CONSOLIDATED LIST OF CREDITORS HOLDING THE THIRTY LARGEST UNSECURED CLAIMS AGAINST THE DEBTORS

The following is the consolidated list of creditors (the "List of Creditors") holding the thirty (30) largest unsecured claims against Sea Launch Company, L.L.C ("Sea Launch") and its wholly-owned subsidiaries, each a debtor and debtor-in-possession in the above-captioned cases (collectively, the "Debtors"). The List of Creditors reflects the estimated amounts owed by the Debtors as of June 22, 2009 (the "Petition Date"), as reflected in the Debtors' books and records, and may not reflect the actual amounts owing by the Debtors as of the Petition Date. The List of Creditors does not include any unsecured claims that a Debtor may hold against another Debtor.

The Debtors take no position at this time regarding whether any of the parties included in the List of Creditors are "insiders" of the Debtors, as that term is defined in section 101(31) of title 11 of the United States Code (the "Bankruptcy Code"), and the inclusion in or exclusion from this List of Creditors of any person or entity shall not constitute an admission by, nor shall it be binding on, the Debtors in any respect. The Debtors expressly reserve the right to, in their sole discretion, challenge the validity, priority and/or amount of any obligation reflected herein.

I, Brett A. Carman, declare and state as follows:

I. GENERAL BACKGROUND

1. I am the Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of Sea Launch Company, L.L.C., a Delaware limited liability company ("Sea Launch Company"), one of the above-captioned debtors (the "Debtors"). I have been employed by the Debtors since 1999 and I am familiar with the day-to-day operations, businesses, and financial affairs of the Debtors.

2. I submit this Declaration in support of the Debtors' petitions for relief under Chapter 11 of Title 11 of the United States Code, 11 U.S.C. §§ 101-1532 (the "Bankruptcy Code"), and the Debtors' First Day Motions (as defined below). I am authorized to submit this Declaration on behalf of the Debtors.

3. Upon commencement of these Chapter 11 cases (the "Bankruptcy Cases"), the Debtors will continue to operate as debtors in possession pursuant to Sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code.

[1] The last four digits of the taxpayer identification numbers for each of the Debtors follow in parenthesis: (i) Sea Launch Company, L.L.C. (1590); (ii) Sea Launch Limited Partnership (Cayman) (8182); (iii) Sea Launch ACS Limited (5999); (iv) Sea Launch ACS Limited Partnership (Isle of Man) (6216); (v) Platform LDC (3177); and (vi) Platform Limited Partnership (3173). The mailing address for all of the Debtors is 2700 Nimitz Road, Long Beach, CA 90802.

4. I submit this Declaration to assist the Court and other parties in interest in understanding the circumstances that compelled the commencement of these Bankruptcy Cases, and in support of the First Day Motions.

5. Except as otherwise indicated, all statements in this Declaration are based on my personal knowledge, my review of relevant documents or my opinion based upon my experience and knowledge of the Debtors' business operations and financial condition. If I were called upon to testify, I could and would testify to each of the facts set forth herein based on such personal knowledge, review of the documents or opinion.

II. OVERVIEW OF THE DEBTORS' BUSINESSES

A. The Debtors' Formation

6. Sea Launch Limited Partnership, a Cayman Islands exempted limited partnership ("Sea Launch LP"); its General Partner, Sea Launch Company, L.L.C. ("Sea Launch Company"); and its direct and indirect subsidiaries, Sea Launch ACS Limited, an Isle of Man exempted company ("Sea Launch ACS"); Sea Launch ACS Limited Partnership, an Isle of Man exempted limited partnership ("Sea Launch ACS LP"); Platform LDC, a Cayman Islands exempted limited duration company ("Platform LDC"); and Platform Limited Partnership, a Cayman Islands exempted limited partnership ("Platform LP" and collectively, with Sea Launch Company, Sea Launch LP, Sea Launch ACS, Sea Launch ACS LP, and Platform LDC, the "Debtors") were formed in May 1995 by Boeing Commercial Space and Communications ("Boeing"); RSC Energia, a corporation partly owned by the Government of Russia ("Energia"); Kvaerner US Sea Launch Inc. (US) and Kvaerner Sea Launch Ltd. (UK) (9.5%) located in Oslo, Norway (collectively "Aker"),[2] Yuzhnoye State Design Office ("Yuzhnoye"), a corporation wholly owned by the Government of Ukraine; and PA Yuzhny Mashinostroitelny Zavod, a corporation wholly owned by the Government of Ukraine ("Yuzhmash" and, collectively with Boeing, Energia, Aker and Yuzhnoye, the "Investors").[3]

[2] The Aker entities are collectively owned by Aker Maritime Finance AS (formerly Kvaerner ASA).

7. Though the Debtors have approximately 100 suppliers of goods and services, the goods and services provided by the Investors make up a substantial portion of the costs associated with the Debtors' day-to-day operations and the costs incurred in connection with the commercial launch of satellites. For example, the majority of all capital equipment purchased by the Debtors related to their commercial launch of satellites was either purchased from or constructed and installed by the Investors.

B. The Debtors' Operations

8. The Debtors comprise a business that draws upon an international consortium of American, Russian, Ukrainian and Norwegian businesses and provides a reliable, cost effective, heavy-lift commercial satellite launch service for primarily commercial customers.

9. The Debtors offer a one-of-a-kind sea-based equatorial launch site that provides the most direct route to geostationary orbit, offering maximum lift capacity for increased payload mass or extended spacecraft life.

10. For equatorial launches, the Debtors provide fully integrated launch services out of their home port in Long Beach, California. Specifically, following completion of fueling and encapsulation in the state-of-the-art payload processing facility, the satellite payload capsule is transferred to the assembly command ship named "Sea Launch Commander" (the "ACS") for integration with the launch rocket. After the satellite capsule is integrated into the launch rocket, the integrated rocket is transferred to the launch platform, where it is stored in an environmentally controlled hangar during transit to the launch site at the equator.

11. At the equatorial launch site, once the launch platform is positioned, the launch rocket is rolled out of its environmentally protected hangar and automatically erected on the semi-submersible launch platform named "Odyssey" (the "Launch Platform") and prepared for launch. After the launch rocket receives its final preparations, the satellite is a "go" for launch.

12. In 2005, using existing infrastructure at the Baikonur Space Center, in Kazakhstan, the Debtors supplemented their equatorial sea-based launch site with a land-based launch system based upon the Debtors' sea-based launch vehicle. At the land-based site, the Debtors provide contracting and management functions for the land launch system. Space International Services, Ltd., based in Moscow, provides hardware and services originating in Russia, Ukraine and Kazakhstan, in a subcontracting arrangement with the Debtors.

13. In addition to forming Sea Launch LP, Yuzhnoye, Yuzhmash, Energia, and Boeing have provided and continue to provide certain goods and services to the Debtors.

14. Yuzhnoye and Yuzhmash design and manufacture the first and second stages of the rocket that the Debtors use to launch their customers' commercial satellites. Yuzhnoye also provides payload integration and mission analysis ("PIMA") services to the Debtors, along with Energia and Boeing. The PIMA services are required to launch each particular satellite into its proper orbit. Yuzhnoye and Yuzhmash also provide the Debtors with necessary personnel to conduct and oversee the launch operations, along with Energia and Boeing.

15. Energia designs and builds the third or upper stage of the rocket that provides the final propulsion to place the satellites into geosynchronous orbit. As described above, in addition to the upper stage rocket, Energia also provides the Debtors with essential PIMA services and necessary personnel to conduct and oversee the launch operations.

16. Boeing designs and builds the payload assembly that encapsulates and protects the satellites during the initial ascent of the launch. As described above, in addition to the payload assembly, Boeing also provides the Debtors with essential PIMA services and necessary personnel to conduct and oversee the launch operations.

17. Aker designed, built, and modified the ACS and the Launch Platform, both of which form the infrastructure of the Debtors' marine-based satellite launch system. Yuzhnoye, Yuzhmash, and Energia manufactured and installed the launch support systems on the ACS and the Launch Platform.

C. Launch History

18. On March 27, 1999, the Debtors executed a precisely controlled inaugural flight that demonstrated their sea-based launch facilities – the Launch Platform. The success of the Debtors' inaugural mission represented the culmination of four years of intense development work performed by aerospace and marine professionals throughout the world. Since the Debtors' inaugural mission, the Debtors have experienced performance enhancements that have enabled them to increase the payload capacity of their launch vehicles, increase reliability, and streamline processing operations.

19. Since the successful inaugural flight, the Debtors have experienced twenty-nine (29) successful launches, twenty-seven (27) from the Launch Platform (sea-based) and two (2) from the Baikonur Space Center (land-based), the most recent of which occurred on Sunday, June 21, 2009.

D. Customer Payments/Obligations

20. The Debtors' primary customers consist of commercial satellite manufacturers and operators in the United States and throughout the world. Due to timing and financial requirements associated with launching commercial satellites, pursuant to the terms of the parties' launch services agreement, customers remit initial payments and progress payments (collectively, the "Payments") to the Debtors for launch services to be provided in the future.

21. All customer launch services agreements contain termination clauses that enable customers to terminate the agreements for cause or to repurpose (i.e., modify) the launch detail. Depending on the reason for the termination, a creditor may be entitled to a return of all of the Payments or a fraction thereof.

E. Launch Anomaly

22. On January 30, 2007, the Debtors experienced an unsuccessful launch on their 24th sea-based mission (the "Launch Anomaly"). The incident occurred seconds after ignition, resulting in the loss of both the launch vehicle and its payload. While the Launch Platform remained intact and suffered no structural damage, critical launch support equipment was damaged. Accordingly, the Debtors decided to bring the Launch Platform and ACS back to their home port for inspection and necessary repairs.

23. As a result of the Launch Anomaly and the required inspection and repair, the Debtors informed Hughes Network Systems, LLC ("Hughes") that it would be unable to proceed with the Hughes launch schedule to occur in May 2007 (the "Hughes Launch").[4] Hughes entered into negotiations with one of the Debtors' competitors, Arianespace, to arrange a replacement launch in July or August 2007. Thereafter, Hughes announced that it had entered into a launch services agreement with Arianespace for the replacement launch.

24. In response to Hughes' launch services agreement with Arianespace, a dispute arose between the Debtors and Hughes concerning Hughes' obligation to proceed with the Hughes Launch, the status of the Hughes Launch, the effect of Hughes' contract with Arianespace, and the parties' rights and obligations.

25. On May 11, 2007, Hughes terminated the launch services agreement relating to Hughes' Spaceway-3 Launch as a result of the Launch Anomaly and filed a claim for the refund of $44,400,000 in advance payments plus interest related to the launch contract. The Debtors contested the validity of Hughes' termination and/or its entitlement to any amounts. In March 2009, the International Centre for Dispute Resolution concluded that Hughes was entitled to recover the amounts advanced plus simple interest at a rate of 10% per annum on the advances, accruing from July 10, 2007, plus the arbitration expenses, totaling approximately $52.3 million (the "Hughes Arbitration Award").

26. After the International Centre for Dispute Resolution entered the Hughes Arbitration Award, Hughes and the Debtors entered into a standstill agreement whereby Hughes agreed not to confirm or otherwise seek to enforce the Hughes Arbitration Award.

27. After the expiration of the standstill agreement, Hughes filed its Petition for Confirmation of Arbitration Award in the Superior Court of the State of California for the County of Los Angeles on June 4, 2009. Hughes and the Debtors subsequently entered into a stipulation extending the time within which the Debtors had to answer the petition to enforce the Hughes Arbitration Award through and including June 22, 2009.

F. Return to Sea-Based Launch Capabilities

28. On November 1, 2007, the Debtors dispatched the Launch Platform and ACS for the launch of the Thuraya-3 satellite. After minor weather delays, the first post-anomaly liftoff proceeded without complication on January 15, 2008.

29. Since the January 15, 2008 launch, the Debtors have had seven (7) successful launches, five (5) from the Launch Platform (sea-based) and two (2) from the Baikonur Space Center (land-based).

30. On April 20, 2009, the Debtors successfully launched Telespazio's SICRAL 1B communications satellite from the Launch Platform.

31. On June 21, 2009, the Debtors successfully launched MEASAT Satellite Systems' MEASAT-3a communications satellite from the Baikonur Space Center.

III. DEBTORS' DEBT STRUCTURE

A. Bank Debt

32. On October 13, 2004, Debtor Sea Launch ACS LP completed the financing of its Sea Launch ACS Loan (the "ACS Loan") for $31,000,000 with Sumitomo Mitsui Banking Corporation. The ACS Loan accrues interest at a rate of 4.0375% and matures on October 13, 2009. The current balance on the ACS Loan is approximately $3.1 million and Boeing and Aker have guaranteed the ACS Loan in full.

33. On July 13, 2005, Sea Launch LP entered into a $100,000,000 Private Placement Loan through Citibank (the "Citibank Loan"). The Citibank Loan matures on July 12, 2015, with a balloon payment of full principal amount due at maturity. Interest on the Citibank Loan accrues interest at a floating rate, based on the three-month USD Libor and is paid quarterly.

34. On August 31, 2005, Sea Launch LP entered in a $100,000,000 credit agreement arranged by Sumitomo Mitsui Banking Corporation (the "Sumitomo Credit Agreement"). The Sumitomo Bank Loan matures on August 31, 2010, with a balloon payment of full principal amount due at maturity. Interest on the Sumitomo Bank Loan accrues interest at a floating rate, based on the three-month USD Libor and is paid quarterly.

35. On June 19, 2006, Sea Launch LP signed an amended and restated credit agreement with Citicorp USA, Inc. (the "Citibank $260m Loan") that replaced a previous loan with Citicorp USA, Inc. (the "Citibank $270m Loan"). On June 12, 2008, Sea Launch signed letter Amendment No. 1 to the Citibank $260m Loan, which eliminated the installment payment due in 2008 and revised the amount due upon maturity to $245,000,000. Interest on the Citibank $260m Loan accrues interest at a floating rate, based on the USD Libor rate. Boeing and Aker have guaranteed the Citibank $260m Loan in full.

36. The principal payment requirements associated with the ACS Loan, the Citibank Loan, the Sumitomo Credit Agreement, and the Citibank $260m Loan (collectively, the "Bank Loans") require principal payments of $251,200,000 in 2009; $100,000,000 in 2010; no payments in 2011, 2012, or 2013; and $100,000,000 thereafter.

B. Investor Debt

Investor Loans

37. In addition to providing essential goods and services to the Debtors, since the Debtors' formation, the Investors have provided significant financial resources to the Debtors. First, in February 1996, Boeing and Aker entered into loan agreements with the Debtors whereby Boeing and Aker lent the Debtors $276,000,000 (the "Investor Loans"). Upon the issuance of the Bank Loans, the Investors subordinated the Investor Loans to the Bank Loans.

38. The Investor Loans originally accrued interest at an annual rate of interest of 12% per year, compounded quarterly. In February 2002, Boeing and Aker agreed to lower the interest rate on the Investor Loans to 6% effective January 1, 2002, and continuing through December 31, 2004. Subsequently, Boeing and Aker agreed to maintain the interest rate at 6% through December 2008, at which time the interest rate will be reevaluated. As of December 31, 2008, the balance of the Investor Loans, including principal and interest, totaled $760,801,984. Energia, Yuzhnoye, and Yuzhmash guaranteed the Investor Loans.

39. Pursuant to the terms of the Investor Loans, the Debtors' repayment obligations are tied to the Debtors' ability to make distributions to the Investors. Specifically, the Debtors are required to pay Boeing and Aker 100% of cash available for distribution to the Investors, after all external debts have been repaid, until the Investor Loans are repaid in full.

40. In connection with the Investor Loans, Sea Launch LP granted Boeing and Aker a security interest in all revenues, income, receipts, and money received by or on behalf of Sea Launch LP, as a stand-alone entity, and real property, equipment furnishings, fixtures, and other tangible personal property owned by Sea Launch LP, in existence or acquired. Boeing and Aker, however, took no steps to perfect their security interests and, therefore, do not hold perfected security interests in any property of the Debtors.

Cost Overruns

41. During the Debtors' development phase, the Investors experienced cost overruns on certain fixed-price contracts that the Investors had with the Debtors (the "Cost Overruns"). These Cost Overruns totaled $119,000,000. In 1998, the Investors determined that the Debtors would reimburse the Investors for the Cost Overruns. However, due to insufficient funds, in 2000 the Investors agreed to defer the Debtors' obligation to repay the Cost Overruns for an indefinite period of time without interest. The Cost Overruns remain outstanding.

IV. THE DEBTORS' BUSINESS AND LIQUIDITY CRISIS

42. Since its formation, the Debtors have struggled to recognize the success envisioned and during the Debtors' development phase, the Debtors experienced Cost Overruns totaling $119,000,000. Because the Debtors were not yet able to provide commercial launch services, the Debtors incurred indebtedness to finance its developmental costs as well as day-to-day cash needs. Though the Debtors successfully completed the design and construction of the ACS and Launch Platform, and have had a number of significant and valuable launch services contracts, due to an unexpected increase in the costs of launch hardware (rockets and boosters), the cost of its debt, and government-financed competition, the Debtors have not been able to stabilize their business or meet their financial targets. As a result, the Debtors' cost structure is not in line with the revenues they can generate and has resulted in operating losses.

43. To manage the Debtors' liquidity position, the Investors agreed to defer the Debtors' obligation to repay the Cost Overruns for an indefinite period of time without interest. When the Debtors' liquidity worsened, to enable the Debtors to make required cash payments due and owing to unaffiliated creditors, the Debtors stopped paying the Investors for goods and services that the Investors provided to the Debtors in connection with the Debtors' launch services.

44. The Investors have been informed of the Debtors' decision to stop paying for ongoing goods and services provided and have consented to the decision.

45. The Debtors are actively pursuing launch opportunities with numerous customers. However, the Debtors' operating results have been negatively impacted by the worldwide economic recession, a glut of available launch slots offered by competitors, and the Debtors' precarious finances.

46. Given the ongoing credit constrictions, economic decline, weakness in the commercial satellite industry, and the effect of the Launch Anomaly, the Debtors have been unable to resolve their liquidity and cash flow problems. Accordingly, the Debtors continue to look for alternatives.

V. THE DEBTORS ELECT TO SEEK RELIEF UNDER CHAPTER 11

47. As result of the Debtors' liquidity position, recurring losses from operations, declining conditions, the Launch Anomaly, and the Hughes Arbitration Award, the Debtors began to consider various alternatives to maximize the value of their businesses for the benefit of all of their stakeholders. Working with their counsel and advisors, the Debtors determined that commencing cases under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code provided the best avenue to preserve value and maximize the value of their estates.

VI. THE DEBTORS' INTENT TO MAXIMIZE GOING CONCERN VALUE

48. The Debtors intend to focus their reorganization efforts on restructuring their debt, reviewing their existing executory contracts to determine whether those contracts are in line with the Debtors' cost structure, and strengthening the Debtors' core operations. The Debtors also intend to explore the potential sale of one or more of their divisions, owned technology, or other business units to maximize the value of their businesses.

49. The bankruptcy filing also preserves the Debtors' ability to analyze their short-term and long-term obligations, and to determine what steps should be taken to preserve value for their estates.

VII. SUPPORT OF FIRST DAY MOTIONS

50. As a result of my first-hand experience, my review of various materials and information, discussions with the Debtors' executives, and discussions with the Debtors' advisors, I have formed opinions as to (a) the necessity of obtaining the relief sought by the Debtors in the motions addressed below (the "First Day Motions"), (b) the need for the Debtors to continue to operate effectively, and (c) the deleterious effects upon the Debtors of not obtaining such relief.

51. I have reviewed each of the First Day Motions (including the exhibits and schedules attached thereto) and, to the best of my knowledge, believe the facts set forth therein are true and correct. Such representation is based upon information and belief and through my review of various materials and information, as well as my experience and knowledge of the Debtors' operations and financial condition. In connection with the First Day Motions, I declare as follows:

A. Motion for Joint Administration

52. The Debtors' operations are conducted through multiple international entities, all of which are Debtors in these Bankruptcy Cases. The organization chart attached hereto as "Exhibit A" shows all of the Debtors. All of the Debtors are affiliates of one another because Sea Launch Company is the general partner of the entity that directly or indirectly owns 100% of each of the other Debtors.

53. Despite common ownership and interrelated business operations, each Debtor maintains separate books and records, including audited financial statements, and bank accounts (only Sea Launch LP and Sea Launch ACS maintain bank accounts).

54. Although the Debtors have separate and distinct assets, the Debtors work in concert to provide the Debtors' commercial satellite launch capabilities. Moreover, in providing their commercial launch services, the Debtors put forth a single integrated business model to their satellite launch customers. Accordingly, in some instances, multiple Debtors were parties to the same transaction or multiple related transactions. Therefore, many of the notices, applications, motions, and other pleadings filed, and much of the relief sought, in these cases will concern more than one, or all, of the Debtors. Moreover, the Debtors anticipate that these Bankruptcy Cases will proceed on the same timetable. Absent joint administration, the resources of the Debtors, the Court and other parties would be wasted by the filing and service of the same or similar pleadings in multiple cases.

55. The joint administration of these Bankruptcy Cases will ease the administrative burden on the Court by allowing the Clerk of the Court, parties in interest, and the Debtors to use a single general docket for these cases rather than maintaining and updating six different dockets. Similarly, joint administration will eliminate the need for duplicative notices, applications and orders, allowing the Debtors, their creditors and other parties in interest to file one pleading in a consolidated case rather than several pleadings in the Debtors' several individual cases, to combine and streamline service of those pleadings and other notices on creditors and other parties in interest, and to monitor these Bankruptcy Cases by reviewing one docket rather than six separate dockets. Joint administration will reduce the number of documents that must be prepared, filed and served in connection with these Bankruptcy Cases, reduce the administrative burden of coordinating these cases, and reduce the monitoring burden that these cases will impose on the Court, the Clerk of the Court, the Office of the United States Trustee and all other parties in interest.

56. The rights of the respective creditors of the Debtors will not be adversely affected by the proposed joint administration of these Bankruptcy Cases because the rights of each creditor against the respective estates will be preserved. The Debtors' Motion for Joint Administration is not a motion for substantive consolidation of the Debtors' estates and does not seek to change the relative rights and remedies of creditors against any of the individual Debtors. Accordingly, the substantive rights of parties in interest should not be prejudiced or otherwise negatively affected by the entry of an order directing the procedural joint administration of these Bankruptcy Cases.

B. Motion Regarding Cash Management

57. Sea Launch LP maintains three (3) Bank Accounts at Manufacturers Bank ("Manufacturers") that are regularly utilized in the course of the Debtors' businesses: the general depository account (the "Depository Account"), the general operating account (the "Operating Account"), and the account from which Sea Launch LP receives and issues payments relating to land launch missions (the "Land Launch Account"). Sea Launch LP also maintains two (2) Bank Accounts at City National Bank ("City National"): the account used only for customs, duties, and related fees, which has a zero balance (the "Customs and Duties Account"), and the account used for the reimbursement of employee expenses (the "Reimbursement Account"). Additionally, Sea Launch ACS maintains one account at Manufacturers from which Sea Launch ACS services its bank debt (the "ACS Loan Account").

58. Immediately prior to the Petition Date, Sea Launch LP transferred substantially all of its cash into the Reimbursement Account at City National, which previously had a balance of approximately $175,000.00 and on which no checks or obligations were outstanding. Sea Launch LP maintained only enough cash in the Operating Account to cover certain checks issued prepetition, for which the Debtors are seeking authority to honor postpetition by separate motion, and nominal amounts in the other accounts so as to keep those accounts active. As a result, the Debtors will be able to identify all prepetition checks and other forms of payment outstanding on the Petition Date and will notify Manufacturers not to pay such checks or obligations, except to the extent such payment has been authorized by Order of this Court.

59. The Debtors are expecting at least one substantial payment from a contract counterparty to be transferred to the Depository Account shortly after the Petition Date. Closing this Account could significantly delay or otherwise jeopardize the receipt of this payment.

60. The continued use and maintenance of the Debtors' existing Accounts, at least on a temporary basis, as well as the continued use of the checks and forms relating to those Accounts, will prevent the Debtors from incurring unnecessary administrative expense and burden, and will allow the Debtors to focus on reorganizing their businesses and operating the same so as to maximize value for the estates and their creditors.

C. Motion to Honor Employee Obligations

61. Through the Motion For Entry of an Order (A) authorizing, but not directing, the Debtors to pay certain prepetition employee wages and salaries, reimbursable expenses, health plan claims, and insurance premiums; (B) authorizing, but not directing, the Debtors to maintain their employee-related insurance programs postpetition, and honor any prepetition obligations in respect thereof; (C) authorizing, but not directing, the Debtors to make deductions from employees' paychecks; (D) authorizing, but not directing, the Debtors to continue workers' compensation programs and pay all prepetition obligations in respect thereof; and (E) authorizing and directing banks and other financial institutions to honor all checks and electronic payment requests made by the Debtors related to the foregoing (the "Motion to Honor Employee Obligations"), the Debtors are seeking the Court's permission to take certain actions as to certain unpaid prepetition employee obligations and to continue certain employment procedures and programs that will ensure the Debtors' workforce will remain available to preserve the Debtors' value as a going concern.

62. The relief sought is vital to the employees as well. Nonpayment of employee compensation and benefits and the inability to create some level of normality in the postpetition workplace by assuring employees that the Debtors can continue certain prepetition employment practices and programs, such as employee health benefits and vacation and sick time practices, could severely undermine morale, thus creating a significant risk of attrition at a time when the employees' support is critical. In fact, if the Motion to Honor Employee Obligations is not granted, the disruption to usual operations that would be caused by the loss of employees would have other significant costs – including the out-of-pocket and intangible costs to recruit and train new employees – and would strain the Debtors' relationships with customers and vendors, with whom the employees are often the primary point of contact. Without its existing workforce, the Debtors would face substantial risk of being unable to meet their obligations to the detriment of the Debtors' ability to reorganize.

Salaries and Wages

63. The Debtors' forty-three employees (24 salaried and 19 hourly) are the lifeblood of their businesses. Certain positions held and services provided by the Debtors' employees are clearly related to the satellite launch industry and specifically to the Debtors' one-of-a-kind sea-based equatorial launch site, such as marine agents and security specialists and environmental and chemical engineering, while other positions, such as translators and customs brokers, are necessitated by the Debtors' international business operations. Virtually every position within the Debtors' companies requires familiarity and expertise either within the satellite launch industry or in the management of an international business. For example, the Debtors' procurement agents are responsible for negotiating contracts and purchasing critical and technically complex materials used by the Debtors in conjunction with launches, the Debtors' facilities managers and staff are responsible for ensuring compliance with applicable security and regulatory requirements imposed upon the Debtors by local, state, federal and foreign regulations, the Debtors' administrative support staff is required to manage frequent international travel by the Debtors' management and clientele, and the Debtors' translators must provide translation services in multiple languages (primarily Russian and Ukrainian) both in corporate settings such as board meetings and during launches at sea and in the field. The unique skill set and expertise of the Debtors' employees is demonstrated by the fact that a substantial number of the Debtors' employees—including administrative and accounting staff—worked for other companies within the aerospace industry before joining the Debtors. The highly technical and international focus of the Debtors' businesses requires that the Debtors employ these skilled and trained individuals, who are not easily replaced because of their experience and expertise within the satellite launch industry.

64. The Debtors utilize Automatic Data Processing Inc., ("ADP") to provide payroll oversight and management services. In furtherance of overseeing and managing the Debtors' payroll obligations, ADP is authorized to draw on the Debtors' bank accounts to fund the payments to the Debtors' employees. In particular, ADP deducts amounts necessary from the Debtors' bank accounts the day before the Debtors' payroll obligations are due to fund the Debtors' payroll checks. ADP is also responsible for all employee deductions, such as tax withholdings, though the Debtors are ultimately responsible for remitting the deducted amounts to the appropriate recipient.

65. The Debtors owe their employees salaries and wages for work performed prepetition. The Debtors' employees are paid either on a salaried or hourly wage basis. All employees are paid bi-weekly and the average payroll aggregates approximately $150,000.00 per pay period.

66. As of the Petition Date, the Debtors had not paid their employees for certain prepetition services or had paid their employees by checks or transfers which have not yet cleared the Debtors' bank accounts. Specifically, as of the Petition Date, the Debtors owed their salaried employees accrued and unpaid wages for 10 days work, and their hourly employees accrued and unpaid wages for 10 days work. Moreover, some checks that have been issued to employees may not have been presented for payment or may not have cleared through the Debtors' bank accounts. The Debtors believe that the aggregate amount of such accrued but unpaid salaries and wages that have not yet been paid, or that have been paid but not yet presented for payment or cleared through the banking system, should not exceed $150,000.00.

67. Included in the payroll amounts described above are funds withheld by the Debtors for the benefit of third parties, including amounts relating to employee taxes, deductions, insurance, and other withholdings as required by federal, state, and local laws. The Debtors transfer such withheld funds to the appropriate recipient on the same day the funds are withheld, or as soon thereafter as is practicable. As such, the Debtors believe that as of the Petition Date some funds withheld from employee wages and salaries may not have been transferred to the appropriate agency or recipient. Accordingly, the Debtors are also seeking authority to release those withheld funds to the appropriate recipient.

401(k) Plan

68. The Debtors sponsor a tax-qualified retirement savings plan pursuant to Section 401k of the Internal Revenue Code (the "401k Plan"). The 401k Plan is managed by Securian Retirement Services. All of the Debtors' employees who have completed their first complete calendar month of service are eligible to participate in the 401k Plan. The Debtors match $0.75 for each dollar invested of the first 8% of the employee's compensation contributed to the 401k Plan. Ordinarily, 401(k) contributions total approximately $18,000 per pay period, including $11,000 of employee contributions and $7,000 from matching contributions. Although the 401(k) contributions are normally transferred to the 401k Plan on the day in which such contributions were withheld, the Debtors anticipate that as of the Petition Date they will have approximately $17,000.00 in employee contributions that have not been transferred to the 401k Plan. Accordingly, the Debtors seek authority, but not direction, to honor and continue the 401k Plan.

Garnishment

69. The Debtors garnish specific amounts from certain employees' wages earned during each payroll cycle and transfer them in accordance with certain court orders. Ordinarily, the Debtors transfer such garnished wages within one week of the payroll pay date. As of the Petition Date, the Debtors had garnished approximately $300.00 from certain employees' paychecks that had not yet been transferred.

70. The Debtors anticipate that, as of the Petition Date, some transfers made in accordance with garnishment orders may not yet have been presented for payment or may not have cleared through the banking system. The Debtors estimate that the total amount of such transfers will not exceed $300.00.

Reimbursement of Expenses

71. The Debtors reimburse certain employees for various expenses incurred in connection with services rendered for the benefit of the Debtors, including, without limitation, tuition, cellular phone use, business travel, and business expenses. Other than the tuition expenses (for which no employee is currently seeking reimbursement), the expenses incurred by the Debtors employees and reimbursed by the Debtors were expenses incurred directly related to the Debtors' businesses. These expenses are ordinarily reimbursed during the month after the expense is incurred. As of the Petition Date, certain employees may not yet have submitted expense reimbursement requests or such requests may have been submitted but not yet processed. As of the Petition Date, the amount of expenses accrued but not yet reimbursed should not exceed $110,000.00.

Paid Vacation and Holiday Pay

72. The Debtors provide vacation pay to all full-time employees. Employees generally accrue annual paid vacation based on their length of continuous service with the Debtors. Specifically, an employee who has been employed by the Debtors for 1-4 years accrues 80 hours of vacation time in a year, an employee who has been employed by the Debtors 5-9 years accrues 96 hours of vacation time in a year, an employee who has been employed by the Debtors 10-15 years accrues 120 hours of vacation time in a year, and an employee who has been employed by the Debtors over 16 years accrues 160 hours of vacation time in a year. Several employees who negotiated additional vacation time during the offer of employment stage earn amounts slightly above those set forth above. The President and General Manager and Vice President level employees accrue 168 hours of vacation time per year. All full-time employees receive twelve (12) paid holidays per year, New Years Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving, the day after Thanksgiving, and Winter Break (generally, the last week in December).

73. As required by certain state laws, the Debtors customarily pay severed employees for accrued but unused vacation days in the employees' final pay checks. As of the Petition Date, the approximate amount of accrued vacation and holiday pay should not exceed $275,000.00.

74. The Debtors anticipate that employees will be critically concerned about their ability to take vacation time following the commencement of these Bankruptcy Cases. As a result, the Debtors are concerned that if they cannot advise employees on their ability to take vacation time, the employees may have adverse reactions and heightened concerns about their ability to obtain fair treatment going forward, which may lead to rapid attrition.

75. The Debtors believe that to maintain employee morale and retain their skilled employees, they be authorized to: (i) allow employees to use vacation time accrued before the Petition Date in accordance with their existing vacation policy, but only up to 160 hours of vacation per year, and (ii) pay, in the ordinary course, the liquidated amounts for any vacation hours accrued after the Petition Date to any employees who separate from their respective Debtor employers after the Petition Date.

Personal Leave

76. In January 2002, the Debtors replaced their sick leave program with a personal leave program (the "Personal Leave Program") because many employees rely on their sick time to deal not only with their own health conditions, but also with those of family members. Under the Personal Leave Program, the Debtors provide each employee with 96 paid hours per year for personal leave. The personal leave time accrues at 3.69 hours per pay period and may be carried over from year to year up to a maximum accrual of 144 hours. Employees are not entitled to compensation relating to their unused time under the Personal Leave Program.

77. As with vacation time, the Debtors anticipate that their employees will express substantial and immediate concern about their ability to continue to use personal leave time granted to them prior to the Petition Date. The inability to advise the employees early on with respect to this issue could lead to unnecessary stress among the employees and thus create substantial detriment to the morale of the workforce. Accordingly, the Debtors seek authority, but not direction, to allow employees to use personal leave time granted to them prior to the Petition Date and to pay the employees for the corresponding time off. Thus, to maintain employee morale and retain their skilled employees, the Debtors believe that it is appropriate to allow employees to use personal leave time granted to them prior to the Petition Date and to pay the employees for the corresponding time off.

Medical, Dental, and Accident Benefits

78. The Debtors provide medical, vision, dental, employee assistance, accident, and sickness benefits to their employees (the "Medical Benefits"). The Medical Benefits are funded, in part, by deductions from the employees' wages. The Debtors utilize Blue Shield of California as third-party administrators to process medical and pharmaceutical claims and to prepare benefit checks for a monthly fee. The dental, vision, and employee assistance plans are fully funded by the Debtors.

79. Pursuant to the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 (as amended, "COBRA"), the Debtors are obligated to offer eligible terminated employees (not all terminated employees are eligible for COBRA participation) the opportunity to continue insurance coverage under the Debtors' then-existing insurance plans. Any eligible former employee and his or her dependents that elect to participate are entitled by law to insurance coverage from the Debtors for between 18 and 36 months. Although participating former employees pay the full premium amounts associated with such coverage, because the insurance plans in which these former employees participate are self-funded by the Debtors, the ultimate liability to the Debtors, including some claims that accrued pre-petition but that have not yet been paid, may well exceed the premiums paid by the participants. Through the COBRA coverage, there are currently an estimated 3 former employees participating in the Debtors' insurance programs.

80. The Debtors anticipate that as of the Petition Date there will be no unpaid Medical Benefits that accrued prior to the Petition Date.

81. As with vacation and personal leave time, the Debtors anticipate that their employees will express substantial and immediate concern about their employment if the Debtors cease providing or do not honor the Medical Benefits. Accordingly, the Debtors seek authority, but not direction, to honor and continue the Medical Benefits. Thus, to maintain employee morale and retain their skilled employees, the Debtors believe that it is appropriate to honor and continue the Medical Benefits.

Disability, Accident and Life Insurance Benefits

82. The Debtors also provide short-term disability insurance, long-term disability insurance, Ground Term Life Insurance, AD&D Insurance, and accident insurance through Unum Life Insurance Company of America, to their employees (the "Life Insurance Programs"). The short-term disability insurance provides 60% of weekly earnings to a maximum of $3,464 per week for 22 weeks (after 30 day wait period). The long-term disability insurance provides 60% income continuation after a 180 day period while continuously disabled, up to age 65, with a maximum coverage of $15,000 per month. Through the accident insurance program, employees injured or killed while traveling on business are eligible to receive two and one-half years annual salary. Through the Ground Term Life Insurance and AD&D Insurance, the Debtors provide life insurance and accidental death coverage equal to two times annual salary. The premiums associated with the Insurance Programs average approximately $2720.37 per month. As of the Petition Date, there were no unpaid premiums associated with the Life Insurance Programs.

Workers' Compensation

83. Under the laws of the various states in which they operate, the Debtors are required to provide their employees with workers' compensation coverage for injuries occurring in the course of their employment with the Debtors. The Debtors maintain a workers' compensation insurance policy with Zurich Insurance (the "Workers' Compensation Policy"), pursuant to which the Debtors provide workers' compensation coverage to substantially all of their employees.

84. Under the Zurich Insurance Policy, the Debtors pay an annual premium of $26,716.00 ("Estimated Premium"), subject to a "true-up," regardless of the number of claims filed. At the conclusion of each policy year, Zurich Insurance performs an audit of the premium based on (i) an average of the initial base employee count provided at the commencement of the policy period and the actual number of employees for each subsequent quarter and (ii) the actual annual payroll for the policy period. If the number of the Debtors' quarterly employees exceed those used to calculate the Estimated Premium, the Debtors are required to pay an additional premium to Zurich Insurance in a true-up. The Debtors are seeking the Court's authorization to pay the Estimated Premium or any true-up, in their discretion, as they come due.

D. Motion to Provide Adequate Assurance as to Utilities.

85. The Debtors maintain many operations at complex plants and facilities, which depend on the constant and reliable provision of utility services. Should companies providing utility services ("Utility Companies") refuse or discontinue service, even for a brief period of time, the Debtors' business operations would be severely disrupted.

86. Other than the current utility bills that are not yet due and owing as of the petition date, which the Debtors cannot pay as a result of the commencement of these Bankruptcy Cases, the Debtors historically have paid their undisputed utility bills in full when due.

87. Prior to the petition date, the Debtors paid approximately $85,000 per month to the Utility Providers on account of Utility Services. Based on budget analysis performed in preparation for the Bankruptcy Cases, the Debtors' management believes that they have or will have sufficient availability of funds with which to pay all postpetition charges for utility services.

88. To provide adequate assurance of payment for future services to the Utility Companies, the Debtors propose to deposit a sum equal to fifty percent (50%) of the Debtors' estimated monthly cost of utility service into an interest-bearing, newly created segregated account on or before thirty (30) days after the Petition Date (the "Utility Deposit"). If any Utility Company believes additional adequate assurance is required, they may request such additional assurance pursuant to the procedures set forth in the Utility Providers Motion.

E. Motion to Retain Epiq as Claims and Noticing Agent.

89. The Debtors seek authority to retain Epiq Systems, Inc. ("Epiq") as their noticing agent and claims processor based on the terms and conditions set forth in that certain Bankruptcy Services Agreement, dated June 22, 2009 (the "Agreement").

90. I have reviewed the Bankruptcy Services Agreement filed with the Debtors' motion seeking Court approval of Epiq's retention. Given the nature of the Debtors' business and the number of creditors involved, the Debtors expect thousands of claims. As a result of the Debtors' limited staffing and the cost benefit of having claims administration and notice matters handled by someone other than counsel, I and the Debtors' management believe it would be in the best interest of the estates to utilize the services of an experienced claims processor such as Epiq.

91. I and the Debtors' management consulted with the Debtors' legal and financial advisors and determined that based on the size, scope, and geography of the Bankruptcy Cases, Epiq was the appropriate choice. Additionally, given prior relationships from other matters, the Debtors' advisors were also able to secure extremely competitive pricing from Epiq for these services.

92. Epiq has been retained in large and complex cases filed in this Court as well as other courts across the country. I and the Debtors' management believe, in our business judgment, that Epiq has the necessary experience and expertise to render the necessary services in a professional and efficient manner in accordance with the Bankruptcy Rules and Local Bankruptcy Rules. The Debtors believe that the proposed compensation to Epiq is fair and reasonable.

F. Motion for Authority to File Certain Portions of the Creditor Matrix Under Seal.

93. The Debtors provide a reliable, cost effective, heavy lift launch service for primarily commercial customers.

94. The Debtors' customers, which include large commercial and government entities, secure commercial launch services by entering into launch services contracts many months if not years in advance. Due to the sensitive nature of the customers' launches, the Debtors' launch services contracts preclude the dissemination of information relating to the launch services agreement – including the existence of the launch – without the customers' consent. The Debtors' launch services contracts also require that their customers submit a significant deposit in connection with the future launch, meaning that these customers will be included on the Debtors' schedules as creditors or potential creditors.

95. Without an order authorizing the Debtors to file under seal certain portions of their consolidated list of creditors (the "Creditor Matrix"), the Debtors may breach their launch services contracts by filing their complete Creditor Matrix, which could result in significant administrative priority claims against the Debtors' estates.

96. Additionally, if the Debtors are required to file their complete Creditor Matrix on the public docket, competitors will be able to determine who the Debtors are doing business with.

97. Because the disclosure of the Debtors' customers is commercially sensitive information, the dissemination of this information will have a negative affect on the Debtors' future viability. The Debtors therefore seek authority to file certain portions of their Creditor Matrix under seal.

G. Motion to Pay Taxes.

98. In connection with the normal operation of their businesses, the Debtors (i) incur property, sales and use, franchise and similar taxes (collectively, the "Taxes") and (ii) are charged fees, licenses and similar charges (collectively, the "Fees"), on behalf of numerous taxing, regulatory, and licensing authorities (collectively, the "Authorities"). Timely payment of the Taxes and Fees in the ordinary course, whether relating to the Debtors' prepetition or postpetition periods is necessary to the Debtors' continued operations and the Debtors seek authority to pay Taxes and Fees to the respective authorities in the ordinary course of the Debtors' businesses.

99. The Taxes and Fees are paid to the Authorities on a periodic basis (monthly, quarterly, or yearly, depending on the particular Taxes and Fees) with funds drawn by checks or by means of electronic fund transfers. As detailed on Exhibit A to the Motion to Pay Taxes, there are certain accrued/accruing taxes that are not yet due, but coming due soon, and/or certain checks issued, prior to the Petition Date, to Authorities for Taxes and Fees that did not clear the bank prior to the Petition Date (the "Prepetition Taxes and Fees"). Accordingly, the Debtors request that this Court authorize payment of Taxes and Fees and direct the banks, when requested by the Debtors in their sole discretion, to receive, process, honor, and pay such checks or electronic transfers.

100. To the extent the Authorities have otherwise not received payment for all Prepetition Taxes and Fees owed, the Debtors believe that some, if not all, of the Authorities may attempt to suspend the Debtors' business operations or suspend launch rights. Disruptions in the Debtors' business activities will materially affect the Debtors' reorganization prospects and unnecessarily divert the Debtors' attention away from the prosecution of these Bankruptcy Cases.

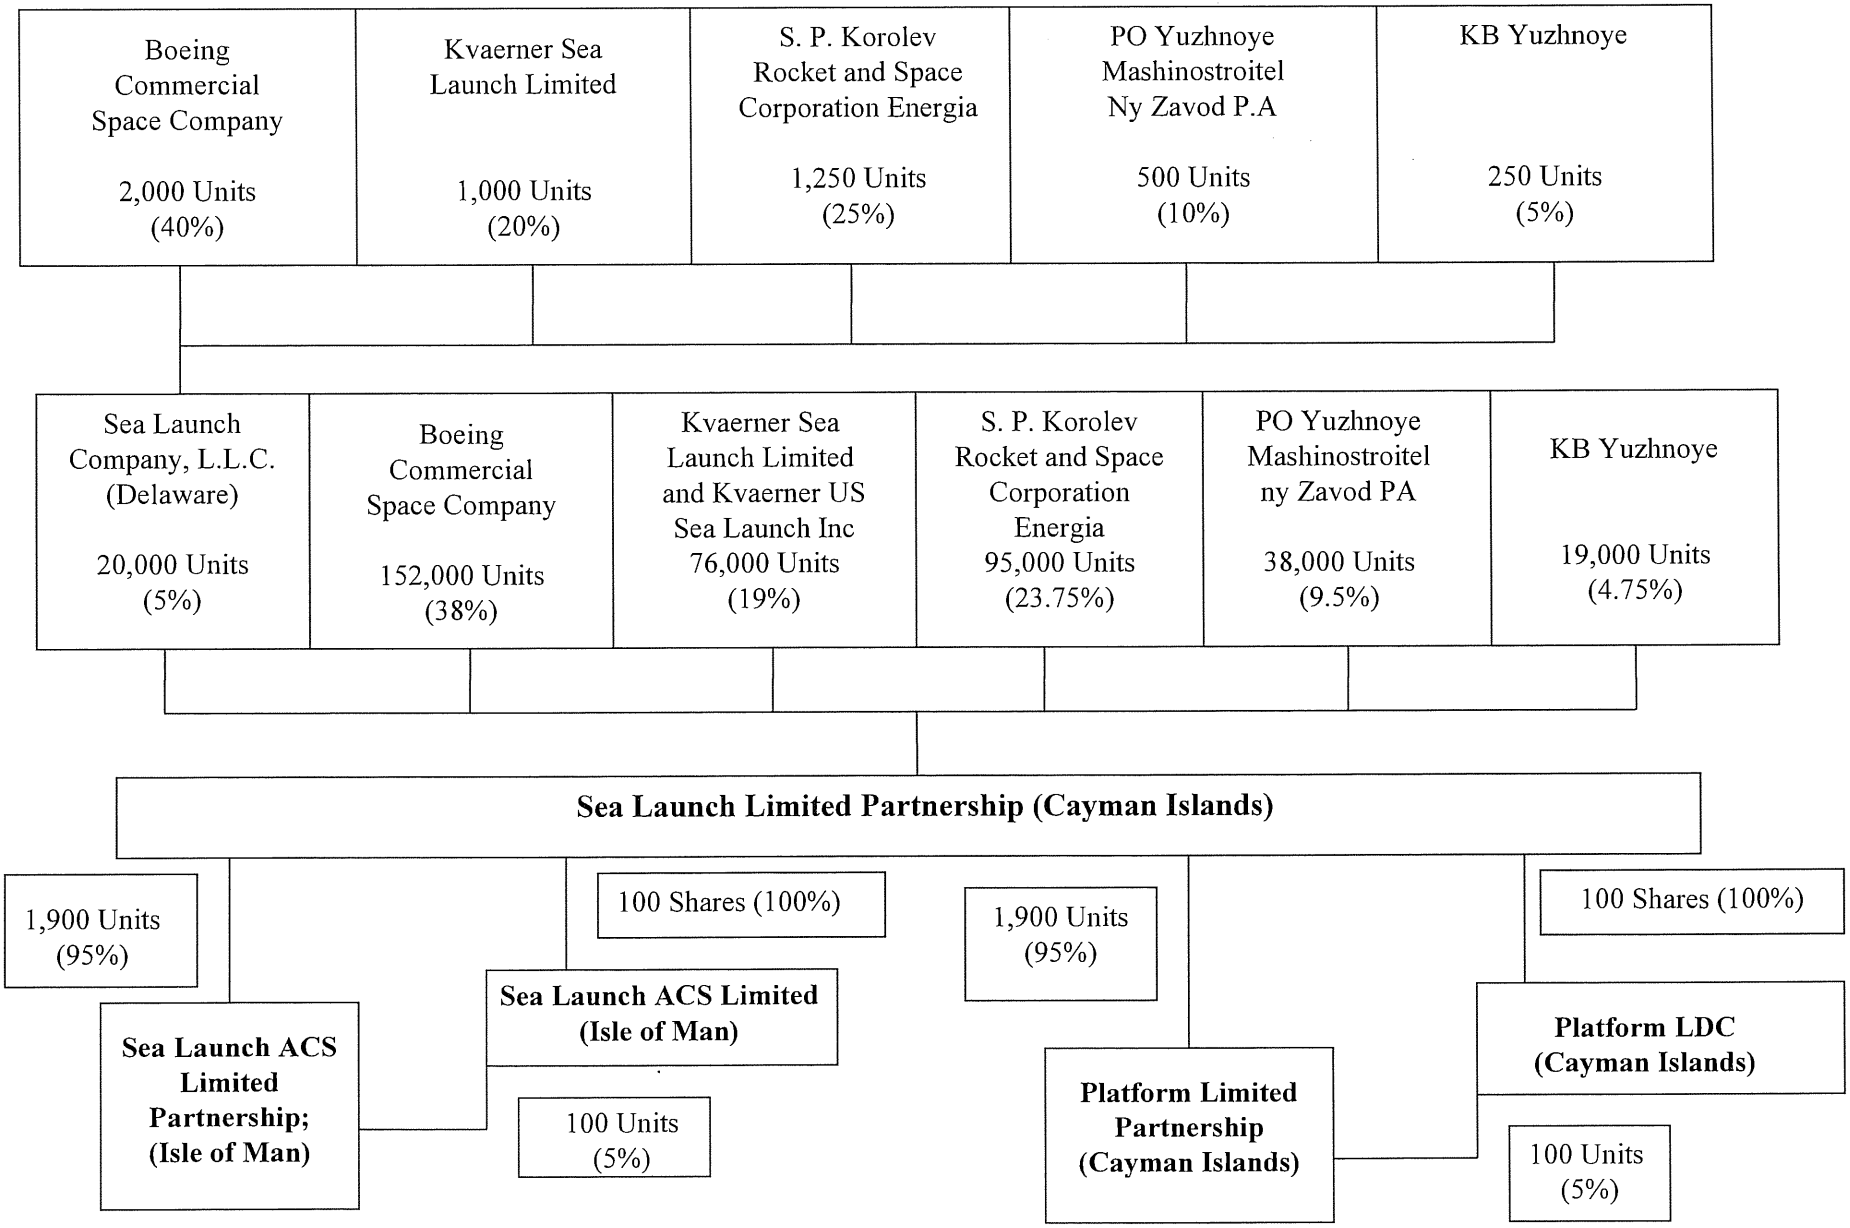
101. Without question, the payment of the Prepetition Taxes and Fees is necessary to avoid interruption of the Debtors' business activities. Withholding payment of the Prepetition Taxes and Fees likely would cause taxing and other authorities to take precipitous action, including a marked increase in state audits, a flurry of lien filings or lift-stay motions, and significant administrative problems. Prompt and regular payment of the Prepetition Taxes and Fees will avoid these unnecessary governmental actions. It is in the best interests of the Debtors' estates and consistent with the reorganization policy of the Bankruptcy Code to eliminate the possibility of such time consuming and potentially damaging distractions.



VIII. CONCLUSION

102. I hereby certify that the foregoing statements are true and correct to the best of my knowledge information and belief, and respectfully request that all of the relief requested in the First Day Motions be granted, together with such other and further relief as is just.

n. The Court having heard the statements of counsel and evidentiary proffers of testimony by Bemnet Kibreab, Jefferies & Company, and Christopher Picone, Sea Launch CRO, in respect of confirmation of the Plan.

NOW THEREFORE, based upon the Court's review of the Plan, the Disclosure Statement, the Plan Supplement and other documents filed in connection with the Plan, the

Confirmation Brief, the Voting Declaration, and the Objections, and upon (i) all of the evidence proffered or adduced and arguments of counsel made at the Confirmation Hearing and (ii) the entire record of these Bankruptcy Cases, and after due deliberation thereon, discussions made on the record at the Confirmation Hearing and good cause appearing therefore, this Court hereby makes and issues the following Findings of Fact, Conclusions of Law and Orders:[3]

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

A. Exclusive Jurisdiction; Venue; Core Proceeding (28 U.S.C. §§ 157(b)(2) and 1334(a)). On the Petition Date, the Debtors commenced the Bankruptcy Cases by filing voluntary petitions for relief under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code. The Debtors were qualified and are qualified to be debtors under Section 109 of the Bankruptcy Code. Each of the Debtors is authorized to and has been operating as debtor-in-possession since the commencement of the reorganization cases. No Trustee or examiner has been hereto for appointed in any of the cases. Venue was proper as of the Petition Date and continues to be proper pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409. This Court has jurisdiction over these Bankruptcy Cases pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. Confirmation of the Plan is a core proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(L), and this Court has exclusive jurisdiction to determine whether the Plan complies with the applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code and should be confirmed. The Court has the power to authorize and direct each of the actions contemplated by the Plan including, but not limited to, consummation of transactions required by the New Investment Agreement.

B. Findings Regarding the Debtors. Each of the Debtors has been duly incorporated or formed under the laws of jurisdiction in which they were organized. Sea Launch LLC is in good standing in the Commonwealth of Delaware. Each of the Debtors is in good standing in its jurisdiction of organization and is registered and/or authorized to do business as a foreign corporation, partnership or limited liability company in the jurisdictions in which such authorization is necessary for the implementation, effectuation and consummation of this Plan. As debtors-in-possession, the management and members of each general partner of the Debtors for itself and one Debtor limited partnership, including but not limited to their boards of directors and officers are and were duly authorized and empowered to take any and all such actions contemplated by and giving rise to the Plan and the New Investment Agreement. Each action, agreement and transaction contemplated by the Plan, the New Investment Agreement and this Confirmation Order, and all related actions, agreements and transactions necessary to implement, effectuate and confirm the Plan are authorized and lawful under the formation documents of each Debtor.

[3] This order (the "Confirmation Order") constitutes this Court's findings of fact and conclusions of law under Rule 52 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (the "Federal Rules"), as made applicable herein by Bankruptcy Rules 7052 and 9014. Findings of fact shall be construed as conclusions of law and conclusions of law shall be construed as findings of fact when appropriate. See Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7052.

The Debtors, without further action by the shareholders of the Debtors including, but not limited to, the owners of the Sea Launch Equity Interests, acting by and through their officers or managers, are duly authorized and empowered to take any and all such actions as any of these may determine are necessary or appropriate to implement, effectuate and consummate any and all documents or transactions contemplated by the Plan or this Confirmation Order. Each Debtor has duly authorized, or is empowered to duly authorize, each of the acts, documents, agreements and transactions contemplated in the Plan and this Confirmation Order (the "Plan Documents") to implement, effect and consummate the Plan.

C. Judicial Notice. The Court takes judicial notice of the docket in these Bankruptcy Cases maintained by the clerk of the Court, including, without limitation, all pleadings and other documents filed, all orders entered, all prior hearing transcripts and evidence and argument made, proffered or adduced at the hearings held before the Court during the pendency of these Bankruptcy Cases.

D. Burden of Proof. The Debtors, as proponents of the Plan, have met their burden of proving the elements of Sections 1129(a) and (b) of the Bankruptcy Code by a preponderance of the evidence, as further found and determined herein.

E. Transmittal of Solicitation Materials. To obtain requisite acceptance of the Plan, on or about June 28, 2010, the Debtors completed solicitation of acceptances and rejections of the Plan by distributing, through Epiq Bankruptcy Solutions, LLC (the "Voting Agent"), the Plan, Disclosure Statement, and related materials as required by the Solicitation Order. As evidenced by the Affidavit of Christine Azzaro, filed with this Court on July 1, 2010 (the "Solicitation Mailing Affidavit") [Docket No. 818], and as required by the Solicitation Order, the Debtors transmitted: (i) written notice (the "Confirmation Hearing Notice") of (a) the Court's approval of the Disclosure Statement, (b) the deadline for voting on the Plan, (c) the date of the Confirmation Hearing, and (d) the deadline and procedures for filing objections to confirmation of the Plan; (ii) a CD-ROM containing PDF copies of the Plan and the Disclosure Statement; (iii) Ballots, as appropriate, and a Ballot return envelope (postage prepaid) (collectively, the "Solicitation Package") to the Holders of Class 3—Current Trade Vendor Unsecured Claims, Class 4—Customer or Trade Vendor Unsecured Claims, Class 5—Aker and Boeing Claims, Class 6— S.P. Korolev Rocket & Space Corporation, Energia ("RSC Energia") Claims, and Class 7—Yuzhmash and Yuzhnoye Claims (collectively, the "Voting Parties"). Further, the Debtors transmitted a Confirmation Hearing Notice to each of the known counterparties to the Assumed Executory Contracts. Additionally, the Debtors transmitted a notice, which set forth, among other things: (i) the non-voting classes under the Plan; (ii) a summary of the treatment of Claims and Interests under the Plan; (iii) the date and time of the Confirmation Hearing; and (iv) the deadline and procedures for filing objections to the Plan (the "Non-Voting Creditor or Interest Holder Notice") to the Holders of Administrative Expense Claims, DIP Facility Claims, Priority Tax Claims, Class 1—Priority Non-Tax Claims, Class 2—Other Secured Claims, Class 8—Sea Launch Equity Interests, and Class 9—Subsidiary Interests (collectively, the "Non-Voting Parties").

F. Good Faith Solicitation; No Requirement for Resolicitation. Votes for acceptance and rejection of the Plan were solicited in good faith and in compliance with Sections 1125 and 1126 of the Bankruptcy Code, Bankruptcy Rules 3017 and 3018, the Disclosure Statement, the Solicitation Order, and all other applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code and all other applicable rules, laws and regulations. Accordingly, the Court finds no need to resolicit any votes.

G. Adequacy of Notice. Notice of the Confirmation Hearing, including all deadlines in the Solicitation Order, was given in compliance with the Bankruptcy Rules and the Solicitation Order and the materials served in conjunction therewith were good and sufficient notice in accordance with Bankruptcy Rules 2002(b) and 3020(b)(2). Votes for acceptance or rejection of the Plan were solicited by the Debtors in good faith, after transmittal of a disclosure statement containing adequate information, and otherwise in compliance with Bankruptcy Code Sections 1125 and 1126 and Bankruptcy Rules 3017 and 3018. The Plan Supplement, and all amendments, modifications, and supplements thereto, were transmitted and served in compliance with the Bankruptcy Rules. All parties in interest had the opportunity to appear and be heard at the Confirmation Hearing and no other or further notice is required.

H. Bar Date. On October 6, 2009, the Court entered an order (the "Bar Date Order") [Docket No. 301] establishing November 20, 2009, as the general deadline to file proofs of claim for prepetition claims against the Debtors (the "General Bar Date") and December 21, 2009, as the bar date for governmental Units (the "Governmental Unit Bar Date").

I. Impaired Classes Voting to Accept the Plan. As evidenced by the Voting Declaration, Class 3—Current Trade Vendor Unsecured Claims, Class 4—Customer or Trade Vendor Unsecured Claims, Class 5—Aker and Boeing Claims,[4] Class 6—RSC Energia Claims, Class 7—Yuzhmash and Yuzhnoye Claims[5] are each impaired and have each voted to accept the Plan pursuant to the requirements of Sections 1124 and 1126 of the Bankruptcy Code. Thus, at least one Impaired class of Claims has voted to accept the Plan.

J. Classes Deemed To Accept the Plan. Class 1—Priority Claims, Class 2—Other Secured Claims, and Class 9—Subsidiary Interests are not impaired under the Plan and are deemed to have accepted the Plan pursuant to Section 1126(f) of the Bankruptcy Code.

K. Classes Deemed to Reject the Plan. Class 8—Sea Launch Equity Interests are deemed to have rejected the Plan pursuant to Section 1126(g) of the Bankruptcy Code because [4] Based on the Global Settlement Agreement and Release to be entered into by and among the Debtors, the Committee, each of the members of the Committee, Boeing, BCSC, and Aker (the "Boeing Aker UCC Settlement Agreement"), which Settlement was approved by this Court on the record at the Confirmation Hearing, Boeing and Aker agreed to change their votes on the Plan from rejecting to accepting votes, which changes were stated on the record at the Confirmation Hearing. Considering Boeing's and Aker's changed votes, Class 5 is an accepting Class with 100% in amount and 100% in number having voted to accept the Plan. See Debtors' Motion for an Order Approving the Settlement and Compromise of Certain Claims Between (i) the Debtors (ii) the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (iii) the Members of the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, (iv) the Boeing Company, (v) Boeing Commercial Space Company, and (vi) Aker Maritime Finance AS [Docket No. 894].

[5] Based on an agreement between Yuzhmash, the Debtors and the New Investor, as set forth in further detail in Paragraph 47 of this Order, which will result in the assumption of the modified Yuzhmash BOAs and the modified treatment of Yuzhmash under the Plan, which BOA assumption and Plan modification were approved by this Court on the record at the Confirmation Hearing and as stated herein. As a result of such agreements, Yuzhmash agreed to change its vote on the Plan from rejecting to accepting, which change was stated on the record at the Confirmation Hearing. Considering Yuzhmash's changed vote, Class 7 is an accepting Class with the requisite amount of claims and number of voting claims having voted to accept the Plan.

the Holders of Class 8 Interests will not receive or retain any distribution or property under the Plan on account of such Interests.

L. Preservation of Causes of Action. Pursuant to the Plan and Disclosure Statement, the Debtors have provided due and sufficient notice that the Plan preserves all Causes of Action, including actions under Chapter 5 of the Bankruptcy Code, except as otherwise set forth in the Plan, the Plan Supplement, and any settlement agreements approved by this Court or this Confirmation Order.

M. Rule 9019(a) Settlement. Except as otherwise provided in the Plan and this Confirmation Order, the Plan is a settlement between and among the Debtors and their creditors and equity holders of all claims and litigation against the Debtors, pending or threatened, or that were or could have been commenced against the Debtors prior to the date of entry of this Confirmation Order (other than the Reorganized Debtors' ability to prosecute objections to Claims and other retained Causes of Action to the extent preserved by the Plan). Such settlement, as reflected in the relative distributions and recoveries or other benefits provided to holders of Claims or Interests under the Plan, (i) will save the Debtors and their Estates the costs and expenses of prosecuting various disputes, the outcome of which is likely to consume substantial resources of the Debtors' Estates and require substantial time to adjudicate, and (ii) has facilitated the creation and implementation of the Plan and benefits of the Debtors' Estates and creditors. Accordingly, such settlement is fair and reasonable.

N. Releases, Exculpations and Injunctions. Pursuant to Section 1123(b)(3) of the Bankruptcy Code and Bankruptcy Rule 9019(a), the settlements, compromises, releases, discharges, exculpations and injunctions set forth in Sections 10.2 and 10.3 of the Plan and herein, and implemented by this Confirmation Order, are fair, equitable, reasonable and in the best interests of the Debtors, the Reorganized Debtors and their Estates, creditors and equity holders. The releases of non-Debtors under the Plan are fair to holders of Claims and are necessary to the proposed reorganization, thereby satisfying the requirements of In re Continental Airlines, Inc., 203 F.3d 203, 214 (3d Cir. 2000) and In re Zenith Electronics Corp., 241 B.R. 92, 110-11 (Bankr. D. Del. 1999). The record of the Confirmation Hearing and these Bankruptcy Cases is sufficient to support the releases, exculpations, and injunctions provided for in Article X of the Plan and herein.

O. Assumption and Rejection of Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases. Article VII of the Plan governing the assumption and rejection of executory contracts and unexpired leases satisfies the requirements of all applicable provisions of Section 365 of the Bankruptcy Code. The assumption or rejection of any executory contract or unexpired lease pursuant to Article VII of the Plan, the Notice of Assumption and this Confirmation Order shall be legal, valid, and binding upon the applicable Debtor or Reorganized Debtor and all parties to such executory contract or unexpired lease to the same extent as if such assumption or rejection had been effectuated pursuant to an order of the Court entered before the confirmation of the Plan.

P. Assumption and Assignment of Certain Indemnity Agreements. Sea Launch Limited Partnership, is a party to certain prepetition and postpetition indemnity agreements with The Standard Steamship Owners' Protection and Indemnity Association (Bermuda) Limited (the "Club"): The P&I Defence Rules and Correspondents 2008/2009 (the "2008 Policy"), The P&I Defence Rules and Correspondents 2009/2010 (the "2009 Policy"), and The P&I Defence Rules and Correspondents 2010/2011 (the "2010 Policy"). Sea Launch Limited Partnership and the Club are also parties to similar indemnity agreements for the years 2004 through 2007. Sea

Launch ACS Limited and Platform Limited Partnership are additional insured parties under the Policies and assumption and assignment of such Agreements is hereby approved.

Q. New Investment Agreement. The Debtors and Energia Overseas and their respective professionals have negotiated in good faith and at arms-length the New Investment Agreement, pursuant to which Energia Overseas has agreed to provide one hundred and fifty-five million dollars ($155,000,000),[6] to be invested in exchange for ninety-five percent (95%) of the New Common Stock in Reorganized Sea Launch, less the conversion, as requested by Energia Overseas, of some or all of the outstanding amounts due to Energia Overseas under the DIP Facility Agreement. The New Investment Agreement forms an integral component of the Plan, represents a fair and reasonable exercise of the Debtors' and Reorganized Debtors' business judgment and is vital to the effectuation and implementation of the Plan. The final execution of the New Investment Agreement, in substantially the form filed with the Bankruptcy Court, and the effectuation of the same are approved by this Confirmation Order.

R. Exit Financing. On the Effective Date, the Reorganized Debtors shall enter into the Exit Financing Credit Agreement, as guarantors of the $200,000,000 provided thereunder by Energia Overseas to Energia Logistics Ltd. The Exit Financing Credit Agreement was negotiated between the Debtors, Energia Overseas and Energia Logistics Ltd., and was negotiated in good faith and at arm's length. The Exit Financing Credit Agreement forms an integral component of the Plan, represents a fair and reasonable exercise of the Debtors' and Reorganized Debtors' business judgment and is vital to the effectuation and implementation of the Debtors' Plan. The terms of the Plan and the Exit Financing Credit Agreement are in the best interests of the Reorganized Debtors, the Debtors and their Estates, creditors and other parties in interest. All of the liens and security interests to be created under the Exit Financing Credit Agreement are hereby approved. The New Investor has made the necessary filings to establish itself as a Delaware Limited Liability Company and, along with the Reorganized Debtors, is authorized to make all flings and recordings, and to obtain all governmental approvals and consents necessary to establish and perfect such liens and security interests under the provisions of state, provincial, federal or other law (whether domestic or foreign) that would be applicable in the absence of this Confirmation Order and no further order or authorization shall be required. The Reorganized Debtors shall cooperate to make all other filings and recordings that otherwise would be necessary under applicable law and to give notice of such liens and security interests to third parties of the Reorganized Debtors, the Debtors and their Estates, creditors and other parties in interest.

S. Exemption from Securities Laws. Pursuant to Section 1125(e) of the Bankruptcy Code, the Debtors' transmittal of the Plan solicitation materials as set forth herein, their solicitation of acceptances of the Plan, and the Reorganized Debtors' issuance and distribution of the New Common Stock, the Preferred Stock and the Creditor Trust Equity Interests pursuant to the Plan, are not and will not be governed by or subject to any otherwise applicable law, rule, or regulation governing the solicitation or acceptance of a plan of reorganization or the offer, issuance, sale, or purchase of securities.

Energia Overseas and the Creditor Trust are successors to the Debtors under the Plan for purposes of Section 1145 of the Bankruptcy Code and, accordingly, pursuant to, and to the fullest extent permitted under, Section 1145 of the Bankruptcy Code, Section 4(2) of the Securities Act of 1933, and any other applicable state or federal securities law, the offer, issuance, distribution, conversion, transfer or exchange of the New Common Stock, the Preferred Stock and the Creditor Trust Equity Interests (to the extent such interests are a security) are exempted from the registration requirements of the Securities Act of 1933, any similar state securities or "blue sky" laws and any other applicable law requiring registration prior to the offering, issuance distribution or sale of securities to the extent otherwise appropriate.

In addition, under Section 1145 of the Bankruptcy Code, any securities contemplated by the Plan, including the New Common Stock, the Preferred Stock and the Creditor Trust Equity Interests, will be freely tradable by the recipients thereof, subject to (i) the provisions of Section 1145(b) of the Bankruptcy Code relating to the definition of an underwriter in Section 2(a)(11) of the Securities Act of 1933, and compliance with any rules and regulations of the Securities and Exchange Commission, if any, applicable at the time of any future transfer of such securities or instruments; and (ii) the restrictions, if any, on the transferability of such securities and instruments under the Plan and the Plan Documents, including but not limited to the Shareholders' Agreement.

T. Plan's Compliance with Bankruptcy Code (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(1)). The Plan complies with the applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code, including, without limitation, Sections 1122 and 1123, thereby satisfying Section 1129(a)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(i) Proper Classification (11 U.S.C. §§ 1122, 1123(a)(1)). In addition to Administrative Claims and Priority Tax Claims, which are not and do not need to be classified, the Plan designates separate Classes of Claims and interests for and against the Debtors. The Claims and interests placed in each Class are substantially similar to other Claims and Interests, as the case may be, in each such Class. Valid business, factual and legal reasons exist for separately classifying the various Classes of Claims and Interests created under the Plan, and such Classes do not unfairly discriminate between holders of Claims and Interests or the holders of such Claims and Interests have consented to such classification. Thus, the Plan satisfies Sections 1122 and 1123(a)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(ii) Specify Unimpaired Classes (11 U.S.C. § 1123(a)(2)). Article II of the Plan specifies that Class 1—Priority Claims, Class 2—Other Secured Claims, and Class 9—Subsidiary Interests are not impaired in that the legal, equitable or contractual rights of Holders of Claims or Interests in these Classes are not altered under the Plan, which satisfies Section 1123(a)(2) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(iii) Specify Treatment of Impaired Classes (11 U.S.C. § 1123(a)(3)). Article II of the Plan designates Class 3—Current Trade Vendor Unsecured Claims, Class 4—Customer or Trade Vendor Unsecured Claims, Class 5—Aker and Boeing Claims, Class 6—RSC Energia Claims, Class 7—Yuzhmash and Yuzhnoye Claims, and Class 8—Sea Launch Equity Interests as impaired under the Plan and Article III of the Plan specifies the treatment of Claims and Interests in those Classes, which satisfies Section 1123(a)(3) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(iv) No Discrimination (11 U.S.C. § 1123(a)(4)). Article III of the Plan provides for the same treatment by the Debtors for each Claim or Interest in each respective Class unless the Holder of a particular Claim or Interest has agreed to a less favorable treatment of such Claim or Interest, which satisfies Section 1123(a)(4) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(v) Implementation of the Plan (11 U.S.C. § 1123(a)(5)). Article V of the Plan contains numerous provisions to adequately facilitate implementation of the Plan, including, without limitation, provisions for the following: (i) the continued corporate existence of the Debtors; (ii) the cancellation of the Sea Launch Equity Interests on or before the Effective Date; (iii) the vesting of assets in Reorganized Sea Launch and certain of the Reorganized Debtors free and clear of all Claims, Liens, charges other encumbrances and interests on or before the Effective Date; (iv) the transfer of Reorganized Sea Launch from the State of Delaware to Berne, Canton of Berne in Switzerland; (v) the approval that Reorganized Sea Launch shall become a Swiss corporation (Aktiengesellschaft or "AG") and that the name of Reorganized Sea Launch shall be "Sea Launch AG" and its corporate purpose shall be that set forth in the Articles of Incorporation; (vi) the adoption and the filing of Articles of Incorporation; (vii) the entry into the New Investor Agreement; (viii) the entry by the New Investor, RSC Energia, Reorganized Sea Launch and the Creditor Trust into the Shareholder Agreement; (ix) the formation of a Creditor Trust and the entry into a Creditor Trust Agreement, including the appointment of a Creditor Trust Manager, who shall act as the intermediate shareholder for the Creditor Trust and to vote on its behalf; (x) the appointment of directors and officers of the Reorganized Debtors; (xi) the issuance and distribution of the New Common Stock to the New Investor and the Creditor Trust; (xii) the issuance of the Preferred Stock to RSC Energia and the funding of the Creditor Trust; (xiii) the cancelation and release of all Liens, and the further requirement that all Holder of Liens take all actions requested by the Debtors or the Reorganized Debtors to evidence their release; (xiv) entry by the Reorganized Debtors into the Exit Financing Credit Agreement and all related notes, guarantees, documents and agreements in connection therewith; (xv) the adoption by the Reorganized Debtors of any obligations owing under the SLEIP; (xvi) the termination of the Debtors' current boards of directors and the designation of the initial directors of the Reorganized Debtors; and (xvii) authorization to take all necessary corporate actions. The Plan provides adequate and proper means for its implementation, which satisfies Section 1123(a)(5) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(vi) Non-Voting Equity Securities (11 U.S.C. § 1123(a)(6)). The Articles of Incorporation for the Reorganized Debtors, attached to the Plan Supplement as Exhibits 1(a) and 1(b), initially prohibit the issuance of nonvoting equity securities and otherwise comply with the requirements of Section 1123(a)(6) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(vii) Selection of Officers, Directors and the Trustee (11 U.S.C. § 1123(a)(7)). Pursuant to Section 5.4(b) of the Plan and as set forth in the List of Directors and Officers for Sea Launch and the Reorganized Debtors attached to the Plan Supplement as Exhibit 9, as revised on July 19, 2010, eight (8) individuals have been identified to serve on the board of directors of Reorganized Sea Launch and eight (8) executive officers have been designated. As required by Section 1123(a)(7) of the Bankruptcy Code, the Debtors and the New Investor have selected the directors and officers in a manner consistent with the interests of creditors and equity security holders and with public policy. Section 5.8(c) the Plan and the Creditor Trust Agreement provide for the selection of the Creditor Trust Manager. The selection of the initial directors and officers of the Reorganized Debtors and the Creditor Trust Manager, and the procedures for the selection of their successors, are consistent with the interests of Holders of Claims and Interests and public policy.

(viii) Additional Provisions of the Plan (11 U.S.C. § 1123(b)). The Plan contains additional permissive provisions, including, without limitation: (i) Section 7.1 of the Plan provides for the assumption of certain executory contracts; (ii) Section 7.3 of the Plan provides for the assignment of all contracts, agreements and leases entered into or assumed by the Debtors after the Petition Date to the Reorganized Debtors or to an affiliate of the New Investor in accordance with the terms of the New Investment Agreement; (iii) Section 8.1 of the Plan Authorizes the Debtors and the Reorganized Debtors to object to the allowance of any Claim and empowers them to allow or settle the claims without notice to any party or approval of, or notice to, the Bankruptcy Court; (iv) Sections 10.2(b) and 10.2(c) of the Plan provide for optional releases as of the Effective Date by the Debtors, the Reorganized Debtors and all Holders of Claims or Interests of, among other things, claims, rights and causes of action that the Debtors may have against, among others, the present and former officers and directors of the Debtors, and the attorneys, accountants, investment bankers, restructuring consultants and financial advisors of each of the Debtors; (v) Section 10.2(f) provides that all consideration exchanged under the Plan shall be in exchange for, and in complete satisfaction, settlement, discharge and release of, all Claims and Interests of any nature whatsoever against the Debtors or any of their Estates, assets, properties or interest in property; and (vi) Section 10.2(g) of the Plan provides that the Debtors and their Estates shall retain their Causes of Action, and the Reorganized Debtors, as successors in interest to the Debtors and the Estates, may enforce, sue on settle or compromise any or all of the Causes of Action. The injunctions and stays issued pursuant to Section 10.3 of the Plan preserve and enforce the releases granted by the Plan and are narrowly tailored to achieve that purpose. Such provisions, and all other provisions of the Plan are consistent with Section 1123(b)(6) of the Bankruptcy Code, and not inconsistent with the applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code.

U. Compliance with Bankruptcy Rule 3016. The Plan is dated and identifies the entities submitting it, thereby satisfying Bankruptcy Rule 3016(a). The filing of the Disclosure Statement with the Court satisfies Bankruptcy Rule 3016(b). The Plan describes in specific and conspicuous language all acts to be enjoined under the Plan and identifies all entities that are subject to the injunctions set forth in the Plan in accordance with Bankruptcy Rule 3016(c).

V. Compliance with Bankruptcy Rule 3018. As set forth more fully in Paragraphs D, E, and F above, the solicitation of votes to accept or reject the Plan satisfies Bankruptcy Rule 3018. The Solicitation Materials described in Finding D, above, including the Plan, were transmitted to all creditors entitled to vote on the Plan (i.e., Holders of Impaired Claims, other than those in Classes deemed to reject the Plan pursuant to Section 1126(g) of the Bankruptcy Code), sufficient time was prescribed for the Voting Parties to accept or reject the Plan, and the Solicitation Materials and related solicitation procedures comply with Section 1126 of the Bankruptcy Code, thereby satisfying the requirements of Bankruptcy Rule 3018.

W. Debtors' Compliance with Bankruptcy Code (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(2)). The Debtors have complied with the applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code, the Bankruptcy Rules and the Solicitation Order in transmitting the Plan, the Disclosure Statement, and the Solicitation Materials in soliciting and tabulating votes on the Plan and have otherwise complied with the provisions of Title 11, thereby satisfying Section 1129(a)(2) of the Bankruptcy Code.

X. Plan Proposed in Good Faith (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(3)). The Debtors have proposed the Plan in good faith and not by any means forbidden by law, thereby satisfying Section 1129(a)(3) of the Bankruptcy Code. The Plan is designed to allow the Debtors to reorganize on a going concern basis while maximizing recoveries to their creditors. Moreover, the Plan itself, the process leading to its formation, and the support for the Plan received from the Voting Parties provides independent evidence of the Debtors' good faith. The Debtors, the New Investor and their predecessors, successors and assigns (whether by operation of law or otherwise) and their respective present and former affiliates and subsidiaries and each of their respective current and former members, partners, equity holders, officers, directors, employees, managers, shareholders, financial advisors, attorneys, accountants, investment bankers, consultants, agents, and professionals, or other representatives have acted in "good faith" within the meaning of Section 1125(e) of the Bankruptcy Code, thus satisfying the "good faith" requirement of Section 1129(a)(3). Further, the Plan is the product of extensive, arm's length negotiations among the Debtors, the Committee, the Debtors' investors and partners, the Debtors' customers, the New Investor and each of their respective representatives, and reflects the results of these arm's length negotiations and embodies the best interests of all of the constituencies of the Debtors' Estates. In determining that the Plan has been proposed in good faith, this Court has examined the totality of the circumstances surrounding the formulation of the Plan.

Y. Payments for Services or Costs and Expenses (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(4)). Any payment made or to be made by the Debtors or by any person issuing securities or acquiring property under the Plan, for services or for costs and expenses in or in connection with the Bankruptcy Cases, or in connection with the Plan and incident to the Bankruptcy Cases, has been disclosed to this Court. Any such payment made on a final basis before confirmation of the Plan is reasonable and any such payment to be fixed or approved on a final basis after confirmation of the Plan is subject to Court approval, as reasonable. The Plan therefore satisfies Section 1129(a)(4) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Z. Directors, Officers and Insiders (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(5)). Pursuant to Section 1129(a)(5) of the Bankruptcy Code, the Debtors disclosed the identity and affiliations of the proposed directors and officers of the Reorganized Debtors in Exhibit 9, as revised, to the Plan Supplement. The manner in which the directors and officers were chosen was disclosed in Section 5.4(b) of the Plan. The appointment of the proposed directors and officers is consistent with the interests of the Holders of Claims and Interests and with public policy. The provisions are consistent with the requirements of Section 1129(a)(5) and are in the best interests of Creditors and therefore, the Plan satisfies the requirements of Section 1129(a)(5) of the Bankruptcy Code.

AA. No Rate Changes (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(6)). The Plan does not provide for the change of any rates subject to the oversight of a governmental regulatory commission. Thus, Section 1129(a)(6) of the Bankruptcy Code is inapplicable.

BB. Best Interests Test (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(7)). The Plan satisfies Section 1129(a)(7) of the Bankruptcy Code. The Voting Declaration and the liquidation analysis attached as Exhibit C to the Disclosure Statement (the "Liquidation Analysis") indicate that each Holder of a Claim or Interest in an Impaired Class has either accepted the Plan or will receive or retain under the Plan on account of such Claim or Interest property of a value, as of the Effective Date, that is not less than the amount such Holder would receive or retain in a Chapter 7 liquidation. The Liquidation Analysis, including the methodology used and estimations and assumptions made therein, and the evidence related thereto that was proffered at the Confirmation Hearing, (a) are persuasive and credible as of the dates such evidence was prepared, presented or proffered, (b) either have not been controverted by other persuasive evidence or have not been challenged, (c) are based upon reasonable and sound assumptions, and (d) provide a reasonable estimate of the liquidation value of the Debtors' Estates upon conversion to Chapter 7 proceedings. Because each Holder of Claims or Interests in each Class has either (i) accepted the Plan, or (ii) will receive at least as much under the Plan as they would under a Chapter 7 liquidation, the Plan satisfies Section 1129(a)(7) of the Bankruptcy Code.

CC. Acceptance or Rejection by Certain Classes (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(8)). Each of Class 1—Priority Non-Tax Claims, Class 2—Other Secured Claims and Class 9—Subsidiary Interests are not impaired under the Plan and are conclusively presumed to have accepted the Plan under Section 1126(f) of the Bankruptcy Code. Each of Class 3—Current Trade Vendor Unsecured Claims, Class 4—Non-Insider General Unsecured Claims, Class 5—Aker and Boeing Claims, and Class 6—RSC Energia Claims, and Class 7—Yuzhmash and Yuzhnoye Claims has voted to accept the Plan in accordance with Section 1126(c) of the Bankruptcy Code. Class 8—Sea Launch Equity Interests are deemed to have rejected the Plan pursuant to Section 1126(g) of the Bankruptcy Code because such Holders are not entitled to receive or retain any distribution or property under the Plan on account of such Interests and, therefore, the Debtors were not required to solicit votes to accept or reject the Plan from Holders of Class 8 Interests. Although Section 1129(a)(8) has not been satisfied with respect to Class 8, the Plan may still be confirmed because the Plan satisfies Section 1129(b) of the Bankruptcy Code with respect to such Class. As set forth in the Voting Declaration, and as announced by Boeing, Aker and Yuzhmash at the Confirmation Hearing with regard to their changed votes, the percentages of Holders of Claims in the Classes entitled to vote on the Plan that voted to accept or reject the Plan are as follows:

Plan Class of Impaired Creditors	% of Dollar Amount of Claims Voting to Accept the Plan	% of Number of Holders Voting to Accept the Plan	% of Dollar Amount of Claims Voting to Reject the Plan	% of Number of Holders Voting to Reject the Plan
Class 3	$52,813.17 (85.61%)	17 (94.44%)	$8,873,83 (14.39%)	1 (5.56%)
Class 4	$258,292,693.20 (94.85%)	10 (90.91%)	$14,023,500.00 (5.15%)	1 (9.09%)
Class 5	$57,000,000.00 (100%)	3 (100%)	$0.00 (0%)	0 (0%)
Class 6	$79,697,109.00 (100%)	3 (100%)	$0.00 (0%)	0 (0%)
Class 7	$76,000,000.00 (100%)	1 (100%)	$0.00 (0%)	0 (0%)

DD. Treatment of Administrative, Priority and Tax Claims (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(9)). The Plan provides for treatment of Allowed Claims entitled to priority pursuant to Section 507(a)(2)-(8) of the Bankruptcy Code in the manner required by Section 1129(a)(9) of the Bankruptcy Code.

EE. Acceptance By Impaired Class (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(10)). Class 3—Current Trade Vendor Unsecured Claims, Class 4—Customer or Trade Vendor Unsecured Claims, Class 5—Aker and Boeing Claims, Class 6—RSC Energia Claims and Class 7—Yuzhmash and Yuzhnoye Claims are each impaired and have each voted to accept the Plan in accordance with Sections 1126(c) of the Bankruptcy Code, thereby satisfying the requirements of Section 1129(a)(10) of the Bankruptcy Code.

FF. Feasibility (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(11)). The Plan is feasible as the Debtors have demonstrated, through the projected financial information provided as Exhibit B to the Disclosure Statement (the "Projections") and evidence proffered or adduced at the Confirmation Hearing, that confirmation of the Plan is not likely to be followed by the liquidation, or the need for further financial reorganization, of the Debtors, the Reorganized Debtors or any successor to the Reorganized Debtors. The Plan therefore complies with Section 1129(a)(11) of the Bankruptcy Code.

GG. Payment of Fees (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(12)). Section 12.15 of the Plan provides that the Debtors, or Reorganized Debtors as the case may be, will pay any fees due to the United States Trustee as they become due. Section 12.7 of the Plan further provides that all fees payable pursuant to Section 1930 of Title 28 of the United States Code, as determined by the Bankruptcy Court at the Confirmation Hearing, shall be paid on the Effective Date. Therefore the Plan meets the requirements of Section 1129(a)(12) of the Bankruptcy Code.

HH. Retiree Benefits (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(13)). The Debtors have no obligation to pay for retiree benefits and therefore Section 1129(a)(13) is not applicable to the Plan.

II. Payment of Domestic Support Obligations (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(14)). The Debtors are not required by any judicial or administrative order, or by statute, to pay any domestic support obligation and Section 1129(a)(14) is therefore inapplicable to the Plan.

JJ. Certain Payments by Individual Debtors (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(15)). The Debtors are not individuals and therefore Section 1129(a)(15) is inapplicable to the Plan.

KK. Transfers of property of a Debtor that is not a moneyed interest (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(16)). The Debtors are for-profit corporations or partnerships and Section 1129(a)(16) by its terms applies only to corporations and trusts that are not "moneyed, business, or commercial." Section 1129(a)(16) is therefore inapplicable to the Plan.

LL. No Unfair Discrimination; Fair and Equitable (11 U.S.C. § 1129(b)). Holders of Interests in Class 8 are impaired and are deemed to have rejected the Plan. The Debtors presented uncontroverted evidence at the Confirmation Hearing that the Plan does not discriminate unfairly and is fair and equitable with respect to Class 8 as required by the "cramdown" requirements of Section 1129(b)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code. Thus, the Court may confirm the Plan notwithstanding the Debtors' failure to satisfy Section 1129(a)(8) of the Bankruptcy Code. On the Effective Date, the Plan will be binding upon Holders of Interests in Class 8.

MM. Principal Purpose (11 U.S.C. § 1129(d)). The avoidance of Section 5 of the Securities Act of 1933 is not the principal purpose of the Plan, nor is the avoidance of taxes or any provision of applicable tax law a principal purpose of the plan, and no governmental unit has objected to the confirmation of the Plan asserting such avoidance. The Plan, therefore, satisfies the requirements of Section 1129(d) of the Bankruptcy Code.

NN. Good Faith Solicitation (11 U.S.C. § 1125(e)). Based on the record in these Bankruptcy Cases, the Debtors and their directors, officers, employees, advisors and attorneys have acted in "good faith" within the meaning of Section 1125(e) of the Bankruptcy Code and Bankruptcy Rules in compliance with all of their respective activities related to the solicitation of acceptances of the Plan and their participation in the activities described in Section 1125 of the Bankruptcy Code and, accordingly, such parties are entitled to the protections afforded by Section 1125(e) of the Bankruptcy Code and the exculpation provisions set forth in Article X of the Plan. Based upon the Court's review of the amendments and modifications embodied in the Plan, no further solicitation or resolicitation is necessary.

OO. Satisfaction of Confirmation Requirements. The Plan satisfies the requirements for confirmation set forth in Section 1129 of the Bankruptcy Code.

PP. Energia Overseas Expense Reimbursement. The reimbursement of the reasonable fees, costs, and expenses incurred by Energia Overseas in connection with the Exit Financing is reasonable and appropriate and does not violate any provision of the Bankruptcy Code.

QQ. SLEIP. The Sea Launch Employee Incentive Plan, as adopted by the Reorganized Debtors by virtue of Section 5.7 of the Plan, is reasonable and justified under the facts and circumstances of these Bankruptcy Cases and is permissible under and does not violate any provision of the Bankruptcy Code including, without limitation, Section 503(c) of the Bankruptcy Code. The only remaining amount owing under the terms of the SLEIP is equal to $857,527.53 in the aggregate, of which $601,764 is owing to management, and no other amounts shall be due and payable thereunder.

RR. Retention of Jurisdiction. Pursuant to Sections 105(a) and 1142 of the Bankruptcy Code, and notwithstanding the entry of this Confirmation Order or the occurrence of the Effective Date, this Court, except as otherwise provided in the Plan or herein, shall retain exclusive jurisdiction over all matters arising out of, and related to, these Bankruptcy Cases and the Plan to the fullest extent permitted by law, including, but not limited to, the matters set forth in Article XI of the Plan.

4. Plan Classification Controlling. The classifications of Claims and Interests for purposes of distributions under the Plan shall be governed solely by the terms of the Plan. The classifications included in the Ballots tendered to or returned by the Holders of Claims for purposes of voting on the Plan (a) were included in the Ballots solely for purposes of voting on the Plan; (b) do not necessarily represent and in no event shall be deemed to modify or otherwise affect the actual classification of such Claims under the Plan for distribution purposes; (c) may not be relied upon by any Holder of a Claim as representing the actual classification of such Claims under the Plan for distribution purposes; and (d) shall not be binding on the Debtors or on the Reorganized Debtors.

5. Provisions of Plan and Order Non-severable and Mutually Dependent. The provisions of the Plan and this Confirmation Order, including the findings of fact and conclusions of law set forth herein, are non-severable and mutually dependent.

6. Record Closed. The record of the Confirmation Hearing is hereby closed.

7. Notice. As established by the Solicitation Mailing Affidavit, and as set forth in Paragraph F above, the Debtors provided good and sufficient notice of the Confirmation Hearing and the deadline for filing and serving objections to the Plan and Disclosure Statement, which notice is hereby approved.

8. Authorization and Direction to Act. In accordance with Section 1142 of the Bankruptcy Code, Section 213 of the Delaware Limited Liability Company Act, and any other applicable law of any jurisdiction, the Debtors, the Reorganized Debtors and each other appropriate party are hereby authorized and directed to take all steps and perform such acts as may be necessary, desirable or appropriate, to comply with, implement and effectuate the Plan, whether or not such action is specifically contemplated by the Plan, the Plan Documents or this Confirmation Order.

No further approval by the Bankruptcy Court shall be required for any action, transaction or agreement that the management of the Debtors, or the directors of the Reorganized Debtors determines is necessary or appropriate to implement the Investment Agreement and effectuate or consummate the Plan, whether or not such action, transaction or agreement is specifically contemplated in the Plan or the Confirmation Order. This Confirmation Order shall further constitute all approvals, consents and directions required for management of the Debtors or the Directors of the Reorganized Debtors to act consistent with the Plan and the New Investment Agreement, if any, by the laws, rules, and regulations of all states and any other governmental authority with respect to the implementation or consummation of the Plan including each of the Corporate Transaction Reorganization steps, and any documents, instruments, or agreements, and any other acts and transactions referred to in or contemplated by the Plan and the Plan Supplement.

Unless specifically directed by this Confirmation Order, no further action of the Debtors or the Reorganized Debtors, or their respective members or partners, boards of directors, officers, managers or shareholders, including, but not limited to, the owners of the Sea Launch Equity Interests shall be necessary to perform any act to comply with, implement and effectuate the Plan. The approvals and authorizations specifically set forth in this Confirmation Order are nonexclusive and are not intended to limit the authority of any Debtor or Reorganized Debtor or any officer, director, partner or member thereof as the case may be, and their agents, to take any and all actions necessary or appropriate to implement, effectuate and consummate any and all documents or transactions contemplated by the Plan, the Plan Documents or this Confirmation Order.

The authorized and mandated actions include, but are not limited to, the Corporate Reorganization Transaction Steps. The obligations under such executed and delivered Plan Documents shall constitute legal, valid, binding and authorized obligations of each of the respective parties thereto, enforceable in accordance with their terms without the need for any shareholder or board of directors' approval.

In particular, the Corporation Reorganization Transactions Steps that all parties are authorized and directed to take prior to or on the Effective Date include, but are not limited to:

9. Binding Effect. In accordance with Section 1141 of the Bankruptcy Code, the Plan shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the Debtors, the Reorganized Debtors, any person acquiring or receiving property under the Plan, any party to a contract with the Debtors, any lessor or lessee of property to or from the Debtors and any Holder of a Claim against or Interest in the Debtors, whether or not such Claim or Interest is Impaired under the Plan and whether or not such Holder will receive or retain any property or interest in property under the Plan, has filed a Proof of Claim in the Bankruptcy Cases or failed to vote to accept or reject the Plan or affirmatively voted to reject the Plan, and the respective successors and assigns, if any, of the foregoing. Pursuant to Sections 1123(a) and 1142(a) of the Bankruptcy Code and the provisions of this Confirmation Order, the Plan, and all documents related to the Plan shall apply and be enforceable notwithstanding any otherwise applicable non-bankruptcy law. The rights, benefits, and obligations of any Debtor, Reorganized Debtor, Holder of a Claim or Interest or any other person or entity named or referred to in the Plan shall be binding on, and shall inure to the benefit of any heir, executor, administrator, successor or assign, affiliate, officer, director, agent, representative, attorney, beneficiaries, or guardian, if any, of each Debtor, Reorganized Debtor, Holder of a Claim or Interest or any other person or entity.

10. Vesting of Assets Free and Clear of Claims and Interests. Upon Confirmation of the Plan, and except as otherwise provided in the Plan, the Plan Documents or the Confirmation Order, all property of the Estates of the Debtors, including all Causes of Action (including Creditor Trust Actions unless expressly assigned to the Creditor Trust) and any property acquired by the Debtors or the Reorganized Debtors under or in connection with this Plan, shall vest in the Reorganized Debtors free and clear of all Claims, Liens, charges, other encumbrances and Interests. Such vesting does not constitute a voidable transfer under the Bankruptcy Code or applicable non-bankruptcy law. On and after the Effective Date, the Debtors and the Reorganized Debtors may operate their businesses and may use, acquire and dispose of property and compromise or settle any Claims without supervision of or approval by the Bankruptcy Court and free and clear of any restrictions of the Bankruptcy Code or the Bankruptcy Rules, other than restrictions expressly imposed by this Plan or the Confirmation Order. Without limiting the foregoing, the Reorganized Debtors may pay the charges that they incur on or after the Effective Date for professionals' fees, disbursements, expenses or related support services without application to the Bankruptcy Court.

11. Cancellation of DIP Facility Claims. On the Effective Date, except as otherwise provided in the Plan or herein, in full satisfaction, settlement, release, and discharge of and in exchange for each DIP Facility Claim, all Allowed DIP Facility Claims shall, at the election of the DIP Lender, either (a) be paid in full and in Cash from the proceeds of the Exit Financing, or (b) be converted into New Common Stock to the extent requested by the DIP Lender in accordance with the DIP Facility Agreement, and, in each case, all commitments under the DIP Facility Agreement shall be canceled. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, the liens and security interests securing the DIP Facility Claims shall continue in full force and effect until such time as the Allowed DIP Facility Claims have been paid in full and in Cash or converted into New Common Stock, after which such liens and security interests shall be deemed canceled.

12. Release of Liens. DECLARATION OF MATTHEW DOHENY, CHIEF RESTRUCTURING OFFICER OF THE DEBTORS, IN SUPPORT OF CHAPTER 11 PETITIONS AND FIRST DAY MOTIONS IN COMPLIANCE WITH LOCAL RULE 1007-2

I, Matthew A. Doheny, hereby declare under penalty of perjury:

1. I am the President of North Country Capital, an advisory and investment firm focused on challenging advisory assignments and special situation opportunities. I am the Chief Restructuring Officer of each of the above-captioned debtors (collectively, the "Debtors"). I was appointed to this role effective April 2021. Prior to my retention by the Debtors, I served as a director or chair of the board of several companies undergoing financial restructuring or other chapter 11 and distressed scenarios. I also worked for 18 years as a managing director or portfolio manager focused on special situations at HSBC Securities Inc., Fintech Advisory Inc., and Deutsche Bank Securities Inc. Prior to that I spent five years as a corporate and restructuring attorney with several New York law firms. I hold a J.D. from Cornell Law School and a B.A. from Alleghany College.

2. I submit this declaration pursuant to Rule 1007-2 of the Local Bankruptcy Rules for the Southern District of New York (the "Local Rules") to provide an overview of the Debtors, their history, and the Debtors' chapter 11 petitions (the "Chapter 11 Cases"), as well as to support the Debtors' chapter 11 petitions and the motions seeking various types of "first day" relief (collectively, the "First Day Motions"). I am generally familiar with the facts set forth below, including the Debtors' financial affairs and books and records. Except as otherwise indicated, all facts set forth in this declaration are based upon my personal knowledge of the Debtors, information learned from my review of relevant documents, information supplied to me by other members of management of the Debtors and by the Debtors' professional advisors. I am authorized to submit this declaration on behalf of the Debtors, and, if called upon to testify, I could and would testify competently to the facts set forth below.

3. The Debtors are investment funds and affiliated entities that have been ready to wind up and pay out their remaining assets to their limited partners for many years. The Debtors' efforts have been hamstrung by several litigations filed abroad that seek to recover assets in the United States, held almost exclusively by entities formed in the United States, under legal theories that run counter either to prior res judicata determinations by U.S. courts or settled U.S. law. The sum total of these speculative claims exceed the Debtors' assets and have thus far prevented the Debtors from distributing assets to their stakeholders.

4. The Debtors face three primary fronts of litigation, all of which are counter to established U.S. law and cannot result in a judgment enforceable in the United States against the Debtors and their assets.

5. First, as described in detail below, the Debtors were subjected to an arbitration award in Brazil in 2010. The United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit has since determined fully and finally that the arbitration award was rendered against the Debtors without jurisdiction over them, because the Debtors never consented to arbitration in Brazil, and thus the award is unenforceable in the United States as a matter of U.S. public policy and the fundamental interests of the United States. The award creditor, having lost its effort to enforce the award in the United States, then sought a second bite at the apple by pursuing enforcement of the same award in the Cayman Islands, the only other jurisdiction in which one of the Debtors is organized.[2] The Cayman trial court determined that the award was also unenforceable in the Cayman Islands, but an intermediate appellate court reversed the trial court and upheld the award in 2020. A further appeal of that decision is now pending, but regardless of the outcome, a Cayman judgment enforcing an arbitration award that the U.S. courts have already determined, res judicata, is not enforceable in the United States cannot be satisfied by assets located in the United States. The filing of the Chapter 11 Cases would appropriately place before this Court any dispute over the enforceability against U.S. assets of a Cayman judgment upholding a Brazilian arbitration award that U.S. courts have already determined is unenforceable in the United States.

6. Second, the Debtors have been targeted in litigation in Brazil by the bankruptcy administrator of the estate of their former Brazilian investment vehicle, for claims that are based on factual allegations dating from more than a decade ago, and which were expressly released and indemnified under the terms of two New York law and jurisdiction-governed contracts. Although the Debtors are of the firm position that these claims, in addition to being meritless, have already been fully released in accordance with U.S. law, even speculative actions caught in Brazil's legal system drag on, and this action is not anticipated to be finally resolved for a decade or more.

7. Finally, certain Debtors were joined in an enforcement proceeding in a Brazilian court for their portfolio company's failure to repay certain loans. The Debtors were not served until five and a half years after the court, ex parte, permitted them to be added to the action on an alter ego theory of liability. The joinder of the Debtors was premised on the baseless allegation that the Debtors were responsible for the "disappearance" of approximately R$24 million from the bank account of the portfolio company's bankruptcy counsel. In fact, the funds were used to pay prepetition claims and were fully accounted for in the bankruptcy proceeding. Nonetheless, the claimant was able to exploit the ex parte nature of the enforcement proceeding and present unchallenged "evidence" to falsely suggest to the Brazilian court that the Debtors had acted improperly. The ex parte proceedings and extensive delay have prejudiced the Debtors. But fundamentally, any resultant judgment against the Debtors in Brazil will have been procured by fraud and cannot be enforced in a U.S. court. A special appeal and full merits defense are pending in Brazil, but this action may also take many years to resolve.

8. The Debtors have filed the Chapter 11 Cases to prevent these meritless foreign litigations from undermining U.S. law in respect of the Debtors' U.S. assets, and to effect an orderly, consolidated dissolution and distribution of those U.S. assets to their legitimate stakeholders. Because the Debtors face litigation in multiple fora seeking recourse to the same assets, a centralized forum is necessary to fairly and expeditiously resolve any potential liabilities and to ensure that the Debtors' assets are liquidated and distributed in an efficient and equitable manner. This Court can manage the litigation in a singular, centralized forum to unshackle the Debtors and their stakeholders from foreign proceedings, the outcomes of which are not enforceable against the Debtors' U.S. assets as a matter of U.S. law, regardless of what the foreign courts may decide, so that the Debtors can finally wind up and rightfully distribute their U.S. assets to U.S. creditors and investors after so many years of delay.

OVERVIEW OF THE DEBTORS

9. As more fully described below, on the date hereof (the "Petition Date"), the Debtors commenced the Chapter 11 Cases by filing voluntary petitions in the Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York (the "Court"). The Debtors are also filing a limited number of "first day" pleadings, including (i) pleadings seeking relief intended to allow the Debtors to perform and meet those obligations that are necessary to fulfill their duties as debtors in possession in the Chapter 11 Cases, (ii) a chapter 11 plan of liquidation (the "Plan") and attendant disclosure statement (the "Disclosure Statement"), and (iii) a motion seeking to establish a claims bar date for the VRG, VarigLog and HJDK Claims described herein and approving the form and manner of notice thereof.

I. Background

A. The MP Funds

10. Debtors MatlinPatterson Global Opportunities Partners II L.P. ("MP Delaware") and MatlinPatterson Global Opportunities Partners (Cayman) II L.P. ("MP Cayman" and together with MP Delaware, the "MP Funds"), are private investment funds structured as limited partnership entities organized in the State of Delaware and the Cayman Islands, respectively, which together comprise MatlinPatterson Global Opportunities Fund II. The MP Funds (along with the other Debtors) are headquartered in New York.

11. While one of the Debtors is a Cayman Islands exempted limited partnership and another Debtor is a foreign registered company in the Cayman Islands, none of the Debtors has a substantial connection to the Cayman Islands. All of the Debtors have their principal place of business in New York, all of the Debtors' management is based in New York and all of the Debtors' material assets, namely the cash in their bank accounts, are held in the United States at banks in New York branches.

12. The MP Funds were formed in 2003 and together closed their capital raising in 2004 with $1.65 billion in capital commitments. The MP Funds specialize in distressed investing.

13. The MP Funds were funded primarily by institutional investors—principally financial institutions, insurance companies and corporate and government pension funds. They invested their capital in various companies, across a diverse range of industries around the world that were in or near insolvency or that otherwise faced difficult financial circumstances. The MP Funds sought a return on investment by acquiring and/or providing the capital financing and advisory expertise necessary to reorganize and restructure the companies in which they invested, to help those companies reverse their perilous financial circumstances.

14. As is typical of private investment funds of this nature, the MP Funds were comprised of both an onshore (Delaware) limited partnership and an offshore (Cayman Islands) limited partnership. As parallel limited partnerships, the MP Funds co-invested on a side-by-side basis, and shared the same investments and liabilities ratably based on their respective sizes. Investors could choose either of the MP Funds as their investment vehicle, depending on the legal, tax, regulatory or other similar considerations specific to each such investor.

15. As is also typical among private equity investment funds, the MP Funds structured their investments through special purpose entities ("SPEs"), which are often created or acquired to be subsidiaries of the MP Funds and invest in portfolio companies. The MP Funds' investments were operated at the portfolio-company level through SPEs, so that the portfolio companies operate independently of the MP Funds, and the MP Funds are better able to manage their investment risk.

B. Management of the MP Funds

16. Management of each of the MP Funds has historically been carried out by MatlinPatterson Global Partners II LLC, the general partner of the MP Funds (the "General Partner"). The General Partner is a limited liability company organized in the State of Delaware. It is also a foreign registered company in the Cayman Islands in connection with its role as the general partner of MP Cayman. The General Partner was formed in 2003 to serve as the general partner to, and manage and conduct the business and affairs of, the MP Funds and various alternative investment vehicles and parallel vehicles. The General Partner has also served as general partner to various SPEs through which portfolio investments are made. Prior to the Petition Date, the General Partner designated an affiliate of the MP Funds as liquidating trustee to manage the orderly wind up of the affairs of MP Delaware. The General Partner retains management authority to wind up the affairs of MP Cayman, as I understand is permitted under Cayman law.

17. The General Partner's management team was employed by Debtor MatlinPatterson Global Advisers LLC, a Delaware limited liability company ("MP Advisers"). However, all employees were terminated on December 31, 2020, and staffing personnel are now employed through Altemis, a third-party employment contractor. None of the other Debtors has any employees.

18. MP Advisers also acts as investment adviser to other, non-Debtor fund entities. None of the other Debtors has any operations beyond the management and ownership of the MP Funds and the related non-Debtor vehicles, including most of the remaining SPEs.

C. MP Funds Start Winding Up

19. Between 2004 and 2013, the MP Funds made a number of investments in financially-distressed companies in various sectors, including chemicals, utilities, metals, security services, fashion, textiles, manufacturing, food, finance, electronics and the air cargo and airline passenger industries.

20. The MP Funds are now at the end of their life. Their organizational documents triggered dissolution on September 30, 2013, and the MP Funds began to liquidate their assets and wind up their affairs. The MP Funds have already sold or liquidated all of their portfolio companies and a majority of the SPEs. The remaining SPEs have de minimis activities and are in the process of being liquidated.

21. To facilitate the wind up of the MP Funds, on September 27, 2018, Debtor MatlinPatterson PE Holdings LLC, the managing member of the General Partner, formed a new subsidiary entity MP GOP GP II LLC, a Delaware limited liability company ("MP GOP GP II"). On October 2, 2018, the General Partner delegated management of the liquidation of MP Delaware to MP GOP GP II and appointed it to serve as liquidating trustee (in such capacity, the "Liquidating Trustee") of MP Delaware. By its grant of authority from the General Partner, the Liquidating Trustee is charged with the proper distribution of the remainder of MP Delaware's assets to its creditors and limited partners.

22. Under Cayman law, as I understand, on the expiration of MP Cayman's term on September 30, 2013, the General Partner became charged with the responsibility of winding up the affairs of MP Cayman and distribution of its remaining assets. The General Partner retained authority over winding up the affairs of MP Cayman, and the same team manages the General Partner and the Liquidating Trustee as they oversee the orderly liquidation of the MP Funds and the distribution of their assets in accordance with their governing documents.

23. As detailed below, as of June 30, 2021, the Debtors' assets are comprised principally of $142 million in cash, all of which is held in bank accounts in the United States. In October 2020, MP Cayman entered into a Distribution and Contribution Agreement (as amended or modified from time to time, the "Contribution Agreement") with MatlinPatterson Global Opportunities Partners (SUB) II L.P., a Delaware limited partnership ("SUB II"), whereby MP Cayman transferred all of its assets and liabilities to SUB II (such assets together with the assets of MP Delaware, the "Fund II Assets") in exchange for the partnership interests in SUB II, which MP Cayman then distributed to its limited partners and general partner. Given the structure of the MP Funds, the events leading up to the commencement of the Chapter 11 Cases, and the fact that all of the material assets are held in the United States by U.S. entities, the administrative interests and position of MP Cayman are inextricably linked to those of the other Debtors and the Chapter 11 Cases.

24. Other than Volo Logistics LLC ("Volo Logistics"), the non-Debtor SPEs in which the MP Funds retain an interest are not anticipated to file any chapter 11 cases,[3] and are in the process of being liquidated under applicable non-bankruptcy law. Accordingly, the remaining SPEs are not expected to be affected by the commencement of the Chapter 11 Cases.

II. Organizational and Capital Structure

A. Organizational Structure

25. An organizational chart illustrating the corporate structure of the Debtors is annexed to this declaration as Exhibit A.

[3] Volo Logistics was included as a Debtor in these Chapter 11 Cases because it is a named defendant in the Variglog Brazil litigation.

B. The Debtors' Prepetition Capital Structure.

26. As of the Petition Date, the Debtors' sole funded indebtedness consists of three intercompany promissory notes held by Fund II-A (defined below) against the MP Funds in an aggregate principal amount outstanding, together with accrued and unpaid interest, of approximately $58.0 million as of June 30, 2021, secured by the Collateral Assignment and Security Agreement dated as of August 31, 2020 (described below).

1. Fund II-A Promissory Notes

27. The MP Funds are each a borrower under three separate intercompany promissory notes (the "Fund II-A Promissory Notes") under three secured note agreements, two dated December 4, 2009 and one dated September 14, 2011 (as may be amended, restated, supplemented or otherwise modified from time to time prior to the Petition Date, the "Promissory Note Agreements"), by and among each of the MP Funds, respectively as borrower, and MP II Preferred Partners L.P., as lender under each of the Promissory Note Agreements (in such capacity, the "Note Lender" and, together its general partner, "Fund II-A"). Fund II-A was formed to provide capital support to the remaining portfolio companies and/or SPEs of the MP Funds and operating capital to the MP Funds.[4] Pursuant to the Promissory Note Agreements, upon the request of such MP Fund and on the terms and conditions set forth therein, the Note Lender loaned amounts to the MP Funds in an aggregate principal amount of $16 million (the "Promissory Note Loans"). The maturity of these loans is to occur upon the filing of a cancellation of the MP Funds' certificate of limited partnership, or such earlier date as determined by the general partner of the Note Lender and a majority in interest of certain of the investors in the Note Lender. Under that certain

[4] While related to the MP Funds, none of the entities in Fund II-A is a Debtor in the Chapter 11 Cases. The winding up of Fund II-A is expected to occur after the winding up of the MP Funds. Accordingly, the commencement of the Chapter 11 Cases is not expected to materially impact Fund II-A.

Collateral Assignment and Security Agreement dated as of August 31, 2020, between the MP Funds and Fund II-A, the obligations under the Fund II-A Promissory Notes (the "Promissory Note Obligations") became secured and perfected by duly perfected liens on all assets of the MP Funds (but with a provision, consistent with section 363(c)(2)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code, that the MP Funds may use the collateral exclusive of 105% of the respective Promissory Note Obligations), in favor of Fund II-A. SUB II became a party to that agreement by the effectiveness of the Contribution Agreement and that certain Collateral Assignment and Security Agreement, dated as of June 25, 2021, between SUB II and Fund II-A. The Promissory Note Agreements are valid, binding and, subject to applicable bankruptcy law, enforceable against the Debtors in accordance with their terms.

2. Partnership Interests

28. None of the Debtors has any publicly-listed securities. The General Partner is a wholly-owned subsidiary of MatlinPatterson PE Holdings LLC, an affiliated Debtor that also wholly owns MP Advisers. MatlinPatterson PE Holdings LLC in turn is wholly owned by non-Debtor affiliate MatlinPatterson LLC.

29. MP Delaware's authorized capital structure consists of one class of interests: the limited partnership interests held by the General Partner and those held by each of the approximately 100 limited partners of MP Delaware. MP Delaware's General Partner and limited partners hold pro-rata percentages of such interests in MP Delaware based on their respective capital commitments to MP Delaware.

30. Upon effectiveness of the Contribution Agreement, SUB II stepped into the place of MP Cayman, and its ownership consists of one class of interests: the limited partnership interests held by the General Partner and those held by each of the approximately 35 limited partners of MP

Cayman. MP Cayman's General Partner and limited partners hold pro-rata percentages of such interests in MP Cayman and SUB II based on their capital commitments to MP Cayman.

31. Volo Logistics is an indirectly held, but wholly-owned SPE of the MP Funds (and now SUB II after giving effect to the Contribution Agreement).

C. The Debtors' Other Prepetition Assets and Liabilities.

32. As of the Petition Date, the Debtors' other material assets and liabilities are as follows:

- Assets:
  - the General Partner owns partnership interests in each of the MP Funds and in other related non-Debtor entities and de minimis amounts of cash in its accounts;
  - MP Delaware and SUB II (after execution of the Contribution Agreement), own equity interests in non-Debtor SPEs that are in the process of winding up, and class C limited partnership interests in Fund II-A, each of which has immaterial economic value, other than contingent unliquidated litigation claims that may inure to the benefit of the SPEs;
  - The MP Funds (and, as a result of the Contribution Agreement, SUB II) also have asserted insurance reimbursement claims to recoup certain fees and expenses arising out of the litigations with VarigLog and HJDK (each as defined below) which claims are under review by their insurance carrier;
  - MatlinPatterson PE Holdings LLC holds de minimis amounts of cash in its accounts, and the equity interests in each of the General Partner, MP Advisers, and MP Preferred Partners GP LLC (the general partner of Fund II-A and the sole owner of the Liquidating Trustee);
  - MP Advisers holds approximately $75,000 in its accounts and does not own interests in any affiliated entities, and its only prior earnings came in respect of management fees earned from the funds it managed;
  - Volo Logistics has no material holdings nor assets; and
  - Cash held by the Debtors in the aggregate amount of $142 million as of June 30, 2021 broken out by the following holdings among the Debtors:
    - MP Delaware has $104 million in its accounts;

- SUB II has $38 million in its accounts (i.e., cash formerly held by MP Cayman that was transferred to SUB II pursuant to the Contribution Agreement);
- The Management Company has $50,000 in its accounts; and
- The other Debtors have zero or de minimis cash balances in their accounts.

- Liabilities:
  - a disputed claim asserted by GOL Linhas Aéreas S.A. (formerly VRG Linhas Aéreas S.A.) ("VRG") against certain of the Debtors on account of a decision of the Cayman Court of Appeal upholding the enforceability of a Brazilian arbitration award, further described below, in the approximate amount of R$93 million Brazilian Reais plus interest (which, including interest and costs, is approximately $60.0 million U.S. dollars based on the exchange rate as of the Petition Date), (the "Brazilian Arbitral Award", and the Cayman proceedings collectively, the "Cayman Proceedings");[5]
  - a contingent, disputed liability with respect to proceedings (the "Brazilian Action") brought against each of the Debtors (other than SUB II) (together, the "MP Parties") in the Bankruptcy First Court of the City of São Paulo, State of São Paulo ("Brazilian Bankruptcy Court") by the Bankrupt Estate of Varig Logistica S.A. ("VarigLog"), seeking to pierce the corporate veil of a portfolio company and various other entities within the investment structure, or otherwise on the basis of undue shareholder control, to hold certain of the Debtors accountable for approximately R$1.76 billion Brazilian Reais (which is approximately $345.6 million U.S. dollars based on the exchange rate as of the Petition Date); and
  - the disputed claim held by HJDK Aerospacial S/A ("HJDK") seeking to pierce the corporate veil of a portfolio company to hold certain of the Debtors accountable for approximately R$89 million Brazilian Reais (which is approximately $17.5 million U.S. dollars based on the exchange rate as of the Petition Date) for the failure of the portfolio company to repay certain loans.

[5] Under Brazilian law, interest on the Brazilian Arbitral Award may continue to accrue until it is paid in full. The amount of the Brazilian Arbitral Award is subject to exchange rate fluctuations, which may be significant.

The following table depicts the Debtors' material assets and the asserted liabilities:

Assets	Liabilities
	Action/Claim	Asserted Amount	Forum	Judgement Expected
$142 million in cash	Fund II-A Promissory Note	$58.0 million	N/A	N/A
	VRG	$60.0 million	Cayman Islands	2022-2023
	VarigLog Action	$345.6 million	Brazil	2030-2036
	HJDK Action	$17.5 million	Brazil	2027-2030
	Total Liabilities	$481 million

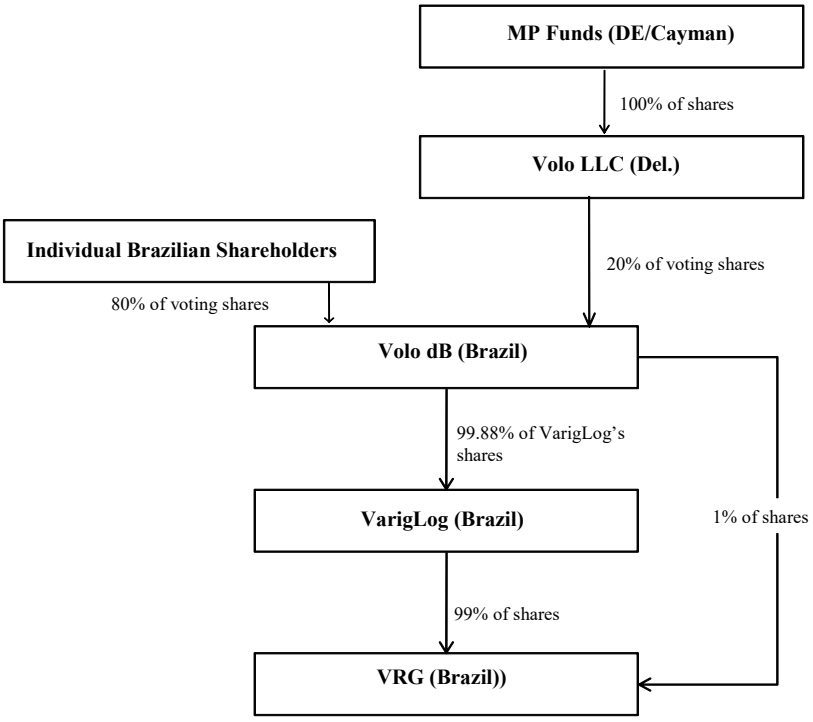
33. All of the Debtors' cash is held in accounts in the United States. The cash held by the Debtors represents the primary source of funds available to fund ongoing expenses, including professional fees and other fees associated with the Chapter 11 Cases.

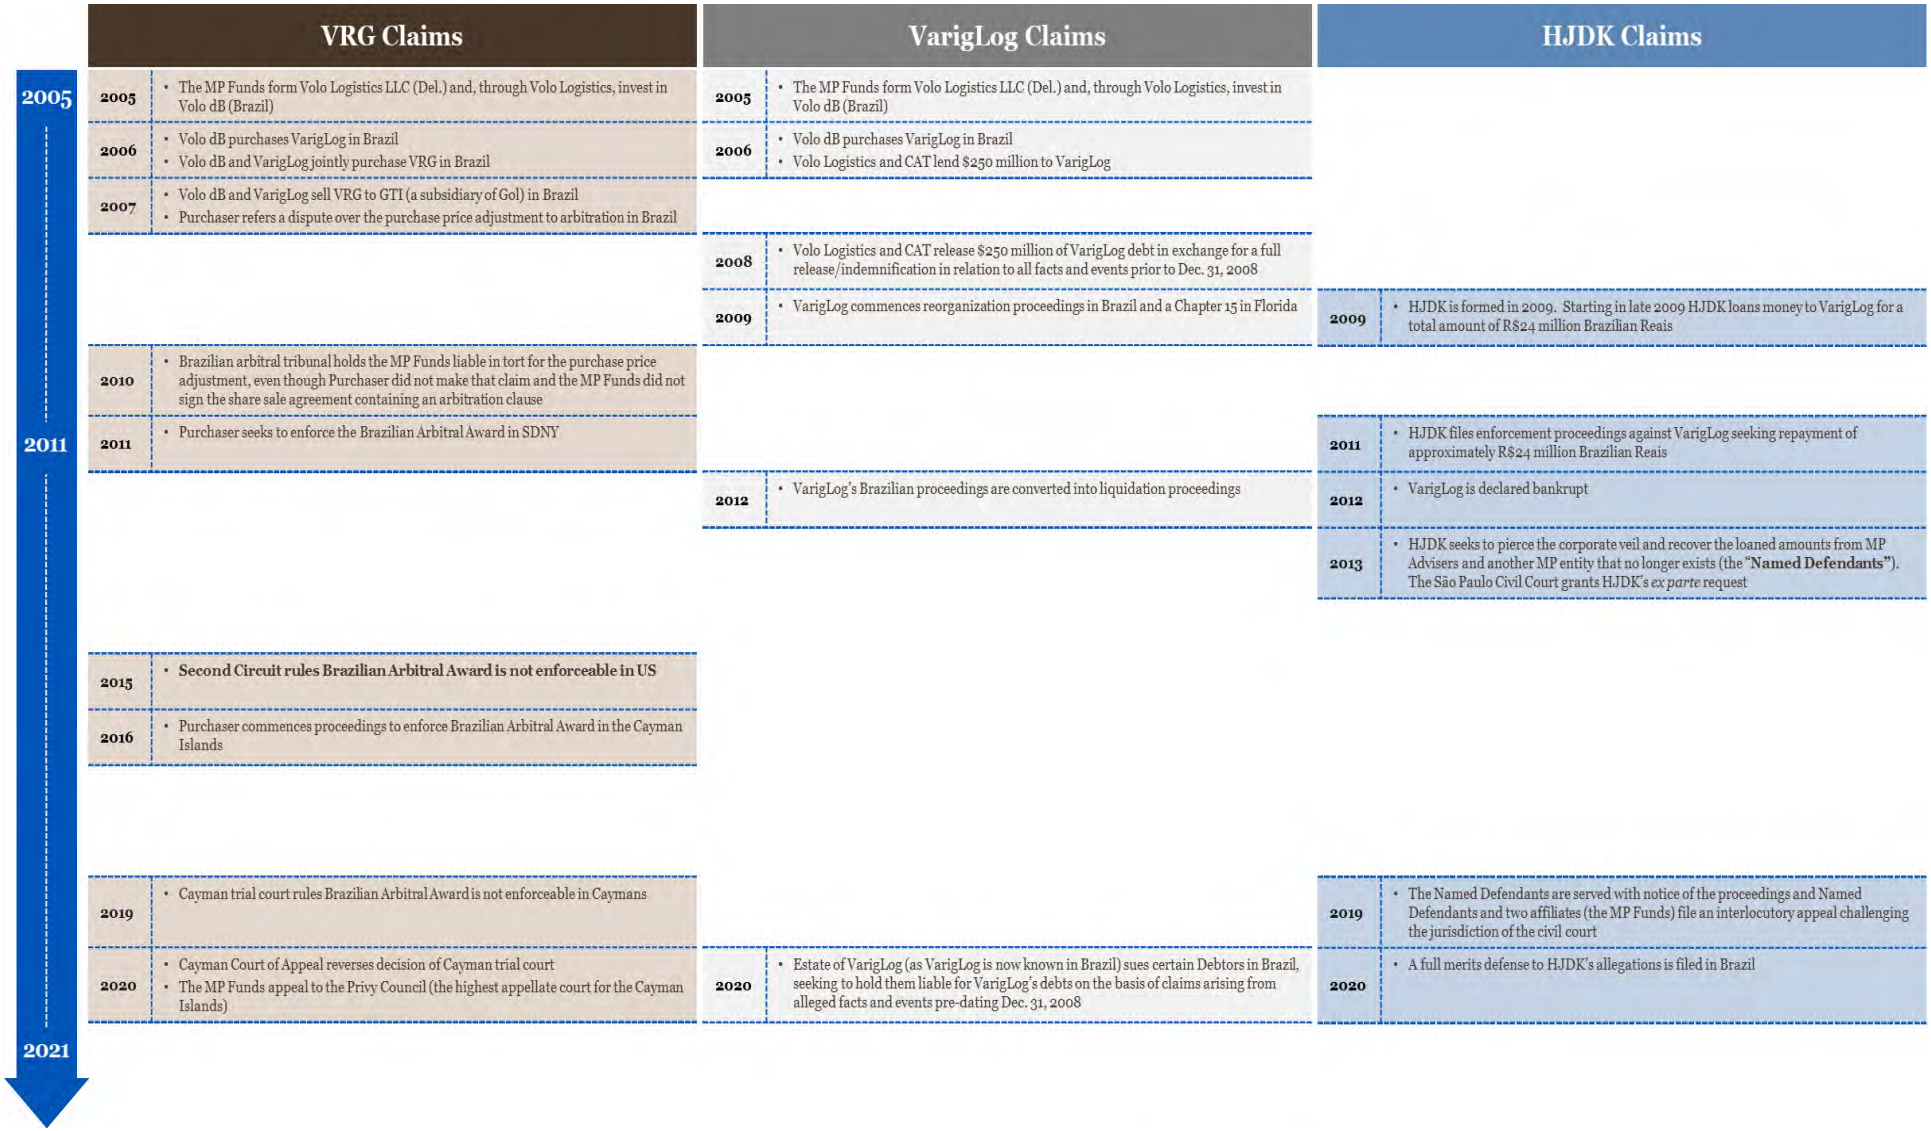
34. As elaborated on below, the Debtors have not made any material disbursements of their cash to investors and have always maintained funds more than sufficient to satisfy the amount of the Brazilian Arbitral Award with interest, consistent with a voluntary undertaking that was given to VRG in connection with the Cayman Proceedings (described in footnote 11 below). Accordingly, other than paying ongoing legal fees and some de minimis ordinary course expenses, the cash balances described above have remained materially unchanged for a number of years.



EVENTS LEADING TO THESE CHAPTER 11 PROCEEDINGS

35. As described above, the MP Funds have reached the end of their life and the time has come for an orderly distribution of their remaining assets to their investors after addressing all of their remaining legitimate liabilities. This section sets out the key events leading to the need for judicial assistance in this process, namely the Cayman Proceedings and the Brazilian Action, and further explains the reasons for the Debtors' decision to file the Chapter 11 Cases.

I. The MP Funds' Investments



36. In 2005, the MP Funds established Volo Logistics in Delaware to serve as an investment vehicle for pursuing opportunities in the Brazilian aviation industry. Volo Logistics together with three Brazilian individual investors (the "Brazilian Shareholders") formed a company called Volo do Brasil S.A. ("Volo dB"). The Brazilian Shareholders owned and controlled 80% of Volo dB's voting stock and Volo Logistics owned the remaining 20%.

37. In early 2006, Volo dB purchased VarigLog, a Brazilian cargo airline. Later in 2006, VarigLog and Volo dB purchased the passenger airline business of VarigLog's former parent via a Brazilian special purpose vehicle that was later renamed VRG. VRG became a subsidiary of VarigLog and Volo dB. The following depicts the MP Funds' historical investment structure in Brazil, consistent with how U.S. private equity firms acquire, hold and capitalize foreign, portfolio-company investments:[6]

[6] The remaining 0.12% of VarigLog's shares were held by Fudação Ruben Berta (the Ruben Berta Foundation).

38. The MP Funds' investment into the Brazilian aviation industry has generated a substantial loss for the MP Funds and led to years of meritless litigation against the MP Funds in Brazil. The MP Funds have been drawn into three unmeritorious proceedings relating to their now historic investment, including litigations commenced in 2019 and 2020 that concern events occurring more than a decade ago. The following depicts a timeline of the events leading up to and following the commencement of the VRG, VarigLog and HJDK actions:

II. The VRG Claim

39. In 2011, VRG sought recognition and enforcement in New York of a Brazilian arbitral award rendered against certain of the Debtors. After years of litigation, in 2015, the Second Circuit fully and finally determined that the Brazilian Arbitral Award is not enforceable in the United States, as a matter of federal law and U.S. public policy, because the Brazilian arbitral tribunal never had any jurisdiction over the Debtors. Following that decision, VRG pursued recognition of the same unenforceable award from the courts of the Cayman Islands. The Cayman Grand Court also concluded that the award was unenforceable, under Cayman law, but the Cayman Court of Appeal reversed the decision in favor of VRG. The matter is currently pending before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council (the "Privy Council") in the United Kingdom, which serves as the court of final appeal for the Cayman Islands. As I understand, even if VRG prevailed in the Cayman Proceedings, VRG must still seek recognition and enforcement of the Cayman judgment in New York, where substantially all of the Debtors' assets are located.

40. Provided below is an overview of the VRG proceedings and the developments that have occurred subsequent to the Second Circuit decision.

A. Sale of VRG and the Share Purchase and Sale Agreement

41. During 2007, VarigLog and Volo dB sold their shares in VRG to GTI S.A. ("GTI"), a subsidiary of the Brazilian airline Gol, pursuant to a Share Purchase and Sale Agreement, dated March 28, 2007 (the "PSA").

42. The PSA, which included an arbitration clause, specifically identified the "Parties" to the PSA as VarigLog and Volo dB (the "Sellers") and GTI (the "Buyer"). Gol, as parent to GTI, also signed the PSA as a guarantor of the Buyer's obligations. Crucially, none of Volo Logistics, the MP Funds, nor the General Partner signed the PSA or were Parties to it.

43. Pursuant to a side letter agreement dated March 28, 2007, the MP Funds (as indirect parents of the Sellers) agreed (as is customary in such transactions) not to compete with VRG, the airline being sold, or to invest in any of its competitors in the Brazilian passenger airline market, for a period of three years. The side letter contained only a non-compete obligation of the MP Funds, and did not contain an arbitration clause.

B. A Brazilian Arbitral Award is Rendered Against the MP Funds

44. As is common in the purchase and sale of a going concern, the PSA included a purchase price adjustment to account for the fluctuation in working capital during the time between signing the PSA and closing the sale.

45. In 2007, after the completion of the sale of VRG to GTI, a dispute arose as to the purchase price adjustment due under the PSA. GTI (referred to hereafter as VRG as it was known between 2008 and 2016 following the merger of GTI and VRG in late 2008, during the arbitration) referred the purchase price adjustment dispute to arbitration under the arbitration clause contained in the PSA. VRG named the MP Funds as parties in the arbitration, even though they were not parties to the PSA or its arbitration clause.

46. Over the MP Funds' objections that they were not parties to the PSA and never agreed to be bound by the arbitration provision contained therein, the Brazilian arbitral tribunal found that it had jurisdiction over the MP Funds. The decision was made on the basis that the MP Funds had entered into the non-compete side letter, even though the side letter contained no agreement to arbitrate and the purchase price dispute was wholly unrelated to the non-compete obligation.

47. In its final award on the purchase price dispute, dated September 2, 2010, the Brazilian tribunal rejected VRG's claim that the MP Funds were alter egos of the Sellers, but held the MP Funds jointly and severally liable with the sellers of VRG for the entire purchase price adjustment obligation of the Sellers. The tribunal awarded these contractual damages on the basis of a surprise tort liability claim that the tribunal itself came up with and even though VRG never advanced any tort claims against the MP Funds but rather premised their liability on the alter ego claim that the tribunal specifically rejected. The MP Funds sought to have the Brazilian Arbitral Award set aside in Brazil, as the seat of the arbitration, but the Brazilian courts declined to vacate it.

C. The U.S. Courts Fully and Finally Determine that the Brazilian Arbitral Award is Unenforceable in the United States

48. In January 2011, VRG filed a petition in the Southern District of New York to enforce the Brazilian Arbitral Award in the United States against the MP Funds, in accordance with the United Nations Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards (the "New York Convention"), incorporated into U.S. law by section 207 of the Federal Arbitration Act.[7]

49. Over the next four and a half years, the MP Funds and VRG fully litigated the enforceability of the Brazilian Arbitral Award, including two substantive hearings before the U.S. District Court for the Southern District Court of New York and two appeals to the United States Court of Appeal for the Second Circuit (collectively, the "United States Proceedings").[8] The MP Funds raised three defenses to enforcement of the Award in the United States: (1) that it was rendered without jurisdiction over the MP Funds because they never agreed to the arbitration

[7] See Verified Petition to Confirm Arbitration Award and for An Entry of Judgment at ¶¶ 5–6, VRG Linhas Aereas S.A., v. Matlinpatterson Glob. Opportunities Partners II L.P., 2011 WL 160966 (S.D.N.Y.). This petition is not attached here but can be provided to the Court upon request.

[8] For the Court's ease of reference, copies of the 2014 Southern District of New York decision and the 2015 Second Circuit decision, which were not selected for publication, are attached hereto as Exhibits B-1 and B-2, respectively. If requested by the Court, the Debtors can provide the Court with the other decisions from the United States Proceedings.

clause contained in the PSA which they intentionally did not sign (signing instead only a side letter providing for a non-compete); (2) that the arbitral tribunal violated the MP Funds due process rights by imposing liability on a the basis of a surprise tort claim that the tribunal introduced for the first time only in the final award and which VRG never advanced in the case; and (3) relatedly, that the tribunal exceeded the scope of the issues submitted by the parties for determination in the arbitration when imposing liability on the basis of a tort claim that the claimant did not allege.

50. VRG's attempts to enforce the Brazilian Arbitral Award in the United States were denied at every step of the way. Both the District Court and the Second Circuit, applying de novo review, concluded that the Brazilian Arbitral Award is not enforceable in the United States because the arbitral tribunal lacked jurisdiction over the MP Funds as intentional non-parties to the PSA and its arbitration clause. In so concluding, the U.S. Courts applied Article V(2) of the New York Convention and found the Brazilian Arbitral Award contrary to the public policy of the United States. Because the U.S. Courts rejected the Brazilian Arbitral Award for lack of any jurisdiction over the MP Funds, they did not address the MP Funds' other, due-process and excess-of-authority defenses.

51. VRG sought rehearing and rehearing en banc before the Second Circuit. By order dated August 20, 2015, the Second Circuit denied the request. VRG did not seek U.S. Supreme Court review and, as I understand, any such application is now time-barred.

52. Thus, as a matter of U.S. law, and as a result of nearly five years of litigation before the U.S. courts, the Brazilian Arbitral Award has been fully and finally adjudicated as unenforceable in the United States.

D. VRG Seeks Enforcement of the Same Brazilian Arbitral Award in the Cayman Islands After the U.S. Courts Refuse Enforcement of the Award

53. Disregarding the U.S. courts' final determination that the Brazilian Arbitration Award should not be enforced, VRG commenced proceedings in the Cayman Grand Court on September 1, 2016, one day before the Cayman limitation period expired, seeking to enforce the Brazilian Arbitral Award in the Cayman Islands under the same New York Convention that the U.S. Courts applied when rendering their decision. VRG named MP Delaware, MP Cayman and the General Partner as defendants. The MP Funds opposed enforcement of the Brazilian Arbitral Award in the Cayman Islands on the same three grounds under the New York Convention, described above, that they had raised in the U.S. proceedings.[9]

54. The Cayman Grand Court held that the Brazilian Arbitral Award was unenforceable in the Cayman Islands for all three of the grounds advanced by the MP Funds: lack of arbitral jurisdiction, denial of due process (or breach of natural justice, as it is called under Cayman law) and breach of the scope of the issues submitted by the parties to arbitration.[10]

55. VRG appealed the decision to the Cayman Court of Appeal. Notably, VRG did not appeal the finding of the Cayman Grand Court that the MP Funds never consented to arbitration in Brazil, only that the Cayman courts should be estopped from considering that point (and the question as to scope of the parties' submission to arbitration) because the Brazilian courts had refused to set aside the Brazilian Arbitral Award and, under Cayman law, the question of consent to arbitrate was a question of Brazilian law.

[9] In connection with the Cayman Proceedings, the General Partner, in its capacity as general partner to the MP Funds, has voluntarily undertaken to VRG that the MP Funds would maintain at all times assets sufficient to satisfy the amount of the disputed Brazilian Arbitral Award and that no steps would be taken to dispose of such assets to external parties other than to satisfy routine expenses in the ordinary course of business), pending the outcome of VRG's application. This undertaking was strictly voluntary and served to preserve assets to which the MP Funds have recourse sufficient to satisfy any ultimate final judgment and allow the Cayman Proceeding to run its course and has been complied with at all times. The Debtors did not, by their voluntary undertaking, waive any of their legal rights, including to come before this Court in these Chapter 11 Cases, with full opportunity for VRG to be heard before the Debtors may distribute assets under the Plan.

[10] For the Court's ease of reference, a copy of the Cayman Grand Court decision is attached hereto as Exhibit B-3.

56. The Cayman Court of Appeal overturned the decision, holding, inter alia, that the Cayman Islands' courts are estopped from considering whether the MP Funds agreed to arbitration in Brazil.[11] The Cayman Court of Appeal therefore declined to consider the issue upon which the U.S. courts determined that the Brazilian Arbitral Award is not enforceable in the United States under the New York Convention (i.e., that the MP Funds never consented to arbitration, such that the arbitrators never had any jurisdiction over them). Accordingly, the Cayman Court of Appeal rendered a decision against the MP Funds in the approximate amount of $60 million U.S. dollars (based on the exchange rate as of the Petition Date).[12]

57. The MP Funds have appealed to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. The appeal remains pending, and the MP Funds expect that a final adjudication could take at least until the end of 2022 and most likely until 2023. The MP Funds appealed to the Privy Council because they are concerned VRG will seek to enforce the Brazilian Arbitration Award via the Cayman court judgment against the Fund II Assets, despite the Second Circuit decision protecting these Fund II Assets from such enforcement. While the MP Funds would vigorously contest any such proceedings in the United States as being in direct contravention of the Second Circuit decision, they nevertheless decided to appeal to the Privy Council as well.

[11] For the Court's ease of reference, a copy of the decision of the Court of Appeal of the Cayman Islands is attached hereto as Exhibit B-4.

[12] Nothing herein shall be deemed a waiver of the Debtors' rights to appeal or challenge the decision of the Cayman Court of Appeal in any jurisdiction. Such rights are fully preserved.

III. The Varig Claim

58. More recently, the Debtors have been targeted by new, unrelated litigation in Brazil that likewise seeks to sidestep U.S. law. The Debtors' local indirect subsidiary, VarigLog, fell upon financial distress that ultimately led to Brazilian reorganization proceedings in 2009 and then liquidation proceedings in 2012, which remain ongoing. In May 2020, the administrator of VarigLog's estate filed a lawsuit in Brazil against certain Debtors, claiming they had abused their control of VarigLog and caused its bankruptcy, and should therefore be liable for VarigLog's debts. As set forth in further detail below, VarigLog's claims are clearly barred by two New York-law governed Debt Assumption Agreements, in which certain of the Debtors agreed to release VarigLog from $250 million in debt obligations in exchange for releases and indemnifications by VarigLog against any claims relating to the parties' relationship prior to December 31, 2008.

A. The Debt Assumption Agreements and VarigLog's Bankruptcy

59. In the course of the MP Funds' investments in Brazil, Volo Logistics made loans to VarigLog, and Volo Logistics and CAT Aérea LLC ("CAT"), now a wholly-owned subsidiary of Volo Logistics, also made loans to VRG. The loans made to VRG by Volo Logistics were subsequently assumed by VarigLog, such that VarigLog held all of the debts owed to Volo Logistics and CAT.

60. In 2008, VarigLog experienced financial difficulty. Volo Logistics and CAT took various steps to improve its performance, including to allow VarigLog to assign to Volo dB $250 million in debt obligations that VarigLog owed to Volo Logistics and CAT, and to release VarigLog from any obligation to repay the loans. This assignment and assumption of the loans was effected in two debt assumption agreements, both dated December 31, 2008 (the "Debt Assumption Agreements").[13] The Debt Assumption Agreements are governed by New York law and contain a forum selection clause specifying New York courts.

61. In exchange for Volo Logistics and CAT agreeing to release VarigLog from its obligations to repay the $250 million owed to them, VarigLog, on behalf of itself and all successors and anyone claiming by or through it, released Volo Logistics, CAT and their related and affiliated parties from all claims, including those that could be asserted in the future, "based in whole or in part on any act, omission, transaction, event or other occurrence taking place on or prior to" December 31, 2008, that in any way relate to VarigLog (the "Releases"). VarigLog also agreed to indemnify and hold the released parties harmless from and against any and all claims and losses (including damages and expenses) incurred by any of them as a result of claims by any person including VarigLog relating to their transactions or relationship with VarigLog (the "Indemnifications").

62. Volo Logistics and CAT relied on the Releases, Indemnifications, and New York choice of law and forum in entering into the Debt Assumption Agreements. The Releases, Indemnifications, and choice of New York law and forum were a valuable part of the consideration that VarigLog provided to Volo Logistics and CAT in exchange for their release of the $250 million in debt obligations that VarigLog owed to them.

63. As a result of entering into the Debt Assumption Agreements, Volo Logistics and CAT changed their position vis-à-vis VarigLog, including by losing any recourse that they would have had against VarigLog in respect of the $250 million debt. Volo Logistics and CAT have not received repayment of the loans assumed by Volo dB. Further, as events have transpired, they are now disadvantaged in VarigLog's Brazilian bankruptcy for having foregone combined unsecured claims of approximately $250 million.

B. VarigLog's Administrator Files Brazilian Lawsuit Against the MP Parties Over a Decade After VarigLog Entered Bankruptcy in Brazil

64. VarigLog's financial situation did not improve and in 2009 it entered into judicial restructuring proceedings in Brazil. On March 31, 2009, VarigLog also filed a petition for Chapter 15 Relief and Recognition of a Foreign Proceeding in the Bankruptcy Court in the Southern District of Florida.

65. In September 2012, the Brazilian reorganization was converted to a liquidation proceeding. In connection with that conversion, in 2013 VarigLog's Trustee filed a report with the public attorney's office in São Paulo, assessing the probable causes for VarigLog's bankruptcy. A year later the Trustee filed a second report confirming the first report. Neither report suggested any sort of misconduct by the MP Parties or that the MP Parties had caused VarigLog's bankruptcy. Instead, the reports pinpoint the causes of the bankruptcy to the decline in demand for air transportation services and VarigLog's general inability to generate positive results.

66. Nevertheless, on May 11, 2020, VarigLog filed proceedings in the 1st Bankruptcy and Judicial Reorganization Court of the Judicial District of São Paulo against the MP Parties seeking to hold them responsible for the entirety of VarigLog's debt (seeking approximately $345.6 million U.S. dollars based on the exchange rate as of the Petition Date).

67. The Brazilian Action alleges that the MP Parties had an improper relationship with VarigLog and caused its bankruptcy by breaching fiduciary duties allegedly owed to VarigLog and by acting as its alter ego. It relies on acts, omissions, transactions, and events that occurred more than 12 years ago, and prior to the two reports filed with the public attorney attributing the causes of the bankruptcy to other factors. All but one of the alleged events occurred during the period between January 27, 2006 and the end of August 2008. In so doing, VarigLog impermissibly seeks to enjoy the New York-law benefits of the Debt Assumption Agreements while disavowing the New York-law consideration that VarigLog gave for that relief, i.e., the Releases and Indemnities that bar the claims it now pursues in the Brazilian Action.

68. Due to the nature of the Brazilian court system I have been advised by local counsel in Brazil that, even for speculative and meritless claims such as this one, the Brazilian Action may take approximately 9–15 years to be finally resolved, including receiving a trial court judgment and concluding any opportunities to appeal.

C. The MP Parties' Adversary Proceeding in the Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of Florida

69. On June 23, 2020, the MP Parties filed a complaint in the chapter 15 proceeding[14] that VarigLog had commenced in the Bankruptcy Court in the Southern District of Florida. The complaint requests that the court give effect to the Releases and Indemnifications granted by VarigLog to the MP Parties, or alternatively, for relief from the automatic stay to allow the MP Parties to pursue their claims in New York under the New York-law governed Releases and Indemnifications.

70. On July 27, 2020, VarigLog's chapter 15 foreign representative moved to dismiss the Debtors' Adversary Proceeding on various bases, including that the court should afford comity to the Brazilian Action and force the MP Parties to assert the Releases and Indemnifications within the same action in Brazil that the MP Parties claim breaches their New York-law rights. The foreign representative also raised various Brazilian law arguments in support of the view that the Releases were not effective.

[14] In re Varig Logistica S.A., Case No. 09-15717-RAM; Adv. Pro. No. 20-01243-BKC-RAM-A) (the "Adversary Proceeding").

71. The foreign representative's motion to dismiss was fully briefed by the parties between August and October 2020. The court heard oral argument on the motion to dismiss on October 19, 2020, and the parties are awaiting a decision.

IV. The HJDK Claim

72. HJDK is a Panamanian entity controlled by German Efromovich.

73. Starting in late 2009, while VarigLog was undergoing judicial restructuring in Brazil, HJDK made loans to VarigLog totaling approximately R$24 million (approximately USD $4.6 million based on the exchange rate as of the Petition Date).[15] The Debtors were not involved in VarigLog's business at that point because it had been in judicial restructuring since March 2009 and a trustee was appointed to oversee the estate.

74. VarigLog thereafter allegedly defaulted on its loans from HJDK and, on April 28, 2011, HJDK filed enforcement proceedings in the 2nd Civil Court of the Central Courthouse of the Judicial District of São Paulo (the "São Paulo Civil Court") seeking repayment. The São Paolo Civil Court issued a preliminary injunction to freeze R$24 million in VarigLog's accounts, but this was overturned on appeal by the Court of Appeals of São Paulo, and the funds released.

75. On September 27, 2012, VarigLog's judicial restructuring was converted to a liquidation proceeding. The Brazilian Bankruptcy Court subsequently ordered the R$24 million that had previously been frozen be used to pay certain prepetition claims.

76. Meanwhile, in 2011, other entities related to MatlinPatterson (the "Remora Entities") sued Mr. Efromovich in New York state court for breach of a personal guaranty given by Mr. Efromovich in September 2010 in support of HJDK's obligations as buyer to pay the purchase price under an agreement between the Remora Entities and HJDK for the purchase of another Brazilian company. Between 2012 and 2014, the Remora Entities obtained various decisions in their favor, including summary judgment in January 2012 and ultimately a New York state court judgment against Mr. Efromovich entered in 2014, in the amount of approximately USD$12.8 million (which presently stands at USD$19 million including interest). That judgment was obtained in relation to a personal guaranty given by Mr. Eformovich in support of HJDK's obligations as buyer to pay the purchase price under a sale and purchase agreement between the Remora Entities and HJDK for the purchase of another Brazilian company. After HJDK defaulted on its obligation to pay the purchase price, the Remora Entities obtained judgment on the personal guaranty provided by Mr. Efromovich.

77. In September 2013, HJDK filed an ex parte application in the São Paolo Civil Court to pierce VarigLog's corporate veil and hold MP Advisers and another entity, MatlinPatterson Global Opportunities Partners LP, which was an entity that was affiliated with MatlinPatterson Global Opportunities Fund I and no longer exists (the "Named Defendants"), liable for the unpaid VarigLog loans.

78. In those ex parte proceedings, HJDK blatantly misrepresented to the São Paolo Civil Court that the Named Defendants had misappropriated the R$24 million that had been the subject of the prior injunction. HJDK presented evidence that it had obtained from court submissions made in VarigLog's judicial restructuring proceedings. But HJDK did not also present the answers to those same submissions, which would have made it clear that the purportedly "missing" funds were required to pay prepetition claims in accordance with the Brazilian Bankruptcy Court's order. The full record from the Brazilian Bankruptcy Court makes perfectly clear that those funds were not taken by the Debtors, but rather had been used to satisfy prepetition claims pursuant to the Brazilian Bankruptcy Court's order.

79. Based on HJDK's false representations, the São Paolo Civil Court ruled ex parte in HJDK's favor on October 7, 2013. Having obtained this judgment for HJDK in Brazil, Mr. Efromovich has sought to argue that it should be set off against the judgment debt that he owes to the Remora Entities. He has claimed that the HJDK judgment is an asset assigned to him for these purposes.

80. MP Advisers and the MP Funds were not made aware of, and therefore did not have the opportunity to appear in the ex parte veil piercing lawsuit. As a result, they did not have the opportunity to defend themselves, correct the record, or otherwise challenge the jurisdiction of the São Paolo Civil Court. MP Advisers was not served with the claim and court decision against it until over five years later, on May 23, 2019. The relevant Debtors (i.e., MP Advisers and the MP Funds) now find themselves in a costly and lengthy legal battle in Brazil trying to undo the prejudice done to them by HJDK.

81. The relevant Debtors are seeking to correct the prejudice caused them by HJDK by challenging both the São Paolo Civil Court's jurisdiction to hear the matter and the merits of HJDK's claim. At present, HJDK is pursuing procedural arguments designed to deprive the relevant Debtors of ever having a chance to present their substantive defenses on the merits.

82. Separately, on February 25, 2021, the São Paulo Civil Court issued a Letter Rogatory requesting that the Named Defendants and the MP Funds pay approximately $15 million U.S. dollars (based on the exchange rate as of the Petition Date) in connection with the loan agreements HJDK entered into with VarigLog. It is not clear why the São Paulo Civil Court issued this Letter Rogatory. The relevant Debtors have not yet been served.

83. The litigation with HJDK remains pending in Brazil, and I understand from consultation with counsel involved that it is expected to take many years to resolve and potentially not before 2027.

V. The Debtors' Decision to File the Chapter 11 Cases in New York

84. As explained above, the MP Funds are at the end of their life. The Fund II Assets, the principal assets of the Debtors, are now reduced principally to cash sitting in bank accounts in the United States. The litigation claims asserted by VRG, VarigLog, and HJDK against the Debtors seek recourse to that cash located in the United States, and the quantum of such claims surpasses $400 million, which substantially exceeds the value of the Debtors' total assets. Because all of the claims seek recourse to the same limited pool of assets located in the United States, the Debtors have determined that chapter 11 relief enables the Debtors to resolve such liabilities in a manner that maximizes distributable value for all stakeholders and ensures that the Debtors' assets are liquidated and distributed in an efficient and equitable manner. In particular, in these Chapter 11 Cases, this Court will provide a single, centralized forum in which the MP Funds and the Fund II Assets can be wound up without further delay and through an orderly liquidation, in a manner that comports with the fundamental interests and public policy of the United States, the jurisdiction where the substantial majority of the Debtors and their creditors, investors and assets are located.

85. Given the number of years that have elapsed since the MP Funds were launched and the occurrence of the date of dissolution of the MP Funds in 2013 as provided under the organizational documents of the MP Funds, completion of the winding up of the MP Funds is long overdue yet is stalled indefinitely primarily due to the ongoing foreign litigations that the Debtors expect to continue well into the foreseeable future. Through these Chapter 11 Cases, the Debtors' goal is to complete a prompt, orderly and efficient distribution of the Fund II Assets to the Debtors' legitimate creditors, investors and other parties in interest.

86. In particular, given the long history of multi-jurisdictional litigation and arbitration involving the Debtors, the presence of conflicting judicial decisions in different jurisdictions in respect of the arbitral award, and the likelihood of continued multi-jurisdictional litigation asserting claims that far exceed the Debtors' assets for an extended period of time (including potential ongoing attempts to enforce the Brazilian Arbitral Award against the Debtors through the Cayman court decision as well as ongoing attempts to hold the MP Parties liable for the entirety of VarigLog's debts in Brazil), the Debtors have determined that the only way to implement an orderly and equitable claims and distribution process for their legitimate creditors, investors and other stakeholders, and further to maximize the recovery available for those parties with valid claims that are enforceable in the United States, is to seek the assistance of this Court as the appropriate centralized forum for the winding up of these Debtors.

87. The Debtors consider that the protections afforded by the bankruptcy process, including the breathing space afforded by the automatic stay imposed upon the commencement of a chapter 11 case, the exclusivity period afforded to debtors for proposing a plan, the transparency of chapter 11 proceedings and the distribution scheme provided under a court-supervised process that results in equitable treatment for all stakeholders, will greatly benefit the orderly liquidation process of the Debtors and ultimately maximize the value of the estate for distribution to the Debtors' legitimate creditors, investors and other stakeholders.

88. Further, the Debtors have been conducting the wind down since 2013 consistent with obligations under the partnership agreements and the commencement of these Chapter 11 Cases is the last step to complete the process and fulfill the responsibilities of the General Partner.

Due to the complex structure of the MP Funds, the nature of their investments and the winding up of affairs across multiple jurisdictions, it will take time, along with very specific knowledge and experience, to ensure that Debtors' assets are liquidated in a manner that provides the maximum benefit to the Debtors' creditors and investors. The management team employed by the Debtors, including the Chief Restructuring Officer, is best equipped to oversee and carry out this winding up process.

89. Finally, the Debtors recognize New York as the appropriate venue for the orderly liquidation and distribution because it is the location of the Debtors' principal place of business, the Debtors' only material asset – their remaining cash – is deposited in bank accounts located in New York and, as relates to the conflicting cross-border judicial decisions, U.S. courts sitting in the Second Circuit have already fully and finally adjudicated that the Brazilian Arbitral Award is unenforceable against the MP Funds in the United States as a matter of the fundamental interests of the United States and public policy. Additionally, the Releases and Indemnifications implicated in the Brazilian Action are in instruments governed by New York law and subject to the jurisdiction of the New York courts.

VI. The Litigation Claims Bar Date Motion and the Debtors' Proposed Plan

90. To further an orderly and centralized liquidation, concurrently herewith the Debtors have filed a Litigation Claims Bar Date Motion (as defined below) setting forth an overview of the factual and legal arguments as to why the VRG, VarigLog and HJDK Claims should be disallowed and seeking to establish a bar date by which the litigation claimants must file their proofs of claim, in order to permit the Debtors to promptly object to such claims, the disallowance of which is a condition to the effectiveness of the Debtors' proposed Plan.

91. The Debtors' proposed Plan treats as unimpaired all claims against each of the Debtors (with the various litigation claims being subject to disallowance as determined by the Bankruptcy Court following disallowance proceedings); only the partnership interests in the Debtors are impaired. Under the circumstances, the Debtors believe that the Plan and disallowance proceedings present the best opportunity for optimal recoveries for those with valid claims and interests against the Debtors that are enforceable in the U.S. against the Debtors' assets. The Debtors firmly believe that it is long overdue to proceed with the liquidation and distribution of these Fund II Assets and that further delay will only result in a reduction of value of these estates due to spurious litigation, a suboptimal outcome for the interested creditors and limited partners.

FIRST DAY MOTIONS

92. Contemporaneously herewith, the Debtors filed the following First Day Motions seeking targeted relief intended to establish procedures for the smooth and efficient administration of the Chapter 11 Cases. While the relief sought in the First Day Motions is primarily driven by bankruptcy procedural matters resulting from the commencement of the Chapter 11 Cases, the Debtors nevertheless reserve their rights to file additional First Day Motions as to the ongoing business activities of the Debtors as needed:

- Debtors' Motion for Entry of an Order (I) Directing Joint Administration of the Debtors' Chapter 11 Cases and (II) Granting Related Relief (the "Joint Administration Motion");
- Debtors' Application for Entry of an Order Appointing Kurtzman Carson Consultants LLC as Claims and Noticing Agent Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 156(c), 11 U.S.C. § 105(a), and Local Rule 5075-1 Effective Nunc Pro Tunc to the Petition Date (the "KCC 156(c) Application");
- Debtors' Motion for Entry of an Order (I) Extending the Time to File Schedules of Assets and Liabilities, Statements of Financial Affairs, and the Initial Rule 2015.3 Financial Report; and (II) Granting Related Relief (the "SOFA Extension Motion");

- Debtors' Motion for Entry of Interim and Final Orders (I) Authorizing, but not Directing the Debtors to Continue Using their Cash Management System, Including (A) Existing Bank Accounts and (B) Incurring Intercompany Claims on a Limited Basis; (II) Waiving Certain Requirements of Section 345(b) of the U.S. Trustee Guidelines; and (III) Granting Related Relief (the "Cash Management Motion");

- Debtors' Motion for Entry of an Order (I) Restating and Enforcing Protections of 11 U.S.C. §§ 105(a), 362, 365, 525 and 541(c) and (II) Granting Related Relief (the "Automatic Stay Motion");

- Debtors' Motion for Entry of an Order (I) Authorizing the Debtors to (A) File a Consolidated List of Creditors and (B) File a Consolidated List of the Debtors' Largest Unsecured Creditors, (II) Waiving the Requirement to File the List of Equity Security Holders, and (III) Approving Form and Manner of Notifying Creditors and Interest Holders of Commencement of these Chapter 11 Cases (the "Consolidated Creditor Matrix Motion");

- Debtors' Motion for Entry of an Order (I) Authorizing the Debtors to Redact and File Under Seal (A) Certain Personally Identifiable Information in Creditor Matrix and any other Filed Documents, and (B) the Names and Addresses of all Limited Partners of Certain Debtors in all Filed Documents, including the Corporate Ownership Statement, other than Disclosures in Retention Applications, and (II) Granting Related Relief (the "Motion to Seal"); and

- Debtors' Motion to Set Limited Bar Date for VRG, VarigLog and HJDK Litigation Claims (the "Litigation Claims Bar Date Motion").

93. By the First Day Motions, the Debtors seek authority to, among other things, continue using their cash management system, including prepetition bank accounts and incurrence of limited intercompany claims, employ a claims and noticing agent, jointly administer the Chapter 11 Cases under a single case header and establish certain administrative procedures to facilitate a smooth transition into chapter 11.

94. I am familiar with the content and substance of the First Day Motions. I believe that the relief sought in each of the First Day Motions (a) is necessary to ensure minimal disruption due to the commencement of the Chapter 11 Cases and to permit the Debtors to administer the Chapter 11 Cases smoothly, (b) constitutes a critical element in the Debtors achieving their goals in this Chapter 11 process and (c) best serves the Debtors' estates and their stakeholders' interests.

I have reviewed each of the First Day Motions and the facts set forth therein are true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief with appropriate reliance on corporate officers and advisors. If asked to testify as to the facts supporting each of the First Day Motions filed contemporaneously herewith, I would testify to the facts as set forth in such motions.

OPINION

CEDARBAUM, District Judge.

1 VRG Linhas Aereas S.A. ("VRG") filed a petition with this Court to confirm an arbitration award against MatlinPatterson Global Opportunities Partners II LP and MatlinPatterson Global Opportunities Partners (Cayman) II L.P. (collectively "MatlinPatterson") in accordance with the Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards, 9 U.S.C. §§ 201–08. I denied that petition and VRG appealed. The Second Circuit vacated my decision and remanded the case so that I could decide whether the parties agreed to an arbitration clause that clearly and unmistakably entrusted questions of arbitrability to the Arbitral Tribunal rather than to the court. For the following reasons, the petition to confirm the arbitration award is denied.

Background

VRG is a subsidiary of Gol Linhas Aereas Inteligentes S.A. ("Gol"), a Brazilian airline, and is based in Brazil. MatlinPatterson is a New York based private equity firm. Gol, through a subsidiary, GTI, acquired VRG in 2007 from two of MatlinPatterson's indirect subsidiaries, Varig Logistica S.A. and Volo do Brasil S.A., via a Share Purchase and Sale Agreement ("the Agreement"). The Agreement, which is written in Portuguese, was signed on March 28, 2007 by all of the aforementioned parties except MatlinPatterson.

Several Addenda to the Agreement were also executed, including Addendum 5, which MatlinPatterson did sign. This one page document, also signed by GTI and Gol, stated that MatlinPatterson agreed not to compete with VRG or to invest in any of its competitors in the passenger airline market for three years. While Addendum 5 did not mention arbitration, the parties dispute whether the signatories to Addendum 5 somehow incorporated by reference the agreement to arbitrate contained in Section 14 of the Agreement (which MatlinPatterson did not sign).

In December 2007, a disagreement over an adjustment to the purchase price caused VRG to refer the dispute to arbitration, naming MatlinPatterson as a party. The Arbitral Tribunal ruled that MatlinPatterson had agreed to arbitration and that its agreement to arbitrate encompassed the parties' dispute over the purchase price. After a hearing on the merits of that dispute, in September 2010 the Tribunal issued an award holding MatlinPatterson liable for damages from fraudulent misrepresentation during the sale of VRG.

In January 2011, VRG filed a petition to confirm its foreign arbitral award against MatlinPatterson in this Court under the Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards, 9 U.S.C. § 207. MatlinPatterson argued that the Arbitral Tribunal lacked jurisdiction over its dispute with VRG and I agreed, finding that even if MatlinPatterson had agreed to arbitrate disputes over its non-compete agreement with VRG (an issue I did not reach, instead assuming its premise for the sake of argument), it had not agreed to arbitrate an entirely different issue (the purchase price) arising under an agreement it did not sign (the Agreement).

2 VRG appealed, and the Second Circuit vacated and remanded the decision. In so doing, the Second Circuit explained that this Court must resolve the initial inquiry of "whether the parties ... clearly and unmistakably committed to arbitrate questions regarding the scope of their arbitration agreement." VRG Linhas Aereas S.A. v. MatlinPatterson Global Opportunities Partners II L.P., 717 F.3d 322, 326 (2d Cir.2013).

Discussion

The present inquiry is simplified by the Second Circuit's holding in Shaw Group Inc. v. Triplefine Int'l. Corp., 322 F.3d 115 (2d. Cir.2003), which instructed that "an arbitration clause subjecting disputes to the rules and procedures of the ICC International Court of Arbitration clearly and unmistakably commits to arbitration any questions about the arbitrability of particular disputes." MatlinPatterson, 717 F.3d at 326 (citing Shaw, 322 F.3d at 122). As the Second Circuit explained, "Section 14 of the Agreement does exactly this." Id. Thus, if MatlinPatterson agreed to the terms of Section 14, the Second Circuit's precedent "compels the conclusion that MatlinPatterson thereby clearly and unmistakably committed questions of scope to the arbitrators." Id. at 327. On the other hand, "[i]f ... the district court determines that MatlinPatterson did not agree to the terms of Section 14, no further analysis would be necessary." Id. This finding would "compel the denial of VRG's petition to confirm the award on the grounds that MatlinPatterson never consented to submit disputes—whether about arbitrability or anything else—to arbitration." Id.

Upon careful review of all the relevant documents, it is clear that MatlinPatterson did not agree to the terms of Section 14 of the Agreement. MatlinPatterson signed only an Addendum to that Agreement which explicitly spells out the single obligation MatlinPatterson was prepared to assume. The plain language of the contracts is unambiguous: Addendum 5 refers only to the non-compete provision of the Agreement contained in Clause 11.1 and restates that clause in its entirety in the text. No language within Addendum 5 purports to obligate MatlinPatterson, a nonparty to the Agreement, to all the other provisions contained therein. Thus, MatlinPatterson did not agree to the arbitration clause contained in the Agreement, and in accordance with the Second Circuit's remand instructions, this finding "compel[s] the denial of VRG's petition to confirm the award." Id.

This finding is in accordance with this Court's holding in Zimring v. Coinmach Corp., No. 00 Civ. 8111(LMM), 2000 WL 1855115 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 19, 2000). In Zimring, the buyer under a purchase agreement (which contained an arbitration clause) sought to compel the owner of the seller company to arbitrate claims in his individual capacity, alleging that he breached the agreement not to compete. Id. at *1. While the seller, Zimring, had signed the purchase agreement both on behalf of the seller and in his individual capacity, the signature block where he signed individually contained a footnote providing that he signed "only for purposes of Section 11.3 and Article IX hereof," the provisions containing the agreement's non-compete and confidentiality terms. Id. The court determined that Zimring had not clearly and unmistakably delegated to arbitration the issue of whether Defendant's claims against Plaintiff were arbitrable because "Zimring limited his individual signature to two portions of the ... [purchase agreement] ..., neither of which encompassed the arbitration clause." Id. at *2. Similarly, MatlinPatterson elected not to sign the Agreement containing the arbitration clause and instead limited its signature to the non-compete provisions referenced and fully restated in Addendum 5.

CONCLUSION

3 Because MatlinPatterson did not consent to the arbitration clause contained in the Agreement, Petitioner's motion to confirm the arbitration award is denied.

SO ORDERED.

60 SUMMARY ORDER

UPON DUE CONSIDERATION WHEREOF, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED that the judgment of the District Court be and hereby is AFFIRMED.

Before us is the second appeal taken by Petitioner–Appellant VRG Linhas Aereas S.A. ("VRG") in an effort, thus far unsuccessful, to confirm in U.S. courts an arbitral award issued by a Arbitral Tribunal in Brazil against Respondents–Appellees MatlinPatterson Global Opportunities Partners II L.P. and MatlinPatterson Global Opportunities Partners (Cayman) II L.P. (collectively, "MatlinPatterson").

We assume the parties' familiarity with the underlying facts, procedural history of the case, and issues on appeal, and we recite here only those facts most relevant to the resolution of this appeal. This case arose out of the 2007 acquisition of VRG by a Brazilian corporation from two of MatlinPatterson's indirect subsidiaries, by means of a Purchase and Sale Agreement ("PSA"), which, notably, MatlinPatterson did not sign. MatlinPatterson did simultaneously execute a one-page letter agreement, known as Addendum 5, by which it agreed not to compete with VRG for a period of three years. When a dispute arose shortly thereafter regarding a purchase price adjustment provision in the PSA, VRG referred the dispute to arbitration and named MatlinPatterson a party, over its objections. Ultimately, a three-member Arbitral Tribunal found that MatlinPatterson had agreed to arbitrate all issues arising under the PSA, including the parties' purchase price dispute, and issued an award holding MatlinPatterson liable for what the arbitrators characterized as fraudulent misrepresentations to VRG. Brazilian courts later denied MatlinPatterson's successive attempts to vacate the arbitral award.

When VRG sought to confirm the award here pursuant to the New York Convention, the District Court denied enforcement on the grounds that, even assuming for the sake of argument that MatlinPatterson had agreed to arbitrate disputes over its non-compete agreement, it had not agreed to arbitrate the purchase price issue, which arose under the PSA it did not sign. On an initial appeal, this Court vacated and remanded. VRG Linhas Aereas S.A. v. MatlinPatterson Global Opportunities Partners II L.P., 717 F.3d 322 (2d Cir.2013). We instructed that the District Court must decide the issue it had previously assumed—that is, "whether the parties actually reached an agreement to arbitrate...." Id. at 326. We further instructed that such an agreement could only be found if the District Court determined that the parties "clearly and unmistakably committed to arbitrate questions of arbitrability." Id. Given the contractual circumstances of this case, we explained that, if MatlinPatterson had agreed to be bound by the terms of the arbitration clause appearing at Section 14 of the PSA, the District Court would be required to confirm the arbitral award. Conversely, if MatlinPatterson had not agreed to the terms of PSA Section 14, the District Court would be compelled to deny VRG's petition. On remand, the District Court found that MatlinPatterson had not agreed to the terms of Section 14, and thus denied VRG's petition to confirm the award. This second appeal followed.

We review a district court's legal interpretations of the New York Convention as well as its contract interpretation de novo, and review findings of fact for clear error. VRG Linhas Aereas S.A., 717 F.3d at 325 (citations omitted). Though VRG contends, once again, that the District Court erred by failing to directly enforce or give preclusive effect to the judgments of the 61 Brazilian courts, we have already decided that the threshold issues of arbitrability arising here are "question[s] to be decided under United States arbitration law." Id. (citing Sarhank Grp. v. Oracle Corp., 404 F.3d 657, 659 (2d Cir.2005)).

Upon review, we affirm the District Court's holding that MatlinPatterson did not agree to the terms of Section 14 of the PSA. As the District Court found, MatlinPatterson signed only Addendum 5, a separate letter agreement containing a single non-compete obligation. J.A. 169. Though it mentions the PSA in the subject line and once again in the text, Addendum 5 does not expressly incorporate the entirety of the PSA's terms. Rather, by its terms, Addendum 5 is itself an "instrument [that] shall constitute pursuant to the best terms of the law a firm and valid commitment." Id. Notably, Addendum 5 refers only to a single specific provision in the PSA-the non-compete clause. Where, as here, the parties to an agreement choose to cite in the operative contract "only a specific portion" of another agreement, we apply "the well-established rule that 'a reference by the contracting parties to an extraneous writing for a particular purpose makes it part of their agreement only for the purpose specified.' " Lodges 743 & 1746, Int'l Ass'n of Machinists & Aerospace Workers v. United Aircraft Corp., 534 F.2d 422, 441 (2d Cir.1975) (quoting Guerini Stone Co. v. P.J. Carlin Constr. Co., 240 U.S. 264, 277, 36 S.Ct. 300, 60 L.Ed. 636 (1916)). Further, because Addendum 5 actually restates the referenced non-compete provision in full within its own text, it functions as a self-contained, stand-alone agreement, without requiring separate consultation of the PSA.

Because Addendum 5 contains no arbitration clause of its own, and because it does not incorporate the PSA's arbitration clause within Section 14, we conclude, like the District Court, that MatlinPatterson did not agree to arbitrate. In the absence of any threshold arbitration agreement, and in accordance with the calculus set forth in our prior decision, we affirm the District Court's judgment denying VRG's petition to confirm the arbitral award.

CONCLUSION

We have considered all of the remaining arguments raised by VRG on appeal and find them to be without merit. For the foregoing reasons, we AFFIRM the judgment of the District Court.

HEADNOTE

The Foreign Arbitral Enforcement Awards (1997 Revision) – Section 22 Arbitration Law (2001 Revision) – Section 72(2) The Arbitration Law, 2012 - Convention Award - New York Convention - Order 73, Part II of the Grand Court Rules (1995 Revision) - ICC Arbitration in Brazil - Arbitration - Enforcement - Whether enforcement of award should be refused on grounds that arbitrators lacked jurisdiction or because of breach of natural justice or on grounds of public policy.

JUDGMENT

Introduction - The Application

1. This is an application by the Defendants ("the MP Funds") opposing the attempt by the Plaintiff ("VRG") to enforce an arbitration award VRG's predecessor obtained against the MP Funds in Brazil on 2 September 2010 ("the Award").

2. The MP Funds say that this application for refusal has a good basis for all three reasons (or any one of them) set out below:

   (1) First basis for refusal: Arbitration is a consensual process. However, the MP Funds did not consent to arbitration. They were not a party to the arbitration agreement pursuant to which the arbitral Tribunal purported to exercise jurisdiction. The MP funds therefore are not bound by its decision.

   (2) Second basis for refusal: Arbitration awards that offend against natural justice or the public policy of the enforcing court will not be enforced. The arbitral process in this case was infected by a breach of natural justice of the most fundamental kind: the Tribunal held the MP Funds liable in tort under a particular provision of the Brazilian Civil Code ("BCC"), when no tort claim was pleaded or argued and on which the MP Funds were never given the right to be heard. To enforce an award that so manifestly infringes the audi alteram partem rule is contrary to the public policy of the Cayman Islands (in common with multiple other jurisdictions).

   (3) Third basis for refusal: Even if the parties had consented to arbitration, the parties to an arbitration consent only to the Tribunal determining the particular matter submitted to it for decision by the particular reference to arbitration. The Tribunal must not trespass beyond the scope of those matters and purport to decide matters not submitted to it for decision. That is what it is submitted the Tribunal did in this case. It purported to decide a tort claim against the MP Funds that had never been submitted to it for decision and purported to grant relief that had never been sought from it.

Background

3. The original proceedings were commenced by way of an ex parte Originating Summons filed 1 September 2016 by VRG, seeking the following orders:

> "(1) granting leave, pursuant to section 5 of the Foreign Arbitral Award Enforcement Law (1997 Revision), to enforce the award dated 2 September 2010, in the above mentioned arbitration, of Juan Fernandez-Armesto, Pedro Antonio Batista Martins and Gustavo Jose Mendes Tepedino, the arbitrators therein, in the same manner as a judgment or order of the court to the same effect;
> (2) granting leave to serve this Originating Summons and the Order made herein out of the jurisdiction on the Second Defendant at its registered office at...."

4. These proceedings came before me on 14 October 2016 and I delivered a Ruling on 26 October 2016, in which I expressed satisfaction that the Plaintiff had a "good prima facie case for enforcement". I made an order that:

> "1. pursuant to section 5 of the Foreign Arbitral Awards Enforcement Law (1997 Revision), the Plaintiff has leave to enforce in the same manner as a judgment or order of the Court to the same effect the following award made in an arbitration between the Plaintiff and the First and Second Defendants;
> (a) The award dated 2 September 2010 (the "Award") in the above mentioned arbitration, of Juan Fernandez-Armesto, Pedro Antonio Batista Martins and Gustavo Jose Mendes Tepedino, the Arbitrators therein.

2. Judgment is hereby entered against the Defendants in the terms of the Award, in the sum of R$92,987,672 in damages, together with interest thereon at the 'SELIC rate' from 31 December 2007 to the date of actual and full payment, plus R$4,199,421 in costs.

3. The Plaintiff has leave to serve this Order and the Ex Parte Originating summons herein out of jurisdiction…

4. Within 14 days after service of this Order, the First Defendant and the Third Defendant may apply to set aside this Order, and the Award shall not be enforced until after the expiration of that period, or, if the First Defendant or the Third Defendant applies within the 14 day period to set aside this Order, until after that application is finally disposed of.

5. Within 28 days after service of this Order, the Second Defendant may apply to set aside this Order, and the Award shall not be enforced until after the expiration of that period or, if the Second Defendant applies within the 28 day period to set aside this Order, until after that application is finally disposed of…"

5. On 17 November 2016 and on 1 December 2016, the First and Third Defendants, and the Second Defendant respectively filed summonses seeking orders that:

> "1. The Ex Parte Order dated 14 October 2016 be set aside pursuant to GCR O.73, r. 31(8) and section 7 of the Foreign Arbitral Awards Enforcement Law (1997 Revision)."

The Witnesses

6. Mr. Mauricio Gomm Santos, who swore three affidavits in these proceedings filed by the MP Funds, is a founding partner of GST LLP, an international dispute resolution practice with offices in Miami and Washington D.C. He is a citizen of Brazil and of the United States of America, and is a lawyer qualified to practice in Brazil and New York, and a Certified Foreign Legal Consultant in Florida. He has been in private practice for over 30 years, specializing in international arbitration and litigation disputes in Brazil and international arbitration in the United States. The MP Funds also put in evidence three affidavits of Robert Weiss, General Counsel of Matlin Patterson Global Advisers LLC, as well as the affidavit of Pedro Soares Maciel. Mr. Maciel was Lead Counsel to the First and Second Defendants in the Arbitration which resulted in the Award which VRG is seeking to enforce. Mr. Gomm Santos gave live evidence, and was cross-examined by Mr. Lowe QC on behalf of VRG.

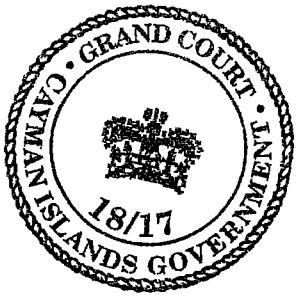
7. Two witnesses were called to give live evidence by VRG. They were assisted by Portuguese translators. Although they swore their affidavits in English, Mr. Lowe QC indicated that these witnesses, whilst comfortable with expressing themselves in English in, for example Reports, for the purposes of cross-examination wanted to ensure they understood precisely what the dialogue is and any nuances or technicalities in the questions. The witnesses who gave live evidence were Professor Carlos Alberto Carmona, a Professor at the University of Sao Paulo, Brazil, expert in civil procedure, litigation and arbitration, and who has acted as an arbitrator in domestic arbitrations in Brazil, and Mr. Gilberto Giusti. Mr. Giusti, amongst other qualifications, acts as an arbitrator in complex civil, commercial, corporate, securities and construction disputes. Both Professor Carmona and Mr. Giusti were cross-examined by Mr. Flynn Q.C. on behalf of the MP Funds.

The legal framework and the grounds on which the enforcing court may refuse recognition and enforcement under the New York Convention

8. The following aspects of this matter are common ground:

   (a) that the question of whether the Court should refuse to recognize and enforce the Award is governed by the Foreign Arbitral Awards Enforcement Law 1975 (1997 Revision) (the "Enforcement Law"). The Enforcement Law gives effect to the New York Convention 1958 as a matter of Cayman Islands Law.

   (b) that Brazil is a party to the Convention.



(c) that it is an aim of the New York Convention to achieve the effective and speedy enforcement of international arbitration awards falling within its scope. The New York Convention envisages a process by which a party with a Convention award in its favour can enforce it in Convention jurisdictions. This is reflected in the Enforcement Law which provides that "subject to this Law" a Convention Award shall be enforceable "in the same manner as an award under section 22 of the Arbitration Law (1996 Revision) and shall be treated as binding for all purposes on the persons between whom it was made." (Section 5).

The MP Funds Submissions

9. However, Mr. Flynn Q.C. places emphasis in the MP Funds' Skeleton Argument ("SKA") (at paragraph 4), on the fact that critical to the success of this regime, is that it includes safeguards to protect against fundamental injustice. He submits, (and this is accepted by VRG), that it is the corollary of the ability speedily to enforce a Convention award across the globe, that such an award must not contravene basic principles of fairness. Article 5 of the Convention outlines the circumstances in which the enforcing court can refuse to recognize and enforce the award. These are reflected in terms in the Enforcement Law, at section 7. Emphasis was placed by Learned Queen's Counsel on those terms, relevant to this case, as follows:

> "Art. 5.1 Recognition and enforcement of the award may be refused, at the request of the party against whom it is invoked, only if that party furnishes…proof that:
>
> (a) The parties to the [arbitration] agreement were, under the law applicable to them, under some incapacity, or the said agreement is not valid under the law to which the parties have subjected it or, failing any indication thereon, under the law of the country where the award was made; or
>
> (b) The party against whom the award was invoked was not given proper notice of the appointment of the arbitrator or of the arbitration proceedings or was otherwise unable to present his case; or
>
> *(c) The award deals with a difference not contemplated by or falling within the terms of the submission to arbitration, or it contains decisions on matters beyond the scope of the submission to arbitration, provided that, if the decisions on matters submitted to arbitration can be separated from those not so submitted, that part of the award which contains decisions on matters submitted to arbitration may be recognized or enforced; or

(d) The composition of the arbitral authority or the arbitral procedure was not in accordance with the agreement of the parties, or, failing such agreement, was not in accordance with the law of the country where the arbitration took place; or

(e) The award has not yet become binding on the parties, or has been set aside or suspended by a competent authority of the country in which, or under the law of which, that award was made.

Art 5.2 Recognition and enforcement of an arbitral award may also be refused if the competent authority in the country where recognition and enforcement is sought finds that:

(a) The subject matter of the difference is not capable of settlement by arbitration under the law of that country; or

(b) The recognition and enforcement of the award would be contrary to the public policy of that country."

10. Thus, it was submitted that, if therefore, the arbitral process was not consensual, then the award will not be enforced. So too, if the process by which the award was reached offends against the basic tenets of due process, including the right to be heard, or if it otherwise offends against the public policy of the enforcing court, then the court is under no obligation to enforce it.

11. Mr. Flynn submits that the New York Convention is therefore only "pro-enforcement" insofar as it places the burden on the party resisting enforcement to make out one of the grounds under Article V. It was pointed out that the enforcement court is not meant to favour the enforcing party. Learned Counsel submits that the UK Supreme Court has made precisely this point, by analogy to tennis, in its decision in Dallah Co v Ministry of Religious Affairs of Pakistan [2011] 1 A.C. 763. Reference was made to paragraph 30 of the judgment, where Lord Mance, in an oft-quoted passage, stated:

> "The scheme of the New York Convention, reflected in sections 101-103 of the 1996 Act [i.e. the English law equivalent of the Enforcement Law] may give limited prima facie credit to apparently valid arbitration awards based on apparently valid and applicable arbitration agreements, by throwing on the person resisting enforcement the onus of proving one of the matters set out in Article V(1) and section 103. But that is as far as it goes in law, Dallah [the party seeking to enforce the award] starts with the advantage of service, but it does not start 15 or 30 love up."

12. VRG has already attempted to enforce this Award in the United States. The United States Courts have refused to recognize it. By this application, MP Funds ask this Court to do the same, on the basis that this is one of those rare cases where recognition and enforcement under the New York Convention should be refused.

13. It was pointed out that the United States Courts, both at first instance and at the appellate level, have held that the Award should not be enforced because the MP Funds had never agreed to arbitration. The MP Funds say that, because they had not agreed to arbitrate the dispute in the first place, there was no need for the United States Courts even to go on to consider the failure of due process. Similarly, it was argued here, if this Court concludes that the MP Funds were not a party to the alleged arbitration agreement, it would not be necessary (though it was stated that the Court may think it desirable), to go on to consider the failure of due process or whether the matters decided were beyond the scope of the submission to arbitration.

14. Learned Counsel emphasized that on his side, it was not being suggested that the Court is bound to follow the US Courts' decision, and that it was for this Court to consider for itself, afresh, whether any of the grounds for refusal of recognition of the Award under the New York Convention is engaged. However, the Court was invited to take the same approach, because it is alleged that the same fundamental breaches arise on this application.

The First Ground for Refusal of Enforcement: The MP Funds did not consent to arbitration

15. It was submitted that the arbitration process deprives the parties of their basic right to go to court. Accordingly, it is only if the parties have validly consented to the removal of that right and agreed that their dispute should be arbitrated, that an arbitration award will be enforceable against them.

16. Reference was made to paragraph 24 of Dallah, where Lord Mance puts it this way:

> "Arbitration of the kind with which this appeal is concerned [i.e. under the New York Convention] is consensual - the manifestation of parties' choice to submit present or future issues between them to arbitration."

The Arbitration Agreement must be in writing

17. As Mr. Flynn points out, in order for the Enforcement Law to apply at all, the applicant must be the recipient of a "Convention award". Section 2(1) of the Enforcement Law defines "Convention award" to mean "an award made in pursuance of an arbitration agreement in the territory of a State, other than the Islands, which is a party to the New York Convention." (Learned Counsel's emphasis).

18. Section 2(1) defines "arbitration agreement" to mean "an agreement in writing (including an agreement contained in an exchange of letters or telegrams) to submit to arbitration present or future differences capable of being settled by arbitration." (Learned Counsel's emphasis)

19. The MP Funds submit that the requirement that the arbitration agreement be in writing is taken from Article II of the Convention.

20. Reference was made to the fact that this requirement for the arbitration agreement to be in writing also appears in the English Arbitration Act 1996, section 5. Learned Counsel relied upon the Report of the Department Advisory Committee dated February 1996, chaired by Lord Justice Saville ("the DAC Report"), which provides commentary on the provisions of the English Act. At paragraph 33, it is stated that:

> "An arbitration agreement has the important effect of contracting out of the right to go to court, i.e. it deprives the parties of that basic right. To our minds an agreement of such importance should be in some written form. Furthermore the need for such form should help to reduce disputes as to whether or not an arbitration agreement was made and as to its terms." (Learned Counsel's emphasis)

CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT 18/17

The Arbitration Agreement must be valid as between the parties

21. Under Article V.1 (a) of the New York Convention and section 7(2)(b) of the Enforcement Law, the written arbitration agreement must be "valid under the law to which the parties have subjected it or, failing any indication thereon, under the law of the country where the award was made."

22. This means that, under the law of the seat of the arbitration, the written agreement must be valid and binding between the parties to it. The MP Funds submit that there are two important points to note about the application of this provision to this case, as follows:

    i. it is common ground that the law governing whether the MP Funds are properly construed as having entered into a valid arbitration agreement is Brazilian law, that being the law of the country where the award was made.

    ii. Secondly, the nature of the exercise that the Court must perform in deciding whether an arbitration agreement existed under such law, is that the Court must decide for itself whether or not the MP Funds actually consented to arbitration. Thus, the Court has to consider that question de novo (or afresh) and reach its own independent answer to it. It was submitted that, in that regard, the fact that the Tribunal reached the view that it had jurisdiction over the MP Funds is legally irrelevant.

23. Again, guidance was sought from Dallah, where, at paragraph [30], Lord Mance elucidated the proposition at 22(ii) above, as follows:

> "The nature of the present exercise is, in my opinion, also unaffected where an arbitral tribunal has either assumed or, after full deliberation, concluded that it had jurisdiction. There is in law no distinction between these situations. The tribunal's own view of its jurisdiction has no legal or evidential value, when the issue is whether the tribunal has any legitimate authority in relation to the Government [which was the party objecting to enforcement] at all. This is so however full was the evidence before it and however carefully deliberated was its conclusion."

(My emphasis)

24. Mr. Flynn makes the substantial and important point that if even under Brazilian Law, a Brazilian Court applying the New York Convention considers itself bound by, or restricted to a review of the Tribunal's decision, that is not Cayman Islands Law. Cayman Islands Law is that this Court must make an independent determination of the agreement's validity, albeit applying substantive Brazilian law principles of contractual construction to determine that question.

25. Reference was once again made to Dallah, at paragraph 24 where Lord Mance explained that arbitrators may:

> "...from time to time find themselves faced with challenges to their role or powers, and have in that event to consider the existence and extent of their authority to decide particular issues involving particular persons. But, absent specific authority to do this, they cannot by their own decision on such matters create or extend the authority conferred on them."

Brazilian Law principles as to consent: no different than Cayman Islands/English/US law

26. Reference was made to the three expert reports before the Court on Brazilian law of contractual interpretation governing whether the MP Funds consented to the arbitration agreement. VRG's expert on this point, and others, is Mr. Giusti. The MP Funds' expert is Mr. Gomm Santos. It is noted that these are the same experts as each party used before the United States Courts, and they both have reaffirmed and resubmitted before this Court, the same expert reports that they made before the United States Courts.

27. Although VRG has adduced a second expert report from Professor Carmona, he does not address the question of consent to an arbitration agreement.

It is recorded in the US Court of Appeals judgment of 3 June 2013, that the parties were in agreement that the standard principles of contractual interpretation are no different under Brazilian Law than under U.S. Law.

29. The principles of contractual interpretation under U.S. Law are the same as those under Cayman Islands law or English law. It was submitted by Mr. Flynn that neither expert gives evidence that suggests in any way that the Court should be approaching the question of whether the MP Funds were a party to the arbitration agreement differently under Brazilian law than it would under Cayman Islands law.

30. It was put forward that another important aspect of the evidence is that the experts appear to be in agreement as to the principles of contractual interpretation under Brazilian law. What they are in disagreement about is as to how these principles should be applied, which is, of course, really a matter for this Court to decide. In particular:

i. Brazilian law, like Cayman and English law, requires that an arbitration agreement can only be made in writing: Article 4, paragraph 1 of the Brazilian Arbitration Law.

ii. In Giusti 1, paragraph 43, VRG's expert expressly confirms that this is because the parties are agreeing to contract out of their constitutional right to go to court.

iii. The question of whether the parties have agreed to waive their constitutional right to go to court is a question of the intention of the parties - Giusti 1, paragraphs 54-60 (just as it is under English, U.S. or Cayman law).

31. Mr. Flynn submits that the parties' intention to arbitrate must therefore be stated expressly and in writing. It cannot be inferred. The parties can record their agreement to arbitrate by incorporating the arbitration agreement from another agreement into their contract. But that intention must be express, he submits.

(1) Whether the MP Funds entered into an Arbitration Agreement with VRG

The facts as set out by the MP Funds - The business model of the MP Funds

32. The MP Funds describe the business structure that they operate. The First and Second Defendant are the MP Funds. The Third Defendant is their General Partner and is joined in the proceedings as a matter of form. The MP Funds are private investment funds that specialize in what is termed "distressed investing". They are funded by institutional investors, and invest their capital in companies that are in financial difficulty. The MP Funds seek a return on their investment by providing financing and operational expertise to reorganize and structure the companies in their portfolio, with a view to helping these companies recover.

33. It is asserted that, as is common in the private equity industry, where a portfolio company enters into a contract with a third party, the funds themselves do not contract directly with that third party. Mr. Weiss, at paragraph 11 of his affidavit, describes this contractual structure as follows:

> "11. The MP Funds, as a business matter, undertake to structure their investments so as not to become parties to contracts entered into by portfolio companies. The MP Funds could not sensibly or predictably manage their investment risk if they subjected themselves to the obligations of their portfolio companies ... This is fundamental to the kind of investing in which the MP Funds engage."

34. It was submitted that this was the contractual structure adopted in this case:

a. In 2005, the MP Funds established a Delaware company called Volo Logistics LLC ("Volo Logistics") to serve as an investment vehicle for pursuing an opportunity in the Brazilian aviation industry.

GRAND COURT • CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT • 18/17

b. Volo Logistics, together with three Brazilian investors ("the Brazilian Shareholders") formed a Brazilian company called Volo do Brasil SA ("Volo dB"). The Brazilian Shareholders owned and controlled 80% of Volo dB's voting stock and Volo Logistics owned the remaining 20% of the voting stock.

c. In early 2006, Volo dB purchased Varig Logistica SA ("Varilog"), which operated a Brazilian cargo airline.

d. Later in 2006, Varilog and Volo dB purchased the passenger airline business of Varilog's former parent. This purchase was made through a Brazilian special purpose vehicle that came to be named VRG Linhas Aereas SA. The stock of VRG was held by Varilog, save for 1% which was held by Volo dB.

35. In March 2007, Volo dB and Varilog sold 100% of their shares in VRG to a Brazilian company, called GTI SA ("GTI"). GTI was a subsidiary of Gol Linhas Aeras Intelligentes SA, the Brazilian airline. This sale took place pursuant to a Share Purchase and Sale Agreement dated 28 March 2007 ("the PSA").

36. It is the PSA that is the subject of the parties' dispute. The English translation is at page 10 of Mr. Weiss' exhibit. Mr. Flynn submits that there are the following five features to be noted:

a. The sellers under the PSA were Volo dB and Varilog ("the Sellers").

b. The buyer under the PSA was GTI.

c. The MP Funds were not parties to the PSA.

d. Other than Volo dB and Varilog, the only other signatories to the PSA were VRG (as the target company being sold) and Gol, the parent company of GTI, the buyer. Gol executed the PSA in order to guarantee the performance of GTI's obligations under the PSA (Clause 14.11). The MP Funds did not guarantee the obligations of Volo dB or Varilog.

e. The PSA contained an arbitration agreement at Clause 14, by which the Parties to the PSA agreed to submit all disputes between them to arbitration. The arbitration was to take place in Sao Paulo, Brazil in Portuguese.

37. As pointed out by Learned Counsel, and I accept, it is common for the seller of a business to agree that, for a period of time, it will not compete with the business being sold, because this could damage the value of the business. The Sellers agreed to a non-compete obligation at Clause 11.1 of the PSA.

38. It was submitted that it is also common practice where the seller is a portfolio investment of a private equity investment fund, for the buyer to request the principal shareholders in the seller also to undertake not to compete with the business for a period of time. Therefore the MP Funds and the three Brazilian shareholders undertook to the Buyers that they would not compete with VRG's business.

39. The MP Funds and the three Brazilian Shareholders gave this undertaking by way of a letter from them to GTI ("the Non-Compete Letter") undertaking that they would not compete with VRG's business. This was annexed to the PSA.

40. Mr. Flynn advances the following four points about the PSA:

(1) The parties to the Non-Compete Letter are Brazilian Shareholders and the MP Funds on the one hand and GTI and Gol on the other. The Sellers and VRG are not party to the Non-Compete Letter, although they are Parties to the PSA. The parties to the Non-Compete Letter and PSA are therefore different.

(2) The non-compete obligation is the only obligation undertaken by the Brazilian Shareholders and the MP Funds in the letter.

(3) The letter expressly sets out the terms of the non-compete obligation undertaken by the MP Funds and the Brazilian Shareholders. This mirrors Clause 11.1 of the PSA (i.e. the Seller's non-compete obligation), to which the letter refers.

(4) The Non-Compete Letter does not contain an arbitration agreement.

41. It was submitted that, for the reasons described by Mr. Weiss in his affidavit, it was absolutely intentional that the MP Funds were not a party to the PSA or any of its terms, including the arbitration agreement in Clause 14. Rather, the MP Funds were providing to GTI the single non-compete obligation specifically set out in the Non-Compete Letter. It was submitted that the PSA was between the parties who had executed it (the Sellers, GTI, GoI and VRG) on 27 March 2007, and the Non-Compete Letter was between the different parties who had, on the very same day, executed that document (the three Brazilian Shareholders, the MP Funds, GTI and GoI). (Learned Counsel's emphasis)

42. Later in 2007, a dispute arose between the Sellers and GTI as to the operation of a price adjustment mechanism contained within the PSA. There was a provision allowing the purchase price to be adjusted to account for changes in working capital during the period required to complete and close the sale.

43. It was argued that in that way, the purchase price adjustment is not a revaluation of the entire business, it is merely an adjustment made, usually by professional accountants, to reflect fluctuations in working capital. It was suggested that this adjustment would normally only be a fraction of the overall purchase price.

44. Clause 5 of the PSA provides a procedure for calculating a purchase price adjustment to the initial acquisition price to reflect changes in VRG's working capital accounts between the date of the PSA and the date of the necessary regulatory approval. It provided that the Sellers could prepare an adjusted calculation and that GTI would then appoint its own accounting firm to validate PWC's calculation. GTI appointed Ernst & Young. In the event of a divergence between the two firms' views, a third accounting firm was to be appointed to take a final and binding view.

45. PWC and Ernst & Young's views did diverge significantly in various respects, but the Sellers and GTI were unable to agree the appointment of a third firm. GTI therefore referred the purchase price adjustment dispute to arbitration in Sao Paulo under the arbitration agreement in Clause 14 of the PSA. (GTI merged with VRG in 2008 and thereafter became known as VRG. The claimant in the arbitration is therefore VRG.)

46. However, instead of commencing those proceedings against the Sellers only, VRG also commenced those proceedings against Volo Logistics and the MP Funds (but not the Brazilian shareholders), on the basis that they were the alter egos of the Sellers and therefore bound by the arbitration agreement of the Sellers. Learned Counsel asked the Court to note that when it commenced the arbitration and for nearly a year thereafter, VRG did not claim that MP Funds had consented to arbitration by virtue of the Non-Compete Letter. He submits that VRG subsequently introduced this theory, as an additional basis upon which the Tribunal could exercise jurisdiction over the MP Funds, notwithstanding the MP Funds say, that the price adjustment dispute had nothing whatsoever to do with the Non-Compete Letter, which contained the only obligation to GTI that the MP Funds had undertaken.

GRAND COURT • CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT • 18/17

The MP Funds object to jurisdiction

47. From the outset, the MP Funds have objected to the Tribunal's jurisdiction. They have maintained that they were not parties to the PSA and therefore not parties to the arbitration agreement contained at Clause 14.

48. The Tribunal dealt with the MP Funds' objection in its partial award dated 7 April 2009. It held, by a 2:1 majority, that it had jurisdiction over the MP Funds on the basis that the MP Funds had entered into the Non-Compete Letter. It was submitted that they so decided even though they recognized that the dispute was unconnected with the non-compete obligation undertaken by the MP Funds in that letter.

49. At a later hearing in September 2009, the Tribunal went on to determine the merits of the price adjustment dispute. The MP Funds have indicated that they participated under protest.

VRG's Claim

50. VRG's claim against the Sellers was for specific performance of the purchase price adjustment process under Clause 5 of the PSA and relief in the amount of the negative balance that VRG claimed it was owed under the PSA. VRG also claimed against the MP Funds, that although they were not a party to Clause 5 of the PSA, they should be jointly and severally liable with the Sellers for the amount of the purchase price adjustment due under the PSA because they were the "alter egos" of the Sellers and therefore the corporate veil should be lifted.

GRAND COURT · CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT · 18/17

The Tribunal's Award

51. The Tribunal awarded the amount of the contractual purchase price adjustment which it calculated was owed by the Sellers to VRG. Mr. Flynn however says that, instead of ordering that, the price should be adjusted to reflect the changes in the working capital of the airline during the period between the initial working capital calculation and the date of regulatory approval (which was a period of 11 days), as Clause 5 of the PSA contemplated, the Tribunal wholesale revalued VRG downwards, arriving at a purchase price "adjustment" of approximately R$93 million, reflecting more than 20% of the entire acquisition price.

52. VRG's alter ego claim was rejected by the Tribunal. It found that there were no grounds for piercing the corporate veil, as the MP Funds had not abused the doctrine of separate corporate structure and personality and were not to be regarded as liable for the contractual obligations of the Sellers under Clause 5 as VRG had alleged.

53. However, what the Tribunal did was to find the MP Funds liable for the entire purchase price adjustment amount on the basis of a tort under Article 148 of the Brazilian Civil Code known as "third party malice". Mr. Flynn characterizes this occurrence as a surprise to the MP Funds, because it fundamentally contradicted the basis upon which the Tribunal had previously determined in its partial award on jurisdiction that the MP Funds were bound by the PSA arbitration clause - as parties to all of the PSA's terms - and the Tribunal also held the MP Funds liable for a contractual remedy on the basis of tort damages that were never pleaded nor sought by VRG. (The MP Funds' emphasis). The MP Funds maintain that, because tort liability and tort damages had never been pleaded or alleged by VRG, they had never been put by the Tribunal to it and it was never given the opportunity to be heard on them.

The Brazilian Proceedings

54. In 2010, proceedings were issued by the MP Funds in Brazil, under Brazil's domestic arbitration law. It sought "vacatur" (vacation) of the Award. Thus far, the Brazilian Courts have upheld the Award under Brazil's arbitration legislation. However, proceedings remain ongoing, with an appeal presently pending before the Special Chamber of the Superior Court of Justice. Mr. Flynn reminded the Court that of course, in upholding the Award, this has taken place under Brazilian legislation, and not applying the New York Convention, which applies only to enforcement and recognition proceedings in respect of foreign awards.

The US Proceedings

55. In January 2011, VRG applied to the United States Courts in New York to have the Award recognized and enforced under the New York Convention. In New York, the MP Funds mounted opposition to recognition on the same three bases that they do here before the Cayman Islands Courts.

56. The US Courts have refused to recognize and enforce the Award at a number of junctures, as follows:

    i. On 19 January 2012, the United States District Court refused to enforce the Award on the basis that even if one assumed in VRG's favour, for the sake of argument, that the MP Funds had agreed to arbitrate in the Non-Compete Letter, they only agreed to arbitrate disputes in connection with their non-compete undertaking and not a dispute under the PSA to which they were not party.

ii. VRG appealed that decision to the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, arguing that the US Court should follow the decision of the Brazilian Court of first instance not to vacate the Award. The Court of Appeals rejected that position, and held that it was for the U.S. Court to determine de novo whether the MP Funds had agreed to arbitrate. One aspect of the Court's decision was, however, to remit the matter to the District Court to determine whether or not the MP Funds were a party to the arbitration agreement in Clause 14 of the PSA (i.e. that the District Court should determine the issue that had been assumed in VRG's favour).

iii. When the matter was remitted, the District Court held in a judgment dated 2 October 2014, that it was clear that the MP Funds did not agree to the terms of Clause 14 of the PSA.

iv. VRG appealed that decision to the Court of Appeals. The appeal was refused. The Court of Appeals held, as had the District Court, that the MP Funds did not agree to the arbitration clause in the PSA and did not agree to arbitrate.

v. VRG's application for permission to have a re-hearing by the Court of Appeals en banc, was refused.

Whether there was an Arbitration Agreement covering dispute in respect of the price adjustment mechanism under the PSA

57. The MP Funds argue that, in any event, even if Clause 14 of the PSA were incorporated into the Non-Compete Letter, which they strenuously deny, it could only apply to disputes relating to the subject matter of that letter. That means that it is expressly limited to the undertaking of the MP Funds not to compete with VRG on the terms set out in the letter.

58. They submit that the dispute referred by VRG to arbitration had nothing whatsoever to do with the MP Funds' non-compete undertaking.

The Second Ground for Refusal: The Tribunal Breached Natural Justice by Finding Liability on a basis neither pleaded nor argued and awarding relief that was never requested

59. The MP Funds point out that the New York Convention and the Enforcement Law provide two alternative routes by which the Court can refuse to recognize and enforce an Award that offends against natural justice in the manner alleged. These bases are found in sub-sections 7(2)(c) and 7(3) of the Enforcement Law. Sub-section 7(2)(c) provides that the enforcing court can refuse recognition and enforcement where the party against whom it is invoked can show that "he was not given proper notice of the appointment of the arbitrator or of the arbitration proceedings or was otherwise unable to present his case." (The MP Funds' emphasis)

60. Section 7(3) provides that "Enforcement of a Convention award may also be refused if the award is in respect of a matter which is not capable of settlement by arbitration, or if it would be contrary to public policy to enforce the award."

61. Reference was made by the MP Funds to a number of authorities, including Cukurova Holding v Sonera Holding [2014] UKPC 15, which is a decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, on appeal from the Court of Appeal of the British Virgin Islands.

62. The Headnote in my view contains an accurate summary of the decision, and for convenience. I set it out here, as follows:

> "The respondent, Sonera, held 47.09% of the shares in a Turkish holding company which held 51% of the shares in Turkey's largest mobile phone operator. The other 52.91% of shares in the holding company were held by the appellant, Cukorova. The parties entered into a letter agreement regarding the potential purchase by Sonera of the Cukorova shareholding. The letter agreement obliged the parties to execute a final share purchase agreement (SPA) after certain conditions had been satisfied or waived. The letter agreement was governed by Turkish law, but contained an arbitration agreement governed by Swiss law and providing for ICC arbitration. The parties initialed a draft share purchase agreement which, like the letter agreement, was governed by Turkish law but contained an arbitration agreement governed by Swiss law in similar terms to that in the letter agreement. The Final SPA was not executed within the 60 day period set by the letter agreement, and Sonera commenced arbitration proceedings against Cukorova pursuant to the arbitration clause in the letter agreement. Sonera sought an award ordering Cukorova to comply with the obligation in the letter agreement to execute the final SPA and to transfer the shares to Sonera against payment of the purchase price. Cukorova contended that the tribunal had no jurisdiction to entertain Sonera's claims or to grant such relief because (amongst other things) the arbitration had been commenced under the arbitration clause in the letter agreement yet sought relief under the final SPA, which was a separate contract which contained its own arbitration clause. Further, Cukorova argued that the terms of the final SPA had not been agreed during the 60 day period provided for in the letter agreement and that the letter agreement had therefore lapsed and the transaction had been abandoned.

The tribunal, in a first partial award, rejected Cukorova's objections to its jurisdiction and found in favour of Sonera on the merits. The tribunal found that the parties had reached agreement on the terms of the final SPA, that the conditions in the letter agreement had been met, that Cukorova owed a contractual obligation to execute the SPA and that, although it had not been executed by Cukurova, under Turkish law the final SPA had been concluded in a valid and binding form. In a second partial award the tribunal ordered Cukorova to deliver the shares to Sonera against payment of the purchase price.

Sonera then waived its claim for specific performance and sought damages for non-delivery of the shares. The tribunal issued a final award which found that Cukorova was liable to pay Sonera damages in the sum of US$932 million.

The BVI High Court granted permission to enforce the final award in the same manner as a judgment. Cukorova applied unsuccessfully to set aside the judgment and its appeal was dismissed by the Court of Appeal.

Cukorova appealed arguing that as a matter of Swiss law the issue as to whether the final SPA was binding could not be arbitrated under the letter agreement arbitration clause, but only under the SPA arbitration clause. Cukorova further argued that it had not been able to present its case to the tribunal, in breach of the rules of natural justice, so that enforcement should be refused under s.36(2) (c) of the BVI Arbitration Ordinance and/or under s. 36(3) on the basis that it would be contrary to public policy.

Held, dismissing Cukorova's appeal:

1. To say that there were two independent contracts each with its own arbitration clause did not fully reflect the unusual circumstances of the case. It was never intended that the parties should be bound by two concurrent sets of differing contractual obligations. The final SPA was prospective until the conditions in the letter agreement were fulfilled; the letter agreement would terminate in accordance with its terms on execution of the final SPA. The contracts were intended to be component parts of a single seamless transaction. Cukorova failed to show that there was any impediment in Swiss law to prevent Sonera from having the whole dispute between the parties dealt with under the letter agreement arbitration. The parties could not have intended that, if the tribunal found, as it did, that the letter agreement had been breached, Sonera would be required to commence a fresh arbitration under the final SPA. The terms of the arbitration clause in the letter agreement were cast in wide terms and were not limited to disputes about rights and obligations specifically created in the letter agreement itself. Sonera's claim, based on Cukorova's failure to execute and deliver the final SPA, was made in respect of 'any dispute, controversy or claim arising out of or in connection with' the letter agreement. The judge was correct to hold that the tribunal had jurisdiction to make the award it did.
2. If a particular breach of natural justice did not fall within s.36(2)(c) because it was not one which meant that the party could not present its case, it was in principle open to the court to refuse to enforce the award on the ground of public policy. However, on the facts of the present case the Board was of the view that only if Cukurova succeeded under s.36(2)(c) should the court refuse to enforce the award. There had to be good reasons for refusing to enforce a New York Convention award. The Board could see no basis for refusing to enforce the award if Cukorova failed to show that it was unable to present its case for reasons beyond its control. The Board rejected the submission that there was a fundamental breach of natural justice on the ground that the tribunal decided the key issue in the dispute (namely, whether the parties had agreed the terms of the SPA) on a basis that had never been put to Cukorova and that Cukorova never had an opportunity to address. Similarly, the tribunal had not ignored or failed to give any reasons for rejecting Cukorova's evidence and submissions on a key point in relation to the quantification of Sonera's alleged loss."

63. Mr. Flynn made a number of points about the Privy Council's decision, as follows:

i. That a breach of natural justice taking the form of a party not being able to present its case fell within the exact equivalent under the BVI legislation of section 7(2)(c) of the Enforcement Law and that other breaches of natural justice fell within the exact BVI equivalent of section 7(3) - Judgment of Lord Clarke - paragraph 33.

ii. That in applying these principles the enforcing court must apply its own concept of natural justice. Thus, to the extent that the Brazilian concept of natural justice and the Cayman Islands concept may differ, it is the Cayman Islands concept that this Court must consider and apply.

iii. Reference was made to paragraph 32 of the judgment, and it was submitted that the following is also true of Cayman Islands public policy:

> "[That] it is contrary to public policy in England to enforce a foreign arbitral award where the foreign proceedings violated English principles of natural justice: see e.g. Adams v Cape Industries [1990] Ch 433. The same is true of BVI public policy."

iv. On the facts of the case before it, the Privy Council found that the applicant had not been deprived of the opportunity to present its case, nor had there been any other failure of natural justice. There, however, it was submitted that the applicant's complaint was not that it had been held liable on a basis of liability not pleaded or argued; rather its complaint was that there had been various procedural failures at the hearing, in particular the Tribunal's alleged failure to hear live evidence from a particular witness.

64. I note that the issue of the witness is discussed at paragraphs 36 – 54 of the Privy Council's judgment.

65. Reference was also made by Mr. Flynn to the decision of the English Commercial Court in Malicorp v Government of the Arab Republic of Egypt [2015] 1 Lloyd's Report 423, which he submits, by way of contrast with the facts and circumstances in Cukorova, is a situation precisely on "all fours" with the present case, as follows:

i. In that case, Malicorp had pursued a claim against Egypt for compensation for breach of contract. The Tribunal rejected that claim, but instead held Egypt liable to Malicorp under Article 142 of the Egyptian Civil Code.

ii. Article 142 had not been pleaded or argued by Malicorp. Nor had it been raised by the Tribunal until the award.

iii. The Court held that the failure of the Tribunal to ensure that Egypt had warning that Article 142 was the anticipated basis of proceeding against it constituted a "serious" breach of natural justice "manifestly repugnant to elementary principles of fairness" (paragraphs 41 and 42).

iv. Applying Cukorova, the Court refused to recognize the Award under section 103(2)(c) of the English Arbitration Act, which is the English equivalent to section 7(2)(c) of the Enforcement Law.

v. At paragraphs 31 and 32, Walker J stated the legal principles as follows:

> "31. There can in my view be no doubt that a grant of remedies on a basis which was neither pleaded nor argued will be capable of falling within this subsection. Nor can there be any doubt that under principles of English private international law the test as to ability of the party to present its case involves an application of relevant English principles as opposed to those of Egypt or anywhere else: see Cukorova Holdings AS v Sonera ...para 32.
>
> 32. Malicorp asserts that the "character of the decision-making body, the kind of decision it has to make and the statutory or other framework in which it operates" have to be taken into account when considering if the procedure adopted was fair and in compliance with the requirements of natural justice. I accept that relevant English principles require consideration of these matters. I do not accept, however, that the applicable arbitration procedures in the present case called for any lessening of the essential need for Egypt to have notice of the basis on which the tribunal would grant any remedy and approach the quantification of any monetary award. Nor can I accept that there was anything arbitrary in requiring, before permitting enforcement here, that the foreign arbitral procedure respected this essential need." (My emphasis)

GRAND COURT • CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT • 18/17

Third Ground for Refusal - The Tribunal Purported to Decide Matters beyond the Scope of the Submission to Arbitration

66. Section 7(2)(d) provides that the Court may refuse enforcement/ recognition where:

> "the award deals with a difference not contemplated by or not falling within the terms of the submission to arbitration or contains decisions on matters beyond the scope of the submission to arbitration."

67. Reference was made to paragraph 19.54 of Merkin on Arbitration, where the learned author opines as follows:

> "the proper analysis of this provision is that it may cover both excess of jurisdiction(eg. Invalid or non-existent arbitration agreement) and excess of authority or power (eg. including in the award a remedy not claimed sometimes referred to as ultra petita)."

68. It was submitted that in this case, both heads of refusal are satisfied: either the MP Funds were not a party to the arbitration agreement at all, which would amount to there being no jurisdiction, or, if they were a party to the arbitration agreement, the Tribunal has exceeded its authority by purporting to include in the Award a remedy not claimed.

69. Reference was made to two cases emanating from Singapore as demonstrating that a two stage test is to be applied: (a) did the parties consent to arbitrate at all; (b) if they did, did they consent to arbitrate the particular matters decided by the arbitrators. The cases are PT Asuransi Jasa Indonesia v Dexia Bank [2007] 1 SLR (R) 597 and Kempinski Hotels v PT Prima International [2011] SGHC.

70. It was further submitted that the ICC Rules of Arbitration that governed this arbitration (Article 18 of the 1998 Rules), contained a provision designed to facilitate the precise delineation of the matters submitted to the arbitrators for decision (So also does Article 23 of the 2012 Rules). The arbitration Terms of Reference set the outer parameters of the submission to arbitration, and it was submitted that these Terms clearly demonstrate the boundaries of the scope of the matters submitted to the arbitrators, and that it is only to the determination of those matters that the parties had submitted.

71. The Court was asked to refuse enforcement on this third ground also.

The Submissions Advanced on Behalf of VRG

72. As part of the background recited in its SKA, VRG states that the MP Funds, GTI and GoI signed one of a series of documents called "Aditivos", which included Aditivo No 5 ("Aditivo No 5").

73. In the SKA, the following points are made about Aditivo No 5:

a. By it, the MP Funds agreed to refrain from competing with VRG for three years.
b. It was in Portuguese.
c. Rather than being signed by the Sellers, VLog or Volo DB, it was signed by the principal stakeholder.
d. Like all but one of the other five Aditivos, it was executed on the same day as the PSA.
e. It referred to the PSA and was expressed to be "a valid and enforceable agreement between the parties amending the terms of the [PSA]."

74. Mr. Lowe QC, in VRG's SKA refers to the MP Funds' evidence, as advanced through Mr. Weiss, as to its business practice and the fact that in essence, it was said that the MP Funds do not contract directly with third parties. It was submitted that the implication of Mr. Weiss' evidence is that the MP Funds management deals through a special purpose vehicle in order to "avoid liabilities of that management being brought back home". It was asserted that Mr. Weiss the witness was not, however, (as he himself indicated) involved in the negotiations, and the evidence on this score was characterized as being largely irrelevant argument. I must say by way of passing comment regarding the alleged implication that this seems to me to be not unheard of commercial practice, but in any event, it does not take the matter of construction any further. What in my judgment need to be scrutinized and construed are the relevant documents, i.e. the Non-Compete Letter and the PSA.

75. It was argued that it was also not relevant to any common law approach for the Court to examine the MP Funds' subjective intention in order to arrive at the correct interpretation of a contract. Reference was made to the oft-cited judgment of Lord Hoffman in Investment Compensation Scheme Limited v West Bromwich Building Soc [1998] 1 WLR 896 at 912-3.

76. The submissions describe the Arbitration proceedings, as well as the Brazilian proceedings, and then, having described the various appeals in Brazil, at paragraphs 24 and 25, it is pointed out that, to date, the MP Funds have failed in its challenge to the Award. It was argued as follows:

> "24. The only possible avenue of appeal left after the additional interlocutory appeal is determined is by way of extraordinary appeal to the Supreme Federal Court (the Constitutional Court). However, there is no constitutional point here - and none was raised in the courts below. The Supreme Federal Court would have to give leave for an appeal to be heard.
>
> 25. The parties in these Brazilian Proceedings are the same as the parties before the Court now. If this were a final ruling then the MP Funds would be bound by these findings by means of an issue estoppel, if not res judicata. The only reason that may not be so now is because the MP Funds have launched appeals - all of which have failed to date, and none of which, VRG submits, have any sensible or reasonable prospect of success in the future."

The US Proceedings

77. VRG acknowledge that it has not been successful in enforcing the Award in the U.S. However, it was submitted that there is a substantial difference between the value of

GRAND COURT • CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT • 18/17

Brazilian Court decisions (the seat of the arbitration) and decisions of the US Courts. It was submitted that the US decisions (and their reasoning) are irrelevant because they turn on issues of arbitrability argued from the point of view of US law only.

Legal Framework in the Cayman Islands

(1) Enforcement

78. It is common ground that the legal burden is on the person against whom the award is made to prove that its recognition or enforcement should be refused on one of the grounds set out in section 7(2) on the balance of probabilities. VRG submit that this is so even when enforcement is resisted on the basis of section 7(2)(b) -.i.e., the award debtor was not a party to it. Reference was made to Dardana Ltd. v Yukos Oil [2002] EWCA Civ, paragraph [77] of Dallah, and Sovarex SA v Romero Alvarez SA [2011] EWHC 1661 (Comm); [2011] 2 CLC 691 at [43].

79. It is also common ground that this Court must determine for itself whether the arbitrational Tribunal had competence and jurisdiction, including deciding whether there was an arbitration agreement for the purposes of Section 7(2)(b).

(2) Issue Estoppel

80. In my view it is interesting to see how the submissions developed. Mr. Lowe accepts that therefore the decision of the Tribunal itself on competence and jurisdiction is not determinative for this Court. However, he now submits that the decision on the MP Funds' enforcement challenges in the Brazilian Courts does give rise to an issue estoppel, notwithstanding the fact that there is an application for leave to appeal outstanding and notwithstanding the arguments raised at the ex parte stage.

81. Learned Counsel makes the argument that the question is one of issue estoppel because the Brazilian Courts have decided issues of fact, and arguments on those facts, which are said to be materially the same as those which arise here. Thus, the argument runs that the findings of the District Court, Court of Appeal and STJ in Brazil are enforceable and are to be recognized by the Cayman Court by way of issue estoppel because they are final and conclusive on the merits. Reference was made to a number of cases, including Carl Zeiss Stiftung v Rayner & Keeler [1967] 1 A.C. 853 and The Sennar (No. 2)[1985] 1 WLR 490.

82. It was submitted that the doctrine of issue estoppel must, in principle, be available. Mr. Lowe further stated (at paragraph 6 of further written submissions handed up "Supplemental SKA") that:

> "It has not been suggested that VRG is to be prevented from taking the stance it did at the ex parte hearing, namely that there was no issue estoppel which they relied on at the ex parte hearing. Had they relied on estoppel at an ex parte hearing, the Order would presumably have been immediately challenged."

83. It was contended that there is an obvious symmetry between issues arising on enforcement appeals and issues arising before a supervisory court hearing an action to annul an award on grounds in a modern arbitration law.

84. At paragraph 53 of its Supplemental SKA, VRG argues that, because the legal issues are in substance the same, the complaints which MP Funds bring before this Court are almost certain to be precisely the same as the complaints which were before the Sao Paulo Court.

85. At paragraph 54 it was argued that the issues before the Brazilian Courts under Article 32 and the issues before the Cayman Court are completely identical and therefore issue estoppel arises.

86. Thus, it is now clear that VRG are relying on the principle of issue estoppel after all.

87. Reference was made to a long running line of authorities, starting with Scott v Pilkington (1862) 2 B&S 11, and Nouvian v Freeman (1889) 15 Ap Cas 1, and culminating with Midtown Acquisitions LP v Essar Global Ltd [2017] 1 W.L.R. 3083, where The Sennar (No. 2) was applied.

GRAND COURT • CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT • 18/17

88. In contrast, as the case of Nouvian explains and demonstrates, there is no issue estoppel where the foreign judgment is liable to be abrogated or varied by the very Court that pronounced it, so for example, where what is involved is a maintenance order.

89. Learned Counsel advocates that it is irrelevant, if it be the case, that under Brazilian procedural law the judgments of the Courts concerned are not described as being "res judicata" whilst a possible appeal is pending. It was argued that here the question arises under Cayman law as an issue of procedure of the lex fori applying its own rules to characterize the foreign judgment.

90. It was further or in the alternative, submitted that, even when the issue is one of public policy, as the MP Funds here contend, because enforcement arises in the context of an arbitration, the Court should not refuse to enforce an arbitration award upheld by the supervisory Court because of the strong public policy in enforcing awards upheld by the supervisory court, even if there is no issue estoppel. Reference was made to Minmetals Germany GmbH v Ferco Steel Ltd [1999] CLC 647; Gao Haiyan v Keeneye Holdings Limited [2012] 1 HKLRD 627 at [67]-[68]).

(3) Procedural Fairness and the Maxim Iura Novit Curia

91. During his oral opening, Mr. Lowe referred heavily to the maxim Iura Novit Curia ("I.N.C.").

92. It was submitted that when the Court is looking at the question of procedural fairness, it has to apply its own notions of fundamental fairness, but must recall that one is looking at a civil law system. He argued that in civil courts, the Judge has a more fundamental role in formulating the arguments. Reference was made to the maxim of I.N.C. as being applied by tribunals throughout the civil world, notably the International Court of Justice, the European Court of Justice, and the European Court of Human Rights.

93. It was submitted that what the Court would hear from the experts, and see from the documents, is that in Brazil, as in many other civil jurisdictions, the Courts expect that the parties will be bound by the relief they seek, but that they are not bound by their characterization of the law.

The Existence of an Arbitration Agreement

94. Mr. Lowe submits that the question whether the MP Funds were parties to the arbitration agreement and, if so, whether that agreement extended to the dispute, has been decided against the MP Funds by the lower court and the Court of Appeals in Brazil. The highest non-constitutional court has refused to review these decisions. The suggestion is that the MP Funds are now estopped from contending otherwise.

95. As to the matter of contractual intention, it was submitted that under Cayman law that is a matter to be objectively determined by reference to both parties. It was submitted that, whilst certain broad or standard contractual principles are the same between Brazilian and Cayman Islands law, it is evident from the differences between the experts in their evidence and from the decisions of the Brazilian Courts that these broad principles cannot be assumed to be applicable with a common lawyer's approach at the more detailed level.

96. By way of example, reference was made to Mr. Gomm Santos' evidence that it has to be shown that the MP Funds intended to be bound by the PSA, However, under Cayman law, the argument runs, contractual intention is a matter to be determined objectively, by reference to both parties.

97. It was proferred that the evidence of Mr. Giusti offers additional Brazilian contractual law construction principles to guide the court, and which were largely undisputed (Reference was made to Gomm 1 and Giusti 1), and was supported by the decisions of the Brazilian lower court, the Court of Appeals and the STJ.

98. VRG suggests that the question of contractual interpretation involves the following:

    a. (As was common ground), the person construing the contract should look at the express terms of the agreement, the overall structure of the contractual documentation and the applicable Brazilian law, in particular the doctrine of good faith under Article 422 of the Brazilian Civil Code.

b. Construing the express terms, involves consideration of factors that tend to bolster a given construction of the express terms of an agreement, such as whether the construction (i) accords with conventional usage in the relevant business environment; (ii) gives effect to a legitimate business objective (e.g., providing for predictability in resolving disputes by choosing the governing law, a forum and/or (iii) confers effect and meaning to a provision that would otherwise not be meaningful. Reference was made to Mr. Giusti's US Declaration.

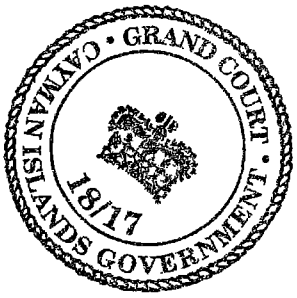
99. It was suggested by Learned Queen's Counsel for VRG that, the fact that ten arbitrators and judges have ruled on the meaning of Aditivo 5 does not of course bind the court, but is at least suggestive of a firmly held, consensus view of the meaning of the operative language "an amendment to the contract... amended the original contract, binding the plaintiffs."

100. Further, reference was made to Mr. Gomm Santos' First declaration in the New York proceedings, where he conceded that the express terms of Aditivo 5 could be understood, depending on the intention of the parties, to amend the PSA and be bound by its terms. Mr. Gomm Santos, at paragraph [14], stated "...there can be more than one way to interpret the contractual intent of this phrase". However, even handedly, Learned Counsel pointed out, that in his Affidavit in these proceedings, Mr. Gomm Santos subsequently retracted that concession, by stating "Aditamento 5 demonstrates a lack of clear and manifest or unequivocal intent... to be bound to arbitrate").

101. It was submitted that, this change in view was critical, since Mr. Gomm Santos previously claimed that the same language could have amended the PSA, subject only to an investigation of intent, whereas he now says the language is too equivocal to support that reading. It was argued that, failing that change in opinion, the MP Funds would have had to provide evidence of their subjective intent somehow, which it was submitted they have not done.

102. VRG went on to submit that other factors that should be involved in the consideration are whether the proposed construction: (a) accords with the usage of the same terms in other, related transaction documents; and (b) promotes greater clarity and precision in the use of key terms, including, defined terms.

103. The MP Funds' case is that Aditivo No. 5 is a standalone side letter. It was submitted by VRG that a clear view of it shows that Aditivo No. 5:



a. Clearly did reference the PSA as one of a series of Aditivos.
b. Expressly refers to the PSA "for shareholding control of [VRG] and other covenants" in its heading.
c. It refers to Clause 11 and Clause 9.2 and refers the signatories to the Aditivo to read into the PSA.
d. It refers to including for the purpose of "supplementing" ("aditando os termos do Contrato") the above-captioned Agreement (Queen's Counsel's emphasis).

104. Then, in clear demonstration that the MP Funds, and VRG are poles apart when it comes to their views on the correct contractual interpretation, VRG submits as follows (paragraph 57 of its SKA):

> "The six Aditivos all have one thing in common: they bind the contracting parties to specific covenants with the shareholders of parties. Aditivos 1 to 4 relate to the purchasers' parent GOL. Aditivo No 5 binds the sellers' parent, the MP Funds. The obvious rationale is to prevent those parties from being parties to the operative duties of seller or buyer (e.g. price and payment Clauses 4 and 5, Warranties in Clauses 6 and 7 or indemnification Clause 8). However, there is in fact no logical reason they would have wanted to exclude the general provisions."

105. It was said that the MP Funds concede that Aditivos 1- 4 and 6 constitute amendments (paragraph 56(6) of VRG's SKA).

106. Learned Counsel for VRG also posits that the arbitration clause itself refers to disputes "arising" from the PSA which would encompass all the specific obligations under the PSA as well as the Aditivos. According to Mr. Lowe: (paragraph 17 of VRG's Supplemental SKA):

"It would be bizarre for the parties of the Aditivos (i) to have been aware of that; and (ii) to have decided disputes relating to the Aditivos would be decided by the Brazilian Courts instead. Bifurcating the dispute resolution provisions for a single overarching transaction would self-evidently lead to a risk of contradictory and unworkable decisions with respect to disputes."

107. VRG sought to counteract the argument that the MP Funds would not have wanted to submit to Brazilian arbitration. This, it says would be by no means obvious. The Portuguese aditivo in relation to a "very Brazilian Contract", it was submitted, would obviously have been determined under Brazilian law. Therefore, the argument continues, if there was no ICC arbitration clause, the Brazilian Courts would have had jurisdiction.

108. It was next submitted that, in considering applicable Brazilian law and the principle of good faith, the highest value should be placed on the principle of pacta sunt servanda, i.e. that agreements must be honoured. Thus, parties cannot be allowed to disavow their own commitments, as expressed by their binding agreements. Reference was made to Article 422 of the BCC and to Mr. Giusti's US Declaration.

Discretionary Factors and Power to Stay

109. It was acknowledged that the discretion referred to in section 7(2) is not at large. Reference was made to Dardana , at paragraphs 8 and 18, where Mance L.J. (as he then was), stated:

> "8...Section 103(2) cannot introduce an open discretion. The use of the word "may" must have been intended to cater for the possibility that, despite the original existence of one or more of the listed circumstances, the right to rely upon them had been lost, by for example, another agreement or estoppel...

18.....The word "may" at the start of s.103(2) ... is designed, as I have said in para. 8, to enable the court to consider other circumstances, which might on some recognizable legal principle affect the prima facie right to have an award set aside arising in the cases listed in s. 103(2)."

110. Mr. Lowe submitted that this is one of those cases for which the discretion was precisely designed, and that, given the comprehensive challenges made before the Brazilian Courts, which have all failed, this Court should exercise discretion in favour of enforcement and dismiss the application.

Stay of Enforcement Proceedings

111. In the alternative, it was argued that, if the Court considers that the outcome of the application for permission to appeal to the final Court in Brazil should be awaited, then it may stay the further enforcement pending the outcome of that proceeding. Reference was made to a number of cases, including Scott v Pilkington, and The Varna No. 2 [1994] 2 Ll R 41.

112. At paragraph 43 of its SKA, VRG makes this point:

> "43. The MP Funds specifically insisted on this trial despite VRG arguing that it would be more cost-effective to await the conclusion of all possible appeals, knowing full well that its applications for leave to appeal had no real prospect of success. But for these more or less hopeless applications for leave to appeal, the MP Funds could not avoid the finality of res judicata. It is wrong to stay enforcement and the Court should instead exercise its discretion against the MP Funds."

The Defendant's Reply Skeleton

113. Mr. Flynn kicked off his Reply SKA by focusing on the fact that VRG for the first time in its SKA say that the Brazilian decisions, despite not being final in Brazil, give rise to an issue estoppel binding on this Court.

114. The MP Funds submit that the core requirements that must be established to create an issue estoppel are trite law, and are set out in the judgment of the House of Lords in The Sennar (No.2) [1985] 1 W.L.R. 490, where at 499 it is stated:

> "The first requirement is that the judgment in the earlier action relied on as creating an estoppel must be (a) a court of competent jurisdiction, (b) final and conclusive and (c) on the merits. The second requirement is that the parties (or privies) in the earlier action relied on as creating an estoppel, and those in the later action in which that estoppel is raised as a bar, must be the same. The third requirement is that the issue in the later action, in which the estoppel is raised as a bar, must be the same issue as that decided by the judgment in the earlier action." (Learned Counsel's emphasis)

GRAND COURT • CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT • 18/17

The Brazilian decisions are not final and conclusive

115. It was submitted that VRG's suggestion that the Brazilian decisions could be treated as "final and binding" for the purposes of issue estoppel is premised on a striking error of law. Mr. Flynn QC submits that VRG appears to be under the fundamental misapprehension that the question of whether the Brazilian decisions are "final and binding" is a question of Cayman law. Reference was made to VRG's SKA, at paragraph 36(5) which refers to no authorities, where it is stated as follows:

> "It is irrelevant, if it be the case, that under Brazilian procedural law the judgments of the Courts are not described as being res judicata whilst a possible appeal is pending. Here the question arises under Cayman law as an issue of procedure of the lex fori applying its own rules to characterize the foreign judgment."

116. Mr. Flynn asserts that this is not the law, and that in fact the law is exactly the opposite. Further, that decades of authorities, including at the level of the House of Lords, confirm that the question of whether a foreign judgment is "final and conclusive" for the purposes of issue estoppel is a question of law of the foreign courts that gave the judgment, and not a question for the law of the forum. Reference was made to the speech of Lord Wilberforce in Carl Zeiss [1967] 1 AC 853, where at pages 969 F-970, he expressed the principle thus:

> "The textbooks are in agreement in stating that for a foreign judgment to be set up as a bar in this country it must be res judicata in the country in which it is given... generally, it would seem unacceptable to give a foreign judgment a more conclusive force in this country than it has where it is given... Moreover, I think it is for the defendant, who sets up the bar, to establish the conclusive character of the judgment."

117. Reference was also made to the judgment of Sales J in Seven Arts Entertainment v Content Media [2013] EWHC 588(Ch), where at [43] he held:

> "It is common ground that in order for an issue estoppel to arise in the courts in England by reference to a judgment of a court in a foreign jurisdiction (here, the Ontario Judgment), it is necessary to show not only that the requirements to establish issue estoppel according to the law of the lex fori (England) are satisfied, but also that the issue in question would be treated as res judicata according to the law of that foreign jurisdiction: see Carl Zeiss*."*

118. Reference was also made to the Cayman decision in TMSF v Merrill Lynch [2008] CILR 267, where the Grand Court applied Turkish law to the question of whether a Turkish judgment was final and conclusive.

119. Mr. Flynn also referred to the submissions made at the ex parte hearing before this Court. As he says, oddly, at that hearing, those included VRG expressly recognizing that (a) for a foreign judgment to give rise to an issue estoppel, the decision needed to be res judicata under the law of the foreign jurisdiction; and (b) that the Brazilian decisions were not res judicata unless and until they were finally determined by the Superior Court of Justice.

Whether this trial should be stayed

120. The MP Funds contend that this informal late application for a stay should not be countenanced for the following reasons:

(A) There is no application before the Court for a stay, no summons and no supporting evidence. It was submitted that such an application cannot be made "in passing in a responsive skeleton argument (served late) days before trial. This is a grave deviation from due process."

(B) The position is made worse by the fact that from as long ago as November 2017, the MP Funds made clear that they would not agree to a stay, and that if VRG wished to seek one, it would have to apply in the usual way.

(C) It would appear that the sudden volte face on this position days before trial is motivated by a belief that VRG is more likely to succeed in Brazil than before this Court.

(D) Waiting for the Brazilian Courts will not achieve anything, since the Brazilian Courts will not decide (a) de novo, whether the arbitration agreement is binding on the MP Funds or whether it covered obligations other than those in the Non-Compete Letter; and (b) whether the Award is contrary to Cayman public policy. Since there will be no issue estoppel, there is no purpose in a stay.

(E) The wait for the Brazilian Courts to decide anything at all might be very long indeed. According to paragraph 2.6 of Santos 3, it might take years. The Court will not normally grant a stay in such circumstances.

(F) VRG is seeking to have this Court convert the Award into a judgment of this Court. If it believes that the Award is enforceable here in the Cayman Islands, it should pursue its enforcement here with conviction. It should not be allowed "to dangle the proceedings over the head of the MP Funds in this jurisdiction for an indeterminate amount of time that it would take to conclude matters in Brazil, in the hope that this will improve its position in this jurisdiction."

(G) It is now too late for VRG to seek a stay. If it had wished one, it should have sought this at the earliest opportunity.

DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

ISSUE ESTOPPEL

121. VRG does not suggest that under Brazilian law the Brazilian law decisions do give rise to res judicata. There does not seem to be any doubt about the Brazilian law position on this score.

122. Indeed, Article 502 of the BCCP, provides as follows:

> *"Section V- Res Judicata
> Art. 502. Substantive res judicata is the authority that renders immutable and indisputable a decision on merits that is no longer subject to appeal."

123. It is for VRG to establish that the requirements to establish issue estoppel according to the law of the lex fori (the Cayman Islands) are satisfied, and also that the issue in question would be treated as res judicata according to the law of that foreign jurisdiction: see Carl Zeiss and Seven Arts Entertainment v Content Media.

124. In my judgment, the Brazilian decisions made thus far are plainly not final and conclusive under Brazilian law.

125. It is also the case that the issues before the Brazilian Court are not identical to the issues before this Court. As stated in Barnett, referred to above, the burden of clearing the threshold of showing that the issues are identical is on VRG.

126. VRG variously describes the issues before the Brazilian courts and those now before this Court as "substantially the same" (paragraph 16) and "materially the same" (paragraph 35(1)). However, that is not enough. What is required is that VRG show the issues are identical. It was common ground that the issue for the Cayman Court is whether, considering the issue afresh, de novo, the MP Funds agreed (i) to arbitrate at all, and (ii) even if they did, whether that arbitration agreement in Clause 14 applied only to the MP Funds' obligations under the Non-Compete Letter that they had signed, or whether it was an agreement to arbitrate in respect of every clause in the body of the PSA, which they had not signed.

127. That is the issue where the award comes before an English Court or a Cayman Court as confirmed by the House of Lords' decision in Dallah. I accept that that is not the issue in all jurisdictions. In many other jurisdictions, the issue is a different one, i.e. whether on a review of the tribunal's decision on jurisdiction, paying due deference to the decision of the tribunal, the tribunal's decision on jurisdiction should stand. In those jurisdictions, the Courts are not conducting a de novo trial on jurisdiction themselves.

128. However, in any event, when in Brazil, an application is made for vacatur of an arbitration award on the basis that the tribunal lacked jurisdiction, the courts are not required to reach a decision de novo on the question of jurisdiction. The Brazilian Court of Appeal's references to "competence-competence", which is the principle that the tribunal has the power to rule on its own jurisdiction, amply assist in demonstrating this point.

129. It is not enough for VRG to say that the Brazilian Courts found that the Tribunal was right. This is because it would have to be established on the evidence that the Brazilian Courts found de novo that the arbitration agreement bound the MP Funds and extended to the subject matter of the arbitration. There is therefore no issue estoppel regarding the question of jurisdiction.

130. Further, it is common ground that the question of whether the finding of liability on the basis of Article 148 of the BCC constituted a breach of Cayman public policy and in particular Cayman standards of natural justice, is a question of Cayman law.

131. Therefore, quite obviously, the decision of the Brazilian Court on the issue of whether Brazilian public policy was breached by this finding is not the same as the issue of whether Cayman public policy was breached by it.

132. Reference was made by the MP Funds to the decision of the English Commercial Court in Stati v Kazakhstan [2017] 2 Lloyd's Rep. 201. That case specifically involved consideration of the New York Convention, and where Stati argued that Kazakhstan was issue estopped by a decision of the Swedish courts. At paragraph [84], the Court held:

> "The New York Convention is addressed, at Article V 2(b), to the public policy of the country of enforcement. Relevant public policy can and does differ from country to country. It is correct to say that the Swedish Court did not decide whether under English law public policy required the application to enforce the award in this jurisdiction to be refused."
> (My emphasis)

133. That reasoning is also in my judgment applicable here, because the Brazilian Court did not (and indeed, could not) decide as a matter of Cayman public policy whether the application to enforce the Award in this jurisdiction should be refused.

134. It is for those reasons that I find that no issue estoppel exists in this case, either in respect of the question whether the Tribunal had jurisdiction, or in respect of the question of whether the Award complies with Cayman public policy, or standards of natural justice and fairness.

135. In my judgment not only are the issues not identical; but they are not even materially or substantially the same. The Court also cannot act on the basis that if there is no actual issue estoppel, there was potential issue estoppel. It is a defining feature of issue estoppel that the decision giving rise to the estoppel must be final and conclusive.

136. VRG seems to be suggesting that one basis for acting on a potential issue estoppel would be deference, given that the Brazilian courts are the courts of the seat.

137. However, in my judgment, that would be wrong as a matter of international arbitration law. Lord Mance makes this clear at paragraph [29] of Dallah where he discussed this precise issue as follows:

"The very issue is whether the person resisting enforcement had agreed to submit to arbitration in that country. Such a person has, as I have indicated, no obligation to recognize the tribunal's activity or the country where the tribunal conceives itself to be entitled to carry on its activity. Further, what matters, self-evidently, to both parties is the enforceability of the award in the country where enforcement is sought."

138. As submitted by Mr. Flynn, what VRG are seeking is for the Court to enforce the Award as if it were a judgment of this Court. Therefore, as stated at paragraph [94] of Stati:

> "It is relevant to recognize that, on behalf of the Claimants, Mr. Sprange QC asks ultimately that the Award should be recognized 'as a judgment of this Court'. Sir John Donaldson MR, in Deutsche Shachtbau v Shell [1987] 2 Lloyd's Rep 246, at page 254 col 1, highlighted that enforcement is one of the 'powers of the state' and that these powers are exercised on behalf of the public. These points reinforce the seriousness of what is involved."

139. Further there is in any event no "potential" estoppel at all, since even once the Brazilian Courts have finally and conclusively determined the Brazil proceedings (and regardless of the outcome), the issues before this Court are different from the issues decided, or to be decided, by the Brazilian Courts.

The PSA

140. The PSA defined the parties thereto expressly. Clause 11.1 of the translated version of the PSA, reads as follows:

> "Clause 11
>
> NON-COMPETE
> I - By VarigLog and Volo

Clause 11.1. By means of this Agreement and in full accordance with the law, VarigLog and Volo agree not to engage, for the period of 3 (three) years counted from the granting of the prior approval by ANAC, in any of the following acts: (i) participation, directly or indirectly, whether as partners, shareholders or quotaholders or beneficial owners, through positions as managers, directors or consultants, or, finally, as employees, service providers or independent contractors, in any companies, businesses or undertakings that operate in Brazil in the same field of endeavor of VRG, namely, air transportation of passengers in all its forms; or (ii) to persuade, attract or contract with any person employed and/or contracted with by VRG and/or GTI and/or by their Affiliates, to leave their employ or to terminate that contractual connection, for any reason or any purpose, that results in a breach of the other provisions set forth in this Clause.

141. Sub-Clauses 13.1, 13.6 and 13.7 provide as follows:

"Clause Thirteen

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Clause 13.1. This Agreement is irrevocable and irretrievable and binding on the Parties and their respective successors and assigns authorized in any way. Clause 13.7. No change, alteration or amendment of this Agreement shall be considered valid or binding on the Parties unless such change, alteration or amendment is made in writing and is duly signed by all the Parties.*

142. Clause 14 deals with the topics of "Arbitration, Applicable Law and Election of Jurisdiction" and Sub-Clauses 14.1 - 14.3 and 14.5- 14.7 provide as follows:

"Clause Fourteen

ARBITRATION, APPLICABLE LAW AND ELECTION OF JURISDICTION

Clause 14.1*. All disputes arising from or related to this Agreement, including those concerning its validity, effectiveness, breach, interpretation, termination, rescission and their corollaries, will be resolved by arbitration, in accordance with the provisions of Law No. 9307/96 ("Arbitration Law"), pursuant to the conditions below.*

Clause 14.2. The dispute will be submitted to the CCI ("CCI") in accordance with its Regulations ("Regulations") in effect as of the date of the request for arbitration.

Clause 14.3. The hearings, petitions and documents of the arbitration will be conducted in the Portuguese language and, if requested by any of the Parties or the arbitrator, will be translated simultaneously into the English language. The place of the arbitration will be the city of São Paulo.

Clause 14.7. The Arbitration Panel shall decide the matters submitted to it only in accordance with provisions of law, and must base their decision on the laws of Brazil."

143. "Aditamento No. 5" as translated by the MP Funds, sets out the following terms:

> "Addendum SL/VRG/005

> cc: GOL LINHAS AÉREAS INTELIGENTES, SA

deals or undertakings that take place in Brazil in the line of business of VRG, that is, regular air transport for passengers in either the domestic or international spheres; or (ii) persuading or attracting any employee and/or contractee of VRG and/or GTI and/or their Affiliates, to leave said job or terminate this contractual bond, for any reason whatsoever or for any purpose, that might entail a violation of the other stipulations set out herein.

Finally, we mention that with the "AGREED" affixed by you, this instrument shall constitute pursuant to the best terms of the law a firm and valid commitment by and between the parties, including for the purposes of supplementing the terms of the above-captioned Agreement……"

The First Ground for Refusal of Enforcement: The MP Funds did not consent to Arbitration

144. In my judgment, it is clear that the MP Funds were intentionally, and as a matter of objective construction, not a party to the PSA. They were therefore not parties to the arbitration agreement contained in the PSA at all.

145. It seems obvious on the face of the Non-Compete Letter that it does not contain or incorporate an arbitration agreement. By it, the MP Funds undertake only one obligation, i.e. the obligation not to compete with VRG's business as set out in the Non-Compete Letter. It does not incorporate Clause 14 of the PSA or any other term of that agreement. Indeed, instead, it refers only to Clause 11 of the PSA, which was the Sellers' non-compete obligation. It does seem to me that the MP Funds are correct that the Non-Compete Letter refers to Clause 11 and the PSA only to record that the non-compete obligation undertaken by the MP Funds under the PSA mirrored that undertaken by the Sellers under the PSA, to which the MP Funds were not parties.

146. Indeed, if the parties' intention had been to make the MP Funds parties to the PSA, including the arbitration agreement in Clause 14, then the MP Funds would simply have executed the PSA. I accept the submission that the deliberate intention behind the MP Funds (and the Brazilian Shareholders) not executing the PSA (in contrast to the Buyer's shareholder, GoI) and only executing the Non-Compete Letter containing its express single obligation, was that the MP Funds were bound by this free-standing obligation alone.

147. It is to be noted that the "Parties" to the PSA are expressly defined in it; they are the Sellers and the Buyer. They do not include the MP Funds. Clause 14 expressly applies only to the "Parties".

VRG's Changing Theories

148. As Mr. Flynn points out, VRG has itself adopted different theories at different times, and each of those rationales differ from that expressed by the Tribunal. So, for example, before this Court, it has been suggested that all of the terms of the PSA are incorporated into the Non-Compete Letter - see Giusti 1, paragraph 107. Mr Giusti there says that the Non-Compete Letter "is clear and express in incorporating all the terms of the Purchase Agreement that have not been amended."

149. On the other hand, before the U.S. Courts, it was contended that the Non-Compete Letter incorporated not the whole of the PSA, but only the provisions referred to as the PSA's "generally applicable provisions" – see paragraph 11 of Mr. Giusti's Declaration before the New York Court. Counsel for VRG expressly conceded before the U.S. Courts that - contrary to the view now offered by Mr. Giusti "in this additivo [i.e. the Non-Compete Letter] Matlin Patterson did not bind itself to all of the obligations of the original document."

150. It does seem to me that there are a number of matters on the face of the Non-Compete Letter that belie VRG's theories.

151. Firstly, the Non-Compete Letter says nothing at all about the arbitration clause. It is therefore difficult to see, how if at all, the arbitration clause could be said to be incorporated by reference.

152. Nor does the Non-Compete Letter refer in any way at all to any other provision of the PSA besides Clause 11.

153. If the parties had intended by the Non-Compete Letter to make the MP Funds a party to any other terms of the PSA, those would have been listed. It would have been fairly facile for the parties to have plainly said so if they intended to make the MP Funds party to any other terms of the PSA, or indeed, the entire PSA. It is, as the MP Funds argue, difficult to see why parties, much less sophisticated, Attorney-advised parties, would have used the Non-Compete Letter to achieve them.

154. I note that in addition, Clause 14 provides for arbitration in Sao Paulo conducted in Portuguese (there was, though, provision allowing for an English translation to be requested). I accept Mr. Flynn's submission that the exclusively Brazilian nature of the proceedings is entirely consistent with a Brazilian arbitration between the two Brazilian parties to the PSA: the Sellers and the Buyer.

155. The Tribunal's theory was also that the Non-Compete Letter had amended the PSA itself, so as to make the parties to it, party to the whole PSA. At paragraphs 49-50 of the Partial Award on Jurisdiction, the Tribunal found that the MP Funds were "integrated" into the PSA, with the Tribunal concluding that "all the terms and conditions contained in the Principal Contract" were "reproduced" in the letter.

156. In my view, the Tribunal's conclusions are not correct, for a number of reasons. It seems plain to me that the Non-Compete Letter supplements the PSA by providing an undertaking by non-parties to the PSA. The Non-Compete Letter is described as "aditando", and this in my view should be understood as meaning "adding" or "supplementing", not "amending" or "changing".

157. It seems to me in any event, that even if the Non-Compete Letter did purport to change something about the PSA, a non-signatory to an agreement cannot amend an agreement between two different parties. Indeed, this is how the New York Court treated with the matter in an exchange with Counsel for VRG - pages 35-36 of the transcript of hearing before the District Judge.

158. That is so as a matter of logic. Additionally, the express terms of the PSA, in particular Clause 13.7 of the PSA does not permit amendment of the agreement, except in writing signed by all Parties to the PSA. However, plainly, the Sellers and VRG signed the PSA, but did not sign the Non-Compete Letter. Therefore, the letter could not amend the PSA.

159. The MP Funds make a not insubstantial point to bolster the argument that it is extraordinary to say that these sophisticated, externally advised, commercial parties would not simply have made the MP Funds a signatory to the PSA if this is what they had intended. They say the point is all the more underlined by the fact that both the PSA and the Non-Compete Letter were executed on the same day. They pose the, in my view, logical question : "why then would the "Parties" to the PSA and the signature blocks not simply have been amended to include the MP Funds if this had truly been the parties' intention?"

160. I find, on a proper construction of the relevant documentation, that the MP Funds were not intended by the parties to accept incorporation of the PSA's terms into the Non-Compete Letter.

161. Accordingly, in all of the circumstances, and considering the issue, as I must, de novo, applying Brazilian law which is in my view plainly not different from Cayman law on contractual interpretation and construction issues, I am satisfied that the MP Funds were not parties to the arbitration agreement pursuant to which the Tribunal purported to exercise jurisdiction over them.

Whether there was Arbitration Agreement covering dispute in respect of the price adjustment mechanism under the PSA

162. In my judgment, again considering the matter de novo, there was no arbitration agreement in respect of the matters submitted to arbitration. Even if there was agreement to arbitration, that only extended to the non-compete undertaking, and not to the price adjustment mechanism under the PSA. This offends against Article V.1(a), since there was no valid arbitration agreement. It also offends against Article V.1(c), since there was no jurisdiction to determine the matters outside the scope of the arbitration agreement/ tribunal in excess of its powers under the arbitration agreement.

163. In my view, the MP Funds have therefore made out the first ground for refusal, i.e. that the MP Funds were not a party to the arbitration agreement, pursuant to which the arbitral Tribunal purported to exercise jurisdiction.

164. Alternatively, even if the MP Funds did consent to arbitration at all, which I have found that they did not, in my judgment, the Award plainly purports to determine issues that were not within the bounds or scope of any agreement to arbitrate.

165. Based upon my findings on this ground, it is not strictly necessary for me to go on to deal with the other two grounds. However, in light of the in-depth arguments and important issues involved, I have gone on to make findings upon both of the other grounds.

INC

166. In his declaration, given for the purposes of the proceedings before the Southern District Court of New York, Professor Carmona, at paragraphs 16 -19, discusses the INC principles and his opinion as to the applicability to the Arbitration as follows:

> "16. Due process, under Brazilian law, subsumes, among other rules and principles, the principle of the contradictory proceedings (principio de contraditorio), which requires each party to be afforded an opportunity to respond to the arguments of the other party and to express its views on any relevant fact, document, or element of evidence placed before a tribunal. However, a party is not automatically entitled under Brazilian arbitration law to be given an opportunity to address legal theories properly raised by the factual allegations of the parties. Under Brazilian arbitration law, an arbitral tribunal is free to fit Brazilian law to the facts before it and to enter an award based on applicable Brazilian law regardless whether or not the specific statutory provision or legal doctrine was expressly cited or relied upon by one of the parties. This is a fundamental and well known aspect of Brazilian practice.

17. In fact, the general rule in a Brazilian arbitration is that the parties should assume and expect that a tribunal will apply the relevant law to the facts pleaded by each party. This rule is typically referred to in Brazil and other Civil Law countries by the Latin phrase "iura novit curia", which means that the court, (as opposed to the parties) is charged with applying the law. The Final Award explicitly applies the law to the facts in Paragraphs 625 to 638, under the title "Fitting the Facts to the concept of malice".) ("Encaixe dos fatos no conceito de dolo"). This aspect of the Final Award is fully consistent with Brazilian practice.

18. MP argues that, in doing so, the Tribunal surprised the parties. Under Brazilian arbitration law and procedure, the Tribunal's imposition of liability under a theory of dolo should have been no surprise, as the facts that were argued in the Terms of Reference and detailed during the Arbitration clearly raised the issue of dolo. It is uncontroversial under Brazilian law that parties bear the burden of identifying and discussing the legal theories that may be raised by the factual allegations of other parties. The failure of a party to consider a legal theory ultimately applied by a court or tribunal does not vitiate the proceedings or violate the rights of any party, so long as the legal theory was properly raised by the limits of the controversy as presented to the court or tribunal.

19. In my opinion, as a matter of international arbitration as practiced in Brazil (and setting aside the application of domestic Brazilian arbitration law), MP could not have been unfairly surprised by the Final Award's application of dolo as a basis for liability, given the context, the matters in dispute, and the procedural rules applicable to the arbitration."

167. Mr. Giusti also gave a Declaration in the New York Proceedings, but it is in his First Affidavit for these proceedings that he addresses the principle of INC and responds to Mr. Gomm Santos' Declaration in the New York Proceedings so I will now turn to Mr. Gomm Santos' Declaration.

168. At paragraphs 21-25, and 27- 29, Mr. Gomm Santos gave the following evidence:

"21. It appears to be common ground for the basis of Professor

Carmona's opinions that (i) the only legal claim that was raised in the arbitration to hold the MP Funds liable was a contract claim on a veil piercing theory of liability under Article 50 of the Brazilian Civil Code; (ii) the arbitral tribunal rejected the veil piercing theory and instead held the MP Fund liable in its final award under Article 148 of the Brazilian Civil Code ("a CC 148 Claim"); (iii) a CC 148 claim was not included in the TOR; (iv) a CC 148 Claim was never subsequently added as a legal claim to the arbitration under Article 19 of the ICC Rules after the TOR was signed; and (v) the arbitral tribunal applied CC 148 as the basis for the MP Funds' liability in its final award without inviting the parties, prior to issuing its final award, to address the applicability of CC 148 to the facts that had been developed during the arbitration.

22. I disagree with Professor Carmona that Brazilian law concerning international arbitration allows a tribunal to fit the facts developed during the arbitration in its final award into any legal theory it may choose to apply, regardless of whether any party has alleged that legal claim, or the tribunal has otherwise raised the new point of law with the parties on its own, with an opportunity for the parties to be heard before the tribunal issues a decision. Professor Carmona does not cite any legal authority to support this view of due process in international arbitration, and I am aware of none. In international arbitration, unlike domestic Brazilian litigation, the scope of the arbitral tribunal's authority both to determine the facts and to apply the law is determined by the parties. Unlike under the principle of iura novit curia to which Professor Carmona refers, it is in principle the parties - not the arbitrators - who define the legal issues to be determined by the tribunal.

23. I note is this regard, that Professor Carmona suggests there are more than three-dozen different provisions of the Brazilian Civil Code that impose legal consequences for conduct that constitutes dolo (malice). [Para] 11. This helps to illustrate why the concept of iura novit curia cannot apply in international arbitration in the same way as it may in litigation in some countries. In international arbitration, the arbitrators (and parties) do not necessarily come from the country whose laws apply to the dispute and therefore, in the case of Brazil, cannot be expected to know the Civil Code and all of the several dozen provisions potentially applicable to facts that implicate dolo, unless the parties, through their Brazilian Counsel, assert the claim and explain the law to the tribunal. In fact, under the ICC Rules of Arbitration, absent express agreement, a sole arbitrator or chairman of the tribunal appointed by the ICC cannot be a national of the same country as any party, and so it is very common that the arbitrator or chairman of the tribunal in ICC international arbitrations will not be familiar with the applicable law when the applicable law (as is the case here, and is commonly true) coincides with the nationality of any one of the parties. See Arteaga Decl. Ex 37 (ICC Rules, Art 9(5)).

24. Similarly, it would be unreasonable to expect a respondent in international arbitration to "anticipate" every possible legal theory that might apply to hold them liable. Carmona Decl. para. 24. This would put respondents in the unfair position of either arguing the claimant's case for it, even where the claimant did not raise a particular claim, or otherwise risk having no opportunity to be heard on a claim that was never raised in the arbitration but only imposed by the tribunal in its final award. In my view, such a concept makes no sense, either in Brazil or anywhere else where international arbitrations are conducted. Also, such a concept may impair the ability of a country to be chosen as the seat of international arbitrations. Moreover, the prospect of requiring parties to address every possible legal basis for a claim or defense regardless of whether the other party or tribunal has raised it would tend to defeat the well-recognized goals of international arbitration to provide an efficient, time- and cost-effective dispute resolution mechanism as an alternative to litigation in the courts.

25. Perhaps most importantly, the relevant elements of proof required under the different provisions of the Brazilian Civil Code that apply to conduct that is dolo, will vary. As with any "claim" for relief recognized at law, the merits of the claim raise a mixed question of law and fact - an application of the former to the latter. Any party to international arbitration would expect in fairness to have an opportunity to address the "claim" - the application of the law to the facts - not just one ingredient or the other, in isolation. This is why the authority of arbitral tribunals in international arbitration is circumscribed to the claims - fact and law - that are raised during the arbitration and that the parties are afforded an opportunity to address.

Professor Carmona's Opinions on Due Process in International Arbitration

27. First, I agree with Professor Carmona, in paragraph 15 of his Declaration, that due process is required under Brazilian law. I further agree with Professor Carmona, in paragraph 16 of his Declaration, that Brazil's notion of due process adheres to the principle of contradictory proceedings, which "requires each party to be afforded an opportunity to respond to the arguments of the other party and to express its views". As noted above, it also appears to be common ground that the arbitral tribunal did not give any forewarning that it was considering deciding the case on the basis of a CC 148 claim that had not been raised, and that the parties were not invited to provide their arguments or views on the applicability of CC 148 prior to the Tribunal rendering its final award.

28. Where Professor Carmona and I part ways is on the idea that the principle of contradictory proceedings in international arbitration in Brazil - the right to have one's "arguments" and "views" heard- only apples to the facts of a case and not the applicable law raised by the factual allegations. In international arbitration in Brazil, it applies to both. The resolution of disputes in arbitration, and the opportunity to be heard and influence that – as the principle of contradictory proceedings underlying due process in Brazilian arbitration that Professor Carmona describes in paragraph 16 of his Declaration contemplates- necessarily involves both the law and the facts, and how the former applies to the latter.

29. Professor Carmona relies on the principle of iura novit curia to conclude that international arbitrators can decide what legal theory to apply without any input from the parties. Although I agree that this principle may be applicable in purely domestic litigation in Brazil, I disagree that this principle applies in the international arbitration context for the reasons discussed above. But even supposing that the principle did apply, as a matter of due process and fairness in international arbitration, if an arbitral award contemplates deciding the case on a legal basis that has not been raised by any of the parties, the tribunal must at least raise the legal point with the parties and afford them an opportunity to present their "arguments" and "views" prior to deciding the dispute on a different legal basis than has been addressed by the parties' submissions." (My emphasis)

169. In his First Affidavit in these proceedings, Mr. Gomm Santos also referred to Article 10 of the Brazilian Code of Civil Procedure of 2015 ("the BCCP"), which came into effect in 2016. Article 10 provides as follows:

> "Art 10. A judge shall not decide, at any level of jurisdiction, based on grounds with respect to which the parties have not been given opportunity to make statements, even if the matter is one which the judge should decide by administrative initiative."

170. Said Mr. Gomm Santos at paragraph 5.12 of his Affidavit:

> *"Due Process under Brazilian Law
>
> 5.12. Article 10 of the BCCP codifies the principle of adversary proceedings and prevents the court from issuing unexpected decisions. Article 10 basically states that a court cannot decide at any point in a proceeding an issue before it unless it has given the parties an opportunity to be heard on that issue. The underlying principle of Article 10 of the BCCP is not new to the Brazilian legal system. Even though Article 10 is a recent addition to the BCCP, the codification reflects the state of the law that has developed through scholarly literature and court decisions, as the prohibition against unexpected decisions has long been upheld by the constitutional principles of due process and adversary proceedings and is supported by prior Brazilian case law."

171. In his First Affidavit in these proceedings, Mr. Giusti, having stated that he agrees with the contents of Professor Carmona's Declaration in the New York proceedings, and having stated that he disagrees with Mr. Gomm Santos' opinion that due process has been violated because the Arbitral Tribunal did not respect the principle of adversarial proceedings, at paragraphs 115- 119, and 121-128 states as follows:

"115. For the reasons set out below, I disagree with the above statement and Mr. Gomm's suggestion that failure to allow a party to comment on a specific article of the BCC constitutes a violation of due process. I further disagree with Mr. Gomm's inference that, in the case at hand, the Arbitral Tribunal failed to afford a meaningful opportunity for the Respondents to comment on the relevant legal theory on which the Final Award rested.

116. First, the principle of adversarial proceedings is not incompatible with the principle of iura novit curia.

117. The principle of adversarial proceedings (or "adversary proceedings", as it is described by Mr. Gomm) may be applied differently across different jurisdictions. Under the Brazilian procedural rules in effect at the time of the Final Award (which have been amended in the interim in a manner that would not affect the outcome of the Arbitration, as discussed below) the principle of adversarial proceedings protected the rights of the parties to comment on and dispute the facts as well as argue the legal aspects of the case as they deemed appropriate, but the principle did not constrain the ability of an arbitrator to decide a case on the basis of legal grounds (much less the specific articles), sections or items of a particular piece of legislation) that had not been specifically discussed by the parties.

118. Under the principle of iura novit curia, as was in effect at the time of the Final Award, the decision of the arbitrator was not and should not be constrained by the articles of laws referred to by the parties during the proceeding.

119. The parties were fully entitled to argue the legal grounds that they submitted were applicable to the facts of the case. However, in making its determination, the Arbitral Tribunal was not limited by the submissions of the parties as to the legal or specific articles of pieces of legislation applicable to the dispute. The Arbitral

Tribunal was only constrained in its decision-making by the factual issues raised by the parties, and could have only awarded such relief as had been requested by the parties. The parties, assisted by their Brazilian Counsel, were free to choose the legal arguments that they considered might be most persuasive to the Arbitral Tribunal. However, they did not have any right to be heard on any specific legal grounds, or articles of pieces of legislation, upon which the Arbitral Tribunal may have ultimately made its determination; an arbitral tribunal can decide upon such issues without reference to the parties at all.

121. Article 10 of the BCCP (which codifies the principle of adversarial proceedings and which Mr. Gomm relies upon in his Affidavits) is not applicable in this matter because it was not in force until after the Final Award was issued and does not have retrospective effect. The predecessor to the BCCP, which was in effect from 1973 to 2015 (BCCP/1973), did not contain any similar provision.

122. Furthermore, contrary to Mr. Gomm's assertions, the vast majority of the STJ's case law prior to the enactment of Article 10 of the BCCP supports the principle that an arbitrator is not bound by the legal grounds presented by the parties, but rather was free to apply the law to the facts of the case (as those facts had been presented by the parties):

> "The jurisdictional activity is restricted to the limits of the request and cause of action. However, the judge applies the law to the species without binding on the legal grounds inferred in the complaint due to the iura novit curia principle. Indeed, there is no decision outside the scope of the suit, as the relief provided by the Court of origin has the same nature of the one requested (ruling the donation null), but only with different grounds from the one indicated by the petitioners" [Superior Tribunal of Justice, Interlocutory Appeal in Sepcial Appeal (AgRg No AREsp].

123. Even if Article 10 of BCCP had been in force when the Final Award was issued (which it was not), Article 10 provides that an arbitrator must not decide a case based on a "ground" which the parties did not have the opportunity to discuss. Mr. Gomm construes the term "ground" to refer to the legal consequences of the facts when it actually refers to the factual basis that supports a party's requested relief.

124. The interpretative statements issued by the National School of Formation and Development of Magistrates (a research and teaching institution run by the Brazilian federal court system under the authority of the Brazilian Constitution) with the approval of the more than 500 judges involved in their issuance offers the following views on the correct interpretation of Article 10 of BCCP:

> "1) the words 'Grounds' mentioned in art. 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure/2015 is understood as the factual reasons guiding the request, and not the legal classification attributed by the parties.
> 2) the rule of the adversary proceeding under art. 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure/2015 is not violated by the court decision that invokes a principle, when the legal rule applied previously discussed in the course of action is the emergence of said principle.
>
> 6) A judgment supported by legal grounds is not a surprise judgment, even if such grounds differ from those presented by the parties, provided they are based on evidence submitted to adversarial testing.

125. Consequently, the same outcome would be reached in the present case, regardless of whether one applies the principles of adversarial proceedings and iura novit curia as set out in the BCCP or as set out in the BCCP/1973. Both procedural codes lead to the conclusion that an arbitrator is constrained exclusively by the factual basis of the case and the limits of the parties' claims for relief, and not by the legal grounds submitted by the parties in support their respective requests for relief.

126. Mr. Gomm appears to imply that the principle of iura novit curia cannot be applied to international arbitrations. ....

127. However, the above is not correct: the Brazilian arbitration system is not binary. The BAL makes no distinction between domestic and international arbitrations seated in Brazil with regard to the conduct of the proceedings. Any arbitration seated in Brazil will be conducted under the same procedural principles and rules regardless of whether or not it contains international elements.

128. Thus, the principle of iura novit curia applies to the Arbitration, notwithstanding any international aspect to the contrary." (My emphasis)

172. However, whilst I bear in mind the fact that this was an arbitration taking place in Brazil, what I am required to do is to apply Cayman Islands standards of fairness. Applying Cayman Islands standards of fairness and due process, it is plain that the MP Funds could not reasonably have foreseen that they would be held liable as third parties in tort, for tort damages, when the claim against them, and relief sought throughout the arbitration, was to hold them responsible for a contractual obligation of their indirect subsidiaries. This is for the following reasons:

i. Article 148 imposes tortious liability; whereas the liability that VRG alleged against the MP Funds in the arbitration was contractual.

ii. This finding of liability under Article 148 is completely at odds with the Tribunal's jurisdictional determination that the MP Funds were made party to the PSA's terms by virtue of the Non-Compete Letter. On the merits, VRG had only alleged an alter ego theory of liability against the MP Funds that depended on the corporate personality of the Sellers and the MP Funds not being taken account of so that they were found to be parties to the purchase price adjustment obligation, not third parties.

iii. The evidence concerning the alleged misrepresentations by the MP Funds was not directed at establishing or answering an allegation of "malice" by the MP Funds for the purposes of a claim in tort; it was directed at an entirely different matter of whether there was an abuse of the corporate form such as to warrant the lifting of the corporate veil under Article 50.

iv. Further, Article 148 requires the person relying on it to prove that the third party's intentional conduct actually caused the entry into the contract by the alleged innocent party, or otherwise that it caused the damages claimed. The evidence and argument before the Tribunal did not in any way aim at establishing that the requirement under Article 148 was satisfied. The MP Funds therefore maintain that they were given no opportunity to make or develop any argument that this requirement was not made out. It was submitted that, oddly, the Tribunal imposed a contractual liability on the MP Funds, the measure of which was the purchase price adjustment, as if this would equate to tort damages caused by malice.

v. I accept that, where damages are claimed as the remedy for Article 148, the claimant must adduce evidence to establish causation between the third party's malice and any loss allegedly suffered by the claimant as a result thereof. The fact that neither side adduced evidence or made an argument to this effect was put forward as a further demonstration that this was not the relief sought by VRG at all.

173. VRG had suggested that Article 148 was raised by reference to an expert report served by VRG by Professor Azevedo, but that for some "tactical" reason, the MP Funds had decided not to address this matter.

174. In my judgment, such an argument must fail. For one thing, Professor Azevedo's opinion was prepared for the purposes of entirely different proceedings, which were not directed to the Arbitration, and in any event, VRG submitted the report only in support of its alter ego claim contractual claim. Additionally, Professor Azevedo was not tendered by VRG as a witness in the Arbitration to give oral evidence, he was not cross-examined, and did not appear before the Tribunal at all. This sort of "one-liner" in Professor Azevedo's opinion could not possibly have raised a claim for tortious damages against the MP Funds, as strangers to the PSA, under Article 148.

175. Further, to say that the MP Funds did not advance such a defence for "tactical" reasons, does itself suggest that the MP Funds' defence to the alter ego claim was not in fact interchangeable with an Article 148 defence and that the MP Funds were not heard by the Tribunal on Article 148.

176. As to the evidence of the experts, there are a number of areas where they agree, and other areas where they disagree, and areas where the lines are blurred. In my judgment, once it is admitted, as Mr Giusti did in paragraphs 119 and 125 of his Affidavit, that the arbitrators are constrained by the factual basis of the parties' case and the limits of the parties' claims for relief, it seems to me that the MP Funds have made out their case under the second ground.

177. I found guidance in the case of Malicorp and the discussion of the principles in Cukurova. This Court, like the Court in Malicorp, has to look to see whether liability under Article 148 of the Brazilian Civil Code was (i) pleaded; (ii) argued in written submissions; (iii) argued in oral submissions and (iv) whether the MP Funds were given a fair warning that a case under Article 148 was proceeding against them such that they had a proper opportunity to respond to that case.

178. Even if VRG could show the Court that questions similar to those raised by Article 148 were put to the MP Funds, Malicorp is authority for the proposition that similarity is not enough. At paragraph 37 of Malicorp, Walker J discussed this matter as follows:

> "37. Malicorp has relied on a passage in the transcript as indicating that the Chairman was asking Egypt what their view would be if the arbitral tribunal, without seeking to prejudge any issue, were to find there was no proven evidence of fraud or forgery and that what they simply found instead was that there had been a misrepresentation. I am prepared to accept that this question is similar to asking what the position would be if there had been an error but no fraud. What it does not show, however, is that Egypt had any notice of a proposal to award damages under article 142." (My emphasis)

179. In my view, what was required is express notice to the MP Funds of a proposal to award damages against it under Article 148 and there was none such to be found anywhere in the entire record of the proceedings before the Tribunal. In that regard, I have in any event preferred the evidence of Mr. Gomm Santos to that of Professor Carmona and Mr. Giusti, as being more intrinsically logical and persuasive. I found particularly convincing Mr. Gomm Santos' reasoning at paragraphs 24 and 25 of his Declaration, cited in paragraph 168 above. However, in any event, it is a question of Cayman law as to whether there was procedural fairness.

180. In my judgment the MP Funds have also therefore discharged the burden of showing that there was a breach of natural justice.

Third Ground for Refusal - The Tribunal Purported to Decide Matters Beyond the Scope of the Submission to Arbitration

181. This ground is closely related to the second ground. In my judgment, the specific ground for refusal to enforce an arbitration award, set out in section 7(2)(d) of the Enforcement Law is made out i.e. the Award deals with a difference not contemplated nor falling within the terms of the submission to arbitration or contains decisions on matters beyond the scope of the submission to arbitration.

182. Thus, at the time of the Award, the MP Funds were entitled to understand the Tribunal to be treating them as a party to the PSA in its own right. It was on that basis that the claim was made that the MP Funds should be treated as responsible for the price adjustment mechanism with the PSA on the basis that it was the alter ego of the Sellers.

183. It was therefore not within the scope of the Tribunal's jurisdiction to award as tortious damages a contractual price adjustment amount, which had never been sought by VRG.

Conclusion and Disposition

184. The matter of the Court's power to refuse to enforce an arbitration award is a matter of discretion but this discretion is not at large. It must be exercised upon a principled basis, in respect of which there is a long line of cases that provide some guidance, and which have been referred to in this judgment. In all of the circumstances it is my view that it is just to refuse to enforce the Award, as it offends against the underlying principle of arbitration, that it must be consensual. That this Award does so is made out on two bases: (a) the purported exercise of jurisdiction pursuant to an arbitration agreement to which the MP Funds were not parties; and (b) by the purported exercise of jurisdiction whereby the Tribunal found the MP Funds liable for a particular provision of the Brazilian Code that had never been pleaded or set out, and therefore falling outside of the boundaries of the submission. The Award also offends against the cardinal principle of natural justice that enshrines a party's right to be heard and is contrary to the public policy of the Cayman Islands. This is contrary to the express provisions of the New York Convention, and the Enforcement Law.

Issue of Stay

185. For all of the reasons advanced by the MP Funds, and referred to at paragraph 120 above, it is in my judgment inappropriate to stay or adjourn the proceedings.

ORDER

186. In the circumstances, for the reasons previously discussed, I set aside the ex parte order dated 14 October 2016 pursuant to G.C.R, O.73, r.31(8) and section 7 of the Enforcement Law, as sought by the MP Funds. Costs are awarded to the MP Funds against VRG, to be taxed if not agreed.

JUDGMENT

Sir Bernard Rix JA

Introduction

1. This appeal (it began life and came before the Court as an application for permission to appeal) concerns a claim to enforce a Brazilian arbitration award, decided under Brazilian substantive and curial law, and upheld by the Brazilian courts in annulment proceedings in Brazil brought by the award debtors. I would grant permission to appeal. The case raises important and difficult issues. Permission to appeal was refused by the Judge, Justice Mangatal, and was strenuously challenged by the Respondents in this Court. This judgment will demonstrate, however, that permission ought to be granted.

2. The award was challenged before Mangatal J on four grounds, all of which had previously been raised before the Brazilian courts. The four grounds were and are: (i) the Respondents were not party to the arbitration agreement relied on; (ii) if they were, the claims raised in arbitration were outside the scope of the arbitration agreement; (iii) the arbitral tribunal decided the case on a legal ground (article 148 of the Brazilian Civil Code) not promoted by the claimant, which was contrary to Cayman Islands public policy; and (iv) the legal ground relied on by the arbitral tribunal was not within the Terms of Reference of the arbitration and therefore had never been referred or submitted to the arbitral tribunal for decision. Mangatal J agreed with all four grounds and therefore refused to enforce the award in the Cayman Islands.

3. It is common ground that grounds (i) and (ii) are matters for Brazilian law, and that ground (iii) is ultimately a matter for Cayman Islands law (although the appellant submitted that Brazilian law played an important role in providing the material on which these courts, applying Cayman Islands law and public policy, had to make a judgment). There was no clarity about the law which governed ground (iv), but in my judgment it too is a matter for Brazilian law as the law of the seat.

4. The parties deployed expert witnesses on Brazilian law to assist in the presentation of Brazilian law to these courts. It might be said, however, that the best evidence of Brazilian law lay in the decisions of the Brazilian courts in the instant case.

5. Before Mangatal J the appellant relied both on Brazilian law (as reflected in the Brazilian courts' decisions in this case and in the evidence of the Brazilian law experts) and on a submission of estoppel by reason of the Brazilian courts' decisions in this case. In essence, there is not much to choose between these approaches. In this appeal, the appellant concentrated exclusively on its argument of estoppel. In doing so, it might be said that it took upon itself a burden (the proof of estoppel) which prima facie (subject to the decisions of the Judge) lay on the Respondents (the proof of Brazilian law). Be that as it may, if the argument on estoppel were to succeed, it would follow (in the absence of proof that the Brazilian courts had somehow got Brazilian law wrong) that Brazilian law was as stated by the Brazilian courts.

The underlying dispute

6. The arbitration arose out of an Agreement for the Sale and Purchase of Equity Control in VRG Linhas Aéreas SA, dated 28 March 2007 (the Agreement).

7. VRG Linhas Aéreas SA (VRG or the airline), the then, but now former, name of Gol Linhas Aéreas SA, the appellant in this appeal and the plaintiff before Mangatal J (Gol), is the universal successor under Brazilian law of GTI SA (GTI), which was merged into VRG. GTI has therefore become VRG and then Gol. It was as GTI that the company acted as purchaser under the Agreement and commenced the arbitration proceedings in Brazil. The annulment proceedings, however, were named against VRG. It will be convenient to refer to the appellant throughout as VRG, as the judge did below.

8. GTI then was the purchaser under the Agreement from Varig Logistica SA and Volo do Brasil SA as sellers (the Sellers). The Agreement provided for the sale of 100% of the issued shares of VRG, a Brazilian airline. The dispute which subsequently arose concerned the overstatement of the airline's working capital and a demand therefore for an adjustment to the price paid under the Agreement.

9. The defendant respondents are aspects of the ultimately US based funds which promoted the sale of VRG. The first respondent, MatlinPatterson Global Opportunities Partners (Cayman) II LP (MP Cayman), is a Cayman Islands exempted limited partnership. The second respondent, MatlinPatterson Global Opportunities Partners II LP (MP USA), is a Delaware registered partnership. The third respondent, MatlinPatterson Global Partners II LLC (the GP), is the general partner of MP Cayman, and is a Delaware incorporated limited liability company. Mangatal J described the three defendants as the MP Funds. I shall also use that expression when convenient to describe any of the respondents or any combination of them.

10. The Sellers were special purpose companies set up by the MP Funds to perform the sale of the airline to GTI. The price under the Agreement was USD 275 million, but clause 5 of the Agreement provided for a price adjustment in case the working capital of GTI was less than warranted. Once paid, the price of USD 275 million had been removed by the MP Funds from the Sellers, and the Sellers were left essentially without means.

11. Neither MP Cayman nor MP USA were signatories of the Agreement itself. However, MP USA signed an addendum to the Agreement which joined MP USA to a non-compete provision in the Agreement. My understanding is that it is essentially MP Cayman and MP USA against whom VRG seeks enforcement, for it was against them (and the Sellers) that the award sought to be enforced was made.

12. A dispute subsequently arose concerning the working capital of GTI, or VRG as it had become. VRG complained that it had been fraudulently misled by both the Sellers and the MP Funds as to the working capital of the airline. A price adjustment clause, clause 5 of the Agreement, provided for an adjustment to the price to the extent that the working capital of the airline as of the date of the Agreement was overstated in the accounts. The working capital as of the date of the Agreement had been warranted, and was supposed to have been confirmed by PwC.

13. Accordingly, on or about 27 December 2007 VRG brought ICC arbitration proceedings against both the Sellers and the MP Funds in the form of MP Cayman and MP USA. The claim against the MP Funds was premised on the MP Funds' fraudulent misuse of the Sellers in the sale of the airline. It was said that this entitled VRG to pierce the corporate veil. The Sellers and the MP Funds were therefore said to be alter egos. The MP Funds (MP USA and MP Cayman) were described, together, as fourth respondents to the arbitration.

14. The arbitrators constituting the arbitral tribunal were: Juan Fernández-Armesto (chairman), Pedro Antônio Batista Martins and Gustavo José Mendes Tepedino (co-arbitrators). Dr Fernández-Armesto is a distinguished Spanish lawyer and arbitrator, who has been President of the Spanish Securities Commission and a professor of commercial law and is currently a vice-president of ICCA (the International Council for Commercial Arbitration). Messrs Martins and Tepedino are distinguished Brazilian lawyers and arbitrators, the former being inter alia an officer of the commercial committee of the Latin-American Arbitration Association and the latter being a professor of civil law and former Director of the Faculty of Law of the State University of Rio de Janeiro.

15. The MP Funds disputed the arbitrators' jurisdiction over them. They submitted both that they were not parties to the arbitration agreement contained in the Agreement, and that in any event, even if they were, the scope of any such arbitration agreement in their case could not extend beyond the non-compete obligation contained in the addendum.

16. The arbitrators, exercising their compétence compétence rights, subject to review by the Brazilian courts, to adjudicate on the challenge to their jurisdiction, issued a Partial Award (by a majority) dated 7 April 2009 rejecting that challenge.

17. The arbitration thereafter proceeded to the merits stage, with the MP Funds reserving their right to have the question of the arbitrators' jurisdiction reviewed by the courts.

18. In their Final Award dated 2 September 2010, the arbitrators found fraud proven, and awarded R$ 92,987,672 to VRG against the Sellers and the MP Funds jointly. They found that the airline, instead of having a working capital, as VRG had been assured, in the sum of R$ 40,750,874 (referred to frequently as R$ 40 million), in reality had a negative working capital of R$ 52,236,786 (referred to frequently as R$ 52 million).

19. The arbitrators found the Sellers liable under the price adjustment clause of the Agreement and the MP Funds liable for third party malice under article 148 of the Brazilian Civil Code for damages in the same amount. However, they rejected VRG's claim against the MP Funds based on the doctrines of alter ego and piercing the corporate veil.

20. The respondents submit in these proceedings that the arbitrators' reliance on article 148, as a distinct legal ground of liability, without warning to the MP Funds in advance of issue of the Award, deprived the MP Funds of the opportunity to present their case and was against public policy.

The Agreement

21. As stated above the Agreement was between GTI (subsequently VRG and now Gol) and the Sellers. The MP Funds were not parties or signatories. Gol, at that time the parent of GTI, guaranteed GTI's obligations. There was no guarantee by the MP Funds of the Sellers' obligations.

22. Clause 14 contained an arbitration agreement, as well as an express choice of Brazilian law. Any dispute was to be submitted to the ICC in accordance with its Rules. Relevant parts of clause 14 are as follows:

> Clause 14.1 All disputes arising from or related to this Agreement, including those concerning its validity, effectiveness, breach, interpretation, termination, rescission and their corollaries, will be resolved by arbitration, in accordance with the provisions of Law No. 9307/96 ("Arbitration Law"), pursuant to the provisions below…
> Clause 14.3 The hearings, petitions and documents of the arbitration will be conducted in the Portuguese language and, if requested by any of the Parties or the arbitrator, will be translated simultaneously into the English language. The place of the arbitration will be the city of São Paulo…

> Clause 14.5. The arbitrators selected must know the English language, regardless of their nationality.
> Clause 14.6 This Agreement will be interpreted and governed by the laws of Brazil and the Arbitration Panel will decide on disputes and disagreements in accordance with the laws of Brazil, ignoring any other rule of international private law that may cause the laws of any other country or jurisdiction other than Brazil to be applicable.

23. There were a number of addenda of the same date as the Agreement. This Court is concerned with what has been referred to as Addendum 5 ("Addendum SL/VRG/005"), dated São Paulo, March 28, 2007. The MP Funds signed Addendum 5 in order to join themselves to the non-compete obligations of the Sellers contained in clause 11.1 of the Agreement. The Addendum took the form of a letter to GTI and its then parent Gol, countersigned by the addressees. The Addendum was annexed to the Agreement.

24. Addendum 5 provided in relevant part as follows:

> We refer to Clause 11.1 of the above-captioned agreement to mention the following:
>
> > Further to what was set out in the said clause, the undersigned hereto, by means of this instrument, undertake to refrain from performing for a period of 3 (three) years as from the granting of preliminary approval from the ANAC [Brazilian Civil Aviation Authority], pursuant to Clause 9.2 of the above-captioned Agreement, any of the following acts:…
> >
> > Finally, we mention that with the "AGREED" affixed by you, this instrument shall constitute pursuant to the best terms of the law a firm and valid commitment by and between the parties, including for the purposes of supplementing the terms of the above-captioned Agreement.

The Partial Award

25. The Partial Award dealt with the MP Funds' challenge to the arbitrators' jurisdiction. By a majority the arbitrators dismissed that challenge. They found that by attaching themselves to the Agreement by means of Addendum 5, the MP Funds had joined in the Agreement's arbitration clause 14. They also found that, even though the Addendum was concerned only with the Agreement's non-compete obligation, nevertheless the wide terms of clause 14.1 ("All disputes arising from or related to this Agreement") and the absence of any evidence that the MP Funds intended to limit the scope of arbitration to disputes related to the non-compete clause, meant that the issues raised between GTI and the MP Funds were within the parties' arbitration agreement. In coming to that conclusion the arbitrators, as civil lawyers, considered both the "subjective" and the "objective" limits of contractual documents (paras 52 and 60).

The Final Award

26. Towards the end of their lengthy and careful Final Award, the three arbitrators found as matters of fact that VRG's explicit case of fraud had been wholly proven. Relevant passages are as follows:

> 1. CLAIMANT'S POSITION
>
> 568. Claimant seeks to hold Respondents 2 and 4 [the latter being the MP Funds] liable for their allegedly fraudulent conduct during the course of the negotiations of the Agreement and its performance.
>
> Allegation of fraud by Respondent 4
>
> 569. According to Claimant, Respondent 4 manipulated the numbers that were provided to Claimant upon setting the price for the agreed deal. Respondent 4 thereby (albeit indirectly) received an amount greater than reasonable for the VRG shares than if the numbers had been provided in a proper manner.
>
> 570. The doctored numbers were provided to KPMG, the Purchaser's financial adviser, which was unable to detect such fraud because it was not given the opportunity to conduct a complete preliminary financial audit in VRG.
>
> 571. The fraud was perpetrated by Mr Lap Chan Respondent 4's executive officer [director], since the definition of the purchase price, the inclusion of the price adjustment clause, and the specification of Appendix III to the Agreement were devised and carried out by Mr Lap Chan, as Respondent 4's direct representative.
>
> 572. The existence of a commingling of assets and abuse of control between Respondent 4, as controlling party, and the Sellers, as subsidiaries [filais], contributed to such fraud.
>
> 573. Consequently, Respondent 4's bad faith actions ended up "maliciously misleading Claimant, its counsel and consultants into believing that the company was in a financial position which was very different from reality."
>
> Qualifying Respondents' Actions
>
> 574. Claimant qualified Respondent 4's actions as follows:
>
> - "The conduct…illegal;"
> - "Clear case of abuse of right and a violation of objective good faith;"
> - "Truly a wrongful act;"
> - "A contradictory behavior on Claimant's good faith noted in both the pre-contractual and post-contractual phases;"

- "[which] is repulsive to everyone who had access to the facts being discussed;"
- "Respondent 4 admittedly manipulated, doctored, defrauded;"
- "a falsification of numbers;"
- "repeated omissions and falsehoods;"
- "a clear accounting fraud;"
- "an omission of [...] adjustments caused a purposeful and highly detrimental distortion to the final result;"
- "unequivocally shows bad faith;"
- "changes that ended up maliciously misleading Claimant;"
- "Deliberately adulterated such numbers with the sole purpose of deceiving Claimant;"
- "A manifestly malicious omission of information and facts."

575. Claimant attributes such conduct directly to Respondent 4, and extends it to all other Respondents; Claimant argues that bad faith and fraudulent misconduct was only made possible through Respondents' joint actions and the corporate structure created.

2. RESPONDENTS' POSITION

576. The Arbitration Tribunal, before describing Respondents' position, wants to state for the record that the allegations of bad faith and the attribution of such conduct to all Respondents are, as evidenced from previous paragraphs, continuously contained in Claimant's writings, ever since the beginning of this arbitration. Therefore, Respondents had ample opportunity to respond to such allegations.

Allegations by Respondent 4:

578. On its part, Respondent 4 begins its defense by alleging that it "never used the legal personality of either Respondent 1 or 2 to defraud any third party. What has been proven is that Respondent 4 indirectly invested US$400 million in VRG, and in Respondents 1 and 2 [the Sellers], and nothing has been recovered. Such corporate entities at all times had their own equity, management, employees, ultimately a separate existence as between each other. Nor could their existence be intermingled with that of [Volo Logistics], already excluded from this arbitration, or that of Respondent 4."

579. Subsequently, Respondent 4 analyzes in detail how the negotiations of the Agreement developed. It acknowledges that Mr Lap Chan, Respondent 4's representative, "has been the main intermediary in negotiations with the GoI Group," but that "such negotiations, conducted primarily by Mr Lap Chan, were never conducted by him alone." In addition, it alleges that Mr Lap Chan had been travelling since March 17 and did not take part in the execution of the Agreement on March 28, 2007.

580. As regards the Initial Balance Sheet included in Appendix III to the Agreement, Respondent – supported by Mr Lap Chan's own assertions – believes it was prepared by Mr Márcia Nobre with PwC's assistance and checked by KPMG, the Purchaser's advisor, note by note. No number pertaining to the Agreement was imposed upon the GoI Group. The GoI Group's top management received and analyzed the reports before making the decision to move forward with the deal.

581. KPMG exerted – as described by Respondent 4 – some extensive work checking on VRG's accounts and even issued three reports, a first one on February 24, a second one on March 16, and a third one in April, all of them in 2007. KPMG and GOL held at least one meeting to discuss the final draft and KPMG's impressions regarding the analysed documents. GOL was aware of the conditions for the deal upon receiving the reports issued by KPMG, and went on to close the deal.

3. ANALYSIS BY THE ARBITRATION TRIBUNAL

586. Claimant seeks in this arbitration to have the characterization of fraud in the negotiation and performance of the Agreement cause Respondent 4 to be held liable for the Respondent I's obligation to pay Claimant the price adjustment provided for in the Agreement. The dispute is therefore an issue related to the main Agreement, which falls fully under the scope of the Arbitration Tribunal's jurisdiction as affirmed in the Partial Award.

587. The Tribunal next shall proceed to analyse the claim made by the Claimant.

3.1 THE PROVEN FACTS

Mr Lap Chan's Person

588. Mr Lap Chan was an executive officer of and partner in the MatlinPatterson Fund. Such fund controlled Vlog, the company owning VRG, and which acted as Seller in the Sale and Purchase Agreement. Mr Lap Chan, acting as the MatlinPatterson Fund's representative, was the main intermediary with the GOL Group during the negotiations prior to the execution of the Agreement.

589. Mr Lap Chan was the person who prepared and/or ordered the preparation of the Initial Balance sheet. Such preparation used as its basis a balance sheet, i.e. a complete balance sheet, drawn from VRG's official books of account on the very day of March 15, 2007.

Manipulation of VRG's Bookkeeping

590. Upon preparing the Initial Balance Sheet, Mr Lap Chan ordered two significant changes introduced, arbitrarily altering the figures of two bookkeeping entries that appeared in VRG's official books of account.

591. (i) According to VRG's official bookkeeping, the amount of R$ 40,783,150 appeared in the balance sheet item "Commercial leasing payable." However, Mr Lap Chan ordered the figure reduced to R$ 20,737,278 in the Initial Balance Sheet. The only reason for rejecting the original figure was that Mr Lap Chan understood that the original figure was not reliable, and therefore he made an approximate calculation, taking as its basis the fleet of nineteen 737 and three MD-11 aircraft that the company then had to estimate the amount that should be inserted in the Initial Balance Sheet.

592. (ii) The balance sheet item "Fees, taxes and contributions – INFRAERO" had, as of March 15, 2007, an amount of R$ 10,512,166. However, Mr Lap Chan ordered the figure in the Initial Balance Sheet reduced to zero R$. Mr Lap Chan explained that he "imagined it had to be zero, INFRAERO won't let you fly if you don't pay on time." With this simple argument he decided to reduce an account balance, which in the bookkeeping as of March 15 was more than R$ 10 million, to zero R$.

593. During the Evidentiary Hearing, Mr Lap Chan sought to justify his actions with the supposedly low quality of VRG's accounting information (at the Evidentiary Hearing Mr Lap Chan used the expression "garbage in, garbage out"). Mr Lap Chan's explanations could not be more unconvincing, and his actions have to be qualified as sheer manipulation.

594. VRG was a major airline which had sophisticated accounting systems based on the SAP program – one of the most complex in the market – controlled by experienced professionals. In spite of this, Mr Lap Chan in the first case reduced the figure, which was the result of official bookkeeping, to half, using as his basis a crude and unempirical calculation of what the balance of such an account should be, based on the number of leased aircraft, and in the second case, he reduced the balance completely to zero.

596. In short, even assuming that the quality of VRG's accounting information for the month of March was less than optimal, low quality absolutely does not justify the two interventions Mr Lap Chan made in the official bookkeeping numbers upon preparing the Initial Balance Sheet: by reducing two major liabilities accounts, that of "Commercial leasing payable," amounting to R$ 40 million, to exactly half, R$ 20 million, and that of "Fees, taxes and contributions – INFRAERO," amounting to R$ 10 million, to zero. This is why such conducts are deemed a conscious and voluntary falsification of VRG's bookkeeping in order for the Initial Balance Sheet to show a working capital higher than as stated in the official bookkeeping.

Misrepresentation that the Initial Balance Sheet was revised by PwC

597. The Agreement includes an express warranty that PwC had prepared and validated the figures of the Initial Balance Sheet (Sections 5.1 and 5.1.1). Mr Lap Chan himself (with no knowledge of Mr Humberto Tognelli's written statements) stated at the hearing that the Initial Balance sheet was revised by PwC. Such statements are most plainly untrue, because PwC itself stated that it never either prepared or revised the figures shown in the Initial Balance Sheet. GTI was, thus, led into believing that the figures shown in the Initial Balance Sheet had the approval of a prestigious audit firm. And this caused GTI to be unable to cast any doubt on the truthfulness of the Initial Balance Sheet.

The Misinformation facilitated to GTI

598. The Sellers also warranted in the Agreement that "no information provided by [the Sellers] and VRG contains any misrepresentation or omission of any fact that might lead [the Purchaser] into any misjudgment in connection with the information provided" (Section 7.14 of the Agreement).

599. It has been proven that the information contained in Appendix III to the Agreement (Initial Balance Sheet) did not reflect a true and proper image of VRG's accounting. From the Initial Balance Sheet attached to the Agreement, it could be deduced that VRG's working capital, as of March 15, amounted to R$ 40,750,874. In reality, it was inflated by the two item changes ordered by Mr Lap Chan – by more than R$ 30 million. And with VRG's accounting duly revised, the Tribunal has come to the conclusion that the true working capital, as of the Consummation Date, amounted to R$ (52,236,798). Which is to say: instead of a positive working capital of R$ 40 million, the company in reality had, as of the Consummation Date, a working capital deficit of R$ 52 million.

Effects of the Sellers

600. Mr Lap Chan's and Sellers' joint actions, described in detail above, engendered in Claimant an error about VRG's working capital. GTI signed the Agreement convinced that such working capital amounted to R$ 40 million, uninformed that it was artificially inflated by more than R$ 30 million.

601. But there is more: the assertion that a company as renowned as PwC had revised and, consequently, supported the figures of the Initial Balance Sheet, created in Claimant the confidence that such figures were accurate, and that they reflected a true image of the equity position. It is to be presumed that, without PwC's warranty, Claimant would not have accepted the Initial Balance Sheet, but would have submitted it to a careful review by its own financial advisors. Consequently, the Purchaser could not realize that the Initial Balance Sheet gave a totally distorted image of VRG's working capital.

602. The misinformation facilitated to GTI is directly attributable to Respondent 4, as it was its representative, Mr Lap Chan, who ordered figures manipulated and current liabilities artificially [increased, sc decreased]. Respondents 1 and 2, as the main interested parties in the deal and controlled by Respondent 4, were aware of or at least should be acquainted with the financial statements which were the basis for the deal, and therefore were aware of the information erroneously provided to Claimant.

27. The arbitrators then proceeded to determine the consequences in law of the facts that they had found proven. They began with the doctrine of piercing the corporate veil, which VRG had put in the forefront of its submissions, and then turned to deal with the malice which VRG had also alleged, and had proved, and to its legal consequences. They did so by a process known to civil law as iura novit curia ("the court knows the law"), a doctrine which is also described by the expression da mihi factum et dabo tibi legem ("give me the facts and I will give you the law").

3.2 FITTING THE FACTS INTO BRAZILIAN LAW

603. Once the proven facts are established, it is necessary to determine how they fit into Brazilian law.

CC Article 50: Lifting the Corporate Veil

604. Claimant has repeatedly indicated throughout its briefs that this is a case of fraud. In its opinion, the manipulation of the balance sheets and commingling of assets between Respondent 4 and Respondent 1 reflect, in the first place, an abuse of legal personality under CC article 50.

605. CC article 50 provides:

> "In the event of abuse of legal personality characterised by a diversion of purpose, or commingling of assets, the judge may, upon a motion by the party or the Attorney General, whenever the latter is authorized to intervene in the case, rule to extend the effects of certain and determined obligational relations to the personal assets of a legal entity's officers or partners."

606. This provision in fact regulates a presumed lifting of the corporate veil: CC article 50 describes a situation where the independent corporate entities of a controlling party and a controlled entity may be disregarded, with their independent equity liabilities not being acknowledged, and the liability for the controlled entity's debts being consequently extended to the controlling party. In order for such effects to be produced, the CC requires the existence of an "abuse of legal personality" characterized by a "diversion of purpose" or a "commingling of assets". As affirmed in Brazilian case law, in order for lifting the corporate veil to be authorized, "an actual manipulation of the company's independent equity in favor of third parties must be present."

607. None of these requirements are present in our case: the MatlinPaterson Fund has not used Respondents 1 and 2 for any purpose other than the corporate purpose for which they were organized, their assets have not been commingled, and they have not caused the controlled companies' independent equities to be manipulated.

608. In the Tribunal's opinion, CC article 50 and the lifting the corporate veil doctrine regulated therein do not constitute the appropriate legal basis for grounding Respondent 4's liability as sought. Let the record show that the companies' personalities and their resulting independence are of great value in the Brazilian legal system, and are therefore a rule of Brazilian law.

CC articles 45 et seq: Malice

609. Having ruled out the application of CC article 50, the Tribunal has to rule on any liability by Respondent 4 regarding Claimant's allegations of the former's presumably malicious actions.

610. Claimant effectively argued that in the "manipulation of numbers" "there was a manifestly malicious omission of information and facts," that Respondent 4's conduct presumed a violation of good faith, and that such malicious behavior was channelled through the corporate structure which was created.

611. In that respect, Prof Alvaro de Villaça de Azevedo concluded in his opinion, that such malicious actions by Respondent 4 fit into the breach of objective good faith doctrine (CC article 422), and into the third party's malice doctrine (CC article 148).

612. Respondents had ample opportunity to defend themselves from Claimant's allegations, but they focused their defense on allegations of a factual nature, and chose not to analyze the specific legal aspects of the allegations of malice made by the Claimant against them.

613. As charges of malicious conduct have been made, it is up to the Arbitration Tribunal, in accordance with the general provisions of Brazilian Procedural Law, to analyze and rule on this issue; and to do so the Tribunal (A) shall look into the concept and regulation of malice under Brazilian law, and then (B) shall analyze whether such actions fit into the legal concept of malice.

A. Regulation of Malice under Brazilian Law

614. Brazilian Law does not contain a definition of malice. But there is a unanimous opinion that it consists of:

> "any suggestion or ruse anyone employs with the intention or awareness of misleading the maker of a statement [of will], or of keeping the latter misled, as well as any disguising by the recipient of a statement or by a third party, of an error by the maker of such statement."

615. Or using Clóvis' classic definition:

> "Malice is a crafty ruse or device employed to mislead someone into performing a transaction harmful to the latter, to the benefit of the one engaging in malice or of a third party."

Causal malice and incidental malice

616. The CC makes a differentiation between two major categories in the concept of malice:

Causal malice, which is the equivalent of a serious mistake, and allows for the annulment of any transaction the cause of which is for this reason flawed, or compensation for losses and damage sustained (CC article 145: "Transactions may be annulled or malice whenever the latter was the cause of the former"); Incidental malice, representing a less transcendental mistake, which does not cause the transaction to be annulled, and only requires a satisfaction of losses and damages (CC article 146: "Incidental malice only requires the payment of losses and damages.").

619. In the case at hand, an allegedly malicious conduct is attributed to Respondent 4. But the latter does not participate in the Agreement either as Purchaser or Seller. Can its conduct, albeit originating from a third party, be qualified as malicious? The answer is yes.

Third-Party Malice

620. There is a second distinction that is greatly important to this arbitration: malice is usually committed by someone seeking to be counterparty to the transaction. Such counterparty makes a mistake precisely to mislead the lawful party into accepting the deal. But it is also possible to have a third party break such pre-contractual relationship, make the mistake, and mislead the parties into closing on the contract. In that case, we are talking about third-party malice.

621. Brazilian Law, which on this point is more developed than other legal systems surrounding it, contains the following regulation under CC article 148:

> "A transaction may also be annulled upon a third party's malice if the party benefitting from the transaction knew or should have known about such malice; otherwise, even if the transaction subsists, the third party shall be liable for all the deceived party's losses and damages."

622. Which is to say: Brazilian Law expressly provides that deception characterizing malice can be engaged in not only by the counterparty, but also by a third party. And the effects of deception again depend on whether malice is causal or incidental: in the first case, they cause the transaction to be annulled; in the second, "even if the transaction subsists, the third party shall be liable for all the deceived party's losses and damages." Which is to say: "if A, because of malice by C – which B, another party, knew about – signed the contract, it may not file an action for annulment against B, but instead, only an action for damages" against C.

623. Silvio de Salvo Venosa gives the following example of a third-party malice situation:

> "Imagine hypothetically that someone intends to acquire some jewellery, imagining it to be gold, when in reality it is not. The fact that it is not gold is not discussed by the seller, much less by the buyer. A third party, who has nothing to do with the deal, gives his opinion exalting the object as made out of gold. Thereupon the buyer is misled into making the purchase. There is clear third-party malice therein."

624. In the above example, the third party engaged in ploy to convince the buyer that the product was made out of gold. Third-party malice is characterized by a fraudulent collusion between the contracting party and a third party with the intent of maliciously misleading the other contracting party into closing the deal. In our case, Respondent engaged in a ploy to convince the Purchaser that the working capital in the Initial Balance Sheet was right and much higher than actual. And Respondents 1 and 2, aware of such ploy, stated that the working capital had been proved by PwC – thus covering up such a ploy.

B. How the Facts fit into the Concept of Malice

625. Brazilian case law finds the necessary elements for the existence of malice to be the following:

(i) The malicious party's intention to mislead the contracting party into performing a legal act;
(ii) Usage of seriously misleading resources;
(iii) That such ruses be the determinant cause of a fundamental element to the transaction;
(iv) That they originate from another contracting party or from a third party.

626. Let us analyze each element separately.

(i) Intention to mislead into the performance of a legal act

627. The MatlinPatterson Fund was no doubt greatly interested in getting GoI to acquire VRG. That coincides precisely with Respondent 4's corporate purpose, because the fund's purpose is to acquire distressed companies, and to resell them after their recovery. MatlinPatterson had acquired VRG in 2006, and obtained the company's control on December 15 of that year. It paid the price of US$24 million and, furthermore, has made maximum investments of US$75 million into the company itself. Only three months after the purchase was consummated the possibility arose of VRG being resold to the GoI Group for the amount of US$ 275 million (as stated in Section 4.1 of the Agreement). VRG's sale to GoI promised to be a transaction that would bring great benefits to the MatlinPatterson Fund, and therefore the latter was highly interested in having the transaction concluded successfully.

628. In its interest of obtaining a successful transaction, MatlinPatterson authorized a top-level executive, Mr Lap Chan, to play a major role in the negotiation process and in the preparation of the Initial Balance Sheet attached to the Agreement.

(ii) Usage of Seriously Fraudulent Resources

629. The Arbitration Tribunal has already ruled that Respondent 4 meddled in the preparation of the Initial Balance Sheet and maliciously manipulated VRG's bookkeeping.

630. Additionally, the Sellers, controlled by Respondent 4, warranted to GTI that the Initial Balance Sheet had been revised by PwC. – which is untrue, since PwC itself denies having done such work. That falsehood is an aggravating factor to a conduct already malicious in itself.

(iii) A Determinant Cause of a Fundamental Element to the Transaction

631. Upon signing the Agreement, GTI undertook to pay US$ 275 million for a company that seemingly had a positive working capital of R$ 40 million, such as stated on the Initial Balance Sheet, which purportedly had been revised by PwC. In the reality of the facts, its working capital had not been revised by the audit firm and, duly calculated as of the Consummation date, turned out to be negative by an amount of R$ 52 million.

632. Existence of a positive and sufficient working capital constitutes an essential element of the transaction. Good evidence of that is that the parties agreed on a price adjustment, R$ by R$, in case the actual working capital as of the Consummation Date were higher or lower than the figure of R$ 40,750,874 warranted in Appendix III.

633. If GTI had known upon signing the Agreement that VRG's working capital was not surplus, positive by R$ 40 million, but instead deficit by R$ 52 million, such knowledge would undoubtedly have impacted the agreed price; and such impact would be to lower the price by the capital it would have to inject into VRG to reinstate its working capital of (R$ 52 million) to R$ 40 million.

(iv) Knowledge of the Manipulation by the Sellers

634. The bookkeeping manipulation was not done directly by the Sellers but by its controlling party MatlinPattterson.

635. The Sellers in the Agreement had (or should have had) a perfect knowledge of MatlinPatterson's actions. Respondents 1 and 2 were companies controlled by MatlinPatterson, which directly benefited from VRG's sale. Engaged in air transportation, the Sellers were industry professionals, and therefore it must be assumed that they knew perfectly well what its controlled company VRG's equity position was. When they signed the Agreement, they were or should have been aware that the working capital being warranted was unreal, and that PwC had never validated the figures.

636. All necessary requirements, therefore, have been met for the third-party malice doctrine to occur; Respondent 4's actions allowed Vlog and Volo DB to sell VRG to GTI for a much higher price than would have been agreed if such conduct had not taken place.

637. Under CC article 148, third-party malice, if essential, constitutes defective consent, and can lead to the annulment of the transaction. In the case at hand, because the parties' interest is circumscribed to a price adjustment, this is incidental malice, which does not imply contract annulment. If incidental malice occurs, it gives rise to tort [ilicito extracontractual – extracontractual wrongdoing], for which the legal consequence is contained in CC article 146. Such conduct leads to the obligation to repair any losses and damage caused.

638. The Arbitration Tribunal has already determined that Respondent 4's malicious behaviour made the contract more onerous for Claimant. And the Tribunal shall dedicate the following section to determining the damage sustained by Claimant.

640. And what was the damage sustained?

641. Claimant alleges that the deceptions it suffered "impl[ied] a much greater initial outlay by VRG."

642. The Tribunal agrees with the Claimant. The damage sustained by the Purchaser is clear: because of the Respondents' anti-legal conduct, Claimant acquired a company convinced that the latter's working capital was R$ 40,750874 and, in reality, it encountered a negative working capital of (R$ 52,236,786). To be able to take the company to the position Claimant thought it had acquired such company in, Claimant had to inject into the latter capital in an amount equal to R$ 92,987,672. This figure quantifies the damage incurred by it.

643. The damage coincides in its quantification with the price adjustment amount. This was not by chance: the compensatory principle is common and consists of repairing the deficit created in VRG's working capital.

28. In sum, the arbitral tribunal found as matters of fact (i) that the MP Funds, through Mr Lap Chan, whose evidence it had heard and rejected, had intentionally deceived GTI by manipulating the figures for the airline's working capital; (ii) that the difference between the working capital of the airline as represented and warranted and the truth was some R$ 92 million; and (iii) that Mr Lap Chan's fraud had induced VRG to enter into the Agreement. The tribunal had then gone on to conclude as a matter of law (iv) that although the MP Funds could not be regarded as alter egos of the Sellers, nevertheless they had jointly with the Sellers deceived GTI into buying the airline on a false financial basis; and (v) that the appropriate legal ground in Brazilian law for such a situation was article 148 dealing with third party malice. Furthermore, the tribunal pointed out that article 148 had been relied on in Professor de Azevedo's opinion (which had been presented by VRG as its Exhibit 4, see footnote 308 to the Final Award's para 611), and that the MP Funds had had ample opportunity to defend themselves but had concentrated on the factual issues rather than on the consequences in law of VRG's factual case. The consequence, given the R$ for R$ operation of clause 5 of the Agreement, was that VRG was entitled to be compensated by the difference between the working capital of the airline as represented and in truth, whether that was under clause 5 or as damages in deceit, viz some R$ 92 million.

Brazilian arbitration law

29. The MP Funds were entitled under Brazilian law to commence an action before the Brazilian courts to review the arbitral tribunal's decision in its Partial Award as to its jurisdiction; and were also entitled to challenge the Final Award on grounds of lack of due process. Both of which the MP Funds proceeded to do.

30. The relevant Brazilian law is found in Brazil's Arbitration Law, viz Lei 9.307/96. As translated into English it provides inter alia as follows:

> Article 8. An arbitration clause which forms part of a contract shall be treated as an agreement independent of the other terms of the contract…
>
> The arbitrator has jurisdiction to decide ex officio or at the parties' request, the issues concerning the existence, validity and effectiveness of the arbitration agreement.
> Article 20. The party wishing to raise issues related to the jurisdiction, suspicion or impediment of an arbitrator or arbitrators, or as to the nullity, invalidity or ineffectiveness of the arbitration agreement, must do so at the first opportunity, after the commencement of the arbitration.

20.1 When the challenge of suspicion or impediment is accepted, the arbitrator shall be replaced in accordance with Article 16 of this Law; and if the lack of jurisdiction of the arbitrator or arbitral tribunal, as well as the nullity, invalidity or ineffectiveness of the arbitration agreement is confirmed, the parties shall revert to the Judicial Authority competent to rule on the matter.

20.2 When the challenge is not accepted, the arbitration shall proceed normally, subject however to review of that decision by the competent Judicial Authority if a lawsuit referred to in Article 33 of this Law is filed.

Article 21. The sole arbitrator or the arbitral tribunal shall comply with the procedure agreed upon by the parties in the arbitration agreement, which may refer to the rules of an arbitration institution or specialised entity, it being possible for the parties to empower the sole arbitrator or arbitral tribunal to regulate the procedure.

21.1 In the absence of any provisions on the procedure, the sole arbitrator or arbitral tribunal shall conduct the arbitration in such manner it considers appropriate.

21.2 The principles of due process, equal treatment of the parties, impartiality of the arbitrator and freedom of decision shall always be respected…

Article 32. An arbitral award is null and void if:
1. The arbitration agreement is null;…
4. It has exceeded the limits of the arbitration agreement;…
8. It violates the principles set forth by Article 21.2 of this Law.

Article 33. The interested party may request to the competent Judicial Authority to declare the arbitral award null in the cases set forth in this law.

33.1 A request for the declaratory nullity of the arbitral award, whether partial or final, will comply with the rules of cognisance procedure set up in the Law No 5869 of January 11, 1973 (Code of Civil Procedure), and it must be filed within 90 (ninety) days…

33.2 If the request is granted, it will set the arbitral award aside…

33.3 A declaration of nullity may also be raised by means of a debtor's defence, according to Article 475-L et seq. of Law No 5869 of January 11, 1973 (Code of Civil Procedure), in case court enforcement proceedings are filed.

Article 34. A foreign arbitral award shall be recognised or enforced in Brazil in accordance with international treaties effective in the internal legal system, or, in its absence, in strict accordance with the terms of this Law…

Article 39. Recognition of a foreign arbitral award will also be refused if the Superior Court of Justice finds that:

2. The decision violates national public policy.

Cayman Islands law regarding the enforcement of a foreign award

31. The Cayman Islands are party to the 1958 New York Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards (the New York Convention). The essence of the New York Convention for present purposes is to be found in the Cayman Islands' Foreign Arbitral Awards Enforcement Law (1997 Revision) (the CI Enforcement Law). Reflecting article V of the New York Convention, section 7 of the CI Enforcement Law provides as follows:

> 7. (1) Enforcement of a Convention award shall not be refused except in the cases mentioned in subsections (2) and (3).
> (2) Enforcement of a Convention award may be refused if the person against whom it is invoked proves:
> (b) that the arbitration agreement was not valid under the law to which the parties subjected it or, failing any indication thereon, under the law of the country where it was made;
> (c) that he was not given proper notice of the appointment of the arbitrator or of the arbitration proceedings or was otherwise unable to present his case;
> (d) subject to subsection (4), that the award deals with a difference not contemplated by or not falling within the terms of the submission to arbitration or contains decisions on matters beyond the scope of the submission to arbitration;
> (e) that the composition of the arbitral authority or the arbitral procedure was not in accordance with the agreement of the parties or, failing such agreement, with the law of the country where the arbitration took place; or
> (f) that the award has not yet become binding on the parties, or has been set aside or suspended by a competent authority of the country in which, or under the law of which, it was made.
> (3) Enforcement of a Convention award may also be refused if the award is in respect of a matter which is not capable of settlement by arbitration, or if it would be contrary to public policy to enforce the award…
>
> (5) Where an application for the setting aside or suspension of a Convention award has been made to such a competent authority as is mentioned in paragraph (f) of subsection (2), the court, before which enforcement of the award is sought, may, if it thinks fit, adjourn proceedings and may, on the application of the party seeking to enforce the award, order the other party to give security.

The Dallah Case

32. Dallah Real Estate and Tourism Holding Co v. Ministry of Religious Affairs of the Government of Pakistan [2010] UKSC 46, [2011] 1 AC 763 (Dallah) is the leading modern authority in English jurisprudence on the issues arising out of an attempt to enforce a foreign arbitral award in England in circumstances where there has been a challenge to the arbitrators' jurisdiction on the basis that the award debtor never agreed to arbitration in the first place.

33. The Dallah award was made in France, and therefore the issue in the English courts of whether or not the Government of Pakistan had been a party to the arbitration agreement and contract in that case was governed by French law (see article V(1)(a) of the New York Convention and section 103(2)(b) of the English Arbitration Act 1996). In that case there had been no express choice of law for the arbitration agreement or the contract in which it had been contained, and therefore the arbitrators had applied "those transnational principles and usages which reflect the fundamental requirements of justice in international trade and the concept of good faith in business". It followed that at the enforcement stage, the fall-back provision of article V(1)(a) and section 103(2)(b) – "under the law of the country where the award was made" – applied.

34. The Government of Pakistan had not been a signatory to the Dallah contract (although it had been to an earlier Memorandum of Agreement). Instead, a special Trust had been formed to make the contract with Dallah. Unfortunately, under Pakistani law the Trust had ceased after three months to continue in existence in the absence of its renewal. That is what had caused Dallah to pursue the Government of Pakistan. The arbitrators found nevertheless in its initial award on jurisdiction that the Government of Pakistan was a party to the contract and its arbitration agreement, and went on in a final award to render a monetary award against it. It was that award which Dallah was seeking to enforce.

35. The commercial court, the court of appeal and the Supreme Court, applying French law with the assistance of experts in French law on both sides, all held that the Government of Pakistan had never been a party to the contract or arbitration agreement and therefore refused enforcement of the award. There was no essential dispute between the experts as to what French law was, but they differed as to its application.

36. To the English courts' embarrassment, however, a subsequent attempt to enforce the award in France, challenged on the same ground of lack of agreement, succeeded, first in the tribunal de commerce of Paris and then in the Paris cour d'appel.[1] There was no further appeal to the cour de cassation. The English courts had got French law wrong. That should perhaps not come as a great surprise, since it can be very difficult for a foreign court to apply a different law correctly, shaking off the attitudes of domestic law and taking on the mantle of a foreign law. This is particularly true of some differences between the common and the civil law. There are important differences (as well as some important similarities) between common and civil law principles of contract interpretation: they have been authoritatively discussed in Chartbrook Ltd v. Persimmon Homes Ltd [2009] UKHL 38, [2009] 1 AC 1101, see Lord Hoffmann at para [39], where he explained why the French philosophy of contract interpretation – which has been so influential in civil law jurisdictions throughout the world – "is altogether different from that of English law". It is also well known that the civil law has shown itself to be much better disposed to finding that non-signatories have bound themselves to arbitration agreements than is the common law: and the Dallah case, in its English and French ramifications, has illustrated that well.[2]

37. If the successful French enforcement proceedings had preceded the English proceedings, or if the Government of Pakistan had previously unsuccessfully challenged the jurisdiction of the arbitrators in that case in France, it is impossible to think that the English courts would have erred in its findings of French law. They would have had before them the French courts' own decisions on the instant case. Whether as a matter of French law as found in the English courts, or as a matter of estoppel, it is wholly improbable to think that the English courts would have professed to know and apply French law better than the French courts.

38. In the present case, however, unlike Dallah, the challenge in the country of the express choice of law, of the seat of the arbitration, and where the award was made, namely Brazil, has preceded the enforcement proceedings in the Cayman Islands. It is intuitively surprising therefore to find that the Cayman Islands judge has differed from the Brazilian courts in its findings about Brazilian law, at any rate on the issues concerning the arbitration agreement (admittedly the issue concerning public policy is a matter ultimately for Cayman Islands law, although even there Brazilian law and procedure very arguably enter in an important way into the analysis).

39. In my judgment, therefore, it is necessary to be cautious about the findings below, and to enquire carefully into the process by which Mangatal J arrived at her conclusions.

40. One of the matters discussed in this appeal, as it was before the judge, was the nature of the forensic examination which is required when there is a challenge in court to jurisdiction disputed before but upheld by arbitrators under their rights of compétence compétence.

[2] The English and French decisions are discussed by Prof Gary Born in his International Commercial Arbitration (2nd ed, Kluwer Law International 2014) at 3477-3479, where he comments on the danger of "national courts rejecting the expertise of foreign tribunals, including on matters of foreign law; in many instances, these decisions also appear to reflect an unstated preference for applying local law (of the recognition forum) rather than that of the arbitral seat to the arbitration agreement." The English and French decisions are also discussed in an interesting article by Jacob Grierson and Dr Mireille Taok "Dallah: Conflicting Judgments from the UK Supreme Court and the Paris Cour d'Appel" in (2011) 28 J Int Arb 4 at 407.

41. As the Supreme Court explains in Dallah, the arbitral tribunal's rights of compétence compétence always remain subject to challenge in the courts. The doctrine of compétence compétence does not mean the exclusion of the courts, or that the courts are prima facie bound by the arbitrators' solution, or that the party challenging jurisdiction in the courts bears the burden of displacing the arbitrators' solution, or that the arbitrators' solution survives unless the courts find it irrational. It is not as though the arbitrators were the primary decision makers and the courts' role was only that of judicial review as that is practised in public and administrative law.

42. It is because the absence of jurisdiction in the arbitral tribunal is totally destructive of their powers – and also because of the terms of the New York Convention itself – that English law requires that the court challenge to a tribunal's preliminary compétence compétence view as to its jurisdiction has to be conducted from the bottom up, or, as it has been said, de novo. That was affirmed in Dallah, approving the decision in Azov Shipping Co v. Baltic Shipping Co [1999] 1 All ER 476. I refer to Lord Mance's judgment at paras [25] to [29], to Lord Collins' judgment at paras [86] to [96]. The essence of the matter can be found in Lord Mance's statements that "a party who has not submitted to the arbitrator's jurisdiction is entitled to a full judicial determination on evidence of an issue of jurisdiction before the English court" (at para [26]), and that what is required is "ordinary judicial determination of that issue" (at para [28]); or in Lord Collins' statement that the English courts "will examine or re-examine for themselves the jurisdiction of arbitrators" so that they "should not be in a worse position than the arbitrator for the purpose of determining the challenge" (at para [96]). The position is the same in France and the United States (see at paras [20], [22], [24], [25] and [92], citing République arabe d'Egypte v. Southern Pacific Properties Ltd [1986] Rev Arb 75, [1987] Rev Arb 469 (12 July 1984, Paris cour d'appel and 6 January 1987, cour de cassation), and First Options of Chicago Inc v. Kaplan (1995) 514 US 938, 943 and China Minmetals Materials Import and Export Co Ltd v. Chi Mei Corpn (2003) 334 F 3d 274, 288. Indeed, it is not clear that the position is different anywhere (although there are differences as to the time at which the courts review arbitrators' jurisdiction).

43. However, the position alters or may alter once an award has already been subjected to review in the court with supervisory jurisdiction or has been subject to enforcement proceedings either in that court or even that of another country. At that stage, one is not dealing merely with the preliminary compétence compétence views of the arbitral tribunal, but with the judgment of a court, whose jurisdiction is not in question. The court's judgment will have particular significance when that court is applying as its own law the law which governed the arbitral decision. That was recognised by Lord Mance, when he said (at para [29]):

> …Whether it is binding in France could only be decided in French court proceedings to recognise or enforce, such as those which Dallah has now begun. I note, however, that an English judgment holding that the award is not valid could prove significant in relation to such proceedings, if French courts recognise any principle similar to the English principle of issue estoppel (as to which see The Sennar (No 2) [1985] 1 WLR 490). But that is a matter for the French courts to decide.

It was also recognised in what Lord Collins said at para [98]:

> Consequently, in an international commercial arbitration a party which objects to the jurisdiction of the tribunal has two options. It can challenge the tribunal's jurisdiction in the courts of the arbitral seat; and it can resist enforcement in the court before which the award is brought for recognition and enforcement. These two options are not mutually exclusive, although in some cases a determination by the court of the seat may give rise to an issue estoppel or other preclusive effect in the court in which enforcement is sought.

And in the court of appeal in Dallah, the relevance of a decision in the supervisory court for another court later asked to enforce an award was also discussed in my judgment (at paras [89] and [90]), where I said:

> 89…It is possible to see that a defence allowed under Convention or statute may nevertheless no longer be open because of an estoppel (Professor van den Berg's view, see The New York Arbitration Convention 1958, at p 265)…
> 90. As for the case of a successful or unsuccessful (or waived) challenge in the courts of the country of origin, that is a more controversial area. My own view is that a successful challenge is not only in itself a potential defence under the Convention or our statute but likely also to raise an issue estoppel. As for an unsuccessful challenge, that may also set up an issue estoppel…

The Brazilian proceedings

44. In December 2010, the MP Funds brought proceedings against VRG under Brazil's Arbitration Law for annulment of the final award. They complained both about the arbitral tribunal's lack of jurisdiction and about the tribunal's application of the doctrine of iura novit curia in order to ground its decision on third party malice. The MP Funds' action was brought under article 33 of the Law.

45. The first instance judgment, dated 1 July 2011, was that of Judge Helmer Augusto Toqueton Amaral. He first rejected VRG's defence that the MP Funds' action was out of time. He then turned to the MP Funds' complaints and divided them into four points. His judgment reads in relevant part as follows (I have numbered the paragraphs, and the sentences within para [3] below, for the sake of convenience):

[1] I examine directly the claim, pursuant to Art 330, I of the Code of Civil Procedure, as this is primarily a matter of law, and the record is duly complete with respect to the facts…The discussion revolves around whether it is possible or not to nullify the arbitral sentence, which claim was based, primarily, on four points.

[2] The first point relates to whether it was possible for the plaintiffs to be bound by the arbitration clause. This, because the plaintiffs believe that the contract…would not be capable of extending its effects to the plaintiffs who are not parties to the agreement. However, such was not the case…It is even noted that the plaintiffs, in their own complaint, unequivocally confirm their participation in the creation of the referenced contract, stating that they even rejected the request by the respondent to include them expressly…Such an extension of responsibility occurred also by force of an amendment to the contract…an uncontested fact, and which, by express provision, amended the original contract, binding the plaintiffs. The explication of the responsibilities in the referenced amendment does not exclude the extension of the effects of the contract, including in relation to the possibility of arbitration. In this regard the first claim of the plaintiff is rejected.

[3] [i] The second aspect is related to the alleged decision with grounds different from what was argued, resulting in a nullity. This also did not occur. From what may be gleaned from the analysis of the documentation, there was given a different legal qualification to the conduct of the plaintiffs. That is, nothing was changed or altered about the facts of the discussion, but only the correct (in the opinion of the judge) legal definition of the facts established, applying the pertinent normative consequence, which was entirely natural, including in light of the old Latin maxim "Da mihi factum, dabo tibi ius." ["Give me the facts, and I shall give you the law"], i.e. the facts are what must be described, with the judge applying the relevant law. [ii] Remember, even, that pursuant to Clause 14.6, the contract would be construed and governed by the laws of Brazil, and the arbitration court must apply them in the event of a dispute (p.262). [iii] It is also observed that the clause of the contract itself, as it was drafted, did not limit the scope of jurisdiction over disputes of the arbitral tribunal, thus there is not verified any violation of Art 32, Clause IV of the Arbitration Act. The clause was express in submitting to arbitration "all disputes arising from or related to this instrument." [iv] It is important to also remember that in relation to the requested relief, the arbitration panel did not rule beyond it or outside it, respecting it, regardless of the grounds it adopted, this being the reason for which also in this aspect there was no vitiating overreach. In this manner no decision is observed that is unjustified or that violates the governing law in this matter.

[4] The third aspect is related to defects of a procedural nature, in the violation of the principle of due process of law (Art 21, Paragraph 2 of Law 9307/96). Such an allegation is also fragile, and does not support itself. The documentation offered by the parties unequivocally proves the broad possibility for argument, discussion and challenges…There is extensive documentation that accompanied the answer and that shows the entire path through the arbitration proceedings, from the initial filing until the conclusion by means of the sentence under discussion now. In truth, and indirectly, what the appellants in this instance question is, once again, the > grounds that led to the decision. And dissatisfaction with the grounds cannot be argued as an unlawful constraint on the defense.

> [5] And lastly, the final aspect cited is one of the most fragile, or the absence of reasoned grounds for the decision. Now, we cannot confuse dissatisfaction as to grounds with the absence of reasoned grounds…

46. In our appeal, we are not concerned with the fourth, final, point there addressed, namely the absence of reasons. As to the other three points, it may be noted that what may be termed the due process and public policy arguments before this court are addressed both in paras [3] and [4] above; and that para [3] also covers, at sub-paras [iii] and [iv], the arguments addressed to this court that the issues before the arbitration were in any event beyond the scope of the arbitration agreement, and/or of the submission to arbitration, as found in the Terms of Reference.

47. The first instance judgment of Judge Amaral was appealed by the MP Funds to the Court of Appeals of the State of São Paulo. Their grounds of appeal specified four matters, viz –

> …on four main fundamentals: (a) the Arbitral Tribunal did not have jurisdiction over MatlinPatterson Funds; (b) the subject matter of the adverse judgment was not a matter submitted to arbitration; (c) the arbitration award violated due process and the right to adversary proceeding; and (d) the arbitration award is groundless.

48. The decision of the Court of Appeals was given on 16 October 2012. The appeal was dismissed. There was an initial objection to the effect that the first instance decision had been given by summary adjudication, that is to say on the documents, without further evidence. That objection was rejected. The court of appeals said:

> In the case in question, the issue, to be effectively elucidated, needed only documentary evidence, which was produced in full. One need only analyze the documents submitted in fourteen (14) volumes that make up the record of this case.
> It is the judge's duty, at his or her discretion, to analyze the record and the actions taken, including a verification of the evidence produced, and if applicable, as a result of his or her own convictions, to order other evidence to be produced as he or she deems fit in order to elucidate the case in question or to adjudicate the case summarily.
>
> The honorable lower-court judge had in hand all of the items needed to analyze the arguments made in this case. The documents submitted into the record were sufficient for the judge to form an opinion and allowed for adequate examination of the issues being disputed. Therefore, additional evidence did not need to be produced…
> It should be noted, because it is normally the case, as article 14, item IV, of the Civil Procedure Code stipulates…the participants in the proceeding, in particular > the judge, are not allowed to produce unnecessary evidence for elucidating the case.

49. The Court of Appeals then turned to the merits of the appeal. It began with some general comments on the role of arbitration (for instance, that "it cannot be forgotten that arbitration is an institution that is an exception to the principle of free access to justice" at page 7 of the translation). It then turned to the doctrine of compétence-compétence, and by means of citations from treatise and precedent elucidated the explanation that although, for sound reasons, arbitrators are given the "initial" analysis of a jurisdictional challenge, the public courts "are not excluded, nor could they be, from examining the existence, validity and efficacy of the clause" (at page 11).

50. On the first issue of whether the MP Funds were party to the Agreement's arbitration clause, the court of appeals cited the judge's reasoning and continued, with particular reference to the Funds' execution of Addendum 5, as follows:

> Now, with all due respect, the appellants, constituting an international fund, after having signed a document that clearly and unquestionably stipulates their adherence to the contract unequivocably described in the aforementioned amendment, cannot now claim, even though skilfully made allegations, that they were not aware of or did not know that their participation in the deal in question would not be affected by the arbitration expressly agreed upon in the agreement to which they adhered.
> One also finds that, as stated, by signing the document on page 468 of the record, with an express provision regarding being bound to the agreement on pages 232-263 of the record, which stipulated arbitration as a form of conflict resolution, the appellants cannot try to allege absence of intention to participate in and submit to the arbitration court, under penalty of undeniable violation of the principle of "venire contra factum proprium", that is, the prohibition of contradictory behavior, since, as stated, having signed the amendment to the contract that called for arbitration, it is not reasonable later on for them to try to distance themselves from the extent of the effects resulting from the arbitral award.

51. The court went on to cite extensive material on the principle of venire contra factum proprium. It therefore rejected the MP Funds' contention that they were not bound by the arbitration clause in the Agreement.

52. The court then went on to consider what Judge Amaral had described as the second point, and again began by citing the judge's reasoning (at para [3] of his judgment). It continued, on the subject of iura novit curia or da mihi factum, dabo tibi ius as follows (at page 21):

> …the arbitrator, a private judge chosen by the parties, has the freedom to analyze the facts, arguments and theories that surround the dispute regarding alienable > rights, which is why he is constrained by the facts provided, reflected in alienable rights that led to arbitration being initiated, and not the law that the party wants to see applied to the specific case. This is why one must also recognize that the theory of substantiation is applicable to arbitration, rather than the theory of individuation, which is the reason the judgment under appeal correctly and accurately specified application of the maxim "mihi factum, dabo tibi ius."

53. The court then cited from a jurist's Commentary on Code of Civil Procedure which emphasised the unity of the two Latin expressions, and continued (at page 22):

> As such, given that the party has the duty of stating the facts that affect the conflict of interests, the claim is unjustified that there was a violation of due process and adversarial proceedings, based on the argument that the arbitral award was based on legal grounds other than those that were argued or raised by the parties…
> Furthermore, the vast documentary evidence produced demonstrates that the petitioners had, consistent with the principle of equality of treatment, sufficient opportunity to demonstrate their allegations, and as duly noted in the appealed sentence…

and the court went on to cite what Judge Amaral had said in para [4] of his judgment.

54. The court concluded (at page 23):

> The arbitration clause was correctly agreed, the arbitration was duly instituted, and it produced its effects within the proper limits and for those who were actually involved in the dispute. It respected the right to an adversarial proceeding and to a fair defense, by meeting the requirements in article 26 of the aforementioned law, including adherence to the facts stated, which is why it is correct to uphold the judgment under appeal…

55. Since the judgment of the São Paulo court of appeals, the MP Funds have been fruitlessly petitioning the Brazilian Supreme Court (the Superior Court of Justice). The court of appeals denied permission to appeal on 7 November 2013. The Superior Court of Justice granted permission for a "special appeal" on 16 February 2017, but dismissed that appeal by a decision of 12 December 2017, on the ground that such a special appeal was impossible in matters of contractual interpretation (or reanalysis of factual evidence). There was then a so-called "interlocutory appeal", against that refusal of permission, again to the Superior Court of Justice, made on 15 February 2018, followed by a "full-panel decision" of that Court denying the appeal and upholding the decision of 12 December 2017. There was yet again an "additional interlocutory appeal" to the Superior Court of Justice made on 26 April 2018, said to be based on "jurisprudential divergence", and there the documentary material before us runs out. The MP Funds rely in these proceedings on the fact that the Brazilian proceedings had not yet reached a final conclusion, for the purpose of meeting Gol's reliance on those proceedings as creating an estoppel in these courts.

The US proceedings

56. In the meantime, there were enforcement proceedings brought by VRG against the MP Funds in the United States, which failed. The MP Funds have previously sought to derive assistance from the failure of those proceedings, and even in their skeleton argument to this court have submitted that, if anything, it is the US proceedings, rather than the Brazilian proceedings, which would provide an estoppel in these proceedings, as being the first in time. By the end of the hearing before this court, however, the US proceedings had receded into the background, in part because they considered the matter under US rather than Brazilian law.

57. In the circumstances, I can be brief about them. VRG filed its petition for confirmation of the award pursuant to the New York Convention in January 2011. The MP Funds argued lack of jurisdiction. Cedarbaum J, sitting in the district court for the Southern District of New York, upheld the argument of lack of jurisdiction, saying that even if the MP Funds had agreed to arbitrate disputes over its non-compete agreement, it had not agreed to arbitrate an entirely different issue "[arising] under an agreement that it did not sign". In other words, the judge had decided the case on the basis of the scope, rather than the existence, of an agreement to arbitrate. There was an appeal by VRG to the US Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. By its judgment, the Second Circuit considered the matter afresh, or as it said, "de novo". It held that the district court had failed to ask the initial question of who is to decide the scope of the parties' arbitration agreement. It held that if the MP Funds had agreed on arbitration, then, under US jurisprudence, the scope of such an agreement was for the arbitral tribunal, not for the court. The case was therefore remitted back to the district court. On this second occasion, on 2 October 2013, Cederbaum J held that the MP Funds had not agreed to the arbitration clause in the Agreement (VRG Linhas Aéreas SA v. MatlinPatterson Global Opportunities Partners II LP 2014 WL 4928929 (SDNY)). The matter was decided as a matter of US law and jurisprudence. There was no reference to Brazilian law. By that time the MP Funds' action to annul the final award in Brazil had already passed through the São Paulo court of appeals and its judgment.

58. It follows that the US proceedings are of no assistance.

The Cayman Islands proceedings

59. These enforcement proceedings in the Cayman Islands were commenced on 1 September 2016. VRG obtained an ex parte order granting leave to enforce on 26 October 2016. The MP Funds applied to set aside the ex parte order by summonses dated 17 November 2016 and 1 December 2016. An inter partes hearing took place over four days in June 2018, and Mangatal J delivered her judgment, setting aside the ex parte order, on 19 February 2019.

60. The judge had before her all the material referred to above, but also expert reports on Brazilian law, as well as cross-examination of the experts, or at least some of them.

61. The expert reports appear to have commenced their appearance for the purpose of the US proceedings. Thus, the first of them is dated 31 March 2011 and titled as having been produced for the district court. This was before the first instance judgment from Judge Amaral in Brazil. Mr Gilberto Giusti, an experienced arbitration lawyer in Brazil, gave a statement in support of VRG, expressing his agreement with the arbitrators' conclusion that the MP Funds had bound themselves to the arbitration clause in the Agreement. Also in support of VRG, Professor Carlos Alberto Carmona, a jurist of procedural law and a member of the commission responsible for drafting Brazil's Arbitration Law, gave a statement opposing the MP Funds' submissions that the arbitrators' reliance on article 148 of the Brazilian Civil Code was outside the scope of the arbitration as defined by its Terms of Reference or was in breach of Brazilian due process.

62. Professor Carmona's statement included this passage:

> 16. Due process, under Brazilian law, subsumes, among other rules and principles, the principle of the contradictory proceedings (principio do contraditório), which requires each party to be afforded an opportunity to respond to the arguments of the other party and to express its views on any relevant fact, document, or element of evidence placed before a tribunal. However, a party is not automatically entitled under Brazilian arbitration law to be given an opportunity to address legal theories properly raised by the factual allegations of the parties. Under Brazilian arbitration law, an arbitral tribunal is free to fit Brazilian law to the facts before it and to enter an award based on applicable Brazilian law regardless whether or not the specific statutory provision or legal doctrine was expressly cited or relied upon by one of the parties. This is a fundamental and well known aspect of Brazilian practice.
> 17. In fact, the general rule in a Brazilian arbitration is that parties should assume and expect that a tribunal will apply the relevant law to the facts pleaded by each party. This rule is typically referred to in Brazil and other Civil Law countries by the Latin phrase "iura novit curia," which means that the court (as opposed to the parties) is charged with applying the law. The Final Award specifically applies the law to the facts in Paragraphs 625 to 638, under the title "Fitting the facts to the concept of malice" ("Encaixe dos fatos no conceito de dolo"). This aspect of the Final Award is fully consistent with Brazilian practice.

63. As stated above, this account of the doctrine of iura novit curia in Brazilian law, as applicable in arbitration, was given before the judgment of Judge Amaral. Professor Carmona's views turned out to be fully justified by the decisions of Judge Amaral and of the São Paulo Court of Appeals.

64. In response, also in the US proceedings, the MP Funds filed an expert opinion of Mr Mauricio Gomm Santos (Mr Gomm), an experienced practitioner of international arbitration in Latin America, dated 22 April 2011. In his opinion report, he stated his view of Brazilian law, but did not seek to apply it to the Agreement or to the facts of the case ("It is my understanding that it is for the Court to apply the applicable law to the facts of the case"). As for Professor Carmona's opinion on the doctrine of iura novit curia, he said this:

> 22. I disagree with Professor Carmona that Brazilian law concerning international arbitration allows a tribunal to fit the facts developed during the arbitration in its final award into any legal theory it may choose to apply, regardless of whether any party has alleged that legal claim, or the tribunal has otherwise raised the new point of law with the parties on its own, with an opportunity for the parties to be heard before the tribunal issues a decision. Professor Carmona does not cite any legal authority to support this view of due process in international arbitration, and I am aware of none. In international arbitration, unlike domestic Brazilian arbitration, the scope of the arbitral tribunal's authority to determine the facts and to apply the law is determined by the parties. Unlike under the principle of iura novit curia to which Professor Carmona refers, it is in principle the parties – not the arbitrators – who define the legal issues to be determined by the tribunal…
> 28 …the principle of contradictory proceedings underlying due process in Brazilian arbitration that Professor Carmona describes in paragraph 16 of his Declaration…necessarily involves both the law and the facts, and how the former applies to the latter.
> 29. Professor Carmona relies on the principle of iura novit curia to conclude that international arbitrators can decide what legal theory to apply without any input from the parties. Although I agree that this principle may be applicable in purely domestic litigation in Brazil, I disagree that this principle applies in the international arbitration context for the reasons discussed above. But even supposing that the principle did apply, as a matter of due process and fairness in international arbitration, if an arbitral tribunal contemplates deciding the case on a legal basis that has not been raised by any of the parties, the tribunal must at least raise the legal point with the parties and afford them an opportunity to present their 'arguments" and "views" prior to deciding the dispute on a different legal basis than has been addressed by the parties' submissions.

65. In sum, Mr Gomm accepted the principle of iura novit curia in domestic Brazilian proceedings, but said that it did not apply in international arbitration. He appears to have the view that international arbitration is governed either entirely by the parties or by a form of international arbitration law, or that in this context Brazilian law is directed and mandated by international arbitration law.

66. It will be appreciated that Mr Gomm's report of 22 April 2011 was also before Judge Amaral's judgment. It cannot be said that Mr Gomm's views, unlike those of Professor Carmona, are consistent with the judgments of the Brazilian courts.

67. In that context, I cite paragraphs 24 and 25 of Mr Gomm's report because they were relied on expressly by Mangatal J:

> 24. Similarly, it would be unreasonable to expect a respondent in international arbitration to "anticipate" every possible legal theory that might apply to hold them liable. Carmona Decl. § 24. This would put respondents in an unfair position of either arguing the claimant's case for it, even where the claimant did not raise a particular claim, or otherwise risk having no opportunity to be heard on a claim that was never raised in the arbitration but only imposed by the tribunal in its final award. In my view, such a concept makes no sense, either in Brazil or anywhere else where international arbitrations are conducted. Also such a concept may impair the ability of a country to be chosen as the seat of international arbitrations. Moreover, the prospect of requiring parties to address every possible legal basis for a claim or defense regardless of whether the other party or tribunal has raised it would tend to defeat the well-recognised goals of international arbitration to provide an efficient, time- and cost-effective dispute resolution mechanism as an alternative to litigation in the courts.
> 25. Perhaps most importantly, the relevant elements of proof required under different provisions of the Brazilian Civil Code that apply to conduct that is dolo, will vary. As with any "claim" for relief recognized at law, the merits of a claim raise a mixed question of law and fact – an application of the former to the latter. Any party to international arbitration would expect in fairness to have an opportunity to address the "claim" – the application of the law to the facts – not just one ingredient or the other, in isolation. This is why the authority of arbitral tribunals in international arbitration is circumscribed to the claims – fact and law – that are raised during the arbitration and that the parties are afforded an opportunity to address.

68. Those opinions were not used by the US courts in the US proceedings. There the matter rested until these proceedings commenced in the Cayman Islands. At that point, evidence was placed before the court as to the course of the annulment proceedings in Brazil (and as to the enforcement proceedings in the US). And on 28 February 2017, Mr Gomm gave, by affidavit, an "expert report for the Court's assistance concerning Brazilian law issues relevant to this proceeding" (at para 1.8), on the instructions of the MP Funds. He also referred to and exhibited his earlier report made in the US proceedings. On the subject of res judicata, he explained that under article 502 of the Brazilian Code of Civil Procedure (the BCCP)

> Substantive res judicata is the authority that renders immutable and indisputable a decision on [the] merits that is no longer subject to appeal.

69. Therefore, he observed, the Brazilian court decisions were not res judicata in Brazil. At that stage, the MP Funds had just been given permission for their "special appeal" to the Superior Court of Justice. On the subject of contract interpretation, he opined that Addendum 5 "demonstrates a lack of clear and manifest or unequivocal intent by its signatories to be bound to arbitrate any issues at all let alone issues under the [Agreement]". On the subject of article 148, he opined that the allegations and pleadings submitted by VRG throughout the arbitration did not encompass a claim under article 148. And on the subject of due process, he referred to a new provision of the BCCP which came into effect in 2016, but which he said codified developing law (article 10: "A judge shall not decide, at any level of jurisdiction, based on grounds with respect to which the parties have not been given the opportunity to make statements, even if the matter is one on which the judge should decide by administrative initiative"), which he opined required a judge to give the parties an opportunity to be heard on any issue which the court proposed to decide. He also continued to distinguish between Brazilian law and international arbitration law.

70. Mr Gomm's second report called forth a response from Professor Carmona, dated 19 April 2017, in which he simply referred to and annexed his report dated 31 March 2011 in the US proceedings.

71. In May 2017, Mr Giusti made a second report, in which he adopted his earlier report in the US proceedings and proceeded to respond to Mr Gomm's report in the Cayman proceedings. On the subject of res judicata, he accepted that there was still a possibility of the award being annulled, because of the outstanding appeal to the Superior Court of Justice. On contract interpretation, he said that that was subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the arbitral tribunal, but that in any event in his opinion the MP Funds had agreed to arbitrate under the Agreement's arbitration clause. On the question of the submission to arbitration and the Terms of Reference, he opined that the claim or relief claimed by VRG had not altered and that reference to piercing the corporate veil was not a claim but a legal argument to make use of the illegal conduct of the MP Funds complained of. And on the subject of iura novit curia and due process, he disagreed with Mr Gomm, explaining that the principles of adversarial proceedings and iura novit curia required a tribunal to give the parties every opportunity to present and discuss the facts of the case, but not every potential legal theory. As for article 10 of the BCCP, that was not applicable as it only came into force without retrospective effect in 2016: and in any event by referring to "grounds" it was only speaking of the factual basis of the relief claimed, but not of the legal consequences of those facts. In support of that last opinion, he cited the statement of the National School of Formation and Development of Magistrates, a research and teaching institution run by the Brazilian federal court system under the authority of the Brazilian Constitution, which spoke with the authority of 500 judges involved in the publication:

> The words 'Grounds' mentioned in art 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure/2015 is understood as the factual reasons guiding the request, and not the legal classification attributed by the parties.

72. As for Mr Gomm's view as to the dichotomy between domestic Brazilian law and international arbitration law, Mr Giusti said that there was no such distinction between domestic and international arbitrations seated in Brazil and that the principle of iura novit curia applied throughout. He observed as follows about ICC practice:

> Furthermore, it should be noted that the Awards were submitted to the scrutiny of the International Arbitration Court of the ICC, which includes experienced Brazilian lawyers and arbitrators as members of its Board. The scrutiny of the International Arbitration Court of the ICC is intended to correct mistakes, including minor issues of presentation and major issues of validity, and to evaluate whether the award is flawed because of any violation of due process. It is well-known for its excellence. The fact that the Awards underwent this level of scrutiny demonstrates that one of the most renowned arbitration chambers in the world concluded that the Arbitration was conducted in accordance with due process.

73. As for the arbitrators' reliance on article 148, Mr Giusti pointed out (at paras 141 and 163 of his report), as had the arbitrators, that it had been referred to earlier in the arbitration. I seek to precis briefly the 165 paragraphs of Mr Giusti's report.

74. On 13 July 2017, Mr Gomm responded with his third report (his "Second Affidavit"), which was not referred to in the hearing before us, and takes the disagreement between the Brazilian law experts no further.

75. On 3 May 2018, Mr Giusti filed a third report (his "Second Affidavit") in which he brought the position in the Brazilian proceedings up to date. He said that the prospects of the annulment proceedings succeeding are "now even more remote" (at para 32).

76. On 18 May 2018, Mr Gomm filed a fourth report (his "Third Affidavit") in which for the first time he raised an issue about the "standard of review a Brazilian court is required to apply in an annulment action under Article 33 of the BAA, whether on questions relating to the jurisdiction of the arbitral tribunal, or otherwise". He continued:

> 2.11 In the Annulment Proceedings, the Brazilian courts therefore were not required to consider the matters before them de novo from the arbitration > tribunal's Award. In my opinion, it is very difficult in fact to identify what standard of review or consideration the Brazilian courts applied, but it appears they primarily reviewed the correctness of the tribunal's decision on jurisdiction rather than considering that question de novo.

That is all Mr Gomm said on that matter. There were no further reports.

77. There was cross-examination before Mangatal J. We have been referred to passages in the cross-examination of Mr Gomm (by Mr Lowe QC on behalf of VRG) at pages 62-71 and 144-149 of the transcript for Day 1 of the hearing. In those passages, Mr Gomm accepted that an annulment action under article 33 of the Arbitration Law was like any other action, and it was for the judge, and only the judge, before whom such action was heard to make up his or her own mind on questions such as whether there was due process in the arbitration, applying the ordinary procedural rules in the same way as any other action would be decided. Mr Gomm also accepted, in relation to the doctrine of iura novit curia, that the Brazilian courts' decisions in this case had stood as judicial precedent in relation to the application of the doctrine to international ICC arbitrations in Brazil, was referred to in relevant textbooks, and had not been questioned in any other authority.

78. The judge's discussion, analysis and decisions commence at para 121 of her judgment.

79. The judge began with issue estoppel arising out of the Brazilian proceedings. She rejected any estoppel for three reasons: (i) because by reason of article 502 of the BCCP, there can be no res judicata while the Brazilian annulment proceedings remain under appeal (citing Carl Zeiss Stiftung v. Rayner & Keeler Ltd [1967] 1 AC 853 (HL) and Seven Arts Entertainment v. Content Corporation plc [2013] EWHC 588; (ii) because the issues in the Brazilian courts and in the Cayman Islands are in any event not identical; and (iii) because the issue of public policy (the standards of natural justice) is in any event a matter for Cayman law. Reason (i) raises an issue of law discussed by English jurisprudence as to what is meant by "final and conclusive", which will have to be considered below. Reason (ii) is controversial and depends on the judge's finding that the Brazilian courts' decision was not a decision "de novo" on Brazilian law, but some kind of mere deference to the arbitrators' decision under their power to rule on their own jurisdiction (the doctrine of compétence-compétence). Thus, the judge, founding herself on the fact that in English law a court's consideration of an arbitrator's ruling on his own jurisdiction requires its independent consideration (and using the Latin tag de novo), concluded that that was not the case in Brazil. The judge's reasoning on this point was contained in the following two paragraphs of her judgment:

128. However, in any event, when in Brazil, an application is made for vacatur of an arbitration award on the basis that the tribunal lacked jurisdiction, the courts are not required to reach a decision de novo on the question of jurisdiction. The Brazilian Court of Appeal's references to "competence-competence", which is the principle that the tribunal has the power to rule on its own jurisdiction, amply assist in making this point.

129. It is not enough to say for VRG that the Brazilian Courts found that the Tribunal was right. This is because it would have to be established on the evidence that the Brazilian Courts found de novo that the arbitration agreement bound the MP Funds and extended to the subject matter of the arbitration. There is therefore no issue estoppel regarding the question of jurisdiction.

Reason (iii) is common ground. VRG's estoppel arguments are only directed at the issues of contract interpretation.

80. The judge next turned (at paras 140ff) to form her own views of contract interpretation under Brazilian law, for which purpose she seems to have paid no regard to the Brazilian courts' views, presumably on the ground already expressed that they merely reflected deference to those of the arbitral tribunal. Indeed, she had already expressed the view that the São Paulo court of appeals had, by referring to compétence-compétence, recognised the tribunal's "power to rule on its own jurisdiction". Instead, the judge adopted her own reasoning, essentially as a matter of Cayman law, albeit without reference to any Cayman or English jurisprudence and without reference, for instance, to the leading case of Fiona Trust & Holding Corp v. Privalov [2007] UKHL 40, [2007] Bus LR 1719, to which she appears not to have been referred. She concluded:

161. Accordingly, in all the circumstances, and considering the issue, as I must, de novo, applying Brazilian law which is in my view plainly not different from Cayman law on contractual interpretation and construction issues, I am satisfied that the MP Funds were not parties to the arbitration agreement pursuant to which the Tribunal purported to exercise jurisdiction over them.

81. The judge went on to consider separately but briefly, and on the same basis, the further question of contract interpretation as to whether the arbitration clause in any event covered a price adjustment dispute (at paras 162ff). She stated that it did not, again without any reference to Brazilian law or the Brazilian proceedings.

82. Thirdly, the judge turned to the question of public policy (at paras 166ff). She framed this in the following terms: "The Second Ground for Refusal: The Tribunal Breached Natural Justice by Finding Liability on a basis neither Pleaded nor argued and awarding Relief that was never requested." She cited extensively from Professor Carmona's and Mr Gomm's reports on the subject of iura novit curia. She also referred to Mr Gomm's reliance on the new article 10 of the BCCP and to what the experts had said about that. She then reasoned as follows:

> 172. However, whilst I bear in mind that this was an arbitration taking place in Brazil, what I am required to do is to apply Cayman Islands standards of fairness. Applying Cayman Islands standards of fairness, it is plain that the MP Funds could not reasonably have foreseen that they would be held liable as third parties in tort, for tort damages, when the claim against them, and relief sought throughout the arbitration, was to hold them responsible for a contractual obligation of their indirect subsidiaries. This is for the following reasons:
> i. Article 148 imposes tortious liability; whereas the liability VRG alleged against the MP Funds was contractual.
>
> ii. This finding of liability under Article 148 is completely at odds with the Tribunal's jurisdictional determination that the MP Funds were made party to the PSA's terms by virtue of the Non-Compete Letter. On the merits, VRG had only alleged an alter ego theory of liability against the MP Funds that depended on the corporate personality of the Sellers and the MP Funds not being taken account of so that they were found to be parties to the purchase adjustment obligation, not third parties.
>
> iii. The evidence concerning the alleged misrepresentations by the MP Funds was not directed at establishing or answering an allegation of "malice" by the MP Funds for the purposes of a claim in tort; it was directed at an entirely different matter of whether there was an abuse of the corporate form such as to warrant the lifting of the corporate veil under Article 50.
>
> iv. Further, Article 148 requires the person relying on it to prove the third party's intentional conduct actually caused the entry into the contract by the alleged innocent party, or otherwise that it caused the damages claimed. The evidence and argument before the Tribunal did not in any way aim at establishing that the requirement under Article 148 was satisfied. The MP Funds therefore maintain that they were given no opportunity to make or develop any argument that this requirement was not made out. It was submitted that, oddly, the Tribunal imposed a contractual liability on the MP Funds, the measure of which was the price adjustment, as if this would equate tort damages caused by malice.
> v. I accept that, where damages are claimed as the remedy for Article 148, the claimant must adduce evidence to establish causation between the third party's malice and any loss suffered by the claimant as a result thereof. The fact that neither side adduced evidence or made an argument to this effect was put forward as a further demonstration that this was not the relief sought by VRG at all.

83. The judge went on to dismiss Professor Azevedo's "one-liner" reference to article 148 (to which it will be recalled that the final award referred, albeit not as a "one-liner", which I assume to be a piece of advocacy) as being an inadequate basis for the application of article 148 (at para 174).

84. As for the evidence of the experts, which she had cited at length, her sole recourse to that on this issue was in the following paragraph:

> 176. As to the evidence of the experts, there are a number of areas where they agree, and other areas where they disagree, and areas where the lines are blurred. In my judgment, once it is admitted, as Mr Giusti did in paragraphs 119 and 125 of his Affidavit, that the arbitrators are constrained by the factual basis of the parties' case and the limits of the parties' claim for relief, it seems to me that the MP Funds have made out their case under the second ground.

85. The judge also found assistance in Malicorp Ltd v. Government of the Arab Republic of Egypt [2015] EWHC 361 (Comm), [2015] 1 Lloyd's Rep 423 (Walker J) at para [37] ("What it does not show, however, is that Egypt had any notice of a proposal to award damages under article 142").

86. She then concluded:

> 179. In my view, what was required was express notice to the MP Funds of a proposal to award damages against it under Article 148 and there was none such to be found anywhere in the entire record of the proceedings before the Tribunal. I have in any event preferred the evidence of Mr Gomm Santos to that of Professor Carmona, as being more intrinsically logical and persuasive. I found particularly convincing Mr Gomm Santos' reasoning at paragraphs 24 and 25 of his Declaration, cited in paragraph 168 above. However, in any event, it is a question of Cayman law as to whether there was procedural fairness.

87. Mr Gomm's paragraphs 24-25 there referred to are cited herein at para 67 above. Mr Gomm there expressed (as he did elsewhere) his views of international arbitration as being something apart from Brazilian law, and as departing from the doctrine of iura novit curia inter alia because the application of law to facts is to be regarded as "a mixed question of law and fact".

88. It is not clear whether the judge in this section of her judgment was dealing with this ground as being founded in Cayman public policy (under section 7(3) of the CI Enforcement Law, reflecting article V(2)(b) of the New York Convention) or as being founded on the MP Funds "being otherwise unable to present [their] case" (under section 7(2)(b) of the CI Enforcement Law, reflecting article V(1)(b) of the Convention). Perhaps she had both in mind, as appears to be the case from her para 184 referred to below.

89. Mangatal J proceeded to the "Third Ground for Refusal – The Tribunal Purported to Decide Matters Beyond the Scope of the Submission to Arbitration" (at paras 181ff). The judge dealt with this very briefly. She did not refer to the Terms of Reference, but simply said that VRG's claim having been made on the basis that the MP Funds were the alter ego of the Sellers –

> 183. It was therefore not within the scope of the Tribunal's jurisdiction to award as tortious damages a contractual price adjustment amount, which had never been sought by VRG.

90. Finally, the judge rejected VRG's submission that even with a New York Convention defence proved, the court still had a discretion, which it ought to exercise, in favour of enforcement. In that connection she said this, by way of "Conclusion and Disposition":

> 184 …In all of the circumstances it is my view that it is just to refuse to enforce the Award, as it offends against the underlying principle of arbitration, that it must be consensual. That this Award does so is made out on two bases: (a) the purported exercise of jurisdiction pursuant to an arbitration agreement to which the MP Funds were not parties; and (b) by the purported exercise of jurisdiction whereby the Tribunal found the MP Funds liable for a particular provision of the Brazilian Code that had never been pleaded or set out, and therefore falling outside the boundaries of the submission. The Award also offends against the cardinal principle of natural justice that enshrines a party's right to be heard and is contrary to the public policy of the Cayman Islands. This is contrary to the express provisions of the New York Convention.

The parties' submissions

91. On behalf of VRG, Mr Lowe QC submits as follows.

92. As to the estoppel issue, he submits first, that the judge was mistaken to say that the Brazilian annulment proceedings had not fundamentally put in issue, in the form of an ordinary action, both the jurisdiction of the arbitrators and the substantial justice of the arbitral proceedings. He complains that the passage in which the judge rejected the de novo nature of such an action and concluded that the Brazilian courts merely deferred to the power of the arbitrators to rule on their own jurisdiction (paras 128-129 of the judgment) was a flimsy and false basis for the judge's conclusion and betrayed a fundamental misunderstanding of the nature of the doctrine of compétence-compétence. He also complained of the judge's failure to engage with the terms of the Brazilian judgments, or Mr Gomm's evidence as tested in cross-examination, which he submits make it plain that the Brazilian courts were deciding the issues for themselves. Secondly, he submits that the judge was wrong to found herself on article 502 of the BCCP, rather than on the English jurisprudence that makes clear that, for the purposes of the application of issue estoppel arising from foreign proceedings as a matter of English and thus Cayman law, the presence of an appeal does not affect the final and conclusive status of the foreign judgment: see Nouvion v. Freeman (1889) App Cas 1 and The Sennar (No 2) [1985] 1 WLR 490 (HL) among other cases, including the Zeiss case, which he submits the judge misunderstood.

93. In the circumstances, a proper understanding of the Brazilian proceedings proves estoppel, and incidentally Brazilian law, as to the issues of contract interpretation concerning the MP Funds agreement to arbitrate, the scope of the arbitration agreement, and the scope of the reference.

94. Turning to the question of natural justice and public policy, Mr Lowe accepts that ultimately such matters are to be judged by Cayman standards, but he submits that that judgment cannot be made in the abstract but can be arrived at only after a proper understanding and appreciation of Brazilian procedure and in particular the doctrine of iura novit curia. In that respect, he is critical of the judge's preference for Mr Gomm's view that the doctrine does not apply under Brazilian law in international arbitration, a view which he submits is wholly inconsistent both with the Brazilian judgments in this case and with academic treatises found in Iura Novit Curia in International Arbitration, 2018, published by NYU's Center for Transnational Litigation, Arbitration and Commercial Law. In the circumstances, he submits that the judge ought to have adopted the reasoning expressed by Colman J in Minmetals Germany GmbH v. Ferco Steel Ltd [1999] 1 All ER (Comm) 315, where he held that there would be no substantial injustice in enforcement of the award there under consideration.

95. Finally, and for much the same reasons, Mr Lowe repeats the submission which he made to the judge, which is that this court should be prepared to exercise the discretion it retains to enforce an award, even where a New York Convention defence has been prima facie made out, in the circumstances of this case.

96. On behalf of the MP Funds, on the other hand, Mr Flynn QC submits that the judge was right for the reasons she gave. Indeed, he had strongly pressed the court that no permission to appeal should be granted. He observes that there is no appeal against the judge's findings on contract interpretation under Brazilian law, only on estoppel; and no appeal on the issue of the scope of the submission to arbitration.

97. As to estoppel, he submits that even when attention is paid to the terms of the Brazilian judgments, it is apparent that there was only a form of "review" which fell short of de novo re-examination of the issues. In particular he draws attention to the use of the word "possible" in the forefront of Judge Amaral's judgment. There was no evidence from VRG to the contrary, only Mr Giusti's evidence that the arbitrators' award was final and conclusive. Therefore, the judge was right to say that the issues before her and before the Brazilian courts were not the same, so that no estoppel could run. In any event, the judge was right to found herself on the absence of res judicata in Brazilian law as long as a judgment was under appeal (article 502 of the BCCP): a foreign judgment could not have greater effect in Cayman law by way of the doctrine of estoppel than it could have where it was made, citing, as had the judge, Carl Zeiss and Seven Arts Entertainment.

98. As to substantial justice and public policy, Mr Flynn submitted that that was entirely a matter for Cayman law and Cayman standards (citing Cukorova Holding AS v. Sonera Holding BV [2014] UKPC 15, [2015] 2 All ER 1061, and Malicorp (which the judge had relied on), a case said to be close to our facts. The judge's treatment of this, and her rejection of the doctrine of iura novit curia, was impeccable.

99. In all these circumstances, any discretion to enforce an award subject to such proven New York Convention defences was impossible, as Dallah broadly recognised.

Estoppel

100. I turn first to the issues arising out of the principles of estoppel. It will be recalled that the judge held, first, that estoppel was impossible where Brazil did not recognise res judicata pending the end of the appeal process; and secondly, that the issues in the Brazilian proceedings were not identical to those which arose in the Cayman Islands. I will address those two points in turn, and first the point about a pending appeal.

101. The leading case on the subject is Nouvion v. Freeman, which the judge did not mention. The plea of estoppel failed there because the foreign (Spanish) judgment in question was only a "remate" judgment, which could be entirely reopened in "plenary" proceedings. It was for that reason not "final and conclusive" for the purposes of the English doctrine, as distinct from a judgment which could only be questioned on appeal. Lord Herschell famously said this (at 9-10):

> The principle upon which I think our enforcement of foreign judgments must proceed is this: that in a Court of competent jurisdiction, where according to its established procedure the whole merits of the case were open, at all events, to the parties, however much they may have failed to take advantage of them, or may have waived any of their rights, a final adjudication has been given that a debt or obligation exists which cannot thereafter be disputed, and can only be questioned in an appeal to a higher tribunal…But where, as in the present case, the adjudication is consistent with the nonexistence of the debt or obligation which it > is sought to enforce, and it may thereafter be declared by the tribunal which pronounced it that there is no obligation and no debt, it appears to me that the very foundation upon which the Courts of this country would proceed in enforcing a foreign judgment altogether fails.

102. In Carl Zeiss, the issue was whether the defendant solicitors were estopped from contending that they had authority to bring an action in the name of the Carl-Zeiss Stiftung (or "foundation"). It was alleged that the West German courts had decided that issue against that contention. It was held however that the defendant solicitors were not estopped. A variety of reasons were given. However, among them was that the decision of the West German courts did not fulfil the requirements of the doctrine. The first requirement which was missing was identity of parties. The next question was whether the earlier judgment had been a "final judgment on the merits". There was no reason why a foreign judgment could not be such a final judgment, even if caution needed to be taken because of unfamiliarity with foreign law, albeit the grounds for that caution did not apply in that case (at 918, per Lord Reid). Lord Reid went on to say this (at 918-919):

> It is clear that there can be no estoppel of this character unless the former judgment was a final judgment on the merits. But what does this mean in connection with issue estoppel? When we are dealing with cause of action estoppel it means that the merits of the cause of action must be finally disposed of so that the matter cannot be raised again in the foreign country. In this connection the case of Nouvion v. Freeman is important. There had been in Spain a final judgment in a summary form of procedure. But that was not necessarily the end of the matter, because it was possible to reopen the whole question by commencing a different kind of action: so the summary judgment was not res judicata in Spain. I do not find it surprising that the House unanimously refused to give effect in England to that summary judgment.
> When we come to issue estoppel I think that, by parity of reasoning, we should have to be satisfied that the issues in question cannot be relitigated in the foreign country. In other words, it would have to be proved in this case that the German Federal Republic would not allow the re-opening in any new case between the same parties of the issues decided by the Supreme Court in 1960, which are now said to found an estoppel here. There would seem to be no authority of any kind on this matter, but it seems to me to verge on absurdity that we should regard as conclusive something in a German judgment which the German courts themselves would not regard as conclusive. It is quite true that estoppel is a matter for the lex fori but the lex fori ought to be developed in a manner consistent with good sense.

103. Ultimately Lord Reid rested his judgment on the absence of identity of parties (at 919). There is nothing in what I have cited above that goes beyond the Nouvion v. Freeman approach.

104. Lord Hodson said this (at 926-7):

> In order to comply with rule 183 as stated in Dicey's Conflict of Laws, 7th ed. (1958), p. 992, the judgment must be conclusive in order to create an estoppel. In section 1 (2) (a) of the Foreign Judgments (Reciprocal Enforcement) Act, 1933, the expression "final and conclusive" is to be found, but these words are repetitive and "conclusive" in the sense of the rule must mean that it cannot, although it may be subject to appeal, be varied by the court which made it, as are, for example, some maintenance or alimony orders. Nouvion v. Freeman is an example of an action which had been tried in Spain under a summary form of procedure leading to a "remate" judgment but held by this House not to amount to res judicata, since it was possible to reopen the matter which had been tried and obtain a "plenary" judgment rendering the "remate" judgment inoperative. One asks, about what is the judgment to be final and conclusive? The answer is that it must be on the merits and not only as to some interlocutory matter not affecting the merits. The question here, may, I think, properly be described as "on the merits," the issue being whether or not there was authority to proceed in an action representing the foundation.

There is nothing there which goes beyond the approach of Nouvion v. Freeman. Lord Hodson was satisfied that the West German decision was final and conclusive (at 927).

105. Lord Guest dealt with this issue at 935-936, where he said this:

> I turn, therefore, at once to the question of finality. This is understood to mean "final and conclusive on the merits" of the cause (Dicey, Conflict of Laws, 7th ed., r.196, p. 1052)…In other words, the cause of action must be extinguished by the decision which is said to create the estoppel (see Nouvion v. Freeman, Lord Herschell: It puts an end to and absolutely concludes that particular action.") The West German judgment was not a judgment on the merits, but on a preliminary point relating to the capacity of the Carl-Zeiss-Stiftung to sue…I have difficulty in seeing how a decision on capacity to sue can ever be final and conclusive…
> Another aspect of finality relates to the requirement that the decision relied upon as estoppel must itself be res judicata in the country in which it is made. This is made clear in Nouvion v. Freeman…It would indeed be illogical if the decision were to be res judicata in England, if it were not also res judicata in the foreign jurisdiction.

It is difficult to see that this goes beyond the approach of Nouvion v. Freeman.

106. Lord Upjohn took a somewhat different position, in that he considered that the concept of authority to sue depended so much on matters of procedure in each court that he would deny any foreign judgment on that concept of the status of res judicata on the basis of the interests of justice (at 949). However, he too cited Nouvion v. Freeman (ibid).

107. Finally, Lord Wilberforce said this (at 969-970):

> The textbooks are in agreement in stating that for a foreign judgment to be set up as a bar in this country it must be res judicata in the country in which it is given…The chief authority cited for this is Nouvion v. Freeman, in which both Lindley L.J. in the Court of Appeal and Lord Herschell in this House expressed themselves strongly in this sense. No doubt that was rather a special case since the > remate judgment was no more than provisional, but, generally, it would seem unacceptable to give a foreign judgment more conclusive force in this country than it has where it was given. This must be so on principle and there is support for it in Behrens v. Sieveking. Unfortunately, there is no clear evidence whether the judgment of the Federal High Court is res judicata (in the sense I have mentioned) in Germany or not…

That is the one passage relied on by Mr Flynn which the judge cited as part of his submissions (at para [116] of her judgment). Unfortunately, she passed over the last sentence cited above in her citation, with its important qualification "in the sense I have mentioned". In holding, as Lord Wilberforce did (at 971) that he was not satisfied that the West German judgment was "conclusive in West Germany as regards other proceedings", I think that he was using both the expressions "res judicata" and "conclusive" in the sense used in Nouvion v. Freeman, namely as distinguishing between a judgment which could be revisited in other proceedings, and a judgment which was merely susceptible to appeal.

108. In the end their Lordships split on the question whether the West German judgment could be regarded as conclusive on the merits, and their division of opinion was centred on the peculiarity of the issue, under examination in that case, of authority to sue. However, I do not detect any falling away from the distinction drawn by Nouvion v. Freeman (frequently cited by their Lordships) between a judgment which could be re-opened in other proceedings, and a judgment which was merely susceptible to appeal.

109. Applying that distinction to the present appeal, the question becomes whether the judge, supported by Mr Flynn's submissions, is correct to say that article 502 is conclusive evidence derived from Brazilian law that any judgment under appeal is not "final and conclusive" which is the English law test, or whether Mr Lowe is correct to submit that the expression "res judicata" is merely a label used to describe the situation of a judgment which is not subject to appeal and does not render a Brazilian judgment other than "final and conclusive" in the sense defined in Nouvion v. Freeman.

110. Of course, the possibilities of appeal and of a reversal on appeal are universal (until one has received the judgment of the highest court). How then are such possibilities to be dealt with under the doctrine of estoppel and the authority of Nouvion v. Freeman? That was discussed by Lord Denning MR in Colt Industries Inc v. Sarlie (No 2) [1966] 1 WLR 1287 (CA), a decision rendered just a few weeks after Carl Zeiss. Reliance there rested on a decision of a New York court, which had been upheld on appeal to the Appellate Division. Permission to appeal further to the New York Court of Appeals (New York's highest court) had been refused, but that latter court had its own power to grant permission to appeal, and the English court was told that an application for such permission was being made. The judgment (as converted into sterling) was for nearly £0.9 million, a large sum of money in those days.

111. Lord Denning, with whom Davies and Russell LJJ agreed, held that the New York judgment was final and conclusive and would be enforced, albeit a stay of execution might be appropriate where an appeal was in prospect. Lord Denning said as follows (at 1291B/C):

> At the present moment the appellate process in the State of New York is not exhausted. It is possible that the Court of Appeals may give Mr Sarlie leave to appeal and afterwards allow his appeal. But this is not sufficient of itself to show that the judgment is not final and conclusive. It is well established that, even though a judgment is under appeal, it is still final and conclusive so as to enable an action to be brought upon it. That was clearly stated in Nouvion v. Freeman.

Moreover, Lord Denning went on to say this (at 1291F-H):

> It may be that the courts of the other states would not enforce the judgment or would grant a stay of execution until the whole of the appellate process had been exhausted: but the judgment itself is available throughout the states of the United States. Even if this were not so, I am quite clearly of opinion that we in this court should give full faith and credit to this judgment in the State of New York. There has been an appeal to the Appellate Division which has been dismissed. The only outstanding possibility is the grant of leave to appeal by the Court of Appeals. The appeal itself does not render it not final and conclusive. Nor should the possibility of leave to appeal. It seems to me that the proper test is this: Is the judgment a final and conclusive judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction in the territory in which it was pronounced?

112. As it is, international arbitration being what it is, and the importance of foreign enforcement of awards being so vital to the system of international arbitration, the New York Convention, brief as it is, makes express provision for the problem of an arbitral award which is under challenge in the courts of its seat. Article VI, which is reflected in section 7(5) of the CI Enforcement Law (cited at para 31 above), provides that a court asked to enforce an arbitral award which is under challenge in the courts of the country where it was made may adjourn the enforcement proceedings, and may even, if requested, order the award debtor to give security. That has not arisen in this case: but it is entirely consistent with the situation where a court asked to enforce a foreign award under challenge in the courts of its seat would stay execution until all appeal possibilities of those challenge proceedings had been exhausted.

113. Some twenty years later, the subject matter of issue estoppel arising from a foreign judgment returned to the House of Lords in the shape of The Sennar (No 2) [1985] 1 WLR 490. The particular issue there was whether it could be said that a decision of a Dutch court, that, by reason of an exclusive jurisdiction clause in a bill of lading contract in favour of the courts of Sudan, the claimant could not found jurisdiction in Holland, estopped the claimant from a similar attempt to found jurisdiction in England. It was submitted that this was not a judgment "on the merits" and merely procedural, but that submission failed. Carl Zeiss was relied on by their Lordships. Nouvion v. Freeman was not expressly mentioned, but its principle was expressed. Thus Lord Diplock said (at 494B):

> It is often said that the final judgment of the foreign court must be "on the merits". The moral overtones which this expression tends to conjure up may make it misleading. What it means in the context of judgments delivered by courts of justice is that the court has held that it has jurisdiction to adjudicate upon an issue raised in a cause of action to which the particular set of facts give rise; and that its judgment on that cause of action is one that cannot be varied, re-opened or set aside by the court that delivered it or any other court of co-ordinate jurisdiction although it may be subject to appeal to a court of higher jurisdiction.

And Lord Brandon said, citing Carl Zeiss, that the three requirements for the application of estoppel were, that there must be (i) a judgment of (a) a court of competent jurisdiction, which was (b) final and conclusive and (c) on the merits; (ii) identity of parties, and (iii) the same issue in both actions (at 499A/B).

114. Seven Arts Entertainment Limited v. Content Media Corporation plc [2013] EWHC 588 (Ch) (Sales J) concerns an application for summary judgment which failed. The application was based on an Ontario judgment between different claimants and respondents. Sales J held that there was no identity of parties and no identity of issue. As for the requirement of a final and conclusive judgment on the merits, Sales J held that the respondents had raised a triable issue that an Ontario court would not find the Ontario judgment final, both because of lack of privity (relied on by the claimant to get around lack of identity of parties) and also because it would consider the issue of the title to disputed copyrights afresh (at para [44]). In other words, it was a Nouvion v. Freeman situation. In the circumstances, the only passage relied on by Mr Flynn, and adopted by Mangatal J, namely para [43] in my view takes the matter no further. Sales J there said this:

> It is common ground that in order for an issue estoppel to arise in the courts in England by reference to a judgment of a court in a foreign jurisdiction (here, the Ontario judgment), it is necessary to show not only that the requirements to establish an issue estoppel according to the law of the lex fori (England) are satisfied, but also that the issue in question would be treated as res judicata according to the law of that foreign jurisdiction: see Carl Zeiss [1967] 1 AC 853, 919A-C (Lord Reid), 927C-D (Lord Hodson), 936A-B (Lord Guest), 949C-D (Lord Upjohn) and 969G-970A (Lord Wilberforce).

In my judgment, Seven Arts demonstrates that what is looked for as a matter of fact in the foreign jurisdiction is a final and conclusive judgment as that is understood in English law, applying the Nouvion v. Freeman distinction.

115. That is again what was emphasised by the English court of appeal in Aeroflot v. Berezovsky [2014] EWCA Civ 20, [2014] 1 CLC 53. There a first Russian judgment had been amended by a second Russian judgment (not on appeal), which had granted indexation of Aeroflot's loss as awarded by the first Russian judgment. Berezovsky had sought and obtained summary judgment dismissing Aeroflot's claim, which was based on the second Russian judgment. The reason for the dismissal of the claim was that the English judge at first instance (Floyd J) had held that the reopening of the claim was against public policy as being contrary to the "finality principle". The court of appeal allowed Aeroflot's appeal and said that its claim ought to go to trial, since "the English courts will not hold that a later foreign judgment infringes the finality principle when it interferes with a prior judgment if under the foreign law the prior judgment was not final and binding" (at para [29]). Therefore what had to be examined was whether the first Russian judgment was, under Russian law, liable to be re-opened by a subsequent judgment, a typical Nouvion v. Freeman situation; and that could not be ascertained and decided on summary judgment.

116. It was in this context that Arden LJ referred to Carl Zeiss. She pointed out that all members of the House of Lords had applied Nouvion. She summed the matter up as follows:

> 36. Nouvion is authority of the House of Lords for the proposition that, when the issue in English recognition and enforcement proceedings is whether a foreign judgment was final and binding, the choice of law rules are as follows: English law lays down the requirements for a final and binding judgment but the incidents in fact of the foreign judgment must be determined by the foreign law. As Lords Bramwell and Ashbourne held in the House of Lords, the English courts could not ascribe a higher status to a judgment governed by foreign law than that foreign law would ascribe to it.

117. The last and most recent authority to which I should refer under this issue is Midtown Acquisitions LP v. Essar Global Fund Ltd [2017] EWHC 519 (Comm), [2017] 1 WLR 3083 (Teare J). There, the claimant had obtained in New York a so-called "confession judgment" and then sued on it in England. The respondent opposed the claim, but summary judgment was granted, albeit subject to a stay, since there was currently an application in New York to vacate the judgment. The issue was whether the New York judgment was "final and conclusive" or was like the "remate" judgment in Nouvion v. Freeman. Teare J held that it was unlike the "remate" judgment since it could only be challenged on appeal or on grounds such as error, fraud, misrepresentation or other misconduct. As Teare J said (at para [32]):

> The judgment can be challenged on appeal (which challenge, it is common ground, is irrelevant to the question whether the judgment is final and binding) or on such grounds as error…

118. It is in the light of these authorities that I must revisit the issue before me of whether the Brazilian judgment is "final and conclusive" for the purposes of the English law of estoppel. It seems plain to me that "final and conclusive" is given by English law a special meaning. In one sense, any judgment subject to appeal is not final and conclusive. It may be set aside on appeal. However, it is clear on the authorities that the prospect of appeal is irrelevant to a judgment being final and conclusive. There is therefore no instance in English law that has been brought to our attention of any foreign judgment being refused enforcement on the ground that it is under appeal.

119. What then is to be made of article 502 of the Brazilian Civil Code? Mr Gomm's evidence (his first affidavit made in the Cayman proceedings) cites article 502 and states that the Brazilian doctrine of res judicata "is confirmed by the Brazilian Constitution [footnoted: Art 5, XXXVI "The law shall not impair a vested right, a perfected juridical act, or a matter adjudged [res judicata]"]. Under Brazilian procedural law, the res judicata doctrine applies when a decision is considered immutable and indisputable and it is no longer subject to change or appeal" (at para 3.1). It looks therefore as though in Brazil the doctrine of res judicata is tied up with a prohibition against impairing vested rights, a form of finality principle. It is possible therefore that the English doctrine of estoppel does not fit happily with the Brazilian doctrine of res judicata. However, there is no assistance on this matter from either Professor Carmona or Mr Giusti on the side of VRG. It is Mr Giusti, who in his second report of May 2017 responds to Mr Gomm on the subject of res judicata (at paras 15ff), but chooses to do so by emphasising the res judicata of the awards, not of the Brazilian judgments. Thus he says:

> 15. I agree with the general opinion expressed in paragraphs 3.1 and 3.2 of Mr Gomm's Affidavit on the doctrine of res judicata. However, for the reasons set out below, Mr Gomm is incorrect insofar as he suggests in his Affidavit that the fact that there is an appeal pending in a superior court in the annulment action…impairs or negates the res judicata of the Awards.

The trouble with that, however, is that reference to the awards as being res judicata is a fundamental petitio principii. The awards are certainly final and conclusive if they are valid, but their validity is the issue in question.

120. Even so, it would appear to be highly probable that the Brazilian courts' rejection of the MP Funds' annulment challenge, while still subject to an appeal process, cannot be altered or re-opened in any other way than by appeal. Therefore, this is a unique case in which there is a clash between what English law regards as final and conclusive and what Brazilian law regards as final and conclusive, with the difference between the two views being expressly covered in a series of English law decisions for well over a century which emphasise that the possibility of appeal is not relevant to the test of estoppel. Ultimately the doctrine of estoppel is a matter of the lex fori, ie in this case Cayman law, which is no different in this respect from English law. If forced to choose, therefore, I would prefer to say that in the case of such a clash, the English test should predominate, while of course regard has to be given to the current extant possibilities of appeal. The doctrine of estoppel is designed to work justice and not injustice, as Lord Upjohn remarked in Carl Zeiss at 947D (and see Yukos Capital Sarl v. OJSC Rosneft Oil Co (No 2), [2014] EWCA Civ 855, [2014] QB 458 at 516E). Moreover, if it therefore might have been said that, as it has turned out, VRG's proceedings here are premature, there remains the possibility of adjournment, provided for by the New York Convention and the CI Enforcement Law.

121. I will proceed then to the second ground on which Mangatal J rejected an estoppel, namely that the issues in the Brazilian courts and in the Cayman Islands were not identical. After all, if the issues are not identical, indeed the judge said that they are "not even materially or substantially the same" (at para [135]), the question of estoppel fails in any event. But if they are the same, then those decisions of course are the best evidence of Brazilian law (in the absence at any rate of some compelling evidence that the Brazilian courts erred) and therefore, estoppel or not, these courts should not in justice come to a different conclusion on a matter of Brazilian law.

122. It will be recalled that the judge's reason for finding that the issues were not the same was that she concluded that the Brazilian courts are not required to reach a decision de novo as shown by the fact that the São Paulo Court of Appeals referred to compétence-compétence "which is the principle that the tribunal has the power to rule on its own jurisdiction" (at para [128]).

123. In reaching this conclusion, the judge cited nothing from the Brazilian courts' judgments, nor anything from the expert reports before her. It was sufficient that the Court of Appeals had made references to compétence-compétence.

124. In my judgment, however, the judge erred in this respect. The principle of compétence-compétence says nothing about the test which a court brings to bear when the issue of an arbitrator's jurisdiction is challenged. It is merely the doctrine which says that it is thought in general to be better and more efficient if the arbitrator takes the first, or initial, look at the issue, before it comes before a court for its definitive judgment. This is clear from the discussion about the principle in Dallah. It is also clear (i) from the Brazilian Arbitration Law, (ii) from what the Court of Appeals said in its judgment about the principle of compétence-compétence and (iii) from that Court's lengthy discussion (at pages 13-19 of its judgment) of the issues of contract interpretation which underlay the issue of jurisdiction.

125. As for (i), the Arbitration Law itself sets out both the competence-competence principle and the right to challenge the arbitrator's views in court by an action to annul: see articles 8, 20 and 20.2, 32 and 33 cited at para 30 above. It may be noted that where the arbitrator declines jurisdiction, that is definitive, but where the arbitrator rejects the challenge to his jurisdiction, his decision is subject to review in an action "to declare the arbitral award null in the cases set forth in this law". Article 33.1 emphasises that the action to annul should comply with the ordinary procedure set out in the Code of Civil Procedure. Mr Gomm confirmed in his cross-examination that an article 33 annulment action was like any other action and that it was for the judge to make up his own mind in it. That is what any neutral reading of the Arbitration Law confirms. Thus in the case of an annulment action under article 33, the issues for the court are set out plainly in article 32, inter alia "if (1) The arbitration agreement is null", or (4) "It has exceeded the principles of the arbitration agreement", or "(8) It violates the principles set forth by Article 21.2" ie the principles of due process. Those are the issues for the court. The due process issues under challenge plainly are not ultimately for the arbitrators to decide, but for the court, as Mr Gomm confirmed. The issues of contract interpretation under article 21.2 (1) and (4) are in pari materia.

126. As for (ii), the Court of Appeals cited a lengthy extract from a Brazilian treatise on arbitration about compétence-compétence, which included the following:

> The arbitrator's initial analysis has been mentioned numerous times, because at the right time, after the arbitral award, the matter can be submitted for examination by the courts, if a defect in the agreement results in any of the cases set out in article 32.1 of the Arbitration Law (causes of an invalidity of an arbitral award). In other words, the public courts are not excluded, nor could they be, from examining the "existence, validity and efficacy of the clause", after the arbitral award by the current, proposed, and highly regarded system.

The treatise's references to article 32.1, the expression "nor could they be", and the expression "examining", all support my understanding of the relevant provisions of the Arbitration Law, as well as Mr Gomm's evidence under cross-examination.

127. As for (iii), the Court of Appeals dealt with the merits of the issue as to the existence and scope of an arbitration agreement binding the MP Funds in a passage extending over many pages, all of which is in my judgment redolent of a court making its own independent decision. In that passage the Court of Appeals reviews the limited evidence underlying the issues of contract interpretation for itself, cites extensively from a treatise, which itself cites from further underlying authority, rehearses Brazilian jurisprudence, and naturally refers to the judgment under appeal. There is no suggestion that the Court of Appeals is paying deference to the arbitral tribunal's own award, or is conducting some form of limited review, the nature of which has never at any time been explained by Mr Flynn, the judge, or Mr Gomm.

128. Although not directly relevant at this point, the Court of Appeals' judgment continues with its own examination of the due process challenge, again citing treatise authority, and stating that "the judgment under appeal correctly and accurately specified application of the maxim: "mihi factum, dabo tibi ius." Mr Gomm expressly accepted that the court was there making its own independent assessment.

129. It must be recognised that, apart from some incontrovertible facts relating to the contractual documents in issue, the questions for the Brazilian courts were pure points of their own law, points of contract interpretation. In such circumstances, it is difficult for me to understand how, in upholding the first instance judgment, or in finding the arbitrators' own understanding to be correct, the Court of Appeals was doing other than expressing its own consideration of the matter.

130. In para 27 of Mangatal J's judgment, she said that the independent judicial approach mandated by Dallah, approving Azov, was to be contrasted with the approach in other jurisdictions. She said: "In many jurisdictions, the issue is a different one, i.e. whether on a review [the judge's emphasis] of the tribunal's decision on jurisdiction, paying due deference to the decision of the tribunal, the tribunal's decision on jurisdiction should stand". "Review" is the word used by Mr Flynn to contrast with the independent consideration required by Dallah. In using that word, he appears to have been influenced by the use of it by Ms Hilary Heilbron QC in Dallah, who there submitted (unsuccessfully) that in effect the English court's consideration of the issue of agreement to arbitrate should be in some way aetiolated and all but determined by the arbitrators' decision (see Lord Mance at para [21]). However, as Lord Justice Moore-Bick pointed out in the court of appeal (at para [21]), the term "review" was unhelpful, because –

> If it meant no more than that the court should have regard to the tribunal's reasoning in reaching its own conclusion, I should have little difficulty with it, since the tribunal's reasons will almost invariably be before the court and will carry as much persuasive weight as their cogency gives them. That is not, however, what I took her to mean, since it was essential to her argument that the court should at least accord great weight to the tribunal's conclusions unless they are clearly wrong. However, as became clear in the course of argument, it is impossible to formulate any satisfactory principle that falls somewhere between a limited review akin to that which the court undertakes when exercising the exercise of a judicial discretion and a full rehearing, not to mention one that is capable of flexibility in its application.

131. Mangatal J did not identify the "many" jurisdictions where some other approach, described as a "review", takes place. In Dallah, England, France and the USA, three important arbitration jurisdictions are identified as all following the "full rehearing" approach, and none is identified as following a different approach, although Lord Mance comments (at para [25] of his judgment) that the US case of China Minmetals examines some of the "nuances (principally relating to the time at which courts review arbitrators' jurisdiction)".[3]

132. Moreover, the language of the New York Convention itself mandates the Dallah approach, as Lord Mance pointed out at para [28] of his judgment, where he says that "This language points strongly to ordinary judicial determination of that issue". The same point was made by Moore-Bick LJ in the court of appeal (at para [22] of his judgment, where he said, referring to what the judge of first instance had said, as cited at para [14] of Moore-Bick LJ's judgment) that –

> In the absence of any authority, either in this country or abroad, which tends to support the conclusion that the language of article V(1) is to be given a meaning different from that which it naturally bears and in the light of the close similarity of language between the Convention and the [English] statute, I think the judge was right to treat the question as one of statutory interpretation and that his conclusion on the meaning of section 103(2) was clearly correct.

The same point may be made about the language of the Brazilian Arbitration Law, which itself follows the New York Convention.

133. It is true that Mr Gomm had said in his fourth report both that "it is very difficult in fact to identify what standard of review or consideration the Brazilian courts applied" and that "it appears they primarily reviewed the correctness of the tribunal's decision on jurisdiction rather than considering that question de novo". However, he does not explain that comment further in his report; in cross-examination he accepted that the question of due process was considered by the courts afresh; and his written comment in no way explains what, in a matter which entirely depended on contract interpretation and where there were no facts in dispute, is the difference between reviewing the correctness of a decision of law and considering that question of law afresh.

134. In this connection, it is relevant to point out that in the Azov case the issue was whether any contract had ever been finalised. That was a heavily fought, heavily factual, issue which depended in part on expert evidence on foreign law which the arbitrators had heard over many days. The question which arose when the issue came before the commercial court under the English Arbitration Act's section 67 review of the arbitrators' substantive jurisdiction was whether fresh evidence and fresh reports could be placed before the court, or whether the matter had to be looked at exclusively with the same evidence and therefore it might be said through the same eyes as the arbitrators. No, said the court. As Lord Collins put it in Dallah (at para [96]), "where there was a substantial issue of fact as to whether a party had entered into an arbitration agreement, even if there had already been a full hearing before the arbitrator the court, on a challenge under section 67, should not be in a worse position than the arbitrator for the purpose of determining the challenge". Or as Lord Mance put it (at para [26]), the parties are "entitled to a full judicial determination on evidence". In Dallah, as in Azov, there was much dispute in fact. But in this case, because the law in the Brazilian courts was the law of the Agreement, and the facts were otherwise plain on the contractual documents, the dispute as to jurisdiction was one of law.

135. Mr Flynn submitted, nevertheless, that a reading of the Brazilian courts' judgments showed that they were not directing themselves by their views of Brazilian law but in some way by reference to what the arbitrators had decided. He emphasised the use of the word "possible" in Judge Amaral's ruling, eg in the sentence "The discussion revolves around whether it is possible or not to nullify the arbitral sentence, which claim was based, primarily, on four points". It is true that one might expect a different word or expression from "possible", such as "this court ought" or "the law allows". It remains, however, a case where the claimant for nullity bears the burden of showing that the arbitrators have gone wrong in some way. "Can it meet that burden?", is what I take the judge to be asking. In any event, I cannot read the judge's exposition as being other than an expression of his own view of what the law requires. Thus the third point discussed is the due process point. This is plainly not something on which deference is owed to the challenged tribunal. As Judge Amaral said in that regard: "The documentation offered by the parties unequivocally proves the broad possibility for argument, discussion and challenges." And the fourth point discussed is lack of reasons, which again is plainly a matter for the judge, on his reading of the award, as he says: "The mere reading of the referenced decision…allows one to verify that the subject-matter was analysed with a high degree of detail…" One would therefore not expect a different test or approach when it comes to the two points of contract interpretation: as to which the judge said first, on the question whether there was no agreement to arbitrate, that "such was not the case", and then gave his reasons, which included the facts about the Agreement and Addendum 5; and on the second point, as to the scope of the arbitration agreement, he said that "the clause of the contract itself, as it was drafted, did not limit the scope of jurisdiction, thus there is not verified any violation of Art 32, Clause IV…". I have already given my reasons for viewing the São Paulo Court of Appeals' judgment as its own judicial determination of the issues on appeal.

136. I therefore reject the submission that a different test was applied from that which obtains under English and Cayman law to the MP Funds' article 33 challenge to the validity of the arbitral tribunal's Awards. In my judgment the issues faced and decided by the Brazilian courts are the same issues as would arise on the MP Funds' defences under the New York Convention and the CI Enforcement Law.

137. In the circumstances, those Brazilian judgments are plainly the best evidence there is of Brazilian law, of what a Brazilian court would decide on the issues in question here. They are determinative (see for instance Malicorp at [25]). Mr Flynn submits that there has been no appeal on the issues of Brazilian law. But once it is decided that the Brazilian judgments in this case are decisions on the same issues as lie before this court, plainly within this appeal, it is impossible to go behind them as a matter of Brazilian law. That would remain the case even if there was no technical estoppel on the ground that those judgments were still under appeal in Brazil. Even if it would in theory be possible to show that those judgments had been overturned in another case, the MP Funds have not sought to do that.

138. I would therefore hold that the MP Funds are estopped from challenging the Brazilian law decisions handed down on the validity of the arbitrators' jurisdiction in this case. I will revert below on the subject of the outstanding possibility of appeal in Brazil.

139. It follows that, in turning now to the subject of due process and public policy, I do so on the basis that the MP Funds were involved in an arbitration to which they were bound by their agreement, and that the Brazilian courts have considered and given their independent answer to the question of due process.

Due process and public policy

140. It is common ground that public policy and substantial or natural justice are matters for Cayman law: see, for instance, Pemberton v. Hughes [1899] 1 Ch 781 at 790, Yukos v. Rosneft at [151] and Cukorova at [32]. However, where an enforcing court is concerned with litigation under a foreign law, the matter is not necessarily as straightforward as it might be with domestic litigation or with arbitration seated in England. Public policy might be an over-powerful tool to bring to bear, and not all issues of due process are matters of substantial justice.

141. In this connection, Mr Lowe refers to the influential decision of Mr Justice Colman, acknowledged to be an experienced judge in such matters, in Minmetals. There a Chinese award was challenged in the Chinese courts on the basis that the award debtor had not been given a chance to make representations about another award (in a sub-sale arbitration) which the arbitrators had relied on for a question of quantum. The Chinese courts remitted the matter back to the arbitrators. On the resumed arbitration, the arbitrators invited the respondent to explain its complaint. It failed to do so, and the arbitrators affirmed their award. It was challenged again in the Chinese courts, this time unsuccessfully. It now came for enforcement in England, and the award debtor raised defences under section 103(2)(c) (inability to present a case) and (f) (public policy). The defences were dismissed and the award was enforced.

142. As to the section 103(2)(c) defence, Colman J said that the award debtor had failed to take advantage of the opportunities available to it on remission both to explain its complaint and to ask for a copy of the sub-award. These were matters within its control.

143. As to the section 103(2)(f) defence, Colman considered Adams v. Cape Industries plc [1990] Ch 433 (Scott J and CA) (as to which, see below) and observed that it had involved "quite exceptional facts" (at 329j). He pointed out, by reference to the case of Westacre Investments Inc v. Jugoimport-SPDR Holding Co Ltd [1999] QB 740, (at 330*j*) that – > it was necessary to have regard not only to the public policy of discouraging international commercial corruption, but to the countervailing policy of giving effect so far as possible to the finality of international arbitration awards and to discouraging the relitigation of issues already determined by arbitrators by adducing evidence not shown to have been unavailable before the arbitrators.

144. Colman J continued as follows (at 331*c-h*):

> In a case where a remedy for an alleged defect is applied for from the supervisory court, but is refused, leaving a final award undisturbed, it will therefore normally be a very strong policy consideration before the English courts that it has been conclusively determined by the courts of the agreed supervisory jurisdiction that the award should stand. Just as great weight must be attached to the policy of sustaining the finality of international awards, so also must great weight be attached to the policy of sustaining the finality of the determination of properly referred procedural issues by the courts of the supervisory jurisdiction. I use the word 'normally' because there may be exceptional cases where there has been an obvious and serious disregard for basic principles of justice by the arbitrators or where for unjust reasons, such as corruption, they decline to do so. However, outside such exceptional cases, any suggestion that under the guise of allegations of substantial injustice procedural defects in the conduct of an arbitration which have already been considered by the supervisory court should be reinvestigated by the English courts on an enforcement application is to be most strongly deprecated.
> In summary, therefore, in an case where an enforcee alleges that a New York Convention award should not be enforced on the grounds that such enforcement would lead to substantial injustice and therefore be contrary to English public policy the following must normally be included amongst the relevant considerations: (i) the nature of the procedural injustice; (ii) whether the enforcee has invoked the supervisory jurisdiction of the seat of the arbitration; (iii) whether a remedy was available under that jurisdiction; (iv) whether the courts of that > jurisdiction have conclusively determined the enforcee's complaint in favour of upholding the award; and (v) if the enforcee has failed to invoke that remedial jurisdiction, for what reason, and in particular whether he was unreasonable in failing to do so.

145. In the present case, factor (v) above does not apply, factors (ii), (iii) and (iv) are all answered in VRG's favour, and factor (i) remains a live issue.

146. I consider other cases which have been cited to us on the question of English and Cayman public policy attitudes to due process challenges to a foreign judgment or award.

147. In Adams v. Cape Industries the question arose as to the enforcement of a Texas default judgment for over USD 15 million, in the absence of a judicial hearing. The defendants had not appeared, hence the default judgment, but the question of quantum remained. There were 462 separate plaintiffs. The judge accepted the plaintiffs' counsel's assessment as to the level of various quantum bands and the allocation of individual plaintiffs within those bands. Scott J at first instance had directed himself that the requirements of substantial justice "cannot…be divorced from the legitimate expectations of both [parties] in the context of the procedural rules applicable to the case, but had concluded that in the absence of any judicial assessment of the damages, there had been a breach of substantial justice (at 500). The essence of the decision was that, in simply accepting counsel's assessments for himself, the Texan judge had not acted in accordance with Texan procedural law. The court of appeal expressed itself thus (at 564):

> We have found this to be a matter of difficulty…Scott J expressed his view that the system of civil justice evidenced by the Federal Rules and explained by the witnesses was an unimpeachable system of justice within one of the great common law jurisdictions of the world and was plainly in accordance with the requirements of natural justice. We make the same respectful acknowledgment. But, as Scott J pointed out, the defendants make no criticism of that system of justice. Their complaint was that, at the invitation of the plaintiffs' counsel, Judge Steger did not proceed in accordance with it.

148. In Hebei Import & Export Corporation [1999] HKFCA 40 a Chinese award had been challenged in the Chinese courts but not on the public policy grounds raised as a defence to enforcement proceedings in Hong Kong. The leading judgment of the court, with which the other members agreed in their concurring judgments, was given by Sir Anthony Mason NPJ. There had been a factory inspection attended by experts and the Chief Arbitrator but not the parties, followed by an experts' report, after which the award debtor admitted liability. The award debtor now complained that it had not been able to attend the inspection, that improper communications had been made to the Chief Arbitrator at the inspection, that it had not had an opportunity to deal with the report, and that it had been denied a hearing. It complained in Hong Kong of fundamental breaches of natural justice, and of bias. Those complaints were rejected. The complaints could have been raised before the arbitrators themselves, as well as the Chinese courts, but were not. What is of interest for present purposes is what the Final Court of Appeal said as a matter of principle.

149. Thus Sir Anthony Mason said this:

> 100. The question then is whether the two matters of which the respondent complains, namely the alleged refusal of a hearing and the communications to the Chief Arbitrator were fundamental conceptions of morality and justice of Hong Kong…
> 101. The critical question, however, is whether what happened in this case was contrary to these basic notions. In approaching this question, it is relevant to take account of the fact that the parties agreed to an arbitration which was to be governed by the CIETAC Arbitration Rules and the PRC Arbitration Law. The fact that the parties agreed to procedures which differ from those which would ordinarily apply in Hong Kong is a circumstance of which we must take account (see Ordnance s. 2AA(2)(a)).

150. And Mr Justice Bokhary PJ said this:

> 28. When a number of States enter into a treaty to enforce each other's arbitral awards, it stands to reason that they would do so in the realization that they, or some of them, will very likely have different outlooks in regard to internal matters. And they would hardly intend, when entering into the treaty or later when incorporating it into their domestic law, that these differences should be allowed to operate so as to undermine the broad uniformity which must be the obvious aim of such a treaty and the domestic laws incorporating it.
> 29. In regard to the refusal of Convention awards on public policy grounds, there are references in the cases and texts to what has been called "international public policy". Does this mean some standard common to all civilized nations? Or does it mean those elements of a State's own public policy which are so fundamental to its notions of justice that its courts feel obliged to apply the same not only to purely internal matters but even to matters with a foreign element by which other States are also affected? I think it should be taken to mean the latter…
> 30. None of this is to say that the proper approach is insular. It is eclectic…

151. In Cukorova there was an ICC arbitration governed by Swiss curial law with respect to a substantive agreement governed by Turkish law. The award creditor sought to enforce the award in the BVI. The award debtor defended enforcement on the grounds that the arbitral tribunal lacked jurisdiction, that it, the enforcee, had not been able to present its case, and on public policy. The Privy Council rejected all three defences. Lord Clarke said:

34. The general approach to enforcement of an award should be pro-enforcement. See e.g. Parsons & Whittemore Overseas Co Inc v Société Générale 508 F 2d 969 (1974) at 973:

> 'The 1958 Convention's basic thrust was to liberalize procedures for enforcing foreign arbitral awards…[it] clearly shifted the burden of proof to the party defending against enforcement and limited his defences to seven set forth in Article V.'

152. The essence of the award debtor's complaint was that it was not given the chance to call a certain witness (Mr Berkmen), despite numerous requests that he be heard. There was also a complaint that its adherence to the disputed arbitration agreement in question was found on the basis of tacit acceptance, and that that had not been anticipated. But the Privy Council found that the claimant had, on the first day of the hearing, submitted that tacit adherence (acceptable under Turkish law) was part of its case; and that it was satisfied by the tribunal's own reasons for not calling Mr Berkmen. The defences against enforcement were therefore dismissed.

153. Mr Flynn relied in particular on Malicorp, which he submitted was a case on essentially similar facts. Malicorp concerned an Egyptian award, in favour of the English contractor, Malicorp, against the Egyptian Government. The arbitrators found that Egypt had validly avoided the concession contract for mistake, but nevertheless awarded damages against it on a basis which had never been sought or put. First, Malicorp sought unsuccessfully to enforce in France. Secondly, Egypt sought to set aside the award in Egypt, and succeeded, pending an appeal to the Egyptian cour de cassation. Thirdly, Malicorp sought to enforce in England, and failed on two grounds: the Egyptian set aside of the award would be recognised; and a defence under section 103(2)(c) of the English Arbitration Act had been proved.

154. It is not clear from Walker J's judgment in the English court on what ground the Egyptian courts had set aside the award, but he went into the arbitration proceedings with care. He established that Malicorp had sought damages against Egypt on the ground of breach of contract, and that Egypt claimed it was entitled to avoid the contract for fraud. However, the arbitrators rejected Malicorp's case, made no finding on Egypt's case, and found instead that Egypt was entitled to avoid the contract for mistake. They then went on, nevertheless, to award damages against Egypt under article 142 of the Egyptian Civil Code which entitled damages to be awarded where a contract is void but restitutio in integrum may not be possible. Nothing like this had been pleaded, argued or mentioned. The judge concluded that the award of damages under article 142 "must have been a complete surprise to Egypt" (at para [41]). He continued:

> It would have been astonishing, if there had been any suggestion that this was in contemplation that Egypt would fail to protest that the tribunal ought to make a finding on its case on fraud rather than allocate responsibility on the footing of a good faith mistake on the part of Malicorp. It would similarly have been astonishing, if there had been any suggestion that damages in place of reinstatement were contemplated, that Egypt would fail to protest that such damages could not properly incorporate an element of loss of profit.

155. A review of these authorities discloses that (i) where due process is concerned, although the standards are ultimately those for an English court to set, regard must properly be had for foreign procedure and what the courts of that foreign procedure have to say about the issue of due process; (ii) there has been no case in which an award which has been challenged in but upheld by the supervisory courts in the country of its seat has been refused enforcement on a due process challenge which has been considered and rejected by the foreign court; (iii) there has been no similar case in which a major doctrine of the civil law, such as iura novit curia, has been rejected as contrary to substantial justice as that is understood in English law.

156. I therefore turn to the doctrine of iura novit curia, which Mangatal J regarded as irrelevant, both on the ground that "it is a question of Cayman law as to whether there was procedural fairness" and on the ground that Mr Gomm's evidence that the doctrine did not apply as a matter of Brazilian law to international arbitration was to be accepted. As to the first of those grounds, the judge did not take into account that element of English law which refers as appropriate to foreign procedure; and as to the second of those grounds, the judge did not have the advantage of the scholarly material which is available to this court.

157. That material is a treatise entitled Iura Novit Curia in International Arbitration, published by NYU's Center for Transnational Litigation, Arbitration and Commercial Law, 2018. It comprises 15 chapters contributed by practitioners and scholars from 15 separate countries about the role of iura novit arbiter in those countries – from Argentina to the United States. There are then two concluding chapters: chapter 16 entitled Iura Novit Curia in International Law, and chapter 16 entitled General Report on Jura Novit Curia.

158. The treatise is too lengthy to cite in detail. I extract, however, some references from the chapters on Brazil (for obvious reasons), from France, Germany, Sweden and Switzerland, as being important civil law centres of international arbitration in Europe, and from the United States and England and Wales, as being important common law centres of international arbitration.

159. It seems (see at 426-7 of the treatise) that the doctrine of iura novit curia can be traced right the way back, past the great Roman jurists, to no less a figure than Aristotle, who in his Rhetorics said –

> Again, a litigant has clearly nothing to do but to show that the alleged fact is so or is not so, that it has or has not happened. As to whether a thing is important or unimportant, just or unjust, the judge must surely refuse to take his instructions from the litigants: he must decide for himself all such points as the law-giver has not already defined for him.

160. As for Brazil, the author, Rafael Alves, a practitioner and professor, refers to the instant case as being one of three paradigmatic cases on the subject, the other two being slightly later, TEC in 2013 and EIT in 2015 (at 72-75). In TEC, the São Paulo Court of Appeals upheld the first instance court in rejecting a due process challenge to a Brazilian award, "confirming the application of jura novit curia in arbitration under Brazilian law…because the arbitrators may apply a different legal basis compared to the ones argued by the parties, as long as the questions of fact remain the same". In EIT, the first instance court upheld a challenge "because the arbitral tribunal decided the case based on a question of fact (gross negligence) that had not been subject to prior discussion between the parties. The judge also clarified that, had the arbitral tribunal only applied a different legal basis, the "jura novit curia principle" would be applicable, and the arbitral award would be valid." All three cases await appeal. The author therefore concludes (at 81):

> Second, with respect to domestic arbitral awards subject to Brazilian law, so far, in general terms, Brazilian courts have been more lenient to accept the application of jura novit curia in arbitration and reject setting aside procedures…provided that only questions of law are concerned (not questions of fact), that is, when the arbitrators provided a different legal basis or legal reasoning for the proven facts, as compared to the ones brought by the parties. In any event, arbitrators should exercise caution in avoiding surprises and preserving parties' procedural rights in such regard, as violation of due process of law is also a ground to set a domestic award aside under Brazilian law (Article 32, VIII, of the Brazilian Arbitration Act).

161. As for France, the authors Gilles Cuniberti and Nicolina Bordian, respectively a professor and senior lecturer and both practitioners, make the opening point (at 169) that the New York Convention is almost never raised before French courts, which directly apply French law. French law recognises the doctrine of iura novit curia in international arbitration, but requires all points, whether of fact or law, to be submitted to the discussion of the parties (at 171).

162. As for Germany, the authors Burkhard Hess and Leon Marcel Kahl, respectively a professor and research fellow at the Max Planck Institute, conclude that the principles of iura novit curia or da mihi factum dabo tibi ius as understood in German law permit arbitrators to apply the laws they deem applicable even if not chosen or pleaded by the parties on the basis that while the parties are responsible for the facts, it is the tribunal that must apply the law. However, neither court nor arbitral tribunal should surprise a party with a point that a conscientious and knowledgeable party could not expect (at 195, 215/6).

163. As for Sweden, the authors James Hope and Elisabeth Hallberg, both practitioners, observe that the principle of iura novit curia is mandatory for both courts and arbitral tribunals in Sweden (at 366). However, it is good practice, but not required, to invite parties to comment on matters which might take them by surprise (at 372). Failure to do so, however, is unlikely to provide any grounds for setting aside the award, "unless due process has been violated in a fundamental respect; for example, if the arbitral tribunal has been obviously partisan and thus violated the principle of equality" (at 374).

164. As for Switzerland, the authors Andrea Bonomi and David Bochatay, respectively a professor and practitioner, state that it is "undisputed that the rule iura novit curia – or iura novit arbiter, as it is often referred to in this context – is part of Swiss arbitration law" (at 381). That means that arbitrators "can freely assess and determine the legal implications of the facts of the case" and "are entitled to rely on legal grounds that were not pleaded by the parties" (at 382). That might even be their duty (at 386). However, they cannot go outside the relief requested (what in England we might call the prayer), a point made by other contributors: thus a party which had claimed a declaration that a contract was invalid could not be awarded damages for breach of it (383, and see also at 393). Although there is a general principle of due process of the right to be heard, this does not limit the principle of iura novit curia, but the other way round: "an award cannot be set aside on the sole ground that the arbitral tribunal has drawn from the facts legal consequences that were not pleaded, without giving the parties the opportunity to comment on such legal grounds". Only very exceptionally, where the relevance of the unpleaded and undiscussed grounds was unforeseeable, can the award be set aside. However, "this exception is construed narrowly by the Federal Tribunal…the parties have to demonstrate that the rule of law or legal argument was unforeseeable and truly came as a surprise. As case law shows, an annulment for violation of the right to be heard in connection with iura novit curia is very scarce" (at 389). Only two such cases have been found (at 390).

165. As for the United States, the author Aaron Simowitz, a legal scholar, sums up the matter in his conclusion as follows (at 423/4):

> A brief survey of the U.S. landscape reinforces the general rule as articulated by the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit in Iran v. Gould[4]: Arbitral awards will be reviewed on the basis of arbitrators' powers, not parties' pleadings. A U.S. court should be extremely unlikely to disturb an international award on the basis of jura novit arbiter unless much more is shown. First, U.S. courts will > almost certainly require a showing of prejudice. Second – even if a party can demonstrate prejudice – a U.S. court will require some additional, exceptional factors, such as significant ex parte communication.

[4] Ministry of Def. of the Islamic Republic of Iran v. Gould Inc 969 F 2d 764, 771 (9th Cir 1992)

> On occasion, U.S. courts have been accused of merely paying lip service to the principle of deference to arbitral tribunals (for example, in the long-running critiques of the 'manifest disregard of law' basis for setting aside a Convention award). However, in the realm of jura novit arbiter, one can expect U.S. courts to be as good as their word. U.S. courts are accustomed to practically unfettered discretion in whether to independently investigate questions of law. U.S. courts should find no basis to question their habitual deference to arbitral tribunals – quite the opposite.

166. As for England and Wales, the author Professor Loukas Mistelis states in his opening abstract that "Whereas courts in civil law jurisdictions accept this principle more broadly, courts in common law jurisdictions are less willing to accept its existence in international arbitration" (at 135). He speaks of a middle ground or "third way" developed and advocated for international arbitration. He confirms the nature of the doctrine in civil law, ie "As long as the parties establish the facts of the case, the courts will give them the law – or in the words of the well-known Latin maxim: "da mihi facta, dabo tibi ius" (at 136), but states that it is not a doctrine of the common law. He examines jurisprudence which shows that in arbitration seated in England under English law the courts have tended to regard a decision on a point of law without notice to the parties as a breach of natural justice; but he also mistakenly cites jurisprudence concerning new factual points as though they were concerned with new points of law (The Vimeira [1984] 2 Lloyd's Rep 66 (CA)). Even so, he cites (at 152) authority for it being sufficient notice that a point is raised "only briefly" (Terna Bahrain Holding Co WLL v. Al Shamsi [2012] EWHC 3283, [2013] 1 All ER (Comm) 580 at para [106], Popplewell J as he then was)[5]. Professor Mistelis concludes (at 167) as follows:

> Hence, it appears that arbitral tribunals seated in the UK may adopt a moderate iura novit arbiter approach which is not as wide as the one observed in civil law systems, but is wider than the discretion of the English judge. This development is embedded in the English Arbitration Act with the clear parameters of due process and efficiency and also the evolution of international arbitration rules, such as those of the ICC or the LCIA which vest arbitral tribunal with significant discretion as regards applicable law provided that due process is being observed.

[5] "If a point is raised only briefly, that is in accordance with the idea of speedy resolution which is an objective of the arbitral procedure (whether or not in a given case the objective is achieved). It is none the less so if a host of what turns out to be bad points are also raised and it is on those other points that the party raising the issues concentrates his exposition. Provided the issue is raised, however briefly, the opposing party has an opportunity to address it at whatever length and in whatever detail he chooses" Terna at para [106].

167. What Professor Mistelis does not cover, however, is the attitude of English law to the doctrine of iura novit curia or iura novit arbiter when it applies under foreign, civil, law in a foreign seated arbitration. For that, the jurisprudence discussed in this judgment above is all that avails from the researches of counsel in the appeal.

168. Chapter 16 of the treatise is entitled Iura Novit Curia in International Law, the author of which is Dr Friedrich Rosenfeld, a practitioner and professor in Germany. It is to Dr Rosenfeld that I owe the reference to Aristotle above. It is clear from his chapter that the doctrine is well represented in international law and that a broad range of international adjudicators have applied it.

169. Finally, chapter 17 of the treatise, the author of which is Dr Giuditta C Cordero-Moss, a professor of the University of Oslo, is headed "General Report on Jura Novit Arbiter. She concludes (at 480):

> Jura novit arbiter, the maxim that justifies the arbitral tribunal's development of its own legal reasoning, may prima facie be deemed to contradict the fundament of arbitration, that is, the supremacy of party autonomy. A deeper examination, however, shows that the vast majority of the examined legal systems give the tribunal the power to make its own legal inferences from the submitted facts, and to independently interpret and apply the law…In many legal systems, however, the arbitral tribunal is expected to inform the parties of its independent legal reasoning, so as to give them the possibility to comment. These powers of independent legal reasoning only in few systems go so far as to permit the tribunal to order remedies different from those that were requested by the parties. Also, these powers have to be exercised cautiously and in the respect of the legal framework (particularly, of the principle of fair hearing). Moreover, they should ensure predictability – and this may be achieved if the tribunal reasons according to the guidelines laid down in the private international law.
> Recognising the tribunal's power to develop its own legal reasoning is not detrimental to arbitration, but quite to the contrary: it supports the role of arbitration as a credible method to settle disputes, and it thus contributes to counteracting emerging trends to restrict the scope of arbitrability in the name of ensuring more accurate application of the law.

170. In my judgment, this review of the treatise on iura novit curia / iura novit arbiter enables the following conclusions to be drawn for the purposes of this appeal:

(i) It is clear that the doctrine is standard in the civil law, even if not practised in the common law world.

(ii) It is impossible to say that Brazilian law does not recognise the doctrine as being applicable to international arbitration seated in Brazil.

(iii) It is impossible to say in general that the doctrine is not recognised in international arbitration. That makes it all the more improbable that, despite the Brazilian cases of MP Funds, TEC and EIT, it could be concluded that Brazilian law only recognises the doctrine in the courts and in entirely domestic arbitration but not in international arbitration.

(iv) A line, possibly an uneasy line, may have to be drawn between cases where the doctrine answers the due process question of the right to be heard and cases where even a reasonable and conscientious party can be said to be unfairly caught by surprise such as to be deprived of substantial or natural justice.

(v) It is a different matter for a tribunal, court or arbitrator, to trespass outside the relief requested.

171. It is in these circumstances that I must resolve the most delicate conflict in this appeal.

172. I do not know of any other case in English or Cayman jurisprudence in which the significance of the doctrine of iura novit curia has fallen for appreciation as part of a due process or public policy challenge to recognition or enforcement of a foreign arbitral award. Although it is clear that ultimately due process or public policy have to be judged by home standards, it is also clear from the jurisprudence cited above that, where foreign court judgments (Adams v. Cape Industries) or arbitral awards (Minmetals) are concerned, the English court will take account of foreign law and procedure. The doctrine of iura novit curia is so widespread and well recognised in the civil law that I would be concerned if English and Cayman law would simply seek to ignore it. Half the world practises civil law, including nations which have helped to build the system of international arbitration, of which Switzerland is a leading example.

173. In the case of international arbitration in particular (but also in the case of exclusive jurisdiction clauses) the place or seat of arbitration, with its governing curial law, is a matter of choice. The parties cannot easily be excused from the responsibility of being aware of the procedural law which governs their arbitration. This does not apply in the same way to court cases, in the absence of an exclusive jurisdiction clause, where jurisdiction may be imposed by law rather than by choice.

174. Although it is possible and acceptable to consider that due process and public policy can be tantamount to the same thing, at any rate in cases where the breach of due process constitutes a negation of substantial or natural justice, it also needs to be remembered that breaches of due process come in every degree, from the most insubstantial to the most outrageous – which is why the English Arbitration Act will only give effect to a challenge to an English award based on due process ("serious irregularity" under section 68 of that Act) if the complainant proves substantial injustice as well as serious irregularity. For that purpose, it must therefore prove that the opportunity to address the point might well have made a significance difference, otherwise no substantial injustice can be shown. There has been no serious attempt, however, to prove an analogous requirement in this case. That said, and given the separate defence provided for due process, I am inclined to think that the New York Convention defence of public policy is really intended for something which goes beyond even serious breaches of due process. Ultimately, however, this does not matter.

175. It is the requirement of the proof of substantial injustice that is fundamental to a due process challenge under section 68 of the English Arbitration Act in the case of an English award. I have no doubt that the same is true for the purpose of a due process challenge in the Cayman Islands to a Cayman award. In Terna, a much cited authority, Popplewell J put the matter thus (at para [85(3)]):

> A balance has to be drawn between the need for finality of the award and the need to protect parties against the unfair conduct of the arbitration. In striking this balance, only an extreme case will justify the Court's intervention. Relief under section 68 will only be appropriate where the tribunal has gone so wrong in its conduct of the arbitration, and where its conduct is so far removed from what could reasonably be expected from the arbitral process, that justice calls out for it to be corrected.

Popplewell J repeated that in his judgment in Reliance Industries Ltd v. The Union of India [2018] EWHC 822 (Comm), where he added (at para [15]):

> The principle at (3) reflects what was said in the Report on the Arbitration Bill of February 1996 by the Departmental Advisory Committee on Arbitration (the 'DAC Report'), namely that '[t]he court does not have a general supervisory jurisdiction over arbitrations'; the parties having chosen arbitration rather than litigation, s. 68 is 'designed as a long stop, only available in extreme cases where the tribunal has gone so wrong in its conduct of the arbitration that justice calls out for it to be corrected.'

176. A fortiori, in my judgment, must be the position where an English or Cayman court has to consider a due process challenge to the enforcement of a foreign award rendered under the procedure of a foreign law and on its merits reflecting the application of a foreign substantive law.

177. In the present case, the due process issue raised by MP Funds has been, in one form or another, considered by (i) the arbitral tribunal itself, (ii) the ICC Court of Arbitration, (iii) Judge Amaral, (iv) the São Paulo Court of Appeals, (v) the Supreme Court of Brazil (even if there is still an outstanding appeal there), and (vi) Mangatal J. I say that it has been considered by the arbitral tribunal itself, because their award makes express its consideration of and reasons for application of the doctrine of iura novit curia. For the same reason, namely because the award is express about its application of the doctrine and its motivation therefor, it is relevant to point out that the doctrine and its application have passed the scrutiny of the ICC Court, which is a scrupulous reviewer of draft awards. I have discussed the role of Judge Amaral and of the São Paulo Court of Appeals above. And Mangatal J, as I have also discussed above, felt able to ignore the doctrine on the basis that it was a matter for Cayman law and that it did not apply to domestic Brazilian arbitration concerning international parties (international arbitration in Brazil).

178. What do we know about the particular circumstances in which the arbitrators applied the doctrine? The essential factual issues concerned first, the proper level of the company's working capital, and secondly the alleged fraud or malice of the respondent parties, and in particular the MP Funds' Mr Lap Chan. Those matters were hotly disputed, but resolved in favour of VRG. Although the fraud was deployed by VRG in their pleadings and submissions in favour of lifting the corporate veil, as an abuse of the privilege of separate corporate personalities, it cannot or ought not to have been a surprise that it came to be regarded as a fraudulent misrepresentation inducing the contract; or that the damages were at least the R$ for R$ adjustment to the price provided by the contract which had been so induced. Moreover, article 148 had been raised, even if briefly or in passing. It is said in the MP Funds' evidence that the arbitrators' reliance on article 148 was a surprise, but I do not see why it should have been so or can be reasonably adjudged to have been so in the setting of a procedural system which allowed the arbitrators to fit the law to the facts: about which the MP Funds must or ought to have been advised. I do not see why a proven fraudster found guilty of intentional deceit in the negotiation of a contract on behalf of its special purpose vehicles should complain of the obvious consequences of that deceit. I do not consider that the MP Funds could bring themselves within, for instance, the German exception of what a conscientious and knowledgeable party could not expect in a legal regime where the doctrine of iura novit curia applies.

179. In these circumstances, I consider that the fact that the Brazilian courts (and the ICC Court) have considered the arbitrators' deployment of the doctrine without finding (or warning about) a breach of due process to be significant and a matter for serious reflection.

180. I recognise nevertheless English and Cayman law's concern for the common law preference of inviting discussion of a new point of law, in the absence of which the court may well be inclined to accept a supervisory challenge to an award. I pay the closest and most earnest regard to that concern, which is healthy and just. Nevertheless, I find myself unable to condemn as unjust and against our own public policy a doctrine which is upheld in one of the great systems of law throughout the world, a fortiori when it has passed through the supervisory protections of the courts of the seat. If a domestic award is faulted by an English court on the basis of proof of substantial injustice, the award will in all probability (absent something to undermine the independence and impartiality of the arbitral tribunal) be remitted to the arbitrators so that the error can be repaired. If, however, a foreign supervisory court dismisses a challenge, applying its own procedural law as the law of the seat and/or its own substantive law as the law of the obligations concerned, it is a significant matter for a court of another nation, asked to enforce an award pursuant to its Convention obligations, to disregard the promptings of the supervisory seat and insist that it knows better. Ex hypothesi, there will be no possibility of remission to the arbitral tribunal.

181. I therefore turn to consider the reasons which Mangatal J gave (set out in her para 172, cited at para 82 herein above) for concluding that it would be unfair to expect the MP Funds reasonably to have foreseen the arbitral tribunal's decision. She gave four reasons. The first was that article 148 imposes a tortious liability whereas the liability VRG claimed was contractual. However, a party accused of fraud in the negotiation of a contract should not, in my judgment, in the civil law setting of iura novit curia, be surprised to be found liable on a tortious basis. To conclude otherwise is to set the doctrine of iura novit curia at nought (which is what the judge essentially did). In any event, the principle of making a parent company liable for a subsidiary's fault as an alter ego through the process of piercing the corporate veil is not itself based on contractual liability, but is sui generis and depends not only on the subsidiary's fault but on the parent's own personal wrongful abuse of the benefits of independent personality of the limited company: and that partakes as much of delict as of contract.

182. The second reason was to contrast liability under article 148 with the arbitral tribunal's determination of jurisdiction. However, that determination did not depend on the alter ego theory being contractual but on the width of the wording of the arbitration agreement, to which, for other reasons, the tribunal adjudged that the MP Funds had adhered.

183. The third reason was to suggest that neither VRG nor the MP Funds had directed their evidence to alleging, or defending themselves against, the charge of fraud or malice in the negotiation of the Agreement, but only to abuse of separate corporate personality. However, in my judgment it is impossible to read the Final Award, significant parts of which I have set out above, as justifying that conclusion. In any event, it is irrelevant that either party mistakes where to apply its ammunition.

184. The fourth reason was to deny that the parties to the arbitration were concerned with questions of causation or damage flowing from the fraudulent misrepresentations alleged. Again, I find that conclusion hard to understand. One only has to read paragraphs 573 or 600 (for instance) of the Award (cited at para 26 above) to find the question of causation answered. Indeed, it is somewhat odd to find a submission that misrepresentations about working capital were of no causative consequence. As for loss and damage, it is plain that the parties to the arbitration were concerned with litigating the loss flowing from misrepresentations as to the airline's working capital. The quantum of the price adjustment provided for by the Agreement (which despite the fraud there was no question of rescinding), being a R$ for R$ compensation for a misrepresentation as to the working capital of the airline, appears as a most natural figure, negotiated by all the parties to the arbitration, for compensating VRG in damages against the fraud committed against it.

185. The judge's fifth reason was essentially the same point as her fourth, but joined by the conclusion that "this was not the relief sought by VRG at all". It is of course true that VRG did not expressly found its case on article 148 as distinct from an alter ego and piercing of the corporate veil theory. But it is not true that it did not claim as its relief the loss which it was awarded, viz compensation according to the criteria of the price adjustment clause (estimated at a figure greater than awarded) for which not only the Sellers but also the MP Funds were to be held liable, even though the latter had not signed the Agreement. I refer to the Terms of Reference and "Statement of Argument", about which I shall say more in the section below.

186. Finally, in dealing with the judge's reasons, I refer to her para 179 (cited at para 86 above, where she preferred Mr Gomm's view that the doctrine did not apply to an international arbitration seated in Brazil or to international arbitration in general, which in my judgment in the light of the Brazilian judgments and the treatise on jura novit curia is an improbable or impossible conclusion to arrive at.

187. In any event, the judge never appears to have been asked to ask herself whether the MP Funds could prove that substantial injustice might have been caused so that a significant difference in outcome might have resulted. For myself, I have not been so persuaded.

188. In all these circumstances, although I have found the issue, in its way novel to English and Cayman jurisprudence, difficult and challenging, I have concluded that a New York Convention or a CI Enforcement Law defence, whether of due process or public policy, has not been proven.

Scope of the reference, and Terms of Reference

189. Finally, the MP Funds submitted, and Mangatal J agreed, that the arbitral tribunal purported to decide matters beyond the scope of the submission to arbitration. The judge did not refer expressly to the Request for Arbitration or the Terms of Reference, but simply concluded that, because VRG's legal grounds for holding the MP Funds liable were premised on the alter ego theory, "It was therefore not within the scope of the Tribunal's jurisdiction to award as tortious damages a contractual price adjustment amount, which had never been sought by VRG" (at para 183).

190. In my judgment, however, that conclusion is simply a further demonstration of the judge's decision to set at nought the doctrine of iura novit curia. Ex hypothesi, the doctrine comes into play when the tribunal adopts as its own legal grounds for decision a legal categorisation which a party has not adopted for itself. However, this final issue has to be considered on the basis that the arbitrators in this case were entitled to do so, at any rate as long as they did not go outside the petitio or relief or prayer claimed. As to that, Judge Amaral specifically covered this point in his judgment, at para [3][iv] thereof (my interpolated numbering, cited herein at para 45 above), a passage which was cited with approval by the São Paulo Court of Appeals.

191. In the arbitration, VRG claimed (inter alia) that the MP Funds had defrauded it in negotiating the Agreement by misrepresenting the airline's working capital accounts and that Mr Lap Chan had himself played a direct role in doing so and in preparing and altering critical figures in his own handwriting; and that it had done so in order by its deceitful conduct to induce VRG to pay a higher price than the airline's true book value (see for instance VRG's "statement of arguments" at paras 34ff). In order to remedy (inter alia) this deceit, VRG claimed in its prayer, both in its request for arbitration and in its statement of arguments, the payment of an amount to be ascertained by the arbitral tribunal (unquantified in the former document but quantified at over R$ 139 million in the latter document) "in accordance with the price adjustment criteria" set out in the Agreement's price adjustment clause 5, but not specifically designating such claim to payment to be either contractual or by way of damages.

192. As for the Terms of Reference, at that initial stage, the matters were addressed more broadly and with less detail, and it is fair to say that the emphasis was on performance of the price adjustment clause. Nevertheless, it was recorded that VRG claimed that the MP Funds' abuse and unlawful and inequitable conduct justified piercing the corporate veil. As is common with such ICC terms of reference, the document stated as to "Issues to be Determined" that – > 43. The Tribunal shall decide on all of the issues to be determined resulting from the claims and requests of the parties described in paragraph D above and in the written documents that the parties present during the proceedings. The Tribunal may also decide on new claims by the parties, under the terms of Article 19 of the ICC Rules.

> 44. The Tribunal does not consider it appropriate at this time to list the issues to be determined, making use of the power granted to it to that end by Article 18 of the ICC Rules.

193. Such drafting is common in ICC terms of reference to avoid the potential of what are essentially pleading points turning into jurisdictional traps. If thereafter the parties or any of them considered that the claims or arguments being addressed raised procedural issues as to the scope of the reference which might need to be determined by the arbitral tribunal under the ICC Rules, then they could raise the issue before the tribunal. Neither this court nor Mangatal J have been asked to find that the MP Funds ever sought to do so. As stated above, Mangatal J decided this point merely as an adjunct to her rejection of the doctrine of iura novit curia.

194. In any event, in my judgment Mangatal J mistook the significance of a doctrine of piercing the corporate veil as being a contractual remedy and over-emphasised its distinction from an obligation in fraud. I can illustrate this by reference to the leading modern English authority on piercing the corporate veil found in Petrodel Resources Ltd v. Prest [2013] UKSC 34, [2013] 2 AC 415. There Lord Sumption explained that in the civil law piercing the corporate veil depended on showing abuse of rights such as fraud, malfeasance or evasion of legal obligations (at para [17]). In English law, the expression covered an amorphous net of principle, but was (similarly) founded on what he called the "evasion principle", which depended on "a legal right which exists independently of the company's involvement" (at para [28], and see also Lord Neuberger at para [81]). Moreover, it ultimately resided in the concept that "fraud unravels everything". As Lord Denning said in Lazarus Estates Ltd v. Beasley [1956] 1 QB 702 at 712, cited by Lord Sumption at para [18] and by Lord Neuberger at para [83], "No court in this land will allow a person to keep an advantage which he has obtained by fraud…Fraud unravels everything." So far as Brazilian law is concerned, we have of course all the material which I have referred to and relied on in this judgment.

195. This fourth defence raised by the MP Funds is one to which comparatively much less attention has been paid, so much so that it is possible, although the matter is arguable, that VRG failed to appeal against the judge's brief paragraphs about it. In any event, Mr Lowe has asked this court, if necessary, for leave to amend his grounds of appeal in order to meet it. I would grant leave, and put VRG on terms that it amend its grounds of appeal accordingly.

Discretion

196. Mr Lowe submits that even if he is wrong on each or even all of the above issues, this court still has a discretion to enforce the award. As it is, in my judgment VRG has no need for the exercise of such a discretion. But if it did, I would not exercise it in VRG's favour.

The outstanding appeal process in Brazil

197. It is still possible, even if on past form it seems unlikely, that the MP Funds could ultimately succeed in their outstanding appeal to the Supreme Court in Brazil. If such an appeal did succeed, then it is difficult to conceive, on the issues considered in this judgment, that the award ought to be enforced in the Cayman Islands. How is this possibility to be guarded against? Article VI of the New York Convention and section 7(5) of the CI Enforcement Law allow the court before which enforcement is sought to adjourn the enforcement proceedings pending the outcome of set aside proceedings in the courts of the seat. It is plainly too late for that. However, the next best thing is that execution of a judgment to enforce ought to be stayed pending the outcome of the MP Funds' Brazilian appeal. Were that appeal to be allowed, the MP Funds would be entitled to return to these courts to have the stay made permanent.

Conclusion

198. In conclusion, I would allow VRG's appeal and enforce the award, subject to a stay pending the conclusion of the Brazilian proceedings.

(iii) This Agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the Parties and their respective successors and authorized assigns. The full or partial assignment of any right or obligation hereunder shall only be valid and binding if consented to by the other Parties.

Nenhuma disposição ou ambigüidade neste Contrato poderá ser decidida contra a Parte somente em virtude do fato de ter participado na redação deste Contrato.

And WHEREAS this Court has, among other things:

a. entered on April 27, 2023 the Disclosure Statement Order approving the Solicitation Procedures and, on a provisional basis, the Disclosure Statement;

e. reviewed the Plan (including the discharge, compromises, settlements, releases, exculpations, and injunctions set forth in Article VIII of the Plan, and as modified herein), the Disclosure Statement, the Solicitation Affidavits, the Confirmation Brief, the Confirmation Declaration, and all pleadings, exhibits, statements, responses, and comments regarding Confirmation, including all objections filed by parties in interest on the docket of the Chapter 11 Cases;

NOW, THEREFORE, the Court having found that notice of the Plan and the Confirmation Hearing and the opportunity for any party in interest to object to Confirmation has been adequate and appropriate as to all parties affected or to be affected by the Plan and the transactions contemplated thereby, and that the legal and factual bases set forth in the documents filed in support of Confirmation and all evidence proffered or adduced by counsel at the Confirmation Hearing establish just cause for the relief granted herein; and after due deliberation thereon and good cause appearing therefor, the Court hereby makes and issues the following Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law and hereby orders as follows:

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

IT IS HEREBY DETERMINED FOUND, ADJUDGED, DECREED, AND ORDERED THAT:

A. Findings and Conclusions

1. The findings and conclusions set forth herein and on the record of the Confirmation Hearing constitute the Court's findings of fact and conclusions of law pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 7052, made applicable to this proceeding by Bankruptcy Rule 9014. All findings of fact and conclusions of law announced by this Court at the Confirmation Hearing in relation to confirmation of the Plan and approval of the adequacy of the Disclosure Statement are hereby incorporated into this Confirmation Order. To the extent any of the following findings of fact constitute conclusions of law, they are adopted as such. To the extent any of the following conclusions of law constitute findings of fact, they are adopted as such.

B. Jurisdiction, Venue, Core Proceeding (28 U.S.C. §§ 157(b)(2) and 1334(a))

2. The Court has jurisdiction over the Chapter 11 Cases pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1334. Confirmation of the Plan is a core proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(b), and the Court has jurisdiction to enter a final order determining that the Disclosure Statement contains adequate information and the Plan complies with the applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code and should be confirmed and approved. Venue is proper before the Court pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409.

C. Eligibility for Relief

3. The Debtors are entities eligible for relief under section 109 of the Bankruptcy Code.

D. Chapter 11 Petitions

4. On July 6-7, 2021, each Debtor commenced a voluntary case under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code. Since the Petition Date, the Debtors have operated their businesses and managed their properties as debtors-in-possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. No request for the appointment of a trustee or examiner has been made in these Chapter 11 Cases. No committee has been appointed in these Chapter 11 Cases.

E. Judicial Notice

5. The Court takes judicial notice of (and deems admitted into evidence for Confirmation) the docket of the Chapter 11 Cases maintained by the Clerk of the Court and/or its duly appointed agent, including all pleadings and other documents filed, all orders entered, all hearing transcripts, and all evidence and arguments made, proffered or adduced at, the hearings held before the Court during the pendency of the Chapter 11 Cases, including, without limitation, the hearing to conditionally approve the adequacy of the Disclosure Statement and the Confirmation Hearing. Any resolutions of any objections explained on the record at the Confirmation Hearing are incorporated herein by reference.

F. Disclosure Statement Order

6. On April 27, 2023, the Court entered the Disclosure Statement Order, which, among other things, fixed May 8, 2023, at 5:00 p.m. (prevailing Eastern Time) as the deadline for voting to accept or reject the Plan (the "Voting Deadline"), and May 11, 2023, at 4:00 p.m. (prevailing Eastern Time) as the deadline for objecting to the Plan or to final approval of the Disclosure Statement (the "Plan Objection Deadline").

G. Notice and Transmittal of Solicitation Materials; Adequacy of Solicitation Notices

7. As evidenced by the Solicitation Affidavits, the Plan, the Disclosure Statement, the Disclosure Statement Order, the ballots for voting on the Plan (the "Ballots"), the Confirmation Hearing Notice, notices of unimpaired and/or non-voting status, and the other materials distributed by the Debtors in connection with Confirmation of the Plan (collectively, the "Solicitation Materials"), including notice of the Voting Deadline and the Plan Objection Deadline, were transmitted and served in compliance with the Bankruptcy Rules, including Bankruptcy Rules 3017 and 3018, with the Local Bankruptcy Rules for the Southern District of New York (the "Local Rules"), and with the procedures set forth in the Disclosure Statement Order. Notice of the Confirmation Hearing complied with the terms of the Disclosure Statement Order, was appropriate and satisfactory based on the circumstances of these Chapter 11 Cases, and was in compliance with the provisions of the Bankruptcy Code, the Bankruptcy Rules, and the Local Rules. The transmittal and service of the Solicitation Materials complied with the approved Solicitation and Voting Procedures, were appropriate and satisfactory based upon the circumstances of the Chapter 11 Cases, were conducted in good faith, and were in compliance with the provisions of the Bankruptcy Code, the Bankruptcy Rules, the Local Rules, and any other applicable rules, laws, and regulations. Because such transmittal and service were adequate and sufficient, no other or further notice is necessary or shall be required.

8. The period during which the Debtors solicited acceptances to the Plan was a reasonable and adequate period of time and the manner of such solicitation was an appropriate process for creditors to have made an informed decision to vote to accept or reject the Plan.

H. Combined Hearing

9. It was appropriate to hold the combined Confirmation Hearing on the Debtors' request for final approval of the Disclosure Statement and confirmation of the Plan under sections 105(d)(2)(B)(vi) and 1125(g) of the Bankruptcy Code, and Bankruptcy Rule 3018(b).

I. Approval of the Disclosure Statement

10. The Disclosure Statement is approved in all respects on a final basis as containing "adequate information" (as such term is defined in section 1125(a) of the Bankruptcy Code and used in section 1126(b)(2) of the Bankruptcy Code) in accordance with section 1125 of the Bankruptcy Code. Any and all objections and reservations of rights to the Disclosure Statement that have not been withdrawn, waived, or resolved prior to the Combined Hearing are hereby overruled on the merits.

J. Good Faith Solicitation

11. Based on the record before the Court in the Chapter 11 Cases, the Debtors have solicited votes on the Plan in good faith and in compliance with the Bankruptcy Code and other applicable law, and pursuant to sections 1125 and 1126 of the Bankruptcy Code, and the Debtors and the Settling Parties and, as applicable, each of their respective Affiliates, and each of their and their Affiliates' agents, representatives, members, principals, shareholders, officers, directors, employees, advisors, and attorneys, in each case solely in their respective capacities as such, have participated in good faith and in compliance with the Bankruptcy Code.

K. Voting Certification

12. On May 11, 2023, the Debtors filed the Voting Certification with the Court, certifying the method and results of the Ballots tabulated for Class 4 (VRG Claims) and Class 5 (HJDK Claims) (the "Voting Classes"). As evidenced by the Voting Certification, votes to accept or reject the Plan have been solicited and tabulated fairly, in good faith, and in a manner consistent with the Bankruptcy Code, the Bankruptcy Rules, the Solicitation and Voting Procedures, and the Local Rules.

13. As set forth in the Plan and the Disclosure Statement, only Holders of Claims in the Voting Classes were eligible to vote on the Plan. Under section 1126(f) of the Bankruptcy Code, Holders of Claims in Class 1 (Other Priority Claims), Class 2 (General Unsecured Claims), Class 3 (Promissory Note Claims), and Class 6 (VarigLog Claims) are Unimpaired and therefore presumed to accept the Plan. Under section 1126(g) of the Bankruptcy Code, Holders of Claims in Class 7 (Partnership Interests), Class 8 (Affiliate Equity Interests), and Class 9 (Intercompany Claims) will receive residual or no distributions under the Plan, and are therefore deemed to reject the Plan.

L. Objections

14. To the extent that any objections (whether formal or informal), reservations of rights, statements, or joinders to any of the foregoing relating, in each case, to final approval of the Disclosure Statement and/or Confirmation have not been resolved, withdrawn, waived, or settled prior to entry of this Confirmation Order, or otherwise resolved herein or as stated on the record of the Confirmation Hearing, they are hereby overruled on the merits based on the record before this Court.

M. Conditions Precedent

15. Article IX of the Plan is hereby modified to eliminate as a condition precedent to confirmation that the Brazilian Bankruptcy Court approve the VarigLog Estate's entry into and performance under the VarigLog Estate Settlement (set forth in Article IX.A.2). Rather, the Brazilian Bankruptcy Court's approval of the VarigLog Estate's entry into and performance under the VarigLog Estate Settlement shall be a condition precedent to the occurrence of the Effective Date under Article IX.B of the Plan. For the avoidance of doubt and notwithstanding Article IX.C of the Plan, the Debtors (a) may not waive the requirement of an order of the Brazilian Bankruptcy Court that is in effect and not stayed as a condition to the occurrence of the Effective Date and (b) acknowledge that in the event the Brazilian Bankruptcy Court disapproves or cannot grant approval of the VarigLog Estate Settlement, the VarigLog Estate may seek relief in this Court to enforce the plan as modified by this Order.

N. Burden of Proof

16. The Debtors, as the proponents of the Plan, have met their burden of proving the elements of sections 1129(a) and (b) of the Bankruptcy Code by a preponderance of the evidence, which is the applicable evidentiary standard for Confirmation of the Plan. In addition, to the extent applicable, the Plan is confirmable under the clear and convincing evidentiary standard. Each witness who submitted a declaration in support of Confirmation in connection with the Confirmation Hearing was credible, reliable, and qualified to testify as to the topics addressed in his or her testimony.

O. Bankruptcy Rule 3016

17. The Plan is dated and identifies the Debtors as the Plan proponents, thereby satisfying Bankruptcy Rule 3016(a). The filing of the Disclosure Statement satisfied Bankruptcy Rule 3016(b). The discharge, release, injunction, and exculpation provisions of the Plan are set forth in bold therein and in the Disclosure Statement, thereby complying with Bankruptcy Rule 3016(c).

P. Plan Compliance with the Bankruptcy Code (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(1))

18. The Plan complies with the applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code, thereby satisfying section 1129(a)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(i) Proper Classification (11 U.S.C. §§ 1122, 1123(a)(1))

19. The classification of Claims and Interests under the Plan is proper under the Bankruptcy Code. As required by section 1123(a)(1), in addition to Administrative Claims (including Professional Claims and statutory U.S. Trustee fees) and Priority Tax Claims, which need not be classified, Article III of the Plan designates nine Classes of Claims and Interests. As required by section 1122(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, the Claims and Interests placed in each Class are substantially similar to other Claims and Interests, as the case may be, in each such Class. Valid business, factual, and legal reasons exist for separately classifying the various Classes of Claims and Interests created under the Plan, the classifications were not implemented for improper purposes, and such Classes do not unfairly discriminate between or among Holders of Claims and Interests. Thus, the Plan satisfies sections 1122 and 1123(a)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(ii) Specified Unimpaired Classes (11 U.S.C. § 1123(a)(2)).

20. Article III of the Plan specifies that Claims in Class 1 (Other Priority Claims), Class 2 (General Unsecured Claims), Class 3 (Promissory Note Claims), and Class 6 (VarigLog Claims) are Unimpaired under the Plan, thereby satisfying section 1123(a)(2) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(iii) Specified Treatment of Impaired Classes (11 U.S.C. § 1123(a)(3)).

21. Article III of the Plan specifies the treatment of each Impaired Class under the Plan, including Class 4 (VRG Claims), Class 5 (HJDK Claims), Class 7 (Partnership Interests), Class 8 (Affiliate Equity Interests), and Class 9 (Intercompany Claims), thereby satisfying section 1123(a)(3) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(iv) No Discrimination (11 U.S.C. § 1123(a)(4))

22. Article III of the Plan provides for the same treatment for each Claim or Interest within a particular Class except to the extent that a Holder of a particular Claim or Interest has agreed to a less favorable treatment of such Claim or Interest. Accordingly, the Plan satisfies section 1123(a)(4) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(v) Adequate Means for Implementation of the Plan (11 U.S.C. § 1123(a)(5)).

23. The Plan and the various documents and agreements entered into in connection with the Plan provide adequate and proper means for implementation of the Plan, including, without limitation: (a) the consummation of the Dissolution Transactions; (b) the execution and delivery of appropriate agreements or other documents of transfer, disposition, liquidation or dissolution containing terms that are consistent with the terms of the Plan and that satisfy the requirements of applicable law; (c) the execution and delivery of appropriate instruments of transfer, assignment, assumption or delegation of any Asset, property, right, liability, duty or obligation on terms consistent with the terms of the Plan; (d) the filing of appropriate certificates or articles of dissolution or similar instruments with the applicable governmental authorities; (e) the continued vesting of the assets of the Debtors' Estates in the Wind Down Estates; and (f) all other actions that the Debtors or Plan Administrator determine to be necessary, including making filings or recordings that may be required by applicable law in connection with the Plan. Accordingly, the Plan satisfies the requirements of section 1123(a)(5) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(vi) Non-Voting Equity Securities (11 U.S.C. § 1123(a)(6)).

24. There will be no new Securities issued in connection with the Plan. Accordingly, the requirements of section 1123(a)(6) of the Bankruptcy Code are not applicable.

(vii) Designation of Directors and Officers (11 U.S.C. § 1123(a)(7)).

25. The Plan appropriate identifies the Plan Administrator. Accordingly, the requirements of section 1123(a)(7) of the Bankruptcy Code are satisfied.

Q. Discretionary Contents of the Plan (11 U.S.C. § 1123(b))

26. The additional provisions of the Plan are appropriate and consistent with the applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code. Thus, the Plan complies with section 1123(b) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(i) Impairment/Unimpairment of Any Class of Claims or Interests (11 U.S.C. § 1123(b)(1))

27. Pursuant to the Plan, Classes 1, 2, 3 and 6 are Unimpaired, Classes 4, 5, 7 8 and 9 are Impaired, as contemplated by section 1123(b)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(ii) Assumption and Rejection of Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases (11 U.S.C. § 1123(b)(2))

28. Article V.A of the Plan provides that, except as otherwise provided in the Plan, all of the Debtors' Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases shall be deemed rejected as of the Effective Date except for any Executory Contracts or Unexpired Leases that: (a) were previously rejected or assumed by a Final Order; (b) were previously expired or terminated pursuant to their own terms or by agreement of the parties thereto; or (c) that are the subject of a separate motion to assume or reject that is pending on the Effective Date.

29. Notwithstanding the deemed rejection of Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases under the Plan, certain month-to-month arrangements currently in place with the Debtors that are necessary to effectuate the Dissolution Transactions will ride through the Effective Date and shall be subject to termination by the Wind Down Estates in accordance with the terms of such arrangements.

30. The Plan contains additional provisions that provide for the Wind Down Estates' assumption of certain contracts relating to insurance.

(iii) Settlement, Releases, Exculpation, and Injunction (11 U.S.C. § 1123(b)(3)(A))

31. In accordance with section 1123(b)(3)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code and Bankruptcy Rule 9019, and in consideration for the classification, distributions, releases, and other benefits provided pursuant to the Plan, including the releases set forth in Article VIII thereof, the provisions of the Plan, including those incorporating the Settlements, constitute a good faith compromise and settlement of all Claims, Interests, Causes of Action, and controversies released, settled, compromised, discharged, satisfied, or otherwise resolved pursuant to the Plan. Such compromises and settlements are the product of extensive arm's-length, good faith negotiations and are fair, equitable, and reasonable and in the best interests of the Debtors and their Estates.

(iv) Preservation of Causes of Action (11 U.S.C. § 1123(b)(3)(B))

32. Article IV.K of the Plan provides for the preservation by the Debtors of certain Causes of Action in accordance with section 1123(b) of the Bankruptcy Code. In accordance with section 1123(b) of the Bankruptcy Code, the Wind Down Estates shall retain and may enforce all rights to commence and pursue any and all Causes of Action, whether arising before or after the Petition Date, and the Plan Administrator's rights to commence, prosecute, or settle such Causes of Action shall be preserved notwithstanding the occurrence of the Effective Date, other than the Causes of Action released by the Debtors pursuant to the releases and exculpations contained in the Plan. Unless any Cause of Action of the Debtors against an Entity is expressly waived, relinquished, exculpated, released, compromised, or settled in the Plan or pursuant to a Final Order, the Debtors and Plan Administrator expressly reserve all such Retained Causes of Action for later adjudication or settlement. Additionally, in accordance with section 1123(b)(3) of the Bankruptcy Code, any Retained Cause of Action that a Debtor may hold against any Entity shall vest in the Wind Down Estates, except as otherwise provided in the Plan. The provisions regarding the Retained Causes of Action in the Plan are appropriate and in the best interests of the Debtors, their respective Estates, and Holders of Claims and Interests.

(v) Other Appropriate Provisions (11 U.S.C. § 1123(b)(6))

33. The Plan's other provisions (including to the extent modified by this Confirmation Order) are appropriate and consistent with the applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code, including, without limitation, provisions for (a) distributions to Holders of Claims and Interests, (b) resolution of Disputed Claims, (c) allowance of certain Claims, (d) the discharge of certain Claims and termination of certain Interests, (e) releases by the Debtors of certain parties, (f) consensual releases by certain third parties, (g) exculpations of certain parties (as modified herein), (h) the injunction of certain Claims and Causes of Action in order to implement the discharge, release, and exculpation provisions, and (i) retention of Court jurisdiction, thereby satisfying the requirements of section 1123(b)(6) of the Bankruptcy Code.

R. The Debtors' Compliance with the Applicable Provisions of the Bankruptcy Code (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(2))

34. The Debtors, as proponents of the Plan, have complied with all applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code as required by section 1129(a)(2) of the Bankruptcy Code. Specifically:

a. the Debtors are eligible debtors under section 109 of the Bankruptcy Code and are proper proponents of the Plan under section 1121(a) of the Bankruptcy Code;

b. the Debtors have complied with applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code, except as otherwise provided or permitted by orders of the Bankruptcy Court;

c. the Debtors and their agents solicited votes to accept or reject the Plan in compliance with sections 1125 and 1126 of the Bankruptcy Code, and all other applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code, the Bankruptcy Rules, the Local Rules, and the Disclosure Statement Order; and

d. the Debtors have complied with other applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code, the Bankruptcy Rules, and the Local Rules except as otherwise provided or permitted by orders of the Court.

S. Good Faith Proposal of Plan (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(3))

35. The Debtors have proposed the Plan (including all other documents necessary or appropriate to effectuate the Plan) in good faith and not by any means forbidden by law, thereby satisfying section 1129(a)(3) of the Bankruptcy Code. In determining that the Plan has been proposed in good faith, the Court has examined the totality of the circumstances surrounding the filing of the Chapter 11 Cases, the Plan itself, the formulation of the Plan, the process leading to Confirmation, the support of Holders of Claims in the Voting Classes for the Plan, and the transactions to be implemented pursuant thereto. The Debtors' good faith is evident from the facts and record of the Chapter 11 Cases, the Disclosure Statement, the hearing on the Disclosure Statement, and the record of the Confirmation Hearing, and other proceedings held in the Chapter 11 Cases. The Plan was proposed with the legitimate and honest purpose of effectuating an orderly and value-maximizing liquidation of the Debtors. The Plan and all documents necessary to effectuate the Plan were the product of extensive negotiations conducted at arm's length among the Debtors and their key stakeholders, including the Settling Parties, and their respective professionals. Further, the Plan's classification, indemnification, settlement, discharge, exculpation, release, and injunction provisions have been negotiated in good faith and at arm's length, are consistent with sections 105, 1122, 1123(b)(3)(A), 1123(b)(6), 1129, and 1142 of the Bankruptcy Code, and are each integral to the Plan, supported by valuable consideration, and necessary to the Debtors' orderly liquidation. Accordingly, the requirements of section 1129(a)(3) of the Bankruptcy Code are satisfied.

36. The Plan gives effect to implementing value-maximizing wind down transactions. Accordingly, the Debtors, the Released Parties, and the Exculpated Parties have been, are, and will continue to be acting in good faith if they proceed to: (a) consummate the Plan, the Dissolution Transactions, and the agreements, settlements, transactions, transfers, and other actions contemplated thereby, regardless of whether such agreements, settlements, transactions, transfers, and other actions are expressly identified by this Confirmation Order; and (b) take the actions authorized, directed, or contemplated by this Confirmation Order. Therefore, the Plan has been proposed in good faith to achieve a result consistent with the objectives and purposes of the Bankruptcy Code and the aforementioned parties have acted in good faith.

T. Payment for Services or Costs and Expenses (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(4))

37. Any payment made or to be made by the Debtors, or by any Person acquiring property under the Plan, for services or for costs and expenses in connection with the Chapter 11 Cases, or in connection with the Plan and incident to the Chapter 11 Cases, has been approved by or is subject to the approval of the Court as reasonable, including as set forth in this Confirmation Order, thereby satisfying section 1129(a)(4) of the Bankruptcy Code.

U. Directors, Officers, and Insiders (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(5))

38. The Debtors have complied with section 1129(a)(5) of the Bankruptcy Code. The identity and affiliations and compensation of any known Person proposed to be retained by the Debtors or Wind Down Estates, including the Plan Administrator, are disclosed in the Plan and the Confirmation Brief. The proposed Plan Administrator is qualified, and the appointment to such office is consistent with the interests of the Debtors' creditors and equity security holders and with public policy.

V. No Rate Changes (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(6))

39. Section 1129(a)(6) of the Bankruptcy Code is not applicable to the Chapter 11 Cases. The Plan proposes no rate change subject to the jurisdiction of any governmental regulatory commission.

W. Best Interests of Holders of Claims and Interests (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(7))

40. Each Holder of an Impaired Claim or Interest either has accepted the Plan or will receive or retain under the Plan, on account of such Claim or Interest, property of a value, as of the Effective Date, that is not less than the amount that such Holder would receive or retain if the Debtors were liquidated under chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code on such date.

41. The Holders of Claims in Classes 4 and 5 voted in favor of the Plan, and the Holders of Interest in Class 7 (Partnership Interests), Class 8 (Affiliate Equity Interests), and Class 9 (Intercompany Claims) will receive or retain property under the plan that is not less than the amount such a Holder would receive or retain in a chapter 7 liquidation. The Plan contemplates an orderly dissolution by satisfying Allowed Claims and paying residual assets to limited partners or other Interest Holders. The Settlements are all binding on a chapter 7 trustee, and a chapter 7 liquidation would only create an added layer of expense of trustee commissions and fees for a trustee's professionals. Accordingly, the Plan satisfies the "best interests of creditors" test under section 1129(a)(7) of the Bankruptcy Code.

X. Acceptance by Certain Classes (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(8))

42. Class 1 (Other Priority Claims), Class 2 (General Unsecured Claims), Class 3 (Promissory Note Claims), and Class 6 (VarigLog Claims) are Unimpaired by the Plan pursuant to section 1124 of the Bankruptcy Code and, accordingly, Holders of Claims in such Classes are conclusively presumed to have accepted the Plan pursuant to section 1126(f) of the Bankruptcy Code. Class 4 (VRG Claims) and Class 5 (HJDK Claims) are Impaired by the Plan and, as established by the Voting Certification, have voted to accept the Plan by the requisite numbers and amount of Claims. Holders of Claims or Interests in Class 7 (Partnership Interests), Class 8 (Affiliate Equity Interests), and Class 9 (Intercompany Claims) will not receive or retain any property on account of their Claims or Interests in such Class and, accordingly, such Claims and Interests are Impaired and such Classes are deemed to have rejected the Plan pursuant to section 1126(g) of the Bankruptcy Code. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Plan is confirmable because it satisfies sections 1129(a)(10) and 1129(b) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Y. Treatment of Claims Entitled to Priority Under Section 507(a) of the Bankruptcy Code (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(9))

43. The treatment of Administrative Claims (including Professional Claims and statutory U.S. Trustee fees), Priority Tax Claims, and Other Priority Claims pursuant to Articles II and III of the Plan satisfies the requirements of section 1129(a)(9) of the Bankruptcy Code. Accordingly, the Debtors have satisfied the requirements of section 1129(a)(9) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Z. Acceptance By at Least One Impaired Class of Claims (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(10)).

44. Classes 4 (VRG Claims) and 5 (HJDK Claims) are both impaired and, as evidenced by the Voting Certification, have accepted the Plan, without including the acceptance of the Plan by any insiders in such Classes (of which there are none). Accordingly, the Plan satisfies section 1129(a)(10) of the Bankruptcy Code.

AA. Feasibility (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(11)).

45. The Plan proposes liquidation of the Debtors. The Plan provides for reasonable procedures, by which the Debtors, the Plan Administrator, and the Wind Down Estates, as applicable, may make the necessary distributions under the Plan Accordingly, the Plan satisfies the requirements of section 1129(a)(11) of the Bankruptcy Code.

BB. Payment of Statutory Fees (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(12))

46. As set forth in Article II.C of the Plan, the Debtors shall pay, in full in cash, any fees due and owing to the U.S. Trustee at the time of Confirmation. Thereafter, the Debtors or Wind Down Estates, as applicable, shall pay all U.S. Trustee fees due and owing under section 1930 of the Judicial Code in the ordinary course until the earliest of the last of the Chapter 11 Cases being closed, dismissed or converted to a case under chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code. Accordingly, the Plan satisfies the requirements of section 1129(a)(12) of the Bankruptcy Code.

CC. Retiree Benefits (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(13))

47. The Debtors have no obligations to pay any retiree benefits, and, therefore, section 1129(a)(13) of the Bankruptcy Code is inapplicable.

DD. Non-Applicability of Certain Sections (11 U.S.C. §§ 1129(a)(14), (15), and (16))

48. Sections 1129(a)(14), 1129(a)(15), and 1129(a)(16) of the Bankruptcy Code are not applicable to the Chapter 11 Cases. The Debtors owe no domestic support obligations, are not individuals, and are moneyed, business, or commercial corporations or trusts.

EE. Confirmation of Plan Over Non-Acceptance of Impaired Classes (11 U.S.C. § 1129(b))

49. The Plan may be confirmed pursuant to section 1129(b) of the Bankruptcy Code notwithstanding that the requirements of section 1129(a)(8) have not been met, because the Debtors have demonstrated by a preponderance of the evidence that the Plan (a) satisfies all of the other requirements of section 1129(a) of the Bankruptcy Code and (b) does not "discriminate unfairly" and is "fair and equitable" with respect to the Deemed Rejecting Classes (as defined below).

50. Based upon the evidence proffered, adduced, and presented by the Debtors prior to or at the Confirmation Hearing, the Plan does not "discriminate unfairly" against any Holders of Claims and Interests in Class 7 (Partnership Interests), Class 8 (Affiliate Equity Interests), and Class 9 (Intercompany Claims) (collectively, the "Deemed Rejecting Classes"), as required by section 1129(b)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code, because all similarly situated Holders of Claims and Interests will receive substantially similar treatment, and to the extent the Plan treats any Classes differently, there are valid business, legal, and factual reasons to do so.

51. The Plan is also "fair and equitable" with respect to the Deemed Rejecting Classes. Specifically, no Holder of Claims or Interests junior to each Class, as applicable, will receive or retain any property under the Plan on account of such junior Claims or Interests, and no Class senior to such Classes, as applicable, has received more than full consideration for its Claims or Interests.

52. The Plan, therefore, satisfies the requirements of section 1129(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and may be confirmed.

FF. Only One Plan (11 U.S.C. § 1129(c))

53. The Plan is the only plan filed in the Chapter 11 Cases, and, accordingly, satisfies section 1129(c) of the Bankruptcy Code.

GG. Principal Purpose of the Plan (11 U.S.C. § 1129(d))

54. The principal purpose of the Plan is not the avoidance of taxes or the avoidance of the application of section 5 of the Securities Act of 1933 and there has been no filing by any Governmental Unit asserting any such attempted avoidance. Thus, the Plan satisfies section 1129(d) of the Bankruptcy Code.

HH. Not Small Business Cases (11 U.S.C. § 1129(e))

55. These Chapter 11 Cases are not small business cases, as that term is defined in the Bankruptcy Code, and accordingly, section 1129(e) of the Bankruptcy Code is inapplicable.

II. Satisfaction of Confirmation Requirements

56. Based upon the foregoing and all other pleadings and evidence proffered or adduced at or prior to the Confirmation Hearing, the Plan and the Debtors, as applicable, satisfy all the requirements for Confirmation set forth in section 1129 of the Bankruptcy Code.

JJ. Plan Implementation

57. The terms of the Plan, and all other agreements, instruments, or other documents filed in connection with the Plan and/or executed or to be executed in connection with the transactions contemplated by the Plan and all amendments and modifications of any of the foregoing made pursuant to the provisions of the Plan governing such amendments and modifications (collectively, and as each may be amended, supplemented, or modified, the "Plan Documents") are incorporated by reference, are approved in all respects, and constitute an integral part of this Confirmation Order. The Debtors have exercised reasonable business judgment in determining which agreements to enter into and have provided sufficient and adequate notice of such documents and agreements. The terms and conditions of such documents and agreements have been negotiated in good faith and at arm's length, are fair and reasonable, and are reaffirmed and approved.

KK. Binding and Enforceable

58. The Plan and the Plan Documents have been negotiated in good faith and at arm's length and, subject to the occurrence of the Effective Date, shall bind: (a) any and all Holders of Claims and/or Interests and each such Holder's respective agents, successors, and assigns (whether or not each such Holder's Claim and/or Interest is Impaired under the Plan, whether or not such Holder has accepted or rejected the Plan, and whether or not such Holder is entitled to a distribution under the Plan); (b) all Entities that are parties to or are subject to the settlements, compromises, releases, and injunctions described in the Plan and this Confirmation Order; (c) each Entity acquiring property under the Plan or this Confirmation Order; and (d) any and all non-Debtor parties to Executory Contracts or Unexpired Leases with the Debtors. The Plan and the Plan Documents constitute legal, valid, binding, and authorized obligations of the respective parties thereto and shall be enforceable in accordance with their terms. Pursuant to section 1142(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, the Plan and the Plan Documents shall apply and be enforceable notwithstanding any otherwise applicable non-bankruptcy law. Subject to the consent and approval rights of applicable parties set forth in the Plan and the Settlements, the Debtors are authorized to take any action reasonably necessary or appropriate to consummate the Plan and the transactions contemplated thereby.

LL. Vesting of Assets

59. Except as otherwise provided in the Plan or any agreement, instrument, or other document incorporated in the Plan or this Confirmation Order, on the Effective Date, pursuant to section 1141 of the Bankruptcy Code, all property (including all interests, rights, and privileges related thereto) in each Debtor's Estate, all Retained Causes of Action, and any property acquired by any of the Debtors pursuant to the Plan, including Interests held by the Debtors in any non-Debtor Affiliates, shall vest in the Wind Down Estates, free and clear of all Liens, Claims, charges, encumbrances, or other interests, unless expressly provided otherwise by the Plan or this Confirmation Order, subject to and in accordance with the Plan. On and after the Effective Date, except as otherwise provided in the Plan or this Confirmation Order, the Plan Administrator may use, acquire, or dispose of property and compromise or settle any Claims, Interests, or Causes of Action without supervision or approval by the Bankruptcy Court and free of any restrictions of the Bankruptcy Code or the Bankruptcy Rules. Without limiting the foregoing, the Wind Down Estates may pay the charges that they incur on or after the Effective Date for professional fees, disbursements, expenses, or related support services without application to or approval of the Bankruptcy Court.

MM. Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases

60. The Debtors have exercised reasonable business judgment in determining whether to assume, assume and assign, or reject each of their Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases pursuant to sections 365 and 1123(b)(2) of the Bankruptcy Code, the Plan, including Article V of the Plan, and this Confirmation Order.

NN. Discharge, Compromise, Settlement, Release, Exculpation, and Injunction Provisions

61. The Court has jurisdiction under sections 1334(a) and (b) of title 28 of the United States Code to approve the discharge, compromises, settlements, releases, exculpations, and injunctions set forth in the Plan, including Article VIII of the Plan. Sections 105(a) and 1123(b) of the Bankruptcy Code permit the issuance of the injunctions and approval of the releases, exculpations, and injunctions set forth the Plan and the Confirmation Order. Based upon the record of the Chapter 11 Cases and the evidence proffered or adduced at the Confirmation Hearing, the Court finds that the discharge, compromises, settlements, releases, exculpations, and injunctions set forth in the Plan and the Confirmation Order are consistent with the Bankruptcy Code and applicable law. Further, the discharge, compromises, settlements, releases, exculpations, and injunctions contained in the Plan and the Confirmation Order are integral components of the Plan. The discharge, compromises, settlements, releases, exculpations, and injunctions set forth in the Plan and the Confirmation Order are hereby approved and authorized in their entirety.

62. The releases of the Released Parties, including, among others, the Debtors' directors and officers and the Settling Parties (including the VarigLog Estate, VRG, HJDK and the Participating Insurers), each in their capacity as such, are an integral component of the settlements and compromises embodied in the Plan and are given for good and valuable consideration provided by each of the Released Parties. The Third-Party Releases (as defined below) facilitated participation by the Released Parties in both the Plan and the chapter 11 process and were critical in reaching consensus to support the Plan. The releases in favor of the Released Parties were a necessary element of consideration that the respective Settling Parties required as a condition to entering into each of the Settlements and agreeing to support the Plan. The releases of the Released Parties contained in the Plan have the consent of the Debtors and the other Releasing Parties and are in the best interests of the Debtors' Estates.

OO. The Debtor Release

63. The releases of Causes of Action by the Debtors described in Article VIII.B of the Plan in accordance with section 1123(b) of the Bankruptcy Code (the "Debtor Release") are: (a) essential to the Confirmation of the Plan; (b) a valid exercise of the Debtors' business judgment under section 363 of the Bankruptcy Code and Bankruptcy Rule 9019; (c) in exchange for the good and valuable consideration and substantial contributions provided by the Released Parties; (d) a good faith settlement and compromise of the Causes of Action released by the Debtor Release; (e) in the best interests of the Debtors, their Estates, and all Holders of Claims and Interests; (f) fair, equitable, and reasonable; (g) given and made after due notice and opportunity for hearing; and (h) a bar to any of the Debtors, the Wind Down Estates, the Plan Administrator, or any other party acting derivatively on behalf of any of the foregoing asserting any Cause of Action released pursuant to the Debtor Release.

64. Specifically, the Debtor Release is an integral part of the Plan and is in the best interests of the Debtors' Estates as a component of the court-approved Settlements implemented under the Plan. The Debtor Release is a vital component of the Plan, and was critical in securing mutual releases of potential claims and causes of action from the Settling Parties. The Plan, including the Debtor Release, was negotiated by sophisticated parties represented by able counsel and advisors, including the Settling Parties. The Debtor Release is therefore the result of a hard fought and arm's-length negotiation conducted in good faith.

65. The Debtor Release appropriately offers protection to parties that contributed to the Debtors' chapter 11 process. Each of the Released Parties made significant concessions in and contributions to these Chapter 11 Cases. The Debtor Release for the Debtors' directors and officers is appropriate because the Debtors' directors and officers share an identity of interest with the Debtors, supported the Plan and these Chapter 11 Cases, and have provided other valuable consideration to the Debtors to facilitate the Debtors' liquidation. The Debtor Release of the Settling Parties is appropriate because the Settling Parties have agreed to actively support the Plan and the Chapter 11 Cases and waive substantial rights and Claims against the Debtors under the Plan.

66. The scope of the Debtor Release is appropriately tailored to the facts and circumstances of the Chapter 11 Cases. The Debtor Release is appropriate in light of, among other things, the value provided by the Released Parties to the Debtors' Estates and the critical importance of the Debtor Release to the Plan.

PP. The Third-Party Releases

67. Article VIII.C of the Plan describes certain releases granted by the Releasing Parties (the "Third-Party Releases"). The Third-Party Releases are an essential provision of the Plan and are: (a) essential to the Confirmation of the Plan; (b) given in exchange for the good and valuable consideration and substantial contributions provided by the Released Parties; (c) a good faith settlement and compromise of the Causes of Action released by the Third-Party Release; (d) materially beneficial to, and in the best interests of, the Debtors, their Estates and their stakeholders, and important to the overall objectives of the Plan; (e) fair, equitable, and reasonable; (f) given and made after due notice and opportunity for hearing; (g) consensual under applicable law; (h) a bar to any of the Releasing Parties asserting any Claim or Cause of Action released pursuant to the Third-Party Release; and (i) consistent with sections 105, 524, 1123, 1129, and 1141 and other applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code.

68. Specifically, like the Debtor Release, the Third-Party Releases facilitated participation of parties-in-interest in both the Plan process and the chapter 11 process generally.

The Third-Party Releases were critical to incentivizing parties-in-interest, including the Settling Parties, to support the Plan by providing critical concessions and funding, and to preventing costly and time-consuming litigation regarding various parties' respective rights and interests. The Third-Party Releases were a core negotiation point and instrumental in developing a Plan that maximized value for all of the Debtors' stakeholders. The Third-Party Releases are designed to provide finality for the Debtors, the Wind Down Estates, and the Released Parties. As such, the Third-Party Releases appropriately offer certain protections to parties who constructively participated in the Debtors' chapter 11 process.

69. The Third-Party Releases are consensual with respect to Holders of Claims and Interests who were provided notice by e-mail or first-class mail pursuant to the Solicitation Procedures (regardless of whether such Holder had actual notice) and did not opt out of the Plan's Third-Party Releases. The Plan, the Disclosure Statement, the Solicitation Materials, and the opt-out notices provide appropriate and specific disclosure with respect to the Entities and Causes of Action that are subject to the Third-Party Releases and no additional disclosure is necessary. As evidenced by the Solicitation Affidavits, the Debtors provided actual notice to all known Holders of Claims and Interests (other than Holders of Claims or Interests in Classes 8 and 9), as well as published notice in national and international publications for the benefit of unknown parties-in-interest, and no further or other notice is necessary. Additionally, the release provisions of the Plan were conspicuous, emphasized with boldface type in the Plan, the Disclosure Statement, the Ballots, and the applicable notices. All Releasing Parties (except for Holders of Claims or Interests in Classes 8 and 9) were properly informed that unless they checked the "Opt Out" box on the applicable Ballot or opt-out form and returned the same in advance of the Voting Deadline, they would be deemed to have expressly consented to the release of all Claims and Causes of Action against the Released Parties.

70. The scope of the Third-Party Releases are appropriately tailored to the facts and circumstances of these Chapter 11 Cases. In light of, among other things, the consensual nature of the Third-Party Releases, the critical role of the Third-Party Releases in obtaining the requisite support of the Debtors' stakeholders needed to confirm the Plan, and the significant value provided by the Released Parties to the Debtors' Estates, the Third-Party Releases are appropriate.

QQ. Exculpation

71. The exculpation provisions set forth in Article VIII.D of the Plan, as modified by this Order, are essential to the Plan, appropriate under applicable law, and constitute a proper exercise of the Debtors' business judgment. The exculpation provisions were proposed in good faith, were formulated following extensive arm's-length negotiations with key constituents, and are appropriately limited in scope to achieve the overall purpose of the Plan. Each Exculpated Party made significant contributions to the Chapter 11 Cases, including with respect to the negotiation and implementation of the transactions embodied in the Plan. Each Exculpated Party participated in good faith and in compliance with applicable law with regard to the solicitation of, and distribution of consideration pursuant to, the Plan and, therefore, is not, and on account of such distributions shall not be, liable at any time for the violation of any applicable law, rule, or regulation governing the solicitation of acceptances or rejections of the Plan or such distributions made pursuant to the Plan. The exculpation provisions do not relieve any party of liability for an act or omission to the extent such act or omission is determined by a Final Order of a court of competent jurisdiction to have constituted actual fraud, willful misconduct, or gross negligence. The record in the Chapter 11 Cases fully supports the exculpation provisions, which are appropriately tailored to protect the Exculpated Parties from inappropriate litigation arising from their participation in the Chapter 11 Cases and are consistent with the Bankruptcy Code and applicable law.

72. The exculpation provisions contained in Article VIII.D of the Plan are hereby modified as follows, and such modifications are reflected in the Plan attached hereto as Exhibit A (deletions are stricken through, and added language is indicated by bolded and underlined text).

> Except as otherwise specifically provided in the Plan, no Exculpated Party shall have or incur liability for and each Exculpated Party is hereby released and exculpated from any Cause of Action for any claim related to any act or omission in connection with, relating to, or arising out of, the Chapter 11 Cases, the formulation, preparation, dissemination, solicitation, negotiation, or filing of the Disclosure Statement, the Plan, the Plan Supplement, or any contract, instrument, release, or other agreement or document created or entered into in connection with the Disclosure Statement, the Plan, the Plan Supplement, the Chapter 11 Cases, the filing of the Chapter 11 Cases, the pursuit of Confirmation, the pursuit of Consummation, the administration and implementation of the Plan, including the administration of the Wind Down Estates and distribution of property under the Plan or any other related agreement, or upon any other related act or omission, transaction, agreement, event, or other occurrence taking place on or before the Effective Date, except for claims related to any act or omission that is determined in a Final Order by a court of competent jurisdiction to have constituted actual fraud, willful misconduct, or gross negligence~~, but in all respects such Entities shall be entitled to reasonably rely upon the advice of counsel with respect to their duties and responsibilities pursuant to the Plan~~.
> The Exculpated Parties shall be deemed to have participated in good faith and in compliance with the applicable laws with regard to the solicitation of votes and distribution of consideration pursuant to the Plan and, therefore, are not, and on account of such distributions shall not be, liable at any time for the violation of any applicable law, rule, or regulation governing the solicitation of acceptances or rejections of the Plan or distributions made pursuant to the Plan.
>
> Nothing in the Plan shall limit the liability of attorneys to their respective clients pursuant to Rule 1.8(h) of the New York Rules of Professional Conduct.
> "Exculpated Parties" means each of the following, solely in its capacity as such: (a) the Debtors, (b) the Wind Down Estates; (c) the Plan Administrator, (d) the Disbursing Agent, (e) the Settling Parties, which, for the avoidance of doubt, includes VRG, HJDK, the VarigLog Estate, Zurich and the Participating Insurers, (f) with respect to preceding clauses (a) through (e), each such Entity's current and former Affiliates; and (g) with respect to preceding clauses (a) through (f), each such Entity's current and former directors, managers, officers, principals, members, managed accounts or funds, fund advisors, employees, equity holders (regardless of whether such interests are held directly or indirectly), predecessors, successors, assigns, subsidiaries, agents, advisory board members, financial advisors, investment advisors, partners, attorneys, accountants, investment bankers, consultants, representatives, and other professionals.

RR. Injunction

73. The injunction provisions set forth in Article VIII.E of the Plan are essential to the Plan and are necessary to implement, preserve, and enforce the discharge, release, and exculpation provisions of the Plan. The injunction provisions are appropriately tailored to achieve those purposes.

SS. Disclosure of Facts

74. The Debtors have disclosed all material facts regarding the Plan, the Plan Documents, and the adoption, execution, and implementation of the other matters provided for under the Plan involving corporate action to be taken by or required of the Debtors.

TT. Retention of Jurisdiction

75. Except as otherwise provided in the Plan, any of the Plan Documents, or this Confirmation Order, the Court shall retain jurisdiction over the Chapter 11 Cases and all matters arising out of, or related to, the Chapter 11 Cases and the Plan, including the matters set forth in Article XI of the Plan.

ORDER

BASED ON THE FOREGOING, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED THAT:

76. Confirmation. The Plan, attached hereto as Exhibit A (as modified), and each of its provisions are confirmed pursuant to section 1129 of the Bankruptcy Code. The documents contained in or contemplated by the Plan, including any other Plan Documents, are hereby authorized and approved. The terms of the Plan are incorporated herein by reference and are an integral part of this Confirmation Order. The Debtors are authorized to implement and consummate the Plan and the Plan Documents, including taking all actions necessary, advisable, or appropriate to finalize the Plan Documents and to effectuate the Plan and the Dissolution Transactions, without any further authorization or action by any person, body or board of directors except as may be expressly required by the Plan or this Confirmation Order. The terms of the Plan (including all consent rights provided therein) and all other relevant and necessary documents shall be effective and binding as of the Effective Date on all parties-in-interest, including the Wind Down Estates and all Holders of Claims and Interests. Any amendments or modifications to the Plan described or set forth in this Confirmation Order are hereby approved, without further order of the Bankruptcy Court.

77. Objections. All objections to Confirmation of the Plan and other responses, comments, statements, or reservation of rights, if any, in opposition to the Plan have been overruled in their entirety and on the merits to the extent not otherwise withdrawn, waived, or otherwise resolved by the Debtors prior to entry of this Confirmation Order or on the record at, the Confirmation Hearing, unless otherwise indicated herein. All withdrawn objections, if any, are deemed withdrawn with prejudice.

78. Deemed Acceptance of the Plan as Modified. In accordance with section 1127 of the Bankruptcy Code and Bankruptcy Rule 3019, all Holders of Claims who voted to accept the Plan or who are conclusively presumed to have accepted the Plan are deemed to accept the Plan, subject to modifications, if any. No Holder of a Claim shall be permitted to change its vote as a consequence of Plan modifications. All modifications to the Plan made after the Solicitation Date are hereby approved, pursuant to section 1127 of the Bankruptcy Code and Bankruptcy Rule 3019.

79. Continued Corporate Existence. Except as otherwise provided in the Plan or any agreement, instrument, or other document incorporated in the Plan, on or after the Effective Date, the Debtors shall remain in existence for the sole purpose of dissolving. The Wind Down Estates may continue after one or more of the Debtors is dissolved, as determined by the Plan Administrator in accordance with the terms of the Plan. The Debtors or the Wind Down Estates may dissolve and wind up any of the Debtors and non-Debtor Affiliates in accordance with applicable non-bankruptcy law. The Debtors or Plan Administrator, as applicable, are authorized, but not required, to take any actions they determine to be necessary or advisable to effectuate the Dissolution Transactions without further court order, approval or action.

80. Vesting of Assets. Except as otherwise provided in the Plan, the Plan Documents, or this Confirmation Order, on the Effective Date, pursuant to sections 1141(b) and (c) of the Bankruptcy Code, all property (including all interests, rights, and privileges related thereto) in each Debtor's Estate, all Retained Causes of Action, and any property acquired by any of the Debtors pursuant to the Plan, shall vest in the Wind Down Estates, free and clear of all Liens, Claims, charges, encumbrances, or other interests, unless expressly provided otherwise by the Plan or this Confirmation Order, subject to and in accordance with the Plan. On and after the Effective Date, except as otherwise provided in the Plan or this Confirmation Order, the Plan Administrator may use, acquire or dispose of property and compromise or settle any Claims without supervision or approval by the Court and free of any restrictions of the Bankruptcy Code or Bankruptcy Rules, other than those restrictions expressly imposed by the Plan or this Confirmation Order.

81. Plan Implementation. The transactions described in the Plan, the Plan Documents, and this Confirmation Order, including the Dissolution Transactions, are hereby approved. On or before the Effective Date, and after the Effective Date, as necessary, and without any further order of the Court, other authority, or corporate action, the Debtors or the Wind Down Estates, as applicable, and their respective directors, managers, officers, employees, members, agents (including the Plan Administrator and Disbursing Agent), attorneys, financial advisors, and investment bankers are authorized and empowered pursuant to section 1142(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and other applicable laws to and shall (a) grant, issue, execute, deliver, file, or record any agreement, document, or security, and the documents contained in the Plan or the Plan Documents or any other documents related thereto and (b) take any action necessary, advisable, or appropriate to implement, effectuate, and consummate the Plan, the Plan Documents, the Dissolution Transactions, or this Confirmation Order. All such actions taken or caused to be taken shall be deemed to have been authorized and approved by the Court without further approval, act, or action under any applicable law, order, rule, or regulation, including, among other things, (x) all transfers of assets that are to occur pursuant to the Plan, the Plan Documents, or this Confirmation Order, (y) the incurrence of all obligations contemplated by the Plan, the Dissolution Transactions, the Plan Documents, or this Confirmation Order and the making of all distributions under the Plan, the Plan Documents, or this Confirmation Order, and (z) entering into any and all transactions, contracts, leases, instruments, releases, and other documents and arrangements permitted by applicable law, order, rule, or regulation. The approvals and authorizations specifically set forth in this Confirmation Order are nonexclusive and are not intended to limit the authority of the Debtors or the Wind Down Estates, as applicable, and their respective directors, managers, officers, employees, members, agents (including the Plan Administrator and Disbursing Agent), attorneys, financial advisors, and investment bankers to take any and all actions necessary, advisable, or appropriate to implement, effectuate, and consummate any and all documents or transactions contemplated by the Plan, the Plan Documents, or this Confirmation Order pursuant to section 1142(b) of the Bankruptcy Code. Pursuant to section 1142 of the Bankruptcy Code, to the extent that, under applicable non-bankruptcy law or the rules of any stock exchange, any of the foregoing actions that would otherwise require approval of the equityholders, directors, or managers (or any equivalent body) of the Debtors or the Wind Down Estates, as applicable, such approval shall be deemed to have occurred and shall be in effect from and after the Effective Date without any further action by the equityholders, directors, or managers (or any equivalent body) of the Debtors or the Wind Down Estates. Prior to, on, or as soon as reasonably practicable after the Effective Date, the Debtors or the Plan Administrator shall, if required, file any documents required to be filed in such jurisdictions so as to effectuate the provisions of the Plan, the Plan Documents, and the Dissolution Transactions. Any or all documents contemplated herein shall be accepted by each of the respective filing offices and recorded, if required, in accordance with applicable law. To the maximum extent permitted under section 1142 of the Bankruptcy Code, all counterparties to any documents described in this paragraph are hereby directed to execute such documents as may be required or provided by such documents, without any further order of the Court. Each of the Plan Documents, once executed, constitutes a legal, valid, binding, and authorized obligation of the respective parties thereto, enforceable in accordance with its terms, and the terms contained in each such executed Plan Document shall supersede any description of such terms contained in the Plan or otherwise set forth in a term sheet or unexecuted version of such document.

82. No Action. Pursuant to section 1142(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and other applicable law, this Confirmation Order shall constitute authorization for the Debtors or the Wind Down Estates to enter into, execute, deliver, file, adopt, amend, restate, consummate, or effectuate, as the case may be, the Plan, the Plan Documents, the Dissolution Transactions, this Confirmation Order, and any contract, instrument, or other document to be executed, delivered, adopted, or amended in connection with the implementation of the Plan, the Plan Documents, the Dissolution Transactions, or this Confirmation Order, and the respective directors, stockholders, managers, or members of the Debtors or the Wind Down Estates shall not be required to take any actions in connection with the implementation of the Plan, the Plan Documents, or this Confirmation Order. The Wind Down Estates may also, consistent with the Plan and Plan Documents, take any additional steps on, prior to, and after the Effective Date to consolidate and streamline their organization, including, among other things, the merger, liquidation, dissolution, or consolidation of one or more of the Debtors. The Plan Documents are hereby approved, adopted and effective upon the Effective Date.

83. Immediate Binding Effect. Notwithstanding Bankruptcy Rules 3020(e), 6004(h), 7062 or otherwise, as of 5:00 p.m. (Prevailing Eastern Time) on May 24, 2023, and subject to Article IX of the Plan and occurrence of the Effective Date, the Plan, the Plan Documents, and this Confirmation Order shall be immediately effective and enforceable and deemed binding upon the Debtors, the Wind Down Estates, all Entities that are parties to or are subject to the settlements, compromises, releases, discharges, and injunctions described in the Plan and this Confirmation Order, each Entity acquiring property under the Plan or this Confirmation Order, any and all non-Debtor parties to Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases with the Debtors, any Holder of a Claim or Interest, and each of their respective heirs executors, administrators, successors, and assigns, whether or not: (a) the Claim or Interest is Impaired under the Plan; (b) such Holder has accepted or rejected the Plan; (c) such Holder has failed to vote to accept or reject the Plan; (d) such Holder is entitled to a distribution under the Plan; (e) such Holder will receive or retain any property or interests in property under the Plan; or (f) such Holder has filed a Proof of Claim in the Chapter 11 Cases.

84. Plan Classification Controlling. The terms of the Plan shall govern the classification of Claims and Interests for purposes of the distributions to be made thereunder. The classifications set forth on the Ballots tendered to or returned by the Holders of Claims or Interests in connection with voting on the Plan: (a) were set forth on the Ballots solely for purposes of voting to accept or reject the Plan; (b) do not necessarily represent, and in no event shall be deemed to modify or otherwise affect, the actual classification of such Claims and Interests under the Plan for distribution purposes; (c) may not be relied upon by any Holder of a Claim or Interest as representing the actual classification of such Claim or Interest under the Plan for distribution purposes; and (d) shall not be binding on the Debtors except for voting purposes. All rights of the Debtors and the Wind Down Estates to challenge, object to, or seek to reclassify Claims (other than Claims expressly Allowed under Article III of the Plan) and/or Interests are expressly reserved, and the corresponding rights of Holders of Claims are similarly reserved.

85. Operation as of the Effective Date. Upon occurrence of the Effective Date, the terms of the Plan, the Plan Documents, and this Confirmation Order shall be immediately effective and enforceable and deemed binding upon the Debtors, the Wind Down Estates, any and all Holders of Claims against or Interests in the Debtors (irrespective of whether such Claims or Interests are presumed to have accepted or deemed to have rejected the Plan), all Entities that are parties to or are subject to the settlements, compromises, releases, discharges, and injunctions described in the Plan and this Confirmation Order, each Entity or Person giving, acquiring, or receiving property under the Plan, and any and all non-Debtor parties to Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases with any of the Debtors.

86. HJDK Settlement Effectiveness. For the avoidance of doubt, on or prior to the Effective Date, Zurich shall fund the Zurich Escrow Account with the HJDK Settlement Amount pursuant to the terms of the HJDK Settlement Term Sheet. The only conditions to release and transfer on the Effective Date of the HJDK Settlement Amount from the Zurich Escrow Account to the IOLA or IOLTA bank account (such account, the "HJDK Escrow Account") held and maintained by Koutsoudakis & Iakovou Law Group PLLC as set forth in the HJDK Term Sheet, or such other account as may be agreed by the Debtors, Zurich and HJDK, shall be satisfaction by HJDK of clauses (ix) and (xi) under the heading "HJDK's Commitments" as set forth in the HJDK Settlement Term Sheet (the "Zurich Escrow Release Conditions"). The Debtors, Zurich and HJDK agree that upon satisfaction of the Zurich Escrow Release Conditions, Zurich shall transfer (i) $2,504,074.39 (the "Cianflone Settlement Payment Amount") to the Debtors, for further distribution to Mr. Cianflone, and (ii) an amount equal to the HJDK Settlement Amount less the Cianflone Settlement Payment Amount to the HJDK Escrow Account. The transfer of funds from the Zurich Escrow Account to the HJDK Escrow Account in accordance with clause (ii) and the due transfer of the Cianflone Settlement Payment Amount to Mr. Cianflone in the immediately preceding sentence shall be deemed satisfaction of the HJDK Claim and shall constitute "receipt of the HJDK Settlement Amount", "payment in full", and all words of similar meaning or import, for all purposes under the Plan and the HJDK Settlement Term Sheet, including (but not limited to) for purposes of Article VIII.C of the Plan.

87. Dissolution Transactions. The Dissolution Transactions pursuant to the Plan are approved and authorized in all respects. The Debtors and the Plan Administrator are authorized to implement and consummate the Dissolution Transactions (as may be modified, amended, and supplemented pursuant to the provisions of the Plan governing such modifications, amendments, and supplements) pursuant to the Plan, the Plan Documents, and this Confirmation Order and to enter into any transactions and to take any actions as many be necessary or appropriate to effectuate the Dissolution Transactions, including but not limited to the actions described in Article IV of the Plan. In accordance with section 1142 of the Bankruptcy Code and applicable non-bankruptcy law, such actions may be taken without further action by any stockholders, managers, or directors of any of the Debtors or Wind Down Estates. For purposes of consummating the Plan and the Dissolution Transactions, neither the occurrence of the Effective Date, nor any of the transactions contemplated in Article IV of the Plan, shall constitute a change of control under any agreement, contract, or document of the Debtors.

88. Distributions. All distributions pursuant to the Plan shall be made in accordance with Article VI of the Plan, and such methods of distribution are approved. For the avoidance of doubt, except as otherwise provided in the Plan or this Confirmation Order, nothing in the Plan or this Confirmation Order shall affect the Debtors' or the Wind Down Estates' rights regarding any Claims or Interests, including all rights in respect of legal and equitable defenses to, or setoffs or recoupment against, any such Claims or Interests. The Debtors or Wind Down Estates shall have no duty or obligation to make distributions to any holder of an Allowed Claim unless and until such Holder executes and delivers, in a form reasonably acceptable to the Debtors or Plan Administrator, any and all documents applicable to such distributions in accordance with Article VI of the Plan and/or responds to the Debtors' or Plan Administrator's reasonable requests for information necessary to facilitate a particular distribution as set forth in Article VI of the Plan.

89. Retained Assets. To the extent that the retention by the Debtors or the Wind Down Estates of assets held immediately prior to emergence in accordance with the Plan is deemed, in any instance, to constitute a "transfer" of property, such transfer of property to the Debtors or the Wind Down Estates (a) is or shall be a legal, valid, and effective transfer of property; (b) vests or shall vest the Debtors or the Wind Down Estates with good title to such property, free and clear of all liens, charges, Claims, encumbrances, or interests, except as expressly provided in the Plan or this Confirmation Order; (c) does not and shall not constitute an avoidable transfer under the Bankruptcy Code or under applicable non-bankruptcy law; and (d) does not and shall not subject the Debtors or the Wind Down Estates to any liability by reason of such transfer under the Bankruptcy Code or under applicable non-bankruptcy law, including by laws affecting successor or transferee liability.

90. Treatment of Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases. The provisions governing the treatment of Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases set forth in Article V of the Plan (including to the extent modified by this Confirmation Order) are hereby approved and authorized in their entirety. The Debtors have represented to the Court on the record that they have not rejected any Executory Contracts and have not provided notice to reject any Executory Contracts pursuant to the Plan. Rather, notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained herein or in the Plan, on or after the Effective Date, certain month-to-month arrangements to which the Debtors are party for administrative services necessary to effectuate the Dissolution Transactions shall continue in full force and effect and shall be subject to termination by the Wind Down Estates in accordance with their terms..

91. Any Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases entered into by the Debtors after the Petition Date shall remain enforceable after the Effective Date by all parties pursuant to their terms.

92. Except as otherwise provided by the Plan, this Confirmation Order, or by separate order of the Court, modifications, amendments, supplements, and restatements to prepetition Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases that have been executed by the Debtors during the Chapter 11 Cases and actions taken in accordance therewith (a) shall not be deemed to alter the prepetition nature of the Executory Contract or Unexpired Lease, or the validity, priority, or amount of any Claims against any Debtor that may arise in connection therewith, (b) are not and do not create postpetition contracts or leases, (c) do not elevate to administrative expense priority any Claims of the counterparties to such Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases against any of the Debtors, and (d) do not entitle any Entity to a Claim against any of the Debtors under any section of the Bankruptcy Code on account of the difference between the terms of any prepetition Executory Contracts or Unexpired Leases and subsequent modifications, amendments, supplements, or restatements.

93. In the event that the Effective Date does not occur, the Bankruptcy Court shall retain jurisdiction with respect to any request to extend the deadline for assuming or rejecting Unexpired Leases pursuant to section 365(d)(4) of the Bankruptcy Code.

94. Contracts and leases entered into after the Petition Date by any Debtor, including any Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases assumed by such Debtor, shall be performed by the applicable Debtor or Wind Down Estates liable thereunder in the ordinary course of its business. Accordingly, any such contracts and leases (including any assumed Executory Contracts and Unexpired Leases) that have not been rejected as of the date of Confirmation will survive and remain obligations of the Wind Down Estates.

95. Exemption from Transfer Taxes and Recording Fees. To the fullest extent permitted by section 1146(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, any transfers of property pursuant to the Plan shall not be subject to any stamp tax, document recording tax, conveyance fee, intangibles, or similar tax, mortgage tax, real estate transfer tax, personal property transfer tax, mortgage recording tax, sales or use tax, Uniform Commercial Code filing or recording fee, regulatory filing or recording fee, or other similar tax or governmental assessment in the United States, or any state or political subdivision thereof. The appropriate federal, state, or local governmental officials or agents are directed to forgo the collection of any such tax or governmental assessment and to accept for filing and recordation instruments or other documents pursuant to such transfers of property without the payment of any such tax or governmental assessment. Such exemption specifically applies, without limitation, to (a) the creation, modification, consolidation, or recording of any mortgage, deed of trust, Lien, or other security interest, or the securing of indebtedness by such means or other means, (b) the making or assignment of any lease or sublease, (c) any Dissolution Transaction authorized by the Plan, and (d) the making or delivery of any deed or other instrument of transfer under, in furtherance of, or in connection with the Plan, including: (i) any merger agreements; (ii) agreements of consolidation, restructuring, disposition, liquidation, or dissolution; (iii) deeds; (iv) bills of sale; (v) assignments executed in connection with any Dissolution Transaction occurring under the Plan; or (vi) any of the other Definitive Documents.

96. Governmental Approvals Not Required. This Confirmation Order shall constitute all approvals and consents required, if any, by the laws, rules, or regulations of any state or any other governmental authority with respect to the implementation or consummation of the Plan and the Plan Documents.

97. Filing and Recording. This Confirmation Order is and shall be binding upon and shall govern the acts of all persons or entities including, without limitation, all filing agents, filing officers, title agents, title companies, recorders of mortgages, recorders of deeds, registrars of deeds, administrative agencies, governmental departments, governmental agencies, secretaries of state, federal, state, and local officials, and all other Persons and Entities who may be required, by operation of law, the duties of their office, or contract, to accept, file, register, or otherwise record or release any document or instrument, including, for the avoidance of doubt, the United States Patent and Trademark Office, the United States Copyright Office, and any other governmental intellectual property office. Each and every federal, state, and local government agency, including, for the avoidance of doubt, the United States Patent and Trademark Office, the United States

Copyright Office, and any other governmental intellectual property office is hereby directed to accept any and all documents and instruments necessary, useful, or appropriate (including financing statements under the applicable uniform commercial code) to effectuate, implement, and consummate the transactions contemplated by the Plan and this Confirmation Order without payment of any stamp tax or similar tax imposed by state or local law.

98. Tax Withholding. In connection with the Plan, to the extent applicable, the Wind Down Estates shall comply with all tax withholding and reporting requirements imposed on them by any Governmental Unit, and all distributions pursuant to the Plan shall be subject to such withholding and reporting requirements. Notwithstanding any provision in the Plan to the contrary, the Wind Down Estates and the Disbursing Agent shall be authorized to take all actions necessary or appropriate to comply with such withholding and reporting requirements, including, without limitation, liquidating a portion of the distribution to be made under the Plan to generate sufficient funds to pay applicable withholding taxes, withholding distributions pending receipt of information, documentation, and certifications necessary to facilitate such distributions, or establishing any other mechanisms they believe are reasonable or appropriate. All Persons holding Claims against any Debtor shall be required to provide any information necessary for the Wind Down Estates to comply with all tax withholding and reporting requirements imposed on them by any Governmental Unit. The Wind Down Estates reserve the right to allocate any distributions made under the Plan in compliance with applicable wage garnishments, alimony, child support, and other spousal awards, Liens, and encumbrances.

99. Notwithstanding any other provision of the Plan to the contrary, each Holder of an Allowed Claim shall have the sole and exclusive responsibility for the satisfaction and payment of any tax obligations imposed by any Governmental Unit on account of such distribution.

100. Compromise and Settlement of Claims, Interests, and Controversies. Pursuant to section 1123 of the Bankruptcy Code and Bankruptcy Rule 9019, and in consideration for, and as a requirement to receive, the distributions and other benefits provided pursuant to the Plan, the provisions of the Plan shall constitute a good faith global and integrated compromise and settlement of all Claims, Interests, and controversies relating to the contractual, legal, and subordination rights that any Holder of a Claim or Interest may have with respect to any Allowed Claim or Interest, or any distribution to be made on account of such Allowed Claim or Interest, as well as any and all actual and potential disputes between and among the Debtors, the Settling Parties, and each other Releasing Party and all other disputes that might impact creditor recoveries, including, without limitation, any and all issues relating to the Debtors' litigation with the VarigLog Estate, VRG and/or HJDK. The entry of this Confirmation Order shall constitute the Bankruptcy Court's approval of the Plan Settlement as well as a finding by the Bankruptcy Court that the Plan Settlement is in the best interests of the Debtors, their Estates, and Holders of Claims and Interests and is fair, equitable, and reasonable. The Plan Settlement is binding upon all creditors and all other parties in interest pursuant to section 1141(a) of the Bankruptcy Code. In accordance with the provisions of the Plan, pursuant to section 1123 of the Bankruptcy Code and Bankruptcy Rule 9019, without any further notice to or action, order, or approval of the Bankruptcy Court, after the Effective Date, the Plan Administrator may compromise and settle Claims against, and Interests in, the Debtors and their Estates and Causes of Action against other Entities.

101. Debtor Release; Third-Party Release; Insurer Release. Each of the release provisions as set forth in, among others, Articles VIII.B and VIII.C of the Plan, is hereby incorporated in its entirety, approved in its entirety, and shall be immediately effective as of the Effective Date and binding on all Persons and Entities to the extent set forth therein.

102. Bar Order. All persons and entities are permanently barred from commencing, prosecuting, continuing or asserting, either derivatively or on behalf of themselves, in any court or forum, domestic or foreign, any actions, cause and causes of action, claims, counterclaims, crossclaims, suits, proceedings, damages, punitive damages, claims for insurance coverage, costs, expenses and attorneys' fees, demands and liabilities whatsoever of every kind and nature, whether known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, accrued or unaccrued, in law, equity, contract or otherwise which such persons or entities ever had or now have or may have against the Debtors, Zurich and/or the other Participating Insurers arising out of, related to, based upon, by reason of, or in any way involving, directly or indirectly, or in whole or in part, the (i) the VarigLog Claims, (ii) the Brazilian Action, (iii) the HJDK Claims, (iv) any of the facts or circumstances alleged by the VarigLog Estate in any matter (including, but not limited to, any claim of any creditor of the VarigLog Estate on whose behalf it has purported to act and bring claims in a representative capacity or for whom it could have done so), and/or (v) any of the facts or circumstances alleged by HJDK in any matter.

103. Release of Liens. Except as otherwise specifically provided in the Plan, or any other Plan Document, concurrently with all applicable distributions made pursuant to the Plan, all Liens, Claims or Interests in or against any property and Assets of the Estates shall be fully released, terminated, extinguished, and discharged, in each case, without any further approval or order of the Court and without any action or filing being required to be made by the Debtors. The presentation or filing of the Confirmation Order to or with any federal, state, provincial, or local agency or department shall constitute good and sufficient evidence of, but shall not be required to effect, the termination of such Liens, Claims or Interests.

104. Exculpation. The exculpation provisions set forth in Article VIII.D of the Plan, as modified by this Order, are hereby incorporated in their entirety, approved in their entirety, and shall be immediately effective as of the Effective Date and binding on all Persons and Entities to the extent set forth therein.

105. Injunction. Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 3020(c)(1), the following injunction provisions set forth in Article VIII.E of the Plan are approved in their entirety, and shall be immediately effective as of the Effective Date and binding on all Persons and Entities to the extent set forth therein.

> Article VIII.E: Except as otherwise expressly provided in the Plan or for obligations issued or required to be paid pursuant to the Plan or the Confirmation Order, all Entities who have held, hold, or may hold Claims or Interests that have been released, discharged, or are subject to exculpation are, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, permanently enjoined, from and after the Effective Date, from taking any of the following actions against, as applicable, the Debtors, the Exculpated Parties, or the Released Parties: (1) commencing or continuing in any manner any action, suit or other proceeding of any kind on account of or in connection with or with respect to any such Claims or Interests; (2) enforcing, attaching, collecting, or recovering by any manner or means any judgment, award, decree, or order against such Entities on account of or in connection with or with respect to any such Claims or Interests; (3) creating, perfecting, or enforcing any encumbrance of any kind against such Entities or the property or the estates of such Entities on account of or in connection with or with respect to any such Claims or Interests; (4) asserting any right of setoff, subrogation, or recoupment of any kind against any obligation due from such Entities or against the property of such Entities on account of or in connection with or with respect to any such Claims or Interests unless such Holder has Filed a motion requesting the right to perform such setoff on or before the Effective Date, and notwithstanding an indication of a Claim or Interest or otherwise that such Holder asserts, has, or intends to preserve any right of setoff pursuant to applicable law or otherwise; and (5) commencing or continuing in any manner any action or other proceeding of any kind on account of or in connection with or with respect to any such Claims or Interests released or settled pursuant to the Plan.

106. Regulatory Activities. Notwithstanding any language to the contrary contained in the Disclosure Statement, Plan, or Confirmation Order, no provision shall (a) preclude the SEC or any other Governmental Unit from enforcing its police or regulatory powers or (b) enjoin, limit, impair, or delay the SEC from commencing or continuing any claims, causes of action, proceedings, or investigations against any non-Debtor person or non-Debtor entity in any forum.

107. Notice of Entry of Confirmation Order and Occurrence of the Effective Date. As soon as practicable after the Effective Date, the Debtors shall file with the Court and serve by first class mail or overnight delivery service a notice of the entry of this Confirmation Order and occurrence of the Effective Date (the "Confirmation and Effective Date Notice"), to all parties served with the Confirmation Hearing Notice. To supplement the notice procedures described in the preceding sentence, no later than fourteen days (14) after the Effective Date, the Plan Administrator shall cause the Confirmation and Effective Date Notice, modified for publication, to be published on one occasion in each of the New York Times and Miami Herald. Mailing and publication of the Confirmation and Effective Date Notice in the time and manner set forth in this paragraph shall constitute adequate and sufficient notice pursuant to Bankruptcy Rules 2002 and 3020(c) of Confirmation and occurrence of the Effective Date.

108. The Confirmation and Effective Date Notice will have the effect of an order of the Court, will constitute sufficient notice of the entry of this Confirmation Order and occurrence of the Effective Date to filing and recording officers, including such officers at the United States Patent and Trademark Office, the United States Copyright Office, and any other governmental intellectual property offices, and will be a recordable instrument notwithstanding any contrary provision of applicable non-bankruptcy law.

109. Cancellation of Existing Indebtedness and Securities. Except as otherwise expressly provided in the Plan, this Confirmation Order, or any agreement, instrument, or other document entered into in connection with or pursuant to the Plan or the Dissolution Transactions, on the Effective Date, (a) all notes, instruments, certificates, credit agreements, indentures, and other documents evidencing Claims or Interests (including the Promissory Note Claims, Partnership Interests and Affiliate Equity Interests), and any Partnership Interests or Affiliate Equity Interests that are not represented by certificates or other instruments, shall be canceled, extinguished, released and surrendered and the obligations of the Debtors or Wind Down Estates thereunder or in any way related thereto shall be deemed satisfied in full, canceled, and of no force or effect against the Debtors or Wind Down Estates, without any further action on the part of the Debtors or Wind Down Estates or any other party. Holders of or parties to such canceled instruments and other documentation will have no rights arising from or relating to such instruments and other documentation, or the cancellation thereof, except the rights provided for pursuant to this Plan. Notwithstanding the foregoing, any provision in any document, instrument, lease, or other agreement that causes or effectuates, or purports to cause or effectuate, a default, termination, waiver, or other forfeiture of, or by, a Debtor or its Interests, as a result of the cancellations, terminations, satisfaction, releases, or discharges provided for herein shall be deemed null and void and shall be of no force and effect.

110. Professional and Reimbursement Claims. All final requests for payment of Professional Claims shall be Filed no later than the first Business Day that is forty-five (45) calendar days after the Effective Date. Such requests shall be Filed with the Bankruptcy Court and served as required by the Interim Compensation Order, as applicable. After notice and a hearing in accordance with the procedures established by the Bankruptcy Code and any applicable Bankruptcy Court orders, the Allowed amounts of such Professional Claims shall be determined by the Bankruptcy Court. The Allowed amount of Professional Claims owing to the Professionals, after taking into account any prior payments to and retainers held by such Professionals, shall be paid in full in Cash to such Professionals from funds held in the Professional Claims Escrow Account as soon as reasonably practicable following the date when such Claims are Allowed by a Final Order. To the extent that funds held in the Professional Claims Escrow Account are unable to satisfy the Allowed amount of Professional Claims owing to the Professionals, each Professional shall have an Allowed Administrative Claim for any such deficiency, which shall be satisfied from the Distributions Reserve in the ordinary course of business and notwithstanding any obligation to File Proofs of Claim or requests for payment on or before the Administrative Claims Bar Date. After all Professional Claims have been paid in full, the escrow agent shall promptly return any excess amounts held in the Professional Claims Escrow Account, if any, to the Distributions Reserve, without any further action or Order of the Bankruptcy Court.

111. Effect of Confirmation Order on Other Orders. Unless expressly provided for herein, nothing in the Plan or this Confirmation Order shall affect any orders entered in the Chapter 11 Cases pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019.

112. Inconsistency. In the event of any inconsistency between the Plan and this Confirmation Order, this Confirmation Order shall govern.

113. Injunctions and Automatic Stay. Unless otherwise provided in the Plan or in this Confirmation Order, all injunctions or stays in effect in the Chapter 11 Cases pursuant to sections 105 or 362 of the Bankruptcy Code or any order of the Court, and extant on this Confirmation Date (excluding any injunctions or stays contained in the Plan or this Confirmation Order) shall remain in full force and effect until the Effective Date. All injunctions or stays contained in the Plan or this Confirmation Order shall remain in full force and effect in accordance with their terms.

114. Authorization to Consummate. The Debtors are authorized to consummate the Plan and the Dissolution Transactions at any time after the entry of this Confirmation Order subject to satisfaction or waiver (by the required parties) of the conditions precedent to Consummation set forth in Article IX of the Plan.

115. Substantial Consummation. On the Effective Date, the Plan shall be deemed to be substantially consummated under sections 1101 and 1127(b) of the Bankruptcy Code.

116. No Waiver. The failure to specifically include any particular Plan Document or provision of the Plan or Plan Document in this Confirmation Order will not diminish the effectiveness of such document or provision nor constitute a waiver thereof, it being the intent of this Court that the Plan is confirmed in its entirety, the Plan Documents are approved in their entirety, and all of the Plan Documents are incorporated herein by reference.

117. Severability. E. Nonoccurrence of Effective Date

In the event that the Effective Date does not occur, the Bankruptcy Court shall retain jurisdiction with respect to any request to extend the deadline for assuming or rejecting Executory Contract or Unexpired Leases pursuant to section 365(d)(4) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Except as expressly provided in this Plan, the Plan Administrator or Disbursing Agent may, pursuant to section 553 of the Bankruptcy Code, set off and/or recoup against any distributions to be made on account of any Allowed Claim, any and all claims, rights, and Causes of Action that the Debtors held against the Holder of such Allowed Claim to the extent such setoff or recoupment is either (1) agreed in amount among the Debtors or Plan Administrator, as applicable, and the Holder of the Allowed Claim or (2) otherwise adjudicated by the Bankruptcy Court or another court of competent jurisdiction.

L. Claims Paid or Payable by Third Parties

1. Claims Paid by Third Parties

The Debtors or the Plan Administrator, as applicable, shall reduce a Claim, and such Claim shall be Disallowed without a Claims objection having to be Filed by the Debtors or Plan Administrator, as applicable, and without any further notice to or action, order or approval of the Bankruptcy Court, to the extent that the Holder of such Claim receives payment on account of such Claim from a party that is not a Debtor. To the extent a Holder of a Claim receives a Distribution on account of such Claim and receives payment from a party that is not a Debtor, such Holder shall, within 14 days of receipt thereof, repay or return the Distribution to the Debtors or Plan Administrator, as applicable, to the extent the Holder's total recovery on account of such Claim from the third party and under this Plan exceeds the amount of such Allowed Claim as of the Effective Date.

2. Claims Payable by Third Parties

No distributions under the Plan will be made on account of an Allowed Claim that is payable pursuant to an Insurance Policy until the Holder of such Allowed Claim has exhausted all remedies with respect to such Insurance Policy. If the Debtors or Plan Administrator, as applicable, believe a Holder of an Allowed Claim has recourse to an Insurance Policy and intend to withhold a Distribution pursuant to this Article VI.L, the Debtors or the Plan Administrator, as applicable, shall provide written notice to such Holder as to what the Debtors or Plan Administrator believe to be the nature and scope of applicable insurance coverage. To the extent that one or more of the Debtors' insurers agrees to satisfy in full or in part a Claim (if and to the extent adjudicated by a court of competent jurisdiction), then immediately upon such insurer's agreement, such Claim (or the applicable portion of such Claim) may be expunged without a Claims objection having to be Filed and without any further notice to or action, order, or approval of the Bankruptcy Court.

3. Applicability and Preservation of Insurance Policies

Except as otherwise provided in the Plan, distributions to Holders of Allowed Claims shall be in accordance with the provisions of any applicable Insurance Policy. Nothing contained in the Plan shall constitute or be deemed a waiver of any Cause of Action that the Debtors or any Entity may hold against any other Entity, including insurers under any policies of insurance, nor shall anything contained herein constitute or be deemed a waiver by such insurers of any defenses, including coverage defenses, held by such insurers.

ARTICLE VII
PROCEDURES FOR RESOLVING CONTINGENT, UNLIQUIDATED, AND DISPUTED CLAIMS

A. Disputed Claims

On or after the Effective Date, the Wind Down Estates shall have and retain any and all rights and defenses that the Debtors had with respect to any Claim immediately prior to the Effective Date. If the Debtors or the Plan Administrator dispute or object to any Claim, such dispute shall be determined, resolved, or adjudicated in the Chapter 11 Cases in accordance with this Article VII or any applicable order entered by the Bankruptcy Court. Solely to the extent that an Entity is required to File a Proof of Claim and the Debtors or the Plan Administrator, as applicable, do not determine that the Claim subject to such Proof of Claim is Allowed, such Claim shall be Disputed unless Allowed or Disallowed by a Final Order. All Proofs of Claim required to be Filed by the Plan or order of the Bankruptcy Court that are Filed after the date that they are required to be Filed shall be Disallowed and forever barred, estopped and enjoined from assertion, and shall not be enforceable against any the Debtors or the Wind Down Estates, without the need for any objection by the Debtors or the Plan Administrator or any further notice to or action, order or approval of the Bankruptcy Court.

ANY CLAIM THAT HAS BEEN LISTED IN THE UNSECURED CREDITORS LIST OR THE SCHEDULES AS DISPUTED, CONTINGENT, OR UNLIQUIDATED, AND FOR WHICH NO PROOF OF CLAIM HAS BEEN TIMELY FILED, SHALL BE DEEMED DISALLOWED AND SHALL BE EXPUNGED WITHOUT FURTHER ACTION AND WITHOUT ANY FURTHER NOTICE TO OR ACTION, ORDER, OR APPROVAL OF THE BANKRUPTCY COURT.

EXCEPT AS PROVIDED HEREIN, IN AN ORDER OF THE BANKRUPTCY COURT, OR OTHERWISE AGREED, ANY AND ALL PROOFS OF CLAIM FILED AFTER THE APPLICABLE DEADLINE TO FILE SHALL BE DEEMED DISALLOWED AND EXPUNGED AS OF THE EFFECTIVE DATE WITHOUT ANY FURTHER NOTICE TO OR ACTION, ORDER, OR APPROVAL OF THE BANKRUPTCY COURT, AND HOLDERS OF SUCH CLAIMS MAY NOT RECEIVE ANY DISTRIBUTIONS ON ACCOUNT OF SUCH CLAIMS, UNLESS AT OR PRIOR TO THE CONFIRMATION HEARING SUCH LATE CLAIM HAS BEEN DEEMED TIMELY FILED BY A FINAL ORDER.

B. Claims and Interests Administration Responsibilities

Except as otherwise specifically provided in the Plan, the Debtors, prior to the Effective Date, and the Plan Administrator, after the Effective Date, have the sole authority: (1) to File, withdraw, or litigate to judgment, objections to Claims or Interests; (2) to settle or compromise any Disputed Claim without any further notice to or action, order, or approval by the Bankruptcy Court; and (3) to administer and adjust the Claims Register to reflect any such settlements or compromises without any further notice to or action, order, or approval by the Bankruptcy Court. For the avoidance of doubt, except as otherwise provided herein, from and after the Effective Date, the Wind Down Estates shall have and retain any and all rights and defenses such Debtor had immediately prior to the Effective Date with respect to any Disputed Claim or Interest, including the Causes of Action retained pursuant to Article IV.K of the Plan.

C. Authority to Amend Schedules

The Debtors prior to the Effective Date, and the Plan Administrator, after the Effective Date, will have the authority to amend the Schedules with respect to any Claim and to make distributions based on such amended Schedules (if no Proof of Claim is timely Filed in response thereto) without approval of the Bankruptcy Court; provided that if any such amendment to the Schedules reduces the amount of a Claim or changes the nature or priority of a Claim, the Debtors or the Plan Administrator, as applicable, will provide the Holder of such Claim with notice of such amendment and such parties will have 21 days to File a Proof of Claim with respect to such Claim.

D. Estimation of Claims

The Debtors prior to the Effective Date, and the Plan Administrator, after the Effective Date, may (but are not required to) at any time request that the Bankruptcy Court disallow and/or estimate any Disputed Claim pursuant to section 502(c) of the Bankruptcy Code, regardless of whether any party previously has objected to such Claim or whether the Bankruptcy Court has ruled on any such objection, and the Bankruptcy Court shall retain jurisdiction to estimate any such Claim, including during the litigation of any objection to any Claim or during any appeal relating to such objection. In the event that the Bankruptcy Court estimates any Disputed Claim, that estimated amount shall constitute a maximum limitation on such Claim for all purposes under the Plan (including for purposes of distributions and the Distributions Reserve), and the Debtors may elect to pursue any supplemental proceedings to object to any ultimate Distribution on such Claim. Notwithstanding section 502(j) of the Bankruptcy Code, in no event shall any Holder of a Claim that has been estimated pursuant to section 502(c) of the Bankruptcy Code or otherwise be entitled to seek reconsideration of such estimation unless such Holder has Filed a motion requesting the right to seek such reconsideration on or before 21 days after the date on which such Claim is estimated. All of the aforementioned Claims and objection, estimation, and resolution procedures are cumulative and not exclusive of one another. Claims may be estimated and subsequently compromised, settled, withdrawn, or resolved by any mechanism approved by the Bankruptcy Court.

E. Adjustment to Claims or Interests without Objection

Any duplicate Claim or Interest or any Claim or Interest that has been paid, satisfied, amended, or superseded may be adjusted or expunged on the Claims Register or the Debtors' books and records by the Plan Administrator without the Plan Administrator having to File an application, motion, complaint, objection, or any other legal proceeding seeking to object to such Claim or Interest and without any further notice to or action, order, or approval of the Bankruptcy Court.

F. Disallowance of Claims or Interests

Any Claims held by Entities from which property is recoverable under section 542, 543, 550, or 553 of the Bankruptcy Code or that is a transferee of a transfer avoidable under section 522(f), 522(h), 544, 545, 547, 548, 549, or 724(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, shall be deemed Disallowed pursuant to section 502(d) of the Bankruptcy Code, and Holders of such Claims may not receive any distributions on account of such Claims until such time as such Causes of Action against that Entity have been settled or a court order with respect thereto has been entered and all sums due, if any, to the Debtors by that Entity have been turned over or paid to the Debtors or the Plan Administrator.

G. Reimbursement or Contribution

If the Bankruptcy Court disallows a Claim for reimbursement or contribution of an Entity pursuant to section 502(e)(1)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code, then to the extent that such Claim is contingent as of the time of Allowance or Disallowance, such Claim shall be forever Disallowed and expunged notwithstanding section 502(j) of the Bankruptcy Code, unless prior to the Confirmation Date: (1) such Claim has been adjudicated as non-contingent or (2) the relevant Holder of a Claim has Filed a non-contingent Proof of Claim on account of such Claim and a Final Order has been entered prior to the Confirmation Date determining such Claim as no longer contingent.

H. Amendments to Claims

On or after the Effective Date, except as provided in this Plan or the Confirmation Order, a Claim may not be Filed or amended without the prior authorization of the Bankruptcy Court and any such new or amended Claim Filed shall be deemed Disallowed in full and expunged without any further action, order, or approval of the Bankruptcy Court.

I. No Distributions Pending Allowance

No payment or distribution provided under the Plan shall be made to the extent that any Claim is a Disputed Claim, including if an objection to a Claim or portion thereof is Filed as set forth in Article VII, unless and until such Disputed Claim becomes an Allowed Claim; provided that any portion of a Claim that is an Allowed Claim shall receive the payment or distribution provided under the Plan thereon notwithstanding that any other portion of such Claim is a Disputed Claim.

J. Single Satisfaction of Claims

Holders of Allowed Claims may assert such Claims against each Debtor obligated with respect to such Claim, and such Claims shall be entitled to share in the recovery provided for the applicable Class of Claims against each obligated Debtor based upon the full Allowed amount of the Claim. Notwithstanding the foregoing, in no case shall the aggregate value of all property received or retained under the Plan on account of any Allowed Claim exceed 100% of such Allowed Claim plus interest, if applicable.

K. Distributions After Allowance

To the extent that a Disputed Claim ultimately becomes Allowed, distributions (if any) shall be made to the Holder of such Allowed Claim in accordance with the provisions of the Plan. As soon as reasonably practicable after the date that the order or judgment of the Bankruptcy Court allowing any Disputed Claim becomes a Final Order, the Disbursing Agent shall provide to the Holder of such Claim the distribution (if any) to which such Holder is entitled under the Plan as of the Effective Date, without any interest to be paid on account of such Claim.

ARTICLE VIII
SETTLEMENT, RELEASE, INJUNCTION, AND RELATED PROVISIONS

A. General Settlement of Claims and Interests

As discussed in the Disclosure Statement and as otherwise provided herein, pursuant to section 1123 of the Bankruptcy Code and Bankruptcy Rule 9019, and in consideration for the classification, distributions, releases and other benefits provided under the Plan, upon the Effective Date, the provisions of the Plan shall constitute a good faith compromise and settlement of all Claims, Interests, issues, disputes and controversies that were, or could have been asserted in connection with the Chapter 11 Cases. The Plan shall be deemed a motion to approve the good faith compromise and settlement of all such Claims, Interests, issues, disputes and controversies pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019, and the entry of the Confirmation Order shall constitute the Bankruptcy Court's approval of such compromise and settlement under section 1123 of the Bankruptcy Code and Bankruptcy Rule 9019, as well as a finding by the Bankruptcy Court that such settlement and compromise is fair, equitable, reasonable and in the best interests of the Debtors, their Estates, the Wind Down Estates and Holders of Claims and Interests. Subject to Article VI hereof, all distributions made to Holders of Allowed Claims and Allowed Interests (as applicable) in any Class are intended to be and shall be final.

B. Releases by the Debtors

Notwithstanding anything contained in the Plan to the contrary, pursuant to section 1123(b) of the Bankruptcy Code, for good and valuable consideration, on and after the Effective Date, each Released Party is deemed released and discharged by the Debtors, the Debtors' Estates, and the Wind Down Estates from any and all Claims and Causes of Action, whether known or unknown, including any derivative claims, asserted on behalf of the Debtors or the Wind Down Estates, that the Debtors, their Estates or the Wind Down Estates would have been legally entitled to assert in their own right (whether individually or collectively) or on behalf of the Holder of any Claim against, or Interest in, a Debtor or other Entity, or that any Holder of any Claim against, or Interest in, a Debtor or other Entity could have asserted on behalf of the Debtors, based on or relating to, or in any manner arising from, in whole or in part, the Debtors (including the management, ownership, or operation thereof), any Securities issued by the Debtors and the ownership thereof, Debtors' in- or out-of-court restructuring efforts, any Avoidance Actions (but excluding Avoidance Actions brought as counterclaims or defenses to Claims asserted against the Debtors), intercompany transactions, the Chapter 11 Cases, the formulation, preparation, dissemination, solicitation, negotiation, entry into, or filing of the Disclosure Statement, the Plan, the Plan Supplement, or any contract, instrument, release, or other agreement or document created or entered into in connection with the Disclosure Statement, the Plan, the Plan Supplement, the Chapter 11 Cases, the filing of the Chapter 11 Cases, the pursuit of Confirmation, the pursuit of Consummation, the administration and implementation of the Plan, including the distribution of property under the Plan or any other related agreement, or upon any other related act or omission, transaction, agreement, event, or other occurrence taking place on or before the Effective Date. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the foregoing, the releases set forth above do not release (a) any post-Effective Date obligations of any party or Entity under the Plan or any document, instrument, or agreement (including those set forth in the Plan Supplement) executed to implement the Plan or (b) any Person from any claim or Causes of Action related to an act or omission that is determined in a Final Order by a court competent jurisdiction to have constituted actual fraud, willful misconduct, or gross negligence by such Person.

On the Effective Date, and subject to receipt by the VarigLog Estate of the VarigLog Settlement Amount and receipt by HJDK of the HJDK Settlement Amount, the Debtors shall release and forever discharge (x) the Participating Insurers and their respective Related Parties, with respect to the Allowed VarigLog Claims, and (y) Zurich and its Related Parties, with respect to the Allowed HJDK Claims, from any and all demands, claims, potential claims, rights, damages, debts, liabilities, accounts, attorneys' fees, obligations, costs, expenses, liens, actions and causes of action of every kind and nature whatsoever, whether now known or unknown, which they now have, own or hold, or at any time heretofore had, owned or held, or could, shall or may hereafter have, own, or hold arising out of, related to, based upon, by reason of, or in any way involving the Allowed VarigLog Claims or Allowed HJDK Claims, as applicable, and any of the facts or circumstances alleged by the VarigLog Estate (including, but not limited to, any claim of any creditor of the VarigLog Estate on whose behalf it has purported to act and bring claims in a representative capacity or for whom it could have done so) or by HJDK, as applicable, including all loss incurred or to be incurred in connection with the Allowed VarigLog Claims or Allowed HJDK Claims, as applicable, and the defense or settlement thereof, except that the foregoing shall not release claims by the Debtors against Zurich and the Participating Insurers for reimbursement of Defense Costs, which is subject to Article IVE.5 herein.

Entry of the Confirmation Order shall constitute the Bankruptcy Court's approval of the Debtor Releases, which includes by reference each of the related provisions and definitions contained in the Plan, and further, shall constitute the Bankruptcy Court's finding that the Debtor Releases are: (a) in exchange for the good and valuable consideration provided by the Released Parties, including, without limitation, the Released Parties' contributions to facilitating and implementing the Plan; (b) a good faith settlement and compromise of the Claims released by the Debtor Releases; (c) in the best interests of the Debtors, their Estates, the Wind Down Estates and all Holders of Claims and Interests; (d) fair, equitable, and reasonable; (e) given and made after due notice and opportunity for hearing; and (f) a bar to any of the Debtors, the Debtors' Estates or the Wind Down Estates asserting any Claim or Cause of Action released pursuant to the Debtor Releases.

C. Releases by the Releasing Parties Other Than the Debtors.

Notwithstanding anything contained in the Plan to the contrary, as of the Effective Date, and subject to receipt by VRG of the VRG Settlement Amount, receipt by HJDK of the HJDK Settlement Amount, and receipt by the VarigLog Estate of the VarigLog Settlement Amount, each Releasing Party (other than the Debtors) is deemed to have released and discharged each Released Party from any and all Claims and Causes of Action, whether known or unknown, including any derivative claims, asserted on behalf of the Debtors, that such Entity would have been legally entitled to assert (whether individually or collectively), based on or relating to, or in any manner arising from, in whole or in part, the Debtors (including the management, ownership or operation thereof), any Securities issued by the Debtors and the ownership thereof, the Debtors' in- or out-of-court restructuring efforts, any Avoidance Actions, intercompany transactions, the Chapter 11 Cases, the formulation, preparation, dissemination, solicitation, negotiation, or filing of the Disclosure Statement, the Plan, the Plan Supplement, or any contract, instrument, release, or other agreement or document created or entered into in connection with the Disclosure Statement, the Plan, the Plan Supplement, the Chapter 11 Cases, the filing of the Chapter 11 Cases, the pursuit of Confirmation, the pursuit of Consummation, the administration and implementation of the Plan, including the distribution of property under the Plan or any other related agreement, or upon any other related act or omission, transaction, agreement, event, or other occurrence taking place on or before the Effective Date. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the foregoing, the releases set forth above do not release (a) any post-Effective Date obligations of any party or Entity under the Plan or any document, instrument, or agreement (including those set forth in the Plan Supplement) executed to implement the Plan, (b) any Person from any claim or Causes of Action related to an act or omission that is determined in a Final Order by a court of competent jurisdiction to have constituted actual fraud, willful misconduct, or gross negligence by such Person, or (c) any Claims or Causes of Action that VRG, HJDK or the VarigLog Estate has or may have against each other.

On the Effective Date, (x) subject to receipt of the VarigLog Settlement Amount, the VarigLog Estate and its Related Parties shall release and forever discharge the Participating Insurers and their respective Related Parties, with respect to the Allowed VarigLog Claims, and (y) subject to receipt of the HJDK Settlement Amount, HJDK and its Related Parties shall release and forever discharge Zurich and its Related Parties, with respect to the Allowed HJDK Claims, from any and all demands, claims, potential claims, rights, damages, debts, liabilities, accounts, attorneys' fees, obligations, costs, expenses, liens, actions and causes of action of every kind and nature whatsoever, whether now known or unknown, which they now have, own or hold, or at any time heretofore had, owned or held, or could, shall or may hereafter have, own, or hold arising out of, related to, based upon, by reason of, or in any way involving the Allowed VarigLog Claims or Allowed HJDK Claims, as applicable, and any of the facts or circumstances alleged by the VarigLog Estate (including, but not limited to, any claim of any creditor of the VarigLog Estate on whose behalf it has purported to act and bring claims in a representative capacity or for whom it could have done so) or by HJDK, as applicable, including all loss incurred or to be incurred in connection with the Allowed VarigLog Claims or Allowed HJDK Claims, as applicable, and the defense or settlement thereof.

Entry of the Confirmation Order shall constitute the Bankruptcy Court's approval of the Third-Party Releases, which includes by reference each of the related provisions and definitions contained herein, and, further, shall constitute the Bankruptcy Court's finding that the Third-Party Releases are: (a) consensual; (b) essential to Confirmation of the Plan; (c) given in exchange for the good and valuable consideration provided by the Released Parties; (d) a good faith settlement and compromise of the Claims released by the Third-Party Releases; (e) in the best interests of the Debtors, their Estates and the Wind Down Estates; (f) fair, equitable, and reasonable; (g) given and made after due notice and opportunity for hearing; and (h) a bar to any of the Releasing Parties asserting any claim or Cause of Action released pursuant to the Third-Party Releases.

D. Exculpation.

Except as otherwise specifically provided in the Plan, no Exculpated Party shall have or incur liability for and each Exculpated Party is hereby released and exculpated from any Cause of Action for any claim related to any act or omission in connection with, relating to, or arising out of, the Chapter 11 Cases, the formulation, preparation, dissemination, solicitation, negotiation, or filing of the Disclosure Statement, the Plan, the Plan Supplement, or any contract, instrument, release, or other agreement or document created or entered into in connection with the Disclosure Statement, the Plan, the Plan Supplement, the Chapter 11 Cases, the filing of the Chapter 11 Cases, the pursuit of Confirmation, the pursuit of Consummation, the administration and implementation of the Plan, including the administration of the Wind Down Estates and distribution of property under the Plan or any other related agreement, or upon any other related act or omission, transaction, agreement, event, or other occurrence taking place on or before the Effective Date, except for claims related to any act or omission that is determined in a Final Order by a court of competent jurisdiction to have constituted actual fraud, willful misconduct, or gross negligence, but in all respects such Entities shall be entitled to reasonably rely upon the advice of counsel with respect to their duties and responsibilities pursuant to the Plan.

The Exculpated Parties shall be deemed to have participated in good faith and in compliance with the applicable laws with regard to the solicitation of votes and distribution of consideration pursuant to the Plan and, therefore, are not, and on account of such distributions shall not be, liable at any time for the violation of any applicable law, rule, or regulation governing the solicitation of acceptances or rejections of the Plan or distributions made pursuant to the Plan.

E. Injunction.

Except as otherwise expressly provided in the Plan or for obligations issued or required to be paid pursuant to the Plan or the Confirmation Order, all Entities who have held, hold, or may hold Claims or Interests that have been released, discharged, or are subject to exculpation are, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, permanently enjoined, from and after the Effective Date, from taking any of the following actions against, as applicable, the Debtors, the Exculpated Parties, or the Released Parties: (1) commencing or continuing in any manner any action, suit or other proceeding of any kind on account of or in connection with or with respect to any such Claims or Interests; (2) enforcing, attaching, collecting, or recovering by any manner or means any judgment, award, decree, or order against such Entities on account of or in connection with or with respect to any such Claims or Interests; (3) creating, perfecting, or enforcing any encumbrance of any kind against such Entities or the property or the estates of such Entities on account of or in connection with or with respect to any such Claims or Interests; (4) asserting any right of setoff, subrogation, or recoupment of any kind against any obligation due from such Entities or against the property of such Entities on account of or in connection with or with respect to any such Claims or Interests unless such Holder has Filed a motion requesting the right to perform such setoff on or before the Effective Date, and notwithstanding an indication of a Claim or Interest or otherwise that such Holder asserts, has, or intends to preserve any right of setoff pursuant to applicable law or otherwise; and (5) commencing or continuing in any manner any action or other proceeding of any kind on account of or in connection with or with respect to any such Claims or Interests released or settled pursuant to the Plan.

Upon entry of the Confirmation Order, all Holders of Claims and Interests and their respective current and former employees, agents, officers, directors, principals, and direct and indirect Affiliates shall be enjoined from taking any actions to interfere with the implementation or Consummation of the Plan.

ARTICLE IX
CONDITIONS PRECEDENT TO CONFIRMATION AND CONSUMMATION OF THE PLAN

A. Conditions Precedent to Confirmation

The following conditions are conditions to the entry of the Confirmation Order unless such conditions, or any of them, have been satisfied or duly waived pursuant to Article IX.C of the Plan:

1. The Bankruptcy Court shall have entered an order approving the adequacy of the Disclosure Statement.

2. The Brazilian Bankruptcy Court shall have approved the VarigLog Estate's entry into and performance under the VarigLog Estate Settlement.

3. The final version of all schedules, documents, and exhibits in the Plan Supplement (if any) shall have been Filed.

4. The Plan shall not have been materially amended, altered or modified from the Plan as Filed, unless such material amendment, alteration or modification has been made in accordance with Article X of the Plan.

B. Conditions Precedent to the Effective Date

It shall be a condition to the Effective Date that the following conditions shall have been satisfied or waived pursuant to the provisions of Article IX.C of the Plan:

1. the Debtors shall have obtained all authorizations, consents, regulatory approvals, rulings, or documents that are necessary to implement and effectuate the Plan and each of the other transactions contemplated thereby;

2. the Bankruptcy Court shall have entered the Confirmation Order;

3. the Distributions Reserve shall have been established in accordance with terms herein;

4. the Professional Claims Escrow Account shall have been established and fully funded with Cash in the amount equal to the Professional Claims Amount minus any amounts paid prior to the Effective Date; and

5. the Plan and all documents in the Plan Supplement shall not have been materially amended, altered or modified from the Plan and Plan Supplement as confirmed by the Confirmation Order, unless such material amendment, alteration or modification has been made in accordance with Article X of the Plan.

C. Waiver of Conditions

The conditions to Confirmation and/or Consummation set forth in this Article IX may be waived by the Debtors without notice, leave, or order of the Bankruptcy Court or any formal action other than proceedings to confirm or consummate the Plan.

D. Effect of Failure of Conditions

If Consummation does not occur, the Plan shall be null and void in all respects and nothing contained in the Plan or the Disclosure Statement shall: (1) constitute a waiver or release of any Claims by the Debtors, Claims, or Interests; (2) prejudice in any manner the rights of the Debtors, any Holders of Claims or Interests, or any other Entity; (3) constitute an admission, acknowledgment, offer, or undertaking by the Debtors, any Holders of Claims or Interests, or any other Entity; or (4) be used by the Debtors or any Entity as evidence (or in any other way) in any litigation, including with regard to the strengths or weaknesses of any of the parties' positions, arguments or claims.

E. Substantial Consummation

"Substantial Consummation" of the Plan, as defined in 11 U.S.C. § 1101(2), shall be deemed to occur on the Effective Date.

ARTICLE X
MODIFICATION, REVOCATION, OR WITHDRAWAL OF THE PLAN

A. Modification and Amendments

Except as otherwise specifically provided in this Plan, subject to the rights of the Settling Parties pursuant to the VRG Settlement Term Sheet, the HJDK Settlement Term Sheet and/or the VarigLog Estate Settlement Term Sheet, the Debtors reserve the right to modify the Plan, whether such modification is material or immaterial, and seek Confirmation consistent with the Bankruptcy Code and, as appropriate, not resolicit votes on such modified Plan. Subject to those restrictions on modifications set forth in the Plan and the requirements of section 1127 of the Bankruptcy Code, Rule 3019 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, and, to the extent applicable, sections 1122, 1123, and 1125 of the Bankruptcy Code, and subject to the rights of the Settling Parties pursuant to the VRG Settlement Term Sheet, the HJDK Settlement Term Sheet and/or the VarigLog Estate Settlement Term Sheet, each of the Debtors expressly reserves its respective rights to revoke or withdraw, or to alter, amend, or modify the Plan with respect to such Debtor, one or more times, after Confirmation, and, to the extent necessary may initiate proceedings in the Bankruptcy Court to so alter, amend, or modify the Plan, or remedy any defect or omission, or reconcile any inconsistencies in the Plan, the Disclosure Statement, or the Confirmation Order, in such matters as may be necessary to carry out the purposes and intent of the Plan.

Prior to the Effective Date, without limiting the foregoing consent rights, the Debtors may make appropriate technical adjustments and modifications to the Plan without further order or approval of the Bankruptcy Court.

B. Effect of Confirmation on Modifications

Entry of the Confirmation Order shall mean that all modifications or amendments to the Plan since the solicitation thereof are approved pursuant to section 1127(a) of the Bankruptcy Code and do not require additional disclosure or resolicitation under Bankruptcy Rule 3019.

Holders of Claims that have accepted the Plan shall be deemed to have accepted the Plan, as amended, modified, or supplemented, if the proposed amendment, modification, or supplement does not materially and adversely change the treatment of the Claim of such Holder; provided, however, that any Holders of Claims who were deemed to accept the Plan because such Claims were Unimpaired shall continue to be deemed to accept the Plan only if, after giving effect to such amendment, modification, or supplement, such Claims continue to be Unimpaired.

C. Revocation or Withdrawal of Plan

Subject to the rights of the Settling Parties pursuant to the VRG Settlement Term Sheet, the HJDK Settlement Term Sheet and/or the VarigLog Estate Settlement Term Sheet, the Debtors reserve the right to revoke or withdraw the Plan as to any individual Debtor, combination of Debtors or all of the Debtors prior to the Confirmation Date and to File subsequent plans of reorganization or liquidation. If the Debtors revoke or withdraw the Plan, or if Confirmation or Consummation does not occur as to any or all of the Debtors, then: (1) the Plan shall be null and void in all respects with respect to such Debtor(s); (2) any settlement or compromise embodied in the Plan (including the fixing or limiting to an amount certain of any Claim or Interest or Class of Claims or Interests), assumption or rejection of Executory Contracts or Unexpired Leases effected under the Plan, and any document or agreement executed pursuant to the Plan, shall be deemed null and void as to such Debtor(s); and (3) nothing contained in the Plan shall: (a) constitute a waiver or release of any Claims or Interests as to such Debtor(s); (b) prejudice in any manner the rights of such Debtor(s) or any other Entity; (c) constitute an admission, acknowledgement, offer, or undertaking of any sort by such Debtor or any other Entity; or (d) be used by the Debtors or any Entity as evidence (or in any other way) in any litigation, including with regard to the strengths or weaknesses of any of the parties' positions, arguments or claims. The revocation or withdrawal of the Plan with respect to one or more Debtors shall not require the resolicitation of the Plan with respect to the remaining Debtors.

ARTICLE XI
RETENTION OF JURISDICTION

Notwithstanding the entry of the Confirmation Order and the occurrence of the Effective Date, on and after the Effective Date, the Bankruptcy Court shall retain exclusive jurisdiction over all matters arising out of, or relating to, the Chapter 11 Cases, the Wind Down Estates, and the Plan pursuant to sections 105(a) and 1142 of the Bankruptcy Code, including jurisdiction to:

1. Allow, Disallow, determine, liquidate, classify, estimate, or establish the priority, secured or unsecured status, or amount of any Claim or Interest, including the resolution of any request for payment of any Administrative Claim and the resolution of any and all objections to the secured or unsecured status, priority, amount, or allowance of Claims or Interests;

2. decide and resolve all matters related to the granting and denying, in whole or in part, any applications for allowance of compensation or reimbursement of expenses to Professionals authorized pursuant to the Bankruptcy Code or the Plan;

3. resolve any matters related to: (a) the assumption, assumption and assignment, or rejection of any Executory Contract or Unexpired Lease to which a Debtor is party or with respect to which a Debtor may be liable and to hear, determine, and, if necessary, liquidate, any Claims arising therefrom; (b) any potential contractual obligation under any Executory Contract or Unexpired Lease that is assumed; and (c) any dispute regarding whether a contract or lease is or was executory or expired;

4. ensure that distributions to Holders of Allowed Claims and Allowed Interests are accomplished pursuant to the provisions of the Plan;

5. modify the Plan before or after the Effective Date pursuant to section 1127 of the Bankruptcy Code; modify the Confirmation Order or any contract, instrument, release or other agreement or document entered into or delivered in connection with the Plan, the Disclosure Statement or the Confirmation Order; or remedy any defect or omission or reconcile any inconsistency in any Bankruptcy Court order, the Plan, the Disclosure Statement, the Confirmation Order or any contract, instrument, release or other agreement or document entered into, delivered or created in connection with the Plan, the Disclosure Statement or the Confirmation Order, in such manner as may be necessary or appropriate to consummate the Plan;

6. adjudicate, decide, or resolve any motions, adversary proceedings, contested or litigated matters, and any other matters, and grant or deny any applications involving a Debtor that may be pending on the Effective Date;

7. adjudicate, decide, or resolve any and all matters related to Causes of Action by or against a Debtor;

8. adjudicate, decide, or resolve any and all matters related to sections 1141, 1145, or 1146 of the Bankruptcy Code;

9. enter and implement such orders as may be necessary to execute, implement, or consummate the provisions of the Plan and all contracts, instruments, releases, indentures, and other agreements or documents created in connection with the Plan or the Disclosure Statement;

10. resolve any cases, controversies, suits, disputes, or Causes of Action that may arise in connection with the Consummation, interpretation, or enforcement of the Plan or any Entity's obligations incurred in connection with the Plan;

11. issue injunctions, enter and implement other orders, or take such other actions as may be necessary to restrain interference by any Entity with Consummation or enforcement of the Plan;

IN RE:	CHAPTER 11
PETRA FUND REIT CORP., et al.,	CASE NO.
DEBTORS	(JOINT ADMINISTRATION REQUESTED)

AFFIDAVIT PURSUANT TO LOCAL RULE 1007-2

Lawrence Shelley, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1746, hereby declares the following under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America to the best of my knowledge, information and/or belief:

1. I am a Vice President and a member of the board of directors of Petra Fund REIT Corp. ("REIT"), a Maryland Corporation with principal place of business in New York State, New York County, which is part of an affiliated group of companies that includes Petra Offshore Fund L.P. ("Offshore Fund", and together with REIT, collectively, the "Debtors"), a Cayman Islands exempted limited partnership that does business in the State of New York, County of New York. In these capacities, I have knowledge of and experience with the business and financial affairs of the Debtors.

Local Rule 1007-2(a)(1) – Nature of the Business and Concise Statement of Circumstances Leading to Chapter 11

General Background

2. The Debtors, together with their affiliates (collectively, "Petra") are in the business of originating, investing in, structuring and trading loans secured by commercial real-estate.

3. Offshore Fund is an ultimate parent of REIT and substantially all of the assets of Offshore Fund are invested in REIT. REIT is a real-estate investment trust whose ultimate assets include investments in real-estate and real-estate debt instruments.

4. The extraordinary and unprecedented collapse of the credit and commercial real estate markets has severely impacted Petra causing the mark-to-market value of its assets to plummet. Financing and liquidity which was previously readily available through banks and the capital markets evaporated as banks de-levered and investors withdrew from the market.

5. This shift severely constrained and essentially ended the market for securitized debt, which had been a crucial source of financing for the commercial real estate market, of which REIT is a participant.

6. Petra suspended the publication of Net Asset Valuation beginning after the November 2008 valuations because current market conditions make it difficult to accurately reflect the value of REIT's commercial real-estate assets (and render prior valuations, particularly by creditors, likely over-inflated.)

7. As a result of this unprecedented financial crisis, Petra's loan portfolio deteriorated due to the collapse of the market for securitized debt and resulted in insufficient capital to meet the needs of existing owners who need to refinance their current debt.

8. Petra has worked diligently to negotiate with and satisfy its short-term lenders without violating the debt covenants on its long term debt and to maximize value for its investors.

9. For the past several years, Petra has made numerous attempts to negotiate with substantially all of its creditors in an effort to formulate a consensual restructuring. While certain of Petra's creditors were amenable to restructuring discussions and substantial progress was made toward finalizing various proposed transactions, progress was not made respecting other creditors. These negotiations were further complicated because several of Petra's assets are encumbered by liens and/or asserted liens or similar claims.

KBS Debt

10. One creditor with whom Petra could not reach resolution was KBS Preferred Holding I, LLC ("KBS").

11. Ultimately, KBS sued Debtors in New York state court to collect on its asserted debt, arising out of an unsecured loan extended to REIT. KBS obtained a judgment on this debt and has begun to commence enforcement proceedings and assert various rights as a judgment creditor.

12. Despite the procedural posture of the KBS transaction, Petra continued to attempt consensual negotiations with KBS, which were unsuccessful.

REIT and CDO Structure Required Bankruptcy Protection and Led to Filing

13. An important component of Petra is that its integrated structure qualifies for the tax and other financial benefits available to real estate investment trusts, which includes REIT's direct and indirect ownership of certain equity and debt interests in Petra CRE CDO 2007-1, Ltd. (the "CDO"). Ultimately, the CDO effectively provides financing for a substantial portion of Petra's real estate transactions The CDO, in turn, has several senior noteholders who are primarily substantial financial and similar institutions, which means that this case has broader potential social and societal ramifications.

14. By filing for bankruptcy protection, Debtors hope to implement a restructuring solution that is in the best interests of the Debtors and their estates. To the extent a creditor of the Debtors (all of whom are structurally subordinated to the CDO's senior noteholders) was able to interfere with the REIT qualified structure of the Petra enterprise and/or the CDO, there would be potentially devastating financial consequences for the investors and noteholders in the CDO and the underlying value of the entire enterprise would be substantially diminished, to the ultimate detriment of all involved, including the Debtors and their estates.

15. Moreover, among the pre-bankruptcy restructuring discussions entered into by Petra, REIT and a secured creditor holding a lien on REIT's indirect equity interest in the CDO formulated a deal in principle (set forth on the Plan Support Agreement, attached hereto as Exhibit A), which Debtors believe provides the best hope to generate value for all parties. This proposed transaction requires a bankruptcy filing for its implementation.

16. Below is a description of the other information required by Local Rule 1007-2.

Local Rule 1007-2(a)(2)

17. This case was not originally commenced under Chapter 7 or 13 of the Bankruptcy Code.

Local Rule 1007-2(a)(3)

18. To the Debtors' knowledge, no committee was organized prior to the filing of the case (although as noted above, a deal in principle was pre-negotiated with one of the largest creditors in the case, who also has a lien on one of Petra's assets.)

Local Rule 1007-2 (a)(4)

19. A consolidated list of Debtors' twenty largest unsecured creditors is annexed hereto as Schedule 1. There are fewer than twenty listed because the Debtors have fewer than twenty creditors, even on a consolidated basis. A summary of such creditors' claims as contingent, unliquidated or disputed is included in connection with REIT's separately filed consolidated list of twenty largest unsecured creditors. Additionally, several of the creditors listed are professionals who performed services for the Debtors, some of which fees may be voluntarily written off to the extent required by this Court if such professionals are retained on a post-petition basis. In connection with the proposed engagement, all unsatisfied pre-petition receivables owed to Debtors' general bankruptcy counsel, Dickstein Shapiro LLP, have been voluntarily waived, assuming the retention is approved.

Local Rule 1007-2 (a)(5)

20. A schedule of the Debtors' secured creditors is annexed hereto as Schedule 2.

Local Rule 1007-2 (a)(6)

21. A summary of the Debtors' assets and liabilities is annexed hereto as Schedule 3.

Local Rule 1007-2 (a)(7)

22. The Debtors do not have any publicly held shares of stock, debentures or other securities.

Local Rule 1007-2 (a)(8)

23. A list of the Debtors' assets held in the possession or custody of any custodian, creditor, public officer, mortgagee, pledgee, secured creditor or agent is annexed hereto as Schedule 4.

Local Rule 1007-2 (a)(9)

24. The Debtors operate their businesses from the location of 1370 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10019, but neither is the owner nor the tenant of such location.

Local Rule 1007-2 (a)(10)

25. The Debtors' substantial assets and their books and records are located at 1370 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10019. A summary of any assets held by Debtors outside the territorial limits of the United States is annexed as Schedule 5.

Local Rule 1007-2 (a)(11)

26. To the best of Debtors' knowledge, no actions are currently pending, but Debtors were both defendants in an action commenced by KBS in New York State Supreme Court, New York County, and a judgment was obtained against both Debtors and creditor enforcement remedies had been commenced.

Local Rule 1007-2 (a)(12)

27. The Debtors' senior management consists of Andrew Stone, Kenneth Kornblau, Lawrence Shelley, and Joseph Iacono. Each has been with the Debtors since their formation or nearly so, and each has substantial experience in commercial real estate and real estate finance.

Local Rule 1007-2 (b)(1)

28. The estimated payroll of Debtors to employees (exclusive of officers, directors, stockholders and partners) for the thirty days following the filing of the chapter 11 petitions is none, because Debtors have no employees.

Local Rule 1007-2 (b)(2)

29. The estimated payment during the thirty days following the Debtors' bankruptcy petitions to the Debtors' partners, directors, officers, etc. is none, and the estimated payment to the Debtors' management company during the thirty days following the Debtors' bankruptcy petitions is also none, although a portion of the pre-petition receivable owed to them constitutes services to be performed during that period, and the Debtor anticipates paying the management company its customary fees for post-petition services as an administrative expense when sufficient funds become available. The Debtors anticipate receiving sufficient funds to pay all administrative expenses, but currently have essentially no cash on hand.

Local Rule 1007-2 (b)(3)

30. Annexed as schedule 6 is the estimated schedule of cash receipts and disbursements for the thirty day period following the Debtors' bankruptcy filing, net cash gain or loss, and obligations and receivables expected to accrue but remain unpaid (other than professional fees).

Section 3. Commitments Regarding the Transactions.

3.1 Support for Restructuring

Subject to the terms and conditions of this Agreement, each of the Parties agrees and covenants that it shall: (i) consent to each and every commercially reasonable action contemplated or otherwise required to be taken to effectuate the Transactions, including executing any agreements or other documents necessary to effectuate the Transactions; (ii) take no actions inconsistent with the Transactions; and (iii) negotiate in good faith the definitive documentation contemplated by this Agreement or otherwise necessary to effectuate the Transactions, including, if necessary, the Plan.

3.2 Agreement to Vote.

(a) If Petra commences a Chapter 11 Case, as long as this Agreement has not been terminated in accordance with the terms hereof, each Plan Support Party agrees that it shall, subject to (i) the receipt by such Plan Support Party of a disclosure statement (the "Disclosure Statement") and other solicitation materials in respect of the Plan (together with the Disclosure Statement, the "Solicitation Materials"), which Solicitation Materials reflect the agreement set forth in the Term Sheet and have been approved by the Bankruptcy Court pursuant to section 1125 of the Bankruptcy Code and are in all material respects reasonably satisfactory to the Plan Support Party, (ii) the Plan Support Party's reasonable satisfaction with the Plan, Disclosure Statement, any pleadings or proposed orders related thereto, and any document that is appropriate or necessary to implement the Plan (collectively, the "Plan Documents"), and (iii) the Plan Support Party being entitled under such Plan to vote to accept or reject the Plan:

(i) vote its Claims (excluding, for the avoidance of doubt, the JPM REIT Collateral (as such term is defined in the Term Sheet)) to accept the Plan by delivering its duly executed and completed ballot accepting the Plan on a timely basis following the commencement of the Solicitation Period and its actual receipt of the Solicitation Materials and ballot;

(ii) not change or withdraw (or cause to be changed or withdrawn) such vote; and

(iii) not, in any material respect, (A) object to, delay, impede, or take any other action to interfere with acceptance or implementation of the Plan or (B) propose, file, support, or vote for any restructuring, workout, plan of arrangement, or plan of reorganization for the Company other than the Plan.

(b) For the avoidance of doubt, each Plan Support Party also agrees that, (i) unless this Agreement is terminated in accordance with the terms hereof, it will not take any action that would in any material respect interfere with, delay, or postpone the confirmation or consummation of the Plan and implementation of the Transactions and (ii) upon the commencement by the Company of the Chapter 11 Case and imposition of the automatic stay pursuant to section 362(a) of the Bankruptcy Code as a result thereof, each Plan Support Party agrees that, except as provided in the Agreement or the Term Sheet, it will not exercise any right or remedy for the enforcement, collection, or recovery of any of its Claims against the Company (or claims against the Company's direct or indirect subsidiaries arising out of or related to the Claims); provided, however, that, except as otherwise set forth in this Agreement, the foregoing prohibition will not limit any Plan Support Party's rights under any applicable indenture, credit agreement, other loan document, the Bankruptcy Code, or applicable law to (A) terminate, close out, liquidate or accelerate any "commodity contract", "forward contract", "securities contract", "repurchase agreement", "swap agreement", "master netting agreements" (each term as such term is defined in the Bankruptcy Code) or similar transaction with the Company to the extent the underlying agreement, the Bankruptcy Code or applicable law permits such termination or close-out or (B) to appear and participate as a party in interest in any matter to be adjudicated in any case under the Bankruptcy Code concerning the Company, so long as such appearance and the positions advocated in connection therewith are not materially inconsistent with the Plan and do not materially hinder, delay, or prevent consummation of the Transactions.

3.3 Commitment of Company. As long as this Agreement has not been terminated in accordance with the terms hereof, the Company shall (a) support and complete the Transactions embodied in the Term Sheet, and (b) do all things necessary and appropriate in furtherance of the Transactions embodied in the Term Sheet, including, without limitation, the following:

3.3.1 commence the Chapter 11 Case on or before August 31, 2009 (the "Outside Petition Date," and the actual commencement date, the "Petition Date");

3.3.2 file the Disclosure Statement and Plan, each of which shall be reasonably satisfactory to the Plan Support Parties, no later than 60 days after the Petition Date (the "Plan Filing Deadline") or such later date as may be agreed to in writing by the Company and JPM;

3.3.3 seek a hearing for approval of the Disclosure Statement no later than 15 days after the date on which the Disclosure Statement and Plan is filed;

3.3.4 submit an order with the Bankruptcy Court approving the Disclosure Statement in form and substance satisfactory to JPM (the "Disclosure Statement Order") no later than 5 days after conclusion of the hearing on the Disclosure Statement;

3.3.5 complete the solicitation of the requisite acceptances of the Plan in accordance with section 1125 of the Bankruptcy Code no later than 30 days after the entry of the Disclosure Statement Order (the "Solicitation Period");

3.3.6 seek a hearing on confirmation of the Plan no later than 45 days after entry of the Disclosure Statement Order; submit an order with the Bankruptcy Court confirming the Plan in form and substance satisfactory to JPM (the "Confirmation Order") no later than 5 days after conclusion of the hearing on confirmation of the Plan (the "Confirmation Deadline");

3.3.7 cause the effective date of the Plan (the "Plan Effective Date") to occur no later than 30 days following the entry of the Confirmation Order;

3.3.8 obtain any and all required regulatory and/or third-party approvals for the Transactions embodied in the Term Sheet; and

3.3.9 not take any action that is inconsistent with, or is intended or is likely to interfere with consummation of, the restructuring and the Transactions embodied in the Term Sheet.

3.4 Transfer of Interests and Securities. Except as expressly provided herein, this Agreement shall not in any way restrict the right or ability of any Consenting Creditor to sell, use, assign, transfer or otherwise dispose of ("Transfer") any of its Claims against the Company; provided, however, that for the period commencing as of the date such Consenting Creditor, as applicable, executes this Agreement until termination of this Agreement pursuant to the terms hereof (such period, the "Restricted Period"), no Consenting Creditor shall Transfer any Claims against the Company, and any purported Transfer of Claims against the Company shall be void and without effect, unless (a) the transferee is a Consenting Creditor or (b) if the transferee is not a Consenting Creditor prior to the Transfer, such transferee delivers to the Company, at or prior to the time of the proposed Transfer, an executed copy of Exhibit B attached hereto pursuant to which such Transferee shall assume all obligations of the Consenting Creditor transferor hereunder in respect of the Claims being transferred (such transferee, if any, to also be a "Consenting Creditor", as applicable, hereunder). This Agreement shall in no way be construed to preclude a Consenting Creditor from acquiring additional Claims; provided, however, that (a) any Consenting Creditor that acquires additional Claims after executing this Agreement shall notify the Company of such acquisition within five business days after the closing of such trade and (b) additional Claims shall automatically and immediately upon acquisition by a Consenting Creditor be deemed subject to all of the terms of this Agreement whether or not notice is given to the Company of such acquisition.

3.5 Representation of Each Consenting Creditor with respect to its Claims. Each Consenting Creditor severally and not jointly represents and warrants that, with respect to its Claims, as of the date such Consenting Creditor executes and delivers this Agreement:

(a) it is the beneficial owner of the face amount of the Claims (excluding, for the avoidance of doubt, the JPM REIT Collateral (as such term is defined in the Term Sheet)) , or is the nominee, investment manager, or advisor for beneficial holders of such Claims (excluding, for the avoidance of doubt, the JPM REIT Collateral (as such term is defined in the Term Sheet)), as reflected in such Consenting Creditor's signature block to this Agreement, which amount the Company and each Consenting Creditor understands and acknowledges is proprietary and confidential to such Consenting Creditor, except as reasonably determined by the Company to be necessary to be disclosed in a Chapter 11 Case;

(b) other than pursuant to this Agreement and, with respect to the secured portions of its Claims, applicable law, such Claims (excluding, for the avoidance of doubt, the JPM REIT Collateral (as such term is defined in the Term Sheet)) are free and clear of any pledge, lien, security interest, charge, claim, equity, option, proxy, voting restriction, right of first refusal or other limitation on disposition, or encumbrances of any kind, that would materially and adversely affect in any way such Consenting Creditor's performance of its obligations contained in this Agreement at the time such obligations are required to be performed; and

(c) it is not aware of any event that, due to any fiduciary or similar duty to any other person, or due to any regulatory or legal requirement, would prevent it from taking any material action required of it under this Agreement.

Section 4. Mutual Representations, Warranties, and Covenants. Each of the Parties, severally and not jointly, represents, warrants, and covenants to each other Party, as of the date of this Agreement, as follows (each of which is a continuing representation, warranty, and covenant):

4.1 Enforceability. It is validly existing and in good standing under the laws of the state or country of its organization, and this Agreement is a legal, valid, and binding obligation of such Party, enforceable against it in accordance with its terms, except as enforcement may be limited by applicable laws relating to or limiting creditor's rights generally or by equitable principles relating to enforceability.

4.2 No Consent or Approval. Except as expressly provided in this Agreement, or the Bankruptcy Code, as applicable, no consent or approval is required by any other person or entity in order for it to carry out the Transactions contemplated by, and perform the respective obligations under, this Agreement.

4.3 Power and Authority. Except as expressly provided in this Agreement, it has all requisite power and authority to enter into this Agreement and to carry out the Transactions contemplated by, and perform its respective obligations under, this Agreement.

4.4 Authorization. The execution and delivery of this Agreement and the performance of its obligations hereunder have been duly authorized by all necessary action on its part.

Section 5. Termination Events.

5.1 Consenting Creditor Termination Events. This Agreement (i) will automatically terminate if the Plan Effective Date has not occurred by January 30, 2010, and (ii) may be terminated by the delivery of notice in accordance with Section 7.11 hereof to the Company by JPM upon the occurrence of any of the following (each a "Consenting Creditor Termination Event"):

(a) failure of the Company to commence the Chapter 11 Case in accordance with Section 3.3.1 hereof;

(b) failure of the Company to file the Plan and Disclosure Statement in accordance with Section 3.3.2 hereof;

(c) any modification to the Plan or a subsequent chapter 11 plan filed by the Company with the Bankruptcy Court (or a chapter 11 plan supported or endorsed by the Company) to which JPM does not consent, which consent shall not be unreasonably withheld, or that is inconsistent with the terms and conditions set forth in the Term Sheet or this Agreement in a manner that is materially adverse to JPM;

(d) failure of the Disclosure Statement Order to have been entered in accordance with Section 3.3.4 hereof;

(e) failure of the Company to solicit the requisite acceptances of the Plan in accordance with Section 3.3.5 hereof;

(f) failure of the Confirmation Order to have been entered in accordance with Section 3.3.6 hereof;

(g) failure of the Plan Effective Date to occur in accordance with Section 3.3.7 hereof;

(h) the breach in any material respect by the Company of any of the obligations, representations, warranties, or covenants of the Company set forth in this Agreement; provided, however, that the Consenting Creditor (or Consenting Creditors, if applicable) shall transmit a notice to the Company detailing any such breach, and the Company shall have five business days after receiving such notice to cure any breach;

(i) the issuance, promulgation, announcement or adoption by any governmental agency, authority or legislative body, including any regulatory agency or authority or court of competent jurisdiction, of any law, ruling, decree, regulation or order (i) enjoining the consummation of a material portion of the Transactions in a way that cannot be reasonably remedied by the Company within five business days after receiving notice thereof or (ii) which, in the judgment of any Consenting Creditor, would have a material adverse effect on the Transactions or any material portion thereof;

(j) failure of REIT counsel to the Company, Sidley Austin LLP, to deliver a legal opinion in the form attached as Exhibit A to the Term Sheet in the manner contemplated by the Term Sheet, it being agreed and acknowledged by the parties hereto that the condition that such legal opinion be so delivered constitutes a material inducement for the Consenting Creditors agreement to enter into this Agreement, and in the absence of such condition, the Consenting Creditors would not have agreed to enter into this Agreement;

(k) the conversion of the Chapter 11 Case to a case under chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code, unless such conversion is made with the prior written consent of the Parties;

(l) the appointment of a trustee, receiver, or examiner with expanded powers in the Chapter 11 Case unless such appointment is made with the written consent of the Parties;

(m) the Chapter 11 Case is dismissed;

(n) the Confirmation Order is reversed on appeal or vacated;

(o) the Company files any motion or pleading with the Bankruptcy Court that is inconsistent in any material respect with this Agreement or the Term Sheet or, if filed, any of the Plan Documents;

(p) any court shall enter a final, non-appealable judgment or order declaring this Agreement or any material provision hereof to be unenforceable;

(q) the Company shall withdraw the Plan or publicly announce its intention not to support the Plan; or

(r) JPM obtains knowledge that any statement or information furnished by or on behalf of Petra to JPM regarding or relating to the performance of the Petra CDO (as such term is defined in the Term Sheet), the collateral manager under the Petra CDO or any collateral securing the Petra CDO contains any untrue statement of material fact or omits to state a material fact necessary in order to make such statement or information not misleading.

Notwithstanding any provision in this Agreement to the contrary, upon the written consent of JPM, the dates set forth in this Section may be extended prior to or upon each such date and such later dates agreed to in lieu thereof and shall be of the same force and effect as the dates provided herein. If this Agreement is terminated by JPM pursuant to this Section 5.1, this Agreement shall be automatically and simultaneously terminated as to any other Party that is a signatory to this Agreement and the Term Sheet shall be deemed null and void for all purposes. No Party shall terminate this Agreement if such Party is in breach of any provision hereof.

5.2 Company Termination Events. The Company may terminate this Agreement as to all Parties upon five business days' prior written notice, upon the occurrence of any of the following events (each, a "Company Termination Event"): (a) the breach by any Plan Support Party of any of the representations, warranties, or covenants of such Plan Support Party set forth in this Agreement that would have a material adverse impact on the Company, or the consummation of the Transactions, that remains uncured for a period of five business days after the receipt by the Plan Support Party of notice of such breach; (b) the directors, officers, or managers of the Company reasonably determine based upon the written advice of counsel (which shall be provided in advance to the Consenting Creditors) that proceeding with the Transactions would be inconsistent with the exercise of its fiduciary duties, or (c) the issuance, promulgation, announcement or adoption by any governmental agency, authority or legislative body, including any regulatory agency or authority or court of competent jurisdiction, of any law, ruling, decree, regulation or order enjoining the consummation of a material portion of the Transactions in a way that cannot be reasonably remedied by the Company or a Consenting Creditor within five business days after receiving notice thereof.

5.3 Mutual Termination. This Agreement, and the obligations of all Parties hereunder, may be terminated by mutual agreement among (a) the Company and (b) JPM.

5.4 Effect of Termination. Upon termination of this Agreement under Section 5.1, 5.2, or 5.3, this Agreement shall be of no further force and effect and each Party hereto shall be released from its commitments, undertakings, and agreements under or related to this Agreement and shall have the rights and remedies that it would have had had it not entered into this Agreement, and shall be entitled to take all actions, whether with respect to the Transactions or otherwise, that it would have been entitled to take had it not entered into this Agreement. Upon the occurrence of any termination of this Agreement, any and all consents tendered by the Plan Support Party (or Plan Support Parties, as applicable) prior to such termination shall be deemed, for all purposes, to be null and void from the first instance and shall not be considered or otherwise used in any manner by the Parties in connection with the Transactions and this Agreement or otherwise.

5.5 Termination Upon Effectiveness. This Agreement shall terminate automatically without any further required action or notice on the Plan Effective Date.

Section 6. Effectiveness; Amendments. This Agreement, including the Term Sheet, may not be modified, amended, or supplemented (except as expressly provided herein or therein) except in writing signed by all Parties.

Section 7. Miscellaneous.

7.1 Further Assurances. Subject to the other terms of this Agreement, the Parties agree to execute and deliver such other instruments and perform such acts, in addition to the matters herein specified, as may be reasonably appropriate or necessary, from time to time, to effectuate the Transactions, as applicable.

7.2 Complete Agreement. This Agreement is the entire agreement between the Parties with respect to the subject matter hereof and supersedes all prior agreements, oral or written, between the Parties with respect thereto. No claim of waiver, modification, consent, or acquiescence with respect to any provision of this Agreement shall be made against any Party, except on the basis of a written instrument executed by or on behalf of such Party.

7.3 Parties. This Agreement shall be binding upon, and inure to the benefit of, the Parties. No rights or obligations of any Party under this Agreement may be assigned or transferred to any other person or entity except as provided in Section 3.4 hereof. Nothing in this Agreement, express or implied, shall give to any person or entity, other than the Parties, any benefit or any legal or equitable right, remedy, or claim under this Agreement.

7.4 Headings. The headings of all sections of this Agreement are inserted solely for the convenience of reference and are not a part of and are not intended to govern, limit, or aid in the construction or interpretation of any term or provision hereof.

7.5 GOVERNING LAW; SUBMISSION TO JURISDICTION; SELECTION OF FORUM; WAIVER OF TRIAL BY JURY. THIS AGREEMENT, TOGETHER WITH ANY CLAIMS, CONTROVERSIES OR DISPUTES ARISING UNDER OR RELATED TO THIS AGREEMENT, ARE TO BE GOVERNED BY AND CONSTRUED IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE LAWS OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK APPLICABLE TO CONTRACTS MADE AND TO BE PERFORMED IN SUCH STATE, WITHOUT GIVING EFFECT TO THE CONFLICT OF LAWS PRINCIPLES THEREOF. Each Party hereto agrees that it shall bring any action or proceeding in respect of any claim arising out of or related to this Agreement, to the extent possible, in either the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York or any New York State court sitting in New York City (the "Chosen Courts"), and solely in connection with claims arising under this Agreement (a) irrevocably submits to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Chosen Courts, (b) waives any objection to laying venue in any such action or proceeding in the Chosen Courts, and (c) waives any objection that the Chosen Courts are an inconvenient forum or do not have jurisdiction over any Party hereto; provided, however, that if the Company commences the Chapter 11 Case, then the Bankruptcy Court shall be the sole Chosen Court. Each party hereto irrevocably waives any and all right to trial by jury in any legal proceeding arising out of or relating to this Agreement or the transactions contemplated hereby.

7.6 Execution of Agreement. This Agreement may be executed and delivered (by facsimile, electronic mail, or otherwise) in any number of counterparts, each of which, when executed and delivered, shall be deemed an original, and all of which together shall constitute the same agreement. Except as expressly provided in this Agreement, each individual executing this Agreement on behalf of a Party has been duly authorized and empowered to execute and deliver this Agreement on behalf of said Party.

7.7 Interpretation. This Agreement is the product of negotiations between the Company and the Consenting Creditor, and in the enforcement or interpretation hereof, is to be interpreted in a neutral manner, and any presumption with regard to interpretation for or against any Party by reason of that Party having drafted or caused to be drafted this Agreement, or any portion hereof, shall not be effective in regard to the interpretation hereof.

7.8 Successors and Assigns. This Agreement is intended to bind and inure to the benefit of the Parties and their respective successors, assigns, heirs, executors, administrators, and representatives, other than a trustee or similar representative appointed in a bankruptcy case. The Company shall not assign any of its rights or obligations under this Agreement to any person or entity without the prior written consent of JPM, and any attempt by the Company to assign any of its rights or obligations under this Agreement without the prior written consent of JPM shall be null and void.

7.9 Creditors' Committee. Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary, if any Consenting Creditor is appointed to and serves on an official committee of creditors in the Chapter 11 Case, the terms of this Agreement shall not be construed so as to limit such Consenting Creditor's exercise (in its sole discretion) of its fiduciary duties to any person arising from its service on such committee, and any such exercise (in the sole discretion of such Consenting Creditor) of such fiduciary duties shall not be deemed to constitute a breach of the terms of this Agreement; provided, however, that nothing in this Agreement shall be construed as requiring any Consenting Creditor to serve on any official committee in any such Chapter 11 Case.

7.10 Relationship Among Parties. It is understood and agreed that no Plan Support Party has any fiduciary duty or other duty of trust or confidence in any form with any other Plan Support Party, and, except as provided in this Agreement, there are no commitments among or between them.

7.11 Notices. All notices hereunder shall be deemed given if in writing and delivered, if sent by telecopy, electronic mail, courier, or registered or certified mail (return receipt requested) to the following addresses and telecopier numbers (or at such other addresses or telecopier numbers as shall be specified by like notice):

The Company will afford the Plan Support Party and its respective attorneys, consultants, accountants, and other authorized representatives reasonable access, upon reasonable notice during normal business hours, to all properties, books, contracts, commitments, records, management personnel, lenders, and advisors of the Company; provided, however, that the Company's obligation hereunder shall be conditioned upon such Plan Support Party being party to an executed confidentiality agreement approved by and with the Company.

7.13 Waiver. Except as expressly provided in this Agreement, nothing herein is intended to, or does, in any manner waive, limit, impair, or restrict any right of any Party to protect and preserve its rights, remedies, and interests, including, without limitation, its claims against the Company. If the Transactions are not consummated, or if this Agreement is terminated for any reason (other than Section 5.5 hereof), the Parties fully reserve any and all of their rights. Pursuant to Federal Rule of Evidence 408 and any other applicable rules of evidence, this Agreement and all negotiations relating hereto shall not be admissible into evidence in any proceeding other than a proceeding to enforce its terms, or as reasonably necessary or appropriate to be disclosed in a Chapter 11 Case.

7.14 Specific Performance; Limitation on Damages. It is understood and agreed by the Parties that money damages would be an insufficient remedy for any breach of this Agreement by any Party and each non-breaching Party shall be entitled to specific performance and injunctive or other equitable relief as a remedy of any such breach, including, without limitation, an order of the Bankruptcy Court or other court of competent jurisdiction requiring any Party to comply promptly with any of its obligations hereunder; provided, however, that this provision shall in no way act to prevent a Party from seeking monetary damages to which it is otherwise entitled in addition to the specific performance and equitable relief described herein. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary set forth herein, the Parties hereby consent and agree that no Party shall be liable for any indirect, special, consequential or punitive damages whatsoever (included but not limited to lost profits) arising out of or relating to this Agreement, the Term Sheet or the Transaction, even if such Party has been informed of the likelihood thereof and regardless of the form of action.

7.15 Several, Not Joint, Obligations. The agreements, representations, and obligations of the Parties under this Agreement are, in all respects, several and not joint.

7.16 Remedies Cumulative. All rights, powers, and remedies provided under this Agreement or otherwise available in respect hereof at law or in equity shall be cumulative and not alternative, and the exercise of any right, power, or remedy thereof by any Party shall not preclude the simultaneous or later exercise of any other such right, power, or remedy by such Party.

7.17 No Third-Party Beneficiaries. Unless expressly stated herein, this Agreement shall be solely for the benefit of the Parties, and no other person or entity shall be a third-party beneficiary hereof.

Section 8. Disclosure. The Company shall publicly disclose (a) the existence of this Agreement and the material terms of the Term Sheet in a filing with the Bankruptcy Court on the Petition Date and (b) any material amendment to this Agreement and the Term Sheet in a filing with the Bankruptcy Court following the effective date of such amendment, each in form and substance reasonably acceptable to the Parties. The Company will provide to counsel for the Parties all press releases and filings relating to the Chapter 11 Case, this Agreement, the Term Sheet, or the transactions contemplated hereby and thereby and any amendments thereof, in each case, in advance of the public disclosure of any such press release or filing. To the extent that the Company fails to make such initial disclosure within five business days following the Agreement Effective Date or the effective date of any amendment hereto, the Consenting Creditor shall have the right, but not the obligation, to disclose such terms publicly. The Company shall not (a) use the name of any Plan Support Party in any press release without such Plan Support Party's prior written consent or (b) disclose to any person other than legal and financial advisors to the Company the principal amount or percentage of any notes or any other securities of the Company or any of their respective subsidiaries held by any Party, except as reasonably necessary or appropriate to do so in connection with a Chapter 11 Case.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the Parties have executed this Agreement on the day and year first above written.

Petra Fund REIT Corp. Restructuring Term Sheet

July 30, 2009

Summary of Principal Terms of Proposed Restructuring Agreement

Please note that this term sheet (the "Term Sheet") is for discussion purposes only and sets forth terms and conditions that, other than as set forth in that certain Plan Support Agreement dated as of July 30, 2009, are non-binding in all respects and may or may not become part of a definitive agreement. The Term Sheet is not based on an existing agreement between the relevant parties and is not intended to impose any obligation whatsoever on any party. This Term Sheet is not to be construed as a commitment, offer, agreement-in-principle or other agreement or understanding of any kind by any party to any term or condition set forth herein.

Entity to be Restructured: Petra Fund REIT Corp. ("Debtor")

Parties:
Bear, Stearns Funding, Inc. ("JPM")
The Royal Bank of Scotland plc ("RBS")
General unsecured creditors ("GUCs")
Sponsors of the Debtor (the "Sponsors")

Transaction Summary: The restructuring will occur through a pre-packaged or pre-negotiated liquidating plan of reorganization (the "Plan") to be filed in the Debtor's voluntary chapter 11 case under the Bankruptcy Code (the "Case") for the Debtor before the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York (the "Court"), culminating in the confirmation of the Plan, the material terms and conditions of which are set forth in this Term Sheet.

Assumptions: For the purposes of this Term Sheet, it is assumed that the present fair market value of the JPM REIT Collateral (as defined below) is less than the amount of JPM's secured claims.

Existing Claims and Interests:

JPM: Secured claims secured by (i) those certain Class K Notes due 2047, in the original principal amount of $32,500,000 (the "Class K Notes") issued by the co-issuers in connection with the Petra CRE CDO 2007-1 (the "Petra CDO") and (ii) those certain Preferred Shares in the aggregate original notional amount of $130,000,000 issued by the issuer in connection with the Petra CDO (collectively, with the Class K Notes, the "JPM REIT Collateral"), and unsecured deficiency claims. JPM has foreclosed or otherwise exercised its available remedies with respect to certain of its collateral other than the JPM REIT Collateral (the "JPM Repo Collateral") arising under the repurchase agreement between JPM and Debtor.

RBS: Secured claims secured by those certain (i) Class F Notes due 2047, in the original principal amount of $33,000,000, (ii) Class G Notes due 2047, in the original principal amount of $20,000,000, and (iii) Class J Notes due 2047, in the original principal amount of $42,500,000, each issued by the co-issuers in connection with the Petra CDO (collectively, the "RBS REIT Collateral" and, together with the JPM REIT Collateral, the "REIT Collateral"), and unsecured deficiency claims. RBS has foreclosed and otherwise exercised its available remedies, and continues to exercise its remedies, with respect to its collateral other than the RBS REIT Collateral (the "RBS Repo Collateral") arising under one or more repurchase agreements between RBS (or its affiliates) and Debtor.

GUCs: General unsecured claims.

Bankruptcy Administration:

- JPM will consent, on terms reasonably satisfactory to JPM, to the entry of a "cash collateral" or similar order that provides for the release to Debtor of those proceeds from the JPM Collateral necessary to satisfy ongoing administrative and priority expenses of the Debtor in the Case, including but not limited to (i) payment to Petra Capital Management LLC (the "New REIT Collateral Manager") of any monthly fees payable based on the same calculation as the New REIT Management Fees (as defined below), (ii) payment of all professional fees approved by the Bankruptcy Court, (iii) payment of all expenses or fees authorized or required by the Bankruptcy Court or applicable law, including the Bankruptcy Code or federal or local rules or procedures that govern cases within the Bankruptcy Court, and (iv) payment of any claims or expenses necessary or appropriate to support confirmation or consummation of the Plan.

Plan Mechanics:

- Debtor and/or Sponsors shall form and/or cause the formation of (along with the additional required number of stockholders) the following three companies: (i) Newco 1; (ii) Newco 2; and (iii) Newco 3. Newco 3 shall be a new real estate investment trust (the "New REIT"), and shall own 100% of the equity interests of both Newco 1 and Newco 2, each of which shall be treated as a Qualified REIT Subsidiary, Newco 1 shall own 100% of the equity interests of Petra PS SPV Corp and Petra PS SPV Corp shall continue to own the JPM REIT Collateral.

- Debtor shall (i) transfer (a) the JPM REIT Collateral, subsequent to the release of the existing liens held by JPM, and (b) all of the Debtor's shares of Petra PS SPV Corp. (a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Debtor), to Newco 1; and (ii) transfer the RBS REIT Collateral to Newco 2, subject to a lien in an amount equal to the current value of the RBS REIT Collateral, as determined by the Bankruptcy Court. The transfer of the REIT Collateral by Debtor shall be conditioned upon the delivery of an opinion of REIT counsel of the Debtor (Sidley Austin LLP), addressed to JPM, in the form attached as Exhibit A hereto, that the New REIT will qualify as a REIT, and that during and following the transfer of the REIT Collateral to the New REIT or its subsidiaries, the issuer under the Petra CDO will continue to be treated as a Qualified REIT Subsidiary.

- The organizational documents of the New REIT shall provide for the issuance of one class of common stock (the "Common Stock"), the holders of which shall be identified in the Plan. In addition, the New REIT shall issue to at least ninety-nine additional stockholders (identified by Debtor in the Plan, in order to comply with the REIT rules under the federal tax code) Class P preferred stock (the "Class P Preferred Stock").

- Promptly following each "Payment Date" under the Petra CDO indenture, New REIT shall distribute all cash (whether constituting interest proceeds, principal proceeds or any other proceeds) received by it either directly or indirectly in connection with such Payment Date in respect of the JPM REIT Collateral, other than and subject to (i) any amounts applied to the payment of the New REIT Management Fees (as defined below) and (ii) any amounts reserved or allocated for distribution to the holders of the Class P Preferred Stock to comply with the REIT rules under the federal tax code (the "JPM REIT Collateral Cash Flow"), to the holders of the JPM Debt (as defined below). The JPM REIT Collateral Cash Flow shall be distributed to the holders of the JPM Debt on a monthly basis.

- Promptly following each "Payment Date" under the Petra CDO indenture, New REIT shall distribute all cash (whether constituting interest proceeds, principal proceeds or any other proceeds) received by it either directly or indirectly in connection with such Payment Date in respect of the RBS REIT Collateral (the "RBS REIT Collateral Cash Flow"), to the holders of the RBS Debt (as defined below). Notwithstanding the foregoing, in the event RBS makes a 1111(b) Election (as defined below), New REIT shall distribute to RBS an annual amount equal to the amount needed to satisfy that year's obligation under the 1111(b) Note (as defined below), with any remaining RBS REIT Collateral Cash Flow being distributed to New REIT for distribution to the holders of the Common Stock.

- For the avoidance of doubt, all New REIT Management Fees payable to the New REIT Collateral Manager in accordance with the New Management Agreement (as defined below) shall be payable on a non-cumulative basis and shall be deducted from the related JPM REIT Collateral Cash Flows before such JPM REIT Collateral Cash Flows are distributed to the holders of the JPM Debt in accordance with the preceding paragraphs.

- New REIT shall issue a debt instrument for the repayment of Debtor's reduced indebtedness to JPM in the outstanding principal amount of $14,598,737.00 (the "JPM Debt"). The JPM Debt will be non-recourse debt secured only by a perfected first-priority lien on, and payable solely from proceeds of, New REIT's shares of Newco 1. The Newco 1 shares shall be delivered to an escrow agent of national reputation mutually acceptable to JPM and Debtor (the "Escrow Agent") pursuant to the related escrow agreement (the "Escrow Agreement"). The Escrow Agreement shall provide that so long as any JPM Debt remains outstanding, the Escrow Agent shall receive and distribute the JPM REIT Collateral Cash Flow to JPM in reduction of the JPM Debt. Upon the repayment of the JPM Debt in full, the Escrow Agent shall be instructed to release the Newco 1 shares to New REIT, and all liens in favor of JPM relating thereto shall be released.

- New REIT shall issue a debt instrument for the repayment of Debtor's reduced indebtedness to RBS in the outstanding principal amount of the then current value of the RBS REIT Collateral at the time of confirmation of the Plan, as then determined by and approved by the Bankruptcy Court (the "RBS Debt"). Notwithstanding the foregoing, in the event RBS makes an election under Section 1111(b) of the Bankruptcy Code to have its claims and the RBS REIT Collateral treated in accordance therewith (the "1111(b) Election"), (i) the RBS Debt shall be in the face amount of the total outstanding claims held by RBS against the Debtor at the time of confirmation of the Plan, regardless of the current value of the RBS REIT Collateral, but (ii) the debt instrument governing the payment of such RBS Debt (the "1111(b) Note") shall be calculated and structured such that the annual payments to RBS shall be limited to an amount such that the net present value of the total aggregate payments under the entirety of the 1111(b) Note are no greater than the current value of the RBS REIT Collateral at the time of confirmation of the Plan, as approved by the Bankruptcy Court. The RBS Debt will be non-recourse debt secured only by, and payable solely from proceeds of, the continuing lien of RBS on the RBS REIT Collateral. The RBS REIT Collateral shall be delivered to the Escrow Agent pursuant to the Escrow Agreement. The Escrow Agreement shall provide that so long as any RBS Debt remains outstanding, the Escrow Agent shall receive and distribute RBS's allocation specified above of the RBS REIT Collateral Cash Flow to RBS in reduction of the RBS Debt. Upon the repayment of the RBS Debt in full, the Escrow Agent shall be instructed to release the RBS REIT Collateral to Newco 2, and all liens in favor of RBS relating thereto shall be released.

- The New REIT shall enter into a management agreement with the New REIT Collateral Manager on terms similar to that certain existing Investment Management Agreement (the "New Management Agreement"), and the Sponsors shall cause the New REIT Collateral Manager to continue to diligently manage the assets of the New REIT in the best interests of its stockholders. On any date on which JPM REIT Collateral Cash Flow is payable to the holders of the JPM Debt, the New REIT shall also pay to the New REIT Collateral Manager a management fee (the "New REIT Management Fees"), as compensation for the ongoing management of the assets of the New REIT by the New REIT Collateral Manager in an amount, if any, equal to the sum of: (i) an amount up to the first $150,000 of JPM REIT Collateral Cash Flow on such date that is attributable to the Petra CDO Preferred Shares on such date (or such lesser amount of JPM REIT Collateral Cash Flow, if any, that is attributable to the Petra CDO Preferred Shares on such date) plus (ii) if the total JPM REIT Collateral Cash Flow is greater than $500,000 (including the amount described in the preceding clause (i)), 7.5% of the total JPM REIT Collateral Cash Flow on such date (other than the amount up to $150,000 described in the preceding clause (i)), up to an aggregate cap of $250,000.[1]

Proposed Treatment of Existing Claims and Interests:

- JPM's secured and unsecured claims to be exchanged for the JPM Debt, secured by a pledge by New REIT of the shares of Newco 1.
- RBS's claims to be bifurcated into a secured and unsecured portion, with the unsecured portion treated as part of the GUCs and the secured portion to be subject to "cram down" under Section 1129(b) of the Bankruptcy Code, exchanged for the RBS Debt, secured by a continuing lien on the RBS REIT Collateral.
- The GUCs shall receive a distribution from the remainder of the assets of Debtor's estate.
- All equity interests in Debtor are to be extinguished and the Debtor will be liquidated.
- Debtor and New REIT shall use all commercially reasonable efforts, and take such actions as are requested by JPM or are necessary, to effectuate the full transfer of all JPM Repo Collateral to JPM.

[1]Please note that the structure and proposed organizational document provisions are subject to Sidley Austin tax review in all respects.

Re: Restructuring of Petra Fund REIT Corp.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

We have acted as special U.S. federal income tax counsel to Petra CRE CDO 2007-1, Ltd., (the "CDO"), Petra Fund REIT Corp. (the "Old REIT") and New Petra Fund REIT Corp. (the "New REIT") in connection with the restructuring (the "Restructuring") of Old REIT and the transfer of interests in and assets of Old REIT and CDO to New REIT pursuant to the Plan filed under the Case with the Court. All terms not otherwise defined herein have the meaning assigned to them in the Restructuring Agreement. [1]

[1] The agreement that will embody the details of the plan of restructuring, including the issuance of the RBS Debt and the JPM Debt (together with any stock issued in the restructuring, the "Securities").

SIDLEY AUSTIN LLP

In rendering our opinion, we have reviewed (1) the Restructuring Agreement, (2) a certificate containing certain factual representations and covenants of New REIT (the "Officers' Certificate"), and (3) such other documentation or information provided to us by you as we have deemed necessary or appropriate as a basis for our opinion set forth herein (the Restructuring Agreement, the Officer's Certificate and such other documents, together, the "Transaction Documents").

For purposes of our opinion, we have not independently verified all of the facts, representations and covenants set forth in the Transactions Documents. We have assumed and relied on your representation that the information presented in the Transaction Documents accurately and completely describes all material facts relevant to the Restructuring and our opinion. We have assumed that such statements, representations and covenants are true without regard to any qualification as to knowledge or belief. Our opinion is conditioned on, among other things, the initial and continuing accuracy of the facts, information, covenants and representations set forth in the Transaction Documents and the statements and representations made by representatives of the New REIT, without regard to any qualifications therein.

Our opinion is also based on the correctness of the following assumptions: (i) since the formation of the CDO and immediately prior to the Restructuring, the Old REIT has retained beneficial ownership of 100% of the "equity" (as that term is used for U.S. federal income tax purposes) in the CDO, (ii) the Old REIT will continue to qualify as a real estate investment trust (a "REIT") under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code") through the last day of its taxable year (including any short taxable year) ending in 2009, (iii) the New REIT will file with its return for its taxable year ending December 31, 2009 an election to be a REIT (iv) the first day of the 2009 taxable year of the New REIT (including any short taxable year) will occur on or before the last day of the Old REIT's 2009 taxable year, (v) the New REIT and any of its affiliates have been and will continue to be operated in accordance with the laws of the jurisdictions in which they were formed and in the manner described in the relevant organizational documents, (vi) there will be no changes in the applicable laws of the State of Maryland or of any other jurisdiction under the laws of which any such entity has been formed, and (vii) each of the written agreements to which the New REIT or any such entity is a party will be implemented, construed and enforced in accordance with its terms.

In rendering our opinion, we have also considered the applicable provisions of the Code, the Treasury Regulations promulgated thereunder, judicial decisions, administrative rulings and other applicable authorities, in each case as in effect on the date hereof. The statutory provisions, regulations, decisions, rulings and other authorities on which this opinion is based are subject to change, and such changes could apply retroactively.

In our examination, we have assumed the legal capacity of all natural persons, the genuineness of all signatures, the authenticity of all documents submitted to us as originals, the conformity to original documents of all documents submitted to us as certified, conformed, or photostatic copies, and the authenticity of the originals of such copies.

This opinion shall not be construed as or deemed to be a guaranty or insuring agreement. Opinions of counsel represent only counsel's best legal judgment and are not binding on the Internal Revenue Service (the "IRS") or on any court. Accordingly, no assurance can be given that the IRS will not challenge the conclusions of the opinion set forth herein or that such a challenge would not be successful.

* * * *

To comply with certain Treasury regulations, we inform you that this opinion was not intended or written to be used, and cannot be used, by any person for the purpose of avoiding U.S. federal tax penalties.

* * * *

Based on and subject to the foregoing, we are of the opinion that:

(1) Commencing with New REIT's taxable year ending December 31, 2009, the New REIT will be organized in conformity with the requirements for qualification as a REIT under the Code and the New REIT's proposed method of operation as described in the Officer's Certificate will enable the New REIT to continue to meet the requirements for qualification and taxation as a REIT under the Code.

(2) During and following the steps required by the Restructuring Agreement, including any transfers of assets and the issuance of the Securities, the CDO will not cease to be a "qualified REIT subsidiary" ("QRS") under section 856(i) of the Code and as such, the CDO will not be treated as a separate corporation from the New REIT.

Other than as expressly stated above, we express no opinion on any issue relating to the Old REIT, the New REIT, the CDO or to any investment therein or under any other law. Furthermore, the New REIT's qualification as a REIT, and the CDO's qualification as a QRS, will depend upon the New REIT meeting, in its actual operations, the applicable asset composition (including the New REIT's continuing, beneficial ownership of 100% of the "equity" in the CDO following the Restructuring), source of income, shareholder diversification, distribution and other requirements of the Code and Treasury Regulations necessary for a corporation to qualify as a REIT. We will not review these operations and no assurance can be given that the actual operations of the New REIT and any of its affiliates will meet these requirements or the representations made to us with respect thereto.

This opinion has been prepared for you in connection with the Restructuring. This opinion is rendered as of the date hereof and we undertake no obligation to update this opinion or advise you of any changes in the event there is any change in legal authorities, facts, assumptions or documents on which this opinion is based (including the taking of any action by any party to the Transaction Documents pursuant to any opinion of counsel or a waiver), or any inaccuracy in any of the representations, warranties or assumptions upon which we have relied in rendering this opinion unless we are specifically engaged to do so. This opinion is rendered only to those to whom it is addressed and may not be relied on in connection with any transactions other than the transactions contemplated herein. This opinion may not be relied upon for any other purpose, or relied upon by any other person, firm or corporation for any purpose, without our prior written consent.

Very truly yours,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

IN RE: PETRA FUND REIT CORP., et al., DEBTORS.	CHAPTER 11 CASE NO. 10-15500 (SCC) JOINTLY ADMINISTERED

(vi) the pleadings and other documentation filed by the Debtors in support of confirmation of the Plan (collectively, the "Debtors' Confirmation Pleadings"), all of which were admitted into evidence without objection as part of the record at the Confirmation Hearing, including:

A. Certification of Brian E. Goldberg with respect to the Mailing of Solicitation Packages and Certain Other Notices Sent to Other Parties in Interest (docket # 229) (the "Solicitation Certification");

E. Supplemental Declaration of Lawrence Shelley in Support of Second Amended Plan of Reorganization of Debtors and Debtors in Possession, dated February 24, 2012 (docket # 254) (the "Supplemental Shelley Confirmation Declaration"); and

F. the Auction Procedures Letter Certification;

this Court having considered the docket in the Chapter 11 Cases (including but not limited to the Examiner Reports); this Court being familiar with the Plan and the other relevant factors affecting these Chapter 11 Cases pending under the Bankruptcy Code; this Court having found that due and proper notice has been given with respect to the Confirmation Hearing and the deadlines and procedures for filing objections to the Plan; the appearance of all interested parties (including the party asserting an Objection) having been duly noted in the record of the Confirmation Hearing; and upon the record of the Confirmation Hearing (which is incorporated herein by reference), and after due deliberation thereon, and sufficient cause appearing therefor;

IT IS HEREBY FOUND AND CONCLUDED THAT:[2]

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

A. The Bankruptcy Court has jurisdiction over this matter and these Chapter 11 Cases pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1334.

B. Confirmation of the Plan is a core proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157, and the Bankruptcy Court has jurisdiction to enter a final order with respect thereto.[3]

C. Venue is proper before the Bankruptcy Court pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409.

D. The Debtors are proper Debtors under section 109 of the Bankruptcy Code, and the Debtors are proper proponents of the Plan under section 1121(a) of the Bankruptcy Code.

E. The Chapter 11 Cases were filed in good faith and not for any improper purpose.[4]

F. There are no unsatisfied conditions precedent for entry of this Order that were not properly waived.

COMPLIANCE WITH STANDARDS FOR CONFIRMATION UNDER SECTION 1129 OF THE BANKRUPTCY CODE

G. Burden of Proof. Each of the Debtors, as proponents of the Plan, has met its burden of proving the standards of sections 1129(a) and 1129 (b) of the Bankruptcy Code by a preponderance of the evidence, which is the applicable evidentiary standard in the Bankruptcy Court.

H. Bankruptcy Rule 3016(a). The plan is dated and identifies the Debtors as the Plan proponents, thereby satisfying Bankruptcy Rule 3016(a).

I. Plan compliance with Bankruptcy Code (1129(a)(1)). The Plan complies with each applicable provision of the Bankruptcy Code. In particular, the Plan complies with the requirements of sections 1122 and 1123 of the Bankruptcy Code with respect to both mandatory and permitted contents of a plan, including but not limited to, (i) provisions

[2] This order shall constitute the Court's findings of fact and conclusions of law in accordance with Bankruptcy Rule 7052, and to the extent necessary, determinations denominated as findings of fact may be considered to be conclusions of law and determinations denominated as conclusions of law may be considered to be findings of fact.

[3] In accordance with the Amended Standing Order of Reference of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, dated January 31, 2012 (12 Misc. 00032), this order may be considered to be proposed findings and conclusions, to the extent necessary.

[4] In this Court's discussion and findings herein related to whether the Plan was proposed in good faith, there are additional specific findings and conclusions that further support the determination that the Chapter 11 Cases were filed in good faith.

for classification, impairment/unimpairment and treatment of Creditors and holders of Equity Interests (including distribution provisions) are reasonable and proper under the circumstances of the Chapter 11 Cases and represent the result of good faith negotiations, (ii) there are adequate means for implementation of the Plan, (iii) the provisions for issuance of equity interests for Reorganized Petra and the selection of its officers and directors are proper and appropriate under the circumstances of the Chapter 11 Cases and are consistent with public policy and in the best interests of the creditors and equity security holders, (iv) the Plan includes provisions relating to assumption and rejection of executory contracts and unexpired leases, which are reasonable and proper under the circumstances; (v) all provisions (including the sale and auction procedures and release and exculpation and related provisions[5]) not expressly addressed by section 1123 are proper and not inconsistent with applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code; and (vi) Sections 1123(c) and (d) are inapplicable to this case because (a) these cases do not relate to individual personal bankruptcies and (b) the Debtors did not assume or assign any executory contracts or unexpired leases[6], respectively, although the Plan did provide appropriate procedures for establishing cure amounts if any such contracts had been assumed or assigned.

J. Debtors' Compliance with the Bankruptcy Code (11 U.S.C. §1129(a)(2)). The Debtors have complied with all applicable provisions of the Bankruptcy Code, with respect to the Plan and the solicitation of acceptances or rejections thereof. In particular, Sections 1125 and 1126 of the Bankruptcy Code have been satisfied, because among other things, (a) this Court has concluded that the Disclosure Statement contained "adequate information" as that term is used in the Bankruptcy Code, (b) the Solicitation Certification, the Voting Certification and the Auction Procedures Letter Certification demonstrate that the Plan and Disclosure Statement and related notices and other materials (collectively, the "Solicitation Materials") were distributed in a manner giving due and sufficient notice to all creditors, equity holders and/or other parties in interest of their rights to vote (as applicable) and of the objection deadlines and Confirmation Hearing and other applicable deadlines, (c) due and sufficient notice of the Confirmation Hearing was given, and (d) Debtors have received accepting votes from all of the creditors in Classes 1 and 1A under the Plan.

K. Plan proposed in Good Faith (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(3)). The Plan has been proposed in good faith and not by any means forbidden by law, and complies with section 1129(a)(3). The cases were filed and the Plan was ultimately proposed to try to maximize the value of the Debtors' estates for the benefit of the Debtors' creditors and parties in interest, and for no ulterior purposes. The Plan fairly achieves a result consistent with the objectives and purposes of the Bankruptcy Code; specifically the Plan provides an efficient means to restructure the Debtors' secured debt, efficiently dispose of the Debtors' assets and businesses in a means designed to maximize value for the Debtors' estates in light of the [5] There are additional findings and conclusions relating to the sale and auction procedures and release, exculpation and related provisions.

[6] And the Court hereby specifically finds that all executory contracts and/or unexpired leases were properly rejected.

Debtors' current economic circumstances and the demonstrated lack of third-party interest in such assets and businesses, as well as globally resolve claims by and against Debtors and among Creditors and other parties.

The Plan is the result of extensive, good faith, arms length negotiations between the Debtors and certain of their principal constituencies, including their secured creditors, all of whom have voted to accept the Plan. The Debtors also made good faith attempts at negotiations on both a pre-bankruptcy and post-petition basis with the Creditor that filed the Objection (and was the only Creditor that voted to reject the Plan), but such negotiations were ultimately not successful. As evidenced by the unanimous acceptances by all secured creditors, who also continue to hold and/or waived substantial unsecured claims as part of the consensual restructuring, the Plan achieves the goal of an orderly and consensual restructuring and disposition and the fair and equitable distribution of the assets of the Debtors' estates. Further, the Plan's classification, indemnification, injunction, release and exculpation provisions have been negotiated in good faith, are consensual and voluntary and are consistent with all applicable sections of the Bankruptcy Code and the law of this Circuit, and were necessary for the Debtors to successfully reach agreement with the other parties in interest with regard to the Plan. As to Creditors, the release and exculpation provisions (and related injunctions) were negotiated as part of the Plan negotiations and given in consideration for their assistance in furthering the restructuring and Plan process, and to other non-Debtor parties, the release and exculpation provisions (and related injunctions) were in exchange for their assistance in furthering the restructuring and bankruptcy process, including the Plan process as well as responding to the various discovery requests and Examiner inquiries, as well as the fact that the Debtors' officers, directors, managers and management company received no salary, management fees, or similar compensation for their work on behalf of the Debtors for the entirety of the Chapter 11 Cases.

L. Based on (i) the Examiner Reports, as well as (ii) the Shelley Confirmation Declaration, and (iii) the Supplemental Shelley Confirmation Declaration, the Court finds and concludes that Debtors have not engaged in any fraudulent, preferential or otherwise avoidable or improper transactions with any of their principals, insiders, Professionals, managers, related parties or affiliates, or with any of their creditors or equity holders, on either a pre-bankruptcy basis or during the Chapter 11 Cases. Sections 1129(a)(4), (a)(5) and (a)(6) have either been satisfied or do not apply to the Plan.

M. Best Interest of Creditors (11 U.S.C. § 1129(a)(7)). Based on the evidence before the Court, it is apparent that each Creditor and each holder of Interests, dissenting or not, is receiving at least as much as it would receive in a Chapter 7 liquidation. In that scenario, there would be the added administrative costs of a trustee, and any disposition of the assets would result in even fewer proceeds because it would likely not have the benefit of minimum guaranteed bids provided by the current stalking horse bidder.

N. Sections 1129(a)(8) has been satisfied. Classes 1 and 1A have accepted the Plan, but the Plan is confirmable with respect to the remaining impaired classes because the Plan satisfies section 1129(b) with respect to the remaining impaired classes.

O. Section 1129(a)(9) has been satisfied.

P. Section 1129(a)(10) has been satisfied. Classes 1 and 1A have accepted the Plan, and both are impaired classes with no insiders.

Q. Feasibility (11 U.S.C. §1129(a)(11). The Plan is feasible, under either a liquidation-based analysis (because the guaranteed minimum sale proceeds are sufficient to satisfy all expenses needed for confirmation) or under a going-concern analysis (because the only Classes of Creditors impacted by Reorganized Petra have unanimously voted to accept the Plan, and the post-confirmation debt to be held by Reorganized Petra is nonetheless structured so as to not likely require the subsequent liquidation or bankruptcy of Reorganized Petra.)

R. Section 1129(a)(12) is satisfied, and Sections 1129(a)(13)-(16) are inapplicable to the Plan and to the Debtors' Chapter 11 Cases.

S. Cramdown (11 U.S.C. §1129(b)). The Plan's classification of Claims and Interests does not "discriminate unfairly" and is clearly reasonable and appropriate under the circumstances. The Plan is also "fair and equitable" as to all Classes that have not accepted the Plan. No holder of any Claim or Interest that is junior to any non-accepting, impaired class is receiving anything on account of such Claim or Interest. To the extent any holders of Interests or other insiders are receiving anything under the Plan, they are not being given anything on account of such relationship, but rather are only receiving anything in connection with their possible purchase of such assets pursuant to the sale and auction procedures provided under the Plan, which are fair and reasonable and in the best interests of Debtors and their estates under the facts and circumstances of these cases, and are discussed further below in finding U related to the Auction and Sale Procedures.

T. Sections 1129(c) and (d) are satisfied. In fact, there is a possibility that there will be additional tax consequences as a result of the consummation of the Plan, so clearly the intent of the Plan is not the improper avoidance of tax.

U. Auction and Sale procedures. The Court makes the general finding that the auction and sale procedures under the Plan (as amended herein to reflect, among other things, the amendments agreed to on the record of the Confirmation Hearing, and which amendments are set forth in paragraph 14 hereof), including the use of the stalking horse bid and bidder identified in the Plan, are reasonable and proper under the circumstances of the case and in the best interests of the Debtors and their estates, and further ensure that the stalking horse bids are exposed to an appropriate market test. The Court also makes the following specific findings regarding the auction and sale procedures under the Plan.

1. The Court finds these procedures reasonable and proper given the limited remaining value of the Debtors' assets, the lack of expressed interest in such assets to date, and the lack of cash in the estates. Based on the multiple invitations for substitute stalking horse bidders, as set forth in the Auction

Procedure Letter Certification and the Supplemental Shelley Confirmation Declaration, and as described further at hearings before this Court, and the lack of response to such invitations, it is clear that the existing stalking horse bidder (and the amounts of its respective stalking horse bids) is acting reasonably and that the existence of such bids are in the best interests of the Debtors and their estates.

2. The Court finds that the marketing efforts set forth in the Supplemental Shelley Confirmation Declaration, the Solicitation Certification, the Auction Procedures Letter Certification, as well as the notice to be sent pursuant to paragraph 14 hereof, are and were adequate and reasonable, and give and gave due and sufficient notice.

3. The Debtors have demonstrated good, sufficient, and sound business reasons and justifications for entering into the auction and sale procedures, and these procedures are reasonably structured to obtain the highest and best possible sales prices given the particular facts and circumstances of the Debtors' cases.

4. Although the existing stalking horse bid for each auction is simply a guaranteed minimum price and the ultimate prices paid may be higher, each of these respective initial bids would nonetheless be a fair and reasonable price for the assets to be sold therein. The initial bid for the Settlement Payments reasonably takes account of the risk inherent in the future payments, particularly given the history of the obligors with the Debtors, and the initial bid for the REIT Equity Interests reflects both the minimal value of the underlying assets and that many of these assets are further diminished in value by the existence of liens or other liabilities impairing such assets. Moreover, the possibility of competing bids (including the revised bidding procedures set forth in paragraph 14 hereof) further ensures that the ultimately winning bid for each auction will represent fair and reasonable consideration to the Debtors' estates that further constitutes fair value, full and fair consideration, reasonably equivalent value and reasonable market value.

5. Given the fair and reasonable amount for each stalking horse bid, neither the Debtors nor the stalking horse bidder have proposed or will enter into the proposed auction and related sales for the purpose of hindering, delaying or defrauding the Debtors' present or future creditors. Similarly, neither the Debtors nor the stalking horse have proposed or will enter into the proposed auction and related sales fraudulently, for the purpose of statutory or common law fraudulent conveyance and fraudulent transfer claims whether under the Bankruptcy Code or applicable non-bankruptcy law.

6. Based on the foregoing, any assets received by the ultimate purchasers (whether the stalking horse bidder or otherwise) in connection with their purchases under the auction and sale procedures under the Plan will solely be receiving such assets on account of the new consideration provided as part of the sales and there is no bad faith associated with such transactions and such transactions are consistent with the Bankruptcy Code.

V. The Debtors' determinations regarding assumption, assignment and rejection of executory contracts and unexpired leases are based on and within the sound business judgment of the Debtors and are necessary to the implementation of the Plan. They are in the best interests of the Debtors and their estates.

W. Settlements and Releases, Exculpations and Injunctions. Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019, and in consideration for the benefits provided under the Plan, the provisions of the Plan constitute a good faith compromise and settlement of all Claims and controversies resulted pursuant to the Plan, which are in the best interests of the Debtors and their estates, and are fair, equitable and reasonable, and are essential to the successful implementation of the Plan. As described elsewhere in this Order, each of the injunctions, releases and exculpations set forth in the Plan constitutes a good faith compromise and settlement of the matters covered thereby, are in the best interests of the Debtors and their estates, and are fair and equitable, and are supported by valid consideration. Each of the parties released and exculpated by the releases and exculpation provisions of the Plan has made material contributions to these cases in the form of material compromises, settlements and otherwise. Releases by Creditors of Released Parties under section 10.10(b) of the Plan were voluntary, the voluntary nature of such releases was clearly disclosed, and the one party who filed an Objection to the Plan with respect to this release has in fact exercised its option to opt out of this release.

X. All parties have had a full and fair opportunity to litigate all issues raised by any objections to Confirmation of the Plan, including the Objection, or which might have been raised, and the Objection has been fully and fairly litigated.

Y. On January 27, 2012, the Debtors filed the Plan Supplement. The Debtors have subsequently filed certain amendments and additional exhibits to the Plan Supplement. The Plan Supplement complies with the terms of the Plan, and the filing and notice of such documents were good and proper and in accordance with the Bankruptcy Code, the Bankruptcy Rules, and the Disclosure Statement Order, and no other or further notice is or shall be required. The Debtors are authorized to modify the Plan Supplement following the entry of the Confirmation Order in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

Z. To avoid further delay in the resolution of the Chapter 11 Cases, and in light of the fact that both auctions have built in a ten day review period after the Confirmation Date for potential bidders to submit bids, thereby assuring that consummation will not occur prior to that time, good cause exists to support a waiver of the stay otherwise imposed by Bankruptcy Rule 3020(e), and such stay is hereby waived and eliminated with respect to the Plan.

AA. Based on all of the foregoing, the Plan satisfies the requirements for confirmation set forth in section 1129 of the Bankruptcy Code.

ACCORDINGLY, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED THAT:

1. The Plan and each of its provisions (whether or not specifically approved herein) are CONFIRMED in each and every respect, pursuant to section 1129 of the Bankruptcy Code (and Bankruptcy Rule 9019 to the extent applicable to any of the settlements reflected in the Plan, which such settlements are all approved.)

2. The Effective Date of the Plan shall occur on the date on which all conditions to effectiveness set forth in Section 8.1 of the Plan are satisfied or waived.

3. The Objection, and any other objections to Confirmation of the Plan, are hereby OVERRULED in their entirety and on their merits, and any withdrawn objection is deemed withdrawn with prejudice.

4. Upon the occurrence of the Effective Date, the releases, exculpations and related injunctions in favor of the Debtor-Released Parties, Released Parties and Exculpated Parties, respectively, shall be in full force and effect, expressly subject to all carve-outs and exclusions and exceptions set forth in the Plan. In satisfaction of the requirement that the Order confirming a plan describe any releases or injunctions within the Plan, in general terms, and subject to the more specific and fuller descriptions described in the Plan, including all carve-outs and exceptions and exclusions set forth in the Plan, the provisions in favor of the Debtor-Released Parties relate to direct and derivative claims of the Debtors, the provisions in favor of the Released Parties relate to claims of all Creditors who have not opted out of granting such releases, and the provisions in favor of the Exculpated Parties relate to claims of all parties in interest, but generally limited to those relating to or in connection with the Chapter 11 Cases and the related restructuring.

5. Upon the occurrence of the Effective Date, the terms of the Plan and this Order shall be binding on and inure to the benefit of (a) the Debtors, (b) all holders of Claims or Interests, (c) any person giving or receiving property under the Plan, (d) any parties to executory contracts or unexpired leases, and (e) all of their respective directors, officers, agents, representatives, successors and/or assigns, if any. Without limiting the foregoing, all parties (including but not limited to the trustee of the Petra CDO) are authorized and directed to recognize and permit any transfers and/or transactions provided for and/or contemplated under the Plan, including but not limited to the transfer to RBS of the Class F Bonds and the Class G Bonds, as well as any transfer relating to a subsequent foreclosure on either the JPM REIT Collateral or the RBS REIT Collateral. The transfer to RBS of the Class F Bonds and the Class G Bonds, as well as any transfer relating to a subsequent foreclosure on either the JPM REIT Collateral or the RBS REIT Collateral, shall be free and clear of any claims and/or mortgages, deeds of trust, Liens, pledges or other security interests or encumbrances.

6. Pursuant to Section 1146(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, the following shall not be subject to any stamp tax, real estate transfer tax, mortgage recording tax, filing fee, sales or use tax, or similar tax: (a) any transaction expressly contemplated under the Plan (including but not limited to the transfers to RBS of the Class F Bonds and Class G Bonds, and any subsequent foreclosure on either the JPM REIT Collateral or the RBS REIT Collateral), or (b) the making or delivery of any deed or other instrument of transfer under, in furtherance of or in connection with the Plan, including the orderly and efficient disposition of the assets to be sold under the auctions and sales to be conducted pursuant to the Plan, including any merger agreements, agreements of consolidation, restructuring, disposition , liquidation or dissolution, deeds, bills of sale, deeds in lieu, certificates or statements executed or filed in connection with any of the foregoing or pursuant to the Plan.

7. Except as otherwise provided in the Plan or in any contract, instrument, release or other agreement or document created pursuant to or in connection with the Plan, on the Effective Date and concurrently with the applicable distributions made pursuant to the Plan, all mortgages, deeds of trust, Liens, pledges, or other security interests against any property of the estates shall be fully released and discharged.

8. All filing and recording officers are hereby directed to accept for filing or recording all instruments to be filed and recorded in accordance with the Plan or the Plan Supplement (or as otherwise described above in paragraph 6 of this Order) without payment of any such taxes described in paragraph 6 above. This Order shall be a recordable instrument notwithstanding any contrary provisions of applicable law. The Bankruptcy Court retains jurisdiction to enforce the foregoing direction.

9. Any transfers of owned or leased property undertaken by or on behalf of the Debtors pursuant to or in connection with the Plan and the consummation thereof are specifically for the purpose of effectuating the orderly disposition of the Debtors' estates and shall not trigger (a) any increase in applicable real estate taxes or (b) a reappraisal of any real property so transferred.

10. All provisions relating to executory contracts are approved in their entirety and the proposed assumptions, assignments and/or rejections are all approved.

11. In accordance with the Bankruptcy Code and applicable non-bankruptcy law, without further action or consent by the Court or by any other party, the Debtors and their respective directors, managers, partners, officers and agents are authorized to take any and all actions necessary or appropriate to implement, effectuate and consummate the Plan, including without limitation, (i) the auction and sale procedures contemplated under the Plan, including but not limited to the execution and delivery of contracts, agreements and documents, as well as the conducting of the auctions and sales in accordance with the Plan and (ii) the execution and delivery of the documentation evidencing the JPM Debt and the RBS Debt, which documentation shall be in form and substance reasonably acceptable to JPM and RBS, respectively.

12. To the extent necessary, this Order shall constitute the necessary consent or approval for such parties to take the actions described in the foregoing paragraph 11, and each federal, state, local, or foreign government official is hereby directed (or authorized, as applicable, including with respect to foreign officials) to accept any and all documents, mortgages, instruments necessary or appropriate to effectuate, implement or consummate the transactions contemplated by the Plan and/or this Order.

13. If any or all of the provisions of this Order are hereafter reversed, modified or vacated by subsequent order of this Court or any other Court, such reversal, vacatur or modification shall not affect the validity of acts taken in connection with the Plan or this Order prior to the Debtors' receipt of written notice of such order.

14. Debtors are directed to serve a notice of entry of this Order and the establishment of any related deadlines for filing claims that are triggered by the Confirmation Date within three business days of the Confirmation Date; provided, however, that Debtors shall also include in this notice the following provisions relating to the auction and sale procedures, which amendments are approved, authorized and directed, and are further incorporated into the findings regarding the sale and auctions procedures contained herein, and include the amendments to the bidding procedures agreed to by Debtors at the Confirmation Hearing.

a. To participate in either of the two auctions to be conducted pursuant to Section 5.4 of the Plan, any submission of a bid must (i) be delivered in writing on or before the first day that is ten calendar days after entry of this Order (or the first Business Day thereafter if such day is not a Business Day) to Dickstein Shapiro LLP, attn: Brian E. Goldberg and Shaya M. Berger, 1633 Broadway, New York, NY 10019 (or via electronic mail if reasonably arranged with Debtors' counsel), (ii) include the information (including financial wherewithal and executed copy of proposed sale agreement) and otherwise meet the requirements of Section 5.4(A)(i) of the Plan with respect to a Potential SP Bidder submitting a Qualified SP Bid or Section 5.4(B)(i) of the Plan with respect to a Potential REIT Bidder submitting a Qualified REIT Bid, and (iii) otherwise meet the requirements of the Plan.

b. Any party submitting a Qualified SP Bid or a Qualified REIT Bid shall be notified by Debtors' counsel if such bid has been matched (with respect to ABC Corp. matching a Qualified REIT Bid) or topped (with respect to either auction) and asked by Debtors' counsel whether such bidder wishes to raise its bid in the required bid increment, and on the last day for submitting bids (as set forth in the Plan as supplemented by paragraph 14(a) hereof), to the extent there are still multiple parties who have indicated to Debtors' counsel that they wish to continue to raise their bids, Debtors' counsel shall conduct a telephonic conference call on that day with the remaining bidders to determine the highest bid and the second highest bid for each auction. The call (if any) with respect to the Settlement Payments to determine the Highest SP Bidder and potential Substitute Winning SP Bidder shall be a separate call from the call (if any) with respect to the REIT Equity Interests to determine the Highest REIT Bidder and potential Substitute Winning REIT Bidder. Debtors' counsel reserves the right to continue or delay such call or calls, if deemed appropriate.

c. Other than as set forth in this Order, the bidding procedures for the REIT Equity Interests are unchanged from the Plan and parties are directed to review Sections 5.4(B) of the Plan and paragraphs 14(a) and (b) hereof with respect thereto. With respect to the bidding procedures for the Settlement Payments, in addition to any other changes provided for in this Order, the following changes shall be made: (i) notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the Plan, including Sections 5.4(A)(ii) and 5.4(A)(iii) thereof, all parties that submit a Qualified SP Bid (together with ABC Corp.) shall be permitted to submit increasingly higher bids in bid increments of ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00) in the manner further prescribed in paragraph 14(b) of this Order until no higher bids are received and the Highest REIT Bidder and potential Substitute Winning REIT Bidder are declared by Debtors' counsel.

15. The documents evidencing the JPM Debt and RBS Debt (and any ancillary agreements, financing statements and other documents executed and/or delivered in connection therewith), any documents evidencing the termination and cancellation of any existing Liens on the JPM REIT Collateral and the RBS REIT Collateral, and the transactions contemplated by each of the foregoing are approved in their entirety and, upon execution and delivery of the applicable agreements and documents relating thereto by the applicable parties, the documents evidencing the JPM Debt and RBS Debt (and any ancillary agreements, financing statements and other documents executed and/or delivered in connection therewith) shall be in full force and effect and valid, binding, and enforceable in accordance with their terms without the need for any further notice to or action, order, or approval of the Bankruptcy Court, or other act or action under applicable law, regulation, order, or rule. The Liens on the JPM REIT Collateral shall be immediately effective, binding, valid, perfected, and enforceable first-priority Liens on the JPM REIT Collateral to secure the JPM Debt and the Liens on the RBS REIT Collateral shall be immediately effective, binding, valid, perfected, and enforceable first-priority Liens on the RBS REIT Collateral to secure the RBS Debt. The Debtors are, and after the Effective Date, Reorganized Petra is, authorized, without further approval of the Bankruptcy Court or any other party, to execute and deliver all agreements, documents, instruments, securities, and certificates relating to the foregoing or to any such agreements and perform their obligations thereunder.

16. On or before the Effective Date, the Debtors may file with the Bankruptcy Court such agreements and other documents as may be necessary or appropriate to effectuate and further evidence the terms and conditions of the Plan. The Debtors or Reorganized Petra, as applicable, and all Creditors receiving distributions pursuant to the Plan and all other parties in interest shall, from time to time, prepare, execute, and deliver any agreements or documents and take any other actions as may be necessary or advisable to effectuate the provisions and intent of the Plan.

17. Except as set forth in the Plan, all actions authorized to be taken pursuant to the Plan shall be effective on, prior to, or after the Effective Date pursuant to the Confirmation Order, without further application to, or order of the Bankruptcy Court, or further action by the respective officers, directors, members, or stockholders of Reorganized Petra and with the effect that such actions had been taken by unanimous action of such officers, directors, members, or stockholders.

18. Pursuant to section 1142(b) of the Bankruptcy Code, section 303 of the Delaware General Corporation Law, and any comparable provision of the business corporation laws of any other state or applicable jurisdiction (including the State of Maryland), each of the Debtors and Reorganized Petra hereby is authorized and empowered to take such actions and to perform such acts as may be necessary, desirable, or appropriate to comply with or implement the Plan, the Plan Supplement, any other Plan documents, including execution and delivery of all documents, instruments, securities and agreements related thereto and all annexes, exhibits, and schedules appended thereto, and the obligations thereunder shall constitute legal, valid, binding and authorized obligations of each of the respective parties thereto, enforceable in accordance with their terms without the need for any stockholder or board of directors' approval. Each of the Debtors and Reorganized Petra hereby is authorized and empowered to take such actions, to perform all acts, to make, execute, and deliver all instruments and documents, and to pay all fees and expenses as set forth in the Plan and the documents relating to the Plan, and that may be required or necessary for its performance thereunder without the need for any stockholder or board of directors' approval (including, without limitation, in connection with the execution and delivery of the documents evidencing and securing the JPM Debt and RBS Debt and the documents evidencing the termination and cancellation of any Liens on the JPM REIT Collateral and RBS REIT Collateral, if any). On the Effective Date, the appropriate officers of Reorganized Petra and members of the Board of Directors of Reorganized Petra are authorized and empowered to issue, execute, and deliver the agreements, documents, securities, and instruments contemplated by the Plan in the name of and on behalf of Reorganized Petra (including, without limitation, in connection with the execution and delivery of the documents evidencing and securing the JPM Debt and RBS Debt and the documents evidencing the termination and cancellation of Liens on the JPM REIT Collateral and RBS REIT Collateral, if any). Subject to the terms of this Confirmation Order, each of the Debtors, Reorganized Petra and the officers and directors thereof are authorized to take any such actions without further corporate action or action of the directors or stockholders of the Debtors or Reorganized Petra. On the Effective Date, or as soon thereafter as is practicable, Reorganized Petra shall file its amended certificates of incorporation with the Secretary of State of the state in which each such entity is (or will be) organized, in accordance with the applicable general business law of each such jurisdiction.

19. This Confirmation Order shall constitute all approvals and consents required, if any, by the laws, rules, and regulations of all states and any other governmental authority with respect to the implementation or consummation of the Plan and any documents, instruments, or agreements, and any amendments or modifications thereto, and any other acts and transactions referred to in or contemplated by the Plan, the Plan Supplement, the Disclosure Statement, and any documents, instruments, securities, or agreements, and any amendments or modifications thereto (including, without limitation, in connection with the execution and delivery of the documents evidencing and securing the JPM Debt and the RBS Debt and the documents evidencing the termination and cancellation of any Liens on the JPM REIT Collateral and RBS REIT Collateral, if any).

20. Subject to the restrictions on the alteration, modification and amendment set forth in section 1127 of the Bankruptcy Code and in the Plan, Debtors are authorized to amend the Plan prior to the Effective Date three business days after filing intention thereof.

21. Nothing in the Plan or this Order modifies the rights and/or obligations of the Debtors' insurers under applicable insurance policies or modifies the coverage provided thereunder.

22. Except as otherwise provided in the Plan or this Order, notice of subsequent pleadings shall be limited to Debtors' counsel and the United States Trustee, and any party known to be directly affected by the relief sought by such pleading.

23. Prior to the satisfaction or waiver of each condition to the occurrence of the Effective Date, the Debtors may move this Court to vacate this Order.

24. The businesses and assets of the Debtors shall remain subject to this Court's jurisdiction through the Effective Date, to the extent permissible by law. Thereafter, the Court shall retain jurisdiction as is permissible and is set forth in the Plan.

25. Each of the conditions to the Effective Date must be satisfied or duly waived, and the Effective Date must occur within 120 days after the Court enters this Confirmation Order, or by such later date established by Bankruptcy Court order. If the Effective Date has not occurred within 120 days from the date of the Confirmation Order (or such later date established by court order), then upon motion by a party-in-interest made before the Effective Date and a hearing, the Confirmation Order may be vacated by the Bankruptcy Court; provided, however, that, notwithstanding the filing of such motion to vacate, the Confirmation Order may not be vacated if the Effective Date occurs before the Bankruptcy Court enters an order granting such motion. If the Confirmation Order is vacated, then except as provided in any order of the Bankruptcy Court vacating the Confirmation Order, the Plan will be null and void in all respects, including the discharge of Claims and termination of Liens and interests pursuant to the Plan and section 1141 of the Bankruptcy Code and the assumptions, assignments or rejections of executory contracts, and nothing contained in the Plan or Disclosure Statement shall: (a) constitute a waiver or release of any Claims or Liens; (b) prejudice in any manner the rights of any Debtor or any other entity; or (c) constitute an admission, acknowledgment, offer or undertaking of any sort by such Debtor or any other entity.

26. Within ten days of the satisfaction or waiver of the conditions precedent to occurrence of the Effective Date, the Debtors shall file and serve upon all creditors and parties in interest a notice indicating all conditions precedent to the Effective Date have been satisfied or waived and setting the Effective Date.

Attorneys for Petitioners Michael Green, Michael Penner and Matthew Becker, in their capacities as Joint Official Liquidators of ECM Straits Fund I, LP (In Official Liquidation)

UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

In re: ECM Straits Fund I, LP (In Official Liquidation), Debtor in a Foreign Proceeding.[1]	Case No. 23-12044 (MG) Chapter 15

DECLARATION OF PETER SHERWOOD IN SUPPORT OF CHAPTER 15 PETITION FOR RECOGNITION AS FOREIGN MAIN PROCEEDING

I, Peter Sherwood of Carey Olsen Cayman Limited, George Town, Grand Cayman, KY1-1001, Cayman Islands, do hereby declare, under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America, that the following is true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief:

I. Introduction

1. I am an attorney and a partner in the dispute resolution and litigation group of Carey Olsen Cayman Limited ("Carey Olsen") of Willow House, Cricket Square, George Town, Grand Cayman, Cayman Islands.

[1] The Debtor's company registration number is 73064. The Debtor's registered office is c/o Deloitte & Touche LLP, 8th Floor, 60 Nexus Way, Camana Bay, PO Box 1787, Grand Cayman KY1-1109, Cayman Islands.

2. Carey Olsen acts as Cayman Islands legal counsel to Michel Green, Michael Penner and Matthew Becker, in their capacities as joint official liquidators (the "Petitioners" or "Liquidators")[2] of each of:

a. ECM Straits Fund I, LP ("ECM" or the "Partnership");

b. ECM Straits Fund UGP I, Ltd. ("UGP"); and

c. TransAsia E-Commerce Inc. ("TEC"),

(together, the "Debtors").

3. ECM is an exempted limited partnership formed under the laws of the Cayman Islands, and is currently in official liquidation pursuant to an order of the Grand Court of the Cayman Islands (the "Grand Court") in Cause Number FSD 230 of 2022.

4. UGP and TEC are exempted limited companies incorporated under the laws of the Cayman Islands, and each is currently in official liquidation pursuant to orders of the Grand Court in Cause Numbers FSD 148 of 2023 and FSD 149 of 2023, respectively.

5. Prior to the appointment of the Liquidators to ECM on November 24, 2022, Carey Olsen acted for the sole limited partner of ECM, Malaysia Venture Capital Management Berhad ("MAVCAP") (as I discuss further below).

6. Carey Olsen is a leading full service offshore law firm established in 1898 with offices in the Cayman Islands, British Virgin Islands, Bermuda, Guernsey, Jersey, London, Cape Town, Hong Kong and Singapore. Carey Olsen's clients include global and local financial institutions, investment funds, private equity houses, multinational corporations, public organizations, sovereign wealth funds, high net worth individuals, family offices, directors, trustees and private clients.

[2] Mr Penner is an official liquidator of ECM only, and not of UGP or TEC. In this affidavit, I use the term "Liquidators" to refer to the relevant official liquidators as the context demands.

7. I qualified as a solicitor in England and Wales in 2008, was admitted as an attorney in the Cayman Islands in 2015 and have been a member of Carey Olsen's Dispute Resolution and Litigation team since 2015. Prior to joining Carey Olsen, I worked for leading international firms in London and in Sydney, working on contentious and non-contentious insolvencies and restructurings. I have acted for insolvency practitioners and creditors in complex financial services firms and brokers insolvencies, and have advised creditors and debtors on large, cross-border restructurings. I also have banking and commercial litigation experience. I therefore have over 15 years' experience practicing law, including more than 8 years practicing Cayman Islands law. I currently reside in the Cayman Islands where my legal practice focuses on all aspects of insolvency litigation, general banking and commercial litigation and non-contentious insolvency and restructurings. I am a member of the Cayman Islands Legal Practitioners Association, and INSOL International through its local chapter in the Cayman Islands.

8. I have acted for provisional and official liquidators of numerous Cayman Islands companies and frequently appear as an advocate before the Grand Court in liquidation proceedings.

9. I submit this declaration in support of the petitions seeking the U.S. Bankruptcy Court's recognition of the liquidations in the Cayman Islands of each of ECM, UGP and TEC as a "foreign main proceeding" under 11 U.S.C. § 1517(b)(1) and of the Liquidators as the "foreign representatives" for each of the Debtors under 11 U.S.C. § 101(24). The Liquidators have asked me to explain the substantive Cayman Islands law and procedural rules relevant to liquidation proceedings in respect of Cayman Islands companies and exempted limited partnerships and, more particularly, the Debtors.

10. I am competent to testify and, except as otherwise indicated, all facts set forth in this declaration are based on my personal experience and knowledge, and my review of relevant documents, including the sworn declarations of Michael Green and John A. Pintarelli. To the extent that statements in this declaration are of my own legal opinion, they represent my views and understanding, as a practicing Cayman Islands attorney, of Cayman Islands laws. This declaration covers complicated topics at a reasonably high level: should it assist the Court for me to expand upon any aspect of this declaration, I am happy to do so.

II. Sources of Cayman Islands Law and the Legislative Framework

11. The Cayman Islands is a British Overseas Territory and a distinct legal jurisdiction. The law of the Cayman Islands derives from several sources but in general is based upon English and British Commonwealth common law, equity, local legislation enacted by the Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands or its predecessors, and occasionally, from statutes of England and Wales to the extent they are expressly extended to the Cayman Islands. Subject to any modifications imposed by local legislation or regulation, the Courts of the Cayman Islands generally adopt positions that are consistent with English and British Commonwealth common law and equity.

12. The Courts of the Cayman Islands administer justice in accordance with local statutes, subordinate legislation, statutes passed by the parliament of the United Kingdom that have been expressly extended to the Cayman Islands, orders of His Majesty's Judicial Committee of the Privy Council (the "Privy Council") applicable in the Cayman Islands, and principles of common law.

13. The Grand Court has jurisdiction in respect of, inter alia, the winding up of companies incorporated, and exempted limited partnerships registered, in the Cayman Islands.[3] One of the divisions of the Grand Court is the Financial Services Division (the "FSD") which deals with, among other things, proceedings involving the winding up of companies, with appeals lying to the Cayman Islands Court of Appeal (the "Court of Appeal"). Subject to certain restrictions, there is a right of second appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London.

14. The doctrine of judicial precedent applies in the Cayman Islands. The structure of the court system is hierarchical, with the courts being bound by the rationes decidendi of decisions of the courts above. The rationes decidendi of decisions of the Privy Council are therefore binding on the Court of Appeal and the Grand Court. The rationes decidendi of decisions of the Court of Appeal are similarly binding on the Grand Court. The Grand Court will generally follow the rationes decidendi of its previous decisions, unless satisfied that they are clearly wrong.

15. There is a comparatively small (but increasing) body of reported case law in the Cayman Islands, contained in the Cayman Islands Law Reports. In the absence of binding Cayman Islands case law, the Cayman Islands Courts will look to English authorities, which are highly persuasive, but not binding. As a general rule, the Cayman Islands Courts follow English authorities to the extent that they are not inconsistent with either Cayman Islands statutory provisions or Cayman Islands authorities, and to the extent that they do not relate to English statutory provisions which have no equivalent in the Cayman Islands. Decisions of courts in other Commonwealth jurisdictions are also of persuasive but not binding authority.

III. Background

16. ECM was formed and operated under the Exempted Limited Partnership Act (as amended from time to time) (the "ELP Act") pursuant to an Initial Exempted Limited Partnership Agreement (the "Partnership Agreement"), originally dated November 6, 2013, but subsequently amended and restated on November 25, 2013, and filed with the Registrar of Exempted Limited Partnerships of the Cayman Islands.

17. A Cayman Islands exempted limited partnership must consist of one or more general partners and one or more limited partners. The business of the partnership is conducted by the general partner(s), who is liable for all of the partnerships debts and liabilities in the event that the assets of the exempted limited partnership are inadequate[4]. As the name suggests, limited partners are not generally liable for the debts or obligations of the exempted limited partnership and accordingly must not take part in the conduct of the business of the partnership[5]. Limited partners are essentially passive investors.

18. As is the case for Cayman Islands exempted companies, the term "exempted" refers to the fact that under the ELP Act the partnership is prohibited from undertaking business with the public in the Cayman Islands except insofar as may be necessary in furtherance of its business carried on outside the Cayman Islands.[6] (However, exempted limited partnerships and exempted companies may effect and conclude contracts in the Cayman Islands and exercise in the Cayman Islands all of the powers necessary for the carrying on of its business outside the Cayman Islands or winding it up, meaning that it may employ staff or agents in the Cayman Islands. Exempted limited partnerships and exempted companies must also maintain a registered office in the Cayman Islands in furtherance of its business outside the Cayman Islands).

19. The general partner of ECM is ECM Straits Fund GP I, LP (the "ECM GP"), which is itself a Cayman Islands exempted limited partnership. The general partner of ECM GP, in turn, is UGP.

UGP

20. UGP is an exempted limited company incorporated under the Companies Act and operated pursuant to a Memorandum and Articles of Association dated November 6, 2013, that was filed with the Registrar of Companies of the Cayman Islands.

21. At all material times, UGP's directors were Mr. Arshad Ahmed ("Mr. Ahmed"), Mr. Abrar Hussain ("Mr. Hussain") and Mr. Amiruddin Azahar ("Mr. Azahar") (in such capacity, the "Directors").

TEC

22. TEC is also an exempted limited company incorporated under the Companies Act and operated pursuant to a Memorandum and Articles of Association dated January 19, 2015, that was filed with the Registrar of Companies of the Cayman Islands.

23. TEC is a wholly owned subsidiary of Partnership[7]. Mr. Ahmed is the sole officer and director of TEC.

24. Prior to entry the appointments of the Liquidators (as discussed below), the registered office address for each of ECM, UGP and TEC was Maples Corporate Services Limited, PO Box 309, Ugland House, Grand Cayman, Cayman Islands KY1-1104. Following the respective appointments, the registered office addresses were changed to c/o Deloitte & Touche LLP, Citrus Grove Building, PO Box 1781, Grand Cayman KY1-1109, Cayman Islands.

[7] ECM is the registered holder of all of the shares in TEC. However, pursuant to section 16(1) the ELP Act, all of ECM's assets are deemed to be held by the ECM GP on trust for ECM (and, in turn, all of the assets of the ECM GP are deemed to be held by the UGP on trust).

IV. Liquidation in the Cayman Islands

25. The principal Cayman Islands legislation, rules and regulations which govern the liquidation of Cayman Islands companies and exempted limited partnerships are:

a. Part V of the Companies Act (2023 Revision) (the "Companies Act"), which is the primary legislation which deals with winding up of companies in the Cayman Islands;

b. the Companies (Winding Up) Rules ("CWR"). The CWR is subsidiary legislation containing rules which are issued from time to time by the Insolvency Rules Committee. Part V of the Companies Act together with the CWR govern the conduct of liquidation proceedings pending before the Grand Court, including ECM's liquidation proceedings;

c. the Exempted Limited Partnership Act (2021 Revision) (the "ELP Act"), which is the primary legislation governing exempted limited partnerships. Section 36(3) of the ELP Act applies certain provisions of the Companies Act and the CWR to exempted limited partnerships; and

d. the Insolvency Practitioners Regulations 2018 (the "Regulations"). The Regulations deal with (a) who is eligible to be appointed as an official liquidator of a company being wound up by order of the Grand Court; and (b) the official liquidators' remuneration.

26. True copies of each of the ELP Act, Part V of the Companies Act, the CWR and the Regulations are attached hereto as Exhibits A, B, C and D, respectively.

27. There are two main forms of liquidation procedure in the Cayman Islands, each of which are applicable to both companies and exempted limited partnerships[8]. In each case, the procedure is "terminal" in the sense that it is designed to finally wind up the company's affairs under the stewardship of the liquidators, and then to bring the existence of the company or exempted limited partnership to an end:

a. Official liquidation is a court-supervised process which is commenced by order of the Grand Court. One or more licensed insolvency practitioners are appointed as official liquidators, and their primary duty will be to collect in the company's assets and distribute them to stakeholders in accordance with the statutory order of priority. The official liquidators will also investigate and report on the affairs of the company, and may bring claims on the company's behalf.

b. Voluntary liquidation is a streamlined procedure for winding down the affairs of the company / exempted limited partnership outside the supervision of the Grand Court. The process is conducted by one or more voluntary liquidators, who do not need to be licensed insolvency practitioners or independent (in fact it is common for directors and other persons involved in the management of the company / exempted limited partnership to perform the role). It is therefore not suitable for insolvent situations.

[8] In addition, an official liquidator may be appointed provisionally (known as provisional liquidation). However, while provisional liquidation often precedes official liquidation, the purpose is usually to prevent mismanagement, the dissipation of assets or prejudice to shareholders pending the hearing of the petition to appoint official liquidators.

28. I address the official liquidation of Cayman Islands companies and exempted limited partnerships in more detail below.

Official liquidation of Cayman Islands companies

29. An official liquidation is judicial in nature, in the sense that: (a) it is initiated by an order of the Grand Court; (b) throughout the liquidation process the official liquidators report to and are supervised by the Grand Court; and (c) the liquidation is brought to a close and the company dissolved by an order of the Grand Court.

30. A company may be placed into official liquidation by order of the Grand Court on the petition of either the company itself, any creditor, any shareholder or the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority (if the company's business is regulated by it) [9]. The most common grounds for the making of a winding up order are that the company is insolvent, or that it is otherwise "just and equitable" that the company is wound up[10].

31. In addition, in certain circumstances, a voluntary liquidation may, by order of the Grand Court, be brought under the supervision of the Grand Court whereupon it proceeds as an "official liquidation". For example, a company in voluntary liquidation may be placed in official liquidation on the application of the voluntary liquidator or any contributory (shareholder) or creditor on the grounds that —

a. the company is or is likely to become insolvent; or

b. the supervision of the Court will facilitate a more effective, economic or expeditious liquidation of the company in the interests of the contributories and creditors.[11]

[9] See s. 94 of the Companies Act.

[10] See s. 92 of the Companies Act.

[11] See Companies Act s. 131

32. Official liquidation is not a "debtor in possession" process. Once appointed, the official liquidators take full control of the company and its assets (again, subject to the supervision of the Grand Court).[12] The powers of the directors, who previously controlled the company, are suspended by the appointment of official liquidators. The official liquidators' powers are a function of two things:

a. Schedule 3 of the Companies Act,[13] which contains two parts. Part I of Schedule 3 sets out liquidators' powers exercisable with the sanction of the Grand Court. Part II of Schedule 3 sets out the liquidators' powers exercisable without the sanction of the Grand Court.

b. The order of the Grand Court appointing them. This order authorise the liquidators to exercise certain of the powers contained in Part I of Schedule 3 of the Companies Act from the outset of the liquidation.

33. As noted above, official liquidation is a "terminal" process, in the sense that it is designed to finally wind up the company's affairs under the stewardship of the independent official liquidators, and then to bring the existence of the company to an end. In essence, that process involves the official liquidators:[14]

a. Identifying, safeguarding, collecting, and realizing[15] the company's assets (which may also include pursuing litigation for the benefit of the estate, which depending on the nature of the claim sometimes will take the form of a claim

[13] See also s. 110(2) of the Companies Act.

[14] See Companies Act s.110 "Functions and powers of official liquidators".

[15] Where appropriate (and depending on the circumstances, with the permission of the Grand Court) the liquidators may also distribute the assets in kind (CWR O.18 r.5).

by the company and sometimes will be a claim by the official liquidators themselves).[16]

b. Identifying the company's creditors and resolving any disputes as to the existence or quantum of creditor claims. Appeals from the official liquidators' decision to admit or reject proofs of debt are made to the Grand Court.

c. Distributing the assets to the company's creditors, and to the extent of any surplus, to its contributories (or shareholders) in accordance with their rights and the laws of the Cayman Islands.

d. Finally, once the above steps are complete such that the affairs of the company are fully wound up, obtaining an order from the Grand Court that the company be dissolved.[17]

34. Official liquidators are officers of the Grand Court.[18] Throughout the official liquidation process, the Liquidators are subject to the supervision of the Grand Court.[19] In practice this means:

a. the exercise of a number of the liquidators' powers (including, among others, the power to sell the company's assets and the power to pursue legal proceedings) require an order of the Grand Court.[20] The application for such an order is known as a "sanction application". Similarly, if a stakeholder is dissatisfied with any action (or inaction) on the part of the liquidator, that

[16] Companies Act s.110(1)(a)

[17] Companies Act s.152. It is not possible to reverse a winding up order, other than on appeal (and there is no appeal in the case of these Liquidation Proceedings). There is provision for an official liquidation to be "stayed" upon order of the Grand Court (Companies Act s.111(1)), although in practice that is exceedingly rare.

[18] Companies Act s. 108(2); CWR O.18 r. 1(1)

[20] Companies Act s.110(2) and (3)

stakeholder may make a sanction application for an order of the Grand Court directing the official liquidator to exercise or refrain from exercising any powers in a particular way.[21] CWR Order 11 sets out the procedure for sanction applications. The Grand Court has broad powers to give directions in connection with the hearing of a sanction application (both pursuant to CWR O.11 and its inherent jurisdiction), so as to ensure that it is dealt with as fairly and efficiently as possible.

b. Appeals from the official liquidators' decision to admit or reject proofs of debt are made to the Grand Court.

c. Official liquidators are required to prepare reports and accounts with respect to their conduct of the liquidation and the state of the company's affairs, and to deliver those to the Grand Court and stakeholders.[22]

d. The Grand Court must approve the official liquidators' remuneration, in accordance with the procedures set out in the Regulations.[23]

e. Although very rarely exercised in practice, the Grand Court retains a residual discretion to remove and replace official liquidators, upon the application of a stakeholder.[24]

35. To be eligible for appointment as an official liquidator, the proposed appointee(s)[25] must comply with the provision of the Regulations, which include requirements as to (a)

[21] CWR O.11 r.1(2)

[22] CWR O.10 r.1(1), r.1(2)(e), O.10 r.2, O.10 r.2 and see also Companies Act s.114(1)

[23] See in particular Regulations 10(1) and 13

[25] As is permitted by s.106 of the Companies Act, it is the usual practice of the Grand Court to appoint two official liquidators, who are then given the power to act jointly and severally (hence "joint official liquidators" or "JOLs"). Typically, as in the case in these Liquidation Proceedings, the Liquidators are members of the same firm. One professional qualifications (in essence, official liquidators are highly experienced and qualified accountants, with particular expertise acting as insolvency practitioners)[26]; (b) residency[27]; (c) insurance[28]; and (d) independence[29]. The prospective appointee(s) must swear an affidavit to the effect that they comply with these provisions of the Regulations, such that they are eligible to take the appointment.[30] Any relevant stakeholder may attend the hearing of the winding up petition (which hearing is held in open court) and may seek to challenge the appointment of the nominated liquidators, including on the basis of an alleged lack of independence. This does occur from time to time, and the Grand Court has previously refused to appoint particular liquidators due to even a perceived lack of independence.[31] No such challenge was made in respect of these Liquidators in the case of any of the orders appointing them.

36. The official liquidators' duty and power to get in the company's property can also involve investigating the company's affairs and prosecuting litigation on behalf of the company, whether in the Cayman Islands or elsewhere in the world. However, the sanction of the Grand Court is required to bring such legal proceedings.[32] I note that Winding Up Order expressly gives the Liquidators the power to "pursue applications and/or proceedings in any other jurisdiction for recognition of the liquidation and/or their appointment and to obtain such assistance as is necessary to perform their duties."

reason for appointing two liquidators is that it helps ensure that important decisions in the liquidation can still be made when one liquidator is unavailable, on vacation, etc.

[26] Regulations r.4

[27] Regulations r.5

[28] Regulations r.7

[29] Regulations r.6

[30] CWR O.3 r.4(1)

[31] See, for example, Re Hadar Fund Ltd (Unreported, FSD 94 of 2013 (AJJ), 13 August 2013) (attached at Exhibit E) where the Grand Court declined to appoint nominees from PricewaterhouseCoopers as official liquidators because of the appearance of a conflict, such that they could not "properly be regarded as independent as regards that company" as is required by Reg 6(1)

[32] Companies Act s. 110(2), Sch. 3 Part I (1).

37. Another important aspect of the JOLs' role is to identify the relevant stakeholders in the liquidation. To that ends, toward the outset of the official liquidation, liquidators are required to make a summary determination as to whether the company should be regarded as solvent, insolvent or of "doubtful solvency".[33] That determination is significant insofar as it then determines who are treated as the stakeholders in the liquidation - that is, whether it is the shareholders (in the case of a solvent liquidation), the creditors (in the case of an insolvent liquidation) or both (where the company is of doubtful solvency). This in turn affects, among other things, who is entitled to receive the liquidators' reports,[34] who is convened to meetings held in the liquidation,[35] and how the liquidation committee shall be comprised (if there is one[36]). It is also relevant to whether or not the liquidators must call for proofs of debt: unless there are disputed debts, that only happens when the company is insolvent or of doubtful solvency, and when the company is solvent the liquidators should continue to pay the company's debts in the ordinary course of business.[37] Liquidators are required to keep that solvency determination under review during the liquidation, and may change that determination if new circumstances warrant it.[38]

38. A general principle underlying the Cayman Islands' insolvency regime is that creditors and shareholders are treated on a pari passu basis, subject to certain exceptions.[39]

39. In my experience, Cayman Islands liquidation proceedings are fair and equitable, insofar as all creditors and stakeholders have the opportunity to be heard by the Grand Court and no creditors will be prejudiced on the sole basis that they are based overseas. All creditors are treated equally, regardless of where they are domiciled.

40. Section 97(1) of the Companies Act provides in relevant part (as applicable to exempted limited partnerships) that upon the making of a winding up order against an exempted limited partnership, no suit, action, or other proceedings, including criminal proceedings, shall be proceeded with or commenced against the exempted limited partnership except with leave of the Grand Court[40] and subject to such terms as the Grand Court may impose. This automatic stay serves to, inter alia, facilitate the liquidators' ability to deal with the claims of creditors and the interests of partners collectively and comprehensively. The litigation stay does not have extra-territorial effect unless it is recognized or otherwise given effect to by the foreign court.

Liquidation of Cayman Islands exempted limited partnerships

41. An exempted limited partnership formed under the laws of the Cayman Islands may enter voluntary liquidation (a) at the time or upon the occurrence of any event specified in the partnership agreement; or (b) unless otherwise specified in the partnership agreement, upon the passing of a resolution of all the general partners and a two-thirds majority of limited partners.[41]

42. The voluntary liquidation of an exempted limited partnership is conducted in accordance with the provisions of the partnership agreement, and the role of voluntary liquidator is conducted by the general partner or other person appointed pursuant to the partnership agreement, unless the court otherwise orders on the application of any partner, creditor or liquidator of the exempted limited partnership pursuant to Section 36(3)(g) of the ELP Act[42].

[40] Companies Act s.97

[42] See ELP Act s.36(13).

43. The official liquidation of exempted limited partnerships largely replicates the statutory regime for the official liquidation of companies, although this has been the subject of conflicting decisions by the Grand Court in recent years (as I discuss further below).

44. In general terms, section 36(3) of the ELP Act makes Part V of the Companies Act and the CWR applicable to the winding up of an exempted limited partnership. For this purpose, Part V is construed so that:

a. references to "company" are to be read as including exempted limited partnerships;

b. references to "contributories" (ie shareholders) are applicable to limited partners; and

c. references to "directors" are applicable to the general partner(s).

45. However, section 36(3) expressly provides that to the extent that any provisions of Part V and the CWR are not consistent with the ELP Act, the provisions of the ELP Act prevail. Further, with limited exceptions, Part V and the CWR does not apply to the voluntary liquidation of exempted limited partnerships.

46. Prior to the decision of the Grand Court in Re Padma Fund LP[43], it was uncontroversial that section 36(3) of the ELP Act in effect provided that exempted limited partnerships were placed into official liquidation under Part V of the Companies Act as if they were companies, with the modifying provisions referred to above[44]. However, in Padma, Justice Parker dismissed a winding up petition presented against Padma by two creditors on the grounds that, upon his construction of the terms and effect of the ELP Act, an exempted limited partnership (like Padma) could not properly be a respondent to such a proceeding.

[43] [Unreported, FSD 201 of 2021 (RPJ), 8 October 2021], attached hereto as Exhibit F.

[44] See eg Re Xio Diamond LP (unreported, FSD 256 of 2019 (IKJ), 30 April 2020), attached hereto as Exhibit G.

47. I represented the unsuccessful petitioners in Padma, and in my respectful opinion the case was wrongly decided. Subsequent decisions by the Grand Court have declined to follow the Judge's reasoning in Padma and have ordered the official liquidation of exempted limited partnerships under Part V of the Companies Act, as applied by section 36(3) of the ELP Act[45]. Nevertheless, the decision in Padma was not appealed and the subsequent decisions to which I refer related to petitions to place an exempted limited partnership into official liquidation brought by limited partners, and not by a creditor (as was the case in Padma). Accordingly, Padma remains good law in the Cayman Islands as regards creditor petitions to wind up exempted limited partnerships.

48. In any case, the controversy surrounding the Padma decision and creditor petitions to wind up exempted limited partnerships is not applicable to the official liquidation of ECM. ECM entered official liquidation via a different route (as discussed further below).

V. The appointment of the Liquidators to ECM

49. On October 20, 2022, the sole limited partner, MAVCAP, filed an application with the Grand Court seeking orders to bring the voluntary liquidation of ECM under the Grand Court's supervision. The petition was heard on November 24, 2022. I appeared at that hearing as counsel to the proposed Liquidators.

50. MAVCAP's application was made in circumstances where the 8-year term provided for the operation of ECM in the Partnership Agreement had expired. Accordingly, pursuant to section 36(1) of the ELP Act and the Partnership Agreement, ECM had automatically entered voluntary liquidation with its general partner, the ECM GP, responsible for winding up ECM's affairs as its voluntary liquidator.

51. However, little progress in winding up ECM's affairs had been made and it became apparent to MAVCAP that the individuals with ultimate authority, Mr Hussain, Mr Ahmed and Mr Azahar (i.e. the directors of the UGP), had effectively abandoned the ECM structure. The registered office provider for each of ECM, the ECM GP, the UGP and other entities within the group (including TEC) had resigned (which is usually a sign that the registered office fees have not been paid and/or other statutory obligations are not being complied with) and the entities were liable to be struck off.

52. Accordingly, at the hearing of MAVCAP's application on 24 November 2022 (at which I represented MAVCAP), the Honorable Justice Parker, a Judge of the Grand Court, made a declaration that MAVCAP had entered voluntary liquidation on 25 November 2021, and made orders and directions (among others) that:

a. The winding up of ECM shall continue under the jurisdiction of the Court pursuant to section 36(3)(g) of the ELP Act;

b. The Liquidators be appointed as joint official liquidators of ECM (with the power to act jointly and severally);

c. The Liquidators would be authorised to exercise certain powers without further sanction of the Court; and

d. The Liquidators' powers are exercisable to the exclusion of the ECM GP, which shall have no authority or power to act in relation to ECM other than at the direction and/or with the consent of the Liquidators.

53. The Supervision Order was a novel form of order that had not previously been made by the Grand Court, but has since been followed on a number of occasions[46]. This is therefore now an established route for the voluntary liquidation of an exempted limited partnership to be moved into official liquidation under the supervision of the Grand Court in a manner that is analogous to the statutory procedure for a supervision order to be made with respect to the voluntary liquidation of a company under Part V of the Companies Act (which does not apply to the voluntary liquidations of exempted limited partnerships, as discussed above).

54. The Liquidators are therefore empowered by the terms of the Supervision Order, to carry out the official liquidation of ECM in essentially the same manner as the official liquidation of a company is conducted under Part V of the Companies Act, as described in paragraphs 29 to 38 above. Among other things, the Liquidators have the power to:

a. take possession of, collect and enter the property of the Partnership and for that purpose to take all such proceedings as the Liquidators consider necessary;

b. do all acts and execute, in the name and on behalf of the Partnership, all deeds, receipts and other documents;

c. investigate, generally, the promotion, business, dealings and affairs of the Partnership and to make such report, if any, to the Court as the Liquidators think fit;

d. control and otherwise deal with all existing bank accounts in the name of the Partnership and to open new bank accounts in the name of the Partnership;

[46] See eg the order in Re Kuwait LBO Fund, LP dated 5 October 2023, attached hereto as Exhibit I.

e. pursue applications and/or proceedings in any other jurisdiction for recognition of the liquidation and/or their appointment and to obtain such assistance as is necessary to perform their duties;

f. convene meetings of creditors and limited partners;

g. do all other things incidental to the exercise of their powers; and

h. apply to the Grand Court for further orders and directions as to the exercise of their powers.

55. The Liquidators made the initial determination that ECM is of doubtful solvency. This would have meant that while creditors' claims rank ahead of limited partners in the liquidation waterfall, the Liquidators would have been required to consider the interests of both creditors and limited partners because it is possible, but not certain, that creditors will be paid in full. However, I understand that the Liquidators subsequently changed their determination to 'solvent' because MAVCAP had agreed to provide funding to cover the costs and expenses of the liquidation. (However, this funding is itself a liability of the liquidation estate, and so ranks ahead of any return to MAVCAP as limited partner).

56. For the avoidance of doubt, while the Liquidators are only aware that ECM has a single limited partner, MAVCAP, the Liquidators do not act for the interests of any single creditor or limited partner, but rather are required to act in good faith and in the best interests of the stakeholders as a whole). They are required to treat the creditors and limited partners in a fair and even-handed manner, including by seeking to giving effect to their substantive legal rights under Cayman Islands law.

V. The appointment of the Liquidators to UGP and TEC

57. Following the resignation of the registered office provider for ECM, UGP and TEC each of UGP and TEC were struck off the register of companies on January 31, 2022.

58. On May 30, 2023, the Liquidators, in their capacities as joint official liquidators of ECM, filed a petition with the Grand Court seeking the restoration and official liquidation of each of UGP and TEC and the appointment of the Liquidators[47] as joint official liquidators of those companies.

59. The petition with respect to UGP was made on behalf of ECM in its capacity as a contingent creditor of UGP (on the basis that UGP is liable for the debts of GP, which is liable for the debts of the Partnership, making UGP a contingent creditor of the Partnership for an unknown amount).

60. The petition with respect to TEC was made on behalf of ECM in its capacity as the sole registered shareholder of TEC.

61. In the case of both TEC and UGP, a winding up order was sought on the ground that it was just and equitable for the company to be wound up because (among other things):

a. the companies had been abandoned by their management, leading to their strike-off;

b. the directors of UGP had failed to provide the information requested by the JOLs which would enable it to determine the current status of the Partnership's assets;

[47] Mr Green and Mr Becker only.

c. official liquidation was necessary in order for there to be an investigation into the affairs of the companies, and in order to compel co-operation from the directors (including by securing overseas recognition and assistance).

62. The petitions were heard together on September 26, 2023. I appeared at that hearing as counsel for the Liquidators (in their capacity as petitioners on behalf of ECM). At the hearing, the Honorable Justice Parker, a Judge of the Grand Court, ordered that UGP and TEC be restored, placed into official liquidation and that Mr Green and Mr Becker be appointed as the companies' joint official liquidators (the "Winding Up Orders").

63. Upon the making of the Winding Up Orders, the powers of the directors automatically ceased and the power to act in the name of the companies vested in the Liquidators in accordance with the Companies Act (as described in paragraphs 29 to 38 above).

64. The Liquidators have made the initial determination that each of UGP and TEC is of doubtful solvency.

65. My understanding is that the official liquidations of ECM, UGP and TEC have each been mainly conducted in the Cayman Islands. While the Liquidators' powers may be exercised by any one of the Liquidators jointly and severally, it has been my experience that Mr. Green has taken primary responsibility for the conduct of the liquidations and is therefore responsible for managing ECM, TEC and UGP on a day-to-day basis. Mr. Green is domiciled and resident in the Cayman Islands (as is Mr. Penner).

Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1746, I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct.

Saving of rules of equity and common law

3. The rules of equity and of common law applicable to partnerships as modified by the Partnership Act (2013 Revision) but excluding sections 31, 45 to 54 and 56 to 57 shall apply to an exempted limited partnership, except where they are inconsistent with the express provisions of this Act.

Constitution

4. (1) An exempted limited partnership may be formed for any lawful purpose to be carried out and undertaken either in or from within the Islands or elsewhere upon the terms, with the rights and powers, and subject to the conditions, limitations, restrictions and liabilities mentioned in this Act but an exempted limited partnership shall not undertake business with the public in the Islands other than so far as may be necessary for the carrying on of the business of that exempted limited partnership exterior to the Islands.

(2) An exempted limited partnership shall consist of one or more persons called general partners who shall, in the event that the assets of the exempted limited partnership are inadequate, be liable for all debts and obligations of the exempted limited partnership, and one or more persons called limited partners who shall not be liable for the debts or obligations of the exempted limited partnership save as provided in the partnership agreement and to the extent specified in sections 20(1) and 34(1), but a general partner, without derogation from that general partner's position as such, may, in addition, take an interest as a limited partner in the exempted limited partnership.

(3) A body corporate, with or without limited liability, and a partnership whether in the name of the partnership and whether or not an exempted limited partnership, may be a general or limited partner of an exempted limited partnership.

(4) Any one or more of the limited partners and general partners of an exempted limited partnership may be resident, domiciled, established, incorporated or registered under the laws of the Islands or outside of the Islands but at least one general partner shall —

(a) if an individual, be resident in the Islands;

(b) if a company, be registered under the Companies Act (2021 Revision) or registered pursuant to Part IX of the Companies Act (2021 Revision);

(c) if a partnership, be registered pursuant to section 9(1) or 42, as applicable; or

(d) if any other person, be registered under any other Law or regulation as may be prescribed.

(5) A limited partner, or person with analogous status, of a partnership which is the general partner of an exempted limited partnership shall not, by virtue of that fact alone, be taken to be a general partner of the exempted limited partnership.

(6) A limited partner of an exempted limited partnership shall not cease to have the benefit of limited liability by reason only of the partnership ceasing to have a qualifying general partner.

When licence not required

5. A person who acts as a general partner of an exempted limited partnership is not, by virtue solely of so acting, required to be licensed under the Local Companies (Control) Act (2019 Revision) and shall not require a trust company licence under the Banks and Trust Companies Act (2021 Revision), a mutual fund administrator's licence under the Mutual Funds Act (2021 Revision), a licence under the Companies Management Act (2021 Revision) or a licence under the Trade and Business Licensing Act (2021 Revision).

Name and registered office

6. (1) Every exempted limited partnership shall have a name which —

(a) shall include the words "Limited Partnership" or the letters "L.P." or "LP";

(b) may include the name of any general partner or limited partner or any derivation thereof; and

(c) in the case of an exempted limited partnership carrying on special economic zone business, shall include the words "special economic zone" or the letters "SEZ", in each case which may be preceded by or followed with a dual or foreign name, but no exempted limited partnership shall have a name or translated name which, because it is identical or similar to the name of any other entity or it falsely suggests the patronage of or a connection with some person or authority or it suggests that the exempted limited partnership is licensed whether in the Islands or elsewhere to carry on any type or class of business when it is not in fact so licensed or because of any other reason, is calculated or likely to mislead.

(2) Every exempted limited partnership shall have a registered office situated in the Islands for the service of process and to which all notices and communications may be addressed.

(3) The registered office of an exempted limited partnership shall be the same as the address of a person licensed by the Authority under the Banks and Trust Companies Act (2021 Revision), the Companies Management Act (2021 Revision) or the Mutual Funds Act (2021 Revision) except where the registered office was at a different address immediately prior to the date of commencement of this Act and remains at that address on or after the date of commencement of this Act.

(4) For the purpose of subsection (3) the Authority means the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority established under section 5(1) of the Monetary Authority Act (2020 Revision), and includes a person acting under the Authority's authorisation.

(6) A limited partner of an exempted limited partnership formed after the 15th July, 1991 shall not have the benefit of limited liability until the date indicated on the certificate referred to in subsection (5) issued by the Registrar, and a partnership registered in accordance with section 40(1) shall obtain the benefit of limited liability under this Act with effect from that date but subject to section 40(2).

(7) A certificate issued under subsection (5) shall be conclusive evidence that compliance has been made with all the requirements of this Act in respect of the formation and registration of an exempted limited partnership but subject to section 40(2).

(8) Notwithstanding subsections (1) and (5), the Registrar may refuse to accept the registration of an exempted limited partnership and refuse to issue a certificate of registration in any case where, in the Registrar's opinion, the name or translated name of the proposed exempted limited partnership is in contravention of section 6(1).

Changes in registered particulars

10. (1) Without prejudice to subsection (2), if, during the continuance of an exempted limited partnership, any change is made or occurs in any matter specified in paragraphs (a) to (e) of section 9(1), a statement signed, subject to section 11, by a general partner specifying the nature of the change shall, within sixty days of the change, be filed with the Registrar.

(2) A statement signed in accordance with subsection (1) in respect of any arrangement or transaction consequent upon which any person will be removed, replaced or admitted as a general partner in any exempted limited partnership, shall, within fifteen days of the arrangement or transaction, be filed with the Registrar and, until the statement is so filed, the arrangement or transaction shall, for the purposes of this Act and the partnership agreement, not be effective to remove, replace or admit that person as a general partner of the exempt limited partnership and with respect to a replacement or admitted general partner the documentation required by subsection 9(1)(e)(i), (ii) or (iii) of this Act shall be provided as the case may require.

(3) Save with the written consent of any person thereby affected, no arrangement or transaction shall take effect to the extent that it seeks to relieve or discharge a general partner from the obligations of a general partner with regard to any debt or obligation of the exempted limited partnership to a person incurred before the arrangement or transaction takes effect.

(4) If default is made in compliance with this section, each general partner in default shall incur a penalty of two hundred dollars for each day that the default continues which penalty shall be a debt due to the Registrar and the general partner shall indemnify any person who thereby suffers any loss.

(5) The name or translated name of an exempted limited partnership shall not be changed so as to contravene section 6(1) and the Registrar may refuse to accept a statement under subsection (1) which, in the Registrar's opinion, seeks to effect such a change.

Failure to file statement

11. If a person required by section 9(1), section 10(1) or (2) or section 36, or by the partnership agreement to execute and file a statement or notice fails to do so, any other partner, and any assignee of a partnership interest who is or may be affected by the failure or refusal may petition the court to direct a person the court sees fit to sign the statement and file the same on behalf of the person in default.

Copies of certificates

12. (1) Any person may require a certified copy of the certificate of registration, a certificate of good standing or a copy of or extract from any registered statement filed in relation to the exempted limited partnership to be certified as a true copy by the Registrar on payment of a fee the Cabinet may by regulation prescribe.

(i) the end of the working day, where the application and all fees are received by 12 noon; or

(ii) 12 noon on the following working day, where the application and all fees are received after 12 noon.

(2) The express fee referred to in subsection (1) is —

(a) four hundred dollars for an application referred to in paragraph (a) of subsection (1); and

(2) All letters, contracts, deeds, instruments or documents whatsoever shall be entered into by or on behalf of the general partner (or any agent or delegate of the general partner) on behalf of the exempted limited partnership.

Agreement may specify delegation of authority

15. Where an exempted limited partnership has more than one general partner and this Act gives an authority, consent or power but not an obligation or liability, to the general partner, the partnership agreement may specify which general partner is entitled to exercise that authority, consent or power to the exclusion of any other general partner.

Property

16. (1) Any rights or property of every description of the exempted limited partnership, including all choses in action and any right to make capital calls and receive the proceeds thereof that is conveyed to or vested in or held on behalf of any one or more of the general partners or which is conveyed into or vested in the name of the exempted limited partnership shall be held or deemed to be held by the general partner and if more than one then by the general partners jointly, upon trust as an asset of the exempted limited partnership in accordance with the terms of the partnership agreement.

(c) the company has redeemed shares at prices based upon a mis-stated net asset value which is not binding upon the company and its members by reason of fraud or default, with the result that the company has paid out excessive or inadequate amounts to former members in consideration for the redemption of their shares.

(4) If the appeal is put on the basis that the official liquidator was not properly entitled to exercise the official liquidator's power under section 112(2), it must be supported by an affidavit containing all the facts and matters upon which the appellant relies.

(5) If the appeal is put on the basis that the official liquidator was admittedly entitled to exercise the official liquidator's power, but the official liquidator exercised it in a manner in which no liquidator could reasonably have exercised it in all the circumstances, it must be supported by an expert report which addresses the valuation and/or methodology issues raised in the summons.

(6) It shall be the duty of the official liquidator to swear an affidavit in reply or make a report which states whether the official liquidator —

(a) supports any aspect of the appeal;

(b) opposes the appeal, in which case the official liquidator's affidavit or report must contain the evidence, analysis and statements of opinion upon which the official liquidator relies in opposition to the appeal;

ORDER 18

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION OF COMPANY'S ASSETS BY ITS OFFICIAL LIQUIDATOR

Powers of Official Liquidator (O.18, r.1)

1. (1) The official liquidator is an officer of the Court.

(2) The official liquidator is empowered, as agent of the company, to collect, take possession, retain, manage and realise the company's property.

Manner of Distributing the Assets (O. 18, r. 2)

2. (1) When the official liquidator has sufficient funds in hand for the purpose the official liquidator shall, subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the expenses of the winding up, declare and distribute dividends among the creditors in respect of the debts which they have respectively proved.

(2) The official liquidator shall give notice of the official liquidator's intention to declare and distribute a dividend.

(3) Where the official liquidator has declared a dividend, the official liquidator shall give 21 days' notice of it to the creditors, stating how the dividend is proposed to be distributed. The notice shall contain such particulars with respect to the company, and its assets and affairs, as will enable the creditors to comprehend the calculation of the amount of the dividend and the manner of its distribution.

Debts of Insolvent Company to Rank Equally (O.18, r.3)

3. Debts other than preferential debts rank equally between themselves in the winding up and, after the preferential debts, shall be paid in full unless the assets are insufficient for meeting them, in which case they shall abate in equal proportions between themselves.

Calculation of Dividend (O.18, r.4)

4. (1) In the calculation and distribution of a dividend the official liquidator shall make provision for —

(a) any debts which appear to the official liquidator to be due to persons who, for whatever reason, may not have had sufficient time in which to tender and establish their proofs;

(b) any debts which are the subject of claims which have not yet been determined;

(c) disputed proofs and claims; and

(d) expenses of the liquidation which are anticipated but not yet incurred.

(2) A creditor who has not proved that creditor's debt before the declaration of any dividend is not entitled to disturb, by reason that that creditor has not participated in it, the distribution of that dividend or any other dividend declared before that creditor's debt was proved, but when that creditor has proved that debt, that creditor is entitled to be paid out of any money available for the payment of any further dividend.

(3) No action lies against an official liquidator for a dividend, but if an official liquidator has improperly refused to pay a dividend, the Court may order the official liquidator to pay it with interest at the prescribed rate.

Distribution of Assets in Specie (O.18, r.5)

5. (1) The official liquidator has power to divide the whole or part of the company's property in its existing form, according to its estimated value, amongst the company's creditors or members.

(2) In the case of an insolvent company, the official liquidator may apply to the Court for a direction authorising the official liquidator to divide the whole or part of the company's assets amongst the creditors on the grounds that —

(a) the property in question cannot be readily or advantageously sold; or

(b) there is some other special reason why it would be advantageous to creditors for the property in question to be distributed in specie.

(3) In the case of a solvent company, the official liquidator may divide the whole or part of the company's property (after having paid its debts in full) amongst the members in the following manner —

(a) in accordance with any specific provision in this regard contained in the company's articles of association; or

(b) in the absence of any relevant provision in the company's articles of association, with the authority of an ordinary resolution passed by the company's members; or

(c) in accordance with a direction of the Court made upon the application of any member or the voluntary liquidator.

(4) Property of a company which comprises a cause of action or other contingent asset which is incapable of being readily realised, may be distributed to creditors or members by means of transferring it to a new company, established for the purpose, and whose shares will be issued to the creditors or members in proportion to their respective rights against the company.

Interim Distribution to Creditors (O.18, r.6)

6. (1) As soon as the official liquidator determines that the official liquidator has realised sufficient assets to be able to pay a dividend, the official liquidator shall give notice of the official liquidator's intention to declare an interim or final dividend, as the case may be.

(2) A notice of intention to declare an interim dividend shall be in CWR Form No. 32 and shall —

(a) fix a date (being not less than 30 days from the date of publication of the notice) by which proofs of debt must be lodged with the official liquidator; and

(b) state that any creditor who lodges that creditor's proof of debt after the date specified in the notice will be excluded from the interim distribution but will not be excluded from any subsequent interim distribution or from the final distribution.

Final Distribution to Creditors (O.18, r.7)

7. (1) When the official liquidator has —

(a) realised all the company's assets, or so much of the assets as can, in the official liquidator's opinion, be realised without needlessly protracting the liquidation; and

(b) divided any unrealised assets amongst the creditors in specie, if and to the extent that it was practical to do so, the official liquidator shall give notice of the official liquidator's intention to declare a final dividend in CWR Form 33.

(2) The notice of intention to declare a final dividend shall —

(a) fix the date (being not less than 60 days from date of publication of the notice) by which proofs must be lodged with the official liquidator (referred to as "the final date for proving"); and

(b) state that any proof of debt lodged after the final date for proving may be excluded from the final dividend.

(3) Within 14 days from the final date for proving, the official liquidator shall deal with every creditor's proof (to the extent that the official liquidator has not already done so) by admitting it, rejecting it (in whole or in part) or by making a provision for it.

(4) The official liquidator may, but shall not be obliged, to deal with any proof of debt received after the final date for proving.

(5) Having dealt with every creditor's proof, the official liquidator shall give notice of final dividend in Form 34 to all creditors who have proved their debts.

(6) Every notice of final dividend shall specify —

(a) the amount realised from the sale of the company's assets;

(b) the value attributed to any assets distributed in specie;

(c) the amount of the expenses of the liquidation;

(d) the amount of any provisions made for unpaid claims;

(e) the amount of any funds retained for specific purposes;

(f) the total amount of any interim distributions; and

(g) the amount to be distributed and the overall rate of dividend.

(7) A dividend may be distributed simultaneously with the notice declaring it.

Payment of Dividends (O.18, r.8)

8. (1) Dividends shall only be paid in the currency of the liquidation.

(2) Dividends shall be paid by cheque or by such other method as the official liquidator may agree with individual creditors.

(3) Dividend cheques shall be sent to creditors by post, or by such other method as the official liquidator may agree with individual creditors.

Assignment of Right to Receive a Dividend (O.18, r.9)

9. (1) A creditor or member may assign that creditor's or member's right to receive a dividend or instruct the official liquidator to pay that creditor's or member's dividend to some other person.

(2) If a creditor entitled to receive a dividend has given notice of assignment to the official liquidator, the official liquidator shall pay the dividend to the assignee.

(3) If a creditor entitled to receive a dividend has given written instructions to the official liquidator that the dividend be paid to some other person, the official liquidator shall pay it in accordance with those instructions.

(1) The general rule is that the costs incurred by a person who successfully presents a creditor's winding up petition under Order 3, Part II or creditor's petition for a supervision order under Order 15, rule 3 should have that person's costs paid out of the assets of the company, such costs to be taxed on an indemnity basis unless agreed with the official liquidator.

(2) In the case of a contributory's winding up petition under Order 3, Part III, the general rules are that —

(a) if the Court has directed that the company itself is properly able to participate in the proceeding, the general rule is that the costs of a successful petitioner be paid out of the assets of the company; or

(b) if the Court has directed that the winding up petition be treated as an inter partes proceeding between one or more members of the other members or members of the company as respondents, the general rule is that none of the costs should be paid out of the assets of the company and the unsuccessful parties should pay the costs of the successful party, such costs to be taxed on the standard basis unless agreed.

(2A) An order for security for costs may only be made if the petitioner is a nominal petitioner who has presented the petition for the benefit of another person and who would be unable to pay the costs of the company or other respondent, as the case may be, if ordered to do so.

(3) In the case of an Authority's petition under Order 3, Part IV, the general rule is that —

(a) the Authority's costs of successfully presenting a petition should be paid out of the assets of the company, such costs to be taxed on the indemnity basis if not agreed with the official liquidator; or

(b) the company's costs of successfully resisting the petition should be paid by the Authority, such costs to be taxed on the indemnity basis if not agreed.

9. (1) This Rule applies to every sanction application under Order 11, including any application for the approval of the official liquidator's remuneration.

(b) the directions sought by the official liquidator were wholly unreasonable; or

(c) the official liquidator has misled the Court or otherwise acted improperly in connection with the application.

(3) The liquidation committee's costs of participating in a sanction application shall be paid out of the assets of the of the company unless the Court is satisfied that —

(a) the liquidation committee's participation in the application served no useful purpose or constituted an unreasonable duplication of the costs incurred by the official liquidator;

(b) the position adopted by the liquidation committee was wholly unreasonable; or

(c) the liquidation committee has misled the Court or otherwise acted improperly in connection with the application

(4) In the case of a sanction application which is made or opposed by a creditor or contributory, the general rule is that —

(a) that creditor's or contributory's costs of successfully making or opposing the application should be paid out of the assets of the company, such costs to be taxed on an indemnity basis if not agreed with the official liquidator; and

(b) no order for costs should be made against a creditor or contributory whose application or opposition is unsuccessful, unless the Court is satisfied that that creditor's or contributory's position was wholly unreasonable or that creditor or contributory is guilty of having misled the Court or otherwise acting improperly in connection with the application.

(5) The Court shall make orders for costs in accordance with these general rules unless it is satisfied that there are exceptional circumstances and special reasons which justify making some other order or not order for costs.

(2) The general rule is that the official liquidator's costs should be paid out of the assets of the company in any event.

(3) The general rule is that the appellant's costs should follow the event, such that —

(a) if the appellant succeeds, the Court shall order that the appellant's costs be paid out of the assets of the company as an expense of the liquidation;

(b) if the appellant is unsuccessful, the Court will order the appellant to pay the official liquidator's costs,

(c) such costs to be taxed on the standard basis unless agreed.

(4) In deciding how to exercise its discretion under sub-rule (3) the Court shall have regard to the manner in which the appellant originally sought to prove the appellant's claim (and, in particular, any failure to provide to the official liquidator with the whole of the evidence relied upon in support of the appellant's appeal to the Court) and the reasons why the Court reversed or varied or upheld the official liquidator's decision.

(5) On an appeal to the Grand Court an appellant shall not be required to provide security for costs in any appeal to which this Rule applies.

(2) An official liquidator may receive a payment on account, the amount of which shall not exceed eighty percent of the remuneration sought in the report and accounts prepared in accordance with Regulation 12(2).

(3) In the event that the amount of remuneration approved by the Court is less than the amount paid on account, the official liquidator shall forthwith repay the balance to the company.

(4) For the purposes of Parts III and IV of the Regulations the expression "official liquidator" is used to include the firm or company of which the official liquidator is a partner, director or employee and references to "remuneration" mean the remuneration payable to such firm or company.

Basis of Remuneration

11. (1) An official liquidator may be remunerated on the basis of —

(a) the time spent by the official liquidator and the official liquidator's staff upon the affairs of the liquidation; or

(b) a percentage of the amount distributed to creditors and members of the company; or

(c) a percentage of the amount realised upon the sale of the company's assets (net after deduction of the direct costs of sale); or

(d) a fixed fee; or

(e) a combination of some or all of the above.

(2) An official liquidator shall not delegate work to any related firm or any other firm of insolvency practitioners, except on terms that such firm will be remunerated only in accordance with the terms of a remuneration agreement which complies with the requirements of these Regulations and has been approved by the Court.

Consideration of Remuneration by the Liquidation Committee

12. (1) An official liquidator may not make an application to the Court under Regulation 13 without first —

(a) seeking the liquidation committee's approval of the basis of the official liquidator's remuneration and the amount of the remuneration for which the official liquidator intends to seek the Court's approval; or, if there is no liquidation committee

(b) convening a meeting of creditors and/or contributories in accordance with CWR Order 8 at which the official liquidator proposes a resolution approving the basis of the official liquidator's remuneration and the amount of the remuneration for which the official liquidator intends to seek the Court's approval; or

(c) complying with the requirements of any international protocol (in so far as it relates to the official liquidator's remuneration) which has been approved by both the Court and a foreign court.

(2) The official liquidator shall prepare a report and accounts containing all the information reasonably required to enable a creditor or contributory to make an informed decision about the reasonableness of the proposed basis of remuneration and amount for which the official liquidator intends to seek the Court's approval.

(3) If the official liquidator seeks to be remunerated on a time spent basis, the official liquidator's report and accounts shall provide full particulars of the work done; the staff engaged; and the hourly rates applicable to each grade of staff.

Case 1:20-cv-00495-JJM-PAS Document 28-4 Filed 12/28/23 Page 11 of 21 PageID #: 516

(4) The official liquidator's report and accounts shall be provided to the liquidation committee or, if there is no committee, sent to the creditors and/or contributories with notice of the meeting.

Application to the Court

13. (1) An application by an official liquidator for approval of the official liquidator's remuneration shall be made by summons in CWR Form No 16A and shall be served on —

(a) each member of the liquidation committee; or

(b) counsel to the liquidation committee, if an attorney has been appointed by the liquidation committee with authority to act generally.

(2) An application under this Regulation may be made ex parte if there is no duly constituted liquidation committee in existence.

(3) An application under this Regulation shall be supported by —

(a) the report and accounts provided to the liquidation committee or meeting of creditors and/or contributories (as the case may be);

(b) an affidavit stating the outcome of the liquidation committee's consideration or the outcome of the creditors' and/or contributories' meetings; and

(c) a copy of the remuneration agreement or a copy of the document(s) which evidence the terms of the remuneration agreement.

(4) Where an official liquidator is to be remunerated on the basis of Regulation 11(1)(b) or Regulation 11(1)(c) of these Regulations, the official liquidator must apply to the Court for approval of the basis of remuneration within the later of —

(a) 6 months from the date a liquidation committee is established; or

(b) 9 months from the date of the commencement of the liquidation.

PART IV: RATES OF REMUNERATION

Introduction

14. (1) It is the responsibility of the liquidation committee and the official liquidator to negotiate and agree the basis upon which the official liquidator and the official liquidator's firm will be remunerated and the applicable scale of hourly rates, percentage rates or fixed fees, as may be the case (referred to in these Regulations as a "remuneration agreement").

(2) Subject to paragraph (3) of this Regulation, the terms of every remuneration agreement shall comply with the requirements of these Regulations.

(3) Any remuneration agreement made and approved by the Court prior to the commencement date shall continue to be valid and enforceable notwithstanding any non-compliance with these Regulations, unless and until the Court orders or approves its replacement or amendment.

Terms of Remuneration Agreements

15. (1) In the event that an official liquidator agrees to be remunerated upon a time spent basis, it shall be a term of the remuneration that —

(a) the official liquidator and the official liquidator's firm shall not be obliged to accept less than the minimum hourly rates, for the relevant dates, as prescribed in Part A of the Schedule hereto; and

(b) the liquidation committee shall not be authorised to agree to pay more than the maximum hourly rates, for the relevant dates, as prescribed in Part A of the Schedule hereto; and

(c) the agreed scale of hourly rates shall apply, in the first instance, to the period from the date of the winding up order until 31st December and, thereafter, the scale of hourly rates shall be reviewed and re-negotiated annually with the effect from 1st January each year

(2) In the event that the official liquidator agrees to be remunerated on the basis of a percentage of distributions, it shall be a term of the remuneration agreement that the official liquidator and the official liquidator's firm shall be paid —

(a) a percentage of the net amount available for distribution to creditors after payment of the expenses of the liquidation (other than the official liquidator's remuneration) if the company is insolvent;

(b) if the company is solvent, an additional percentage of the net amount available for distribution to members after payment of the expenses of the liquidation (other than the official liquidator's remuneration); and

(c) the percentage rate shall not exceed the maximum prescribed in Part B of the Schedule

(3) In the event that the official liquidator agrees to be remunerated on the basis of a percentage of realisations, it shall be a term of the remuneration agreement that the official liquidator and the official liquidator's firm shall be paid —

(a) a percentage of the amount realised upon sale of the company's assets, net after deduction of the direct costs of sale; and

(b) a percentage of the gross amounts recovered from the company's debtors and contingent debtors; and

(c) the percentage rate shall not exceed the maximum prescribed in Part B of the Schedule.

Case 1:24-mc-00495-JLT-SKO Document 1-4 Filed 12/20/23 Page 13 of 21

(4) In the event that —

(a) the official liquidator and the liquidation committee fail to agree upon the terms of a remuneration agreement; or

(b) in the absence of any liquidation committee, a resolution approving the official liquidator's proposed remuneration agreement is not passed at a creditors' meeting and/or contributories' meeting, the official liquidator shall apply to the Court pursuant to Regulation 13 for an order approving the official liquidator's proposed remuneration agreement.

(5) When it is agreed that two or more jointly appointed official liquidators are to be remunerated on a time spent basis, their remuneration agreement may provide that different scales of hourly rates shall apply to each of them.

(6) (a) When an official liquidator agrees to be remunerated on a time spent basis, the scale of hourly rates may be denominated in US dollars or the currency of the liquidation or the currency in which the official liquidator's firm normally does business.

(b) For the purposes of determining whether agreed hourly rates denominated in a currency other than US dollars comply with the scale of hourly rates prescribed in the Schedule to the Regulations, (i) the rates initially agreed shall be translated into US dollars at the exchange rate prevailing on the date of the commencement of the liquidation and (ii) thereafter, the rates shall be reviewed (by translating them into US dollars at the exchange rate prevailing on the 1st January or the first business day of each year) and if, as a result of changes in the applicable exchange rate occurring since the commencement of the liquidation or the previous review, the agreed hourly rates are found to be less than the minimum or more than the maximum prescribed rates, the rates applicable for the following year shall be adjusted as may be necessary to comply with the prescribed rates.

(7) When an official liquidator agrees to be remunerated on the basis of a percentage of realisations, the amount of the official liquidator's remuneration will be determined and paid in the currency or currencies in which the assets are realised.

(8) When an official liquidator agrees to be remunerated on the basis of a percentage of distributions, the official liquidator's remuneration will be determined and paid in the currency of the liquidation.

EXHIBIT E

(Re Hadar Fund Ltd)

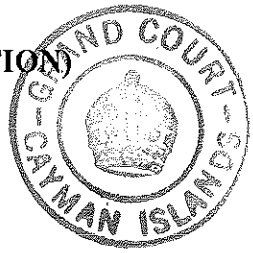
IN THE GRAND COURT OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS
FINANCIAL SERVICES DIVISION



CAUSE NO: FSD 94 OF 2013 (AJJ)

The Hon Mr. Justice Andrew Jones QC
In Open Court, 9th and 13th August 2013

IN THE MATTER OF THE COMPANIES LAW (2012 REVISION) (AS AMENDED)

AND

IN THE MATTER OF HADAR FUND LTD. (IN VOLUNTARY LIQUIDATION)

Appearances:

Mr. Matthew Goucke of Walkers for the joint voluntary liquidators of Hadar Fund Ltd. as petitioners;

Mr. Stephen Moverley-Smith QC instructed by Mr. Jayson Wood of Harneys Westwood & Riegels for Ametista Patrimonial (Mauritius) Ltd, PNT Capital Advisors and Blue Pearl Advisors Limited;

Mr. Rocco Cecere of Mourant Ozannes for Mr. Simon Graham, the former director of Hadar Fund Ltd.;

Mr. Mark Goodman of Campbells for Hadar Investment Advisers Ltd, the former investment manager of Hadar Fund Ltd.

REASONS

Introduction

1. This is a supervision petition presented by Messrs Walker and Stokoe of PwC Corporate Finance & Recovery (Cayman) Limited ("PwC Cayman") in their capacity as joint voluntary liquidators of Hadar Fund Ltd. ("the Fund") which was put into liquidation on 31 May 2013. Its sole director decided not to sign a declaration of solvency with the result that the Fund is deemed to be insolvent and Messrs Walker and Stokoe are required by section 124(1) of the Companies Law (2012 Revision) as amended to present a petition for an order that the liquidation be brought under the supervision of the Court. One of the fundamental principles underlying the corporate insolvency regime introduced by the Companies (Amendment) Law 2007 is that the liquidation of all insolvent companies must be conducted by qualified insolvency practitioners acting under the supervision of the Court. It follows that I am bound to make a supervision order in respect of the Fund. The only issues arising for decision are (1) who should be appointed as official liquidators and (2) what, if any, directions should be given to the official liquidators.

2. Messrs Walker and Stokoe have nominated themselves for appointment as official liquidators, which they are perfectly entitled to do, provided that they can be properly regarded as independent as regards the Fund, in accordance with regulation 6 of the Insolvency Practitioners' Regulations 2008 (as amended). Having read the Court file shortly after the matter was assigned to me, I formed the view that this was not an appropriate case in which to make a supervision order and appoint official liquidators "on the papers" and I therefore fixed a hearing date and directed that copies of the supervision petition, supporting affidavits and my order for directions be served on the redeemed shareholders and/or the ultimate investors and/or the investment manager and/or its beneficial owners (as defined in Mr Stokoe's first affidavit) and any other person who appears to the voluntary liquidators to be a creditor or contingent creditor of the Fund. I directed that any person wishing to appear at the hearing and oppose the appointment of Messrs Walker and Stokoe as official liquidators must nominate alternative candidates and file and serve their affidavits (complying with the requirement of CWR Order 3, rule 4) no later than 2 August 2013.

3. In the event three related companies served notice of their intention to oppose the appointment of Messrs Walker and Stokoe on the ground that they do not meet the independence requirement of regulation 6. Two of the objectors are Ametista Patrimonial (Mauritius) Ltd and PNT Capital Advisors, which indirectly own 50% of the issued share capital of Hadar Investment Advisers Ltd ("HIA"), the Fund's investment manager. The other objector is Blue Pearl Advisors Ltd ("BPA") which is a party to the distribution agreement made with the Fund (the significance of which is described in paragraph 8 below). These objectors claim to be creditors of the Fund. It is sufficient to say that for present purposes their locus standi has not been challenged. The ultimate beneficial owners of these companies are Mr Sanjit Talukdar and Mr Marc Giebels von Bekestein. Mr Talukdar has sworn an affidavit which sets out in detail the reasons why they consider that PwC Cayman (and therefore Messrs Walker and Stokoe) do not meet the independence requirement. They have nominated Ms Tammy Fu and Mr Gordon MacRae of Zolfo Cooper (Cayman) Limited for appointment as official liquidators. Ms Tammy Fu swore an affidavit in compliance with the rules and it is not disputed that she and Mr MacRae are qualified insolvency practitioners who do meet the general residence and insurance requirements and can be properly regarded as independent as regards the Fund.

4. No other candidates have been nominated. It appears that the only other stakeholders who have an actual, potential or contingent claim or economic interest in the Fund's remaining assets are (a) the four redeemed shareholders (referred to as the "Former Shareholders") and their three ultimate beneficial owners (referred to as "the Investors"), (b) HIA itself and (c) Mr. Pavel Sukhoruchkin and Mr Pavel Novoselov ("the Pavels") who are the ultimate beneficial owners of 50% of the shares of HIA. Mr Talukdar's evidence is that the Pavels set up a private office for the Investors and act as their investment managers, presumably through one or more corporate vehicles.

5. The Former Shareholders have not instructed counsel to appear on the hearing of this petition. Initially, on 24 July 2013, they wrote four identical letters to Messrs Walker and Stokoe stating that they were satisfied with the "approach and work carried out to date" and expressed concern about the cost implications of appointing anyone else as official liquidators. Then, on 8 August, they wrote four further identical letters in response to the assertion that PwC Cayman are not independent. Whilst these letters do positively support the appointment of Messrs Walker and Stokoe, they do not address the client relationships which are said to impair their independence. The Former Shareholders appear to expect Messrs Walker and Stoke to make the case for them, which is not an appropriate approach. The stakeholders should make and plead their own case. In the circumstances of this petition, the voluntary liquidators are expected to adopt a neutral position, having sworn an affidavit which sets out all the relevant factual circumstances in an even-handed way for the benefit of the Court and all the stakeholders. It would be improper for voluntary liquidators to adopt the role of advocates on behalf of those stakeholders who support their appointment as official liquidators and against those stakeholders who support other candidates.

6. HIA, acting by its independent directors, instructed counsel to appear and adopt a neutral position. Mr Michael Pearson, one of HIA's newly appointed independent directors, swore an affidavit in which he helpfully explained the circumstances in which he and his colleague made the decision to put the Fund into liquidation. The only other party to appear by counsel was Mr Simon Graham, who was the sole director of the Fund at the time it was put into liquidation. It was his decision not to sign a declaration of solvency which necessitated the presentation of the supervision petition. Mr Graham did not swear any affidavit, although I was referred to certain paragraphs of a witness statement which he signed on 17 June 2013 in connection with the related English proceedings. I think it fair to say that his counsel had a watching brief – he adopted a neutral position. No one else appeared at the hearing. It follows that there was no stakeholder present in person or by counsel who supported the appointment of Messrs Walker and Stokoe as official liquidators. However, I have taken into account the letters received by the Court from the Former Shareholders.

Factual background

7. The Fund was incorporated on 8 May 2008 as an open ended investment fund for which purpose it is registered under the Mutual Funds Law, but the evidence tends to suggest that it has never actually carried on business as a mutual fund, at least in a conventional way. It is part of a highly complex structure of companies used to hold investments for three Russian businessmen, namely Messrs Vigit Alekperov, Leonid Fedun and Alexander Djaparidze, who are said to be close business associates. I shall refer to them collectively as the "Investors". Mr Talukdar's affidavit says that Mr Alekperov and Mr Fedun are respectively the president and vice president of Lukoil, one of Russia's largest oil companies. Mr Djaparidze is the chief executive officer of Eurasia Drilling Company Limited which used to be part of the Lukoil group and is now one of its largest customers. In the light of this evidence, I think that it is fair to describe the Investors as business associates who must be well known to each other. They are acting in concert in relation to the liquidation and the related litigation. In paragraph 27 of his affidavit Mr Talukdar describes the Fund as "a vehicle for [the Investors] which they could (and did) use to carry out unusual or bespoke transactions". The Fund was apparently managed by HIA pursuant to the terms of an investment management agreement made on 20 June 2008 (the "Investment Management Agreement"). Deutsche Bank (Cayman) Limited was appointed as administrator and custodian and appears to have played no role in the events surrounding the Fund's liquidation. The Fund's share capital comprises a nominal number of management shares (which carry all the votes) and redeemable participating shares (which represent all the economic interest). The management shares are held by HIA and the participating shares were initially issued to three companies, each ultimately owned by one of the three Investors.

8. HIA, the Fund's investment manager, is beneficially owned by (a) Mr Talukdar and Mr Bekestein and (b) the Pavels. Through various companies, they each have a 25% interest in HIA, whose sole source of income is (or was) fees payable by the Fund which would be borne ultimately by the Investors. The Pavels are former employees of Lukoil. They left that employment in 2004 to set up a private office to provide investment advisory and management services for the Investors. The Investment Management Agreement provided for HIA to be paid an annual management fee equivalent to 5% of NAV payable monthly and a performance fee of 20% of net profits (including unrealised gains) payable semi-annually. As beneficial owners of HIA, Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein and the Pavels benefitted from this fee income equally. Mr Talukdar's evidence is that prior to May 2011 the Fund's total AUM was about US$100 million. He says that in May 2011 a company called Cloudburst Orange Limited ("Cloudburst") (which is ultimately owned by Mr Djaparidze) subscribed for shares in the Fund in consideration for the transfer of global depository receipts (having a market value of US$1.1 billion) in Eurasia Drilling Company Limited which is listed on the London Stock Exchange. The commercial rationale for this transaction is not something which I need to consider. Its relevance is that it increased HIA's management fee income from around US$5 million per annum to US$5 million per month. On 21 December 2010, apparently in anticipation of the Cloudburst investment, the Fund and HIA entered into a Distribution Agreement with BPA, a company wholly owned by Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein (the Distribution Agreement"). According to Mr Talukdar's evidence, the purpose of the Distribution Agreement was to vary the economic effect of the Investment Management Agreement by providing for 66% of the fee income attributable to the Cloudburst investment to flow through to the benefit of Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein only. The Pavels have commenced an action in the English High Court in which they claim that the Distribution Agreement was a mechanism for fraudulently depriving HIA (and indirectly themselves) of part of its management fee income.

9. One might have expected that Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein and the Pavels would be the directors of the Fund and HIA, whereas in fact the directors of both companies are employees of professional corporate services providers. The Fund's directors were Mr Simon Graham and Mr Scott Dakers, although Mr Dakers had resigned by the time the Fund was put into liquidation. HIA's directors were Mr Simon Graham, Ms. Irina Gizikova and Mr Ben Frith. Mr Graham is an employee (and minority shareholder) of Lancaster Trustees Limited and Ms Gizikova is an employee of Lancaster Trustees (Cyprus) Limited and a former employee of Lukoil. These companies are part of a group which is majority owned and controlled by the Pavels and I infer that Messrs Graham and Gizikova represent the Pavels' interests. Mr Dakers is an employee of Ogier Fiduciary Services (Cayman) Limited and the associated law firm, Ogier, was retained as attorneys to both the Fund and HIA. Mr Frith represented the interests of Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein on the board of HIA until his removal on 13 February 2013. I infer from these business relationships that the Pavels were in a position to exercise control over the boards of directors of both HIA and the Fund.

10. The Cloudburst investment led to an irreparable breakdown in the business relationship between Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein and the Pavels. It is not necessary for the purposes of resolving the narrow issue before this Court to make any observation about the reasons why this happened. Suffice it to say that it has lead to complex litigation (both pending and threatened) in which serious allegations of fraud and wrongdoing are being made by and against both sides. When one looks through the complex corporate structure, it is perfectly clear that the underlying protagonists in this litigation are the Pavels and the Investors on one side and Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein on the other side. The principal subject-matter of this litigation is Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein's claim for damages representing their share of the fee income which they say was generated or should have been generated from the Fund through HIA.

11. The events leading up to the liquidation of the Fund appear to have commenced in November 2012 when Mr Graham and Ms Gizikova (then being a majority of HIA's board of directors) resolved to waive payment of fees of about US$5.2 million then owed by the Fund to HIA; to reduce HIA's management fee from 5% of NAV (equating to about US$60 million per annum) to a flat fee of US$100,000 per annum; and to waive payment of performance fees. This is said to have been done without notifying Mr Frith, the third member of the board who represented the interests of Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein. He was removed from the board on 13 February 2013. In March 2013 the directors of the Fund (Mr Graham and Mr Dakers) resolved to allow all the participating shares to be redeemed immediately, notwithstanding that its offering document stipulated a three year rolling lock-up period and a 95 day notice requirement. Finally, on 10 April 2013 the Fund notified BPA that the Distribution Agreement was terminated immediately by reason of the redemption of the participating shares. For all practical purposes, these steps terminated the "business" of HIA and the Fund and terminated Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein's participation (both retrospectively and prospectively) in whatever fee income might otherwise have been generated from managing the Investor's assets. They responded by consulting English lawyers who served a detailed letter of claim dated 19 April 2013 in which it is alleged that these actions were done in furtherance of an unlawful conspiracy amongst, inter alia, the Pavels, Mr Graham, Ms Gizikova and Mr Dakers to deprive them of their economic interest in the fees payable by the Fund to HIA and BPA. The Fund itself is alleged to be party to this conspiracy. The Pavels pre-empted this threatened action by commencing their own action in the English High Court in which it is alleged that the Distribution Agreement is a mechanism for defrauding the Pavels of part of their economic interest in the fees which would otherwise have been paid by the Fund to HIA. In the course of ruling upon an application to discharge an injunction, the judge obs erved that the Fund appears to have a cause of action in respect of a secret commission of US$4.4 million paid to BPA in connection with what is described as the Telnic investment. Whilst various causes of action may exist by and against both the Fund and HIA, I am inclined to regard these companies and the fee income generated through them as the subject-matter of the litigation, both pending and threatened.

The decision to put the Fund into voluntary liquidation

12. It is against this background that I turn to consider the circumstances in which the Fund was put into voluntary liquidation and Messrs Walker and Stokoe of PwC Cayman were appointed as liquidators. Power to put the Fund into liquidation rested with HIA as holder of the voting shares. Rather than have Mr Graham and Ms Gizikova sign the special resolution, it was decided (without reference to Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein) that an independent board of directors would be put in place for this purpose. The first step was to instruct Campbells as attorneys for HIA in place of Ogier. This was done on or about 22 March 2013, again without reference to Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein. Campbells were instructed to identify a local Cayman Islands professional service provider who could act as directors of HIA in place of Mr Graham and Ms Gizikova. They recommended Fund Fiduciary Partners and on 18 April 2013 the principals of that firm, Mr Michael Pearson and Mr Christopher Rowland, were appointed as directors of HIA. They are both qualified insolvency practitioners and former employees/directors of Deloitte, who are eminently well qualified to perform the task allotted to them. Mr Pearson has sworn an affidavit in which he describes the circumstances in which they were appointed. He says that his firm is independent in the sense that it has never previously had any involvement with any of the relevant players, although he does not describe what pre-engagement due diligence was conducted.

13. On 26 April 2013, within a week of their appointment, Messrs Pearson and Rowland received a letter from Ogier, who continued to act as attorneys for the Fund, asking them to put it into voluntary liquidation and appoint Messrs Stokoe and Walker of PwC Cayman as liquidators. This letter concluded by stating -

> "For the above reasons, the Directors hereby request HIA consider whether it would be willing to exercise its rights as holder of 100 per cent of the Management Shares in the Fund to place the Fund into voluntary liquidation and to appoint Ian Stokoe and David Walker of PricewaterhouseCoopers as voluntary liquidator of the Fund. We enclose a draft Management Shareholder resolution for your consideration."

Mr Pearson says in his affidavit that they "approached the proposed voluntary liquidation of the Fund with great circumspection". They considered the matter over the next month, during which time Mr Pearson discussed the issues directly with Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein who argued that the Fund should not be put into liquidation. On 24 May 2013 Campbells wrote to the solicitors acting for Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein to inform them that Messrs Pearson and Rowland had decided to put the Fund into liquidation. They gave their reasons for having reached this decision. Having waited and received no response to this letter, they proceeded to sign the written resolution on 31 May 2013.

14. According to Mr Pearson's affidavit, the focus of the debate during May was whether or not the Fund should be put into liquidation. He says (at paragraph 22) –

> "Given the value of the sums involved and the complex disputes between the ultimate beneficial owners and various other entities owned and controlled by them, we considered that this was an appropriate appointment for a 'big-four' accounting practice with experience of complex and high-value liquidations. Accordingly, we considered the nomination of PWC entirely appropriate, believing they would, as a matter of course, conduct a conflict check and satisfy themselves that they were sufficiently independent before accepting the appointment as voluntary liquidators. We were obviously not aware at the time the resolution was passed of the matters complained of by Mr Talukdar in the final sentence of paragraph 42(b) of his affidavit."

The final part of paragraph 42(b) says that –

> "We were not consulted at all about the identity of the proposed liquidators. HIA's New Directors appointed [the Voluntary Liquidators], who work for PwC's Cayman branch. Mr Graham [the Fund's sole director] subsequently admitted, in the course of the English Proceedings, that PwC are advisers to the Pavels."

GRAND COURT - CAYMAN ISLANDS

Since Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein knew that the proposed liquidators were PwC Cayman, I infer that they agreed that it would be appropriate to appoint one of the "big-four" firms and had no reason to object to PwC Cayman at the time of their telephone conversation with Mr Pearson on 17 May 2013, otherwise they would have raised the point. Mr Pearson makes no reference in his affidavit to having discussed the matter with PwC Cayman at all and Mr Stokoe confirmed that they only had a brief conversation in which the subject was mentioned.

15. I draw the following conclusions from this evidence. PwC Cayman were asked to act as liquidators by Ogier, who must have taken instructions from Mr Graham. He was acting as a director of the Fund in his capacity as an employee of one or more of the Lancaster group companies, which are majority owned by the Pavels and are presumably the vehicle through which they act for the Investors and/or companies owned by them. Mr Graham represented the interests of the Pavels and the Investors and it is reasonable to infer that he selected PwC Cayman with their concurrence. There is no evidence from which to infer that Ogier selected PwC Cayman on their own initiative without reference to their client. Mr Pearson did not apply his mind to the choice of liquidators. In reaching this conclusion, I do not imply any criticism of him. He focused on whether or not the Fund should be put into liquidation. He had no reason to focus on the identity of the liquidators. He had no reason to suppose that PwC Cayman might not be regarded as independent. I conclude that the decision to appoint Messrs Walker and Stokoe of PwC Cayman must have been made by Mr Graham with the concurrence of the Pavels and the Investors.

16. Mr Stokoe carried out his firm's client pre-engagement procedures in the usual way, based upon the information and list of names provided to him by Ogier. He was provided with the names that appear in the structure chart although this document itself was created later. As I understand it, he and Mr Walker accepted the appointment on the basis that no PwC firm had any professional relationship with any of the individuals and companies identified to them as having any involvement in the matter. It transpired only later, after they had been appointed as voluntary liquidators, that both the Pavels and two of the Investors are PwC clients, in the sense that member firms within the PwC network are currently doing advisory work for companies which are ultimately owned by them. For reasons of client confidentiality, Mr Stokoe has not disclosed any details about these client relationships. Suffice it to say that his evidence, which I accept, can be summarised as follows. PwC Cayman does not and never has had any client relationship with the Investors or the Pavels or any company owned by any of them. The names of PwC corporate clients in question do not appear on the structure chart prepared for the purposes of this liquidation. Having made enquiry and on the basis of the information now available to him, it appears to Mr Stokoe that these PwC clients have nothing to do with this liquidation or the related litigation (except that they are owned or controlled by the Pavels and/or two of the Investors). The PwC firms do not have access to each other's client files. However, in the absence of any evidence from Ogier or Mr Graham or the Pavels or the Investors, a fair minded stakeholder might reasonably infer that PwC Cayman was selected because of the existing client relationship with other firms in the PwC network. I do have the letters dated 8 August 2013 from the Former Shareholders, which are ultimately owned by the Investors. They ignore the point. Nothing is said about the pre-existing client relationships or the reasons why Ogier was instructed to nominate PwC Cayman. I draw an adverse inference from the fact that none of those involved in making the decision have given evidence to explain why PwC Cayman was selected; why the existing client relationships which I have described were not drawn to the attention of Mr Stokoe for the purposes of his conflict check; and why Messrs Pearson and Rowland were not left to make their own choice of liquidator.

The applicable legal principles

17. Regulation 6(1) provides that "A qualified insolvency practitioner shall not be appointed by the Court as official liquidator of a company unless he can properly be regarded as independent as regards that company." Whether or not a firm of insolvency practitioners can be regarded as independent as regards any particular company in liquidation depends upon the existence or non-existence of professional or economic relationships which are regarded by the Court as creating a situation in which the appearance of complete impartiality is compromised. Appearances matter. The fact that Messrs Walker and Stokoe are honest, capable professionals who have been appointed as official liquidators on many occasions and whose actions and judgment calls have been sanctioned by this Court on a regular basis is beside the point. It is not good enough to say that these particular individuals can be relied upon to perform their duties properly.

18. Whether or not any particular kind of professional or economic relationships will lead to the conclusion that an insolvency practitioner can or cannot be properly regard as independent must depend upon the factual circumstances of each case which will vary in an infinite variety of ways. The Court must first identify the relationship and determine whether it is capable of impairing the appearance of independence. If the answer is yes, the Court must then consider whether its existence is sufficiently material in the factual circumstances of the liquidation in question that a fair minded stakeholder would reasonably object to the appointment of the nominee in question. In practice the Court is usually called upon to resolve these issues in cases where the nominated insolvency practitioners are members of firms which have multi-disciplinary practices including audit work and consultancy work. They are most difficult to resolve in cases, such as the present one, where the nominated practitioners are members of a Cayman Islands firm which is part of one of the large international networks of which the "big four" – Deloitte, Ernst & Young, KPMG and PricewaterhouseCoopers – are not the only ones represented in this country.

GRAND COURT CAYMAN ISLANDS

Conclusions

19. In this case it is accepted that PwC Cayman does not itself have any pre-existing professional relationship with any of the stakeholders. However, it is well established in this Court that the existence of a professional relationship between a stakeholder and some other PwC firm is capable of leading to the conclusion that the Cayman firm cannot be regarded as independent. The fact that one or more PwC firms are currently doing advisory work for companies owned by or associated with the Pavels and two of the Investors is such a relationship. The question is whether or not these client relationships are material in the circumstances of this liquidation and I must answer this question on the basis of the evidence before the Court. The mere fact that Messrs Walker and Stokoe have considered the matter and come to their own conclusion that it is not material is relevant evidence which I have taken into account, but it cannot be conclusive. The two Investors (and their companies) and the Pavels have had the opportunity to file written evidence which explains the nature and extent of the professional relationships in question, but have chosen not to do so.

20. I have come to the conclusion that these client relationships are material, in that a fair minded stakeholder would reasonably object to the appointment of PwC Cayman. I have come to this conclusion for the following reasons. First, the Fund is an important part of the subject-matter of litigation between two groups of protagonists who are making allegations of fraud each other. I have directed that the official liquidators be authorised to participate in this litigation. There are no stakeholders other than the members of these two opposing groups. The fact that members of one opposing group are PwC clients is a reasonable basis upon which a fair minded stakeholder could reasonably object to PwC Cayman's involvement as liquidators. The conclusion would be different if this was a fund with a hundred shareholders and a handful of them turn out to be PwC clients. Second, Messrs Walker and Stokoe's nomination as official liquidators results from the fact that they were appointed as voluntary liquidators. The evidence leads me to conclude that this appointment was in fact made with the concurrence of the Investors/Pavels, who did not disclose the client relationships with the other PwC firm(s) either to Messrs Pearson and Rowland or to Messrs Walker and Stokoe. The evidence reflects that Messrs Pearson and Rowland did make an independent, reasoned decision to put the Fund into liquidation. However, they did not make any independent decision about the selection of official liquidators. They appointed PwC Cayman because they were asked to do so by Ogier. Third, the outcome of the liquidation of the Fund appears to depend entirely upon the outcome of the litigation between the two protagonist groups. For these reasons it seems to me that the client relationship between the Investors/Pavels and the PwC network must be regarded as material. In the absence of any evidence from the stakeholders (who could have explained their relationships with the foreign PwC firms and the reasons why PwC Cayman was chosen as liquidators of the Fund), Mr Stokoe's evidence that the names of the actual client companies are not mentioned on the structure chart and therefore appear to have no relevance to the liquidation or the litigation is not sufficient to displace my conclusion that the relationship is material.

21. Having concluded that Messrs Walker and Stokoe (and PwC Cayman) cannot be regarded as independent as regards the Fund, regulation 6 mandates that the Court shall not appoint them as official liquidators. The fact that they have done an enormous amount of work over a two month period in their capacity as voluntary liquidators is irrelevant. Since there is no objection to the only other candidates, I therefore appoint Messrs Tammy Fu and Gordon MacRae of Zolfo Cooper (Cayman) Limited as joint official liquidators of the Fund.

22. The supervision petition includes a prayer for directions authorising the official liquidators to participate (in such manner as they consider necessary) in the existing proceeding pending before the English High Court and in connection with the proceedings threatened in the letter of claim served on behalf of the various companies ultimately owned by Messrs Talukdar and Bekestein. Counsel agreed that I should give such directions in any event, irrespective of the identity of the official liquidators. It seemed to me plainly obvious that the official liquidators should have power to participate in both the pending and threatened proceedings. Exactly how they exercise the power is not a matter for consideration today. I anticipate that it will be the subject of a sanction application in due course.

JUDGMENT

Introduction

1. The Petition of San Miguel Holdings Corp ("SMHC") and Atlantic Aurum Investments B.V. ("AAIBV", and SMHC, together the "Petitioners") presented on 19 July 2021 seeks orders for the winding up of Padma Fund L.P. (the "Partnership").

2. The Petitioners seek an order that the Partnership be wound up pursuant to section 92(d) of the Companies Act (2021 Revision) (the "Companies Act"), as applied by section 36(3) of the Exempted Limited Partnership Act (2021 Revision) (the "ELP Act"), on the basis that the Partnership is unable to pay its debts.

3. Parallax Capital Management (the "General Partner") acts on behalf of the Partnership. The General Partner is the sole general partner of the Partnership.

4. The Partnership, acting by its General Partner, opposes the Petition on the following grounds:

   (1) the Petition is procedurally defective and the Court has no jurisdiction to make the orders sought by the Petition;

   (2) the Statutory Demand relied upon to evidence insolvency is defective and invalid;

   (3) the Petition debt is disputed bona fide on substantial grounds;

   (4) the Partnership (acting by its General Partner) has a cross-claim exceeding the amount of the alleged petition debt;

   (5) the Petition has been presented for a collateral and improper purpose and is an abuse of process.

5. Mr Liam Faulkner who appeared on behalf of the Partnership argues that if he succeeds on the jurisdiction argument (ground (1) above) then the Petition must be dismissed. Mr Peter Sherwood who appeared on behalf of the Petitioners did not dispute this, but argued that all five arguments in opposition were each without merit. Mr Tony Heaver-Wren who appeared for CCP Henderson Capital Limited opposes the making of the winding up order, but took no position on the jurisdiction argument.

Background[1]

6. In summary, the Partnership (acting by its General Partner) is a minority shareholder of AAIBV. SMHC is the only other shareholder in AAIBV, which is a joint venture vehicle. Disputes have arisen in respect of the joint ventures which are the subject of ongoing arbitration proceedings. The Petitioners have presented a winding up petition in respect of a costs award arising out of one of the arbitrations. The Partnership says its assets exceed its liabilities and it has a cross claim against the Petitioners in the arbitration which exceeds the petition debt.

7. The Partnership says the Petition has been presented for a collateral and improper purpose and for strategic reasons in the ongoing arbitration. It says that the intention and effect of the Petition, if a winding up order is made, would be to displace the General Partner, who has the institutional knowledge and expertise concerning the Partnership's affairs and the ongoing litigation against the Petitioners, and put the conduct of the litigation in the hands of court appointed liquidators nominated by the Petitioners who have none of that institutional knowledge and expertise.

The jurisdiction argument

8. Mr Faulkner submits that the Petition is procedurally defective and the Court has no jurisdiction to make the orders sought by the Petition. He relies on the statutory framework applicable to an exempted limited partnership. He also argues that section 91 of the Companies Act does not apply to exempted limited partnerships.

9. This leads to the result that the remedy of a creditor of an exempted limited partnership, such as the Petitioners, is to commence proceedings against the general partner. It is the general partner who (a) has the authority to enter into agreements and contracts on behalf of the Partnership; (b) holds the assets of the Partnership on a statutory trust; and (c) has unlimited liability in respect of the Partnership's liabilities.

10. A petition presented against the general partner would need to be served on the general partner and advertised in accordance with the Companies Winding Up Rules, 2018. Essentially, in Mr Faulkner's submission, the wrong procedure has been used and the court therefore has no jurisdiction to make the orders sought. The correct course of action, where adequate grounds exist, is for a creditor to present a winding up petition against the general partner.

11. Mr Sherwood for the Petitioners submits that the decision of Kawaley J in XIO Diamond[2] would have to be departed from for this argument to succeed. This is a high bar. In any event the court would have to reach a tortured and a wrong construction of section 36(3) of the ELP Act so as to conclude that it does not mean what Kawaley J said it did.

12. He added that the practice of attorneys in the Cayman Islands who are experts in "Funds work", which involves Cayman Islands exempted limited partnerships, is that section 91 of the Companies Act applies to exempted limited partnerships by virtue of section 36(3) of the ELP Act. He provided an annex to his written submissions listing the cases decided in the Grand Court pursuant to winding up petitions issued against the exempted limited partnership, not the general partner. He argued that the Partnership's argument was novel and without merit.

Decision on jurisdiction

Approach

13. The Petitioners have presented the winding up Petition against the Partnership. The onus is on the Petitioners to satisfy the Court that it has the jurisdiction to make the orders sought by the Petition.

14. Section 18(1) of the Grand Court Law (2015 Revision) provides that:

> "Subject to this or any other law, the jurisdiction of the Court shall be exercised in accordance with any Rules made under this Law."

15. The Court's jurisdiction is to be exercised in accordance with the Rules, with the corollary that English practice may apply where no other provision is made.

16. Both Mr Faulkner and Mr Sherwood agreed that the scope of the Court's jurisdiction under section 91 of the Companies Act and section 36 of the ELP Act is a matter of statutory interpretation.

17. The principles of statutory interpretation are well established and were succinctly summarised by the Privy Council in Shanda Games Ltd v Maso Capital where Lady Arden said at §[27]:

[2] (unreported, 30 April 2020, FSD 256 of 2019 (IKJ)))

> "the court has to ascertain the intention of the legislature from the words it has used in their context, and also in the light of any material which demonstrates the mischief that it was concerned to redress by the statutory provision."

Analysis

18. The Partnership is an exempted limited partnership which was registered in the Cayman Islands on 8 September 2008.

19. Section 2 of the ELP Act in material part defines an "exempted limited partnership" as a partnership formed and registered under section 9(1) of the ELP Act.

20. The formation, operation and termination of exempted limited partnerships in the Cayman Islands is governed by the ELP Act and by certain provisions of the Partnership Act (2013 Revision) (the "Partnership Act"), as well as by certain principles of common law and the provisions of the limited partnership agreement entered into between the parties.

21. Section 3 of the Partnership Act states that a partnership is "the relation which subsists between two or more persons carrying on a business in common with a view to profit." This concept survives from English law dating back to the late 19th century.

22. Section 4(2) of the ELP Act provides that to be an exempted limited partnership, the partnership must consist of:

    (i) at least one person, called the general partner who, in the event that the assets of the exempted limited partnership are inadequate, is liable for all of the debts and obligations of the exempted limited partnership; and

    (ii) at least one person, called the limited partner, who shall not be liable for the debts or obligations of the exempted limited partnership in excess of the capital contributed by that person to the exempted limited partnership, save as provided for in the partnership agreement or otherwise in the limited circumstances specified in sections 20(1) and 34(1) of the ELP Act.

23. This is a modification of section 10 of the Partnership Act which provides that:

> "Every partner in a firm is liable jointly with the other partners for all debts and obligations of the firm incurred while he is a partner…"

24. It is also a modification of section 13 of the Partnership Act which provides:

> "Every partner of a general partnership is liable jointly with this co-partners and also severally for everything for which the firm while he is a partner therein becomes liable under section (liability of the firm for wrongs) or 2 (misapplication of money or property)."

25. An exempted limited partnership is not an entity with separate legal personality and cannot own property in its own right.

26. Pursuant to section 16(1) of the ELP Act, any rights or property of every description of an exempted limited partnership shall be held or deemed to be held by the general partner upon trust as an asset of the exempted limited partnership in accordance with the terms of the partnership agreement.

27. The business carried on by an exempted limited partnership is conducted by its general partner who has the authority to enter into all letters, contracts, deeds, instruments or documents whatsoever on behalf of the exempted limited partnership: section 14(2) of the ELP Act.

28. By contrast, section 14(1) of the ELP Act prohibits a limited partner from conducting business on behalf of the exempted limited partnership in its capacity as a limited partner.

29. The key and controlling role the general partner plays in an exempted limited partnership is therefore made clear by the ELP Act.

30. That role extends to insolvency situations. Section 2 of the ELP Act provides that in the ELP Act:

> "Insolvency of the exempted limited partnership" means that the general partner is unable to pay the debts and obligations of the exempted limited partnership, otherwise than in respect of liabilities to partners on account of their partnership interests, in the ordinary course of business as they fall due out of the assets of the exempted limited partnership, without recourse to the separate assets of the general partner not contributed or committed to the exempted limited partnership and "insolvent" shall be construed accordingly;"*

31. The defined term "insolvency of the exempted limited partnership" is used in section 20(1) and 34(1)(b) of the ELP Act only and the defined term "insolvent" used in sections 34(1)(a) and 43(2)(g) only. There is therefore a distinct definition of insolvency applicable to exempted limited partnerships.

32. Against that backdrop section 33(1) of the ELP Act states that:

> "Proceedings
>
>
> (3) A limited partner may bring an action on behalf of an exempted limited partnership if any one or more of the general partners with authority to do so have, without causes, failed or refused to institute proceedings."(my emphasis)

33. I reject Mr Sherwood's submission that because the clause does not say in terms one cannot issue proceedings against an exempted limited partnership that the Petitioners are permitted to do so.

34. As to interpretation Mr Sherwood submitted that the clause would have to say:

> "You may not issue proceedings against an exempted limited partnership or against a limited partner ou may only commence them against the general partner".

35. There is however no provision within the ELP Act or the Partnership Act which provides that legal proceedings may be instituted against an exempted limited partnership in the name of the partnership. This is because it is through the general partner that its debts and obligations are enforced. Section 33(1) of the ELP Act says in terms proceedings may be instituted against the general partner(s) only.

36. Mr Sherwood relied on Order 81, rule 12 of the Grand Court Rules, 1995 (Revised Edition) which provides that any action by or against an exempted limited partnership may be commenced in the name of the firm. However in my view that does not assist Mr Sherwood because the applicable statutes must take precedence over procedural rules, and the particular rule does not in my view deal with the court's winding up jurisdiction.

37. Section 2 of the Companies Act defines a "company" as, except where the context excludes exempted companies, a company formed and registered under the Companies Act or an existing company.

38. Section 89 provides that in Part V of the Companies Act: a "company" includes a foreign company in respect of which the Court has made a winding up order.

39. Neither of these two definitions include an exempted limited partnership because it is not a company.

40. Section 89 provides that in Part V of the Companies Act: a "limited partnership" means an ordinary limited partnership registered in accordance with section 49 of the Partnership Act (2013 Revision) or an exempted limited partnership registered in accordance with section 9 of the ELP Act (2021 Revision).

41. Section 91 of the Companies Act provides :

> "Jurisdiction of the Court
>
> The Court has jurisdiction to make winding up orders in respect of –
>
> (a) an existing company
>
> (b) a company incorporated and registered under this Act
>
> (c) a body incorporated under any other law and
>
> (d) a foreign company which –
>
> ...
> (iii) is the general partner of a limited partnership*" (my emphasis)*

42. The defined term "limited partnership" is used only once in Part V of the Companies Act – in section 91(d)(iii) which gives the Court jurisdiction to wind up a foreign company which acts as the general partner of a limited partnership. It is therefore clear that the court has jurisdiction to make a winding up order in respect of a general partner of the limited partnership.

43. I accept Mr Faulkner's submission, having set out these provisions, that if the intention of the legislature were for the Court to have jurisdiction to wind up an exempted limited partnership under section 91 of the Companies Act then this would have been expressly provided for in section 91. The entities over which the court has jurisdiction were clearly delineated in section 91.

44. However, Mr Sherwood relies on section 36(3)(a) of the ELP Act to argue that reference in section 91 of the Companies Act to a company is deemed to be a reference to an exempted limited partnership. By the Petition, the Petitioners plead that section 92(d) of the Companies Act applies to an exempted limited partnership by virtue of section 36(3) of the ELP Act.

45. This is an important point which has not, I am informed by Mr Faulkner, been fully considered by this court in light of all the relevant statutory provisions.

46. Section 36 of the ELP Act was introduced into Cayman law when the Exempted Limited Partnership (Amendment) Law, 2009 came into force on 11 May 2009, as section 15(3) of the Exempted Limited Partnership Law (2007 Revision). I am informed by Mr Faulkner that there was no equivalent provision in the repealed Exempted Limited Partnership Law (2007 Revision) prior to that amendment.

47. Section 36(3) of the ELP Act states:

> "Except to the extent that the provisions are not consistent with this Act, and in the event of any inconsistencies, this Act shall prevail, and subject to any express provisions of this Act to the contrary, the provisions of Part of the Companies Act (202 Revision) and the Companies Winding Up Rules, 20 shall apply to the winding up of an exempted limited partnership and for this purpose…"(my emphasis)

48. It seems to me that this provision does not give a freestanding right for a creditor to present a winding-up petition against an exempted limited partnership[3].

49. I also find that there is no jurisdiction for the court to make a winding-up order against an exempted limited partnership on a creditor's winding up petition. I have reached this conclusion for the following reasons.

50. The prefatory words of section 36(3) are clear that Part V of the Companies Act only applies to an exempted limited partnership if and to the extent that the provisions are not inconsistent with the ELP Act, and in the event of any inconsistencies, the ELP Act is to prevail, and Part V is subject to any express provisions of the ELP Act to the contrary.

[3] XIO Diamond supra at § 26

51. The presentation of a creditor's petition against an exempted limited partnership seems to me to be inconsistent with (and is contrary to) the provisions of section 33(1) of the ELP Act.

52. An exempted limited partnership can be wound up and the partnership dissolved in one of two scenarios:

(1) voluntarily in accordance with the provisions of the partnership agreement pursuant to section 36(1) of the ELP Act; or

(2) by the Court pursuant to section 35 of the Partnership Act, which applies by virtue of section 3 of the ELP Act (see below).

53. Section 36(1) of the ELP Act contains provisions for the voluntary winding up and dissolution of an exempted limited partnership upon the occurrence of two events: (a) at the time or upon the occurrence of any event specified in the partnership agreement; or (b) unless otherwise specified in the partnership agreement, upon the passing of a resolution of all the general partners and a two-thirds majority of limited partners.

54. Section 3 of the ELP Act provides that the rules of equity and of common law applicable to partnerships as modified by the Partnership Act (but excluding sections 31, 45 to 54 and 56 to 57) shall apply to an exempted limited partnership, except where they are inconsistent with the express provisions of the ELP Act.

55. Section 35 of the Partnership Act contains five grounds on which a court may order the dissolution of a partnership on application by a partner and includes, at sub-section 35(d), when the business of the partnership can only be carried on at a loss and, by sub-section 35(e), whenever in any case circumstances have arisen which, in the opinion of the court, render it just and equitable that the partnership be dissolved.

56. Section 35 of the Partnership Act is in substantially the same terms as section 35 of the English Partnership Act 1890. It was introduced into Cayman Islands law by section 36 of the Partnership Law, 1983.

57. From this chronology, at the time of introducing the ELP Act into law, it is to be reasonably inferred that the legislature chose not to dis-apply or modify section 35 of the Partnership Act.

Application

58. When considering section 36(3) of the ELP Act, following the Privy Council in Shanda the Court is required to identify "the mischief that it was concerned to redress by the statutory provision"

59. I accept Mr Faulkner's submission that the intention of the legislature could not have been to enable a partner of an exempted limited partnership to apply to wind up and dissolve an exempted limited partnership on just and equitable grounds pursuant to section 92(e) of the Companies Act as the jurisdiction to do so already existed under section 35(e) of the Partnership Act.

60. As the remedy already existed, there was no "mischief" to redress. Indeed, I accept Mr Faulkner's submission that the Court's jurisdiction to dissolve an exempted limited partnership on the application of a partner under section 3 of the ELP Act and section 35 of the Partnership Act appears to be broader than under section 92 of the Companies Act. I accept his submission that it could not have been the intention of the legislature to narrow the Court's jurisdiction by replacing section 35 of the Partnership Act (which specifically applies to partnerships) with section 92 of the Companies Act.

61. I seems to me that from a proper analysis of the above statutory provisions that the Court's jurisdiction to wind up an exempted limited partnership on the application of a partner on the grounds that it is just and equitable to do so arises by virtue of section 3 of the ELP Act and section 35(e) of the Partnership Act only.

62. This is relevant for when one examines the decision in XIO Diamond LP below as, unlike the present case, it concerned an analysis of the situation which applied on the application to wind up by a limited partner.

63. I have considered whether there was "mischief" which the legislature sought to address by introducing section 36(3) of the ELP Act to enable a creditor to present a winding up petition against an exempted limited partnership, as in the present case.

64. I have concluded that no mischief existed as the creditor was (and remains) entitled to enforce any debt against the general partner which, unlike the exempted limited partnership, has a legal personality.

65. In any event, the provisions of Part V of the Companies Act referenced in section 36(3) of the ELP Act are subject to section 33(1) of the ELP Act which expressly states that legal proceedings against an exempted limited partnership may be instituted against a general partner only.

66. It seems to me therefore that the legislative purpose of introducing section 36(3) was to apply the applicable provisions of Part V of the Companies Act and the Companies Winding Up Rules, 2018 following the commencement of the winding up in order to facilitate the orderly winding up of the partnership's affairs.

67. This analysis accords with the commercial position and the legal liabilities which arise on the insolvency of a partnership where the business of the partnership is conducted by the general partner, the assets of the partnership are held by the general partner on a statutory trust and the general partner is personally liable for the debts of the partnership.

68. Pursuant to section 2 of the ELP Act, the partnership is deemed to be insolvent when the general partner is unable to pay the debts and obligations of the exempted limited partnership in the ordinary course of business as they fall due out of the assets of the exempted limited partnership, without recourse to the separate assets of the general partner not contributed or committed to the exempted limited partnership.

69. In that scenario the general partner remains personally liable for the partnership's debts and therefore the remedy of any creditor when the partnership is insolvent is to commence proceedings against the general partner. This is consistent with section 33(1) of the ELP Act.

70. The winding up procedure as it relates to exempted limited partnerships also fits with this analysis. When an exempted limited partnership is being wound up, either voluntarily under section 36(1) of the ELP Act or by order of the court pursuant to section 35 of the Partnership Act, the general partner is deemed to be the liquidating trustee of the partnership unless the court orders otherwise.

71. The role of the liquidating trustee is to conduct the orderly winding up of the partnership's affairs by collecting in and realising its assets, paying its liabilities, and distributing any surplus to the partners in accordance with their contractual rights under the limited partnership agreement. In the event of a shortfall, the general partner remains personally liable for the shortfall.

72. I accept Mr Faulkner's analysis that it follows that the remedy of any creditor of an exempted limited partnership is to commence proceedings against the general partner. In the event that a winding up order is made against the general partner, any liquidator appointed will continue to hold the assets of the exempted limited partnership on a statutory trust to be distributed to the creditors of the exempted limited partnership in accordance with the statutory scheme. In the event of a shortfall in the partnership assets, the liquidating trustee has a claim against the separate assets (if any) of the general partner and such claim would constitute an unsecured claim in any liquidation of the general partner which ranks pari passu with the claims of other creditors of the same class who have an unsecured claim against the general assets of the general partner.

73. It is also illustrative to look at the position in England. There is no statutory equivalent in the Cayman Islands to Part IV of the Insolvent Partnerships Order 1994 (the "IPO") which is in force in England.

74. The IPO modifies Part V of the Insolvency Act 1986 to extend the jurisdiction of the English Court to wind up a partnership as an unregistered company in certain scenarios. An "unregistered company" is defined by the Insolvency Act 1986, s.124 A to include: "any association and any company, with the exception of a company registered under the Companies Act 200 in any part of the United Kingdom".

75. Pursuant to sections 7 and 8 of the IPO, the procedure for a creditor to petition for the winding up of a limited partnership can be implemented either with concurrent actions against one or more current or former partners or against the partnership alone. The English Court's jurisdiction to make the winding up order arises under the IPO. I note that a statutory equivalent has not been introduced in the Cayman Islands.

The decision of the Court in XIO Diamond

76. It is necessary to examine this case in a little detail. It concerned a just and equitable winding up petition presented by the sole limited partner against the exempted limited partnership.

77. Kawaley J held at §[23] that section 36 of the ELP Act applies to voluntary liquidations after their commencement and, at §[26], that section 36(3) of the ELP Act does not confer a freestanding judicial power to make a winding up order. I respectfully agree.

78. However the learned Judge made certain other findings (the 'other findings') which Mr Sherwood relies upon:

(1) At §[28] he held that Part V of the Companies Act applies to exempted limited partnerships where an official liquidation is sought by a limited partner;

(2) At §[30] he held that:

(i) section 94 of the Companies Act applies to exempted limited partnerships, and expressly confers the right to petition for a winding up on the grounds set out in section 92 of the Companies Act; and

(ii) section 95 of the Companies Act applies to exempted limited partnerships and expressly empowers the Court to appoint official liquidators.

(3) At §[31] he held that section 36(3) of the ELP Act provides access to the winding up jurisdiction of Part V of the Companies Act.

79. It is important to note that it appears that Kawaley J was not taken to and did not consider section 33(1) of the ELP Act or section 3 of the ELP Act and section 35 of the Partnership Act. No inconsistency seems to have been pointed out or raised.

80. The parties proceeded on the basis that there was an agreed basis for the limited partner to petition to wind the partnership up on just and equitable grounds. Indeed Mr Faulkner who was counsel in the case submitted that a winding up order would have been made in any event, but the jurisdictional gateway should have been section 3 of the ELP Act and section 35 of the Partnership Act. Mr Faulkner submitted that it was wrong to interpret the decision to mean that a creditor can use Part V of the Companies Act in relation to an exempted limited partnership to present a petition to wind it up.

81. Mr Faulkner informed me that none of the decisions concerning the application of section 36(3) of the ELP Act, since it came into force on 11 May 2009, have considered section 33(1) or section 3 of the ELP Act and section 35 of the Partnership Act, including the in the case of Rhone Holdings LP,[4] which also concerned an application by a limited partner to wind up an exempted limited partnership on just and equitable grounds. It was common ground in that case that the Part V jurisdiction existed to properly bring a winding up petition against the exempted limited partnership.

82. It is to be noted that the applicable provisions of section 3 of the ELP Act and section 35(e) of the Partnership Act expressly gives the Court jurisdiction to dissolve an exempted limited partnership on the application of a limited partner where it is just and equitable to do so. Section 36(3) is expressly subject to section 3 of the ELP Act.

83. Upon a winding up order being made pursuant to those provisions, the commencement date of the winding up would be the presentation of the petition by the limited partner pursuant to section 36(10)(e) of the ELP Act and, following such commencement, the Court may make any order and give directions for the winding up and dissolution of the exempted limited partnership as may be just and equitable under section 36(3)(g) of the ELP Act. Sub-section 36(2) of the ELP Act governs the winding up regime of an exempted limited partnership that is being wound up pursuant to either section 36(1) of the ELP Act or section 35 of the Partnership Act.

84. I respectfully differ from Kawaley J's 'other findings'. I bear in mind that a decision of another Judge of this court should be followed unless I am convinced it is wrong[5] and special care must be taken in circumstances where the Judge heard argument by experienced lawyers and wrote a fully reasoned judgment[6]. I would add that I hesitate long and hard before differing from a Judge so eminent and experienced in this field.

85. However having been taken to the statutory framework in some detail by Mr Faulkner I am regrettably bound to do so. I note in this context that not only was Kawaley J not taken to the relevant provisions of the ELP Act and the Partnership Act set out above, but also in XIO

[4] (Unreported 16 September 2015)
[5] China Shanshui [2015 (2) CILR 255] §64
[6] Simamba v Health [2019 (2) CILR 213] §§68-71

Diamond the general partner did not oppose a winding up order being made on the just and equitable ground of loss of substratum (but opposed the loss of trust and confidence ground) and in that sense the petition was unopposed in substance.

86. His decision is also distinguishable (as is the Rhone case) on the basis that the position of a limited partner to dissolve a partnership is distinct from those of a creditor, like the Petitioners in this case, who are outsiders to the Partnership.

87. I have concluded that the court in XIO Diamond was in error to state that the jurisdictional basis for winding up the exempted limited partnership was section 36(3) of the ELP Act and Part V of the Companies Act.

88. Mr Faulkner accepted the line of authority relating to the jurisdiction by which the Court can order the winding up of an exempted limited partnership on the application of a partner. He accepted that the Court has jurisdiction, but submitted that that jurisdiction arises by virtue of section 3 of the ELP Act and section 35 of the Partnership Act (which is broader in scope than section 92 of the Companies Act). I agree with this analysis. The proper jurisdictional basis was section 3 of the ELP Act and section 35(e) of the Partnership Act, which it appears the court was not referred to.

Summary

89. It is clear in my view from a review of the statutory provisions engaged, that the Companies Act is not of general application to an exempted limited partnership. To the extent that its provisions apply, they apply (i) only to the extent that the provisions are not inconsistent with the ELP Act and in the event of any inconsistencies the ELP Act is to prevail and (ii) subject to any express provisions of the ELP Act to the contrary.

90. The scope of the Court's jurisdiction to make a winding up order under the Companies Act is set out in section 91, and this provision does not on its terms expressly extend to an exempted limited partnership.

91. This seems to me to be consistent with an exempted limited partnership not being an entity with separate legal personality; the partnership is simply the relation which subsists between the general partner(s) and the limited partner(s) by virtue of section 3 of the Partnership Act.

92. My conclusion is that the court has no jurisdiction over a creditor's winding up petition against an exempted limited partnership.

93. The creditor has an available statutory alternative remedy which is to commence proceedings against the general partner, which accords with the commercial and legal position.

It follows that the Petition is dismissed.

Just and equitable winding-up petition-adequacy of pleading-amendment-loss of substratum-whether jurisdiction to wind-up exists under section 36(3) as read with section 36(13) of the Exempted Limited Partnership Law (2018 Revision)-sections 92, 94 Companies Law (2020 Revision) - Order 1 rule 4, Order 3 rule 2 Companies Winding Up Rules, 2018-Grand Court Rules Orders 9 rule 2 and Order 20 rule 8(1)

Background

1. The Petition herein is dated December 23, 2019 and was presented on or before December 27, 2019[1]. The Petitioner primarily sought an Order that the "Partnership be wound up according to the Law." The "Law" was defined by reference to the Exempted Limited Partnership Law (2018 Revision) (the "ELP Law"). It petitioned as the sole limited partner and economic stakeholder in the Partnership. The central basis for the Petition was that the main business purpose of the Partnership was to hold and dispose of "Portfolio Investments"; this function had allegedly been fulfilled. It was alleged that the distribution to which the Petitioner was entitled could not take place because of an injunction granted in confidential proceedings against the General Partner, XIO Diamond GP Limited (the "GP") and its sole director. Accordingly, a winding-up was said to be required so that independent liquidators could make the relevant distribution and wind-up the Partnership.

2. The principal ground initially relied upon was the typically contentious 'loss of trust and confidence' ground. At the hearing of the Petition on March 27, 2020, the only ground for winding-up relied upon by the Petitioner was the alternative 'loss of substratum' ground. The Partnership's position was that it would not oppose a winding-up on this ground if a prima facie case was made out; but it submitted that on the face of the Petition no legally sustainable basis for winding-up had been pleaded. As a matter of law, it was argued, reliance was wrongly placed by the Petitioner on, inter alia, section 36 (3) (g) of the ELP Law. The only available statutory jurisdiction was under section 92(e) of the Companies Law (2020 Revision) (the "Law"), the Partnership argued.

3. At the conclusion of the hearing I made the following interlocutory Order:

[1] I do not decide the disputed issue what the presentation date was.

> "1. The Petitioner is granted leave to amend the Petition pursuant to section 95(1)(d) of the Companies Law (2020 Revision) and CWR Order 3, Rule 2(3) as read with GCR Order 20, Rule 5 and/or Rule 8:
>
> a) by adding after paragraph 21 a new paragraph 21A:
>
> '21A. Further and/or alternatively, the Petitioner seeks an Order that the Partnership be wound up under sections 92(e) and 94 (1)(c) of the Companies Law as read with section 36(3) of the Exempted Limited Partnership Law" ; and
> b) by deleting the words "the Law" and replacing them with "applicable law" at the end of paragraph 1 of the Prayer to the Petition…."

4. I also granted a final Order which provided, inter alia:

> "1. The Partnership be wound up in accordance with sections 92(e) and 94(1)(c) of the Companies Law (2020 Revision) as read with section 36(3) of the Exempted Limited Partnership Law (2018 Revision).
> 2. Luke Almond of Borrelli Walsh (Cayman) Limited, Strathvale House, 3rd Floor, 90 North Church Street, Grand Cayman KY1-1204, Cayman Islands and Cosimo Borrelli of Borrelli Walsh Limited of Level 17, Tower 1, Admiralty Centre, 18 Harcourt Road, Hong Kong be appointed as joint official liquidators (the "Liquidators") of the Partnership."

5. I reserved the costs of both the amendment application and the Petition. I now give reasons for these decisions.

The Petition

6. At the hearing, it being agreed that the loss of trust and confidence case would not be pursued, the only centrally relevant aspects of the Petition were the following pleas:

GRAND COURT CIV-01 CAYMAN ISLANDS

"12. Sections 9.2 and 9.3 of the LPA deal with the process for winding-up the Partnership and the final distribution of the Partnership's assets. Section 9.2 provides:

'Upon the occurrence of an Event of Dissolution, the Partnership shall be wound up and dissolved. The General Partner, or if there is no general partner, a liquidator appointed by a Majority in Interest of the Limited Partners, shall proceed with the Dissolution Sale and the Final Distribution.'...

13. ...The Transaction [completed on 16 December 2019] will lead to the automatic winding up of the Partnership pursuant to the terms of the LPA, as well as pursuant to sections 36(1)(a) and 36(10)(d) of the Exempted Limited Partnership Law (2018 Revision) (the Law)...

19. The Petitioner is the sole Limited Partner of the Partnership and is entitled to petition for the winding up of the Partnership pursuant to section 36(3)(g) of the Law and, pursuant to section 36(13) of the Law, to seek an order that the affairs of the Partnership be wound up by a person appointed by the Court other than XIO Diamond GP...

YOUR PETITIONER THEREFORE HUMBLY PRAYS THAT:

1. The Partnership be wound up in accordance with the Law."

7. It was also agreed that although reliance was placed on the existence of those provisions of the LPA relating to automatic winding-up, the Petitioner's original argument that the voluntary winding-up had already commenced would not be pursued.

The Petitioner's submissions

8. The first legal submission advanced in the Petitioner's Skeleton Argument was the following:

GRAND COURT CIV-01 CAYMAN ISLANDS

> "28. The Petitioner petitions for the winding up of the Partnership pursuant to section 36(3)(g) of the Exempted Limited Partnership Law (2018 Revision) (the ELP Law):
>
> > Except to the extent that the provisions are not consistent with this Law, and in the event of any inconsistencies, this Law shall prevail, and subject to any express provisions of this Law to the contrary, the provisions of Part V of the Companies Law and the Companies Winding Up Rules 2018 shall apply to the winding up of an exempted limited partnership and for this purpose –
> >
>
> 29. The circumstances in which it will be just and equitable to order a winding up are not closed to particular categories – those words are general and the circumstances in which it may be just and equitable to order a winding up are diverse (French at [8.158 -8.159] citing (among other authorities) Lord Wilberforce's judgment in Ebrahami v Westbourne Galleries Ltd [1973] AC 360).
> 30. The Petitioner says that it is just and equitable that the Partnership be wound up in the following circumstances (whether taken alone or together)."

9. This submission retains the pleaded reliance on section 36(3)(g) of the ELP, but also mentions for the first time the winding-up jurisdiction on the just and equitable ground under Part V of the Law. The Petitioner goes on to submit:

> "33. The Petitioner and the General Partner disagree as to whether the voluntary liquidation of the Partnership has been triggered pursuant to the Article 9.1 of the LPA. The Petitioner submits that is not an issue the Court needs to determine on this petition. Assuming that the General Partner's position is the correct one…the position would be the same: the Injunction prevents the General Partner from winding up the Partnership.
> 34. The loss or failure of a company's substratum is one of the well-recognised illustrative categories of case where a Court may wind up a company on the just and equitable basis (French at [8.260]). The Court may conclude that a company's substratum is gone if the company was formed to pursue a specific business that has come to an end (French at [8.262] citing Re Amalgamated Syndicate [1897] 2 Ch 600).

35. In Re Amalgamated Syndicate, the company was formed to provide facilities for the Queen's Diamond Jubilee. After the Jubilee, a shareholder successfully sought the winding up of the company on the just and equitable basis in circumstances where the primary purpose of the company had been achieved and the company's directors did not intend to return the remaining capital to the shareholders. The Petitioner says that it is in an analogous position to the petitioning shareholder in Re Amalgamated Syndicate: the Partnership has achieved its purpose but the General Partner is not in a position to take the steps necessary to wind up the affairs of the Partnership. It would therefore be just and equitable for the Court to order the winding up of the Partnership. Absent such an order, the only (albeit unpalatable) option for the Petitioner would be to do a deal with the General Partner and attempt to obtain a variation of the Injunction."

10. This submission supports an entirely new un-pleaded statutory basis for winding-up. The Petitioner's Skeleton proceeds to set out the pleaded loss of confidence ground in terms which make it explicit that reliance was indeed placed on section 36(3)(g) of the ELP Law as read with Part V of the Law. Section 36(13), pleaded in paragraph 21 of the Petition as the statutory basis for appointing liquidators, receives no mention in the Plaintiff's Skeleton.

11. The Skeleton Argument of the Partnership, inter alia, challenged the pleaded reliance on the ELP Law head on:

"41 The Petition does not seek relief pursuant to section 92(e) of the Companies Law for the Partnership to be wound up on the just and equitable basis. The relief sought is confined to sections 36(13) and 36(3) (g) of the ELP Law. As an Event of Dissolution has not occurred, those provisions are not engaged and the Petition must be dismissed.

42 The Petitioner's application is analogous to an application for a supervision order by a shareholder of a company in voluntary liquidation. In the same way that the Court does not have jurisdiction to make a supervision order under section 131 of the Companies Law in respect of a company which is not in voluntary liquidation, the Court does not have the jurisdiction to grant the relief sought in the Petition.

GRAND COURT CIV-01 CAYMAN ISLANDS

43 There is no precedent or jurisdiction for the Court to make an order to wind up an exempted limited partnership which is not in voluntary liquidation other than pursuant to section 92 of the Companies Law. By way of example:

43.1 In re Cybernaut Growth Fund LP (unreported, FSD 73/2013, 11 September 2013) the Court ordered that an exempted limited partnership be wound up on the just and equitable basis pursuant to section 92(e) of the Companies Law.

43.2 In re Rhone Holdings LP (unreported, FSD 119/2015, 28 September 2015) limited partners of the exempted limited partnership petitioned to wind up the partnership pursuant to section 92(e) of the Companies Law. The petition was dismissed on its merits but it was procedurally sound.

44 If the Court agrees that the Partnership has not commenced voluntary liquidation and that the Court does not have jurisdiction to grant the relief sought in the Petition pursuant to sections to sections 36(13) and 36(3)(g) of the ELP Law, the Petition must be struck out and it is not necessary for the Court to consider any of the other issues in dispute. The Partnership therefore invites the Court to determine this issue as a preliminary point."

12. In answer to the Court, Mr Faulkner indicated that this jurisdictional point had been raised in correspondence and in the First Affirmation of Athene Li. In that Affirmation, Ms Li deposed:

"47. As an Event of Dissolution has not occurred, China Life is not entitled to the relief it seeks pursuant to section 36(10)(d) and section 36(13) of the ELP Law, each of which is premised on an Event of Dissolution having occurred within the meaning of the LPA."

13. This appeared to me to express the jurisdictional challenge in a somewhat narrower way than was advanced in argument at the hearing of the Petition when it was agreed that the Petitioner would not seek to establish that an Event of Dissolution had already occurred. The proposition that a winding-up order could only be granted under Part V of the Law if a voluntary liquidation had not already commenced was at best implied rather than expressly articulated.

GRAND COURT
CAYMAN ISLANDS

14. In his oral submissions, the Partnership's counsel argued in opening the preliminary point that the Petitioner had failed to plead a viable statutory basis for winding-up. Reliance was placed on the requirements of Companies Winding Up Rules ("CWR") Order 3 and Grand Court Rules ("GCR") Order 9 rule 2 as read with Form 7. He submitted that the Petition was presented pursuant to sections 36(13) and 36(3)(g) of the ELP Law and the critical question was: did these statutory provisions create a freestanding basis for winding-up on the just and equitable ground? Clearly not, Mr Faulkner contended. This was because section 36(3)(g) was designed to provide relief within the context of a voluntary winding-up under the ELP Law; Part V of the Law was generally dis-applied as regards voluntary windings-up under section 36(1) by section 36(3)(d). This central proposition was also supported by reference to the fact that the only other provision which mentioned subsection (3)(g) was subsection (13).

15. It was submitted that the Petition should be dismissed with costs. I put to Mr Faulkner that if his submissions were correct, the defects in the pleading were capable of being cured by amendment. He responded that as the Petitioner had alternative remedies, exceptional circumstances were required to permit an amendment.

16. I asked Mr Greig before he began his response whether he would seek leave to amend if required. He replied that the Court had a discretionary power to amend and that he would seek leave to amend if necessary. However, he indicated that the Petitioner's primary position was that the necessary jurisdiction existed under the Petition as pleaded. Section 36 (3) had been relied upon, and that incorporated the Law.

17. The Petitioner's counsel contended that the authorities relied upon by the Partnership were not material to the issue at hand. He insisted that section 36(3) (g) did create a freestanding jurisdictional basis for a winding-up order. In Re Cybernaut Growth Fund LP FSD 73 of 2013 (AJJ), Judgment dated September 12, 2013 (unreported), the jurisdictional point at issue in the present case was not argued. Mr Greig submitted the same was true of Re Rhone Holdings Limited FSD 119/2015 (IMJ), Judgment dated September 16, 2015 (unreported).

18. As regards the merits of the loss of substratum argument, Mr Greig submitted that the Partnership's purpose had been met. There was no viable prospect of concluding the distribution process. It would be just and equitable for the Court to wind it up in the circumstances bearing in mind that the Petitioner was the sole economic stakeholder.

19. Mr Faulkner in reply indicated that he left the merits of the loss of substratum ground to the Court. However, he submitted that the relevant test required the Petitioner to demonstrate that achieving its commercial object had become "impossible": Re Harbinger Class PE Holdings (Cayman) Ltd. [2015 (2) CILR Note 6].

GRAND COURT
CAYMAN ISLANDS

Findings: did jurisdiction exist to wind-up the Partnership on just and equitable grounds (and appoint official liquidators) on a freestanding basis under section 36 (3) (d) as read with section 36(13) of the ELP Law?

20. Whether this Court had power to wind-up the Partnership under section 36 of the ELP Law on a freestanding statutory basis was ultimately a short point of statutory construction. I found Mr Faulkner's analysis of section 36 to be compelling. The main features of section 36 may be summarised as follows:

(a) provision is made for voluntary winding-up and dissolution in accordance with the partnership agreement on the occurrence of certain events (subsections (1)-(2));

(b) provision is made for winding-up exempted limited partnerships under Part V of the Law and the CWR, subject to the primacy of the ELP Law. How Part V of the Law applies to partnerships is spelt out; it does not generally apply to a voluntary liquidation under section 36(1). The Court is given the power to make directions for the winding-up of a partnership on the application of a partner, liquidator or creditor (subsection (3));

(c) provision is made in relation to secured creditors (subsections (4)-(5));

(d) provision is made for notices and various 'administrative' matters (subsections (6)-(9));

(e) provision is made for the date when a liquidation commences (subsection (10)-(11));

(f) an exception to automatic winding-up is provided for (subsection (12));

(g) provision is made for the general partner to conduct the winding-up unless the Court otherwise orders (subsection (13)).

21. The Petitioner, seemingly seeking to benefit from an earlier commencement of the liquidation date than the making of a winding-up order, contended that the following two provisions conferred jurisdiction to wind-up and appoint official liquidators. Firstly, section 36(3) which provides as follows:

GRAND COURT CIV-01 CAYMAN ISLANDS

"(3) Except to the extent that the provisions are not consistent with this Law, and in the event of any inconsistencies, this Law shall prevail, and subject to any express provisions of this Law to the contrary, the provisions of Part V of the Companies Law and the Companies Winding Up Rules 2018 shall apply to the winding up of an exempted limited partnership and for this purpose -

(a) references in Part V to a company shall include references to an exempted limited partnership;

(b) the limited partners shall be treated as if they were shareholders of a company and references to contributories in Part V shall be construed accordingly, except that the application of the provisions shall not cause a limited partner to be subject to any greater liability than he would otherwise bear under this Law, but for the application of this paragraph;

(c) references in Part V to a director or officer of a company shall include references to the general partner of an exempted limited partnership;

(d) except for sections 123, excluding subsection (1)(b) and (c), 129, 140, 145, and 147 of the Companies Law, Part V shall not apply to a voluntary dissolution and winding up under subsection (1);

(e) in the case of a voluntary winding-up of an exempted limited partnership under subsection (1) where the partnership was registered under section 9 prior to 11th May 2009, the necessary time period for compliance with the requirements of section 123 (1) of the Companies Law shall be at least twenty-eight days prior to the final distribution of the assets of the exempted limited partnership to partners rather than within twenty-eight days of the commencement of its voluntary winding-up;

(f) the Insolvency Rules Committee established pursuant to the Companies Law shall have the power to make rules and prescribe forms for the purpose of giving effect to this section or its interpretation; and

(g)on application by a partner, creditor or liquidator, the court may make orders and give directions for the winding up and dissolution of an exempted limited partnership as may be just and equitable." [emphasis added]

CIV-01
CAYMAN ISLANDS

22. I accept entirely that the literal meaning of the words of section 36(3)(g) (given emphasis above) potentially embraces the construction contended for by the Petitioner. The prefatory words of section 36(3) state that Part V of the Law applies, subject to the ELP Law, and subsection (3)(g) provides that a partner may apply for an order or directions for the winding-up of an exempted limited partnership "as may be just and equitable". However, this meaning suggests a somewhat unusual and indirect access route being given to an official liquidation under Part V of the Law. The Partnership relied heavily on the fact that the only other reference in the ELP Law to section 36(3)(g) was to be found in the following subsection of section 36 itself:

> "(13) Following the commencement of the winding up of an exempted limited partnership its affairs shall be wound up by the general partner or other person appointed pursuant to the partnership agreement unless the court otherwise orders on the application of any partner, creditor or liquidator of the exempted limited partnership pursuant to subsection (3)(g)." [emphasis added]

23. This subsection does not in and of itself suggest that the only order that can be made under section 36(3)(g) is an order appointing someone other than the general partner as the liquidator. Rather, it is a strong pointer to the fact that section 36 of the ELP Law most substantively and directly applies to voluntary liquidations after their "commencement". Subsections (1)-(2) begin by addressing voluntary liquidations in accordance with the partnership agreement; subsection (13) concludes by formulating the general rule that the general partner shall ordinarily conduct the winding-up. The jurisdiction conferred on the Court by section 36(3)(d) is identified as a remedy to deal with cases where the general partner cannot, for whatever reasons, conduct the winding-up, after it has started.

24. This sits uncomfortably with the idea of construing section 36(13) as conferring the power to appoint official liquidators upon the making of a winding-up order on a limited partner's petition presented under section 36(3)(g). The purpose of section 36(13) appears to be to formulate a general rule applicable to who winds-up an exempted limited partnership voluntarily and to provide an exception to that general rule. A winding-up commences on the following dates according to section 36:

> "(10) The winding up of an exempted limited partnership shall be deemed to commence upon the earlier to occur of any of the following -
> (a) the passing of a resolution for winding up;

GRAND COURT CIV-01 CAYMAN ISLANDS

(b) subject to subsection (9), the automatic wind up date;

(c) the expiry of the period fixed for the duration of the exempted limited partnership by the partnership agreement;

(d) the occurrence of an event provided by the partnership agreement upon which the exempted limited partnership is to be wound up; or

(e) where a winding up order has been made, the presentation of the petition for winding up."

25. The general rule created by section 36(13) logically applies in all instances when a voluntary winding-up has commenced on a date specified in any of subsections (a) to (d) of section 36(10). Where no voluntary winding-up has commenced independently of the making of a winding-up order, it is not easy to see how the question of appointing someone in place of the general partner arises. Section 36(3)(g) itself, carefully read, is not expressed in terms suggesting that a freestanding jurisdiction to present a winding-up petition is being created. Rather, as Mr Faulkner rightly submitted, subsection (3)(g) is expressed (read in the wider context of section 36 as a whole) in terms consistent with creating a supervisory jurisdiction over voluntary winding-ups:

> "(g)on application by a partner, creditor or liquidator, the court may make orders and give directions for the winding up and dissolution of an exempted limited partnership as may be just and equitable."

26. It is difficult to construe this subsection as conferring a freestanding litigation right to present a winding-up petition and a freestanding judicial power to make a winding-up order for a more important reason. Section 36(3) by its terms simply provides that Part V of the Law shall, with modifications, apply to exempted limited partnerships. A straightforward way of construing such a legislative statement of intent is that unless such a result is expressly or by necessary implication precluded by the ELP Law:

(a) matters which are governed by the Law apply to exempted limited partnerships under the Law; and

(b) matters which are governed by the ELP Law apply to exempted limited partnerships under the ELP Law.

27. Or, to put it another way, if section 36(3)(g) was intended to create a freestanding jurisdiction to petition for a winding-up order, it is difficult to see why such a legislative purpose was not explicitly expressed. Instead, the section crucially provides as follows:

> "(3) Except to the extent that the provisions are not consistent with this Law, and in the event of any inconsistencies, this Law shall prevail, and subject to any express provisions of this Law to the contrary, the provisions of Part V of the Companies Law and the Companies Winding Up Rules 2018 shall apply to the winding up of an exempted limited partnership and for this purpose -
> (a) references in Part V to a company shall include references to an exempted limited partnership;
> (b) the limited partners shall be treated as if they were shareholders of a company and references to contributories in Part V shall be construed accordingly, except that the application of the provisions shall not cause a limited partner to be subject to any greater liability than he would otherwise bear under this Law, but for the application of this paragraph;
> (c) references in Part V to a director or officer of a company shall include references to the general partner of an exempted limited partnership;
> (d) except for sections 123, excluding subsection (1)(b) and (c), 129, 140, 145, and 147 of the Companies Law, Part V shall not apply to a voluntary dissolution and winding up under subsection (1);..." [emphasis added].

28. So although section 36(3) provides that Part V applies to exempted limited partnerships, Part V does not (save for a few exceptions) apply to winding-ups under section 36(1) of the ELP Law. This is a powerful indicator that section 36 as a whole applies to voluntary windings-up in accordance with a partnership agreement, and that section 36(3) enables access to the winding-up regime under Part V of the Law where an official liquidation is sought. The sections of the Law in Part V which do apply to windings-up under section 36(1) of the ELP Law (by virtue of section 36(3(d)) are the following:

(a) most of section 123 ("Notice of voluntary winding up");

(b) section 140 ("Distribution of a company's property");

GRAND COURT CIV-01 CAYMAN ISLANDS

(c) section 145 ("Voidable preference"); and

(d) section 147 ("Fraudulent trading").

29. In my judgment, section 36(3)(g) of the ELP Law is analogous to the following provision applicable to voluntary liquidations under Part V of the Law which does not apply to section 36(1) windings-up:

> "Reference of questions to Court
>
> 129. (1) The voluntary liquidator or any contributory may apply to the Court to determine any question arising in the voluntary winding up of a company or to exercise, as respects the enforcing of calls or any other matter, all or any of the powers which the Court might exercise if the company were being wound up under the supervision of the Court.
> (2) The Court, if satisfied that the determination of the question or the required exercise of power will be just and beneficial, may accede wholly or partly to the application on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit, or make such other order on the application as it thinks just."

30. Section 94 of the Law applies to exempted limited partnerships, and expressly confers the right to petition for a winding-up order on the grounds set out in section 92. Section 95 of the Law, which also applies to exempted limited partnerships, expressly empowers the Court to appoint official liquidators. It makes no sense for section 36 (3) to be construed as simultaneously applying these provisions of the Law to exempted limited partnerships and simultaneously creating an equivalent overlapping regime under the ELP Law. It is presumably for these reasons that this point of construction has not been argued in other cases. It has simply been accepted that one presents a petition under Part V of the Law if one wants to compulsorily wind-up an exempted limited partnership through an order of the Court. Thus:

(a) in Re Cybernaut Growth Fund LP FSD 73 of 2013 (AJJ), Judgment dated September 12, 2013 (unreported), it is unclear from the judgment on what statutory basis the just and equitable winding-up order was made, as Mr Greig rightly pointed out. However the Petition was placed before the Court and it crucially provided:

GRAND COURT
CIV-01
CAYMAN ISLANDS

> "129. The Petitioners present this Petition in accordance with section 15(4) of the Exempted Limited Partnership Law and section 92(e) of the Companies Law";

(b) section 15(4) of the 2012 Revision of the ELP Law was the predecessor provision of what is now section 36(3) of the ELP Law. The Cybernaut Petition concluded with a prayer for the following primary relief:

> "The Partnership be wound up in accordance with section 15(4) of the ELP Law and section 92(e) of the Companies Law (2012 Revision)";

(c) in Re Rhone Holdings Limited FSD 119/2015 (IMJ), Judgment dated September 16, 2015 (unreported), it was effectively common ground that the petition to wind-up the exempted limited partnership was properly made under Part V of the Law. The petition was struck-out by Mangatal J under section 95(2) of the Law on the grounds of a contractual prohibition on presenting the petition.

31. These cases, I accept entirely, do not decide the point at issue in the present case as Mr Greig argued. But they do demonstrate that the proposition that section 36(3) of the ELP provides access to the winding-up jurisdiction in Part V of the Law rather than creating a freestanding winding-up jurisdiction has been accepted as being uncontroversial in at least two previous cases before this Court. That provides further forensic support for the conclusion that I would in any event have reached. Namely, that section 36 of the ELP Law does not create a freestanding statutory basis for winding-up an exempted limited partnership.

Findings: the Petition is liable to be dismissed

32. The Petition was liable to be struck-out or dismissed because it did not plead a legally sustainable basis for obtaining a winding-up order. CWR Order 3 rule 2 provides as follows:

> "(2) Every winding up petition shall comply with the requirements of GCR Order 9 and shall contain:-
> ...

(d) a concise statement of the grounds upon which the winding up order is sought..."

33. GCR Order 9 rule 2 pertinently provides as follows:

"(1) Every petition (except an election petition) shall be in Form No. 7 of Appendix I and shall include a concise statement of the nature of the claim made or the relief or remedy required in the proceedings begun by the petition."

34. By necessary implication, every petition must disclose a reasonable cause of action in the sense of identifying a legally sustainable basis for obtaining a winding-up order. Although GCR Order 18 rule 19 does not appear to apply to winding-up proceedings, the Court's inherent jurisdiction to strike-out a petition which is an abuse of process because, inter alia, it is bound to fail cannot be doubted. This jurisdiction is either preserved or given independent statutory force by section 95 of the Law which provides as follows:

"(1) Upon hearing the winding up petition the Court may —

(a) dismiss the petition;

(b) adjourn the hearing conditionally or unconditionally;

(c) make a provisional order; or

(d) any other order that it thinks fit, but the Court shall not refuse to make a winding up order on the ground only that the company's assets have been mortgaged or charged to an amount equal to or in excess of those assets or that the company has no assets." [Emphasis added]

35. On a proper analysis the need to deploy the power to strike-out did not arise because the jurisdictional point was not raised at the interlocutory stage as a means of circumventing the need for a "trial". In Re Rhone Holdings Limited, the petition was struck-out on abuse of process grounds at the interlocutory stage. Mangatal J held:

"56. ... In my judgment the word 'shall' in s. 95(2) provides for a mandatory meaning. Once the Court finds that the Petitioner is contractually bound not to present a petition, then save for the type of circumstance such as the existence of an interested creditor who wishes to be substituted, then the Petition must be dismissed. It would otherwise be an exercise in futility to simply adjourn the Petition rather than striking it out.

57. It was for these reasons that I made the decision and order striking out the Petition."

36. Since the jurisdictional point was taken in this case at the hearing of the Petition, albeit as a preliminary point, the legal issue correctly raised by Mr Faulkner for the Partnership was whether the Petition should be dismissed (or was liable to be dismissed). The Petition clearly was liable to dismissed because it did not disclose a reasonable cause of action and/or failed to plead a legally sustainable ground for winding-up.

Findings: the amendment of the Petition

37. GCR Order 1 rule 4 provides:

"(3A) GCR Order 20 shall apply mutatis mutandis with respect to any amendment to any document filed in the Court office."

38. GCR Order 20 provides as follows:

"(5) (1) Subject to Order 15, rules 6, 7 and 8 and the following provisions of this rule, the Court may at any stage of the proceedings allow the plaintiff to amend his writ, or any party to amend his pleading, on such terms as to costs or otherwise as may be just and in such manner (if any) as it may direct...

(8) (1) For the purpose of determining the real question in controversy between the parties to any proceedings, or of correcting any defect or error in any proceedings, the Court may at any stage of the proceedings and either of its own motion or on the application of any party to the proceedings order any document in the proceedings to be amended on such terms as to costs or otherwise as may be just and in such manner (if any) as it may direct."

39. The usual governing principle in relation to applications to amend is that "generally amendments will be allowed to reflect the true issues between the parties": Worldwide Corporation Ltd-v-GPT Ltd & Anor [1998] EWCA Civ 1894 (Waller LJ).

GRAND COURT CIV-01 CAYMAN ISLANDS

40. The "real question in controversy between the parties" by the date of the hearing of the Petition, was whether or not it was just and equitable that the Partnership should be wound-up on loss of substratum grounds. The Partnership indicated that it would not oppose a winding-up on those grounds if the Court was satisfied that they were made out. The only objection validly raised and positively asserted by the Partnership was that the Petition was defectively pleaded in that reliance was placed on the wrong statutory gateway for obtaining the relief sought. There was no suggestion that the proposed the amendment would require an adjournment because the 'new case' would take the Partnership by surprise. On the contrary, the new case was preferable to the Partnership because it cast no aspersions on the conduct of the GP's principal, Ms Li.

41. This was a world away from a late amendment necessitating an adjournment to enable the parties to address the new case necessitating a more restrictive approach. I accordingly granted the Petitioner leave to amend to, most significantly, expressly rely on sections 92(e) and 94 (2) (c) of the Law.

Findings: whether the loss of substratum case was made out

42. The loss of substratum ground for a just and equitable winding-up is, where made out, a strong one. According to French (at paragraph 8.196):

> "If the substratum of the company has gone, winding up will usually be ordered despite the opposition of a majority of members."

43. In my judgment what facts support a finding that a company's substratum has been lost is not a question which requires the Court to fit the facts relied upon by the Petitioner into a neat pre-determined category. In French, 'Applications to Wind Up Companies', Third Edition, at paragraph 8.260, the learned author describes the ground in the following way:

> "It is just and equitable for the court to order the winding up of a company if 'that which the company was formed to do can no longer be done' or if the company has ceased to carry on its business and the carrying on of the business has become, in a practical sense, impossible…" [emphasis added]

44. Mr Greig rightly submitted that the umbrella just and equitable ground relied upon is a jurisdiction which applies to an infinite variety of facts. He relied in this regard on a passage in French which cited Lord Wilberforce's judgment in Ebrahami v Westbourne Galleries Ltd [1973] AC 360. Lord Wilberforce most pertinently opined as follows about the English provision from which section 92(e) is derived:

> "…there has been a tendency to create categories or headings under which cases must be brought. This is wrong. Illustrations may be used, but general words should remain general and not be reduced to the sum of particular instances."

45. If a flexible approach should be taken to the just and equitable jurisdiction, where a petitioner for illustrative purposes relies upon a recognised category of case, the legal focus must properly be on whether the facts justify winding-up, not whether they match the facts of previous cases based on broadly similar grounds. If 'impossibility' of carrying on the business is a requirement of establishing the loss of substratum ground, then it must be impossibility "in a practical sense" as French suggests. This is a broader and more practical consideration than whether the Partnership is automatically liable to be wound-up under the terms of the LPA.

46. The Petitioner submitted in its Skeleton Argument:

> "34…The Court may conclude that a company's substratum is gone if the company was formed to pursue a specific business that has come to an end (French at [8.262] citing Re Amalgamated Syndicate [1897] 2 Ch 600).
> 35. In Re Amalgamated Syndicate, the company was formed to provide facilities for the Queen's Diamond Jubilee. After the Jubilee, a shareholder successfully sought the winding up of the company on the just and equitable basis in circumstances where the primary purpose of the company had been achieved and the company's directors did not intend to return the remaining capital to the shareholders. The Petitioner says that it is in an analogous position to the petitioning shareholder in Re Amalgamated Syndicate: the Partnership has achieved its purpose but the General Partner is not in a position to take the steps necessary to wind up the affairs of the Partnership. It would therefore be just and equitable for the Court to order the winding up of the Partnership. Absent such an order, the only (albeit unpalatable) option for the Petitioner would be to do a deal with the General Partner and attempt to obtain a variation of the Injunction."

47. The critical facts are that the GP is prevented from (1) making the distribution to which the Petitioner is admittedly entitled and (2) winding-up the Partnership because it is subject to an injunction granted in proceedings unconnected with the Petitioner. The only remaining "business" wholly or substantially involves those two steps. I found that these facts established:

(a) that the Partnership in a practical sense has ceased to carry on business and could not carry on; and

(b) that it was just and equitable for the Partnership to be wound-up at the instance of its sole economic stakeholder. I was satisfied that the GP lacked standing to suggest that no relief should be granted because there were alternative remedies that the Petitioner should pursue. I regarded the position of the GP as analogous to that of the holder of a sole management share of a fund company in relation to a sole participating shareholder in the context of how a solvent fund should be wound-up. As the Cayman Island Court of Appeal observed in Re Asia Private Credit Fund Limited; Re Adamas Strategic Opportunity Fund Limited, CICA Nos. 17 and 76 of 2019, Judgment dated 8 November 2019 (Sir Richard Field JA) (unreported):

"97…Where, however, the company is an investment fund and the company is solvent so that all creditors will be paid, as is the case in these two appeals, the Managers with the entitlement to put the fund into the voluntary liquidation will have no financial stake in the winding up and the question arises as to the extent to which the Court in considering the requirements of paragraph (b) can and should have regard to the fact that the Participating Shareholders [are] the sole stakeholders in the winding up."

Summary

48. For the above reasons on March 27, 2020 I ordered that the Partnership should be wound-up.

Petition by limited partners to dissolve or wind-up an exempted limited partnership-strike-out application by general partner-whether winding-up proceedings can validly be brought against an exempted limited partnership in its own name as opposed to against the general partner-statutory interpretation-Exempted Limited Partnership Act (2021 Revision), sections 3, 4, 33(1), 36(3)- Companies Act (2021 Revision), section 92(e)

UDGMENT

Introduction

1. By their Petition dated December 15, 2021, the Petitioners (who contributed approximately 70% of the Respondent's capital contributions) claiming to be contingent creditors of the Respondent sought the following principal relief, namely an Order that:

> "1. The Partnership be dissolved or wound up in accordance with Section 3 of the ELP Act and Section 35(e) of the Partnership Act or, in the alternative, Section 36(3) of the ELP Act and Section 92(e) of the Companies Act…"

2. The GP applied by Summons dated January 14, 2022 for the following principal relief, namely an Order that:

> "1. The Winding Up Petition dated 15 December 2021 be struck out, on the basis that it has been presented against the Respondent rather than against the GP…"

3. Although Mr Khanbhai for the GP sought to delicately avoid directly engaging with this underlying conflict, the present strike-out application focussed on a standing point which reflects conflicting approaches by different judges of the Grand Court. Mostly recently, in Re Padma Fund LP (FSD 201 of 2021 (RPJ), 8 October 2021), Parker J held that there was no jurisdiction to wind-up an exempted limited partnership ("ELP") under the Companies Act. I took the contrary view, consistent with earlier decisions of this Court, in Re XIO Diamond LP (FSD 256 of 2019 (IKJ), 30 April 2020, which Parker J in Padma concluded was wrongly decided. Although Mr Sherwood for the Petitioners was keen for obvious forensic reasons to reduce the strike-out argument to a choice between following my own decision and Justice Parker's conflicting decision, the present application cannot be approached in such a binary fashion. The arguments canvassed in XiO were not precisely the same as those advanced in Padma, and the submissions in the present case are not precisely the same as those advanced in either of the two previous conflicting decisions.

4. Interpreting bespoke legislative instruments such as the Exempted Limited Partnership Act (the "ELP Act") without the benefit of nourishment from persuasive authorities from larger common law jurisdictions is often a challenging endeavour. Through an incremental process in which different judges confront different legal points and similar legal points framed in somewhat different ways, a consensus gradually emerges as to the meaning of the most important statutory provisions. In this context, in my judgment, each judge is entitled to be more willing than might be appropriate in more settled areas of law to depart from previous decisions, even his or her own.

The GP's case for striking out

5. By way of overview, Mr Khanbhai submitted:

> "5. The correct jurisdictional gateway, i.e. between the Companies Jurisdiction and the Partnerships Jurisdiction, is not a question that arises on the Strike Out Application.
>
> 6. The Strike Out Application turns only on one discrete point. Who is the proper respondent to a petition seeking the relief sought by the Petitioners?
>
> 7. The Petition has been filed against Formation Group (Cayman) Fund I, L.P. (the 'Fund'). The respondent to the Petition is not a legal entity. The Petitioners should have named the GP in its capacity as general partner of the Fund, as the respondent to the Petition. As a result, the Petition is defective and falls to be struck out. That is the end of the matter."

6. The GP's counsel's central thesis was set out in his Skeleton Argument as follows:

> "13. An exempted limited partnership is a creature of statute, comprising at least one general partner and one limited partner. It has no legal personality. It cannot own property in its own right. Its business is carried on by its general partner: section 14 of the ELP Act. Further:
>
> (a) It is the general partner that holds assets of the partnership on trust for the partnership, in accordance with the partnership deed: section 16(1) of the ELP Act.
>
> (b) On the admission or substitution of a general partner, the assets of the exempted limited partnership vest in the new general partner by operation of law: section 17 of the ELP Act.
>
> (c) It is also the general partner that incurs debts or obligations on behalf of the partnership: section 16(2) of the ELP Act.
>
> 14. Section 33 of the ELP Act provides expressly in relation to 'Proceedings'. Section 33(1) provides that: "Subject to subsection (3), legal proceedings by or against an exempted limited partnership may be instituted by or against any one or more of the general partners only, and a limited partner shall not be a party to or named in the proceedings" (emphasis added)
>
> 15. Subsection (3) relates to derivative actions brought by limited partners and so is not relevant for present purposes.
>
> 16. Winding up proceedings (Companies Jurisdiction) or proceedings for a decree of dissolution (Partnerships Jurisdiction) are 'legal proceedings… against an exempted limited partnership' within the meaning of section 33(1).
>
> 17. It follows that the Petition should have named the GP as the Respondent.
>
> 18. Proceedings which appear to be duly issued but fail to comply with a statutory requirement are a nullity which is incurable: the third of three classes of nullity referred to by Upjohn LJ in Re Pritchard [1963] Ch 502 at page 5242 Finnegan v Cementation [1953] 1 QB 688.
> 19. The consequence of failing to comply with section 33(1) of the ELP Act, when filing the Petition, is that the proceedings are a nullity which is incurable (as opposed to an irregularity which might be capable of being cured).

20. In Padma Fund FSD 201 of 2021 (unrep. 8 October 2021), Parker J was considering a winding up petition presented against an exempted limited partnership. He had to consider two separate issues:

(a) First, in the case of a petition presented against an exempted limited partnership, who was the proper respondent to the petition? In particular, was it the general partner or was it the fund?

(b) Second, on such a petition what is the appropriate jurisdictional gateway, the Companies Jurisdiction or the Partnership Jurisdiction?

21. It is only the first issue (proper respondent) that arises on this Strike Out Application. Padma is the only Cayman Islands decision on that first issue. XiO Diamond LP (unrep.30 April 2020, FSD 256 of 2019 (IKJ)), for example, is an authority that deals with the second point but not the first.

22. On the proper respondent issue, Parker J held at paragraphs 35 and 36 of Padma that section 33(1) of the ELP Act is determinative of who should be the respondent when the originating process is intended to invoke the court's winding up jurisdiction in relation to an exempted limited partnership:

"35. There is … no provision within the ELP Act or the Partnership Act which provides that legal proceedings may be instituted against an exempted limited partnership in the name of the partnership. This is because it is through the general partner that its debts and obligations are enforced. Section 33(1) of the ELP says in terms proceedings may be instituted against the general partner(s) only.

36. Mr Sherwood relies on Order 81, rule 12 of the Grand Court Rules, 1995 (Revised Edition) which provides that any action by or against an exempted limited partnership may be commenced in the name of the firm. However in my view that does not assist Mr Sherwood because the applicable statutes must take precedence over procedural rules, and the particular rule does not in my view deal with the court's winding up jurisdiction."

7. In short, the GP invites this Court to follow its earlier decision in Padma and to hold that the ELP Act only permits legal proceedings to be brought against a general partner of an ELP and not against the ELP itself. While it seems clearly right that the GP has only directly based its strike-out application on the section 33(1) of the ELP Act point, it seems difficult as a matter of preliminary analysis to see how the construction of section 33(1) which was applied by Justice

Parker in Padma can be properly assessed by entirely divorcing the construction analysis from the wider legal context in which it is embedded.

The Petitioners' primary response

8. The Petitioners' Skeleton Argument firstly made it clear that they were primarily relying upon the winding-up jurisdiction under the Companies Act:

> "3. The petition is for a winding up order under the Companies Act 2021 ('Companies Act'), as applied to ELPs by section 36(3) of the Exempted Limited Partnership Act (2021 Revision) ('ELPA') or, in the alternative, an order for dissolution under the Partnership Act (2013 Revision) ('Partnership Act'). The petition has been presented in this way due to recent conflicting decisions of this Court."

9. Secondly, in defining the issues, Mr Sherwood effectively submitted that the true legal question was the broader question of whether an ELP could be wound-up at all, with the question of whether proceedings could be brought against an ELP being merely one element of that broader jurisdictional question:

> "7. The petitioners say - consistent with a long line of Grand Court decisions including Re XIO Diamond LP (FSD 256 of 2019 (IKJ), 30 April 2020)7 - that limited partners may petition for the winding up of an ELP under Part V of the Companies Act, and that the Fund is the correct respondent to the petition. The only outlier is the recent decision in Re Padma Fund LP (FSD 201 of 2021 (RPJ), 8 October 2021), in which Parker J determined that Re XIO (and implicitly earlier decisions) was wrongly decided.
>
> 8. Until Re Padma, there was never any jurisprudential doubt that, procedurally, a just and equitable petition was correctly issued by a limited partner against an ELP (and not the general partner) pursuant to section 36(3) of the ELPA, which imports the winding up jurisdiction and procedure in Part V of the Companies Act…
> 11. The case concerned a creditor's petition on insolvency grounds against an ELP. Despite this, Parker J made wider observations on the source of the Grand Court's jurisdiction to wind up an ELP on just and equitable grounds. This included, at paragraph 61, the observation that the Grand Court's jurisdiction to wind up an ELP by a limited partner on just and equitable grounds arises under section 3 of the ELPA and section 35(e) of the Partnership Act 'only'. His Lordship went on to consider this Court's decision in Re XIO at 76-88, respectfully concluding that it was decided in error at paragraph 87.

12. The ratio in Re Padma is to be found at paragraphs 72, 92 and 93, and it is limited to a finding that a creditor of an ELP must commence its petition against the general partner and not the ELP. This decision was based on two primary findings: (a) First, because the general partner is responsible for the debts of the ELP; (b) Secondly, because section 33(1) of the ELPA absolutely prohibits proceedings being issued against the ELP itself.

13. It is not necessary for this Court to determine the correctness of the ratio in Re Padma as it relates to creditor petitions. But this Court may feel compelled to do so in light of Parker J's heavy if not singular reliance on (respectfully) an incorrect interpretation of section 33(1) of the ELP Act which led to His Lordship's obiter comments regarding just and equitable petitions. His Lordship's interpretation of section 33(1) is also relied on by the Fund in its strike out application."

10. As to the merits of the legal point, it was further argued most pertinently as follows:

"16. First, it is accepted that section 33(1) states that: "legal proceedings by or against an exempted limited partnership may be instituted by or against any one or more of the general partners only…" [our emphasis in bold]. However, the literal wording of a statute must be read in its context and the surrounding words and scheme of the legislation must be used as an aid to a purposive reading of the relevant provision.

17. Section 33(1) immediately goes on to provide further guidance as to the true scope of the subsection by saying "... and a limited partner shall not be a party to or named in the proceedings". Those words cannot be read in isolation to those that preceded them. The mischief at which section 33(1) is aimed is merely to reverse the general rule which applies to ordinary partnerships where any partner may be named as a defendant in proceedings relating to the liabilities of the partnership. Those are the 'legal proceedings' at which section 33(1) is aimed and certainly not collective proceedings for winding up.

18. Subsections (2) and (3) provide exceptions to the general rule stated in subsection (1) and therefore serve as additional context. Subsection (2) confirms that limited partners may become defendants in cases where they have taken part in the management of the ELP (section 20(1)) or because they have received distributions subject to clawback (section 34(1)). Subsection (3) confirms when limited partners may issue proceedings derivatively. These subsections place subsection (1) in context.

19. Accordingly, section 33 as a whole is aimed at setting the parameters for proceedings to be issued by or against limited partners in respect of the ELP. It does not in terms prevent proceedings being issued against an ELP.

20. Second, the interpretation of section 33(1) must be read consistently with the express provisions of section 36(3), which are specific to winding up (and not 'legal proceedings' generally, as that term is used in section 33(1)). The provisions of section 36(3) are not remotely ambiguous. Part V of the Companies Act is imported into the ELPA for winding up purposes. Accordingly, contrary to Parker J's finding at paragraph 43 of Re Padma, there is no need in section 91 of the Companies Act specifically to confer jurisdiction on the Court to wind up ELPs. This is because section 36(3)(a) specifically treats references to 'company' to 'exempted limited partnerships' for the purposes of section 91 and elsewhere in Part V12.

21. Third, to the extent it is necessary, assistance in discerning the legislature's intentions can be found in the Explanatory Memorandum for the Bill which brought in (the forerunner of) section 36(3) of the ELPA and the Official Hansard Report for the second reading of the same, which are set out in the Annex to this skeleton argument.

22. These clearly show that the Legislative Assembly's intention was to apply the winding up provisions of Part V of the Companies Act to ELPs. The legislation was enacted because the existing provisions 'fell far short of a meaningful dissolution framework for exempted limited partnerships'. This is in direct contrast to the conclusion reached at paragraph 60 of Re Padma (where the Court did not have the benefit of these materials) that there was no 'mischief' for the legislation to redress because that dissolution framework already existed."

11. These submissions provoked two initial reactions. Firstly, construing section 33(1) of the ELP Act was a difficult point of statutory interpretation. Secondly, it seemed impossible to engage in a meaningful process of statutory construction of that provision without also making sense of other relevant provisions in the same statute, namely the provisions relating to winding-up under the Companies Act.

12. The Petitioners advanced alternative arguments as to how, if their primary arguments were rejected, the standing problem could be cured by amendment. I indicated in the course of the hearing, based on the GP's compelling contrary submissions, that this alternative case seemed hopeless. I will address this subsidiary issue briefly below.

Legal findings

The statutory provisions

13. The first key statutory provision is section 33 of the ELP Act:

> "(1) Subject to subsection (3), legal proceedings by or against an exempted limited partnership may be instituted by or against any one or more of the general partners only, and a limited partner shall not be a party to or named in the proceedings.
>
> (2) If the court considers it just and equitable any person or a general partner shall have the right to join in or otherwise institute proceedings against any one or more of the limited partners who may be liable under section 20(1) or to enforce the return of the contribution, if any, required by section 34(1).
>
> (3) A limited partner may bring an action on behalf of an exempted limited partnership if any one or more of the general partners with authority to do so have, without cause, failed or refused to institute proceedings.
> (4) If any action taken pursuant to subsection (3) is successful, in whole or in part, as a result of a judgment, compromise or settlement of any action, the court may award any limited partner bringing any action reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, from any recovery in any action or from an exempted limited partnership."

14. The most obvious literal meaning of section 33(1) is that it creates a general rule immunizing limited partners from being sued in respect of an ELP's affairs and conferring the primary right to sue and be sued in respect of an ELP's affairs on the general partner(s).An exception to this general rule is then set out in section 33(3), which Mr Khanbhai aptly described as "derivative claims". Section 33 does not in terms prohibit proceedings against an ELP altogether. Whether such a prohibition should be inferred accordingly requires further contextual statutory analysis.

15. Mr Khanbhai submitted that "may" in section 33(1) is mandatory. He placed reliance on the following provisions of section 4 of the ELP Act:

> "(2) An exempted limited partnership shall consist of one or more persons called general partners who shall, in the event that the assets of the exempted limited partnership are inadequate, be liable for all debts and obligations of the exempted limited partnership, and one or more persons called limited partners who shall not be liable for the debts or obligations of the exempted limited partnership save as provided in the partnership agreement and to the extent specified in sections 20(1) and 34(1), but a general partner, without derogation from that general partner's position as such, may, in addition, take an interest as a limited partner in the exempted limited partnership."

16. This does provide some potential support for the proposition that a general partner is, as section 33(1) arguably implies, the only proper party to sue in respect of partnership debts. However, carefully read, it does not meaningfully advance the thesis at all. Rather, section 4(2) is only explicitly defining two central characteristics of an ELP:

(a) as a general rule, limited partners have no liabilities in respect of ELP debts; and

(b) as a general rule, general partners "shall, in the event that the assets of the exempted limited partnership are inadequate, be liable for all debts and obligations of the exempted limited partnership".

17. The statutory language clearly envisages that an ELP will have its own "assets…debts and obligations" and that a general partner will only be liable in the event that the ELP's assets are "inadequate" to meet its liabilities. In brief, this implies that an ELP has some degree of legal personality as one would expect drawing upon the more longstanding traditional partnership construct. Section 4(2) is ultimately neutral in terms of shedding light on how section 33(1) should be construed, but provides some general support for the proposition that as far as winding-up is concerned, an ELP does have its own pot of assets and liabilities which are capable of being wound-up separate and apart from the general partner(s). Mr Sherwood's oral submissions to this effect were quite powerful in conceptual and practical terms.

18. The most important other provisions in the ELP Act for present purposes are the following provisions of section 36:

> "(3) Except to the extent that the provisions are not consistent with this Act, and in the event of any inconsistencies, this Act shall prevail, and subject to any express provisions of this Act to the contrary, the provisions of Part V of the Companies Act (2021 Revision) and the Companies Winding Up Rules, 2018 shall apply to the winding up of an exempted limited partnership and for this purpose —
>
>
> (b) the limited partners shall be treated as if they were shareholders of a company and references to contributories in Part V shall be construed accordingly, except that the application of the provisions shall not cause a limited partner to be subject to any greater liability than that limited partner would otherwise bear under this Act, but for the application of this paragraph;
>
> (c) references in Part V to a director or officer of a company shall include references to the general partner of an exempted limited partnership;
>
> (d) except for sections 123, excluding subsection (1)(b) and (c), 129, 140, 145, and 147 of the Companies Act (2021 Revision), Part V shall not apply to a voluntary dissolution and winding up under subsection (1);
>
> (e) in the case of a voluntary winding-up of an exempted limited partnership under subsection (1) where the partnership was registered under section 9 prior to 11th May 2009, the necessary time period for compliance with the requirements of section 123 (1) of the Companies Act (2021 Revision) shall be at least twenty-eight days prior to the final distribution of the assets of the exempted limited partnership to partners rather than within twenty-eight days of the commencement of its voluntary winding-up;
> (f) the Insolvency Rules Committee established pursuant to the Companies Act (2021 Revision) shall have the power to make rules and prescribe forms for the purpose of giving effect to this section or its interpretation; and

19. These provisions read in a straightforward and uncomplicated manner appear at first blush to be quite clear and unambiguous. They provide most significantly as follows:

(a) "Part V of the Companies Act (2021 Revision) and the Companies Winding Up Rules, 2018 shall apply to the winding up of an exempted limited partnership", subject to specified modifications;

(b) the word "company" shall be read as "exempted limited partnership";

(c) the word "contributories" shall be read as "limited partners";

(d) the word "director" includes "general partner"; and

(e) subject to specified exceptions, Part V of the Companies Act does not apply to voluntary dissolutions under section 36(1) of the ELP Act.

20. Section 36(3) appears to provide in explicit terms that an ELP may be wound-up under Part V of the Companies Act and the Companies Winding Up Rules and that, minor modifications apart, references in Part V to "company" apply to an ELP and references to a "contributory" apply to a limited partner. By necessary implication, a limited partner may petition to wind-up an ELP on the same grounds as would be available to a contributory in relation to a company.

Preliminary view on the proper construction of sections 1 and of the ELP Act

21. Taking a preliminary view without regard to any judicial or other authority, it would seemingly require equally clear statutory language in some other part of the ELP Act to justify the conclusion that although section 36(3) provides that an ELP can be wound-up by the Court in the same manner as a company, there is an exception to this general rule to the effect that the general partner and not the ELP itself must be the respondent to the winding-up petition. Section 33(1) does expressly provide that (a) proceedings against an ELP can only be brought against a general and not against a limited partner, and (b) proceedings on behalf of an ELP can only generally be brought by a general partner. But section 33(1) does not with any real clarity suggest or imply that a limited partner may not present a winding-up petition against an ELP, the seemingly clear contrary terms of section 36(3) notwithstanding.

22. One point seems clear beyond serious argument having regard to the most elementary rules of statutory construction. It makes no sense at all to seek to determine a question of standing to present a petition under Part V of the Companies Act, as applied to an ELP by section 36(3) of the ELP Act, by ignoring section 36(3) and focussing solely on section 33(1). Mr Khanbhai's beguiling invitation to the Court to adopt such a blinkered approach seemed indicative of the fact that section 36(3) is the 'Achilles heel' of the GP's standing analysis.

23. Mr Sherwood aptly relied upon the following principles of statutory interpretation. In Shanda Games Ltd v Maso Capital Investments Ltd [2020 (2) CILR 293] (UKPC), Lady Arden (delivering the advice of the Judicial Committee) opined as follows:

> "27 The Board considers that, when and to the extent that any issue …is to be ascertained by statutory interpretation [i]n that situation, the court has to ascertain the intention of the legislature from the words it has used in their context, and also in the light of any material which demonstrates the mischief that it was concerned to redress by the statutory provision." [Emphasis added]

24. This preliminary view must accordingly be tested by reference to both the relevant authorities and any material relating to the legislative history of the statutory provisions which elucidates their purpose or, in more classical terms, the mischief they were designed to remediate.

The pre Padma authorities' implicit support for the view that an ELP could be wound up under Part V of the Companies Act

25. Authorities in which it was assumed that a winding-up petition could be presented against an ELP, with no attempt being made to dispute the assumption, can for obvious reasons be mentioned briefly:

(a) Re Cybernaut Growth Fund LP, FSD 73 of 2013 (AJJ), Judgment dated September 12, 2013 (unreported): the petition was presented against the ELP by limited partners complaining of mismanagement by the general partner. Following a contested hearing at which Richard Hacker QC appeared for the general partner, a winding-up order was made against the ELP under the then Companies Law. No point was taken that an ELP could not be wound-up or that a petition could not be presented against solely against an ELP (although it appears that the GP and another entity involved in the management of the partnership were joined as respondents to the petition at the directions stage);

(b) Re Rhone Holdings LP, FSD 119/2016 (IMJ), Judgment dated September 16, 2016 (unreported): the petition was presented against the ELP and sought its winding-up. The general partners, for whom Mr Tom Lowe QC appeared, successfully applied to strike-out the petition but did not rely on a lack of standing ground or the argument that an ELP could not be wound-up. The Court of Appeal refused leave to appeal against Ingrid Mangatal J's decision and expressly confirmed that the ELP Act provided for the winding-up of an ELP under the Companies Act: Re Rhone Holdings LP [2016 CILR (1) 273];

(c) Re XiO Diamond LP, FSD 256 of 2019 (IKJ), Judgment dated April 30, 2020 (unreported): a winding-up petition was presented against an ELP and was opposed by counsel appearing for the ELP. The respondent ELP contended that there was no jurisdiction to wind-up under section 36(3)(g) and that jurisdiction did exist to wind-up under section 92 (e) of the Companies Act which relief it would not oppose. The petition was amended to seek this relief and I ordered that: "1. The Partnership be wound up in accordance with sections 92(e) and 94(1)(c) of the Companies Law (2020 Revision) as read with section 36(3) of the Exempted Limited Partnership Law (2018 Revision)";

(d) Re Duet Real Estate Partners I LP, FSD 22 of 2020 (IKJ), Judgment dated (unreported) June 9, 2020: a winding-up petition was presented against an ELP and served at its registered office. It was expressly directed that the ELP "is properly able to participate in the proceedings". Although the petition was unopposed, I ordered that the ELP "be wound up in accordance with section 92(c) of the Companies Law and section 36(3) of the ELP Law".

26. Mr Sherwood referred to other cases where winding-up orders were made against ELPs without considered judgments being delivered. These cases may be said to provide at best strong, indirect support for the Petitioners' construction of section 33(1) as read with section 36(3) of the ELP Act, consistent with the thesis propounded in 'The Wisdom of Crowds: Why the Many are Smarter than the Few and How Collective Wisdom shapes Business, Economies, Societies and Nations'[1]. The cases demonstrate a fairly broad consensus that section 36(3) means what it says when it purports to confer jurisdiction on this court to wind up an ELP under the Companies Act. This is of course by no means conclusive; there was once a broad and now discredited general consensus that the earth was flat. But when distinguished commercial silks are briefed to oppose a winding-up petition (as happened in Re Cybernaut Growth Fund LP and Re Rhone Holdings LP) and fail to raise the standing point raised by the GP in the present case, this strongly suggests that the point now being raised (and first raised in Padma) must be a point which is either counterintuitive or less than obvious at least. It is noteworthy that although section 33(1) was not expressly considered in Re XiO Diamond LP, counsel for the ELP in that case (a) formally appeared for the ELP and (b) positively asserted that jurisdiction to wind-up existed under the Companies Law (as it was then).

27. It is important to reiterate that what was assumed to reflect the correct legal position in these past cases without direct consideration of the point raised for consideration in relation to the present

[1] James Surowiecki (Doubleday/Anchor: 2004).

Petition does little more than to cause me to approach the presenting standing point with a healthy degree of scepticism. The construction of section 33(1) of the ELP Act as it applies to winding-up petitions presented pursuant to section 36(3) must be determined on its merits as this is an issue that the previous decisions never directly addressed. It is not unknown for legal points which have not been taken at first instance for several years to be belatedly taken and upheld at the highest appellate level[2].

Re Padma

28. In Re Padma Fund LP, FSD 201 of 2021 (RPJ), the petitioners sought the winding-up of an ELP under section 92(d) of the Companies Act (2021 Revision) as creditors. The GP on behalf of the ELP contended the Court had no jurisdiction to make the order sought. Justice Raj Parker agreed. Mr Sherwood, who also appeared for the petitioners in that case, was unable to persuade the Judge that Re XiO Diamond Fund LP was correctly decided. In the present case, he sought to distinguish Re Padma as limited to the context of creditors' petitions but sensibly acknowledged that the findings recorded potentially applied to the winding-up remedy generally. The pivotal finding made in Padma was the following:

> "35. There is however no provision within the ELP Act or the Partnership Act which provides that legal proceedings may be instituted against an exempted limited partnership in the name of the partnership. This is because it is through the general partner that its debts and obligations are enforced. Section 33(1) of the ELP Act says in terms proceedings may be instituted against the general partner(s) only." [Emphasis added]

29. It is that pivotal preliminary finding which then founds the following key conclusory finding that an ELP cannot be wound-up at all under the Companies Act:

> "*47. Section 36(3) of the ELP Act states: 'Except to the extent that the provisions are not consistent with this Act, and in the event of any

[2] Re Saad Investments Company Ltd [2014] UKPC 34: the Judicial Committee held that the jurisdiction to wind-up overseas companies (which had been assumed to exist in Bermuda since 2000 based on a judgment in case where there was an unopposed winding petition) did not properly exist.

> inconsistencies, this Act shall prevail, and subject to any express provisions of this Act to the contrary*, the provisions of Part V of the Companies Act (2021 Revision) and the Companies Winding Up Rules, 2018 shall apply to the winding up of an exempted limited partnership and for this purpose…' (my emphasis) 48. It seems to me that this provision does not give a freestanding right for a creditor to present a winding-up petition against an exempted limited partnership.*"

30. This conclusion was buttressed by proper regard being had to the legislative purpose of section 36(3):

> "61. It seems to me that from a proper analysis of the above statutory provisions that the Court's jurisdiction to wind up an exempted limited partnership on the application of a partner on the grounds that it is just and equitable to do so arises by virtue of section 3 of the ELP Act and section 35(e) of the Partnership Act only.
>
> 62. This is relevant for when one examines the decision in XIO Diamond LP below as, unlike the present case, it concerned an analysis of the situation which applied on the application to wind up by a limited partner.
>
> 63. I have considered whether there was "mischief" which the legislature sought to address by introducing section 36(3) of the ELP Act to enable a creditor to present a winding up petition against an exempted limited partnership, as in the present case.
>
> 64. I have concluded that no mischief existed as the creditor was (and remains) entitled to enforce any debt against the general partner which, unlike the exempted limited partnership, has a legal personality.
>
> 65. In any event, the provisions of Part V of the Companies Act referenced in section 36(3) of the ELP Act are subject to section 33(1) of the ELP Act which expressly states that legal proceedings against an exempted limited partnership may be instituted against a general partner only.
>
> 66. It seems to me therefore that the legislative purpose of introducing section 36(3) was to apply the applicable provisions of Part V of the Companies Act and the Companies Winding Up Rules, 2018 following the commencement of the winding up in order to facilitate the orderly winding up of the partnership's affairs.
> 67. This analysis accords with the commercial position and the legal liabilities which arise on the insolvency of a partnership where the business of the partnership is conducted by the general partner, the

assets of the partnership are held by the general partner on a statutory trust and the general partner is personally liable for the debts of the partnership.

68. Pursuant to section 2 of the ELP Act, the partnership is deemed to be insolvent when the general partner is unable to pay the debts and obligations of the exempted limited partnership in the ordinary course of business as they fall due out of the assets of the exempted limited partnership, without recourse to the separate assets of the general partner not contributed or committed to the exempted limited partnership.

69. In that scenario the general partner remains personally liable for the partnership's debts and therefore the remedy of any creditor when the partnership is insolvent is to commence proceedings against the general partner. This is consistent with section 33(1) of the ELP Act.

70. The winding up procedure as it relates to exempted limited partnerships also fits with this analysis. When an exempted limited partnership is being wound up, either voluntarily under section 36(1) of the ELP Act or by order of the court pursuant to section 35 of the Partnership Act, the general partner is deemed to be the liquidating trustee of the partnership unless the court orders otherwise."

31. As a matter of first impression, when Re Padma was initially decided, I felt that Parker J's well-reasoned Judgment articulated a sound and novel basis for concluding that my own contrary previous decisions, particularly Re XiO Diamond Fund LP, had been wrongly decided. This preliminary view entailed accepting:

(a) the hypothesis set out at paragraph 35 of Re Padma that there was "no provision within the ELP Act or the Partnership Act which provides that legal proceedings may be instituted against an exempted limited partnership in the name of the partnership"; and

(b) the hypothesis set out at paragraphs 61-70 of Re Padma that the legislative purpose of section 36(3) was not to provide a wide gateway to winding-up ELPs in the same manner as companies.

32. The merits of the GP's present strike-out application turn on an assessment of the validity of these two pivotal propositions.

The legislative purpose of section of the ELP Act

33. Parker J was clearly right in his statutory construction exercise to have regard to the "mischief" the relevant provisions sought to address, although I prefer the modern terminology of seeking to ascertain the 'legislative purpose' of new or uncertain provisions. As Professor Burrows (as he then was)[3] has opined extra-judicially:

> "…it is tolerably clear today that our judges have moved from an old literal to a modern and contextual approach…the modern approach has subsumed many of the old so-called 'canons of interpretation…they have lost primacy with the demise of literalism and have tended to be swallowed up by the modern contextual and purposive approach…when we talk of 'purpose', we are looking at the policy behind the statute or statutory provision. Identifying the policy is not dependent on identifying any person's intentions…Indeed to expose the practical irrelevance of the legislator's intention, it may be helpful to focus on the purpose rather than the legislator, and an advantage of such a switch of focus is that it helps to clarify that what ultimately matters is the judicial analysis, at the time a dispute arises, of what the statute means…"

34. Mr Sherwood, still bearing the scars of his unsuccessful battle in Re Padma, provided me with more guidance as to the legislative purpose underpinning section 36(3) of the ELP Act in light of its now evident pertinence. Annexed to his Skeleton Argument were the following important submissions about the legislative history of section 36(3):

> "ANNEX – LEGISLATIVE HISTORY OF THE RELEVANT SECTIONS OF THE ELPA
>
> Section 36(3) of the ELPA.
> 1. Section 36(3) of the ELPA was originally enacted (as section 15(4)) by the Exempted Limited Partnership (Amendment) Law, 2009 (the '2009 Amendment').

[3] Andrew Burrows, 'Thinking About Statutes: Interpretation, Interaction and Improvement' (Cambridge University Press: Cambridge, 2018), The Hamlyn Lectures, pages 7-8, 19-20.

2. Prior to the 2009 Amendment, the relevant dissolution provision (being section 15(2) of the Exempted Limited Partnership Law (2007) Revision) provided only:

'On application by a partner or a creditor, the court may decree dissolution of an exempted limited partnership, and may make such orders and give such directions for the winding up of its affairs as may be just and equitable.'

3. That language unambiguously intended to provide a procedure for the winding up of exempted limited partnerships, rather than a supplementary provision to the existing procedure for partnerships, being section 15(1) of the Partnership Act (2002 Revision), which was in effect at the time the Exempted Limited Partnership Law (2007 Revision) was legislated:

'On application by a partner the court may decree a dissolution of the partnership in any of the following cases… whenever in any case circumstances have arisen which, in the opinion of the court, render it just and equitable that the partnership be dissolved.'

4. It is in that context that the new section 15(4) (now 36(3)) was enacted. The Exempted Limited Partnership (Amendment) Bill, 2009 (the '2009 Bill') states precisely what was the intention of the Legislative Assembly (as it was then) in legislating new dissolution provisions in its Memorandum of Objects and Reasons:

'Clause 10 of the Bill repeals and replaces the provisions governing the winding up and dissolution of an exempted limited partnership. They are brought, so far as is possible, in line with the provisions of the Companies Law (2007 Revision) as amended by the Companies (Amendment) Law 2007.'

5. The Official Hansard Report for the second reading of the 2009 Bill is also instructive (emphasis added):

'Clause 10 upgrades section 15 of the principal Law in relation to winding-up and dissolution of exempted limited partnerships. Industry has advised, and government has agreed, that in the current climate the existing section 15 fell far short of a meaningful dissolution framework for exempted limited partnerships. The revised and improved section 15 was developed in close consultation with the Cayman Islands Society of Professional Accountants (CISPA). The provisions in clause 10 take the benefit as far as possible of the provisions for winding up and dissolution in the new (2007) Part V of the Companies Law, and cross-refer to those provisions to the extent sensible. The ultimate, longer-term objective is to > have a self-contained framework for winding up and dissolution within the Exempted Limited Partnership Law itself (that is, without cross-referral), but in the interim, clause 10 is a significant and necessary improvement that addresses a current gap in the Law in the immediate term. "

35. In my judgment, the quoted extracts from the legislative history of section 36(3), which were not considered by this Court in Re Padma, provide compelling support for the preliminary view that section 36(3) means what it says when it provides that an ELP may be wound-up in the same manner as a company under Part V of the Companies Act. It was seeking to move further away from the traditional Partnership Act constraints on dissolution and to embrace, according to the Memorandum and Objects of the Bill "so far as is possible", the more flexible winding-up mechanisms applicable to companies. The following explanation given to the Legislative Assembly on the Second Reading of the Bill, combined with the quoted averments in the Memorandum and Objects, puts the legislative purpose of the then new provisions clear beyond serious argument:

> "…The provisions in clause 10 take the benefit as far as possible of the provisions for winding up and dissolution in the new (2007) Part V of the Companies Law, and cross-refer to those provisions to the extent sensible…"

The proper construction of section 1

36. Having regard to the legislative history of section 36(3), it is clear that this statutory provision may indeed simply be interpreted according to its literal terms. The conceptual underpinnings for the pivotal finding in Re Padma as to the effect of section 33(1) of the ELP Act on the ability to wind-up limited partnerships melt away. The finding that there was "no provision within the ELP Act or the Partnership Act which provides that legal proceedings may be instituted against an exempted limited partnership in the name of the partnership" is clearly unsupportable because section 36(3) does expressly provide just that. Section 36(3) most importantly provides:

> "(3) Part V of the Companies Act (2021 Revision) and the Companies Winding Up Rules, 2018 shall apply to the winding up of an exempted limited partnership…(a) references in Part V to a company shall include references to an exempted limited partnership…"

37. Accordingly, and ultimately very simply, section 36(3) expressly provides that a winding-up petition may be presented against an ELP in the same manner as in relation to a company and this special provision overrides the general terms of section 33(1). The fact that an ELP generally has no separate legal personality is entirely beside the point when Parliament has expressly extended the company winding-up regime to such entities. I therefore confirm the preliminary interpretative view I set out above.

38. As already noted above, making sense of such bespoke investment vehicles as ELPs and the statutory provisions which define them is difficult because of the absence of persuasive authority. It is doubly difficult in the absence of judicial experience of how such winding-ups actually play out in practice. However, I ultimately accept Mr Sherwood's oral submissions that it is entirely logical for the business of an ELP to be wound up separate and apart from its general partner which may have other entirely separate business concerns.

39. It is true that a general partner is ultimately responsible for an ELP's debts, but this responsibility is only triggered when the ELP's assets are insufficient to meet those debts. The need to call upon a general partner may not be apparent until the winding-up of an ELP which is cash-flow insolvent is incomplete. When an ELP is being wound-up on just and equitable grounds and is solvent, the rationale for naming the general partner as respondent to a petition is indecipherable altogether. The idea of an ELP being wound-up is consistent with the statutory scheme, because section 4(2) makes it clear that such legal entities have their own assets and liabilities distinct from the general partners who manage them and the limited partners which invest in them.

40. Nor can it be said to be anathema in light of the general partnership law position for an ELP to be a party to legal proceedings for any purposes at all. A traditional partnership can sue and be sued under the firm name under GCR Order 81 rule 1. Mr Sherwood was keen to point out that Parker J himself had recently joined an ELP to proceedings initially commenced against its general partner: Kuwait Ports Authority v Port Link GP Ltd (unreported, 25 November 2021, FSD 236 OF 2020 (RPJ). However, he also pointed out that GCR Order 81 rules 12-15 also contemplate that an ELP may be sued in the firm name:

"Actions by and against firms within jurisdiction (O.81, r.12)

12. Any actions by or against an ordinary limited partnership or exempted limited partnership may be commenced in the name of the firm.

13. Service of writ (O.81, r.13)

13. Where an action is commenced against a firm, whether sued in the firm name or in the name of the general partner, the writ shall be served —

(a) in the case of an ordinary limited partnership, by delivering the writ to its registered principal place of business; and

(b) in the case of an exempted limited partnership, by delivering the writ to its registered office.

14. Acknowledgment of service in action against firm (O.81, r.14)

14. Where an ordinary limited partnership or exempted limited partnership is sued in its firm name, service may not be acknowledged in the name of the firm but only by the general partner thereof in the general partner's own name, but the action shall nevertheless continue in the name of the firm.

15. Enforcing judgment or order against firm (O.81, r.15)

15. (1) Where a judgment is given or order made against a firm, execution to enforce the judgment or order may be issued against any property of the firm within the jurisdiction.

(2) Where a judgment is given or order made against a firm, execution to enforce the judgment or order may be issued against any person who —

(a) acknowledged service of the writ in the action as a general partner; or

(b) is registered as a general partner of the firm; or

(c) was admitted in any pleading to be a general partner of the firm; or

(d) was adjudged to be a general partner of the firm pursuant to Section 52(2) of the Partnership Act (as amended and revised), or Section 14 of the Exempted Limited Partnership Act (as amended and revised), as the case may be.

(3) Except as provided by paragraph (2), where a judgment is given or order made against a firm, execution to enforce the judgment or order shall not be issued against any person who is registered as a limited partner."

41. Mr Khanbhai correctly submitted that rules of court cannot be used as an aid to construing primary legislation. However, the fact that the Rules Committee, like the various judges and lawyers in the previous winding-up cases, clearly assumed that the ELP Act permitted ELPs to be sued is not entirely without forensic effect. The starting assumption ought to be that the Rules Committee did not misconstrue their rule-making powers in relation to ELPs[4]. My preliminary view of section 33(1) was that it did not in terms impose a mandatory requirement that all suits against an ELP must be brought against the general partner of an ELP. Section 33(1) says, it bears remembering:

"(1) Subject to subsection (3), legal proceedings by or against an exempted limited partnership may be instituted by or against any one or more of the general partners only, and a limited partner shall not be a party to or named in the proceedings."

42. Although this conclusion is strictly obiter, I find no reason to depart from my preliminary view (which is confirmed in an indirect sense by GCR Order 81 rules 12-15), that the legislative purpose of section 33(1) is primarily to reinforce the legal status of limited partners as not ordinarily liable to be sued (or entitled to sue) in respect of ELP liabilities and rights. This legislative purpose combined with the statutory language of the relevant provision in its wider statutory context strongly suggests that the "may" in section 33(1) is permissive and that there is no general or usual mandatory rule that proceedings cannot be issued against an ELP in its own name. The legislative history of section 33(1) itself does not undermine these provisional conclusions.

43. ELPs were created by the Exempted Limited Partnership Law 1991. Section 13(1) is substantially the same as section 33(1) today. The Memorandum of Objects and Reasons simply states: "Clause 13 deals with the means of bringing proceedings against such a partnership." The section was not materially changed by the Exempted Limited Partnership Law 2007 or 2009.

[4] Section 19(1) of the Grand Court Law provides that the Rules Committee shall consist of the Chief Justice, the Attorney General and two legal practitioners.

44. The central basis for my conclusion that an ELP may be the respondent to a winding-up petition is that, however section 33(1) falls to be construed, section 36(3) expressly permits a petition being presented in such a manner. As Mr Sherwood rightly contended, even if section 33(3) imposes a mandatory general requirement to sue the general partner, relying on section 36(3) is justified by the following rule of statutory interpretation articulated by Lord Sales in Day v Governor of the Cayman Islands [2022] UKPC 6 (and applied to my mind in a somewhat novel way in that case) as follows:

> "30…This means that the principle of interpretation encapsulated in the Latin maxims 'lex specialis derogat legi generali' (the specific law prevails over the general) and 'generalia specialibus non derogant' (general provisions should not undermine the intended effect of provisions specifically drafted to deal with the particular case), which is a principle of coherent interpretation of legal instruments of any character, is applicable."

45. Despite Mr Khanbhai's able arguments to the contrary, I am bound to find that, with the greatest of respect to Justice Parker, Re Padma was wrong in finding that section 33(1) as read with section 36(3) of the ELP Act does not permit the presentation of a winding-up petition against an ELP alone because only the general partner may be sued. This conclusion was admittedly consistent with the implicit assumptions made in previous decision, including two of my own. However, the scales were tipped heavily in favour of the ultimate conclusion by the legislative history of section 36(3) which was placed before me and which Justice Parker did not have the benefit of considering. This additional material in my view helps to explain why in the earlier cases (and when the Rules Committee made Order 81 rules 12-15 of the Grand Court Rules) it was clearly assumed that ELPs could be wound-up under Part V of the Companies Act.

Alternative findings application to amend

46. The Petitioners submitted (to my mind with little coherence or conviction) that any standing defect could be cured by amendment. The GP contended that if the Petition was liable to be struck-out because it was impermissibly presented against the ELP, the consequences of this were fatal and could not be cured by amendment. Mr Khanbhai advanced the following cogent submissions in this regard:

> "28. The proceedings being a nullity, there can be no cure. The originating process has no more effect to commence the proceedings than a dog licence (as Lord Millett said in Strachan v The Gleaner, borrowing the language of Danckwerts LJ in Re Pritchard).
>
> 29. Further and in any event, there is no power to permit substitution of the respondent to a winding up petition.
>
> (a) The CWR applies, irrespective of the jurisdictional gateway: see section 36(3) of the ELP Act. The CWR expressly provide in relation to amendment of a petition (CWR Order 3 rule 2(3)). The CWR expressly provide in relation to substitution of the petitioner. There is no express rule in the CWR about correcting the name of or changing the respondent to a petition. There would have been one if that was contemplated.
> (b) The analogous rule in the GCR (viz. GCR O.15 r.6), which relates to correcting the name of a party, does not apply in proceedings governed by the CWR."

47. In my judgment it is indeed inconsistent with the statutory winding-up regime to substitute the respondent to a petition. The GP's counsel identified one simple yet fundamental legal conundrum which would arise if this were done: what would the date of the commencement of the proceedings be? Accordingly, if I had found that the Petition was liable to be struck-out, I would have further found that naming the wrong respondent was fatal and could not be cured by amendment.

Disposition of strike out application

48. I accordingly find that that the GP's strike-out Summons must be dismissed. I will hear counsel, if required, as to:

(a) costs;
(b) the terms of the Order to be drawn up to give effect to the present Judgment; and
(c) directions in relation to the further conduct of the Petition.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. The purpose of Chapter 15 of the Bankruptcy Code is to provide effective mechanisms for dealing with cases of cross-border insolvency, with the express objectives of cooperation between United States courts, trustees, examiners, debtors and debtors in possession and the courts and other competent authorities of foreign countries; greater legal certainty for trade and investment; fair and efficient administration of cross-border insolvencies that protects the interests of all creditors and other interested entities, including the debtor; the protection and maximization of the debtor's assets; and the facilitation of the rescue of financially troubled businesses. See, e.g., In re Suntech Power Holdings Co., Ltd., 520 B.R. 399, 413 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2014); 11 U.S.C. § 1501(a)(1)-(5)). To that end, the Liquidators request recognition of the Cayman Liquidations as foreign main proceedings primarily to obtain this Court's assistance in enforcing the stay of proceedings and actions against the Funds and property of their estates as ordered by the Grand Court through the Liquidation Orders. Recognition of the Cayman Liquidations as foreign main proceedings would confer upon the Funds the protection of sections 362 and 1520 of the Bankruptcy Code, thereby preventing any one creditor from gaining an advantage over similarly situated creditors or otherwise interfering with the Cayman Liquidations and implementation of orders of the Grand Court.

2. Both Funds are in liquidation pursuant to the orders of the Grand Court (cause nos. FSD 131 of 2016 (AJJ) (Master Fund) and 118 of 2016 (AJJ) (International Fund)) (the "Liquidation Orders"). The Liquidation Orders were issued pursuant to sections 92 and 104 of the Companies Law, of the Cayman Islands (2016 Revision) in relation to the International Fund and Master Fund, respectively. Together, the Master Fund and the International Fund liquidations are referred to herein as the Cayman Liquidations (the "Cayman Liquidations").

3. As this Petition, the accompanying Declarations and the exhibits thereto demonstrate, the Cayman Liquidations should be recognized as foreign main proceedings. In the event that the Cayman Liquidations are recognized as foreign nonmain proceedings, this Court has the discretion to order the protections and relief it deems appropriate pursuant to sections 1507 and 1521 of the Bankruptcy Code - including the requested stay of the continuation of actions or proceedings against the Funds' assets. 11 U.S.C. § 1521(a).

4. The Liquidators seek precisely the type of relief that chapter 15 was designed to provide, and the Cayman Liquidations and this Petition meet all the requirements for recognition and the requested relief. In particular, the Liquidators were appointed by the Grand Court to administer the Funds' assets, liabilities, and any ongoing business occurring in connection with the court-ordered Cayman Liquidations of the Funds pursuant to the Companies Law, a law relating to insolvency or adjustment of debt. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 8.

5. Likewise, the Cayman Liquidations are collective judicial proceedings as referenced in 15 U.S.C. § 101(23), subject to the oversight and control of the Grand Court, encompassing all creditors and stakeholders of the Funds, which are pending in the Cayman Islands, the country in which both the International Fund and the Master Fund were formed, maintain registered offices, maintain their center of main interests ("COMI"), and where the Liquidators are engaged in substantial, non-transient, ongoing economic activity involving the wind-down and liquidation of the Funds' businesses and affairs. Kennedy Declaration, ¶¶ 46-72.

6. Pursuant to section 1516(c) of the Bankruptcy Code, the Cayman Islands are presumed to be the Funds' COMI because the Funds were incorporated there and maintain their registered office there. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 46. This Petition and the accompanying Declarations further demonstrate that the Funds' counterparties and creditors had clear and actual knowledge that each of the Funds was a Cayman Islands entity. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 51. Since the commencement of the Cayman Liquidations, the Cayman Islands are the obvious and demonstrable "nerve center" of the Funds' ongoing liquidation and the Liquidators have conducted and overseen the conducting of substantial negotiations, transactions and litigation and the business of the Funds as going concerns from the Cayman Islands. Hence, the Cayman Liquidations are "foreign main proceedings" within the meaning of sections 101(23), 1502(4), 1516(c), and 1517(b)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code.

7. This and other Courts have recognized similar liquidation proceedings of Cayman Island entities as foreign main proceedings. See, e.g., In re Suntech Power Holdings Co., Ltd., 520 B.R. 399 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2014) (commencement of provisional Cayman Islands proceedings, together with subsequent activities of liquidators, had the effect of transferring holding company's COMI to Cayman); In re Millard, 501 B.R. 644, 647 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2013); In re AJW Offshore Ltd., No. 13-70078, (Bankr. E.D.N.Y. Feb. 5, 2013); In re Bancredit Cayman Ltd. (in Liquidation), No. 06-11026 (SMB) (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. June 16, 2006); In re LDK Solar Co., Ltd., No. 14-12387 (PJW) (Bankr. D. Del. Nov. 21, 2014) (recognizing Cayman Islands liquidation as foreign main proceeding); In re Saad Invs. Fin. Co. (No. 5) Ltd., No. 09-13985 (KG) (Bankr. D. Del. Dec. 17, 2009) (same); see also In re Niton Fund SPC, 15-13252 (SMB) (Bankr. S.D.N.Y.) (Wright/Kennedy as Liquidators); In re Madison Niche Assets Fund, Ltd., et. al., 16-10043 (KJC) (Bankr. D. Del.) (Wright/Kennedy as Liquidators); In re Richcourt Euro Strategies Inc., et. al, 15-12273 (REG) (Bankr. S.D.N.Y) (Wright as Liquidator).

8. For all of these reasons and as will be shown below, the Liquidators respectfully submit that: (i) the Cayman Liquidations are foreign main proceedings within the meaning of sections 101(23) and 1502(4) of the Bankruptcy Code; (ii) the Liquidators are the duly appointed foreign representatives of the Funds within the meaning of section 101(24); (iii) the Liquidators and the Petition comply with all the requirements of section 1515 and Bankruptcy Rule 1007(a)(4); and (iv) recognition of the Cayman Liquidations would not be contrary to public policy under Bankruptcy Code section 1506.

9. Under the circumstances, this Court can and should enter an order recognizing the Cayman Liquidations as foreign main proceedings under section 1517(b)(l), or in the alternative, as foreign nonmain proceedings under section 1517(b)(2) of the Bankruptcy Code, and granting additional relief as set forth in section 1521 of the Bankruptcy Code.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

10. This Court has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334 and sections 109 and 1501 of the Bankruptcy Code.

11. Venue of this proceeding is proper in this District pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1410 because the Funds conduct business and possess assets within the District.

12. This is a core proceeding under 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(P), and the Court may enter a final order consistent with Article III of the United States Constitution.

13. The statutory predicates for the relief requested herein are sections 105(a), 362, 1504, 1507, 1509, 1515, 1517, 1520, and 1521 of the Bankruptcy Code.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

I. The Funds' Pre-Liquidation Business

14. On October 25, 2002, the International Fund was incorporated as an exempted limited company under the laws of the Cayman Islands. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 9. The Master Fund was formed pursuant to a Second Amended and Restated Limited Partnership Agreement, dated July 1, 2008, registered with the Cayman Islands Registrar of Exempted Limited Partnerships. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 11.

15. The Master Fund was registered with and regulated by the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority ("CIMA") as a master fund. The International Fund was registered with and regulated by CIMA as a mutual fund. Both Funds' CIMA licenses were terminated following their entry into liquidation. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 12.

16. Following the International Fund's entry into liquidation, its registered address was changed from c/o Intertrust Corporate Services (Cayman) Limited, 190 Elgin Avenue, George Town, Grand Cayman, KY1-9005, Cayman Islands to c/o The R&H Trust Co. Ltd., Windward 1, Regatta Office Park, PO Box 897, Grand Cayman KY1-1103, Cayman Islands. The Master Fund's registered address is c/o Intertrust Corporate Services (Cayman) Limited, 190 Elgin Avenue, George Town, Grand Cayman, KY1-9005, Cayman Islands. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 13.

17. The Funds belong to a group of companies (the "Platinum Group") that was ultimately controlled and managed by Platinum Management (NY), LLC ("Platinum Management"). Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 9.

18. By the International Funds' offering documents, namely, a Confidential Private Offering Memorandum dated in or about April 2015 (the "Offering Memorandum"), the International Fund carries on business as an investment fund. The International Fund invests all of its investable capital in Platinum Partners Value Arbitrage Intermediate Fund Ltd., an exempted, limited liability company incorporated in the Cayman Islands on April 9, 2010 (the "Intermediate Fund"). Under the laws of the Cayman Islands, the shares of a Cayman Islands company constitutes the personal property of the holder of those shares. As the International Fund is domiciled in the Cayman Islands, the lex situs of the shares held by the International Fund in the Intermediate Fund, is the Cayman Islands. Consequently, virtually all of the assets of the International Fund are located in the Cayman Islands. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 13.

19. The Intermediate Fund invests all of its investable capital in, and is a limited partner of, the Master Fund. The Master Fund invests all its investable capital in certain assets and holding companies as described below. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 14.

20. In addition to the Intermediate Fund, one additional fund acts as a feeder fund into and a limited partner of the Master Fund. This entity is registered in Delaware and is known as Platinum Partners Value Arbitrage Fund (USA) L.P., which feeds directly into the Master Fund. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 15.

21. The Liquidators understand that the assets of the International Fund consist solely of its share of the Intermediate Fund, and the assets of Intermediate Fund consist solely of its share of the Master Fund. As such, the financial position of the International Fund is dependent upon the performance of the Master Fund and, in turn, the value of the assets in which the Master Fund holds interests. The assets of the Master Fund, as valued by Platinum Management as of June 30, 2016 consist of, in part[4]:

(a) investments in securities, debt and other investment assets with a value of approximately $915,000,000;

(b) securities purchased under agreements to resell with a value of approximately $46,000,000;

(c) unrealised appreciation on open derivative contracts with a value of approximately $6,900,000;

(d) amounts due from brokers with a value of approximately $49,700,000;

(e) interest receivable in the amount of approximately $23,000,000;

[4] While our review of the Master Funds' assets is ongoing, the Liquidators do caveat the asset values described herein in the following principal respect. The Master Fund holds the majority of its assets via wholly-owned subsidiaries and other vehicles. In connection with the Liquidators' fundraising efforts, some of these assets, held via wholly-owned subsidiaries of the Master Fund, were considered for sale. During this process, it has become clear that many of the Master Funds' subsidiaries and those subsidiaries' assets are themselves subject to various loan and encumbrance agreements that have the effect of substantially diminishing underlying or operational assets' value from the perspective of the Master Fund level.

(f) a potential asset in respect of the purchase of notes under a Put Agreement with a value of $30,000,000;

(g) notes receivable with a value of approximately $16,000,000;

(h) participation interest with a value of approximately $3,000,000;

(i) claims receivable with a value of approximately $2,000,000;

(j) cash in the approximate amount of $68,500; and

(k) prepayments of approximately $1,000,000.

Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 17.

22. According to unaudited information provided to the Liquidators, the Master Fund's liabilities as of May 31, 2016 totaled approximately $382,000,000 and principally comprise:

(a) a number of structured financial liabilities in the approximate combined principal and interest amount of $94,378,544 owed to:

(i) Heartland Bank, a United States bank based in Arkansas; and

(ii) the holders of a series of promissory notes issued by the Master Fund, some of whom were former investors in certain of the Master Fund's feeder funds and who hold the promissory notes in settlement of historic redemption requests submitted to such feeder funds and, indirectly, to the Master Fund;

(b) a potential liability to New Mountain Finance Corporation ("New Mountain") in the amount claimed by New Mountain of approximately $31,800,000 (as at May 18, 2016 and subject to daily accruing interest claimed for the period thereafter) regarding payments which New Mountain claims are due from the Master Fund in respect to a securities purchase and put agreement dated November 7, 2014;

(c) indirect liabilities to certain of its ultimate redemption creditors in respect of:

(i) unpaid redemptions and withdrawals in the approximate amount of $66,711,212; and

(ii) audit holdback amounts in the amount of $9,910,029;

(d) the following management fee liabilities to the Intermediate Fund and the Onshore Fund:

(i) $4,716,731 due to the Intermediate Fund; and

(ii) $2,683,160 due to the Onshore Fund;

(e) accrued expenses and liabilities in the approximate amount of $6,449,468;

(f) an amount payable to the general partner of the Master Fund of $4,291,275;

(g) accrued trader fees of $13,073,209;

(h) amounts due to the holders of minority interests in the Master Fund's subsidiary companies of $1,813,251;

(i) liabilities of approximately $106,824,701 representing the amount the Master Fund expects to be required to cover in respect of short sale contracts entered into by the Master Fund; and

(j) unrealised depreciation on derivative contracts of approximately $15,742,077.

Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 18.

23. The investigations by the Liquidators have revealed additional liabilities of the Funds not made known to them upon their appointment. For example, on March 21, 2016, the Master Fund entered into a Master Guaranty Agreement ("Master Guaranty") in favor of, among others, BAM Administrative Services LLC, pursuant to which the Master Fund guaranteed the repayment of certain debts owed by each of (i) Golden Gate Oil LLC (a company into which the Master Fund invests); and (ii) Montsant Partners LLC (a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Master Fund). The terms of the Master Guaranty also provide that, if the Master Fund is considered to be 'insolvent' for the purposes of the Master Guarantee, BAM Administrative Services LLC may exercise the option to deem all amounts guaranteed by the Master Guaranty to be due and payable. BAM Administrative Services LLC has filed a proof of debt in connection with the Cayman Liquidations in the amount of $79,146,350.65. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 19.

24. The Master Fund, together with its wholly-owned subsidiary, DMRJ Group, LLC, entered into a Forbearance and Security Agreement (the "Forbearance Agreement") with Epocs Real Estate Partnership, Ltd. ("Epocs") and West Loop South LLC ("West Loop") dated July 5, 2016, in connection with loans made by Epocs and West Loop to the Master Fund. The terms of the Forbearance Agreement permitted Epocs and West Loop to collect on their claims in the event of an insolvency proceeding against the Master Fund. To that end, Epocs and West Loop have filed claims against the Master Fund in connection with the Cayman Liquidations in the amount of $2,596,619.91 and $4,955,040.61, respectively. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 20.

II. The Cayman Liquidations

25. Parris Investments Limited is a previous investor and shareholder in the International Fund ("Parris"). In or about August 2015, Parris purchased 556.9018 L-shares in the International Fund ("Parris Shares"). Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 17.

26. On October 21, 2015, an article was published in Bloomberg News raising a number of concerns regarding the Funds, including: (a) a third party broker doing business with the Funds that was sanctioned by regulators for running a scheme to profit from imminent deaths of terminally ill patients; (b) one of the Master Fund's largest investments, an oil company, being charged over the death of three workers killed in an explosion; (c) a former principal of an energy company in which the Funds had a significant stake in, being arrested for tax evasion; and (d) the Master Fund's portfolio being comprised primarily of hard to value, illiquid assets. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 22.

27. On October 27, 2015, Parris submitted a request to the International Fund for the full redemption of the Parris Shares, the redemption date of which was December 31, 2015 ("Redemption Request"). The Redemption Request was approved by the International Fund via its administrator and, consequently, under the terms of the Offering Memorandum, 90% of the payment of Parris' redemption proceeds was due on January 30, 2016. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 17.

28. On July 28, 2016, Parris, citing, among other things, the International Fund's failure to honor the Redemption Request, filed a creditor's petition seeking the liquidation and winding up of the International Fund by the Grand Court and the appointment of the Liquidators as Joint Official Liquidators of the International Fund pursuant to Section 92 the Companies Law ("International Petition"). Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 18.

29. As required by the Companies Law and the CWR (defined below), Parris placed notice of the filing of the International Petition and its request for appointment of the Liquidators in the Cayman Times and The Financial Times which was published on August 15, 2016. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 19.

30. On August 23, 2016, the Master Fund, through its general partner, Platinum Management (NY) LLC, presented a petition (the "Master Petition", and collectively with the International Petition, the "Liquidation Petitions," attached as Exhibit A to the Kennedy Declaration) to the Grand Court under section 92 of the Companies Law, made applicable to the Master Fund by way of Section 36 of the ELP Law, seeking, among other orders, orders that provided for: the liquidation of the Master Fund to commence under the authority of the Grand Court; the appointment of Messers. Wright and Kennedy as the Liquidators of the Funds; and the granting of certain powers to the Petitioners in their capacities as the Liquidators of the Funds, as described in the Liquidation Petitions and as discussed in greater detail below. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 20.

31. Simultaneously with the presentation of the Master Petition, the general partner of the Master Fund issued an ex parte summons to appoint the Liquidators as Joint Provisional Liquidators of the Master Fund in accordance with section 104 of the Companies Law, pending adjudication of the Master Petition (the "Provisional Summons," attached as Exhibit B to the Kennedy Declaration). Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 21.

32. Also on August 23, 2016, the Grand Court issued a Winding Up Order for the International Fund on the terms requested through the International Petition ("International Order"). Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 22.

33. On August 29, 2016, the Grand Court issued an Order for the Master Fund to be placed into provisional liquidation pending the determination of the Master Petition which is due to be heard on October, 27 2016 and appointed the Liquidators as Joint Provisional Liquidators of the Master Fund. ("Master Order," attached together with the International Order as Exhibit C to the Kennedy Declaration). Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 23.

34. The general partner of the Master Fund reached the conclusion to voluntarily wind up the Master Fund based upon their analysis of all relevant factors, including the evidence of the following deteriorating financial conditions:

A. The shift in the concentration of the Master Fund's assets to illiquid private equity style investments, which has caused an imbalance between liquid and illiquid assets. In that regard:

(i) Historically, the Master Fund's investment portfolio had been balanced between liquid and illiquid asset classes. However, in recent years the Master Fund has built up a large concentration of illiquid, private equity style investments, which are mostly in the oil and gas sectors (which sector comprises approximately 40% of the Master Fund's investments). This has caused an imbalance in the Master Fund between liquid and private equity style investments, which historically were balanced on an approximate 50/50 basis; and

(ii) The shift in the constitution of the Master Fund's investment portfolio assets to a large holding of illiquid assets has been primarily due to the successful appreciation of assets that caused the private equity style illiquid investments to occupy a larger position in the Master Fund and volatility in the markets whereby the Master Fund drew down its exposure in the liquid trading strategies and therefore was unable to restore such liquid trading strategies and delayed monetization events;

B. A global decline in oil prices which has negatively affected the Master Fund's assets which operate in the oil and gas sector;

C. A delay in the availability of audited financial statements due to the esoteric nature of many of the investment assets of the Master Fund, the ongoing investigations by United States regulatory agencies and the fact that the Master Fund's Administrator has not been in a position to assist due to its remaining a creditor of the Master Fund in respect of unpaid professional services fees;

D. Delayed monetization events in relation to the Master Fund's investment assets which has delayed a rebalancing of the Master Fund's liquidity position;

E. A large amount of investor redemptions remaining unpaid past their due date, such as Parris;

F. The necessary borrowing of funds by the Master Fund to fund certain of its investment assets; and

G. The filing by Parris of a petition with the Grand Court seeking the winding up of the International Fund.

Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 30.

III. The Cayman Liquidations and Cayman Islands Insolvency Law

35. The substantive law relating to the winding up of companies incorporated in the Cayman Islands is contained in Part V of the Companies Law. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 28. The provisions of Part V apply to companies formed and registered under the Companies Law or its predecessors, including companies that are formed as exempted companies and limited partnerships. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 28. By virtue of section 36 of the ELP Law, the provisions of Part V of the Companies Law and the CWR (defined below) apply to the winding up of an exempted limited partnership with the exception of certain irrelevant sections. Leontsinis Declaration ¶ 28.

36. The statutory provisions governing the liquidation of Cayman Islands companies are set out in Part V of the Companies Law, which is supplemented by the Companies Winding Up Rules 2008 (as revised) ("CWR"), the Insolvency Practitioners Regulations 2008 (as revised) (the "IPR") the Foreign Bankruptcy Proceedings (International Cooperation) Rules, 2008 (as revised) and the Grand Court Rules 1995 (as revised) (the "GCR"). Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 28.

37. A Cayman Islands company may be wound up: (a) voluntarily, following the passing of a special resolution of its shareholder(s)[5] or pursuant to a mandatory term in its constitutional documents[6]; (b) compulsorily, by order of the Grand Court;[7] or (c) under the supervision of the Grand Court.[8] Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 29.

38. The Companies Law provides that a Cayman Islands company may be placed into provisional liquidation if the Court finds there is a prima facie case for making a winding up order, and the appointment of provisional liquidators is necessary to prevent the dissipation or misuse of the company's assets, to prevent the oppression of minority shareholders or to prevent the mismanagement or misconduct on the part of the company's directors.[9] Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 31.

39. In the case of both of the Funds, they entered into liquidation as a result of their inability to pay their respective debts as they fell due, following the presentation of the Master Petition by the Master Fund and the presentation of the International Petition by Parris (an undisputed creditor of the International Fund). Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 33.

40. The Liquidators are fiduciaries and officers of the Grand Court. As Official Liquidators of the International Fund, the Liquidators' duties pursuant to section 110 of the Companies Law are to: (a) collect, realise and distribute the assets of the Funds to its creditors and if there is a surplus, to equity holders, and (b) report to the Funds' creditors and other stakeholders upon the affairs of the Funds and [5] Section 90(b)(i) of the Companies Law.

[6] Section 90(b)(ii) of the Companies Law.
[7] Section 90(a) of the Companies Law.
[8] Section 90(c) of the Companies Law.
[9] Section 104(2) of the Companies Law..

the manner in which they are being wound up.[10] As Provisional Liquidators of the Master Fund their duties (a) are to prevent the dissipation of and to generally protect the assets of the Master Fund for the benefit of all of its stockholders, and (b) report to the Grand Court and the Master Funds' creditors and other stakeholders upon the affairs of the Master Fund Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 37.

41. Except as otherwise ordered by the Grand Court, Schedule 3 to the Companies Law sets out the powers that the Liquidators may exercise with and without the supervision of the Grand Court. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶¶ 38.

42. Generally, the Liquidators are authorized and empowered to take the following actions, subject to the Grand Court's supervision:

- Power to bring or defend any action or other legal proceeding in the name and on behalf of the company.
- Power to carry on the business of the company so far as may be necessary for its beneficial winding up.
- Power to dispose of any property of the company to a person who is or was related to the company.
- Power to pay any class of creditors in full.
- Power to make any compromise or arrangement with creditors or persons claiming to be creditors or having or alleging themselves to have any claim (present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages) against the company or for which the company may be rendered liable.
- Power to compromise on such terms as may be agreed all debts and liabilities capable of resulting in debts, and all claims (present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages) subsisting, or supposed to subsist between the company and a contributory or alleged contributory or other debtor or person apprehending liability to the company.

[10] Section 110 of the Companies Law.

- Power to deal with all questions in any way relating to or affecting the assets or the winding up of the company, to take any security for the discharge of any such call, debt, liability or claim and to give a complete discharge in respect of it.

- The power to sell any of the company's property by public auction or private contract with power to transfer the whole of it to any person or to sell the same in parcels.

- The power to raise or borrow money and grant securities therefor over the property of the company, the power to engage staff (whether or not as employees of the company) to assist them in the performance of their functions.

- The power to engage attorneys and other professionally qualified persons to assist them in the performance of their functions.

Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 38 (citing Companies Law, section 110, Schedule 3, Part I).

43. Schedule 3, Part II of section 110 of the Companies Law further provides that the Liquidators are permitted to exercise the following powers without the Grand Court's sanction:

- The power to take possession of, collect and enter the property of the company and for that purpose to take all such proceedings as the Liquidators consider necessary.

- The power to do all acts and execute, in the name and on behalf of the company, all deeds, receipts and other documents and for that purpose to use, when necessary, the company seal.

- The power to prove, rank and claim in the bankruptcy, insolvency or sequestration of any contributory for any balance against the Funds' estate, and to receive dividends in the bankruptcy, insolvency or sequestration in respect of that balance, as a separate debt due from the bankrupt or insolvent and rateably with the other separate creditors.

- The power to draw, accept, make and indorse any bill of exchange or promissory note in the name and on behalf of the company, with the same effect with the respect of the company's liability as if the bill or note had been drawn, accepted, made or indorsed by or on behalf of the company in the course of its business.

- The power to promote a scheme of arrangement pursuant to section 86.

- The power to convene meetings of creditors and contributories.

- The power to do all other things incidental to the exercise of their powers.

Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 39 (citing Companies Law, section 110, Schedule 3, Part II).

44. Under the Companies Law, the Liquidators are also empowered to investigate (i) the causes for the failure of the Funds' business, as well as (ii) generally, the promotion, business, dealings and affairs of the Funds. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 40 (citing Companies Law, section 102).

45. A key principle underlying the Companies Law and the Cayman Liquidations is that the claims of investors and creditors within the same class are treated on a pari passu basis. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 34 (citing Companies Law, section 140).

46. Cayman liquidation proceedings are fair and equitable. All creditors have an opportunity to be heard by the Grand Court and no creditor will be prejudiced because it is foreign-based. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 36.

47. Section 97(1) of the Companies Law provides that upon the entry of a winding up order or appointment of a provisional liquidator, no suit or other proceeding may be commenced or continued against the company except with leave of the Grand Court and subject to such terms as that Court might impose. This automatic stay mirrors the stay imposed in U.S. bankruptcy proceedings and serves to promote the Liquidators' ability to deal with claims and creditors collectively and comprehensively. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 35.

IV. Events Leading Up to the Chapter 15 Petitions and the Funds' Activities in the Cayman Islands

48. The Funds were formed as exempted limited companies under the laws of the Cayman Islands and maintained their registered office in the Cayman Islands. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶¶ 11, 13.

49. An "exempted" company under the Companies Law is prohibited from undertaking business in the Cayman Islands except in furtherance of its business carried on outside the Cayman Islands.[11] Specifically, it may effect and conclude contracts in the Cayman Islands and exercise in the Cayman Islands all of its powers necessary for the carrying on of its business outside the Cayman Islands, meaning that it may employ staff or agents in the Cayman Islands and have offices in the Cayman Islands in furtherance of its business outside the Cayman Islands, which the Funds have always had. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 45.

50. Although upon their incorporation the Funds were restricted from carrying on business within the Cayman Islands, this did not mean that the Funds had no presence there. For example, the Funds' registered offices prior to the commencement of the liquidations were located at c/o Intertrust Corporate Services (Cayman) Limited, 190 Elgin Avenue, George Town, Grand Cayman, KY1-9005, where the Funds' annual filings with the Registrar of Companies were made. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 13. Under the law of the Cayman Islands, situs of the shares of a Cayman Islands company is the place of its incorporation, i.e. the Cayman Islands. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 13. In addition, the Funds were regulated by CIMA from its headquarters in the Cayman Islands and registered as funds with CIMA. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 12.

51. The restriction on the carrying on of an "exempted" company's business inside the Cayman Islands also does not apply after a company commences liquidation in the Cayman Islands. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 45.

52. In addition, it is a requirement of Cayman Islands law that at least one official liquidator be resident in the Cayman Islands. In this case, both Liquidators are residents of the Cayman Islands, as required by the IPR. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 46.

[11] Requirements are such that the operation of the proposed company must be "... conducted mainly outside the [Cayman] Islands." See sections 163 and 165 of the Companies Law. Exempted companies are also required to file an annual return with the Registrar of Companies to this effect, along with its annual fees, pursuant to section 168(b) of the Companies Law.

53. Upon the entry of the Liquidation Orders, the Liquidators took the various steps required under the Companies Law and the CWR, including the publication of statutory notices and the convening of meetings of creditors of the Funds. At the first meeting of the creditors of the Funds, liquidation committees, comprised by nominated representatives of the Funds' investors, were elected (the "Liquidation Committees"). The Liquidation Committees continue in their role of assisting the Liquidators; they are both aware of this chapter 15 petition. Kennedy Declaration, ¶¶ 39-41.

54. Since their appointment, the Liquidators have overseen and directed all activities related to the Funds from the Cayman Islands. A significant proportion of the work to date relating to the Cayman Liquidations has been conducted in the Cayman Islands, and all of the work is supervised by the Liquidators and ultimately subject to the orders of the Grand Court. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 53.

55. Moreover, while the Funds were operating, they issued and received voluminous documentation, and in all such documentation, each of the Funds is referred to and addressed as a Cayman Islands company. Based upon partner meetings, statutory demands and resolutions to wind up the Funds, and the liquidation of the Funds themselves, all of which focused on the Cayman Islands, it is clear that all relevant creditors, stakeholders, and shareholders regard the Funds to be Cayman Islands entities. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 51.

56. Initially, the Liquidators caused the requisite notices and filings to be filed, published, and served in the Cayman Islands, and in regards to the International Fund, arranged for the transfer of the Funds' books and records to the new registered offices of the Funds in the Cayman Islands. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 54.

57. The Liquidators have also taken emergency steps to protect and realize the Funds' assets, including emergency meetings with creditors and financial counterparties, all from the Cayman Islands. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 37.

58. The Liquidators have also engaged in substantial formal and informal communications with the Funds' former principals and all relevant stakeholders, including meetings with creditors, toward arriving at a consensus for liquidation strategy and handling the day-to-day operations of the Funds' operating assets. All such communications have been presided over from the Cayman Islands. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 55.

59. The liquidations of the Funds has been unusual in three main respects. First, there is an unusual level of ongoing business activity in respect of the Funds and their directly-owned subsidiaries. Control and direction of this substantial business has been assumed by the Liquidators. The Funds' subsidiaries, Platinum Management, and all of the Funds' counterparties have dealt directly with the Liquidators across myriad business, financial and legal issues that have arisen in the short time since our appointment. Kennedy Declaration, ¶¶ 33-34.

60. Second, the Funds are experiencing severe and substantial liquidity problems that threaten to result in devaluation of the Funds' assets and/or assets held by wholly owned subsidiaries of the Funds. In order to stabilize and protect these assets, the Liquidators have engaged in near-daily negotiations with (i) third party funds and investors; and (ii) insider shareholders and creditors, with the goals of obtaining financing or facilitating short-term asset sales as a means of raising additional capital. All of these entities and persons have looked to the Liquidators as the sole persons with authority to deal and conduct business on behalf of the Funds. To date, much of the Liquidators work has consisted of either (a) emergency "triage" in respect of ongoing threats to the value of the Funds' assets; (b) meeting with the Funds' most significant creditors, investors, counterparties and stakeholders; (c) defending against litigation; and (d) reporting to and seeking the sanction of the Cayman Court and Liquidation Committees. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 35.

61. Third, the liquidations of the Funds are atypical due to the ongoing investigations into the actions of the Funds' prior management by the United States Department of Justice ("DOJ") and the United States Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"). In this regard, since the outset of the Cayman Liquidations, the Liquidators have been in direct contact with the SEC and the United States Attorneys' Office for the Eastern District of New York in respect of current and contemplated actions by the Liquidators. While the urgent "triage" work associated with protecting the Funds' assets from devaluation and otherwise engaging with the Funds' investors, creditors and potential lenders has consumed most of the Liquidators' time to date, the Liquidators have already begun examining the allegations of asset overvaluation and will execute a detailed investigation in respect of the causes of the Funds' insolvency, the value of the Funds' assets, and any claims that the Funds' may have in respect of the same. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 38.

62. The Liquidators, both personally and via their United States legal counsel, Holland & Knight LLP, have engaged in telephone and email correspondence with the SEC and DOJ since their appointment and are fully cooperating with these U.S. federal agencies. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 59.

63. In particular, the Liquidators have communicated with the SEC and DOJ concerning (i) the potential sale of the Implant Sciences Corporation ("Implant Sciences") notes to Platinum "insiders" and (ii) the potential investment to be made by the Master Fund in Northstar Offshore Group LLC ("Northstar") so as to avoid the continuation of its involuntary bankruptcy (discussed below). Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 60.

64. The SEC has requested various materials concerning these topics, which have been furnished to the SEC by the Liquidators. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 62.

65. In addition to the ongoing government investigations, two items were flagged as critical because of their urgency or the potential for serious asset devaluation.

66. One item that the Liquidators and their counsel immediately began to address was the status of certain swap transactions with a value of more than $80 million. The Funds' counterparties in respect of these swap transactions are major U.S. financial institutions, and the circumstances surrounding these swap transactions were urgent from the outset of the Liquidators' appointment. The Liquidators and their counsel have spent dozens of hours working with these financial institutions toward unwinding these swaps. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 63.

67. Second, and from the perspective of asset devaluation, perhaps the most significant and immediate threat concerned the Funds' lack of liquidity that is necessary to support the Funds' investments. One of these investments is Northstar Offshore Group LLC. A substantial amount of Northstar's equity and a substantial amount of Northstar's debt is held by a subsidiary of the Master Fund and the Master Fund itself, respectively. It has been estimated that the Funds' Northstar holdings comprise approximately 22% of the Funds' total assets. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 64.

68. Northstar was, at the time of the Liquidators' appointment, as well as currently, the subject of a contested involuntary bankruptcy proceedings in the Southern District of Texas, Case No. 16-34028 ("Northstar Bankruptcy"). Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 65.

69. The Liquidators have formed the initial view that that a Northstar Bankruptcy would likely result in both a significant devaluation of the Master Funds' assets and may result in a significant creditor claim against the Master Fund because the Master Fund has guaranteed the "plugging and abandonment" liabilities associated with Northstar's oil and gas wells. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 66.

70. Under the circumstances, the Liquidators have been in continuous negotiations with Northstar's management, creditors, relevant parties, and have been in contact with potential lenders, asset purchasers and other capital sources in an attempt to arrange additional financing for Northstar, in the form of a loan or an equity investment. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 67.

71. The Liquidators further made an application for directions to the Cayman Court on September 27, 2016 concerning the urgent Northstar situation (see affidavits of Kennedy and Wright, attached as Exhibit D to the Kennedy Declaration). At a September 30, 2016 hearing, the Cayman Court suggested that the JPLs should consider whether it would be appropriate for one of them to personally appear at the hearing before this Court scheduled for October 5, 2016. The Cayman Court further suggested that the JPLs should consider requesting an adjournment of the status hearing in order to allow Northstar to provide the JPLs and the Cayman Court with a reorganization plan, in order for it to properly determine whether or not Northstar could continue as a going concern. The Cayman Court was not prepared to sanction the JPLs' further investment in Northstar without first considering that reorganization plan and granted the JPLs leave to reapply on short notice for sanction of the investment as soon as they were in position to place the appropriate evidence before the Cayman Court. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 68.

72. In addition to that stated above, the Liquidators have engaged and overseen the following specific and general matters on their own and through and with the assistance of Cayman and U.S. counsel, commencing the process within days of the Liquidation Orders:

- Overseeing the administrative and investment management operations of the Master Fund and the International Fund;
- Gaining access to and control over all electronic files of the Funds;
- Meeting and communicating with Bart Schwartz of Guidepost Solutions. Since their appointment, the Liquidators have opened and maintained an ongoing dialogue with Guidepost and continue to share information and cooperate in their respective roles as far as possible. Upon the appointment of the Liquidators, Guidepost's role with respect to the Master Fund has been limited to it acting as a representative of the Onshore Fund and maintaining a dialogue with respect to the wider Platinum group of companies which are currently not in liquidation in the Cayman Islands or bankruptcy proceedings in the United States;

- Engaging in significant and substantial negotiations and meetings with Beechwood in respect of a collateral account held by Master Fund wholly owned subsidiary, approximately $11 million in proceeds due to the Master Fund from Beechwood in relation to the Agera transaction, and the nature and substance of other transactions between Beechwood and the Funds;

- Working with the Master Fund's counterparties – major financial institutions – toward unwinding of $80 million in swap contracts;

- Litigating against Twosons Corporation, which has filed a lawsuit in the Supreme Court of the State of New York styled Twosons Corp. v. Platinum Partners Value Arbitrage Fund, L.P., Index No. 654865-2015. In this litigation, Twosons alleges breach of an 18 September 2014 promissory note with a current face value of approximately $6 Million, that contains a security provision. In connection with this litigation, Twosons has sought the issuance of a temporary restraining order freezing the Master Fund's assets.

- Monitoring litigation involving a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Master Fund, Meserole, LLC, which is engaged in offensive litigation in relation to the dilution of its interest in a fund that owns debt and equity in respect of the company Airdye, LLC. The Master Fund is a nominal party to the various claims in arbitration that are currently pending before the American Arbitration Association and JAMS.

- Negotiating with New Mountain, a significant participant in the Cayman Liquidations, in respect of litigation in which New Mountain is plaintiff and the Master Fund is the defendant, which case is pending in the New York State Supreme Court for New York County, Index No. 651186/2016, which plaintiff has agreed to participate in the Cayman Liquidations and is serving on the Master Fund Liquidation Committee;

- Supervising and coordinating the Funds' substantial creditor and equity interests, held via a wholly owned subsidiary, in respect of the just-filed Implant Sciences bankruptcy petition, including participating as a creditor in the IMX Acquisition Bankruptcy. The Master Fund, via its wholly owned subsidiaries including but not limited to DMRJ Group, LLC ("DMRJ"), holds equity and debt of positions in Implant Sciences Corporation. The notes associated with the Implant Sciences Corporation debt were the subject of an application for directions. Implant Sciences Corporation has filed a Chapter 11 petition styled In re IMX Acquisition Corp., et al., 16-12238 (D.Del) and DMRJ has appeared in that proceeding as a party in interest.

- Holding ongoing discussions with all of the major creditors of and equity holders in the Funds;

- Forming and working with the Liquidation Committees, under the authority and upon the instructions and approval of the Grand Court of the Cayman Islands. The Liquidators have met with the Liquidation Committees on two occasions subsequent to formation (September 30, 2016 and October 7, 2016) and met with the Master Fund Committee on October 14, 2016 to discuss urgent funding matters and to provide updates in relation to several of the Master Fund's assets. The Liquidators have had, and continue to have, an active and open dialogue with the Master Committee and will continue to use it as a sounding board as the liquidation progresses

- Holding the official meetings of the Creditors and Investors of the International Fund (September 23, 2016) and the Master Fund (September 28, 2016) from the Cayman Islands and New York, with one Liquidator in each location and with telephone access to all creditors and investors of the applicable Fund;

- Working with prior Funds' counsel and opposing counsel in connection with two pending arbitrations being held in the United States;

- Working to sell promissory notes owned by a subsidiary of the Master Fund and issued by Implant Sciences;

- Holding discussions and coordinating with the Funds' prior counsel regarding the ongoing investigations of the Funds by the SEC;

- Engaging in correspondence and conferences with the SEC concerning the status of the Liquidations, the Liquidators, and the Northstar situation and other matters;

- Meeting, holding discussions and coordinating with the Funds' prior counsel regarding the ongoing investigations of the Funds by the U.S. Attorney for the Southern and Eastern Districts of New York; and

- Issuing the first comprehensive report by the Joint Provisional Liquidators of the Master Fund on October 13, 2016, which report details the activities of the Liquidators and the assets and liabilities of the Master Fund as well its wholly owned subsidiaries in substantially greater detail that this petition. A copy of this report can be furnished to the Court in camera upon request.

Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 70.

73. As the Liquidators' investigation continues, the relationships of the Funds, their operations, and potential claims against third parties are becoming clearer. Potential claims will be overseen, managed and resolved (by litigation or negotiation) by the Liquidators from the Cayman Islands, subject to oversight by the Grand Court. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 71.

74. As a result, not only is the management of the Funds being conducted by the Liquidators from within the Cayman Islands, but the key aspects of the Funds' management are subject to the orders and jurisdiction of the Grand Court. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 48.

RELIEF SOUGHT

75. By this Verified Petition, the Liquidators seek the following relief:

- Recognition of the Cayman Liquidations as foreign main proceedings, or in the alternative, foreign nonmain proceedings, pursuant to Chapter 15 of the Bankruptcy Code, and Petitioners as the Funds' foreign representatives under sections 1509 and 1517 of the Bankruptcy Code; and
- Relief pursuant to sections 1520 and 1521 of the Bankruptcy Code.

BASIS FOR RECOGNITION

76. Section 1517 of the Bankruptcy Code mandates entry of an order recognizing a "foreign proceeding" if it appears that recognition will not undermine U.S. public policy and: "(1) such foreign proceeding for which recognition is sought is a foreign main proceeding or foreign non-main proceeding within the meaning of section 1502; (2) the foreign representative applying for recognition is a person or body; and (3) the petition meets the requirements of section 1515." 11 U.S.C. § 1517(a).

77. Each of those requirements is met here, and entry of an order substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A will significantly aid the Liquidators' efforts to administer the Funds' assets and liabilities, and ensure a fair and equitable treatment of and greater distributions to the Funds' creditors and interest holders.

I. The Cayman Liquidations Are Foreign Proceedings and the Liquidators Are Foreign Representatives.

78. Section 101(23) of the Bankruptcy Code defines a foreign proceeding as:

> a collective judicial or administrative proceeding in a foreign country, > including an interim proceeding, under a law relating to insolvency or adjustment of debt in which proceeding the assets and affairs of the debtor are subject to control or supervision by a foreign court, for the purpose of reorganization or liquidation.

11 U.S.C. § 101(23). This definition incorporates the term foreign representative, which the Bankruptcy Code in turn defines as "a person or body, including a person or body appointed on an interim basis, authorized in a foreign proceeding to administer the reorganization or liquidation of the debtor's assets or affairs or to act as a representative of such foreign proceeding." 11 U.S.C. § 101(24). The Liquidators and the Cayman Liquidations undoubtedly satisfy each of these requirements.

79. First, the Cayman Liquidations are judicial proceedings in a foreign country, the Cayman Islands, subject to the control and supervision of the Grand Court. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 42. All claims against the Funds may be submitted in the Cayman Liquidations and all claimants have the right to access the Grand Court and appeal decisions of the Liquidators. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 52.

80. Second, the Cayman Liquidations are being conducted by the Liquidators, who were appointed by the Grand Court pursuant to the Companies Law as joint liquidators to oversee the winding up of the Funds according to the provisions of the Companies Law. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 44. As such, each of the Liquidators is a "person authorized in a foreign proceeding to administer the reorganization or the liquidation of [the Funds'] assets or affairs," within the meaning of section 101(24).

81. Third, the relevant portions of the Companies Law and related rules that govern the Cayman Liquidations specifically relate to proceedings in the Cayman Islands concerning "insolvency or adjustment of debt." 11 U.S.C. § 101(23); Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 28.

82. Finally, the Cayman Liquidations are "collective … proceeding[s]" because they "consider[] the rights and obligations of all creditors." See, e.g., In re Ashapura Minechem Ltd., No.

11-14668 (JMP) (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. Nov. 22, 2011) (quoting In re Betcorp Ltd., 400 B.R. 266, 281 (Bankr. D. Nev. 2009)); In re Gold & Honey, Ltd., 410 B.R. 357, 370 (Bankr. E.D.N.Y. 2009) (citations omitted). Pursuant to the Liquidation Orders and the Companies Law, the Cayman Liquidations and the Liquidators' management of the Funds' assets and affairs are subject to the supervision and control of the Grand Court. Leontsinis Declaration, ¶ 48. In addition to the urgent business discussed above, the Liquidators currently are in the process of assessing claims from all of the Funds' creditors and collecting claims against current and contingent debtors in respect of the Funds, have met with the Funds' stakeholders, are well engaged in the process of liquidating the Funds' illiquid assets and hard assets, and have been working in a cooperative manner with federal investigations of the Funds. Kennedy Declaration, ¶¶ 56-71.

83. As discussed above, numerous courts in this and other districts have found that official liquidation proceedings brought pursuant to the Companies Law qualify as a "foreign proceeding," and that joint liquidators appointed and overseen by the Grand Court qualify as a "foreign representative" for purposes of section 101(23) and (24). See, e.g., In re LDK Solar Co., Ltd., No. 14-12387 (PJW) (Bankr. D. Del. Nov. 21, 2014) (recognizing Cayman Islands liquidation as foreign main proceeding); In re Saad Invs. Fin. Co. (No. 5) Ltd., No. 09-13985 (KG) (Bankr. D. Del. Dec. 17, 2009) (same); In re Suntech Power Holdings Co., Ltd., 520 B.R. 399 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2014) (commencement of provisional Cayman proceedings, together with subsequent activities of liquidators had the effect of transferring holding company's COMI to Cayman); In re Millard, 501 B.R. 644, 647 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2013) (individual bankruptcies before Cayman Grand Court); In re AJW Offshore Ltd., Case No. 13-70078, (Bankr. E.D.N.Y. Feb. 5, 2013); In re Bancredit Cayman Ltd. (in Liquidation), No. 06-11026 (SMB) (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. Nov. 2, 2007).

84. In addition, courts have found that provisional liquidation proceedings brought pursuant to the Companies Law qualify as a "foreign proceeding." See, e.g., In re Suntech Power Holdings Co., Ltd., 520 B.R. 399 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2014); In re Vitro S.A.B. de CV, 701 F.3d 1031 (5th Cir. 2012).

85. For the foregoing reasons, the Cayman Liquidations are "foreign proceedings" within the meaning of section 1517(a)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code.

II. The Cayman Liquidations are Foreign Main Proceedings.

86. The Cayman Liquidations are "foreign main proceedings" within the meaning of section 1502(4) of the Bankruptcy Code because the Funds' COMI is in the Cayman Islands. Kennedy Declaration, ¶¶ 46-72. The Bankruptcy Code defines a "foreign main proceeding" as "a foreign proceeding pending in the country where the debtor has the center of its main interests." 11 U.S.C. § 1502(4). A foreign proceeding "shall be recognized" as a foreign main proceeding if it is pending where the debtor has its COMI. See 11 U.S.C. § 1517(b)(1).

87. Although the Bankruptcy Code does not define "center of main interests," pursuant to section 1516(c) of the Bankruptcy Code, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the debtor's registered office, which in this case is the Cayman Islands, is presumed to be its COMI. 11 U.S.C. §1516(c). See also In re ABC Learning Centres Ltd., 445 B.R. 318, 333 (Bankr. D. Del. 2010) (holding that debtor's registered jurisdiction was its COMI where debtor established the section 1516 presumption, and no evidence was presented rebutting that presumption).

88. Here, the registered offices of both of the Funds are in the Cayman Islands, and have been since the time of formation of both of the Funds. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 11. Further, there is no contrary evidence to rebut the resulting presumption that the Cayman Islands is the Funds' COMI.

89. As discussed in detail above, although the Funds were formed as "exempt" companies, they nevertheless maintained their registered offices in the Cayman Islands even before the commencement of the Cayman Liquidations, and their documents and other correspondence made it clear that each of the Funds was a Cayman Islands company registered with CIMA. Kennedy Declaration, ¶¶ 10-11.

90. In any case, a foreign debtor's COMI is determined at the time the Chapter 15 petition is filed. In re Fairfield Sentry Ltd., 714 F.3d 127, 137 (2d Cir. 2013) ("a debtor's COMI should be determined based on its activities at or around the time the Chapter 15 petition is filed, as the statutory text suggests."); In re Millennium Global Emerging Credit Master Fund Limited, 458 B.R. 63 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2011) (describing same COMI test in respect of similar Bermuda fund structure). Where, as here, a debtor has engaged in substantial restructuring efforts and related activities prior to the filing of the Chapter 15 petition, courts will consider such activities in the determination of the debtor's COMI. Fairfield Sentry Ltd., 714 F.3d at 137.

91. On this basis, numerous similar offshore funds and structures have been recognized by courts in various jurisdictions as foreign main proceedings pursuant to Chapter 15. See, e.g., In re Niton Fund SPC, 15-13252 (SMB) (Bankr. S.D.N.Y.) (Wright/Kennedy as Liquidators); In re Madison Niche Assets Fund, Ltd., et. al., 16-10043 (KJC) (Bankr. D. Del.) (Wright/Kennedy as Liquidators); In re Richcourt Euro Strategies Inc., et. al, 15-12273 (REG) (Bankr. S.D.N.Y) (Wright as Liquidator); In re Tranen Capital Alternative Investment Fund Ltd., No. 15-12620 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. Oct. 29, 2015) (recognizing liquidation of British Virgin Island Fund structure as a foreign main proceeding); In re Lawndale Group S.A., No. 15-11352 (SCC) (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. July 6, 2015) (recognizing liquidation of British Virgin Islands entity as foreign main proceeding); In re Pioneer Freight Futures, No. 13-12324 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. Aug. 23, 2013) (recognizing British Virgin Islands liquidation proceeding as foreign main proceeding); In re Farenco Shipping Co. Ltd., No. 11-14138 (REG) (Bankr. S.D.N.Y Feb. 24, 2012) (same); see also In re British American Isle of Venice (BVI), Ltd., 441 B.R. 713 (Bankr.

S.D. Fla. 2010) (recognition of offshore funds as foreign main proceedings); In re Grand Prix Assocs., Inc., No. 09-16545 (DHS), (Bankr. D.N.J. May 18, 2009) (same); In re Saad Invs. Fin. Co. (No. 5) Ltd., No. 09-13985 (KG) (Bankr. D. Del. Dec. 17, 2009) (Cayman fund).

92. In addition to the presumption provided under section 1516, courts consider any relevant factors, including: (i) the location of the debtor's assets; (ii) the location of the debtor's books and records; (iii) the location of the majority of the debtor's creditors; (iv) the commercial expectations and knowledge of the debtor's creditors; and (v) the location of those who actually manage the debtor. See, e.g., In re Suntech Power Holdings Co., Ltd., 520 B.R. at 416; In re Grand Prix Assocs., No. 09-16545, 2009 WL 1410519, at *22 (Bankr. D.N.J. May 18, 2009). These factors, however, are not dispositive or exclusive, and none of the factors are required. See In re Fairfield Sentry Ltd., 714 F.3d at 137-38. Further, courts have also looked to whether a Chapter 15 debtor's COMI would have been readily ascertainable to parties in interest, such as the debtor's creditors. See Grand Prix Assocs., 2009 WL 1410519, at *6.

93. Applying the foregoing factors to this case, there is no doubt that the Funds' COMI is the Cayman Islands. Substantial assets of the Funds are located in and overseen from the Cayman Islands and the Liquidators are operating and overseeing the winding up and liquidation of the Funds, including negotiating various transactions and overseeing several pending litigations from the Cayman Islands, as discussed above. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 70. The Liquidators are investigating the Funds' intangible rights in the form of potential claims, liabilities, and regulatory violations, which is and will continue to be controlled and coordinated by the Liquidators from the Cayman Islands. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 53. Based on the documentation issued both by and to the Funds, the partner and corporate meetings, statutory demands and resolutions to wind up the Funds, shareholder meetings and the Funds' liquidations, all of which focused on the Cayman Islands, it is clear that all relevant creditors, stakeholders, and shareholders regard the Funds to be Cayman Islands companies and that all relevant persons, entities, investors, creditors and counter-parties regard the Cayman Islands to be the "nerve center" of the Funds. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 51.

94. Since the commencement of the Cayman Liquidations, substantially all activities associated therewith have been conducted and/or overseen by the Liquidators from the Cayman Islands, including the ongoing operation of the Funds' assets and activities as a going concern. Among other things, the Liquidators have overseen and filed all necessary notices and displaced the prior management of the Funds and assumed their duties, are engaged in the process of investigating and assessing the claims of the Funds and their creditors and interest holders, and of gathering information about the operation and management of the Funds' businesses before the Cayman Liquidations, and are engaged in discussions with creditors and interest holders. Kennedy Declaration, ¶¶ 56-71.

95. The Suntech opinion issued by this Court is instructive. In Suntech, the Court held that the activities of a Cayman provisional liquidator were sufficient to establish the Cayman Islands as the debtor's COMI, even though the debtor's principal place of business prior to foreign liquidation was in China. In re Suntech Power Holdings Co., Ltd., 520 B.R. at 419.

96. A primary factor in this Court's COMI analysis for Suntech was the provisional liquidator's active involvement in managing the debtor fund's subsidiaries. As set forth above, the Liquidators have been continuously working on managing the Master Fund's subsidiaries. In Suntech, day to day operations of the debtor fund was left to a board of directors, while the Liquidators in this case have absolute management control over the Funds subject to the supervision of the Grand Court. In re Suntech Power Holdings Co., Ltd., 520 B.R. at 417.

97. As set forth in detail in paragraphs 53-75 above, as well as in the accompanying Kennedy Declaration, It is respectfully submitted that the level of liquidation and ongoing business activity in this case substantially exceeds what this Court and other Courts have previously found sufficient to establish COMI.

98. Under the circumstances, the Liquidators submit that there is ample evidence and precedent to support recognition of the Cayman Liquidations as foreign main proceedings.

III. Alternatively, the Cayman Liquidations Should Be Recognized as Foreign Non-Main Proceedings.

99. As set forth above, the Cayman Liquidations meet the requirements of a "foreign main proceeding" pursuant to section 1502 of the Bankruptcy Code. Nevertheless, should the Court determine that the Cayman Liquidations should not be recognized as foreign main proceedings, the Liquidators submit that, in the alternative, the Cayman Liquidations should be recognized as foreign nonmain proceedings under sections 1517(b)(2) and 1502(5) of the Bankruptcy Code.

100. Section 1502(5) of the Bankruptcy Code defines a foreign nonmain proceeding as "a foreign proceeding, other than a foreign main proceeding, pending in a country where the debtor has an establishment." 11 U.S.C. § 1502(5). In turn, "establishment" is defined by section 1502(2) as being "any place of operations where the debtor carries out nontransitory economic activity." 11 U.S.C. § 1502(2). The "establishment" requirement is satisfied by the local conduct of business. See In re Fairfield Sentry Ltd., No. 10-13164, 2011 WL 4357421 at *10 n.8 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 16, 2011) ("This Court agrees with the Bankruptcy Court that if main recognition were not granted, non-main recognition of Sentry's BVI Proceeding would be appropriate because Sentry has an establishment in the BVI for the conduct of nontransitory economic activity, i.e. a local place of business.").

101. The Liquidators respectfully submit that, at a minimum, their activities in the Cayman Islands constitute non-transitory economic activity. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 46. The Liquidators are continuing the remaining business of the Funds as part of the winding-up of the Funds' affairs from the Liquidators' offices in the Cayman Islands. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 52. There is no foreign or domestic insolvency proceeding other than the Cayman Liquidation. Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 73.

102. As such, there can be no dispute that the Cayman Liquidations are legitimate insolvency proceedings. Under the circumstances, and given that the Funds' ongoing business activities are being conducted from the Cayman Islands, at a minimum this Court should recognize the Cayman Liquidations as foreign nonmain proceedings pursuant to Chapter 15 and further, to grant the Liquidators the discretionary relief requested.

IV. The Cayman Liquidations Meet All Other Requirements for Recognition.

103. In addition to being foreign main (or nonmain) proceedings brought by duly appointed foreign representatives, the Cayman Liquidations meet all other requirements for recognition under section 1515 of the Bankruptcy Code. The Petition is accompanied by certified copies of the Liquidation Orders issued by the Grand Court, which evidence the commencement of the Cayman Liquidations and the appointment of the Liquidators as joint liquidators of the Funds. The Petition also is accompanied by a declaration that contains a statement identifying all foreign proceedings with respect to the Funds that are known to the Liquidators. See 11 U.S.C. §§ 1515(b), (c); see also Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 73.

104. The Petition likewise is accompanied by a declaration containing the information required by Bankruptcy Rule 1007, including the disclosures required by Bankruptcy Rule 7007.1, a statement indicating that there are no other persons or entities known to the Liquidators that are authorized to administer foreign proceedings with respect to the Funds, and a list of all parties to litigation with the Funds in the United States. See Kennedy Declaration, ¶ 74, Exhibit E. All documents supporting the Petition are in English. See 11 U.S.C. § 1515(d).

105. For all of these reasons, this Court can and should find that all of the requirements for recognition of the Cayman Liquidations as foreign main proceedings under Chapter 15 have been satisfied.

CONCLUSION

WHEREFORE, the Liquidators respectfully request that this Court enter an Order, substantially in the form of Exhibit A to this Petition, granting the relief requested herein and such other and further relief as may be just and proper.

[1] This is a slightly revised version of a bench ruling that was read into the record at a hearing held on November 21, 2011 – one business day following an evidentiary hearing that took place on November 18, 2011. This memorandum decision constitutes findings of fact and conclusions of law with respect to this contested Petition for Recognition. The Court has expedited its ruling on the petition in order to comply with the directive contained in Section 1517 of the Bankruptcy Code which provides that "a petition for recognition of a foreign proceeding shall be decided upon at the earliest possible time." 11 U.S.C. § 1517(c).

JAMES M. PECK
UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY JUDGE:

The chapter 15 petition filed on October 4, 2011 by Chetan Shah ("Mr. Shah") in his capacity as foreign representative seeks recognition as a foreign main proceeding of an insolvency proceeding voluntarily commenced in India on May 31, 2011 by Ashapora Minechem Ltd. ("Ashapura"). Ashapura is a mining and industrial business headquartered in Mumbai, India. It is a public company whose shares are listed on the Bombay Stock Exchange. Mr. Shah is managing director of Ashapura, one of the company's most influential shareholders and an individual who has personally guaranteed obligations owed by Ashapura to its lenders. Mr. Shah has an undisguised personal economic motivation to protect his investment and personal exposure although it is not clear at this early stage of Ashapura's chapter 15 case whether that motivation may also conflict with his responsibilities as foreign representative.

The proceeding in India is pending before the Board for Industrial and Financial Reconstruction (the "BIFR"), an agency authorized to function as an administrative tribunal under the Sick Industrial Companies (Special Provisions) Act, 1985 ("SICA"). There is no dispute that if this Court were to grant the petition for recognition it would be appropriate for Ashapura's proceeding under SICA (the "SICA Proceeding") to be recognized as a foreign main proceeding within the meaning of Section 1502(4) of the Bankruptcy Code. Ashapura is incorporated under the Indian Companies Act, its principal assets are in India, and it has its registered office in Mumbai. See 11 U.SC. § 1516(c). That India is the center of main interest for Ashapura is one of the few issues relating to recognition that is not in controversy.

The version of the SICA statute currently applicable to this SICA Proceeding has been repealed, but implementing legislation for a new and improved statute to replace it has not yet been formally enacted. The unusual procedural posture presented is of a foreign insolvency case that is being administered in its home jurisdiction under the authority of an insolvency regime that appears to have been rejected by the Indian legislature as fundamentally flawed and inadequate but that is still functioning for the time being as a residual and apparently legitimate means, but not the only means, to obtain relief for companies like Ashapura that are in financial distress.

The anomaly here is that the foreign insolvency law applicable to this case is suspect and has been openly criticized as deficient and subject to abuse by thoughtful observers of Indian commercial law. These criticisms have led to repeal of the very same statute that governs Ashapura's SICA Proceeding. This largely discredited law will continue in force until the Indian legislature takes the necessary action to formally enable the new version of SICA to become effective. The reason for the delay in implementing the new law has not been adequately explained and is a curiosity that adds uncertainty to the current proceeding. Despite that uncertainty, there is no doubt that the SICA law in its original form is still being followed in India and, on its face, constitutes a law that relates to insolvency or adjustment of debt within the meaning of Section 101(23).

Mr. Shah's petition has been controverted vigorously by two of Ashapura's largest creditors, Armada (Singapore) Pte Limited ("Armada") and Eitzen Bulk A/S ("Eitzen") (collectively the "Objectors"). The Objectors have questioned Mr. Shah's motives, alleged conflict of interest and lack of good faith and have asserted that SICA does not satisfy the definition of a foreign proceeding in Section 101(23) as "a collective judicial or administrative proceeding…." 11 U.S.C. § 101(23). Armada also argues that the affairs of Ashapura are not subject to control or supervision within the meaning of that section.

Armada and Eitzen are shipping companies engaged in the international shipment of cargo. The Objectors are based respectively in Singapore and Denmark. Each has obtained judgments against Ashapora arising out of separate arbitration awards that were entered in their favor against Ashapura in London. The arbitrations sought substantial damages resulting from alleged breaches by Ashapura of certain maritime contracts relating to shipments of bauxite from India to foreign ports. For reasons that have been neither fully developed nor explained on the current record, Ashapora made the decision not to defend these arbitrations on grounds that the contracts should be treated as void under the doctrine of force majeure. Regardless of the merits of that legal position, Ashapura's conscious choice to ignore the arbitrations and not to defend them has proven to be a strategic error of colossal proportions.

The consequences of ignoring the arbitrations have been disastrous. The foreign debtor is exposed to judgments that together total more than $100 million and is involved in an ongoing fight with the Objectors in multiple tribunals, all in an effort to avoid the consequences of its own failure to deal with the arbitrations in a commercially reasonable manner or to engage the Objectors in good faith negotiations to resolve issues arising out of the underlying maritime contracts. Whether this results from arrogance, ignorance or simply a lack of good judgment on the part of Mr. Shah and his advisors is not clear. What does seem clear is that Ashapura unwisely adopted arbitration strategies that have resulted in massive judgments against the company that threaten its viability, and it now finds itself in the midst of a terribly nasty cross border fight for strategic advantage and ultimately for its own corporate survival.

The arbitration awards were converted into judgments against Ashapura in the United States and the Objectors are in the process of doing everything in their power to locate assets and collect on these judgments. For its part, Ashapora is trying hard to escape its obligations under these judgments that it belatedly asserts are substantially overstated in amount due to the failure of the arbitration awards to reflect appropriate reductions based on the alleged obligation to mitigate damages. For purposes of the contested petition for recognition, the Court does not address the ability of Ashapura to now challenge the quantum of these judgments in the SICA Proceeding. Suffice it to say that the Objectors assert that the current chapter 15 case is the latest example of Ashapura's coordinated efforts to frustrate their rights as judgment creditors and is another indication that Mr. Shah and Ashapura are not acting in good faith.

An order recognizing a foreign proceeding shall be entered if the proceeding is a foreign main or nonmain proceeding, the foreign representative is a person or body and the petition meets the requirements of Section 1515 concerning the petition and accompanying documents. The test does not call for the exercise of much discretion by the bankruptcy court. However, the decision to grant recognition is expressly subject to Section 1506, the public policy exception. This section provides that "[n]othing in this chapter prevents the court from refusing to take an action governed by this chapter if the action would be manifestly contrary to the public policy of the United States." 11 U.S.C. § 1506.

Therefore, the questions to be decided are: (1) whether Mr. Shah's petition satisfies the statutory standards for recognition under chapter 15; and (2) whether the Objectors have established that recognition should not be granted on grounds that to do so would be manifestly contrary to the public policy of the United States.

The evidentiary record of the hearing held on November 18, 2011 primarily consists of the testimony of an Indian attorney at law named Mayur Bhatt who traveled to New York to testify on behalf of the foreign debtor and various exhibits offered by the foreign debtor and the Objectors. Mr. Bhatt has experience in handling SICA cases before the BIFR and is counsel for Ashapura in the SICA Proceeding. Mr. Bhatt acknowledged that the SICA statute does not by its literal terms provide a formal mechanism for participation by unsecured creditors, but he did note that in practice unsecured creditors were given a voice, in the discretion of the BIFR, could receive distributions under an arrangement with creditors and had the ability to appeal adverse determinations made by the BIFR and to have their appeals heard within the Indian judicial system. Although the appellate process admittedly is time consuming, the availability of appellate review and the ability of creditors to participate before the BIFR demonstrate that systemically SICA functions as a collective process that allows for creditor participation. Furthermore, Ashapora offered exhibit "Debtor 2", a written summary of proceedings held before the BIFR on July 25, 2011. This exhibit lists the names of creditors, including Eitzen, that attended the hearing held on that date and supports the testimony of Mr. Bhatt concerning the participation of unsecured creditors in SICA cases. The fact that unsecured creditors are not as involved as they would be in a chapter 11 case in the United States does not mean that the SICA proceeding in India is not a collective administrative proceeding as defined in Section 101(23).

A proceeding is collective in nature pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 101(23) if it "considers the rights and obligations of all creditors." In re Betacorp Ltd., 400 B.R. 266, 281 (Bankr. D. Nev. 2009); see also In re Gold & Honey, Ltd., 410 B.R. 357, 369 (Bankr. E.D.N.Y. 2009). Such a collective proceeding "is in contrast, for example, to a receivership remedy instigated at the request, and for the benefit, of a single secured creditor." Betacorp, 400 B.R. at 281. "The word 'collective' contemplates both the consideration and eventual treatment of claims of various types of creditors, as well as the possibility that creditors may take part in the foreign action." In re British Am. Ins. Co. Ltd., 425 B.R. 884, 902 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 2010). While notice to creditors, including unsecured creditors, may play a role in the court's analysis of whether a proceeding is collective, in determining whether a particular proceeding is collective, "it is appropriate to consider both the law governing the foreign action and the parameters of the particular proceeding …." Id. at 902 (finding that a foreign proceeding alleged to be for the sole benefit of a single class of creditors was a collective proceeding, despite no notice to general unsecured creditors of the appointment of the judicial manager or of actions brought before the court, where all policyholders and creditors would receive notice at the winding up phase and the relevant foreign law allowed parties, including creditors, to be heard in the judicial management process); see also In re ABC Learning Centres Ltd., Case No. 10-11711, 2010 Bankr. LEXIS 4091, *20-23 (Bankr. D. Del. Nov. 16, 2010) (finding unpersuasive objection of party that Australian proceeding was not collective in nature because U.S. creditors did not have adequate notice where notice was proper under Australian law, party had actual notice of the second secured creditor's meeting and the ability to seek redress from the Australian court).

The Court's finding that the SICA proceeding is collective in nature is consistent with this case authority and with the position expressed by the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law – UNCITRAL. "The notion of a 'collective' insolvency proceeding is based on the ability of a single insolvency representative to control the realization of assets for the purposes of pro rata distribution among all creditors (subject to domestic statutory priorities), as opposed to a proceeding designed to assist a particular creditor to obtain payment or a process designed for some purpose other than to address the insolvency of the debtor." U.N. Comm'n on Int'l Law, The UNCITRAL Model Law on Cross-Border Insolvency: the judicial perspective [pre-release] (July 2011) at 19, http://www.uncitral.org/pdf/english/texts/insolven/pre-judicial-perspective.pdf.

The Objectors called no witnesses, although they did cross examine Mr. Bhatt and did offer various exhibits into evidence that were downloaded from various internet sites. These documents appear calculated to emphasize the repeal of the SICA statute and highlight various criticisms of the law, but these exhibits failed to show that the process itself was not collective.

More importantly, none of the evidence offered by the Objectors succeeded in proving the key point in dispute – namely that it would be manifestly contrary to the public policy of the United States to recognize the petition. Counsel for Armada acknowledged during his argument that the Objectors had the burden of proof on this issue. The Court finds that they failed to carry their burden. As a result, the public policy exception does not apply as a basis to refuse the grant of an otherwise appropriate petition for recognition.

Chapter 15 promotes predictability and reliability "by establishing a simple, objective eligibility requirement for recognition...." In re Bear Stearns High-Grade Structured Credit Strategies Master Fund, Ltd., 389 B.R. 325, 333 (S.D.N.Y. 2008). While "recognition under Section 1517 is not to be rubber stamped by the courts … the process of recognition of a foreign proceeding is a simple single step process incorporating the definitions in Sections 1502 and 101(23) and (24) to determine recognition as either a main or nonmain proceeding or nonrecognition." In re Bear Stearns High-Grade Structured Credit Strategies Master Fund, Ltd., 374 B.R. 122, 126 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2007) (citations omitted).

This Court must make an independent determination as to whether the SICA proceeding meets the definitional requirements of Sections 1502 and 1517 of the Bankruptcy Code, but "the determination is a formulaic one." Id.; see also In re Bear Stearns High-Grade Structured Credit Strategies Master Fund, Ltd., 389 B.R. 325, 333 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) (explaining that recognition "turns on the strict application of objective criteria" (citing 11 U.S.C. § 1517)) (additional citation omitted), In re Metcalfe & Mansfield Alt. Invs., 421 B.R. 685, 697 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2010) (citations omitted) (noting that "recognition of [a] foreign proceeding turns on the objective criteria under §1517 …"), In re Atlas Shipping A/S, 404 B.R. 726, 738 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2009) (citations omitted) (same), In re Basis Yield Alpha Fund (Master), 381 B.R. 37, 45 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2008) (explaining that §1517 "sets forth the requirements for an order granting recognition, and sets forth a statutory directive that … when those requirements have been satisfied, a recognition order shall be entered").

Here the petition for recognition appears designed to obtain the benefits of the automatic stay that comes into effect upon recognition. See 11 U.S.C. 1520(a)(1). The evident purpose is to stay the Objectors from taking any further steps to enforce their judgments in the United States to the potential detriment of Ashapora. This has been an objective of the foreign representative from the outset of the case when he first sought a temporary restraining order against the Objectors. The Court issued a TRO and scheduled a hearing for October 17, 2011 on the request for a preliminary injunction and entered a further Order continuing the hearing to October 24, 2011. The motion for a Preliminary Injunction was denied due to a failure of proof without prejudice to Ashapura's right to seek injunctive relief at some future time. No such motion was ever filed. In the interim and in the absence of any stay (and to the apparent dismay of Eitzen), Armada succeeded in obtaining approximately $687,356 from a garnishee in Illinois. In the case of Armada, the automatic stay is being imposed under Section 1520(a)(1) too late to preserve the status quo at least as to that asset.

As for Eitzen, it continues to pursue remedies against Bank of India as part of its ongoing efforts to collect on its judgment against Ashapora. The automatic stay, upon recognition, will apply to those efforts.

Based on the record of the recognition hearing that took place on November 18, the Court grants the petition but does so with the admonition that periodic status conferences shall be held, approximately once every 60 days, regarding the progress of the SICA Proceeding and without prejudice to the rights of the Objectors or other affected creditors to show that the SICA Proceeding, in actual practice, are prejudicing the rights of the Objectors and of other unsecured creditors similarly situated to the Objectors.

The Court reserves the right under Section 1517(d) to grant relief from the automatic stay to the Objectors for cause shown or to take other appropriate action, including modification or termination of recognition, in the interests of justice. The Court also strongly encourages the parties to stop posturing and to start talking to each other in a manner that may lead to a compromise of the Objectors' claims. The Court notes that both sides have a great deal to gain by meeting and conferring, perhaps with a mediator, in an effort to bring these long simmering disputes to a mutually acceptable resolution.
