, the TSSB issued a letter (“TSSB Letter”) to Highland, informing it that “[t]he staff of the [TSSB] has completed its review of the complaint received by the Staff against [Highland]. The issues raised in the complaint and information provided to our Agency were given full consideration, and a decision was made that no further regulatory action is warranted at this time.”<sup>84</sup> HMIT’s counsel (frankly, to the astonishment of the court) objected to the admission of the TSSB Letter at the June 8 Hearing “on the grounds of relevance, 403, hearsay, and authenticity . . . [a]nd I also . . . think it's important that the decision by a regulatory body has no bearing on this cause of action or the colorability of this claim, and the Texas State Securities Board will tell you that. This is completely and utterly irrelevant to your inquiry.”<sup>85</sup> The court overruled HMIT’s objection to the relevance of this exhibit—considering, among other things, that HMIT, in its Motion for Leave, specifically mentioned the allegedly open TSSB “investigation” as relevant evidence the court “should be aware” of in making its determination of whether the Proposed Claims were “colorable.”<sup>86</sup>

C. Claims Purchasers Purchase Claims and File Notices of Transfers of Claims

To be clear about the time line here, it was after confirmation of the Plan but prior to the Effective Date of the Plan, that the Claims Purchasers: (1) purchased several large unsecured claims that had been allowed following, and as part of, Rule 9019 settlements, each of which were approved by the bankruptcy court, after notice and hearing, prior to the confirmation hearing; and (2) filed notices of the transfers of those claims pursuant to Rule 3001(e)(2) of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure. The noticing of the claims transfers began on April 16, 2021, with the notice of transfer of the claim held by Acis Capital Management to Muck, and ended on August 9, 2021, with the notices of transfers of the claims held by UBS Securities to Muck and Jessup:

HMIT insists that it “made no sense” for the Claims Purchasers to buy the Purchased Claims because “the publicly available information [] did not offer a sufficient potential profit to justify the publicly disclosed risk,” and “their investment was projected to yield a small return with virtually no margin for error.”<sup>91</sup> Dondero testified that it was his view that there was insufficient information in the public to justify the claims purchases.<sup>92</sup> But, HMIT’s arguments here are contradicted by the information that was publicly available to Farallon and Stonehill at the time of their purchases and by HMIT’s own allegations. In advance of Plan confirmation, Highland projected that Class 8 general unsecured creditors would recover 71.32% on their allowed claims. In the Proposed Complaint, HMIT sets forth the amounts the Claims Purchasers purportedly paid for their claims.<sup>93</sup> Taking into account the face amount of the allowed claims, the Claims Purchasers’ projected profits (in millions of dollars) were as follows:

Creditor	Class 8	Class 9	Ascribed Value <sup>94</sup>	Purchaser	Purchase Price	Projected Profit
Redeemer	$137.0	$0.0	$97.71	Stonehill	$78.0	$19.71

<sup>92</sup> June 8 Hearing Transcript, 187:3-7 (“Q: And it’s your testimony that there wasn’t sufficient information in the public for them to buy – this is your view – that there wasn’t sufficient information in the public to justify their purchases. Is that your view? A: Correct.”).

<sup>94</sup> “Ascribed Value” is derived by multiplying the Class 8 amount by the projected recovery of 71.32% for that class.

HarbourVest	$45.0	$35.0	$32.09	Farallon	$27.0	$5.09
UBS	$65.0	$60.0	$46.39	Stonehill & Farallon	$50.0	($3.61)

As HMIT acknowledges, by the time Dondero spoke with Farallon in the “late spring” of 2021, the Claims Purchasers had acquired the allowed claims previously held by Acis, Redeemer, and HarbourVest.<sup>95</sup> Based on an aggregate purchase price of $113 million for these three claims, the Claims Purchasers would have expected to net over $33 million in profits, or nearly 30% on their investment, had Highland met its projections. The Claims Purchasers would make even more money if Highland beat its projections, because they also purchased the Class 9 claims and would therefore capture any upside. In this context, HMIT’s and Dondero’s assertions that it did not “make any sense” for the Claims Purchasers to purchase their claims when they did does not pass muster—given the publicly available information about potential recoveries under the Plan. Dondero even acknowledged, on cross-examination, that he was prepared to pay 30 percent more than Farallon had paid, even though he did not think there was sufficient public information available to justify Farallon’s purchase of the claims.<sup>96</sup> Dondero essentially testified that he wanted to purchase Farallon’s claims because he wanted to be in a position of control to force a settlement or resolution of the bankruptcy case, post-confirmation, under terms acceptable to him. He did not want to try to settle by negotiating with Farallon and Stonehill as creditors, but instead he wanted to purchase the claims because “if we owned all the claims, it would settle the case.”<sup>97</sup>

<sup>95</sup> See Complaint, ¶ 41 n.12. The UBS claims were not acquired until August 2021, long after the alleged “quid pro quo” was supposedly agreed upon and the MGM-Amazon deal was announced in the press in late May 2021. D. Fifth Circuit’s Approval of the Gatekeeper Provision in Plan, Recognition of Res Judicata Effect of the Prior Gatekeeper Orders, and the Bankruptcy Court’s Order Approving Highland’s Motion to Conform Plan

Harkening back to February 22, 2021, after a robust confirmation hearing, this court entered its order confirming the Plan, over the objections of Dondero and Dondero-Related Parties, specifically questioning the good faith of their objections. The court found, after noting “the remoteness of their economic interests” that “[it] has good reason to believe that [the Dondero Parties] are not objecting to protect economic interests they have in the Debtor but to be disruptors. Dondero wants his company back. This is understandable, but it is not a good faith basis to lob objections to the Plan.”<sup>94</sup> The Plan became effective on August 11, 2021.

Of relevance to the Motion for Leave, the confirmed Plan included certain exculpations, releases, and injunctions designed to protect the Debtor and other bankruptcy participants from bad-faith litigation. These participants included: Highland’s employees (with certain exceptions); Seery as Highland’s CEO and CRO; Strand (after the appointment of the Independent Directors); the Independent Directors; the successor entities; the CTOB and its members; the Committee and its members; professionals retained in the case; and all “Related Persons.” The injunction provisions contained a Gatekeeper Provision which is similar to the gatekeeper provisions in the prior Gatekeeper Orders in that it provided that the bankruptcy court will act as a “gatekeeper” to screen and prevent bad-faith litigation against the Protected Parties. The Gatekeeper Provision in the Plan states, in pertinent part:<sup>98</sup>

No Enjoined Party may commence or pursue a claim or cause of action of any kind against any Protected Party that arose or arises from or is related to the Chapter 11 Case . . . without the Bankruptcy Court (i) first determining, after notice and a hearing, that such claim or cause of action represents a colorable claim of any kind, including, but not limited to, negligence, bad faith, criminal misconduct, willful misconduct, fraud, or gross negligence against a Protected Party and (ii) specifically authorizing such Enjoined Party to bring such claim or cause of action against such Protected Party.

The Plan defines Protected Parties as,

collectively, (i) the Debtor and its successors and assigns, direct and indirect majority-owned subsidiaries, and the Managed Funds, (ii) the Employees, (iii) Strand, (iv) the Reorganized Debtor, (v) the Independent Directors, (vi) the Committee, (vii) the members of the Committee (in their official capacities), (viii) the Claimant Trust, (ix) the Claimant Trustee, (x) the Litigation Sub-Trust, (xi) the Litigation Trustee, (xii) the members of the [CTOB] (in their official capacities), (xiii) [HCMLP GP LLC], (xiv) the Professionals retained by the Debtor and the Committee in the Chapter 11 Case, (xv) the CEO/CRO; and (xvi) the Related Persons of each of the parties listed in (iv) through (xv); [but excluding Dondero and Okada and various entities including HMIT and Dugaboy].

The court notes that the Gatekeeper Provision in the Plan provides protection to a broader number of persons than the persons protected under the January 2020 Order (addressing the Independent Directors and their agents and advisors) and the July 2020 Order (addressing Seery in his role as CEO and CRO of the Debtor). But, at the same time, it is less restrictive than the gatekeeping provisions under the Gatekeeper Orders, in that the gatekeeping provisions in the prior orders shield the protected parties from any claim that is not both “colorable” and a claim for “willful misconduct or gross negligence,” effectively providing the protected parties under the prior orders with a limited immunity from claims of simple negligence or breach of contract that do not rise to the level of “willful misconduct or gross negligence,” whereas the Gatekeeping Provision under the Plan does not act as a release or exculpation of the Protected Parties in any way because it does not prohibit any party from bringing any kind of claim against a Protected Party, provided the proposed claimant first obtains a finding in the bankruptcy court that its proposed claims are “colorable.”<sup>99</sup>

<sup>99</sup> It should be noted that--as discussed further below--there are, separately in the Plan, exculpations as to a smaller universe of persons--e.g., the Debtor, the Committee and its members, and the Independent Directors.

Dondero and some of the entities under his control appealed<sup>100</sup> the Confirmation Order directly to the Fifth Circuit, arguing, among other issues, that the Plan’s exculpation, release, and injunction provisions, including the Gatekeeper Provision (collectively, the “Protection Provisions”) impermissibly provide certain non-debtor bankruptcy participants with a discharge, purportedly in contravention of the provisions of Bankruptcy Code § 524(e)’s statutory bar on non-debtor discharges. As noted above, the Fifth Circuit, “affirm[ed] the confirmation order in large part” and “reverse[d] only insofar as the plan exculpates certain non-debtors in violation of 11 U.S.C. § 524(e), strik[ing] those few parties from the plan’s exculpation, and affirm[ed] on all remaining grounds.”<sup>101</sup> The Fifth Circuit specifically found the “injunction and gatekeeping provisions [to be] sound” and found that it was only “the exculpation of certain non-debtors” that “exceed[ed] the bankruptcy court’s authority,” agreeing with the bankruptcy court’s conclusions that the Protection Provisions were legal, necessary under the circumstances, and in the best interest of all parties” in part, and only disagreeing to the extent that the exculpation provision improperly extended to certain bankruptcy participants other than Highland, the Committee and its members, and the Independent Directors and “revers[ing] and strik[ing] the few unlawful parts

<sup>100</sup> On appeal, the appellant funds (“Funds”), whom this court found to be “owned and/or controlled” by Dondero despite their purported independence, also asked the Fifth Circuit to vacate this court’s factual finding “because it threatens the Funds’ compliance with federal law and damages their reputations and values” and because “[a]ccording to the Funds, the characterization is unfair, as they are not litigious like Dondero and are completely independent from him.” NexPoint Advisors, L.P. v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P. (In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P.), 48 F.4th at 434. Applying the “clear error” standard of review, the Fifth Circuit “le[ft] the bankruptcy court’s factual finding undisturbed” because “nothing in this record leaves us with a firm and definite conviction that the bankruptcy court made a mistake in finding that the Funds are ‘owned and/or controlled by [Dondero].’” Id. at 434-35.

<sup>101</sup> See supra note 4. The Fifth Circuit replaced its initial opinion with its final opinion a few days after certain appellants had filed a short (four-and-one-half pages) motion for rehearing (the “Motion for Rehearing”) on September 2, 2022. The movants had asked the Fifth Circuit to “narrowly amend the [initial] Opinion in order to confirm the Court’s holding that the impermissibly exculpated parties are similarly struck from the protections of the injunction and gatekeeper provisions of the plan (in other words, that such parties cannot constitute ‘Protected Parties’).” In the final Fifth Circuit opinion, same as the initial Fifth Circuit opinion, the Fifth Circuit stated that, with regard to the Confirmation Order, the panel would “reverse only insofar as the plan exculpates certain non-debtors in violation of 11 U.S.C. § 524(e), strike those few parties from the plan’s exculpation, and affirm on all remaining grounds.” Highland Capital, 48 F.4th at 424. No findings, discussion, or rulings regarding the injunction and gatekeeper provisions that were in the initial Fifth Circuit opinion were disturbed.

of the Plan’s exculpation provision.<sup>102</sup> The Fifth Circuit then remanded to the Bankruptcy Court “for further proceedings in accordance with the opinion.”<sup>103</sup>

In the course of analyzing the Protection Provisions under the Plan, the Fifth Circuit noted that the protection provisions in the January and July 2020 Orders appointing the Independent Directors and Seery as CEO and CRO of Highland were res judicata and that “those orders have the effect of exculpating the Independent Directors and Seery in his executive capacities” such that “[d]espite removal from the exculpation provision in the confirmation order, the Independent Directors’ agents, advisors, and employees, as well as Seery in his official capacities are all exculpated to the extent provided in the January and July 2020 Orders.”<sup>104</sup>

The Reorganized Debtor filed a motion in the bankruptcy court to conform the plan to the Fifth Circuit’s mandate, proposing that only one change was needed to make the Plan compliant with the Fifth Circuit’s ruling: narrow the defined term for “Exculpated Parties” to read as follows:

“Exculpated Parties” means, collectively, (i) the Debtor, (ii) the Independent Directors, (iii) the Committee, and (iv) members of the Committee (in their official capacities).

The Reorganized Debtor proposed that this one simple revision of this defined term removed the exculpations deemed by the Fifth Circuit to violate section 524(e) of the Bankruptcy Code, and that no other changes would be required to conform the Plan and Confirmation Order to the Fifth Circuit’s mandate. Some of the Dondero-related entities objected to the motion to conform, arguing that the Fifth Circuit’s ruling required more surgery on the Plan than simply narrowing the defined term “Exculpated Parties.” On February 27, 2023, this court entered its order granting Highland’s motion to conform the Plan, ordering that one change be made to the Plan – revising the definition of “Exculpated Parties” – and no more.<sup>105</sup> The objecting parties’ direct appeal of this order has been certified to the Fifth Circuit and is one of the numerous currently active appeals by Dondero-related parties pending in the Fifth Circuit.

E. HMIT’s Motion for Leave

HMIT filed its emergency Motion for Leave on March 28, 2023, which, with attachments, as first filed, was 387 pages in length, including an initial proposed complaint (“Initial Proposed Complaint”) and two sworn declarations of Dondero that were attached as “objective evidence” in “support[ ]” of the Motion for Leave,<sup>106</sup> and with it, an application for an emergency setting on the hearing on the Motion to Leave. On April 23, 2023, HMIT filed a pleading entitled a “supplement” to its Motion to Leave (“Supplement”),<sup>107</sup> to which it attached a revised proposed verified complaint (“Proposed Complaint”)<sup>108</sup> as Exhibit 1-A to the Motion for Leave and stated that “[t]he Supplement is not intended to amend or supersede the [Motion for Leave]; rather, it is intended as a supplement to address procedural matters and to bring forth additional facts that further confirm the appropriateness of the derivative action.”<sup>109</sup> The HMIT Motion for Leave was later amended to eliminate the Dondero Declarations and references to the same (but not the underlying allegations that were supposedly supported by the Dondero Declarations).<sup>110</sup>

<sup>110</sup> Bankr. Dkt. Nos. 3815 and 3816. Both of these filings had the Initial Proposed Complaint attached as Exhibit 1 to the Motion for Leave.

As earlier noted, HMIT desires leave to sue the Proposed Defendants regarding the post-confirmation, pre-Effective Date purchase of allowed unsecured claims. The Proposed Defendants would be:

Seery, who was a stranger to Highland until approximately four months following the Petition Date when he was brought in as one of the three Independent Directors, and now serves as the CEO of the Reorganized Debtor and the Trustee of the Claimant Trust (and also was previously Highland’s CRO during the case, then CEO, and, also, an Independent Board Member of Highland’s general partner during the Highland case). Seery is best understood as the man who took Dondero’s place running Highland—per the request of the Committee.

Claims Purchasers, who were strangers to Highland until the end of the bankruptcy case. They are identified as Farallon Capital Management, LLC (“Farallon”); Muck Holdings, LLC (“Muck”), which was a special purpose entity created by Farallon to purchase unsecured claims against Highland; Stonehill Capital Management, LLC (“Stonehill”); and Jessup Holdings, LLC (“Jessup”), which was a special purpose entity created by Stonehill to purchase unsecured claims against Highland (collectively, the “Claims Purchasers”). The Claims Purchasers purchased $240 million face value of already-allowed unsecured claims post-confirmation and pre-Effective Date in the spring of 2021 and another $125 million face value of already-allowed unsecured claims in August 2021. Bankruptcy Rule 3001(e) notices—giving notice of same—were filed on the bankruptcy clerk’s docket regarding these purchases. The claims had previously been held by the creditors known as the Crusader Redeemer Committee, Acis Capital, HarbourVest, and UBS (three of these four creditors formerly served on the Committee during the Highland bankruptcy case).

John Doe Defendants Nos. 1-10, which are described to be “currently unknown individuals or business entities who may be identified in discovery as involved in the wrongful transactions at issue.”

Highland, as a nominal defendant. HMIT added Highland as a nominal defendant in the Revised Proposed Complaint attached to the Supplement.

Claimant Trust, as a nominal defendant. HMIT added the Claimant Trust as a nominal defendant in the Revised Proposed Complaint attached to the Supplement.

The proposed plaintiffs would be:

HMIT, which, again, was the largest equity holder in Highland and held a 99.5% limited partnership interest (specifically, Class B/C limited partnership interests). HMIT is the holder of a Class 10 interest under the Plan, pursuant to which HMIT’s limited partnership interest in Highland was extinguished as of the Effective Date in exchange for a pro rata share of a contingent interest in the Claimant Trust.

Highland, as a nominal party. HMIT wishes to bring its complaint on behalf of itself and derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor.

Claimant Trust, as a nominal party. HMIT wishes to bring its complaint on behalf of itself and derivatively on behalf of the Claimant Trust.

In the Proposed Complaint, HMIT asserts the following six counts: Count I (against Seery) for breach of fiduciary duties; Count II (against the Claims Purchasers and John Doe Defendants) for knowing participation in breach of fiduciary duties; Count III (against all Proposed Defendants) for conspiracy; Count IV (against Muck and Jessup) for equitable disallowance of their claims; Count V (against all Proposed Defendants) for unjust enrichment and constructive trust; and Count VI (against all Proposed Defendants) for declaratory relief.<sup>111</sup> The gist of the Proposed Complaint is as follows. HMIT asserts that something seems amiss regarding the post-confirmation/pre-Effective Date purchase of claims by the Claims Purchasers. Actually, more bluntly, HMIT asserts that “wrongful conduct occurred” and “improper trades” were made.<sup>112</sup> HMIT believes the Claims Purchasers paid around $160 million for the $365 million face amount of claims they purchased. HMIT believes that this amount was too high for any rational claim purchaser (particularly hedge funds who expect high returns) to have paid for the claims—based on Highland’s Disclosure Statement and Plan projections regarding the projected distributions under the Plan to holders of allowed unsecured claims. And, of course, Dondero purports to have concluded from the three phone conversations he had with representatives of one of the Claims Purchasers that they did no due diligence before purchasing the claims. Therefore, HMIT surmises, Seery must have given these Claims Purchasers MNPI regarding Highland that convinced them that it was to their economic advantage to purchase the claims. In particular, HMIT surmises Seery must have shared

---

<sup>111</sup> In the Initial Proposed Complaint, HMIT proposed to bring claims against the various Proposed Defendants in seven counts, including a count for fraud by misrepresentation and material nondisclosure against all Proposed Defendants. In the Proposed Complaint, HMIT abandons its claim for fraud by misrepresentation and material nondisclosure.

MNPI regarding the likely imminent sale of MGM, in which Highland had, directly and indirectly, substantial holdings. As noted earlier, MGM was ultimately purchased by Amazon after a sale process that had been quite publicly discussed in media reports for several months and that was officially announced to the public in late May 2021 (just a few weeks after the Claims Purchasers purchased some of their claims, but a few months before certain of their claims—the UBS claims—were purchased).<sup>113</sup> In summary, while the Proposed Complaint is lengthy and at times hard to follow, it boils down to allegations that: (a) Seery filed (or caused to be filed) deflated, pessimistic, misleading projections regarding the value of the Debtor’s estate in connection with the Plan, (b) then induced very sophisticated unsecured creditors to discount and sell their claims to the likewise very sophisticated Claims Purchasers, (c) which Claims Purchasers are allegedly friendly with Seery, and are now happily approving Seery’s allegedly excessive compensation demands post-Effective Date (resulting in less money in the pot to pay off the creditor body in full, and, thus, a diminished likelihood that HMIT will realize any recovery on its contingent Class 10 interest). HMIT argues that Seery should be required to disgorge his compensation. It appears that HMIT also seeks other damages in the form of equitable disallowance of the Claims Purchasers’ claims and disgorgement of distributions on account of those claims, the imposition of a constructive trust over all disgorged funds, and declaratory relief.

HMIT claims that, in seeking to file the Proposed Complaint, it is seeking to protect the rights and interests of the Reorganized Debtor, the Claimant Trust, and “innocent stakeholders” who were allegedly injured by Seery’s and the Claims Purchasers’ alleged conspiratorial and fraudulent scheme to line Seery’s pockets with excessive compensation for his role as Claimant Trustee. In its Motion for Leave, HMIT states that “[t]he attached Adversary Proceeding alleges claims which are substantially more than ‘colorable’ based upon plausible allegations that the Proposed Defendants, acting in concert, perpetrated a fraud, including a fraud upon innocent stakeholders, as well as breaches of fiduciary duties and knowing participation in (or aiding or abetting) breaches of fiduciary duty.”<sup>114</sup>

<sup>113</sup> The MGM-Amazon deal was ultimately consummated in March 2022 for approximately $6.1 billion, net of cash acquired, plus approximately $2.5 billion in debt that Amazon assumed and immediately repaid. Credible testimony from Seery at the June 8 Hearing revealed that Highland and entities it controlled tendered their MGM holdings in connection with the Amazon transaction (they did not sell their holdings while the MGM-Amazon deal was under discussion and/or not made public).

F. Is HMIT Really Dondero by Another Name?

The Proposed Defendants argue that HMIT’s Motion for Leave is nothing more than a continuation of the harassing and bad-faith litigation by Dondero and his related entities that the Gatekeeper Provisions were intended to prevent and, thus, this is one of multiple reasons that the Motion for Leave should be denied.

To be clear, HMIT asserts that it is controlled by Mark Patrick (“Patrick”), who has been HMIT’s administrator since August 2022. Patrick asserts that he is not influenced or controlled by Dondero, in general, and specifically not in its efforts to pursue the Proposed Claims against Seery and the Claims Purchasers. However, the testimony elicited at the June 8 Hearing—the hearing at which HMIT had the burden of showing the court that its Proposed Claims were “colorable” such that it should be allowed to pursue them through the filing of the Proposed Complaint—paints a different picture. Somewhat tellingly, HMIT chose not to call Patrick—allegedly HMIT’s only representative and control person—as a witness in support of its Motion for Leave. Rather, Dondero was HMIT’s first witness called in support of its motion, and the first

<sup>114</sup> See Motion for Leave (Bankr. Dkt. No. 3816) ¶ 3. HMIT notes, in a footnote 6, that “Neither this Motion nor the proposed Adversary Complaint seeks to challenge the Court’s Orders or the Plan. In addition, neither this Motion nor the proposed Adversary Complaint seeks to redistribute the assets of the Claimant Trust in a manner that would adversely impact innocent creditors. Rather, the proposed Adversary Proceeding seeks to benefit all innocent stakeholders while working within the terms and provisions of the Plan, as well as the Claimant Trust Agreement.”

questions on direct from HMIT's counsel were aimed at establishing that Dondero was not behind the filing of the Motion for Leave and the pursuit of the Proposed Claims.<sup>115</sup> Dondero testified that he did not (i) "have any current official position" with HMIT, (ii) "attempt to exercise [control] on the business affairs of [HMIT]," (iii) "have any official legal relationship with [HMIT] where [he] can attempt to exercise either direct or indirect control over [HMIT]," or (iv) "participate in the decision of whether or not to file the proceedings that are currently pending before Judge Jernigan."<sup>116</sup> After HMIT rested, Highland and the Claimant Trust called Patrick as a witness, and he testified that he was the administrator of HMIT, that HMIT does not have any employees, operations, or revenues, and, when asked if HMIT owned any assets, Patrick testified, with not a great deal of certainty, that "it's my understanding it has a contingent beneficiary interest in the Claimants [sic] Trust" and that is the only asset HMIT has.<sup>117</sup> Patrick testified that HMIT did not owe any money to Dondero personally, but acknowledged that in 2015, HMIT had issued a secured promissory note in favor of Dondero's family trust, Dugaboy, in the amount of approximately $62.6 million (the "Dugaboy Note") in exchange for Dugaboy transferring a portion of its limited partner interests in Highland to HMIT; the Dugaboy Note was secured in part by the Highland limited partnership interests purchased from Dugaboy.<sup>118</sup> Patrick admitted that, if HMIT's Class 10 interest has no value, HMIT would have no ability to pay the Dugaboy Note.<sup>119</sup> He further testified that neither he nor any representative of HMIT had ever spoken with any representative of Farallon or Stonehill, that he had no personal knowledge about any quid pro quo, the amount of due diligence Farallon or Stonehill conducted prior to buying their claims, or the terms of

On cross-examination by HMIT’s counsel, Patrick further testified that HMIT has not filed any litigation, as plaintiff, other than its efforts to be a plaintiff in the Motion for Leave and its action as a petitioner in the Texas Rule 202 proceeding filed earlier in 2023 in the Texas state court.<sup>122</sup> HMIT’s counsel argued that the point of this questioning was that “they’re just trying to draw Dondero into this and – this vexatious litigant argument, and we’re just developing the fact that obviously Hunter Mountain has only filed – attempting to file this action and a Rule 202 proceeding.<sup>123</sup> But, Dondero and HMIT’s counsel referred during the June 8 Hearing to the First Rule 202 Petition (where Dondero was the petitioner) and the Second Rule 202 Petition (where HMIT was the petitioner) as “our” Rule 202 petitions, and also to the numerous attempts at getting the discovery (that Dondero had warned Linn was coming) in the collective. For example, in objecting to the admission of Highland’s Exhibit 10 – the Texas state court order denying and dismissing the Second Rule 202 Petition – on the basis of relevance, HMIT’s counsel referred to the order as “an order denying our second” Rule 202 Petition.<sup>124</sup> And, Dondero testified that his warning to Linn in May 2021 that “discovery was coming” was “my response to I knew they had traded on material nonpublic information” and that “I thought it would be a lot easier to get

Dondero’s use of an entity over which he exerts influence and control to pursue his own agenda in the bankruptcy case is not new. Rather, this has been part of Dondero’s modus operandi since the “nasty breakup” between Dondero and Highland that culminated with Dondero’s ouster in October 2020, whereby Dondero, after not getting his way in the bankruptcy court, continued to lob objections and create obstacles to Highland’s implementation of the Plan through entities he owns or controls. As noted above, the Fifth Circuit specifically upheld this court’s finding in the Confirmation Order that Dondero owned or controlled the various entities that had objected to confirmation of the Plan and appealed the Confirmation Order, where the Dondero-related appellants made similar protestations that they are not owned or controlled by Dondero and asked the Fifth Circuit to vacate this court’s factual finding because, among other reasons, “[a]ccording to the Funds, the characterization is unfair, as they are not litigious like Dondero and are completely independent from him.”<sup>126</sup> Based on the totality of the evidence in this proceeding, the court finds that, contrary to the protestations of HMIT’s counsel and Patrick otherwise, Dondero is the driving force behind HMIT’s Motion for Leave and the Proposed Complaint. The Motion for Leave is just one more attempt by Dondero to press his conspiracy theory that he has pressed for over two years now, unsuccessfully, in Texas state court through Rule 202 proceedings, with the Texas State Securities Board, and with the United States Trustee’s office.

G. Opposition to Motion for Leave: Arguing No Standing and No “Colorable” Claims

Highland, the Claimant Trust, and Seery (together, the “Highland Parties”) filed a joint opposition (“Joint Opposition”) to HMIT’s Motion for Leave on May 11, 2023.<sup>127</sup> The Claims Purchasers filed a separate objection (“Claims Purchasers’ Objection”) to the Motion for Leave on May 11, 2023, as well.<sup>128</sup> In the Joint Opposition, the Highland Parties urge the court to deny HMIT leave to pursue the Proposed Claims because, as a threshold matter, HMIT does not have standing to bring them, directly or derivatively against the Proposed Defendants. They argue, in the alternative, that the Motion for Leave should be denied even if HMIT had standing to pursue the Proposed Claims because none of the Proposed Claims are “colorable” claims as that term is used in the Gatekeeper Provision of the Plan (and Gatekeeper Orders).<sup>129</sup>

The Claims Purchasers likewise argue that HMIT lacks standing to complain about claims trading in the bankruptcy which occurred between sophisticated Claims Purchasers and sophisticated sellers (“Claims Sellers”), represented by skilled bankruptcy and transactional counsel. Moreover, they argue HMIT cannot show that it or the Reorganized Debtor or the Claimant Trust were injured by the claims trading at issue because the Purchased Claims had already been adjudicated as allowed claims in the bankruptcy case—thus, distributions under the Plan on account of the Purchased Claims remain the same, the only difference being who holds the claims. Moreover, even if HMIT could succeed in equitably subordinating the validly transferred allowed claims, HMIT would still be in the same position it is today: the holder of a

<sup>129</sup> See Joint Opposition ¶ 139 (“Because HMIT lacks standing, this Court need not reach the merits of HMIT’s proposed Adversary Complaint. contingent, speculative Class 10 interest that would only be paid after payment, in full, with interest, of all creditors under the Plan. The Claims Purchasers argue in the alternative that the Proposed Claims are not “colorable.”

Finally, the Proposed Defendants argue that the standard of review for assessing whether the Proposed Claims are “colorable” (as such term is used in the Gatekeeper Provision and Gatekeeping Orders) is a standard that is a higher than the “plausibility” standard applied to Rule 12(b)(6). They argue that HMIT should be required to meet a higher bar with respect to colorability that includes making a prima facie showing that the Proposed Claims have merit (and/or are not without foundation) which requires HMIT to do more than meet the liberal notice-pleading standards.

H. HMIT’s Reply to the Proposed Defendants’ Opposition to the Motion for Leave

In its reply brief (“Reply”), filed by HMIT on May 18, 2023,<sup>130</sup> it argues that it has constitutional standing as an “aggrieved party” to bring the Proposed Claims on behalf of itself.<sup>131</sup> HMIT also argues that it has standing under Delaware Trust law to bring a derivative action on behalf of the Claimant Trust and that it not only has standing to bring the Proposed Claims derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor under the Plan, but it is the best party to bring the claims.<sup>132</sup> Finally, HMIT maintains that the standard of review that the bankruptcy court should apply in assessing the “colorability” of the Proposed Claims is no greater than the standard of review applied to motions to dismiss under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6), which would require the bankruptcy court to look only to the “four corners” of the Proposed Complaint

<sup>132</sup> See, Reply ¶ 23 n.5, where HMIT argues “The nature of this injury, in addition to Seery’s influence over the Claimant Trust, and the lack of prior action by the Claimant Trust to pursue the claims HMIT seeks to pursue derivatively, among other things, demonstrate that HMIT is not only a proper party to assert its derivative claims – but the best party to do so.”

and “not weigh extraneous evidence,”<sup>133</sup> take all allegations as true, and view all allegations and inferences in a light most favorable to HMIT. As discussed in greater length below, HMIT argues that, under this standard, the bankruptcy court should not consider evidence in making its determination as to whether the Proposed Complaint presents “colorable” claims.

I. Litigation within the Litigation: The Pre- June 8 Hearing Skirmishes

Suffice it to say there was significant activity before the Motion for Leave actually was presented at the June 8 hearing. HMIT sought an emergency hearing on its Motion for Leave (wanting a hearing on three days’ notice). When the bankruptcy court denied an emergency hearing, HMIT unsuccessfully pursued an interlocutory appeal of the denial of an emergency hearing to the district court. HMIT then petitioned for a writ of mandamus at the Fifth Circuit regarding the emergency hearing denial, which was denied by the Fifth Circuit on April 12, 2023.

Next, there were multiple pleadings and hearings regarding what kind of hearing the bankruptcy court should or should not hold on the Motion for Leave—particularly focusing on whether or not it would be an evidentiary hearing.<sup>134</sup> The resolution of this issue turned on what standard of review the court should apply in exercising its gatekeeping function and determining the colorability of the Proposed Claims. HMIT (although it had submitted two declarations of Dondero with its original Motion for Leave and approximately 350 pages of total evidentiary support) was adamant that there should be no evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave, arguing that the standard for review should be the plausibility standard under Rule 12(b)(6)

<sup>134</sup> Highland, joined by Seery and the Claims Purchasers, had filed a motion asking the bankruptcy court to set a briefing schedule on the Motion for Leave and to schedule a status conference, indicating that Highland’s proposed timetable for same was opposed by HMIT. HMIT subsequently filed a response unopposed to a briefing schedule and status conference, but, before the status conference, HMIT filed a brief, stating it was opposed to there being any evidence at the ultimate hearing on the HMIT Motion for Leave—arguing the bankruptcy court did not need evidence to exercise its gatekeeping function and determine if HMIT has a “colorable” claim. Rather, the court need only engage in a Rule 12(b)(6)-type plausibility analysis.

motions to dismiss such that “the threshold inquiry is very, very low. Evidence is not allowed. . . . [S]imilar to a 12(b)(6) inquiry, [the court] is limited to the four corners of the principal pleading – in this case, the complaint, or now the revised complaint.”<sup>135</sup> Counsel for the Proposed Defendants argued that the standard of review for colorability here, in the specific context of the court exercising its gatekeeping function under the Plan, is more akin to the standards applied under the Supreme Court’s Barton Doctrine<sup>136</sup> pursuant to which that the bankruptcy court must apply a higher standard than the 12(b)(6) standard, including the consideration of evidence at the hearing on the motion for leave; if the standard of review presents no greater hurdle to the movant than the 12(b)(6) standard applied to every plaintiff in every case, then the gatekeeping provisions mean nothing and do nothing to protect the parties from the harassing, bad-faith litigation they were put in place to prevent.<sup>137</sup> On May 22, 2023, after receipt of post-hearing briefing on the issue, the court entered an order stating that “the court has determined that there may be mixed questions of fact and law implicated by the Motion for Leave” and “[t]herefore, the parties will be permitted to present evidence (including witness testimony) at the June 8, 2023 hearing [on the Motion to Leave] if they so choose.”

Two days later, HMIT filed an emergency motion for expedited discovery or alternatively for continuance of the June 8, 2023 hearing, seeking expedited depositions of corporate

<sup>136</sup> The Barton Doctrine was established in the 19th century Supreme Court case of Barton v. Barbour, 104 U.S. 126 (1881), and states that a party wishing to sue a court-appointed trustee or receiver must first obtain leave of the appointing court by making a prima facie case that the claim it wishes to bring is not without foundation.

<sup>137</sup> See April 24 Transcript, 36:24-37:4 (“[W]e’re exactly today where the Court had predicted in entering [the Confirmation Order], that the costs and distraction of this litigation are substantial. And if all we’re doing is replicating a 12(b)(6) hearing on a motion for leave, we’re actually not doing anything to reduce, as the Court made clear, the burdens, distractions, of litigation.”); 37:5-13 (“The Fifth Circuit likewise cited Barton in its order affirming the confirmation order. Specifically, it also explained that the provisions, these gatekeeper provisions requiring advance approval were meant to ‘screen and prevent bad-faith litigation.’ Well that – if that means only what the Plaintiff[ ] say[s] it does, then it really doesn’t do anything at all to screen. There’s no gatekeeping because their version of what that means is always policed under 12(b)(6) standards.”).

representatives of the Claims Purchasers and of Seery and production of documents pursuant to deposition notices and subpoenas duces tecum that HMIT had attached to the motion. On May 26, 2023, this court held yet another status conference. Following the status conference, the court granted in part and denied in part HMIT’s request for expedited discovery by ordering only Seery and Dondero to be made available for depositions prior to the June 8 Hearing. The court reached what seemed like appropriate middle ground by allowing the deposition of Seery and allowing the other parties to depose Dondero (for whom sworn declarations had been submitted), but the court was not going to allow any more discovery (i.e., of the Claims Purchasers) at so late an hour. The court was aware that HMIT and Dondero had been seeking discovery relating to the very claims trades that are the subject of the Revised Proposed Complaint from the Claims Purchasers in Texas state court “Rule 202” proceedings for approximately two years, where their attempts were rebuffed.

Approximately 60 hours before the June 8 Hearing, HMIT filed its Witness and Exhibit List disclosing for the first time two potential expert witnesses (along with biographical information and a disclosure regarding the subject matter of their likely testimony). Highland, the Claimant Trust, and Seery filed a joint motion to exclude the expert testimony and documents (“Motion to Exclude”), which the court ultimately granted in a separate order.

During the full-day June 8 Hearing on the Motion to Leave, the court admitted over 50 HMIT exhibits and over 30 Highland/Claimant Trust exhibits. The court heard testimony from HMIT’s witnesses Dondero and Seery (as an adverse witness) and from the Highland Parties’ witness Mark Patrick, the administrator of HMIT since August 2022 (as an adverse witness). The bankruptcy court allowed HMIT to make a running objection to all evidence—as it continued to argue that evidence was not appropriate.

III. LEGAL ANALYSIS

In determining whether HMIT should be granted leave, pursuant to the Gatekeeper Provision of the Plan and the court's prior Gatekeeper Orders, to pursue the Proposed Claims, the court must address the issue of whether HMIT would have standing to bring the Proposed Claims in the first instance. If so, the next question is whether the Proposed Claims are "colorable." But prior to getting into the weeds on standing and "colorability," some general discussion regarding the topic of claims trading in the bankruptcy world seems appropriate, given that HMIT's Proposed Claims are based, in large part, on allegations of improper claims trading.

A. Claims Trading in the Context of Bankruptcy Cases—Can It Be Tortious or Otherwise Actionable?

As noted, at the crux of HMIT's desired lawsuit is what this court will refer to as "claims trading activity" that occurred shortly after the Plan was confirmed, but before the Plan went effective. HMIT believes that the claims trading activity gave rise to various torts: breach of fiduciary duty on the part of Seery; knowing participation in breach of fiduciary duty by the other Proposed Defendants; and conspiracy by all Defendants. HMIT also believes that the following remedies should be imposed: equitable disallowance of the Purchased Claims; disgorgement of the alleged profits the Claims Purchasers made on their purchases; and disgorgement of all Seery's compensation received since the beginning of his "collusion" with the other Defendants. Without a doubt, the Motion for Leave and Proposed Complaint revolve almost entirely around the claims trading activity.

This begs the question: When (or under what circumstances) might claims trading activity during a bankruptcy case give rise to a cause of action that either the bankruptcy estate or an economic stakeholder in the case might have standing to bring? Here, the claims trading wasn't even "during a bankruptcy case" really—it was post-confirmation and pre-effective date, and it happened to be: (a) after mediation of the claims, (b) after Rule 9019 settlement motions, (c) after objections by Dondero and certain of his family trusts were lodged, (d) after evidentiary hearings, and (e) after orders were ultimately entered allowing the claims (and in most cases, such orders were appealed). The further crux of HMIT's desired lawsuit is that Seery allegedly "wrongfully facilitated and promoted the sale of large unsecured creditor claims to his close business allies and friends" by sharing material non-public information to them regarding the potential value of the claims (i.e., the potential value of the bankruptcy estate), and this is what made the claims trading activity particularly pernicious. The alleged sharing of MNPI allegedly caused the Claims Purchasers to purchase their claims without doing any due diligence and with knowledge that the claims would be worth much more than the Plan's "pessimistic" projections might have suggested, and also allowed Seery to plant friendly allies into the creditor constituency (and on the post-confirmation CTOB) that would "rubber stamp" his generous compensation. This is all referred to as "not arm's-length" and "collusive." Notably, the MNPI mostly pertained to a likely future acquisition of MGM by Amazon (which transaction, indeed, occurred in 2022, after being publicly announced in Spring of 2021); as noted earlier, Highland owned, directly and indirectly, common stock in MGM. Also notably, there had been rumors and media attention regarding a potential sale of MGM for many months.<sup>138</sup> In summary, to be clear, HMIT's desired lawsuit is laced with a theme of "insider trading"—although this isn't a situation of securities trading per se (i.e., the unsecured Purchased Claims were not securities), and, as noted earlier, the Texas State Securities Board has not seen fit to investigate the claims trading activity.

So, preliminarily, is claims trading in bankruptcy sinister per se? The answer is no.

The activity of investing in distressed debt (which frequently occurs during a bankruptcy case—sometimes referred to as “claims trading”) is ubiquitous and, indeed, has been so for a very long time. As noted by one scholar:

The creation of a market in bankruptcy claims is the single most important development in the bankruptcy world since the Bankruptcy Code’s enactment in 1978. [Citations omitted.] Claims trading has revolutionized bankruptcy by making it a much more market-driven process. [Citations omitted.] . . . The development of a robust market for all types of claims against debtors has changed the cast of characters involved in bankruptcies. In addition to long-standing relational creditors, like trade creditors or a single senior secured bank or bank group, bankruptcy cases now involve professional distressed debt investors, whose interests and behavior are often quite different than traditional relational counterparty creditors.

Adam J. Levitin, Bankruptcy Markets: Making Sense of Claims Trading, 4 BROOK. J. CORP. FIN. & COM. L. 64, 65 (2010) (hereinafter “Bankruptcy Markets”).<sup>139</sup>

As a pure policy matter, some practitioners have bemoaned this claims trading phenomenon, suggesting that “distressed debt traders may sacrifice the long-term viability of a debtor for the ability to realize substantial and quick returns on their investments.”<sup>140</sup> Others suggest that claims trading in bankruptcy is beneficial, in that it allows creditors of a debtor an early exit from a potentially long bankruptcy case, enabling them to save expense and administrative hassles, realize immediate liquidity on their claims (albeit discounted), and may

So, what are the “rules of the road” here? What does the Bankruptcy Code dictate regarding claims trading? The answer is nothing. The Bankruptcy Code itself has no provisions whatsoever regarding claims trading. The only thing resembling any regulation of claims trading during a bankruptcy case is found at Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 3001(e)—the current version of which went into effect in 1991—and it imposes extremely light regulation—if it could even be called that. This rule requires, in pertinent part (at subsection (2)), that “[i]f a claim other than one based on a publicly traded note, bond, or debenture” is traded during the case after a proof of claim is filed, notice/evidence of that trade must be filed with the bankruptcy clerk by the transferee. The transferor shall then be notified and given 21 days to object. If there is an objection, the bankruptcy court will hold a hearing regarding whether a transfer, in fact, took place. If there is no objection, nothing further needs to happen, and the transferee will be considered substituted for the transferor.

There are several things noteworthy about Rule 3001(e)(2). First, the only party given the opportunity to object is the transferor of the claim (presumably, in the situation of a dispute regarding whether there was truly an agreement regarding the transfer of the claim). Second, there is no need for a bankruptcy court order approving the transfer (except in the event of an objection by the alleged transferor). Third, the economic consideration paid need not be disclosed to the court or anyone. Fourth, there is no requirement or definition of timeliness. Finally, it explicitly does not apply with regard to publicly traded debt. This, alone, means that many claims trades are not even reported in a bankruptcy case. But it is not just publicly traded debt that will not be reflected with a Rule 3001(e) filing. For example, bank debt, in modern times, is often syndicated (i.e., fragmented into many beneficial holders of portions of the debt) and only the administrative agent for the syndicate (or the “lead bank”) will file a proof of claim in the bankruptcy—thus, as the syndicated interests (participations) change hands, and they frequently do, there typically will not be a Rule 3001(e) notice filed.<sup>143</sup> To be clear here, this syndication-of-bank-debt fact, along with the fact that there are financial products whereby bank debt might be carved up into economic interests separate and apart from legal title to the loan, means there are many situations in which trading of claims during a bankruptcy case is not necessarily transparent or, for that matter, policed by the bankruptcy court. This is the world of modern bankruptcy. Most of the claims trading that gets reported through a Rule 3001(e) notice is the trading of small vendor claims. And this is all regarded as private sale transactions for the most part.<sup>144</sup>

Suffice it to say that there is not a wealth of case law dealing with claims trading in a bankruptcy context. Perhaps this is not surprising, since it is not prohibited and is mostly a matter of private contract between buyer and seller. The case law that does exist seems to arise in situations of perceived bad faith of a purchaser—for example, when there was an attempt to control voting and/or ultimate control of the debtor through the plan process (not always problematic, but there are outlier cases where this was found to cross a line and result in consequences such as disallowing votes on a plan or even equitable subordination of a claim).<sup>145</sup> Another type of case that has generated case law is where the purchaser of claims occupied a fiduciary status with the debtor.<sup>146</sup> Still another type of case that has generated case law is where there is an attempt to cleanse claims that might have risks because of a seller's malfeasance, by trading the claim to a new claim holder.<sup>147</sup>

<sup>144</sup> Note that Bankruptcy Rule 3001(e) was very different before 1991. Between 1983-1991, the rule required that parties transferring claims inform the court that a transfer of claims was taking place and also disclose the consideration paid for the transferred claims. A hearing would take place prior to the execution of a trade. Judicial involvement was required and resulted in judicial scrutiny of transactions—something that simply does not exist today.

The following is a potpourri of the more notable cases that have addressed claims trading in different contexts. Most of them imposed no adverse consequences on claims traders: In re Kreisler, 546 F.3d 863, 864 (7th Cir. 2008) (where a corporation named Garlin, that was owned by the individual chapter 7 debtors' sister and close friend, purchased a $900,000 bank claim for $16,500, and there was no disclosure of Garlin's connections to debtors and no Rule 3001(e)(2) notice was filed, the Seventh Circuit reversed the bankruptcy court's invocation of the doctrine of equitable subordination to the claim, stating: "Equitable subordination is generally appropriate only if a creditor is guilty of misconduct that causes injury to the interests of other creditors;" the Seventh Circuit further stated that it could "put to one side whether the court's finding of inequitable conduct was correct" because even if there was misconduct, it did not harm the other creditors, who were in the same position whether the original creditor or Garlin happened to own the claim; the Seventh Circuit did note that Garlin's decision to purchase the original bank

Suffice it to say that the courts have, more often than not, been unwilling to impose legal consequences, for an actor's involvement with claims trading. At most, in outlier-type situations during a case, courts have taken steps to disallow claims for voting purposes or to subordinate claims to other unsecured creditors for distribution purposes.<sup>148</sup> But the case at bar does not present facts that are typical of any of the situations in reported cases.

For one thing, unlike in the reported cases this court has located, there seems to have been complete symmetry of sophistication among the claim sellers and claim purchasers here—and complete symmetry with HMIT for that matter. All persons involved are highly sophisticated financial institutions, hedge funds, or private equity funds. No one was a “mom-and-pop” type business or vendor that might be vulnerable to chicanery. The claims ranged from being worth $10's of millions of dollars to $100's of millions of dollars in face value. And, of course, the sellers/transferrers of the claims have never shown up, subsequent to the claims trading

<sup>148</sup> Note that, while some cases suggest that outright disallowance of an unsecured claim, in the case of “inequitable conduct” might be permitted (not merely equitable subordination to unsecured creditors)—usually citing to Pepper v. Litton, 308 U.S. 295 (1939)—the Fifth Circuit has suggested otherwise. In re Mobile Steel Co., Inc., 563 F.2d 692, 699-700 (5th Cir. 1977) (cleaned up) (noting that “equitable considerations can justify only the subordination of claims, not their disallowance” and also noting that “three conditions must be satisfied before exercise of the power of equitable subordination is appropriate[:]: (i) The claimant must have engaged in some type of inequitable conduct[:]; (ii) The misconduct must have resulted in injury to the creditors of the bankrupt or conferred an unfair advantage on the claimant[:]; and] (iii) Equitable subordination of the claim must not be inconsistent with the provisions of the Bankruptcy Act.” In Mobile Steel, the Fifth Circuit held that the bankruptcy judge exceeded the bounds of his equitable jurisdiction by disallowing a group of claims and also reversed the subordination of certain claims, on the grounds that the bankruptcy court had made clearly erroneous findings regarding alleged inequitable conduct and other necessary facts. Contrast In re Lothian Oil Inc., 650 F.3d 539 (5th Cir. 2011) (involving the question of whether a bankruptcy court may recharacterize a claim as equity rather than debt; the court held yes, but it has nothing to do with inequitable conduct per se; rather section 502(b)'s language that a claim should be allowed unless it is “unenforceable against the debtor and property of the debtor, under any agreement or applicable law....” is the relevant authority; unlike equitable subordination, recharacterization is about looking at the true substance of a transaction not the conduct of a party (if it looks like a duck and quacks like a duck, it's a duck—i.e., equity); the court indicated that section 105 is not a basis to recharacterize debt as equity; it's a matter of looking at state law to determine if there is any basis and looking at the nature of the underlying transaction—as either a lending arrangement or equity infusion.

transactions, to complain about anything. Everyone involved here is, essentially, a behemoth and there is literally no sign of innocent creditors getting harmed. Second, the case at bar is unique in that the claims traded here had all been allowed after objections, mediation, and Rule 9019 settlements during the bankruptcy case. Thus, the amounts that would be paid on them were “locked in,” so to speak. There was no risk to a hypothetical claims-purchaser of disallowance, offset, or any “claw-back” litigation (or—one might have reasonably assumed—any type of litigation). Third, the terms for distributions on unsecured claims had been established in a confirmed plan (although the claims were purchased before the effective date of the Plan). Thus, there was a degree of certainty regarding return on investment for the Claims Purchasers here that was much higher than if the claims had been purchased early, during, or mid-way through the case.<sup>149</sup> This was post-confirmation, pre-effective date claims purchasing. Interestingly, all three of these facts might suggest that little due diligence would be undertaken by any hypothetical purchaser. The rules of the road had been set. The court makes this observation because HMIT has suggested there is something highly suspicious about the fact that Farallon allegedly told Dondero that it did no due diligence before purchasing its claims (leading him to conclude that the Claims Purchasers must have purchased their claims based on receiving MNPI from Seery). Not only has there been no colorable evidence suggesting that insider information was shared, but the lack of due diligence in this context does not reasonably seem suspicious. The claims purchases

Some claims purchasers buy before the bankruptcy petition is filed, some at the beginning of the case, and some towards the end. For example, there are investors who look to purchase at low prices either when a business is failing or early in the bankruptcy and ride through the case until payouts are fairly certain. [Citations omitted.] These investors might be hoping to buy at 30 cents on the dollar and get a payout at 70 cents on the dollar. Perhaps if they waited another six months, the payout would be 74 cents on the dollar, but the additional 4 cents on the dollar for six months might not be a worthwhile return for the time value of the investment. Other investors might not want to assume the risk that exists in the early days of a case when the fate of the debtor is much less certain, but they would gladly purchase at 70 cents on the dollar at the end of the case to get a payout of 74 cents on the dollar six months later.

were almost like passive investments, at this point—there was no risk of a claim objection and there was a confirmed plan, with a lengthy disclosure statement that described not only plan payment terms and projections, but essentially anything that any investor might want to know.

To reiterate, here, HMIT seeks leave to assert the following causes of action:

- I. Breach of Fiduciary Duties (Seery)
- II. Knowing Participation in Breach of Fiduciary Duties (Claims Purchasers)
- III. Conspiracy (all Proposed Defendants)
- IV. Equitable Disallowance (Claims Purchasers)
- V. Unjust Enrichment and Constructive Trust (all Proposed Defendants)
- VI. Declaratory Judgment (all Proposed Defendants)

The court struggles to fathom how any of these proposed causes of action or remedies can be applied in the context of: (a) post-confirmation claims trading; (b) where the claims have all been litigated and allowed.

In reflecting on the case law and various Bankruptcy Code provisions, the court can fathom the following hypotheticals in which claims trading during a bankruptcy case might be somehow actionable:

Hypothetical #1: The most obvious situation would be if a purchaser of a claim files a Rule 3001(e) Notice, and the seller/transferor then files an objection thereto. There would then be a contested hearing between purchaser and seller regarding the validity of the transfer with the bankruptcy court issuing an appropriate order after the hearing on the objection. As noted, there was no objection to the Rule 3001(e) notices here.

Hypothetical #2: Alternatively, there could be a breach of contract suit between purchaser and seller if one thinks the other breached the purchase-sale agreement somehow. Perhaps torts might also be alleged in such litigation. As noted, there is no dispute between purchasers and sellers here.

Hypothetical #3: If there is believed to be fraud in connection with a plan, a party in interest might, pursuant to section 1144 of the Bankruptcy Code, move for revocation of the plan “at any time before 180 days after the date of entry of the order for confirmation” and the court “may revoke such order if and only if such order was procured by fraud.” As noted, here HMIT has suggested that the “pessimistic” plan projections may have been fraudulent or misrepresentations somehow. The time elapsed long ago to seek revocation of the Plan.

Hypothetical #4: As discussed above, in rare situations (bad faith), during a Chapter 11 case, before a plan is confirmed, a claims purchaser’s claim might not be allowed for voting purposes. See Sections 1126(e) of the Bankruptcy Code (“the court may designate any entity whose acceptance or rejection of such plan was not in good faith”). Obviously, in this case, this is not applicable—the claims were purchased post-confirmation.

Hypothetical #5: As discussed above, in rare situations (inequitable conduct), a court might equitably subordinate claims to other claims. See Section 510(c) of the Bankruptcy Code. But here, HMIT is seeking either: (a) equitable subordination of the claims of the Claims Purchaser to HMIT’s Class 10 former equity interest (in contravention of the explicit terms of section 510(c)) or, (b) equitable disallowance of the claims of the Claims Purchasers (in contravention of Mobile Steel).

Hypothetical #6: Bankruptcy Code section 502(b)(1) and the Fifth Circuit’s Lothian Oil case may permit “recharacterization” of a claim from debt to equity in certain circumstances, but not in circumstances like the ones in this case. Here, the claims have already been adjudicated and allowed (some after mediation, and all after Rule 9019 settlement orders). The only way to reconsider a claim in a bankruptcy case that has already been allowed is through Bankruptcy Code section 502(j) (“A claim that has been allowed or disallowed may be reconsidered for cause. . . according to the equities of the case.”). The problem here is that Bankruptcy Rule 9024 provides that a motion for “reconsideration of an order allowing or disallowing a claim against the estate entered without a contest is not subject to the one year limitation prescribed in Rule 60(c)” (emphasis added). Here there was most definitely “a contest” with regard to all of these purchased claims. Thus, it would appear that any effort to have a court reconsider these claims pursuant to section 502(j) is untimely—as it has been well beyond a year since they were allowed.

Hypothetical #7: If a party believes “insider trading” occurred there are governmental agencies that investigate and police that. Here, the purchased claims (which were not based on bonds or certificated equity interests) would not be securities so as to fall under the SEC’s purview. Moreover, there was evidence that HMIT or Dondero-Related entities requested that the Texas State Securities Board investigate the claims trading and the board did not find a basis to pursue anyone for wrongdoing.

Hypothetical #8: The United States Trustee can investigate wrongdoing by a debtor or unsecured creditors committee. While the United States Trustee would naturally have concerns about members of an unsecured creditors committee (or an officer of a debtor-in-possession) adhering to fiduciary duties and not putting their own interests above those of the estate, here, there are a couple of points that seem noteworthy. One, the claims trading activity was post-confirmation so—while certain of the claim-sellers may have still been on the unsecured creditors committee, as the effective date of the plan had not yet occurred—the circumstances are very different than if this had all happened during the early, contentious stages of the case. It seems inconceivable that there was somehow a disparity of information that might be troubling—the Plan had been confirmed and it was available for the world to see. The whole notion of “insider information” (just after confirmation here) feels a bit off-point. Bankruptcy practitioners and judges sometimes call bankruptcy a fishbowl or use the “open kimono” metaphor for good reason. It is generally a very open process. And information-sharing on the part of a debtor-in-possession or unsecured creditors committee is intended to be robust. See, e.g., Bankruptcy Code sections 521 and 1102(b)(3). In a way, HMIT here seems to be complaining about this very situation that the Code and Rules have designed.

In summary, claims trading is a highly unregulated activity in the bankruptcy world.

HMIT is attempting to pursue causes of action here that, to this court’s knowledge, have never been allowed in a context like this.

B. Back to Standing—Would HMIT Have Standing to Bring the Proposed Claims?

The Proposed Defendants argue that HMIT lacks standing to bring the Proposed Claims, either: (a) derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trust, or (b) directly on behalf of itself. Thus, they argue that this is one reason that the Motion for Leave should be denied.

In making their specific standing arguments, the parties analyze things slightly differently:

The Claims Purchasers focus primarily on HMIT’s lack of constitutional standing but also argue that HMIT does not have prudential standing under Delaware trust law to bring the Proposed Claims either individually or derivatively. Why do they mention Delaware trust law? Because the Claimant Trust is a Delaware statutory trust governed by the Delaware Statutory Trust Act, 12 Del. C. §§ 3801–29.<sup>150</sup>

The Highland Parties’ standing arguments focus almost entirely on HMIT’s lack of prudential standing under Delaware trust law to bring the Proposed Claims.

HMIT argues that the Proposed Defendants “play fast and loose with standing arguments” and that HMIT has constitutional standing as a “party aggrieved”<sup>151</sup> to bring the Proposed Claims on behalf of itself. HMIT also argues that it has standing under Delaware trust law to bring a derivative action on behalf of the Claimant Trust, and that it not only has standing to bring the Proposed Claims derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor under the Plan, but it is the best party to do so.

1. The Different Types of Standing: Constitutional Versus Prudential

The parties are addressing two concepts of standing that can sometimes be confused and misapplied by both attorneys and judges: constitutional Article III standing, which implicates federal court subject matter jurisdiction,<sup>152</sup> and the narrower standing concept of prudential standing, which does not implicate subject matter jurisdiction but nevertheless might prevent a party from having capacity to sue, pursuant to limitations set by courts, statutes or other law.

Article III constitutional standing works as follows: a plaintiff, as the party invoking federal jurisdiction, bears the burden of establishing three elements: (1) that he or she suffered an injury in fact that is concrete, particularized, and actual or imminent—not conjectural or hypothetical, (2) that there is a causal connection between the injury and the conduct complained of, and (3) it must be likely, not speculative, that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision.<sup>153</sup> “If the plaintiff does not claim to have suffered an injury that the defendant caused and the court can remedy, there is no case or controversy for the federal court to resolve.”<sup>154</sup> These elements ensure that a plaintiff has “such a personal stake in the outcome of the controversy” as to warrant his invocation of federal-court jurisdiction and to justify exercise of the court’s remedial powers on his behalf.”<sup>155</sup>

<sup>152</sup> Article III, Section 2 of the U.S. Constitution gives federal courts jurisdiction over enumerated cases and controversies.

<sup>153</sup> See Thole v. U.S. Bank, N.A., 140 S.Ct. 1615, 1618 (2020)(citing the Supreme Court’s seminal case on the tripartite test for Article III constitutional standing, Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560-61 (1992), where the Supreme Court stated that “the irreducible constitutional minimum of standing contains [the] three elements”); see also Spokeo, 578 U.S. at 338; Abraugh v. Altimus, 26 F.4th 298, 302 (5th Cir. 2022) (citing id.).

Apart from this minimal constitutional mandate, courts and statutes have set other limits on the class of persons who may seek judicial remedies—and this is the concept of prudential standing. In its recent opinion in Abraugh v. Altimus,<sup>156</sup> the Fifth Circuit set forth a detailed analysis of the two types of “standing,” noting that the term “standing” is often “misused” in our legal system, which has led to confusion for both attorneys and judges.<sup>157</sup> The constitutional standing that is necessary for a court to exercise subject matter jurisdiction is broader than prudential standing and is only the first hurdle a party must clear before pursuing a claim in federal court.

The Fifth Circuit explained that in addition to Article III constitutional standing, “courts have occasionally articulated other ‘standing’ requirements that plaintiffs must satisfy under certain conditions, beyond those imposed by Article III,”<sup>158</sup> such as the “standing” requirement that might be imposed by a statute or by jurisprudence. The Abraugh case was a perfect example of the latter.

Abraugh involved the civil rights statutes that provide, among other things, that “a party must have standing under the state wrongful death or survival statutes to bring [a § 1983 cause of action]” and noted that these statutes impose additional “standing” requirements that are a matter of prudential standing, not constitutional standing.<sup>159</sup> In Abraugh, the Fifth Circuit reversed and remanded a district court’s dismissal of a § 1983 civil rights cause of action—noting that the district court had stated that it was dismissing based on a “lack of subject matter jurisdiction” because the plaintiff in that action lacked standing.<sup>160</sup> The plaintiff was the mother of a prisoner who died by suicide while in custody who brought a § 1983 action against Louisiana correctional officers and officials. After finding that the plaintiff/mother lacked standing under Louisiana’s wrongful death and survival statutes (because there had been a surviving child and wife of the prisoner who were the proper parties with capacity to sue), the district court held that it was dismissing for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. The Fifth Circuit pointed out that the plaintiff/mother may have lacked standing under Louisiana’s wrongful death and survival statutes to bring the claim under § 1983, but that type of standing was matter of prudential standing, and the plaintiff/mother actually did have Article III constitutional standing (“a constitutionally cognizable interest in the life of her son”).<sup>161</sup> Thus, the district court’s error was not in finding that the plaintiff/mother lacked prudential standing but in improperly conflating the two standing concepts when it held that it had lacked subject matter jurisdiction to consider any of the plaintiff’s/mother’s amended complaints.<sup>162</sup> The Fifth Circuit noted specifically that<sup>163</sup>

prudential standing does not present a jurisdictional question, but “a merits question: who, according to the governing substantive law, is entitled to enforce the right?” As the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure make clear, “an action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest.” FED. R. CIV. P. 17(a)(1). And a violation of this rule is a failure of “prudential” standing. “Not one of our precedents holds that the inquiry is jurisdictional.” It goes only to the validity of the cause of action. And “the absence of a valid . . . cause of action does not implicate subject-matter jurisdiction.”

Somewhat relevant to this prudential standing discussion is the fact that, in this bankruptcy case, there have been dozens of appeals of bankruptcy court orders by Dondero and Dondero-related entities. In connection therewith, both the district court and the Fifth Circuit, in evaluating the appellate standing of the appellants, have taken pains to distinguish between the concepts of:

<sup>162</sup> Id. at 301, 303-304. The Fifth Circuit opined that “the district court did not err in describing [the mother’s] inability to sue under Louisiana law as a defect of ‘standing[, b]ut it is a defect of prudential standing, not Article III standing” thus technically not implicating the federal court’s subject matter jurisdiction. Id. at 303.

(a) traditional, constitutional standing, and (b) a type of prudential standing known as the “person aggrieved” test, which is applied in the Fifth Circuit in determining whether a party has standing to appeal a bankruptcy court order—which it describes as a narrower and “more exacting” standard than constitutional standing. As explained in a Fifth Circuit opinion addressing the standing of a Dondero-related entity called NexPoint to appeal bankruptcy court orders allowing professional fees, the “person aggrieved” standard that is typically applied to ascertain bankruptcy appellate standing originated in a statute in the Bankruptcy Act. The Fifth Circuit continued to apply it after Congress removed the provision when it enacted the Bankruptcy Code in 1978.<sup>164</sup> Because it is narrower and “more exacting” than the test for Article III constitutional standing, it involves application of prudential standing considerations.<sup>165</sup> The Fifth Circuit describes the “person aggrieved” test for bankruptcy appellant standing as requiring that an appellant show that it was “directly and adversely affected pecuniarily by the order of the bankruptcy court,” requiring “a higher causal nexus between act and injury than traditional standing . . . that best deals with the unique posture of bankruptcy actions.”<sup>166</sup> In affirming the district court’s dismissal of NexPoint’s appeal of the bankruptcy court’s fee orders, due to NexPoint’s lack of prudential standing under the “person aggrieved” test, the court rejected NexPoint’s argument that it had standing to appeal

because “it meets traditional Article III standing requirements [and that the more exacting] prudential standing considerations such as the ‘person aggrieved’ standard” did not survive the Supreme Court’s 2014 Lexmark<sup>167</sup> opinion,<sup>168</sup> which addressed standing issues in the context of false advertising claims under the Lanham Act and reminded that courts may not “limit a cause of action that Congress has created merely because ‘prudence’ dictates.”<sup>169</sup> The Fifth Circuit held that the Supreme Court’s reminder in Lexmark did not nullify the “person aggrieved” test for prudential standing in bankruptcy appeals, citing its own decision in Superior MRI Services Inc. v. Alliance Healthcare Services, Inc.<sup>170</sup> (rendered a year after Lexmark was decided), in which it held that Lexmark applied only to the circumstances of that case, “rather than broadly modifying—or undermining—all prudential standing concerns, such as the one animating the ‘person aggrieved’ standard in bankruptcy appeals.”<sup>171</sup>

Similarly, in yet another appeal in this bankruptcy case involving three Dondero-related entities as appellants (NexPoint, Dugaboy, and HCMFA)—this one an appeal of a bankruptcy court order authorizing the creation of an indemnity subtrust and entry into an indemnity trust agreement—the district court noted the parties’ confusion about the standing issue, as exemplified in the parties’ reference to constitutional standing when they were actually arguing that they had prudential standing under the “person aggrieved” test: “Although the parties frame this issue as one of constitutional standing . . . they cite case law and present arguments about the prudential standing requirement embodied in the ‘person aggrieved’ test.”<sup>172</sup> The district court noted that it had an “independent obligation to consider constitutional standing before reaching its prudential aspects.”<sup>173</sup> The district court dismissed the appeal as to Dugaboy and HCMFA for lack of standing but, upon concluding that NexPoint did have standing, dismissed the appeal as to it on the merits. The Fifth Circuit affirmed.<sup>174</sup> Interestingly, the court noted that, while the parties did not contest the district court’s determination that NexPoint had standing to pursue the appeal, it “may consider prudential standing issues sua sponte.”<sup>175</sup> In doing so, the Fifth Circuit recognized the distinction between constitutional standing and the prudential “person aggrieved” test applied to bankruptcy appeals, which “is, of necessity, quite limited” and “an even more exacting standard than traditional constitutional standing,” as it requires an appellant to show that it is “directly, adversely, and financially impacted by a bankruptcy order.”<sup>176</sup>

In summary, in analyzing whether HMIT would have standing to bring the Proposed Claims, this court must first determine whether HMIT would have constitutional standing under Article III (which is a subject matter jurisdiction hurdle) and, assuming it does, then additionally address whether HMIT would also have prudential standing (i.e., capacity to sue) pursuant to any applicable statutes (e.g., Delaware statutes), jurisprudence, or other substantive law that might limit who may sue. Notwithstanding HMIT’s argument that it has standing under the “person aggrieved” test<sup>177</sup>—which, as discussed above, is a matter of prudential standing—this is applied only in the context of bankruptcy appellate matters.<sup>178</sup> As noted in its most recent opinion discussing standing in an appeal from the Highland bankruptcy case, the Fifth Circuit reiterated that the “person aggrieved” test is a test for bankruptcy appellate standing, which is narrower than a party in interest’s right to be heard in bankruptcy cases in general.<sup>179</sup> The court rejected an argument that Bankruptcy Code § 1109, which provides that “[a] party in interest . . . may raise and may appear and be heard on any issue in a case under this chapter” confers appellate standing, noting that “one’s standing to appear and be heard before the bankruptcy court [is] a concept distinct from standing to appeal the merits of a decision” and that the “person aggrieved” test for bankruptcy appellate standing is narrower than the test for determining one’s standing to appear and be heard in a bankruptcy proceeding.<sup>180</sup>

Thus, the court will now analyze whether HMIT would, at a minimum, have constitutional standing to bring the Proposed Claims.

2. HMIT Would Lack Article III Constitutional Standing to Bring the Proposed Claims.

As noted above, the Supreme Court and the Fifth Circuit have made clear that constitutional standing is necessary for a court to exercise subject matter jurisdiction. It is only the first hurdle a party must clear before pursuing a claim in federal court. HMIT, as plaintiff, would bear the

<sup>177</sup> HMIT insists that it has constitutional standing to bring claims on its individual behalf “as an aggrieved party.” See Reply, ¶ 7.

<sup>178</sup> HMIT’s argument in this matter that it has constitutional standing because it is a “party aggrieved” incorrectly conflates the prudential bankruptcy appellate “person aggrieved” test with the broader test that is applied to constitutional standing. The court is not being critical of this mistake. As noted at supra note 149, the Fifth Circuit in Abraugh pointed out that courts and attorneys alike have created confusion by misusing the term “standing” when they equate a lack of “standing,” in all instances, with a lack of subject matter jurisdiction, even when the party is found to lack only prudential standing. Thus, HMIT is not alone in its confusion over the two different concepts of standing.

<sup>180</sup> Id. at *6 (cleaned up)(“Because Section 1109(b) expands the right to be heard [in a bankruptcy proceeding] to a wider class than those who qualify under the ‘person aggrieved’ standard, courts considering the issue have concluded that merely being a party in interest is insufficient to confer appellate standing.”)(emphasis added).

burden of establishing: (1) that it suffered an injury in fact that is concrete, particularized, and actual or imminent—not conjectural or hypothetical, (2) that there is a causal connection between the injury and the conduct complained of, and (3) it must be likely, not speculative, that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision.<sup>181</sup>

Concrete and Particularized; Actual or Imminent. As the Supreme Court made clear in the Lujan case, the injury in fact element requires a showing that the injury was “concrete and particularized” and “actual or imminent, not conjectural or hypothetical.”<sup>182</sup> The Supreme Court in the Spokeo case expounded on the “concrete and particularized” requirements of the “injury in fact” element. Particularization requires a showing that the injury “must affect the plaintiff in a personal and individual way,” but while particularization is necessary, it alone is “not sufficient,” because an injury in fact must also be “concrete.”<sup>183</sup> And, concreteness is “quite different from particularization.”<sup>184</sup> A “concrete” injury must be “real,” and “not abstract,” though it does not mean that the injury must be “tangible,” as the injury can be intangible and nevertheless be concrete.<sup>185</sup> In addition to the concreteness and particularization requirements, an injury in fact must be “actual or imminent” such that “allegations of injury that is merely conjectural or hypothetical do not suffice to confer standing.”<sup>186</sup> “Although imminence is concededly a somewhat elastic concept, it cannot be stretched beyond its purpose, which is to ensure that the alleged injury is not too speculative for Article III purposes—that the injury is certainly

Traceability - Causal Connection. As to the second element—that the injury was caused by the defendant—the Supreme Court in Lujan further described it as requiring a showing that “the injury has to be fairly traceable to the challenged action of the defendant.”<sup>188</sup> The “fairly traceable” test requires an examination of “the causal connection between the assertedly unlawful conduct and the alleged injury.”<sup>189</sup>

Redressability. The third element—redressability—requires the court to examine the connection “between the alleged injury and the judicial relief requested.”<sup>190</sup> “Relief that does not remedy the injury suffered cannot bootstrap a plaintiff into federal court.”<sup>191</sup> “[A] court must determine that there is an available remedy which will have a ‘substantial probability’ of redressing the plaintiff’s injury.”<sup>192</sup>

The Claims Purchasers argue that HMIT lacks constitutional standing to pursue the claims asserted in the Proposed Complaint because: (i) neither HMIT nor the Bankruptcy Estate was injured by the Claim Purchasers’ acquisition of the claims; and (ii) the Proposed Complaint lacks a theory of cognizable damages to the Reorganized Debtor, the Claimant Trust, and/or the beneficiaries of the Claimant Trust.<sup>193</sup>

<sup>193</sup> As noted earlier, certain of the Proposed Defendants—the Highland Parties—do not focus on HMIT’s lack of constitutional standing to pursue the Proposed Claims against them, but on its lack of prudential standing under

The court agrees with the Claims Purchasers’ argument here. What is HMIT’s concrete and particularized injury—that is “real” and is not abstract? That is not conjectural or hypothetical? That is actual or imminent?

Recall that, under the Plan, HMIT holds a Class 10 contingent interest in the Claimant Trust that only realizes value if all creditors are paid in full with interest. HMIT alleges the following injury: it has suffered a devaluation of its invested Contingent Claimant Trust Interest by virtue of the alleged over-compensation of Seery as the Claimant Trustee—Seery’s alleged over-compensation depletes the assets in the Claimant Trust available for distribution to creditors under the Plan, such that there is less likely a chance that HMIT ultimately receives any distributions on account of its Class 10 Contingent Claimant Trust Interest.<sup>194</sup> Yet, HMIT testified, through both witnesses Dondero and Patrick, that it had no personal knowledge of what Seery’s actual compensation is under the CTA at the time HMIT filed its Motion for Leave. It was clear that HMIT’s allegations regarding Seery’s “excessive” compensation were based entirely on Dondero’s pure speculation. In reality, Seery’s base salary is exactly what the bankruptcy court approved during the bankruptcy case by a court order (after negotiations between Seery and the Committee). The CTA now further governs his compensation. The CTA, which was publicly filed in advance of the Plan confirmation hearing and approved by this court as part of the Plan applicable law. Because constitutional standing is a matter of subject matter jurisdiction, the court has an independent duty to determine whether HMIT would have constitutional standing to pursue the Proposed Claims in federal court. The issue cannot be forfeited or waived by a party. See Abraugh v. Y & H Corp., 546 U.S. 500, 514 (2006) (“[S]ubject-matter jurisdiction, because it involves a court’s power to hear a case, can never be forfeited or waived. HMIT’s counsel acknowledged that claims trades, in and of themselves, would not “involve injury to the Reorganized Debtor and to the Claimant Trust” and that claims trades are “normally outside the purview of the bankruptcy court” but that “[h]ere, we have alleged . . . injury [that] takes the form of unearned excessive fees that Mr. Seery has garnered as a result of his relationship and arrangements, as we have alleged, with the Claims Purchasers.” June 8 Hearing Transcript, 67:16-68:8. HMIT can only point to Seery’s excess compensation as injury.

(which has been affirmed by the Fifth Circuit), specifically provides that Seery’s post-Effective Date compensation would include a “Base Salary” (again, same as during the bankruptcy case), a “success fee,” and “severance.”<sup>195</sup> The CTA discussed the role of the Committee and then the CTOB in setting the success fee and severance and the like. A fully executed copy of the CTA was admitted into evidence at the June 8 Hearing. HMIT is essentially arguing that its injury (i.e., diminished likelihood of realizing value on its Contingent Claimant Trust Interest) stems from a court-sanctioned and creditor-approved process for approving compensation to Seery. Moreover, HMIT has failed to plead facts sufficient to show that, even if Seery received excessive compensation and that compensation is ordered to be returned, HMIT’s Contingent Claimant Trust Interest will ever vest. The district court and the Fifth Circuit in various appeals by Dugaboy, another Dondero-related entity that, similar to HMIT, was a holder of a limited partnership interest in Highland whose interests were terminated as of the Effective Date of the Plan in exchange for a Contingent Claimant Trust Interest, have repeatedly rejected Dugaboy’s claims to have standing based on the speculative nature of its alleged injuries as a contingent beneficiary of the Claimant Trust under the Plan. For example, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the district court’s dismissal of an appeal by Dugaboy of the bankruptcy court’s order authorizing the creation of an indemnity subtrust, wherein Judge Fitzwater found that, in addition to lacking prudential standing under the

<sup>195</sup> The Disclosure Statement that was approved by this court, after notice and a hearing, on November 24, 2020, provided that “The salient terms of each Trustee’s employment, including such Trustee’s duties and compensation shall be set forth in the Claimant Trust Agreement . . . .” The CTA was part of a Plan Supplement (as amended) that was filed in advance of the confirmation hearing and provided:

Compensation. As compensation for any services rendered by the Claimant Trustee in connection with this Agreement, the Claimant Trustee shall receive compensation of $150,000 per month (the “Base Salary”). Within the first forty-five days following the Confirmation Date, the Claimant Trustee, on the one hand, and the Committee, if prior to the Effective Date, or the Oversight Board, if on or after the Effective Date, on the other, will negotiate go-forward compensation for the Claimant Trustee which will include (a) the Base Salary, (b) a success fee, and (c) severance.

“person aggrieved” test to appeal the bankruptcy court’s order, Dugaboy lacked constitutional standing “because they have not identified any injury fairly traceable to the Order: the injuries identified are speculative at best and nonexistent at worst.”<sup>196</sup> HMIT’s allegations of injury are, without a doubt, “merely conjectural or hypothetical” and are only speculative of possible future injury if its Contingent Claimant Trust Interest ever vests.”<sup>197</sup> The court finds that HMIT would not meet the “concrete and particularized” or the “actual or imminent” requirements for an “injury in fact,” and, thus, would lack constitutional standing to pursue the Proposed Claims.

With regard to the second requirement of constitutional standing—whether HMIT could show “traceability” with respect to the Claims Purchasers and/or Seery (i.e., a “causal connection between the assertedly unlawful conduct and the alleged injury”<sup>198</sup>), as noted above, there is only a speculative injury. Even if there is unlawful conduct asserted (i.e., sharing of MNPI to Claims Purchasers who then, as a quid pro quo, rubber stamped excessive compensation for Seery), there is nothing other than a hypothetical theory of an alleged injury (i.e., an allegedly less likelihood of a distribution on a Contingent Claimant Trust Interest).

With respect to the third requirement of constitutional standing—whether HMIT can show “redressability” (i.e., that it is likely, not speculative, that the injury can be redressed by a favorable decision), there are multiple problems here.<sup>199</sup> The major remedy sought here is the equitable disallowance of the allowed Purchased Claims (and disgorgement and/or constructive trust of amounts paid or owed to the Claim Purchasers on account of their claims). There is no such remedy available here. As noted earlier, there is a similar concept of equitable subordination of a claim to another claim, or of an interest to another interest, pursuant to Bankruptcy Code section 510(c). But under the literal terms of section 510(c), claims cannot be subordinated to interests. Moreover, the Fifth Circuit noted in the Mobile Steel case,<sup>200</sup> that equitable disallowance of a claim (as opposed to equitable subordination of a claims) is not an available remedy. Bankruptcy Code section 502(b)(1) and the Fifth Circuit’s Lothian Oil case might permit “recharacterization” of a claim from debt to equity in certain circumstances—but not based on inequitable conduct but rather on the nature of a financial transaction. In any event, here, the claims have already been adjudicated and allowed (some after mediation, and all after Rule 9019 settlement orders). The only way to reconsider a claim in a bankruptcy case that has already been allowed is through Bankruptcy Code section 502(j) (“A claim that has been allowed or disallowed may be reconsidered for cause. . . according to the equities of the case.”). As noted earlier, the problem here is that Bankruptcy Rule 9024 provides that a motion for “reconsideration of an order allowing or disallowing a claim against the estate entered without a contest is not subject to the one year limitation prescribed in Rule 60(c)” (emphasis added). As further noted earlier, here there was most definitely a “contest” with regard to all of these purchased claims. Thus, it would appear

<sup>199</sup> See supra notes 182-184 and accompanying text. The court will note that, as discussed supra note 141 and pages 71-72, the remedy of equitable subordination (as to the Claims Purchasers) would not redress HMIT’s alleged injury (because equitable subordination of claims to interests is not an available remedy in the Fifth Circuit and thus subordination of the Purchased Claims to other claims would not change HMIT’s distributions from the Claimant Trust, if any), and because outright disallowance of all or part of the already allowed Purchased Claims is not an available remedy either, HMIT would not be able to meet the “redressability” requirement with respect to the Claims Purchasers.

3. HMIT Would Also Lack Prudential Standing to Bring the Proposed Claims.

Even if HMIT would have constitutional standing to bring the Proposed Claims in an adversary proceeding filed in the bankruptcy court, the Proposed Claims would still be barred if HMIT would lack prudential standing to bring them under applicable state or federal law. HMIT argues that it does have prudential standing under both federal bankruptcy law and Delaware law to pursue the Proposed Claims derivatively and also to bring the Proposed Claims in its individual capacity.

With regard to “federal bankruptcy law,” HMIT argues that it has standing pursuant to: (a) Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, pertaining to derivative actions, which “applies to this proceeding pursuant to” Rule 7023.1 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, and (b) Louisiana World Exposition v. Federal Insurance Co. (“LWE”),<sup>201</sup> the Fifth Circuit’s leading case addressing when a creditors committee may be granted standing to bring causes of action on behalf of a bankruptcy estate. But, federal bankruptcy law does not confer standing where the plaintiff otherwise lacks standing under applicable state law. In other words, whether HMIT would have prudential standing to sue under Delaware law is dispositive of the issue, regardless of the forum. Rule 23.1 “speaks only to the adequacy of the . . . pleadings,” and “cannot be understood to ‘abridge, enlarge, or modify any substantive right,’”<sup>202</sup> including a right (or lack thereof) to bring a derivative action under the substantive law of Delaware. Additionally, HMIT’s reliance on LWE is misplaced: LWE permits creditors, in certain circumstances during a bankruptcy case, to “file suit on behalf of a debtor-in-possession or a trustee<sup>203</sup> and does not apply to a party’s right to sue, derivatively, on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor or any entity that is the assignee of the former bankruptcy estate’s assets. Upon confirmation of the Plan, the bankruptcy estate of Highland ceased to exist,<sup>204</sup> Highland is no longer a debtor-in-possession but a reorganized debtor, and the Claimant Trust is a new entity created under the Plan and Claimant Trust Agreement. Even if LWE did apply in this post-confirmation context, it supports the application of Delaware law to the issue of prudential standing and does not supersede state-law requirements for standing. In LWE, before addressing the requirements a creditors’ committee must meet to sue derivatively on behalf of a bankruptcy estate as a matter of federal bankruptcy law, the Fifth Circuit conducted a lengthy analysis to determine “as a threshold issue” whether the creditors’ committee in that case could assert its claims under Louisiana law.<sup>205</sup> The court specifically addressed whether the creditors’ committee could pursue a derivative action under Louisiana law and concluded that “there is no bar in Louisiana law to actions brought by or in the name of a corporation against the directors and officers of the corporation which benefit only the creditors of the corporation; indeed, Louisiana law specifically recognizes such actions.”<sup>206</sup> So, even under LWE (which the court does not think applies in this post-confirmation context), if HMIT would be barred from bringing a derivative action on behalf the Reorganized Debtor or Claimant Trust under state law, the analysis stops there.<sup>207</sup> Thus, the court looks to Delaware law to determine if HMIT would have prudential standing to pursue the derivative claims on behalf the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust.

HMIT acknowledges that both the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust are organized under Delaware law, and thus the cause of action against Seery alleging breach of fiduciary duties to the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust are governed by Delaware law under the “Internal Affairs Doctrine.”<sup>208</sup> In addition, because HMIT’s breach of fiduciary duties claim is governed by Delaware law, its aiding and abetting theory of liability as to the Claims Purchasers is also governed by Delaware law.<sup>209</sup> For the reasons set forth below, the court finds that HMIT would lack prudential standing under Delaware law to bring the claims set forth in the Proposed Complaint, derivatively, on behalf of either the Claimant Trust or the Reorganized Debtor.

a) First, HMIT Would Lack Prudential Standing Under Delaware Law to Bring Derivative Actions on behalf of the Claimant Trust.

The Claimant Trust is a Delaware statutory trust governed by the Delaware Statutory Trust Act, 12 Del. C. §§ 3801–29,<sup>210</sup> and “to proceed derivatively against a Delaware statutory trust, a plaintiff has the burden of satisfying the continuous ownership requirement” such that “the plaintiff must be a beneficial owner” continuously from “the time of the transaction of which the plaintiff complains” through “the time of bringing the action.”<sup>211</sup> This requirement is “mandatory and exclusive” and only “a beneficial owner” “has standing to bring a derivative claim on behalf of the Trust.”<sup>212</sup> The Highland Parties argue that HMIT is not a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust and, therefore, would lack standing to bring derivative claims on behalf of the Claimant Trust. HMIT argues to the contrary: that it is currently, and was at all relevant times, a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust under Delaware trust law such that it would have standing to bring derivative claims on behalf of the Claimant Trust if it were allowed to proceed with the filing of the Proposed Complaint. The disagreement turns on the nature of HMIT’s interest under the Plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement and whether HMIT, as a holder of such interest, would be considered a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust under Delaware trust law.

As noted, pursuant to the Plan, HMIT’s former limited partnership interest in Highland was cancelled as of the Effective Date in exchange for its pro rata share of a “Contingent Claimant Trust Interest,” as defined under the Plan.<sup>213</sup> HMIT argues that its Contingent Claimant Trust Interest makes it a contingent beneficiary of the Claimant Trust, which makes it a present “beneficial owner” under Delaware trust law.

The Highland Parties argue that HMIT is not a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust; rather, the “beneficial owners” of the Claimant Trust are the “Claimant Trust Beneficiaries,”<sup>214</sup> which are defined in the Plan and the CTA as “the Holders of Allowed General Unsecured Claims” (which are in Class 8 under the Plan) and “Holders of Allowed Subordinated Claims” (which are in Class 9 under the Plan);<sup>215</sup> HMIT, a holder of a Class 10 interest under the Plan, is neither.

HMIT acknowledges this requirement in its Reply: “Delaware statutory trust law provides that a plaintiff in a derivative action on behalf of a trust must be a beneficial owner at the time of the action and at the time of the transaction.” Reply, ¶ 19 (citing 12 Del C. § 3816).

HMIT, as the holder of a “Contingent Claimant Trust Interest,” has only an unvested contingent interest in the Claimant Trust and, as such, is not a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust for standing purposes under Delaware trust law. HMIT argues that it “should be treated as a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary due to [the Proposed Defendants’] wrongful conduct and considering the current value of the Claimant Trust Assets before and after the relief requested herein.”<sup>216</sup> The court disagrees.

HMIT’s status as a “beneficiary” of the Claimant Trust is defined by the CTA itself, pure and simple. The CTA specifically provides that “Contingent Trust Interests” “shall not have any rights under this Agreement” and will not “be deemed ‘Beneficiaries’ under this Agreement,” “unless and until” they vest in accordance with the Plan and the CTA. It is undisputed that HMIT’s Contingent Trust Interest has not vested under the terms of the Plan and the CTA, and the court does not have the power to equitably deem HMIT’s Contingent Trust Interest to be vested based on HMIT’s unsupported allegation of wrongdoing on the part of Seery, the Claimant Trustee. Thus, the court finds that HMIT is not a “beneficial owner” of the Claimant Trust and, therefore, lacks prudential standing under Delaware law to bring derivative claims on behalf of the Claimant Trust.<sup>217</sup>

- b) HMIT Would Likewise Lack Prudential Standing Under Delaware Law to Bring Derivative Actions on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor.

HMIT acknowledges that the Reorganized Debtor, Highland Capital Management, L.P., is a Delaware limited liability partnership governed by the Delaware Limited Partnership Act, 6 Del. C. § 17-101, et seq.<sup>218</sup> To bring “a derivative action” on behalf of a limited partnership, “the plaintiff must be a partner or an assignee of a partnership interest” continuously from “the time of the transaction of which the plaintiff complains” through “the time of bringing the action.”<sup>219</sup>

HMIT is not a partner, general or limited, of the Reorganized Debtor limited partnership. HMIT was a limited partner in the original debtor (specifically, a holder of Class B/C Limited Partnership interests in Highland), but that limited partnership interest was extinguished on August 11, 2021 (the Effective Date of the Plan) per the terms of the Plan, and HMIT does not own any partnership interest in the newly created Reorganized Debtor limited partnership.<sup>220</sup> Because HMIT would not hold a partnership interest in the Reorganized Debtor at “the time of bringing the action,” it “lacks derivative standing” to bring claims “on the partnership’s behalf.”<sup>221</sup> HMIT likewise cannot satisfy “the continuous ownership requirement”; when HMIT’s limited partnership interest in the original Debtor was cancelled on the Plan’s Effective Date, HMIT “los[t] standing to continue a derivative suit” on behalf of the Debtor.<sup>222</sup> Finally, to the extent HMIT

seeks to bring a “double derivative” action on behalf of the Claimant Trust based on claims purportedly held by its wholly owned subsidiary, the Reorganized Debtor, HMIT lacks standing. A “double derivative” action is a suit “brought by a shareholder of a parent corporation to enforce a claim belonging to a subsidiary that is either wholly owned or majority controlled.”<sup>223</sup> And, under Delaware law, “parent level standing is required to enforce a subsidiary’s claim derivatively.”<sup>224</sup> Because HMIT would lack derivative standing to bring claims on behalf of the parent Claimant Trust,<sup>225</sup> it also would lack standing to bring a double derivative action.

c) Finally, HMIT Would Also Lack Prudential Standing under Applicable Law to Bring the Proposed Claims As Direct Claims.

HMIT argues that it has “direct” standing to pursue the Proposed Claims on behalf of itself, individually.<sup>226</sup> But just because HMIT asserts that some or even all of the Proposed Claims are direct, not derivative claims, does not make it so: “a claim is not ‘direct’ simply because it is pleaded that way.”<sup>227</sup> Rather, in determining whether claims are direct or derivative, a court must “look at the substance of the Petition, and the nature of the wrongs alleged therein, rather than the Plaintiffs’ characterization.”<sup>228</sup> And, under Delaware law, “whether a claim is solely derivative or may continue as a dual-natured claim ‘must turn solely on the following questions: (1) who suffered the alleged harm (the corporation or the suing stockholders, individually); and (2) who would receive the benefit of any recovery or other remedy (the corporation or the stockholders, individually)?’”<sup>229</sup> “In addition, to prove that a claim is direct, a plaintiff ‘must demonstrate that the duty breached was owed to the stockholder and that he or she can prevail without showing an injury to the corporation.’”<sup>230</sup> Similarly, in the bankruptcy context, whether a creditor can assert a claim directly or whether the claim belongs to the estate turns on the nature of the injury for which relief is sought: “[i]f the harm to the creditor comes about only because of harm to the debtor, then its injury is derivative, and the claim is property of the estate,” such that “only the bankruptcy trustee has standing to pursue the claim for the estate . . . .”<sup>231</sup> “To pursue a claim on its own behalf, a creditor must show this direct injury is not dependent on injury to the estate.”<sup>232</sup>

As a reminder, HMIT argues that the injury it has suffered is a devaluation of its interests in the Claimant Trust by virtue of alleged over-compensation of Seery as the Claimant Trustee. HMIT was unable, when pressed during closing arguments, to identify any other injury. It essentially admitted that the claims trades, in and of themselves, would not have harmed the Claimant Trust, the Reorganized Debtor, or individual stakeholders, including HMIT, since the Claims Purchasers acquired already allowed unsecured claims, such that the distributions on those claims pursuant to the Plan would be unchanged in the hands of new holders of the claims.

Thus, by its own concessions, any alleged harm to HMIT (through devaluation of assets in the Claimant Trust) “comes about only because of harm to the debtor,” so the alleged “injury is derivative.”<sup>233</sup> The court concludes that all of the claims set forth in the Proposed Complaint allege derivative claims only, and that none would be direct claims against the Proposed Defendants. Thus, HMIT would lack prudential standing to bring any of the Proposed Claims in the Proposed Complaint, so its Motion for Leave should be denied.

d) Some Final Points Regarding Standing.

In this standing discussion, one should not lose sight of the fact that there are both procedural safeguards in place, as well as certain independent individuals in place with fiduciary duties that might act in the event of any shenanigans regarding Claimant Trust activities. Under section 4.1 of the CTA (approved as part of the Plan process), the CTOB, which includes an independent disinterested member in addition to representatives of the Claims Purchasers,<sup>234</sup> oversees the Claimant Trustee’s performance of his duties, approves his compensation, and may remove him for cause. Moreover, there is a separate “Litigation Trustee” in this case who was brought in, post-confirmation, as an independent fiduciary to pursue claims and causes of action. These independent persons are checks and balances in the post-confirmation wind down of Highland. This is what creditors voted on in connection with the Plan. Seery and the Claims Purchasers are not in sole control of anything. The CTA, as well as Delaware law, very clearly set forth who can bring an action in the event of some colorable claim. This is the reality of prudential standing. Just as in the Abraugh case, where Louisiana law dictated that a mother could not bring a wrongful death case when the deceased prisoner had a surviving wife and child, Delaware law and the CTA dictate here that a contingent beneficiary cannot bring the Proposed Claims here. This is separate and apart from whether the claims are colorable.

C. Are the Proposed Claims “Colorable”?

1. What is the Proper Standard of Review for a “Colorability” Determination?

Although the court has determined that HMIT would not have standing (constitutional or prudential) to bring the Proposed Claims, this court will nevertheless evaluate whether the claims—assuming HMIT somehow has standing—might be “colorable.” This, in turn, requires the court to assess what the legal standard is to determine if a claim is “colorable.” As a reminder, the Plan’s Gatekeeper Provision and this court’s prior Gatekeeper Orders entered in January and July 2020 each required that, before a party may commence or pursue claims relating to the bankruptcy case against certain protected parties, it must first obtain a finding from the bankruptcy court that its proposed claims are “colorable.” The Gatekeeper Provision and Gatekeeper Orders did not specifically define “colorable” or what type of legal standard should apply.

HMIT argues that the standard for review to be applied by this court is the same as a simple “plausibility” standard used in connection with a Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss. In other words, the court should simply assess whether the allegations of the Proposed Complaint, taken as true and with all inferences drawn in favor of the movant, state a plausible claim for relief (i.e., colorable equals plausible), and that this standard does not allow for the weighing of evidence by the court.<sup>235</sup> The Proposed Defendants, however, argue that the test for colorability should be more akin to the test applied under the Barton doctrine,<sup>236</sup> under which a plaintiff must make a prima facie case that a proposed claim against a bankruptcy trustee is “not without foundation.” In this regard, they argue that the court can and should consider evidence outside of the four corners of the complaint—especially since HMIT attached to its Motion for Leave, as “evidence” to support it, two declarations of Dondero (as part of a 350-page attachment) and only attempted to withdraw those declarations after the Highland Parties urged that they be permitted to cross-examine Dondero on them.

This court ultimately determined that the “colorability” standard was somewhat of a mixed question of fact and law and, therefore, the parties could put on evidence at the June 8 Hearing if they so-chose. The court would not require it. It was up to the parties. But, in any event, the Proposed Defendants should have an opportunity to cross-examine Dondero on the statements made in his declarations since the declarations had been filed on the docket and the court had reviewed them at this point. HMIT attempted to withdraw the declarations and any reference to them in the Motion for Leave, by filing redacted versions of the Motion for Leave,<sup>237</sup> less than 72 hours before the June 8 Hearing; however, the redacted versions did not redact any allegations in the Motion for Leave that were purportedly supported by the Dondero declarations. Also, HMIT called Dondero as a direct witness, in addition to calling Seery as an adverse witness at the June 8 Hearing, albeit subject to its running objection to the evidentiary format of the hearing.<sup>238</sup> HMIT also filed a witness and exhibit list attaching 80 exhibits and over 2850 pages of evidence and moved for the admission of those exhibits at the June 8 Hearing (again, subject to its running objection to the evidentiary format of the hearing).<sup>239</sup>

In determining what appropriate legal standard applies here in the “colorability” analysis, the context in which the Gatekeeper Provision of the Plan was approved seems very relevant. In determining that the Gatekeeper Provision was legal, necessary, and in the best interest of all of the parties, this court set forth in the Confirmation Order a lengthy discussion of the factual support for it, and made specific findings relating to Dondero’s post-petition litigation and the need for inclusion of the Gatekeeper Provision in the Plan.<sup>240</sup> This court observed that “prior to the commencement of the Debtor’s bankruptcy case, and while under the direction of Dondero, the Debtor had been involved in a myriad of litigation, some of which had gone on for years and, in some cases, over a decade” and that “[d]uring the last several months, Dondero and the Dondero Related Entities have harassed the Debtor, which has resulted in further substantial, costly, and time-consuming litigation for the Debtor.”<sup>241</sup> This court further found that: (1) Dondero’s post-petition litigation “was a result of Dondero failing to obtain creditor support for his plan proposal and consistent with his comments, as set forth in Seery’s credible testimony, that if Dondero’s plan proposal was not accepted, he would ‘burn down the place,’”<sup>242</sup> (2) without the Gatekeeper Provision in place, “Dondero and his related entities will likely commence litigation against the Protected Parties after the Effective Date” and that “the threat of continued litigation by Dondero and his related entities after the Effective Date will impede efforts by the Claimant Trust to monetize assets for the benefit of creditors and result in lower distributions to creditors because of costs and distraction such litigation or the threats of such litigation would cause,”<sup>243</sup> and, (3) “unless the [court] approves the Gatekeeper Provision, the Claimant Trustee and the Claimant Trust Oversight Board will not be able to obtain D&O insurance,<sup>244</sup> the absence of which will present unacceptable risks to parties currently willing to serve in such roles.” Thus, as set forth in the Confirmation Order, the Gatekeeper Provision (and the Gatekeeper Orders as well, which were approved based on the same concerns regarding the threat of continued litigation by Dondero and his related entities) required Dondero and related entities to make a threshold showing of colorability, noting that the:

Gatekeeper Provision is also within the spirit of the Supreme Court’s “Barton Doctrine.” Barton v. Barbour, 104 U.S. 126 (1881). The Gatekeeper Provision is also consistent with the notion of a prefiling injunction to deter vexatious litigants, that has been approved by the Fifth Circuit in such cases as Baum v. Blue Moon Ventures, LLC, 513 F.3d 181, 189 (5th Cir. 2008), and In re Carroll, 850 F.3d 811 (5th Cir. 2017).<sup>245</sup>

The Fifth Circuit, in approving the Gatekeeper Provision on appeal, noted that that the Plan injunction and Gatekeeper Provision “screen and prevent bad-faith litigation against Highland Capital, its successors, and other bankruptcy participants that could disrupt the Plan’s effectiveness.”<sup>246</sup>

Again, the court believes it is appropriate to consider the context in which—and the purpose for which—the Gatekeeper Orders and Gatekeeper Provision were entered in assessing

<sup>244</sup> Asd noted at ¶ 79 of the Confirmation Order, the bankruptcy court heard testimony from Mark Tauber, a Vice President with AON Financial Services, the Debtor’s insurance broker (“AON”), regarding his efforts to obtain D&O insurance for the post-confirmation parties implementing the Plan. Mr. Tauber credibly testified that of all the insurance carriers that AON approached to provide D&O insurance coverage after the Effective Date, the only one willing to do so without an exclusion for claims asserted by Mr. Dondero and his affiliates required that the Confirmation Order approve the Gatekeeper Provision.

how “colorability” should work here. It seems that applying HMIT’s proposed Rule 12(b)(6) “plausibility” standard would impose no hurdle at all to litigants and would render the threshold for bringing claims under the Gatekeeper Provision and Gatekeeper Orders entirely duplicative of the motion to dismiss standard that every litigant already faces.

The authorities cited by HMIT in support of its argument for applying a Rule 12(b)(6) standard are inapposite. HMIT has cited no authority that addresses the appropriate standard for assessing the “colorability” of claims in the context of a plan gatekeeper provision—specifically, one implemented in response to a demonstrated need to screen and prevent continued bad-faith, harassing litigation against a chapter 11 debtor that would impede the debtor’s implementation of a plan, which is what we have here. HMIT relies on a bevy of cases that include benefits coverage disputes under ERISA, Medicare coverage disputes, and constitutional challenges<sup>247</sup>—none of which implicate the Barton doctrine and vexatious-litigant concerns that were referenced by the court in the Plan as justifications for the gatekeeping provisions at issue here.

In affirming the Plan’s Gatekeeper Provision, the Fifth Circuit stated, “Courts have long recognized bankruptcy courts can perform a gatekeeping function” and noted, by way of example, that “[u]nder the ‘Barton doctrine,’ the bankruptcy court may require a party to ‘obtain leave of the bankruptcy court before initiating an action in district court when the action is against the trustee or other bankruptcy-court-appointed officer, for acts done in the actor’s official capacity.”<sup>248</sup> As noted above, the Fifth Circuit found that the Gatekeeper Provision, which “requires that, before any lawsuit is filed, the plaintiff must seek the bankruptcy court’s approval of the claim as ‘colorable’”—i.e., to “screen and prevent bad-faith litigation,”—is “sound.”<sup>249</sup>

On balance, the court views jurisprudence applying the Barton doctrine and vexatious litigant injunctions—while not specifically addressing the “colorability” standard under gatekeeping provisions in a plan<sup>250</sup>—as more informative on how to approach “colorability” than any of the other authorities presented by the parties. One example is In re VistaCare Group, LLC.<sup>251</sup>

In VistaCare, the Third Circuit noted that, under the Barton doctrine, “[a] party seeking leave of court to sue a trustee must make a prima facie case against the trustee, showing that its claim is not without foundation,” and emphasized that the “not without foundation” standard, while similar to the standard courts apply in evaluating Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss, “involves a greater degree of flexibility” than a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss because “the bankruptcy court, which given its familiarity with the underlying facts and the parties, is uniquely situated to determine whether a claim against the trustee has merit,” and “is also uniquely situated to determine the potential effect of a judgment against the trustee on the debtor’s estate.”<sup>252</sup> To satisfy the “prima facie case standard,” “the movant must do more than meet the liberal notice-pleading requirements of Rule 8.”<sup>253</sup> “[I]f the [bankruptcy] court relied on mere notice-pleading standards rather than evaluating the merits of the allegations, the leave requirement would become meaningless.”<sup>254</sup> This court agrees with the notion, that “[t]o apply a less stringent standard would eviscerate the protections” of the Gatekeeper Provision and Gatekeeper Orders.<sup>255</sup> The court notes, as well, that courts in the Barton doctrine context regularly hold evidentiary hearings on motions for leave to determine if the proposed complaint meets the necessary threshold for pursuing litigation. The Third Circuit in VistaCare noted that “[w]hether to hold a hearing [on a motion for leave to bring suit against a trustee] is within the sound discretion of the bankruptcy court,”<sup>256</sup> and that “the decision whether to grant leave may involve a ‘balancing of the interests of all parties involved,’” which will ordinarily require an evidentiary hearing.<sup>257</sup> The Third Circuit applied “the deferential abuse of discretion standard” in considering whether the bankruptcy court’s granting of leave should be affirmed on appeal.<sup>258</sup>

Courts of appeal routinely apply the deferential abuse of discretion standard to a bankruptcy court’s decision regarding whether leave should be granted to sue a trustee. Although the Fifth Circuit has not squarely addressed this issue, all nine Circuits that have considered this issue have also adopted an abuse-of-discretion standard. See In re Bednar, 2021 WL 1625399, at *3 (B.A.P. 10th Cir. Hedback*, 718 F.3d 762 (8th Cir. 2013) (applying abuse-of-discretion standard to Barton doctrine).

The Fifth Circuit has affirmed a bankruptcy court’s conducting of an evidentiary hearing, in the context of applying a Barton doctrine analysis as to a proposed lawsuit against a trustee, without any concern that the inquiry was somehow improper.<sup>259</sup>

Similarly, courts in the vexatious litigant context, where there was an injunction requiring a movant to seek leave to pursue claims, have required movants to “show that the claims sought to be asserted have sufficient merit,” including that “the proposed filing is both procedural and legally sound,” and “that the claims are not brought for any improper purpose, such as harassment.”<sup>260</sup> “For a pre-filing injunction to have the intended impact, it must not merely require a reviewing official to apply an already existing level of review,” such as the “plausibility” standard for a Rule 12(b)(6) motion.<sup>261</sup> Rather, courts apply “an additional layer of review,” and “may appropriately deny leave to file when even part of the pleading fails to satisfy the reviewer that it warrants a federal civil action” or that the “litigant’s allegations are unlikely,” especially “when prior cases have shown the litigant to be untrustworthy or not credible . . . .”<sup>262</sup>

In summary, the court rejects HMIT’s positions: (a) that it need only show, at most, that the allegations in the Proposed Complaint are “plausible” under the Rule 12(b)(6) standard for motions to dismiss; and (b) that this court improperly conducted an evidentiary hearing on the Motion for Leave (i.e., that consideration of evidence in this context is impermissible). The court notes, again, that HMIT’s argument that this court is not permitted to consider evidence in making its “colorability” determination is completely contradictory to HMIT’s actions in filing the Motion for Leave, where it attached two Dondero declarations as part of 350 pages of “objective evidence” that “supported” its motion.

The court concludes that the appropriate standard to be applied in making its “colorability” determination in this bankruptcy case, in the exercise of its gatekeeping function pursuant to the two Gatekeeper Orders and the Gatekeeper Provision in this Plan, is a broader standard than the “plausibility” standard applied to Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss. It is, rather, a standard that involves an additional level of review—one that places on the proposed plaintiff a burden of making a prima facie case that its proposed claims are not without foundation, are not without merit, and are not being pursued for any improper purpose such as harassment. Additionally, this court may, and should, take into consideration its knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings and the parties and any additional evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave. For ease of reference, the court will refer to this standard of “colorability” as the “Gatekeeper Colorability Test.” The court considers this test as a sort of hybrid of what the Barton doctrine contemplates and what courts have applied when considering motions to file suit when a vexatious litigant bar order is in place.

2. HMIT’s Proposed Complaint Does Not Present “Colorable” Claims Under this Court’s Gatekeeper Colorability Test or Even Under a Rule 12(b)(6) “Plausibility” Standard.

The court finds, in the exercise of its gatekeeping function under the Gatekeeper Orders and the Gatekeeping Provision in the Plan, that the Motion for Leave should be denied as the claims set forth in the Proposed Complaint are not “colorable” claims. The court makes this determination after considering evidence admitted at the June 8 Hearing, including the testimony of Dondero, Patrick, and Seery, and the numerous exhibits offered by HMIT and the Highland Parties. HMIT’s Proposed Claims lack foundation, are without merit, and appear to be motivated by the improper purposes of vexatiousness and harassment. But, even under the less stringent

“plausibility” standard under Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss, where all allegations must be accepted as true, HMIT’s “[t]hreadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory statements,” fail to “[c]ross the line from conceivable to plausible.”<sup>263</sup>

HMIT makes unsubstantiated and conclusory allegations in its Motion for Leave and Proposed Complaint that the Claims Purchasers purchased the large allowed unsecured claims only because Seery, while he was CEO of Highland prior to the Effective Date of the Plan, provided them with MNPI and assurances that the Purchased Claims were very valuable. This was allegedly in exchange for their agreement to approve, in their future capacities as members of the CTOB, excessive compensation for Seery in his capacity as the Claimant Trustee after the Effective Date of the Plan. This was an alleged quid pro quo that HMIT claims establishes Seery’s breach of fiduciary duties and the Claims Purchasers’ conspiracy to participate in that breach. As discussed below, these allegations are unsubstantiated and conclusory allegations, and they do not support the inferences that HMIT needs the court to make when it analyzes whether the Proposed Claims are “colorable”—or even merely plausible.

a) HMIT’s Proposed Breach of Fiduciary Duties Claim Set Forth in Count I of the Proposed Complaint

Based on HMIT’s Proposed Complaint and the evidence admitted at the June 8 Hearing, the court finds that HMIT has not pleaded facts that would support a “colorable” breach of fiduciary duties claim against Seery, under this court’s Gatekeeper Colorability Test, nor a plausible claim pursuant to the Rule 12(b) standard. HMIT alleges that Seery breached his fiduciary duties (i) “[b]y disclosing material non-public information to Stonehill and Farallon”

before their purchase of certain Highland claims, and (ii) by receiving “compensation paid to him under the terms of the [CTA] since the Effective Date of the Plan in August 2021.”<sup>264</sup>

As earlier noted, both the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust are organized under Delaware law and, thus, its proposed Count I against Seery for breach of fiduciary duties to these entities is governed by Delaware law under the “Internal Affairs Doctrine.”<sup>265</sup> Under Delaware law, “[t]o bring a claim for breach of fiduciary duty, a plaintiff must allege ‘(1) that a fiduciary duty existed and (2) that the defendant breached that duty.’”<sup>266</sup> HMIT fails to plausibly or sufficiently allege either element such that its breach of fiduciary duty claims against Seery could survive.

Under Delaware law, officers and directors generally owe fiduciary duties only to the entity and its stakeholders as a whole, not to individual shareholders.<sup>267</sup> Because Seery did not owe any “duty” to HMIT directly and individually, the Proposed Complaint fails to state a claim for breach of fiduciary duties to HMIT. HMIT’s “legal conclusion[.]” that Seery “owed fiduciary duties to HMIT, as equity, and to the Debtor’s Estate”<sup>268</sup> “do[es] not suffice” to plausibly allege the existence of any actionable fiduciary relationship.<sup>269</sup> And as discussed earlier in the standing section, HMIT does not have standing to assert a breach of fiduciary claim derivatively on behalf of the Claimant Trust or Reorganized Debtor. But even if HMIT had sufficiently alleged the existence of a fiduciary duty by Seery to HMIT—or to the Reorganized Debtor or Claimant Trust that HMIT would have standing to assert—Seery’s alleged communications with Farallon would not have breached those duties.

HMIT alleges that Seery “disclose[d] material non-public information to Stonehill and Farallon,” and they “acted on inside information and Seery’s secret assurances of great profits.”<sup>270</sup> But the Proposed Complaint does not make any factual allegations regarding HMIT’s “conclusory allegations,” and its “legal conclusions” are “purely speculative, devoid of factual support,” and therefore “stop[] short of the line between possibility and plausibility of entitlement to relief”<sup>271</sup> (and certainly stop short of being “colorable”). HMIT never alleges when any of these purported communications occurred, what material non-public information Seery provided, and what “assurances of great profits” he made to Farallon or to Stonehill. At the June 8 Hearing, Dondero could only clarify that he believed the MGM Email to have been MNPI and that he believed that Seery must have communicated that MNPI to Farallon at some point between December 17, 2020 (the date the MGM Email was sent) and May 28, 2021 (the day that Dondero alleges to have had three telephone calls with representatives of Farallon, Messrs. Patel and Linn, regarding Farallon’s purchase of the bankruptcy claims). Dondero alleges that, during these phone calls, Patel and Linn gave Dondero no reason for their purchase of the claims that “made [any] sense.” Dondero and Patrick also both testified that neither of them had any personal knowledge: (a) of a quid pro quo arrangement between Seery and the Claims Purchasers, (b) of Seery having actually communicated any information from the MGM Email to Farallon, or (c) whether Seery’s post-Effective Date compensation had or had not been negotiated in an arms’ length transaction. speculates regarding these things, because it “made no sense” to him that the Claims Purchasers would have acquired the bankruptcy claims without having received the MNPI. But HMIT admits in the Proposed Complaint that Farallon and Stonehill purchased the Highland claims at discounts of 43% to 65% to their allowed amounts. Thus, they would receive at least an 18% return based on publicly available estimates in Highland’s court-approved Disclosure Statement.<sup>272</sup> The evidence established that, if the acquisition of the UBS claims is excluded—recall that the UBS claims were not purchased until August 2021, which was after the May 28, 2021 phone calls that Dondero made to Farallon personnel—the Claims Purchasers would have expected to net over $33 million in profits, or nearly a 30% return on their investment, had Highland met its projections (this is based on the aggregate purchase price of $113 million for the non-UBS claims purchased in the Spring 2021).

To be clear, the only purported MNPI identified in HMIT’s Proposed Complaint was the MGM Email Dondero sent to Seery containing “information regarding Amazon and Apple’s interest in acquiring MGM.” But, the evidence showed that this information was widely reported in the financial press at the time. Thus, it could not have constituted MNPI as a matter of law.<sup>273</sup> Moreover, the evidence showed that Dondero did not communicate in the MGM Email the actual inside information that he claimed to have obtained as a board member of MGM—which was that Amazon had met MGM’s “strike price” and that the MGM board was going into exclusive negotiations with Amazon to culminate the merger with them (and, thus, Apple was no longer considered a potential purchaser). Dondero admitted that he included Apple in the MGM Email for the purpose of making it look like there was a competitive process still ongoing. In other words, the MGM Email, at the very least, did not include MNPI and, at worst, was deceptive regarding the status of the negotiations between MGM and potential purchasers.

As to HMIT's allegations that Seery's post-Effective Date compensation is "excessive" and that the negotiations between Seery and the CTOB "were not arm's-length,"<sup>274</sup> the evidence at the June 8 Hearing reflected that the allegations are completely speculative, without any foundation whatsoever, and lack merit. And they are also simply not plausible. HMIT fails to allege facts in the Proposed Complaint that would support a reasonable inference that Seery breached his fiduciary duty to HMIT or the estate as a result of bad faith, self-interest, or other intentional misconduct rising to the level of a breach of the duty of loyalty.<sup>275</sup>

b) HMIT's Proposed Claims Set Forth in Counts II (Knowing Participation in Breach of Fiduciaries) and III (Conspiracy)

HMIT seeks to hold the Claims Purchasers secondarily liable for Seery's alleged breach of fiduciaries duties on an aiding and abetting theory in Count II of the Proposed Complaint<sup>276</sup> and, along with Seery, on a civil conspiracy theory of liability in Count III of the Proposed Complaint.<sup>277</sup> Because HMIT's breach of fiduciary duties claim is governed by Delaware law, its aiding and abetting breach of fiduciary duties claim against the Claims Purchasers (Count II) is also governed by Delaware law.<sup>278</sup> HMIT's conspiracy cause of action against the Claims
