[1] NOD is the Receiver's acronym for the Notice of Receiver's Initial Determination that was previously sent to Claimants (along with attachments) that contained information which constituted the Receiver's determination of their Allowed Claim.

[2] Proposed Allowed Claim Amount is based on the NOD. Pursuant to the Court-approved Distribution Plan, the Receiver is not required to pay de minimis Allowed Claims that would result in distributions below $50.00. However, for this motion, Proposed Distributions will be made where the Proposed Allowed Claim amount, payable in full, results in a payment that is equal to or exceeds $25.00.

[3] The Allowed Claim does not include an extra erroneously sent NOD.

[4] After the NOD was issued, the Claimant cashed the stale check upon which the NOD was based. When the Claimant cashed the check, their Administrative Claim was satisfied in full.

[1] NOD is the Receiver's acronym for the Notice of Receiver's Initial Determination that was previously sent to Claimants (along with attachments) that contained information which constituted the Receiver's determination of their Allowed Claim.

[2] Proposed Allowed Claim Amount is based on the NOD. Pursuant to the Court-approved Distribution Plan, the Receiver is not required to pay de minimis Allowed Claims that would result in distributions below $50.00. However, for this motion, Proposed Distributions will be made where the Proposed Allowed Claim amount, payable in full up to $12,850.00, results in a payment that is equal to or exceeds $25.00.

[3] See Exhibit 3 for information on the additional Convenience Class Claim.
