RESERVATION OF RIGHTS

The Objectors reserve the right to use any deposition designation submitted on behalf of themselves or any other party. The Objectors further reserve the right to amend, modify, or supplement this list, including designating based on the Debtors' additional submissions to the Court, the testimony of witnesses who have not yet been deposed or whose deposition transcripts are not available in final form, and to counter-designate any testimony designated by any other party. Further, for the avoidance of doubt, by complying with the Court's instruction to the parties to coordinate the foregoing deposition designations for efficiency purposes, no Objector is in any way endorsing the evidence selected by any other Objector or any other party, and each Objector hereby reserves any and all rights to, among other things, object to the admissibility of any deposition testimony—including but not limited to objections based on relevance, hearsay, lack of foundation, lack of personal knowledge, or any other evidentiary ground—whether designated by any other Objector or by the Debtors, and to contest the proper weight to be accorded thereto.
